Poindexter refuses committee questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice Adm. John Poindexter, President Reagan's former national security adviser, cited his Fifth Amendment rights Tuesday and "regretfully and respectfully" declined to answer questions before a House committee about the administration's secret arms sales to Iran and diversion of profits to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

"On the advice of my attorneys I must decline to answer that question ... because of my constitutional rights," Poindexter replied when the House Foreign Affairs Committee chairman, Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., sought to question him about his knowledge of what has become the administration's worst crisis.

Both Poindexter and his attorney, Richard W. Beckler, emphasized that the former national security aide would "cooperate with this committee" at an appropriate time.

"For the past 33 years I have faithfully supported the Constitution of the United States, and have served my country and my commander-in-chief and will continue to do so," Poindexter told the panel.

Said Beckler: "We are not asking anybody for immunity at this time."

Both Poindexter and Lt. Col. Oliver North refused to answer questions in closed testimony last week before the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Poindexter was treated courteously by the committee, although Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., said "it does distress me" that Poindexter was invoking his Fifth Amendment privilege. Hamilton said a "quick check" with the Library of Congress indicated that Poindexter's appearance marked the first time in history that an active duty admiral has taken the Fifth Amendment in an appearance before a congressional committee.

Poindexter reminded the committee that he had requested a postponement in his testimony. Barring that, he said, "I would respectfully and regretfully decline on advise of counsel" to respond to questions on the affair.

Beckler told the committee, "we are, of course, concerned as attorneys by the Department of Justice's recent request for appointment of a special counsel" to probe the Iran-Contra connection. "We want to be sure he ... does not waive any of his constitutional rights."

Poindexter was treated deferentially by the panel at its televised hearing, and several lawmakers praised his service during a 33-year naval career.

But Fascell told him, "You're the key to this whole operation," and another lawmaker implored him to reconsider his refusal to provide details.

Planetarium sale to switch facility; play expense ok'd

The Western Texas College board of trustees--expanded once again to its full seven-member capacity--voted Monday to sell the projection equipment for the college's planetarium and to finance a trip to Fort Worth for the college's award-winning drama production.

Both actions came during the regular December meeting of the board. At that session, a vacancy on the college board was officially filled as City Manager John Gayle accepted the oath of office.

He was named to the Place 7 seat vacated this past August by the resignation of W.A. (Bill) Jones.

Regarding the planetarium, the equipment sale will effectively change it from a planetarium to an added classroom facility at WTC.

WTC President Dr. Harry Krenek noted that the seating arrangement there is ideal for allowing large numbers of students to view educational cassette videotapes.

He said current plans are to purchase projection equipment, estimated at a $2,000 expense, which will project such films on a large screen format.

Krenek noted that a cost analysis indicated last year it cost WTC some $300 every time a planetarium show was held. He pointed out, also, there are no plans to offer any courses related to planetarium studies.

"We found it was not a wise use of our funds," he noted.

The college has a bid offer of $35,000 for the planetarium equipment from officials with Westminister College in Pennsylvania.

Complete lineup of special effects planned at ballet

The facilities at Worsham Auditorium came in for high praise Tuesday from officials with Ballet Lubbock--the troupe scheduled for two performances of "The Nutcracker" here Saturday.

The technical aspects of the theatre, coupled with the expertise shown by local drama instructor Jerry Worsham and his students, will allow the traveling company to bring all of its special effects for the Saturday shows, they say.

"Many times we can't bring all of our good stuff because the theatre might not be able to handle it," noted Toddie Ethridge with Ballet Lubbock.

"But in Snyder's case, we've found Jerry so knowledgable and you're theatre so well equipped, we're bringing almost everything we have."

This means that local audiences will be able to see such special effects as a Christmas tree which literally grows from its normal height to some 24 ft. "on stage."

Other effects used during the production include a fog machine which will flood the stage during a dream sequence; and a snow "cradle" and wind machine which closes the second act with an on stage snow storm.

The ballet troup will be arriving in Snyder Saturday morning for local rehearsals. The day's performances are set for 2:30 and 7:30 p.m.

Dancing the leads of the Prince and the Princess will be Leonid Lubarsky, artistic director for Ballet Lubbock, and Tracy Davis

Shaw to leave position

Gloria Shaw, Senior Citizens Center director the past nine years, has announced her resignation from the post effective Jan. 1 to enter private business in San Angelo.

Western Texas College trustees accepted her resignation at Monday's December meeting.

"My years in Snyder have probably been the most rewarding years of my life," she commented Tuesday morning.

She said her plans include leasing facilities in the Inn of the Conchos in San Angelo, where she will manage a restaurant. Her sister, Pat Clevenger, currently manages the motel facilities.

"It's going to be difficult for me to leave," she said. "Not only do I have a lot of friends, but I also have a lot of loved ones here. The community has been good to me and I just feel a great amount of

Trustees to preview courtyard fixup plan

The proposal will be considered during the regular December meeting of the board, due to begin at 7 p.m. at the school administration building.

The project has been proposed by a committee comprised of junior high faculty and parents. It was first presented to school trustees Nov. 11.

As outlined, no school district funds will be involved in financing the work. Some $10,000 raised through a student activity fund has been targeted for this purpose.

Proposals for beautifying the courtyard include the addition of trees and other types of landscaping, planter boxes, benches, picnic tables, lighting for evening events and covered gazebo areas.

It has been proposed also to have some nature study areas where wild flowers and other plants could be grown.

Using an existing stage area at one end is planned for also.

A proposal prepared by two architecture students at Texas Tech Univesity is to be outlined Tuesday by Dale Byrd, chairman for the committee planning the courtyard.

Other agenda items facing trustees Tuesday include:

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Becoming number one is easier than remaining number one."

There's always good in a disappointing football season. A loss of interest helps the blood pressure problem.

Loss of interest in the Dallas Cowboys and recent events related to Texas Tech have created the ultimate apathetic football fan.

Football has become so boring that even new Cowboy Hershell Walker is talking about retirement. It looks like some of the 'Pokes retired before the end of the season.

Now those Tea Sips have come along and stolen Tech Coach David McWilliams who was recently named SWC coach of the year. Even though he was saying and doing all the right things while at Tech, we suspected he always wearing burnt orange jockey shorts.

We can't really blame McWilliams for heading back to Bevo land. A $20,000 increase in the base salary, not including TV and other perks, is likely enough justification. We noticed that a couple of the perks were a country club membership and two cars.

The blame has to be directed to the Tech administration, especially Athletic Director T. Jones. "T" must stand for Texas. As far as we're concerned, Jones and McWilliams can share a U-haul van.

SMU football may be dead, but its demise can be ruled self-inflicted. At Tech, we suspect the new costly ticket option program is dead, and the grid program is seriously ill.

The cause will be attributed to a staff infection--too much burnt orange.

Last week, General Motors paid $700 million to H. Ross Perot for his stock in that company to shut him up about the inadequacies of top management.

That's a lot of hush money.

Come to think about it, most teachers would have dipped into their retirement funds to pay Perot to shut up about educational reforms.

Ask Us

Q. — Can you compare the local costs for two projects now proposed, the work at the airport and FM 1611?

A. — For the airport grant, the county will be responsible for 10 percent if it is approved. This would equal some $100,000 or more, money which has already been set aside from revenue sharing dollars received in the past. The local expense related to 1611 won't be finalized unless the project is finally approved and the related land condemnation is required. While commissioners have received an estimated value for the affected land, this figure has not been released.

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I recently received your booklet titled "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." It was so informative that I showed it to my young adult nieces. Each one asked if she could keep it for her own use. I refused to part with it, but I realized that the booklet would make great Christmas stocking fillers. So I am requesting three additional booklets. My check for $7.50 along with three stamped, self-addressed envelopes is enclosed.

JEANETTE KERSTNER, WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.

DEAR JEANETTE: Thank you for a fine compliment. This also gives me an opportunity to announce that the new address for all my booklets is: Dear Abby ("How to Be Popular," "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know," "How to Write Letters for All Occasions"), P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Be sure to enclose a long, stamped (39 cents), self-addressed envelope, and a check or money order for $2.50 for each booklet.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks to your column regarding audio hallucinations (hearing music in one's head), I consulted a neurologist, per your suggestion, as I have had this problem. After giving me all the tests (EEG and MRI), she discovered a brain tumor!

Thank God it's operable. Had I not been a devout daily Dear Abby reader, I probably never would have looked into this matter, and it could have been a disaster. God bless you, Abby. You have my permission to publish this letter to encourage other people who hear music in their heads to consult a neurologist. I'm signing my name, but call me ...

A GRATEFUL READER

DEAR READER: Your letter made my day. Call me, "A Grateful Columnist." Read on for another letter concerning that item:

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Hearing Things," I am reminded of this story:

Years ago, a man went to Europe, and being a fan of Mozart for years, he wanted to visit his grave. He found the town and the cemetery and went to visit. He was quite perplexed, because while standing at the grave, he heard music. He went back into town to discuss this with a noted Mozart scholar who, in turn, went with him to the grave to hear this "music."

Once there, they stood very quietly and soon the scholar turned to the man and said, "Yes, you are right, I hear music, too, except it's quite strange — the music is backward!"

Then he knowingly shook his head and added, "He must be decomposing!"

YOUR FAN IN TIJERAS, N.M.

DEAR ABBY: All my life, and I am 80 years old, I have been awakened with a hymn, which I enjoyed singing the first thing in the morning. About six or seven years ago, I began hearing organ music — always hymns I knew. This could happen any time of the day and even in the middle of the night when I went to the bathroom.

At first I thought it was coming from the neighbors' radio or TV. I even turned on my TV and radio trying to find the station. I would say to my husband, "Can't you hear that music?" And he'd answer, "No." I finally figured it was a gift from God, and I would feel robbed if it were taken away.

I am in perfect health and I have been happily married for 54 years. I certainly would never call this music a nuisance. Last week I heard a hymn I learned maybe 70 years ago, and I remembered every word! I think the singing of hymns is the reason for my good health.

THERESA PLETTENBERG, DUNEDIN, FLA.

DEAR THERESA: Even though you regard the music you hear as a "blessing," for continued good health, do consult a neurologist.

Husband's habits cause concern

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I'm a very health-conscious person, but my husband is not. He is overweight, eats large portions of fatty foods, uses a lot of salt and consumes large quantities of coffee and cola (although he has cut down on alcohol). Could years of neglect produce abnormal sperm? We want to have children, but I'm afraid they might be mentally or physically affected because of my husband's lifestyle.

DEAR READER — There is little likelihood that your husband's sperm will be affected by his unhealthy lifestyle. He may develop problems as he grows older, but I doubt that your children will be influenced, unless they inherit difficulties of a genetic nature, such as a tendency to overweight, diabetes or heart disease. Try to encourage them not to emulate your husband's bad habits.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor prescribed a four-month course of Azulfidine (500 milligrams) for ulcerative proctitis. I been taking Peritrate for 25 years. Is it safe to take these two drugs together?

DEAR READER — As far as I know, and in examining the manufacturer's precautions, Azulfidine and Peritrate do not react with one another. Azulfidine, a sulfa antibiotic, and Peritrate, a form of nitroglycerine, are safe when taken together.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I live next door to a truck stop and gas station. I've been bothered by the stinky gas and diesel fumes. Can they affect your health?

DEAR READER — Yes, they can. This type of air pollution can cause a variety of ailments, especially lung problems and a tendency to pulmonary infections. See a doctor to determine if you have suffered any lung damage.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Two years ago I had an operation to clean out blockages in the veins going to my legs. Since then, I've had nothing but pain in my lower back, hips and right leg. My doctors don't know how to treat me, or even what I have. Can you suggest anything?

DEAR READER — I do not believe that your pains are due to the vein operation. I suspect that your problems may be due to back or joint disorders, such as a ruptured disc, arthritis or poor circulation to the muscles of your lower body. Make an appointment with a specialist in internal medicine, a doctor who is trained in the art of diagnosis.

Court rules Jews illegally kept from Baylor program

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Baylor College of Medicine in Houston illegally refused to allow Jewish doctors to work at a Saudi Arabia medical complex used by the country's royal family, a federal appeals court ruled.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld a lower court ruling on Monday that Baylor discriminated against Jewish doctors on its staff because they were not allowed to work at the King Faisal Hospital in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia.

Baylor administrators had not received a copy of the court ruling and did not know if it would be appealed, college spokeswoman Susannah Griffin said on Monday.

However, the Saudi program was discontinued in June 1985, she said.

The program was popular, according to the appeals court, because doctors could treat conditions found less often in the United States and because their salaries were nearly double their pay in Houston.

Baylor anesthesiologists Lawrence Abrams and Stuart Linde, both Jewish, filed suit in 1982 after they were not allowed to join heart surgery teams going to Faisal Hospital.

Their attorney, Stuart M. Nelkin, said he could not characterize the significance of the ruling since the program has been discontinued. Abrams now practices in New York, but Linde is still at Baylor, he said. Linde said Monday he had no comment on the ruling.

The two doctors were told they would not be able to get entry visas for Saudi Arabia because they are Jewish, according to the ruling.

But no evidence supported Baylor's stand, the 5th Circuit said.

James Jacoby

At any world championship these days you're likely to encounter a wide variety of systems and methods. The bad result obtained by East-West in today's deal, played in Miami last September in the World Mixed Pairs, might be attributed to the weak opening bid. But in addition, East must be charged with careless defense.

The two-club opening, a natural bid, was doubled by North for takeout. When South bid three diamonds, North felt compelled to try three no-trump, which East then doubled. South discreetly removed that to four diamonds, also doubled by East. After the spade ace opening lead, West shifted to the club 10. Declarer won dummy's ace and played the king of diamonds. East won and foolishly returned a spade. (He should have realized that South would not run to four diamonds without a six-card suit.) That enabled declarer to shed a heart as he won the spade nine in dummy. Another diamond was won by East with the queen, and now came a heart. Declarer won the ace in dummy as West played the jack. Declarer cashed dummy's king of spades, throwing another heart, and trumped a spade to get to his hand. Now he played out the remaining trumps, and West was caught in a squeeze. He could throw the king of hearts away or unguard the club queen. Either way, South made his doubled contract.

Blame the weak opening bid if you like, but the contract would still have been set if East had returned a heart instead of a spade after first winning the ace of diamonds.

Westerners nip FPC on free throw, 80-79

John Lewis' free throw with three second left was the winning margin as Western Texas College nipped the Plainsmen of Frank Phillips in a Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball game here Monday, 80-79.

Frank Phillips' Glenn Hayes got off a shot with one second to play, but it didn't go near the hoop and the Plainsmen suffered their second straight conference loss and their sixth defeat in 14 outings.

Western Texas, 1-1 in the WJCAC now and batting .500 with a 6-6 season mark, will wind up the 1986 portion of the '86-87 season Thursday in Big Spring. The Westerners challenge Howard College at 8 p.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"We just won, that's it," panned WTC Coach Phil Spradling following Monday's narrow victory. "Frank Phillips played us tough and we just didn't come out to play tonight. I think after the Howard game we're going to enjoy the rest (holiday break). We've been playing a long time, mostly on the road, and we need to take some time off."

Western trailed most of the first half and went into the dressing room behind 44-40. Neither club could dominate, however, and the teams exchanged the lead several times down the stretch. Carlos Harris, a 6-0 freshman guard, led the Plainsmen over the final minutes, bagging eight of their last 10 points. His free throws with 1:17 to play tied the game at 77-77.

Neither team could take advantage, though, until John Lewis scored on a tip-in off of a rebound with about 30 seconds to play. Harris answered on the next trip up the court to tie the game again.

Western's Alvin Lee missed a 15-footer in the waning seconds but Lewis got the rebound and was fouled by Leonard Whyte.

"The game didn't need to be like it was," said Spradling. "We missed a bunch of fast break opportunities and we didn't play good defense at all."

Harris' 22 points led Frank Phillips.

"He's one of the top freshmen in the league," said Spradling. "He's just an exceptional shooter."

George Ransey scored 17 points and Hayes added 16 for the Plainsmen.

Western Texas got 35 points from Lee, who notched three three-point goals. Lewis scored 19 and Kevin Kendrick and Amos Jones added 8 apiece.

Dusters blast visiting team

Western Texas College's Dusters held Frank Phillips to just nine points in the first 13 minutes of the second half and captured an 82-56 victory in their first conference basketball game of the season here Monday evening.

The Dusters, fifth-ranked and 13-1 on the season, will bus to Big Spring to play Howard College at 6 p.m. Thursday. It will be the final game before the conference takes a near month-long holiday break.

Dee Ann Marr, a 5-10 sophomore from Weatherford, scorched the nets for 21 points as the Dusters shot 48 percent from the field. Brenda Welch poured in 18 and GiGi Robinson - in a 10-for-10 effort from the free throw line - scored 14. Five other Dusters scored, including Lisa Thompson and Kayla Thompson, who put in 8 apiece.

Frank Phillips led 8-4 early in the game as the Lady Plainsmen's quickness gave the Dusters trouble. The teams exchanged the lead a couple of times but Welch hit a field goal and Lisa Thompson added two more for a 16-11 WTC advantage with 13:20 to go in the half. The host team went on to fashion a 42-29 lead at intermission.

"Frank Phillips was real quick and they shot the ball well to start with. Thomas (FPC's Gloria Thomas) gave Brenda some problems until she figured her out, and I thought we had a lot of turnovers," said WTC Coach Kelly Chadwick. "I guess part of that was having been off a week before this game.

"That, and the fact that this was our first conference game. The kids were really pumped up. Maybe too pumped up. But I'd rather have us too high than two low," the coach added.

Western's defense made the difference again as the Dusters outscored the visitors 33-9 over the first 13:30 of the second half. Suzanne Irlbeck finally hit a short jumper with 6:30 to go in the game, giving Frank Phillips its 10th and 11th points of the second half.

WTC led by as many as 30 points, but cooled off when Chadwick emptied the bench. In fact, WTC's 48 percent shooting average was marred by the fact that the team hit just one of its last 10 shots.

Thomas, a 5-9 sophomore, scored 24 points for FPC, now 1-1 in conference play and 8-5 overall. Irlbeck put in 13 and Jana Walker added 11. The Lady Plainsmen were 24 of 66 from the field.

Record crowd misses verbal volley

DETROIT (AP) — More than 7,000 who people paid $15 to $18 each to watch the sparks fly between billionaire H. Ross Perot and General Motors Corp. Chairman Roger Smith may have been disappointed.

Smith, who heads the board that paid Perot, its largest shareholder, $700 million to go away and stop his public criticism, praised Perot effusively in introducing him at an Economic Club of Detroit luncheon Monday.

Perot, in turn, restricted his comments to big business in general, never once mentioning GM or his opinion of the ailments plaguing the nation's largest automaker, which has been suffering from slow sales and shrinking market share.

But at a news conference before the luncheon, Perot detailed his frustrations with GM and the events that led to the board's buyout of his shares last month.

In exchange for the $700 million, Perot resigned from the GM board and as chairman of Electronic Data Systems Inc., which he founded for $1,000 in 1962 and sold to GM for $2.5 billion in 1984.

The buyout also included $50 million for three top EDS executives and provided for an arbitration panel to decide penalties of up to $7.5 million if either Smith or Perot criticize the other.

That's what the record crowd at the luncheon paid to see, but it's not what they got. Instead, Perot and Smith sat smiling at each other on the podium, and Smith introduced Perot with a variety of flattering superlatives.

"Ross Perot is a triumphant entrepreneur in the best of American tradition," Smith said. "The company he started mirrors his own entrepreneurial vigor with its aggressive, can-do culture. His loyalty to his employees and theirs to him is legendary."

Smith said EDS "will continue to be a powerful engine in GM's drive toward cost-efficient, electronically integrated operations."

Smith made only one reference to his highly publicized and costly split with Perot.

"Now yes, we do have our differences on means and methods and Ross and I may not always see eye-to-eye on how to get things done, but we certainly do agree on what needs to be done," Smith said.

In his speech, Perot said U.S. big business leaders have blamed everyone but themselves for ground lost in international competition.

"We are the leaders and we must provide the leadership," he said, adding that U.S. companies must keep production in this country to provide jobs to fuel the U.S. economy and to maintain independence in case of war.

"It is our responsibility to keep our people at work," he said.

Before the luncheon, Perot said he mentioned a buyout in a June letter, but only as an alternative to three other suggestions for moving more quickly to turn GM around.

College okays equipment sale

A group from there is now scheduled to travel to WTC to inspect the equipment. It has been noted the actual sale is contingent upon this inspection.

In addition Monday, the board approved an expense estimated at just over $5,000 for a one-week stay in Fort Worth by cast and crew members of the WTC production "Terra Nova."

The play has been selected to compete there Jan. 20-27 for regional competition sponsored by the American College Theatre Festival.

WTC is the only junior college production selected of eight plays. Other schools chosen incluce Texas Tech University, North Texas State University, Texas Wesleyan College, the University of Arkansas, the University of Louisiana, Southeast Oklahoma State University and Tulane University.

Prior to the competition, a final hometown performance is now scheduled Jan. 16 in the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

During Monday's routine approval of bills, board member Roy Baze stipulated one exception, the purchase of 14 golf carts for the WTC golf course amounting to some $24,000.

Baze noted that as proposed, the purchase--reduced to some $17,000 after trade-ins--would require an amendment to the operating budget. He pointed out in the original motion to purchase the carts, he stipulated they be purchased only if a way was found to use college surplus funds for the purchase--in this way avoiding an "increase" in the college's operating budget.

The board directed financial officer Gay Hickman to bring the purchase item to them again in January and to find a way to fund these items with existing budget monies.

In other board action, trustees voted to:

—Approve the purchase of six IBM personal computers and six monochrome monitors with parallel printer adapters. The purchase was awarded to low bidder IBM Corp. of Lubbock, estimating $6,132--a cost of $1,000 per computer. Original plans were to buy three computers, but the price of $1,000--approximately one-half of the normal price--prompted college officials to increase this to six. Contingency funds will be used to make up the difference, it was noted. Two other bids were submitted, a $6,600 estimate from the Studio of Memories, Snyder, and an $8,568 bid from Manchester Equipment Company of Hauppauge, N.Y.

—Approve the bid of Snyder Janitorial Supply to purchase a year's worth of janitorial supplies. SJS bid $3,123, a slightly higher amount than the low bidder, Pollock Paper Company of Wichita Falls, estimating $2,970. Trustees opted for the local dealer due to the small difference in the bid amount ($153 or some 5 percent) and the board's direction to keep local tax dollars local when the bid difference is 5 percent or less. Other bids were submitted by a Lubbock and an Abilene firm for $3,169 and $3,191 respectively.

—Adopt a resolution authorizing a contract with the Austin firm of Gates Steen for the collection of delinquent college district taxes.

—Accept "with regret" the resignation of Gloria Shaw, director for the Senior Citizens Center (see related story).

love down at the Senior Center. But it is time for me to have a new chapter in my life."

Shaw's professional experience includes some seven years experience with Greyhound Food Management Co. As part of that firm, she served as food manager for Texas Instruments in Richardson, Fort Worth National Bank in Fort Worth, Honeywell in Oklahoma City and on the Capitol grounds in Baton Rouge, La.

She served as director of food service at Paris Junior College for 18 months prior to moving to Snyder in 1976. She assumed duties at the center in 1977.

A committee of city, county and WTC leaders will begin an immediate search for her replacement.

"The center is a good one, a progressive one. The staff is a good staff and everything is headed in a positive direction. The next director will be able to handle it," Shaw added.

Local oil firm receives fine

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission assessed $19,000 in administrative penalties Monday to six oil and gas operators for problems under the Commission's well plugging regulations, including a Scurry County company.

Five of the companies failed to appear at Commission hearings called to examine plugging rule violations on company-operated leases. The local company and the penalties assessed included A.C.A. Production Co., $5,000 for two wells on the J.D. Smallwood Heirs "A" lease.

To date in 1986, the Commission has levied more than $1.53 million in pollution and well plugging penalties, exceeding the $1.11 million assessed for such penalties last year.

Wright says nomination charged with unexpected emotionalism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Jim Wright said emotion unexpectedly surged through him when he stood to accept his unanimous nomination by the Democratic Party as the next House speaker despite knowing for months the job would be his.

"I had been looking forward to this for a long time, but didn't expect it to have such an emotional effect on me," said the lean congressman from Weatherford after being chosen as speaker on Monday.

Following his nomination by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, Wright thanked several individual congressmen for their help and pledged to used all of his skills to make the House an effective Democratic policy-making machine.

Then, with his voice taking a low, solemn tone, the newly nominated speaker thanked his family and his wife, Betty, who sat in the House gallery, for putting up with his absences from home over the years he has served as a Democratic leader.

The full House must ratify Wright's nomination on Jan. 6, when the 100th Congress begins. Democrats hold an 81-vote majority and party allegiance in such a vote is nearly absolute.

Wright will be working with a newly elected Senate Democratic majority, and as speaker, will be second in the line of presidential succession.

The 63-year-old Texan said he would continue to rely on the advice of Rep. Thomas S. Foley, unanimously declared majority leader on Wednesday, saying the congressman from Washington has acted as a check on Wright over the years they worked together as majority leader and whip under retiring speaker Thomas P. O'Niell.

"Sometimes I am too prone to shoot from the hip," Wright said. "Tom helps me slow down ... and avoid stepping in a gopher hole."

Wright told the party caucus he plans to deal swiftly to cut into the bloated national debt, restructure the nation's farm policy and pass a comprehensive trade bill.

"This is a time when I believe the legislative branch — with united leadership in the House and the Senate — can renew its rightful role as a major initiator of policy of the United States," the newly chosen Speaker said.

He said that in order to reverse the nation's debt problem Democrats would have to either dramatically cut the president's massive military buildup or significantly increase revenues or both.

Study calls for education to counter teen pregnancy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teenage sex, which results in a million pregnancies a year, must be countered with aggressive sex education programs and "diligent contraceptive use" to reduce births and abortions among the nation's youth, said a study released today.

An expert panel assembled by the National Research Council, following a two-year study of teen-age pregnancy, said "the highest priority" must be given to pregnancy prevention — including widespread distribution of birth control devices to youths.

There is little evidence that existing efforts to discourage teenagers from engaging in sex are effective and no convincing data that the availability of contraceptive services encourages early sex, the panel said.

"The panel believes that the major strategy for reducing early unintended pregnancy must be the encouragement of diligent contraceptive use by all sexually active teen-agers," concluded the 337-page report from the research council.

Accordingly, the panel said birth control pills are the best contraceptives for young women and should be encouraged for the sexually active. It also endorsed the widespread distribution of condoms at low cost where teenage boys congregate.

The study said about one million teen-age American girls become pregnant each year, with 470,000 giving birth and 400,000 obtaining abortions. About half the mothers are younger than 18 years of age.

This teen pregnancy rate is higher in the United States than other industrialized countries, even though the ages of starting sex and levels of sexual activity are comparable, the report said.

Priority must be given to stopping these pregnancies through sex education and contraception, followed by programs to encourage youths to delay sexual initiation and assume more responsibility for their actions, the report said.

Although prevention through abstinence or contraception is far preferable to unintended pregnancy, the legal options of abortion or adoption should be available to a young woman unable or unwilling to bear a child, the report said.

There is no scientific basis for restricting the availability of abortions to teen-agers, said the panel, adding that "minor adolescents should be encouraged, but not required, to involve their parents and partners in the decision-making process."

The panel also said society must avoid treating teen pregnancy as a problem solely of girls. The attitudes, motivations and behavior of boys are central to the problem and must get more attention, it said.

The study, supported by five major philanthropic foundations, was conducted by a 15-member panel of doctors, social scientists and public health experts chaired by Dr. Daniel D. Federman of Harvard Medical School.

The National Research Council is the research arm of the National Academy of Sciences, an independent, federally-chartered study organization which investigates technical issues for the federal government and others.

The report noted that the problem of adolescent pregnancy and childbearing is a controversial matter of national concern that stirs "so many deep-seated emotions and convictions."

Poll says many feel God offers guidance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politicians' claims to be guided by God may strike "a responsive chord" rather than irking people since millions of Americans have felt divine guidance, too, pollster George Gallup Jr. says.

He commented Monday after release of a survey on religious attitudes conducted by the Gallup Organization for the Rev. Pat Robertson's Christian Broadcasting Network.

Opponents have tried to attack Robertson by ridiculing his statements that he was being guided by God in deciding whether to run for the presidency and that his praying had helped keep a hurricane away from the Virginia shore, where his operation is based.

But the new poll's results suggest such a tactic may be of little use.

Gallup said in an interview that 69 percent of adult Americans questioned in the survey said God has led or guided them in making decisions and 36 percent said God has spoken directly to them "through some means."

With that personal experience, "the public understands when a leader says God has spoken to him or guided him to take a specific course of action," Gallup said.

The survey mentions neither Robertson, who says he will make the race for the Republican nomination if enough support can be identified, nor politics in general. Gallup said his organization is strictly neutral and does not work for political candidates.

Israeli experts help set up experimental farm in state

AUSTIN (AP) — The budding relationship between Texas and Israeli agriculture officials is blossoming into a "blueprint" farm aimed at showing Texans how to get crops from some of their more forbidding farmland.

"What we hope to have here is not just a science fair demonstration of technologies but actual working farms that are economically feasible for our farmers to be able to shift into," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower said Monday after meeting with Arie Nechamkin, Israel's minister of agriculture.

The plan is to use Israeli experts to help develop the special farm on a 135-acre tract owned by Laredo Junior College. The scrubland is along the Rio Grande, and Hightower said the Israelis can help turn it into good acreage for new crops in the area.

Included, perhaps, will be Christmas trees, an area that Nechamkin acknowledged is not a priority product in his Jewish state.

"If this is economically viable, we are agreeable," he said. "With us, we're not big experts because these isn't a big demand for Christmas trees" in Israel.

Nechamkin, who spoke through an interpreter, joined Hightower at a Capitol news conference. The Israeli official is on a four-day tour of Texas.

Hightower has aggressively worked on establishing links with Israeli farm experts because he believes Israel has solved many of the problems now faced in Texas.

"There is a very logical connection between the state of Texas and the state of Israel. In addition to us sharing very handsome ministers of agriculture on both sides, we also happen to share the same latitude on the globe. We have very similar soil and climate conditions," Hightower said.

He said Israel and Texas also share an attitude.

"You cannot tell a Texan or an Israeli that you cannot do something," said Hightower, who toured Israeli farms in November.

A team of Israeli farm experts will come to Laredo next year to evaluate the land that will be developed into a farm.

The Jewish National Fund, a private fund-raising organization, will pay the approximately $50,000 cost of the preparation studies.

Hightower said the farm could be used to show South Texas farmers how such traditionally non-productive land can be used to raise Christmas trees, fish, cut flowers, specialty vegetables and other products.

"Because of the depression in our overall agriculture economy in this nation and also here in Texas, we have got to find new crops that make sense for the farmer and rancher. If we're not making money on corn and cows and cotton, then we need to be moving into some new commodities that do allow our farmers to make a profit," Hightower said.

Nechamkin said Israeli officials also are learning from Texas farmers and ranchers. Specifically, he said Israel wants to produce more of its own beef, and he was impressed with the Texas cattle ranches he has seen on the tour.

WTC seminar slated Friday

Building contractors who would like to be eligible to do home improvements under the Texas Land Commission's Veterans' Home Improvement Program are invited to attend a seminar Friday night at Western Texas College.

There will be no registration for the seminar, which will meet from 7-9 p.m.

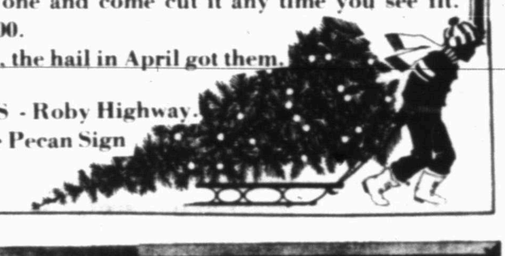

Manny Rivas, a representative of the Texas Land Commission, will be the instructor for the course. He will explain the program and give participants pointers on submitting applications to qualify as contractors for the home improvement program.

Minimum enrollment is 10 and the class will be limited to those engaged in construction.

For more information call E. H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, at WTC. The program is a fairly new one and is administered by the Texas Land Commission which also directs the programs through which Texas veterans can purchase land or homes.
