MR. ARCH BINT should be in sweet potato business, if the vine from his garden we saw terday is an indication of his ility to grow sweet potatoes. Bint planted a good size ch in his garden and rigged an irrigation plan for his et potatoes. This one single nt had something like 25 poes on it, including a dozen ge ones.

Mr. Bint says he is going to te his children out to his e on the Abilene highway for weet potato digging.

ONE OF THE finest entertainnt hours we've attended in a time was the Moslah Temple lies at the high school audium last evening. The iners brought the show to co for an Eastland and Callaaudience in the interest of annual Shrine Circus to be in Fort Worth Nov. 21-29. Some 25 Shriners came here for program. They included Fort rth doctors, lawyers, business and a high police official — donating their time to the proion of raising funds for cripd children's work.

The Shrine cast included four ns who gave the crowd a d many laughs before the w opened. They would escort ple to their seats. For ince, the Bob Clucks arrived. down took Mrs. Cluck by the and another took Nancy ck's arm and escorted them seats. They repeated this permance with scores of people.

MR. JOE Clements of the Bur-Lingo Company clipped an eresting little item out of a mbermen's magazine about mmunity Chest drives. It's itled "The Recording Angel d the Community Chest," and e story follows:

The miser died and approached e gates of heaven, where St. ter and the Recording Angel t him, and proceeded to conct an examination into his fits to enter the golden gates.

First, St. Peter asked him what d works he had done on earth at would qualify him for a avenly ticket. The miser ught a while, and then proudly ntioned the fact that he had ce contributed 25 cents to a rving family, when a neighbor licited his help.

St. Peter asked the Recording gel: "Does that check?" And e Recorder said it checked.

"Well, what else did you do the way of good works?" St. ter wanted to know. After uch thought the miser rememred that a committee for the mmunity Chest had once rked him over, and he gave em 50 cents. St. Peter asked e Recording Angel if that ecked, and was told that it did. Try as he would, the miser uld recall no other good act of s while on earth. St. Peter ndied the situation, and said to e Recording Angel: "I don't ow just what to do with this y. He HAS done something, ough very little. What would u suggest?" And the Recordg Angel, who was a very wise llow with a sense of humor, id:

"I'll tell you what I'd do with m, Peter. I'd give him back s six bits and let him go down."

CJC GIRL NAMED PRINCESS FOR AREA AT COMING SHRINE CIRCUS

Miss Patsy Pogue, 18, freshman student at Cisco Junior College, was named Princess for Eastland and Callahan Counties to the Shrine Circus in a district elimination contest held here Thursday night as a feature of the Moslah Temple Follies.

A near capacity crowd turned out for the Follies at the Cisco High School Auditorium despite rainy weather.

Miss Pogue, as the area princess, will reign as Circus Queen on Saturday night, Nov. 21, and will take part in the Miss Moslah Temple contest as the representative of this region. She is a graduate of Eastland High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Pogue of Eastland.

Runnersup in the contest were Miss Bobby Reynolds of Cisco, student at Abilene Christian College, and Miss Rhelda Reed of Cisco, senior in the high school.

Some 255 Shriners and a dozen other entertainers came to Cisco in two chartered busses for the Follies program. A 15-piece orchestra provided music for dancers, soloists, a quartet and other features.

Paul Hamilton, chairman of Moslah Temple's Circus committee, announced that the annual Circus will feature some of the world's top performers during its Nov. 20-29 run at the Will Rogers Auditorium in Fort Worth. A special booth was setup in front of the High School to sell tickets for the circus.

Cisco area Shriners served as ushers and helped with arrangements for the Follies' presentation here.

Muddy Field Due To Slow Loboes In Tilt Tonight

The light Cisco Loboes will be at a disadvantage tonight as they meet the heavy Cross Plains Buffaloes on Chesley Field in the last non-conference game of the season.

The 1.6 inches of rain Thursday night and the slow rain Friday morning left the football field soaking wet and the heavier Buffaloes should have the advantage of traction. Coaches Jay Williams and Al Langford were worried over their chances following the downpour.

The Loboes will probably play without Benny Edwards, 200 pound tackle, who received an eye injury Wednesday. Friday morning an infection had set in and he was receiving treatment Friday to combat the injury. It was doubtful that he would be suited out for the game. All other players were in good condition.

If the rain stops school officials were looking for a good crowd at the game. Many Buffalo fans planned to make the trip.

The Buffaloes shift their team considerably on offense and defense and the defensive line of

GORMAN JUNIORS BEAT MIDGET ELEVEN IN CONFERENCE FINALE

The Cisco Junior High School Midgets, playing their best game of the year, wound up their conference play Thursday night by dropping a 27-0 contest to the heavy Gorman juniors.

The Midgets fought the heavier opponents to a standstill for the first two quarters until the weight began to tell. The halftime score was 6-0, with Gorman making the six points on an 85 yard return of a pass interception. The Midgets took the kickoff on their own 30 and marched to the Gorman 15 where the pass attempt went astray.

The Gorman line averaged 200 pounds with the tackles tipping the scales at 255 and 225. A Gorman end was six feet three and weighed 210.

The Midgets made most of their yardage through the big line but their wide plays were working well. The blocking was the best of the season and the tackling was sharp. Coaches Bob Zellers and James Wimbish were high in their praise for the playing of their team.

The conference championship will be decided next Thursday when the Eastland Dogies meet the Gorman team in Gorman. Both teams are undefeated in conference play.

The Midgets have two more games on their 1953 schedule, both to be played in Cisco. Thursday night, October 29, they play the Ranger Pups and on November 3 play Moran.

Lake Cisco Gains 12 Inches Water

Moisture-laden skies promised more rain today after Thursday afternoon and night downpours deposited up to two inches on this West Central Texas region. The rainfall measured 1.6 inches at the city hall gauge.

Lake Cisco, the city's water reservoir, had gained 12 inches of new water at 9 a. m. Friday. City Water Superintendent John Rodden reported that the water level at Lake Cisco dam was 33 feet — six feet and eight inches higher than at the same time last year. Lake Birnie, an alternate city supply, had gained 18 inches. Water was still running into both reservoirs.

The new rainfall brought the city's total to about 25 inches, records at the city hall showed. This was only three inches short of the normal 28 inches per year.

The rain was expected to improve the outlook for winter grain crops, but the peanut and cotton farmers were not expected to realize any benefit. Peanuts in sacks on the ground awaiting combines were expected to be damaged. Peanuts still in the ground were not believed to be hurt. Unpicked cotton was expected to have some damage.

Peanut harvest is well underway in all parts of the county, and the yield appeared to be turning out better than expected early in the season. Buyers reported that the per acre yield and the quality of the peanuts was running above what they had expected.

Late peanuts are expected to be better than those planted early, mill operators said. An early freeze would hurt the late crop, it was believed.

Weather forecasters predicted cloudy skies and probable light rain for Friday night. The rain came into this section with a cold front.

HALLOWE'EN IS NEXT

"Hallowe'en is just around the corner, and the traffic goblins will get you if you don't watch out!" This isn't an idle threat from the kindergarten set, it's a deadly serious warning from, of all people, Col. E. B. Tilley of Houston, President of the Texas Safety Association, and Services Advisor for the Gulf Oil Corporation.

"Sure, I believe in goblins," Col. Tilley said today as he discussed the dangers that lurk in Texas streets and highways on Hallowe'en. "But don't get me wrong. I'm not talking about the spooks that bring scared squeals from the youngsters. The goblins I fear, are the traffic goblins who victimize unwary kids as they go about their 'haunting' on Hallowe'en."

He spoke in support of the Night Traffic Hazards program which the Texas Safety Association and the Texas Department of Public Safety are conducting during October.

Col. Tilley pointed out that youngsters are likely to let safety rules go by the board in the excitement of scaring and being scared on Hallowe'en. He said, "Many of the child fatalities and injuries that occur on this holiday are caused by youngsters dashing out into the street, often dressed in dark costumes and wearing masks.

"Masks prevent the children from seeing clearly," he said, "and dark costumes prevent the motorists from seeing them. It would help a lot if parents would try to get the kids to take off the masks when they go outdoors. Parents should also see that the youngsters wear only light colored costumes or outfits trimmed with white or reflectorized material."

"The best way to keep the kids safe," Col Tilley said, "is to keep them off the streets. I know this isn't easy, but if parents plan home or community parties, it can be done."

He urged parents to band together to see that sufficient parties and gatherings are provided in their communities to keep youngsters entertained. If this is done, he said, there will be little inducement for them to go roaming the streets.

He also reminded motorists to keep a constant look-out for children and to be especially careful when driving in residential areas.

WHIPPING IT UP—Famed singer Ezio Pinza seems to be sharing the secret of one of his prize recipes with actress Lenore Ulric in New York. Easy and Inexpensive Chocolate Chip Cookies

What could be better to have on hand for school lunches and children's snacks than those delicious chocolate chip cookies that stay so fresh and moist and tasty?

Made with self-rising flour, they contain the bone-building calcium that helps keep your children healthy and happy. And they always taste like more.

Chocolate chip cookies are real party food, too. Served with ice cream, they make a perfect ending to a bridge luncheon, or a dinner party. Or a plateful served to guests in the evening makes conversation more enjoyable.

They are so easy to make with self-rising flour. You'll like this time-saving recipe, and the results are so good to eat that all your friends will be asking you how to make them. They're inexpensive, too, as well as delicious.

CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIES
½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
¼ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 egg
½ teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cups sifted self-rising flour
1 package (7 oz.) chocolate bits
½ cup walnuts, chopped

Cream shortening and the two sugars together until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla and beat well. Stir in sifted self-rising flour. Add chocolate bits and nuts and mix thoroughly. Drop by teaspoon onto greased baking sheet, about 2 inches apart, and bake in moderate oven (375° F.) 12 minutes. Yield: 4 doz. cookies.

Modern Magic—Old Nylons Become New Lamp Shade

Daphne Dore, TV actress, puts finishing touch on lamp shade made from nylons and lace.

You needn't throw away mismated or snagged nylon stockings. With the aid of all-fabric dyes and simple needlework, they can be transformed easily into an attractive boudoir lamp shade and a host of other useful articles, according to the Tintex Home Economics Bureau.

Head scarves for concealing pin curls when you set your hair, pot holders, artificial flowers and corsages, sachets, and little dresses or bathing suits for dolls are among other items made from re-dyed old nylons.

Ruth M. Hall of Elmhurst, Ill. plans to incorporate instructions for making them in a book called "Teen Craft for Girls," due to appear early in 1954, the Tintex bureau advises.

The lamp shade shown above was made from two stocking tops, satin binding, lace trimming and a wire frame. The old color was taken out first with color remover and re-dyed with rose pink all-fabric dye.

"As It Looks From Here"

OMAR BURLESON
Congressman
17th District

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson has now announced his plan to reorganize his department. His authority for such reorganization was granted by the last Congress.

Although I have supported most plans to reorganize departments of Government in the hope that more efficiency at less cost could be brought about, in this instance I did not vote to give Mr. Benson the broad authority which he now has in connection with agricultural programs. In the first place, he has never been definite as to what his ideas are regarding agriculture generally. But aside from this fact, I did not think it wise to give any one man as much power granted under the Bill.

The plan calls for advance notice of the intention to reorganize. Mr. Benson, just a few days ago, gave that plan to the Agriculture Committees of the Congress. Supposedly, anyone can make suggestions before November 1st as to the changes in the Secretary's intents.

The new organization of the Department of Agriculture puts all of the service agencies under four main groups. They are to be called: (1) Federal-States Relations; (2) Marketing and Foreign Agriculture; (3) Agricultural Stabilization; and (4) Agricultural Credit.

There are few things which cannot be improved upon. Doubtless considerable improvement can be made in the various agricultural programs to eliminate duplication and waste.

On the other hand, there is considerable concern on the part of many of us that some of the most worthwhile programs, and particularly that associated with Soil Conservation, may be impared. Regional Soil Conservation Offices such as Fort Worth, which serves our area, are to be closed.

One of the good features of the reorganization (which actually came about by separate legislation) is the fact that the Farm Credit Administration will become an independent agency on December 5th. In reality, it is not affected by the general reorganization plan, in view of the separate legislation passed by the Congress.

Just how some of the services heretofore rendered will be affected is not definitely known. The following is the general outline of the activities under the four main divisions. You may want to save this outline for further reference:

Federal-States Relations: Agencies in this group would include: Agricultural Research Service, Forest Service, Federal Extension Service, Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Conservation Program Service, and Cooperative Service.

Marketing and Foreign Agriculture: Agencies in this group would be the Agricultural Marketing Service and the Foreign Agricultural Service.

Agricultural Stabilization: Agencies in this group would be Commodity Stabilization Service (including the administration of Commodity Credit Corporation programs), Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, and Community, County, and State Committees.

Agricultural Credit: Agencies in this group would be Farmers Home Administration and Rural Electrification Administration.

You may have definite ideas on some things which should be done. I have had suggestions already both by letter and in personal contact during my visits over my Congressional District. I shall attempt to consolidate these in the best form possible and submit them to the Secretary of Agriculture. If anyone has further suggestions or comments, you may either write directly to the Department of Agriculture, or, if you will send them to me, I shall see that they are properly submitted.

FOR THE FUTURE—A pretty gal in peasant costume with a luscious cluster of grapes means that early-autumn harvest time has arrived in Italy. Many beauties, such as this one in Rome, are adding charm to the country's traditional wine-gathering festivals which celebrate the harvests in mountainside vinevards.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

National Newspaper Week, recently concluded, served to focus public attention upon the value of a free and uncensored press. Perhaps it would be well to stop for a moment and consider the fact that freedom of the press is no accident in this country.

Instead, it stems from a specific guarantee in the U. S. Constitution. The right of freedom of the press is secured by the first amendment to the Federal Constitution, which says, "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of . . . the press." The Constitutions of the several states likewise contain similar guarantees.

Why did the farmers of New England, the planters of the South and the small storekeepers of Philadelphia, New York, and Boston insist some 160 years ago that the original Constitution be amended so that the people would be specifically guaranteed freedom of the press?

It was because the founders of our country had an abiding faith that enlightened citizens could be entrusted with the job of governing themselves. If they could have an unfettered opportunity to read the history and to learn the lessons of the past, to understand the never-ending clash of ideas, to read about what forces are alive in the world, to check on their government as to its activities, its successes, its failures and its abuses, and to write and speak unimpeded — then they could not be made slaves.

The framers of the Constitution believed that freedom of the press would aid in enlightening the people. The competition of ideas would point out the choices of the people. With this freedom, they could decide their own problems better, with more resulting happiness to themselves, their families and their communities. The men who wrote the Constitution knew intimately of those countries across the seas whose governments controlled thought, censored information and made political, economic and religious decisions for their subjects. They believed in the principle of competition and the value of permitting every citizen to develop himself to the limits of his abilities, and they insisted that this right of freedom of the press be recognized by the fundamental law of the land.

Of course, all rights entail correlative obligations and duties. Freedom of the press is not unlimited. It does not permit license, libel, violation of the law nor interference with the orderly running of the government.

With but a few insignificant exceptions, the press of the free world has admirably justified the faith of the philosophy of the framers of the Constitution. From the Argentine northward through the Western Hemisphere, and in the free countries of the Old World, the "fourth estate" has fearlessly accepted its responsibility and has aided in preserving freedom and in checking tyranny and dictatorship.
