Death illustrates ICU problem

By GEORGE H. JOHNSTON

"Code four, ICU. Code four, ICU."

We were touring Midland Memorial Hospital Monday when the words rang out from the intercom system.

Someone was dying in the intensive care unit. A physician, any physician, in the hospital was needed immediately.

It was questionable whether a physician would get there in time.

The patient died of an apparent heart attack a short time after the first physician, Dr. Viola Coleman, arrived.

I was with Dr. Coleman to prepare for a series of stories on a proposed addition to and renovation of the hospital.

The addition would include a critical care unit directly across the corridor from the present emergency room.

We were on the second floor when the code four was announced. We took the first available elevator — there are no elevators for patient-staff only — but instead of going directly to the fourth floor, the elevator went first to the basement, then to our destination.

Fortunately there were no stops on the way up, but the trip took about five minutes.

Dr. Coleman had a resigned look on her face as if to say, "It's happened before, and it will happen again."

Dr. Coleman rushed into the ICU while I waited in the corridor.

Another doctor rushed into the ICU while a woman waited next to the doors. She was talking to a member of the hospital auxiliary.

After what seemed like a long, long time, but was only a few moments, the second physician walked out shaking his head.

He whispered something to the woman standing by the door. Her husband was dead.

Dr. Coleman then walked out.

"You lost him didn't you?" I asked quietly.

"Yes, he stopped breathing on the elevator, and there was nothing we could do to revive him. He was too far gone," she replied.

After the tour was completed, Dr. Coleman said she would never know if they could have saved the man's life if the ICU had been closer to the emergency room.

We continued on the tour of the hospital. I saw the cramped private rooms and the one bathtub serving all 36 patients on the third floor.

I also saw the crowded conditions of the maternity ward where, if too many premature babies are born, they would have to go to Odessa.

We also walked down the two-block long corridor from the emergency room to the first elevator — a trip every critically ill patient must make after his initial treatment.

But the code four situation stuck in my mind. "What if that was a relative, or me, that might not live through that trip?" I thought.

Along with Dr. Coleman, two other hospital officials agree the relocation of the ICU is top priority for the hospital.

Although he knows of no specific cases, hospital Administrator Wayne Ulrich said there is always a possibility the trip from the emergency room to the ICU could be the reason for a death.

And Micky Cappadonna, Midland Memorial Hospital board chairman, said that although he knows of no documented cases, "a closer ICU

Natural gas price control win predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders today predicted victory for President Carter's plan to continue price controls on natural gas, a big pocketbook issue in his national energy program.

"We're quite confident," said Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill about sustaining the administration-backed pricing plan in a series of floor votes tentatively set for this evening.

However, none of the leaders or managers of the legislation would predict victory for the Carter-backed proposal for a nickel hike in the federal gasoline tax.

Meantime, the administration reportedly will not oppose legislation to ban the sale of "gas-guzzling" cars in 1980, even though the provision was not part of the President's energy package.

The Senate Energy Committee approved the proposal Monday, voting to require at least 16-mile-per-gallon performance from every 1980-model car sold in the United States and backing up the requirement with a $10,000 fine for each car that falls short.

The Senate panel acted as the House began debate on a 580-page energy bill and the President called for higher gasoline taxes and continued price controls on natural gas in a statement urging approval of his energy plan.

House leadership is hoping the bill, based largely on Carter's proposals, can be approved and sent to the Senate by Friday.

The Senate energy panel acted on a proposal by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to increase performance requirements for cars. Under the proposal, the 16-mpg requirement will be increased by one

Energy bill provisions capsuled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the major provisions of the energy bill being debated by the House of Representatives:

Residential conservation: Tax credits of up to $400 through 1984 would be provided to encourage improved home insulation, with additional credits of up to $2,150 allowed for offsetting partial costs of solar and wind equipment.

Business conservation: To encourage industry and utilities to use more coal, the use of oil and natural

By BARRY SCHWEID

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, fresh from a long session with President Anwar Sadat, met with other Egyptian officials today to seek an answer to the question of how to represent the Palestinians at Middle East peace talks.

In a 3½-hour session at Sadat's seaside villa Monday night, Vance reportedly was handed an outline of Egyptian negotiating proposals. These were said to have dealt with a potential compromise on Palestinian participation at the Geneva conference, which the United States, Egypt and Israel hope to have reconvened in October.

Sadat and Vance, who is beginning a six-nation Mideast tour, will wind up the talks at another meeting tonight, followed by a joint news conference.

Israel refuses to recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) on the grounds that it is a terrorist band intent on destroying the Jewish state.

Though the Arab states recognize the PLO as the sole spokesman for the Palestinian cause, Egypt is believed to have suggested alternative ways of representing Palestinian interests at Geneva.

In Beirut, Lebanon, the PLO today warned the Arab states against accepting a U.S.-sponsored settlement with Israel without PLO participation.

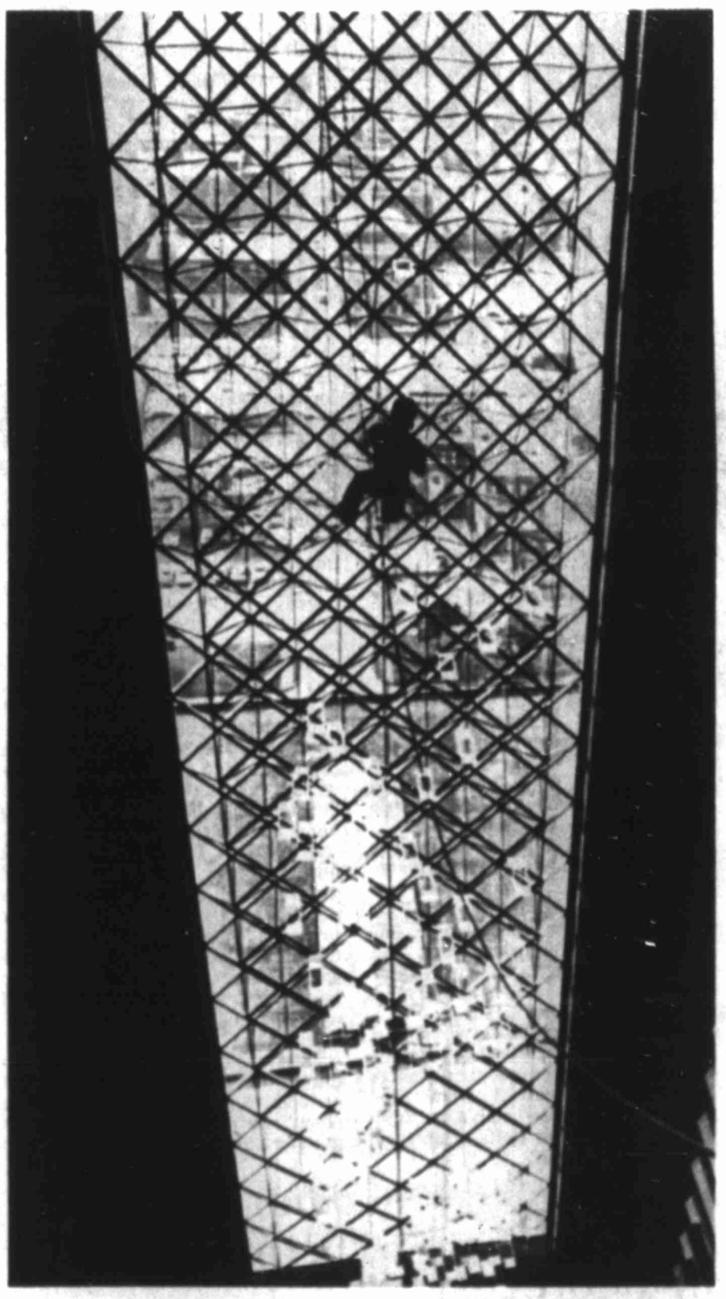

The Palestinian organization called for a high-level, pan-Arab conference to decide on a unified course of action before any commitments are made to Vance. It insisted on equal and independent Palestinian representation at any reconvened conference in Geneva.

"We have been waiting for you for a long time," Sadat told Vance jokingly after the American's arrival Monday.

The Egyptian leader told reporters he was "more than optimistic" about the outcome of the meetings.

Vance said he planned "to see what we can do to speed this process" toward a "just and lasting peace."

Ship passes new limit unscathed

By M.H. AHN

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A South Korean ship carrying 465 passengers today reached a South Korean-held island off North Korea without interference in the first test of the Communist North's new "military sea boundary," a radio message said.

The radio said the 450-ton Ongjin-ho, escorted by South Korean naval vessels, docked at the island of Paengyong-do after an 11-hour voyage from the port of Inchon near Seoul.

The island is within 10 miles of North Korea's west coast and apparently falls inside the newly announced, unprecedented military zone.

North Korea said Monday that civilian as well as military craft were barred from entering the zone without permission.

The area was defined as extending "50 miles from the starting line of the territorial waters in the East Sea (Sea of Japan) and to the boundary line of the economic sea zone in the West Sea (Yellow Sea)."

The North Korean economic zone, announced recently and effective Monday, generally extends 200 miles from shore but is narrower in the Yellow Sea because of the proximity of China. Just how far the zone extends into the Yellow Sea was not certain, but observers estimated it would be roughly 50 miles.

Declaration of the economic zone means North Korea claims control of fishing, mining and other economic activities within the area.

The U.S.-led United Nations Command (UNC) here rejected North Korea's unilateral action in setting the offshore military boundary.

"There will be no change in our operations in international waters and air space," a command spokesman said.

He "reaffirmed the longstanding UNC position that no unilateral North Korean declaration can curtail rights of either side under the armistice" agreement.

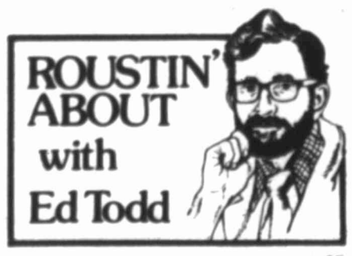

The United Nations Command and North Korea are signers of the 1953 armistice agreement that ended the Korean War.

Flier learns lesson about wind hard way

Kyle Tabor was on a solo cross-country flight from Midland to Jal, N.M., one late afternoon last week.

Naturally enough, it was a pleasant flight for the 20-year-old private pilot, whose pleasure is flying.

About all he ran into, before he hit the ground, was some threatening weather. So he, being a safe and cautious flier, took heed of the controller's advice and was vectored around the storm.

It was a short (53 nautical miles) and routine flight. Just follow the rules, and you'll be okay.

Except Tabor didn't.

He was making his approach in the single-engine monoplane, a low-wing job similar to the one he had learned to fly in, at the Jal-Lea County Airport at about 7:45 p.m.

He wasn't wearing any sackcloth in mourning over his error. But he was patched up with some stitches on his forehead.

He'll be okay.

Anyway, he failed to check the wind and dropped on into the airport. He was landing with the wind, which is a fundamental no-no among fliers . . . if they want to keep on flying.

And Tabor does.

Curse it! He knows to land into the wind.

The airplane came down on the runway all right, but it kept right on going.

"And I was running out of runway," Tabor said, "and I was heading for the fence, and I veered to the right." The aircraft left the runway, missed the fence but hit something else. Hit it hard.

He hadn't enough airspeed to get back into the air.

It was somewhat rocky and jarring off the runway, and Tabor was

Abortion advocates losing hope

By PEGGY SIMPSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The emotional abortion question is returning to the House floor where advocates see little hope of easing restrictions that will deny federally funded abortions to poor women.

House debate today follows release Monday of an opinion by Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell restricting tax-paid abortions even further, by denying them to the victims of rape or incest.

Bell said the controversial Hyde Amendment, which now limits federally funded abortions to those necessary to save the life of the mother, cannot be extended merely because congressional debate indicates congressmen who approved the amendment thought it would pay for abortions in cases involving rape and incest victims.

Bell's opinion of the extent of the Hyde Amendment had been sought by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which has ben paying for abortions under the Medicaid program.

The Hyde amendment was passed by Congress last year, but never was enforced because of court challenges. The Supreme Court struck down a lower court's finding that the Hyde amendment was unconstitutional and ordered the lower court to study the issue further. Bell's opinion makes the amendment more restrictive.

Abortion supporters were not optimistic about gaining more liberal provisions in the House bill, which will cover funding for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, because of complicated rules governing consideration of the proposal.

The bill is being managed by a congressman who says he wants a provision in the bill similar to the Hyde Amendment, rather than a more liberal proposal approved by the Senate. The Senate version would allow federally funded abortions to victims of rape or incest and in cases of medical necessity.

Under the House rules, the congressman, Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Penn., can introduce his own amendment before any others. Abortion supporters, therefore, must defeat Flood's amendment before they can put their own before the House.

But to do so, they must also run the risk neither amendment would be passed, leaving the language in the bill unchanged. And, supporters note anxiously, the existing language bars use of federal funds for all abortions, even if the mother's life is endangered.

Reps. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., and Charles Rose, D-N.C. called on congressmen to support "the more compassionate Senate language."

Big Spring man dies in wreck

BIG SPRING — Austin Morton, 55, of Big Spring was killed in a two-vehicle accident Monday morning at the intersection of FM 1584 and FM 846, 15 miles north of Big Spring.

Morton was an employe of the Howard County Road Department, where he had been employed 16 years.

Three other persons were injured in the accident, including Andres Sanchez of Lamesa, driver of the second vehicle, his daughter Patricia, 6, and Johnny Green, a passenger in the county-owned pickup driven by Morton, according to the Howard County Sheriff's office.

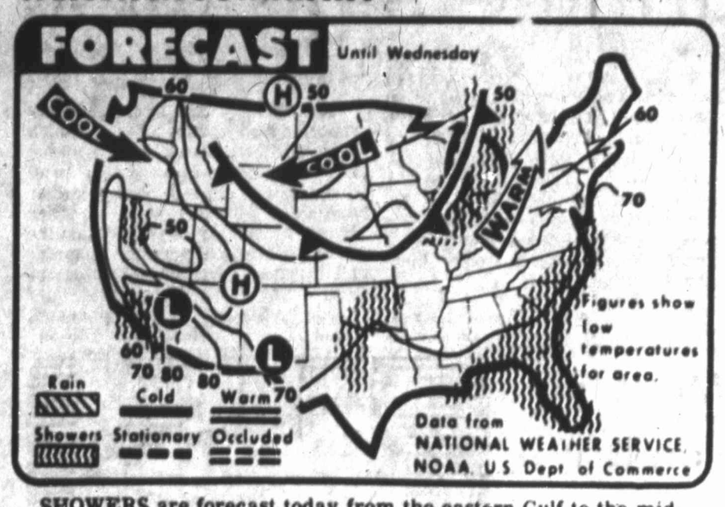

Sanchez and his daughter were hospitalized in Cowper Hospital in Big Spring after the accident. Both suffered concussions. Sanchez also suffered numerous lacerations of his head and body. Green was treated and released at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Morton apparently fell from the truck he was driving and died as a result of head injuries, sheriff's office personnel said. The accident occurred about 8:15 a.m.

Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena ruled Morton dead at the scene.

Sanchez and his daughter were taken to the hospital by Sonny Tucker, a truck driver who stopped at the scene of the accident.

Auto insurance hike of 1.8 per cent favored

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A State Insurance Board consulting actuary today recommended that private passenger car insurance rates be increased 1.8 per cent — far below the 10.1 per cent proposed by the board's own staff.

Insurance companies seek a 17.4 per cent average statewide increase.

Charles Edwards of Dallas, a consulting actuary retained by the board, issued his proposal in writing as the board entered testimony and cross examination on proposed increases.

Edwards' testimony was halted for 16 days when the board granted the insurance industry's request for postponement because some of the actuary's data was new. The actuarial portion of the hearing will resume Aug. 18.

Edwards was able recommend a much smaller increase because he used actual data on insurance company expenses such as agent commissions, office costs, taxes and advertising. He said although board formulas have allocated 20 cents of every premium dollar for commissions and other costs of selling liability coverage, the typical company was paying only 16.7 cents.

The hearing room was packed with hundreds of persons, a considerably larger turnout than in past years, and a board spokesman said they were mostly insurance agents, rather than company representatives.

Agents have strongly objected to an industry proposal that would cut commissions for certain lines of coverage such as collision and comprehensive.

New rates are expected to take effect on Nov. 1.

Charges filed for possession

Charges of felony possession of a controlled substance with intent to sell were filed Monday against Van Tura Smith, 21, whose address was listed as the 3100 block of West Storey Avenue.

Smith was arrested Monday in connection with Midland County Sheriff's deputies' confiscation of a large amount of pills Saturday afternoon at a west Midland duplex.

Deputies seized more than 2,000 pills believed to be dangerous drugs, according to a sheriff's office spokesman. The largest quantity of pills was found wrapped in a sheet and stored in a bedroom of the duplex, the spokesman said.

Bond for Smith was set at $5,000.

Jim Cook

Cook appointed to post at MC

Jim Cook, a former coach and instructor at Schreiner College in Kerrville, has been appointed as Student Services Director at Midland College, according to an announcement Monday by Dr. Al G. Langford, college president.

Cook will be in charge of student activities, including supervision of the Student Senate and cooperation with other student organizations.

A native of Oklahoma, Cook received his bachelor's degree from Northeastern State College in Tahlequah, Okla., He received his master's degree from Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, and will receive his doctorate from Texas Tech University later this month.

Blaze threatens ranchers

CLAYTON, Calif. (AP) — Ranchers herded their horses from the foothills of nearby Mt. Diablo early today, forced from their homes by a raging 3,000-acre timber and brush fire.

"What they are doing is coming down with their horses. There are a lot of them," said Mrs. LeRoy Mae, a Red Cross volunteer waiting for an expected 100 people at an evacuation center. "They are reluctant to leave their homes."

"The whole mountain is going," said Jim Reed of the Contra Costa County Sheriff's Department.

More than 50 homes, most of them ranch houses and several located on horse farms, were evacuated after a lightning-sparked fire, fed on wind created by the swirling flames, spread quickly to more than 3,000 acres. About 500 fire fighters were called to the scene.

There were no reports of injuries.

Firemen were attempting to keep the flames from crossing a road here marking a break between rural ranchland and several new subdivisions and a county jail.

Flames were visible from many areas of Contra Costa County to the east of San Francisco Bay.

The fire was blamed on lightning that apparently ignited dry brush at Mt. Diablo State Park late Monday afternoon, forestry officials said.

A rash of afternoon lightning was blamed for about 10 other Northern California brush and grass fires, including two near Big Sur and a 60-acre blaze at Paradise east of Chico.

Earlier Monday a 2,200-acre fire east of St. Helena in Napa County was brought under control. That fire was ignited Saturday by a spark from an auto.

A 1,400-acre fire in Plumas County also was brought under control Monday afternoon.

Allegation brings challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell is being challenged to document published allegations that former President Richard M. Nixon received a Teamsters union payoff in exchange for preventing Jimmy Hoffa from returning to union office.

Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons angrily denied the allegations in Time magazine, calling on Bell to produce any evidence backing them up.

Fitzsimmons said on Monday that he never "paid one cent to the Nixon administration" as part of any deal to hold Hoffa at bay.

Unidentified Justice Department sources had been quoted in the magazine as saying Fitzsimmons gave Nixon $1 million to prevent a Teamsters comeback by Hoffa, who is now missing and presumed dead.

Fitzsimmons said the allegations have been "circulating like a summer TV movie rerun for more than two years."

The Time story brought no immediate comment from Nixon, who had commuted Hoffa's 13-year prison sentence for jury tampering and mail fraud in December, 1971.

While Nixon's action paved the way for Hoffa's early release from prison, it also ordered the one-time Teamsters boss to refrain from participating in union activities until March, 1980, when Hoffa's sentence was to have expired.

Fair skies, heat forecast

With the failure of a chance of rain to materialize Monday night, the Permian Basin lost its chance to be rescued from the seemingly endless stream of hot, dry days.

For Wednesday, the weatherman predicts temperatures in the upper 90s. Skies are expected to be fair through Wednesday, with a low tonight of near 70. Winds are expected to be from the south to southeast at 5 to 10 mph tonight, the National Weather Bureau at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Cloudy weather was reported this morning in Crane, but the pattern of clear and hot days was not broken in Andrews, Lamesa, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake and Big Spring.

Kupper appointed

ODESSA — Woody Kupper has been appointed director of student life and coordinator of campus recreation by Dr. V. R. Cardozier, president of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Kupper will be responsible for student activities including cultural events, intramurals and all athletic programs.

Commission okays site

The Midland Planning and Zoning Commission gave favorable recommendation Monday for a 4.9 acre land site that will be used to build a 215,250 square foot do-it-yourself lumber store.

The land located on the northeast side of the Andrews Highway, 338 feet northwest of Cuthbert Avenue, is the future site of a Handy Dan Home Improvement Center, provided the zoning request is approved by the Midland City Council.

The commission also approved the request by Midland North, Inc., for a zone change from 1F-1, single family district, to planned district, for residential use on four lots on the southwest corner of West Golf Course Road and Murray Street.

In other action the commission:

— Approved a request by Kenneth Schuepbach and a city initiated zone change from 1F-2, single family district, to MF-2, multiple family district, on six lots at the southwest corner of Keith Street and Humble Avenue.

— Approved a request for a zone change by Casabella Homes, Inc., from 1F-1, single family district, to PD, planned district, on six lots in the 3600 block of W. Wadley Ave.

— Approved a request by James Henry for a specific use permit for accessory living quarters in a 1F-1, single family district, at 3104 Shell Ave.

— Approved a request by Roy G. Harris for a zone change from MF-2, multiple family district, to 1F-3, single family district on 10 lots in the 1600 block of Belmont Street.

gas would be taxed under a complex formula taking into account the type of business and environmental conditions. Firms would be allowed to subtract part of the cost of new equipment needed for the energy conversion against their tax bills.

Institutional conservation: A federal grant program of approximately $965 million over three years would be created to aid in improving energy conservation for schools, hospitals, nursing homes, and municipal buildings.

Natural Gas: The price of natural gas would be allowed to rise 30 cents to an initial level of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet. The hike is intended to encourage producers to look for and to produce added reserves. Much of the impact is designed to fall on industry, but household bills could increase by about $15 in the first year.

Crude Oil: The price of low cost domestic oil would be doubled gradually by imposing federal taxes until domestic and foreign oil were priced the same. The aim is to discourage consumption. The taxes would be earmarked for rebates to home heating oil users and credits of up to $44 on a family's annual tax bill in 1978.

Electricity: Utilities would be required to stop selling power at cheaper rates to industry and to price electricity so that the price reflects the seasonal and daily peak demand costs of producing it. Federal regulators would have the authority for the first time to require private and public power companies to shift surplus power to hard-pressed communities.

Gasoline: The federal tax on each gallon of gasoline would rise a nickel to nine cents, with the additional revenue earmarked for federal secondary road and mass transit programs. Another nickel would be added to the cost of a gallon of gas by the crude oil tax, so the total cost per gallon would rise a dime by 1980.

Autos: A tax of at least $339 would be levied on 1979 cars which get less than 15 miles per gallon, rising to a minimum of $397 by 1985 for cars failing to get less than 23.5 miles per gallon. The maximum tax would be $553 for 1979 models getting less than 12.5 miles per gallon and from 1985 onward, $3,856 for cars in the same mileage category.

Appliances: New major appliances such as refrigerators, ranges and air conditioners would have to meet federal energy efficiency standards. An appliance's energy appetite would have to be reflected in labels.

And he would, after all, be able to visit some friends at Jal. That's why he flew up — to visit. Besides, he'd rather fly than drive.

He had cut his power, but the aircraft was rolling along about 50 knots when it plunged into a caliche pit.

The aircraft was totaled. Its wings were buckled upwards. Its flying hours were over.

Tabor was knocked unconscious.

(Next time he's up, you can figure that flier Tabor just might "waggle his wings" in thanking Jackie Leddingham and Harry Stabler for the rescue.)

"It's good to be alive," said the banged-up pilot.

Right.

"I'm not going to quit," he said.

But it'll be awhile before he'll being flying or driving again. Just a short while.

And this is one pilot who dead reckons that he'll not be making the same mistake again.

"I'll always notice my wind from now on," he said.

Happy flying.

Natural gas price control win predicted

mile a gallon each year for five years beginning in 1980.

The requirement would be 21 miles per gallon for 1985-model cars.

The $10,000 fine would apply each year.

A spokesman for Metzenbaum said Monday night the Carter administration had not indicated direct approval for the proposal. But he said, "We have had a definite statement from the administration that they would not oppose this."

The spokesman said he was optimistic that the proposal would win approval from the whole Senate, noting that Carter last week expressed renewed concern that Americans are not cutting back on their energy consumption.

The spokesman for Metzenbaum said congressional experts estimated the proposal could mean a savings of 26,000 barrels of oil a day.

Carter's energy proposals, unveiled in a speech last April 20, called for a special tax on so-called gas-guzzling cars, but no ban on their production.

The Senate panel also voted to double the fine imposed on manufacturers of automobiles that fall short of efficiency standards going into effect this fall.

Under a law passed in 1975, a company's entire line of cars must average 18 miles per gallon beginning with the 1978 model year.

If the average falls short, a company can be fined $100 a mile per car under the new proposal, instead of the existing $50 per mile per car.

A $10 million bond issue to finance the addition and extensive renovation to the hospital is being proposed.

In addition to relocating the ICU, the bond issue would provide more surgery and maternity rooms, and would also finance renovation of the hospital's older section.

The bond issue will go before Midland County voters sometime in the middle of September, along with an election to create a hospital district.

City manager resigns post

Jack Dillard, housing authority executive director and director of community development, was named interim city manager after the council's executive session Monday in which Neighbors' resignation was requested and received.

In announcing the decision, the councilmen said the request was made to end the controversy between Neighbors and Odessa Mayor Dan Hemphill, a controversy the councilmen said was affecting Neighbors' ability to do his job.

The council praised Neighbors' service to the city for his tenure of nearly nine years in office.

Hemphill publicly had called for the dismissal of Neighbors before an April election in which three new councilmen were selected. The three, Curtis Webster, Fred D. George and Lawson Cook, were among those calling for the resignation.

Dillard has less than two weeks to prepare for a budget hearing before the city council.

Report slated on construction

Midland Housing Authority Commissioners will hear a report on the status of construction work at the city's $2 million housing project for the elderly and handicapped at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Council Chamber of City Hall.

The commissioners will also hear a report on the number of leases signed at the Hillcrest Manor facility, located at Scharbauer Drive and Pecos Street.

GOP charges politics in maritime legislation

By GEORGE LARDNER JR.
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In their harshest attack on President Carter since he took office, top Republican leaders assailed his support of cargo perference legislation as "a blatant political payoff" to the maritime industry and vowed to step up their demands for a Congressional investigation.

Republican National Chairman Bill Brock, Senate Minority Leader Howard H. Baker (R-Tenn.) and House Minority Leader John Rhodes (R-Ariz.) protested in a joint statement that the Administration already has refused to permit the testimony of key government officials opposed to the cargo-preference proposal.

The three GOP spokesmen maintained a Congressional inquiry would be in full flower by now if a Republican President had made a similar decision "in furtherance of a campaign promise."

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell dismissed the complaints as "partisan rhetoric." He maintained that the President's support of the maritime measure was "in the country's interest."

Powell also vigorously defended Gerald Rafshoon, President Carter's campaign advertising director and still an unofficial media adviser, against charges of impropriety stemming from a $500,000 advertising campaign that the maritime industry commissioned this spring on behalf of cargo preference.

Alluding to a memo to the President himself from Secretary of the Treasury W. Michael Blumenthal, the GOP leaders charged that the plan could cost consumers more than $800 million a year by 1985.

Ending weeks of uncertainty, the President last month decided to support a bill guaranteeing U.S. flag tankers nearly 10 per cent of the Nation's oil import market. The legislation is now before the House Merchant Marine and Senate commerce Committees.

The Republicans said that Carter, who received more than $100,000 in campaign contributions from U.S. Maritime interests last year, ignored the advice of most of his major advisers and the protests of 11 maritime nations in endorsing the cargo-preference principle. At present, only about 3 per cent of the Nation's oil imports, which now total some 8.4 million barrels a day, is arriving here on ships flying the U.S. flag. Transporting it under foreign flags is much less expensive.

Baker called the situation "a budding scandal which must not be permitted to be covered up." He said Congressional Republicans will do "everything in our power in both houses" to obtain the testimony of Blumenthal and other Administration witnesses who counseled against any form of cargo preference.

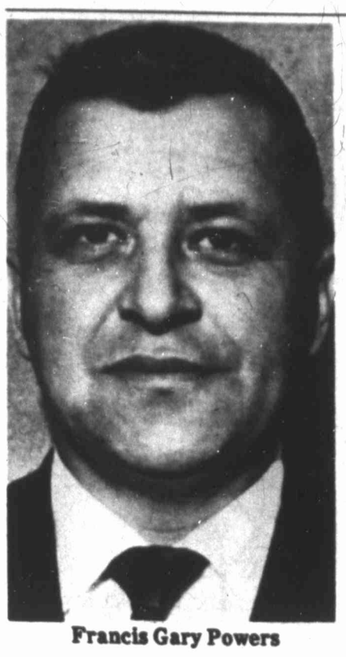

The State Department, the Council of Economic Advisers and apparently the Defense Department also were opposed to the proposal. "Either those witnesses are going to come and testify or we're going to make them wish they had," Baker declared Monday morning at a press conference on the issue.

House Merchant Marine Chairman John Murphy (D-N.Y.) and acting Senate Commerce Committee Chairman Ernest F. Hollings (D-S.C.) last week turned aside Republican efforts to summon various Administration witnesses, including Robert S. Strauss, the President's special representative for trade. In a June 24 memo to the President, Strauss had advised: "Politically, something in the way of a Cargo Preference is going to be very hard to resist."

GOP National Chairman Brock accused Hollings in particular of an "arrogance and autocratic approach that is just unbelievable." Brock also criticized the fact that the Administration's only witness on the issue, Assistant Secretary of Commerce Robert Blackwell, recently was offered a $100,000-a-year job by a group of nine ocean freight companies.

"That just smells," Brock charged, "The Administration has said there is no impropriety. I can't imagine that."

Backwell has said he immediately reported the tentative job offer, which he is still considering, to Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps and disqualified himself from further decisions of the three-member Maritime Subsidy Board. He said the Board is the focal point for "almost" all maritime decisions affecting the nine companies. They carry dry cargo and would not directly benefit from oil cargo preference legislation.

Francis Gary Powers

Famous pilot crashes, dies, in California

By STEPHEN FOX

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Francis Gary Powers, the U-2 pilot whose capture while on a spy flight over the Soviet Union pushed the Cold War into an even deeper chill, has been killed in the crash of his television news helicopter.

Powers, 47, and cameraman George Spears, 43, died Monday when their Bell Jet Ranger plunged into a vacant baseball field in the San Fernando Valley. Cause of the crash has not been determined.

The stocky, softspoken Powers created an international furor in 1960 when his high-altitude reconnaisance plane was brought down by a surface-to air missile some 1,200 miles inside the Soviet Union.

Powers spent 21 months in prison before being exchanged in 1962 for Col. Rudolph Abel, the master Soviet spy arrested in New York. He said on his return to the United States that he experienced "a wave of condemnation" for neither destroying the U-2 nor killing himself with a poison needle given him before the flight.

After the inquiry Powers worked as a U2 test pilot for Lockheed Aircraft Corp., the plane's maker. He was laid off in 1970 and said he believed that publication of "Operation Overflight," his account of the U-2 incident, was the reason.

In 1971, Powers was hired as an aerial traffic reporter by Los Angeles radio station KGIL — a job he kept for five years before joining KNBC last November as pilot-reporter aboard the station's helicopter.

Powers and Spears were returning from filming a brush fire about 100 miles north of Los Angeles when the crash occurred.

Powers, who was divorced and remarried in 1963, is survived by his widow, Claudia; a son, Francis Gary Jr., 11, and Mrs. Powers' 20-year-old daughter by a previous marriage, Dee.

Spears is survived by his widow, Annette, and their children, Terrence, 18, Sharon, 16, and Katherine, 14. Services are pending.

U-2 incident had effects

The Los Angeles Times

"There was a dull thump. The aircraft jerked forward and a tremendous orange flash lit the cockpit and the sky. 'My God,' I thought. 'I've had it now!' "

That was how Francis Gary Powers was to remember the antiaircraft missile on May 1, 1960 blew his U-2 spy plane out of the sky near Sverdlovsk deep inside Russia.

He survived, to be tried and convicted by the Soviets for criminal espionage, to spend nearly two years in prison, to be traded for Russian spy Rudolf Abel and to face questions at home about his failure to avoid capture by suicide.

At the time, it would have been a bizarre thought to picture the former Air Force lieutenant-turned-CIA U-2 pilot as a helicopter flier reporting rush hour traffic for the evening news on television.

The impact of Powers' abortive spy flight — which began at Peshawar, Pakistan — was a powerful one on the course of Soviet-American relations.

The American government did not believe the Russians had the weaponry to knock down an aircraft flying at 68,000 feet, and bungled its initial handling of the incident.

At first, the flight was called "unauthorized," although it soon became clear the CIA had been making a series of such flights from bases in Turkey and Pakistan.

Finally, Eisenhower accepted responsibility for the U-2 flights and went on nationwide television to explain the advantages of such spy flights — which were being discontinued.

The incident forced a drastic reappraisal of this nation's strategic bomber planning, away from the high-altitude attack which had been thought safe from Soviet antiaircraft to the low-altitude penetration of radar nets.

Thus, the B-70 program never got off the ground and the B-52 force was beefed up.

When Powers went on trial in Moscow, the Soviet prosecution made it clear the intent was to convict the foreign policy of the United States.

The trial was held in a spotlight of world publicity as Powers' then-wife, Barbara, his parents and several American attorneys were spectators in the glittering Hall of Columns.

Mayoral candidate announces

HOUSTON (AP)— Noble Ginther Jr., a 44-year-old businessman and attorney, has filed as a candidate for mayor of Houston in the Nov. 8 city election.

Ginther said Monday he had about $200,000 already committed for campaign expenses and hoped to raise more.

He said, "I have a severe name identification problem with Houston voters, but if I didn't think I could improve my name identification, I wouldn't be here now."

Fred Hofheinz announced recently he would not seek a third term as mayor of the state's largest city.

The nine best reasons to fly Continental to Dallas/Ft. Worth or Houston.

1. Air fare as low as $15/$25.*
2. All tri-jet fleet of 727's.
3. 3 man cockpit crew.
4. 43 years experience.
5. Free stereo entertainment.
6. A middle seat in Coach and Economy that folds down when unoccupied for more elbow room.
7. Overhead storage compartments.
8. Three classes of service on all flights.
9. DFW and Houston Intercontinental Airports, with connections to the North, South and East.

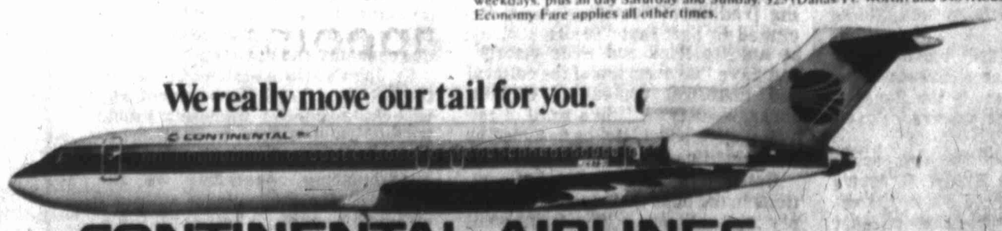

The fare to Dallas/Ft. Worth or Houston may be the same as other airlines, but that's where the similarity ends. Because Continental has all the right reasons for flying there. And from DFW Airport, scheduled ground transportation is available to downtown Dallas for less than a cab ride from Love Field.

Other airlines might give you the same fare but they can't give you all that we can—the kind of service and comfort that Continental is famous for.

For more information and reservations, call your travel agent, company travel department or Continental at 563-2100.

Senate bill supporters to try to bust filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of a bill to provide partial public financing of Senate election campaigns are making their third attempt to halt debate on the measure.

The effort scheduled for today comes after a try to limit debate on Monday gained only 47 votes, 13 short of the required three-fifths majority and two fewer than a similar proposal received last week.

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd declined to say how long he would keep trying to break the filibuster on the bill which the Senate has been debating for a week. He has filed a motion to force a fourth vote Wednesday in case the third roll call vote set for late today falls short.

The bill, urged by President Carter, would provide tax funds to help pay part of the general election campaign expenses of candidates for the Senate. It would not apply to primary elections.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., who had voted Friday against cutting off debate, switched Monday and voted for the cloture move. He was the only one to change his position. Otherwise the difference in the vote was accounted for by the difference in absentees.

It's Mrs. O'Hair again

Atheist leader Madalyn Murray O'Hair, desiring added publicity in connection with the formal opening last week of her new million dollar American Atheists Complex at Austin, issued a number of statements which she knew would produce the desired result.

First, she said she will file suit to remove the slogan "In God We Trust" from coins and as the national motto.

She apparently didn't mention removing the slogan from currency, but she undoubtedly intends to include it in the same motion.

Mrs. O'Hair really is something else. She really works at the business of atheism, and there is no limit to her demands of the governnent, or most anyone or anything else.

She didn't quit with just one demand on this particular occasion. In addition, she said she is seeking removal of the words "under God" from the nation's Pledge of Allegiance.

She is within her rights in making these requests, and the courts certainly would be within their rights in answering her demands with a great big, prompt, meaningful "NO!" She should know that she doesn't have a chance in these particular cases, but she should be so advised by the busy courts, which shouldn't have to worry with Mrs. O'Hair's unwarranted suits.

The nation's very stability is and always has been based on "In God We Trust," and this is the way it must be from here on out.

Mrs. O'Hair plays no favorites in tossing out challenges. She said she also has asked an Austin law firm to file suit in federal court in Austin to stop the "unconstitutional practice of the PTA continual prayer in schools." She has tackled a right powerful, determined adversary in this case. She might wish she had left this stone unturned before the battle is over.

Mrs. O'Hair, who founded the organization, American Atheists, really went right on to the top in her observations of the day. She said President Carter's election has been a "boon to atheists."

Declaring that Mr. Carter is insincere in his human rights campaign, she added that the President "is the best friend of atheists. We hope he will continue to be idiotic about religion and we will reap the benefits."

President Carter will have to work his way out of this one the best way he can.

Peru's press

Three years ago this month the military government of Peru under Gen. Juan Velasco Alvarado seized control of the eight daily newspapers in the capital city of Lima in a scheme to turn the press over to "the people." The net effect was to put government-appointed executives in charge of the papers and, not surprisingly, the press thereafter dutifully supported the government.

A coup brought in a more liberal regime in Peru in 1975, and a ray of hope emerged for the free press. Several journalists who had been forced into exile were allowed to return.

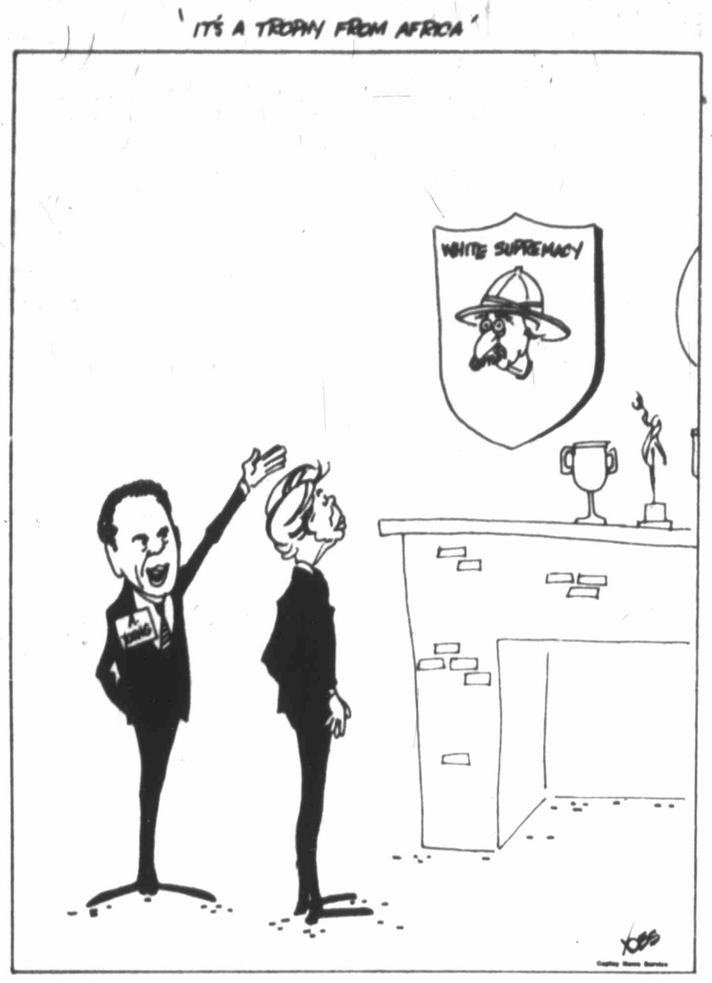

Some weekly papers that had been suspended were allowed to resume publication. Elections are promised by 1980, but the new president, Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez, has yet to revoke the decree expropriating Lima's dailies.

Gen. Morales Bermudez has been earning some respect as a moderate, but the press is either free or it isn't. Peru could take a major step back toward the ranks of countries which respect freedom of the press if he would return Lima's confiscated newspapers to their owners — so that editors would not be obliged to toe the government line.

Cutting White House staff: 'Double-duty'

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — One of President Carter's main priorities is to cut the White House staff by 28 percent in order to save $6 million. The President would like to reduce the number of people working in the White House from 485 to 351, and while all the details have not been worked out many of the staff members will have to double up on jobs if Mr. Carter expects to meet his quota.

While the plans aren't firm this is how the reorganization now looks on paper.

Jody Powell, the press secretary, will still continue briefing the media in the morning. But in the afternoon he will be put in charge of the White House dog kennel. Mr. Carter believes that Mr. Powell's experience with the press makes him the obvious choice for feeding and watering the animals.

Hamilton Jordan, the President's assistant, will also take on the duties of cutting the lawn, seeing that the bushes around the White House are trimmed, and will watch the tourists as they move through the public rooms of the White House to make sure they don't take anything away as souvenirs.

Bert Lance, the head of the Office of Management and Budget, will double as head cashier of the White House Employees Credit Union.

Mr. Lance, who formerly headed a bank in Atlanta, Ga., will have the authority to make loans as high as $150 without taking it to the secretary of the treasury.

Walter Mondale will continue as Vice President, when needed. But he will take on the further responsibility of running the transportation pool and seeing that all the cars at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue are gassed up and in working order.

Joan Mondale will work as housekeeper at Blair House, making sure it is always ready for a visit from a head of state. Assisting her in this task will be the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who will be ferried over from the Pentagon to sweep and make beds and prepare breakfast when an important guest is staying there.

Rosalynn Carter will be in charge of the upstairs at the White House, and Lillian Carter will be in charge of the downstairs. But the heavy cleaning will be done by members of the National Security Council.

Amy Carter will man the White House Situation Room when she finishes school each day, from four until midnight. Then she'll be relieved by her Uncle Billy, who will also be in charge of the wine cellar which is located in the same area.

Joe Califano's cook at HEW will be in charge of preparing State dinners, at which Mr. and Mrs. Califano will be expected to serve when they are not invited there as official guests.

Andy Young will commute between the United Nations in New York and Washington three times a week to act as the White House doctor. In an emergency Amy Carter's nurse will handle minor surgery and dental work.

The President also plans to replace the crew members of Air Force One with his sister, Ruth Stapleton, as soon as she can get her pilot's license.

These are only a few of the changes now on the drawing board. To set an example the President also intends to double up on his own duties. While no one will comment on what he will do in this area, a visitor to the White House told reporters he was in the Oval Room recently when Mr. Carter was measuring Vice President Mondale for a new pair of pants.

HEMISPHERE REPORT:

Marxists attack friendly Latins

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

Latin American Marxists seem to be getting bolder and bolder.

Now they are intensifying their attacks on governments that have been trying to maintain normal relations with the Soviet Union and Communist Cuba and which had even coddled native Communists.

Few are the Latin republics from which news of violent strikes, assassinations and other terrorist activities are not being received.

Now, though, the frequency of such reports from the so-called "democratic" or "progressive" nations is increasing.

The deaths or captures of young terrorists who are known or suspected members of the league have become routine. Usually they are reported in no great detail in the back pages of the newspapers.

But not only terrorists have died. By some accounts, as many as 60 members of the Federal Security Bureau, the nation's top police force, have lost their lives in the fight against subversion in the last year.

Mexico is a country that has always prided itself on the independence of its foreign policy.

In fact, Mexico was the only Latin American nation that never broke diplomatic relations with the Cuban Communist dictatorship of Premier, now "Commander in Chief," Fidel Castro.

Colombia and Venezuela, nations frequently cited as having the only two representative, "democratic" governments in South America, also are being plagued with renewed guerrilla activity.

They, too, maintain friendly relations with the Soviets and they were two of the most ardent proponents of resumption of ties with Communist Cuba.

Yet, according to press reports from Caracas, "criminals who call themselves guerrillas," as acting Foreign Minister Marco Tulio Bruno Celli put it, have been operating in Anzoategui, Bolivar and Monagas states in eastern Venezuela.

The administration of President Carlos Andres Perez insists that the extremists who have been terrorizing the distant rural regions are bandits. But other, presumably informed, sources take the guerrillas seriously.

What is more, a comment by former Anzoategui Gov. Guillermo Alvarez Bajares points up the real threat that the subversives represent to Venezuela.

It is not that bands of 10, 20 or even 100 guerrillas might topple the government, but rather the possibility that government counterinsurgency activities might attract the attention of human rights activists in Washington or London, Moscow or Havana, and give them cause to besmirch Venezuela's image.

Alvarez Bajares, speaking in the name of the opposition COPEI Party, warned that "the government's repressive action increases the atmosphere of fear and insecurity" in Anzoategui.

Colombian terrorists are so brazen that they not only war on the government but also on each other. The Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC), for example, claimed recently that it had executed 10 persons over the last two months for "using the name of the guerrillas to commit crimes."

The National Liberation Army (ELN) also has said that it would execute criminals who kidnap children, engage in extortion and murder peasants, posing as guerrillas. The ELN claimed credit for the murder of the retired air force colonel who was the chief of Colombian civil aeronautics.

Another country where the Marxists have quickened their activities in recent weeks and months is Peru which, though governed by a military dictatorship, has been maintaining relatively cordial relations with both Cuba and the Soviet Union. Peru is the only South American country whose armed forces use Soviet tanks and aircraft.

Nevertheless, "ultraleftists," as Gen. Guillermo Arbulu, the prime minister, termed them, organized strikes and violent street protests from one end of the country to the other, objecting to recent price increases. Observers noted that it was the first time in the nine years that the armed forces have been running the country that the Peruvian Communist Party has openly opposed the government.

The Argentine Communist Party, for example, recently issued a statement of support for the government of President Jorge Rafael Videla, the army general who runs that country.

Mark Russell says

•

Watching President Carter's town meeting from Yazoo City, Miss., the other night, it seemed that, more than anything else, the folks down there need air conditioning in their high school gym.

•

The President would have spoken longer, but they had to get the paper fans back to the funeral home.

•

NICK THIMMESCH

St. John's University: An excellent small college

Nick Thimmesch

COLLEGEVILLE, Minn. — A few years back, many private colleges, nearly all "small," were in crisis. Enrollments had plummeted, budgets had gone red and monster state universities threatened to eat up small schools like so many leftoves.

Academia is healthier now. The small schools which survived the crisis aren't rolling in money, but are doing better. Enrollments are up. A growing number of people began appreciating the more personalized attention and the deeper meaning often rendered at smaller schools.

One fine example of this is St. John's University whose excellent reputation was built through the testimony of its graduates. These word-of-mouth kudos have gotten around to the point that St. John's had to cut off applicants for the freshman class this year.

The campus is located on a beautiful 2,400-acre tract of woodland and lakes in rural Minnesota. That's good for openers. So are the imaginatively designed buildings by Swiss architect Marcel Breuer. More important, however, is the Benedictine philosophy which pervades campus and classroom.

This is not a school which necessarily teaches holiness. Rather, St. John's emphasizes inquiry, a sense of community and facing questions on what values are important. This philosophy is different from the notion that the modern university should mirror society in neutral fashion, whatever society's values are at the time.

To understand the Benedictines is to know they have been around education for 15 centuries, that while they are worldly like the Jesuits, they do not grab the handles of secular power as Jesuits do — a practice which caused Jesuits to be expelled from some countries and also produce ideologues like Father Robert Drinan of the U.S. Congress.

Anyway, St. John's admits that it jointed the academic herd in the past decade and let liberal education slip in favor of specialization. But in 1974, St. John's devised a new plan stressing traditional liberal arts and concluded in part that "students should be able to think and write clearly" and have "an overview of the cultural and historical context of contemporary society. . . " In a word, a college degree should not be designed as a job certificate.

But if St. John's poses moral questions in the hope that students will apply convictions to life itself, while respecting the convictions of others, the school does not avoid the contemporary world. I once heard Benedictines sardonically described as "loving their fellow men, but locking their doors at night." There is more of the "bon vivant" than the monastic in the Benedictines.

In one instance, they operate an impressive data center equipped with the latest computers. And yet they make their own sacramental wine and bake daily 1,000 of the best-tasting loaves of grainbread around. For centuries, Benedictines kept knowledge alive through quill and parchment labors. Now they dutifully microfilm thousands of medieval manuscripts in European and state libraries for their Hill Monastic Manuscript Library here.

To keep in touch with society, St. John's has a national advisory council of prominent Americans from a dozen fields. In recent years, Buckminster Fuller, John Kenneth Galbraith, Saul Bel, Maynard Ferguson, John Denver, Shana Alexander and Dick Gregory have spoken or appeared here. This fall, a debate series featuring national figures begins, with Socialist Michael Harrington taking on author Bill Buckley on whether the public sector should be expanded in our economy and in society.

St. John's also operates a Center for the Study of Local Government and was the founder of Minnesota Public Radio, which Henry Loomis, president of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, describes as the "flagship for the national system," clearly the country's best.

An Institute for Ecumenical and Cultural Research deals with Christian-Jewish relations and provides facilities for Protestant, Orthodox, Jewish and Catholic thinkers.

St. John's, one of the nation's few remaining all-men's schools, will enroll 1,925 students this fall, but expects to reduce enrollment to 1,700 by 1981. Its coed school, nearby College of St. Benedict, has 1,600 female students. Last year, "Johnnies" and "Bennies" took about half their classes on each other's campus so, in effect, the schools are co-ed.

There are no athletic scholarships, but St. John's regularly wins national championships in small college football.

Now St. John's University is neither peerless nor a nirvana. It is just one of many private, usually small, colleges which offers a measure of intimacy and diversity in our higher educational system.

It cannot be argued that private schools alone are the ideal. We need the great state universities, but the danger is that we might fall into the inevitable trap of allowing bigness to eliminate smallness.

THE BIBLE
CAN YOU QUOTE IT?

By LAVINA ROSS FOWLER

1. From womb to tomb, life is full of pitfalls, with parents trying to steer their children clear of them. Solomon tried to prepare his sons to meet bad situations. "Be not afraid of sudden fear ——— For ———.: Proverbs 3:25,26.

2. "Trust the Lord with all thine heart: and ———." Proverbs 3:5.

3. "Be not wise in thine own eyes: fear ———." Proverbs 3:7.

4. "As ye have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also ———." 1 Cor. 15:49.

5. What question did Paul ask the disciples about their complete baptism when he reached Ephesus? Acts 19.

Four correct...excellent. Three correct...good.

Parking problem almost ruins tourists' pleasure

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The universal problem of parking restrictions almost ruined the visit to the Alamo by three Polish men who had driven halfway around the world to see the Texas shrine.

But police in this South Texas city relented Sunday, tore up the parking tickets and ordered away the tow trucks that had been called to haul away the trio's two cars.

"I guess we wouldn't order anyone extradited from Poland for two parking tickets," a policeman said after a reporter had intervened on behalf of the three men who said they left Krakow, Poland, last August to drive around the world.

Andrzej Mokrzycki, 28, the only one who spoke English, said the group had wanted especially to see the Himalayas and the Alamo when they embarked on their car company sponsored trip.

"We didn't know you couldn't park here," Mokrzycki said as he stood with his friends in front of the sun-baked Alamo in downtown San Antonio.

Historic house being restored

LUBBOCK — The George R. Jowell ranch house, built by a skilled stonemason to repel marauders a century ago, is in the final stages of restoration at the Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University.

One of the earliest structures moved to the outdoor museum of ranching history, the Jowell house had remained until this year unroofed and empty, awaiting archeological and historical studies which would insure the accuracy of reconstruction.

It was built in Palo Pinto County about 1875 after the family's original home was burned by Indians. Jowell was away on a cattle drive at the time of the raid and returned to discover his home gone, but his family safe at a neighbor's. It was then he decided to build his second house of stone for protection. It stood, with its gunports to the east, on Bluff Creek, 16 miles northwest of Palo Pinto and near the present Mineral Wells amd Possum Kingdom Lake.

When completed at the Ranching Heritage Center, the structure will have its original outbuildings—a cooler for perishable foods and stone cistern with its charcoal filter for clear water. It will look as it did when it served as headquarters for Jowell's Joly Ranch.

The restoration is being supervised by Prof. Willard B. Robinson, acting director of the Ranching Heritage Center and a member of the Texas Tech architecture faculty.

Seminar slated on alcoholism

BIG SPRING — The Big Spring State Hospital Alcoholism Program will conduct the 28th alcoholism seminar Aug. 12 in the hospital's auditorium.

The theme for this workshop will be "Effective Therapies in Alcoholism Treatment." Melvin Sikes Ph.D.R of the Center for Improvement of Intergroup Relations in Austin will be the consultant for the day-long meeting.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. with the general session beginning at 9 a.m. A registration fee of $1 will be charged with an additional charge of $1 for those wishing to receive continuing education units from Howard College. Persons wishing to receive credit for attendance will be expected to remain the entire day.

The monthly seminars are made possible through a grant with the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, and are held in conjunction with the Big Spring Veterans' Administration Hospital and Howard College.

GOP to build slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican party cannot rely on a "quick fix" to make up for electoral losses of recent years, says party chairman William Brock.

The GOP must instead work diligently to restore public confidence in its ability to solve national problems and represent average voters, said Brock, a former Tennessee senator who heads the Republinan National Committee.

Without specifically mentioning the Watergate scandal, Brock conceded on Sunday that the GOP has been "greatly damaged in recent years." He said revitalization of the party "has to be for the long term. You cannot opt for a quick fix."

He predicted there will be "quite a few new faces" vying for the GOP presidential nomination, although Brock declined to identify potential candidates. The chairman said he has no present plans to seek elective office.

On another Sunday television interview program, Peter Jay, the new British ambassador to the United States, called for test landings of the Concorde supersonic aircraft at New York's Kennedy Airport.

"We feel very strongly that this plane satisfies the requirements, meets the legal conditions and should be allowed to land in New York for the experimental period as laid down by the federal government," he said.

The Concorde, built by Britian and France, is presently allowed to land in the United States only at Washington's Dulles International Airport.

Jay appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press".

Twirler wins solo honor

Melanie Finley, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Finley, was named outstanding advanced solo twirler at Texas Tech band camp held recently in Lubbock.

Springer, Payne wed in Stanton

STANTON—Jo Ann Springer of Midland and Michael Darrell Payne of Stanton were married at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints here.

Raymon Carson of Olton officiated for the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Leonard of Midland. Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Payne of Stanton are parents of the bridegroom.

Attendants to the bride were Robin Houdek of Midland, maid of honor, and Stacy Payne of Stanton, bridesmaid and sister of the bridegroom.

H. A. Schuelke of Stanton served as best man, and Steve Payne, the bridegroom's brother of Stanton, was a groomsman.

When presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ecru lace and crepe fashioned with a square neckline, a tie belt and angel sleeves. She carried a nosegay bouquet of roses.

A reception was held in the church annex with the bride's aunts as hostesses. After a wedding trip to Possum Kingdom, the couple will reside at Route 3 in Midland.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Midland College, and the bride is a graduate of Midland High School.

Officers for 1977-78 were elected during a summer luncheon held by the CPA Wives Club in the home of Mrs. Larry Bell. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Reynolds Lee Foster, Mrs. Ronald Bumpus, Mrs. Joe Davis and Mrs. Jerry Hudgeons.

Mrs. Hudgeons will be incoming president. Other new officers include Mrs. Don Kidwell, president elect; Mrs. Hal Kempf, vice president; Mrs. James A. Anderson, secretary; and Mrs. Wes Williams, treasurer.

Introduced as guests were Mrs. Edward R. Bacon and Mrs. Everett Berry.

AT WIT'S END

Dog lovers employ catchy phrases

By ERMA BOMBECK

I'm as crazy about dogs as the next person, but long ago I realized we had inherent differences.

(a) When I mistrust people, I do not bite them on the leg; (b) I cannot shed all over the sofa and still expect my hostess to be a good sport; and (c) Newspapers are meant to be absorbed...not absorbent.

If I have one major criticism of orthodox dog lovers, it would be their inability to view their pets as they really are...animals. I have noted dog enthusiasts, in particular, have a couple of catchy phrases that seem to be universal.

"He won't bite." This would be reassuriug if it weren't for the fact that the dog is rigid, his teeth are bared, there is a guttural sound coming out of his throat and he has just pencilled a bull's eye on the calf of your leg.

"I am going to leave the room so that you and Killer can get to be friends." That's a phrase that hasn't popped up since they gave Daniel a plastic bone and put him in the lion's den.

"Oops, you're sitting in King's chair." You already suspected that when you sat down and King covered you with his 90-pound body.

"Is that Fritz smelling up the room?" This is awkward as the only other person beside the host is you and Fritz doesn't look like he is going to admit to anything.

"He won't hurt you. He's just (check one) teething, playful, needs attention." Which is exactly what I tell my doctor. "He didn't hurt me. I'm just bleeding, hysterical and need stitches."

"Get down, Brute. She's not used to dogs tearing her stockings." (Could you throw in licking my toes and eating my fountain pen?)

I had one friend who always admonished, "Don't make any sudden moves as Flossie is high strung." Sudden moves included chewing gum, swallowing and breathing in and out. In the eyes of the owner, Flossie had become human.

It became quite apparent one evening when a policeman knocked on the door at the request of my friend. He told him that the police were going to have to do something about all the male dogs who were arriving by bus and trains from as far as 80 miles away to court Flossie. "They are nothing but sex maniacs," said my friend, "And I want them off my property or I will have all of them arrested."

Couple reveals plans for September wedding

DEAR ABBY

Overeating signals problem

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am concerned about my husband's health. He eats everything on his plate as fast as he can, then he starts eating off the children's plates.

He is 37 and admits to having put on "about 40" pounds in the last year, but I think it's more.

He is a physician, so he must be aware of the damage he's doing to his health. When I mention it to him he becomes irritable and accuses me of nagging him.

He's always looking for candy or something to snack between meals, and I'm sure he must be eating at the office, too.

How can I help him without nagging him?—CONCERNED WIFE

DEAR CONCERNED: His overeating could be a symptom of a deeper emotional problem. Persuade him to see a physician even though he is one. (It's said that a doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient.) And if you have to nag him, nag him. An irritable husband is better than a dead one.

DEAR ABBY: It's almost time for my mom to tell me about sex. How can I tell her I already know everything?—KNOW IT ALL

DEAR KNOW: Wait until after she tells you what she thinks you ought to know. You may not know EVERYTHING.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for setting the record straight with regard to the Equal Rights Amendment and the draft. I hope this letter can provide similar enlightenment regarding ERA and community property.

Wives are considered joint owners or property with their husbands in community-property states, namely, California, Texas, Washington, Arizona, Louisiana, Idaho, Nevada and New Mexico. (Women in all other states do not have such protection.)

Another justification for the ERA, even in some community-property states, concerns the control and management of the joint property. In some community-property states such as Louisiana, even though the wife may have joint legal ownership of the "community" property, the management of the property remains solely in the hands of the husband. This means that a husband could liquidate the joint property without his wife's consent or even her knowledge.—BIRCH BAYH, UNITED STATES SENATOR

Reception to mark Youngs' anniversary

BIG LAKE — Mr. and Mrs. E. E. "Peck" Young will be honored with a reception Saturday in Methodist Fellowship Hall. Young and the former Annie Mae North were married July 21, 1927, in San Angelo.

Hosts at the party will be the couple's five children and their spouses, Mr. and Mrs. Milton E. Young of San Antonio, Mrs. Sue Franklin of Spokane, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. Sam W. Young of Opelika, Ala., Mr. and Mrs. Walt Smith of Houston and Mrs. Shirley Sheppard of San Angelo. The Youngs have 13 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Young is semi-retired from a windmill, pump and water well supply company, and his wife has a licensed day nursery. The lived in San Angelo from the time of their marriage until 1958, when they moved to Big Lake.

Shower fetes bride-elect

A kitchen shower honoring Jill Howbert, bride-elect of Gerald Andrew Hancock, was held in the home of Mrs. William L. Adam, 111 Club Drive, with Mrs. Howard E. Davis as co-hostess.

Special guests were the grandmothers of the prospective bridegroom, Mrs. Dalton Conaway of Colorado City and Mrs. Curtis Hancock. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hancock of Tattenham Corner. Miss Howbert's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Van Howbert of 2604 McClintic St.

The couple is to be married Sept. 10 in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Parties to Korean probe wage document battle

By CHARLES BABCOCK and MAXINE CHESHIRE

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A list that details alleged payments from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park to more than 20 members of Congress and other public officials is the focus of a potential legal battle between the Justice Department and the House committee investigating charges of South Korean influence-buying.

The Justice Department subpoenaed the list, and some supporting documents, from a former Park employe, Jay Shin Ryu, but has refused so far to give the material to the House-investigators, according to sources familiar with the dispute.

More than a month ago, Philip A Lacovara, then special counsel to the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, recommended that the committee subpoena the documents from the Justice Department if necessary.

Rep. John J. Flynt Jr. (D-Ga.), the committee chairman, rejected the request, precipitating a feud that led to Lacovara's sudden resignation two weeks ago.

Now Leon Jaworski, the former Watergate special prosecutor who succeeded his former assistant as the committee's new special counsel, has written Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, making it clear he, too, will subpoena the documents if necessary.

In a telephone interview from Houston Monday, Jaworski said he wrote Bell last Thursday expressing hope that the parellel, but separate, criminal and House investigations could work together.

"But I said that I was insisting on some action," Jaworski said. "I'm a good friend of Judge Bell's, but if he doesn't deliver those documents, we'll go to court," he added.

The list is said to date back to the early 1970s when Ryu was a top assistant to Tongsun Park in Washington. The House committee considers it crucial to its investigation of alleged payments to members by representatives of the South Korean government.

Sources familiar with the list said it contains the names of executive branch officials as well as members of Congress, with figures indicating payments next to the names.

The figures translate into what Park claimed were payments that mounted into the thousands of dollars in some cases, sources said. The back up documents apparently explain why the payments were made.

By itself, the list would not prove that the payments actually were made, but it would give investigators leads.

The names of the officials on the list could not be learned.

Benjamin R. Civiletti, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, said Monday that he thought the department had worked out an agreement with the committee about access to the list. He added, however, that the department felt that some "textual material" — an apparent reference to the backup documents — might relate to possible prosecutions and shouldn't be released.

The House committee lawyers are known to feel that the department has no legal justification for keeping the material from them.

Sources familiar with the situation said that the documents were subpoenaed from Ryu's home after his former wife told FBI agents that he kept a large file of work papers at home "that was supposed to be a big secret."

Ryu was a classmate of Tongsun Park's in the early 1960s at the Georgetown University school of foreign service. Other Park associates have told investigators that Ryu was Park's closeft confidant in the early 1970s and the only person he trusted enough to deliver money.

Sources have confirmed that in at least one instance Ryu made a hurried flight from Washington to Chicago during that time period to deliver money to a congressman on Park's behalf.

Ryu has been cooperating with both the Justice Department and House investigations, sources said, but had turned over his only copies of the most important documents to Justice before the House committee interviewed him.

Laetrile study decision near

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A supply of the controversial cancer drug, Laetrile, is being studied at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., in preparation for what could be its first scientific test in cancer patients.

A decision on whether to recommend a federally-financed trial at the institute and elsewhere will be made "within weeks," Dr. Arthur C. Upton, the institute's new director, said Monday.

Upton, named to the job Friday by President Carter, made the forecast during a wide-ranging news conference in which he also said:

—"As a voting citizen," he would vote for a ban on smoking in public places as one way to reduce smoking and thus reduce the cancer death toll.

—"As a doctor," he would also advise Americans who want to lessen their chance of getting cancer to avoid "excessive use of alcohol" and "high intake of animal fats" and to "control body weight," since more cancers are found in heavy drinkers, heavy eaters and heavy users of animal fats.

—He does not endorse Dr. Linus Pauling's view that a high vitamin C intake can prevent as well as help cure cancer — and also prevent colds — but he takes 500 to 1,000 milligrams a day of vitamin C "on general principles."

—He will begin a "critical" examination of the institute's $815 million a year budget — 30 per cent of the entire budget of the giant National Institutes of Health — to see whether there ought to be more stress on finding ways to prevent cancer and somewhat less on trying to treat it once it appears.

Some critics have been saying the institute pays too little attention to environmental causes of cancer, especially the chemicals used in industry. Some authorities think 80 to 90 per cent of all cancers are caused at least in part by some kind of environmental exposure.

Upton called the 80 to 90 per cent estimate "a tantalizing figure." But he estimated that Americans' personal habits cause more cancers than industrial chemicals.

Nonetheless, he said the institute "must" speed up the testing of the thousands of chemicals used in agriculture, food processing and manufacturing, and "to the extent that (doing) this may dictate a change" in the institute's priorities, "I will respond accordingy."

Korean leader's message acknowledges 'excesses'

By Robert L. Jackson

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — South Korea's foreign minister last fall acknowledged excesses by Korean intelligence agents in the United States but disclaimed responsibility for their acts, according to a secret State Department cable.

Foreign Minister Park Tong Jin told U.S. Ambassador Richard L. Sneider in Seoul — according to Sneider's cable to the department — that he and President Park Chung-Hee had previously been unaware of questionable conduct by the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

Sneider's cable said Park Tong Jin told him privately that President Park ordered a cutback in KCIA manpower and in operations in the United States after the president's son-in-law, who was then U.N. Ambassador, had confirmed charges of KCIA misconduct.

Sneider's message, dated last November and marked "secret," was among 35 documents dealing with Korean intelligence activities in this country that the State Department furnished The Los Angeles Times Monday. The Times requested the files last December under provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

The department said it was withholding other material too sensitive to release. The KCIA figures prominently in allegations of Korean influence-buying that are being investigated by Congress and the Justice Department.

In his cable to Washington, Sneider said the foreign minister was "quite pleased" that President Park had decided to withdraw KCIA officers from all U.S. posts except Washington and New York, and to restrict their activities to "straight intelligence."

The Times reported last December that the FBI was investigating complaints by Korean residents in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington that they had been harassed and intimidated by KCIA operatives after they had criticized President Park's military-style rule.

A federal investigator said Monday that the KCIA had been ordered by Seoul "to at least lower its profile and soften its approach" in the United States. He said a number of KCIA operatives had been recalled to South Korea.

Consumer options announced

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In an attempt to salvage its consumer protection agency bill, now stalled in Congress, the White House Monday announced a plan to abolish or consolidate into the proposed agency 26 consumer-oriented government units.

Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said in a letter to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. that the plan would result in a $20-million-a-year saving, or $5 million more than what the consumer agency would cost.

Lance said $11.6 million would come from the reorganization and another $8.5 million from rescinding the "consumer representation plans" former President Ford established last year in various agencies and executive offices. About 200 workers would be affected, but White House press secretary Jody Powell said at a briefing Monday that no one would be put out of work.

Among the offices that would be folded into the new agency are the consumer affairs offices of the Departments of Commerce, State, Labor, Treasury, Transporation, Health, Education, and Welfare, and such regulatory agencies as the Federal Communications Commission.

Explosion kills man

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP) — An explosion at the Lone Star Ammunition Plant 15 miles west of here today killed one employe and caused moderate damage, according to the plant commander.

Officials said Davie Barber of Marietta, Tex., was killed

Sixth victim's mother appeals to killer

NEW YORK (AP) — Stacy Moskowitz' mother appealed today to her daughter's killer — the gunman who calls himself Son of Sam — to end his rampage.

"Don't make any mothers go through the same pain I have gone through," she said.

Holding back tears as she spoke in her Brooklyn apartment, Nyesa Moskowitz said, "I know what I have lost and I just don't want anyone to lose in the same way."

Her 20-year-old daughter died at 5:22 p.m. Monday, more than 36 hours after she and Robert Violante were gunned down as they sat in a car along a lovers' lane in Brooklyn. Violante remains in critical conditions.

Miss Moskowitz became the sixth person to die in the yearold rampage of the .44-caliber killer, who also has wounded seven others. The killer now commands the attention of 300 policemen, Chief of Detectives John Keenan said.

"An animal like this should get caught and I hope he suffers for the rest of his life," Mrs. Moskowitz said. "I would do anything right now to see him brought to justice. I would sacrifice a lot. It won't bring Stacy back, but it might make others safe."

The Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, meanwhile, issued a nationwide appeal for help in tracking down all people who own specially made Bulldog .44- caliber pistols, the kind police say Son of Sam used in all of the shootings. Only 28,000 of the guns have been manufactured.

At Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn, surgeons said Miss Moskowitz died of massive brain damage and swelling caused by one of two bullets which struck her skull, lodging in the base of her brain.

Defense budget wording prohibits base closings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House-Senate conference committee has approved language that would prohibit the Defense Department from shutting down Naval air stations at either Pensacola, Fla. or Corpus Christi, Tex.

The language is contained in the department's budget for fiscal 1978, which the conference committee completed Monday night. Routine approval by House and Senate is expected.

Without mentioning either Corpus Christi or Pensacola, it prohibits the Navy from making changes or consolidations in its lineup of advanced undergraduate pilot training bases.

That training takes place at Corpus Christi and Pensacola. For several years, the department has talked about closing one base or the other and consolidating the training function.

The prohibition was first engineered by two Senators, Democrat Lawton Chiles of Florida and Republican John Tower of Texas. The House conferees who agreed to it were led by another Texan, Democrat George Mahon of Texas.

Beach confrontations continue

By DANIEL Q. HANEY

For the past 12 days, riot-helmeted police have had to break up confrontations at Carson Beach, a three-quarter mile stretch of sand that separates all-white South Boston and the largely black Columbia Point housing project.

Officials say the issue is simple: blacks want to use the beach, and whites want them to stay away.

"This is clearly a matter of racism," said Michael Goldman, a spokesman for the Metropolitan District Commission, which runs the beach.

The trouble began, as it has before, when a group of about 50 black men, women and children walked down the beach from the housing project and laid their blankets and picnic baskets on the sand.

About 200 whites, most of them teenagers, clustered near them while police watched from a parking lot. After a tense hour, a fistfight broke out between a black and a white youth. Police wrestled several people to the sand.

Police pushed the crowd down the beach and cleared a 500-foot stretch of all but the blacks and a few peacefully sunbathing whites.

Officers on horseback waded into the surf and chased white youths who chanted the South Boston High School football cheer: "Here we go Southie, here we go."

Since the trouble began July 22, police have arrested 43 people, all but two of them white.

John Snedecker, head of the commission, said blacks haven't been arrested because they aren't the ones causing trouble.

"The civil rights of these black people are in jeopardy," he said.

Gov. Michael Dukakis said Monday that a special law enforcement group had been activated to speed prosecutions of people charged in racial incidents at the beach.

"The events at Carson Beach during the past week have been a disgrace," he said. "That beach is going to remain open unless it is absolutely impossible to do so."

Workshop set for area clerks

More than 75 district and county clerks are expected in Midland Friday for a daylong workshop on new laws affecting the running of those offices.

Midland County Clerk Rosenell Cherry said the major topic to be discussed is new fee schedules. Election law changes also will be discussed, she said.

The workshop is for Area III of the County and District Clerk's Association. Fourteen members of the state association's legislative committee are expected to attend the workshop and meet with the clerks.

Odessan faces robbery charge

Charges of aggravated robbery were filed Monday against Dennis D. McDowell of Odessa in connection with the armed robbery of a Midland man Wednesday.

According to police, Richard D. Friday and his wife were sitting in a car in the 1100 block of East Gist Street when a man approached them and asked for a light.

According to reports, Friday told the man he did not have a light. The robber then pulled a gun and demanded Friday's money, police said. Friday told police all he had was $1.50 and a pocket knife valued at $4.

The robber took the money and pocket knife, then fled on foot, police said.

Bond for McDowell was set at $20,000.

Officials doubt meeting between Hart, Indians

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Authorities believe that a reported meeting between triple-murder suspect Gene Leory Hart and 15 Indians never took place.

"For all indications there was no such meeting," said a spokesman for the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation. "There is no evidence to indicate anything more than a hoax."

"The meeting never occurred," said Mayes County Sheriff Pete Weaver, after a search of the area Sunday where Hart supposedly met with the Indians.

The Tulsa World reported last week that a reporter was told by an unidentified source that 15 Indians from the American Indian Movement have met with Hart.

AIM spokesmen have discounted the reported meeting, saying that if it had actually taken place they would have known about it.

In a related matter, officials ended the mystery surrounding a pair of shoes found last week that belonged to one of the three young murder victims. Officials said Monday that the shoes have been positively traced back to a dog handler who discarded them during the early days of the investigation of the June 13 killings.

Death illustrates ICU problem

GEORGE JOHNSTON

"Code four, ICU. Code four, ICU."

We were touring Midland Memorial Hospital Monday when the words rang out from the intercom system.

Someone was dying in the intensive care unit. A physician, any physician, in the hospital was needed immediately.

It was questionable whether a physician would get there in time.

In this case it was too late.

The patient died of an apparent heart attack a short time after the first physician, Dr. Viola Coleman, arrived.

I was with Dr. Coleman to prepare a series of stories on a proposed addition to and renovation of the hospital.

The addition would include a critical care unit directly across the corridor from the present emergency room.

We were on the second floor when the code four was announced. We took the first available elevator — there are no elevators for patient-staff only — but instead of going directly to the fourth floor, the elevator went first to the basement, then to our destination.

Fortunately there were no stops on the way up, but the trip took about five minutes.

Dr. Coleman had a resigned look on her face as if to say, "It's happened before, and it will happen again."

Dr. Coleman rushed into the ICU while I waited in the corridor.

An unidentified doctor rushed into the ICU while a woman waited next to the doors. She was talking to a member of the hospital auxiliary.

After what seemed like a long, long time, but was only a few moments, the unidentified physician walked out shaking his head.

He whispered something to the woman standing by the door. Her husband was dead.

Dr. Coleman then walked out.

"You lost him didn't you?" I asked quietly.

"Yes, he stopped breathing on the elevator, and there was nothing we could do to revive him. He was too far gone," she replied.

After the tour was completed, Dr. Coleman said she would never know if they could have saved the man's life if the ICU had been closer to the emergency room.

We continued on the tour of the hospital. I saw the cramped private rooms, the one bathtub serving all 36 patients on a floor and the one toilet to serve each wing.

I also saw the crowded conditions of the maternity ward where, if too many premature babies are born, they would have to go to Odessa.

We also walked down the two-block long corridor from the emergency room to the first elevator — a trip every critically ill patient must make after his initial treatment.

But the code four situation stuck in my mind. "What if that was a relative, or me, that might not live through that trip?" I thought.

Along with Dr. Coleman, two other hospital officials agree the relocation of the ICU is top priority for the hospital.

Although he knows of no specific cases, hospital Administrator Wayne Ulrich said there is always a possibility the trip from the emergency room to the ICU could be the reason for a death.

And Micky Cappadonna, Midland Memorial Hospital board chairman, said that although he knows of no documented cases, "a closer ICU

South Korean vessel passes despite limit

By M.H. AHN

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — A South Korean ship carrying 465 passengers today reached a South Korean-held island off North Korea without interference in the first test of the Communist North's new "military sea boundary," a radio message said.

The radio said the 450-ton Ongjinho, escorted by South Korean naval vessels, docked at the island of Paengyong-do after an 11-hour voyage from the port of Inchon near Seoul.

The island is within 10 miles of North Korea's west coast and apparently falls inside the newly announced, unprecedented military zone.

North Korea said Monday that civilian as well as military craft were barred from entering the zone without permission.

The area was defined as extending "50 miles from the starting line of the territorial waters in the East Sea (Sea of Japan) and to the boundary line of the economic sea zone in the West Sea (Yellow Sea)."

The North Korean economic zone, announced recently and effective Monday, generally extends 200 miles from shore but is narrower in the Yellow Sea because of the proximity of China. Just how far the zone extends into the Yellow Sea was not certain, but observers estimated it would be roughly 50 miles.

Declaration of the economic zone means North Korea claims control of fishing, mining and other economic activities within the area.

The U.S.-led United Nations Command (UNC) here rejected North Korea's unilateral action in setting the offshore military boundary.

"There will be no change in our operations in international waters and air space," a command spokesman said.

He "reaffirmed the longstanding UNC position that no unilateral North Korean declaration can curtail rights of either side under the armistice" agreement.

The United Nations Command and North Korea are signers of the 1953 armistice agreement that ended the Korean War.

By BARRY SCHWEID

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, fresh from a long session with President Anwar Sadat, met with other Egyptian officials today to seek an answer to the question of how to represent the Palestinians at Middle East peace talks.

In a 3½-hour session at Sadat's seaside villa Monday night, Vance reportedly was handed an outline of Egyptian negotiating proposals. These were said to have dealt with a potential compromise on Palestinian participation at the Geneva conference, which the United States, Egypt and Israel hope to have reconvened in October.

Sadat and Vance, who is beginning a six-nation Mideast tour, will wind up the talks at another meeting tonight, followed by a joint news conference.

Israel refuses to recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) on the grounds that it is a terrorist band intent on destroying the Jewish state.

Though the Arab states recognize the PLO as the sole spokesman for the Palestinian cause, Egypt is believed to have suggested alternative ways of representing Palestinian interests at Geneva.

In Beirut, Lebanon, the PLO today warned the Arab states against accepting a U.S.-sponsored settlement with Israel without PLO participation.

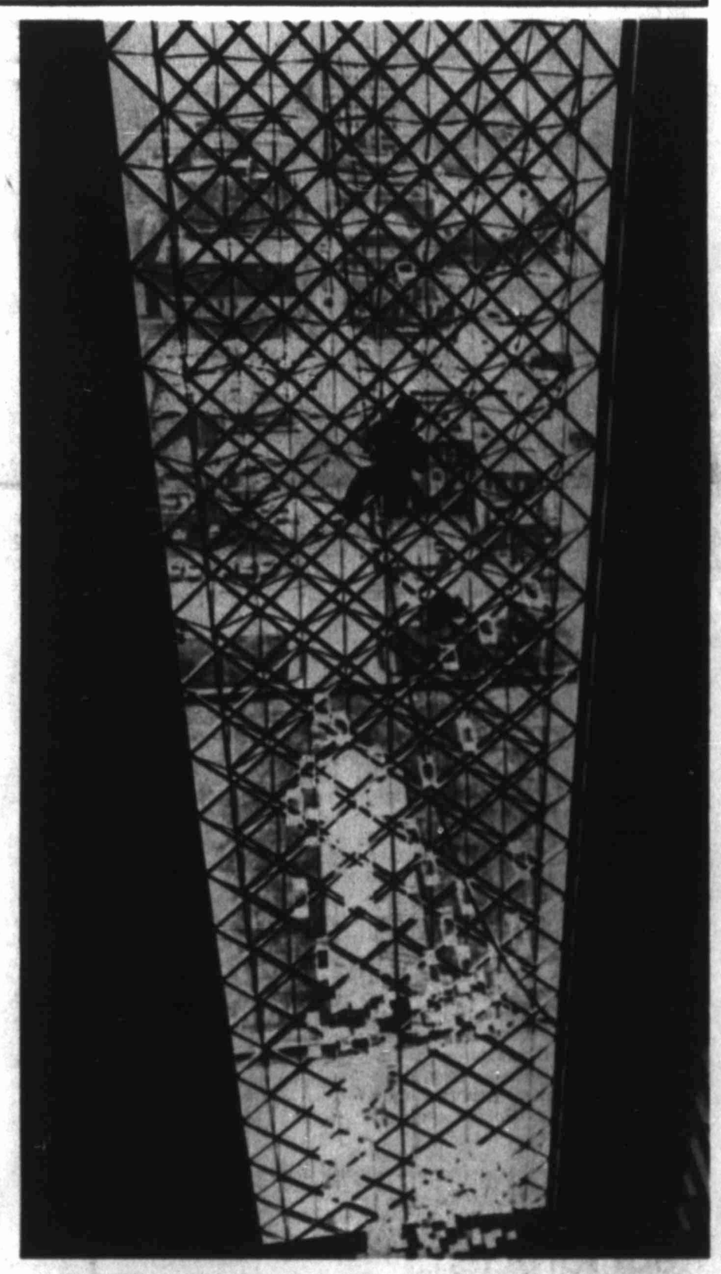

The Palestinian organization called for a high-level, pan-Arab conference to decide on a unified course of action before any commitments are made to Vance. It insisted on equal and independent Palestinian representation at any reconvened conference in Geneva.

"We have been waiting for you for a long time," Sadat told Vance jokingly after the American's arrival Monday.

The Egyptian leader told reporters he was "more than optimistic" about the outcome of the meetings.

Vance said he planned "to see what we can do to speed this process" toward a "just and lasting peace."

Carter won't stop gas-guzzler ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration reportedly will not oppose legislation to ban the sale of "gas-guzzling" cars in 1980, even though the provision was not part of the President's energy package.

The Senate Energy Committee approved the proposal Monday, voting to require at least 16-mile-per-gallon performance from every 1980-model car sold in the United States and backing up the requirement with a $10,000 fine for each car that falls short.

The Senate panel acted as the House began debate on a 580-page energy bill and the President called for higher gasoline taxes and continued price controls on natural gas in a statement urging approval of his energy plan.

House leadership is hoping the bill, based largely on Carter's proposals, can be approved and sent to the Senate by Friday.

The Senate energy panel acted on a proposal by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, to increase performance requirements for cars. Under the proposal, the 16-mpg requirement will be increased by one mile a gallon each year for five years beginning in 1980.

The requirement would be 21 miles per gallon for 1985-model cars.

The $10,000 fine would apply each year.

A spokesman for Metzenbaum said Monday night the Carter administration had not indicated direct approval for the proposal. But he said, "We have had a definite statement from the administration that they would not oppose this."

The spokesman said he was optimistic that the proposal would win approval from the whole Senate, noting that Carter last week expressed renewed concern that

Energy bill provisions capsuled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the major provisions of the energy bill being debated by the House of Representatives:

Residential conservation: Tax credits of up to $400 through 1984 would be provided to encourage improved home insulation, with additional credits of up to $2,150 allowed for offsetting partial costs of solar and wind equipment.

Business conservation: To encourage industry and utilities to use more coal, the use of oil and natural

Flier learns lesson about wind hard way

Kyle Tabor was on a solo cross-country flight from Midland to Jal, N.M., one late afternoon last week.

Naturally enough, it was a pleasant flight for the 20-year-old private pilot, whose pleasure is flying.

About all he ran into, before he hit the ground, was some threatening weather. So he, being a safe and cautious flier, took heed of the controller's advice and was vectored around the storm.

It was a short (53 nautical miles) and routine flight. Just follow the rules, and you'll be okay.

Except Tabor didn't.

He was making his approach in the single-engine monoplane, a low-wing job similar to the one he had learned to fly in, at the Jal-Lea County Airport at about 7:45 p.m.

"I didn't look at the windsock," Tabor said days after the crash and subsequent hospitalization.

He wasn't wearing any sackcloth in mourning over his error. But he was patched up with some stitches on his forehead.

He'll be okay.

Anyway, he failed to check the wind and dropped on into the airport. He was landing with the wind, which is a fundamental no-no among fliers . . . if they want to keep on flying.

And Tabor does.

Curse it! He knows to land into the wind.

"And I was running out of runway," Tabor said, "and I was heading for the fence, and I veered to the right." The aircraft left the runway, missed the fence but hit something else. Hit it hard.

He hadn't enough airspeed to get back into the air.

It was somewhat rocky and jarring off the runway, and Tabor was

Abortion advocates losing hope

By PEGGY SIMPSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The emotional abortion question is returning to the House floor where advocates see little hope of easing restrictions that will deny federally funded abortions to poor women.

House debate today follows release Monday of an opinion by Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell restricting tax-paid abortions even further, by denying them to the victims of rape or incest.

Bell said the controversial Hyde Amendment, which now limits federally funded abortions to those necessary to save the life of the mother, cannot be extended merely because congressional debate indicates congressmen who approved the amendment thought it would pay for abortions in cases involving rape and incest victims.

Bell's opinion of the extent of the Hyde Amendment had been sought by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which has ben paying for abortions under the Medicaid program.

The Hyde amendment was passed by Congress last year, but never was enforced because of court challenges. The Supreme Court struck down a lower court's finding that the Hyde amendment was unconstitutional and ordered the lower court to study the issue further. Bell's opinion makes the amendment more restrictive.

Abortion supporters were not optimistic about gaining more liberal provisions in the House bill, which will cover funding for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, because of complicated rules governing consideration of the proposal.

The bill is being managed by a congressman who says he wants a provision in the bill similar to the Hyde Amendment, rather than a more liberal proposal approved by the Senate. The Senate version would allow federally funded abortions to victims of rape or incest and in cases of medical necessity.

Under the House rules, the congressman, Rep. Daniel Flood, D-Penn., can introduce his own amendment before any others. Abortion supporters, therefore, must defeat Flood's amendment before they can put their own before the House.

But to do so, they must also run the risk neither amendment would be passed, leaving the language in the bill unchanged. And, supporters note anxiously, the existing language bars use of federal funds for all abortions, even if the mother's life is endangered.

Reps. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., and Charles Rose, D-N.C. called on congressmen to support "the more compassionate Senate language."

Big Spring man dies in wreck

BIG SPRING — Austin Morton, 55, of Big Spring was killed in a two-vehicle accident Monday morning at the intersection of Farm Road 1584 and Farm Road 846, 15 miles north of Big Spring.

Morton was an employe of the Howard County Road Department, where he had been employed 16 years.

Three other persons were injured in the accident, including Andres Sanchez of Lamesa, driver of the second vehicle, his daughter Patricia, 6, and Johnny Green, a passenger in the county-owned pickup driven by Morton, according to the Howard County Sheriff's office.

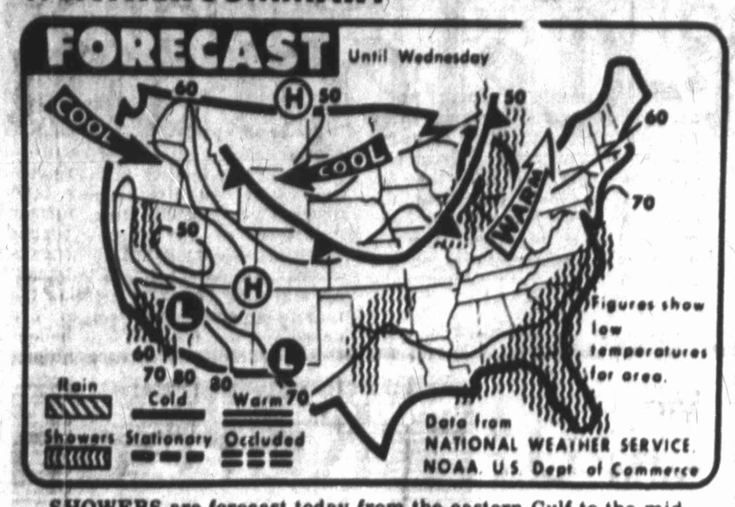

Sanchez and his daughter were hospitalized in Cowper Hospital in Big Spring after the accident. Both suffered concussions. Sanchez also suffered numerous lacerations of his right ear, head and body. Green was treated and released at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Morton apparently fell from the truck he was driving and died as a result of head injuries, sheriff's office personel said. The accident occurred about 8:15 a.m.

Justice of the Peace Gus Ochotorena ruled Morton dead at the scene.

Sanchez and his daughter were taken to the hospital by Sonny Tucker, a truck driver who stopped at the scene of the accident.

Cambodian troops hit Thailand

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Cambodian troops drove into Thailand early today, killing at least 28 persons, including women and children, and burning homes in two villages along the tense Thai-Cambodian frontier, the supreme military command here said.

It was the second major incident along the 500-mile frontier in two weeks. Seventeen Thais were killed in a clash July 20. Disputes over border territory have escalated since the Communists won the war in Cambodia two years ago.

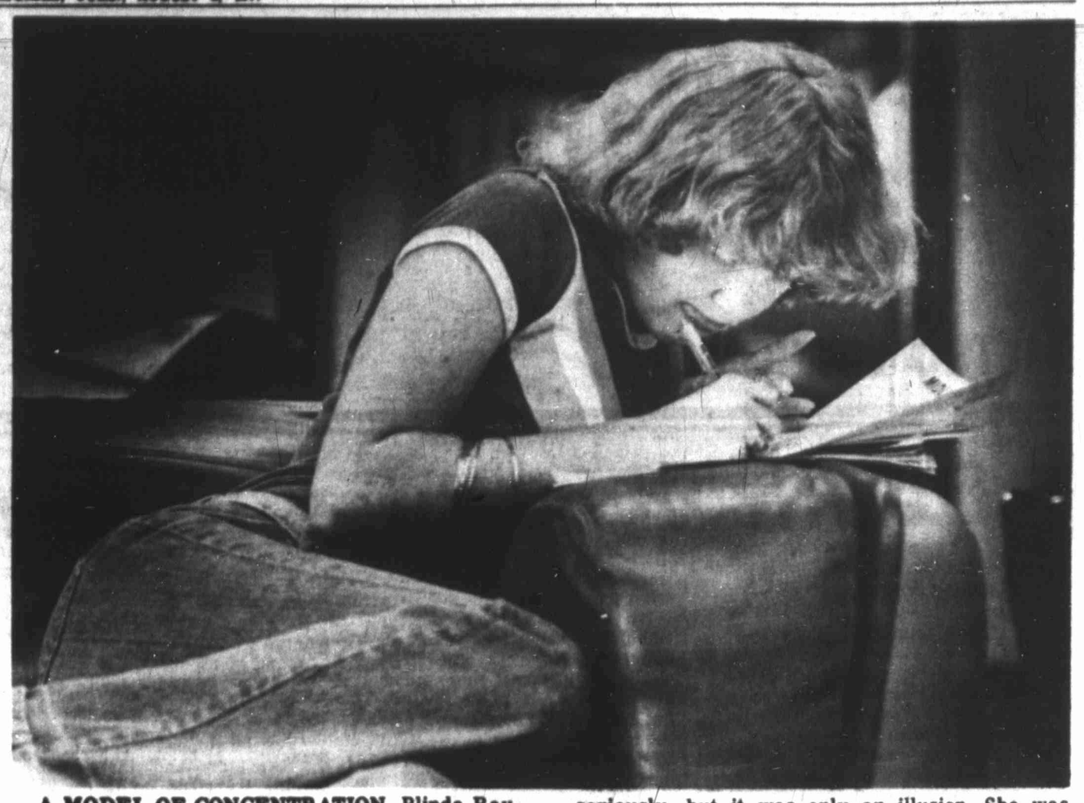

The latest reports from the frontier said the bulk of the raiding forces—estimated at about 350 men — had slipped back into Cambodia although the command said some Cambodian patrols were still in the area about 150 miles east of Bangkok.

The command said 200 Cambodians attacked Chalor Changan village at 2 a.m. local time and killed at least 12 civilians, including six children and two women, and burned down 10 houses. A half hour later, a force of about 150 Cambodians struck against nearby Sangae village, killing 16 persons.

At least 12 Thais, including three policemen, were wounded in the attacks while the body of one Cambodian soldier was found near Sangae village, according to the command report.

Thai helicopter gunships and OV10 Bronco light attack planes reportedly were sent in later to strafe Cambodian troops in the area, but police said Cambodian land mines and mud left by monsoon rains stalled ground reinforcements.

Thai army commander in chief Serm Na Nakhon warned today that Thailand would take "drastic measures to protect our territory and sovereignty." The Thais so far have not retaliated for border attacks by striking inside Cambodia.

A MODEL OF CONCENTRATION, Blinda Ray of Mertzon seemed to be taking Midland College's first day of preregistration form filling-out a bit seriously, but it was only an illusion. She was merely doing what college students aren't too well known for—writing a letter home.

Commission okays site

The Midland Planning and Zoning Commission gave favorable recommendation Monday for a 4.9 acre land site that will be used to build a 215,250 square foot do-it-yourself lumber store.

The land located on the northeast side of the Andrews Highway, 338 feet northwest of Cuthbert Avenue, is the future site of a Handy Dan Home Improvement Center, provided the zoning request is approved by the Midland City Council.

The commission also approved the request by Midland North, Inc., for a zone change from 1F-1, single family district, to planned district, for residential use on four lots on the southwest corner of West Golf Course Road and Murray Street.

In other action the commission:

— Approved a request by Kenneth Schuepbach and a city initiated zone change from 1F-2, single family district, to MF-2, multiple family district, on six lots at the southwest corner of Keith Street and Humble Avenue.

— Approved a request for a zone change by Casabella Homes, Inc., from 1F-1, single family district, to PD, planned district, on six lots in the 3600 block of W. Wadley Ave.

— Approved a request by James Henry for a specific use permit for accessory living quarters in a 1F-1, single family district, at 3104 Shell Ave.

— Approved a request by Roy G. Harris for a zone change from MF-2, multiple family district, to 1F-3, single family district on 10 lots in the 1600 block of Belmont Street.

A $10 million bond issue to finance the addition and extensive renovation to the hospital is being proposed.

In addition to relocating the ICU, the bond issue would provide more surgery and maternity rooms, and would also finance renovation of the hospital's older section.

The bond issue will go before Midland County voters sometime in the middle of September, along with an election to create a hospital district.

Jack Dillard, housing authority executive director and director of community development, was named interim city manager after the council's executive session Monday in which Neighbors' resignation was requested and received.

In announcing the decision, the councilmen said the request was made to end the controversy between Neighbors and Odessa Mayor Dan Hemphill, a controversy the councilmen said was affecting Neighbors' ability to do his job.

The council praised Neighbors' service to the city for his tenure of nearly nine years in office.

Hemphill publicly had called for the dismissal of Neighbors before an April election in which three new councilmen were selected. The three, Curtis Webster, Fred D. George and Lawson Cook, were among those calling for the resignation.

Dillard has less than two weeks to prepare for a budget hearing before the city council.

Report slated on construction

Midland Housing Authority Commissioners will hear a report on the status of construction work at the city's $2 million housing project for the elderly and handicapped at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Council Chamber of City Hall.

The commissioners will also hear a report on the number of leases signed at the Hillcrest Manor facility, located at Scharbauer Drive and Pecos Street.

Board to hear plans to hike car insurance

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The State Board of Insurance was to meet today to hear testimony on various plans to increase car insurance rates for almost all Texan drivers.

New rates probably will take effect with policies written or renewed on Nov. 1.

Opposing plans were to be closely examined by the board, which approved two rate increases in 1976.

Testimony and cross-examination were expected on the board staff proposal to increase rates by a statewide average of 10.1 per cent and on the insurance industry's 17.4 per cent proposal.

In addition, consulting actuary Charles Edwards was expected to defend his data on company expenses that should result in a smaller increase if accepted by the three-man board.

As in the past, the statewide average will give only a general idea of the direction rates are going.

Motorists' actual rates will vary widely, and a handful even will receive reductions. Variations occur because of differences in the frequency and cost of accidents in various parts of the state and among drivers' age groups. Make and model of automobile and the use to which one puts his car also make a difference.

Board actuaries issued figures last week showing the impact on a typical over-25 driver who carries only minimal coverage but who drives a late model Ford, Chevrolet or Plymouth.

In Houston and the rest of Harris County, there would be a $34 increase — biggest in the state — while Kaufman County east of Dallas would receive a $3 reduction.

The hearing probably will be the last time chairman Joe Christie has a voice in setting auto rates. Christie has indicated he will resign soon to start campaigning for the U. S. Senate seat held by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

Cook appointed to post at MC

Jim Cook, a former coach and instructor at Schreiner College in Kerrville, has been appointed as Student Services Director at Midland College, according to an announcement Monday by Dr. Al G. Langford, college president.

Cook will be in charge of student activities, including supervision of the Student Senate and cooperation with other student organizations.

A native of Oklahoma, Cook received his bachelor's degree from Northeastern State College in Tahlequah, Okla., He received his master's degree from Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, and will receive his doctorate from Texas Tech University later this month.

Kupper appointed

ODESSA — Woody Kupper has been appointed director of student life and coordinator of campus recreation by Dr. V. R. Cardozier, president of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Kupper will be responsible for student activities including cultural events, intramurals and all athletic programs.

Allegation brings challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell is being challenged to document published allegations by unidentified Justice Department sources that former President Richard M. Nixon received a Teamsters union payoff in exchange for preventing Jimmy Hoffa from returning to union office.

Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons angrily denied the charges carried in a published report, calling on Bell to produce evidence backing them up.

Fitzsimmons said on Monday that he never "paid one cent to the Nixon administration" as part of any deal to hold Hoffa at bay.

Unidentified Justice Department sources had been quoted by Time magazine as saying Fitzsimmons gave Nixon $1 million to prevent a Teamsters comeback by Hoffa, who is now missing and presumed dead.

Fitzsimmons said the allegations have been "circulating like a summer TV movie rerun for more than two years."

The Time story brought no immediate comment from Nixon, who had commuted Hoffa's 13-year prison sentence for jury tampering and mail fraud in December, 1971.

While Nixon's action paved the way for Hoffa's early release from prison, it also ordered the one-time Teamsters boss to refrain from participating in union activities until March, 1980, when Hoffa's sentence was to have expired.

Fair skies, heat forecast

With the failure of a chance of rain to materialize Monday night, the Permian Basin lost its chance to be rescued from the seemingly endless stream of hot, dry days.

For Wednesday, the weatherman predicts temperatures in the upper 90s. Skies are expected to be fair through Wednesday, with a low tonight of near 70. Winds are expected to be from the south to southeast at 5 to 10 mph tonight, the National Weather Bureau at Midland Regional Air Terminal said.

Cloudy weather was reported this morning in Crane, but the pattern of clear and hot days was not broken in Andrews, Lamesa, Stanton, Rankin, Big Lake and Big Spring.

Very heavy rain, high, gusty winds and pea size hail lashed the Perryton area in the Texas Panhandle early today as an upper level disturbance moved across the area.

The National Weather Service issued a severe thunderstorm warning early today for persons in Hemphill, Lipscomb, Ochiltree and Roberts counties. Weathermen said there were very heavy thunderstorms near Buler in Ochiltree County, in the northeast corner of Roberts County on the Canadian River and just northwest of Glazier in Hemphill County.

The rainfall was heavy enough, they said, to cause some possible flooding in low lying areas.

The violent weather was triggered by the weak upper level disturbance that moved across the central plains during the night.

gas would be taxed under a complex formula taking into account the type of business and environmental conditions. Firms would be allowed to subtract part of the cost of new equipment needed for the energy conversion against their tax bills.

Institutional conservation: A federal grant program of approximately $965 million over three years would be created to aid in improving energy conservation for schools, hospitals, nursing homes, and municipal buildings.

Natural Gas: The price of natural gas would be allowed to rise 30 cents to an initial level of $1.75 per thousand cubic feet. The hike is intended to encourage producers to look for and to produce added reserves. Much of the impact is designed to fall on industry, but household bills could increase by about $15 in the first year.

Crude Oil: The price of low cost domestic oil would be doubled gradually by imposing federal taxes until domestic and foreign oil were priced the same. The aim is to discourage consumption. The taxes would be earmarked for rebates to home heating oil users and credits of up to $44 on a family's annual tax bill in 1978.

Electricity: Utilities would be required to stop selling power at cheaper rates to industry and to price electricity so that the price reflects the seasonal and daily peak demand costs of producing it. Federal regulators would have the authority for the first time to require private and public power companies to shift surplus power to hard-pressed communities.

Gasoline: The federal tax on each gallon of gasoline would rise a nickel to nine cents, with the additional revenue earmarked for federal secondary road and mass transit programs. Another nickel would be added to the cost of a gallon of gas by the crude oil tax, so the total cost per gallon would rise a dime by 1980.

Autos: A tax of at least $339 would be levied on 1979 cars which get less than 15 miles per gallon, rising to a minimum of $397 by 1985 for cars failing to get less than 23.5 miles per gallon. The maximum tax would be $553 for 1979 models getting less than 12.5 miles per gallon and from 1985 onward, $3,856 for cars in the same mileage category.

Appliances: New major appliances such as refrigerators, ranges and air conditioners would have to meet federal energy efficiency standards. An appliance's energy appetite would have to be reflected in labels.

Flier learns the hard way scared. But considering the circumstances, "things" were pretty much under control.

And he would, after all, be able to visit some friends at Jal. That's why he flew up — to visit. Besides, he'd rather fly than drive.

He had cut his power, but the aircraft was rolling along about 50 knots when it plunged into a caliche pit.

The aircraft was totaled. Its wings were buckled upwards. Its flying hours were over.

Tabor was knocked unconscious.

A couple of his friends, who were out at the airport to do some hang gliding, ran over and pulled him from the wreckage.

(Next time he's up, you can figure that flier Tabor just might "waggle his wings" in thanking Jackie Leddingham and Harry Stabler for the rescue.)

"It's good to be alive," said the banged-up pilot.

Right.

"I'm not going to quit," he said.

But it'll be awhile before he'll being flying or driving again. Just a short while.

Mistakes make flying hazardous.

And this is one pilot who dead reckons that he'll not be making the same mistake again.

"I'll always notice my wind from now on," he said.

Happy flying.

The spokesman for Metzenbaum said congressional experts estimated the proposal could mean a savings of 26,000 barrels of oil a day.

Carter's energy proposals, unveiled in a speech last April 20, called for a special tax on so-called gas-guzzling cars, but no ban on their production.

The Senate panel also voted to double the fine imposed on manufacturers of automobiles that fall short of efficiency standards going into effect this fall.

Under a law passed in 1975, a company's entire line of cars must average 18 miles per gallon beginning with the 1978 model year.

If the average falls short, a company can be fined $100 a mile per car under the new proposal, instead of the existing $50 per mile per car.

Carter's statement contained his first endorsement of a proposed nickel-a-gallon hike in the federal gasoline tax and said removal of federal price controls on natural gas would "undermine one of the basic tenets of my energy plan — fairness."

A nickel hike combined with other oil taxes in the program could add a dime to the current cost of each gallon. Each penny increase in the gasoline tax costs consumers an estimated $1 billion a year, experts say.

Gene Burgeson, right, Lubbock stonemason, cuts sandstone to replace lost portions of the Jowell house which stands partially restored at the Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University. He is assisted by Enrique Nerioz.

Historic house being restored

LUBBOCK — The George R. Jowell ranch house, built by a skilled stonemason to repel marauders a century ago, is in the final stages of restoration at the Ranching Heritage Center of The Museum of Texas Tech University.

One of the earliest structures moved to the outdoor museum of ranching history, the Jowell house had remained until this year unroofed and empty, awaiting archeological and historical studies which would insure the accuracy of reconstruction.

It was built in Palo Pinto County about 1875 after the family's original home was burned by Indians. Jowell was away on a cattle drive at the time of the raid and returned to discover his home gone, but his family safe at a neighbor's. It was then he decided to build his second house of stone for protection. It stood, with its gunports to the east, on Bluff Creek, 16 miles northwest of Palo Pinto and near the present Mineral Wells amd Possum Kingdom Lake.

When completed at the Ranching Heritage Center, the structure will have its original outbuildings—a cooler for perishable foods and stone cistern with its charcoal filter for clear water. It will look as it did when it served as headquarters for Jowell's Joly Ranch.

The restoration is being supervised by Prof. Willard B. Robinson, acting director of the Ranching Heritage Center and a member of the Texas Tech architecture faculty.

Parking problem almost ruins tourists' pleasure

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The universal problem of parking restrictions almost ruined the visit to the Alamo by three Polish men who had driven halfway around the world to see the Texas shrine. But police in this South Texas city relented Sunday, tore up the parking tickets and ordered away the tow trucks that had been called to haul away the trio's two cars.

"I guess we wouldn't order anyone extradited from Poland for two parking tickets," a policeman said after a reporter had intervened on behalf of the three men who said they left Krakow, Poland, last August to drive around the world.

Andrzej Mokrzycki, 28, the only one who spoke English, said the group had wanted especially to see the Himalayas and the Alamo when they embarked on their car company sponsored trip.

"We didn't know you couldn't park here," Mokrzycki said as he stood with his friends in front of the sun-baked Alamo in downtown San Antonio.

GOP to build slowly

The GOP must instead work diligently to restore public confidence in its ability to solve national problems and represent average voters, said Brock, a former Tennessee senator who heads the Republinan National Committee.

Without specifically mentioning the Watergate scandal, Brock conceded on Sunday that the GOP has been "greatly damaged in recent years." He said revitalization of the party "has to be for the long term. You cannot opt for a quick fix."

He predicted there will be "quite a few new faces" vying for the GOP presidential nomination, although Brock declined to identify potential candidates. The chairman said he has no present plans to seek elective office.

On another Sunday television interview program, Peter Jay, the new British ambassador to the United States, called for test landings of the Concorde supersonic aircraft at New York's Kennedy Airport.

"We feel very strongly that this plane satisfies the requirements, meets the legal conditions and should be allowed to land in New York for the experimental period as laid down by the federal government," he said.

The Concorde, built by Britian and France, is presently allowed to land in the United States only at Washington's Dulles International Airport.

Jay appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press".

Parties to Korean probe wage document battle

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A list that details alleged payments from South Korean businessman Tongsun Park to more than 20 members of Congress and other public officials is the focus of a potential legal battle between the Justice Department and the House committee investigating charges of South Korean influence-buying.

The Justice Department subpoenaed the list, and some supporting documents, from a former Park employe, Jay Shin Ryu, but has refused so far to give the material to the House investigators, according to sources familiar with the dispute.

More than a month ago, Philip A Lacovara, then special counsel to the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, recommended that the committee subpoena the documents from the Justice Department if necessary.

Rep. John J. Flynt Jr. (D-Ga.), the committee chairman, rejected the request, precipitating a feud that led to Lacovara's sudden resignation two weeks ago.

Now Leon Jaworski, the former Watergate special prosecutor who succeeded his former assistant as the committee's new special counsel, has written Attorney General Griffin B. Bell, making it clear he, too, will subpoena the documents if necessary.

In a telephone interview from Houston Monday, Jaworski said he wrote Bell last Thursday expressing hope that the pareliel, but separate, criminal and House investigations could work together.

"But I said that I was insisting on some action," Jaworski said. "I'm a good friend of Judge Bell's, but if he doesn't deliver those documents, we'll go to court," he added.

The list is said to date back to the early 1970s when Ryu was a top assistant to Tongsun Park in Washington. The House committee considers it crucial to its investigation of alleged payments to members by representatives of the South Korean government.

Sources familiar with the list said it contains the names of executive branch officials as well as members of Congress, with figures indicating payments next to the names.

The figures translate into what Park claimed were payments that mounted into the thousands of dollars in some cases, sources said. The back up documents apparently explain why the payments were made.

By itself, the list would not prove that the payments actually were made, but it would give investigators leads.

The names of the officials on the list could not be learned.

Benjamin R. Civiletti, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, said Monday that he thought the department had worked out an agreement with the committee about access to the list. He added, however, that the department felt that some "textual material" — an apparent reference to the backup documents — might relate to possible prosecutions and shouldn't be released.

The House committee lawyers are known to feel that the department has no legal justification for keeping the material from them.

Sources familiar with the situation said that the documents were subpoenaed from Ryu's home after his former wife told FBI agents that he kept a large file of work papers at home "that was supposed to be a big secret."

Ryu was a classmate of Tongsun Park's in the early 1960s at the Georgetown University school of foreign service. Other Park associates have told investigators that Ryu was Park's closeft confidant in the early 1970s and the only person he trusted enough to deliver money.

Sources have confirmed that in at least one instance Ryu made a hurried flight from Washington to Chicago during that time period to deliver money to a congressman on Park's behalf.

Ryu has been cooperating with both the Justice Department and House investigations, sources said, but had turned over his only copies of the most important documents to Justice before the House committee interviewed him.

By Robert L. Jackson
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — South Korea's foreign minister last fall acknowledged excesses by Korean intelligence agents in the United States but disclaimed responsibility for their acts, according to a secret State Department cable.

Foreign Minister Park Tong Jin told U.S. Ambassador Richard L. Sneider in Seoul — according to Sneider's cable to the department — that he and President Park Chung-Hee had previously been unaware of questionable conduct by the Korean Central Intelligence Agency.

Sneider's cable said Park Tong Jin told him privately that President Park ordered a cutback in KCIA manpower and in operations in the United States after the president's son-in-law, who was then U.N. Ambassador, had confirmed charges of KCIA misconduct.

Sneider's message, dated last November and marked "secret," was among 35 documents dealing with Korean intelligence activities in this country that the State Department furnished The Los Angeles Times Monday. The Times requested the files last December under provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

The department said it was withholding other material too sensitive to release. The KCIA figures prominently in allegations of Korean influence-buying that are being investigated by Congress and the Justice Department.

In his cable to Washington, Sneider said the foreign minister was "quite pleased" that President Park had decided to withdraw KCIA officers from all U.S. posts except Washington and New York, and to restrict their activities to "straight intelligence."

The Times reported last December that the FBI was investigating complaints by Korean residents in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington that they had been harassed and intimidated by KCIA operatives after they had criticized President Park's military-style rule.

A federal investigator said Monday that the KCIA had been ordered by Seoul "to at least lower its profile and soften its approach" in the United States. He said a number of KCIA operatives had been recalled to South Korea.

Laetrile study decision near

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A supply of the controversial cancer drug, Laetrile, is being studied at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., in preparation for what could be its first scientific test in cancer patients.

A decision on whether to recommend a federally-financed trial at the institute and elsewhere will be made "within weeks," Dr. Arthur C. Upton, the institute's new director, said Monday.

Upton, named to the job Friday by President Carter, made the forecast during a wide-ranging news conference in which he also said:

—"As a voting citizen," he would vote for a ban on smoking in public places as one way to reduce smoking and thus reduce the cancer death toll.

—"As a doctor," he would also advise Americans who want to lessen their chance of getting cancer to avoid "excessive use of alcohol" and "high intake of animal fats" and to "control body weight," since more cancers are found in heavy drinkers, heavy eaters and heavy users of animal fats.

—He does not endorse Dr. Linus Pauling's view that a high vitamin C intake can prevent as well as help cure cancer — and also prevent colds — but he takes 500 to 1,000 milligrams a day of vitamin C "on general principles."

—He will begin a "critical" examination of the institute's $815 million a year budget — 30 per cent of the entire budget of the giant National Institutes of Health — to see whether there ought to be more stress on finding ways to prevent cancer and somewhat less on trying to treat it once it appears.

Some critics have been saying the institute pays too little attention to environmental causes of cancer, especially the chemicals used in industry. Some authorities think 80 to 90 per cent of all cancers are caused at least in part by some kind of environmental exposure.

Upton called the 80 to 90 per cent estimate "a tantalizing figure." But he estimated that Americans' personal habits cause more cancers than industrial chemicals.

Nonetheless, he said the institute "must" speed up the testing of the thousands of chemicals used in agriculture, food processing and manufacturing, and "to the extent that (doing) this may dictate a change" in the institute's priorities, "I will respond accordingly."

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In an attempt to salvage its consumer protection agency bill, now stalled in Congress, the White House Monday announced a plan to abolish or consolidate into the proposed agency 26 consumer-oriented government units.

Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said in a letter to House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. that the plan would result in a $20-million-a-year saving, or $5 million more than what the consumer agency would cost.

Lance said $11.6 million would come from the reorganization and another $8.5 million from rescinding the "consumer representation plans" former President Ford established last year in various agencies and executive offices. About 200 workers would be affected, but White House press secretary Jody Powell said at a briefing Monday that no one would be put out of work.

Among the offices that would be folded into the new agency are the consumer affairs offices of the Departments of Commerce, State, Labor, Treasury, Transporation, Health, Education, and Welfare, and such regulatory agencies as the Federal Communications Commission.

Pointing out beach rules to black bathers at the racially troubled Carson Beach in South Boston is Metropolitan District Commission Police Supt. Laurence J. Carpenter. Police maintain patrol in the beach area following almost two weeks of confrontations.

Beach confrontations continue

By DANIEL Q. HANEY

For the past 12 days, riot-helmeted police have had to break up confrontations at Carson Beach, a three-quarter mile stretch of sand that separates all-white South Boston and the largely black Columbia Point housing project.

Officials say the issue is simple: blacks want to use the beach, and whites want them to stay away.

"This is clearly a matter of racism," said Michael Goldman, a spokesman for the Metropolitan District Commission, which runs the beach.

The trouble began, as it has before, when a group of about 50 black men, women and children walked down the beach from the housing project and laid their blankets and picnic baskets on the sand.

About 200 whites, most of them teenagers, clustered near them while police watched from a parking lot. After a tense hour, a fistfight broke out between a black and a white youth. Police wrestled several people to the sand.

Police pushed the crowd down the beach and cleared a 500-foot stretch of all but the blacks and a few peacefully sunbathing whites.

Officers on horseback waded into the surf and chased white youths who chanted the South Boston High School football cheer: "Here we go Southie, here we go."

Since the trouble began July 22, police have arrested 43 people, all but two of them white.

John Snedecker, head of the commission, said blacks haven't been arrested because they aren't the ones causing trouble.

"The civil rights of these black people are in jeopardy," he said.

Gov. Michael Dukakis said Monday that a special law enforcement group had been activated to speed prosecutions of people charged in racial incidents at the beach.

"The events at Carson Beach during the past week have been a disgrace," he said. "That beach is going to remain open unless it is absolutely impossible to do so."

Killer claims sixth victim

NEW YORK (AP) — Stacy Moskowitz — her brain irreparably damaged by a .44-caliber slug that shattered her skull — is dead, the sixth victim of the killer who calls himself "Son of Sam."

The 20-year-old Brooklyn woman was pronounced dead at 5:22 p.m. Monday, after surgeons at Kings County Hospital had labored 38½ hours to save her life.

Three hours before, Chief of Detectives John Keenan had announced that 300 officers had been assigned to track down the .44-caliber killer, who has killed six and wounded seven in eight attacks over the past 369 days.

Miss Moskowitz was shot twice in the head Sunday as she and her date, Robert Violante, 20, parked in a lovers' lane under a full moon along a Brooklyn waterfront.

The last thing Violante saw in the instant between the time the first two bullets hit his date and a third slug hit his head was the face of the gunman.

Doctors say Violante may never be able to identify the murderer — he has only a 10 per cent chance ever to see again.

Workshop set for area clerks

More than 75 district and county clerks are expected in Midland Friday for a daylong workshop on new laws affecting the running of those offices.

Midland County Clerk Rosenell Cherry said the major topic to be discussed is new fee schedules. Election law changes also will be discussed, she said.

The workshop is for Area III of the County and District Clerk's Association. Fourteen members of the state association's legislative committee are expected to attend the workshop and meet with the clerks.

Odessan faces robbery charge

Charges of aggravated robbery were filed Monday against Dennis D. McDowell of Odessa in connection with the armed robbery of a Midland man Wednesday.

According to police, Richard D. Friday and his wife were sitting in a car in the 1100 block of East Gist Street when a man approached them and asked for a light.

According to reports, Friday told the man he did not have a light. The robber then pulled a gun and demanded Friday's money, police said. Friday told police all he had was $1.50 and a pocket knife valued at $4.

The robber took the money and pocket knife, then fled on foot, police said.

Bond for McDowell was set at $20,000.

Astronomers to meet

The West Texas Astronomers Club will have its regular monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Blakemore Planetarium.

A NASA film entitled "Jupiter Odyssey" will be shown. The meeting is open to the public.

Officials doubt meeting between Hart, Indians

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Authorities believe that a reported meeting between triple-murder suspect Gene Leory Hart and 15 Indians never took place.

"For all indications there was no such meeting," said a spokesman for the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation. "There is no evidence to indicate anything more than a hoax."

"The meeting never occurred," said Mayes County Sheriff Pete Weaver, after a search of the area Sunday where Hart supposedly met with the Indians.

The Tulsa World reported last week that a reporter was told by an unidentified source that 15 Indians from the American Indian Movement have met with Hart.

AIM spokesmen have discounted the reported meeting, saying that if it had actually taken place they would have known about it.

In a related matter, officials ended the mystery surrounding a pair of shoes found last week that belonged to one of the three young murder victims. Officials said Monday that the shoes have been positively traced back to a dog handler who discarded them during the early days of the investigation of the June 13 killings.

Hearing expected

A federal grand jury was expected to consider one case at an 11 a.m. meeting at the Midland federal building today.

Alaska crude moving to West Coast refinery

By JOHN GETZE
The Los Angeles Times

VALDEZ, Alaska — The tanker Arco Juneau left here Monday evening with the first 800,000 barrels of crude oil released from the Transalaska pipeline.

At a normal sea speed of 16 knots, the U.S. Flag vessel, under long-term lease to the Atlantic Richfield Co., is expected to arrive at the oil company's refinery at Cherry Point, Wash., sometime Friday morning.

Under the watchful eye of the U.S. Coast Guard, scores of newsmen and Alyeska pipeline service company and oil company officials, the 120,000-deadweight-ton ship left its berth at the Valdez terminal with the aid of two tugs, then proceeded West toward the Valdez Narrows where towering, snow-capped mountains guard the protected Fjord's 3,000-foot-wide entrance.

By Tuesday morning, the Arco Juneau was expected to have turnsd south through Prince William Sound and entered the Gulf of Alaska. As a one-time, precautionary measure, the oil tanker was escorted through Prince William Sound by two Coast Guard ships.

"There is a joke going around that the oil companies flipped a coin and the loser had to send in the first tanker," John E. Banister, manager of the Arco's Marine Transportation Department, told newsmen at an earlier briefing. "But that's not the case. We are very proud to be the first."

Los Angeles-based Atlantic Richfield, along with a subsidiary of Exxon Corp., was the first to discover oil at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope. The company holds a 21 per cent interest in the 800-mile pipeline which is now bringing the North Slope crude into Valdez at the approximate rate of 550,000 barrels per day.

Although environmental groups have expressed great fears over the construction and operation of the massive Transalaska pipeline project, and serious mishaps have indeed occurred, some critics have suggested that the tanker routes from Valdez to West Coast ports pose the greatest hazard of all.

Valdez was destroyed in 1964 by the largest recorded earthquake in North America's history, and the town had to be rebuilt on a new site. Moreover, the flow of North Slope oil will sharply increase supertanker traffic along the often foggy and stormridden coast of the North Pacific.

Officials of Alyeska, a consortium of oil companies formed to construct the pipeline, and the individual companies themselves have expressed great confidence in the tanker system however.

The Coast Guard recently installed a new, $3.7 million ship monitoring system here — "the most sophistifated vessel traffic control radar on the market today," according to a Coast Guard press release.

The system is designed to detect virtually the smallest of vessels and other "targets" at long range, and in high seas. It can also cut through rain, fog or snow which might cloud a normal radar system, and also allows the controller to "zoom in" for closeups, the Coast Guard said.

Additionally, ship movement within Valdez Narrows is limited to one vessel at a time, and separate north and south bound "traffic lanes" — three-fourths of a mile wide with a one mile buffer zone — have been established for ships coming in and out of Prince Williams Sound.

The Coast Guard said it will be plotting tanker positions constantly, and can automatically pass course recommendation and precautionary advice whenever a tanker deviates from the established lanes.

The Arco Juneau, a $40 million vessel, is also equipped with modern radar and collision avoidance systems.

Constructed in 1974 at Bethlehem Steel's Sparrows Point Shipyard, the Arco Juneau is more than 880 feet long. It is powered by steam turbines producing 26,000 horsepower.

The ship has a crew of 31, including its master, Capt. Emery McGowan, who piloted the Arco Juneau on her maiden voyage three years ago. Since that time, the ship has been in foreign service for Atlantic Richfield, principaly operating between the Persian Gulf and the West Coast of the United States.

Writer takes issue with President, Schlesinger, environmentalists

By HENRY FAIRLIE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — I sometimes have the feeling that America is one vast playground and that the Americans are more and more using it like one. In order to use it, since it is so vast, they need a lot of gasoline. It is therefore a little absurd that the Carter administration suggests that it is only a few economies in the use of energy which it is asking of the American people, when the only thing that would have any significant effect would be to sacrifice the entire way of life.

James Schlesinger said recently that, in the first four days of July, the American people used more gasoline than the entire land forces of the United States in the whole of 1944, the year they were most continuously in action around the globe. The comparison is melodramatic, but I am not sure it is as instructive. Private cars are using more gasoline in 1977 then army vehicles used in 1944. So what?

The first four days of July are a holiday weekend, when the Americans are hard at play, using their playground as they increasingly use it most weekends. This has become a part of the American way of life. What is Schlesinger asking them to do? Give it all up?

A few days later, President Carter drew another comparison, just as melodramatic. He said that the peoples of several countries in Western Europe have as high a quality of living as the people of the United States, but that they consume, per capita, only half the amount of energy. Unfortunately, the first part of this statement is untrue. In no nation in Western Europe of comparable size is there so extensive a "middle class" as in America, expecting and usually able to enjoy such a profusion of goods and experiences. The lower per-capita consumption of energy in Western Europe is based on a much narrower range of expectations for most of its peoples.

I was still pondering what Schlesinger and Carter had said when I went to spend the weekend with some friends in Annapolis, Md. It did not matter at what hour I sat at Horn Point — the Seven to my left, the bay to the right — the boats sailed by from early morning until past midnight: big ones and little ones, ketches and yawls, lasers and dinghies, white jobs and colored spinnakers, a regatta that was endless.

It needed only a rapid calculation to decide that all the boats would not belong to corporation vice presidents or to bank presidents. Some must belong to plumbers — they can afford them — and some must belong to ...just the ordinary middle class of America: perhaps to a more affluent section of it than the rest, but still to kinds of people who in Europe would not conceive of owning a boat. There were just too many boats for it to be a recreation only of the very wealthy.

But the relative affluence of a considerable class is not my point here. What is interesting is how, in greater numbers each year, Americans have taken to their playground, on beaches and in bays and in gulfs; on rivers and on lakes; in mountains and in deserts and in the wilderness. The great outdoors has always been an obsession of the American mind, but never before have so many used it so regularly for recreation. Although the point seems to have eluded both Schlesinger and Carter, to get to this playground one needs a car, and, at least at the moment, it is an incontrovertible if unfortunate fact that cars are moved by gasoline.

Western Europe is a small and crowded peninsula. There are few places for its millions to go, and none of those places is very far away. There is not the immense coastline of America. There is not the variety of landscape on such a scale. There is not the same choice of climate in every season. It does not lie "between the tropic and the snows." Cyril Connolly once described a flight across the United States in the late 1940s, when planes still flew low and slow enough for one to look down on the countryside. He was amazed by what he saw, until he exclaimed: "All sense of European structure vanishes." We forget the difference too easily.

It is not only of a leisure society that I am speaking — although the United States is its forerunner — but of a way of life that is peculiar to it, and which cannot be ignored if one is discussing something as personal as the per capita consumption of energy. There is more space in America, there are more places to go, and more people able to go to them, so they use more gasoline. In fact, it would not have been surprising if in the first four days of July the American people had consumed more fuel than all the land forces in the world since Hannibal crossed the Alps with his elephants.

Americans in the hundreds of thousands sail in the great bays and estuaries of this country; they get there by car. They backpack in the wilderness and in the mountains; they get there by car. They kayak on their rivers; they get there by car. They ski down the slopes of their country in winter and climb them in summer; they get there by car. They go to their beaches to swim or to laze; they get there by car. They go to the desert in spring and find its beauties; they get there by car. Even in the cities during the week, they go increasingly to tennis courts, swimming pools and golf courses; they get there mostly by car. And these activities of hundreds of thousands add up to millions upon millions, using their country yearround.

They need gasoline even to get to the places where they can then do what needs no gasoline. There is nothing more galling than meeting a backpacker in the mountains, enjoying his high with nature, complaining about the dreadfulness of a civilization that allows so many cars to make so many fumes and to use so much energy — and then watch him at the foot of the mountain calmly get into the Datsun that had brought him there, to drive back home in the serene and uncomplicated belief that at least his fumes have been for a worthy purpose.

Vermonter assembles solar power facilities

By NANCY SHULINS

WEST TOPSHAM, Vt. (AP) — When a 107-foot tower appeared in Charlie Hall's backyard here, neighbors politely pretended not to notice.

They couldn't help but notice six others that Hall put up to power a solar oven that bakes bread, and a solar heater that in one afternoon boosted the water temperature in his swimming pool 17 degrees. He also has a hydroelectric dam that lights his home

Annoyed neighbors, who Hall circumvented by getting the zoning ordinance changed to permit his wind and solar towers, were among the obstacles the strapping, black-haired Vermont native overcame in his five-year metamorphosis from a Barre television repairman to alternative energy consultant.

"My kids watched me awful close at first," he said with a grin. "But when things began working, they started believing in me."

Hall, who watched the wind blow over the hills behind his house for nearly50 years before putting it to work for him, decided to "make a clean break" from his first career.

"I felt trapped in my repair business — I felt like an unpaid worker for the government," he said.

"It got to the point where my phone bill was more than my light bill, and my light bill was more than my house payment. I began to think about how wasteful Americans really are.

"And I began to think about homesteading. A homesteader is really tooled down to what's around him. Until you do that, you're just a slave to society," he said.

While there were fewer Vermonte s studying alternative energy five years ago, Hall said he "saw the future coming very fast."

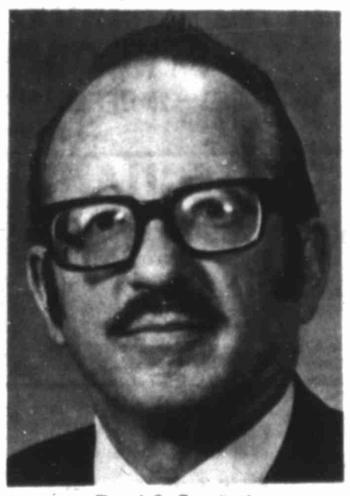

Now building a 40-foot solar dome in his backyard, Hall has completed plans for a house powered by wind and water and heated by the sun.

Another dome covers Hall's swimming pool, where he swims seven months of the year and reises trout the other five.

Scurry area venture set

Exxon Corp. has slated an 8,250-foot wildcat in Scurry County. It is No. 1 W. D. Everett.

Frank L. Constant

Long tour completed

Constant joined Union Oil in 1952 in Midland and has worked in both exploration and development in the West Texas area.

A graduate of the University of Oklahoma with a degree in Petroleum Geology, Constant served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean conflict.

He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in which he is a certified petroleum geologist and vice president of the Division of Professional Affairs.

He is president of the Southwest Section of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and is serving on the American Petroleum Institute committee on Reserves and Productive Capacity.

Consultant authorized

AUSTIN — The employment of a consultant experienced in oil, gas and mineral transactions was authorized for The University of Texas System during a recent meeting by the board of regents.

Deputy Chancellor E. D. Walker was instructed to employ the consultant subject to prior approval by a committee composed of three regents named by Chairman Allan Shivers.

It was reported that such an individual is needed by the UT System since terms and conditions of several kinds of transactions pertaining to oil, gas and other minerals — including exploration agreements, deeds, leases, production, transportation and sales — are continually undergoing significant changes.

Belco adds 2 geologists

HOUSTON — Belco Petroleum Corp. has announced the addition of two geologists to its Houston District Exploration staff.

Normand was associated with Gulf Oil Co., and Shukis was with Amoco Production Co.

Cotton hires 2 engineers

TULSA, Okla. — Cotton Petroleum Corp. has announced the addition of two engineers to its staff in Tulsa.

L. G. Langley joined Cotton from a job with Atlantic Richfield Co. in Andrews Texas. With Cotton, he will have the position of senior engineer.

R. Michael Riley, also a senior engineer, formerly was associated with Tenneco Oil Co. in Lafayette, La.

Langly is a graduate of the University of Tulsa, and Riley earned his Petroleum Engineering degree at The University of Texas at Austin.

Acquisition announced

HOUSTON — Lynes, Inc., of Houston has announced the acquisition of Burns Tool Co.

Burns Tool, headquartered in Bell, Calif., was founded in 1939 and is a manufacturer of liner hangers.

Lynes is a subsidiary of Baker International Corp. and is a manufacturer and supplier worldwide of inflatable packers, drillstem testing and other related products to the oil and gas industry.

South took the ace of clubs and led the jack of diamonds for a successful finesse. The ten of diamonds then lost to the queen.

Back came the nine of hearts, and South's jack lost to the king. West returned a heart to the ace, and south forced out the ace of diamonds. Declarer later got to dummy with the queen of hearts to cash two good diamonds.

You have all the clues you need. See if you can spot the crimes and the criminals before you read on.

ENTRY TO DUMMY

South could make his contract only by getting to dummy with the queen of hearts to cash two good diamonds. When South finessed with the jack of hearts, West should play low. East gets the ace of diamonds and lead another heart. If south plays the ten, West takes the king then.

However, when East leads the first heart, South should play the ace. South forces out the ace of diamonds and can later lead a heart. West takes the king but south still has a heart to lead to dummy's queen.

ANSWER: Bid two clubs. This should be a reasonable contract even if south has opened on a three-card suit.

Burlington Zephyr trains now serving Saudi Arabia

HOFUF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Burlington Zephyr passenger trains, once famous for the fast runs between Chicago and points west, are whistling across the desert sands of Saudi Arabia these days.

Completely refurbished by a Kansas City businessman and sold to the Saudi Arabian railroad authority for an estimated $5 million, the streamliners started service in March between the Persian Gulf port of Dammam and the capital, Riyadh.

But at first the Saudi railroad had to overcome a problem of fine desert sand which whipped into the cars and caused passengers to cough and cover their faces.

As the sleek silver trains whizzed across the desert, including a northern finger of the vast sand sea called the Empty Quarter, they created a vacuum which sucked the pinkish dust into the cars.

So Abul Muhsin Bashawri, deputy director of the Saudi Arabian Railroad Organization, took the trains out of service for three weeks in June. Engineers plugged up the floors of the stainless steel cars.

By June 26 the Zephyrs were whipping across the sands again at 60 miles an hour. Their maximum speed is 110, but that is unsafe. On the desert railbed, temperature changes of as much as 100 degrees between day and night make rails expand and contract and Arabian winds blow faster than the Zephyrs themselves.

The Riyadh-Dharan link built by the Arabian-American Oil Co. is the only working railroad in Saudi Arabia. The Hijaz Railroad, running north-south along the Red Sea coast was blown up by Lawrence of Arabia and his Arab independence fighters in World War I.

For a unique desert railroad, it has unique equipment.

Railroad officials from Saudi Arabia, which has vast oil wealth, visited the United States in 1975. They inspected the Zephyrs which had been bought by Alexander Barket, a Kansas City banker.

Barket got the 24 Zephyr cars at a price between $40,000 and $52,000 each after the trains were taken out of service in 1968. He used them for business promotions.

The cars were built in 1939 by the Edward G. Budd Co. of Philadelphia.

With names like Silver Lining, Silver Beam and Silver Screen, the Zephyrs were the ultimate in railroad travel in the U.S. West.

Divided into two 12-car trains, they covered the 1,034 miles between Denver and Chicago in 15 hours with 13 stops.

The Zephyrs now are running in two five-car trains, one starting at each end of the Saudi rail line daily.

RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS
GAS UTILITIES DIVISION

Re: Application of Lo-Vaca Gathering Company and Coastal States Gas Producing Company For a Review and Revision of Prices and Rates In Their Existing Agreements — Gas Utilities Docket No. 500

STATEMENT OF INTENT BY LO-VACA GATHERING COMPANY AND COASTAL STATES GAS PRODUCING COMPANY TO CHANGE RATES

TO THE HONORABLE RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS:

Lo-Vaca Gathering Company ("Lo-Vaca") and Coastal States Gas Producing Company ("Coastal"), pursuant to the requirements of Section 43(a) of the Public Utility Regulatory Act (1446c, T.R.C.S), files this statement of intent to change rates, effective September 1, 1977, the rates they are charging all customers on the Lo-Vaca system for the purchase of natural gas to a uniform rate applicable to each customer on the system, which rate consists of 100% of Lo-Vaca's weighted average cost of gas plus 16.70 cents per Mcf. The cost of gas is to be adjusted each month in accordance with Lo-Vaca's billing procedure, which is Lo-Vaca Exhibit KLH #515, filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas ("Commission") in Gas Utilities Docket No. 500 on June 13, 1977.

The present rate charged by Lo-Vaca for the sale of natural gas to nearly all Texas customers is 100% of Lo-Vaca's weighted average cost of gas (determined in accordance with the billing procedure set forth in Lo-Vaca Exhibit WKA #17 in Gas Utilities Docket No. 500) plus 5 cents per Mcf.

The new rate is anticipated to increase Lo-Vaca's revenues by $60,196,106 in calendar year 1978. This is an increase of 5.61% over total revenues which would have been received if the present rate were continued in effect for that year.

Respectfully submitted,
LO-VACA GATHERING COMPANY — COASTAL STATES GAS PRODUCING COMPANY

Hello from Greece

Editor's Note: Alisa McCright is an exchange student from Midland. She is spending her summer in Greece. At the request of The Reporter-Telegram she has sent a report of her activities.

Hello from Greece:

I arrived here at the end of June, along with about 60 other Youth for Understanding exchange students from all over the U.S. We stayed in Athens for four days sightseeing. This included visits to the Parthenon, the Oracle of Delphi and a day-long cruise to three Greek Islands.

The Parthenon is even more impressive than I expected it would be. It was built to last thousands of years and would have, except that during the Greek Revolution it was used to store gunpowder which blew up. The Turks also destroyed much of the building. Lately, pollution has been damaging the Parthenon and other buildings on Acropolis. The Greeks have been working to stop this destruction and have asked for assistance from other countries.

After the four days in Athens, the students separated and went to their host families. Mine lives about 70 miles from Athens in Halkis, the capital of the island Evvia. It is separated from the mainland by a narrow channel. Halkis has a population of 50,000, and because of its good beaches and interesting sights, it is rapidly becoming a popular tourist attraction.

During the day, there is swimming, boating or shopping. At night the people walk down the cafe-lined street next to the channel. There are also discotheques and nightclubs nearby. Water polo is played every night, and during holidays there are traditional Greek dances and music.

The food here is very different from American food. A great deal of fish is eaten, usually fried in olive oil. Bread is eaten at every meal. The Greeks usually eat fruit instead of dessert. If sweets are eaten it is before the evening meal, which is eaten around 10 or 11 p.m. After I got used to the food, I began trying some delicacies, including fried octopus which is very good.

The Greek way of life is very relaxed and slow, but the time is passing quickly. Until next time.

AUSTIN BUREAU

AUSTIN — In drafting the Department of Public Welfare's new budget, the Legislature mandated that all elderly Medicaid patients receive three medical prescriptions each month.

That's obviously a noble intention for helping insure that the elderly of Texas receive adequate medical care. But it appears a little wasteful if the patients don't need exactly three prescriptions each month.

Welfare Board Commissioner Raymond Vowell also says the Legislature didn't appropriate enough money for the department to buy nursing home residents three prescriptions a month, and the tough state bureaucrat indicates he might not follow the legislative intent.

As Vowell told the three-member State Welfare Board, "There's a tougher (criminal) penalty for overspending than there is for violating legislative intent."

Securities sales okayed

MGF Oil Corp. of Midland was among four applicants granted permits to sell securities by the State Securities Board recently.

The permit granted was for $1,250,000.

State Hi-Junior tourney opens

By BOB DILLON

The Texas Teen-Age State Hi-Junior Baseball Tournament opens today at Simon Field with four games on tap.

Teams from Midland, Odessa, Houston, Dallas, Waco, Abernathy, LaMarque and Tyler will square off in the four-day double elimination tourney.

A pair of unbeaten teams — Waco and Abernathy get things underway at 1 p.m. The Waco Northwestern Optimists (14-0) will battle the Tri-County team from Abernathy. It's record is 15-0.

The next game follows at 3:30 p.m. when Kips of Dallas (22-5-1), takes on the LaMarque Texans (16-0).

The Greater Wood County Raiders of Tyler (15-1) will then battle El Paso Products of Odessa (14-1) in the 6 p.m. contest and the feature game will be between the Bel Air Karl Young Cardinals (13-5-2) and the Mustang Mud Mustangs of Midland (11-1) at 8:30 p.m.

THERE WAS a special meeting Monday night at Commercial Bank and Trust Company to go over the tourney rules and draw up the bracket of the tourney.

Tickets for the tourney are $1 per adult and 50 cents per child with four games each day today through Thursday and three on tap for Friday, unless a team comes up through the loser's bracket, then another game will be played to determine the champion.

Red-hot Vilas wins again

By The Associated Press

A chilled Guillermo Vilas did almost nothing right in his opening set and said he quite literally had to warm up. That done, he did nearly everything flawlessly the rest of the way and trounced Eddie Dibbs to win the $125,000 Louisville Tennis Classic 1-6, 6-0, 6-1.

After a weekend of strength-sapping heat, temperatures in Louisville suddenly cooled on Monday and Vilas was taken aback.

"In the first set, it was cold," the Argentine said. "After the first set, I started playing a little better. I was strong in the second set. I was afraid I was too strong."

Vilas suffered a service break in the opening game of the match and Dibbs, the diminutive player from Miami Beach, Fla., made quick work of him. But by drawing Dibbs to the net, Vilas broke his opponent in the next set's opening game and jumped ahead. His victory didn't come easily as the two engaged in some marathon rallies.

The Vilas victory was his third in as many weeks and extended his streak to 17. He has won the Louisville Classic three of the last four years.

IN SOUTH Orange, N.J., 18- year-old John McEnroe continued his binge by beating Bruce Nichols 6-3, 6-0 in the first round of an $85,000 tournament.

In other first-round action, Brian Teacher of San Diego beat Ali Madani of Iran 6-3, 6-1 and Ricardo Cano of Argentina swept Jean-Louis Haillet of France 7-6, 6-1. Sixteen-year-old Caroline Stoll of Livingston, N.J. blanked Bunny Smith, 6-0, 6-0.

Transsexual Dr. Renee Richards, who already had advanced to the quarter-finals, said she would sue officials of the U.S. Tennis Association if she isn't allowed to play in the U.S. Open in September. She was denied a berth there last year and at several international events this year when she did not pass sex chromosome tests.

"I've gone through an entire year trying to be a lady about this," she said bitterly. "Without question, this time I will sue."

IN NORTH Conway, N.H., defending champion Jimmy Connors defeated Jim Delaney of Potomac, Md., 6-3, 6-3 in the first round of a $125,000 international tennis tournament, fending off a last-minute challenge just as a thunderstorm let loose on the red clay court.

Arthur Ashe, recuperating from a heel injury, edged newcomer Jay DiLouie of Dallas 6- 4, 6-4. Second-seeded Brian Gottfried of Bonaventure, Fla., who has won four tournaments this season, disposed of Hans Kary of Austria 6-2, 6-1. Raul Ramirez of Mexico put down the challenge of Tim Gullikson of LaCrosse, Wis., winning 6-4, 6-2.

Seventh-seeded Stan Smith of Hilton Head, S.C., beat Ricardo Ycaza of Bolivia 6-0, 6-1. Tenth-seeded Bob Lutz defeated Jan Norbac of Sweden, 6-0, 6-1.

In European Davis Cup play, Corrado Barazzutti beat Manuel Orantes 7-5, 7-5, 6-1 for a 3-2 Italian victory over Spain in their zone final. Javier Soler beat Italy's No. 1 Adrianno Panatta in an abbreviated match 6-1, 6-0.

Italy will meet France in the next inter-zone finals next month.

Teams set record

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Some baseball experts dug into record books Monday and failed to come up with a modern day score that topped Harlingen's 34-11 trouncing of Corpus Christi the previous night in a Class A Lone Star league game.

"I would say that's a modern day record for all of professional baseball," said Russ Gill, a spokesman for the National Association for Professional Baseball Leagues in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Gill said he checked every record book he could locate Monday before making his statement about the Harlingen victory that saw the Suns score in every inning and belt 27 hits.

The five Corpus Christi pitchers who faced the Suns included Bobby Flores, a utility infielder, who gave up 10 runs in his 1⅓ inning stint.

Three Harlingen batters accounted for three home runs, 12 hits and 18 RBIs.

The 378 fans at the high school stadium saw every Harlingen player who came to the plate score at least one run and drive across another as Corpus Christi pitchers gave up 13 walks. Harlingen tallied 11 runs in the third inning.

Pair put on waivers; Wright out of action

By The Associated Press

Randy Crowder and Don Reese, the Miami Dolphins linemen who were suspended last May when they were arrested on drug charges, have been placed on waivers.

The team responded Monday to an order by the National Football League's Player-Club Relations Committee that the two be traded, reinstated or waived.

Crowder and Reese were suspended after their arrests. They argued that their suspendions were unfair because they hadn't yet been proven guilty.

Any team that picks the players up would have to pay the Dolphins a third-round draft choice or work out some other mutually satisfactory compensation.

In other NFL training camps, the Dallas Cowboys reported that All-Pro offensive tackle Rayfield Wright had undergone surgery on his knee. Three incisions were made to free a constricted area that was pressing on a nerve.

Doctors said Wright would be out of action for at least two months. His convalescence, coupled with the retirement of veteran guard Blaine Nye, have been a major headache for the Cowboys.

At Green Bay, 11-year veteran offensive lineman Bob Hyland, the last active link to the Green Bay Packer championship teams of the Vince Lombardi era, was placed on waivers at his own request.

"Bob felt he wasn't making the progress that he felt he should be making and that we did," said Bart Starr, the team's coach and general manager who quarterbacked the Lombardi-coached Packers to three consecutive NFL championships in the mid 1960s.

The Packers signed guard Tom Lyons, a free agent who was released two weeks ago by the Denver Broncos, to replace Hyland.

In another development, the Packers announced the retirement of quarterback Don Milan, who has been plagued by injuries.

Brad Van Pelt, who'd played out the option year of his contract with with the New York Giants, then reported nine days late for camp, agreed to terms with the club. Giants operations director Andy Robustelli said Van Pelt would play on a multiyear contract.

Chicago showing interest in Games

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Michael Bilandic said Monday Chicago is interested in hosting the 1984 Summer Olympics, if the federal government will pay most of the costs.

Bilandic told a City Hall news conference that the city has contacted the International Olympics Committee about the Summer Games.

"We are definitely interested, with certain basic conditions," Bilandic said. "One is that it would not impair the financial condition of Chicago."

Tulsa given choice

TULSA (AP) — Tulsa apparently has a choice between either rebuilding its present baseball park or moving it to the east of its present location on the fairgrounds for next season.

SPORTS CHATTER

It's no blonde, but. . .

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

I'm still not quite sure what prompted me to buy it. I went into the bookstore that afternoon with the sole purpose of purchasing a cook book, because ten months of peanut butter and tuna fish on Jewish rye is enough for anybody. But the truth is, I never made it to the cook books.

I was almost past the sports section when I could have sworn I heard this voice softly call out, "take me, take me." It just so happened that there was a gorgeous blonde standing nearby at the time, and I thought it was her. But she nicely explained that it wasn't after we got out to my car.

I returned to the bookstore later (much later), and while I didn't hear the mysterious voice again, my attention had been diverted long enough from the subject of food to notice several copies of Roger Kahn's new book, "A Season In the Sun."

I didn't want to buy it. Honest I didn't. At the time, I could have thought of a hundred better ways to spend $8.95. But like the little doggie in the pet shop window, with those sad little eyes you just can't resist, the book stared up at me from the shelf (get the net ready, men), just begging me to give it a home. To make a long story short, I did. And I'll never regret it. Of course, it's not in the same league as the blonde, but there's only so much you can expect from a book.

KAHN TAKES us through one full baseball season, as the author returns to his favorite sport to "see how it's doing. . . and find out whether it still has that same old magic."

We travel with this delightful man on a search that extends from New England to California and from Oregon to Puerto Rico. We visit the big leagues and the not so big. We meet men who chased a dream and caught it, and still others who never got the chance to even chase.

It's a book that will make you laugh, make you cry and make you think. And it's a book that will help you discover — as Kahn discovered — that baseball hasn't lost that "old magic."

Kahn traveled to Portland, Ore., to visit with Artie Wilson, a player who Hall of Famer Monte Irvin called "a superstar before the term was even invented." But Wilson was a ballplayer born out of time. He is black, and was never given the opportunity to play in the major leagues until his ability had all but succumbed to age and the torture of playing the game 11 months of the year for the past two decades.

But as Kahn visited with him, he found the man without bitterness, and suprisingly full of pleasant memories. Some are believable, and some, like the story of a catcher named Lockett in the old Negro league, a little hard to swallow, but enjoyable nonetheless.

" '. . . He could run so fast that going to back up first he'd beat the runner there,' Wilson said straight-faced. 'One day somebody hit a ground ball toward the hole and the pitcher forgot to cover. But the guy was out on a play that went from the first baseman to Lockett.' "

And then there was Wilson's tale of Leo Durocher, his manager on the New York Giants during his brief stay in the major leagues at the tail end of his playing days.

" 'Why, one time with the Giants, Leo came into a Pullman car where a lot of his ball players were shooting craps. Leo took off his jacket, got down on the floor and half an hour later he had every dollar in that Pullman. Then he stood up and told the players, 'You have already been taken to bed. Now it's time for you to go to sleep.' "

BUT MY favorite tale in the book was Kahn's re-enactment of an incident in the career of pitching great Early Wynn, who was almost as reknown for his drinking ability as his pitching.

I'll let Kahn take it from here.

"On that one careless night he was working for Cleveland and visiting Bill Veeck, who owned the Indians. Martinis proceeded dinner. Stingers followed. 'Curiously I don't remember exactly what we served next,' Veeck says, 'but I do recall that at 4:30 in the morning I was mixing grasshoppers. Then it struck Early. He was scheduled to pitch the next day and here he was drinking late with the boss.'

" 'I better go home,' Wynn said. 'One o'clock game.'

" 'It's too late to worry about sleep now,' Veeck said. 'You better just keep going.'

"Wynn reached the ball park at eleven, put on a rubber jacket and began to run. He sweated and showered and went out and pitched a shutout. 'Then the reporters came,' Veeck says, 'and Early answered all their questions. He got somebody with the knuckle ball. Someone else was fooled by a high slider. He did just fine until the last reporter left the dressing room. Then he fell over on his face.' "

There is more — much, much more in this truly great book.

If something ever was worth every penny I paid for it, "A Season In the Sun" was. Now, I've got just one problem. How to live on peanut butter and tuna fish on rye until I can raise the money again for the cook book. Anybody know a soup kitchen that serves lobster?

Hope for Roberto's dream

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The first thing you remember about Roberto Clemente is his style. It was dashing, non-stop. He patrolled right field in Pittsburgh as if it was his private tract of land and you'd better not try trespassing.

He fielded with abandon, hustling after hits, playing the walls as if he had built them, rifling throws with matchless accuracy. On routine plays, he made basket catches with a nonchalence that belied the competitive fires which always burned within him.

He strode to the plate with an air of confidence, constructed of years of being able to do just what he wanted to in the batter's box. The small hitch step as he swung the bat was like a signature flair. It stamped the swing as pure Clemente. Three thousand hits testify to the man's ability to hit.

Clemente was just a joy to watch. He played baseball like a man with a mission. And he played life the same way.

It is almost five years now since Clemente took off on New Year's Eve 1972, aboard a DC-7 rescue plane overloaded with relief supplies for the victims of an earthquake in Nicaragua. The plane never made it past the Puerto Rican coastline and Clemente was lost in the crash, his life tragically cut short.

It also cut short a dream that had been stirring in Clemente's soul. In the final years of his life, Clemente often spoke of his dream—the establishment of a sports city for the youngsters of his native Puerto Rico.

The dream was born in the slums of San Juan, the teeming streets where life is a constant struggle for the people. Clemente knew those streets, the bad side of his island, just as intimately as he knew the immaculate beaches and resort hotels that dot the other side of it.

The sports city had the ring of so many unreachable goals. So much was involved. The money, the land, the facilities. How could it ever be accomplished? The question haunted Clemente.

When he died, those questions were unanswered. The whole idea ...the entire project could have been buried at sea with Clemente. But it was not. His friends and his fans, the people who remembered Roberto best, would not let it disintegrate.

Today, the seeds of Clemente's sports city have been sown. Over half a million dollars have been contributed to the program and the complex has started to take shape with four baseball diamonds, two softball fields, an observation tower and locker facilities in place and operating.

But there is more, much more to be done if Clemente's total dream is to be realized. The plans call for tennis and basketball courts, a track, football and soccer fields, a pool, grandstands, museum, clubhouse, dormoratory facilities for 300 youngsters and lots more.

The Pittsburgh Jaycees have stepped into the picture and are sponsoring a national one-day fund-raising campaign on Sunday, Aug. 14. They are calling it "A Buck For Roberto's Dream," and they are asking the public to contribute so that Clemente's sports city can be completed.

If Clemente ever lifted you out of your seat with one of his circus catches or rifle throws or with a clutch hit, here's one way to say "Thank you." He'd like that.

Fitzsimmons named coach

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Cotton Fitzsimmons has beaten out at least two other candidates for the head coaching position of the Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association.

King pleads guilty to charges

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bernard King is now free to pursue a pro basketball career after pleading guilty in Knox County General Sessions Court to resisting arrest and possessing marijuana.

The first-round draft choice of the Nets was fined $50 and given a 60-day suspended sentence on each charge Monday after two other charges, attempted larceny and prowling, were dismissed.

King, 20, was accused of trying to steal a $1,500 videotape television from the University of Tennessee's athletic department on July 10. He was arrested inside the school's athletic center and police found the television in the back of his car parked outside.

Six days later, the two-time Associated Press All-America choice was arrested in an apartment building on the three other charges.

King was selected by the Nets in June after he announced he was giving up his senior year at Tennessee to turn pro under the hardship draft. The arrests and subsequent legal proceedings have delayed negotiations on a contract.

King would not talk to newsmen Monday. Bill Banks, his attorney in the court cases, said Donald Dell, King's attorney in the contract talks, advised his client to say nothing.

A 6-7 forward from Brooklyn, N.Y., King was the leading scorer and rebounder in the Southeastern Conference the past season, averaging 25.6 points and 14.3 rebounds a game.

His younger brother, Albert, was considered the top high school prospect in the nation last season and will attend the University of Maryland this fall.

Judge Harrold Wimberly of Knox County General Sessions Court approved an agreement between King and the prosecution after reading a letter from Tennessee Athletic Director Bob Woodruff to Dist. Atty. Gen. Ronald Webster.

Gold places 2nd

BIG SPRING — Midland Gold lost to Odessa, 7-2, in the championship finals of the Miss Softball American Minor League State Tournament here over the weekend to place second in the tourney.

Gold reached the finals by downing Midland Red, 33-4, and then defeated Odessa, 20-7, to force the championship game in the double elimination tournament. Midland Red was third.

El Paso tops Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Tommy Smith's ninth-inning double scored Floyd Rayford from first base with the game-winner Monday night as El Paso nudged Arkansas 6-5 to stretch its West Division lead over San Antonio to two games.

San Antonio fell to Jackson, 5-1. In other action Shreveport blanked Midland 2-0 and Amarillo rapped Tulsa 8-4.

Johnny Young poled a solo home run in the eighth for Arkansas to put his team ahead at 5-4, but El Paso pecked away for the tying run in its half of the inning and set the stage for Smith's blow.

Chuck Porter went the distance for El Paso to run his record to 5-1. He survived a shaky start to get the win over John Littlefield, who lost in relief.

Dave Lozano and Marshall Brant each picked up three hits to pace Jackson's victory and Mike Scott went the distance for his 11th win against eight losses.

Soccer players want to link up with union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Johnny Kerr has played soccer in the United States since 1968 and believes the time is right for the players to organize in the union. The National Football League Players Association agrees with him.

Kerr, who toiled for the Cosmos, the Detroit Cougars and most recently for the Washington Diplomats, has been feeling out members of the North American Soccer League to find out if they are interested in becoming a member of the union.

Apparently they are. Some 265 of a minimum 306 have signed authorization cards permitting the NFL players Association to be their representative in talks with management on wages, hours and working conditions.

A meeting of player representatives of the 18 teams and alternates, soon to be elected, will be held in Washington on Aug. 29.

Alaska crude moving to West Coast refinery

By WARD SIMS

ABOARD THE ARCO JUNEAU (AP) — The supertanker Arco Juneau pushed smoothly and powerfully through Alaska's Prince William Sound today, carrying the first load of Prudhoe Bay oil to the lower 48.

Its cargo is 843,000 barrels of Alaskan crude — a drop in the 9 billion-barrel bucket that forms the North Slope petroleum pool.

No more expensive oil has ridden aboard the Arco Juneau. At $7.7 billion to build the 800-mile trans-Alaska pipeline, $4 billion to develop the Prudhoe fields and hundreds of millions more in other expenses, this first "payoff" shipment cost more than $300 a gallon.

The 883-foot, 120,000-ton Arco Juneau cast off from the Valdez terminal of the pipeline at 6:55 p.m. local time — four years after the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. predicted it would have oil out of Alaska by Aug. 1, 1977.

A barrage of horns and highflying spray from tugboats marked the departure as 15 or 20 pleasure boats circled at a distance.

On the bridge, Capt. Emery McGowan took almost no notice of the commotion. As tugboat spray fell beside the tanker, he uttered his only comment: "At least we know the fire pumps are working."

The ship passed five other tankers awaiting their turn at the terminal dock — the Sohio Intrepid, the Overseas Alaska, the Exxon New Orleans, the Mobil Arctic and the Overseas Arctic.

McGowan has predicted an 80-hour passage for the 1,500 miles south to Atlantic Richfield's Cherry Point, Wash., refinery.

At a news conference prior to sailing, Alyeska officials said they would not tolerate oil spills in Valdez.

"We have no acceptable spillage rate," said Henry Mowell, Alyeska vice president for operations. "There is more oil in the small boat harbor than there is at our terminal."

Overnight, he said, this tiny port will become a superport, handling 60 million tons a year.

Ultimately, Valdez will handle three or four major ships a day. But in the beginning, it will average one a day.

It took 38½ days to move the oil from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez. Along the way were four major shutdowns, one of them caused by an explosion at Pump Station No. 8 near Fairbanks which killed one man and destroyed the facility. The line was restarted 10 days later with Pump Station No. 9 picking up the load.

Oil was discovered on the North Slope above the Arctic Circle in 1968. A year later, the state sold leases to the Prudhoe Bay field.

What first was envisioned as a $900 million pipeline was announced. But it wasn't until 1974, after the Arab oil embargo and congressional action, that pipeline construction began.

The pipeline will supply about 10 per cent of the nation's oil needs. Alyeska's eight owner oil companies believe the Prudhoe Bay field will last more than 20 years.

Gas strike in Edwards completes; extensions final; wildcat tests

A gas strike has been finished in Edwards County, while Runnels fields gained extensions and a Nolan wildcat was making production tests.

Champlin Petroleum Co. completed its No. 1-A Allied-Whitworth as a Canyon sand gas strike in Edwards, three miles east of an undesignated Canyon gas well.

The calculated, absolute open flow potential gauge was for 84,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, producing through perforations at 3,533-3,625 feet, after acidizing with 650 gallons.

The well is 2,077 feet from north and 2,269 feet from west lines of section 5, block 11, GC&SF survey, three miles east of Rocksprings.

RUNNELS EXTENDERS

Walsh & Trant Petroleum Corp. of Tyler has announced completion of No. 1-A C. R. Kendricks, one location west of the one-well Kendrick (Gardner) oil field, to flow 38 barrels of 43-gravity oil per day, along with 65 barrels of water, and gas-oil ratio measuring 1,658-1.

Completion was effected through a 32-64-inch choke and Gardner perforations at 4,324-4,356 feet. The section had been acidized with 750 gallons and fractured with 8,000 gallons and 6,000 pounds of sand.

Staked as a wildcat, it is 258 feet from north and 1,056 feet from west lines of W. H. Vancil survey 51½, two miles northeast of Winters.

Fourth and fifth wells have been completed in the Motley, North (Palo Pinto) field, by Desert Oil Co. of Abilene.

No. 2-A Walter Templin, a ⅛-mile north extension to the pool gauged a 24-hour pumping potential of 61.3 barrels of 41.2-gravity oil and 48 barrels of water.

It finaled through perforations at 3,862-3,868 feet, after acidizing the pay section with 2,000 gallons.

It is 1,845.5 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 23, H&GN survey, three miles southeast of Norton.

Also, Desert No. 1-A Walter Templin, ⅜ mile northwest, was recompleted for a daily pumping potential of 72.2 barrels of 41.2-gravity oil and 54 barrels of water, through perforations at 3,833-3,839 feet.

A former Caddo well, it was completed from that pay in July, 1976.

James K. Anderson, Inc., Dallas, No. 1 Rotan, Nolan County prospector, ½ mile northwest of Nolan townsite, swabbed 73 barrels of fluid, cut 25 per cent oil, the remainder load, in 5½ hours, from the King sand.

Recovery was through perforations at 4,127-4,140 feet, after treating the pay with 250 gallons of gelled water and 5,000 pounds of sand. Testing continued.

SUTTON WELL

A sixth Stran, North well and 1½-mile southwest extension to that pay has been completed in the Sawyer field of Sutton County, 11 miles northwest of Sonora.

Amoco Production Co. No. 2-K Edwin S. Mayer Jr. gauged a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 220,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 7,947-8,061 feet, after 3,000 gallons of acid.

Midland well finals; Pecos wildcat staked

Pecos County gained a wildcat site, an extender finaled in Coke County, a stepout was planned in a Sterling field and a Midland oil pool gained a new site.

H. L. Brown of Midland staked site for No. 1 CITGO-Neal, 15,500-foot wildcat, in Pecos, 18 miles north of Fort Stockton.

Drillsite is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 34, block 142, T&StL survey, two miles north of the Petco (Devonian and Ellenburger) field and ½ mile north of the Roxie (Yates) pool.

COKE EXTENDER

Strawn gas production in the Jameson, North field has been extended southwestward into Coke County with completion of Sun Oil Co. No. 1 Tubb-Omega, for a calculated, absolute open flowing potential of 176,000 cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-liquid ratio of 20,000-1. Condensate gravity is 59.1 degrees.

It was completed through perforations at 5,793-5,836 feet, following acid treatment with 500 gallons.

The field, opened in Mitchell County in 1953, currently has only one other producer, which is in Nolan County.

MIDLAND SITE

MWJ Producing Co., Midland, will drill No. 1-13-J Fasken, a 4,200-foot test in the Germania (Grayburg) oil pool of Midland County.

STERLING PROJECT

Drillsite is 467 feet from north and west lines of section 197, block 2, H&TC survey, 10 miles northeast of Sterling City. Planned depth is 7,500 feet.

Wildcat set in Dawson

Seventy-Seven Corp., Midland, filed application for a 9,100-foot wildcat in Dawson County, one mile southeast of the Gold Creek (Cisco) oil pool. It is No. 1 Wristen.

Spraberry well finals

The project, scheduled as a wildcat, finaled for a 24-hour potential of 38 barrels of oil and 22 barrels of water, on a pump, through perforations from 6,928 to 6,970 feet. The pay had been fractured with 40,000 gallons.

Gravity of the oil is 38 degrees, and the gas-oil ratio during the potential test was 690-1.

The well is bottomed at 10,890 feet. Tests through perforations from 10,034 to 10,070 did not develop commercial production. Tests also were made on perforations from 10,564 to 10,605 feet.

Operator set 4½-inch casing at 10,870 feet.

Crosby region draws wildcat exploration

A discovery offset has been planned for Southeast Crosby County, a stepout site was staked in a Gaines field and a Garza confirmer has been assured.

Ashland Oil, Inc., Houston, has scheduled No. 1 Robert Canon, a Crosby test, as a ½-mile northwest stepout to the lone Canyon reef well in the White River field of Dickens County.

It has a project depth of 7,550 feet, and spots 467 feet from north and east lines of section 86, block 2, H&GN survey, five miles east of Kalgary.

The discovery, Ashland No. 1 Woodward, finaled in December 1976, for 177 barrels of 32-gravity oil daily, through a 16-64-inch choke and perforations at 6,913-6,950 feet.

GAINES STEPOUT

Hytech Energy Corp., Midland, No. 1 King is slated as a ½-mile northeast stepout to the Loop, Northeast (Yates) gas field of Gaines County.

It is slated to 3,500 feet and spots 1,320 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 7, block C-32, PSL survey, one mile northeast of Loop.

GARZA PROJECT

Maguire Oil Co., Dallas, No. 2 Fletcher-Lott, ½ mile southeast stepout to the discovery well in the Vern-Mag (8240) oil field of Garza County, flowed 112 barrels of oil and 70 barrels of water in an unreported time.

Gas wells potential

Joseph I. O'Neill Jr. of Midland has announced completion of two Canyon sand wells in the Cody Bell field of Schleicher County, about 11 miles northwest of Eldorado.

No. 1-A Barrow, a ½-mile north extension, finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 3.9 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 6,422 to 6,484 feet. The pay had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 27,000 gallons, plus an unreported amount of sand.

No. 1-B H. J. Case, a ⅝-mile southwest extension, gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 1.475 million cubic feet of gas daily, through perforations at 6,386 to 6,402 feet, following 2,000 gallons of acid, plus 20,000 gallons of fracture fluid. Amount of sand was unreported.

It was drilled to 6,700 feet and plugged back to 6,430 feet.

Frank L. Constant

Constant joined Union Oil in 1952 in Midland and has worked in both exploration and development in the West Texas area.

A graduate of the University of Oklahoma with a degree in Petroleum Geology, Constant served in the U.S. Navy during World War II and the Korean conflict.

He is a member of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists in which he is a certified petroleum geologist and vice president of the Division of Professional Affairs.

He is president of the Southwest Section of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists and is serving on the American Petroleum Institute committee on Reserves and Productive Capacity.

Four counties in WT gain sites for wildcats

Gulf Oil Corp. accounted for the Val Verde prospector, an 11,500-foot test to be drilled 14½ miles northeast of Juno. It is No. 1-H R. L. Bledsoe.

Drillsite is 1,886 feet from south and 860 feet from west lines of section 45, EL&RR survey, abstract 1737, 2⅜ miles southeast of the Devil's River (Strawn) gas field.

SUTTON TRY

Lively Energy Co. of Houston has scheduled No. 2-22 Aldwell Ranch as a 9,700-foot venture in Sutton, one mile east of production in the Whitehead (Strawn) gas area.

The test spots 1,950 feet from north and 3,233 feet from west lines of Sherley Goodwin survey 22, 16 miles southwest of Sonora. It also is 1½ mile northwest of the Aldwell Ranch (Canyon) pool.

Sojourner Drilling Corp. of Abilene accounted for a 5,500-foot wildcat in Fisher, three miles southwest of Hamlin. It is No. 1 T. I. Johnson.

RUNNELS PROBE

McDonnell Oil Co., Abilene, filed application to drill No. 1 W. J. Briley, a 4,500-foot Runnels County searcher, ⅝ mile north of Gardner sand production in the Dick Richards field.

DRILLING REPORT

ANDREWS — Texaco No. 3-Z State of Texas; td 12,531 feet; swabbed 96 barrels of oil and 107 barrels of water in 15 hours, through perforations at 12,518-12,528 feet, after acidizing with 2,000 gallons.

CHAVES — Texas O&G No. 1-A O'Brien; drilling 3,460 feet in lime.

Blair & Metcalfe No. 1 Hudson-Federal; td 3,870 feet; pumped 11 barrels of oil and 150 barrels of water in 24 hours, through perforations at 3,734-3,785 feet.

DAWSON — Gulf No. 2 Speck; td 12,190 feet; swabbed four barrels of water in six hours, through perforations at 9,835-9,839 feet. Operator acidized with 2,000 gallons, and it then swabbed 60 barrels of water with a trace of oil in four hours.

ECTOR — Holt No. 1 Secret Holt; still preparing to spud. Only drilling depths will be released.

EDDY — C&K No. 1-12 Carlsbad; td 11,683 feet, racking 2⅞-inch tubing and preparing to clean out plug after running logs.

Gulf No. 2-FT Eddy; drilling 4,090 feet in lime, sand.

ARCO No. 1-BU State; td 11,352 feet, swabbing. Casing and perforations have not been reported.

Bennett & Ryan No. 1 Penasco; td 8,973 feet, logging; a 45-minute drillstem test from 8,800-8,973 feet, recovered 150 feet of drilling fluid.

GAINES — Cities Service No. 1-A Peters; drilling 12,451 feet in lime, shale.

LEA — Brock No. 1 Mauldin; td 14,107 feet, preparing to reacidize through perforations at 10,602-10,610 feet.

Mewbourne No. 1-G State; drilling 9,940 feet in lime.

V-F No. 1 Landreth; drilling 2,683 feet in salt.

LOVING — Texas O&G No. 1 Amarillo; td 20,335 feet, preparing to acidize through perforations at 11,188-11,280 feet, and test.

Berry No. 2-A Mar-State; drilling 1,200 feet in salt and anhydrite.

REEVES — Exxon No. 1 McIntire; td 6,850 feet; drilling out cement after setting 7⅝-inch liner from 2,796-6,849 feet.

SCHLEICHER — Gulf No. 1-UF State; td 8,005 feet; flowing to test tank, recovered 115 barrels of water in three hours, through a 12/64-inch choke and perforations at 7,842-7,862 feet.

TERRELL — Napeco No. 1 Rashap; flowed 750,000 cubic feet of gas per day, plus 25 barrels of condensate, through a ¼-inch choke, now shut in.

UPTON — Gulf No. 939-D McElroy; td 10,500 feet; flowed 71 barrels of oil and 55 barrels of water in 24 hours, through a 16/64-inch choke and perforations at 9,816-9,746 feet.

VAL VERDE — Resources Investment No. 1-18 Mills; drilling 7,989 feet in lime and shale.

C&K No. 1-40 Mobil-Mills; td 15,186 feet; logging.

Union Texas No. 1-58 Sealy; drilling 9,135 feet in lime and shale.

WINKLER — Hilliard No. 1 Amburgey; td 9,074 feet; has been plugged and abandoned.

GMW No. 1 Roman Nose; drilling 8,734 feet.

YOAKUM — MGF No. 1 Lowe, td 7,000 feet; pb 6,650 feet; swabbed 108 barrels of fluid (10 per cent oil) in 10 hours, through perforations at 6,844-6,870 feet.

Bridge detectives should spot crimes

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Get out your magnifying glass for a close look at today's hand. Two horrible crimes were committed, and any first class bridge detective should spot both crimes and criminals.

Opening lead — ♣ Q

South took the ace of clubs and led the jack of diamonds for a successful finesse. The ten of diamonds then lost to the queen.

Back came the nine of hearts, and South's jack lost to the king. West returned a heart to the ace, and south forced out the ace of diamonds. Declarer later got to dummy with the queen of hearts to cash two good diamonds.

You have all the clues you need. See if you can spot the crimes and the criminals before you read on.

ENTRY TO DUMMY

South could make his contract only by getting to dummy with the queen of hearts to cash two good diamonds. When South finessed with the jack of hearts, West should play low. East gets the ace of diamonds and lead another heart. If south plays the ten, West takes the king then.

However, when East leads the first heart, South should play the ace. South forces out the ace of diamonds and can later lead a heart. West takes the king but south still has a heart to lead to dummy's queen.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club, and the next player passes. You hold: S-962; H-K52; D-72 C-QJ1073. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two clubs. This should be a reasonable contract even if south has opened on a three-card suit.

Burlington Zephyr trains now serving Saudi Arabia

HOFUF, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Burlington Zephyr passenger trains, once famous for the fast runs between Chicago and points west, are whistling across the desert sands of Saudi Arabia these days.

Completely refurbished by a Kansas City businessman and sold to the Saudi Arabian railroad authority for an estimated $5 million, the streamliners started service in March between the Persian Gulf port of Dammam and the capital, Riyadh.

But at first the Saudi railroad had to overcome a problem of fine desert sand which whipped into the cars and caused passengers to cough and cover their faces.

As the sleek silver trains whizzed across the desert, including a northern finger of the vast sand sea called the Empty Quarter, they created a vacuum which sucked the pinkish dust into the cars.

So Abul Muhsin Bashawri, deputy director of the Saudi Arabian Railroad Organization, took the trains out of service for three weeks in June. Engineers plugged up the floors of the stainless steel cars.

By June 26 the Zephyrs were whipping across the sands again at 60 miles an hour. Their maximum speed is 110, but that is unsafe. On the desert railbed, temperature changes of as much as 100 degrees between day and night make rails expand and contract and Arabian winds blow faster than the Zephyrs themselves.

The Riyadh-Dharan link built by the Arabian-American Oil Co. is the only working railroad in Saudi Arabia. The Hijaz Railroad, running north-south along the Red Sea coast was blown up by Lawrence of Arabia and his Arab independence fighters in World War I.

For a unique desert railroad, it has unique equipment.

Railroad officials from Saudi Arabia, which has vast oil wealth, visited the United States in 1975. They inspected the Zephyrs which had been bought by Alexander Barket, a Kansas City banker.

Barket got the 24 Zephyr cars at a price between $40,000 and $52,000 each after the trains were taken out of service in 1968. He used them for business promotions.

With names like Silver Lining, Silver Beam and Silver Screen, the Zephyrs were the ultimate in railroad travel in the U.S. West.

Divided into two 12-car trains, they covered the 1,034 miles between Denver and Chicago in 15 hours with 13 stops.

GAS UTILITIES DIVISION

Re: Application of Lo-Vaca Gathering Company and Coastal States Gas Producing Company For a Review and Revision of Prices and Rates In Their Existing Agreements — Gas Utilities — Docket No. 500

STATEMENT OF INTENT BY LO-VACA GATHERING COMPANY AND COASTAL STATES GAS PRODUCING COMPANY TO CHANGE RATES

TO THE HONORABLE RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS:

Lo-Vaca Gathering Company ("Lo-Vaca") and Coastal States Gas Producing Company ("Coastal"), pursuant to the requirements of Section 43(a) of the Public Utility Regulatory Act (1446c, T.R.C.S), files this statement of intent to change rates, effective September 1, 1977, the rates they are charging all customers on the Lo-Vaca system for the purchase of natural gas to a uniform rate applicable to each customer on the system, which rate consists of 100% of Lo-Vaca's weighted average cost of gas plus 16.70 cents per Mcf. The cost of gas is to be adjusted each month in accordance with Lo-Vaca's billing procedure, which is Lo-Vaca Exhibit KLH #515, filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas ("Commission") in Gas Utilities Docket No. 500 on June 13, 1977.

The present rate charged by Lo-Vaca for the sale of natural gas to nearly all Texas customers is 100% of Lo-Vaca's weighted average cost of gas (determined in accordance with the billing procedure set forth in Lo-Vaca Exhibit WKA #17 in Gas Utilities Docket No. 500) plus 5 cents per Mcf.

The new rate is anticipated to increase Lo-Vaca's revenues by $60,196,106 in calendar year 1978. This is an increase of 5.61% over total revenues which would have been received if the present rate were continued in effect for that year.

Respectfully submitted,
LO-VACA GATHERING COMPANY
COASTAL STATES GAS PRODUCING COMPANY

Hello from Greece

Editor's Note: Aliss McCright is an exchange student from Midland. She is spending her summer in Greece. At the request of The Reporter-Telegram she has sent a report of her activities.

Hello from Greece:

I arrived here at the end of June, along with about 60 other Youth for Understanding exchange students from all over the U.S. We stayed in Athens for four days sightseeing. This included visits to the Parthenon, the Oracle of Delphi and a day-long cruise to three Greek Islands.

The Parthenon is even more impressive than I expected it would be. It was built to last thousands of years and would have, except that during the Greek Revolution it was used to store gunpowder which blew up. The Turks also destroyed much of the building. Lately, pollution has been damaging the Parthenon and other buildings on Acropolis. The Greeks have been working to stop this destruction and have asked for assistance from other countries.

After the four days in Athens, the students separated and went to their host families. Mine lives about 70 miles from Athens in Halkis, the capital of the island Evvia. It is separated from the mainland by a narrow channel. Halkis has a population of 50,000, and because of its good beaches and interesting sights, it is rapidly becoming a popular tourist attraction.

During the day, there is swimming, boating or shopping. At night the people walk down the cafe-lined street next to the channel. There are also discotheques and nightclubs nearby. Water polo is played every night, and during holidays there are traditional Greek dances and music.

The food here is very different from American food. A great deal of fish is eaten, usually fried in olive oil. Bread is eaten at every meal. The Greeks usually eat fruit instead of dessert. If sweets are eaten it is before the evening meal, which is eaten around 10 or 11 p.m. After I got used to the food, I began trying some delicacies, including fried octopus which is very good.

The Greek way of life is very relaxed and slow, but the time is passing quickly. Until next time.

Sas Hereto, Alisa.

AUSTIN BUREAU

AUSTIN — In drafting the Department of Public Welfare's new budget, the Legislature mandated that all elderly Medicaid patients receive three medical prescriptions each month.

That's obviously a noble intention for helping insure that the elderly of Texas receive adequate medical care. But it appears a little wasteful if the patients don't need exactly three prescriptions each month.

Welfare Board Commissioner Raymond Vowell also says the Legislature didn't appropriate enough money for the department to buy nursing home residents three prescriptions a month, and the tough state bureaucrat indicates he might not follow the legislative intent.

As Vowell told the three-member State Welfare Board, "There's a tougher (criminal) penalty for overspending than there is for violating legislative intent."

Securities sales okayed

MGF Oil Corp. of Midland was among four applicants granted permits to sell securities by the State Securities Board recently.

The permit granted was for $1,250,000.

Gonzalez denounces LBJ election fraud allegation

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charges that a 1948 Texas Senate primary runoff election was stolen for Lyndon B. Johnson "only repeat an old, old lie," says Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex.

Gonzalez, in a House floor speech on Monday, denounced The Associated Press for reporting Luis Salas' account of the alleged election fraud.

Salas, a former election judge and member of the political organization of George B. Parr, a powerful Democrat in Jim Wells County, Texas., said he was told to add 200 votes for Johnson to Ballot Box 13. He said he did, and Johnson, a congressman at the time, defeated former Gov. Coke R. Stevenson for the Democratic Senate nomination by 87 votes.

That victory launched Johnson's career in national politics, which culminated in his election to the presidency.

Gonzalez, in an interview after his speech, said he does not know Salas or any of the other principals in his story. But he was well acquainted with Johnson.

At the time of the disputed 1948 Senate primary, Gonzalez was a teacher and businessman in San Antonio who "never dreamed I would wind up in politics."

Gonzalez based his House speech on several aspects of Salas's story that he said "I have a strong feeling weren't true. They didn't smack of the sort of expertise he (Parr) was reputed to have."

In his speech, Gonzalez denounced Salas as a "pistolero" or thug for Parr. He said the Parr organization was well known for its corruption and added that Salas was obviously a "man who would not hesitate to do anything for his boss."

But Gonzalez said he could not believe that Parr would order ballots to be forged with as many witnesses as Salas said were present. All of them except Salas are now dead.

Gonzalez said he did not think it was possible for Johnson to say, three days after the election, that he needed 200 more votes. "How did he know? Did Lyndon Johnson know what every ballot box in Texas contained? Not even the legendary Chicago machine had that kind of information."

Gonzalez criticized the portion of the story that recounted how Stevenson, 13 days after the election, went to Jim Wells County with a group that included "former FBI agent T. Kellis Dibrell."

It quoted Dibrell's memory that a Jim Wells County official gave them only a brief glimpse of the list of voters for Box 13 before snatching it away. Dibrell said his glimpse corroborated Salas's story that the 200 names were added in alphabetical order.

Gonzalez said the story should have stated clearly that Dibrell had left the FBI and was not representing it in 1948 and that he was Stevenson's San Antonio campaign manager.

"The AP story only repeats an old, old lie and it dishonors the memory of a man who surely deserves better. We might expect this kind of story in the sensational weekly tabloids, but surely we deserve more from one of the foremost news organizations in the land," Gonzalez said.

Poll watcher was only ignored

By HUGH AYNESWORTH
The Dallas Times Herald

ALICE, Tex. — Jim Holmgreen tried to tell everybody about it — the FBI, almost every major newspaper in Texas, assorted Senators and Congressmen, even the U.S. Attorney Geneal — but nobody was interested.

Holmgreen was a poll watcher (as election supervisors were termed here) back in 1949 when Lyndon B. Johnson nosed out Coke Stevenson for the Democratic senatorial nomination. It was to be LBJ's first major step to the presidency 15 years later.

Luis Salas, the election judge who read off the tallies in precinct 13 that sweltering August night, has told The Associated Press that Johnson had called on Jim Wells county political boss George B. Parr after the election and told Parr he needed a couple hundred more votes to win.

Parr, Salas said, then directed him to certify additional ballots using the names of people who didn't vote. Six days after the election, on Sept. 3, 1948, the Texas Election Bureau was told that Johnson had received 202 additional votes.

Those votes, in the closest Senate race in the state's history, enabled Johnson to upset the three-time governor by 87 votes.

Stevenson cried foul and judges and investigative agencies probed the election briefly. Salas had, by this time, left for a Mexican vacation, and the voting lists, which would have revealed the fraud, according to Salas and Holmgreen, were destroyed.

But Holmgreen did his best.

"I just couldn't believe it," he said. "I thought sure some of the big newspapers would be interested in what had happened here. I was young, I guess. But I was appalled. It got to be a lonely fight."

In fact, Holmgreen's fight started early that election day when he was tossed into jail at Salas' insistance after he questioned voting procedures. "The first voter who came to the polls was illegal," Holmgreen said. He came in with a marked ballot. I complained and before I knew it, the police had locked me up.

"They didn't keep me in long though," Holmgreen recalled. Soon he was back at precinct 13 watching the voting.

Holmgreen said he knew nothing of Salas' admissions that more than 200 names were added to the voting tally and certified for Johnson, but claimed he saw at least 100 other ballots counted falsely by Salas. "And I couldn't see half of them," he added.

Sakharov stepdaughter emigration authorized

The Washington Post

MOSCOW — Soviet authorities have agreed to allow the stepdaughter of dissident physicist Andrei Sakharov to emigrate from the country with her husband and their two children, the Sakharov family said Monday.

Sakharov, winner of the Nobel peace prize in 1975 for his support of human rights causes in the Soviet Union, had complained recently that officials were harassing his stepdaughter and her husband "really as an attempt to get at me."

Monday, however, the family reported that Yefrem Yankelevich, his wife, Tatyana, both 27, and their two children have been notified by an official of the Soviet Passport Office to prepare to leave Russia within 20 days.

Yankelevich said he had applied on June 27 to emigrate to Israel. The visa would be granted under the family reunification provisions of the Helsinki accords on human rights. Yankelevich's brother, David, recently emigrated from the U.S.S.R. to Israel.

Western diplomatic sources suggested that the Soviets decided to permit the family to leave "because it enables the Russians to look nice just before Belgrade. They can say that 'even members of the family of well-known dissident Sakharov are permitted to leave.' " The Soviet Union, the United States and 34 other nations that signed the Helsinki agreement on European security are scheduled this fall to discuss their own compliance with the human rights provisions of the accords.

Yankelevich told Western reporters Monday that he intends to live in the United States. Four years ago he was invited to study radio electronics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but was refused a temporary visa by the Soviet government. The news that the Sovietsa were going to grant him and his family visas simply underscores the somewhat unpredictable nature of Soviet actions toward citizens it considers troublemakers. In recent months, even since the Kremlin began arresting dissidents in a crackdown on human rights activism here, there have been at the same time several instances when the drive to throttle the voices seemed to pause and briefly abate. But the combination of arrests and grants of emigration is inexorably reducing the size and impact of the tiny dissident community and its supporters.

Gas mistake possible cause of patient deaths

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Pipes from tanks of oxygen and "laughing gas" were mixed up for six months in a nearby hospital's new emergency room, and state officials are investigating the possibility that the error killed patients.

"Several deaths may have resulted from this defect in construction," said Richard Anderson, administrator of the 141bed Suburban General Hospital in East Norriton Township.

Hospital death and medical records are being checked to determine which patients required oxygen and how many patients, if any, died because they instead received nitrous oxide, or "laughing gas," said Alan Sommers, the hospital's public relations man.

Oxygen usually is administered to persons experiencing respiratory or cardiac difficulty. Nitrous oxide usually is used as an anesthetic or relaxant.

About 9,000 persons were treated in the emergency room while the lines were mixed. Some 300 needed oxygen and therefore may have been exposed to the wrong gas, hospital officials said.

Morning edition planned

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Times Herald said today it will begin publishing an early morning edition for newsstand sales starting Sept. 12.

Times Herald Chairman and chief executive officer James F. Chambers said the new edition will be distributed by 6 a.m. He said it will include all regular features of the afternoon Times Herald, plus latest news and sports and complete stock market and financial reports.

"The new edition will not affect our regular coverage and we will continue to publish our normal afternoon editions for home delivery and evening street sales," said Executive Vice President Ken Johnson.

State Hi-Junior tourney opens

By BOB DILLON

Teams from Midland, Odessa, Houston, Dallas, Waco, Abernathy, LaMarque and Tyler will square off in the four-day double elimination tourney.

A pair of unbeaten teams — Waco and Abernathy get things underway at 1 p.m. The Waco Northwestern Optimists (14-0) will battle the Tri-County team from Abernathy. It's record is 15-0.

The next game follows at 3:30 p.m. when Kips of Dallas (22-5-1), takes on the LaMarque Texans (16-0).

The Greater Wood County Raiders of Tyler (15-1) will then battle El Paso Products of Odessa (14-1) in the 6 p.m. contest and the feature game will be between the Bel Air Karl Young Cardinals (13-5-2) and the Mustang Mud Mustangs of Midland (11-1) at 8:30 p.m.

THERE WAS a special meeting Monday night at Commercial Bank and Trust Company to go over the tourney rules and draw up the bracket of the tourney.

Tickets for the tourney are $1 per adult and 50 cents per child with four games each day today through Thursday and three on tap for Friday, unless a team comes up through the loser's bracket, then another game will be played to determine the champion.

Red-hot Vilas wins again

By The Associated Press

A chilled Guillermo Vilas did almost nothing right in his opening set and said he quite literally had to warm up. That done, he did nearly everything flawlessly the rest of the way and trounced Eddie Dibbs to win the $125,000 Louisville Tennis Classic 1-6, 6-0, 6-1.

"In the first set, it was cold," the Argentine said. "After the first set, I started playing a little better. I was strong in the second set. I was afraid I was too strong."

Vilas suffered a service break in the opening game of the match and Dibbs, the diminutive player from Miami Beach, Fla., made quick work of him. But by drawing Dibbs to the net, Vilas broke his opponent in the next set's opening game and jumped ahead. His victory didn't come easily as the two engaged in some marathon rallies.

The Vilas victory was his third in as many weeks and extended his streak to 17. He has won the Louisville Classic three of the last four years.

IN SOUTH Orange, N.J., 18- year-old John McEnroe continued his binge by beating Bruce Nichols 6-3, 6-0 in the first round of an $85,000 tournament.

In other first-round action, Brian Teacher of San Diego beat Ali Madani of Iran 6-3, 6-1 and Ricardo Cano of Argentina swept Jean-Louis Haillet of France 7-6, 6-1. Sixteen-year-old Caroline Stoll of Livingston, N.J. blanked Bunny Smith, 6-0, 6-0.

Transsexual Dr. Renee Richards, who already had advanced to the quarter-finals, said she would sue officials of the U.S. Tennis Association if she isn't allowed to play in the U.S. Open in September. She was denied a berth there last year and at several international events this year when she did not pass sex chromosome tests.

"I've gone through an entire year trying to be a lady about this," she said bitterly. "Without question, this time I will sue."

IN NORTH Conway, N.H., defending champion Jimmy Connors defeated Jim Delaney of Potomac, Md., 6-3, 6-3 in the first round of a $125,000 international tennis tournament, fending off a last-minute challenge just as a thunderstorm let loose on the red clay court.

Arthur Ashe, recuperating from a heel injury, edged newcomer Jay DiLouie of Dallas 6- 4, 6-4. Second-seeded Brian Gottfried of Bonaventure, Fla., who has won four tournaments this season, disposed of Hans Kary of Austria 6-2, 6-1. Raul Ramirez of Mexico put down the challenge of Tim Gullikson of LaCrosse, Wis., winning 6-4, 6-2.

Seventh-seeded Stan Smith of Hilton Head, S.C., beat Ricardo Ycaza of Bolivia 6-0, 6-1. Tenth-seeded Bob Lutz defeated Jan Norbac of Sweden, 6-0, 6-1.

In European Davis Cup play, Corrado Barazzutti beat Manuel Orantes 7-5, 7-5, 6-1 for a 3-2 Italian victory over Spain in their zone final. Javier Soler beat Italy's No. 1 Adrianno Panatta in an abbreviated match 6-1, 6-0.

Italy will meet France in the next inter-zone finals next month.

Teams set record

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Some baseball experts dug into record books Monday and failed to come up with a modern day score that topped Harlingen's 34-11 trouncing of Corpus Christi the previous night in a Class A Lone Star league game.

"I would say that's a modern day record for all of professional baseball," said Russ Gill, a spokesman for the National Association for Professional Baseball Leagues in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Gill said he checked every record book he could locate Monday before making his statement about the Harlingen victory that saw the Suns score in every inning and belt 27 hits.

The five Corpus Christi pitchers who faced the Suns included Bobby Flores, a utility infielder, who gave up 10 runs in his 1⅓ inning stint.

Three Harlingen batters accounted for three home runs, 12 hits and 18 RBIs.

The 378 fans at the high school stadium saw every Harlingen player who came to the plate score at least one run and drive across another as Corpus Christi pitchers gave up 13 walks. Harlingen tallied 11 runs in the third inning.

Pair put on waivers; Wright out of action

By The Associated Press

Randy Crowder and Don Reese, the Miami Dolphins linemen who were suspended last May when they were arrested on drug charges, have been placed on waivers.

The team responded Monday to an order by the National Football League's Player-Club Relations Committee that the two be traded, reinstated or waived.

Crowder and Reese were suspended after their arrests. They argued that their suspendions were unfair because they hadn't yet been proven guilty.

Any team that picks the players up would have to pay the Dolphins a third-round draft choice or work out some other mutually satisfactory compensation.

In other NFL training camps, the Dallas Cowboys reported that All-Pro offensive tackle Rayfield Wright had undergone surgery on his knee. Three incisions were made to free a constricted area that was pressing on a nerve.

Doctors said Wright would be out of action for at least two months. His convalescence, coupled with the retirement of veteran guard Blaine Nye, have been a major headache for the Cowboys.

At Green Bay, 11-year veteran offensive lineman Bob Hyland, the last active link to the Green Bay Packer championship teams of the Vince Lombardi era, was placed on waivers at his own request.

"Bob felt he wasn't making the progress that he felt he should be making and that we did," said Bart Starr, the team's coach and general manager who quarterbacked the Lombardi-coached Packers to three consecutive NFL championships in the mid 1960s.

The Packers signed guard Tom Lyons, a free agent who was released two weeks ago by the Denver Broncos, to replace Hyland.

In another development, the Packers announced the retirement of quarterback Don Milan, who has been plagued by injuries.

Brad Van Pelt, who'd played out the option year of his contract with with the New York Giants, then reported nine days late for camp, agreed to terms with the club. Giants operations director Andy Robustelli said Van Pelt would play on a multiyear contract.

Chicago showing interest in Games

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Michael Bilandic said Monday Chicago is interested in hosting the 1984 Summer Olympics, if the federal government will pay most of the costs.

Bilandic told a City Hall news conference that the city has contacted the International Olympics Committee about the Summer Games.

"We are definitely interested, with certain basic conditions," Bilandic said. "One is that it would not impair the financial condition of Chicago."

Tulsa given choice

TULSA (AP) — Tulsa apparently has a choice between either rebuilding its present baseball park or moving it to the east of its present location on the fairgrounds for next season.

SPORTS CHATTER

By PAUL DOMOWITCH

I'm still not quite sure what prompted me to buy it. I went into the bookstore that afternoon with the sole purpose of purchasing a cook book, because ten months of peanut butter and tuna fish on Jewish rye is enough for anybody. But the truth is, I never made it to the cook books.

I was almost past the sports section when I could have sworn I heard this voice softly call out, "take me, take me." It just so happened that there was a gorgeous blonde standing nearby at the time, and I thought it was her. But she nicely explained that it wasn't after we got out to my car.

I returned to the bookstore later (much later), and while I didn't hear the mysterious voice again, my attention had been diverted long enough from the subject of food to notice several copies of Roger Kahn's new book, "A Season In the Sun."

I didn't want to buy it. Honest I didn't. At the time, I could have thought of a hundred better ways to spend $8.95. But like the little doggie in the pet shop window, with those sad little eyes you just can't resist, the book stared up at me from the shelf (get the net ready, men), just begging me to give it a home. To make a long story short, I did. And I'll never regret it. Of course, it's not in the same league as the blonde, but there's only so much you can expect from a book.

KAHN TAKES us through one full baseball season, as the author returns to his favorite sport to "see how it's doing. . . and find out whether it still has that same old magic."

We travel with this delightful man on a search that extends from New England to California and from Oregon to Puerto Rico. We visit the big leagues and the not so big. We meet men who chased a dream and caught it, and still others who never got the chance to even chase.

It's a book that will make you laugh, make you cry and make you think. And it's a book that will help you discover — as Kahn discovered — that baseball hasn't lost that "old magic."

Kahn traveled to Portland, Ore., to visit with Artie Wilson, a player who Hall of Famer Monte Irvin called "a superstar before the term was even invented." But Wilson was a ballplayer born out of time. He is black, and was never given the opportunity to play in the major leagues until his ability had all but succumbed to age and the torture of playing the game 11 months of the year for the past two decades.

But as Kahn visited with him, he found the man without bitterness, and suprisingly full of pleasant memories. Some are believable, and some, like the story of a catcher named Lockett in the old Negro league, a little hard to swallow, but enjoyable nonetheless.

" '. . . He could run so fast that going to back up first he'd beat the runner there,' Wilson said straight-faced. 'One day somebody hit a ground ball toward the hole and the pitcher forgot to cover. But the guy was out on a play that went from the first baseman to Lockett.' "

And then there was Wilson's tale of Leo Durocher, his manager on the New York Giants during his brief stay in the major leagues at the tail end of his playing days.

" 'Why, one time with the Giants, Leo came into a Pullman car where a lot of his ball players were shooting craps. Leo took off his jacket, got down on the floor and half an hour later he had every dollar in that Pullman. Then he stood up and told the players, 'You have already been taken to bed. Now it's time for you to go to sleep.' "

BUT MY favorite tale in the book was Kahn's re-enactment of an incident in the career of pitching great Early Wynn, who was almost as reknown for his drinking ability as his pitching.

I'll let Kahn take it from here.

"On that one careless night he was working for Cleveland and visiting Bill Veeck, who owned the Indians. Martinis proceeded dinner. Stingers followed. 'Curiously I don't remember exactly what we served next,' Veeck says, 'but I do recall that at 4:30 in the morning I was mixing grasshoppers. Then it struck Early. He was scheduled to pitch the next day and here he was drinking late with the boss.'

" 'I better go home,' Wynn said. 'One o'clock game.'

" 'It's too late to worry about sleep now,' Veeck said. 'You better just keep going.'

"Wynn reached the ball park at eleven, put on a rubber jacket and began to run. He sweated and showered and went out and pitched a shutout. 'Then the reporters came,' Veeck says, 'and Early answered all their questions. He got somebody with the knuckle ball. Someone else was fooled by a high slider. He did just fine until the last reporter left the dressing room. Then he fell over on his face.' "

There is more — much, much more in this truly great book.

If something ever was worth every penny I paid for it, "A Season In the Sun" was. Now, I've got just one problem. How to live on peanut butter and tuna fish on rye until I can raise the money again for the cook book. Anybody know a soup kitchen that serves lobster?

Hope for Roberto's dream

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The first thing you remember about Roberto Clemente is his style. It was dashing, non-stop. He patrolled right field in Pittsburgh as if it was his private tract of land and you'd better not try trespassing.

He fielded with abandon, hustling after hits, playing the walls as if he had built them, rifling throws with matchless accuracy. On routine plays, he made basket catches with a nonchalence that belied the competitive fires which always burned within him.

He strode to the plate with an air of confidence, constructed of years of being able to do just what he wanted to in the batter's box. The small hitch step as he swung the bat was like a signature flair. It stamped the swing as pure Clemente. Three thousand hits testify to the man's ability to hit.

Clemente was just a joy to watch. He played baseball like a man with a mission. And he played life the same way.

It is almost five years now since Clemente took off on New Year's Eve 1972, aboard a DC-7 rescue plane overloaded with relief supplies for the victims of an earthquake in Nicaragua. The plane never made it past the Puerto Rican coastline and Clemente was lost in the crash, his life tragically cut short.

It also cut short a dream that had been stirring in Clemente's soul. In the final years of his life, Clemente often spoke of his dream—the establishment of a sports city for the youngsters of his native Puerto Rico.

The dream was born in the slums of San Juan, the teeming streets where life is a constant struggle for the people. Clemente knew those streets, the bad side of his island, just as intimately as he knew the immaculate beaches and resort hotels that dot the other side of it.

The sports city had the ring of so many unreachable goals. So much was involved. The money, the land, the facilities. How could it ever be accomplished? The question haunted Clemente.

When he died, those questions were unanswered. The whole idea ...the entire project could have been buried at sea with Clemente. But it was not. His friends and his fans, the people who remembered Roberto best, would not let it disintegrate.

Today, the seeds of Clemente's sports city have been sown. Over half a million dollars have been contributed to the program and the complex has started to take shape with four baseball diamonds, two softball fields, an observation tower and locker facilities in place and operating.

But there is more, much more to be done if Clemente's total dream is to be realized. The plans call for tennis and basketball courts, a track, football and soccer fields, a pool, grandstands, museum, clubhouse, dormoratory facilities for 300 youngsters and lots more.

The Pittsburgh Jaycees have stepped into the picture and are sponsoring a national one-day fund-raising campaign on Sunday, Aug. 14. They are calling it "A Buck For Roberto's Dream," and they are asking the public to contribute so that Clemente's sports city can be completed.

El Paso tops Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Tommy Smith's ninth-inning double scored Floyd Rayford from first base with the game-winner Monday night as El Paso nudged Arkansas 6-5 to stretch its West Division lead over San Antonio to two games.

San Antonio fell to Jackson, 5-1. In other action Shreveport blanked Midland 2-0 and Amarillo rapped Tulsa 8-4.

Johnny Young poled a solo home run in the eighth for Arkansas to put his team ahead at 5-4, but El Paso pecked away for the tying run in its half of the inning and set the stage for Smith's blow.

Chuck Porter went the distance for El Paso to run his record to 5-1. He survived a shaky start to get the win over John Littlefield, who lost in relief.

Dave Lozano and Marshall Brant each picked up three hits to pace Jackson's victory and Mike Scott went the distance for his 11th win against eight losses.

King pleads guilty to charges

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Bernard King is now free to pursue a pro basketball career after pleading guilty in Knox County General Sessions Court to resisting arrest and possessing marijuana.

The first-round draft choice of the Nets was fined $50 and given a 60-day suspended sentence on each charge Monday after two other charges, attempted larceny and prowling, were dismissed.

King, 20, was accused of trying to steal a $1,500 videotape television from the University of Tennessee's athletic department on July 10. He was arrested inside the school's athletic center and police found the television in the back of his car parked outside.

Six days later, the two-time Associated Press All-America choice was arrested in an apartment building on the three other charges.

King was selected by the Nets in June after he announced he was giving up his senior year at Tennessee to turn pro under the hardship draft. The arrests and subsequent legal proceedings have delayed negotiations on a contract.

King would not talk to newsmen Monday. Bill Banks, his attorney in the court cases, said Donald Dell, King's attorney in the contract talks, advised his client to say nothing.

A 6-7 forward from Brooklyn, N.Y., King was the leading scorer and rebounder in the Southeastern Conference the past season, averaging 25.6 points and 14.3 rebounds a game.

His younger brother, Albert, was considered the top high school prospect in the nation last season and will attend the University of Maryland this fall.

Judge Harrold Wimberly of Knox County General Sessions Court approved an agreement between King and the prosecution after reading a letter from Tennessee Athletic Director Bob Woodruff to Dist. Atty. Gen. Ronald Webster.

Gold places 2nd

BIG SPRING — Midland Gold lost to Odessa, 7-2, in the championship finals of the Miss Softball American Minor League State Tournament here over the weekend to place second in the tourney.

Gold reached the finals by downing Midland Red, 33-4, and then defeated Odessa, 20-7, to force the championship game in the double elimination tournament. Midland Red was third.

Soccer players want to link up with union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Johnny Kerr has played soccer in the United States since 1968 and believes the time is right for the players to organize in the union. The National Football League Players Association agrees with him.

Kerr, who toiled for the Cosmos, the Detroit Cougars and most recently for the Washington Diplomats, has been feeling out members of the North American Soccer League to find out if they are interested in becoming a member of the union.

Apparently they are. Some 265 of a minimum 306 have signed authorization cards permitting the NFL players Association to be their representative in talks with management on wages, hours and working conditions.

A meeting of player representatives of the 18 teams and alternates, soon to be elected, will be held in Washington on Aug. 29.

Mets stop streaking LA in 12th

By The Associated Press

Joel Youngblood's run-scoring pinch-hit single in the bottom of the 12th inning gave the New York Mets an 8-7 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night.

The loss ended a five-game winning streak for Los Angeles, runaway leaders in the National League West.

Ron Cey drove in five runs for Los Angeles with a single, triple and homer and Steve Garvey also had a home run.

Both teams scored in the 11th inning, Los Angeles on a two-out homer by Dave Lopes, and the Mets on a pinch-hit single by Ed Kranepool.

IN OTHER National League action, George Foster slugged a pair of two-run homers and Dan Driessen drilled a tie-breaking triple to power the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Jose Cruz slammed Rich Gossage's first pitch into the right field seats in the bottom of the 11th inning to lift the Houston Astros to a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Jerry Mumphrey broke a tie in the sixth inning with his second run-scoring double of the game, lifting the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Willie McCovey's grand slam homer keyed a five-run third inning and he added a solo shot in the seventh to carry the San Francisco Giants to a 9-2 triumph over the Montreal Expos.

IN THE American League, Ron Fairly hit his 200th career homer—a three-run shot in the sixth inning—to give the Toronto Blue Jays a 3-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Lyman Bostock knocked in four runs with a homer, double and single and reliever Tom Johnson fired 3⅔ scoreless innings to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 9-5 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

Jim Sundberg drove in three runs with a home run, a single and a squeeze bunt and also scored four times to lead the Texas Rangers to an 11-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Furr's tops Crane in tourney opener

SAN ANGELO — Midland Furr's, behind the three-hit pitching of Jeff Hicks, opened the Texas Teen-Age State Sophomore Baseball Tournament here Monday night with a 6-0 victory over Crane.

Hicks struck out 10 in picking up the victory on the mound for the Tall City team while the losing pitcher for Crane was Barry Corley.

Furr's only had six hits, but four of those hits were doubles turned in by Bill Dern, Michael Feldt, Steve Miller and Mark Hewitt.

The next game for Furr's will be against either Dallas or Texas City at 6:45 p.m. Wednesday in the double elimination tourney.

Dallas bombed Victoria, 10-2 while San Angelo posted a 3-1 victory over Athens and Waco tripped Dekalb, 11-8.

In loser's bracket games, Athens tries Victoria at 9 p.m. while Crane and DeKalb meet at same time. The tourney is being played on two diamonds.

SHREVEPORT, La.—Randy Martz, the Chicago Cubs No.1 draft pick in June, must be wondering what it takes to win in the Texas League.

Through seven innings here Monday night, the University of South Carolina product had allowed just two base runners when Nelson Norman doubled to lead off the eighth.

With Larry Littleton coming up, Martz wasn't exactly shaking in his boots in facing the guy with the lowest batting average in the Texas League, a microscopic .187. Still, Littleton belted out a homer to give Shreveport a 2-0 victory over the Midland Cubs and square the series at 2-2.

FOR MARTZ, it was his second Texas League loss in three decisions, but the route-going performance was his best outing since joining the team early in July.

Has Gullett gone to pot?

LYNN, Ky. (AP) — State police say they are investigating two men in connection with the cultivation of 2,800 pounds of marijuana on a northeastern Kentucky farm that officers say is owned by New York Yankees pitcher Don Gullett.

Trooper Wayne Carter of the state police post at Ashland said 882 plants—lined up neatly in seven rows alternated with seven rows of corn—were confiscated Monday in the raid near Lynn.

Carter, who put the street value of the marijuana at $112,000, said Gullett was not under investigation.

He said that there "was a good probability that it was grown without his knowledge. He hasn't been home for more than a few days since February and this case has been under investigation for a couple of months."

Gullett, contacted Monday evening in Anaheim, Calif., where the Yankees were playing the California Angels, said he wouldn't have any comment on the raid until "all the facts are in."

Carter said that "to the best of my knowledge, the farm belongs to Don." He said he will attempt to contact Gullett's parents this week, but that he wouldn't try to reach the lefthanded pitcher in California.

The plants, which were cultivated and fertilized, averaged eight feet in height, with some as tall as 12 feet, Carter said in a telephone interview. Except for several plants which will be analyzed and kept as evidence, the crop was burned following confiscation, he said.

Five county and local policemen and one state conservation officer joined Carter in the raid.

"We've had this place under surveillance since the sixth of June," Carter said. "I'd say they started growing them things around the last of March. It looks like it had been growing in a hot house first."

He said he had received a tip that the plants were to be harvested this week.

'Little Miss Crane' judging to open fun

CRANE — Judging for the "Little Miss Crane," "Junior Miss Crane," and "Miss Crane" contests will kick off Crane County's 50th Anniversary celebration Friday, Aug. 12. The Crane Golden Jubilee will end Sunday, Aug. 14.

All contestants in the three contests will be presented Friday night in their evening dresses and winners will be announced. A $500 scholarship will be awarded to the winner of the "Miss Crane" title, and she will be entered in the Miss West Texas Contest next July.

Following the contests Friday night will be a "Back to School Dance," sponsored by the Jaycees and Jaycee-Ettes. The dance will begin at 9 p.m. Admission will be $5 per couple and $2.50 stag.

Saturday's activities will begin at 10 a.m. with the Ed Dickerson Memorial Parade, sponsored by the Order of Eagles and the Eagles Auxiliary.

At 10:30 a.m. will be a parachute exhibition by Jim Fowler and Company.

City officials will bury a time capsule at 11:30 a.m. in the Keltner-Robinson Memorial Park. Representative Bob Krueger and State Senator Pete Snelson will be present and will later attend the mayor's luncheon at noon.

An Old Timers Reuunion will be held from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the Exhibition Building. Alpha Gamma Sorority will register the old timers and the American Legion will award trophies to the old timer coming the farthest distance and having registered the earliest date for having lived in Crane County.

At 1:30 p.m. the American Cancer Society will sponsor a 42 tournament. The Ice Cream Freeze-off will be at 2 p.m. in the Exhibition Building.

The Crane Evening Lions Club will sponsor games for children at the 6th Street Park, and a meeting for ex-students, sponsored by the Ex-Student Association, will be at the 6th Street Community Park from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.

"Ups and Downs of Crane Town," a play written by Paul Patterson and directed by Paul Patterson and Doug Burrous, will be presented at 8 p.m.

The Oil Patch Oil Association will have an art exhibit during the celebration Saturday. The Castle Gap Garden Club also will have an exhibit. Both will be in the Exhibition Building.

Any Crane County old timers who have not been contacted should send their addresses to Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Vines, Box 21, Crane.

Public welfare board bemoans budget cuts

By ANDY WELCH
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN— The State Board of Public Welfare has voted a retroactive increase in nursing home benefits, but is otherwise bemoaning "significant" budget cuts and employe reductions forced by the Legislature.

The vote of the Welfare Board increases the "cap" of outside income to $415 a month, made retroactive to July 1, allowing more individuals to be eligible for Medicaid nursing home assistance. The board said the increase in income requirements was necessary so individuals receiving private pension benefits would continue to be eligible for nursing home care, equal with those of persons obtaining Social Security and veteran's payments.

The three-man board has tentatively approved its new operating budget totaling $1.1 billion for fiscal year 1978, beginning Sept. 1.

Agency officials say a smaller percentage of funding than the board had originally sought from the Legislature will require a cutback of 2,200 personnel, although over 1,000 of these positions ar now vacant.

The agency expects to have 14,387 staff members employed statewide for this upcoming operating year.

Welfare Board Chairman Hilmar Moore of Richmond argued many of the cutback by the Legislature are in a sense of "false economy," and will prove useless in getting more people off welfare rolls.

Moore was pleased that the agency changed its name from the Welfare Department to the Department of Human Resources on Aug. 1, claiming the term "welfare" strikes a highly sensitive nerve with the Legislature and the general public.

Board Member Jamie Clements of Temple, for one, says he's "astonished" that the Legislature has told the department to make fewer inspections of child day care centers, but that fact was clearly established during budget hearings this last spring.

"If anything goes wrong, you know who's going to to be blamed," Moore follows, looking at his two commissioners, and mindful of past cases of alleged abuse in Texas child care facilities, which greatly encouraged the Legislature to write tougher controls in 1975.

A 10 per cent cut in medical examinations of pre-school age children will be required, an agency official reported, with dental examinations of youngsters to be cut by five per cent.

Budget officals also say the "largest reduction" in welfare services will come in aid allowing children of working parents to attend day care programs.

While 25,000 children presently attend day care facilities under this program, budget officer John Franney says legislative dunding will cause this number to be reduced to 16,000 children next year. Franney told the board he expects the funding reduction to eventually hurt parents wishing to participate in employment training programs, and could actually increased unemployment rolls.

—Funding for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program is described as "adequate," so long as rolls continue to decline;

—The Department may have to limit payments to families with foster children to stay within its budget;

—The number of fraud cases in the federal Food Stamp program is expected to increase, with fewer employes to guard against abuse;

—There will still be very few services to help the elderly living in their own homes for as long a possible, before being forced to move into nursing and convalescent homes;

—Little money exists to comply with a federal court order that Texas improve its transportation programs to help elderly living in their homes to obtain medical, pharmaceutical, grocery, clothing and other essential services.

—The Department is withholding all funds for abortions, while the courts and Congress attempt to settle this controversial issue, surrounding expenditure of public funds for such pruposes. (Ironically, this is one of the few programs "fully funded by the Legislature, and welfare officials are now unsure how they can spend the money for any other services if publicly-financed abortions are prohibited.)

—No continued funding for child training programs to help expectant parents are contained for the new year, although officials hope several Texas colleges and universities will develop courses in this field.

Odessa Labor Day celebration to be in park

ODESSA — The 21st annual Permian Basin Labor Day celebration will be in Floyd Gwin Park in Odessa Monday, Sept. 5, according to an announcement today by D. L. Willis, president of the Odessa and Vicinity Central Labor Union.

The celebration will begin at 1 p.m. and will feature speakers, fiddling contests and a barbeque.

Tickets will be available from union halls in the area.

The labor day celebration is sponsored by the Odessa Central Labor Union.
