WAR!

ATHENS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Greek and Bulgarian soldiers are engaged in battle on the Macedonian frontier. The Greek command is making encircling movements on the heights around the town of Petrich, about 20 miles to the northwest of Demirssar, where the first clash between Greek and Bulgarian patrols occurred Monday.

This is the official information given out here, and it is further announced that the Bulgarians have received reinforcements at Demir-Kapu.

The movement against Petrich is to compel the Bulgarians to evacuate Greek territory and the fall of Petrich is considered imminent.

The Bulgarians are offering stubborn resistance but the Greek losses are said to be unimportant. Seven Bulgarians have been captured.

The report of the Greek general staff on the present trouble, quoted textually in the Greek note to Bulgaria, sets forth, firstly, that the Bulgarians opened fire first by surprise, without provocation or motive.

Torch Light Army of 200 Search Boy In Creek Bottoms

4-YEAR-OLD DELMAR DORMIER LOST IN TANGLED BRAKES OF HOLLIDAY ARE AS SINCE 3 P. M.

Mother and Family Hunting Pecans and Child's Disappearance Not Noticed When They Returned Home Thursday

BULLETIN.

At 1 o'clock Friday morning more than 100 men were still searching the river banks for Delmar Dormier. Sheriff Fred K. Smith announced at midnight that he would pay a $25 reward to the person finding trace of the youngster.

A torch-light army of some 200 or more men headed by city and county officers were scouring the Wichita river and Holliday creek bottoms east of the city at an early hour this morning in search of 4-year-old Delmar Dormier, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Dormier, 2110 Harvard, who is believed to be lost somewhere in the tangled brakes of that territory.

The lad has been missing since 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon when he was apparently left behind when a pecan-picking party that had spent the day along the creek and river banks returned home. Three mothers and seven children were in the party.

The territory over which an intensive search was being waged is near the point where Holliday creek empties into the Wichita river. It is about half a mile west of that fork and not far from what is known as the Turkey Bend of the river.

It is a low, somewhat swampy, section, thickly grown with weeds, mesquite and underbrush and dotted here and there with pecan trees. Numerous low "holes," filled with water since the recent rains, are scattered through the mile-wide area in which the searchers were working. Fears were expressed in not a few quarters that the lad might have stumbled into one of these or, perhaps, might even have fallen into the creek which runs bank full near the river's mouth.

On Pecan Hunt.

Mrs. Dormier and three young sons, Mrs. C. Reese and two small daughters, and Mrs. Barney Kelly and two small sons, all neighbors, left Wichita Falls Thursday morning, Mrs. Dormier said last night. They had gone to the creek banks and spent the day hunting pecans and picnicing. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon they packed up, loaded into the single Ford sedan in which they made the trip, and returned to their homes.

Only Six Returned.

Back on Harvard street it was found that of the seevn youngsters in the party; only six had returned. Young Delmar was missing, although the women thought he was in the crowd when they started. They were not sure of this, however, so Mrs. Dormier immediately returned to the picnic grounds.

She searched in that vicinity for some time, but was unable to find a trace of the boy. On her return to the city, she notified the police station and officers were dispatched to the scene to take up the hunt.

It was thought for a time that the lad might be found by farmers or others living in that neighborhood and be brought to the police station. As darkness came, however, and no word was brought in, uneasiness grew. The searching force was augmented by city police and others. Sheriff Fred K. Smith and a force of deputies and Constable C. L. Bradford and a force of his men were notified and immediately went to the

Pig Stand Hi-Jacked By 3 Men

Three masked highwaymen, all youths, obtained more than $85 shortly before midnight Thursday when they entered the Pig Stand No. 2 in the 2100 block Grant street, held a waiter and two customers at bay and rifled the cash register. The three victims of the hold-up, however, obtained a good look at the face of one of the bandits when the handkerchief he was wearing slipped off.

The trio of hi-jackers drove up to the stand in a car and two of them alighted while the third stuck at the wheel. The two entered the stand and while one covered the men with a gun the other hurriedly ransacked the cash drawer. Then they jumped in the machine and disappeared toward the lake.

1000-Gallon Still Is Found Near Electra

ELECTRA, Oct. 22.—The largest still that has ever been captured around Electra was discovered Wednesday afternoon by R. W. Johnson, constable, and his deputies, nine miles east of the city, off the Wichita-Electra highway, hidden in a clump of trees. This still holds 1,000 gallons. It is made of pure copper, and had a 100-barrel cooling tank. Only nine gallons of booze were found, but 60 barrels of mash were destroyed. Several cases of half gallon fruit jars also were located. The still was loaded on a truck and brought to Electra. At the time of the capture, there were live coals of fire under the boiler. No clue has been found as to the identity of the bootleggers.

AMPITHEATRE IN BELLEVUE PARK BEING CONSIDERED BY CITY; TO ACCOMMODATE 3,000

Open Air Show Place Is Discussed by Officials Here

Plans by which a large, open air ampitheatre can be constructed in Bellevue park before next summer are being considered by city officials, it was learned yesterday.

While still in a more or less formative stage, the idea has progressed far enough to give reasonable assurance, at least, that it will be carried through.

It is hoped that a stage, probably covered, can be put in and permanent seating facilities for 3,000 or more people provided. It is also suggested that microphones and amplifiers be introduced.

During the summer months just past the churches of the city made excellent use of the park for Sunday night union services. As many as 5,000 persons attended some of the meetings and when they were concluded plans were started right then for a continuation of them. It has been pointed out that the ampitheatre would offer unexcelled facilities for these and, as well, could be used for school work, club work or anything else that may require accommodations for large crowds.

Construction work such as is under consideration would not cost a great deal, it is thought, and city officials are hopeful that the work can be done.

Her Yell For Mercy Gives Court Thrill

Dramatics not on the usual list were injected into a criminal trial Thursday morning when Genevive Ellis, negress, whooped noisily for mercy and then fainted.

The negress had entered a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing a dress from the Kimberlin-Smith store here and had asked for a two-year suspended sentence.

District Attorney Ben Allred was in the midst of an eloquent plea opposing a suspended sentence when the negress, who had wept copiously all through the proceedings, shouted "Oh, Lawd, Mistah Allred, please have mercy on my soul."

Then she fainted but was shortly revived and court was able to continue.

The jury gave her a suspended sentence.

May Close Links On Election Day

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Election day closing of all golf links used by San Francisco voters was urged today by the Downtown Merchants' association. Experience has revealed, the merchants said, that persons excused from their regular employment on election day play golf instead of voting.

The matter of closing the links is ticklish. Unlike the saloon, closed by official mandate in the old days, links are for the most part outside San Francisco and moral persuasion must be employed.

Miss Alden pleaded not guilty when arraigned, and her case was continued until tomorrow. She explained that she had paid her way on her trans-continental hike by giving lectures en route on physical culture.

GRIFFIN RITES HELD BEFORE A VAST THRONG

Church Auditorium Filled For Funeral of Slain Dundee Rancher

A church auditorium thronged with friends; a wealth of floral tribute; the impressive rites of a great fraternal order to which he subscribed; a sincere eulogy of a minister who had known him during recent days of adversity; and a marked air of genuine mourning for one who had been cut down in the prime of life—this, in brief was the funeral service Thursday afternoon of Herbert Griffin who died early Tuesday morning from effects of a bullet wound sustained Monday afternoon when he was shot as he sat in front of the First State bank at Dundee.

To Riverside Cemetery.

Griffin was buried yesterday shortly after 3 o'clock, the big grey casket being locked in the A. H. Carrigan mausoleum in Riverside cemetery. Services for him were held earlier in the First Presbyterian church here and then in front of the vault where members of the Wichita Falls lodge of Elks conducted their ritual. Both in the church and at the cemetery a large crowd of friends joined Mrs. Griffin and other relatives in a final tribute to the wealthy Archer county rancher whose last months have been fraught with care and suffering. Practically every seat in the church was taken, while at the cemetery a crowd six-deep surrounded the mausoleum. In it was numbered dozens of the city's most prominent business, financial and civic leaders.

Services at the church were conducted by the Rev. N. F. Grafton.

Effort Made To Get Bond For Griffith

An effort may be made today to secure the release on bond of Lige Griffith, Dundee farmer and slayer of Herbert Griffin, it was learned Thursday.

Attorney Ed Napier of this city and formerly judge of the 78th district court, has been retained to represent Griffith, and it is understood steps were taken Thursday afternoon preliminary to the legal fight to follow an effort to gain Griffith's release from the Archer county jail.

District Attorney Ben P. Allred reiterated yesterday when informed of the move, that he would vigorously oppose any attempt to liberate Griffith. This is taken to mean that a habeas corpus hearing will be resorted to, holding of which may come some time today. By waiving examining trial in justice of the peace court at Archer City, the defendant could be given a hearing before Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court and before whom Griffith will eventually be tried. The 30th court has jurisdiction in the case at any point where the judge may be, and as Judge Wilson is now holding court here, Griffith may be brought from Archer City and the hearing held in Wichita county.

If this hearing is held some evidence must necessarily be introduced to enable the court to decide as to whether or not bond shall be allowed.

Griffith has been a prisoner in the Archer county jail since Tuesday morning. A formal charge of murder has been lodged against him as a result of the death of Herbert Griffin, wealthy Dundee rancher who was shot and fatally wounded in front of the First State bank at Dundee Monday afternoon.

FACTS IN CASE INVOLVE OTHER PERSONS, SAYS LOCAL LAWYER

Says Trial Will Result In Proof of His Contention

"MURDER WILL OUT!"

Claims He Has Evidence To Implicate Unnamed Defendants

A charge that Lige Griffith, held at Archer City in connection with the shooting and death of Herbert Griffin, Archer county ranchman, last Monday afternoon, is but an instrument in the hands of others, was made last night by Judge B. Y. Cummings, lifelong friend of Griffin. Judge Cummings declined to state the basis of his charge, but declared that he had in his posssesion evidence of the implication of others in the affair, which would relieve Lige Griffith of the moral responsibility for his action.

"Griffith is the physical agent in Griffin's death," Judge Cummins declared, "but not the moral agent. There are others back of Lige Griffith and it is my intention to use every means at my disposal to run them to earth. It is my firm belief that Griffith's trial will result in the discovery and apprehension of the real murderers. Murder will out.

"You are authorized to say this much, nothing more," was Judge Cummins' parting injunction to a Record News reporter at the close of the interview, which too kplace in front of the L. J. Bryan home on Tenth Street at an early hour last night.

Judge Cummings further indicated that such evidence as he had would be presented at the coming trial, but declined to state what other hand he would take in the case. Cummings was a member of the defense counsel in the last trial at Graham just three weeks ago.

AUSTIN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Austin police Thursday joined a search extending from Chicago to the Mexican border for Louis Webb, Jr., 13-year-old son of a Northwestern university professor who ran away from his home because he was not allowed to play on a high school football team.

Mrs. A. L. Telegrams asking police departments of all larger cities in the state to watch for the boy and to hold him if he appears were sent from Austin police headquarters by Chief of Police J. N. Littlepage Thursday morning, but no replies had been received late Thursday afternoon.

DRY CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED IN ROARING 40'S

Federal Agents Swoop On Broadway Cabarets Tuesday

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Broadway cabarets and supper clubs were the objectives yesterday of the most sweeping prohibition drive yet waged along the famout thoroughfare.

Thirty of the best known night resorts were served with summons and complaint by members of the United States District Attorney Buckner's staff.

Throughout last night and early today the federal prosecutor's men visited the all night places and left papers requiring the owners to appear in federal court to answer charges of selling liquor. Some of the places were off the Great White Way, one being the Lido Venice, exclusive supper club in East 53rd street, near Fifth avenue.

Is First Step.

The action against the 30 places was Mr. Buckner's first step in his announced plan to padlock approximately 100 of the leading Manhattan resorts, mostly along Broadway, suspected of selling liquor. Included in today's list of cabarets and supper clubs were the El Fey club near Times Square, the Piping Rock and the Game Cock restaurants, east of Fifth avenue: the Piccadilly-Hampton Rendezvous, the Piccadilly Supper club, the Half Moon and the Hotsy Totsie, in the Broadway district and the Golden Eagle in Greenwich Village.

Some of the places were on what Mr. Buckner termed his "encore list," their managements having been enjoined from ever again violating the prohibition law. In such places all waiters were summoned. Among these were the Lido Venice, the El Fey club and the Piping Rock.

Human Fertilizer Story About Dead Soldiers in World War A Propaganda Scheme, He Says

British Army Officer Makes Public Real Truth About Rumors That Swept all Europe During Great Conflict

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.— (AP) — The false story that Germany was boiling down the bodies of her dead soldiers of the world war to utilize the fats for fertilizer was started as a bit of British propaganda in China, Brigadier General J. V. Charteris, war time chief of the British intelligence unit and author of the story, said last night, revealing the origin of the tale for the first time.

General Charteris related the story to reveal the amazing power of propaganda at the national arts club. When England was worrying over the seeming pro-German proclivities of China the general said he concocted the idea of switching the titles on two pictures taken from dead German soldiers, one captioned "Cadaver," showing a trainload of horses being taken to the rear to fertilizer factories, the other depicting a train taking dead German soldiers to the rear for burial.

Labeling the picture of the dead soldiers with the caption of "Cadaver," General Charteris said he sent it to Chinese newspapers. He then forgot about it. However, the story swept over the continent, arousing England and eventually became a subject for debate in the house of commons.

At one time, he said, it had been planned to "plant" a forged diary on the body of a dead German soldier, purporting to reveal details of the "boiling down" practice and have it discovered by a war correspondent. The plan was given up, but the diary is now on exhibition in the war museum at London.

BLAKE OFFERS PLAN OF WATER CONSERVATION

Oklahoman Appears Before Missouri River Conference

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A plan for flood control and irrigation with basins for diversion of excess river waters was submitted to the Missouri river conference here today by E. E. Blake for consideration in connection with proposed development of the Missouri river.

Mr. Blake, who is chairman of the Oklahoma commission of drainage, irrigation and reclamation, outlined proposals of Oklahoma, in conjunction with Texas and New Mexico, for control of the south Canadian river. A treaty has been drawn up subject to ratification by the legislatures of these states and congress for this purpose.

Given Endorsement.

Walter S. Dickey, Kansas City editor, who long has been active in the interests of Missouri river development, was quick to endorse Mr. Blake's suggestions that excess waters be diverted at their sources from the Missouri at flood periods. He declared that such a plan is basic in importance. Besides preventing flood damage, he declared, diversion of flood waters into irrigation reservoirs would prevent unusual deposits of sediment and would conserve for agriculture rich soil that now is borne into the Gulf of Mexico by the Mississippi river.

Mr. Blake said that 78 basin sites have been located and surveyed in Oklahoma with the help of the engineering forces of the A. and M. college and the state university.

Flood loss in 1923 involved 1,000,000 acres of bottom land and a loss of $15,000,000, the commissioner said. Flood basins, situated along water courses, he stated, are sufficient to impound enough water to prevent recurrence of such a flood, some of the basins having an altitude of 2,000 to 3,000 feet, advantageous to drainage into irrigation areas.

Goverment Will Wind Up Red River Work

TO SELL NINE OIL WELLS ON 122-ACRE LOT

Will Mark End of One Of Most Unique Cases In U. S. History

TRANSFER DEC. 1

Government Hopes to Be Through And Away In January

Department of interior officials at Wichita Falls have announced the impending sale of nine producing wells on a 122-acre strip on the north edge of the south half of the disputed Red river valley oil area northwest of Burkburnett. Letter bids will be accepted at the office of the interior department up to November 14, following which it is hoped to complete the actual transaction of sale and transfer of the property to the new owners by December 1. Coincident with the sale of the oil property bids are being received on camp equipment at Wichita Falls with a view to winding up the last stretch of the government's venture in north Texas early in January.

Nine Wells on Strip.

The property to be sold is a long strip bordering mostly on property recently assigned to the Burke Divide Oil company. It contains nine wells producing about 18 barrels a day each or 155 barrels a day together. The wells are those drilled by the receiver, Frederick A. Delano, and to which the secretary of interior has decided no worthy claims were presented.

Bids are to be accepted on the basis of equipment values, which the department has placed at $5,500 for each well, plus whatever bonus the operator may be inclined to offer. The government, which will still retain the fee on the lease will not require additional drilling unless in their opinion it is necessary for the protection of their interests. A royalty of 12 1-2 per cent on the first ten barrels per day will be exacted, and of forty per cent on the next ten above the first ten. Thus as the wells decrease from the present eighteen barrels a day to ten barrels a day the royalty exacted will fall from less than 25 per cent on present production to the usual one-eighth on a ten barrels a day production or less.

Wells in Good Shape.

The wells are in splendid condition and should net the new owner clear profit from the day he takes them over, according to information from the department officials here. It is estimated by these that the government operation of some thirty wells in the disputed area over the 17-month period from Judy 1924 to December 1925, will result in a final net profit of about $285,000. The total net profit accruing owners under both the Delano (receivership) and government operations it is estimated will reach $2,500,000. This latter figure is net, all deductions haveing been made. The entire amount is to be divided among the various owners of the old disputed area as adjudged by Secretary Work in his recent award on lease claims there.

In addition to the actual work of producing oil and operating the leases in the disputed area during its tenure of the proprty the government did considerable work in platting sub-surface geology of that portion of the old northwest field, this work being first in charge of the bureau of mines. When that department was transferred to the department of commerce on July 1, 1925, however, the department of interior retained supervision of the Red river work and the mineral leasing work and placed the two under the jurisdiction of the U. S. geological survey. Information desired regarding either this phase of the government's activity or data regarding costs and the like may be obtained at the field office at Red river. It is not intended, it is understood, to put the data in the usual booklet form, inasmuch as this information is now regarded as the property of the new lease owners.

End of Long Battle.

With the completion of the transaction on December 1 and the final transfer of the disputed properties to their new owners the final chapter to one of the most involved of United States court cases will have been written and dispute and litigation that at one time made it worth any man's life to cross a fence line in the river bed brought to a final and definite close.

She once was the wife of Pedar Bruguiere, of the late Peter Cooper Hewitt, of Steward Deming.

COOLIDGE HAS LITTLE TO SAY ABOUT TREATY

As Silent on Attitude U. S. May Take Over Docarno Pact

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—President Coolidge sees in the Locarno security pact a gratifying evidence of Europe's ability to help itself, but still is unable to say what the action of the United States will be regarding proposals for bringing about new armament limitation agreements between the world powers.

It was made clear today at the White House that the attitude of the Washington government respecting participation in any European armaments conference or the calling of such a conference in this country could not be foretold at this time. A specific proposal would be required before a decision on that point could be reached and no such proposal as yet has been made to or by the Washing government.

The Locarno pact, the president believes, has an important influence on the armaments question. He recognizes it not only as a step in advance of the Dawes plan, but as evidence that European political leaders have been able to reach an agreement of the kind achieved.

More over, their work has been endorsed by public opinion, and to the president these factors mean that Europe has become sufficiently settled since the armistice for the governments, and peoples as well, to give the world clear proof that they had overcome suspicions and hatred engendered by the war.

DRY CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED IN ROARING 40'S

Federal Agents Swoop On Broadway Cabarets Tuesday

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Broadway cabarets and supper clubs were the objectives yesterday of the most sweeping prohibition drive yet waged along the famout thoroughfare.

Thirty of the best known night resorts were served with summons and complaint by members of the United States District Attorney Buckner's staff.

Throughout last night and early today the federal prosecutor's men visited the all night places and left papers requiring the owners to appear in federal court to answer charges of selling liquor. Some of the places were off the Great White Way, one being the Lido Venice, exclusive supper club in East 53rd street, near Fifth avenue.

Is First Step.

The action against the 30 places was Mr. Buckner's first step in his announced plan to padlock approximately 100 of the leading Manhattan resorts, mostly along Broadway, suspected of selling liquor. Included in today's list of cabarets and supper clubs were the El Fey club near Times Square, the Piping Rock and the Game Cock restaurants, east of Fifth avenue; the Piccadilly-Hampton Rendezvous, the Piccadilly Supper club, the Half Moon and the Hotsy Totsie, in the Broadway district and the Golden Eagle in Greenwich Village.

Some of the places were on what Mr. Buckner termed his "encore list," their managements having been enjoined from ever again violating the prohibition law. In such places all waiters were summoned. Among these were the Lido Venice, the El Fey club and the Piping Rock.

Human Fertilizer Story About Dead Soldiers in World War A Propaganda Scheme, He Says

British Army Officer Makes Public Real Truth About Rumors That Swept all Europe During Great Conflict

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.— (AP) — The false story that Germany was boiling down the bodies of her dead soldiers of the world war to utilize the fats for fertilizer was started as a bit of British propaganda in China, Brigadier General J. V. Charteris, war time chief of the British intelligence unit and author of the story, said last night, revealing the origin of the tale for the first time.

General Charteris related the story to reveal the amazing power of propaganda at the national arts club. When England was worrying over the seeming pro-German proclivities of China the general said he concocted the idea of switching the titles on two pictures taken from dead German soldiers, one captioned "Cadaver," showing a trainload of horses being taken to the rear to fertilizer factories, the other depicting a train taking dead German soldiers to the rear for burial.

Labeling the picture of the dead soldiers with the caption of "Cadaver," General Charteris said he sent it to Chinese newspapers. He then forgot about it. However, the story swept over the continent, arousing England and eventually became a subject for debate in the house of commons.

At one time, he said, it had been planned to "plant" a forged diary on the body of a dead German soldier, purporting to reveal details of the "boiling down" practice and have it discovered by a war correspondent. The plan was given up, but the diary is now on exhibition in the war museum at London.

BLAKE OFFERS PLAN OF WATER CONSERVATION

Oklahoman Appears Before Missouri River Conference

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 22.—(AP)—A plan for flood control and irrigation with basins for diversion of excess river waters was submitted to the Missouri river conference here today by E. E. Blake for consideration in connection with proposed development of the Missouri river.

Mr. Blake, who is chairman of the Oklahoma commission of drainage, irrigation and reclamation, outlined proposals of Oklahoma, in conjunction with Texas and New Mexico, for control of the south Canadian river. A treaty has been drawn up subject to ratification by the legislatures of these states and congress for this purpose.

Given Endorsement.

Walter S. Dickey, Kansas City editor, who long has been active in the interests of Missouri river development, was quick to endorse Mr. Blake's suggestions that excess waters be diverted at their sources from the Missouri at flood periods. He declared that such a plan is basic in importance. Besides preventing flood damage, he declared, diversion of flood waters into irrigation reservoirs would prevent unusual deposits of sediment and would conserve for agriculture rich soil that now is borne into the Gulf of Mexico by the Mississippi river.

Mr. Blake said that 78 basin sites have been located and surveyed in Oklahoma with the help of the engineering forces of the A. and M. college and the state university.

Flood loss in 1923 involved 1,000,000 acres of bottom land and a loss of $15,000,000, the commissioner said. Flood basins, situated along water courses, he stated, are sufficient to impound enough water to prevent recurrence of such a flood, some of the basins having an altitude of 2,000 to 3,000 feet, advantageous to drainage into irrigation areas.

Goverment Will Wind Up Red River Work

TO SELL NINE OIL WELLS ON 122-ACRE LOT

Will Mark End of One Of Most Unique Cases In U. S. History

TRANSFER DEC. 1

Government Hopes to Be Through And Away In January

Department of interior officials at Wichita Falls have announced the impending sale of nine producing wells on a 122-acre strip on the north edge of the south half of the disputed Red river valley oil area northwest of Burkburnett. Letter bids will be accepted at the office of the interior department up to November 14, following which it is hoped to complete the actual transaction of sale and transfer of the property to the new owners by December 1. Coincident with the sale of the oil property bids are being received on camp equipment at Wichita Falls with a view to winding up the last stretch of the government's venture in north Texas early in January.

Nine Wells on Strip.

The property to be sold is a long strip bordering mostly on property recently assigned to the Burke Divide Oil company. It contains nine wells producing about 18 barrels a day each or 155 barrels a day together. The wells are those drilled by the receiver, Frederick A. Delano, and to which the secretary of interior has decided no worthy claims were presented.

Bids are to be accepted on the basis of equipment values, which the department has placed at $5,500 for each well, plus whatever bonus the operator may be inclined to offer. The government, which will still retain the fee on the lease will not require additional drilling unless in their opinion it is necessary for the protection of their interests. A royalty of 12 1-2 per cent on the first ten barrels per day will be exacted, and of forty per cent on the next ten above the first ten. Thus as the wells decrease from the present eighteen barrels a day to ten barrels a day the royalty exacted will fall from less than 25 per cent on present production to the usual one-eighth on a ten barrels a day production or less.

Wells in Good Shape.

The wells are in splendid condition and should net the new owner clear profit from the day he takes them over, according to information from the department officials here. It is estimated by these that the government operation of some thirty wells in the disputed area over the 17-month period from Judy 1924 to December 1925, will result in a final net profit of about $285,000. The total net profit accruing owners under both the Delano (receivership) and government operations it is estimated will reach $2,500,000. This latter figure is net, all deductions haveing been made. The entire amount is to be divided among the various owners of the old disputed area as adjudged by Secretary Work in his recent award on lease claims there.

In addition to the actual work of producing oil and operating the leases in the disputed area during its tenure of the proprty the government did considerable work in platting sub-surface geology of that portion of the old northwest field, this work being first in charge of the bureau of mines. When that department was transferred to the department of commerce on July 1, 1925, however, the department of interior retained supervision of the Red river work and the mineral leasing work and placed the two under the jurisdiction of the U. S. geological survey. Information desired regarding either this phase of the government's activity or data regarding costs and the like may be obtained at the field office at Red river. It is not intended, it is understood, to put the data in the usual booklet form, inasmuch as this information is now regarded as the property of the new lease owners.

End of Long Battle.

With the completion of the transaction on December 1 and the final transfer of the disputed properties to their new owners the final chapter to one of the most involved of United States court cases will have been written and dispute and litigation that at one time made it worth any man's life to cross a fence line in the river bed brought to a final and definite close.

The district will vote on bonds for the purpose of constructing under the new Texas irrigation law.

Free Now to Marry Prince Who Has Proposed 17 Times

Will the Baroness d'Erlanger, much married American woman, now marry the Shah of Persia, who has, it is said, proposed to her 17 times? Unable, she says, to support him any longer at the rate of $50,000 a year, the Baroness has had her marriage to the baron annulled in Paris. She once was the wife of Pedar Bruguiere, of the late Peter Cooper Hewitt, of Steward Deming.

COOLIDGE HAS LITTLE TO SAY ABOUT TREATY

As Silent on Attitude U. S. May Take Over Docarno Pact

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—President Coolidge sees in the Locarno security pact a gratifying evidence of Europe's ability to help itself, but still is unable to say what the action of the United States will be regarding proposals for bringing about new armament limitation agreements between the world powers.

It was made clear today at the White House that the attitude of the Washington government respecting participation in any European armaments conference or the calling of such a conference in this country could not be foretold at this time. A specific proposal would be required before a decision on that point could be reached and no such proposal as yet has been made to or by the Washing government.

The Locarno pact, the president believes, has an important influence on the armaments question. He recognizes it not only as a step in advance of the Dawes plan, but as evidence that European political leaders have been able to reach an agreement of the kind achieved.

More over, their work has been endorsed by public opinion, and to the president these factors mean that Europe has become sufficiently settled since the armistice for the governments, and peoples as well, to give the world clear proof that they had overcome suspicions and hatred engendered by the war.

Thank you, Dr. Gibson, for calling M·J·B "the climax of coffee mixtures;" and for the fine spirit of appreciation that prompted you to say M·J·B is "the only brand I have ever used from which every cup was delicious and satisfying."

That's the beauty of M·J·B! Because coffee tastes are so many and varied, M·J·B has worked for years to produce a blend of constant flavor. And it is this never-fail-to-be-the-same flavor that makes M·J·B stand for coffee-contentment every time! ... Have you tried it?

WHY A SPECIAL SESSION?

The governor, answering agitation in some quarters for a special session of the legislature to investigate highway affairs, declares that such action is unnecessary. She is correct.

A poll of members of the legislature discloses that 23 of the 38 members responding, agrees with the governor's views.

A special session would involve expenditure of approximately $100,000, bring about a cumbersome investigating force, hampered by its own weight, driven by forces of clashing views and absolutely inelastic to all practical purposes. At the same time it would cast upon the state of Texas a questionable smear which could react to no good purpose outside the confines of our borders, hampering innocent commercial houses and otherwise affecting the forward march of industrial and financial Texas.

If an investigation of highway affairs is sought, the Travis county grand jury is empowered to conduct it and it is not only practical, but possible for such a body, operating with all the authority necessary, to do a thorough job of investigating. A small body of men, ably advised by authorities, this grand jury can quickly discern whether highway affairs should be brought to the governor's and the public's attention for correction.

And at the same time let it be understood here that the governor knows nothing of detail highway affairs. A woman, unacquainted with politics, serving her first year in the governor's office, is quite naturally occupied with a thousand and one affairs of statecraft. The public does not expect the governor to keep at her fingertips data on various details that consume the attention of the highway department, any more than it expects her to keep in touch with the detailed operation of the comptroller's department or any of the other bureaus.

There is no real need for a legislative investigation of highway affairs. If the job is necessary, it is a job for the grand jury.

IS IT GOOD OR BAD?

A $400,000,000 baking trust is the latest. It is known as the bread trust. President Coolidge has been asked to smash it. A Washington correspondent says thus far no information has reached the president that the big baking companies now engaged in a huge merger are disregarding the anti-trust statutes.

The late Theodore Roosevelt said that there were good trusts and bad trusts. Perhaps the bread trust is a good trust. When wheat sold at 90 cents a bushel, did the price of bread slump?

There are 37 wheat producing nations, and all the 37 harvested large wheat crops this year. No doubt the $400,000,000 baking trust has decided to merge in order that the price of bread may be reduced in the great centers of population.

Philanthropy is on the road these days. Judge Garry says so, and the judge knows.

HARRY HEALY ON THE MAP.

Harry Healy of New York City has obtained legal permission to rename himself Harry Schwartz. Healy gave his age as 27 years to the astonished judge who granted his petition. He said he was a world war veteran, that he had been wounded in France, that he was born in New York City and his parents came from Ireland.

A young woman is responsible for the transition. Her name? Miss Ida Weinberg. Healy fell in love with her. She named the terms. He became a convert of the Jewish faith and the name he has chosen is that of his prospective mother-in-law before her marriage.

It is not often a man gets a new name with a new religion and a new wife. Healy saw how it could be accomplished and he made the landing.

NEW JOB VOLSTEAD.

Andrew J. Volstead of Minnesota is said to be the highest authority on the Volstead law in the United States. He should be. While a member of congress he drafted the law that bears his name. He has been appointed legal adviser to the prohibition enforcement staff now on duty in Minnesota. Volstead was a congressman for many years. He was a wet when first elected. He became a dry when prohibition came in. He was defeated for re-election after prohibition came in. A preacher, running as a farm laborite, very deftly removed the scalp of the repudiated father of the Volstead law.

THIS IS THE RECORD.

In 1912 there were only 450,000 motor cars of all kinds registered in the United States. In 1924 this number had increased to 17,500,000. When will the saturation point be reached?

Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald

Mr. Fitzgerald is writing a series of articles for The Record News on Port Arthur, Texas, popularly known as the place toward which all the oil flows.

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD.
Record News Staff.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Oct. 22.—Man and his money make great cities and great cities possible. Men and money are able to accomplish miracles in the building line. Arthur E. Stilwell was a born builder. After building the Kansas City Southern railway, he built the Orient traversing the country from Kansas City to the far southwestern border. All reading and thinking men are familiar with the trials and tribulations of Stilwell and the Orient.

Fitzgerald.

There are rail builders who advised that it should be scrapped. There were others who said that its scrapping would be criminal. There are men of vision, with the souls of seers, who know that the day is coming when the Orient railway will be one of the rich dividend makers of the southwest. John W. Gates, the man who introduced barbed wire to Texans, the man whose money accomplished so much for Port Arthur, is in his grave. As for Stilwell, his dreams are coming true.

Figures never lie; they tell the story of the growth of a community. In 1900 Port Arthur had a population of 765. In 1910 Port Arthur had a population of 7,663. In 1920 Port Arthur had a population of 22,588 and in 1925 the metropolitan or industrial district of Port Arthur had a population of 42,618. In 1900 the assessed valuation of city property was $858,641. In 1924 the city has an assessed valuation of more than $30,000,000 while the assessed property valuation in the Port Arthur school district had a valuation of more than $80,000,000.

There are many important facts concerning this industrial port than millions of people in the southwest do not know. They should be told that Port Arthur is the world's greatest oil refining center. That Port Arthur is the home of the largest oil refinery in the world. That 17,000 of the population of Port Arthur are employed in industries having a monthly payroll of upward of $3,000,000. That in 1923 more than $41,725,000 was spent for improvements in the greater industrial district of this industrial port of America.

That Port Arthur is one of the ten leading ports of America, ranking with New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans and San Francisco. That Port Arthur shipping grew from 217,489 tons in 1900 to 11,573,742 tons in 1920, thus outstripping all other ports in growth. That Port Arthur ranks fifth in total building permits issued in Texas in 1923. That Port Arthur has one of America's greatest public school systems with a scholastic population of nearly 9,000 and 175 highly paid teachers. That in a single year a total of 1,054 homes were built in this city which was planned by Arthur E. Stilwell and John W. Gates.

According to the chroniclers this city, which is the world's greatest oil refining center, called by Richard Strillane, the wonder city of the southwest, was a waste land 25 years ago. After building the Kansas City Southern railroad, Arthur Stilwell proceeded to dig a channel to draw the gulf and the Atlantic to meet his steel rail. It was in 1897 that the channel was completed, and Port Arthur began to load the ships of the seven seas in that year. Port Arthur is just 19 miles from the gulf, on a channel having full 30 feet of water all the way, and broad enough to amply accommodate two way traffic and in a section of the gulf coast country that is free from tropical storms. Indeed it is pronounced a land locked harbor second to none in the world.

Arthur E. Stilwell knew what he was doing when he built his railway to the shores of Lake Sabine and then constructed his deep water channel to the gulf to plan for a mart of commerce and trade that would become in time one of the wonder cities of a wonder country. Spindeltop came in in the long ago, but not as men count time and then men of vision saw the possibilities of the future and today Port Arthur is known wherever ships touch port as the American city which is the largest oil refining center in the world and has the added distinction of having the largest oil refinery in the world.

According to the chroniclers of local history and tradition, the advantages of Port Arthur from the standpoint of oil refining were recognized soon after the discovery of Spindletop, world's famous oil field, early in 1901 and both the Gulf Refining company and the Texas company opened small plants here in testimony of this fact. Furthermore, according to these chronicles or traditions, the Gulf Refining company was the first oil refining industry in Port Arthur. It was started in 1901 on a small scale by the Guffey Oil company and subsequently acquired by the Gulf Refining company.

Colonel James Guffey was a Pennsylvanian, a famous democratic politician as well as an oil producer, and served for many years as a member from his state of the national democratic executive committee. In the third of this series of articles the romance of oil will be dealt with and the romance of oil is just as interesting as the romance of the rail which made Arthur E. Stilwell famous in the annals of the railroad building in the great southwest.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Libra

By MARY BLAKE

Today's planetary aspects are decidedly favorable, and continue so until midnight. The signs indicate that energy and perspicacity will be prevalent, combined with optimism, and self-confidence. This may lead to exaggeration, but, on the whole, the influences will exert a powerful aid to all efforts along conservative lines. Agreements or contracts can be safely executed. Financial problems can be solved. Mechanical difficulties can be overcome. Disorder can be adjusted. The auspices are excellent, except for speculative or hazardous risks. A marriage solemnized today promises results of a happily enduring nature.

Children born today will have their "ups and downs" from a health standpoint, although more trouble is to be anticipated from accident than from ordinary illness. In temperament, they will be adventurous and daring, and will rarely, if ever, give a thought to any danger that may be involved. This characteristic will remain with them all through life, and they will never hesitate to rush in where angels fear to tread. They will consider life a great game, and always be willing to take a gambler's chance. They will be very quick to learn, and will not easily forget what they learn, except the knowledge that is gained by experience.

If today is your birthday, you have an affable and a kindly nature, and are very affectionate in your relationships. You are a poor judge of human nature, and are often imposed upon, as you always attribute good motives to one and all.

You possess unmistakable "aplomb," and are a fluent talker, as well as a great reader. You are by no means lacking in artistic appreciation. Your originality is justified by the cleverness with which you put your ideas into execution.

You are, in a word, talented. You, however, need some one all the time to urge you to do your utmost, as you weary rather soon of well doing. For this reason you should marry, if you are not already wedded, and should have for a mate one who is in sympathy with your tasks, and who will encourage the development of your inherent ability.

HOW IT STARTED

The Olympic Games.

All the year round ambitious athletes are training, competing, qualifying to represent their country at the great Olympic games to which all the important nations send their best "amateur" athletes to compete for national supremacy.

Sport fans know, of course, that these modern Olympic games date from 1895, when through the efforts of the Baron de Coubertin, a number of individuals banded themselves together and organized an international athletic committee which brought about the first modern Olympic meet at Athens in 1896 and the subsequent Olympic games with which we are familiar today.

The real origin of this institution, however, takes us back eight or nine centuries before Christ to the great national festival of the ancient Greeks known as the Olympic games, because they were held in the sanctuary of Zeus at Olympia. These ancient meets were affairs of great elaboration and importance under official regulation and the victors were attended with fame and glory for the rest of their days.

Legend attributed the foundation of these games to Hercules, but the ancient who is credited with having given them the greatest impetus is King Iphitus of Elis during and subsequent to whose reign they flourished until their suppression in 394 A. D. by the Emperor Theodosius, on the ground that they were opposed to the interests of Christianity.

Hence in the games at Athens in 1896 in which our modern Olympic meets had their origin, we have merely a revival of an institution that had its birth and far greater glory and renown in the days of antiquity.

Copyright 1924-25, P. F. Collier & Son Co. and G. P. Putnam's Sons
"BOBBED HAIR" with Marie Prevost is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore was to announce her engagement by midnight or be disinherited by Aunt Celimena. If her hair was bobbed, Bingham Carrington was her choice; otherwise, Saltonstall Adams. Connie has disappeared, leaving behind a bunch of her tresses, in tissue paper. Bing accepts this as evidence that he is the accepted one. Meanwhile, the girl, garbed as a nun, has driven to the shore of the Sound with young David Lacy and is about to board a ferry for Long Island.

"What makes you think all her hair's been cut off?" Salt asked angrily.

Poppy broke into the discussion before the Southerner could answer. "She told me she had planned one last puzzle," she announced, "and that she'd come in and untangle it as soon as you'd given up."

They all looked expectantly at the doors again, but this time nothing happened except the sudden and solemn booming of the grandfather clock in the hall, sounding the first stroke of twelve. And though no one attempted to put it into words, they were all vaguely aware at the same instant of a queer little sense of finality of the definite ending of something, and the beginning of something else, nobody knew just what, as the old clock continued to strike, slowly and matter-of-factly.

"The announcement had to be made before twelve to be binding," he said in his thin, throaty voice.

"Tell him," she gasped faintly, "it was a masquerade—nun's dress."

"Two announcements have been made, but both cannot, of course, hold. Miss Connemara had better stop the play now and come forward to tell us which one of them is true. Otherwise—" He held out his hands, and shook a disapproving gray head.

"Oh, she'll be here in a moment," Poppy assured him confidently. "And she's safe, either way, because one of the announcements has to be legal, hasn't it, Mr. Brewster? Let's just go on dancing. She'll get tired of teasing us if she sees we're not waiting for her."

So the orchestra was commanded to resume and everyone began to dance again, though in rather a half-hearted and desultory manner, with one eye on the door and the other uninterestedly on his partner.

An hour passed that was longer than all the rest of the evening before it put together, and still no Connemara with the promised untangling. At the end of that time Miss Celimena, her face very pale, beckoned both Saltonstall and Bing into a corner of the ballroom.

"Something's happened to her," she said, with a little catch in her voice. "She'd never carry a joke as far as this. Won't you—won't you both go out and look for her? Poppy and some of the girls and I will search the house."

Very soberly, their former hostility forgotten, the two went out, and Miss Celimena, her hand in Poppy's strong young arm, walked heavily toward the hall and the staircase at the end.

The grandfather clock which had already ticked off so much anxiety just preparing to sound two when an anxious group of unsuccessful searchers met at the open front door, and mutely asked and answered the question that was in every eye, but which nobody wanted to put into words.

"Perhaps," suggested the withered little lawyer croakily, since there seemed to be no other offers of advice as to the next step—"perhaps we had better telephone the police at Greenwich."

Miss Celimena found her voice at that, and screamed: "Police! What for?"

"Why—eh—it's the customary thing, Miss Celimena, when a person is missing. Nothing to be alarmed about—quite the contrary, I assure you."

His eagerness to reassure was more alarming than openly expressed doubt. But Miss Celimena's long years of repression stood her in excellent stead now. She was up against something frightening and unpleasant, but after that first terrified outcry, she had herself well in hand.

"The telephone is on that table behind you," she said quite calmly. "Will you call them, please, Mr. Brewster?"

She stood at his shoulder quiet and controlled while he talked over the wire for several minutes. At length he turned to her to ask, "They want to know how she was dressed when you last saw her?"

Then, indeed, for a flash, a quiver passed across the set face. It hurt Miss Celimena, even in the midst of her fears for Connemara's safety, to tell an outsider that a Moore had so completely forgotten family tradition and dignity as to disappear in the unfitting garb of a Dominican Sister at a fancy dress ball.

"Tell him," she gasped faintly, "it was a masquerade—nun's dress."

Brewster did so, describing the costume with painful conscientiousness. They saw him listen intently, while a look of dawning horror and incredulity slowly spread over his face. Then he said jerkily into the mouthpiece, "Thank you—yes, I'll tell her," and hung up the receiver.

"What is it?" Miss Celimena asked, with feverish eagerness. "He had some news; I saw it in your face."

"A traffic officer held up a car about eleven in Greenwich for speeding, and let them go when he found there was a nun in it, on her way, she told him, to an emergency case," the lawyer said slowly.

"My description and the officer's tallied exactly. Fortunately—or unfortunately, I'm not sure which—" he put one thin hand confusedly to his head—"the man took the license number. There was no one in the car but the nun and a well-dressed young man who was driving."

"Go on," Miss Celimena said hoarsely. "Can't they look up the number and find out whose car it was?"

Brewster hesitated. "They—did," he said; then, brusquely: "The number was that of a car reported stolen yesterday morning from New Haven."

CHAPTER V

Ed Streeter

By Ed Streeter

The car stopped just outside the door of the engine room. A sickish, sweet smell of hot oil came billowing forth into the close passageway, driving before it the sharp, salt smell of seaweed and the faint odor of mimosa.

Sister Connemara stared straight ahead at the back of a huge truck which effectually corked out any breeze which might be travelling across the Sound.

"Haven't we"—insisted Lacy—"haven't we met somewhere before?"

"My orders," replied the demure creature beside him, "forbid the discussion of frivolous and trivial topics with men."

There was a warning toot from somewhere above. Engines clanked laboriously. After one or two preparatory shivers the boat moved slowly forward, leaving the ferry slip lights to waste their rays over a half acre of dancing foam.

Connemara released her grip on the blanket. "At least we are out of Connecticut."

"Out of Connecticut into New York," replied her companion gloomily. "What's the difference? We can't spend our lives running out of one state into another without any idea what it's all about. It doesn't make any sense."

Forum Hears Dallas Woman In Browning Lecture

"THE basic rock on which all happiness stands is love; where there is no love there is no rest.

"Keep love in your heart, my friends, if you would have perfect joy.

"Whenever you have a lasting thought it is commingled with the spirit, the divine touch of man.

"With the end of love comes the end of day."

The above quotations are taken from the inspiring lecture given by Mrs. A. A. Cocke of Dallas who lectured to the Woman's Forum Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. P. Langford, 1400 Tilden street, taking for her subject, "Browning, the Christian Poet."

Tells Man's Purpose.

"Browning believed that man was placed on the earth for the development of the soul," Mrs. Cocke told her audience yesterday afternoon, and she showed by various illustrations of his poems how the poet had had the courage to paint through his verse the inner life of man.

"One cannot value the human soul too greatly. Surely all our life is a great principle. Take, evolution—I am almost afraid to speak that word—no matter what the changes are in the body, there is no change in the soul."

Mrs. Cocke mentioned the ebb and flow of literature in its different periods. "There are periods of great mentality, and they are built from profound thought and quickened spirituality. Browning was a union of these two."

Nature and Man.

The speaker pointed out how Browning bespoke of nature on every side, and man and nature, both in relation to God.

"Browning believed that the purpose of being placed on the earth is to know God, and he felt that many have passed through life without ever finding its purpose.

"He deals with the part of man that lives, God is to create, man is to grow, but man must attempt to create or he cannot grow."

Sixty women were present to hear Mrs. Cocke who was introduced by Mrs. Langford to the assembly.

The guests were greeted by Mrs. Langford, Mrs. W. F. Fagan and Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin, president of the Forum.

Mrs. Thompson Sings.

Preceeding the speaker, Mrs. Luella B. Thompson sang a negro spiritual, "Goin' Home," with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Wayne J. Holmes.

Announcement concerning membership in the Forum was made by Mrs. G. D. Anderson; Mrs. T. A. Hicks announced the coming of Charles J. Finger, writer, and publisher, to Wichita Falls November 2.

DOROTHY DIX ADVICE

Have You a Cake of Soft Soap in Your Home? The Wife Whose Husband Flatters and Admires Her Considers It a Privilege to Housework for Him—And the Man Whose Wife Makes Him Feel a Hero in Her Eyes Never Finds Marriage a Failure

The greatest need in matrimony is for the soft soap in unlimited quantities, and yet it is the very commodity with which most young couples never think of stocking themselves up when they start housekeeping.

That is why the domestic machinery functions with such creaking and groaning, and so often breaks down and has to be junked in the divorce court. It wasn't kept properly greased with the oil of flattery.

Whether society acquaintances handle each other with or without gloves is a matter of personal preference. Whether friends are blunt or tactful in their dealings with each other is of small moment. Whether the outside world applauds or criticizes us matters little.

But the one thing of supreme importance is the attitude that our husbands and wives take toward us. Our happiness depends upon their ability to jolly us along and to keep us pleased with ourselves and with them, and feeling that only in the institution of matrimony does one get full appreciation and recognition of one's virtues.

For it isn't enough for a married couple merely to do their duty and be faithful to each other. They must wreathe marriage about with flowery words and gracious observances. Some of the best-hated wives in the world are women who are models of thrift and patterns of housewifery, but who feel it their sacred duty to keep their husbands continually reminded of all their faults.

And many a reconciled widow pulls her veil down over her face to hide how glad she is to be rid of a husband who was as straight as the moral law, but who never paid her a compliment or mentioned the word love in her presence on the far side of the altar.

On the contrary, the happy homes are those in which diplomacy reigns, in which husbands and wives put the loud pedal on each other's good points and gumshoe around each other's weaknesses, and where they use finesse in working each other, instead of vanity attempting to do it by brute force.

When you meet a disgruntled complaining married woman, or hear a married man making cynical and bitter comments on matrimony, or you are forced to listen in at a sordid quarrel, you do not need to be told that nine times out of ten the whole trouble is just the result of the lack of a few words of palaver, a little spreading of the salve of praise and appreciation.

Take care of John and Sally, whom we all know. They are honest and honorable. True as steel. Kind and good. Warm-hearted and affectionate. Married for love and still love each other, but they fight like the Kilkenny cats because they are to proud, or too stupid, or too lazy and self-indulgent to take the trouble to rub each other's fur the right way.

Sally takes the joy out of all about her by lamenting over having to do her own housework, and because John hasn't made a fortune instead of a comfortable living, and because she can't have limousines and pearls and the things that millionaires have.

And John is grouchy and grumpy at home and says, "By Jove, a man is a fool who gets married and sells himself into slavery for a family that is never satisfied, no matter what you give it."

Now, the trouble with Sally and John is that they are both heart-hungry. They are starved for praise, for appreciation. They are famished for a little warm, vital love. Each is crying to the other for bread, and each is handing out to the other the same old stone.

Sally doesn't really object to doing her housework. She doesn't really pine for costly luxuries. What she does crave is flattery.

In her youth she was a beautiful girl, admired, courted, feted, and she simply ate up the adulation that was lavished on her. Marriage hasn't changed her taste. She still hungers for praise, and if John would only tell her that she is the handsomest woman in the world to him and notice when she has a new frock or does her hair another way, and if he would tell her what a marvelous cook she is, and that he couldn't possibly get along without her, he would never hear another discontented peep out of her. She would consider it a privilege to work her fingers to the bone for him and pity the poor rich women whose husbands gave them nothing but money.

And John suffers from the same complaint. The thing that takes the heart out of him is the utter lack of appreciation that his wife shows him. He spends his life toiling for her. He gives to her with both hands and she never says so much as "thankk you." She only reproaches him because he cannot give more.

Now, the man has his vanity as well as the woman, and he wants above everything else for his wife to admire him, to give him the glad hand, to celebrate his achievements and for her to tell him how grateful she is to him for standing between her and the world.

No man whose wife makes him feel every day, in every way, that, no matter what a blind world thinks about him, he is a hero in her eyes, ever finds matrimony a failure or wanders away from home seeking a soul mate.

Most husbands and wives do admire each other, and why they are so afraid of telling each other so is something that passes comprehension It is pitiful and tragic and exasperating to think how many marriages could be changed from a failure to a success by a few words

BIG MERGER OF BAKERIES IS DEFENDED

Federal Trade Head Says Combine Was Entirely Legal

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(AP)—Using as a subject the proposed new baking merger, William E. Humphrey, member of the federal trade commission, said in an address before the American Oil Men's association here today that the "majority of the commission are not going to be stampeded into making a lot of misleading, sensational and self-saving statements by the frantic shrieks of publicity seekers."

"A few days ago," he said, "the radical press carried a startling story that a $400,000,000 bakers' trust had been formed to prey upon the staff of life of the common people. The statement was farther embellished by a sensational assertion that the federal trade commission could have prevented the consummation of this gigantic wrong if it had made public the facts concerning the case it already had commenced against some of the parties of this alleged transaction."

Mr. Humphrey said the commission had issued a complaint against some of those interested but that the facts had not been made public because all the information gathered tended to show that what had been done was legitimate.

"How it could have had a tendency to prevent consummation of a plan to give out such information as we had received," he said, "when such information showed that such proposed plan was entirely lawful, only the astute and super-human intellect of these self-appointed guardians of the people's interests is able to comprehend.

"The lack of evidence up to date to substantiate any of these sensational charges certainly shows the wisdom of our caution prematurely giving out publicity."

Mr. Humphrey said the case which the commission began had not been dropped and that investigators still were working on the case. Proceedings would be begun, he said, if evidence of law breaking were found.

Woolworth Store In New Home Today

The F. W. Woolworth Co., five, ten and fifteen cent store, have moved from their previous location at 725 Indiana avenue to a new location at 820 Indiana avenue. Their new store was formerly occupied by Wichita Music company and Kimberlin and Smith.

The new store will be open for inspection today from 2 to 5 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. Music will be furnished for the opener. On Saturday morning the new store will open for business with a big sale.

Mr. C. C. Peck, Dallas manager, is here and is very much pleased with the new location and the new store. In 1879 F. W. Woolworth started in business with one store. The company now has 1,429 stores in the United States and Canada. Their growth in Wichita Falls is in harmony with their growth elsewhere, and Mr. Peck expresses great confidence in the future of the local store.

TELLS OF WORK UNION OF RUM MEN IN CHELSEA

Bootlegger Says He Was Fined $50 for Underselling

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Some of the methods of the alleged bootleggers union in Chelsea were described in the federal court today in the trial of nine persons for liquor law violations. William Hoffenburg, one of three mentioned in the indictments who pleaded guilty, said that members of the union were fined $50 if they were caught selling liquor under the union price of $3.50 a gallon.

He testified that such a fine was imposed upon him after other members of the union had held a regular trial and found him guilty of selling a gallon for $3.25.

Union liquor sellers, he said, were required to pay the market price of $2 a gallon plus 75 cents to "Dutch" Henry, one of the defendants for protection from the Chelsea police.

GRIFFIN

pastor; by Rev. Gary Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Graham, and by Rev. C. S. Lee, Baptist pastor of Holliday and Dundee and in whose churches Mrs. Griffin is a member. The opening prayer was said by Rev. Lee; the closing prayer the scriptural reading given by Rev. Grafton, and the sermon delivered by Rev. Smith.

Known from Boyhood.

The latter had known Griffin from boyhood when they spent some years together in Abilene. The two, Rev. Smith told the congregation, had become much better acquainted in the last 18 months when Griffin, on trial for his own life, was once convicted and later liberated by a jury in the city where the minister now works.

"I grew to know him better and to love him there," he said, "for in those days of adversity it was my opportunity to study the man. And my heart was gladdened as was his and were those of his friends when a jury of 12 good men, honest and true, vindicated his name before the world and sent him back, guiltless, to his wife and son."

Rev. Smith opened his sermon with a brief biographical account of Griffin's life and then touched very briefly on the sorrow and trouble that entered his life some 18 months ago when Hugh Reilly was killed. From this the minister passed to the painless sting of death and the hollow victory of the grave.

"It seems when death enters our home that he comes as an enemy," the Rev. Smith said. "He comes as an enemy, it is true; an enemy who touches a loved one and takes from us a husband, a father or a friend. And when he comes we are filled with mourning and with sorrow; but my friends, to the child of God, death is not a terrible and fearful thing. Death is not the ending of life, but the beginning of a better and a greater life beyond. It is merely God's way of calling his children home.

Appeals for Strength.

"And so we say to our departed friend today not good-bye for all time, but just good-bye for a little while; good-bye until the day when we too must go to face our Lord. Then comes the reuniting; then death and its sorrow and life and its troubles are ended."

Rev. Smith closed with an appeal for lives of such worth as would strengthen the heart and soul of all and prepare each mortal man to meet with courage the summons that might come for him at any time.

Music was furnished by the Presbyterian church mixed quartet. "Remember Now Thy Creator;" "Jesus, Saviour Pilot Me," and "Abide With Me," were rendered during the service.

Active pallbearers were Charles Ancell, George Ancell, T. B. Noble, D. O. Johnson, L. J. Bryan, Horrace Robbins and J. A. Gardner.

Services were in charge of the Merkle Undertaking company.

PLAYGROUND TO BE MOVED OUT OF PARK

Increased Traffic Makes Bellevue Site Too Hazardous

With Eighth street between the business district and Brook street already heavily traveled and with paving operations started on Ninth between Broad and Brook, officials of the city park department have decided to move all playground equipment from Bellevue park. The action is being taken as a precautionary matter and one of protection for the thousands of youngsters who each summer have used the playground apparatus in the park.

It has been feared that with a constant stream of autos passing on each side of the park which lies between Eighth and Ninth and Broad and Holiday, too great a possibility for accidents was presented. No accidents took lace in that vicinity last year, but the hazard will be increased next summer when Ninth street is paved and offers another heavily traveled thoroughfare bordering the park.

The apparatus is to be moved to a large plat of ground on Sixth street between Burnett and Broad. This is only two blocks from Bellebue, is in a section where very little automobile traffic passes and hence is considered more desirable. The city owns a solid block there and this will be given over to a playground for the youngsters.

Add 'Em UP — Here It Is—the Record News Elephant Picture Puzzle — Add 'Em UP

The Problem:

What Is The Sum Total of the Figures Forming the Elephant?

Simply Add Them Up to Get the Solution

There are no marks, lines or characters in the elephant figures. These figures range from 2 to 9, each standing alone. There are no "ones" or ciphers." There are no groups of figures such as "23" or "42." The heads of the "6's" are distinctly curved while the tails of the "9's" are straight, or practically so. There is no trick or illusion of any description in the chart.

©by J.R.Colburn, 1922.

General Rules of the Contest

This competition is open to all residents of the states of Texas and Oklahoma, except employes of The Record News and members of their families.

Contestants may submit as many different solutions as they desire provided a payment of one of the amounts designated in the prize list shall accompany each solution. NO SOLUTION UNACCOMPANIED BY A SUBSCRIPTION PAYMENT WILL BE REGISTERED.

The Record News offers these prizes for individual effort. While it is proper for members of one household to work together or several friends, it is not permissible for more than one of those working in unison to send a solution of the puzzle. When in the judgment of the contest manager more than one member of the same family, or more than one of any number of persons he believes have worked together send in a solution of the puzzle, he reserves the right to refund subscriptions and return the solutions he believes have been submitted contrary to the foregoing rule. The Record News reserves the right to reject any solutions it believes have not been submitted under proper conditions. The Record News also reserves the right to finally decide any other questions or points which may arise and those entering the contest agree to abide by such decisions.

In the event of ties on this puzzle, as many prizes will be reserved as there are contestants tied, before any prizes are awarded for a less correct solution. For instance, if five people were tied on the best solution, the first five prizes will be reserved for them, and they would be awarded the prizes in accordance with the standing of their solutions of the second puzzle. That is, the one submitting the best solution of the second puzzle would receive the first prize; the one submitting the next best, the second, and so on.

Subscriptions may be NEW or RENEWALS. Both count the same.

Closing Date

The Great Elephant Puzzle Contest Will Close at Nine P. M. Saturday, November 14, 1925

The earlier you send in your solution the longer time you will have to go over your figures, AND SEND IN ANOTHER SOLUTION, if you find you can do better. Additional charts may be secured at any time by calling at the address below or sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope for mailing them. NO SOLUTION CAN BE CHANGED AFTER IT HAS BEEN ONCE REGISTERED.

Important Facts to Remember

While the amount you pay with a solution of the puzzle does not have any effect on your winning a prize, it does affect the amount you will receive, should you win one of the first nine prizes, as the value of these prizes is determined by what the winners pay. This is explained in the prize list, which you should study carefully before sending in your solution.

The time a solution is received has no bearing upon its winning a prize. Accuracy is what counts.

Not more than one prize will be awarded to any one person.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Except for brief spurts of activity at the opening and at the close, the cotton market was an extremely dull affair today. The price trend was downward due partly to lower cables than due and partly to the fair and warmer weather in the belt. There was an early decline of 19 to 20 points but after that the market became very quiet and prices see-sawed within a range of a few points all day until near the end when another spurt of selling sent values down to levels 27 to 29 points below the close of yesterday. The close was at net losses for the day of 24 to 26 points.

Liverpool came in much lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 13 to 16 points. Prices rallied slightly during the call, going to 11 or 12 points below yesterday's close. These proved the highs. The market eased off right after the call, however, on realizing and hedge selling until it was 19 to 20 points below the previous close.

Near the end prices eased off under increased selling, making new lows for the day at 27 to 29 points under yesterday's close. The market closed a little above the low points.

A private authority made the crop 15,644,000 bales and ginnings to October 18 at 9,600,000 bales. Exports for the day totaled 20,280 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Indications that the appearance of clearing weather in the south was being accompanied by increased hedgings and a relaxation of increased crop estimates seemed responsible for the declines in the cotton market today. December contracts sold off to 21.23, or 22 points net lower and within 13 points of the low price touched on October 8, last bureau day. December closed at 21.23, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 18 to 28 points.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 7 to 15 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. Better weather news from the south and reports of increased hedge selling. After showing early net losses of about 20 to 27 points, prices rallied on covering and trade buying. The demand was supplied on comparatively moderate advances, however, an dthe market weakened again in late trading under a renewal of southern hedge selling. Liquidation by recent buyers and local or Wall Street offerings.

Near months were relatively easy, as if influenced by rumors that cotton was beginning to move in this direction of delivery on contract, and October broke to 21.40, or 34 points net lower. January sold off to 20.50, a net decline of 30 points. Last prices were the lowest of the day on most positions. There was very heavy liquidation of December with switching of long accounts from December to later deliveries and business was active in late trading, the market being called upon to absorb a great many contracts on the decline. At the close October was 33 points over December compared with 20 points at the close of the previous day while the December premium over January had been reduced from 75 to 73 points.

Exports today 20,280 bales, making 1,958,084 so far this season.

Port receipts 62,304. U. S. port stocks 1,154,572 bales.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Expanding pool operations and public participation characterized the resumption of the bound upward movement in today's stock market. The usual week-end profit taking made its appearance in the closing hour, but offerings generally were well absorbed and closing quotations were around the day's highs.

The day's sales approximated two and one-half million shares. A total of 593 separate stocks and "rights" were dealt in, making the broadest market on record. The average price of 20 leading industrial stocks also recorded a new high level.

With the exception of a sharp break in French francs to a new low level for the year in apparent reflection of the French cabinet's disapproval of the temporary debt agreement proposed by the American debt funding mission, the day's news developments were largely favorable. Call money continued easy at 4¼ per cent and the weekly meeting of the directors of the New York Federal Reserve bank brought no change in the 3½ per cent rediscount rate.

Secretary Mellon's newest tax proposal, providing for a further downward revision of the normal tax on incomes had a bullish effect on sentiment. Other favorable factors included reports that operations of the U. S. Steel corporation had risen to 81 per cent of capacity, and advance in pig iron prices ad special dividend announcements by a few smaller companies.

The quarterly report of the Bethlehem Steel corporation showed a net income of $2,000,659 in the three months ended September 30 as compared with $3,423,190 net income on common stock in the previous quarter and with $102,167 on the 8 per cent preferred in the corresponding quarter of 1924. Total earning for the first nine months of 1925 were equivalent to $3.53 per share on the common as compared twth $1.48 in the same period of 1924.

Resumption of the upward advance in the oil shares met with a large volume of realizing sales although Marland crossed 56 to a new 1925 high and independent Oil and Gas showed a net gain of 3½ points at 32½. Steel shares held relatively firm, U. S. Steel common closing fractionally higher at 125⅛ after having sold a point above that figure and Gulf States Steel and United Alloy each showing net gains of more than a point. Sloss Sheffield soared six points to a new high at 115.

Motor stocks took on a new lease of life under the steadership of General Motors, which scored an extreme gain of six points at 130½, presumably in reflection of reports that it was negotiating for the control of Vauxhall Motors, Ltd., Mack Trucks showed a net gain of 3½ points and Hudson 2. American Smelting advanced over a point to within a small fraction of the year's high but the other coppers were rather sluggish on reports of a lessened demand for the red metal.

American Can was run up over five points to a new record high for all time at 251¾. Underwood Typewriter, which is expected to declare an extra dividend of $1 jumped over five points to a new peak price at 63¾. Union Bag and Paper soared nine points to 85 and U. S. Distributing six points to 41, both new high records.

Other outstanding industrial strong spots were American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Byers company, Cluett Peabody, the commercial solvents issues, Dupont, General Cigar, Otis Elevator, Remington Typewriter and Weber and Heilbronner all up three to nearly six points.

Rails were rather sluggish although Southern railway and Baltimore and Ohio exceeded their previous top prices for the year.

Call money held firm at 4¼ per cent. A further stiffening was noted in time money rates. 60 to 90 day funds being 4¾ to 5 per cent with six months loans on a flat five per cent basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged with 4¼ per cent the ruling rate for prime names.

A sharp break of over ten points in French francs which established a new low record for the year at 4.30 cents, was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm above $4.84 but Italian lire sank about five points to around 3.95 cents. Danish kroner rallied about 20 points to 24.72 cents but the other Scandinavian rates showed little change.

SPINNING IN U.S. INCREASES IN SEPTEMBER

More Spindles Busy Longer, Census Bureau Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Cotton spinning showed slightly increased activity in September as compared with August and was considerably more active than in September a year ago, census bureau statistics issuer today indicated.

Active spindle hours for September totaled 7,102,420,980 or an average of 188 hours per spindle in place compared with 6,954,413,849 or an average of 184 in August this year, and 6,414,902,010 or an average of 170 in September last year.

Spinning spindles in place September 30 numbered 37,804,912, of which 31,551,630 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 37,822,040 and 31,269,774 in August this year and 37,840,731 and 30,122,384 in September last year.

The average number of spindles operated during September was 31,722,855 or at 83.8 per cent capacity on a single shift basis compared with 30,464,534 or at 80.5 per cent capacity in August this year, and 28,783,156 or at 76.1 per cent capacity in September last year.

Market Gossip

R. E. Flowerree and Co., brokers, basement Staley Bldg., today received the following market comment from Fenner and Beane of New York, New Orleans and Chicago:

GRAINS.

Wheat: With the exception of the easing premiums for cash wheat there has been no item of news to account for the decline in wheat. Some of the selling came from the northwest, but bulk of offerings were credited to eastern interest.

The market had no support other than from previous sellers.

Snow and rain are reported in Canada and our northwest delaying threshing and delaying movement.

It has been conceded all the time there would be no important advance in prices until foreigners became eager buyers. This condition still maintains, on the other hand, it is doubtful if the decline will proceed far from this point, unless there should be an unexpected and goodly increase in the offerings from first hands.

Coarse Grains: The market for cash corn is slowly easing because of the first movement of the new crop. Prices are somewhat resistant due to the discount under hog values, but there are few if any who believe prices can be advanced with out a better shipping demand. It is stated that Ohio river points are offering the eastern distributor at much less than Chicago basis.

COTTON.

Return of summer-like weather, prospects of continued favorable weather, and disappointing cables encouraged bearish operations today and gave the cotton market a downward tendency from the start. Trade buying to fix prices on old purchases of cotton stopped the decline temporarily after the first 20 point decline and held prices steady for most of the day.

Pressure from short sales was renewed in the late afternoon on the appearance of considerable hedging when prices dropped 29 points under previous finals and closed near the bottom.

Spot news continues good with an active demand for the better grades and spinners continue to fix prices on a liberal scale.

Private estimates have created the belief that the government may further increase its figures, and checking outside speculation still maintains.

Ginning forecasts, however, which range from 9,296,000 to 9,684,000 are making some traders inclined to the selling side because they feel such figures as these if confirmed by the census bureau, may induce the crop reporting board to reduce its estimate.

Sentiment continues strongly bearish and continued good weather is apt to encourage further selling.

STOCKS.

Business in all security markets continues on a large scale and each day there is just sufficient amount of selling by traders for the purpose of either of accepting profits or to make some commitments in other stock to give the market that irregular appearance which was noticeable today.

There is no sign of diminishing public interest.

Although no stimulation is necessary, we are of the opinion that speculation has gone too far in many instances and not far enough in others.

We are of the opinion, that in the rails, oils, equipments and steel, will be found the best opportunities for the future.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Selling on a big scale took place in the wheat market today and prices came tumbling down to nearly six cents a bushel below yesterday's top level. The selling was ascribed to leading eastern holders of the December delivery, especially a well known New York speculator. Wheat closed weak and at but little above the day's bottom figures, at 1⅝ to 3⅝c net loss, new style. December $1.42¾ to $1.41⅝ and May $1.39⅞ to $1.39⅝. Corn finished unchanged, oats ⅛ to ¼@⅝c off, and provisions at setbacks ranging from 10 to 50c.

Corn prices were steadied by prospects of unsettled weather in the corn belt but not until wheat weakness had depressed the corn market to a new price record for the season. Oats were easy in sympathy with other cereals.

Provisions felt the effect of deliveries of 1,150,000 pounds of lar don October contracts.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Oct. 22.—Cattle on the Fort Worth market sold with less freedom Thursday than on any day since Monday. Packers were out early, but announced their desire to lower prices to a more attractive level, and as a result the trade was slow. Beef steers were cashed in at a decline of 25c and on cows the market looked 10 to 15c lower. Heifers, yearlings and bulls remained about steady. On stockers and feeders values were unchanged. The calf market was brisk, prices being 25 to 50c up. Around 3,300 head of cattle and 700 calves were on offer.

Salesmen were unwilling to take a 25c cut in steer values, but buyers were determined, and when sales were finally made they looked that much lower. Several loads were here, some of which were fairly good.

Canners, as well as fat cows, suffered a downward revision. It was the second break of the week for fat cows, but the first for canners. A few sales of good cows ranged around $4 to $4.25 with the fair to medium kinds going at $3.25 to $3.75. Cutters went mostly at $2.75 to $3.00 with canners going at $2.25 to $2.40.

Relatively small receipts of yearlings appeared, and only a few bulls were here. The market was quotably unchanged. A few yearlings, selling in small lots, brought $8 to $8.50. Bulls sold around $2.25 to $4.00.

Quality of calves was rather good, and some of the most desirable loads of the week were here. Trading was active and at an advance. One sale of vealers was made at $9 and heavy calves went at $7.75 and $8.00. All of these values were the best of the week.

Demand for stockers and feeders was up to the usual proportions. All classes were disposed of without peddling, the market showing a steady trend. Hog receipts were almost too small to really make a market quotable, only 500 head arriving, and that number including 215 that came to a packer. Two cars went to a shipper at $12.35, and one load sold to a packer at $12.25. It looked like a 25c higher deal to shippers, quality considered, and a steady market to the hog packers. Prices elsewhere again were lower. A few pigs brought $12.00.

Sheep house receipts amounted to only 200 head, most of the run being of a mixed type. The market was an unchanged affair.

Cattle, 4,000 including 700 calves; market slow, 10@15c lower on cows, 25c lower on steers, calves 25@50c up; beeves $3.50@8.00; stockers $3.25@7.25; fat cows $3.00@5.50; cutters $2.60@3.25; canners $2.25@2.50; heifers $3.50@7.00; yearlings $3.50@8.50; bulls $2.50@4.25; calves $2.50@9.00.

Hogs, 500 including 215 direct; market uneven; steady to packers, 25c higher to shippers; top $12.35; bulk $12.25@12.25; medium $12.00@12.25; heavy $11.75@12.00; mixed $11.50@11.75; common $10.00@10.75; sows $10.00@11.00; pigs $10.00@12.00.

Sheep 200, market steady; lambs $12.00@13.00; feeders $11.00@13.00; yearlings $10.00@10.60; wethers $7.00@8.00; ewes $5.00@6.00; culls $1.00@2.00; stockers $3.00@4.00; goats $1.00@3.00.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Hogs, 25,000; slow; top $11.50; packing sows $9.35@9.85; killing pigs $11.50@12.00; heavy hogs $11.00@11.40; medium $11.10@11.50; light $10.90@11.50.

Cattle, 10,000; slow; top matured steers $15.25; vealers $12.50 downward.

Stops Chatter and Keeps The Motor Cool

When your clutch, reverse and brake bands slip and chatter, and your motor overheats, you are using the wrong oil.

The transmission bands are lubricated from the crank case by the same oil that is used in the motor. If the wrong oil is used, or if your oil is seriously diluted, these bands become oil-soaked, gummy and slick—and chattering and slipping result.

Use Flivolene—change the oil in your crank case every 500 miles—keep your transmission bands properly adjusted, and you will get the best service from your Ford at the least cost.

Flivolene is manufactured and guaranteed by the Humble Oil & Refining Company, refiners and marketers of the high-grade line of Humble Motor Oils. You can buy it wherever you see the Humble Signs.

More Truth Than Poetry

BEFORE ATTENDING THE NEW HAMLET

Although I'd not exactly gloat
On Hamlet in a dinner coat,
Or in plus fours, well creased and new,
Run foolish young Laertes through;
I'd be annoyed, dismayed, almost
Were I to view his sire, the ghost
About the gray old castle roam—
A two quart hat upon his dome.

I have not witnessed, I confess,
These Shakespeare plays in modern dress,
But since I was a tiny lad
A reverence for ghosts I've had.
And still I think they should be decked
In garments which show due respect
To spirits of aldermanic girth
Doomed for a time to walk the earth.

For Rosencrans and Guildenstern
I have but very small concern,
Divest them of their furbelows
And tog them out in golfing clothes,
Or give them each a fancy vest—
And I'd not be a wit distressed.
For these two crafty playing gents
Are of buttle consequence.

But when the ghost stalks on the scene
He ought to wear a ghostly mein,
And not possess the snappy air
That pudgy business persons wear.
When he comes forth from out the night
I want to shiver with affright—
And I'm sincerely hoping that
He doesn't wear a two quart hat.

TOP O' MORN STUFF

By BLONDY CROSS.

YAP, YAP.

You can say what you want to about the outcome of that Matsuda-Brown match Tuesday night, but the principals are still unsatisfied, and they're certainly going to settle their controversy about championship belts, over weight and sundry other things, so they declared Thursday.

The two, Matsuda and Brown, have agreed, albeit verbally, to clash in a private match by way of settlement. Not press agent stuff, either. Regardless of the outcome of this meeting, according to Matchmaker Ross, the wrestlers will not come together in a return match or anything similar under the auspices of the Wichita Falls' wrestling association.

In other words, the Jap and Greek are taking care of a personal grievance. Matty says he'll meet Brown with his welterweight championship belt at stake, providing, of course, Brown makes the weight. Otherwise the bout is to be at catch weights with the belt out of the competition.

The matter at stake is now not so much the belt Brown has been seeking but the fact each grappler believes he is a better man than the other. They are to hook up next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, it is said, to settle the question of supremacy. Location of the match has not been decided, but they assure the bout is to be staged.

This is unique as far as Wichita Falls is concerned and quite a bit off the trail as regards the mat game on the whole. There isn't to be a dime on the tiff. Both are to wrestle gratis, and there will be no admission charges. For that matter, only a few mat fans will be allowed to witness the struggle, and these will be admitted free.

MAYBE.

The writer can not say for a certainty that the match will be held. However, we have talked to both men and they declared they are willing to go on. Apparently there is nothing left to be done as far as bringing the athletes together other than dragging the mat to some suitable location and leading 'em to it.

It is possible that the two wrestling gentlemen in question agreed to this match behind barred doors and without a nickel recompense while in the heat of ire aroused following their recent fiasco at the Majestic Theater. They assure they are in earnest, and probably were at the time, but who knows what a wrestler will do? Maybe they'll tangle and maybe they won't. Anyhow, the so-called die is cast.

It is more than probable the Elks club will be approached in regards to staging the scrap there. If the Elks agree, in that case members of the club and a select few of the outsiders will be admitted to the frolic. The situation is an intriguing one at that.

Greek Hurt. All Right.

That Brown suffered casualties in the topple from the stage into the orchestra pit Tuesday night after going through the ropes in a beautiful swan flop occasioned by application of a flying mare with Matsuda on the heaving end is certain. We put the grappler through a personal inspection yesterday. One of his legs is black from knee to shin and greatly swollen. There still is disfigurement on the nape of the neck where the mat Adonis wound up his aerial spiral on the hard, hard floor.

We repeat, you can't tell what a wrestler will do, but of Brown's altitudinous acrobatics were prearranged as we overheard one of the street corner wise boys averring, then for brains, although a wrestler, Brown rates far below the sum of zero plus zero minus twice that much.

Given a night in which to sleep on it, we shall interview the two gentlemen of brawn again this morning. Then if they still feel the urge to meet in death grapple, so to speak, without the lure of ensuing gate receipts egging them on we shall feel assured then and then only they really intend to lock in private session. And not until given this assurance will announcement of the match be made through the regular channel, all of which we have a sly feeling doesn't matter a continental to the alleged palpitating sport public anyhow.

STECHER COMING.

Incidently, there will be no mat card next week other than the proposed circus session, say Ross, Joe Stecher, the well known king of the heavyweight mat trust, has agreed for a showing here a week or so hence, according to Ross. It is probable Joe Pesek will be brought as an opponent.

NOW BOUT'S EVEN?

That late hour substitution of Trammel for White against McMullen Monday night in the legion's feature fistic event will make it a far better match. As we declared here before, McMullen can't lay a glove on Tommy White, originally billed, but—

CONTEST AT SPUDDER PARK TO BEGIN AT 4--JUNIORS IN FAIR CONDITION FOR SET-TO

McCallum's Squad Invades Oklahoman's Gridiron Minus Services Of Several Regulars

The Coyote Pups will meet the Devol, Oklahoma, eleven at Spudder park this afternoon for the first home game of the season. They are all in good condition and ready for the battle. The game is to begin at four o'clock, but if Devol arrives in time the contest may be started a bit earlier, announces coach Montgomery.

The club took a brief workout Thursday. Coach Golden worked the line on the defense and offense while Coach Kay drilled the backfield on breaking up and receiving passes.

The probable starting lineup will be: Anderson and F. Herndon, ends; Saye and Berry, tackles; Powell and Mix, guards; Nichols, center; Dulaney, quarterback; Fly and Brackett, halves, and Farris, fullback. Dale Carter likely will see service in the backfield.

"Dummy" Deems, former Coyote star, and present Junior College player will officate.

Grandfield Won't Be Easy Victim

The snapping Coyote pack will invade the lair of the Grandfield, Okla., eleven this afternoon, using no more than five regulars in the game.

The pack took a rather stiff workout Thursday afternoon to whip into shape for the game. Saturday morning McCallum will rush through another hard workout and conclude this early in order to witness the Electra-Vernon tilt at Electra. It's all in preparation for that Vernon tilt next week.

The pack will leave this morning with a very small number of men for the trip and a good number of the substitutes will get their chance to perform.

Coyal Francis again watched the practice from the sidelines Thursday afternoon. Perkins is on hand, but his knee is still bad. Wilks Dobson, tackle de luxe, is down with a bad ankle, and reported to be out for the Vernon tilt, which is a hard blow to the Coyote backers.

McCallum probably will start the following lineup in the game: Zeke Taylor, center; Flippin and Sisk, ends; Wainscott and Edmondson, tackles; Tarkington and McAnish, guards; Miller, quarterback; Mitchell and Steed, halves, and Moore, fullback.

The Grandfield eleven has a smooth working machine, and the Coyotes may find them hard to handle. Dykes and Houston, husky backfield men, are two very nice performers at carrying the ball. Eversole is another nice back and will bear watching.

Grandfield also boasts of a powerful end. Hosch, on the right side, who is a very capable man at snaring passes, and running interference. Smart, tackle, also is a very good man in the line. The peppy tackle has fair ability at breaking through and smashing plays behind the line of scrimmage.

Tribe Takes Light Workout

The Junior College Indians worked only a short while Thursday afternoon. Coach Mosley gave his boys a little rest before their coming clash with the Quanah Indians at the Spudder gridiron Saturday afternoon.

The coach sent his athletes through a short drill and then some sprints. The club has but few on the injured list, and will go in the game with nearly full force.

The Tribe will have a strong line and a good backfield with which to hold the opposing tribe at a distance. Captain John Clary will be at his regular post at center. Karns and Hirschi will be at guards, Weeth and Burks at tackle, Harris and Crites at end, Thursman will be at quarter, Datron and West at halves, and Timmons will be at fullback.

This is the probable lineup for the game, but there will be several others used in the role of substitutes. Stevenson, Gonce, Box and Chunn are pretty sure of seeing service at some stage.

"Tame the Tigers," Vernon's War Cry

"Tame the Tigers" has been made the motto of every Vernon football player and follower. Gloom and determination have settled down over the Lion's den as reports definitely indicate that both Ryan and Couch will not be in the line-up that faces the Electra Tigers tomorrow, says our Vernon reporter.

Coach Baggett is driving his men hard, and is trying a number of men in the backfield in a desperate effort to uncover a discovery that can replace Ryan and Crouch. He has apparently settled on Castleberry, C. Key, Gelhausen and Williams as his backfield quartet. If this combination is used, Captain Robinson probably will call signals from his position at center.

With Ryan out of the line-up, the Lion mentor has completely abandoned all forward pass plays. He is drilling his men constanly on off-tackle plays, and the two new men in the backfield carry the ball constantly in the practice sessions. The squad is being driven about three hours daily.

Castleberry and C. Key, are showing up strong in the backfield in spite of their lack of experience. Castleberry appears to be one of the fastest men on the squad, and he runs low with his feet wide apart. When tackeid, he is quite handy with a stiff-arm. But he cannot take the place of Ryan in the punting and passing department of the game. Gelhausen probably will do the booting for the Lions.

Baggett refuses to announce his starting lineup, but says it will have many changes. The lineups used in practice sessions indicate that the forward wall will remain practically the same. T. Key and Hollar will likely hold down the wing positions

Watch Coolidge and Tramill

Electra's Tigers are taking their football quite seriously these days as they work away in preparation for that feast slated Saturday in the Bengal's lair with eVrnon's touted Lion machine.

Wednesday found Jim Reese shoving his crew through a super-rough scrimmage session as one mode of endeavor to chop off the ragged edges of the Tiger defense, to say nothing of offensive.

And they looked alive, quite spry, those Tigers did as the battle session wore along, so avers The Record News' Electra correspondent. The regulars took a terrific whack at the second stringers on offense play. Dell Coolidge, hefty fullback, and Vin Tramill, slashing half, were consisten tground gainers. This pair is expected to puck the pigskin through the Vernon forward wall for considerable yardage. They both stepped about recklessly through the line and in an opened field. Fact is, they got away several times for goal line rushes, evading the entire defensive team.

John Louie Wright and London Smith flashed with several brilliant tackles. After the scrimmage Coaches Reese and Coke, then put the first team to kicking off with the second team returning the kicks, after which the men were lined for another short scrimmage with the regulars on defense and the substitutes on the offense. Pug Sanderlin, Louis Kent, and Brewer Smithe were kept on the sidelines for most of this period, due to injuries. However, Smith saw action the last few minutes. Big Oren Sadgent was placed at center for the second team and it is barely possible that he will see action at this position Saturday but Roy Coolidge is the best bet to start at this post.

Buzzy Smith has been holding down Brewer Smith's guard position this week and he will probably alternate with him next Saturday.

Bellevue-Iowa Park Game Off

The Bellevue-Iowa Park game slated for the Hawks' gridiron this afternoon is off, asserted Coach Brewster of the Parkers Thursday. Bellevue cut the game and Brewster straight-away indneed Devol to tangle with the Hawks Monday. The contest is to be played in Iowa Park.

Meantime, the Hawks are priming for engagement with Montgomery's Junior High gridsters there next week. Incidentally, the Devol fracas is counted merely as a conditioning process, regardless of the outcome, in preparation for a warm reception of the Wichita Falls eleven.

The Monday game is to be played at 3:45 o'clock, no later, according to Brewster.

The Hawks probably will turn back the Oklahomans, pre-game outlook has it, if they stay at their stride and play the game, but, of course, should they slip up in any way just another will go into the lost column for the Parkers.

The Hawks have been forced to play teams out of their class so far this season in order to obtain competition. Several schools have deliberately canceled games with the Hawks on one or two days' notice.

Coach Brewster yesterday appeared somewhat irritated because Bellevue called off the contest, which, by the way, had been scheduled several weeks.

The coach alread yhas called out his basket ball men, is devoting his afternoons to the grid and nights to cage sport. Six complete teams are on the floor each evening with some to spare including junior and sub-junior boys. The senior athletes will not begin work until after Thanksgiving.

Fort Reno Poloists Beat Dallas Four

DALLAS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The Fort Reno, Okla., polo team defeated the Dallas team here this afternoon 6 to 5. The officers won Tuesday's game also, 2 to 1.

The most spectacular play of today's game was when M. Palmer of the Fort Reno team, in a slashing stroke from an oblique angle, sent the ball bounding between the posts for the deciding goal. Palmer was the outstanding offensive star of the game, shooting five of the Army's six goals. Close behind him was Cecil Wilfong of Dallas, with three goals in the third chukker, two of them coming within less than a minute of each other.

MILLERS TAKE ON MEAN GRIST

But They Hope to Grind Out Win Over Notre Dame

Not content with what bids fair to be one of the hardest conference schedules it has had to face in years the Minnesota team has hopes of grabbing off a large chunk of fame outside the conference. Hence the forthcoming battle with Notre Dame, which is to be staged at Minneapolis October 24.

The game assumes added importance coming as it does during the first year of Dr. Clarence Spears as coach of the Millers. A creditable showing against the always formidable Notre Dame team will give the doctor considerable prestige. This much can be said now for Spears. He wades quite willingly into one of the toughest schedules a Big Ten team could offer a coach. Following the games against the South Benders, Spears' men take on Wisconsin. Then after a game with Butler, they tackle Iowa, November 14, and then leave home for their final game—another nut cracker—with Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Nothing soft about the conference end of the schedule. Any team that can come through a series of frolics with such playmates as Wisconsin, Iowa and Michigan with the customary number of arms and legs and sizeable number of touchdowns can afford to hold its head high and take a chance on tripping.

The Millers got a taste of football pudding in their early fray. Against North Dakota and Grinnell they run up a total of just 59 points while holding the two opponents to a total of 12 points.

Whether or not this power will be apparent against the stronger Notre Dame team and the Big Ten brothers remains to be seen, of course. However, Minnesota always has had plenty of driving power.

Captain Ascher, ritht halfback and one of the big stars of the team will match his football brains and ability against Clem Crowe, rider of the wheel horse in the new Four Horsemen aggregation. Ascher is a brilliant passer, a star at punting and a good ground gainer.

FACT

In the papers, you saw
How one, Mr. McGraw
And his chances are thought
To be served rather raw,
Since last winter's vote
With McGraw as a goat,
On stopping his buying and selling;
And it's true that his club
Struck a snag or a snub
When Pittsburgh its noses
Succeded to rub;
It seems like a dream,
This fall of his team,
And occasions much shouting and yelling.

But be slow any year
To believe all you hear—
And remember that Muggsy
Is still around here—
That the old boy's as wise
As the rest of the guys
And considerably older and richer—
And the Giants next spring
Going south on the wing
Will have several new faces
For he besitates not
Or won't have a thing—
On taking a shot
Like a million or so for a pitcher.

This isn't to say
In an elegant way
That Muggsy is smarter
Or quicker in high;
But you can not deny
That the bank roll is spry—
And that John J. McGraw can,
Does, and will BUY!

THE TEST

BILL CUNNINGHAM pays a loyal tribute to the generosity of the Dartmouth alumnus who made possible his four great years as center for the Green, in his Liberty article discussed yesterday it occurs that Cunningham overlooked a simple test that might apply to the situation.

Whether the mail order forwarding of an article to Dartmouth in Cunningham's day consisted proselyting is a question of rules there. It would be a violation of the rules in vogue in the Southwestern Conference today and of the present Harvard-Princeton-Yale agreement which the author scouts heartily. The trouble is that it is not only difficult to prove the case but impossible as Dean Briggs of Harvard admitted even after the adoption of the agreement's drastic rules giving authority to investigate. "It is still a question," he said, "of whether the player wants to lie."

Now take this proposition: Let the young man who is sent to college, as Cunningham was sent to Dartmouth, inform the rules committee of the facts. In the conference or under the agreement, he would undoubtedly be disqualified from playing. Then comes the test of whether the generous loyal alumnus is willing to continue to fool the bills.

If he is, his altruism is beyond question. But if he isn't—what?

THE AFTERMATH

NEITHER the generous alumnus nor the benefitted athlete as athlete as a customary thing can see any wrong in the practice. Possibly they might if they viewed the inevitable aftermath.

The generous alumni—plural—send several young men to college and the collective result is a good team. Competing in the same class is a new school with few alumni and none of them out long enough to be rich—and generous. The small new school does not like to take consistent beatings from the team representing an older establishment with rich, generous alumni. What is the logical answer?

The small new school needs a winner—for advertising purposes. It deliberately pays its athletes—and there you have the situation which even Mr. Cunningham will admit is wrong.

The only conference college that ever got into trouble over the athlete's pay check, which it stoutly contested was legitimate, still protested bitterly and used that same thesis: "Sure, the school had to furnish the jolts. We have no wealthy alumni to supply them like the rest."

THERE IS NO ANSWER

IT IS a grave, debatable question—and it will never be solved, except by the abolition of intercollegiate football, basketball, baseball, and track.

For there is no common viewpoint. The summer ball rule differs with the sections. And the proselyting rule is worse than national prohibition in the contempt in which it is held by its practioners. The rich, generous alumnus thinks it is wrong. The young man anxious to get an education—and to play football—and with not enough money to do either—thinks it is wrong. And like the thirsty citizen and the bootlegger, both regard it as only an unnecessary evil that they have a right to evade.

The result is ill-feeling engendered about various conferences and teams.

And still it goes on.

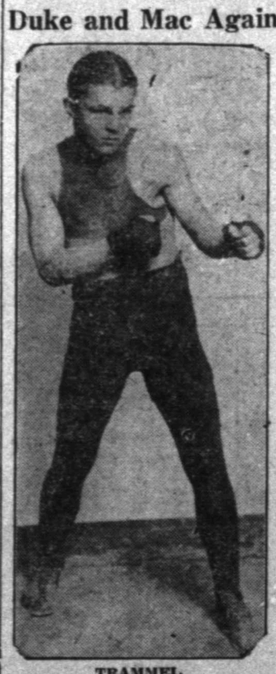

Nap Lajoie has been put on Cleveland's boxing commission. Possibly J. Dempsey can qualify for the SPCA.

From the way Admiral Bill Sims opens up every time they give him a chance, baseball men probably rejoice that he is not one of them.

FAME

CELEBRITY moves in mysterious ways its wonder to perform. In mind are the deaths at week intervals of two men who had only one claim to the headline—they were billed in the show game as the world's strongest men. Sigmund Breitbart might have lived and died a tanner—Eugene Sandow might have traveled through this vale of tears in the priesthood his parents planned for him. Doubtless their lives would have then contributed more to the world. But like countless tanners and priests and for that matter professors, lawyers, bankers, and doctors, no cable would have stirred with the news of each demise. But they were once labelled the world's strongest men. Their deaths figure as news.

Duke and Mac Again

TRAMMEL.

Tommy White will not meet Elmer McMullen here Monday night in the main event of the legion cauliflower show, announced Don Wofford, promoter, Thursday.

Why won't he? We don't know. Don seemed a bit hazy on the subject himself.

As it is, Duke Trammel, the Fort Worth slugger who piled it on Jack Ercanbrack here last Monday in four rounds, has been subsfituted. The affair probably will be a ten-rounder.

Trammel and Kansas Mac clashed here in a great battle last spring, the Duke taking the decision, which to some was an unpopular one.

Now Elmer's coming back for revenge, so to speak, in the best condition of his caeer, he says.

We have an inkling that the winner of this match will be matched with White at a later date. Anyhow, that's what seems to be in the air.

FOOTBALL PLAYER KILLED.

HAS YOST NEW POINT-A-MINUTE MACHINE? THAT'S WHAT PIGSKIN DOPSTERS BEGINNING TO AVER

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 23.—Fielding Yost's name is synonymous with victory. He gained his fame first game 20 years ago through the ability to build all-powerful elevens that swept all before them and literally ran up a point a minute during the actual playing time of the annual schedule.

Heston.
Weeks
Germany Schultz.

These men and others helped Yost pile up a wonderful gridiron record for Michigan.

And now, as the 1925 season sweeps toward the big game era, the Wolverine adherents sense a return of those halcyon "point a minute" days in the strength of the present eleven, led by the fiery Benny Friedman, Cleveland boy.

Friedman is the lad who stepped into the breach in the game last season when Irwin Uteritz was rendered hors de combat and who proceeded to set western football fields on fire with his passing and generalship.

This year Friedman leads the Michigan attack. That this attack looms powerful is indicated by the fact that in its first two games, against Michigan Aggies and Indiana, the Yostmen ran up a total of 102 points. This in a total of 120 minutes of actual play. And the while the opponents were being halted dead in their tracks. Not even a field goal was scored on the Yost defense.

Yost has gathered around him a formidable array of coaches, Frank Cappon, Harry Kipke and Jack Blott, of Yost's recent teams, are three of the men helping him. Edwin Mather, Ray Fisher and "Tad" Wiemann are three others. While the departure of George Little forced Yost to take more active charge of the tutoring, these men he has gathered about him are relieving him of the mass of detail work.

Among the playing stars Yost has, in addition to Friedman, are Parker and Bill Flora. Parker, Hastings, Neb., lad, is a veteran and a triple threat man. Flora is a star forward pass receiver.

Chicago's inability to score a victory over Ohio State gives Michigan hopes of getting at least a half claim on the Big Ten title this year—if not an undisputed hold on it.

If Yost develops a point a minute outfit the championship is quite liable to land in Ann Arbor next month.

Southwestern Beats Kangaroos, 9 to 3

TEMPLE, Texas, Oct. 22.—Southwestern University Pirates defeated the Austin college Kangkaroos 9 to 3 at football here today before a crowd estimated at 2,000.

The punting of Blackburn for Southwestern was the feature of the game. He scored three points for the Pirates by placing a beautiful dropkick squarely between the posts. Southwestern's touchdown was the result of a blocked kick that was recovered behind the goal line.

Austin college scored in the second quarter on a placement kick from the 30-yard line. The ball was kicked from near the side-line, but sailed beautifully between the posts.

Colonels Wallop Frisco in Series Opener, 7 to 0

Coast League Held to 6 Safeties by Chief Tincup

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22.—(AP) The Louisville Colonels, champions of the American Association, walked away with all the honors in the first of a nine-game series with the San Francisco Seals today by shutting out the champions of the Pacific Coast league, 7 to 0.

The Louisville club started from the first inning like champions and played the role throughout. Big Chief Ben Tincup sounded the battle cry of Kentucky, gathered his tribe of hitting warriors before him, rolled into action the "big bertha" of the Colonels, one little fellow by the name of Ty Tyson, and when the smoke cleared away the easterners trotted to the showers with a shutout victory over the Pacific Coast champions to their credit.

Rumor Out Grange Breaks Leg, But It's All Mistake

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Newspaper officers were beseiged for confirmation of reports tonight that "Red" Grange sustained a broken leg in football at Urbana today. NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—William C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, former amateur golf champion of the United States, today was nominated officially on the regular ticket for president of the United States Golf association. The list will be submitted at the annual meeting in Chicago in January.

BOYER STILL WANTS DUNDEE.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Antero Boyer, the French boxing promoter who holds the signature of Johnny Dundee, former featherweight champion, to a contract to fight Fred Bretonnel, which Dundee failed to carry out last January, said today that he was ready to go through with his end of the affair now. The French promoter said that if the former champion would follow the suggestion made this week by the New York athletic commission and return to France he would stage the bout as originally planned.

KETCHEL, AN IMMORTAL.

Here today, gone tomorrow, and how many remember yesterday's tomorrow in the rush and bustle of their own lives? A few, and Jack Lee is one of them. He Writes:

"Dear Ed: Lest you may forget, Stanley Ketchel, one of the greatest and most picturesque boxers of his time, if not of all time, died on October 15. I know from your articles that you thought a lot of him, so probably you'll be glad to be reminded of the fact.

"One of his many friends,
JACK LEE."

* * * *

The late afternoon tidings of that week fifteen years ago brought a pang of deep grief to every boxing fan who ever glimpsed Ketchel in action. Not only for the fistic entertainer par excellence, but the lovable, picturesque character of the man himself. Ketchel was something of a psychic phenomenon. He had a dual personality if ever a man had one.

* * *

Outside of the ring Ketchel was as harmless and as sympathetic as a child. He was the last man to "pick a quarrel"; in fact, it was his custom instinctively to avoid trouble in public. An authentic instance will illustrate the point:

* * *

Ketchel loved the bright lights, the gayety and motion of crowds, the companionship of his friends. He could usually be found, when not in training—and often when he was—in the sporty cabarets where life was loudest and the wine reddest. One night Ketchel, while moving toward friends in a jammed bar, accidently stepped on the foot of a stranger. Stanley apologized, but the victim was not satisfied. He spat some mean phrases at the champion, and evinced a desire to pummel the careless pedestrian. But Ketchel withdrew, quietly, in the midst of it.

"—, what do I want to hit him or any one for unless I have to. I'd probably kill him, and anyhow, he's got a right to feel sore. I oughta look where I'm going. Every one knows I can fight, anyhow. Why show off in public at some poor bloke's expense?"

But in the ring Stanley Ketchel was a vastly different proposition. His warm, generous heart turned to cold stone. He was a whirlwind of ferocity, slugging terrible knockout blows with deadly accuracy from almost any angle. They called him a variety of blood-curdling nicknames—The Assassin, the Terror-Tiger, the Montana Buz-Saw and a few others. Ketchel earned them all. No such fighting machine has since been discovered to the ring, though many have tried to imitate his inimitable style and agonizing hitting from shifts.

FIRST NEW YORK BATTLE

Ketchel first exhibited his arenic talents in New York in March, 1909, at what is now the Pioneer club. It was in the horse mart ring that the colorful cowboy engaged clever Philadelphia Jack O'Brien. Those who witnessed that memorable ring conflict will never forget it. The display stamped Ketchel as one of the great hearts and one of the great hitters of all ring time.

Ketchel walked into a steady, merciless beating from the phantom-like O'Brien for seven rounds. And then, with the deliberate fury of one who has been merely trifling with his task, Ketchel beat down O'Brien a guard and knocked him senseless—six seconds before the final bell.

FORWARD PASS AIDS FOOTBALL.

As in the case of baseball, football has been subjected to scores of interesting and important changes. The first kick-off, for instance, was an odd affair. It was frequently "dribbled" along, and finally picked up by the player best fitted to gain ground. Usually a better part of the offensive grouped themselves into a wedge as the play was being made.

* * *

The defence, meanwhile, busied themselves in healthy attempts to rip apart the wedge supporting the ball-carrier. When the offensive human fort was shattered, and the carrier detected, another scheme was resorted to by the latter. He frequently passed the ball to another. The protracted "kick-off" continued until some carrier was finally and definitely thrown for a "down."

* * *

Early football games were purely a test of sheer brawn and stamina. There was no place for the delicate of limb, were he ever so brainy. Speed didn't play much of a part either, that is, compared to its merits of the present day game. Practically all of the plays were mass affairs—bucking the line with murderous "flying wedges" that were meant not only to gain ground but to smash the daylights out of the opposition.

* * *

Occasionally there were end runs, but smashing the line and "piling up" were the favorite plays. Needless to say it wasn't much of a game for the spectator, unless he rejoiced in the picture of human haystacks being thrown up every few yards or so.

Maroons Off For Pennsylvania Tilt

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Twenty-eight University of Chicago football men, accompanied by a large number of student rooters, entrained this afternoon for their invasion of Philadelphia where on Saturday they will demonstrate Coach A. A. Stagg's type of grid play against the powerful University of Pennsylvania team.

"We have a fighting chance to win," was the "old man's" only answer to the question being asked by middlewest fans.

Coach Stagg, foxy as ever in his 63 years, is counted upon to spring some surprise plays against the eleven which downed Yale last week.

SAXON MAY NOT START IN RICE GO

Owls Primed for Varsity Mill With Ire Aroused

DALLAS, Oct. 22.—(AP) Somewhat handicapped by injuries to several Mustang gridsters, Coach May Morrison completed Thursday's workout in preparation for the S. M. U.-Oklahoma university contest at Fair park stadium next Saturday, by the light of a new moon. Despite the team's crippled condition the Ponies are determined to make amends for their defeat by Texas Aggies by winning from the Sooners. Discouragement is one word that Coach Morrison has banned during the week's practice.

The Mustangs will face an aggregation of gridiron "beef" that averages more than 180 pounds in the Sooners, whose flashing back field combination—Potts, Hill and Lamb—will not have the runaway they expect if the Morrison line stacks up as planned.

Cortemeglia, Magnis, George Watter, all prominent in the Mustang lineup are suffering from injuries but are expected to be in the starting lineup Saturday. Coach Morrison indicated tonight that he will probably use these men but little, saving them for later contests.

SAILOR SHEARER BACK IN HARNESS.

AUSTIN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Mack Saxon, star Texas university back, may not be able to start Saturday against the Rice Owls, the Longhorn coaches said today. Texas players claim that Saxon was "kneed" by the Auburn gridsters.

In the event Saxon does not start, Johnny Estes will begin the fray in the backfield. The three backs certain to start are Captain Wright, Rufus King and Stalliter.

The Longhorns line has been reinforced by return of Sailor Shearer, letter man. Early in the season, Shearer was suspended for insubordination. He is a hard fighting end, and likely will see action against Rice, though he is not in the best of condition because o fthe long lay-off.

INSTITUTE SPIRIT RUNNING ON HIGH.

HOUSTON, Oct. 22.—The Rice Institute football team will leave Houston for Austin Friday morning at 9 a. m., it was announced by Coach John Heisman Thursday. Twenty-four members of the squad are being taken on the trip. It is thought that the Owls will be drilled on the Texas gridiron Friday afternoon putting an edge on the blade which will attempt to mow down the Longhorns.

Those making the trip to Austin for the game are: Underwood, Captain Heyck, Williams, McVey, Ulrich, Kendrick, McKinnon, , Winston Joseph, Reynolds, Loughridge, Cram, Hart, Sauer, Ogg, Murray, Herting, Smiley, McWorter, Hoculi, Calvin, Maddenk, and Appling.

The squad has been primed for the battle. During the past week Coach Heisman has worked his athletes from early afternoon till late evening, preparing his eleven for the coming affray with the Orange and White of States. The spirit of fight is more pronounced now than at any other time this year, it is thought.

AGGIES AREN'T OVERCONFIDENT.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Heartened but not reudered overconfident by their victory over the S. M. U. Mustangs, the Texas Aggies are working hard for Friday's game here against Sam Houston normal. The normalites held the Rice Owls to a 7-0 margin of victory, and the Aggies realize they will have to fight hard to win over Coach Jones' splendid team. Norman Dansby, star guard who suffered a severe cut over his eye in the game against the Ponies, will be ready to start against Sam Houston.

QUACK MEDICS STILL THRIVE SAYS EXPERT

American Medical Ass'n. Man Assails Various Phoney Doctors

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.— (AP) — Quack doctoring, an ancient craft, still flourishes to an incredible extent in this age of touted public intelligence, said Dr. Arthur J. Cramp, director of the bureau of investigation of the American Medical Association. He spoke to officers of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolarynology, which starts its annual convention here today.

"There are styles in quackery," he asserted. "The prevailing modes of the recent season are those products sold for alleged rejuvenation. They range from glandular substance of ring-tailed monkeys to radium emanations dissolved in drinking water.

"But in quackery there are certain old stand-bys that, like Tennyson's 'Brook' go on forever. Of such are consumption and cancer cures; the epilepsy and rupture cures; the female weaknesses and weak men cures; cures for fatness and leanness; the quacks who will fit glasses on no other data than your age and ability to pay the bill and the faker who will sweepingly promise to cure deafness of whatever origin.

DEXTER PUTS COCHRAN OUT IN SEMI-FINAL

Champion Loses in Dallas Play, 5-3—Greer Tags It on Hubby

DALLAS, Oct. 22. — (AP) — Charles Dexter, Jr., of Dallas eliminated Tommy Cochran, state champion, 5 to 3, Thursday in the semi-finals of the first annual invitation golf tournament of the Dallas Country club.

J. B. Greer, Shreveport, put Al Badger out of the main show, 2 to 1.

In the finals Friday Dexter and Greer will tee off for the 36-hole match which will determine the winner of the largest invitation tournament ever held in Texas. Upward of 250 golfers started.

Dexter's return to his old-time form on tee and greens and Cochran's poor form on both these important spots figured in the downfall of the state champion, though it is doubtful if Cochran could have won had he been going at his best.

Dexter in Form.

The powerful drives for which Dexter is famous on all golf courses in this country put him in position to pitch to the greens on a majority of Dallas Country club's 18 holes and once there he was invincible. Time after time he curled long side-hill putts into the cup and never took more than two to the green. On two holes, the thirteenth and fourteenth standing four up on his opponent already, he had penalty strokes but halved both holes with long putts.

Cochran missed half a dozen short putts and appeared unable to negotiate the fast greens. He missed a drive at the critical fifteenth, went into the ditch, played out to the barn then into a trap and conceded the hole after reaching the green in four strokes. It was clearly Tommy's off day.

Putts Beat Hubby.

Clarence Hubby, who was runner-up to Cochran in the state championship at Waco this year, lost his match with Al Badger through two missed putts at the thirteenth and fourteenth greens. Hubby missed at the wrong time Thursday for Badger was playing machine golf, as his medal score of 72 will testify. Hubby scored 74 for the round.

Greer eliminated Badger in the afternoon semi-finals when Al's drives began to flicker from the standard he set in the morning round. Always a tough golf opponent because of his fighting qualities, when cornered, Badger held grimly on until the seventeenth hole was reached, though he was two down at the tenth hole, and four down at the thirteenth. He won the fourteenth and fifteenth and halved the sixteenth and seventeenth.

In the second case H. E. Covington is to be tried on a charge of disposing of mortgaged property, it being alleged he sold an automobile on which a mortgage was held by the McElreath Motor company of this city.

GOODWIN MAY HAVE CAUSED COVELESKIE'S SERIES UPSET

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Marvin Goodwin, aviator and Cincinnati Red pitcher, who was fatally injured when his plane fell in Texas last week, may have played a part in the world series downfall of a brother "spitter," Stanley Coveleskie of the Washington Senators, whose performance in the classic this year was about the opposite of the record he made in the Cleveland-Brooklyn series of 1920 when he won three games for the Indians. The new world champion Pirates, when they journeyed to Cincinnati for the last three games on the regular schedule, had won the National league flag and as a consequence were giving considerable thought to the coming series and especially the Washington pitching staff.

Manager Bill McKechnie suggested that Goodwin be used against his crew in one game and inasmuch as the race had been won, Manager Jack Hendricks sent him to the hill.

Goodwin, who joined the Reds late in the summer, gave the Bucs plenty of his "spitter" and the Pirates took advantage of the opportunity to study the "wet fling."

This incident may or may not have had a bearing on "Covey's" poor showing in the series, but nevertheless it shows that the Pirates are preparedness advocates.

FOOTBALL INSIDE OUT

THE WHY AND HOW OF THE RULES

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

Agitation to eliminate the try for goal after touchdown is growing yearly in football circles. This is interesting in view of the fact that in its earliest days of football the touchdown was secondary to the try for goal—its part being mainly to give a team a chance to try for goal.

Should this extra point as the game is now scored be eliminated in the future, the probabilities are that the value of the touchdown would be raised from six points to seven.

The goal from the field, three points, and safety, two points, are the other means of scoring as the game is played today.

The value of a goal scored by a kick from the field in comparison to the value of a touchdown, is one of the features of the game that makes the development of a good kicker a vital necessity in the building of a team. Such a kick from placement (the ball is held by a teammate for the kicker as the ball is passed by the center) or a drop kick furnishes one of the tensest moments in the game. History is replete with games won through the "educated toes" of stars.

The safety points are added but rarely to a team's total.

Victor's Latest Shown In Credenza Models Of The Orthophonic Style

There was entertainment galore at McConnell Brothers Furniture store Wednesday afternoon and a fair-sized audience of music loving people who sauntered in and out were charmed with the records played by the new Victorla, the Credenza model of Orthophonic Victor instrument.

The case of this instrument is of unusual beauty and a different design from any of the other models so far shown. The tone quality, however, is its greatest asset, and is far superior to any of the other Victor machines so far shown.

In fact, so truthful is the reproduction on this instrument that the name "Orthophonic Victrola" means literally correct or true in sound. Mechanically, this Victrola is possible because of the construction of the 70-inch folded horn so arranged as to counter balance all the impedence in the flow of tone, and the records used for demonstration Wednesday afternoon fully brought out the pure tone qualities claimed for the instrument.

The music given in this sort of demonstration concert was most excellent and everyone present expressed admiration for the lovely instrument.

U. S. TO HAVE TRADE FIGHT IN 25 YEARS

Business Executives Say World Competition To Grow Stronger

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—F. Edson White, president of Armour and company, believes that American industry, within the next two decades, will face the most severe competition it ever has experienced. He expressed this opinion in an address today before the institute of American meat packers.

"Although world commerce is at present repressed and staggering under the shadow of the World war and post-war debts, there is a leashed power which will break loose within the next 20 years. This competition will not only meet us in our markets abroad, but will reach us at home."

E. A. Cudahy, Jr., made an emphatic plea for lower prices of pork. The packers have been paying too much for hog meat and they "must pay less."

Heavy demand for pork had prevented considerable public criticism of of prices. He said plenty of pork was on the way due to the large corn crop.

There is no shortage of livestock now throughout the country and none is impending, D. A. Millett of Denver said.

Charles H. Swift, vice president of Swift and company, said he was looking forward to 1926 as the most satisfactory year in the beef industry with higher prices and some profit for the packer and industry in general. He said the supply of cattle during the coming year probably would not be excessive; the supply of pork would be moderate.

Oscar G. Mayer, vice president of Mayer and company, of Chicago today was re-elected president of the institute.

Vice presidents chosen included E. A. Cudahy, Jr., of Chicago and Myron McMillan of St. Paul.

A special fund of $150,000 was voted by the institute for further work during the next few years under the institute plan. The program provides for scientific, educational and practical work.

$4,000 from 5 Acres

This is what one man did this year on his 5-acre tract

Read what Edwin J. Clapp, world famous financial and agricultural authority says about Wichita irrigated farms:

"Yesterday I saw 5-acre tracts along the paved highway from Wichita Falls to Iowa Park planted with every kind of truck garden produce, fruit trees, berries, grapes, cotton, feed stuffs.... ....I saw some of it raising cotton that will yield two bales to the acre. I saw some of it in blackberries that this year yielded $400 per acre. I saw two rows of black grapes, one hundred and twenty yards long, that yielded and sold this year at the rate of $1,000 to the acre. There is no lack of market for garden truck, fruit and dairy products." From Fort Worth Record, Sept. 28th.

County May Award Bridge Contract Today; Despite Injunction

TO OPEN BIDS ON RED RIVER SPAN AT 10 A.M.

Do Not Believe Action Will Become Permanent

"Unless they enjoin Wichita county between now and 10 o'clock tomorrow morning we'll open the bids, maybe award a contract and go ahead without ever bothering about their Austin injunction suit."

This was the comment Thursday of County Judge B. D. Sartin when asked what effect a temporary injunction granted in district court in Austin against the state highway department would have on opening of bids today for construction proposals on the new free bridge across Red river near Burkburnett. The bids will be opened at 10 o'clock with the Wichita county commissioners court meeting with various state and federal officials. It is expected that six and possibly more bids will be presented.

The Austin injunction, granted on application of former Senator Joseph W. Bailey acting in behalf of toll bridge operators on Red river, temporarily denies the right of the state highway department to allot approximately $163,000 in money for construction of the bridge. It has nothing to do with what Wichita county, the federal government or the state of Oklahoma may do in the matter. At best, should it be made permanent, it can only cut off this $163,000 of Texas state aid, and Judge Sartin is confident that when the injunction plea is tried on its merits the writ will be dissolved.

A. R. Losh, federal highway engineer in this district; Wickline of the Texas state highway department and the state highway engineer of Oklahoma will be here today when bids are opened.

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch.
The Honest Man.

I guess that men have more of gold
Than other men a lot of times,
There may have been some bard of old
Who even wrote some better rimes;
Some men have read a lot of books,
Some men have been of royal birth,
And some have even better looks
Than other fellows on the earth;
Some men some braver deeds have done
That others of some fighting clan;
But there has never been a one
More honest than an honest man

An honest king and honest serf
Are equals whether serf or king.
One fellow may not own a turf,
Another empires—but the thing
That makes them equals isn't that.
It isn't fortune great or small,
Or if they wear a jeweled hat
Or haven't any hat at all.
For even honest monarchs know,
Though kings be honest as they can
They cannot be more honest, though,
Than any other honest man.

And so I'll buy when I can pay,
And meet mankind, and never care:
For no one else shall ever say
He owns the garment that I wear.
I may not be as rich as some,
Nor look sarcyal as the rest:
And yet, in all the days to come,
I'll be as honest as the best.
Some may be wealthier than me,
Be wiser than I ever can,
But no one else can ever be
More honest than an honest man.

LOST BOY

river where they continued their hunt throughout the night.

City-Wide Alarm.

By 9 o'clock when it was seen that the lad was really gone, a city-wide alarm was spread. Announcement of the boy's disappearance was made in local theatres and this resulted in a large number of volunteer searchers leaving for the scene. Between 10 and 11 o'clock there were at least 200, possibly more, spread out like a net in that section. They were supplied with electric flashlights, acteylene lanterns, oil lamps and other means of illumination. The Miller drug store at Eighth and Ohio sent out a big consignment of flashlights which were distributed among the crowds unprepared with illuminative means.

Opinion was expressed in some quarters early in the evening that the boy had found his way to a road before darkness and had made his way into town. This belief was dispelled, though, when after hours of darkness he had not put in an appearance either at his home or at the city hall. It was then feared that he had either met grave disaster or, becoming exhausted from fear and fatigue after wandering aimlessly about, had laid down and gone to sleep. The searchers listened intently for some cry, but at no time since the search began was any sound heard.

Indications were that unless the youngster was found, the hunt would continue on until daylight.

The manuscript was written by Senator Lodge a month before his death and in it he attributes full responsibility for defeat of the league to the unbending attitude of President Wilson, who he says, was actuated throughout by "an overwhelming thought of self."
