Gyro Signals Trouble

HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) A troublesome Skylab gyroscope sent out two more "distress signals" today, raising concern that the stabilizing device might soon fail.

But even if it did breakdown, Mission Control officials say the Skylab 3 astronauts may still be able to complete a full 84-day mission by using backup control systems.

Today is the 67th day of the flight.

The gyroscope, a spinning wheel used to manuever the spacecraft, has exhibited a high rate of fluctuations recently.

Nine instances have been reported in the last three days compared to 20 malfunctions in the first nine weeks of the Skylab 3 mission.

"I would like it better if it didn't happen so often," Mission Control official said. "Because of it, the probability for a failure must be higher."

Nine days ago, space agency officials said Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson might have to come home within five or six days of such failure for safety reasons.

But flight director Milton Windler said on Sunday that only 18 days remain in the planned 12-week mission and that enough backup control gas is aboard to keep the station stable for that long if nothing else goes wrong.

He said the astronauts would have to eliminate most solar astronomy and earth resources experiments because they require gas-using maneuvers of the station.

"If the gyro should fail, we can design procedures to get a complete 84 days with the consumables we have," Windler told newsmen. "By staying up, we could certainly gain some medical benefits and other science experiments."

He said there would be no danger to the astronauts.

KISSINGER BRIEFS CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS

Pact Removes Oil Block

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, came from a White House briefing by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today and said the "strongest blockade" to an agreement on lifting of the oil embargo by the Arabs was removed by the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

The Pennsylvania senator also said that he was hopeful of "constructive progress" and perhaps "some early progress" in reaching some settlement between Israel and Syria.

Kissinger and President Nixon were applauded at the bipartisan congressional leadership, meeting in the Cabinet room to hear a report by Kissinger who had just returned from 11 days of diplomatic negotiations.

Scott said there were "no secret guarantees," and that none were mentioned and "I don't believe any existed." He said various assurances were given to both parties as the negotiation sessions went on, which he said led both parties to feel that security was better assured.

Scott declined to give any predictions on when the oil embargo to the United States might be lifted. He said he hopes progress will continue and said, "the strongest blockade to an agreement on oil was removed by the signing of the agreement between Israel and Egypt".

"It is hopeful Scott said, that this progress which is being made will continue and result favorably..."

Scott added that the United States has no military commitment or involvement in the Mideast and it simply was a case of making its good offices available and will continue to do so.

Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana declined to discuss the briefing with reporters as he left the White House.

"You're our hero," Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., greeted Kissinger as they shook hands. Mahon was among 16 congressional leaders of both parties assembled by President Nixon to hear a report on the Israeli-Arab agreement.

Kissinger returned before dawn from his 11-day journey that produced a disengagement agreement between Israel and Egypt and what Kissinger said was "real progress" toward a similar pact between Israel and Syria.

Those attending the briefing included members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees.

CHARGES COUNTERED

Senate Panel Probing Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil company executives today were accused of "cheating the American public" as they appeared before a Senate panel probing the severity of the energy crisis.

The charges were made in an opening statement by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

A statement submitted under oath by Roy A. Baze, senior vice president for Exxon, the country's largest oil firm, flatly rejected the charges.

Exxon "has not fabricated or contrived to bring about the current tight energy supply situation," Baze said. "The petroleum companies have made major efforts to prevent the shortage from occurring," he said.

Ribicoff had accused the companies of using the "fright and panic" triggered by reports of severe fuel shortages "to squeeze out the small independent dealers," and of using the sharp increases in the price of foreign oil to push up the price of domestic oil.

Ribicoff called for a price freeze on petroleum products until the severity of the shortage can be determined. Ribicoff also said it was time to cut off tax breaks which he said the oil companies were using to "deprive the American treasury of approximately $3 billion a year."

He said the oil firms had misled federal energy chief William E. Simon as to the severity of the shortages.

Subcommittee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Mich., said that some of the information the companies had submitted to his staff was evasive.

Simon was scheduled to appear before the panel today, but subcommittee staff members said he was out of town and would be called to testify at a later date.

At the same time, a joint economic subcommittee continues its probe of the accuracy and reliability of the energy data furnished government agencies by the oil companies.

The Senate leadership has said that the emergency energy bill that Congress failed to pass in the final days before the month-long winter recess would have first priority when Congress returned.

One-Member Districts Due

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill said today he has received word that a three-judge federal court will require single-member State House of Representative districts in seven counties now represented at-large by two or more legislators.

Hill issued a statement saying he had been informed that multi-member House districts in Jefferson, Tarrant, McLennan, Travis, Nueces, El Paso and Lubbock counties would have to be divided into individual districts.

The two remaining multi-member districts, Galveston and Hidalgo counties, were not declared unconstitutional by the court, Hill said.

Porter Charged With Lying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert L. Porter, a former official of President Nixon's re-election committee. today was charged by the special Watergate prosecutor with lying to the FBI about the Watergate break-in.

Porter's attorney, Charles B. Murray, said his client intends to plead guilty.

Porter, 35, waived his right to have his case submitted to a grand jury.

Porter, former scheduling director for the re-election committee, told the Senate Watergate Committee last summer that he had lied to the FBI, the federal grand jury and at the original Watergate trial.

The federal charge says that on July 19, 1972, Porter "did knowingly and willfully, make false, fictitious and fraudulent statements and representations to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

The charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Meanwhile, it also was learned that the prosecutor's office has begun submitting information about the Watergate tapes to the federal grand jury empaneled last Jan. 7.

The Watergate committee is expected to decide this week whether to hold further public hearings.

Pregnancy Rule Is Struck Down

By VERNON A. GUIDRY Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down rules that force pregnant school teachers off the job regardless of their individual ability to continue work.

The 7 to 2 decision represented a victory for advocates of equal rights for women.

In other action today, the court:

—Ruled that the San Francisco school system illegally discriminates against non-English speaking Chinese students by failing to help them surmount the language handicap.

—Agreed to decide whether prison authorities must guarantee inmates legal representation in disciplinary hearings.

—Dismissed a challenge to the constitutionality of Florida's requirement that prospective voters take a loyalty oath.

—Agreed to review a lower court decision barring Colorado inspectors from conducting air pollution tests on the premises of private companies. Eleven other states joined Colorado in saying the decision would cripple their air pollution control laws.

The pregnancy case involved rules from school systems in Ohio and Virginia which forced pregnant school teachers to leave the classroom at the fourth and fifth months of their pregnancy, respectively.

The majority concluded "that neither the necessity for continuity of instruction nor the state interest in keeping physically unfit teachers out of the classroom can justify the sweeping mandatory leave regulations that the Cleveland and Chesterfield County (Va.) school boards have adopted."

One question in the case was whether the rule on pregnancy constituted an impermissable classification on the basis of sex.

Low Speed Cuts Violence Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas counted far fewer violent deaths than usual during the weekend, and the state's drastically lowered speed limit appeared due much of the credit—at least for an almost startling drop in the number of traffic fatalities.

The toll stood at 16 this morning and only four of those occurred in automobile accidents.

There also were five homicides, and deaths from assorted other causes accounted for the rest of those killed between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

Speed limits on all thoroughfares dropped to 55 miles per hour at 12:01 a.m. Sunday under a new law prompted by fuel shortages. Reduced numbers of traffic deaths have been credited to similar moves taken previously by some other states.

These were among the victims:

Johnnie Clyde Pharr, 24, a Ft. Hood soldier, was killed Saturday in a Killeen suburb in a two-car collision. Four other persons suffered injuries.

Leonard Quattrochi, 43, of Irving drowned Sunday night after diving off a Galveston pier to hunt for his wallet in the Gulf of Mexico. The body was found about nine blocks down the beach.

Scaffolding collapsed while Jimmy C. Callaway, 27, and James E. Davin, 49, were working as painters Sunday outside the new Citizen's State Bank in the Dallas suburb of Richardson, and both plunged 11 floors to death.

Police reported Rosetta Jordan, 21, fully clothed, was found dead Sunday in a bath tub of hot water in her Houston apartment. They said there was no sign of a struggle.

A car struck and killed James T. Stubblefield, 32, of Lufkin about five miles east of that East Texas city on Texas 103 Sunday.

Register For Draft By Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning this month, some young men will be able to register for the military draft by mail rather than have to appear in person at a Selective Service office.

Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone said the new system is designed only for youths who cannot conveniently register in person because their local board has been combined with others at a distant place for economy and efficiency.

The mail-in system was tested in selected areas of the states of Michigan, North Carolina, Florida and Washington and proved successful, Selective Service said.

Under the new nationwide program, the mail-in registration forms are issued to state draft directors, who distribute them to local draft boards to stamp with their return addresses. The forms and advertising posters then are placed in public locations frequented by young men and their families.

The posters carry a reminder that, despite the fact the armed forces no longer are drafting, youths still are required by law to register with Selective Service within 30 days before or after their 18th birthdays.

Johnny's too young to choose own religion

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am Jewish and my husband is Lutheran, but it has not hurt our marriage. [We were married in a civil ceremony.] Our daughter, Jennie, who is ten, goes to the Jewish Sunday school and is being raised in the Jewish faith. Our son, Johnny is seven. He was baptized Lutheran and goes to Lutheran Sunday school.

Jennie gets a present every day for seven days because she celebrates Hanukah, which comes just before Christmas. Johnny gets only one present at Christmastime. You probably know the problem: Now Johnny wants to be Jewish.

My husband is upset with Johnny, and has even had the pastor talk to him, but Johnny still wants to be Jewish.

My question: Do you think a seven-year-old child should be permitted to choose his own religion? My husband and I disagree. A HOUSE DIVIDED

DEAR DIVIDED: Would you let Johnny choose his own bedtime? Would you let your seven-year-old quit school if he wanted to?

Then in a matter as serious as religion how can a seven-year-old be expected to make an intelligent choice? One who bases his choice of religion on which one will net him the most presents is truly childish—but then he's only seven, so who can blame him?

DEAR ABBY: Gary and I went steady for two years, and on Christmas Day he gave me a diamond and officially announced our engagement. [I'm 21 and Gary is 24.]

My parents have always liked Gary, and I know they weren't surprised, but they are very much upset because—are you ready for this?—Gary didn't ask my father for my hand!

Abby, it would have been only a formality, and actually it never crossed Gary's mind or mine. I think since my parents felt so strongly about this they should have told me so I could have tipped Gary off. He'd have gone thru the whole bit just to make them happy.

Does a man still ask the father for his daughter's hand? Or is it an old-fashioned out-dated custom?

NOT ASKED FOR

DEAR NOT: Some still do. Altho it's only a formality, the man who asks a girl's father for her hand is sure to start down the aisle on the right foot.

DEAR ABBY: Cindy, my 12-year-old daughter, said Joy, her best friend, asked her what she got from her godparents for Christmas, and Cindy was ashamed because she didn't even know who her godparents were.

Cindy said Joy described all the lovely gifts her godparents had given her for other occasions and Joy also said godparents are SUPPOSED to give their godchild gifts for Christmas, Easter, and birthdays!

Now Cindy feels cheated and hurt, and wants to know how come her godparents never send her gifts. What shall I tell her? CINDY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell her that technically godparents are responsible only for looking after the godchild in the event that the natural parents are unable to. And that gift-giving always is optional—never mandatory.

Two Held On Drug Charges

City Police arrested Robert Collett of Tye and Cynthia Suzann Baird of Abilene at the Sundown Club about 1 o'clock Sunday morning in connection with drug offenses.

Collett, who was a member of a band that played at the club, was charged in county court with illegal possession of marijuana and carrying a prohibited weapon and in Justice of the Peace Court with delivery of dangerous drugs. Bond was set at $1,000 on each charge, and he was remanded to jail in lieu of bond.

Meeting Set For Graduate Level Course

A meeting has been scheduled at 6 o'clock this evening for teachers interested in enrolling for a graduate level course on working with exceptional children.

This course is one of several to be offered by Sul Ross State University at Western Texas College this spring. Prospective students are to meet at the WTC Learning Resource Center.

Johnny Creager of Colorado City, an educational diagnostician, has been selected by Sul Ross to teach the course. Creager has been in Colorado City for the past two years and is helping develop a program for retarded children served by the Colorado City, Loraine, and Westbrook schools.

Creager has studied at West Texas State University, North Texas State University, Texas Women's University, and Abilene Christian College, and has seven years teaching experience. He has worked with physically handicapped children and children with learning disabilities, and is active in the program of the Association for Retarded Children.

It is important that prospective students attend tonight's meeting, since a minimum of 10 persons are necessary to form a graduate level class. It is possible that the course might also be offered for undergraduate students if there are enough students to fill the class.

STUDENTS LICK TWO PROBLEMS—While other students struggle to free their snow-trapped automobiles at left, two Jefferson county high school students at Reynoldsville, Pa., have solved two current problems--the gasoline crunch and the weather. Dennis Zimmerman, left, and Mark Hofstetter, junior class students, use snowmobiles to commute over snow-covered fields from their homes five miles away. They both travel more than eight miles over the fields and while it takes longer, they say they use only a fourth as much gasoline and the dangers of snow-clogged, icy roads doesn't face them. County Commissioners opened bids from two firms this morning for repairs to the swimming pool in Towel Park, and both bids were higher than previous estimates by the architect.

The bids were $148,830 from Cardinal A.T. Pool of Arlington and $88,486.11 from B. J. Parr of Dallas.

The architect, Dick Turley of Clifford Carson Associates of Waco had estimated the repairs at $80,000. Commissioners turned the bids over to him for further study.

The county is planning repairs to the filtering system and to the sides and bottom of the swimming pool.

In other action, Commissioners tabled for further study a request from the county airport board for remodelling of the pilot's lounge at Winston Field. The request was made by a delegation from the airport board this morning. Their spokesman was John Thomas.

US Planes Over Islands Today

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese twice asked the United States 7th Fleet to intervene in the battle with the Chinese for the Paracel Islands but were turned down, official South Vietnamese sources said today.

But the informants said that U.S. planes flew reconnaissance missions over the islands today at the request of the South Vietnamese government.

The sources said an American civilian was missing on one of the islands, which were overrun by Chinese forces Sunday. He was not immediately identified, but the informants said he was a former U.S. Marine officer.

The South Vietnamese government has conceded military victory to China in their dispute over the Paracels, and called for an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council to plead its case.

Foreign Minister Vuong Van Bac sent Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim a note asking that the matter be put before the council. Nguyen Huu Chi, South Vietnam's observer at U.N. headquarters in New York, arranged a meeting with Gonzalo Facio of Costa Rica, the council president for January.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry in a statement said, "due punishment" had been meted out to Vietnamese forces sent to "invade" the Paracels, which the statement said "have always been China's territory."

"The personnel of the other side whom we have captured in the fight for self-defense will be repatriated at an appropriate time," the statement said. It did not say how many were captured.

The Saigon military command said a Chinese amphibious force of about 500 men seized the last of the disputed coral islands in the South China Sea on Sunday, overrunning 150 South Vietnamese troops after a two-day air, sea and ground battle.

"It seems the battle is finished. For the time being, we are no longer taking any action to defend the islands," Saigon's chief military spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, said. Hien claimed that eight Chinese and South Vietnamese navy ships were sunk or damaged in the battle and more than 225 South Vietnamese soldiers and sailors are missing.

He said one Vietnamese patrol craft was sunk by radar-guided missiles and the fate of the 82 crewmen was not known. One destroyer, one cutter and another patrol craft suffered light to moderate damage and returned to Da Nang on Sunday, he reported.

Hien said 11 South Vietnamese were known killed, 35 were wounded, and the 150 troops who were overrun are missing.

Two Chinese patrol craft, each with a crews of 50 to 60 men, were sunk and two others were heavily damaged, Hien claimed.

Scurry County Cancer Society Begins Drive

On January 14, the regular meeting of the American Cancer Society was called to order by Buford Browning, vice-president. The meeting was held in the WTC cafeteria. Fifteen members were present. The invocation was given by Dr. James E. Tulley. The past minutes of November were read and approved.

John Barnes of District 16, Abilene, delivered a challenge from the Nolan County A. C. S. to Scurry Co. as to which would be more successful in raising their 1974 quota of $11,400.00 each. The challenge was accepted by the Scurry County Unit in behalf of Scurry County citizens.

It was stated that after the yearly Cancer Crusades ending in April, that more suspects were found in April and May than all the other ten months of the year. Percent wise, four lives will be saved in Scurry County from reading the literature given out during the Crusades.

The District American Cancer Society will meet from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. January 26 at the Hilton Inn at Abilene with the public welcome.

Pat Pierce reported that pamphlets had been distributed in the Snyder clinic, the Nursing Hoffes annd the Hospital containing information on cancer.

$270.00 had been given in Memorials for November and December as given by Memorial Fund Chairman, H. W. Cargile. The American Cancer Society Scurry Co. memorial telephone number is 573-5441,, located at the West Texas Bank.

Dr. Tulley is running a cancer film on each first Monday at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 12.

ON THE HOUSE

Metals which contain iron are subject to rust. Commercially made metal products sold to the general public are coated with some kind of rust-inhibiting material, but when even a tiny portion of this coating wears off or is knocked off, rust takes over.

It is because rust spreads that it is necessary to take immediate action to remove or control it. A piece of outdoor metal furniture, for instance, may have developed a bare spot no larger than a dime. Ignore it and it will become rusty. Continue to ignore it and it will spread even if the remainder of the object is completely painted. That's because rust moves underneath the paint until it gets such a secure hold that it dislodges the outer coating.

To prevent rust, therefore, it is essential that metal be covered with some substance that prevents air and moisture from attacking it. These coatings can be paint, oils, primers, waxes, silicones, greases, varnishes, lacquers and at least a dozen other products. Once any part of that coating is no longer there, it should be replaced at once. And that doesn't mean the next day, since even a few hours can permit rust to take hold, especially outdoors in damp weather.

Once rust has made an appearance, it should be removed quickly. This can be done with steel wool, emery cloth or any abrasive, used alone or in conjunction with one of the many rust-removing liquids and jellies on the market. Since these latter products are chemicals, it is important that they be used exactly according to instructions on the containers.

Where possible, it is best to get down to the bare metal before repainting or recoating. Sometimes this is not practical, in which case all loose rust particles should be removed, preferably with a wire brush. After that, use one of the rust-inhibiting primers and then a rust-inhibiting paint made by the same manufacturer. These paints now come in various colors.

Applying powdered graphite or a similar product to the inner workings of an outdoor lock will prevent rust as well as keeping the mechanism in good shape. This can be done by blowing graphite into the lock from a squeeze container. Oiling the lock is not generally recommended because of the possibility that it may become gummy and sticky when it dries.

Ira P.T.A. Discusses Education

The Ira P. T. A. unit met in the High School Study Hall, Thursday at 4 p.m. There were 14 present for the meeting.

Mrs. Billy Calley, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Mildred McBeth gave the devotional.

The unit voted to give the Ira F. F. A. $50.00 to be used for prize money for the local stock show.

Reports were given on sickroom linens, cuptowels and Christmas bags.

A nominating committee of Mrs. J. L. Byars, Mrs. Leon Sterling and Mrs. Welden Wiggins was selected.

Fourth grade won the room count with 23 percent.

The program consisted of a group discussion led by Mrs. J. L. Byars on the question, "How Much Importance Should We Place on Continuing Education?"

Using a little cooking fat or oil in a teflon skillet isn't of course necessary, but the food cooked in the skillet has improved color and flavor if a little fat or oil is used.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—In our last column, we discussed some points to remember when having a fireplace added to a home. Once the fireplace is built, the next step is purchasing wood to burn in it.

Assistants in the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division say just as there are things to keep in mind when building a fireplace, there are also things to consider when buying wood.

The most important one is to find a dependable firewood dealer.

The majority of firewood dealers are individuals who have been in business for years. They supply good quality wood and depend on satisfied customers for repeat orders.

But, although most consumers in the market for firewood never experience any difficulty, there are some who have been burned by a few unscrupulous dealers.

The most common complaints to our Consumer Protection Division are that a dealer has either delivered less wood than expected or that he has charged more than the agreed-upon price.

The best way to be sure you will get the amount of wood you want is to buy by the cord, the standard unit by which wood is sold. A cord of wood contains 128 cubic feet, and measurements for a cord are usually either 4x4x8 feet or 2x4x16 feet.

The easiest way to measure the wood you buy is to mark off a correctly sized space by the side of a house or a fence and be sure the wood when delivered fills up the area.

Some consumers have complained about ordering firewood from dealers based on a quoted price per cord, only to have extra charges added on for both delivery of the wood and for stacking it.

It's important to establish in advance what the total price will include. Unless you plan to measure and pick up your wood, it is better to have it stacked when delivered to be sure you are getting the full amount.

Some dealers advertise firewood for very inexpensive prices. It often turns out that they are selling wood by the pick-up truck load or by some unit other than a cord. Since pick-up beds can vary greatly, this is a risky way to purchase wood. It's far safer to order wood by the cord, and know the amount you will receive.

Occasionally, firewood purchasers will pay in advance, or will pay in full when only a portion of a firewood order has been delivered, trusting that the complete order will be delivered later.

This is not always wise, as one of the attorneys in our office discovered when the rest of his load never arrived. It would be shrewder to pay after delivery of all the wood, or at least to withhold a significant portion of the total amount until you get what you have ordered.

The type of wood you buy is as important as the amount and should be determined before you buy. In Texas, oak is the most popular firewood for several reasons. It is a very hard wood that burns slowly, it comes in all sizes of logs, and it also has a decorative, rough bark that many people like.

Mesquite is also suitable for firewood, being hard and fairly low-burning. Any other hardwood is fine, too, but such woods as hickory and walnut, which once were in common use in East Texas, are considered too scarce and expensive for use today.

Soft woods such as pine and cedar should be avoided for firewood, but are often used as kindling since they burn hot and fast.

Investigate carefully before buying unusual woods at "special bargain" prices. Some nurseries occasionally offer firewood at very low prices, but it's best to find out exactly what kind of wood will be included.

In addition, some trees that are decorative and useful in the yard may become very objectionable when used in the house for firewood because they produce peculiar odors when burned.

The age of the wood you buy is also very important. Wood that has dried out over several months or even years is usually perferred, although some people do mix in a little green wood.

Amount, price, type, and age—if you determine these four things before purchasing your firewood you probably will have no problem.

If you do have a complaint, consult the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Probe Wreck

CHILDRESS, Tex. (AP) — Railroad officials sought clues today to what caused a $3 million derailment of most of an 80-car freight train that lost a big cargo of cotton, cottonseed oil and fertilizer near here.

Sixty-two cars of the Burlington-Northern freight flipped off the tracks, 20 miles south of here, early Sunday, sparking a fire which roared out of control through most of the day. No injuries were reported.

The freight carried cargo from Lubbock to Wichita Falls when the pre-dawn accident occurred.

ABOUT NIXON AND IMPEACHMENT—Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, sits at his desk as he talks with newsmen in Washington. Mills said he thinks President Nixon should consider resigning if Congress reaches the point of full fledged impeachment proceedings against him. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Urge Check On Property Values

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Research League today suggested a spot-check method, which it acknowledged was imperfect, for estimating true property values in school districts.

It made its report to the Legislative Property Tax Committee, which Gov. Dolph Briscoe has asked to develop market values of real estate as the first step toward reforming the state's system for financing public education.

The league recommended the use of small samples of real estate for which recent sale prices or appraised values could be obtained. These values would be compared with the values at which the property is currently assessed for taxation in order to obtain a ratio. Total assessed values then would be divided by the ratio to obtain the estimated market value of all taxable real estate in the district.

For instance, if a sample of property with an assessed value of $100,000 were found to have a true market value of $300,000, the district's assessment ratio would be 33.3 per cent.

Dividing the district's total assessed value of $10 million by that radio would produce $30 million as the estimated market value.

"This is no sense an 'ideal' plan," but one that was dictated by the January 1975 deadline imposed by Briscoe and the limited money available to the committee, said league director Jim McGrew.

He said one problem would be obtaining accurate information from professional appraisers.

"Its disclosure to competitors could seriously affect their competitive position in bidding on appraisal contracts with local taxing jurisdictions," McGrew said. He suggested the committee ask Atty. Gen. John Hill for a legal opinion on whether such information could be held in confidence without violating the new Texas Open Records Act.

Tigers, P'View Tangle Tuesday

Snyder's Tigers will have their hands full when they host the Plainview Bulldogs at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Scurry County Coliseum in another District 4-AAAA basketball tilt. The program begins at 4 p.m. with the sophomores playing, followed by the junior vasity contest at 5:45 p.m.

Both the Tigers and Bulldogs opened their district slates with victories last week. Snyder put down Lubbock High 70-55 while Plainview was upsetting preseason district favorite Lubbock Coronado, 61-53, in overtime. For the season, the Tigers are 8-14 while Plainview is 12-13.

"They've got a big team," declared Tiger Coach Bob Moore. He said they have five boys who stand about 6-5.

Probable starters for Plainview include guards Jerry Wade, 6-0 junior, and Steve Horn, 6-2 senior; center Mark Mangrum, 6-5 senior; and post men Danny Huffhines, 6-5 junior, and Doug Berry, 6-5 senior. Huffhine was the outstanding sophomore in the district last season.

Coach Moore said he again will go with a triple post attack. Welton Cobb, 6-0 junior, Larry Johns, 6-2 junior, and Roy Lee Carter, 6-2 junior, will be at post with Tim Jones, 5-8 senior, and Chester Cobb, 5-11 sophomore, at guard.

TEXAS, TCU PULL UPSETS

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

If there's one thing more confusing than trying to figure out what the price of gasoline is going to be next month, it's the Southwest Conference basketball race and the season is only one week old.

Texas, beaten in 11 out of 12 of its non-conference games, shares the lead with Texas Tech. Should both teams escape unscathed Tuesday night, they will meet Saturday afternoon in Austin in a regionally televised shootout of SWC unbeatens.

But don't bet a tank of gas on it because who would have thought that Texas would upset SMU 87-82 or that Texas Christian would come back from one of its worst beatings in history to bushwhack Texas A&M 88-72 Saturday night?

Tech, playing in the comfort of its home gymnasium, mauled Baylor 78-59 Saturday night and the Arkansas-Rice game was postponed until Sunday because of a power failure in Autry Gym in Houston Saturday afternoon.

The Owls finally beat the Razorbacks 77-69.

Texas surrendered 37 points to SMU's Ira Terrell but held the rest of the team to 10 or less in taking the hard-earned road victory.

Texas Coach Leon Black was particularly proud of the way the Longhorn defense put the clamps on the Mustangs in the second half after trailing 52-46 at halftime.

Black explained that Terrell is going to score his points but added "I thought we did a good job of keeping the ball away from him in the second half. If we hadn't, he might have gotten 50 points."

Again, the pre-season favorite Mustangs had the second half sags. SMU crumbled Tuesday night in the second half against A&M.

SMU Coach Bob Prewitt said, "We just can't play a whole game. We went flat in the second half similar to what we did against A&M."

SMU has lost ace forward Sammy Hervey to the grade book and Prewitt, operating on the last year of his contract, is under fire from some sectors of the SMU alumni.

TCU won the "true grit" award of the week. The Horned Frogs were dismembered 104-53 by Texas in Austin Tuesday night. The Horned Frogs hopped right back into the title picture by somehow whipping the Aggies although the visitors had the rebound edge 70-54.

Herb Stephens, who didn't play against Texas because of a gimpy knee, sparked the Horned Frogs. The 26-year-old senior scored 14 points and led the TCU floor game.

Coach Johnny Swaim praised his underdog Frogs, saying "I have never had a team that deserved to win more than this one."

Tech outscored Baylor 42-26 in the second half before the home folks in Lubbock.

Tech Coach Gerald Myers said "It was one of our better halves defensively this year."

Travis 8th Wins At Abilene

ABILENE—Travis 8th grade won the basketball tournament here over the weekend.

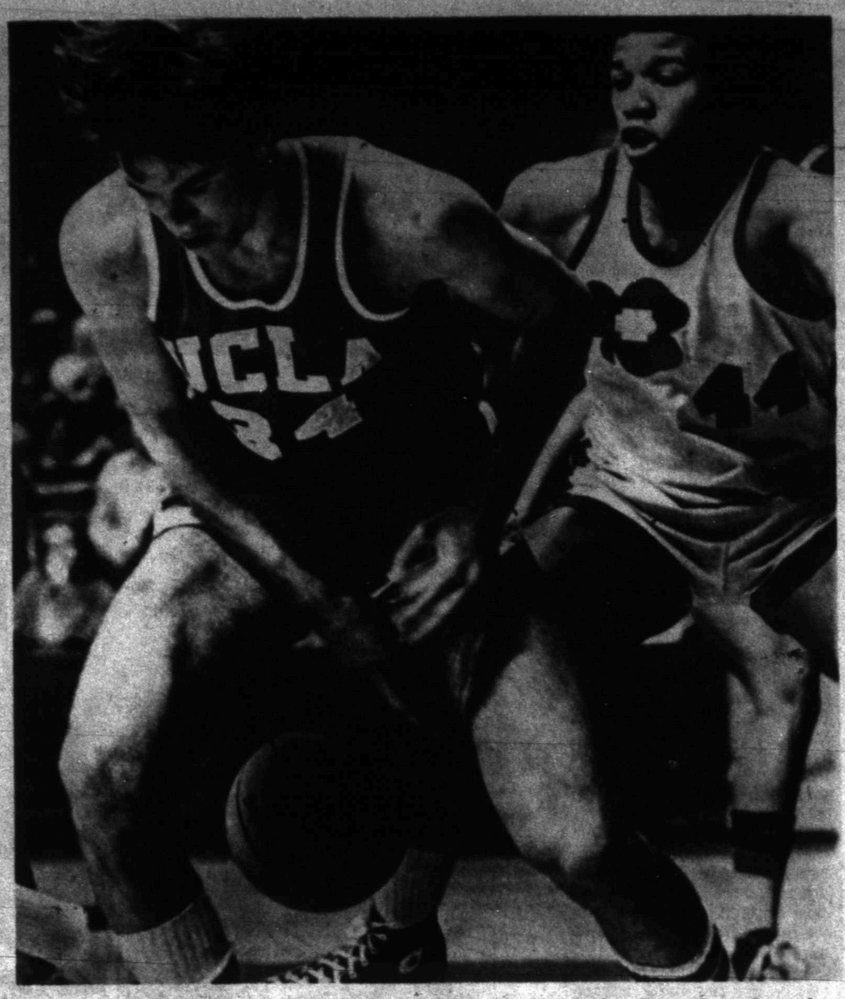

Travis won three games, beating Abilene Madison 67-28, putting down Abilene Mann 42-41, and besting Abilene Jefferson 57-56 in the finals.

In the first game against Madison, Travis took a 10-4 lead in the first quarter and easily breezed to victory. Alvin Ollision tallied 24 points, Lucious Jeffery scored 12 while Tony Cobb and Richard Willis put in 11 each. Bailey was high point man for Madison with 8 points.

Travis led Mann 10-6 after one quarter and 24-19 at halftime, but fell behind 30-32 in the third quarter before rallying for the victory in the last stanza. Richard Willis was high point man with 12 points while Pierce led Mann with 14 points.

In the finals against Jefferson, Travis trailed 19-22 after one quarter, but went ahead 36-28 at halftime and 46-32 after three frames. Jefferson rallied in the fourth quarter, pulling within one point, but the defifict was just too much to overcome. Tony Cobb and Lucious Jefferson were high point men with 16 and 13 respectively. Bradford put in 14 for Jefferson

Irish Victory Healthy For Basketball—Phelps

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps called the victory a "healthy win for college basketball," but UCLA's Johnny Wooden had to disagree.

"I'm sure a lot of people around the country were rooting for Notre Dame. It's only human nature to want to see the Bruins beaten," said Phelps, whose Irish team broke UCLA's 88-game winning streak with a 71-70 victory Saturday.

The Bruin coach, while playing down the importance of the streak, disputed Phelps' interpretation of the victory.

"If losing the streak was good for college basketball, I think you'd have to say having the streak was bad," said Wooden. "I think it's been one of the greatest things college basketball ever had."

Notre Dame, 10-0 on the season, scored 12 straight points in the final 3:30 to overcome a 70-59 deficit the last two points coming on a 18-foot jumper by Dwigh. Clay with 28 seconds left.

In other action involving the Top 10, third-ranked North Carolina State had an easy time with North Carolina-Charlotte 104-72; No. 4 Maryland beat Navy 72-50; No. 5 North Carolina squeezed by Duke 73?1; No. 6 Marquette beat Fordham 90-74; No. 7 Providence defeated St. Joseph's, Pa., 67-62; eighth-ranked Vanderbilt trounced Auburn 96-51; and No. 10 Alabama edged Louisiana State 80-79 in overtime.

UCLA will have a chance to get even, when the Irish travel to the Bruins' Pauley Pavilion Saturday night where the defending national champions have not lost since a March 6, 1970 defeat by Southern California.

Maryland shook off an early 21-20 lead by Navy, going on an 18-point spree to wrap up their game. Tom McMillen scored 27 points to pace the Terps.

Lloyd Walton and reserve Rick Campbell sparked Marquette, which won its 14th victory in 15 games. Walton scored all of his 15 points in the second half, while Campbell finished with 17 points.

Reserve Joe Hassett helped Providence, scoring eight points in the final 10 minutes of the first half of Providence's game with St. Joseph's, Pa. The freshman also rallied his team with two quick buckets when he came back into the lineup in the second half after St. Joseph's had closed to 45-34.

Sophomores Jeff Fosnes and Joe Ford combined for 34 points as Vanderbilt extended its home court winning streak to 15 games. The Commodores overwhelmed Auburn, hitting 58.2 per cent from the field and opening up a lead of 47 points twice during the ballgame.

Alabama's Charlie Russell played the role of "Mr. Clutch", hitting five free throws in overtime, and enabling the Tide to hold down its share of the Southeastern Conference lead. LSU had its home court win streak ended at 13 games.

In other top-ranked games, 11th-ranked South Carolina defeated Pennsylvania 67-57 after staving off a second-half Quaker surge; and No. 12 Indiana beat Iowa 55-51 after rallying from a 48-42 deficit by holding the Hawkeyes to three points during the final 6¾ minutes.

Michigan, No. 14, scored a dramatic 84-82 victory over Michigan State as C.J. Kupec scored with one second remaining. Kupek's 20-footer came seconds after Tom McGill missed a free throw and Michigan got the rebound to set up the winning basket.

New Mexico, slumping badly after a good early season effort, lost 78-71 to Texas-El Paso. It was the No. 15 Lobos' third straight Western Athletic Conference loss and came after Gus Bailey had tallied 19 points for the winners.

Junior Bridgeman fired in 25 points to give Louisville a 94-81 victory over Memphis State. The lead changed hands 12 times in the first half before No. 16 Louisville pulled out to a 48-40 lead at halftime.

Kansas State held off a a comeback attempt by No. 18 Missouri to win 70-67 as guard Len Kruger scored 20 points. Kansas State's zone defense held the Tigers scoreless the first few minutes of the second half, allowing the Wildcats to build a 16-point lead.

No. 19 Wisconsin, with Kim Hughes scoring 22 points, defeated Illinois 101-75, while No. 20 Cincinnati swamped Fairleigh Dickinson 96-70.

AFC Wins On Five Yepremian Field Goals

Garo, a native of Cyprus who didn't go to college, may have the most educated foot in the National Football League. For four years now, Yepremian has helped the world champion Miami Dolphins to victory after victory.

Yepremian's foot did it again Sunday except this time it was for the American Conference. Yepremian's five field goals, the winning one a 42-yarder with 21 seconds remaining, set a Pro Bowl record and gave the AFC a 15-13 triumph over the National Conference in a game that started with 14 first-half turnovers and ended as a cliffhanger.

Prior to his game-decider, Yepremian booted field goals of 16, 37, 27 and 41 yards. He broke the record of four kicked in 1972 by Kansas City's Jan Stenerud.

With his left foot plunged into ice, the bald Yepremian said afterward, "I had to come through for the rest of the guys. The money did not mean anything. Most of the extra $500 the winners get goes for taxes anyway.

"When I went out for that last one, I said a little prayer and asked God to help me once more. He kept me in there again."

Yepremian, helped from the field after a nullified 22-yard field goal in the third quarter when he was hit by Mel Renfro of Dallas, was voted the game's most valuable player. After an offside penalty erased that kick, Yepremian returned and made good on the 27-yarder.

"There was pain after each of the kicks after I got hurt," said Yepremian, "but I'm an athlete, and I can stand pain as much as any athlete."

Nick Mike-Mayer, the Atlanta placekicker, had given the NFC, loser of three consecutive Pro Bowl games, a 13-12 advantage with 1:41 to go with a 21-yard field goal, set up by a recovery of O. J. Simpson's fumble by Jack Youngblood of Los Angeles at the AFC 37.

Mike-Mayer, after Yepremian staked the AFC to a 3-0 first quarter lead, deadlocked the game in the second period with a 27-yarder.

The NFC added the contest's lone touchdown before the half ended, Roman Gabriel of Philadelphia throwing a 14-yard strike to Larry McCutcheon of Los Angeles. The NFC led at the half 10-6.

Oakland's Ken Stabler, who quarterbacked the AFC the entire first half, had a miserable afternoon. He threw four interceptions, completed only two of 15 passes for 19 yards. The NFC's four thefts broke the old mark of three set by the AFC in 1972.

Bob Griese, the Miami quarterback who guided the Dolphins to their smashing 24-7 Super Bowl victory over Minnesota a week earlier, received a wild ovation from the crowd of 51,484 when he took over at the start of the second half.

The Air Force Academy in Colorado is playing its 18th basketball season.

Weather Hampers Horse Races

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Narragansett Park, which has lost six of 12 racing dates in the annual winter duel with Old Man Winter, hoped today to resume its 1974 throughbred meeting.

Jockeys refused to ride in the last four races because of hazardous track conditions last Thursday. The frozen strip also forced cancellation of cards Friday and Saturday.

Today's Problems Will Influence Future Society

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Underlying a good many of the business and economic news developments today, and bound also to influence the future of industrial society, are these factors:

—Shortages of commodities. The energy shortage is only the nucleus of the comet; it has a long, long tail. Rising demand throughout the world inevitably will place strains on the supplies of commodities.

These pressures already are showing up in national policies and prices. Realizing their power, the less developed commodity producing nations are raising prices and developing policies of restrained usage.

Argus Research Corp., which supplies much of the basic research used by the investment community, gives several reasons why demand isn't likely to decline, as some businessmen have been hoping.

First of these is the new awareness by the commodity producing nations of the power they have in a world economy in which demand outstrips supply.

Accelerating living standards throughout the world, including the less developed nations, is steadily adding to pressures on supply. So is population growth and mix.

Communist nations of Europe and elsewhere are now emphasizing consumption, after years of building their productive capacity. China, the most populous nation of all, is about to add enormously to the strain on supplies.

And throughout much of the world the population mix is changing, with the biggest growth occurring in the 25-to-39 age group, which is where consumption is heaviest. In the United States that group grew by only 500,000 during the 1950s. In the 1970s it may grow by 15 million.

—The problem of raising productivity without making work meaningless. The way the world knows best to raise output per man-hour is to mechanize and mass produce. But in so doing it forces millions into dull, unrewarding jobs.

Consequences of this show up in complaints about quality, in absenteeism and in poor worker attitudes, all of which reduce productivity and eventually or immediately lower the competitiveness of products.

—With big government monitoring big business more closely than has been the tradition in the United States, who monitors big government?

A good example was provided recently by a U.S. Chamber of Commerce publication, "Washington Report." Last September it commented:

"With little fanfare, the federal government has completely ignored its own 5.5 per cent average wage increase guidelines while the rest of us have been forced to live under the rules imposed by the federal establishment.

"... last year average pay for all federal military and civilian employes increased by 12.8 per cent, which is more than twice the 5.5 per cent guidelines that the federal wage administrators have called for. Included in this is an average increase of 10.7 per cent for employes of government enterprises."

Auction Day Brings The Amish

MIDDLEFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Mondays are auction days here — quiet community holidays for the rugged Amish farmers who surround this tiny village in Ohio's Geauga County hill country.

Even before the sales get under way, the horse-drawn buggies and wagons dot the narrow roads around Middlefield, slowing the motorized bustle of the 20th century to the bucolic, plodding gait of the Amish.

Auction days are as old as farmers, but when Martha Givan and her husband, Tom, bought the Geauga Livestock Commission in Middlefield 13 years ago, they figured it wouldn't be long until sprawling Cleveland and its suburbs put the weekly salesbarn out of business.

"We thought that 10 more years and we'd have no more farms," Mrs. Givan said. "We figured we'd have to convert the building to something else."

They hadn't counted on the tenacity of the Amish. Thirteen years later, the sales are still going strong.

There have been some changes. The flea market outside the salesbarn has doubled and redoubled in size, and pale-skinned tourists poke through the merchandise alongside tawny Amish.

Antiques — "junk" to the locals — are the major attractions, although there's an odd assortment of trinket stands, and — on the right Monday — a bookseller sets up his pornographic books and magazine stands.

The auction handles up to 300 head of livestock on an average Monday, although the total rises and falls according to its own market rules.

"Sometimes a farmer will break a leg, and he won't be able to take care of his animals, and he'll bring in his whole farm," Mrs. Givan said. "Sometimes we've peddled an entire dairy herd."

The interest around the auction ring perks visibly in the late afternoon, when the day's quota of horses is led in, sometimes in teams. But lines are already forming at the business office, and trucks as well as horse-drawn wagons are backing up to the rear of the barn to load newly-purchased stock.

The coffee and hamburger crowd in the cafeteria — which often brings in more revenue than the livestock commissions — begins to dwindle, and the flea market outside is gradually dismantled.

"A lot of these farmers are just looking for a place to go," Mrs. Givan says, sipping tea at a cafeteria table. "I guess it's like church or something."

Bulldozer Missing

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Where do you hide a yellow bulldozer that's "as big as a house?"

That's what officials of Industrial Contractors and Developers and local police would like to know after a fruitless, two-week search for the $70,000, 40-ton yellow bulldozer that was stolen from a shopping center construction site.

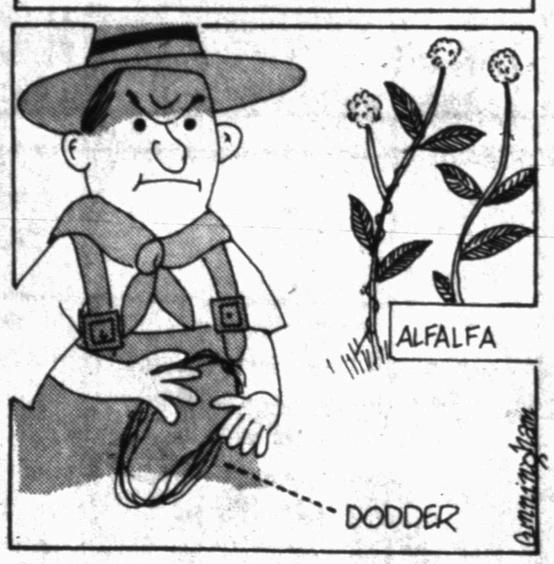

The company has offered a no-questions-asked $5,000 reward for the uninsured bulldozer.

"All we want is the machine back," said a company official.

Junior Editors' Quiz on DODDERS

QUESTION: What is a dodder?

ANSWER: A dodder is a common leafless parasitic vine that resembles bright orange threads. It is a destructive weed found in Europe and in many parts of the United States and is a member of the same botanical family as the morning glory, moon flower, sweet potato and others.

Dodders, also called love vines, strangle weed, gold thread, devil's hair and hell bind, are plants without chlorophyll. They grow from seed, then twine around some other plant, attached by little suckers, taking their food from the host plant. Dodders feed on wild and cultivated plants. They are especially menacing to clover, alfalfa and flax. They seem to have little appetitie for ornamentals in the garden.

The flowers of the dodder – small white, pink or yellow — appear in clusters from early June to the end of the growing season. The seeds, ripening from July until frost, are abundant and often mingle with the seeds of alfalfa or clover. Farmers cut and burn dodder plants when they first appear in the spring, but they are hard to eradicate.

BOOK FULFILLS DUTY

Author Ready For Anything

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, denounced as a traitor by Soviet authorities for his book "Gulag Archipelago," said today the book has fulfilled his duty to the dead.

He said he and his family are "ready for anything."

In written answers to questions submitted to him by Western newsmen, the Nobel prize-winning author refused to speculate on what the Kremlin might do to him for smuggling his history of Soviet labor camps out of Russia for publication abroad.

"I am not going to make predictions," he said. "I and my family are ready for anything. I have fulfilled my duty to the dead. It gives me relief and tranquility.

"This truth was doomed to die. It was being downtrodden, was being drowned, burned, ground to ashes. But look, it has survived, it lives, it has been printed — and nobody ever will be able to wipe it out."

Solzhenitsyn disputed charges that the book has harmed detente between the Soviet Union and the West. It is "not he who tells about committed crimes who brings harm to peace and to good relations among people and peoples, but he who committed or is committing them," he said.

He also replied to historian Roy A. Medvedev, another member of the dissident movement, who wrote that reform could only come from inside the Soviet Union and criticized him and physicist Andrei Sakharov for their appeals to foreign opinion.

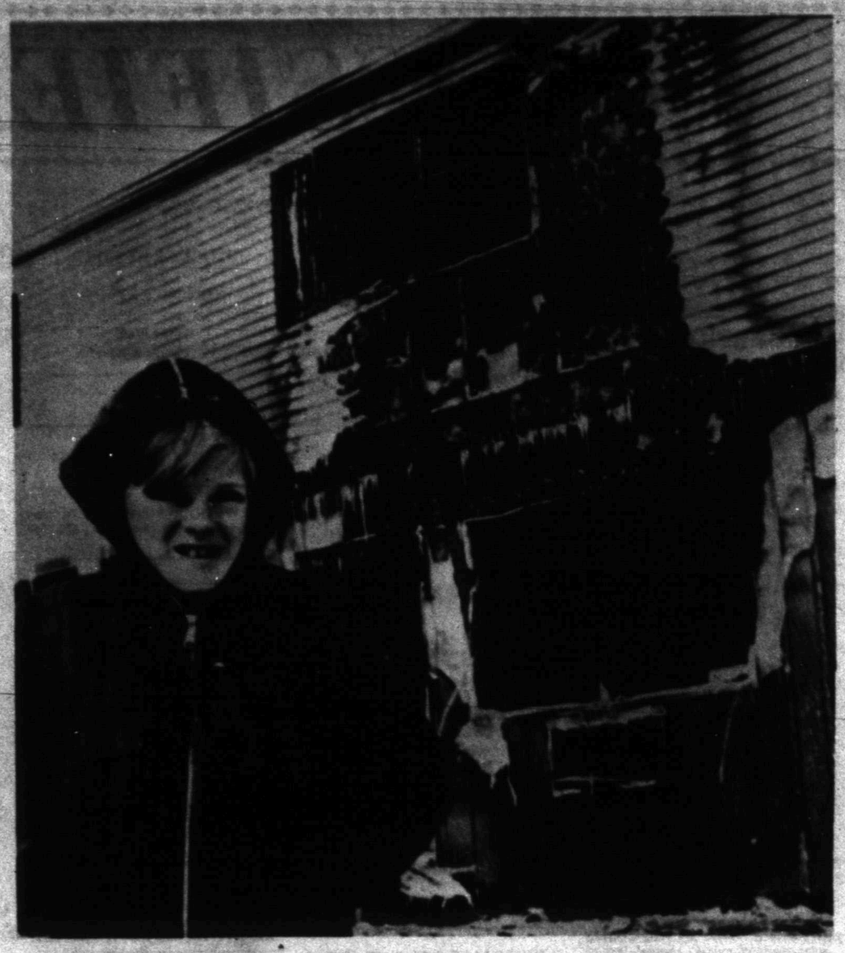

Solzhenitsyn agreed that those disatisfied with aspects of Soviet life should not seek help from other governments. But "we addressed the world public and figures of culture," he said. "Their support is priceless, always effective, always helps. We both now are unharmed and alive only because of that."

He said the proposal of Roy Medvedev and his brother Zhores to seek help from Western Communist circles would not work.

The only direct way to change things, he said, is to "address our readers, our compatriots and especially our youth."

Asked how these could render support, he replied:

"Not by physical actions, only by rejection of lies, with personal nonparticipation in lies. Each person should decisively stop cooperating with lies everywhere he sees them himself."

YOUNG LIFESAVER—Eight-year-old Tracy Kexel of Groton, Conn., saved the lives of his parents, John and Kathryn Kexel, and his two-month-old brother, James, when fire gutted their apartment. Tracy ran through near-zero weather in his underwear at 5:30 a.m. to alert nieghbors after awakening his father, who called the fire department. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Canadians Paying More For Gas, Heating Oil

By HOWARD ANGIONE
Associated Press Writer

Canadians are paying higher prices for gasoline and home heating oil, but their nation hasn't been hit with an "energy crisis" comparable to the one in the United States.

To keep Canada on a steady energy course, officials of its provinces and federal government will meet in Ottawa Tuesday and Wednesday to work on current problems and make long-range plans.

Their decisions will affect more than Canadians because Canada is the largest single foreign supplier of oil to the United States, accounting for about 7 per cent of U.S. imports.

Canada is the only Western nation which currently has the capability of producing enough crude oil for its own needs. Yet Canada exports roughly half the yield from its wells — one million barrels a day — to the United States. This results in an oil deficit which Canada makes up for with imports.

The reason is that Canada's oil wells are in the western part of the nation, but the pipeline to carry oil eastward now extends only to Sarnia, a small community near Toronto.

Until the recent upheaval in world oil supply patterns, it was cheaper for Canada to import oil for its eastern provinces — mostly from Venezuela, Arab countries, and Iran.

As a result, the eastern Canadian consumer has been hit hardest by price increases. Imperial Oil Co., the largest distributor in Canada, reports that since July 1 the cost of gasoline in the East has gone up 10 cents per "imperial gallon," which contains the equivalent of 1¼ U.S. gallons. In western provinces, prices are up about 2 cents a gallon. Gasoline prices range from 54.9 cents per gallon at Vancouver in the west to 73.4 cents at St. John's, Nfld., in the east.

The home fuel oil situation is similar — prices up 7 to 8 cents a gallon to as high as 34.7 cents in St. John's with 2 cent increases in the West with residents of Vancouver paying 26.2 cents.

To keep Canadian oil from being so far below world prices that demand for it depletes domestic supplies, Canada has instituted an export tax designed to make the cost of exported Canadian oil comparable to the higher prices being charged by Arab nations.

The tax started last fall at 40 cents a barrel. It is now $2.20 a barrel and scheduled to hit $6.40 a barrel Feb. 1.

As Canadians watch the United States try to cope with its energy problems, pressure is mounting for Canada to come up with a long-range energy resources development program so the nation won't get caught short in a decade or so when its currently available resources begin to diminish.

In order to develop its untapped resources in time to meet its own future needs, Canada needs the money from continued oil sales to the United States, oil industry sources say. But selling oil to America could endanger future oil independence for Canada at the same time.

Coyote Project Is Step

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — An experimental project to fight coyotes that kill sheep is a step forward, a New Mexico sheep man says, but not as big a step as he would want.

New Mexico Wool Growers Association secretary Charles D. Fuller, of Roswell, said a pilot program in Texas, suggested by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, will be conducted only on selected private lands.

He said that unless the program includes federal lands were millions of sheep graze, it will be difficult to gain any great saving of sheep from marauding coyotes.

The project involves the use of the previously outlawed M44 cyanide gun. The small, spring-loaded device containing scented bait that attracts coyotes. It shoots a cyanide pellet into the mouth of animals that trigger it.

The federal agency said the year-long program in Texas is to determine if there is any adverse affect on other wildlife and its affect on the coyote population.

Fuller said the program might help in a state like Texas where there is little federal land. But he said much of the New Mexico sheep grazing is on federal range lands.

He also said use of the gun and traps will not control coyotes in New Mexico because of the topography. Fuller, a retired rancher, criticized federal actions that outlawed the use of toxic chemicals to fight coyotes.

But he said the program is a step in the right direction and he will apply for permission to use the cyanide gun again in New Mexico.

Six Named To Cotton Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has named six new members to the 20-man Cotton Board to serve for the next two years.

The federally financed board, which administers a research and promotion program for upland cotton, is composed of members nominated by certified cotton producer organizations in cotton producing states.

Says Transcripts Refute Charges Of John Dean

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detailed White House transcripts refuting charges by John W. Dean III that President Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up were prepared but never released, an informed source has disclosed.

The source, who said he has read the transcript based on secret presidential tapes, said the White House had planned to release them as part of "Operation Candor" but later decided against making them public.

The source added, however, that the transcripts cover material available to the Watergate grand juries and could form the basis for perjury charges against Dean, the former White House counsel turned prime presidential accuser.

The White House declined comment Sunday on the matter.

Neither Dean nor his lawyers were available for comment.

Specifically, the source said, the transcripts he read disprove Dean's claim that his conversations with Nixon show the President was aware of the Watergate cover-up before the March 21, 1973, date on which Nixon says he learned of it.

They show that conversations Dean said took place on different dates between Sept. 15, 1972, and March 21, 1973, all took place on the latter date, the source explained.

The source said the former White House counsel apparently was tripped up by the fact that, unknown to him when they occurred or when he testified, the conversations were being taped by the secret presidential recording system.

A primary reason for deciding against release of the transcripts was fear that such action could trigger demands for further disclosures, the source said. He said these demands would jeopardize the confidentiality that Nixon and his top aides have insisted should be maintained.

He also said that another reason was fear that publication of the transcripts, and widespread comment on them, could jeopardize successful prosecution of some of the Watergate-related indictments expected to be brought shortly by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The source disclosed existence of the transcripts after Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said on nationwide television he had information that could clear Nixon of Watergate wrongdoing but that the White House was unwilling to make it public.

Appearing on the CBS radio-television program, "Face the Nation," the Pennsylvania Republican said he has been unable to "break through the shell of advisers" surrounding Nixon who have urged the President to halt Watergate disclosures.

Scott also said the President should cooperate fully with the FBI in its investigation of gaps on a White House tape.

Scott said he spoke to Nixon Friday and urged the President to make available to the FBI "all personnel who had contact" with the tape.

War Declared On Terrorism

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Juan D. Peron declared all-out war on terrorism Sunday night after Marxist guerrillas raided a major army camp and killed the commander, his wife and a sentry.

Peron, dressed in a general's uniform, said in a radio-television broadcast that the attack was part of a deliberate plan to impede reconstruction.

"The time to shout 'Peron' has passed. It is now time to defend him," the president declared. "We will not allow this to go on any longer ... We will take all measures necessary to destroy terrorism at its roots."

His voice quaking, he called for a general mobilization of the people to assist the government in putting down terrorism and kidnaping, which have increased since he took office Oct. 12.

Officials said that between 60 and 70 members of the Marxist ERP — the People's Revolutionary Army — raided the garrison at Azul, 280 miles south of Buenos Aires, Saturday night and held it until daybreak.

Most of the 2,000-man garrison was asleep when the raiders, dressed in army uniforms, captured a sentry post. They killed a private on sentry duty there and quickly took control of key positions on the base, including the home of the base commander, Col. Camilo Arturo Gay.

The guerrillas took one officer, Lt. Col. Jorge Roberto Ibarzabal, with them as a hostage when they broke through police roadblocks that had been thrown up outside the base. Two of the attackers were believed killed, and an unknown number were wounded, authorities said. The raiders carried their casualties away.

The People's Revolutionary Army is the country's largest and best organized guerrilla group. Last September it tried to seize an army medical corps headquarters in downtown Buenos Aires but failed. One soldier was killed and three wounded in that attack and 10 guerrillas were arrested.

The group, which is at odds with the bulk of the Argentine left wing, has been highly critical of Peron, calling him a "bourgeois reformist" who has "betrayed the masses."

East Coast Braces For Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Travel warnings were posted today as the East Coast braced for a winter storm rolling in from the Great Lakes.

Ice and freezing rain were expected from eastern New York and northeast Pennsylvania through New Hampshire and southern New England.

A freezing rain warning was in effect for upper Michigan as rain fell from South Dakota across the upper Great Lakes and into northeastern New York and Vermont.

At the southern edge of this storm system, heavy rains brought flooding to Mississippi and Tennessee. Ten families were evacuated from homes in southern Mississippi.

Two tornadoes struck Sunday—one in Arlington, Ga., which destroyed a mobile home and two warehouses and one in Goshen, Ala., which killed thousands of chickens. No injuries were reported to residents.

Light rain fell in the upper Mississippi Valley today, sending rivers even higher than expected.

Snow again fell in the central Rockies as a new storm gathered strength in Arizona. Heavy snow warnings were issued for southern Utah and the Colorado mountains.

ADA Gives Ford Zero

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten House Democrats scored 100 per cent while Vice President Gerald R. Ford got a zero Sunday as the Americans for Democratic Action released its annual rating of voting records of the House of Representatives.

Ford was one of 47 House members the ADA said failed to vote for what it considered the liberal position on 25 votes last year.

A spokesman for Ford declined to comment on the rating.

Issues on which the rating was conducted included Ford's nomination as vice president, which the ADA opposed, and on which Ford did not vote. Other votes included presidential war powers, the Vietnam war, foreign aid, women's rights, school busing, food stamps, mass transit, education funds, environmental issues, tax reform, defense and other government spending.

House Democrats listed as scoring 100 per cent included Bella S. Abzug, Jonathan B. Bingham and Benjamin S. Rosenthal of New York; Phillip Burton and Don Edwards of California; Robert F. Drinan and Michael Harrington of Massachusetts; Robert W. Kastenmaier of Wisconsin; Parren J. Mitchell of Maryland and John F. Seiberling of Ohio.

Tow Cattle Out Of Flood Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Idaho cowboys riding motorboats instead of horses roped stranded cattle and towed them out of flooded areas as most of the Pacific Northwest returned to normal today after a week of flooding.

A Red Cross spokesman in northern Idaho said cowboys were towing strays out of swamped areas with motorboats and occasionally gave the cattle artifical respiration to revive them.

No new major flooding was reported in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana or Northern California, but the National Weather Service predicted rain-showers for the region today.

A helicopter pilot became the 17th reported flood-related fatality when his helicopter crashed Sunday. The pilot, Larry Brown, 26, of Yakima, Wash., was flying supplies to persons stranded by floods in south-central Washington.

AT HOMEBUILDERS MEETING

Martin Blames Nixon For Housing Decline

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) has blamed the Nixon Administration for a steep decline in housing production.

George C. Martin, a Louisville, Ky., builder, said a failure to reverse the trend could cause or worsen a recession.

Martin commented at a news conference at the opening Sunday of 30th annual NAHB convention which continues through Thursday.

William E. Simon, administrator of the Federal Energy Office, and Housing Secretary James T. Lynn were to address delegates today.

Other second day speakers include Kenneth Cole, White House advisor on domestic affairs; John Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council; Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen of New York; and Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee.

Martin said only 1.3 million housing units will be started this year if starts continue at the rate reported in December. This would be well below the 2 million-unit production achieved last year when the total failed to match the 1972 record of 2.4 million.

Martin said about one million persons in the building industry already are unemployed and that unemployment is growing in housing, furniture, appliances, carpets and related industries.

He said the NAHB is urging a three-point program to improve the situation, which he blamed chiefly on the housing policy of the government under President Nixon.

The NAHB believes interest rates should be cut from 8.5 to 7 per cent on home loans issued through the Federal Housing Administration, Martin said.

He said the Nixon Administration should end the 12-month old freeze on subsidized low and medium income housing authorized under Sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act.

Banks and savings and loan associations should be limited in how much they can invest in interest payments on four-year certificates of deposit that draw money away from home loans and interest rates on the certificates should be cut, he added.

Although the Nixon Administration drew most of the fire from Martin, he said a shortfall in housing production to meet an estimated annual need for 2.5 million or more units cannot be blamed wholly on the administration.

"Congress also is failing to show leadership in the housing field," he said. "It has failed to override vetoes and end impoundments of housing and utility funds."

He also said "some slackening in housing demand can no doubt be attributed to the fact that prices are being raised by home builders as they are by oil companies, bankers and others."

Martin complained that there has been a change in government philosophy on the housing program.

"The present philosophy seems to be that maybe the government should get out of the housing program after all these years," he said. "It's also being contended that housing money should be treated as a free market commodity.

"The trouble is there can be no free market in a commodity if the supply is restricted as it is on housing funds. The same philosophy is not prevalent in Britain. And the 11 per cent interest on a home loan over there will soon go to 12."

More than 50,000 members and guests from 50 states and 15 foreign countries are expected to attend the convention. The convention is in its sixth year here. It has been booked for the next three years in Dallas.

Wounded Hostage Recalls Fright

HOUSTON (AP) — A supermarket employes who was wounded while being held hostage in a gunman's escape car says she was afraid "but glad I wasn't dying."

Frieda Lummus, 37, head cashier at the Kroger food store, was one of 13 captives held for 10 hours at the store and one of three taken as the band it fled by automobile.

Doctors said Mrs. Lummus suffered two bullet wounds on her head but was resting comfortable at a hospital. Originally it was believed she had suffered only minor cuts from a shattered rear window in the getaway car.

Wesley Earl Evans, 22, surrendered not long after speeding away Saturday evening in the unmarked police car.

He was arrested on a dead-end road off a Houston freeway.

Authorities charged him with robbery and kidnaping. He was held without bond.

Taken in the car with him were Mrs. Lummus, Dianne Lewis, 28 another store employe, and police Lt. William Doss, 63. Only Mrs. Lummus was injured.

Doss was in the vicinity of the store when a report of a robbery came in. He volunteered to go there and was taken hostage.

During the getaway Doss was forced to drive the car. Mrs. Lummus sat in the front seat and the gunman and Mrs. Lewis in the back.

Detectives said Mrs. Lummus probably was wounded when the man fired from the back seat toward a uniformed policeman at an intersection. Officers said there were two bullet holes in the corner of the front windshield. They said the man also shattered the car's rear window with a gunshot aimed at a pursuing helicopter.

Police said they fired no shots at the fleeing car.

Detectives said Evans had been in the store since Friday night and he confronted manager Wayne Stephens, 28, as the place opened Saturday morning.

He took about $600 from Stephens but a fire alarm went off and alerted police. Stephens was taken hostage with the others in the store but later escaped.

During the next 10 hours police, who had surrounded the store, tried to negotiate with the gunman as he held the 13 hostages inside.

He made several demands, including one that radio stations stop broadcasting news of the event. Many stations complied.

Finally the gunman, surrounded by hostages, made his escape in Doss' car, which had been parked behind the store. He forced Doss and the two women to accompany him.

In a telephone interview Sunday from her hospital room, Mrs. Lummus said she was told by the gunman to "sit up and act like everything was normal—like we were out for a joy ride."

She heard a loud noise in her ear, she said, and first thought the gunman had shot her—and then that police had fired through the rear window.

She said the gunman grew angry because the helicopters gave chase.

"He threatened to throw one of us out of the car dead," she said.

After the car pulled off the highway onto the dead end dirt road, police vehicles blocked the return route.

Police, who had been following in unmarked cars, surrounded the car and ordered the gunman to drop a pistol pointed at Mrs. Lewis' head.

"He said he was going to take Dianne with him," Mrs. Lummus said, but moments later he gave up.

Mrs. Lummus, mother of three teen-age children, suffered two bullet wounds near the top of her head, her doctor said. He said the bullets did not enter the skull but may have scraped the bone.

"It is very unlikely the bullets came from outside the car," the doctor said.

Authorities said Evans had been convicted and served prison sentences for auto theft and for pulling a fire alarm on six occasions without reason.

Oil Spill Cleanup Continues

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Shell Oil Co. cleanup operations on the Mississippi River continued today while a progress report suggested that estimates of the quantity of crude oil which escaped from a company pipeline would be revised upward.

A company spokesman said about 1,600 barrels of oil had been recovered Sunday night.

About 1,500 barrels of it were taken from a 400-foot stretch of the river at Kenner, a few miles from New Orleans, he said.

The recovery figure of 1,600 barrels compared with a total leakage figure of 2,000 barrels acknowledged by Shell Friday night, several hours after the sub-river leak was stopped.

The spokesman, John Wright, conceded Sunday night that the total would be "in excess of 2,000 barrels," but he wouldn't speculate on how much more.

Wright said the pipeline probably had been leaking for 24 hours before it was discovered.

Front Due Tuesday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clouds all but disappeared over Texas today and temperatures were relatively mild for January.

About the only flaw in early morning was thick fog in places. One trouble spot was around Brownsville and McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, where lowered visibility hampered travelers.

It also was foggy around Corpus Christi on the Coastal Bend and Tyler and Texarkana in East Texas.

After a weekend which saw the nation's top temperature of 88 degrees recorded at Alice and Beeville in South Texas, forecasters warned that another cold front was approaching through the Western states.

The new front, preceded by at least occasional showers, was expected to push into Central Texas by Tuesday.

Temperatures near dawn today ranged from 36 degrees at Waco in the state's midsection up to 58 at Brownsville.

Boy Drowns

HOUSTON (AP) — Albert Earl Price, 10, drowned Sunday in Halls Bayou.

Police said he was playing on a mud bank when he slipped into the water. The body was recovered about 75 yards downstream.

Nixon's Rating At New Low

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Gallup Poll's approval rating for President Nixon again has dropped to his all-time low of 27 per cent.

The Gallup organization conducted the poll Jan. 4-7, shortly after the Internal Revenue Service announced it was re-auditing the President's recent tax returns.

Nixon's first 27 per cent approval rating in the poll came in late October, after he fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. In a similar poll last month, his rating was 29 per cent.

In the latest poll, 1,504 adults were asked: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as President?"

Besides the 27 per cent approving, 63 per cent disapproved and 10 per cent expressed no opinion.

Gallup said a breakdown by party showed Republicans approved of Nixon's performance by 53 per cent. Only 11 per cent of Democrats and 26 per cent of independents polled said they approved.

Nixon's current rating is eight points below the lowest rating given the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, 35 per cent. The lowest rating for any president was the 23 per cent once given Harry S. Truman.

Career In Dog Grooming

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: I would like to know where I can go to learn clipping French poodles There is no one in this area and several poodles I need to go into this business — R H C., Wilson, Ark

Dog grooming schools can be located through ads in dog magazines, or through "Lovejoy's Career & Vocational School Guide." If you can travel to another city perhaps you can find a groomer willing to teach you Or if you've had experience handling dogs, try teaching yourself with a new illustrated how to book, "All Breed Dog Grooming Guide," by Kohl & Goldstein (Arco Books, 219 Park Avenue So., New York, N.Y. 10003; $8.95)

Dear Joyce: My husband and I were divorced several years ago. There were no children. I'd like to have a job where I could travel. Any suggestions? — C.S., Chicago, Ill.

Without knowing any special skills you possess, sales and promotional work for manufacturers and organizations are obvious options. In addition to the help wanted ads in this newspaper, and employment agencies, go to the library and look at the ads in out-of-town newspapers and trade magazines. For other ideas you can read "Travelling Jobs for Women," available from Pilot Books (347 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016, $2.)

Dear Joyce: I'm 17 and my dad says it's time I learned how to make a buck. I figure I may as well go into business for myself and I was thinking about cleaning swimming pools or putting in plastic underground watering systems for lawns. Could I make money doing these kinds of things? — C.B., Brentwood, Mo.

Your investment would be minimal, so give it a try. You'll have to convince customers that you know how to properly care for a pool, and that you won't tear up their lawns. So why not do a few jobs for "cost of materials only" in exchange for written recommendations of your work? Put the recommendations in an album, along with a few photographs of you on the job. Take the album along when you canvas neighborhood streets for customers.

You'll probably get a better reception if you mail or distribute mimeographed announcements of your services in advance, noting that you will be calling in person in a few days.

There are more ideas along this line in "100 Ways to Make Money in Your Spare Time, Starting with Less Than $100," by Stockwell and Holtje (Parker Publishing Co., West Nyack, N.Y. 10994 $7.95)

Gyro Signals Trouble

HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) A troublesome Skylab gyroscope sent out two more "distress signals" today, raising concern that the stabilizing device might soon fail.

But even if it did breakdown, Mission Control officials say the Skylab 3 astronauts may still be able to complete a full 84-day mission by using backup control systems.

Today is the 67th day of the flight.

The gyroscope, a spinning wheel used to manuever the spacecraft, has exhibited a high rate of fluctuations recently.

Nine instances have been reported in the last three days compared to 20 malfunctions in the first nine weeks of the Skylab 3 mission.

"I would like it better if it didn't happen so often," Mission Control official said. "Because of it, the probability for a failure must be higher."

Nine days ago, space agency officials said Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson might have to come home within five or six days of such failure for safety reasons.

But flight director Milton Windler said on Sunday that only 18 days remain in the planned 12-week mission and that enough backup control gas is aboard to keep the station stable for that long if nothing else goes wrong.

He said the astronauts would have to eliminate most solar astronomy and earth resources experiments because they require gas-using maneuvers of the station.

"If the gyro should fail, we can design procedures to get a complete 84 days with the consumables we have," Windler told newsmen. "By staying up, we could certainly gain some medical benefits and other science experiments."

He said there would be no danger to the astronauts.

KISSINGER BRIEFS CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS

Pact Removes Oil Block

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, came from a White House briefing by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today and said the "strongest blockade" to an agreement on lifting of the oil embargo by the Arabs was removed by the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

The Pennsylvania senator also said that he was hopeful of "constructive progress" and perhaps "some early progress" in reaching some settlement between Israel and Syria.

Kissinger and President Nixon were applauded at the bipartisan congressional leadership, meeting in the Cabinet room to hear a report by Kissinger who had just returned from 11 days of diplomatic negotiations.

Scott said there were "no secret guarantees," and that none were mentioned and "I don't believe any existed." He said various assurances were given to both parties as the negotiation sessions went on, which he said led both parties to feel that security was better assured.

Scott declined to give any predictions on when the oil embargo to the United States might be lifted. He said he hopes progress will continue and said, "the strongest blockade to an agreement on oil was removed by the signing of the agreement between Israel and Egypt".

"It is hopeful Scott said, that this progress which is being made will continue and result favorably..."

Scott added that the United States has no military commitment or involvement in the Mideast and it simply was a case of making its good offices available and will continue to do so.

Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana declined to discuss the briefing with reporters as he left the White House.

"You're our hero," Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., greeted Kissinger as they shook hands. Mahon was among 16 congressional leaders of both parties assembled by President Nixon to hear a report on the Israeli-Arab agreement.

Kissinger returned before dawn from his 11-day journey that produced a disengagement agreement between Israel and Egypt and what Kissinger said was "real progress" toward a similar pact between Israel and Syria.

Those attending the briefing included members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees.

CHARGES COUNTERED

Senate Panel Probing Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil company executives today were accused of "cheating the American public" as they appeared before a Senate panel probing the severity of the energy crisis.

The charges were made in an opening statement by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

A statement submitted under oath by Roy A. Baze, senior vice president for Exxon, the country's largest oil firm, flatly rejected the charges.

Exxon "has not fabricated or contrived to bring about the current tight energy supply situation," Baze said. "The petroleum companies have made major efforts to prevent the shortage from occurring," he said.

Ribicoff had accused the companies of using the "fright and panic" triggered by reports of severe fuel shortages "to squeeze out the small independent dealers," and of using the sharp increases in the price of foreign oil to push up the price of domestic oil.

Ribicoff called for a price freeze on petroleum products until the severity of the shortage can be determined. Ribicoff also said it was time to cut off tax breaks which he said the oil companies were using to "deprive the American treasury of approximately $3 billion a year."

He said the oil firms had misled federal energy chief William E. Simon as to the severity of the shortages.

Subcommittee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Mich., said that some of the information the companies had submitted to his staff was evasive.

Simon was scheduled to appear before the panel today, but subcommittee staff members said he was out of town and would be called to testify at a later date.

At the same time, a joint economic subcommittee continues its probe of the accuracy and reliability of the energy data furnished government agencies by the oil companies.

The Senate leadership has said that the emergency energy bill that Congress failed to pass in the final days before the month-long winter recess would have first priority when Congress returned.

One-Member Districts Due

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill said today he has received word that a three-judge federal court will require single-member State House of Representative districts in seven counties now represented at-large by two or more legislators.

Hill issued a statement saying he had been informed that multi-member House districts in Jefferson, Tarrant, McLennan, Travis, Nueces, El Paso and Lubbock counties would have to be divided into individual districts.

The two remaining multi-member districts, Galveston and Hidalgo counties, were not declared unconstitutional by the court, Hill said.

Porter Charged With Lying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert L. Porter, a former official of President Nixon's re-election committee. today was charged by the special Watergate prosecutor with lying to the FBI about the Watergate break-in.

Porter's attorney, Charles B. Murray, said his client intends to plead guilty.

Porter, 35, waived his right to have his case submitted to a grand jury.

Porter, former scheduling director for the re-election committee, told the Senate Watergate Committee last summer that he had lied to the FBI, the federal grand jury and at the original Watergate trial.

The federal charge says that on July 19, 1972, Porter "did knowingly and willfully, make false, fictitious and fraudulent statements and representations to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

The charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Meanwhile, it also was learned that the prosecutor's office has begun submitting information about the Watergate tapes to the federal grand jury empaneled last Jan. 7.

The Watergate committee is expected to decide this week whether to hold further public hearings.

Pregnancy Rule Is Struck Down

By VERNON A. GUIDRY Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down rules that force pregnant school teachers off the job regardless of their individual ability to continue work.

The 7 to 2 decision represented a victory for advocates of equal rights for women.

In other action today, the court:

—Ruled that the San Francisco school system illegally discriminates against non-English speaking Chinese students by failing to help them surmount the language handicap.

—Agreed to decide whether prison authorities must guarantee inmates legal representation in disciplinary hearings.

—Dismissed a challenge to the constitutionality of Florida's requirement that prospective voters take a loyalty oath.

—Agreed to review a lower court decision barring Colorado inspectors from conducting air pollution tests on the premises of private companies. Eleven other states joined Colorado in saying the decision would cripple their air pollution control laws.

The pregnancy case involved rules from school systems in Ohio and Virginia which forced pregnant school teachers to leave the classroom at the fourth and fifth months of their pregnancy, respectively.

The majority concluded "that neither the necessity for continuity of instruction nor the state interest in keeping physically unfit teachers out of the classroom can justify the sweeping mandatory leave regulations that the Cleveland and Chesterfield County (Va.) school boards have adopted."

One question in the case was whether the rule on pregnancy constituted an impermissable classification on the basis of sex.

Low Speed Cuts Violence Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas counted far fewer violent deaths than usual during the weekend, and the state's drastically lowered speed limit appeared due much of the credit—at least for an almost startling drop in the number of traffic fatalities.

The toll stood at 16 this morning and only four of those occurred in automobile accidents.

There also were five homicides, and deaths from assorted other causes accounted for the rest of those killed between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

Speed limits on all thoroughfares dropped to 55 miles per hour at 12:01 a.m. Sunday under a new law prompted by fuel shortages. Reduced numbers of traffic deaths have been credited to similar moves taken previously by some other states.

These were among the victims:

Johnnie Clyde Pharr, 24, a Ft. Hood soldier, was killed Saturday in a Killeen suburb in a two-car collision. Four other persons suffered injuries.

Leonard Quattrochi, 43, of Irving drowned Sunday night after diving off a Galveston pier to hunt for his wallet in the Gulf of Mexico. The body was found about nine blocks down the beach.

Scaffolding collapsed while Jimmy C. Callaway, 27, and James E. Davin, 49, were working as painters Sunday outside the new Citizen's State Bank in the Dallas suburb of Richardson, and both plunged 11 floors to death.

Police reported Rosetta Jordan, 21, fully clothed, was found dead Sunday in a bath tub of hot water in her Houston apartment. They said there was no sign of a struggle.

A car struck and killed James T. Stubblefield, 32, of Lufkin about five miles east of that East Texas city on Texas 103 Sunday.

Register For Draft By Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning this month, some young men will be able to register for the military draft by mail rather than have to appear in person at a Selective Service office.

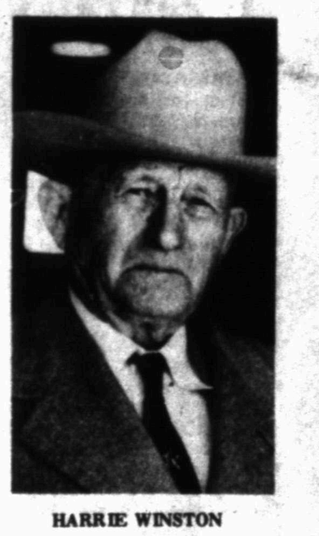

Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone said the new system is designed only for youths who cannot conveniently register in person because their local board has been combined with others at a distant place for economy and efficiency.

The mail-in system was tested in selected areas of the states of Michigan, North Carolina, Florida and Washington and proved successful, Selective Service said.

Under the new nationwide program, the mail-in registration forms are issued to state draft directors, who distribute them to local draft boards to stamp with their return addresses. The forms and advertising posters then are placed in public locations frequented by young men and their families.

The posters carry a reminder that, despite the fact the armed forces no longer are drafting, youths still are required by law to register with Selective Service within 30 days before or after their 18th birthdays.

Gyro Signals Trouble

HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) A troublesome Skylab gyroscope sent out two more "distress signals" today, raising concern that the stabilizing device might soon fail.

But even if it did breakdown, Mission Control officials say the Skylab 3 astronauts may still be able to complete a full 84-day mission by using backup control systems.

Today is the 67th day of the flight.

The gyroscope, a spinning wheel used to manuever the spacecraft, has exhibited a high rate of fluctuations recently.

Nine instances have been reported in the last three days compared to 20 malfunctions in the first nine weeks of the Skylab 3 mission.

"I would like it better if it didn't happen so often," Mission Control official said. "Becasue of it, the probability for a failure must be higher."

Nine days ago, space agency officials said Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson might have to come home within five or six days of such failure for safety reasons.

But flight director Milton Windler said on Sunday that only 18 days remain in the planned 12-week mission and that enough backup control gas is aboard to keep the station stable for that long if nothing else goes wrong.

He said the astronauts would have to eliminate most solar astronomy and earth resources experiments because they require gas-using maneuvers of the station.

"If the gyro should fail, we can design procedures to get a complete 84 days with the consumables we have," Windler told newsmen. "By staying up, we could certainly gain some medical benefits and other science experiments."

He said there would be no danger to the astronauts.

KISSINGER BRIEFS CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS

Pact Removes Oil Block

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, came from a White House briefing by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today and said the "strongest blockade" to an agreement on lifting of the oil embargo by the Arabs was removed by the signing of the Israeli-Egyptian agreement.

The Pennsylvania senator also said that he was hopeful of "constructive progress" and perhaps "some early progress" in reaching some settlement between Israel and Syria.

Kissinger and President Nixon were applauded at the bipartisan congressional leadership, meeting in the Cabinet room to hear a report by Kissinger who had just returned from 11 days of diplomatic negotiations.

Scott said there were "no secret guarantees," and that none were mentioned and "I don't believe any existed." He said various assurances were given to both parties as the negotiation sessions went on, which he said led both parties to feel that security was better assured.

Scott declined to give any predictions on when the oil embargo to the United States might be lifted. He said he hopes progress will continue and said, "the strongest blockade to an agreement on oil was removed by the signing of the agreement between Israel and Egypt".

"It is hopeful Scott said, that this progress which is being made will continue and result favorably..."

Scott added that the United States has no military commitment or involvement in the Mideast and it simply was a case of making its good offices available and will continue to do so.

Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana declined to discuss the briefing with reporters as he left the White House.

"You're our hero," Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., greeted Kissinger as they shook hands. Mahon was among 16 congressional leaders of both parties assembled by President Nixon to hear a report on the Israeli-Arab agreement.

Kissinger returned before dawn from his 11-day journey that produced a disengagement agreement between Israel and Egypt and what Kissinger said was "real progress" toward a similar pact between Israel and Syria.

Those attending the briefing included members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees.

CHARGES COUNTERED

Senate Panel Probing Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Oil company executives today were accused of "cheating the American public" as they appeared before a Senate panel probing the severity of the energy crisis.

The charges were made in an opening statement by Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., of the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

A statement submitted under oath by Roy A. Baze, senior vice president for Exxon, the country's largest oil firm, flatly rejected the charges.

Exxon "has not fabricated or contrived to bring about the current tight energy supply situation," Baze said. "The petroleum companies have made major efforts to prevent the shortage from occurring," he said.

Ribicoff had accused the companies of using the "fright and panic" triggered by reports of severe fuel shortages "to squeeze out the small independent dealers," and of using the sharp increases in the price of foreign oil to push up the price of domestic oil.

Ribicoff called for a price freeze on petroleum products until the severity of the shortage can be determined. Ribicoff also said it was time to cut off tax breaks which he said the oil companies were using to "deprive the American treasury of approximately $3 billion a year."

He said the oil firms had misled federal energy chief William E. Simon as to the severity of the shortages.

Subcommittee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Mich., said that some of the information the companies had submitted to his staff was evasive.

Simon was scheduled to appear before the panel today, but subcommittee staff members said he was out of town and would be called to testify at a later date.

At the same time, a joint economic subcommittee continues its probe of the accuracy and reliability of the energy data furnished government agencies by the oil companies.

The Senate leadership has said that the emergency energy bill that Congress failed to pass in the final days before the month-long winter recess would have first priority when Congress returned.

One-Member Districts Due

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill said today he has received word that a three-judge federal court will require single-member State House of Representative districts in seven counties now represented at-large by two or more legislators.

Hill issued a statement saying he had been informed that multi-member House districts in Jefferson, Tarrant, McLennan, Travis, Nueces, El Paso and Lubbock counties would have to be divided into individual districts.

The two remaining multi-member districts, Galveston and Hidalgo counties, were not declared unconstitutional by the court, Hill said.

Porter Charged With Lying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herbert L. Porter, a former official of President Nixon's re-election committee. today was charged by the special Watergate prosecutor with lying to the FBI about the Watergate break-in.

Porter's attorney, Charles B. Murray, said his client intends to plead guilty.

Porter, 35, waived his right to have his case submitted to a grand jury.

Porter, former scheduling director for the re-election committee, told the Senate Watergate Committee last summer that he had lied to the FBI, the federal grand jury and at the original Watergate trial.

The federal charge says that on July 19, 1972, Porter "did knowingly and willfully, make false, fictitious and fraudulent statements and representations to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation."

The charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Meanwhile, it also was learned that the prosecutor's office has begun submitting information about the Watergate tapes to the federal grand jury empaneled last Jan. 7.

Pregnancy Rule Is Struck Down

By VERNON A. GUIDRY Jr.
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today struck down rules that force pregnant school teachers off the job regardless of their individual ability to continue work.

The 7 to 2 decision represented a victory for advocates of equal rights for women.

In other action today, the court:

—Ruled that the San Francisco school system illegally discriminates against non-English speaking Chinese students by failing to help them surmount the language handicap.

—Agreed to decide whether prison authorities must guarantee inmates legal representation in disciplinary hearings.

—Dismissed a challenge to the constitutionality of Florida's requirement that prospective voters take a loyalty oath.

—Agreed to review a lower court decision barring Colorado inspectors from conducting air pollution tests on the premises of private companies. Eleven other states joined Colorado in saying the decision would cripple their air pollution control laws.

The pregnancy case involved rules from school systems in Ohio and Virginia which forced pregnant school teachers to leave the classroom at the fourth and fifth months of their pregnancy, respectively.

The majority concluded "that neither the necessity for continuity of instruction nor the state interest in keeping physically unfit teachers out of the classroom can justify the sweeping mandatory leave regulations that the Cleveland and Chesterfield County (Va.) school boards have adopted."

One question in the case was whether the rule on pregnancy constituted an impermissable classification on the basis of sex.

Low Speed Cuts Violence Toll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Texas counted far fewer violent deaths than usual during the weekend, and the state's drastically lowered speed limit appeared due much of the credit—at least for an almost startling drop in the number of traffic fatalities.

The toll stood at 16 this morning and only four of those occurred in automobile accidents.

There also were five homicides, and deaths from assorted other causes accounted for the rest of those killed between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

Speed limits on all thoroughfares dropped to 55 miles per hour at 12:01 a.m. Sunday under a new law prompted by fuel shortages. Reduced numbers of traffic deaths have been credited to similar moves taken previously by some other states.

These were among the victims:

Johnnie Clyde Pharr, 24, a Ft. Hood soldier, was killed Saturday in a Killeen suburb in a two-car collision. Four other persons suffered injuries.

Leonard Quattrochi, 43, of Irving drowned Sunday night after diving off a Galveston pier to hunt for his wallet in the Gulf of Mexico. The body was found about nine blocks down the beach.

Scaffolding collapsed while Jimmy C. Callaway, 27, and James E. Davin, 49, were working as painters Sunday outside the new Citizen's State Bank in the Dallas suburb of Richardson, and both plunged 11 floors to death.

Police reported Rosetta Jordan, 21, fully clothed, was found dead Sunday in a bath tub of hot water in her Houston apartment. They said there was no sign of a struggle.

A car struck and killed James T. Stubblefield, 32, of Lufkin about five miles east of that East Texas city on Texas 103 Sunday.

Register For Draft By Mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning this month, some young men will be able to register for the military draft by mail rather than have to appear in person at a Selective Service office.

Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone said the new system is designed only for youths who cannot conveniently register in person because their local board has been combined with others at a distant place for economy and efficiency.

The mail-in system was tested in selected areas of the states of Michigan, North Carolina, Florida and Washington and proved successful, Selective Service said.

Under the new nationwide program, the mail-in registration forms are issued to state draft directors, who distribute them to local draft boards to stamp with their return addresses. The forms and advertising posters then are placed in public locations frequented by young men and their families.

The posters carry a reminder that, despite the fact the armed forces no longer are drafting, youths still are required by law to register with Selective Service within 30 days before or after their 18th birthdays.

Harrie Winston Service Today

Harrie Bickerton Winston Jr., 83, internationally-known rancher who was prominently identified with virtually all facets of business and civic life in the Snyder area, died at 9:15 p.m. Saturday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital, following a long illness.

Funeral service was set for 4 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church in Snyder, where Mr. Winston had been a member for 66½ years, longer than any other person on the church membership roll. The Rev. Miller F. Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, was to officiate at the funeral service. Assisting were to be the Rev. Ken Andress, pastor of First Baptist Church, and two former First Baptist pastors, the Rev. W.F. Ferguson of Lubbock and the Rev. G.M. Cole of Fort Worth. Burial was to be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Mr. Winston moved with his family from Archer County to Kent County in 1907 so that children in the family could attend public school. They moved to Scurry County in 1907.

Harrie Winston and his brother, Wade Winston, started in the cattle business in their early teens, beginning the Winston Brothers Ranch operation.

HARRIE WINSTON

Always known as a community leader, Mr. Winston served as the second president of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce in 1916. Following military service in World War I, he was elected first commander of the Will Layne Post of the American Legion. He served as area chairman of the Cattleman's Roundup for Crippled Children, an annual benefit project for the West Texas Rehabilitation Center, for a number of years and for more than 50 years served as a member of the Board of Directors of Snyder National Bank. He had been re-elected chairman of the bank's board last Thursday, at which time it was noted he missed his first annual stockholders' meeting of the bank in 50 years.

Johnny's too young to choose own religion

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am Jewish and my husband is Lutheran, but it has not hurt our marriage. [We were married in a civil ceremony.] Our daughter, Jennie, who is ten, goes to the Jewish Sunday school and is being raised in the Jewish faith. Our son, Johnny is seven. He was baptized Lutheran and goes to Lutheran Sunday school.

Jennie gets a present every day for seven days because she celebrates Hanukah, which comes just before Christmas. Johnny gets only one present at Christmastime. You probably know the problem: Now Johnny wants to be Jewish.

My husband is upset with Johnny, and has even had the pastor talk to him, but Johnny still wants to be Jewish.

My question: Do you think a seven-year-old child should be permitted to choose his own religion? My husband and I disagree. A HOUSE DIVIDED

DEAR DIVIDED: Would you let Johnny choose his own bedtime? Would you let your seven-year-old quit school if he wanted to?

Then in a matter as serious as religion how can a seven-year-old be expected to make an intelligent choice? One who bases his choice of religion on which one will net him the most presents is truly childish—but then he's only seven, so who can blame him?

DEAR ABBY: Gary and I went steady for two years, and on Christmas Day he gave me a diamond and officially announced our engagement. [I'm 21 and Gary is 24.]

My parents have always liked Gary, and I know they weren't surprised, but they are very much upset because—are you ready for this?—Gary didn't ask my father for my hand!

Abby, it would have been only a formality, and actually it never crossed Gary's mind or mine. I think since my parents felt so strongly about this they should have told me so I could have tipped Gary off. He'd have gone thru the whole bit just to make them happy.

Does a man still ask the father for his daughter's hand? Or is it an old-fashioned out-dated custom?

NOT ASKED FOR

DEAR NOT: Some still do. Altho it's only a formality, the man who asks a girl's father for her hand is sure to start down the aisle on the right foot.

DEAR ABBY: Cindy, my 12-year-old daughter, said Joy, her best friend, asked her what she got from her godparents for Christmas, and Cindy was ashamed because she didn't even know who her godparents were.

Cindy said Joy described all the lovely gifts her godparents had given her for other occasions and Joy also said godparents are SUPPOSED to give their godchild gifts for Christmas, Easter, and birthdays!

Now Cindy feels cheated and hurt, and wants to know how come her godparents never send her gifts. What shall I tell her? CINDY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Tell her that technically godparents are responsible only for looking after the godchild in the event that the natural parents are unable to. And that gift-giving always is optional—never mandatory.

Meeting Set For Graduate Level Course

A meeting has been scheduled at 6 o'clock this evening for teachers interested in enrolling for a graduate level course on working with exceptional children.

This course is one of several to be offered by Sul Ross State University at Western Texas College this spring. Prospective students are to meet at the WTC Learning Resource Center.

Johnny Creager of Colorado City, an educational disgnostician, has been selected by Sul Ross to teach the course. Creager has been in Colorado City for the past two years and is helping develop a program for retarded children served by the Colorado City, Loraine, and Westbrook schools.

Creager has studied at West Texas State University, North Texas State University, Texas Women's University, and Abilene Christian College, and has seven years teaching experience. He has worked with physically handicapped children and children with learning disabilities, and is active in the program of the Association for Retarded Children.

It is important that prospective students attend tonight's meeting, since a minimum of 10 persons are necessary to form a graduate level class. It is possible that the course might also be offered for undergraduate students if there are enough students to fill the class.

City Police investigated four motor vehicle mishaps over the weekend, and all of them involved minor damage.

The first one occurred on the parking lot at the Piggly-Wiggly store in the 4100 block of College Avenue at 2:20 p.m. Saturday. Involved were the 1967 Model Plymouth of Pascual Hernandez Mendes, Box 311, Roscoe, and a 1972 Model Ford station wagon driven by Elaine Courtney McKinley, 3724 Avenue U.

The next one occurred in the 2600 Block of Avenue F at 6:40 p.m. Saturday. Involved were a 1969 Model Ford driven by Trineda Dominguez, 312 Twenty-fifth Street, and a 1970 Model Chevrolet operated by Phyllis Burns Smith, Route 2, Hermleigh.

An unidentified motorist fled the scene after his vehicle was in collision with the parked 1973 Model Ford of Leonard Lopez Gallegos, 2003 Avenue R, between 8:30 p.m. and 10:25 p.m. Sunday in the 1800 block of Thirty-fifth Street.

Pool Repair Bids Studied

County Commissioners opened bids from two firms this morning for repairs to the swimming pool in Towel Park, and both bids were higher than previous estimates by the architect.

The bids were $148,830 from Cardinal A.T. Pool of Arlington and $88,486.11 from B. J. Parr of Dallas.

The architect, Dick Turley of Clifford Carson Associates of Waco had estimated the repairs at $60,000. Commissioners turned the bids over to him for further study.

The county is planning repairs to the filtering system and to the sides and bottom of the swimming pool.

In other action, Commissioners tabled for further study a request from the county airport board for remodelling of the pilot's lounge at Winston Field. The request was made by a delegation from the airport board this morning. Their spokesman was John Thomas.

AT S-VIETS REQUEST

US Planes Over Islands Today

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese twice asked the United States 7th Fleet to intervene in the battle with the Chinese for the Paracel Islands but were turned down, official South Vietnamese sources said today.

But the informants said that U.S. planes flew reconnaissance missions over the islands today at the request of the South Vietnamese government.

The sources said an American civilian was missing on one of the islands, which were overrun by Chinese forces Sunday. He was not immediately identified, but the informants said he was a former U.S. Marine officer.

The South Vietnamese government has conceded military victory to China in their dispute over the Paracels, and called for an emergency meeting of the United Nations Security Council to plead its case.

Foreign Minister Vuong Van Bac sent Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim a note asking that the matter be put before the council. Nguyen Huu Chi, South Vietnam's observer at U.N. headquarters in New York, arranged a meeting with Gonzalo Facio of Costa Rica, the council president for January.

The Chinese Foreign Ministry in a statement said, "due punishment" had been meted out to Vietnamese forces sent to "invade" the Paracels, which the statement said "have always been China's territory."

"The personnel of the other side whom we have captured in the fight for self-defense will be repatriated at an appropriate time," the statement said. It did not say how many were captured.

The Saigon military command said a Chinese amphibious force of about 500 men seized the last of the disputed coral islands in the South China Sea on Sunday, overrunning 150 South Vietnamese troops after a two-day air, sea and ground battle.

"It seems the battle is finished. For the time being, we are no longer taking any action to defend the islands," Saigon's chief military spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, said. Hien claimed that eight Chinese and South Vietnamese navy ships were sunk or damaged in the battle and more than 225 South Vietnamese soldiers and sailors are missing.

He said one Vietnamese patrol craft was sunk by radar-guided missiles and the fate of the 82 crewmen was not known. One destroyer, one cutter and another patrol craft suffered light to moderate damage and returned to Da Nang on Sunday, he reported.

Hien said 11 South Vietnamese were known killed, 35 were wounded, and the 150 troops who were overrun are missing.

Two Chinese patrol craft, each with a crews of 50 to 60 men, were sunk and two others were heavily damaged, Hien claimed.

Scurry County Cancer Society Begins Drive

On January 14, the regular meeting of the American Cancer Society was called to order by Buford Browning, vice-president. The meeting was held in the WTC cafeteria. Fifteen members were present. The invocation was given by Dr. James E. Tulley. The past minutes of November were read and approved.

John Barnes of District 16, Abilene, delivered a challenge from the Nolan County A. C. S. to Scurry Co. as to which would be more successful in raising their 1974 quota of $11,400.00 each. The challenge was accepted by the Scurry County Unit in behalf of Scurry County citizens.

It was stated that after the yearly Cancer Crusades ending in April, that more suspects were found in April and May than all the other ten months of the year. Percent wise, four lives will be saved in Scurry County from reading the literature given out during the Crusades.

The District American Cancer Society will meet from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. January 26 at the Hilton Inn at Abilene with the public welcome.

Pat Pierce reported that pamphlets had been distributed in the Snyder clinic, the Nursing Homes annd the Hospital containing information on cancer.

Metals which contain iron are subject to rust. Commercially made metal products sold to the general public are coated with some kind of rust-inhibiting material, but when even a tiny portion of this coating wears off or is knocked off, rust takes over.

It is because rust spreads that it is necessary to take immediate action to remove or control it. A piece of outdoor metal furniture, for instance, may have developed a bare spot no larger than a dime. Ignore it and it will become rusty. Continue to ignore it and it will spread even if the remainder of the object is completely painted. That's because rust moves underneath the paint until it gets such a secure hold that it dislodges the outer coating.

To prevent rust, therefore, it is essential that metal be covered with some substance that prevents air and moisture from attacking it. These coatings can be paint, oils, primers, waxes, silicones, greases, varnishes, lacquers and at least a dozen other products. Once any part of that coating is no longer there, it should be replaced at once. And that doesn't mean the next day, since even a few hours can permit rust to take hold, especially outdoors in damp weather.

Once rust has made an appearance, it should be removed quickly. This can be done with steel wool, emery cloth or any abrasive, used alone or in conjunction with one of the many rust-removing liquids and jellies on the market. Since these latter products are chemicals, it is important that they be used exactly according to instructions on the containers.

Where possible, it is best to get down to the bare metal before repainting or recoating. Sometimes this is not practical, in which case all loose rust particles should be removed, preferably with a wire brush. After that, use one of the rust-inhibiting primers and then a rust-inhibiting paint made by the same manufacturer. These paints now come in various colors.

Applying powdered graphite or a similar product to the inner workings of an outdoor lock will prevent rust as well as keeping the mechanism in good shape. This can be done by blowing graphite into the lock from a squeeze container. Oiling the lock is not generally recommended because of the possibility that it may become gummy and sticky when it dries.

Ira P.T.A. Discusses Education

The Ira P. T. A. unit met in the High School Study Hall, Thursday at 4 p.m. There were 14 present for the meeting.

Mrs. Billy Calley, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Mildred McBeth gave the devotional.

The unit voted to give the Ira F. F. A. $50.00 to be used for prize money for the local stock show.

Reports were given on sickroom linens, cuptowels and Christmas bags.

A nominating committee of Mrs. J. L. Byars, Mrs. Leon Sterling and Mrs. Welden Wiggins was selected.

Fourth grade won the room count with 23 percent.

The program consisted of a group discussion led by Mrs. J. L. Byars on the question, "How Much Importance Should We Place on Continuing Education?"

Using a little cooking fat or oil in a teflon skillet isn't of course necessary, but the food cooked in the skillet has improved color and flavor if a little fat or oil is used.

WHERE EVERY CUSTOMER IS IMPORTANT

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—In our last column, we discussed some points to remember when having a fireplace added to a home. Once the fireplace is built, the next step is purchasing wood to burn in it.

Assistants in the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division say just as there are things to keep in mind when building a fireplace, there are also things to consider when buying wood.

The most important one is to find a dependable firewood dealer.

The majority of firewood dealers are individuals who have been in business for years. They supply good quality wood and depend on satisfied customers for repeat orders.

But, although most consumers in the market for firewood never experience any difficulty, there are some who have been burned by a few unscrupulous dealers.

The most common complaints to our Consumer Protection Division are that a dealer has either delivered less wood than expected or that he has charged more than the agreed-upon price.

The best way to be sure you will get the amount of wood you want is to buy by the cord, the standard unit by which wood is sold. A cord of wood contains 128 cubic feet, and measurements for a cord are usually either 4x4x8 feet or 2x4x16 feet.

The easiest way to measure the wood you buy is to mark off a correctly sized space by the side of a house or a fence and be sure the wood when delivered fills up the area.

Some consumers have complained about ordering firewood from dealers based on a quoted price per cord, only to have extra charges added on for both delivery of the wood and for stacking it.

It's important to establish in advance what the total price will include. Unless you plan to measure and pick up your wood, it is better to have it stacked when delivered to be sure you are getting the full amount.

Some dealers advertise firewood for very inexpensive prices. It often turns out that they are selling wood by the pick-up truck load or by some unit other than a cord. Since pick-up beds can vary greatly, this is a risky way to purchase wood. It's far safer to order wood by the cord, and know the amount you will receive.

Occasionally, firewood purchasers will pay in advance, or will pay in full when only a portion of a firewood order has been delivered, trusting that the complete order will be delivered later.

This is not always wise, as one of the attorneys in our office discovered when the rest of his load never arrived. It would be shrewder to pay after delivery of all the wood, or at least to withhold a significant portion of the total amount until you get what you have ordered.

The type of wood you buy is as important as the amount and should be determined before you buy. In Texas, oak is the most popular firewood for several reasons. It is a very hard wood that burns slowly, it comes in all sizes of logs, and it also has a decorative, rough bark that many people like.

Mesquite is also suitable for firewood, being hard and fairly lowburning. Any other hardwood is fine, too, but such woods as hickory and walnut, which once were in common use in East Texas, are considered too scarce and expensive for use today.

Soft woods such as pine and cedar should be avoided for firewood, but are often used as kindling since they burn hot and fast.

Investigate carefully before buying unusual woods at "special bargain" prices. Some nurseries occasionally offer firewood at very low prices, but it's best to find out exactly what kind of wood will be included.

In addition, some trees that are decorative and useful in the yard may become very objectionable when used in the house for firewood because they produce peculiar odors when burned.

The age of the wood you buy is also very important. Wood that has dried out over several months or even years is usually perferred, although some people do mix in a little green wood.

Amount, price, type, and age—if you determine these four things before purchasing your firewood you probably will have no problem.

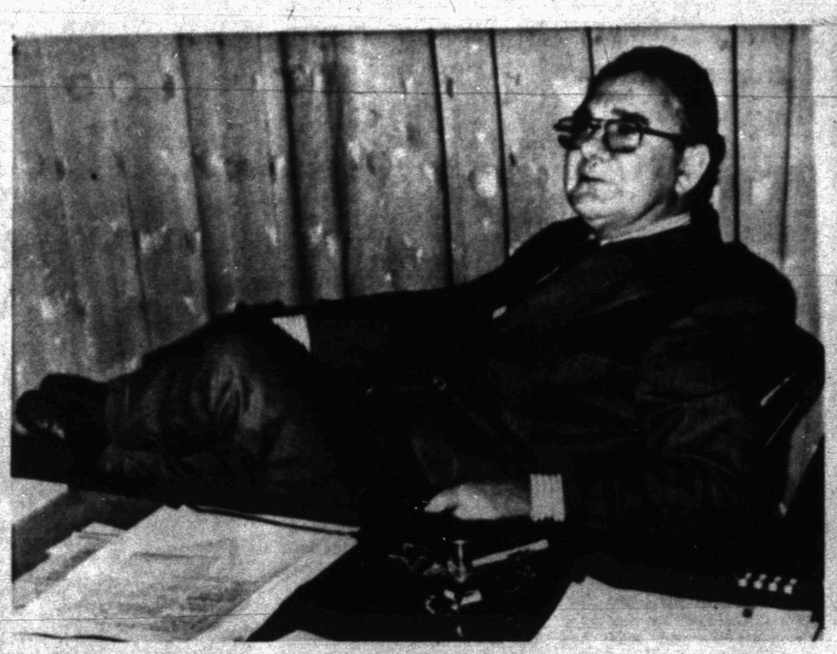

If you do have a complaint, consult the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division, your county or district attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.

Probe Wreck

CHILDRESS, Tex. (AP) — Railroad officials sought clues today to what caused a $3 million derailment of most of an 80-car freight train that lost a big cargo of cotton, cottonseed oil and fertilizer near here.

Sixty-two cars of the Burlington-Northern freight flipped off the tracks, 20 miles south of here, early Sunday, sparking a fire which roared out of control through most of the day. No injuries were reported.

The freight carried cargo from Lubbock to Wichita Falls when the pre-dawn accident occurred.

ABOUT NIXON AND IMPEACHMENT—Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, sits at his desk as he talks with newsmen in Washington. Mills said he thinks President Nixon should consider resigning if Congress reaches the point of full fledged impeachment proceedings against him. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Urge Check On Property Values

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Research League today suggested a spot-check method, which it acknowledged was imperfect, for estimating true property values in school districts.

It made its report to the Legislative Property Tax Committee, which Gov. Dolph Briscoe has asked to develop market values of real estate as the first step toward reforming the state's system for financing public education.

The league recommended the use of small samples of real estate for which recent sale prices or appraised values could be obtained. These values would be compared with the values at which the property is currently assessed for taxation in order to obtain a ratio. Total assessed values then would be divided by the ratio to obtain the estimated market value of all taxable real estate in the district.

For instance, if a sample of property with an assessed value of $100,000 were found to have a true market value of $300,000, the district's assessment ratio would be 33.3 per cent.

Dividing the district's total assessed value of $10 million by that radio would produce $30 million as the estimated market value.

"This is no sense an 'ideal' plan," but one that was dictated by the January 1975 deadline imposed by Briscoe and the limited money available to the committee, said league director Jim McGrew.

He said one problem would be obtaining accurate information from professional appraisers.

"Its disclosure to competitors could seriously affect their competitive position in bidding on appraisal contracts with local taxing jurisdictions," McGrew said. He suggested the committee ask Atty. Gen. John Hill for a legal opinion on whether such information could be held in confidence without violating the new Texas Open Records Act.

Snyder's Tigers will have their hands full when they host the Plainview Bulldogs at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Scurry County Coliseum in another District 4-AAAA basketball tilt. The program begins at 4 p.m. with the sophomores playing, followed by the junior vasity contest at 5:45 p.m..

Both the Tigers and Bulldogs opened their district slates with victories last week. Snyder put down Lubbock High 70-55 while Plainview was upsetting preseason district favorite Lubbock Coronado, 61-53, in overtime. For the season, the Tigers are 8-14 while Plainview is 12-13.

"They've got a big team," declared Tiger Coach Bob Moore. He said they have five boys who stand about 6-5.

Probable starters for Plainview include guards Jerry Wade, 6-0 junior, and Steve Horn, 6-2 senior; center Mark Mangrum, 6-5 senior; and post men Danny Huffhines, 6-5 junior, and Doug Berry, 6-5 senior. Huffhine was the outstanding sophomore in the district last season.

Coach Moore said he again will go with a triple post attack. Welton Cobb, 6-0 junior, Larry Johns, 6-2 junior, and Roy Lee Carter, 6-2 junior, will be at post with Tim Jones, 5-8 senior, and Chester Cobb, 5-11 sophomore, at guard.

TEXAS, TCU PULL UPSETS

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

If there's one thing more confusing than trying to figure out what the price of gasoline is going to be next month, it's the Southwest Conference basketball race and the season is only one week old.

Texas, beaten in 11 out of 12 of its non-conference games, shares the lead with Texas Tech. Should both teams escape unscathed Tuesday night, they will meet Saturday afternoon in Austin in a regionally televised shootout of SWC unbeatens.

But don't bet a tank of gas on it because who would have thought that Texas would upset SMU 87-82 or that Texas Christian would come back from one of its worst beatings in history to bushwhack Texas A&M 88-72 Saturday night?

Tech, playing in the comfort of its home gymnasium, mauled Baylor 78-59 Saturday night and the Arkansas-Rice game was postponed until Sunday because of a power failure in Autry Gym in Houston Saturday afternoon.

The Owls finally beat the Razorbacks 77-69.

Texas surrendered 37 points to SMU's Ira Terrell but held the rest of the team to 10 or less in taking the hard-earned road victory.

Texas Coach Leon Black was particularly proud of the way the Longhorn defense put the clamps on the Mustangs in the second half after trailing 52-46 at halftime.

Black explained that Terrell is going to score his points but added "I thought we did a good job of keeping the ball away from him in the second half. If we hadn't, he might have gotten 50 points."

Again, the pre-season favorite Mustangs had the second half sags. SMU crumbled Tuesday night in the second half against A&M.

SMU Coach Bob Prewitt said, "We just can't play a whole game. We went flat in the second half similar to what we did against A&M."

SMU has lost ace forward Sammy Hervey to the grade book and Prewitt, operating on the last year of his contract, is under fire from some sectors of the SMU alumni.

TCU won the "true grit" award of the week. The Horned Frogs were dismembered 104-53 by Texas in Austin Tuesday night. The Horned Frogs hopped right back into the title picture by somehow whipping the Aggies although the visitors had the rebound edge 70-54.

Herb Stephens, who didn't play against Texas because of a gimpy knee, sparked the Horned Frogs. The 26-year-old senior scored 14 points and led the TCU floor game.

Coach Johnny Swaim praised his underdog Frogs, saying "I have never had a team that deserved to win more than this one."

Tech outscored Baylor 42-26 in the second half before the home folks in Lubbock.

Tech Coach Gerald Myers said "It was one of our better halves defensively this year."

Travis 8th Wins At Abilene

ABILENE—Travis 8th grade won the basketball tournament here over the weekend.

Travis won three games, beating Abilene Madison 67-28, putting down Abilene Mann 42-41, and besting Abilene Jefferson 57-56 in the finals.

Irish Victory Healthy For Basketball—Phelps

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps called the victory a "healthy win for college basketball," but UCLA's Johnny Wooden had to disagree.

"I'm sure a lot of people around the country were rooting for Notre Dame! It's only human nature to want to see the Bruins beaten," said Phelps, whose Irish team broke UCLA's 88-game winning streak with a 71-70 victory Saturday.

The Bruin coach, while playing down the importance of the streak, disputed Phelps' interpretation of the victory.

"If losing the streak was good for college basketball, I think you'd have to say having the streak was bad," said Wooden. "I think it's been one of the greatest things college basketball ever had."

Notre Dame, 10-0 on the season, scored 12 straight points in the final 3:30 to overcome a 70-59 deficit, the last two points coming on an 18-foot jumper by Dwight Clay with 28 seconds left.

In other action involving the Top 10, third-ranked North Carolina State had an easy time with North Carolina-Charlotte 104-72; No. 4 Maryland beat Navy 72-50; No. 5 North Carolina squeezed by Duke 73?1; No. 6 Marquette beat Fordham 90-74; No. 7 Providence defeated St. Joseph's, Pa., 67-62; eighth-ranked Vanderbilt trounced Auburn 96-51; and No. 10 Alabama edged Louisiana State 80-79 in overtime.

UCLA will have a chance to get even, when the Irish travel to the Bruins' Pauley Pavilion Saturday night where the defending national champions have not lost since a March 6, 1970 defeat by Southern California.

Maryland shook off an early 21-20 lead by Navy, going on an 18-point spree to wrap up their game. Tom McMillen scored 27 points to pace the Terps.

Lloyd Walton and reserve Rick Campbell sparked Marquette, which won its 14th victory in 15 games. Walton scored all of his 15 points in the second half, while Campbell finished with 17 points.

Reserve Joe Hassett helped Providence, scoring eight points in the final 10 minutes of the first half of Providence's game with St. Joseph's, Pa. The freshman also rallied his team with two quick buckets when he came back into the lineup in the second half after St. Joseph's had closed to 45-34.

Sophomores Jeff Fosnes and Joe Ford combined for 34 points as Vanderbilt extended its home court winning streak to 15 games. The Commodores overwhelmed Auburn, hitting 58.2 per cent from the field and opening up a lead of 47 points twice during the ballgame.

Alabama's Charlie Russell played the role of "Mr. Clutch", hitting five free throws in overtime, and enabling the Tide to hold down its share of the Southeastern Conference lead. LSU had its home court win streak ended at 13 games.

In other top-ranked games, 11th-ranked South Carolina defeated Pennsylvania 67-57 after staving off a second-half Quaker surge; and No. 12 Indiana beat Iowa 55-51 after rallying from a 48-42 deficit by holding the Hawkeyes to three points during the final 6¾ minutes.

Michigan, No. 14, scored a dramatic 84-82 victory over Michigan State as C.J. Kupec scored with one second remaining. Kupek's 20-footer came seconds after Tom McGill missed a free throw and Michigan got the rebound to set up the winning basket.

New Mexico, slumping badly after a good early season effort, lost 78-71 to Texas-El Paso. It was the No. 15 Lobos' third straight Western Athletic Conference loss and came after Gus Bailey had tallied 19 points for the winners.

Junior Bridgeman fired in 25 points to give Louisville a 94-81 victory over Memphis State. The lead changed hands 12 times in the first half before No. 16 Louisville pulled out to a 48-40 lead at halftime.

Kansas State held off a a comeback attempt by No. 18 Missouri to win 70-67 as guard Len Kruger scored 20 points. Kansas State's zone defense held the Tigers scoreless the first few minutes of the second half, allowing the Wildcats to build a 16-point lead.

No. 19 Wisconsin, with Kim Hughes scoring 22 points, defeated Illinois 101-75, while No. 20 Cincinnati swamped Fairleigh Dickinson 96-70.

AFC Wins On Five Yepremian Field Goals

Garo, a native of Cyprus who didn't go to college, may have the most educated foot in the National Football League. For four years now, Yepremian has helped the world champion Miami Dolphins to victory after victory.

Yepremian's foot did it again Sunday except this time it was for the American Conference. Yepremian's five field goals, the winning one a 42-yarder with 21 seconds remaining, set a Pro Bowl record and gave the AFC a 15-13 triumph over the National Conference in a game that started with 14 first-half turnovers and ended as a cliffhanger.

Prior to his game-decider, Yepremian booted field goals of 16, 37, 27 and 41 yards. He broke the record of four kicked in 1972 by Kansas City's Jan Stenerud.

With his left foot plunged into ice, the bald Yepremian said afterward, "I had to come through for the rest of the guys. The money did not mean anything. Most of the extra $500 the winners get goes for taxes anyway.

"When I went out for that last one, I said a little prayer and asked God to help me once more. He kept me in there again."

Yepremian, helped from the field after a nullified 22-yard field goal in the third quarter when he was hit by Mel Renfro of Dallas, was voted the game's most valuable player. After an offside penalty erased that kick, Yepremian returned and made good on the 27-yarder.

"There was pain after each of the kicks after I got hurt," said Yepremian, "but I'm an athlete, and I can stand pain as much as any athlete."

Nick Mike-Mayer, the Atlanta placekicker, had given the NFC, loser of three consecutive Pro Bowl games, a 13-12 advantage with 1:41 to go with a 21-yard field goal, set up by a recovery of O. J. Simpson's fumble by Jack Youngblood of Los Angeles at the AFC 37.

Mike-Mayer, after Yepremian staked the AFC to a 3-0 first quarter lead, deadlocked the game in the second period with a 27-yarder.

The NFC added the contest's lone touchdown before the half ended, Roman Gabriel of Philadelphia throwing a 14-yard strike to Larry McCutcheon of Los Angeles. The NFC led at the half 10-6.

Oakland's Ken Stabler, who quarterbacked the AFC the entire first half, had a miserable afternoon. He threw four interceptions, completed only two of 15 passes for 19 yards. The NFC's four thefts broke the old mark of three set by the AFC in 1972.

Bob Griese, the Miami quarterback who guided the Dolphins to their smashing 24-7 Super Bowl victory over Minnesota a week earlier, received a wild ovation from the crowd of 51,484 when he took over at the start of the second half.

The Air Force Academy in Colorado is playing its 18th basketball season.

Weather Hampers Horse Races

PAWTUCKET, R.I. (AP) — Narragansett Park, which has lost six of 12 racing dates in the annual winter duel with Old Man Winter, hoped today to resume its 1974 throughbred meeting.

Jockeys refused to ride in the last four races because of hazardous track conditions last Thursday. The frozen strip also forced cancellation of cards Friday and Saturday.

Today's Problems Will Influence Future Society

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Underlying a good many of the business and economic news developments today, and bound also to influence the future of industrial society, are these factors:

—Shortages of commodities. The energy shortage is only the nucleus of the comet; it has a long, long tail. Rising demand throughout the world inevitably will place strains on the supplies of commodities.

These pressures already are showing up in national policies and prices. Realizing their power, the less developed commodity producing nations are raising prices and developing policies of restrained usage.

Argus Research Corp., which supplies much of the basic research used by the investment community, gives several reasons why demand isn't likely to decline, as some businessmen have been hoping.

First of these is the new awareness by the commodity producing nations of the power they have in a world economy in which demand outstrips supply.

Accelerating living standards throughout the world, including the less developed nations, is steadily adding to pressures on supply. So is population growth and mix.

Communist nations of Europe and elsewhere are now emphasizing consumption, after years of building their productive capacity. China, the most populous nation of all, is about to add enormously to the strain on supplies.

And throughout much of the world the population mix is changing, with the biggest growth occurring in the 25-to-39 age group, which is where consumption is heaviest. In the United States that group grew by only 500,000 during the 1950s. In the 1970s it may grow by 15 million.

—The problem of raising productivity without making work meaningless. The way the world knows best to raise output per man-hour is to mechanize and mass produce. But in so doing it forces millions into dull, unrewarding jobs.

Consequences of this show up in complaints about quality, in absenteeism and in poor worker attitudes, all of which reduce productivity and eventually or immediately lower the competitiveness of products.

—With big government monitoring big business more closely than has been the tradition in the United States, who monitors big government?

A good example was provided recently by a U.S. Chamber of Commerce publication, "Washington Report." Last September it commented:

"With little fanfare, the federal government has completely ignored its own 5.5 per cent average wage increase guidelines while the rest of us have been forced to live under the rules imposed by the federal establishment.

"... last year average pay for all federal military and civilian employes increased by 12.8 per cent, which is more than twice the 5.5 per cent guidelines that the federal wage administrators have called for. Included in this is an average increase of 10.7 per cent for employes of government enterprises."

Bulldozer Missing

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Where do you hide a yellow bulldozer that's "as big as a house?"

That's what officials of Industrial Contractors and Developers and local police would like to know after a fruitless, two-week search for the $70,000, 40-ton yellow bulldozer that was stolen from a shopping center construction site.

The company has offered a no-questions-asked $5,000 reward for the uninsured bulldozer.

"All we want is the machine back," said a company official.

Auction Day Brings The Amish

MIDDLEFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Mondays are auction days here — quiet community holidays for the rugged Amish farmers who surround this tiny village in Ohio's Geauga County hill country.

Even before the sales get under way, the horse-drawn buggies and wagons dot the narrow roads around Middlefield, slowing the motorized bustle of the 20th century to the bucolic, plodding gait of the Amish.

Auction days are as old as farmers, but when Martha Givan and her husband, Tom, bought the Geauga Livestock Commission in Middlefield 13 years ago, they figured it wouldn't be long until sprawling Cleveland and its suburbs put the weekly salesbarn out of business.

"We thought that 10 more years and we'd have no more farms," Mrs. Givan said. "We figured we'd have to convert the building to something else."

They hadn't counted on the tenacity of the Amish. Thirteen years later, the sales are still going strong.

There have been some changes. The flea market outside the salesbarn has doubled and redoubled in size, and pale-skinned tourists poke through the merchandise alongside tawny Amish.

Antiques — "junk" to the locals — are the major attractions, although there's an odd assortment of trinket stands, and — on the right Monday — a bookseller sets up his pornographic books and magazine stands.

The auction handles up to 300 head of livestock on an average Monday, although the total rises and falls according to its own market rules.

"Sometimes a farmer will break a leg, and he won't be able to take care of his animals, and he'll bring in his whole farm," Mrs. Givan said. "Sometimes we've peddled an entire dairy herd."

The interest around the auction ring perks visibly in the late afternoon, when the day's quota of horses is led in, sometimes in teams. But lines are already forming at the business office, and trucks as well as horse-drawn wagons are backing up to the rear of the barn to load newly-purchased stock.

The coffee and hamburger crowd in the cafeteria — which often brings in more revenue than the livestock commissions — begins to dwindle, and the flea market outside is gradually dismantled.

"A lot of these farmers are just looking for a place to go," Mrs. Givan says, sipping tea at a cafeteria table. "I guess it's like church or something."

Junior Editors' Quiz on DODDERS

QUESTION: What is a dodder?

ANSWER: A dodder is a common leafless parasitic vine that resembles bright orange threads. It is a destructive weed found in Europe and in many parts of the United States and is a member of the same botanical family as the morning glory, moon flower, sweet potato and others.

Dodders, also called love vines, strangle weed, gold thread, devil's hair and hell bind, are plants without chlorophyll. They grow from seed, then twine around some other plant, attached by little suckers, taking their food from the host plant. Dodders feed on wild and cultivated plants. They are especially menacing to clover, alfalfa and flax. They seem to have little appetitie for ornamentals in the garden.

The flowers of the dodder – small white, pink or yellow – appear in clusters from early June to the end of the growing season. The seeds, ripening from July until frost, are abundant and often mingle with the seeds of alfalfa or clover. Farmers cut and burn dodder plants when they first appear in the spring, but they are hard to eradicate.

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S PUZZLE

BOOK FULFILLS DUTY

Author Ready For Anything

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn, denounced as a traitor by Soviet authorities for his book "Gulag Archipelago," said today the book has fulfilled his duty to the dead.

He said he and his family are "ready for anything."

In written answers to questions submitted to him by Western newsmen, the Nobel prize-winning author refused to speculate on what the Kremlin might do to him for smuggling his history of Soviet labor camps out of Russia for publication abroad.

"I am not going to make predictions," he said. "I and my family are ready for anything. I have fulfilled my duty to the dead. It gives me relief and tranquility.

"This truth was doomed to die. It was being downtrodden, was being drowned, burned, ground to ashes. But look, it has survived, it lives, it has been printed — and nobody ever will be able to wipe it out."

Solzhenitsyn disputed charges that the book has harmed detente between the Soviet Union and the West. It is "not he who tells about committed crimes who brings harm to peace and to good relations among people and peoples, but he who committed or is committing them," he said.

He also replied to historian Roy A. Medvedev, another member of the dissident movement, who wrote that reform could only come from inside the Soviet Union and criticized him and physicist Andrei Sakharov for their appeals to foreign opinion.

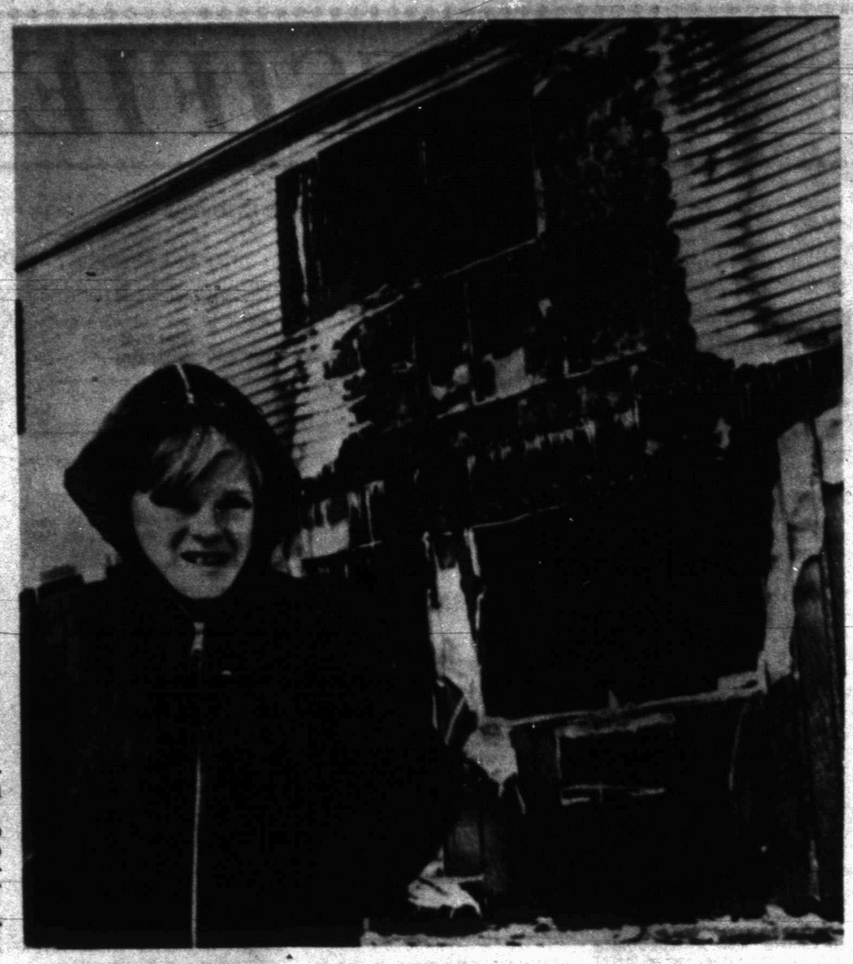

Solzhenitsyn agreed that those disatisfied with aspects of Soviet life should not seek help from other governments. But "we addressed the world public and figures of culture," he said. "Their support is priceless, always effective, always helps. We both now are unharmed and alive only because of that."

He said the proposal of Roy Medvedev and his brother Zhores to seek help from Western Communist circles would not work.

The only direct way to change things, he said, is to "address our readers, our compatriots and especially our youth."

Asked how these could render support, he replied:

"Not by physical actions, only by rejection of lies, with personal nonparticipation in lies. Each person should decisively stop cooperating with lies everywhere he sees them himself."

YOUNG LIFESAVER—Eight-year-old Tracy Kexel of Groton, Conn., saved the lives of his parents, John and Kathryn Kexel, and his two-month-old brother, James, when fire gutted their apartment. Tracy ran through near-zero weather in his underwear at 5:30 a.m. to alert nieghbors after awakening his father, who called the fire department. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Canadians Paying More For Gas, Heating Oil

By HOWARD ANGIONE
Associated Press Writer

Canadians are paying higher prices for gasoline and home heating oil, but their nation hasn't been hit with an "energy crisis" comparable to the one in the United States.

To keep Canada on a steady energy course, officials of its provinces and federal government will meet in Ottawa Tuesday and Wednesday to work on current problems and make long-range plans.

Their decisions will affect more than Canadians because Canada is the largest single foreign supplier of oil to the United States, accounting for about 7 per cent of U.S. imports.

Canada is the only Western nation which currently has the capability of producing enough crude oil for its own needs. Yet Canada exports roughly half the yield from its wells — one million barrels a day — to the United States. This results in an oil deficit which Canada makes up for with imports.

The reason is that Canada's oil wells are in the western part of the nation, but the pipeline to carry oil eastward now extends only to Sarnia, a small community near Toronto.

Until the recent upheaval in world oil supply patterns, it was cheaper for Canada to import oil for its eastern provinces — mostly from Venezuela, Arab countries, and Iran.

As a result, the eastern Canadian consumer has been hit hardest by price increases. Imperial Oil Co., the largest distributor in Canada, reports that since July 1 the cost of gasoline in the East has gone up 10 cents per "imperial gallon," which contains the equivalent of 1¼ U.S. gallons. In western provinces, prices are up about 2 cents a gallon. Gasoline prices range from 54.9 cents per gallon at Vancouver in the west to 73.4 cents at St. John's, Nfld., in the east.

The home fuel oil situation is similar — prices up 7 to 8 cents a gallon to as high as 34.7 cents in St. John's with 2 cent increases in the West with residents of Vancouver paying 26.2 cents.

To keep Canadian oil from being so far below world prices that demand for it depletes domestic supplies, Canada has instituted an export tax designed to make the cost of exported Canadian oil comparable to the higher prices being charged by Arab nations.

The tax started last fall at 40 cents a barrel. It is now $2.20 a barrel and scheduled to hit $6.40 a barrel Feb. 1.

As Canadians watch the United States try to cope with its energy problems, pressure is mounting for Canada to come up with a long-range energy resources development program so the nation won't get caught short in a decade or so when its currently available resources begin to diminish.

In order to develop its untapped resources in time to meet its own future needs, Canada needs the money from continued oil sales to the United States, oil industry sources say. But selling oil to America could endanger future oil independence for Canada at the same time.

Coyote Project Is Step

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — An experimental project to fight coyotes that kill sheep is a step forward, a New Mexico sheep man says, but not as big a step as he would want.

New Mexico Wool Growers Association secretary Charles D. Fuller, of Roswell, said a pilot program in Texas, suggested by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, will be conducted only on selected private lands.

He said that unless the program includes federal lands were millions of sheep graze, it will be difficult to gain any great saving of sheep from marauding coyotes.

The project involves the use of the previously outlawed M44 cyanide gun. The small, spring-loaded device containing scented bait that attracts coyotes. It shoots a cyanide pellet into the mouth of animals that trigger it.

The federal agency said the year-long program in Texas is to determine if there is any adverse affect on other wildlife and its affect on the coyote population.

Fuller said the program might help in a state like Texas where there is little federal land. But he said much of the New Mexico sheep grazing is on federal range lands.

He also said use of the gun and traps will not control coyotes in New Mexico because of the topography. Fuller, a retired rancher, criticized federal actions that outlawed the use of toxic chemicals to fight coyotes.

But he said the program is a step in the right direction and he will apply for permission to use the cyanide gun again in New Mexico.

Six Named To Cotton Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has named six new members to the 20-man Cotton Board to serve for the next two years.

They are J. Clyde Wilson of Litchfield Park, Ariz.; Lon G. Mann of Marianna, Ark.; Dolan E. Brown Jr. of Twin City, Ga.; Frank T. Brumfield of Inverness, Miss.; Billy W. Golden of Seymour, Tex., and Garland R. Swayer of Hillsboro, Tex.

The federally financed board, which administers a research and promotion program for upland cotton, is composed of members nominated by certified cotton producer organizations in cotton producing states.

Says Transcripts Refute Charges Of John Dean

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Detailed White House transcripts refuting charges by John W. Dean III that President Nixon knew of the Watergate cover-up were prepared but never released, an informed source has disclosed.

The source, who said he has read the transcript based on secret presidential tapes, said the White House had planned to release them as part of "Operation Candor" but later decided against making them public.

The source added, however, that the transcripts cover material available to the Watergate grand juries and could form the basis for perjury charges against Dean, the former White House counsel turned prime presidential accuser.

The White House declined comment Sunday on the matter.

Neither Dean nor his lawyers were available for comment.

Specifically, the source said, the transcripts he read disprove Dean's claim that his conversations with Nixon show the President was aware of the Watergate cover-up before the March 21, 1973, date on which Nixon says he learned of it.

They show that conversations Dean said took place on different dates between Sept. 15, 1972, and March 21, 1973, all took place on the latter date, the source explained.

The source said the former White House counsel apparently was tripped up by the fact that, unknown to him when they occurred or when he testified, the conversations were being taped by the secret presidential recording system.

A primary reason for deciding against release of the transcripts was fear that such action could trigger demands for further disclosures, the source said. He said these demands would jeopardize the confidentiality that Nixon and his top aides have insisted should be maintained.

He also said that another reason was fear that publication of the transcripts, and widespread comment on them, could jeopardize successful prosecution of some of the Watergate-related indictments expected to be brought shortly by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

The source disclosed existence of the transcripts after Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said on nationwide television he had information that could clear Nixon of Watergate wrongdoing but that the White House was unwilling to make it public.

Appearing on the CBS radio-television program, "Face the Nation," the Pennsylvania Republican said he has been unable to "break through the shell of advisers" surrounding Nixon who have urged the President to halt Watergate disclosures.

Scott also said the President should cooperate fully with the FBI in its investigation of gaps on a White House tape.

Scott said he spoke to Nixon Friday and urged the President to make available to the FBI "all personnel who had contact" with the tape.

War Declared On Terrorism

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Juan D. Peron declared all-out war on terrorism Sunday night after Marxist guerrillas raided a major army camp and killed the commander, his wife and a sentry.

Peron, dressed in a general's uniform, said in a radio-television broadcast that the attack was part of a deliberate plan to impede reconstruction.

"The time to shout 'Peron' has passed. It is now time to defend him," the president declared. "We will not allow this to go on any longer ... We will take all measures necessary to destroy terrorism at its roots."

His voice quaking, he called for a general mobilization of the people to assist the government in putting down terrorism and kidnaping, which have increased since he took office Oct. 12.

Officials said that between 60 and 70 members of the Marxist ERP — the People's Revolutionary Army — raided the garrison at Azul, 280 miles south of Buenos Aires, Saturday night and held it until daybreak.

Most of the 2,000-man garrison was asleep when the raiders, dressed in army uniforms, captured a sentry post. They killed a private on sentry duty there and quickly took control of key positions on the base, including the home of the base commander, Col. Camilo Arturo Gay.

The guerrillas took one officer, Lt. Col. Jorge Roberto Ibarzabal, with them as a hostage when they broke through police roadblocks that had been thrown up outside the base. Two of the attackers were believed killed, and an unknown number were wounded, authorities said. The raiders carried their casualties away.

The People's Revolutionary Army is the country's largest and best organized guerrilla group. Last September it tried to seize an army medical corps headquarters in downtown Buenos Aires but failed. One soldier was killed and three wounded in that attack and 10 guerrillas were arrested.

The group, which is at odds with the bulk of the Argentine left wing, has been highly critical of Peron, calling him a "bourgeois reformist" who has "betrayed the masses."

East Coast Braces For Storm

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Travel warnings were posted today as the East Coast braced for a winter storm rolling in from the Great Lakes.

Ice and freezing rain were expected from eastern New York and northeast Pennsylvania through New Hampshire and southern New England.

A freezing rain warning was in effect for upper Michigan as rain fell from South Dakota across the upper Great Lakes and into northeastern New York and Vermont.

At the southern edge of this storm system, heavy rains brought flooding to Mississippi and Tennessee. Ten families were evacuated from homes in southern Mississippi.

Two tornadoes struck Sunday—one in Arlington, Ga., which destroyed a mobile home and two warehouses and one in Goshen, Ala., which killed thousands of chickens. No injuries were reported to residents

Light rain fell in the upper Mississippi Valley today, sending rivers even higher than expected.

Snow again fell in the central Rockies as a new storm gathered strength in Arizona. Heavy snow warnings were issued for southern Utah and the Colorado mountains.

ADA Gives Ford Zero

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten House Democrats scored 100 per cent while Vice President Gerald R. Ford got a zero Sunday as the Americans for Democratic Action released its annual rating of voting records of the House of Representatives.

Ford was one of 47 House members the ADA said failed to vote for what it considered the liberal position on 25 votes last year.

A spokesman for Ford declined to comment on the rating.

Issues on which the rating was conducted included Ford's nomination as vice president, which the ADA opposed, and on which Ford did not vote. Other votes included presidential war powers, the Vietnam war, foreign aid, women's rights, school busing, food stamps, mass transit, education funds, environmental issues, tax reform, defense and other government spending.

House Democrats listed as scoring 100 per cent included Bella S. Abzug, Jonathan B. Bingham and Benjamin S. Rosenthal of New York; Phillip Burton and Don Edwards of California; Robert F. Drinan and Michael Harrington of Massachusetts; Robert W. Kastenmaier of Wisconsin; Parren J. Mitchell of Maryland and John F. Seiberling of Ohio.

Tow Cattle Out Of Flood Areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Idaho cowboys riding motorboats instead of horses roped stranded cattle and towed them out of flooded areas as most of the Pacific Northwest returned to normal today after a week of flooding.

A Red Cross spokesman in northern Idaho said cowboys were towing strays out of swamped areas with motorboats and occasionally gave the cattle artifical respiration to revive them.

No new major flooding was reported in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana or Northern California, but the National Weather Service predicted rainshowers for the region today.

A helicopter pilot became the 17th reported flood-related fatality when his helicopter crashed Sunday. The pilot, Larry Brown, 26, of Yakima, Wash., was flying supplies to persons stranded by floods in south-central Washington.

AT HOMEBUILDERS MEETING

Martin Blames Nixon For Housing Decline

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) has blamed the Nixon Administration for a steep decline in housing production.

George C. Martin, a Louisville, Ky., builder, said a failure to reverse the trend could cause or worsen a recession.

William E. Simon, administrator of the Federal Energy Office, and Housing Secretary James T. Lynn were to address delegates today.

Other second day speakers include Kenneth Cole, White House advisor on domestic affairs; John Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council; Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen of New York; and Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee.

Martin said only 1.3 million housing units will be started this year if starts continue at the rate reported in December. This would be well below the 2 million-unit production achieved last year when the total failed to match the 1972 record of 2.4 million.

Martin said about one million persons in the building industry already are unemployed and that unemployment is growing in housing, furniture, appliances, carpets and related industries.

He said the NAHB is urging a three-point program to improve the situation, which he blamed chiefly on the housing policy of the government under President Nixon.

The NAHB believes interest rates should be cut from 8.5 to 7 per cent on home loans issued through the Federal Housing Administration, Martin said.

He said the Nixon Administration should end the 12-month old freeze on subsidized low and medium income housing authorized under Sections 235 and 236 of the National Housing Act.

Banks and savings and loan associations should be limited in how much they can invest in interest payments on four-year certificates of deposit that draw money away from home loans and interest rates on the certificates should be cut, he added.

Although the Nixon Administration drew most of the fire from Martin, he said a shortfall in housing production to meet an estimated annual need for 2.5 million or more units cannot be blamed wholly on the administration.

"Congress also is failing to show leadership in the housing field," he said. "It has failed to override vetoes and end impoundments of housing and utility funds."

He also said "some slackening in housing demand can no doubt be attributed to the fact that prices are being raised by home builders as they are by oil companies, bankers and others."

Martin complained that there has been a change in government philosophy on the housing program.

"The present philosophy seems to be that maybe the government should get out of the housing program after all these years," he said. "It's also being contended that housing money should be treated as a free market commodity.

"The trouble is there can be no free market in a commodity if the supply is restricted as it is on housing funds. The same philosophy is not prevalent in Britain. And the 11 per cent interest on a home loan over there will soon go to 12."

More than 50,000 members and guests from 50 states and 15 foreign countries are expected to attend the convention. The convention is in its sixth year here. It has been booked for the next three years in Dallas.

Wounded Hostage Recalls Fright

HOUSTON (AP) — A supermarket employes who was wounded while being held hostage in a gunman's escape car says she was afraid "but glad I wasn't dying."

Frieda Lummus, 37, head cashier at the Kroger food store, was one of 13 captives held for 10 hours at the store and one of three taken as the band it fled by automobile.

Doctors said Mrs. Lummus suffered two bullet wounds on her head but was resting comfortable at a hospital. Originally it was believed she had suffered only minor cuts from a shattered rear window in the getaway car.

Wesley Earl Evans, 22, surrendered not long after speeding away Saturday evening in the unmarked police car.

He was arrested on a dead-end road off a Houston freeway.

Authorities charged him with robbery and kidnaping. He was held without bond.

Taken in the car with him were Mrs. Lummus, Dianne Lewis, 28 another store employe, and police Lt. William Doss, 63. Only Mrs. Lummus was injured.

Doss was in the vicinity of the store when a report of a robbery came in. He volunteered to go there and was taken hostage.

During the getaway Doss was forced to drive the car. Mrs. Lummus sat in the front seat and the gunman and Mrs. Lewis in the back.

Detectives said Mrs. Lummus probably was wounded when the man fired from the back seat toward a uniformed policeman at an intersection. Officers said there were two bullet holes in the corner of the front windshield. They said the man also shattered the car's rear window with a gunshot aimed at a pursuing helicopter.

Police said they fired no shots at the fleeing car.

Detectives said Evans had been in the store since Friday night and he confronted manager Wayne Stephens, 28, as the place opened Saturday morning.

He took about $600 from Stephens but a fire alarm went off and alerted police. Stephens was taken hostage with the others in the store but later escaped.

During the next 10 hours police, who had surrounded the store, tried to negotiate with the gunman as he held the 13 hostages inside.

He made several demands, including one that radio stations stop broadcasting news of the event. Many stations complied.

Finally the gunman, surrounded by hostages, made his escape in Doss' car, which had been parked behind the store. He forced Doss and the two women to accompany him.

In a telephone interview Sunday from her hospital room, Mrs. Lummus said she was told by the gunman to "sit up and act like everything was normal—like we were out for a joy ride."

She heard a loud noise in her ear, she said, and first thought the gunman had shot her—and then that police had fired through the rear window.

She said the gunman grew angry because the helicopters gave chase.

"He threatened to throw one of us out of the car dead," she said.

After the car pulled off the highway onto the dead end dirt road, police vehicles blocked the return route.

Police, who had been following in unmarked cars, surrounded the car and ordered the gunman to drop a pistol pointed at Mrs. Lewis' head.

"He said he was going to take Dianne with him," Mrs. Lummus said, but moments later he gave up.

Mrs. Lummus, mother of three teen-age children, suffered two bullet wounds near the top of her head, her doctor said. He said the bullets did not enter the skull but may have scraped the bone.

"It is very unlikely the bullets came from outside the car," the doctor said.

Authorities said Evans had been convicted and served prison sentences for auto theft and for pulling a fire alarm on six occasions without reason.

Oil Spill Cleanup Continues

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Shell Oil Co. cleanup operations on the Mississippi River continued today while a progress report suggested that estimates of the quantity of crude oil which escaped from a company pipeline would be revised upward.

A company spokesman said about 1,600 barrels of oil had been recovered Sunday night.

About 1,500 barrels of it were taken from a 400-foot stretch of the river at Kenner, a few miles from New Orleans, he said.

The recovery figure of 1,600 barrels compared with a total leakage figure of 2,000 barrels acknowledged by Shell Friday night, several hours after the sub-river leak was stopped.

The spokesman, John Wright, conceded Sunday night that the total would be "in excess of 2,000 barrels," but he wouldn't speculate on how much more.

Wright said the pipeline probably had been leaking for 24 hours before it was discovered.

Front Due Tuesday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clouds all but disappeared over Texas today and temperatures were relatively mild for January.

About the only flaw in early morning was thick fog in places. One trouble spot was around Brownsville and McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, where lowered visibility hampered travelers.

It also was foggy around Corpus Christi on the Coastal Bend and Tyler and Texarkana in East Texas.

After a weekend which saw the nation's top temperature of 88 degrees recorded at Alice and Beeville in South Texas, forecasters warned that another cold front was approaching through the Western states.

The new front, preceded by at least occasional showers, was expected to push into Central Texas by Tuesday.

Temperatures near dawn today ranged from 36 degrees at Waco in the state's midsection up to 58 at Brownsville.

Boy Drowns

HOUSTON (AP) — Albert Earl Price, 10, drowned Sunday in Halls Bayou.

Police said he was playing on a mud bank when he slipped into the water. The body was recovered about 75 yards downstream.

Nixon's Rating At New Low

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Gallup Poll's approval rating for President Nixon again has dropped to his all-time low of 27 per cent.

The Gallup organization conducted the poll Jan. 4-7, shortly after the Internal Revenue Service announced it was re-auditing the President's recent tax returns.

Nixon's first 27 per cent approval rating in the poll came in late October, after he fired special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. In a similar poll last month, his rating was 29 per cent.

In the latest poll, 1,504 adults were asked: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as President?"

Besides the 27 per cent approving, 63 per cent disapproved and 10 per cent expressed no opinion.

Gallup said a breakdown by party showed Republicans approved of Nixon's performance by 53 per cent. Only 11 per cent of Democrats and 26 per cent of independents polled said they approved.

Nixon's current rating is eight points below the lowest rating given the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, 35 per cent. The lowest rating for any president was the 23 per cent once given Harry S. Truman.

Career In Dog Grooming

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: I would like to know where I can go to learn clipping French poodles. There is no one in this area and several poodles I need to go into this business. -- R H C., Wilson, Ark.

Dog grooming schools can be located through ads in dog magazines, or through "Lovejoy's Career & Vocational School Guide." If you can travel to another city perhaps you can find a groomer willing to teach you. Or if you've had experience handling dogs, try teaching yourself with a new illustrated how to book, "All Breed Dog Grooming Guide," by Kohl & Goldstein (Arco Books, 219 Park Avenue So., New York, N.Y. 10003; $8.95).

Dear Joyce: My husband and I were divorced several years ago. There were no children. I'd like to have a job where I could travel. Any suggestions? -- C.S., Chicago, Ill.

Without knowing any special skills you possess, sales and promotional work for manufacturers and organizations are obvious options. In addition to the help wanted ads in this newspaper, and employment agencies, go to the library and look at the ads in out-of-town newspapers and trade magazines. For other ideas you can read "Travelling Jobs for Women," available from Pilot Books (347 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016; $2).

Dear Joyce: I'm 17 and my dad says it's time I learned how to make a buck. I figure I may as well go into business for myself and I was thinking about cleaning swimming pools or putting in plastic underground watering systems for lawns. Could I make money doing these kinds of things? -- C.B., Brentwood, Mo.

Your investment would be minimal, so give it a try. You'll have to convince customers that you know how to properly care for a pool, and that you won't tear up their lawns. So why not do a few jobs for "cost of materials only" in exchange for written recommendations of your work? Put the recommendations in an album, along with a few photographs of you on the job. Take the album along when you canvas neighborhood streets for customers.

You'll probably get a better reception if you mail or distribute mimeographed announcements of your services in advance, noting that you will be calling in person in a few days.

There are more ideas along this line in "100 Ways to Make Money in Your Spare Time, Starting with Less Than $100," by Stockwell and Holtje (Parker Publishing Co., West Nyack, N.Y. 10994 $7.95).
