Operating Government From Hospital...

Reagan Out Of Intensive Care

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-spirited, ambulatory President Reagan is out the intensive care unit and recuperating in a suite at the George Washington University Hospital, his personal physician said today.

Dr. Daniel Ruge, in a report issued through the White House press office, said the president stayed up Tuesday night until 11 p.m. EST to watch the first hour of the televised Academy Awards presentation.

"Although he is somewhat uncomfortable, the president slept quite well," said Ruge. "He has been out of bed and walked." He said Reagan's vital signs remained normal.

The move to the suite was made Tuesday night.

The physician said there were no changes overnight in the conditions of White House press secretary James S. Brady and Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy, also wounded by an assailant who struck at Reagan Monday afternoon and both hospitalized at George Washington.

Even before he was moved from intensive care, Reagan had turned his room into a temporary Oval Office.

He was described Tuesday as ready to take charge in any emergency while he recovers from the assassination attempt that sources said may have been planned to gain the attention of a young actress.

Various sources said John W. Hinckley Jr., 25, the man accused of shooting the president, described his plans in an unmailed letter to 18-year-old actress Jodie Foster and said, "I'm going to do it for you." Miss Foster starred in a movie about a plot to kill a political candidate, and congressional and Justice Department sources said the letter indicated Hincklei was "infatuated" with her.

Reagan, meanwhile, was reported recovering "extremely well" from the gunshot wound to his chest, and White House counselor Edwin Meese III said the president would begin receiving his daily national security briefing today at George Washington University Hospital. He met with his top aides Tuesday.

At the White House, it was business as usual.

"The government did not skip a beat," deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Tuesday.

"It's just as if the president were here in the Oval Office the way the White House is running," added Michael K. Deaver, the White House deputy chief of staff.

WIN DISTRICT—The cast of "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," won district one-act play honors in UIL competition Tuesday at the Midland Community Theater. In addition, Jack O'Banion was named Best Actor, and Barry Tubb and Mark Robertson were named to the All-Star cast. Hunter Crawford received Honorable Mention. Directed by high school drama teacher Jerry Worsham, the crew will compete in the regional contest April 22 in Odessa. Pawn Shop Guns In Gang War

DALLAS (AP) — Federal agents say a large number of weapons used in the deadly "Chinatown Wars" in New York were purchased from the same Dallas pawn shop that sold the pistol used to shoot President Reagan.

The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday that undercover agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms traced weapons used in a murder, kidnapping and assault on a police officer — all involving Chinese gang members in New York — to Rocky s Pawn Shop in downtown Dallas.

However, federal agents told the newspaper that pawn shop owner Isaac "Rocky" Goldstein apparently violated no laws by selling the weapons linked to the Chinatown violence in 1978 and 1979.

Seek End To Prison Panel

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Department of Corrections officials are looking for a way to abolish the three-member board, chaired by Gov. Bill Clements, that decides where the state will build prisons, The Associated Press has learned.

Doing away with the Prison Approval Board would give the Board of Corrections the power to buy prison land. TDC hopes to get money to buy two new prison sites in 1982 and 1983.

Light Turnout In Absentee Voting

Absentee voting for city and school elections ended Tuesday, and in most cases here, little interest was noted.

However, the total for the Snyder School election did perk up during the last two days of the of the absentee voting period, finally reaching a total of 64.

The Snyder School District will fill two places in the Saturday election.

There were seven absentee votes in the Ira School election, but only one absentee vote was cast in the Hermleigh School election.

The Snyder city election, which has no contests for five places on the council, had a total of six absentee votes.

Both the city and school elections in Snyder will be held Saturday at the city hall.

Ira and Hermleigh schools will be the site for their respective elections.

Snyder School candidates are Roy McQueen, Charles Freeman and Vera Stansell for Place 6, and Joseph D. Hinton and Dr. Paul Thompson for Place 7.

Candidates for two places on the Hermleigh School Board are Jay Roemisch, Allen Kuss and Jimmy Hudgins.

Three places are to be filled on the Ira School Board, and the candidates there are Donnie Dunn, Tommy Sterling, John Wilson and Robert Barbee.

Seeking places on the Snyder City Council are Gale McPherson, Place 1; Ed Thrift, Place 2; John Wilson, Place 3; David Holt, Place 5, and Rod Waller, Place 6.

Mock Tornado Exercise Here

If you have radio equipment that picks up emergency calls, don't be alarmed tommorow when you hear about a tornado moving in on Snyder from the south. A mock emergency tornado exercise is scheduled to take place at 1 p.m. as part of the civil defense communications program being conducted here.

The exercise involves radio transmissions only, said the Sheriff's Office, which will be participating in the exercise along with the police department, the fire department, the ambulance service, the hospital, utility companies and the schools.

The scenario will begin something like this: A tornado will approach Snyder from the south. The Kingswood Apartments on East 37th St. will be destroyed and the twister will move on to U.S. Highway 84 where it strikes Royal Trailer Park. East Elementary school will also be damaged.

Firemen will respond to a major fire and there will be casualties ensuing from the storm.

The exercise will be conducted entirely over the airways and emergency vehicles will not be moving around town, as indicated by the transmissions.

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest commercial bank, today cut its prime lending rate a half percentage point to 17 percent, matching a level first set March 19.

But many other major banks kept their lending rate for their most creditworthy corporate customers at 17.5 percent.

High School Friends Say Hinckley Changed

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — John Warnock Hinckley Jr., charged with trying to assassinate President Ronald Reagan, changed from an "average" high school student to a troubled, lonely young man by the time he enrolled in college, according to the memories of those who knew him then.

Classmates at Highland Park High School in Dallas, where Hinckley graduated in 1973, have recalled him as "average" and "part of the crowd."

But Calvin Wynne, a maintenance man at the Lubbock apartment where Hinckley, 25, lived while a student at Texas Tech University, said Hinckley told him political leaders should be eliminated.

"His attitude, his personality, was strained," Wynne said of Hinckley, currently tranquilized and held without bond at a U.S. Marine Corps base near Washington, D.C., where he awaits psychiatric evaluations.

One of Hinckley's former professors at Tech, Otto Nelson, said Hinckley wrote a book report on Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and one on the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz in Poland, where 2 million people were killed, as extra-credit projects in a 1978 German history class.

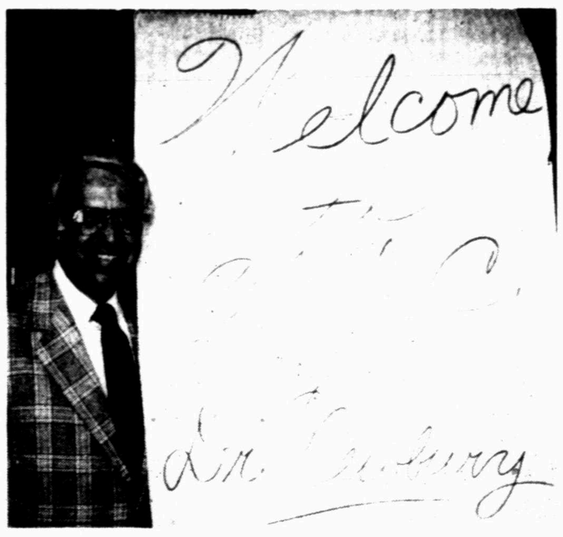
Nelson said he recalled Hinckley as a self-sufficient student who took no part in class discussions, and characterized him as "attentive, diligent, punctual."

During last year's presidential campaign Hinckley said if he had to choose he would support Libertarian Party candidate Ed Clark, "but as far as he was concerned, none of them knew what they were doing," Wynne said.

"The main gist of the conversation was about political leaders, and what he thought should be done was that they should all be eliminated," Wynne said.

"It seemed he wanted to find someone to tell whatever his problem was," Wynne added. "There was a nervousness about him."

In a strange side development, it was revealed Tuesday that Hinckley's older brother, Scott, was to have dined Tuesday night with the son of Vice President George Bush in Neil Bush's Denver home.



CAMPUS GREETING—Personnel in the Western Texas College Administration Building prepared this sign to welcome Dr. Don Newbury to the campus this morning on his first official day as president of the college. It was hung in a prominent spot at the south entrance to the building and everyone saw it on the way to work---that is, everyone except Dr. Newbury. He attended the Booster Club breakfast and then made an unexpected entance through the north doors. Well, anyway, it is April 1--April Fool!

Long John Silver Permit Issued Here

A building permit was issued here this morning for construction of a Long John Silver seafood restaurant.

Construction is due to begin immediately on the new building, which will be located at 3412 College Ave. just north of the K mart store.

The permit is for construction of a 2,140 square-foot building costing $120,000. Completion is expected in late June.

Contractor for the project is Slater & Associates of Irving.

The entrance and exit for vehicles will be on College Ave., and the building will be similar to those occupied by the firm in other cities with drive-in facilities added.

The SDN Column

Although, as it turned out, the shooting Monday in Washington, D. C., was not so tragic as the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas, there appeared to be more confusion among those who were trying to find out precisely what happened.

News reports were somewhat sketchy and even inaccurate on several occasions Monday. We attribute it to the fact that it happened in Washington where there are officials everywhere. In Dallas, there were only a couple of sources of information--law enforcement people and Parkland Hospital. Nobody in Washington knew anything about it.

For nearly an hour Monday, our news wire indicated that President Ronald Reagan had not been hit by a bullet, and by the time his wound was discovered, we had gone to press.

Then, it seems that all media reported the death of James Brady at around 4 p. m. our time, only to learn shortly thereafter that he was still alive.

As we recall the events of the Kennedy assassination, accurate reports came much more quickly than those of Monday.

We were able to get a lot of information in that day's issue of the SDN, and it stood pretty much as we first received it.

We were impressed Monday by the performance of Dr. Dennis O'Leary, who handled several bushels of questions in a briefing at the George Washington University Hospital. He not only was articulate, but also kept things in perspective despite some questions that we thought were beside the point, if not completely irrelevant.

Of course the inevitable question was directed to Lyn Nofziger, one of the president's advisors: How will this affect the president's attitude toward handgun controls?

Nofziger had no answer, of course, but we thought it might have been amusing if Nofziger had answered by saying, "He'll probably start wearing one."

Dr. Don Newbury officially became president of Western Texas College today, and some people, such as George Dolan of the Fort Worth Star Telegram, will not let him forget that he took over on April Fools' Day.

But Newbury has come up with what may be a good omen. Digging into the records of the relatively young WTC, he discovered that Dr. Robert Clinton, whom Newbury succeeded, also went on the payroll on April 1. He seemed to fare rather well after an April Fools' start, Newbury observed.

scare story trends

Trendy causes have run their course when a big-name politician gets off the bandwagon.

New York Gov. Hugh Carey, apparently believing that the PCBs scare is no longer politically in, is offering to drink a glass of PCBs to demonstrate his belief that fears about the chemical are overblown. Carey's offer followed the mass exit of a state building in Binghamton March 5 after an electrical transformer fire.

"I'm trying to draw a line between a reasonable risk and an unnecessary degree of precaution," commented Carey. "Life is a risk."

Ruffled by the remarks were members of the state's 215,000-member Civil Service Employees Association, which asked its members to chip in a penny each to send the governor to Binghamton to carry out his offer to drink a glass of PCBs — a chemical considered toxic and cancer-causing.

So far, the union hasn't raised the money and Carey hasn't gone to Binghamton.

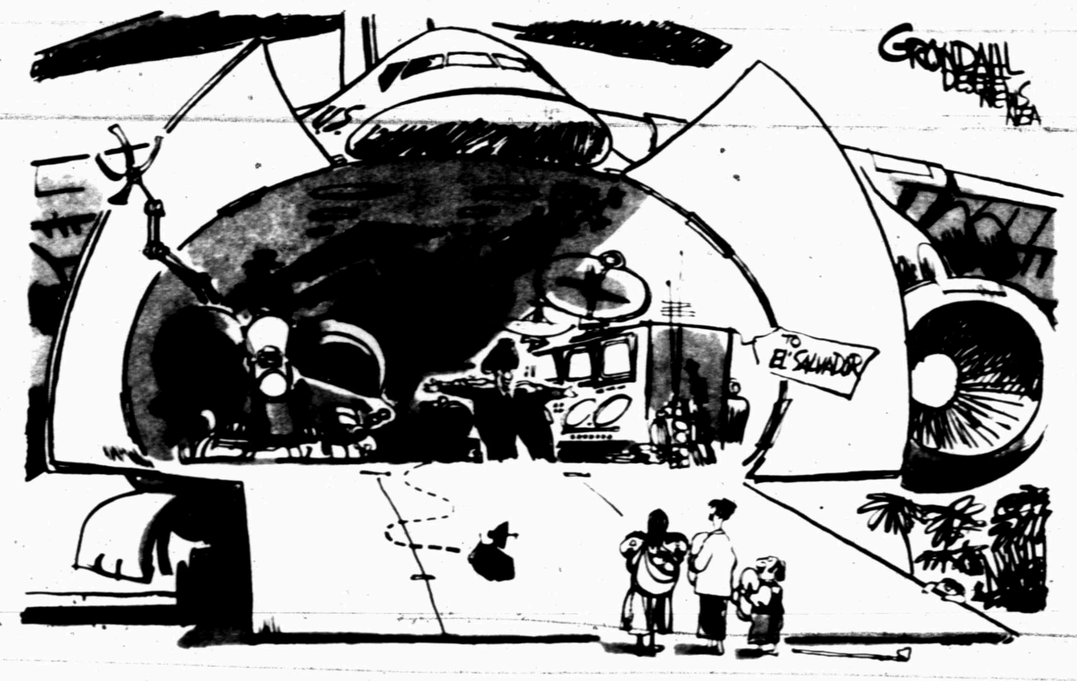
In light of numerous news stories dealing with the alleged deadliness of PCBs, an aside to Carey's offer was a UPI story from Alfred, N.Y., in which an Alfred University professor conceded that a glass of PCBs probably wouldn't hurt the governor.

"No way would I be drinking it," said Prof. Richard Sands. "On the other hand, if he (Carey) wanted to do it one time, I don't think there's any danger to it."

You can't help but wonder where the truth lies in today's world of environmental scare stories. Perhaps, in fact, there is much substance to the remarks of former Washington governor Dixy Lee Ray who told an energy conference in Laguna Hills:

"There is a small band of activists determined to destroy the corporate structure that produces energy, especially electricity, in this country.

We know of no civilization past or present bombarded with more environmental scare stories than the United States in recent years. We all know the result — delays, cancellation and regulation to the point of work halts on anything smacking of progress in meeting the needs of today. How much of it is "anti-establishment" is anyone's guess. How much of each scare is valid is another guess. If Gov. Carey gets to Binghamton, maybe we'll find out.



"I know what you're thinking... It's too good to be true. Star Wars has come to Latin America."

dracula takes small bites

Feudal slaves were required to kick back to their masters 25 percent of all their income.

Today's American taxpayer kicks back to his "rulers" almost 47 percent.

How did it happen?

Since FDR each new government spending program has provided major benefits to a small group—at a relatively small cost to the majority.

A farm subsidy, for example, may mean tens of thousands of dollars each to certain farmers—while costing Americans generally only a few cents each.

The federal bailout of Chrysler is worth $1.5 billion to Chrysler's management, ultimately will cost each taxpayer about $20.

In each case the beneficiaries of the program lobby for it, entertain members of Congress, contribute to re-election campaigns.

And since taxpayers stand to lose only a little on each program—it is not really worth their while to lobby against it.

A government program may cost you $1.25 a year. It's not worth the $2 phone call to your congressman to find out what it's all about.

So members of Congress feel much support and little opposition and thus pass each new spending program which benefits a few at the expense of the rest of us.

As long as Dracula takes small bites each does not hurt much. Gradually, however, they add up to a debilitating drain.

The total was a staggering $612 billion last year.

That's up from $211 billion just 10 years ago.

Every president promises to curtail these costs. Carter promised to reduce the burdensome overhead— but government spending during Carter's four years escalated another 52 percent.

When Ed Clark was seeking the presidency last year as candidate of the Liberation Party, he pleaded with the American electorate not to dissipate its energies by trying to cut back or cancel spending programs one at a time.

He feared the opposition of each individual "special interest group" was too formidable for any president to overcome.

He urged, instead, that we force government to live within a balanced budget.

Thus government would be deprived of its now limitless ability to tax and spend and print more money worth less.

President Reagan is trying to cut taxes and cut spending, but the record of the past 28 years—of both Democratic and Republican administrations— is not encouraging. Both Nixon and Ford—fiscal "conservatives"—nonetheless increased federal spending by 118 percent.

The big factor in this president's favor is a new enlightenment among the electorate.

Where previous generations were sold by Ponzi premise that we could all stand in a circle with our hands in one-another's pockets—and somehow all get rich thereby—you and I know better.

Don't we?

Jeane Dixon is a psychic (and a real estate agent) who believes she was a Tibetan lama in one of her earlier incarnations. She predicted the deaths of both John F. and Robert Kennedy.

A few months before F.D. Roosevelt's death she predicted he didn't have long to live. It's beside the point that he was in poor health and three out of four people would have said the same thing.

She predicts that in the years ahead we will travel less. It must have taken an incredible amount of supernatural power to come up with that one.

Daniel Logan, another psychic, says he was a Buddhist monk in a previous life. In this life he was an actor but soon gave that up to be a medium. It's a lucrative business.

He predicted Ari and Jackie Onassis would divorce in 1971. So did most everyone else that was following the situation. They were all wrong.

Frederick Davies, a British psychic and astrologer, predicted Carter would win the 1980 election — but that he would have to be careful because danger would lurk around every corner.

Can't blame him much for that failure, in early 1980, most people figured Carter would prevail. But Davies was supposed to have a higher authority for his information.

These psychics did make some correct predictions. It's said that Dixon predicted the deaths of three astronauts in a ground fire in 1967, among other things.

Logan said America would put a man on the moon before the Russians. And Davies predicted Muhammed Ali would win the title bout in 1974.

But if everyone made guesses about the future and wrote them down, after a few years they could capitalize on the correct guesses and henceforth call themselves psychics.

There's another problem with Dixon and Logan. Tibetan lamas and Buddhist monks are supposed to be people who have achieved great spiritual heights.

One of the alleged purposes of re-incarnation is to gradually attain greater spiritual levels.

So if Logan, in this life, is an ex-actor turned psychic and astrologer, and if Dixon is a psychic and real estate agent — which way is up.

When Ishmael was seen mocking Isaac, Sara demanded that Abraham send him away with his mother, Hagar. He grew up in the wilderness and married an Egyptian woman. He had 12 sons and a daughter, who Esau married. His sons supposedly formed the chief element of the Arab nation. Most are Mohammedans and consider Ishmael their spiritual father. God promised Abraham to make a nation of him.

"And God said unto Abraham ... in Isaac shall thy seed be called. And also of the son of the bondwoman will I make a nation, because he is thy seed." — Gen. 21:12-13

WASHINGTON (AP) — Small business has finally got its act together here, said Milton Stewart as he prepared to leave the U.S. Small Business Administration. "All groups are talking to one another."

Critics say it's about time. The small-business portion of output has steadily diminished in relation to large enterprises, and to many Americans the word business has an automatic "big" before it.

Stewart sees an end to the trend. Times have changed; small business can help resolve today's problems, he said as he left for Boston to become editor of Inc., a growing, enterprising magazine for small business and becomes an officer of the company that publishes it.

"You must look at small business because it's where the innovation is," he said, claiming "small business is four to 24 times more cost effective than big business."

Organizations attuned to small business — the National Small Business Association, the Federation of Independent Business, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce among them — have stepped up their legislative efforts in recent years, keeping scorecards on congressmen — and then remembering at election time.

Success encouraged cooperation, and when President Carter convened a White House Conference on Small Business in January 1980, the advocates had learned the advantages of cooperation. They pressed their demands, and when they returned home they pressed their legislators.

Now, said Stewart, who has spent most of his adult years in some aspect of small business, five major pieces of legislation have been enacted, all in a few months between last summer and last November.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act assures small business that it will be treated differently from large business. Before the act, a regulation that might affect a large company only slightly might put a smaller enterprise out of business. The act reduces that possibility.

The Equal Access to Justice Act recognizes the distinction between big business, which often can afford to defend against costly government litigation, and small business, which sometimes had to knuckle under if it couldn't afford to defend itself, no matter how just its cause.

A patent act allows small businesses and universities to work on government projects without having to give up rights to discoveries they make in doing so. An incentive act changes the securities laws to make it easier for small businesses to raise money. And a small business development act helps small businesses improve liquidity.

Stewart, a lawyer, aided the cause as the SBA's Chief Counsel for Advocacy, a delicate position for such a relentless, dedicated, driving person, one that easily could have put him in conflict with other administration executives because of his right to prod their agencies.

He knew that support was growing behind him. National, state and local small-business groups have grown more active and convincing. And they aren't likely to relax now that they've begun winning a few.

It was not until the 19th century that oranges came within reach of the middle classes. Earlier, they were the fruit of kings and aristocrats, prized as delicacies and exchanged as gifts.

Everybody knows that kids don't live by bread alone. They have to have a layer of peanut butter on it.

But now, the p---nuttiest thing has happened. I'm talking about the peanut butter shortage brought on by last summer's drought. For the first time in 26 years, the peanut crop failed, making 1981 the Year of the Peanut Butter Crunch.

For the kids I know, that's a problem as tough to swallow as peanut butter when it sticks to the roof of the mouth.

In true Old Mother Hubbard fashion mothers everywhere are finding the supermarket cupboards bare where the jars of peanut butter used to be. They dread going home and telling this to their small fry, who live and grow on peanut butter-and-jelly sandwiches.

The girl across the street is typical. She lathers peanut butter on her toast every morning, then, four days out of five, takes peanut butter-and-jelly sandwiches for lunch at school. She is such a "p.b. aficionado" that she can tell the difference between Peter Pan and Skippy and prefers one over the other.

The peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich is not only the first food fad of most kids, it is often the first food they can fix themselves. Many a working mother caught late at the office is relieved to be able to call her offspring and tell them: "Make a peanut butter sandwich. I'll be home in an hour."

I talked to a class of 13-year-olds the other day and found that 16 of the 18 knew all about the dwindling supply of peanut butter. Some knew because they were having to go without, others knew because their mothers were warning them to "spread thin and use more jelly than peanut butter."

One youngster said, "My mother won't buy it, even when she finds it, because of what it costs." I know. The nearly empty 18-ounce jar on our shelf is marked $1.17. The same size jar cost $2.09 last week. I don't need my pocket calculator to tell me that's about a quarter teaspoon from a 100-percent markup.

The fact is that peanut production is only half what it was, and the price, which in 1979 was $475 a ton, is now $500 a ton. As a result, peanuts and their byproducts are no longer found on the menu of any federally funded school-lunch program.

"We used to have a lot of peanut cake in the school cafeteria," said a fifth grader, "but we don't now." She said that a handful of peanuts and raisins used to be standard on the school lunch tray. No more.

That's too bad, because that was one sure source of protein for a lot of kids.

What's worse, the shortage may go on into next year. This winter was one of the driest in 20 years, and that could mean another skimpy year in the peanut fields of Georgia, Texas, Alabama and elsewhere.

We are being told that we are a nation of wasteful, indulgent consumers bent on devouring kilowatts, BTUs, gasoline and wildlife in hedonistic frenzy. Even when told we can't go on like this, we do.

Spreading thin the peanut butter may be the first step in self-denial for the younger generation. Just as kids who grew up in the Depression are ingrained with the value of a buck, so these youngsters may be the first to learn early that scarcity is the mother of abstention.

Could this be a crunch that goes beyond the kind found in a Jiffy jar? Could this mold a generation able to say nuts to overuse, overconsumption and overkill?

Dear Abby

Sister Has Answers, but Wants Questions Stopped

By Abigail Van Buren

1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Peace and all good things! I am a nun writing in desperation, hoping that you have a charitable solution to a most annoying problem.

I live in a small religious community with other sisters whom I dearly love. It seems that whenever I am trying to eat a quick lunch, a certain sister comes over with her crossword puzzle and asks, "What was the name of Seth's son?" Or, "What was Noah's boat called?"

Dear Abby, have you any ideas?

Deliver me from crossword puzzles, now and forever. Amen!

IMPATIENT SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Practice the virtue of patience, pray for forbearance and utter ye not a cross word about the puzzle.

DEAR ABBY: My son went steady with a wonderful girl for four months. (I'll call her Janie.) They broke up right after Christmas. While they were going together, I grew to love her like a daughter. Janie lived 45 miles away and spent many weekends at our home. She was so perfect for our son, I prayed that one day she would be my very own daughter-in-law.

Well, for some reason unknown to me, they stopped dating. My son started dating another girl, and I understand that Janie is now going with another fellow. I miss her terribly and, of course, she doesn't call me anymore. Abby, believe me when I tell you that I loved that girl so much that this is simply killing me! I suppose I should be grateful that my son isn't grieving the way I am, but it's as though I actually lost a daughter. I am suffering a very deep depression. I cry about it until I'm weak. I can't stand it, Abby. I'm making myself sick over this. Please help me.

LOST A DAUGHTER

DEAR LOST: I can understand your disappointment, but you apparently assumed that your son's little romance with Janie was far more serious than it was. Be grateful that your son isn't grieving. If your depression persists, please seek professional help. Your suffering is gravely disproportionate to your loss.

DEAR ABBY: I'm over 21 and so is he. We've been seeing each other for the last four weeks and have become very, very close. I wear braces on my teeth and have good dental hygiene.

The problem is that although we've been intimate several times, he hasn't once kissed me on the mouth! This takes away from an otherwise great romantic relationship. This also makes me very angry with him. I asked him why he won't kiss me and he wouldn't answer. What do you think?

MISSING KISSING

DEAR MISSING: Your braces are probably responsible for your kissless relationship. (Braces have been known to cut the lips if too much pressure is brought to bear.) Don't pressure him. After your braces come off, you'll have the answer.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Here is a hand that is appropriate to April Fool's Day. South was one of those players who want to play every hand, but have no reason to fulfill this desire because their dummy play is worse than their bidding.

After a session with this particular South you feel like the man who said, "There is one good thing about tapping yourself on the head with a hammer. It feels so good when it is over."

North would have had no trouble making five notrump, but as South pointed out carefully, he, South, had two five-card suits. South also felt that his partner could never have suspected this.

West got his hand on the singleton heart. East took his ace and returned the seven spot. West ruffed and dutifully led back a diamond to East's ace. East led back the 10 to dummy's queen. Now South played his ace and king of trumps. West showed out and East's queen became the setting trick.

"What horrible luck," complained South.

"Deleted, deleted, deleted," yammered North.

It should have been obvious to South that East would hold that missing queen of spades. When he led back a diamond that should have told South. Had East led back a heart, West's failure to ruff with the queen would have told even this South where her majesty was located.

Adams Practiced Regular Exercise

NEW YORK (AP) — John Quincy Adams believed in the healthful benefits of exercise.

According to Jack Shepherd, author of "Cannibals of the Heart: A Personal Biography of Louisa and John Quincy Adams," Adams walked four miles every morning, and swam on warm days until four months before his death, at age 80, in 1848.

When asked what he thought had preserved his health into his old age, Adams replied that there were three rules: "1. Regularity, 2. Regularity, 3. Regularity."

Hinckley's Father...

Taking Leave Of Absence

DALLAS (AP) — John W. "Jack" Hinckley Sr., the father of accused presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr., has taken a leave of absence from his job as head of an oil company, according to a petroleum consultant.

Clarence M. Netherland said Tuesday Hinckley asked him to become acting chairman of Hinckley's company, Vanderbilt Energy Corp., because "obviously, his mind will be diverted to his personal tragedy at this time."

Netherland said he expects the job to last six to 12 months while Hinckley "fights his personal family problems."

He also said that Rike D. Wooten has been named to replace Hinckley as president and chief executive officer of the company.

Netherland said Scott Hinckley, the brother of the man accused of shooting president Ronald Reagan, will continue working as the company's vice president.

The Denver-based company, formed in 1962 as Hinckley oil, was renamed Vanderbilt in 1970.

It went public in 1976, after Hinckley moved from Dallas to Denver, and had revenues in 1980 of $4.8 million. The firm is engaged in oil and gas operations in Texas, Oklahoma, Wyoming, North Dakota and Montana.

The United States is one of the richest nations in energy raw materials. It has the largest single share of coal reserves, is the world's third largest producer of petroleum, is now virtually self-sufficient in natural gas, and has the largest nuclear-power output of any country.

Clayton Says He'll Help With Pistol Control Bill

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, can count on help from Speaker Bill Clayton if he wants to start moving with his bill requiring a two-day cooling-off period before Texans can buy pistols.

"If he wants to make a move with it, I'd be very happy to help him with it," Clayton told reporters on Tuesday.

"With the speaker's help, I'm sure I can get a hearing," Ragsdale said when told of Clayton's statement.

The "speaker's help" can work wonders because of his influence over House committees and the daily debate calendar.

Ragsdale first introduced a gun control bill in 1975 but it was buried after "the NRA (National Rifle Association) lined this Capitol up with pickup trucks and gun racks," he said. In each session after that, he introduced the bill but did not get a hearing.

"But with the recent developments, the tragedy involving the president and some of his bodyguards, that puts a new coloration on it," Ragsdale said.

Clayton, however, said the attempt on Reagan's life "didn't change anything" as far as the chances for sweeping handgun control are concerned.

"Always, the person who wants to take the law into his own hands can get one (a pistol) anyway," he added.

Ragsdale's bill is a fairly mild form of gun control, something the powerful House speaker usually opposes in most of its forms.

Clayton said he liked the idea of recording gun purchases as well as imposing a delay between purchase and delivery of a pistol.

The main features of Ragsdale's bill are a 48-hour cooling-off period and a requirement that dealers carefully identify buyers. Gun purchasers would have to sign a statement they were over 18 and were not ex-convicts or former mental patients.

A dealer could not deliver a pistol to a buyer for 48 hours, excluding Sundays and holidays, after its purchase. A person who buys a handgun on Friday could not get it until after noon the following Monday.

Clayton said of the cooling-off period, "I don't see anything wrong with that."

Gun dealers would have to require at least two forms of identification, including a driver's license or other ID card with a photograph, from buyers

Unreliable birth control

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 43 years old and going through the change, with hot flashes and irregular periods. For a while my periods will be regular, then I may skip a couple of months or may be several days late.

We don't use anything for birth control for 10 days after my period. The next 10 days we rely on protection. Then again nothing until I get my period. Lately we have been using protection until I get my period, yet I am not sure it is safe for those 10 days before. When will I be past the danger of getting pregnant?

DEAR READER — Well, I hope you haven't already gotten pregnant if you are trying to avoid it. The description of your method leaves a lot to be desired as an effective means of birth control.

I'm always surprised how many people do not fully understand such a vital basic function. Regardless of what you have heard, the most reliable date for ovulation is 14 days before your next menstruation, with a day or two before or after that magic date. If you are absolutely regular that information is helpful because you can predict when your next period is going to be. If you are not, as in your case, you have no real way of knowing when you may ovulate.

And even the 14 days before your next period is not an absolute certainty all the time. You can use graphs, temperature charts and other means to plot your cycle if you are regular. These, along with aspects of fertility and infertility, are discussed in The Health Letter number 17-2, Female Reproductive Function, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

As a general rule, I advise women not to assume they are past the possibility of pregnancy for at least two years after they have had their last period and after all signs of the menopause are over. Any shorter period should be only on the advice of their doctor familiar with their state. That will provide a high percentage of protection against a midlife pregnancy. I would not want anyone to think, however, that any general rule will apply 100 percent in all cases to everybody.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it possible that the birth control pill can cause a woman's hair to grow longer and thicker? I took the pill in 1973 for two years and my hair grew beautifully. I have started taking it again a year ago and my usually thin hair is now thick and luxurious again.

DEAR READER — It's possible. There are many different kinds of birth control pills with different balances of hormones in different types. If you happen to be on the low side of estrogen production and took a preparation that was high in estrogen, it could have this effect. If a woman has a normal amount of estrogen, it might not help her.

A woman's hair grows and thickens during pregnancy, influenced by her super abundant amount of female hormones throughout the pregnancy.

And hair tends to get thin after the menopause because the balance of male and female hormones may change again, although age alone may affect how many hair follicles are producing a good hair shaft.

De Niro, Spacek Named Top Actors

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Oscar, a bit subdued this year, packed few surprises and spread his favor around a bit. The biggest winner — "Ordinary People," which was named best picture — took just four of Hollywood's Academy Awards.

Robert De Niro and Sissy Spacek were named best actor and actress, for their performances in "Raging Bull" and "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Major awards also went to two novices in "Ordinary People": director Robert Redford, a film star himself, and supporting actor Timothy Hutton.

"I will never act again," Redford joked backstage.

Hutton, who strongly resembles his father, the late actor Jim Hutton, said of his dad, "I wish he was here."

The movie's fourth award went to Alvin Sargent for screenplay adaptation.

Only one other movie, "Tess," took more than two awards. It won in three of the lesser-known craft categories: cinematography, art direction and costumes.

In years past, some films have garned a fistful of awards. "Ben Hur" took 11 Oscars in 1951.

Reagan's Life Was In Danger

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan had trouble breathing, chest pain, falling blood pressure and was spitting up blood when he walked into George Washington University Hospital after being shot, The New York Times said today.

"He definitely was in a life-threatening situation," the newspaper quoted Dr. William O'Neill as saying. "But he was very rapidly stabilized."

O'Neill is a surgical intern who treated Reagan in the emergency room, the newspaper said in a story from Washington by its medical writer, Dr. Lawrence K. Altman.

O'Neill also said nearly two pints of blood "came out spontaneously" when a tube was inserted in the president's chest to drain air, blood and other fluids from the chest cavity, a standard procedure for a chest wound.

"He was definitely in acute distress," O'Neill said in describing Reagan immediately after entering the hospital.

"The first thing the president mentioned to me was that he had been coughing up blood since the event. He had complained of chest pain and shortness of breath. He denied having lost consciousness.

"There was blood staining of his lips and teeth and there was blood in the back of his throat."

The doctor said Reagan's breathing rate was in the high 30s, about twice normal, his pulse on the high side at 88 and his blood pressure lower than usual at 78, according to the Times.

After Reagan rested briefly on a stretcher, the blood pressure became normal, the report said.

O'Neill said that Reagan never went into shock.

"Throughout, the president was able to communicate to us his distress as well as his discomfort and shortness of breath," O'Neill told the Times. "But he also was able to communicate that he was alert, oriented to time, place and person and at times he was able to make a wisecrack or two. But he was someone in acute distress."

Agriculture Producers' Session Set

A meeting has been scheduled here for Tuesday, April 7, to discuss soil fertility, weed control, cotton varieties and insect management.

The meeting in Room A of the Scurry County Coliseum will begin at 11:30 a.m. with a catered luncheon and continue until approximately 4 p.m., according to Billy Roach, County Extension Agent, and Bill Jany, County Entomologist.

The session is being sponsored by several chemical companies and will feature agricultural extension specialists in the fields of agronomy, entomology and soil and plant chemistry.

Six chemical company representatives will have information booths set up at the meeting. They will have people available to talk with producers about individual situations involving their products.

Extension specialists will present information of a general nature and answer specific questions from producers.

Producers who would like more information on fertilizing, weed control, insect control (biological, cultural and insecticidal) and Scurry County's own boll weevil control program should plan to attend this meeting, said Roach.

Supper Set For Senior Citizens

Senior citizens are invited to a covered dish supper starting at 6 p.m. Thursday in the Senior Center at 2603 Ave. M. The covered dish supper is held on the first Thursday of each month and is followed by games until 8:30 p.m.

All county residents 60 years of age and older are invited to participate in the Senior Center activities and may call the center office at 573-0104 for information.

Will Bring In New Staff...

Byerly Named Football Coach

George Byerly, highly successful in his two years as Snyder High School varsity basketball coach, will test his skills on the gridiron next season, replacing Mike Jenkins, who resigned six weeks ago to accept a similar post at Richardson Pearce High School.

He was awarded a two-year contract upon accepting the position in a meeting of the school board last night and will immediately begin assembling a new staff.

Although the 33-year-old coach has not headed a varsity football program before, he has been an assistant in each of his 11 years of coaching. Under Jenkins last year, he was in charge of defensive tackles and offensive tight ends.

Byerly informed The Snyder Daily News this morning "there will be a new varsity staff. I think everybody understands the need to change," he said. "We have a great group of people here but I have to do whatever I feel is best for the program. Of course, this is one of the responsibilities of the position. There will be some new personnel coming in but at this time I don't know exactly who."

Byerly said his basic coaching philosophies will not change.

"The basic principle behind all of it is to get the kids to do the best they can. It's no different in any sport. Of course you don't want to go into any situation without some knowledge of the sport. We want to have a program where the kids feel they are getting the most out of it that they can."

He added he has not yet decided exactly what type of offense and defense the 1981 Tiger team will utilize.

"I've got some thoughts on it but I'm not ready to devulge them because I need a little time to work with the personnel. Basically, we want to not try to tie the kids to a system, but rather the system to the kids. I'm sure we'll run some sort of multiple offense where we can utliize the kids and their talents in the best way possible."

In addition to a new staff, fans may see a slightly different look in other areas, including a uniform change. Byerly indicated to the board last night that he would like to "change the look," while keeping the same black and gold colors. "I think it's a good idea psychologically. It represents a new change."

The board has taken no action as yet to replace Byerly as head basketball coach.

Byerly is a graduate of Howard Payne and received his masters degree from Sul Ross. He and his wife Pat have two sons, Chet, age 10 and Marc, age 7.

As basketball coach here, he guided the 1980 team to the state finals and picked up another district title in 1981. His '81 squad lost in bi-district to the eventual state runnerup team by two points. His two-year record was 48-19.

Sears Elected Club President

Ernest Sears has been elected as president of the Western Texas College Booster Club for the coming year, taking over the reins of Mal Donelson.

The club, which will soon begin its annual fund drive in support of athletics at the college, met this morning at the WTC cafeteria.

It was also determined that Dr. Jim Tully would remain treasurer for the group. The executive committee includes Donna Kruse, Dennis Ball and Guy Sullivan as well.

Officers are planning to sponsor the annual WTC Athletic Banquet again, under the guidance of Donelson. No formal date for the banquet has been established, however.

Anyone wishing to learn more about the booster club and-or its efforts to provide athletic scholarships for the college are urged to contact any of the officers mentioned above.

The great gelding, Kelso, was named "Horse of the Year" five times.

Tigers Nail Monahans, 9-7

MONAHANS -- Snyder High School rapped 13 hits, including four for extra bases, to overpower Monahans 9-7 in District 2-4A baseball action here yesterday. The victory gives the Tigers a 2-0 loop mark, and puts their season record at 11-6.

Playing under the lights here, the Tigers jumped in front 1-0 when the hot bat of Perry Echols erupted for one of his three singles of the evening. Next up Mike Roemisch countered with a scoring double to put the visitors on the board.

It became 3-0 in the second when Tony Degrate slammed his sixth home run of season as leadoff hitter. Gary Don Edmiaston also came up with a single in the stanza, and raced home on an error. But the Loboes weren't to fall easily. Greg Winder, Floyd Hernandez and Fidel Oyerbides all slapped hits in the bottom of the inning and three Tigers errors were added to put the hosts on top quickly, 4-3.

Monahans added another run on back-to-back singles in the third.

The game stayed at 5-3 until Snyder managed three runs in the fifth. Echols singled and Barry Davis got on via a fielder's choice. With two outs showing, Degrate was hit by a pitch and Curtis Gafford reached on an error. Edmiaston then slugged a triple to ignite the fireworks and Snyder was back on top, 6-5.

The clincher came in the sixth when Brent Roemisch and Echols garnered singles. Again with two outs behind him, Davis rapped a basehit, Degrate walked and Gafford added another single, 9-5.

Monahans made a bid at regaining the lead in the seventh, coming up with two singles and three walks for two runs, but was Snyder was able to crush the rally.

Degrate, now 5-1, was the winning pitcher. He came on for the final four innings, struck out seven batters, allowed three hits, two walks and two runs. Mike Roemisch opened and went 1⅓ innings before giving way to Gerald Hicks, who lasted 2⅔.

Taking the loss was Martin Martinez, 3-3. Monahans is 0-1 in district competition.

Next action for the Tigers will be at Moffett Field in a non-district encounter with Lubbock Coronado at 4 p.m. Friday. Team officials may also decide to conclude an 8-8 tie between Snyder and Coronado which was postponed on March 24 due to darkness. April 7 the Tigers return to loop play, hosting Odessa Ector at 4 p.m.
