If bankruptcy judge approves...

Lorber equipment sale to benefit Snyder ISD

By Wade Warren
SDN Managing Editor

Pending the approval of the sale of Lorber Industries of Texas textile manufacturing equipment, the Snyder Independent School District is in line to get some $130,000 in back taxes the latter part of June or early July.

Permission from Judge Robert L. Jones, federal bankruptcy judge, to sell the equipment would mean the district would also receive $60,500 in 2002.

"If Lorber Industries of Texas gets approval from Judge Jones to sell the equipment to a company named Textechindo, the taxes will be paid," said R. Byrn Bass Jr., the Lubbock attorney who is handling the bankruptcy for Lorber Industries of Texas

Bass said he did not know the home office of Textechindo, but thought it is a foreign company.

However, many other creditors will not come out as well as the school district, Bass said. "A lot of people will take a bath in this deal.".

Bass said the sale of the equipment would be in the $2 million range, while $4.6 million is still owed on the equipment to be sold.

Bankruptcy papers list $4,638,879 owed to A.L. Texas Equipment of 17809 S. Broadway in Gardena, Calif. — the same address as Lorber Industries of California.

This is the same address the three stockholders of the company list – Tom Lorber, Greg Lorber and Anita Lorber.

Lorber Industries of Texas paid $40,829.96 to A.L. Texas Equipment for an eight-month period beginning last September and continuing through April.

The company shut its doors in Snyder on Oct. 31.

Other payments made to creditors prior to the company filing bankruptcy on May 8 include more than $7,000 to attorneys and accountants in Los Angeles and Beverly Hills, and $51,449.19 to GE Capital in Atlanta.

The company still lists a debt to GE for $1,634,771.

Other payments made since the first of the year include $1,394.29 to Cellular One and $1,209.06 to Covenant Health Systems in Lubbock. Nelson Hallford of Dunn was paid $1,130.16.

In addition to the debt owed to A. L. Texas Equipment, documents list a $3,450,000 loan owed to Anita Lorber, and a debt to Big Country Electric Cooperative of $1,500,353, with $1,340,353 listed as unsecured. That amount is for equipment only, as the co-op also is owed $111,913 for electrical usage.

Other creditors of Lorber Industries of Texas include Dunavan Enterprises of Memphis, Tenn., $575,347 for cotton purchases; Lubbock Electric, $49,218 for equipment parts; Brazos Logistics of Bronte, $25,806 for trucking; Opossum Hollow Trucking of Fluvanna, $19,620; Allied Crude Purchasing in Snyder, $4,176; Saddleup Express in Snyder, $3,780; The Paint & Safety Store in Big Spring, $1,133; Production Pump in Snyder, $315; and Southern Electric in Snyder, $302.

The total of the claims by secured creditors is $7,920,746, while unsecured claims total $4,603,226.

The bankruptcy papers indicate that Lorber Industries of Texas has valued its real property in SnTx 1, the industrial park, at $525,000.

Discussion of the Lorber building is on the Development Corporation's agenda for a 4 p.m. meeting Thursday.

If the equipment sale goes through, Textechindo appears to be getting some bargains.

The bankruptcy schedule lists forklifts bought for $54,138 now have a value of $1,437.88, and electrical capacitors purchased from Lubbock Electric last year for $53,970 are now valued at $1,433.12.

A knitting machine purchased in 1998 for $30,750, now has a value of $816.53, according to the documents, and a $14,000 shrink wrap machine is valued at $371.76.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "When viewing historical monuments, remember that most of history is based on, but not limited to, facts."

Vacation season is fast approaching and a little brochure sent by the Texas Department of Economic Development on tourism provided some interesting facts.

This summer the promotion theme is "Rediscover Texas."

If Texas were a nation, it would have the 9th largest economy in the world. In fiscal year 2000, the gross state product was $737 billion and travel spending accounted for five percent of the total.

The top three travel destinations were Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. The top three places of origin of people coming to the Lone Star State by auto were Oklahoma City, Albuquerque and Shreveport.

By air, most of the visitors came from Los Angeles, New York and Albuquerque.

Twelve states — Oklahoma, Louisiana, California, New Mexico, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kansas, Florida, Ohio, Alabama, Illinois and Mississippi — account for 70 percent of non-Texan travel. Of travelers to Texas, 97 percent are from the U.S.

Since 1992, leisure trips are up 22 percent while business trips to Texas increased 33 percent. At the end of the same period, direct travel spending was $40.4 billion, an increase of 58 percent.

The travel industry accounts for 485,000 jobs and in 2000, there were 64.4 million hotel room nights sold.

Every day, travelers spend $110 million in Texas.

And the top 20 destinations:

—San Antonio's River Walk
—The Alamo
—San Marcos Outlet Malls
—Austin's State Capitol
—Padre Island
—Arlington's Six Flags Over Texas
—Moody Gardens in Galveston
—NASA Space Center
—Fort Worth Stockyards
—Sea World in San Antonio
—San Antonio Zoo
—Fiesta Texas in San Antonio
—Ballpark at Arlington
—USS Lexington in Corpus Christi
—Texas Aquarium in Corpus Christi
—Enron Field in Houston
—Texas Stadium in Irving
—Fort Worth Zoo
—Schlitterbahn in New Braunfels
—Houston's Astroworld

Not many West Texas locations mentioned, but the folks having their pictures taken by the White Buffalo on the square make up a part of that $110 million a day.

Induction ceremony is tonight

National Honor Society

Snyder High School's National Honor Society induction ceremony is set for 7 tonight in Worsham Auditorium.

Ira board begins superintendent hunt

Ira ISD trustees officially accepted the resignation of Supt. Jim Rumage during Monday night's board meeting.

Rumage's resignation is effective July 1 when he will take over the reins of the Ozona school district.

Rumage said this morning that he is posting the vacancy on the Texas Education Agency's web site, and that the district already has started receiving inquiries about the position.

Last week, board president Dirk Dunn said hiring an interim superintendent might be a possibility as the board begins its budget work for the coming school year.

In other personnel items last night, trustees approved the hiring of Ronnie Roemisch to teach secondary science, and Joanna Roemisch to teach home economics and reading.

Also hired was Kaci Duke to teach high school English and physical education, plus desktop computing.

The trustees also approved 64 transfers into the district, plus a contract with the Snyder ISD to provide special education instruction for one student.

Keith Clements was named as the board's delegate to the state school board meeting this fall, and Dunn is the alternate.

Senior trip guidelines for future years were discussed, as was summer maintenance work.

The board has posted an agenda for 10 a.m. next Tuesday to interview candidates for the technology position. According to Rumage, current technology director David Brown did not submit his contract for renewal.

Western Swing first...

Chamber readies for June events

Chamber of Commerce directors Monday granted $7,500 in hotel-motel tax funds to help promote Snyder tourism.

The Ritz Community Theater was granted $2,500 for help in promoting its upcoming productions.

In addition, the board granted $5,000 to promote the annual Western Swing Festival set for June 4-8.

Donna Fowler, chamber executive director, told the board that volunteer help is still needed for June events beginning with the Western Swing Festival.

The Sammy Baugh Golf Tournament is June 13-14 at Snyder Country Club and the chamber will have a concession stand near the eighth hole.

Other events next month include the Fly-In at Winston Field on June 22. The chamber is expecting 600 to attend the breakfast, including pilots and other visitors.

The Scurry County Rodeo will be held June 27-29 at Scurry County Coliseum where chamber members will help with selling tickets and programs.

Fowler said reservations for booths for the July 4 celebration in Towle Park are being taken. Anyone interested in reserving a booth should call Sandra Barboza at 573-3558.

Board members present were Paula McWilliams, Jeffrey Martin, Elois Pruitt, Carl Burleson, Billy Grimmett, Joni Gonzales, Anita Talbott and Elliott Cox. Mike Thornton presided at the meeting in the absence of president Darren Jackson.

Convicted killer is nabbed by police

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tonya McCartor was hardly hiding.

For the past two years, she lived in an apartment complex 12 miles from the suburban Columbus town where she grew up. She and her husband traded shifts driving his tractor-trailer rig cross-country, hauling goods as far as California and Maine.

But prosecutors say McCartor is a convicted murderer who escaped from a Tennessee prison nearly 32 years ago and assumed a new identity and life in Columbus. Authorities say she managed to avoid relatives across town who knew her as Margo Freshwater, 53.

She was arrested Sunday at a health club near the airport, authorities said. About a month ago, investigators traced her through the alias Tonya Hudkins, McCartor's widowed name for more than a decade before marrying Daryl McCartor in 2000.

Defense lawyer Richard Piatt called it a case of mistaken identity and said he will fight extradition to Tennessee. A hearing is scheduled for June 18.

"Tonya never led a reclusive life," Piatt said. "She went across country exploring as a trucker."

Freshwater escaped from the Tennessee Prison for Women on Oct. 4, 1970, along with another woman who was recaptured in the early 1990s, Department of Correction authorities said.

Freshwater had served just 11/2 years of a 99-year sentence for the first-degree murder of a Memphis liquor store clerk.

Before returning to Columbus, Freshwater lived in various north-central Ohio towns, authorities say. She had a common-law husband in the 1970s and a husband who died. She has three children.

Jackiethia Morris, who lived a few doors down from the McCartors, said she talked with the couple but never learned their names.

"Our dogs played together. My husband helped her son fix her car," she said. "We just chit-chatted."

Morris said she was shocked when she heard the news.

"The reason why we live in this community is we thought nothing could happen over here," she said.

According to trial testimony, Freshwater was 18 in 1966 when she put her infant son up for adoption and went to Memphis to visit her boyfriend, a prison inmate.

Freshwater began an affair with her boyfriend's attorney, Glenn Nash, and the couple went on a three-week crime spree.

Nash was found mentally incompetent to stand trial. Freshwater was tried in a shooting death in Mississippi but not convicted. In 1969, she was convicted in the death of the liquor store clerk.

Tennessee Bureau of Investigation agent Tommy Lewis, who investigated the case for five years, said Freshwater's law-abiding behavior since the escape is more reflective of her true character. He considers her a "victim of circumstances" who was under the control of Nash.

Horse Liniment Eases Arthritis Pain

OCALA,FL -An ingredient derived from hot peppers that decreases inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now recognized as safe and effective for human use. The ingredient has beei formulated into a product called ARTH Rx"* and comes in a strength designed for humans. Researchers are excited and say the formula can relieve arthritis pain for millions.

Developed by the Phillips Gulf Corporation, ARTH-Rx is a breakthrough in the treatment of painful disorder ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, tendonitis backache and more.

Although the mechanism by which ARTH-Rx works to relieve pain is not totally clear, scientists suggest that pain is relieved because ARTH-Rx intercepts the messenger substance the sends pain signals to the brain.

ARTH-Rx is available in a convenient roll- on applicator without a prescription. According to a spokesperson for the company, due to the overwhelming demand for ARTH-Rx, supplies are sometimes limited. ARTH-Rx can also be ordered by calling I-800-729-8446. © 2000 PGC

Restaurant reopens near site of Fort Worth tornado

FORT WORTH (AP) — A trendy, upscale restaurant reopened amid much fanfare near its former home, a tornado-damaged skyscraper that remains a plywood-covered blemish on Fort Worth's downtown area.

The Reata restaurant, now located on the site of a former nightclub called the Caravan of Dreams, is beloved as much for its Western-themed atmosphere — saddles from the early 1900s, Western murals and mounted buffalo heads — as for its Southwestern-style food.

"I'm super excited, exuberant," co-owner Michael B. Evans said Monday after a rope-cutting ceremony (reata is Spanish for rope). "It was a long road and bumpy at times, but we finally made it home."

A few blocks away looms the restaurant's original home, the 37-story Bank One building, which was ravaged by a tornado in March 2000 and is to be demolished.

Six weeks after the tornado, however, the restaurant was back in business, after Evans spent $1 million to make repairs to its penthouse location.

But in August 2000, the building's owner, Loutex Fort Worth, announced it was evicting tenants and selling the building because fixing it would be too costly.

After a six-month legal fight, Reata closed in February 2001 after a state district judge denied its request to force Loutex to make repairs and temporarily stop the skyscraper's sale.

Block 82 Partners, led by billionaire investor Ed Bass, bought the damaged tower in March 2001. Officials declined to disclose the price, but it was set for $3.8 million, according to testimony in a February 2001 hearing related to Reata's lawsuit.

The company plans to dismantle the building floor by floor by fall 2003.

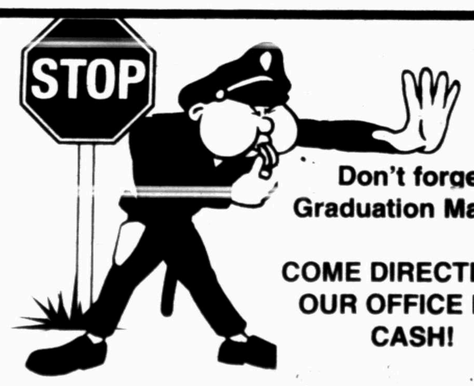

The new Reata, set to open to the public today, has a fourth-floor rooftop, partly covered by a clear-panel, climate-controlled dome. But those in the basement dining room will get the same breathtaking view as if they were in the old restaurant, thanks to enlarged photograph panels inside several 4-by-8-foot windows.

"We were so pleased with our location in the other building, so I thought, 'How in the world will we be able to duplicate that?'" said co-owner Al Micallef.

Reata isn't finished in its fight with Loutex, however. The restaurant contends it would not have paid for the improvements had it known the building was to be sold and demolished. Its lawsuit against Loutex is set for trial in November.

Bass praised the new Reata in the former jazz and blues nightclub he opened 19 years ago.

"This place was built in 1983 with three things in mind: highest quality, most fun and true character of Fort Worth, so bringing the Reata here is a perfect marriage," Bass said.

Tune recital held May 4

Piano students of Mrs. Barbara Tune presented a Spring Recital May 4 in the Martha Ann Woman's Club and outstanding students were recognized.

Mrs. Tune recognized students who entered a contest in Lubbock in February — Brittany Scott, participant; Alayna Alexander, second place; and Casey Arnold, first place, who also received the honor of playing in the Winners' Recital.

She also recognized students that participated in a festival held at Abilene Christian University on April 13. Rachael Dupree, Audrey Miller, Kristen Miller, Brittany Scott and Gretchen Hollis received blue ribbons and superior ratings on their pieces.

Guild auditions were held on May 2 and Hobbyist certificates and pins were presented to Annie Ezell, Kirsti Leucke, Christopher Witte, Amanda Smith and Brandon Hagins.

Jazz Hobbyist went to Jason Hall.

District certificates and Taylor Autry, Rachael Dupree, Kristina Mayer and Alayna Alexander earned pins.

Receiving National certificates and pins were Audrey Miller, Casey Arnold, Kristen Miller, Brittany Scott and Gretchen Hollis.

Composer pins and recognition in the Piano Guild Notes Magazine were Kristen Miller, Brittany Scott and Gretchen Hollis. This award is for students who have performed a 10-piece program for five years. Kristen Miller and Brittany Scott attained five years and Gretchen Hollis reached six years.

Cash prizes were won by Audrey Miller and Taylor Autry, most promising beginners; Jason Hall, rhythm; Rachael Dupree; loves to practice; and Brittany Scott, progressive. Each received $10 for their efforts.

More on handling the trump suit

By Phillip Alder

Edith Summerskill, a British politician in a speech to the Married Women's Association, said, "Nagging is the repetition of unpalatable truths."

I nag my students, in particular about counting. Now it's your turn. Last week, I gave six deals in which it was important for declarer either to play his trump suit appropriately or to time the drawing of trumps correctly. Almost immediately afterward, I saw this deal, which features one of those themes. How would you plan the play in four hearts? West leads the diamond queen. You correctly duck dummy's king twice, but they take three tricks in the suit, then exit with a spade. No peeking at the East-West cards!

With nine of his 11 points in his short suits, North might have raised to three no-trump, but one cannot say that using Stayman is wrong.

With the opponents having their book (all the tricks you can afford to lose), you must play the trump suit without loss.

This is the correct approach: Win trick four with dummy's spade queen, then call for a low heart. You do this to accommodate a singleton king in the East hand. (If that is the position and you start with dummy's 10, West scores a trick with the heart nine.) When East plays low, you put in the queen. Next, cross to dummy with a club. Now is the time for the heart 10, which here East will presumably cover. You win with the ace, noting West's discard. Back to dummy with another club, you can play a heart to your eight, draw the last trump, and claim.

Dying for Others

Memorial day is coming. It is a time we stop and remember those of our country who sacrificed themselves for us. Their deeds are hard to put into words. There is deep gratitude for those who have made the supreme sacrifice so that we could enjoy the life and liberty we have. If we think about it long, we are also a little uncomfortable. Why did they have to give of themselves completely while we enjoy a life of ease and comfort. We owe them a great deal.

There is something extremely noble in the sacrifice that many have made for their country. It was a total commitment of their life to preserve the life of family and country. It was unselfish. This was the way that Jesus lived and died. The apostle Paul encourages us to be like Jesus:

> Do nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit, but in humility consider others better than yourselves. Each of you should look not only to your own interests, but also to the interests of others.
> Philippians 2:3,4

This was the way Jesus lived and the reason he died. Instead of seeking his own glory and ease, Jesus gave of himself for others. He lived the life of a servant and died so that we could be forgiven and live.

Some of us will never be called upon to make the supreme sacrifice for our country. Some will. But all of us are called upon by God to follow Jesus and sacrifice our desires to do His will. We are called upon to die to ourselves so that we might live for God and others. If we use the freedom we are given in this land to serve others, we truly honor those who died for that freedom.

Cowboys release backup QB

IRVING (AP) — For the third time in a year and three months, quarterback Ryan Leaf is without a job.

The Dallas Cowboys released their former backup quarterback on Monday.

"This is a decision that came down to numbers on our depth chart at the quarterback position, and we wanted to dedicate the practice repetitions to the younger players," team owner Jerry Jones said.

Leaf became expendable after the Cowboys' recent acquisition of former Stanford quarterback Chad Hutchinson, who spent the last four seasons playing professional baseball. The Cowboys are commtted to Quincy Carter as their No. 1 quarterback.

Leaf, the No. 2 overall pick by San Diego in 1998, is 4-17 as an NFL starter, with 36 interceptions and just 14 TDs.

Leaf's agent, David Dunn, didn't return a phone message. Dunn's secretary said he was traveling and unavailable.

As the Cowboys began a three-day quarterback school, Leaf's locker was still intact, but he was not on the premises.

Asked about Leaf's absence, Jones and head coach Dave Campo said there would be an announcement later in the day.

The announcement came in a faxed release.

The San Diego Chargers released Leaf on Feb. 28, 2001, ending a three-season run after they took him following Peyton Manning's selection as the No. 1 pick by the Indianapolis Colts. Leaf went to training camp with Tampa Bay last summer, but the Buccaneers cut him before the season.

Even though Jones showed interest in the quarterback at that point, Leaf wasn't signed until Oct. 12 after Carter tore his hamstring.

Leaf got a three-year, $2 million contract, earning $500,000 last season. He was supposed to get $500,000 again in 2002 and $1 million in 2003.

After taking a couple of weeks to learn the offense, Leaf lost all three of his starts and didn't play again. In four games overall, he was 45-of-88 (51.1 percent) for 494 yards with three interceptions and one touchdown before Carter returned to finish his rookie season with five straight starts.

In his last game, Leaf almost led the Cowboys to their biggest comeback ever, guiding two fourth-quarter TD drives in a 26-24 loss to Denver on Thanksgiving Day. He was 16-of-32 for 193 yards, but also had three fumbles and made several poor decisions throwing the ball.

Hutchinson got a $3.1 million bonus when he signed a seven-year contract in January. He hasn't played in a game since starting 23 games for Stanford in 1996 and 1997.

With Carter excused from the two-hour practice session Monday to tend to personal business, the 6-foot-5, 230-pound Hutchinson got most of the snaps.

"Chad's doing well, he's making progress. We want to give him as much work as he can to give him a chance to understand the offense and get rid of some of the rust," Campo said. "He throws the ball well. He's in pretty good shape right now. He has a better grasp than we anticipated because he used this offense at Stanford. So even those it's four years ago, he's starting to pick up things."

Carter was a surprise second-round pick by the Cowboys in 2001, and was made the starter after Tony Banks was cut midway through training camp.

Kings exploit LA, even series at 1-1

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Blame the cheesecake.

The Sacramento Kings, taking advantage of Kobe Bryant's food poisoning and Shaquille O'Neal's foul problems, defeated the Los Angeles Lakers 96-90 Monday to even the Western Conference finals at a game apiece.

Chris Webber had 21 points and 13 rebounds to lead the Kings, who overcame O'Neal's highest-scoring game of the playoffs (35 points) and a sloppy contest that included 28 turnovers.

O'Neal was upset with the refs, who called him for three offensive fouls as the Lakers' NBA-record 12-game road winning streak in the playoffs ended.

"There's only one way to beat us. It starts with a 'C' and ends with a 'T.' The real basketball fans understand what's going on here," said O'Neal, a white hat pulled low over his eyes.

When asked to be more specific about his accusation, O'Neal snapped angrily and denied calling anyone a cheat.

Bryant, who scored 30 points to lead the Lakers to a 106-99 win in Game 1 on Saturday, needed three liters of intravenous fluids before Monday's game after food poisoning left him severely dehydrated.

"In certain spurts, I had a lot of energy. In some, I didn't. I just tried to pace myself," said Bryant, who had 22 points on 9-for-21 shooting. "Obviously, if I was healthy, I would have played a lot better than I did."

Bryant became ill early Monday morning after eating a bacon cheeseburger and a piece of cheesecake from hotel room service. He lacked his usual spunk and was on the bench for four minutes of the fourth quarter.

"Next time I want a cheeseburger, I'll just go to McDonald's," he said with a grin. "I was up all night, man. I don't think you guys want to hear the details."

Sacramento hopes to have All-Star forward Peja Stojakovic back from a sprained right ankle for Game 3 Friday in Los Angeles. Game 4 of the best-of-seven series is Sunday in Los Angeles.

Game 2 of the Eastern Conference finals is set for tonight.

Body of missing teen-ager found

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Investigators found the body of a missing 13-year-old girl Monday after a man she met over the Internet told them where to look, police said.

U.S. Attorney John Danaher said the man, identified as 25-year-old Saul Dos Reis, had confessed to killing the girl, Christina Long. She was last seen Friday at a Danbury shopping center.

After a search of the mall and the area, investigators began to focus on her Internet contacts, Police Chief Robert Paquette said. Asked whether the girl and Dos Reis had previously met in person, Paquette said, "We're aware of other contact, yes."

Christina's body was found in a remote area of Greenwich early Monday using information provided by Dos Reis, officials said. Dos Reis lives in Greenwich, about 25 miles south of Danbury.

The medical examiner's office said the girl had been strangled.

The suspect was arrested on a federal charge of using an interstate device — the Internet — to entice a child into sexual activity. He appeared in federal court Monday morning and was ordered held without bond.

Murder charges were not immediately filed.

Dos Reis' attorney Harold Pickerstein declined to comment on the allegations, but said he expects Dos Reis to plead innocent to all charges. He criticized Danaher for his comments.

"It's inappropriate, in my opinion, to discuss evidence in a case in which there has not even been a charge or an indictment," Pickerstein said.

Textbook review expected to be very controversial

DALLAS (AP) — Just about any time that textbooks come up for review, controversy is just around the corner — but that especially holds true this year, educators say.

Once a decade, Texas adopts new social studies texts for its schools, and it's that time again.

"Every time we adopt textbooks it's controversial, but we think this year will be particularly so," said Cheryl Wright, director of social studies at the Texas Education Agency.

The books are available at North Texas' two education service centers, one in Richardson and one in Fort Worth. Visitors can view the books there or check them out for 10 days at a time. They will be available through November.

The books were supposed to have been available for public review in February, but state officials gave publishers an extension after Sept. 11 so they could include more recent events.

In the two weeks the books have been available in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, a slow but steady stream of teachers and school administrators has dropped in, usually one or two a day, The Dallas Morning News reported today.

Private schools and home-school parents also have stopped at the second-floor back room at the Richardson center, where the books are stacked . And textbook publishers have sent employees to check out what competing publishers are offering.

After the adoption process is complete this fall, it will be up to individual school districts to determine which of the approved books end up in their classrooms.

The closest examiners of the textbooks are likely to be conservative activists who plan to check the textbooks for bias. They say some books are anti-American, anti-Christian and anti-conservative. Conservatives examine books in most subject areas, but social studies texts have historically gotten more scrutiny because history and economics are inherently more political than other subjects.

"We have hundreds of people who want to look at these textbooks and make sure they're presenting our children with accurate information," said Peggy Venable, state director of Citizens for a Sound Economy. "We don't want them presenting hypotheses and theories as fact."

Dear Abby

Stranded travelers encounter kindness of many strangers

DEAR ABBY: On Sept. 10, 2001, my husband and I flew to Las Vegas for a three-day mini-vacation. Then 9/11 happened. Along with millions of other American citizens, any plans we had were changed.

Our three-day holiday extended into five days of utter confusion. Guards were stationed everywhere in the casino of our hotel. It was necessary to make many trips to our room to assure family members by phone that we were all right. Each time we used the elevator to go to our room, we had to show proof that we were guests of the hotel before being allowed to proceed.

We also had to rebook our flight, as our original departure had been canceled. Finally, on Sept. 15, we were able to schedule a flight home. As we left our room for the last time, I looked down and saw two shiny 2001 pennies lying in the doorway. Somehow, finding those pennies made me less apprehensive about flying. They are now tucked away along with the story of where we were on that fateful day.

When we got to the airport, we saw weary travelers standing patiently in line for blocks. I would like to offer special thanks to the airport employees who worked diligently to get people to their departure gates.

My husband must use a cane for any extended walking or standing, and a nurse in our line alerted airport personnel that he needed a wheelchair. One was provided as soon as possible. He was then directed to wait inside the terminal while I was told to go to the end of the long line and meet him when I got to the doorway. A wonderful young man close to the front offered to trade places in line so I could have his place. Abby, he had been waiting there for hours.

Those are just two incidents of kindness and generosity we experienced that day. Whoever and wherever you are, thank you again. — MR. AND MRS. GEORGE CULLINS, GRATEFUL OHIOANS

DEAR MR. AND MRS. CULLINS: Thank you for sharing your experience. It shows that sometimes tragedy has a way of bringing out the best in people.

DEAR ABBY: I debated, but I finally decided the woman who wrote about wanting a "sparkler" on her 25th wedding anniversary needs to know my story.

My friend, hero and love proposed to me by quoting Shakespeare in a valentine. He was finishing his master's degree and there was no money for an engagement ring. Instead, he gave me his fraternity pin, and we married with matching gold bands in 1953. Each year, on Valentine's Day, we would mention something about renewing our marriage contract for another year. It was our ongoing joke.

On our 25th anniversary, he took me to dinner at our favorite neighborhood restaurant. The conversation that evening covered many topics — our pride in the accomplishments of our four children, their upcoming marriages, etc. He then asked me if I would be engaged to him for the next 25 years — and presented me with the engagement ring he couldn't afford 25 years earlier. We planned to renew our vows on our 50th anniversary, but God called him after only 47 years together.

Abby, it certainly isn't the biggest "sparkler" in the world — but it's the most precious possession I own. — KAY BELL, WESTMINSTER, COLO.

DEAR KAY: I'm not surprised. It symbolizes the wealth of love and accomplishment you and your beloved husband shared together.

New study says annual PSA test not needed for all men

ORLANDO (AP) — Many older men with low readings in an annual blood test for prostate cancer may be able to forgo the screenings for at least a year, a change that could save hundreds of millions annually.

A large new study concludes that many can safely have the test every two years or even five years, since those with low PSA scores face little chance of a sudden change for the worse.

About half of all men over age 50 now get regular PSA tests, which scan the blood for a protein that goes up as prostate cancer develops.

Dr. E. David Crawford of the University of Colorado, who directed the analysis, presented the results Monday at a meeting in Orlando of the American Society of Clinical Oncology.

"When we first thought about screening, we thought it should be done every year," he said. "We had no data to suggest otherwise. Now we have data that lets us step back."

The new study concludes:

—If a man's initial PSA reading is between zero and one, he can wait five years before having another test.

—If the reading is between one and two, he can wait two years before another test.

—Those whose readings are between two and four should continue to have annual tests.

If followed, the study results will mean less testing for the majority of men. The study was conducted on 27,863 men between ages 55 and 74, and 55 percent had initial PSA readings under two.

Researchers said that if their new guidelines are followed, the less frequent testing would cut the number of PSA tests each year in half, saving between $500 million and $1 billion.

The study was designed primarily to ask a bigger question: Does early detection of prostate cancer save lives? The answer is not in yet. So far, there are no results from any research to prove that finding the cancer sooner does any good, although many doctors believe early detection saves lives.

"These findings sit amid a much larger controversy about whether PSA screening should be done at all," said Dr. Steven Woolf of Virginia Commonwealth University.

Falsely positive test results cause anxiety and lead to unnecessary biopsies. Furthermore, many men live with slow-growing prostate cancers that never cause any problems. Finding and removing them can cause incontinence and impotence without giving any benefit.

Dr. Harmon Eyre, the cancer society's research director, said the latest study findings look reasonable.

Arrest made in McKinney hospital shooting

McKINNEY (AP) — A suspect remained in custody in connection with the a shooting that left one nurse dead and another injured, but his motive and connection to the crime scene was still shadowy.

Paul E. Wooley, 46, was arrested Saturday in an Amarillo hotel after McKinney authorities issued a warrant saying he was a flight risk and could possibly destroy critical evidence.

Amarillo police went to Wooley's hotel room Saturday after being notified that a suicidal person had checked in. Wooley let police in to the room and gave himself up. A rifle and a semi-automatic handgun were found in the room.

Wooley was taken to an Amarillo hospital for evaluation.

"During the initial investigation it came to look like he might possibly be a party to a homicide or attempted homicide that we didn't know anything about," Amarillo police Sgt. Randy Tenbrink said in Tuesday's editions of The Dallas Morning News.

Authorities returned Wooley to McKinney Monday.

McKinney police Capt. Robert Dean declined to explain how police connected Wooley to Thursday's lunchtime shooting at North Central Medical Center or whether he had a relationship with the victims.

Officials said Monday that about an hour before the two nurses were shot last week, emergency personnel went to Wooley's home in response to a suicide call.

Authorities earlier had said that whoever shot the women may have known at least one of them.

Amy Wingfield, 31, was fatally shot in the head, while 40-year-old Alisa Stewart of Plano was shot in the back. Both were nurses at a doctor's office in a building next to the hospital.

Fire Department Capt. Bill Smith said emergency workers received a call shortly after noon Thursday about a suicidal person at Wooley's house. When the emergency personnel arrived, they did not find anyone, Smith said.

Wooley lived in a neighborhood about 11/2 miles from the medical center. Neighbors said he lived alone in the one-story brick home, where the outer glass front door was broken out.

Melina Lanham, 33, said her daughter had just sold a candle to him for a fund-raiser last week, but she had never spoken to him. "He kind of kept to himself," Lanham said.

"(I'm) shocked that it happened so close to home," neighbor Jim Anderson said. "Then finding out somebody this close — scary thought. Real scary."

A funeral was held Monday for Wingfield, a married mother of two. Stewart, who is single with two children, was in stable condition at North Central Medical Center.

Meanwhile, Dean said they were continuing to investigate other possible suspects. "We're still examining all other possible leads," he said.

Jury clears police, school district in student sex case

KENT, Wash. (AP) — The sexual relationship between sixth-grade teacher Mary Kay Letourneau and one of her students could not have been prevented by the school district or local police, a civil jury ruled Monday.

Letourneau was 34 and former student Vili Fualaau was 12 when the relationship began in the spring of 1996. Letourneau gave birth to two daughters fathered by Fualaau and was sentenced to 71/2 years in prison for child rape.

Monday's verdict followed a nine-week trial in which Fualaau's lawyer argued the school district and police should have picked up on clues to the relationship.

Fualaau was not in court when the verdict was read. His mother and co-plaintiff, Soona Vili, sighed deeply. Fualaau's attorney, Cyrus Vance Jr., said no decision had been made on an appeal.

Vance said the relationship was "torture, not true love," and left Fualaau suicidal and unemployable, with two young daughters he's ill-equipped to care for. He had suggested jurors award as much as $2.4 million.

The school district said the relationship began off school grounds after the school year had ended; police argued that they had no evidence of sex abuse until it was too late.

"We always felt that if we had had some clue about what was going on here ... that we certainly would have reacted," said school district lawyer Mike Patterson.

Attorney Anne Bremner, representing the city of Des Moines, Wash., and its police, said it was "through no fault of ours that these things happened."

Your Birthday

Wednesday, May 22, 2002

You may spend much time and effort in the year ahead devoted to material matters. By this time next year you could find that your financial lot in life is considerably better.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Conditions in general are extremely good for you, with the exception of material considerations. Sizable expenditures should not be made impulsively. Check all contingencies concerning the purchase. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — There is nothing wrong with wanting to fulfill your personal ambitions. However, in doing so, you must take care that you don't do things in a self-serving fashion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Be wise enough to openly discuss things that annoy you. If you don't, you stand the chance of letting things fester in your fertile imagination. Bring it up in an inoffensive manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Financial conditions should be good for you personally, but at work you might not be as lucky. When doing business for your company, stick to their tried and true procedures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — You can charm your way into getting what you want from others, but only if the other person doesn't feel manipulated. Explain your intentions before implementing them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) — If you rely on luck to accomplish your goals, you could make a costly mistake similar to one you made previously. Don't let wishful thinking override your logic and common sense.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — An associate wants you to join him or her in something that could be profitable. But, if you're unrealistic about the project, the invitation could be promptly withdrawn.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Without the willingness to compromise, you are not apt to gain the cooperation of cohorts. Be prepared to bend a little in the process. Self-serving ways will not be tolerated.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You'll display a convivial manner in working with others, but only up to a point. If there is something you personally want, you could fail to appreciate the needs of others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Subdue inclinations to impulsively gamble in order to expedite matters. A slow but sure route will lead you to success, while other ways could lead you to fall flat on your face.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Let Mother Nature have her way and many pleasant experiences could be in the offing for you. When you negatively prejudge situations, however, it could be another story.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Attitude is always important, but if you falsely believe that tasks are easier than they really are, you could set yourself up for a major work-related failure.

Missing writer is declared dead

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — A travel writer who vanished from a Jamaican resort nearly two years ago has been declared legally dead.

Superior Court Judge Reginald Stanton determined that Claudia Kirschhoch died May 27, 2000 — the day the 29-year-old woman was last seen. She would have been 31 on Feb. 9.

"She did not voluntarily disappear," Stanton concluded Monday. "Some kind of foul play occurred."

Fred and Mary Ann Kirschhoch of Morristown had sought the declaration.

Sanchez, Perry spar over insurance

LUBBOCK (AP) — Tony Sanchez on Monday intensified his criticism of Gov. Rick Perry's plan to regulate the property insurance industry, saying Perry "is bought and paid for" by insurance companies and that has kept him from calling a special legislative session to stem rising rates.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Sanchez claimed that hundreds of thousands of dollars from insurance companies have gone into Perry's campaign coffers through the years.

"He has to dance to the tune that they play," Sanchez said after presenting his "Texas Education Beyond Tomorrow" plan at Cavazos Junior High School in Lubbock. "If he was serious he would have called a special session like he was asked to for the Legislature to stop skyrocketing rates, but he won't."

At a news conference last week in Austin, Perry said the insurance issue was a legislative priority and reporters asked him if he would call a special session, said Michelle Kucera, a Sanchez campaign spokeswoman. Perry said he would not call a special session.

Perry, also in Lubbock on Monday, said the problem with rising rates — some increases as high as 200 percent — started late last year and early 2002. Work is under way to gather information about the industry's recent premium increases, he said.

Rumsfeld meets with U.S. Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terrorists are sure to eventually acquire nuclear, chemical and biological weapons, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld told senators today.

Iraq, Iran, Syria, Libya and North Korea are developing such weapons of mass destruction and will supply them to terrorists to which they already are linked, Rumsfeld said.

"They (terrorists) inevitably will get their hands on them and they will not hesitate to use them," Rumsfeld told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee.

Tom Ridge, who heads the White House office of domestic security, said new terror warnings have not prompted U.S. officials to raise the nationwide alert status because the intelligence on possible attacks is too vague.

Rumsfeld declined to discuss specific terrorist threats, saying the government sees hundreds a day and as many as 90 percent of them are designed to test the government's response.

"They jerk us around, try to jerk us around, and test us," Rumsfeld said.

Gen. Richard Myers, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said that while the war on terror has hurt al-Qaida, the terrorist network remains a threat. "Just like a wounded animal is the most dangerous, they (al-Qaida) still pose a threat to our armed forces," Myers said.

Ridge said predictions that terrorists may target unnamed apartment buildings were not enough to change the nation's security alert from "yellow" — the third-highest of five stages — and retain the system's credibility.

"It wasn't actionable in the sense that we're going to change a national level of awareness, but it was informational," Ridge told the World Economic Forum at the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Faced with criticism for belatedly releasing terrorist information it had before the Sept. 11 attacks, the administration may routinely release intelligence information, he added.

FBI agent takes jury through Arthur Andersen documents

HOUSTON (AP) — The in-house lawyer at the heart of the government's obstruction of justice case against Arthur Andersen LLP isn't around to testify, so prosecutors have summoned an FBI agent to give her a voice.

Barbara Sullivan, head of the FBI's securities fraud unit in San Francisco, on Tuesday went over documents, transcripts and other pieces of evidence she read into the record all day Monday with prosecutors, only this time under cross-examination by Andersen attorney Rusty Hardin.

Of particular interest Monday were notes taken by Andersen attorney Nancy Temple during a flurry of conference calls as accountants and auditors discussed daily the mounting problems of client Enron Corp.

On Oct. 9, Temple noted a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation was "highly probable," and could lead to problems for Andersen, which agreed to a form of probation with the agency last summer after audit failures on Waste Management Inc.'s books.

Hardin asked Sullivan, who revealed she did not begin working on the case until late March and had not personally interviewed Temple, whether the lawyer's notes specifically mentioned Andersen as a possible subject of an SEC probe.

"No, it doesn't," she said.

Temple sent an e-mail to Andersen workers three days later reminding them about the firm's document retention policy, which calls for destruction of unnecessary documents. The government contends it was essentially an unspoken order to obliterate Enron-related material.

Prosecutors point to Temple's notes as evidence the Chicago-based firm was conscious of possible SEC interest — an informal inquiry already was under way unbeknownst to them — and was desperate to avoid another audit failure because of its probation with the agency.

The firm contends the order to follow the document retention policy was an innocent effort to organize papers, e-mails and computer files and get rid of extraneous material.

Before the Temple e-mail was sent, Houston-based Andersen partner Michael Odom was videotaped Oct. 10 instructing audit team managers to follow the document retention policy, saying it was OK to destroy documents until litigation is filed.

Odom cited past cases during attorneys' discovery in lawsuits "where we found a lot of stuff we shouldn't have retained."

Odom has not testified, while Temple invoked her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination by mail earlier in the trial, a move two other Andersen workers have employed.

Last week, prosecutor Sam Buell said Temple was potentially a more important witness than David Duncan, the fired Enron audit team leader who pleaded guilty to obstruction and testified against.

Obituaries

Helene Shiver

1928-2002

LUBBOCK — Helene Levi Shiver, a Holocaust survivor who told her story to Snyder Junior High students in 2000, died Monday, May 20, in University Medical Center.

Helene Shiver

Mrs. Shiver, 73, was held at the Dachau Nazi concentration camp in Bavaria between 1943 and 1945, and she regularly spoke to school, church and civic groups about the Holocaust after she and her husband moved to Lubbock 11 years ago.

At Snyder Junior High, she told students she was 13 at the time of her imprisonment and was the only survivor of more than 100 family members who were taken from their home in Bulgaria and transported to concentration camps.

Shiver married Iverson "Jack" Shiver who was an American soldier she met at a displaced persons camp. They married Sept. 25, 1947 and lived in Salzburg, Austria after World War II. The family moved to Birmingham in 1957.

Survivors include her husband, Jack Shiver of Lubbock; a daughter, Maneulla Richardson of St. Petersburg, Fla.; and two grandchildren.

Service for Mrs. Shiver is set for 3 p.m. Wednesday in the Temple Shaareth Isreal with Rabbi Sherman Stein officiating. Burial will follow in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Mildred Vernon

1915-2002

ABILENE — Mildred Vernon, a native of Scurry County, died Monday, May 20, in an Abilene nursing home.

Graveside service for Miss Vernon, 86, is set for 1 p.m. Wednesday in Elmwood Memorial Park.

Born to William Henry and Annie Vernon on Dec. 11, 1915 in Scurry County, she was reared in Scurry County and attended school in Pyron. She also attended Draughns Business College.

A longtime resident of Lubbock, she retired from Pioneer Natural Gas after 36 years. She moved to Abilene in 2000 and was a member of the Lubbock First Baptist Church.

Survivors include three sisters, Abilene Young of Azle, Vivian Ferree of Mabank and Mary Etta Ritta of Orange; two brothers, J.W. Vernon of Abilene and Dean Vernon of Richardson; and several nieces and nephews.
