Derailment

OAXACA, Mexico (AP) — A passenger train derailed and plunged into a dry riverbed in the southern state of Oaxaca, killing at least six people, the Mexican Red Cross said today.

The organization originally gave a death toll from Thursday night's crash of at least 40. Ana Maria Tovar, director of the Red Cross in Oaxaca, today blamed the discrepancy on the magnitude of the wreck, the isolation of the area and that the crash occurred at night.

A news release from the Mexican National Railroad put the toll of the second-class train, The Oaxacan, en route from Oaxaca to Mexico City at seven dead and 20 injured.

No trump

HOUSTON (AP) — Trumps Pub was named after the game, but "The Donald" apparently is not pleased. His giant company is threatening legal action against the small establishment if it doesn't get a new name.

Pub owner Ron Schaefer received a certified letter Thursday from the Trump Organization advising him to stop using the Trump name within 24 hours.

"It's really hard for a little guy like me. To get a letter from Donald Trump, it makes me nervous. He has more clout than I have," said Schaefer.

He said he and his two partners were thinking of bridge, not the multimillionaire, when they came up with the name.

City misses mark on tar pit cleanup

■ City's plans for cleaning up a tar pit found to contain toxic material after years of use as a dump could be much higher than estimated.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Consultants hired by the city say it may cost about $800,000 to clean up an east Midland tar pit which contains traces of toxic chemicals, Councilman Jose Cuevas said Friday.

City officials originally estimated that it would only cost $10,000 to mop up the black, gooey pool of mostly asphalt and traces of toxic materials such as lead, chromium, toluene and trichloroethene. The pit is located near the Orchard Lane-Carver Street intersection.

The closest hazardous waste landfill where the Texas Water Commission will likely allow dumping of the pit materials is near Corpus Christi, Cuevas said.

He said the Carter and Burgess Inc. engineering firm of Fort Worth estimated that dumping costs alone may be more than $390,000.

The figure does not include the cost of cleaning the pit, which is about 4 feet deep and measures about 75 feet by 100 feet, and transporting the material to Corpus Christi, Cuevas said. The total project could cost up to $800,000, he said.

"It's not going to be a weekend clean-up," Cuevas said. "It's going to take 60 days at a minimum. We're responsible.

Bailout boss says costs yet to come

WASHINGTON (AP) — Departing savings and loan cleanup boss L. William Seidman said Friday that "real pain" is yet to come in the bailout and urged patience with his successor.

"All the evidence to date is that the costs will exceed those originally estimated," he told a House Banking Committee task force on the S&L bailout.

"We are operating now in markets where interest rates are going up and property values are going down," he said.

Panel members lavished praise on the 60-year-old regulator, who is often at odds with the administration and is being nudged out as chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and the Resolution Trust Corp. The FDIC insures bank and thrift institution deposits; the RTC conducts the S&L bailout.

At Seidman's suggestion, President Bush is turning to William Taylor, the Federal Reserve Board's director of bank supervision, to take over the position.

Panel members welcomed the prospect of Taylor's appointment cautiously, but questioned whether he would match Seidman as an independent voice. Seidman asked them not to judge Taylor's performance too quickly.

"Don't be impatient. This is a long, hard job. It isn't going to be accomplished anytime soon," he said.

"The real pain of what's taking place, on everything from increased government borrowing to the effect on real estate markets, is still being felt. I think it is very important that no one expect by this time next year we'll all feel great," said Seidman.

Surgeon says he's willing to take post

By Allen E. Howland
Assistant City Editor

A willing write-in candidate for the District 3 seat on the Midland County Hospital District Board has stepped forward, according to board president Margaret Purvis.

Dr. Shelton Viney, a general and vascular surgeon in private practice locally since 1982, said Friday residents of the district, which encompasses Greenwood, Midkiff, rural southwest Midland County and a small part of southwest Midland, "need to be represented."

Mrs. Purvis, who is not running for reelection, said the board was pleased a "serious, qualified" candidate had agreed to serve if elected, adding she hoped "people will get out to vote."

People who jokingly write-in cartoon characters or other frivolous names on the ballot could potentially create a problem for the board if not enough write-in votes are recorded for a willing candidate, Ms. Purvis said.

Viney said he would bring perspectives as both a physician and a patient advocate to the board, if elected. "Medicine today is a business and there has to be an eye on the bottom line."

In addition to his private practice, Viney is one of about 30 doctors who are partners in Surgi-Care Center of Midland Inc., a free-standing out-patient surgery clinic. Viney said that his experience with the clinic helps him understand the economic issues of operations, adding that in the event of a conflict between his interests as a co-owner of the clinic and the hospital he would abstain from a vote on the issue.

Lolling around in a rocking chair is not Almee Sanchez' idea of retirement.

After completing her tour of duty as a food service worker with the Midland Independent School District two years ago, Mrs. Sanchez decided to devote her spare time to a worthy cause.

City discussing effort to build skateboard park

■ After banning skateboarding and roller skating in three city parks, city officials now are considering adding skating facilities or developing a new area for the sport.

By Brian Pearson
Staff Writer

Skateboarders' political power slide over an ordinance banning them from three Midland parks has gotten the attention of city officials, who said Friday they may give the skaters their own park.

"We're definitely pursuing it," said George Logan, city parks and recreation director.

"We're looking at some areas within city parks. We're looking at some areas in the city that aren't parks but are on city property. We're also looking at some vacant buildings to put some ramps in."

Logan met for about 1½ hours Friday morning with Skate Sticks owner Mike Thompson to discuss options to keep skateboarders off the streets and in the parks.

One consideration is building an indoor skating facility complete with restrooms, skateboard ramps, snack bar and even a skate shop.

Logan said he recommended that Thompson organize area skaters, hold a meeting May 15 to discuss their needs and then meet with city officials May 17.

Mrs. Sanchez has been volunteering at the center, now located at Dellwood Mall, for two years. Center Director Marilyn Harrison said 75 to 100 of the center's 300 or so members also volunteer to help with its operation.

But it takes a special person to win the Outstanding Volunteer trophy, which is awarded by a vote of the center's members.

"Maybe it's my accent or my smile or something," said Mrs. Sanchez after receiving the award. A native of southern France, Mrs. Sanchez came to the United States in 1948 with her G.I. husband and settled in Midland.

She said her food service experience has been put to good use at the center, which serves lunch to members five days a week.

The kitchen staff "has been glad to have me and I enjoy doing it, but I never thought I would receive this for it," she said.

Mrs. Sanchez also helps out with ceramics, painting and exercise classes at the center.

Bill would redistribute wealth to poorer school districts

By James Cullen
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Texas House committee Friday scaled down its long-term goals for school equity by $1.4 billion as it sent the full House a bill that would redistribute state wealth to poor school districts.

Unlike the bill that died from Gov. Bill Clements' veto in the special session that ended Tuesday, the new House proposal would not depend upon a state tax increase, although it could force higher local property taxes on wealthier districts.

Richer school districts would lose money under the House plan if the Legislature does not raise $555 million in revenue Clements has pledged to veto.

The Senate Education Committee Thursday approved a similar bill, but the Senate version would take effect only if lawmakers appropriate at least $555 million to close the gap between rich and poor districts.

Before the House Public Education Committee approved the bill 6-3 Friday, the House panel removed the appropriation, which depended upon a half-cent increase in the state sales tax.

Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, House Public Education Committee chairman, said the appropriation will be considered in another bill, but separating the two measures would allow the reform bill to proceed without a tax increase.

"The court said they did not require that we appropriate more money, but that we had to devise a system that provided substantially equal access to revenues at similar tax efforts," Glossbrenner said. "That's what this plan tries to do."

The committee also gave the Legislature the option of scaling down its goal of bringing poor school districts to within 95 percent of the funding level of the richest school districts, which would cost an estimated $5.7 billion in the fifth year of implementation.

Under the amendment, which was approved on a voice vote, the Legislature would aim at 90 percent equity by 1994, at a savings of $1.4 billion.

Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, said the amendment was a "reasonable compromise" that would bring the House bill within the cost level the governor said he would accept, although Colbert said the state courts may not accept the reduced level of funding. "The further away we back from total equity, the more likely it is the courts will respond," he said.

District Judge Scott McCown of

Austin has given the Legislature until June 1 to provide for more equitable distribution of state aid to public schools or he will cut off all state aid to local schools.

McCown also will appoint a special master Tuesday to start drawing up a plan the court could impose on the state with existing revenue.

Rep. Greg Luna, D-San Antonio, joined two Republicans in voting against the committee proposal. "It smacks of violating the court order," Luna said. "The 95th percentile is weak. The 90th percentile is weaker. I want the 100th percentile."

Poor school districts won the lawsuit in state court, but they have had little voice in writing the bill to remedy the situation, Luna said. He would rather keep the appropriation as part of the bill and let the governor veto it, so the Legislature could override it.

If the Legislature does not override the governor, Luna said, he would take his chances with the court.

But if the court develops a plan, Luna said, it would take money from the wealthier districts and could have a "terrible financial impact" that could force them to raise their property taxes.

"I don't wish to inflict that on them," Luna said. "But it won't be me. It shall be the process that does not acknowledge that we all have to equally share."

The court has mandated that the state provide the same level of education for all, Luna said, but it cannot force the state to spend more money. "The court cannot level up," he said.

Rep. Alan Schoolcraft, R-San Antonio, said the amendment reducing the equity goal to 90 percent "is pretty well acknowledging that the promises that are being made in the bill are not going to be lived up to."

Schoolcraft plans to offer his own substitute bill next week. The bill would appropriate less than $400 million and channel money from big urban districts to poorer districts.

The House committee took no action on the governor's plan to boost education spending by $250 million next year, with the money coming from budget cuts and fee increases.

Jury hears tape on which man admitted poisoning Treaty Oak

AUSTIN (AP) — The man accused of poisoning the historic, centuries-old Treaty Oak acknowledged poisoning the tree, but added if he had to do over, he doesn't think he would, according to the transcript of an audio tape.

Prosecutors, over defense objections, played most of a tape for jurors, who followed along by reading a printed transcript.

The tape, said to be a conversation between Paul Stedman Cullen, 46, and state witness Cindy Blaco of Austin, was barely audible for the few spectators in the courtroom but jurors said they had no trouble hearing it.

Stedman could face life in prison if convicted of pouring the powerful herbicide Velpar around the base of the oak in early 1989.

Ms. Blaco said after she approached police with information about Cullen, she wore a radio transmitter and recorded a conversation with Cullen.

At one point, according to the transcript, which was admitted into evidence Friday, Ms. Blaco said, "They say the tree may survive."

"Well, I hope it does," Cullen replied.

"I do, too. I'm angry with you for killing the tree," Ms. Blaco said.

"I am, too, a little bit," Cullen said.

Cullen, according to the transcript, said there was no evidence because he had thrown away the "empty container," adding, "The only evidence is my mouth."

Cullen also said, according to the transcript, he would "like to blow up a utility company. But I'm not really going to. ... If I can get away with this, I'll be satisfied."

Ms. Blaco asked, "But when you poured the Velpar around the tree, you had no idea it would become nationwide, right?"

"Oh, no idea," Cullen said, according to the transcript.

And in a portion of the transcript not yet reached on the tape, Ms. Blaco asked Cullen if he "could turn the clock back to that day, would you not do it. Or would you have done it again?"

"I'm not sure," Cullen responded, according to the transcript. "I have wondered that. I think that I would not."

Judge Bob Perkins overruled defense objections that Ms. Blaco was incompetent to record the conversation and that the tape was unintelligible.

Earlier, Ms. Blaco testified that Cullen had confessed to attacking the tree during a magic ritual to solve his love problems.

"I said, 'I'd sure like to shake the hand of the dumb, stupid guy who did that to the tree,' or some crack like that," Ms. Blaco said. "Paul turned around, stuck out his hand, and said, 'Meet the dumb, stupid guy who did that to the tree.'"

Ms. Blaco said she had known Cullen, of Elroy, since they began car pooling to an Austin methadone treatment center in the fall of 1988. She said she takes methadone daily under doctor's orders to control pain from a progressive intestinal disease.

Cullen's defense attorneys have charged that Ms. Blaco may be testifying against Cullen to receive more than $11,000 in rewards. They said she already has received $500 from Crimestoppers.

Ms. Blaco testified that during February 1989 — when experts believe the tree was poisoned — Cullen kept several books on witchcraft and the occult in his truck.

She said the two discussed portions of the book about "magic circles," described as rituals to protect or put curses on others.

Ms. Blaco also said she saw two containers of Velpar in the back of Cullen's truck during February 1989.

Couple held for alleged kidnapping

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A toddler from Orangefield, Texas, was returned to her home Friday while authorities prepared to extradite her alleged kidnappers to Texas.

Roy Vincent, 32, and Tania Vincent, 30, of Orange County near the Louisiana border, were ordered held Friday in the Jefferson County Jail pending extradition to Texas. They face federal and state kidnapping charges.

The couple was arrested Thursday after allegedly taking 20-month-old Tamisha Griffey from her home and taking her to Birmingham without permission.

The couple, believed to be friends of the toddler's family, failed to return from what was supposed to be an overnight trip to Louisiana last weekend, said the girl's grandmother LaDonna Laughlin.

After discovering that telephone numbers left by the couple were fictitious, the girl's mother, Sherry Griffey, and Ms. Laughlin contacted authorities late Monday and kidnapping charges were filed.

Birmingham police arrested the Vincents after spotting the couple's car at a motel. Orange County investigators alerted police in several Alabama cities about the case after the Vincents made a collect call to Ms. Griffey Wednesday night and told her they would bring Tamisha home if she dropped the kidnapping charges.

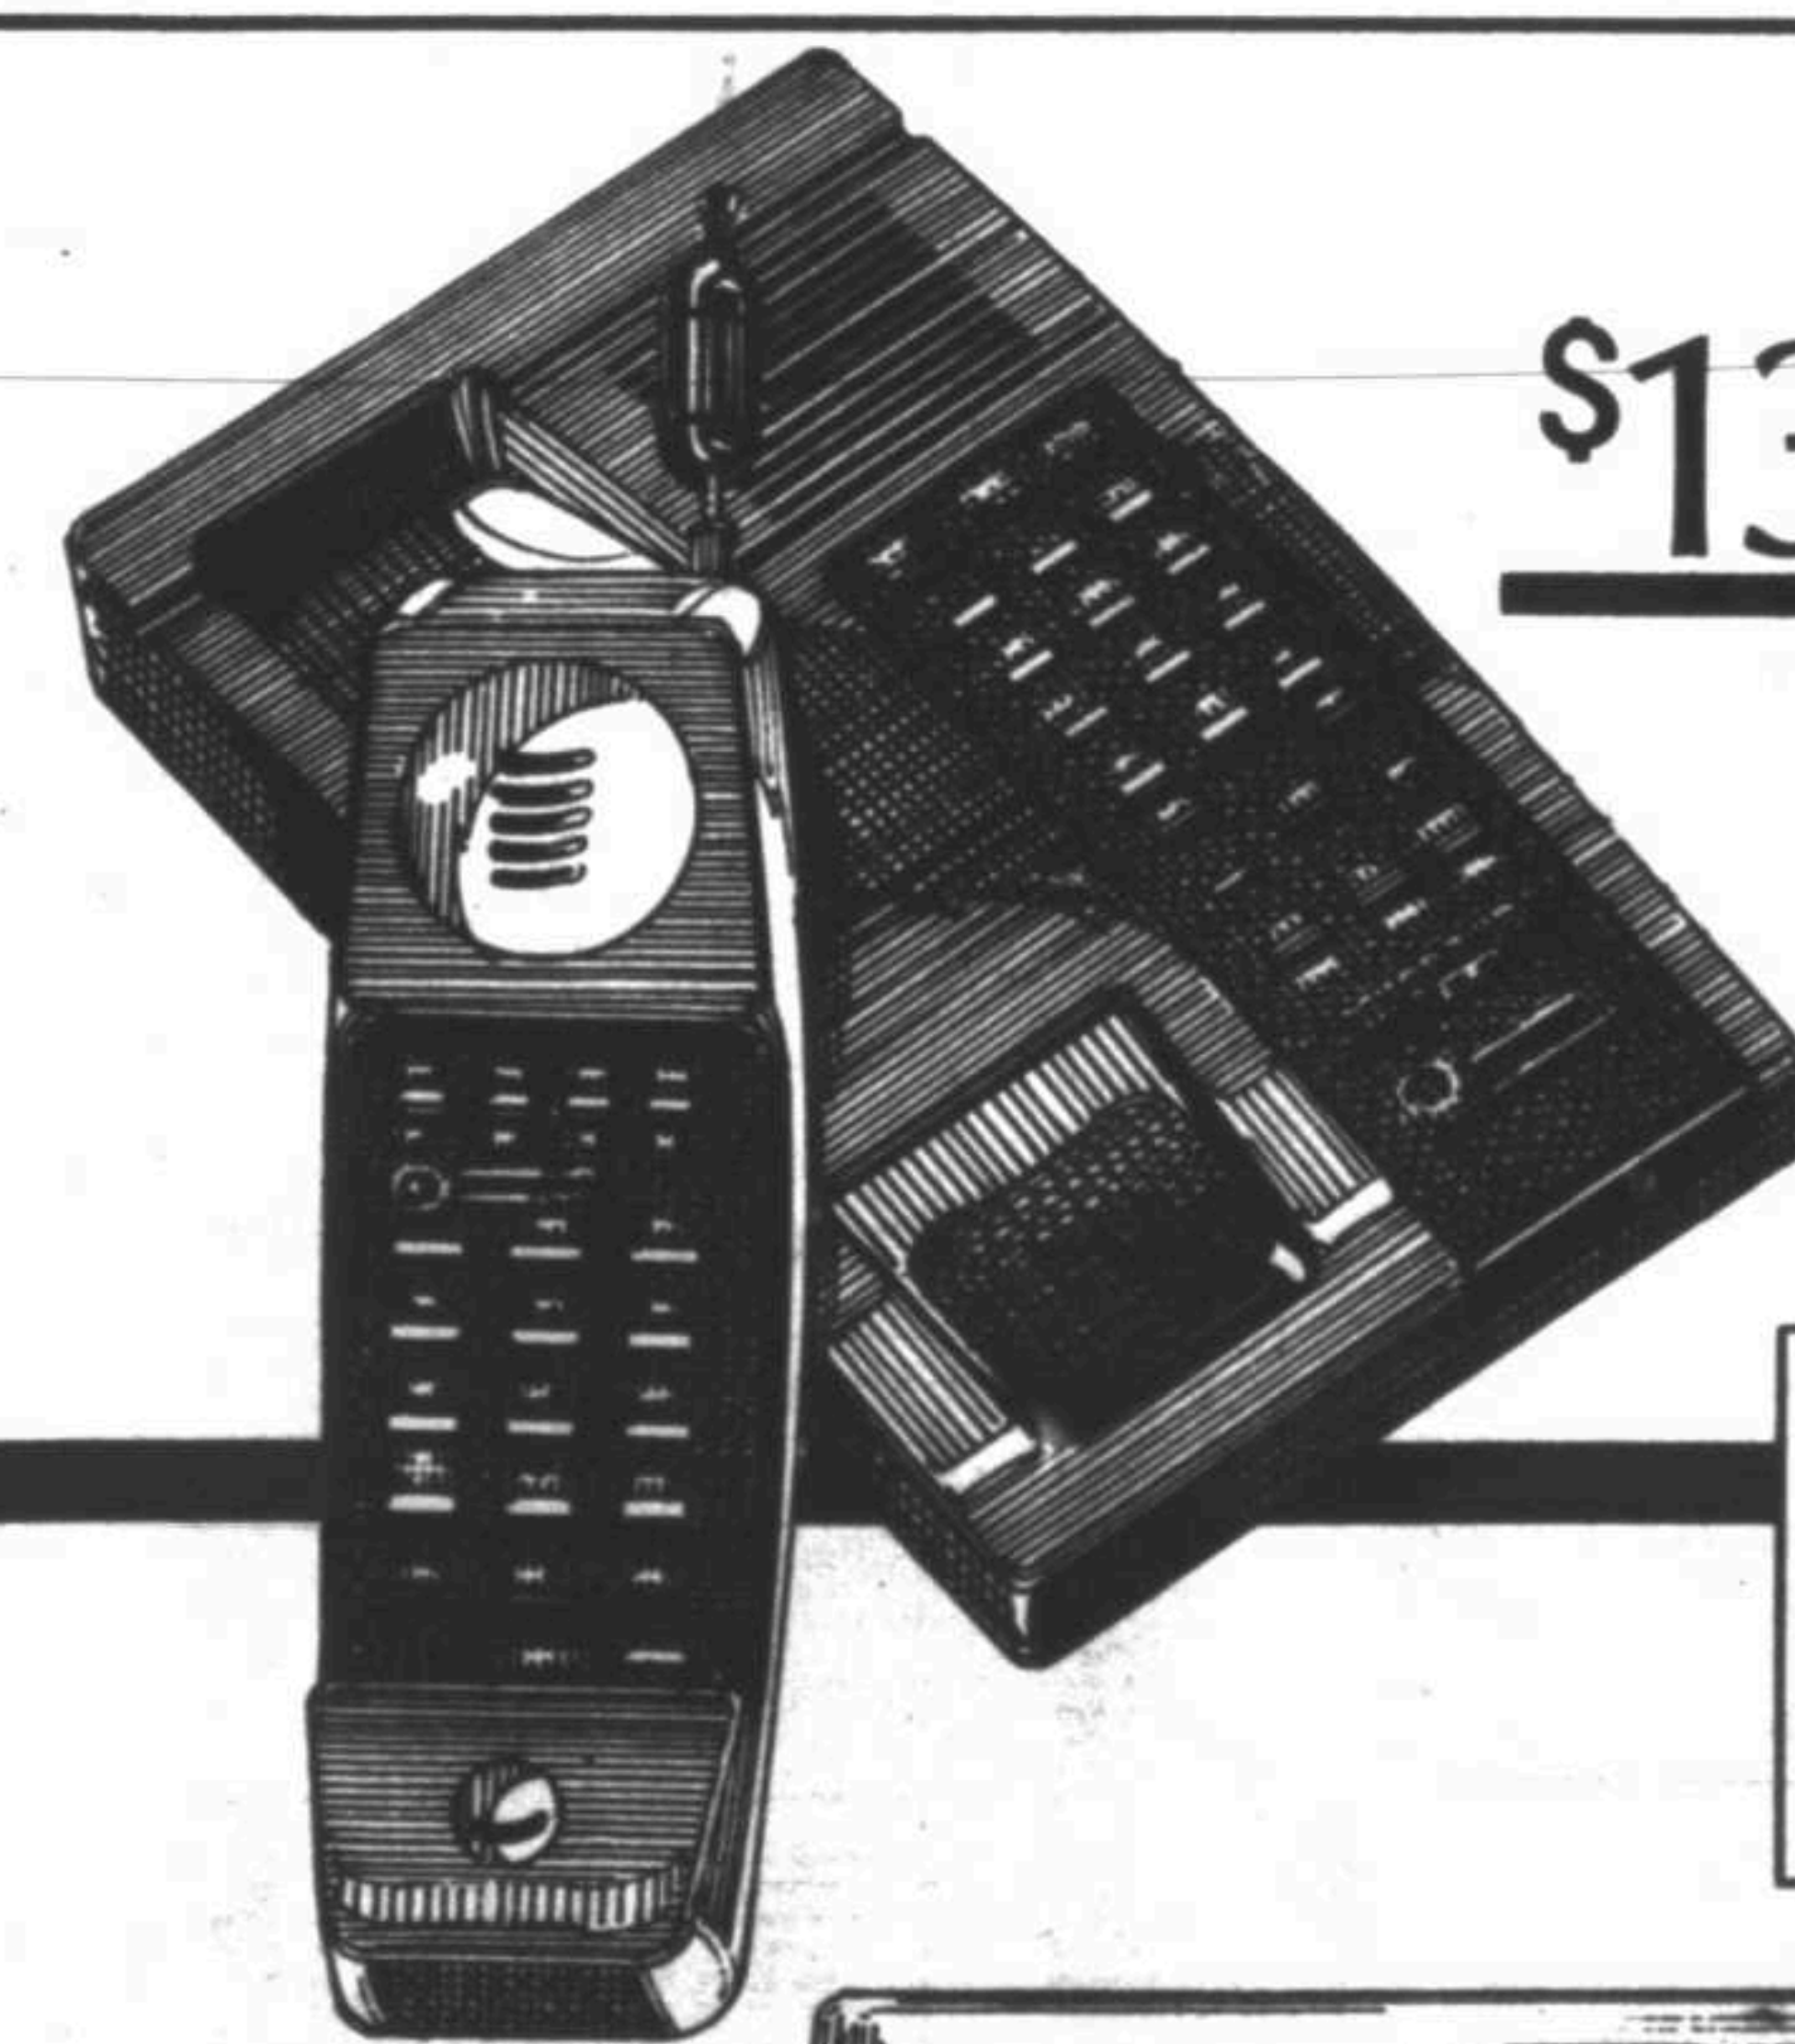

Ms. Griffey and Ms. Laughlin flew to Birmingham and were reunited with Tamisha Thursday night. They returned home with her Friday.

Storm R&D valuable to coast

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP)—A network of 14 tidal gauges from Sabine Pass to Port Isabel will provide valuable information when a hurricane threatens the Texas coast, officials said.

F. Michael Speed, director of Corpus Christi State University's Blucher Institute, said tidal research by the institute not only will help in planning for a hurricane, but can provide immediate data during a storm.

The gauges record wind speed and direction, barometric pressure, temperature and water level.

"We are now prepared to provide information before, during and after a hurricane," Speed said. "Once enough data is gathered, we will be able to build knowledgeable computer models that can tell us what effect storm surges, etc., will have on us."

He said the institute recently installed three new gauges from Baffin Bay south to Port Mansfield after receiving a $30,000 foundation grant.

The new instruments bring the number of operational gauges spread along the Texas coast from Sabine Pass to Port Isabel to 10, Speed said.

Before this year's hurricane season opens on June 1, four more gauges will be installed at Port Aransas, in Nueces Bay off White Point, off Riviera Beach south of Kingsville and an offshore location.

The new gauges south of Corpus Christi are equipped with telemetry devices that send data to a National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration satellite, he said. The information is then relayed to NOAA and transmitted by a radio link to the institute.

Ex-lawmen's sentences range from 10 to 28 years

TYLER (AP) — Three white former Sabine County lawmen convicted of beating a black inmate to death in December 1987 were sentenced late Friday by an all-white jury to prison terms ranging from 10 to 28 years.

Former Hemphill Police Chief Thomas Ladner was sentenced to the longest term — 28 years — for the murder of Loyal Garner Jr. Former Sabine County sheriff's deputy Billy Ray Horton got a 10-year sentence and former deputy James M. Hyden was sentenced to 14 years.

All faced sentences of five years' probation to 99 years or life in prison and fines up to $10,000. They had been eligible for parole because they had no prior convictions.

The sentences were delivered in a packed courthouse about 6:15 p.m. after the Smith County jury deliberated for 4½ hours.

Horton and Hyden were allowed to remain free on appeal bonds of $25,000 because their sentences were less than 15 years in prison. Ladner was immediately taken into custody.

"I'm glad. I'm happy that they were convicted and they got time. The main one (Ladner) is already gone," said the victim's widow, Corrine Garner. "I'm going to go home and raise my kids."

Loyal Garner Sr. had hoped for longer sentences for the men responsible for his son's death.

"I'm upset about it. I don't have anything to say," he said.

The victim's mother, Sarah Garner, said: "I'm satisfied that some kind of justice has been done."

Prosecutor Jack Skeen had tears in his eyes as he asked the jury Friday to send the three former lawmen to life in jail for killing Garner.

Black activists have hailed the verdict as a victory for racial justice.

The three previously were tried and acquitted of civil rights charges in Garner's death, and still have appeals pending on grounds the murder trial constitutes double jeopardy.

As Skeen made his closing statement in the punishment phase of the trial, some in the courtroom wept openly along with him.

"Establish by your verdict the real meaning of Smith County justice," Skeen told the all-white jury. "This is Loyal Garner Jr.'s last chance."

Hyden was the only defendant to testify in his own behalf during the punishment phase. He pointed out that he has a wife and three children, and pleaded for probation.

Skeen later criticized Hyden's brief statement, saying "Not one time did he indicate any remorse."

Wagner's attorney, John Seale, compared Skeen's efforts to put the three former lawmen in prison to those of a lynch mob.

"On one occasion, these men got mad, lost their temper and over-reacted," Seale said. "We all lose our tempers."

Defense attorneys said they fear for their clients' lives if they are imprisoned because of retribution by other inmates.

Several Hemphill residents who knew the defendants also testified on their behalf, saying they shouldn't be sent to prison because they are peaceful, law-abiding citizens.

citizens.

Hemphill Mayor Richard Bass said he believes the three were convicted not only by what was heard at the trial but also by the media. He said he did not believe the three men pose a threat to anyone.

Garner, a 34-year-old father of six from Florien, La., died Dec. 27, 1987, of severe head injuries he suffered at the jail after his Christmas Day arrest on drunken driving charges. He had no criminal record.

Admitted into evidence during the trial were graphic color autopsy photographs showing Garner's badly beaten head.

The former officers had claimed they struck Garner in self-defense when he became unruly at the jail.

A Hemphill jury in 1988 found that the three officers had not violated Garner's civil rights. While that civil case was pending, the three were indicted on murder charges.

The 12th Court of Appeals in Tyler ruled that in wake of the Hemphill jury's acquittals, the murder indictments amounted to double jeopardy.

Women blockade college to protest co-ed vote

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Enraged students took control of Mills College on Friday, staging sit-ins and blockades they vowed would continue until the exclusive women's school reverses a decision to admit men.

The noisy but non-violent demonstrators conducted a sit-in at the office of Mills President Mary Metz and shut down classes at the normally quiet, tree-lined liberal arts college. Most teachers supported the disruption, which could last until the May 20 graduation.

Students, wearing signs demanding the resignation of board of trustees chairman Warren Hellman, even drove Metz from her home about 9 a.m. with blaring horns and music and cries of "We Will Not Accept This.

"We're shutting them down," said Thomlyn Gingell, a sophomore art history major. "We haven't been listened to. Maybe this will make them listen."

But administrators, who couldn't get to their offices because of student blockades and sit-ins involving several hundred of the 777 undergraduate women, said the board of trustees wouldn't change its mind.

The board, citing declining enrollment and revenues, voted Thursday night to accept men as undergraduates, bringing an end to Mills' 138-year policy of admitting only women.

"No one was happy with the decision, but we believe that life goes on," said Metz, who agreed to

'They came here to go to a women's college and they should be allowed to finish in a women's college.'

— Marge Thomas, Mills College, class of '63

meet with students Friday and again Tuesday to discuss the decision to go co-ed.

"I don't believe the board will reverse itself," she said. "I hope this grieving starts the healing process."

While students protested, members of the Mills College Alumnae Association held what they described as a "wake" at the group's campus office. After the trustees' vote, the alumnae group decided to consult an attorney to see if Mills students can sue the school to keep from going co-ed in the fall of 1991.

Marge Thomas, of the graduate class of 1963, said alumnae don't believe they can get the trustees to reverse their decision, but that maybe the board will approve waiting to go co-ed until after the 1990 first-year students are graduated.

"They came here to go to a women's college and they should be allowed to finish in a women's college," Thomas said.

Many women at Mills said they would not return next year because of the trustees' vote.

"I can't believe they would ignore us like that," said Amy Hutto, one of a handful of undergraduates who shaved their heads in protest.

Enrollment in Mills' 33 undergraduate programs is down 4.2 percent from three years ago and below the 1,000 students needed to balance the $24 million annual budget, economists at the school said. Tuition at Mills is almost $12,000.

Mills is the only single-sex learning institution in Northern California. Two women's colleges are located in Southern California and 94 remain nationwide.

Jobless hike fuels talk of recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate climbed to 5.4 percent in April, its highest level in more than a year, the government said Friday in a report analysts called a disturbing sign the economy could slip into recession.

There was paltry growth in the number of U.S. jobs for the second straight month, and the total actually would have declined if not for the hiring of temporary census workers.

"The report indicates the bottom dropped out of the labor market in April. It speaks more toward a possible recession than a rebounding economy," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the Boston Co.

Added Robert Dederick of the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago:

"I don't think we can say the economy is toppling over a cliff, but it is not showing any signs that it's backing away from the cliff, either, so there's that danger."

Bond markets rallied in response to the report. Traders took weaker-than-expected employment — a report running counter to recent indications that the economy was picking up — as a sign the Federal Reserve would not boost interest rates to slow things down. The government reported last week that the economy grew at a 2.1 percent rate in the first three months of the year, twice as fast as some private analysts had predicted.

In April, the civilian jobless rate as measured by a household survey was up from the 5.2 percent registered in March. Before that, the unemployment rate had held steady at 5.3 percent for nine months.

The last time the jobless rate reached 5.4 percent was January 1989.

The number of new jobs created edged up only slightly, with a net gain of 64,000. That included the government's hiring of 78,000 workers for the 1990 census.

The nation's factories, in a slump for months, continued to falter as manufacturing jobs fell by 22,000. It was the 12th decline in 13 months.

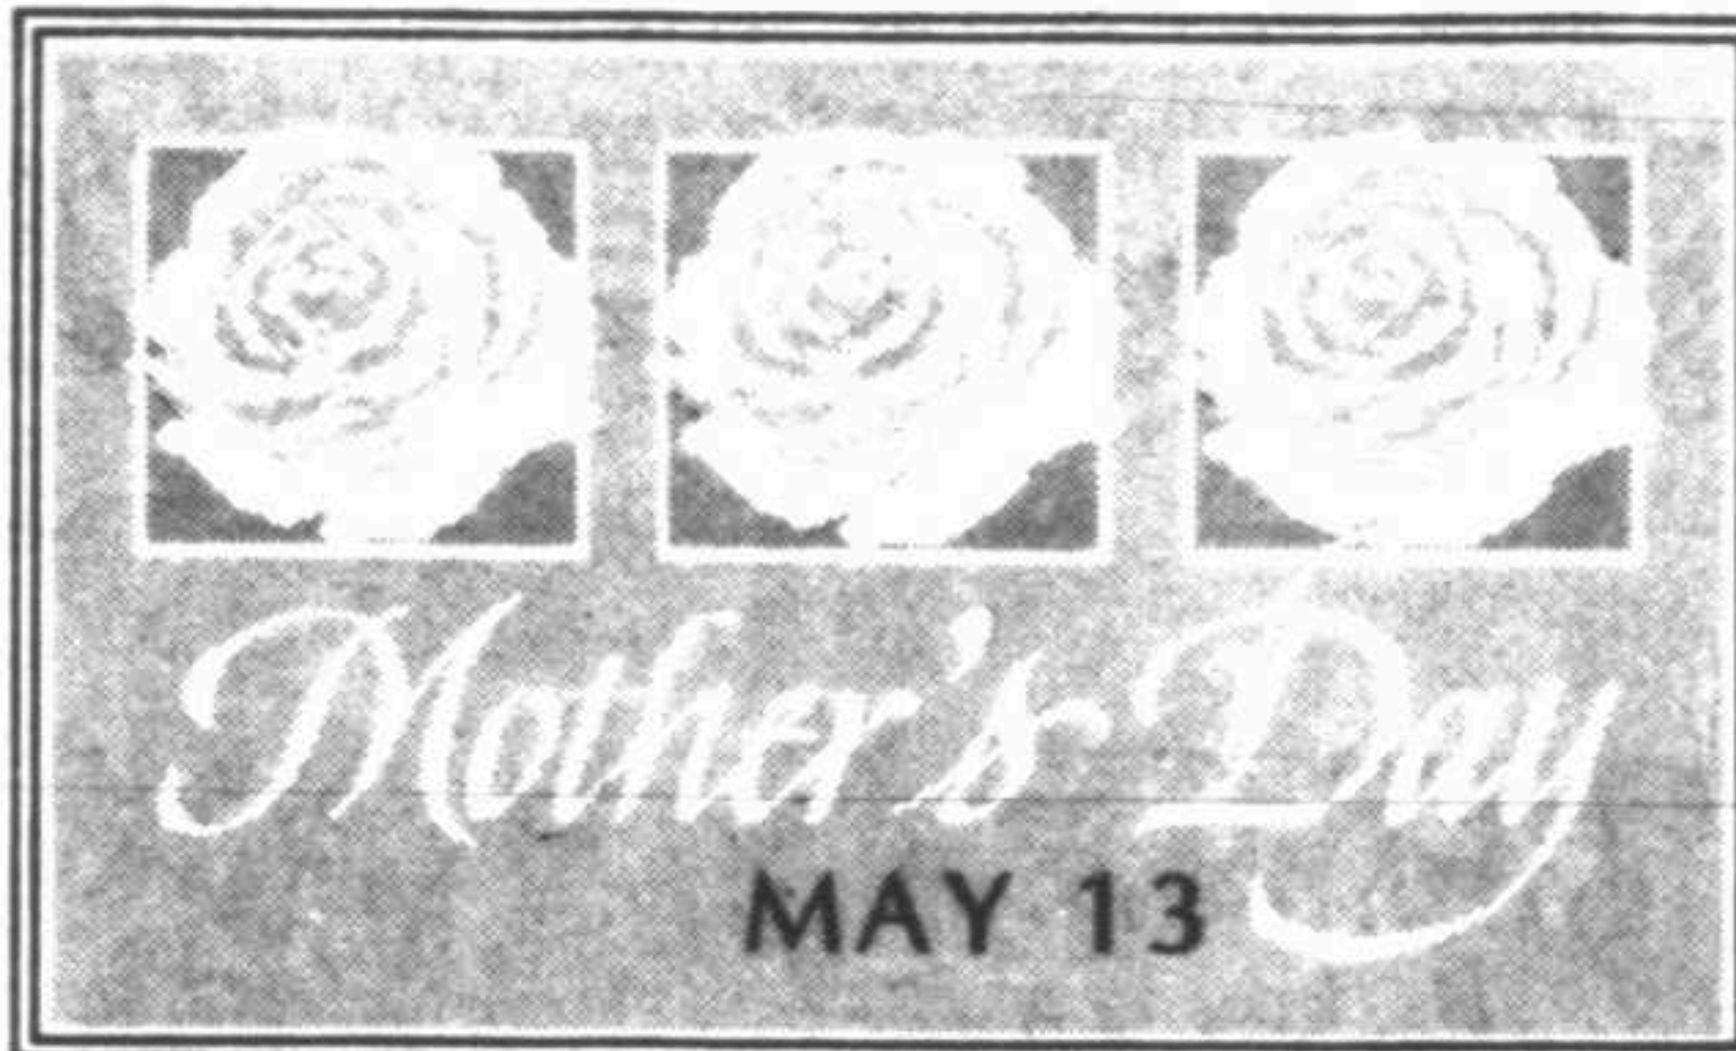

The biggest payroll drop in April came in construction, with a seasonally adjusted fall of 99,000 jobs. Construction jobs had been inflated early in the year by unusually warm weather.

Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, noted that job growth was robust in the first two months of the year as about 700,000 new jobs were created.

Many economists had predicted the nation's unemployment rate would eventually creep up this year. Since mid-1988, the rate has ranged between 5 percent and 5.5 percent.

Robert Polhill, left, is hugged by Frank Reed, right, at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., Friday. Upon his arrival after 42 months in captivity in the Middle East, Reed whispered to the former hostage Polhill, "We're going to get the rest of them out, aren't we," referring to the other six Americans being held hostage.

Gentle tears, gentle rain greet ex-hostage Reed

ANDREWS AIR FORCE BASE, Md. (AP) — Freed American hostage Frank Reed returned to his homeland Friday with a prayer that "my mates left behind" will quickly share his freedom and joy. "God," he implored, "make it soon."

Drawn and unsteady despite several days' rest at a U.S. military hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany, Reed was embraced by his family and another former hostage, Robert Polhill, who was released by separate captors in Lebanon just eight days before Reed was let go Monday.

In a brief formal statement that left his greeters shedding tears as a gentle rain fell, Reed said: "Fellow Americans, because of all of you I'm alive."

And in a special tribute to all hostage relatives, several of whom were on hand in a customary show of unity, he declared "Because of Peggy Say, Kit and Joan Sutherland, the Keenan sisters, Pat McCarthy, and many, many others, I am unchained and unblindfolded."

Moments after he boarded a bus which was to take Reed and his family to the Malcolm Grow Medical Center at the base, the caravan was diverted down the tarmac where, to Reed's delight, he was greeted by Barbara Bush as she was about to board a flight to Kentucky.

Reed was accompanied on the flight from Germany by his wife Fahima, known as Fifi, and their young son Tarek, who played on the tarmac with a live, lobster that Kennedy presented. In Germany, Reed had remarked that the first thing he wanted when he got home was a 3-pound lobster.

The release of Reed and Polhill left six Americans and nine other Westerners still held in Lebanon.

Hubble past jittery debut

WASHINGTON (AP) — A slight wobble detected in the Hubble Space Telescope has disappeared, engineers said Friday.

"We are not seeing anything of that right now," said Mike Harrington, who is directing the months-long checkout of the telescope. "We are not sure exactly what we saw or what it was."

Harrington had good news to report: Ground controllers received their first data from the telescope's science computer after sending commands.

When the telescope is up and running, it will be that computer that sends the sophisticated science data.

The slight jitter showed up Thursday, a motion of just 1-600th of a degree — too much in an instrument that's supposed to be able to measure the width of a human hair at a range of five miles.

Asked what caused it, Harrington said: "Nobody really knows, it could be as simple as the fact that we weren't calibrated quite right as we started and that we overexited the controls."

Harrington said the telescope's pointing control system would be turned on Sunday morning and the jitter, if it's still there, will show up then.

The series of problems experienced by the telescope since astronauts left it in space April 25 have put the checkout at least a week behind schedule, Harrington said. "It's perfectly expectable," he said. "This probably is the most complex spacecraft we've ever flown. You know you are going to have these kinds of things, unexpected and unpredicted little quirks of the spacecraft. You've got to take your time to figure them out and move on."

The telescope's electronics have gone into a protective mode three times because of small glitches. The telescope's lens cover twice introduced too much motion and a primary antenna brushed up against a cable and could move no further.

The first picture had been expected from the telescope by mid-week.

Oklahoma Senate approves pay raise for its employees

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Senate, meeting in an unusual Friday session, passed a bill that would give state employees a $1,000 across-the-board pay raise.

The Senate approved the measure, the first major bill to come from the Legislature's joint budget-writing committee, on a 36-0 vote and then approved the emergency clause. The bill now goes to the House.

After approving the measure, the Senate adjourned for the weekend.

The pay raises would range from about 8 percent for the lowest paid state employees to 1 percent for those making more than $100,000, according to calculations.

"This bill will help those who fall below the federal poverty level of $11,704 by bringing them up to that level," said Sen. Stratton Taylor, D-Claremore, Senate author of the bill.

The General Conference Committee on Appropriations approved the bill late Thursday, clearing the way for the Legislature to consider it.

Lava watch continues

KALAPANA, Hawaii (AP) — Star of the Sea Church was moved as a lava flow burned through the heart of this picturesque beach town Friday, more than seven years after Kilauea Volcano began its latest eruption.

The flow picked up speed and advanced more than 200 yards overnight, but so far it has bypassed the Kalapana Store and Drive-Inn and the Kalapana Mauna Kea Congregational Church.

It was moving behind both structures, and was beginning to rise along the Congregational Church's wall that abutted a meeting hall. But civil defense officials said they were more concerned about three homes in danger of being cut off from road access before residents could remove their belongings.

The wooden Roman Catholic Church — also called "the painted church" — slowly made its way down Beach Road, which crews had cleared of utility poles and overhanging tree branches.

An elderly native Hawaiian woman pleaded with workers and civil defense officials not to move the church. Church officials decided last week to save its hand-painted wall murals.

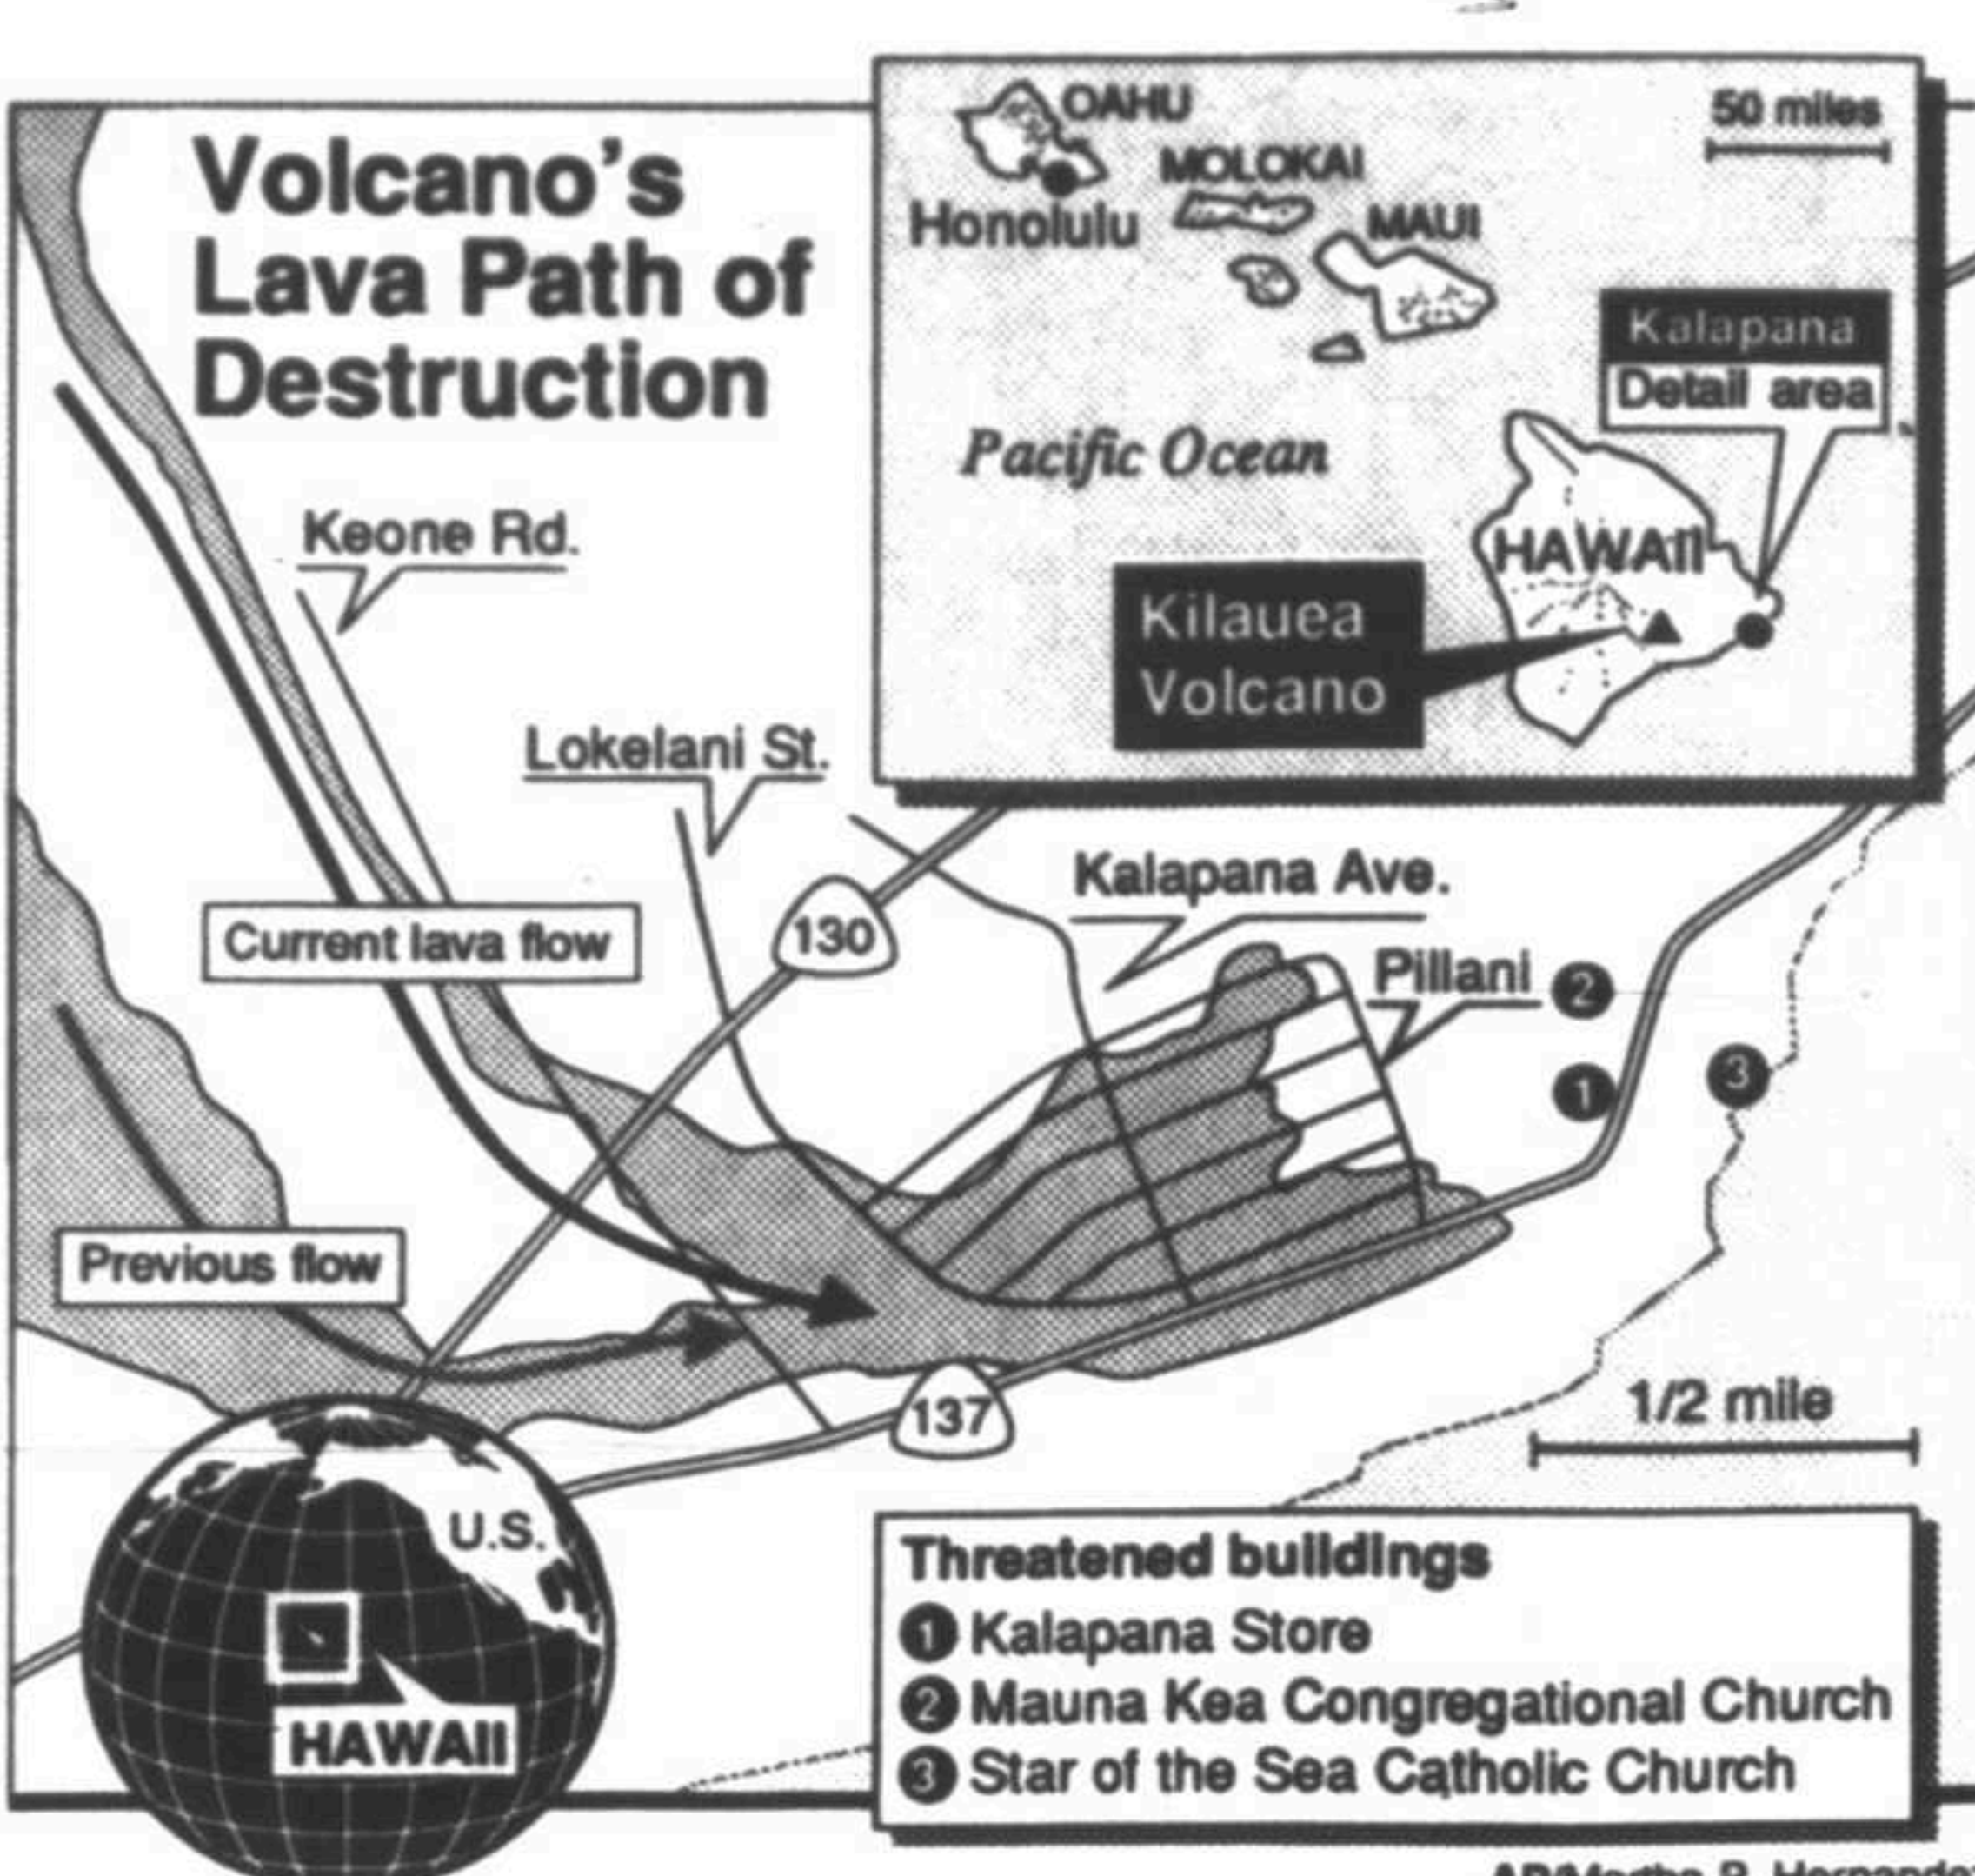

"How can you move it? How can you move it?" the woman screamed at workers for a construction company that volunteered its services.

Others echoed similar sentiments.

"How can you call it Star of the Sea Church if they put it on a mountain?" asked Kapena Kamahele, whose family has a long history in Kalapana.

Workers toiled throughout the night to prepare the church for relocation. It was taken about a mile out of town, where it will stay until church officials decide where to move it.

Civil defense ordered members

AP/Martha P. Hernandez

of the congregational church who had spent the night in the building to evacuate Friday morning.

"The book is closed. We open a new book today," said Bernice McKeague, church moderator.

The congregation held a prayer vigil Thursday night and watched as the lava built up in a gully behind the church. Long before the present flow arrived, church members voted never to move the church, saying it would be hypocritical of their faith.

The church, originally built along the seashore in 1823, was destroyed by an earthquake, tidal wave and lava in 1868.

The earthquake sunk the land the church was located on, and a few years later it was rebuilt at the site where Star of the Sea is located. Erosion prompted the congregation to move again across the street to its present location, McKeague said.

"She packs a real history," McKeague said.

So far, Walter Yamaguchi, owner of the Kalapana Store and Drive-Inn since 1963 has been correct in maintaining that his store would be spared.

He has been making daily offerings to Hawaiian volcano goddess Pele.

"Madame Pele will never take me," the 82-year-old man said.

Of increasing concern to authorities is the threat to public health when the lava begins to flow into the ocean, which it eventually will do if it continues its present path. When lava hits the water, it creates sulphuric acid, a harmful toxic substance known in volcano country as "laze."

Florida welcomes rain-aid

MIAMI (AP) — Firefighters backed up against the last natural barrier between a 4-mile wall of flames and a wildlife preserve said Friday they had controlled the fire, which has blackened 25,000 acres of the drought-dry Everglades.

Fire had raced across the dry grasslands and leaped a canal but was beaten back before reaching a levee, the last natural barrier between the flames and the sprawling Big Cypress National Wildlife Preserve, officials said.

Shortly after 4 p.m. CDT, the fire was reported under control, said Peter Karayeanes, duty officer for the state Division of Forestry. The area would be monitored in case of flare-ups, he said.

A heavy downpour around noon Friday missed the center of the fire but helped firefighters trying to control the last area of violent burning.

"With that rain it slowed it

Narrow gauge opening for summer

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — The Durango & Silverton Narrow Gauge Railroad, the anchor of southwestern Colorado's summer tourist season, opens today.

At the same time, a drought has spurred tinder-dry conditions in the national forests through which the train chugs each day, forcing the railroad to expand its fire protection arrangements.

"We're going to try to do everything we can to avoid burning the forest down," said Dan McCall, superintendent of the railroad.

The railroad also has canceled its membership in the Durango Area Chamber Resort Association.

"We just felt we weren't getting the support from them that we should get," said Patsy Dolan, railroad spokeswoman.

The chamber association, known as DACRA, had been receiving $1,305 in dues from the railroad, an extremely popular attraction that gave rides to 201,000 passengers last year.

Dolan said the railroad's reservations are 5 percent above last year's. The trip also will cost more due to a 15 percent rate hike approved by the state Public Utilities Commission.

The fare for the round trip rose from $32.30 to $37.15 for adults and from $16.25 to $18.65 for children.

Ken Brengle, executive officer at DACRA, said he hopes the railroad decision to pull out of the marketing organization isn't final.

"We've had several meetings to try to resolve the problems," he said. "I hope it's not a closed issue, and we can continue to work on it."

More than 600 southwestern Colorado businesses belong to DACRA.

Meanwhile, as the railroad schedules a weekend of events to celebrate the opening of the season, McCall is taking steps to reduce fire hazards.

Cinders thrown from the engines as they travel from Durango to Silverton set 726 fires last year, with only three severe enough to require outside help to control, McCall said.

However, with the snowpack only 60 percent of normal in the area, fire danger likely will be much higher this summer.

McCall said additional crews will be assigned to follow the train with water tanks and a chemical additive to keep fires from spreading.

The railroad also is banning smoking on all trains this summer.

In addition, McCall is working with officials from the U.S. Forest Service, bureau of Land Management and local governmental agencies to set up fire coverage plans.

Finally, it is installing a "bear trap" over the smoke stacks of locomotives designed to reduce the number of cinders thrown out of the engines.

The trap, twice as large as the stack, is more than four feet high, McCall said.

If the trap works, McCall said the railroad would build five more and install them on the other engines.

Lithuania may win gentle war with Gorbachev

By Bernard D. Kaplan
Hearst News Service

PARIS — For the first time since Moscow launched its campaign six weeks ago to strangle the breakaway Lithuania by stages, belief is mounting among Western European political observers that the Baltic republic may succeed, after all.

Lithuania, struggling to wrest free of the Soviet colossus and the looming presence of the Red Army, is gently demonstrating its resolution by putting on open-air concerts and flower-festooned parades of bike riders and cheerleaders. The tactic may look laughable or even pathetic.

But a growing number of European sources, highly pessimistic only a few days ago about Lithuania's chances, say developments may now slowly be moving in its favor — despite the refusal by the United States and other major western nations to come down unequivocally on the little Baltic country's side.

Last week's joint intervention by French President Francois Mitterrand and Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany, calling on Lithuania to freeze its implementation of independence in exchange for negotiations with Moscow is more and more seen as a possible turning point.

Initially, the Mitterrand-Kohl proposal was widely criticized as one that was abandoning Lithuania. Now, it's looked on as an escape hatch for Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, allowing him to drop his insistence that the Lithuanians must revoke their proclamation of independence before a dialogue can start.

Lithuanian leader Vytautas Landsbergis called the proposal a "positive step."

Soviet officials have conceded it is worth considering — something that observers here doubt they would have done a week or two ago.

The view gaining ground here is that the Lithuanians' imperturbable refusal to recognize the overwhelming odds against them has itself become a factor helping to shorten those odds.

As Alois Mehrtens, a former West German diplomat and head of that country's Institute of Foreign Policy Studies, put it, "The little music teacher (Landsbergis) is proving a tough nut to crack."

Because it is virtually the last recourse left to them, the Lithuanians have decided to rely on what Mehrtens called "serene, almost child-like solidarity" to keep independence alive. The Soviets, he said, have been surprised and non-plused by their behavior.

A similar change of sentiment was shown by a French foreign ministry official who previously was glum about Lithuania's prospects.

"There's not much doubt Gorbachev is reassessing the situation," he declared.

Soviet policymakers had been confident that, once the initial euphoria over independence faded, the Lithuanians could be brought to heel by the overwhelming nature of the obstacles facing them, the French diplomat said.

That clearly was a miscalculation, he added, pointing out that last month, Lithuanian communist party spokesmen launched a campaign to persuade their compatriots that the struggle was hopeless because of the tightening economic blockade.

"The campaign was coordinated with Moscow, but it failed to have the anticipated effect," the foreign ministry man noted.

The Lithuanians' "blanket refusal to accept the inevitable" is now compelling Moscow to reconsider its strategy, he said.

A military crackdown is no longer a viable Soviet option in the view of most western officials, according to the French diplomat.

"There was a moment when the Kremlin might have gotten away with a short, sharp application of military force, arresting the Lithuanian leadership and so on; we think they contemplated doing it in early April," he added. "But the moment has come and gone."

If Gorbachev ordered the army to crack down now, "he would be hurting no one more than himself," he said.

Jean-Francois Deniau, the influential chairman of the French parliament's foreign relations committee, said the crisis may be heading in the direction of a "Finnish solution."

"After the last war, Finland agreed to Soviet military bases on its territory in exchange for Moscow's acceptance of its continued independence," Deniau recalled. "The Soviets are worried about their bases in Lithuania. A compromise on Finnish lines may be the solution."

Correction

It was erroneously reported in the Friday, May 4 Reporter-Telegram that Midland Lee senior golfer J.J. King signed a letter of intent to play golf at Angelo State University.

King signed with Division II Abilene Christian University of the Lone Star Conference Friday. ACU is currently ranked No. 3 in the nation among Division II schools.

We regret any inconvenience this error may have caused.

116th Derby runs today

■ Five horses stand out in the 15-entrant 1990 field of the Run for the Roses.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — There are almost as many good story lines in the 116th Kentucky Derby as there are 3-year-olds.

And there are 15 of those. So when they go to the post at Churchill Downs Saturday:

— Trainer Laz Barrera will try to foresee a perfect ending for Mister Frisky, seeking to become just the fourth colt to win the Derby with a perfect record.

— Neil Howard, the trainer of Summer Squall, hopes it's finally Pat's Derby Day. Pat Day is the winningest jockey at Churchill Downs, but has failed to win the Derby in seven tries.

— Trainer Bobby Frankel would like to visit the winner's circle with Pendleton Ridge, who has never been to any winner's circle.

— Debbie McAnally, hopes it's a golden moment for Silver Ending, whom she purchased for $1,500 as a yearling and is trained by her husband Ron.

— Nick Zito wants to be able to say "I told you so." The trainer of Thirty Six Red said that if his colt won the Wood Memorial, he would win the Derby and Thirty Six Red won the Wood.

Those are the best of the 15 stories in the field, reduced to 15 late Friday when Country Day was scratched, having his right front leg during a working Friday morning.

Mister Frisky burst on the U.S. racing scene from Puerto Rico, where he won all 13 starts. Under the care of trainer Laz Barrera, the colt has won three starts in California, including the Santa Anita Derby, and will be the 14th unbeaten Derby starter.

Regret, 1915; Morvich, 1922; and Seattle Slew, 1977, were still unbeaten after the race.

No one has had a better time this week at Churchill Downs than Barrera, who won the 1976 Derby with Bold Forbes, who also began his career in Puerto Rico, and the 1978 Derby with Affirmed.

"He make my life happy again," said Barrera, who had open heart surgery in 1979 and 1984 and who was cleared last year of charges that he doped his horses with cocaine. He is suing the laboratory, which conducted the tests, for $25 million.

Commenting on how he is kidded about his English, the native of Cuba, who will be 66 next Tuesday, said, "My horse understands my English."

Mister Frisky's main rival could be once-beaten Summer Squall, winner of the Jim Beam and Blue Grass.

Asked about what he liked about Day, who has been criticized for some past Derby rides, Howard said: "Everything." "The fact he hasn't won the Derby is absolutely of no consequence," said Cot Campbell, president of Dogwood Stable in whose name and colors Summer Squall races. "His Derby number just hasn't come up."

Day finished second on Forty Niner, the second choice, in the 1988 Derby and was second again last year aboard favored Easy Goer.

Rebs hit field

■ Midland Lee's coaches were surprised to find the offense ahead of schedule and the defense behind expectations in the Rebels' first day of spring football practice.

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

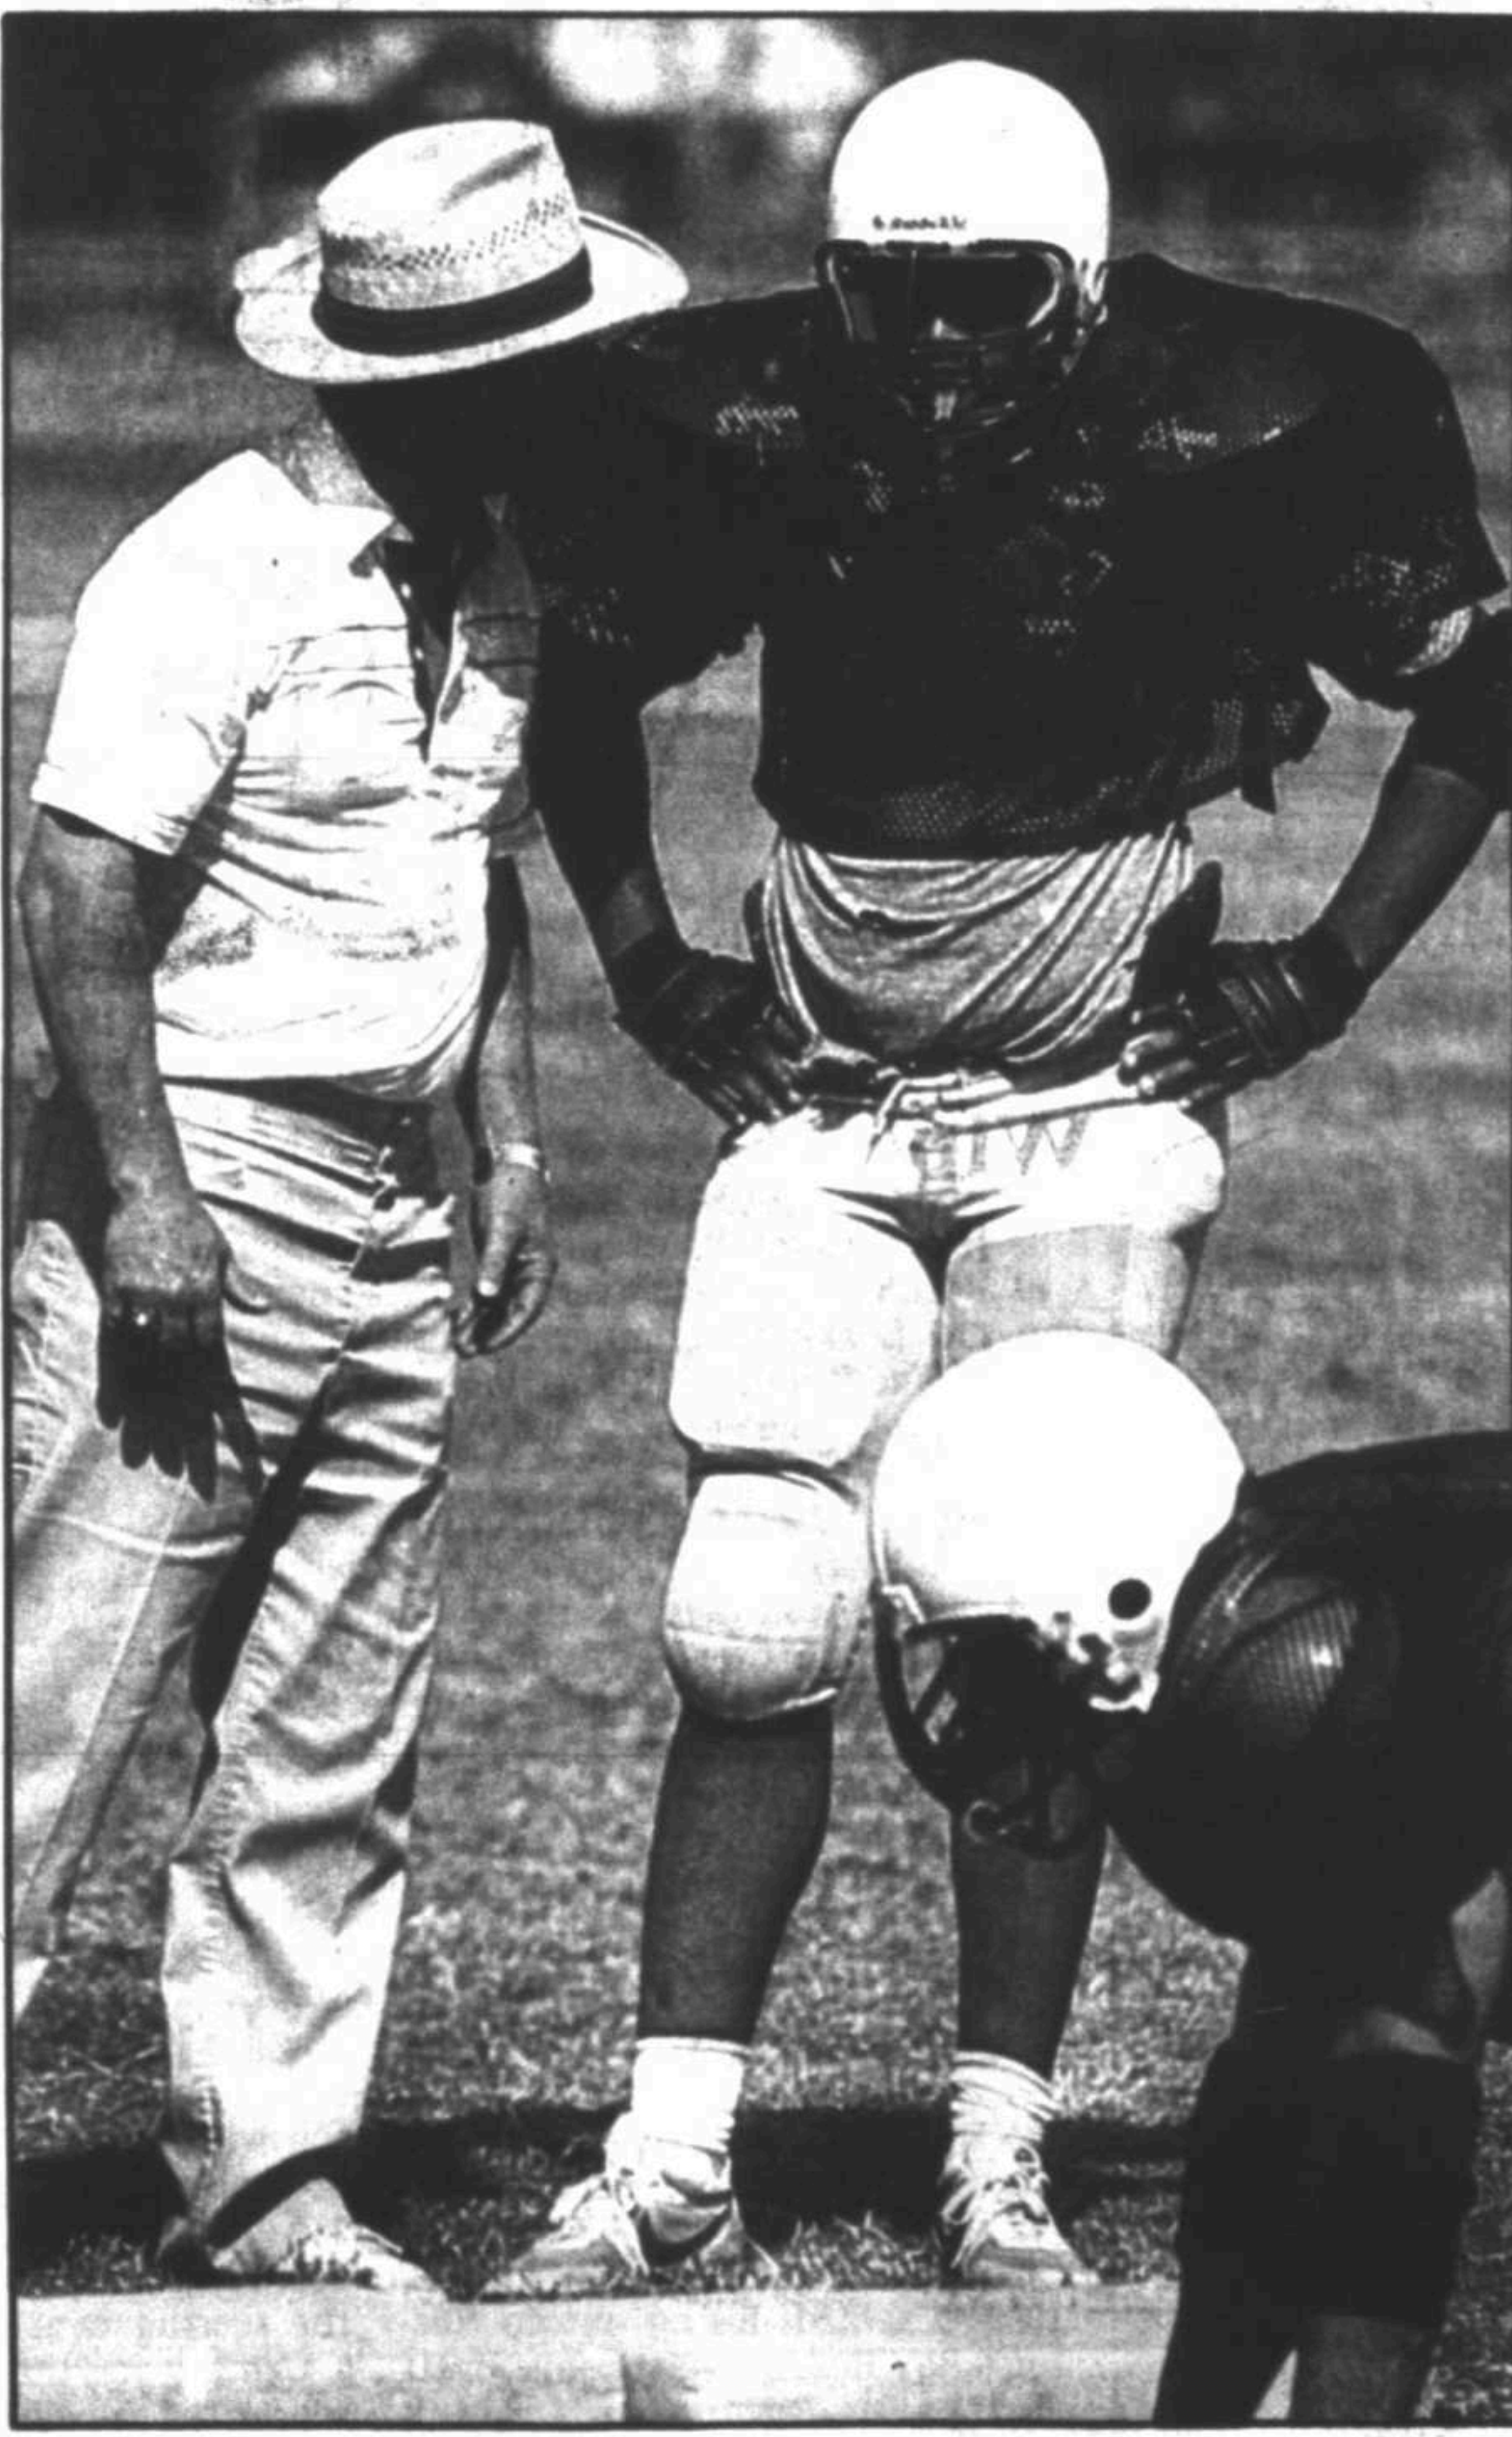

It took Midland Lee head football coach Earl Miller just moments to sum up his squad's first day of spring practice Friday. As for the good news, Miller's stance softened as he considered Lee's just-completed day of work.

At least a little. "You just might call them below average from what we've had in the past," maintained Miller at first. "I expected to see some good things from our defense, but if there was a bright spot out there today it was with our offense."

"But our effort was good, and looking back I saw some big offensive line-men come off the ball pretty good." All-State tackle Justin Firkins and All-District center K.C. Jones may have helped in that observation.

"And we had some backs that seemed to carry the ball pretty well for us," he said, not needing to mention that one of them is not named Farris Strambler. The best Lee ball carrier to ever take the field was a senior last year.

However, 66 players suited out at the Lee practice field Friday, working mostly on fundamentals from 4 p.m. until 6:15 p.m. in preparation for the annual Maroon-White scrimmage May 24, which finalizes Lee spring practice. That game will be the next step the Rebels take in their search for an eighth straight playoff appearance.

Midland Lee head football coach Earl Miller holds a 'conference' with a Rebel linebacker hopeful Friday.

"I'd say we were below where we were at the same time last year, speaking offensively," said Lee offensive coordinator Van Tom Whately. "We had a couple of bright spots, but I'd only say they were fair for their first day."

Lee offensive line coach Ronnie Stephens urged his charges to "Work at getting better each and every day you come out here. If you want to be better football players, you've got to give it the effort that's necessary, he told them."

Coach Miller preferred to discuss his team's lackluster defense.

Glenn Carter has but one goal in mind: To make it to the big leagues. Just like every other minor leaguer.

At first meeting, Carter seems a unique cross between city and country boy. And it's no wonder. Last year's Midwest League strikeout leader grew up in the hills of Kentucky and then moved to Chicago where he attended Triton Junior College.

The Midland Angels' No. 1 pitcher, though, is not just your average guy with dreams of big league money and fame. His thoughts go beyond the material stuff. He is the rare, more sentimental sort.

The 22-year-old Bowling Green, Ky., native is recently married. His wife, who is wrapping up shop at their last home in the Windy City, will join him in Midland, the Windier City, next month. The couple has no children, but it is obvious they have their sights set on some little ones.

"That's why I want to hurry up and get to The Show," Carter says, "so I can hurry up and have kids."

Nice that such down-to-earth thoughts still accompany young would-be-superstar baseball players.

He is a humble sort. He doesn't pay much mind or get the big head at being named the Angels' leadoff pitcher.

"I never really put any thought into it," Carter said, "what with the staff we have. After the first day, it doesn't matter anyway."

Carter has struggled along with every other Midland pitcher at this rough juncture of the season, sporting an 0-2 record after five starts.

At the beginning of the season, before those rough outings, Carter and Midland manager Eddie Rodriguez both possessed confidence in the young right hander's ability.

"He's young and he fights himself," said Rodriguez, who managed Carter last year at Quad Cities. "He needs work in that area, facing hitters and location of pitches, but that comes with time. He's got the stuff and you're going to see it with time."

Carter used a 88-90 mph fastball, curve ball and changeup to finish the 1989 season with a 15-6 record at the Angels' Class A farm club in Iowa. Carter struck out 190 batters and had a 2.05 earned run average last year.

Rookie takes lead in Byron Nelson

■ Fending off the wind and chill, Steve Lamontagne shoots a 66 by staying out of the rough at Las Colinas.

IRVING (AP) — Rookie Steve Lamontagne shot a 4-under-par 66 under difficult conditions and took a one-stroke lead Friday in the day-late start of the Byron Nelson Classic.

Battling strong winds and chilly weather, Lamontagne managed to avoid the deep, wet bermuda rough that tormented his fellow pros.

"The rough is really deep and thick. You don't want to be in there," he said. Lamontagne missed only one fairway — the 15th on the once-flooded and still-wet TPC at Las Colinas — and made his lone bogey there.

"It was a very tough golf course," he said. "This definitely was as good a round as the 65 (in the Hawaiian Open, his low score on the PGA Tour). That was seven under par and this is four, but it's definitely as good a round."

The course remained saturated from eight inches of rain earlier in the week that forced Thursday's play to be abandoned and reduced the tournament to a three-day, 54-hole format.

"With the tournament only three rounds, it's very important to get off to a good start," PGA champion Payne Stewart said after a 67 that put him in a tie for second with Larry Nelson, a playoff loser in this event last year.

Stewart hit only four fairways and sometimes found himself in mud and silt.

"I'm not at all pleased with the way I hit it, but I'm very pleased with the way I scored," he said. "On the 14th, at the top of my backswing, I could feel my right foot slipping in that goo."

But the comment was not a complaint.

"The greens superintendent and his crew should be praised," Stewart said. "Yesterday, parts of this golf course were under five feet of water. They did a helluva job to get it to a playable condition."

But the wet conditions, the wind, the chill and the rough combined to push scores unusually high.

"It was a tough golf course out there. Par was a very good score on every hole," Stewart said.

Bill Britton shot a 68 that tied him with Tom Sieckmann and Mark Lye. Britton's round included a pitch-in eagle and a double bogey, when he left the ball in the wet sand of a bunker.

British Open champion Mark Calcavecchia was tied at 69 with Andrew Magee, Phil Blackmar, Jim Benepe, D.A. Weibring.

Greg Norman had a 73. Lamontagne, who played the mini-tours for a couple of years before gaining his Tour playing rights, had his best finish at the Hawaiian Open when he tied for 12th.

"Except for that, I've been kind of struggling," he said.

The turnaround here came on the strength of his putter. He made a 40-footer to save par on the 13th, and he birdied the first from 20 feet.

"The best I've putted in a long time," he said.

Rizzo's 67 tops Sara Lee Classic LPGA standings

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Patti Rizzo shot a 5-under-par 67 Friday to take a two-stroke lead over first-round finishers at the rain-plagued Sara Lee Classic.

Rizzo, the 1988 Sara Lee champion, made the turn at 2-under 34, then chopped three more strokes off par on the back nine of the 6,242-yard, par-72 Hermitage Golf Course.

She holds a two-stroke lead over Kris Tschetter, Jane Geddes and Sandra Palmer. Cindy Rarick also was at 3-under when play was suspended due to darkness.

Rizzo stood at 4-under after 17 holes and then had to wait out a 3-hour, 20-minute rain delay before returning to the course to birdie the par-4 18th.

Dawn Coe, Joan Delk, Debbie Massey and Pamela Wright all completed their rounds at 2-under 70. Four other players of the 72 still on the course when play was suspended were at 2-under.

Among those scheduled to complete their first round Saturday morning were defending champion Kathy Postlewait, who made the turn at even-par 36.

Rizzo went to 4-under when she sank a 20-foot putt for birdie-2 at the 170-yard 13th and expanded her lead to two strokes by placing a wedge shot within 10 feet at No. 18 and guiding her birdie putt into the center of the hole.

Rizzo said gusting winds were her main problem Friday.

"I was real happy with shooting a good round in the wind. It's another barrier I've overcome in my career," said Rizzo, who has four career victories on the LPGA tour.

"I struck the ball really well today. I think I missed only one fairway and was on the fringe on two greens."

The 1981 University of Miami All-American said her biggest concern at the end of the rain delay was how she would perform on the tee.

"The 18th is not an easy driving hole and I didn't even know if I was going to make contact," she said. "After a delay, you're stiff and it usually takes a couple of holes to regroup mentally. If you sit around for three hours and worry, you're shot mentally."

Tschetter was among those thankful for an early tee time. "Par is going up," Tschetter said moments after completing her round and seeing the dark clouds gather overhead.

"The first couple of holes, it was real nice. It was a little wet so the course is playing longer. But, when the wind picked up, even-par began to look like a good score."

Tschetter, in her third full season on the LPGA tour, had five birdies and two bogeys as she fashioned the best first round of her career.

Tschetter, whose best tour finish is a 14th-place tie in the 1988 Rail Charity Golf Classic, kept her round together.

Just Like Lace back on track

Staff Report

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. — There were some shocked horse racing fans when the hard-hitting filly Just Like Lace, last year's Ruidoso Downs' Thoroughbred of the Meet, ran third in her first two starts this year.

After all, Just Like Lace built her fan club by winning races, something she did better than any thoroughbred in the nation last year. She visited the winner's circle 13 times in 18 starts.

After two lackluster outings to begin the year, however, there were murmurs that maybe Just Like Lace was not the same filly who was nearly unbeatable last year.

Just Like Lace silenced her critics on April 15 at The Downs in Albuquerque, N.M., romping to a facile victory in the La Primavera Stakes. She covered the flat mile in a solid clocking of 1:38.3.

"She was still half asleep from her winter rest," was how groom Mario Ruiz explained the mini-slump.

"In the first race this year, she got a little tired," said trainer Brent Davidson. "But in the second race, she was a little heartless. We had to take her out and train her a little."

Just Like Lace, a 4-year-old this year, is expected to make her first start at Ruidoso Downs in the $15,000-added First Lady Handicap on June 2.

Davidson said that Just Like Lace fooled him early in the year.

"She's really easy to train — she almost trains herself," he said. "But she wasn't really putting out when we first brought her back this year even though she was working well in the mornings."

During her whirlwind campaign of 1989, which included a victory against the boys in the 1 1/16 mile Ruidoso Thoroughbred Derby, Davidson said he never even had to work the horse.

"We never even worked her," Davidson said. "We just raced her every seven to 14 days."

Davidson said Just Like Lace will have her first serious workout at Ruidoso Downs sometime next week, provided the racing surface is dry.

The Davidson stable, run in partnership by T.E. Davidson and his son Brent, figures to have say in the outcome of several thoroughbred stakes races this season.

Adios Mundo, who last weekend captured the $28,000 Riley Allison Derby at Sunland Park by four lengths, is on the grounds and preparing for the June 9 Norcor Derby.

"I thought he (Adios Mundo) had a good chance to win the race," Davidson said. "But I didn't think he'd win that easy."

Musco Duck, who won the 1988 Ruidoso Thoroughbred Derby, is being pointed toward the $75,000-added Ruidoso Budweiser Breeders' Cup on May 26.

Musco Duck appears on track for his return to the races after zipping to a best-of-the-day 1:01.4 five furlong workout Wednesday over a soggy racing surface.

And on opening weekend, Sunday, May 13, the Davidsons are sending out Aces And Faces in quest of the $12,500-added Road Runner Handicap, a race reserved for registered New Mexico bred. Aces And Faces captured the Rio Grande Kindergarten Futurity last year.

Graf, Navratilova win in quarters

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP)

— Steffi Graf and Martina Navratilova moved to within one match of their first encounter in nearly six months when both won quarterfinal matches Friday in the Citizen Cup tennis tournament.

Graf, ranked No. 1 in the world, ousted fifth-seeded Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-2, while Navratilova, ranked No. 2, overcame a late rally by Lella Meskhi of the Soviet Union to win 6-3, 6-4.

Third-seeded Arantxa Sanchez-Vicario of Spain defeated unseeded Nicole Jagermann of the Netherlands 6-3, 6-0 and will face Navratilova in Saturday's semifinals. Judith Wiesner of Austria, the 8th seed, defeated unseeded Petra Langrova of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-1 and will next play Graf.

Graf, playing Sukova for the 17th time in seven years, breezed to her 16th victory over the Czechoslovak in 62 minutes.

Sukova, whose only victory over Graf came in 1983 when the West German was just starting out as a 14-year-old, held 18 game points but converted only three as her game faltered at the important moments. Sukova held eight of those game points during a marathon opening game of the second set.

The game lasted 14 minutes and contained eleven deuces.

Graf eventually broke Sukova's serve and was never troubled again.

Navratilova, who has not faced Graf since the final of the Virginia Slims Championships at Madison Square Garden in New York last November, needed 78 minutes to dispatch Meskhi as the Soviet produced a determined rally.

Error found in horse's papers

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) —

The registration papers for the reigning world champion Tennessee Walking Horse listed the wrong parentage, reportedly because pedigree documents were switched four years ago.

The Tennessee Walking Horse Breeders' and Exhibitors' Association, based in Lewisburg, Tenn., said in a statement that the error was made in the registration papers for Motown Magic.

The association said "it is impossible to determine who made the error or how it was made."

The papers were investigated at the request of John Dunn of Nashville, owner of the 7-year-old stallion which won the title last September in Shelbyville, Tenn.

In a copyright story Friday, The Tennessean, Nashville's morning paper, quoted anonymous sources as saying the pedigree papers on Motown Magic and another horse were switched in 1986.

Dunn declined to discuss the matter Friday, except to say, "The breeders' association issued a good statement."

Buddy Payne, the executive director of the association, praised the honesty of Dunn and his family.

"The important thing to me is that had the Dunns not been people of integrity and not wanted to do this, it would have remained in the cloak of secrecy forever," Payne said.

"Some folks don't think the blood lines are all that important, but if you are breeding for particular traits you want to know the exact blood lines," he said. "If you absolutely never wanted a redheaded child, you wouldn't want to marry someone whose grandfather had red hair."

If the horse were just owned for show, he said the ancestry would not be that important.

Toronto catcher Greg Myers loses the ball and suffers from the impact of a collision with Detroit Tiger Lou Whitaker in Friday's American League play.

Moseby stings former team

Associated Press

Lloyd Moseby homered in his first at-bat back in Toronto, helping Dan Petry and the Detroit Tigers beat the Blue Jays 3-1 Friday night and end a five-game losing streak.

Moseby, the Blue Jays' all-time hit leader, led off the second inning with his second home run of the season. Moseby left the Blue Jays as a free agent after last season and was met by boos in his return to the

AL

Petry (2-1) allowed one run on five hits in seven innings. He walked none and struck out a season-high six. Edwin Nunez pitched the eighth and Mike Henneman finished for his sixth save.

Mike Flanagan (2-2) was tagged for three runs on nine hits in 4 1-3 innings. He struck out one and walked one.

White Sox 5, Royals 4

Lance Johnson singled home an unearned run in the 11th inning and the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 5-4, the Royals' ninth loss in 10 games.

The White Sox tied the score in the ninth with an unearned run against Mark Davis, escaped in the 10th when Bo Jackson grounded into a bases-loaded double play and won after another Kansas City error.

Reds hand Tudor first loss

Associated Press

Todd Benzinger had three hits and drove in three runs, and Ron Robinson won his first start of the season as the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals 8-3 Friday night, handing John Tudor his first loss.

Benzinger had RBI singles in the first, third and ninth innings, the first two against Tudor, who entered the game with an 0.96 earned-run average and 13 consecutive scoreless innings. Tudor (4-1) gave up five runs on nine hits in 5 1-3 innings.

It was only the second appearance for Robinson (1-1), who has had three elbow operations the last two years. He gave up six hits and three runs in five innings. Rob Dibble, the third Cincinnati pitcher, struck out four batters in two innings for his fourth save.

Denny Walling had two RBIs and Milt Thompson, given the right field job earlier in the day when Tom Brunansky was dealt to Boston for reliever Lee Smith, had a solo homer for St. Louis. Willie McGee had three hits and scored twice.

Expos 5, Giants 4

Dave Martinez had three hits and two RBIs, and Tim Lincecum hit a two-run homer as Montreal beat San Francisco, dropping the defending champion Giants to the cellar in the National League West.

Kevin Gross (3-1) pitched six innings to win his third straight start. He last accomplished that for Philadelphia in 1988. Tim Burke, the third Montreal pitcher, worked the ninth for his seventh save.

Phillies 8, Dodgers 3
Dickie Thon drove in three runs and Rickey Jordan two, and both figured in a four-run first inning as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3 in the rain.

Jordan had three hits, including a run-scoring single in the first. Thon drove in the final run in the first on a grounder and added a two-run double in the seventh.

The start of the game was delayed 18 minutes by rain, and a downpour forced a delay of 1:00 in the sixth. The attendance was 8,926, but only about 300 remained after play was resumed in the sixth.

Minoso wants one more at bat

By Mario Fox

Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Saturnino Orestes Arrieta Armas Minoso appeared in his first major-league game in 1949. Forty-one years later, "Minnie" Minoso's playing career isn't over yet.

The White Sox plan to use the former speedster — now 67 and a community relations employee for the club — in a plate appearance late this season, making him the first ever to play in six decades in the majors.

Of course it's a publicity stunt, but it's still quite an achievement. Four different decades is the most for any other major leaguer, a standard reached this year by Nolan Ryan, among very few others. But Minoso is unruffled.

"Anytime I get up to the plate, I think I can do anything anybody else can do," he says. "My ambition is to get on base no matter how."

He doesn't have to go far to find a pitcher willing to help him sharpen his batting eye. "It's no big deal. I'm in the park every day since I work for them. I would start working out easy," he said.

"I want to hit .300. My lifetime batting average is .298. So if I get one hit, maybe I can get two points," he joked Wednesday.

With 1,963 hits in 6,579 at bats, Minoso actually would need to go 11-for-11 to lift his average to .300.

Although baseball's color barrier was broken in 1947, it wasn't until Minoso joined the White Sox during the 1951 season that a black played baseball for a major-league team in Chicago.

Minoso was born in Cuba on Nov. 29, 1922, growing up swinging a bat on the baseball diamond and a machete in the sugar cane fields.

After playing in the Negro Leagues, Minoso broke into the majors at age 26 with Bill Veeck's Cleveland Indians. It was 1949.

He played in the 1950s with the Indians, White Sox, and Indians again. He hit over .300 for nine seasons, .326 in 1951.

In the 1960s, Minoso played for the Sox again, the St. Louis Cardinals, Washington Senators and the Sox for a third time, seemingly ending his career in 1964 with 186 homers and stealing 205 bases.

Sportswriters labeled him "Minnie the Moocher" for his base-stealing skills. "He was such a productive, brilliant player," said sportswriter Bill Gleason, who has been covering the White Sox for 60 years.

Minoso continued to play in the minors and in Mexico for nine years, leading the Pacific Coast League in hitting in 1970.

Veeck, who owed the White Sox at the time, brought the 53-year-old Minoso back in 1976. He went 1-for-8 as a designated hitter. In his last appearance in the majors, Minoso, then 57, was 0-2 in two 1980 games for the Sox.

Wednesday, Minoso played with a squad of former Sox, Cubs and Blackhawks in an exhibition game against a college team. Minoso also stays in shape playing Old Timers Games — and the money isn't bad.

"I get $1,000 for every old-timer game."

Cards swap Brunansky for reliever Lee Smith

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox, badly in need of right-handed power, acquired Tom Brunansky from the St. Louis Cardinals Friday for reliever Lee Smith.

The deal, which climaxed several weeks of talks, was announced by the Red Sox while the club was in Oakland for the start of a weekend series with the Athletics.

While acquiring the power hitter they sought for Fenway Park, the Red Sox also unloaded an unhappy pitcher. The right-handed Smith became expendable when Boston signed reliever Jeff Reed as a free agent last winter for $6.8 million for three years.

Bonnett's memory returns

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Neil Bonnett, recuperating from a concussion that left him with a severe case of amnesia, visited Talladega Superspeedway on Friday and told a room full of media and racing acquaintances:

"The best thing I can tell you is that it's not only good to see you; it's good to know you for a change."

The 43-year-old Bonnett, from nearby Bessemer, Ala., lost most of his memory after a crash during the TransSouth 500 on April 1 at Darlington, S.C.

He said Friday he is on his way to recovery but that, at his doctor's urging, he will stay out of race cars for the rest of the 1990 season.

"Dale Earnhardt's pilot flew me home and I stepped off the plane and I didn't know my kids from the people at Hanger One in Birmingham, and I walked to the car because I didn't realize it was my children."

"And my mother and daddy came to visit me and I asked who that was. That got my attention. If that doctor tells me one day, two days, or a year, or never, that's the only time I'm ever going to listen."

Bonnett, who has not run a full season without injury since 1984, said his memory is coming back more quickly now.

"I didn't put this off until Talladega week just because you're here in my backyard. I've been going through extensive testing ever since the Florence deal," he said, referring to an overnight stay in a Florence, S.C., hospital after the accident.

"I can't tell you how much I've gained on the thing. I'm still not totally like I need to be on things."

NASCAR's premier stock car division is here this weekend for Sunday's Winston 500. While Bonnett was speaking at the news conference, his colleagues were practicing outside on the 2.66-mile oval.

"It's kind of hard to come to the racetrack and see these race cars run and not be able to get into one," he said.

"Without going into detail, I had some swelling of the brain, and that varies. As that goes down, it's easier for it to happen — easier to remember things. This is the first time I've felt comfortable enough to be around you guys."

Bonnett said he has no doubts about racing again.

However, he said, "About Wednesday of this week, I finally starting to put things in perspective — where I'm at. And I've got to think about what I'm going to do."

"I want to be involved in this sport in some way, but I really don't know what angle that will be, yet. I'm just going to look at things and see what I need to do. And I don't want to do something that I can't do properly."

Bobby Allison, who lives in Hueytown, Ala., is one of Bonnett's best friends and a longtime competitor.

Allison, 52, had to retire from driving after a July 1968 crash at Long Pond, Pa., nearly took his life.

Allison's speech is slowed and he still walks with a bit of a shuffle and has constant pain, but he is now running his own Winston Cup team.

"Bobby was the first guy that stopped by the house about a week ago," Bonnett said. "We were sitting there on the couch and Susan (Bonnett's wife) was sitting over there kinda refereeing."

"And between Bobby trying to say what he was thinking and me trying to remember what he was saying, it was a helluva conversation," Bonnett joked. "Susan finally left the room."

Clayton tries to keep streak alive

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Clayton High School, the state Class AA track champion for four straight years in both the boys and girls divisions, faces a difficult assignment in trying to extend both streaks this weekend in Albuquerque.

The Clayton girls, as usual strong in the relays, are favored to make it five in a row. But the Yellow-jacket boys are the underdogs to a talented unit from Jal.

The Class AA and Class A meets are being run today and Saturday at the University of New Mexico track. Preliminaries and finals in eight events were scheduled today, with the finals in all other events on Saturday.

In Class A, Hagerman won the 1989 boys meet and Clayton took the girls title. Both are strong enough again this year to repeat.

The Clayton girls have won 11 of the past 14 championships and should again score heavily in the relays and sprints with individuals like Lori Mayfield, Chris Ford, Velvet McCollum, Lisa Williams and Angel Laumbach.

Clayton is undefeated this year in the 1,600 and medley relays.

Laumbach will double back in the 200 meters and also is entered in the long jump.

Williams and McCollum tied for second last year in the high jump and are again entered in that event. Mayfield returns after a second place finish in the 100-meter hurdles last year.

Penasco and Truth or Consequences are expected to challenge Clayton for the girls title.

Penasco, which beat Clayton earlier this year at the Santa Rosa meet, is led by senior Samantha Lopez and sophomore Lori Merrill. Merrill was second in the 400 last year and both Merrill and Lopez are entered in the 200 and long jump. Lopez was third in the long jump at last year's meet.

Versatile Tanna Dunlap and defending shot put champion Mistie Deason are the top scorers for Truth or Consequences.

Dunlap, a sophomore, will run in the 100, 200, 400 and 1,600 meter relay. She also qualified in the high jump.

Deason has thrown the shot put 39-2 1/2 this year, almost three feet better than the state meet record of 36-10 held by Jennifer Pape, also of Truth or Consequences.

Clayton's chances to win another girls title also could be influenced by the absence this year of Jal High School standout Vickie Perez.

Perez won four events at last year's meet (100, 200, 400 and discus), but is injured and won't compete. With Perez out, both Penasco and T or C are expected to pick up additional points in the sprints.

Laguna Acoma has two of the state's top individual performers in distance star Melissa Lucero and hurdler and 800-meter specialist Rosemary Touchin.

ARCO Jesse Owens Games put kids on the right track

Jesse Owens wasn't always an Olympic hero. He was once like a lot of today's youngsters, filled with dreams and ambition, but often missing a way to fulfill those dreams until something motivates them to achieve their goals.

Today, the ARCO Jesse Owens Games are helping put kids on the right track by giving them a way to achieve and, hopefully, the motivation to accomplish their dreams.

The ARCO Jesse Owens Games are open to boys and girls born in the years 1976 through 1983.

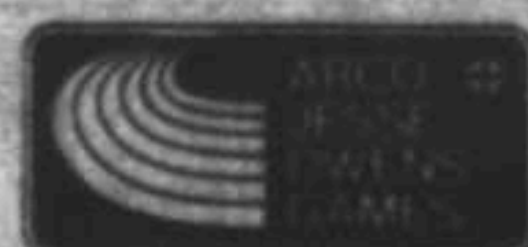

District Meet finalists may advance to the Regional Meet in Dallas. National Meet finalists are eligible to apply for a scholarship to be used upon completion of high school. Scholarship awards are not based on athletic ability.

District running, jumping and throwing events will be held at the following location in Midland.

Saturday, May 19 8 a.m. Memorial Stadium

Registration deadline May 11

For additional information, call (915) 685-7357.

FDA action called an outrage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has approved low-dose irradiation of poultry to control salmonella and other bacteria that cause food-borne illnesses.

The FDA said low doses of radiation are safe and effective in eliminating most bacteria in chicken, turkey and other fresh and frozen birds, making poultry safe for longer though it still needs refrigeration.

Irradiation of food was first approved in 1983, when the FDA allowed its use to control insects in wheat and wheat flour. Later, the FDA approved its use to control insects, spoilage and parasites in other grains, fruits, vegetables, spices and pork.

Irradiation of poultry is the first approved use aimed at controlling bacteria in food that cause illness in humans.

So far, the process has been used infrequently because of consumer opposition, food industry officials said. When foods are irradiated, they must be labeled that have been treated that way.

The FDA emphasized that "the process does not make the food radioactive and, as a result, does not expose consumers to radiation."

But Michael Colby, director of Food and Water Inc., a group that researches food safety and environmental issues, said the FDA's action was "an outrage to consumers and to anyone who cares about safe food products."

He said scientific evidence that irradiation is safe is lacking, and that by approving irradiation, the FDA is allowing poultry growers and processors to speed up their operations without having to clean up their facilities.

"The problem with salmonella comes from the condition of poultry facilities, and they're filthy," Colby said. "The FDA is proposing a toxic solution to a toxic problem."

Colby also said the states of New York, New Jersey and Maine prohibit the sale of irradiated foods.

Approval of irradiation for poultry was sought by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which is responsible for inspecting meat and poultry products, and Radiation Technology Inc. of Rockaway, N.J., a firm providing radiation treatment.

From 1973 to 1987, poultry accounted for 9.6 percent of the food-borne illnesses in outbreaks for which a food source was reported, the FDA said.

Officials said there were no estimates on the incidence of food-borne illnesses in the United States, but some estimate that nearly everyone gets sick from food every couple of years. These illnesses range in severity from a stomach ache to death.

Radiation could be used to control such bacteria as Salmonella, Yersinia and Campylobacter, which are common in poultry and can cause gastrointestinal illnesses. Contamination can occur through other foods or when the poultry is not cooked thoroughly.

The FDA said it based its approval on studies in which laboratory animals were fed diets containing irradiated poultry. The study found the treatment to be effective and the treated foods to be safe.

'Dumpster diver' hitting the road

BIGFORK, Mont. (AP) — If Ed Fitzgerald needs something, he heads for the trash. He says you should, too.

"It's possible to do things very inexpensively if you're willing to scrounge," he says. "I've never bought a lawn mower in the 10 years I've been in Montana. I've never bought garden tools."

Fitzgerald is a self-described "Dumpster diver," scrounging for windows, doors, machine parts, vacuum cleaners, etc., from other people's trash. He's taking his philosophy nationwide with his own newsletter.

"I've gotten well past the embarrassment stage in diving into Dumpsters because I have such good fun and find such good things," he said.

Fitzgerald has just published 500 copies of NADDUM News, a newsletter for the "practicing environmentalist." Its first issue has sources for recycled paper and addresses of journals that deal with garbage and recycling.

NADDUM is the acronym for National Association of Dumpster Divers and Urban Miners, a name that began as a joke among friends.

Fitzgerald estimates that he saves $2,000 or $3,000 a year by scrounging, enabling him to live cheaply and have more leisure time. He hopes to publish NADDUM News every other month.

Church Calendar

ALWAYS BY OUR SIDE

By middle age, our memory bank becomes more selective, choosing to recall to our conscious mind only those experiences from our young childhood which were truly impressive.

As a four year old girl, there was one special highlight in my day. At exactly three-thirty each weekday afternoon, my father appeared at the end of our street, walking home from work. I could count on that... exactly three thirty.

I ran down the street to meet him as fast as I could. As always, he handed me his black lunch box to carry, a job in which I took great pleasure. I placed my other small hand in his large one, as we walked up the sidewalk to our house, while I chattered and he listened.

I remember most vividly running along beside him as he slowly loped along with his long legs, but he never let go of my hand as I pushed my short legs to their limit.

As our heavenly Father, God is always by our side, never letting go of our hand as we hurry through each busy day. As we remember and honor our fathers this week, let us also give thanks to our Father who is in heaven.

RELIGION

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Christian Church has centennial

Home missions of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) is the focus for May as First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., continues its year long centennial celebration.

Daniel Saucedo, executive director of the Inman Christian Center in San Antonio, will present a program to the congregation at a fellowship dinner Sunday.

The Sunday evening dinner, scheduled for 6:00 p.m. in the church courtyard, will focus on the denomination's home mission ministries to Hispanics in San Antonio.

The Inman Center is a social service and educational ministry which has been in operation meeting the needs of westside and downtown San Antonio residents for more than 50 years. It provides a wide variety of comprehensive services in the areas of health, social work, education, recreation and housing.

Saucedo is a native of San Marcos, Texas. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Trinity University, a Master of Social Work degree from Our Lady of the Lake University and his doctorate from the University of Texas at Austin.

He has been executive director of the Inman Christian Center since 1965.

Following the dinner, Saucedo will speak in the church sanctuary.

Ministry to expand

Ranchland Heights Baptist has begun steps to expand the Prayer Ministry initiated last year with their Prayer Chain program.

Plans have been set in motion to begin a Prayer Chapel, with prayer intercessors on duty certain hours to pray through the daily list of requests. The number of hours the Prayer Chapel is open will depend on the number of members who are able to give time to volunteer.

A second element in the expansion of the Prayer Ministry will be the Prayer Partners Program, designed to pair members, one with another, who will join each other on a regular basis in person or by telephone for prayer.

A third element will involve the use of the Prayer Chapel prior to each worship service to offer special prayers for that service.

The Prayer Ministry will be directed by a Prayer Coordinator and necessary assistants who will maintain the schedules and prayer lists and mail Prayergrams to those who have been prayed for each week.

For more information call 684-6544 or 683-1947.

Painter will speak

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter is the special guest speaker at Bethel United Methodist Church at 10 a.m. Sunday.

"Midland is blessed to have such a leader who is not ashamed to bear witness to Jesus Christ as his savior and Lord," says the church's pastor, the Rev. K.C. Blacketter.

Painter is a graduate of Plainview High School and Sul Ross State University. He was a U.S. Marine for four years, serving two of those years in Vietnam. He has been involved in law enforcement as a highway patrolman, a city policeman and has held various jobs in the sheriff's office. In 1984, he was elected sheriff of Midland County.

Painter and his wife, Patsy, have three children. They are members of Crestview Baptist Church.

The public is invited to hear him speak. A nursery will be provided. Bethel is Midland's newest Methodist congregation and meets in the Alamo YMCA, 901 Midland Drive.

Run for the Son set

The Fellowship Freedom Riders of Midland will participate in the annual Run for the Son May 12.

The Fellowship Freedom Riders is one of 216 chapters involved in the Christian Motorcycle Association participating in the annual event. This will be a 100-mile run in which riders will be sponsored to help raise money for CMA to "spread the light of Jesus around the world."

Money raised will go to help in placing Bibles in closed countries, motorcycles for missionaries in the jungles of Central America as well as to be used in the outreach to motorcyclists here at home.

They will be gathering in the rest area on Interstate 20 east of

The Singing Nelsons of Midland will appear in concert Sunday at First Church of the Nazarene.

Singing Nelsons to give concert

The Singing Nelsons of Midland will appear in a gospel concert Sunday at Midland First Church of the Nazarene.

The Nelsons appeared on television for eight years and have appeared with such groups as The Happy Goodman's, The Singing Americans, Pat Hoffmaster of the Blackwood Brothers and most recently with the singing group, The Sound.

First Church of the Nazarene is located at 1206 W. Wall. Services begin at 6 p.m.

Midland at 8 a.m. May 12. For more information, or for those who would like to sponsor someone for the run, call Joan Lewellen, 686-8007.

Murchison to speak

SAN ANGELO — Anne Murchinson of Dallas will be the guest speaker for a Friday seminar at the Holiday Inn, 441 Rio Concho Drive.

The seminar is sponsored by Faith Teaching Ministries. Mrs. Murchinson has written two books, "Milk For Babies" and "Praise and Worship: In Earth as it is in Heaven." She is the widow of former Dallas Cowboy owner Clint Murchinson Jr.

The seminar runs from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Lunch will be served from noon to 1:30 p.m. Cost of the lunch is $6. Reservations must be made by Wednesday. For more information on the seminar or to make lunch reservations call 1-944-2075 or 1-944-7406.

Quakers will meet

Midland Friends Meeting will be hosting Quakers from Alpine, Lubbock and Plainview Sunday.

This will be the second Gathering for Friends in West Texas. Activities will begin at 1 p.m. with a "carry-in-dinner" and visiting as Friends arrive. Next will be a period of singing, there will then be a period of worship-sharing on the topic "How does your spiritual journey find expression in the daily choices you make?"

Meeting for worship will begin at 4 p.m. rather than at the standard 5 p.m.

The Gathering will be held in the Unitarian-Universalist Church, corner of Neely Avenue and Midkiff Street. For more information call 689-5512.

Evangelist to speak

Evangelist Jim King is the guest speaker Sunday through Wednesday at Calvary Assembly of God, 908 S. Johnston St.

"Sound biblical preaching, praise and worship will be the order of each of these great services," says a release from the church. "With several musical recordings behind him, Rev. King is able to communicate with an anointed harmony and a professional, yet sensitive, sound."

King received a bachelor of arts degree in Bible in 1976.

Services times are 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

The Rev. Gayle Reeves of the Calvary Assembly of God invites the public to attend.

Sunday School for all ages begins at 9:45 a.m.

Fannin Terrace Baptist Church is a member of the Southern Baptist Convention and Midland Baptist Association.

Those interested in supporting the new mission are invited to attend. For more information call 682-5272.

Fellowship slated

Calvary Baptist Church, 1001 S. Main St., is hosting a fellowship for Terry Easley at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Easley is resigning as music director. Sunday will be his last day in the position. All friends and family are invited to attend.

Also, the men of the church will have their monthly baptist Men's breakfast at 8 a.m. May 12. The meal is free.

For more information call the church office, 682-8392, from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

Crafts sale planned

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., is hosting a crafts bazaar, bake sale and garage sale from 8 a.m. to noon today.

Hot glue, sculptured belts and necklaces, bandana necklaces, painted T-shirts, hair bows, aprons, rag dolls, wreaths, floral arrangements and other items will be for sale. Homemade baked goods of all kinds can be purchased.

Services planned

The public is invited to attend services at Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ, 200 North Tyler, Monday through Friday for the San Angelo District UDAC Meeting.

Services will begin daily at 8 p.m. Elder C.S. Johnson will serve as Host Pastor and District Superintendent.

Moyers addresses group

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Broadcaster Bill Moyers, named "Communicator of the Decade" at a once-in-a-decade gathering of 1,400 religious communicators from around the world April 18-22, told them:

"Any journalist worth his or her salt today knows the real story is to define what it means to be spiritual. This is the biggest story not only of the decade but of the century."

Church to have speaker

Gary Osborn is the guest speaker at Living Way Church, 415 Alta St., Sunday.

Osborn is professor of New Testament Church Leadership at Christ for the Nations in Dallas.

He will speak at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Cults to be discussed

The topic of discussion at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 3301 Neely Ave at Midkiff, will be "Satanic Cluts: Are Your Children At Risk?" during the Adult Forum Sunday.

Recently published nationwide studies on Satanic cult activity including an FBI report, entitled "Satanic, Occult and Ritualistic Crime: A Law Enforcement Perspective" by Kenneth V. Lanning, will be presented and discussed. The program begins at 10 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

Mission established

Fannin Terrace Baptist Church, 2800 Mogford, is sponsoring a new mission which meets at Bush Elementary, Wadley Avenue and Loop 250, every Sunday.

SATANIC CULTS: ARE YOUR CHILDREN AT RISK?

Nationwide studies on Satanic Cult activity, including "Satanic, Occult, and Ritualistic Crime: A Law Enforcement Perspective," an FBI report by Kenneth V. Lanning, will be presented at the Unitarian-Universalist Church tomorrow morning at 10:00 a.m. The public is invited to attend. The Church is located at 3301 Neely and Midkiff.

Northwest Texas UMC to hold conference

The 81st Annual Conference for the Northwest Texas United Methodist Church will be held in Midland beginning June 4.

Bishop William R. Cannon of Atlanta, Ga., will be the guest speaker for the conference's Good News Renewal Fellowship Dinner and Worship service. The conference evangelist, the Rev. Wesley Putnam, will head the worship in music and song.

Cannon was ordained in 1940 in the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist Church. He served pastorates in Georgia before serving the Candler School of Theology at Emory University as professor of Church History and then as dean of Candler. Cannon was elected bishop in 1968.

Cannon has represented Methodism as a delegate to many of the worldwide conferences held by Christian religions around the world. He was observer to the Vatican Council in 1965. He is the author of many books and has been the recipient of numerous honors.

In May 1984 he was selected by his colleagues in the Council of bishops to prepare and deliver the Episcopal Address at the Bicentennial General Conference. Cannon retired from the United Methodist Church Sept. 1, 1984.

Putnam is president of the National Association of United Methodist Evangelists at this time. He has authored songs and published tapes and videos. He travels the United States performing at revivals, spiritual life weekends and camps. He was at St. Paul's United Methodist Church here for a revival in April.

The Good News Renewal Fellowship Dinner will begin at 5 p.m. June 4. The worship will follow immediately. The event will be held at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave. The public is invited to attend. The annual conference will begin at 7 p.m. June 4 at First United Methodist Church.

Quakers complain about Popeye

FALLS CHURCH, Va. (AP) —

The peace-promoting Quakers have complained to the Quaker Oats Company over its use of a two-fisted Popeye the Sailor as "The Quaker Man" in comics and TV commercials advertising instant oatmeal.

"The comics and commercials featuring this character associate the Quaker name with violence and demeaning images of women," said the Friends United meeting of Richmond, Ind. "Such images are repugnant to foundational Quaker testimonies of peace and equality."

A company spokesman indicates the ads are being phased out and perhaps later modified.

A Quaker newsletter published here said the protesters want the company either to drop the "Quaker Man" designation or "Quakerize" the series with non-violent and equalitarian adventure stories.

Jobless February

DALLAS (AP) — The unemployment rate has risen to a new high of 7.5 percent in February, officials said.

According to the Labor Statistics Bureau, the rate rose from 7.3 percent in January to 7.5 percent in February. The number of jobless people rose to 7.95 million in February from 7.8 million in January.

The unemployment rate for men rose to 7.6 percent from 7.4 percent in January. The rate for women rose to 7.4 percent from 7.2 percent in January.

The 6.4 percent rate for people 16 and over was the lowest since 1990, when the rate was 6.4 percent. The rate for people 16 and over was 6.4 percent in 1990, when the rate was 6.4 percent.

STATE IN BRIEF

Jobless rate hits February level

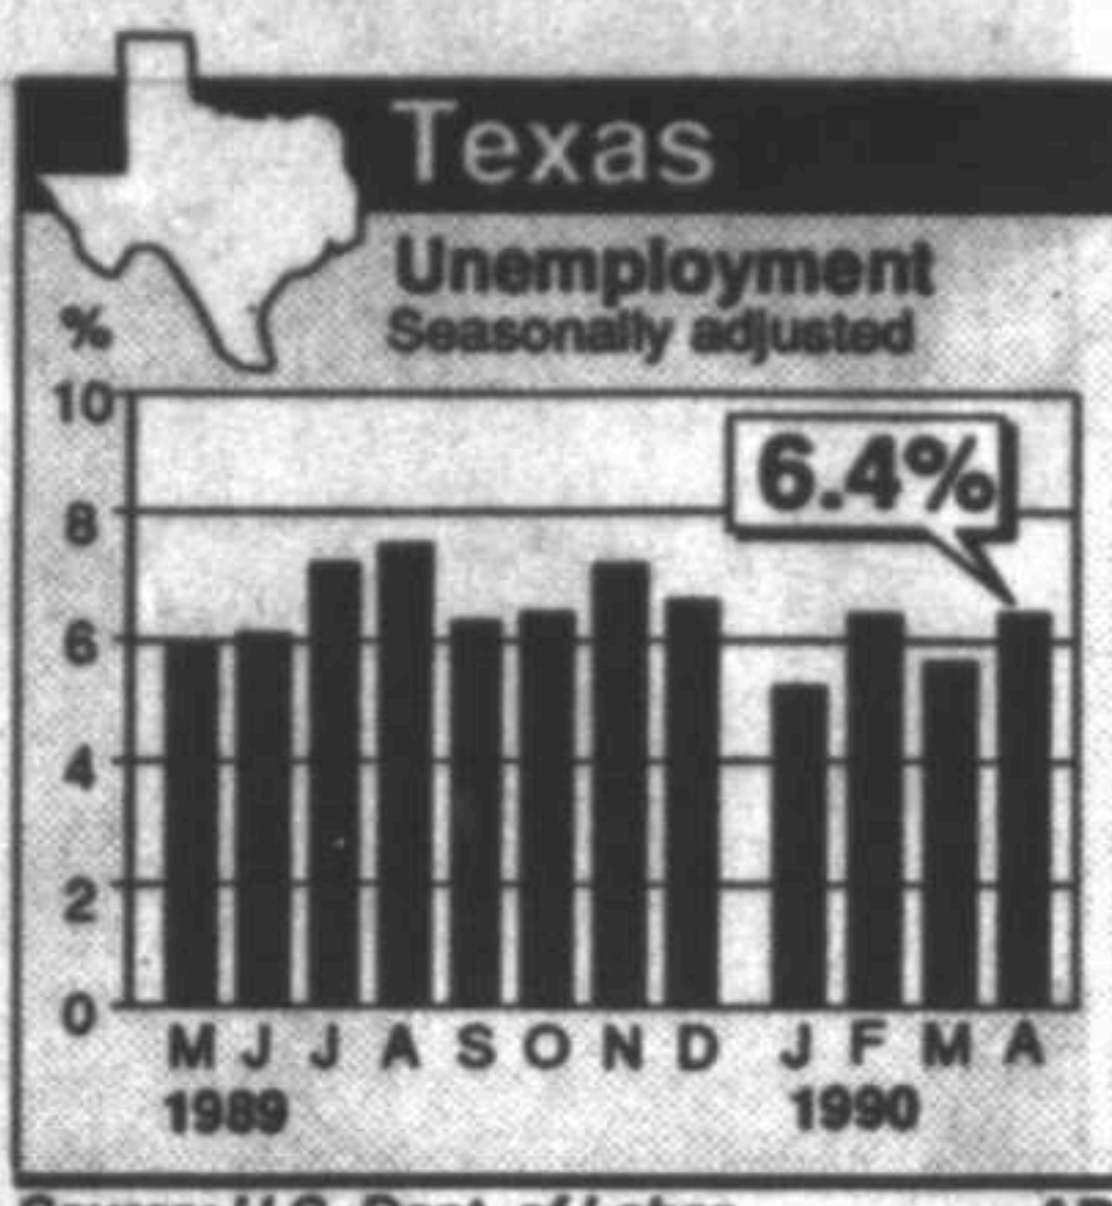

DALLAS (AP) — The unemployment rate has returned to its February level of 6.4 percent, federal officials said.

According to figures released Friday by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, there were 70,000 more Texans looking for work in April than in March. There were 7.955 million state residents employed during April, said bureau labor market analyst Nic Santangelo.

The unemployment rate had fallen to 5.6 percent in March.

Santangelo said the fluctuation was typical.

The 6.4 percent rate for April was well below the 7.3 percent recorded 12 months earlier. In April 1989, there were 110,000 fewer people working and 82,000 more jobless.

One company that relies on the train to bring manufacturing materials, Can-Texas Industries, said it will turn to truck deliveries temporarily.

TDHS uncovers funds

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Human Services has found $242 million, most of it federal money, that could help the welfare agency through its budget problems, officials said.

DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsay said the additional funds would become available only if several key welfare programs can be changed so the state can obtain more federal Medicaid money.

Some of the proposals may need legislative approval, officials said.

"This is federal money that the state is not tapping into now, but could be," Lindsay said. "If we could adopt all of these funding options, it would help our financial picture tremendously."

Without a cash transfusion, the agency earlier projected that it would run $211 million over budget during the next two years and another $178.8 million the following year.

Body found in building

FORT WORTH (AP) — Authorities are trying to determine the identity of a man whose body was discovered early Friday in the rubble of a building destroyed by a Tuesday morning fire.

The body was found by workers clearing away remains of the Southwest Furniture building.

Fire officials still have not determined what caused the blaze, but speculated earlier it may have been caused by homeless people trying to stay warm.

Five men roused from their sleep in the building after the fire started told officers they had no idea how the fire began.

Former jailer indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A former civilian jailer for Grand Prairie accused of trading cigarettes for sex from an 18-year-old inmate has been indicted by a Dallas County grand jury.

Joe Linnon Greer, 24, faces a charge of official oppression. If convicted of the Class A misdemeanor, Greer could be jailed for up to a year and fined up to $2,000.

Grand Prairie officials said Greer no longer works for their city. He began working as a jailer in December 1989.

Bull rider dies in wreck

FORT WORTH (AP) — James Eric Donawho, a bull rider who had just gotten his professional rodeo card in March, died Thursday in an automobile accident. He was 27.

Services for the Fort Worth resident will be Saturday in Fort Worth.

Professor tells LBJ symposium 'Great Society' has survived

AUSTIN (AP) — The Great Society envisioned by President Lyndon Johnson has survived challenges by American academics, a professor said Friday at a symposium on the 25th anniversary of Johnson's 1965 inauguration.

Another said the Great Society remains a dream.

James Galbraith, professor at the University of Texas LBJ School of Public Affairs, said the Great Society was under attack in his circles by the mid-1970s, when he was in graduate school.

"Indeed it was, intellectually speaking, in disfavor, if not actually in disrepute," said Galbraith, who was educated at Harvard and Yale.

Galbraith and a six-member panel focused on Johnson's comment that "this country is rich enough to do anything it has the guts to do and the vision to do and the will to do."

About 250 people attended the three-day symposium, sponsored by UT-Austin and the LBJ Library.

Johnson became president after the Nov. 22, 1963, assassination of John F. Kennedy, and won the White House on his own in 1964. He retired to his ranch west of Austin in 1969 and lived there until his death in 1973.

His administration included Great Society programs such as the War on Poverty.

"The indictment of the Great Society alleged that the designers of the Great Society did not understand how the world works," Galbraith said. "And thus their failure, if they were failures — and in these academic circles they were perceived very widely as failures — could not be remedied by better design, better management or more money...the case has been tried and the verdict is in... it is a convincing verdict of acquittal."

"In sum," he said, "the intellectual roots of the Great Society, though changed over the years, have survived."

"They form the basis for active programs of research and policy developments today."

University of Arizona professor John Schwartz said the Great Society "is by no means an end to an era — it is a door to the future."

Thomas Ferguson, professor at the John W. McCormick Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Massachusetts, said Johnson "proved that you could reduce poverty, that you could take serious steps to end American apartheid."

But Charis Walker, an adviser to the U.S. secretary of the treasury in 1959-61 and the first Nixon administration and now an LBJ professor, said that though the public wants more spending on federal programs that would move the country toward the Great Society, it does not want to pay for them with taxes.

Walker cited President Bush's inaugural address, saying the president told Americans that though they have the will to move toward a Great Society, they don't have the wallet.

Rains strand train

WEATHERFORD (AP) — A Mineral Wells & Eastern train has been stranded about three miles west of Weatherford since April 26 because railroad beds have been washed away in both directions.

"There's approximately a dozen spots where the rain eroded through railroad beds — in some places 4 or 5 feet underneath the track to 100 feet lengthwise," said Mineral Wells City Manager Greg Harrison. "In some places, the tracks actually moved or shifted."

Harrison said washed-out tracks in Parker and Palo Pinto counties should be repaired for limited service by early next week, if weather cooperates. The repairs may cost up to $500,000, Harrison said.

Motorists urged not to buy higher octane gas

AUSTIN (AP) — Several consumer groups and state agriculture officials Friday urged motorists not to purchase higher octane-rated gasoline than is recommended by their car's manufacturer.

"Paying extra for a higher octane gas when your car does not need it is a waste of money," said John Hildreth, director of the regional Consumers Union office.

"This advice also makes good ecological sense. It takes more crude oil to make a gallon of highoctane gas than it does to make a gallon of regular unleaded, and some additives used to boost a fuel's octane level are potentially hazardous to people and the environment," Hildreth said.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower echoed those sentiments, saying purchase of regular octane gasoline is something average people can do to help reduce pollution.

"This is a way that ordinary consumers like you and me can actually do something to improve our poisoned environment at the same time we save ourselves money at the gas pump," said Hightower, whose department is launching a "Lower Your Octane" campaign.

Soviets refuse to accept plans for unified Germany

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III tried Friday to convince the Soviet Union that NATO membership for a united Germany would not upset the delicate East-West balance of power in Europe.

But Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, while pleased by U.S. plans to cancel new short-range nuclear missile deployments in West Germany, continued to resist the idea.

At the start of talks that will last two days, the Soviet official told reporters, "We consider a unified Germany as an important factor of stability and peace in Europe."

But he added, "For such a giant to belong to one bloc, one alliance ... will not create conditions of stability."

Shevardnadze and Baker were in Bonn for the so-called two-plus-four talks on the future of a united Germany. They officially open Saturday.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany held separate talks with Shevardnadze and Baker on Friday. Kohl spokesman Hans Klein said the chancellor offered Shevardnadze a significant expansion of bilateral ties, particularly economic cooperation.

Baker has said Germany's membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is not a decision for the Soviets to make, and that it is up to the 16 Western allies.

But he hopes to persuade Shevardnadze that the powerful nation to emerge from the union of West Germany and East Germany will not menace neighbors that lost millions of people at the hands of the Nazis in World War II.

Baker also hopes to overcome the slump in negotiations in Vienna to conclude a treaty to reduce troops, tanks, artillery and other non-nuclear arms in Europe.

The main obstacles are which airplanes and helicopters to limit and questions about methods of verifying compliance.

Baker and Shevardnadze turned to arms control issues during an afternoon meeting and had what Shevardnadze called a "very constructive and useful conversation."

However, Shevardnadze told reporters they had not settled any of their differences over restricting long-range nuclear missiles.

NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner, a former West German defense minister, said Thursday in Brussels that the 16 allies had agreed a united Germany would have no nuclear or chemical weapons in its military arsenal. He also suggested Soviet troops might be stationed temporarily in what is now East Germany.

But Shevardnadze, who has called Germany a "testing ground" for new forms of East-West security cooperation after unification, was not convinced the Soviets should lift their objections.

Asked if he thought a united Germany should be a NATO member, Shevardnadze replied firmly, "No."

And yet, when a reporter asked Shevardnadze if he had ruled out any compromise, the foreign minister parried, "Well, that's why we are having this meeting."

"Tomorrow will tell," he said, but then added he did not expect a final decision on Saturday.

Shevardnadze suggested last week that a united Germany should belong to NATO and the Warsaw Pact.

Vitaly Churkin, a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman, told reporters Friday, "It's very hard to see how Germany loses in that kind of situation."

He said Shevardnadze had "many ideas" for compromise, but did not elaborate.

Churkin said membership only in NATO would have an adverse effect on the overall military balance in Europe and that Moscow could not be excluded from the decision, partly because many Soviets hold unhappy memories of World War II.

"Inclusion of a united Germany in NATO is something which people do not like," he said.

Labor wins local votes, results comfort Tories

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Labor Party rejoiced Friday in sweeping local election victories, but Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher took comfort that the results were not as devastating to her Conservatives as expected.

And some analysts predicted Mrs. Thatcher was now more secure against possible challenges to her leadership of the Conservative Party.

Millions of voters protesting soaring home loan rates and an unpopular new local tax deserted the Conservatives in the nationwide local vote Thursday.

But while pre-election polls showed Mrs. Thatcher with a 20-point deficit, the actual swing against the government was only 11 percent. Share prices rose on the London stock exchange, reflecting relief by big business.

In the most important trend for Labor, the party posted significant gains in the prosperous and heavily populated south for the first time since Mrs. Thatcher ousted a Labor government in 1979.

"That is the spread of support that we need which makes me forecast that we are certain to win the next election," said Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock.

But in London, the Conservatives performed well. In a particularly sore loss for Kinnock, the Tories wrested from Labor the west London borough of Ealing, where Kinnock lives.

"I am sure Neil's residence in Ealing is extremely welcome to his immediate neighbors," snapped Bryan Gould, a Labor campaign manager, "but I don't think it is a big factor in terms of people's voting preferences."

And the Tories held with increased majorities two other key boroughs, Wandsworth and Westminster.

These councils have set the lowest local tax rates in Britain under the new municipal tax system. Labor has accused them of rigging the tax amounts to bribe voters.

The Conservatives remained virtually shut out in Scotland and performed badly in northern England, losing the industrial city of Bradford.

"We've lost some we hoped to hold ... but we have a very good basis on which to go forward and win the next general election," declared Mrs. Thatcher.

With results declared from all but one of the 201 councils contested, Labor gained 300 seats. The Conservatives lost 191 seats, and the centrist Social and Liberal Democratic Party lost 48.

Apart from the Scottish Nationalists and the tiny Green party, other minority parties all had net losses in the some 5,000 seats contested.

Labor had control of 110 of the councils contested, up from 97. The Conservatives had 51, down from 60. The centrists had 17, down two. No party won a majority in the rest.

Conservative MP David Mellor observes the counting of votes of the local election at Wandsworth Town Hall Thursday night. With an increased majority, Conservatives retained the south London borough, a focus of national attention after setting the lowest poll tax in the nation.

Three Westerners kidnapped

PARIS (AP) — Liberian rebels kidnapped an American Peace Corps volunteer and three European relief workers as they inspected refugee centers along the Liberian-Guinean border, a French relief agency said Friday.

The American, David Kelley, was checking water supplies at a Liberian village when he was kidnapped Tuesday, said Marc Gastellu-Epchorry, a spokesman for Doctors Without Borders. Kelley's hometown was not known.

Also abducted were Ludovic Pichrist, a logistics expert from the group's Belgian chapter; Werner Will of West Germany; and a Guinean, Naiankoye Kolie, said

Gastellu-Epchorry.

The State Department also reported the abductions but did not identify the victims.

Parliament chooses transition route, stops short of complete break with Soviets

N.Y. Times News Service

RIGA, Latvia — Defying Moscow's warning to curb separatist movements, the Latvian Parliament on Friday declared the beginning of a transition period leading to establishment of the republic's independence.

The action was taken despite the Kremlin's continuing economic sanctions against Lithuania, the neighboring Baltic republic, which declared itself fully independent of Moscow eight weeks ago, and despite growing official criticism of similar moves by Estonia, the third of the three Baltic states.

But the Latvian legislators seemed mindful of the consequences suffered by Lithuania, now in its third week of a partial fuel blockade by Moscow, and eager to maintain the talks that they have begun with the Kremlin over Latvia's future relationship with the Soviet Union.

Their document stops short of declaring a complete break between Latvia and the Soviet Union and explicitly states that, for the most part, the Soviet constitution and laws continue to be valid here during the transition period.

While the Latvian approach is cautious, the declaration still faces serious opposition in the Parliament, though not enough to prevent the two-thirds majority needed for it to pass.

The declaration was adopted by a vote of 138 in favor, none opposed, and 1 abstention. But 57 deputies protested by refusing to take part in a vote that they called premature and dangerous.

It is not clear how Moscow will react to the Latvian declaration. The Kremlin could regard the move as a conciliatory gesture or a sign of confrontation and defiance.

"I think there will be some kind of conflict with Moscow," said Anatolijs Gorbunovs, who was re-elected this week as chairman, or president, of the Latvian Parliament.

"We didn't fulfill certain things that Moscow asked of us — for example, we specified that we are re-establishing the independent state of Latvia and we formally declared a transition period," he said. "But the way we did it is very important. We think we left the door open and that our dialogue with Moscow will still continue."

Moscow has said that any republic is free to leave the Soviet Union if it follows the law on secession recently established by the Soviet Parliament, which includes the support of two-thirds of the voters in a public referendum, a negotiation period of up to five years with Moscow and other republics on territorial, financial, and other matters, and final approval by the full Soviet Congress.

The Baltic republics, Latvia, Estonia, and Lithuania, assert that they are not bound by the new Soviet law because they were illegally incorporated into the Soviet Union.

All three were independent nations when they were occupied by the Soviet army in 1940 as a result of a secret treaty between Stalin and Hitler, and then annexed.

Lithuania and Estonia have already rejected outright the possibility of using the secession law as a means of breaking with the Soviet Union. Latvia said as much on Friday.

The declaration states the republic's application to join the Soviet Union was "invalid from the moment of adoption," and the document further describes Latvia's desire not to secede, but rather to "restore, de facto, the free, democratic, and independent republic of Latvia."

But one of the main actions taken by Lithuania and Estonia that angered the Kremlin was the suspension of the Soviet constitution in those republics.

In its declaration, the Latvian Parliament re-establishes the constitution of the former independent Latvian republic.

But the declaration immediately suspends that constitution until it can be revised and adopted, except for articles "expressing the constitutional and legal foundation of the Latvian state."

Those articles do not challenge outright the authority of the Soviet constitution, and the declaration leaves standing Soviet laws that do not contradict Latvian sovereignty.

The declaration further guarantees new rights to all Soviet citizens who choose to continue living in the republic.

Latvian legislators said on Friday that any conciliatory tone in their declaration was not a response to the Kremlin's tough stance toward Lithuania.

Caution, they said, was dictated by the fact that independent-minded deputies won two-thirds of the seats in the Parliament only narrowly. People of Latvian descent make up barely half the population of the republic, and many non-Latvians oppose independence.

"The situation in Latvia itself objectively dictated what I would call not caution, but our realism," said Dainis Ivans, leader of the Popular Front, one of the first grass-roots organizations to call for Latvian independence, and first deputy chairman of the Parliament.

"But there should be no question about what we have done. We have taken the first step on the road to independence."

Many deputies at the session on Friday said that road was chosen hastily and without sufficient consideration, prompting dozens of them to refuse to take part in the vote.

"The fate of a nation shouldn't be decided in three hours," said Anatolijs Alekseyev, leader of Interfront, an organization composed mainly of non-Latvians opposed to Latvian independence.

Alekseyev was the lone deputy to walk out of the parliamentary chamber in protest during the vote.

"I sat and ate soup for lunch while I read through the documents," he said. "This is not right. They should have given the deputies several days to read them, they should have published them in the paper and allowed people to express their opinion."

Alfreds Rubiks, head of the Latvian Communist Party faction loyal to Moscow, said that the declaration could bring strikes and possibly violence within the republic and possible economic sanctions from Moscow.

A small group of people opposed to independence stood with Soviet flags outside Parliament on Friday as several dozen held a small demonstration.

Hundreds of supporters of independence waited anxiously alongside them. After the vote, the deputies left, passing through a phalanx of people in the Old City's cobble streets. The people embraced the legislators and many cried as they pressed flowers into the deputies' arms as they walked to a rally of several thousand people gathered at sunset on the banks of the Daugava River.

Baltics Move for Independence

A look at independence moves by the Soviet Baltic republics, forcibly annexed by Moscow in 1940:

Lithuania

The Supreme Council parliament declared its independence on March 11. The Kremlin has imposed an economic embargo of oil, natural gas and other raw materials on the republic of 3.8 million people, trying to force it to back off some of its laws that foster independence. Lithuanian officials are pressing for negotiations with Moscow, which has not responded.

Estonia

The Supreme Soviet parliament on March 30 declared the Soviet Union an occupying power and pledged to restore full independence gradually, after an unspecified period. Since then, Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev has offered Estonia, a republic of 1.5 million, "special status" in a kind of "confederative" Soviet Union if it drops its independence bid.

Latvia

The Supreme Soviet parliament declared its independence Friday, although the measure calls for secession after an undetermined transition period, during which there presumably would be negotiations with Moscow. About 54 percent of the population of 2.7 million is Latvian, and the rest are from other ethnic groups, mostly Russians, and many oppose independence. Gorbachev also has offered the republic special status in a "confederation" if it abandons its secessionist ways.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Canceled game provokes riot

MOSCOW (AP) — Soccer fans angered by cancellation of a game looted and set fire to scores of buildings in a city in Uzbekistan during rioting that injured at least 44 people, news reports said Friday.

The fans, many intoxicated, ran wild through the city of Andizhan in the Fergana Valley of eastern Uzbekistan on Wednesday. The Andizhan region, with a population of 1.6 million, is plagued by severe unemployment. Jobless number 80,000.

Last summer, more than 100 people were killed in ethnic rioting between Uzbeks and another Turkish ethnic group, the Meskhetians, in the nearby city of Fergana.

In the latest violence, rioters attacked the Andizhan regional Communist Party headquarters and the city prosecutor's office, as well as 125 other buildings, 79 stores and 36 homes, the official Tass news agency reported.

An official at the party headquarters, reached by telephone, said it was too noisy to hear the caller because the walls and windows were missing. He refused to say anything more.

Bullfighters protest

NIMES, France (AP) — About 15 members of the French bullfighters' union occupied a chamber at Nimes City Hall on Friday, protesting that Spaniards were getting too many of the jobs at an upcoming bullfight festival.

The sit-in began Thursday evening and was still in progress at midday Friday. The protesters demanded a meeting with the director of the city's stadiums, Simon Casas. Casas is the former president of the bullfighters' union and now administers the bullfight programs.

According to the protesters, French bullfighters were given only two of about 30 jobs at the upcoming Pentecost festival, which is to consist of 13 separate bullfight programs between May 27 and June 4.

The festival has drawn about 400,000 visitors annually in recent years.

University punished

LYON, France (AP) — The mayor has provoked a debate over academic freedom by refusing to give a new building to a university because one of its teachers questioned the existence of Nazi gas chambers.

The professor, Bernard Notin, was suspended from teaching law courses in March but continues to teach economics at state-funded Jean Moulin University, named for the Lyon-based leader of the French Resistance.

Notin's suspension came after an anti-racism organization filed a complaint regarding an article he wrote that challenged widely accepted accounts of the Holocaust. Notin has insisted on his right to freedom of opinion and said he has not used the classroom as a forum for his controversial views.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your friendly attitude and amazing patience will bring big rewards. With the help of loyal associates, you will get exactly what you want by July. Be sure to devote more attention to family matters when autumn rolls around. Quarreling relatives should be encouraged to patch things up. Romance will be lively and somewhat surprising near Christmastime. January will find you in a gloriously optimistic frame of mind. Enjoy the limelight when you receive long-overdue recognition. Share the credit with those who helped you.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: chef James Beard, comedian Pat Carroll, actor Michael Palin, philosopher Karl Marx.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although family pride means more than money to you, you must consider your loved ones' financial security. The romantic fires are burning brighter than ever. Be careful not to douse the flames.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Slow down. You may be moving too fast on a project that your co-workers are not sure of. You do not have to do a whole week's work in a day. Review your finances.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone carrying on a secret romance may be in for a shock. Make the right decision about a job and you will increase your financial wealth. Nurture a friendship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Domestic affairs will be sensitive this morning. Ask someone who invites you to lunch for a raincheck. Now is the right time to repay an old debt. Offer to baby-sit a friend's children.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you have strayed from your goals, mate will help you get back on track. Exceptional luck accompanies those who travel today. A last-minute loan restores your peace of mind. Show appreciation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You could receive a job offer from someone who has been on the sidelines for several years. Hide your doubts from loved one. Avoid a difficult relative for a while. A missing object surfaces.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Working with someone you respect makes you more productive. Salespeople can hinder their chances by coming on too strong. Ease up a bit. Romance could put you on a collision course with a close friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A leadership role would fit you fine, but people who have observed your leisure-time antics have difficulty envisioning you as the boss. Convince them with deeds, not words. Romance looks rosy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Someone you thought was a friend has been trying to steal your ideas. Protect your job. You have a right to expect greater loyalty. People who brag a lot make you nervous.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid someone who is pushy by tackling chores alone. Romance is exciting and brings you true satisfaction. Answer phone calls and correspondence promptly. A far-away friend awaits your advice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Avert arguments by suggesting logical compromises. Taking the initiative will impress those who count. Self-analysis is helpful, too. Do not underestimate your financial needs: face reality.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your mate or partner offers sound advice. Pay attention. This is a day for consolidating recent gains, not starting new projects. You need to correct a billing mistake soon.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are such perfectionists they can wear out their teachers' patience. Decision-making can be difficult for these Taureans. Wise parents will give them plenty of time to make up their minds. Caring and thoughtful, these youngsters seem to have an instinctive understanding of others' needs. They are good at handling money and will do nicely if employed as manager, agent or accountant. Encourage this child to develop an early musical or artistic talent.

Newton-John denies building of her home damaged beach

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Olivia Newton-John decided to throw a little dirt of her own to counter neighborhood complaints that the 6,000-square-foot mansion she is building in Malibu constitutes an environmental disaster.

"Dirt and garbage have never been dumped on the beach or in the ocean," the singer said Thursday in a statement. "Any materials that were temporarily placed during construction were native to the beach, i.e. sand."

Neighbors suing Newton-John and her husband, Matt Lattanzi, claim that trees and plants have been ripped out and beach cliffs destroyed to make room for the $2 million estate.

"This lawsuit represents an environmental tragedy because trees died for the paper that was used to spread false accusations against me," said Newton-John, the Australian-born entertainer, who serves as the United Nations' goodwill ambassador for the environment.

Residents who live along the Malibu coastline, however, charge that Newton-John's construction crews have dumped tons of dirt into the ocean and turned the water's edge a murky brown.

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) —

Miss America 1988 plans to be a nurse long after her beauty fades and glamorous offers stop pouring in.

"It was not a dream of mine to be Miss America," said Kaye Lani Rae Rafko.

She said she only entered the Miss Monroe, Mich., beauty pageant because the winner received a $700 scholarship and she had just received a school bill for $700.

Miss Rafko told nurses at a gathering Thursday at Viterbo College that she would much rather be at her patients' bedsides.

She said she sees a pageant title as a gift and an opportunity. Since winning the title, she has been on extended leave from nursing so that she can travel the country and the world to promote nursing.

"I am prouder of my registered nurse title than I am of my Miss America title," she said. "But Miss America is a title that gets me through a lot of doors. I was given a worldwide platform."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — State gaming regulators have announced an audit of Donald Trump's financial empire.

New Jersey Gaming Enforcement Director Anthony Parrillo said Thursday that such a review by his agency is normal, and that it hasn't looked at Trump's operations for a long time.

"This isn't to sound or signal that there are problems," he said.

The review will include all the billionaire developer's holdings in and outside of Atlantic City, he said.

About 100 contractors involved in the $1 billion Taj Mahal Casino Resort have gone to the state Casino Control Commission in search of a means to force payment from Trump. Trump officials announced their own audit Thursday.

The group contends it is owed about $35 million, and some have said that Trump faces a cash-flow problem and withheld payment for that reason.

Ed Tracy, president and chief executive officer in charge of Trump's three Atlantic City casinos, said the contractors are wrong. "It comes at a time when everybody is taking a shot at Donald Trump," he said.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television game show announcer Gene Wood abandoned his bid to become a Malibu city councilman after CBS told him his appearances on "Family Feud" could require the network to give his opponents equal time.

But Los Angeles County officials say it's too late to pull out officially.

Wood's name is on the printed ballots, so he is still considered a candidate, county Registrar-Recorder Charles Weissburg said Thursday.

Wood, 64, was one of 30 candidates vying for five prospective council seats on the June 5 ballot. Voters will select council members at the same time they decide whether the unincorporated seaside community becomes a city.

"I could have taken an unpaid leave of absence until after the election ... but considering how much it would have cost, I decided to withdraw instead," Wood said.

CBS lawyer Sandra Williams said the network no longer considers Wood a candidate and will not be required to provide broadcast time to other candidates. Ms. Williams said Wood voluntarily agreed to abandon the race after talks with CBS officials.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carre Otis, co-star of the steamy new film "Wild Orchid," is suing the movie's producers, alleging they gave Playboy magazine nude photographs of her without her consent.

The Superior Court lawsuit states that the contract Miss Otis signed with Kruger-Brent Group in April 1989 stipulated the actress "shall have approval over still photographs for the pictures in which artist appears nude or partially nude."

Vietnamese in detention

Riot police guard a group of Vietnamese boat people after launching a massive operation Friday to restore order at a Hong Kong detention center, the scene of escape attempts and violence during the past week. The camp houses about 22,000 Vietnamese awaiting screening to qualify for resettlement overseas or face repatriation.

De Klerk, Mandela agree to work for end of white-minority rule

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The government and the African National Congress said Friday they will work together for the first time to stop political violence and clear the way for talks on ending white-minority rule.

President F.W. de Klerk and ANC leader Nelson Mandela, looking relaxed and confident after the three days of talks, said the preliminary discussions were an important step toward giving South Africa's black majority a share of power.

"It is the realization of a dream for which we have worked patiently and consistently," Mandela said after the first talks ever between the ANC and government.

In a joint communique, the sides said a "working group" will be created to try to end obstacles to full negotiations on changing the constitution.

In a major clause, the communique said the government "reiterates its commitment to work toward lifting" the nearly 4-year-old state of emergency. The lifting of the emergency is one of the ANC's demands before constitutional negotiations can begin.

The communique indicated the delegations made progress on most other issues as well. Among them, it said the government will consider "urgently granting" temporary immunity from prosecution to ANC executive members in exile. This would enable them to return to South Africa to help end political violence.

The granting of immunity to ANC exiles has been another demand of the African National Congress.

"I regard what is contained in this document as an important breakthrough in the peaceful process we want to take place in South Africa," de Klerk said. He said no agreement had been made on further talks, but the working group would report by May 21 and both sides hoped for quick progress.

In Washington, the United States hailed the "courageous decision" by the sides to work toward further talks.

This week's talks were an attempt to clear obstacles standing in the way of formal negotiations on changing the constitution to give the black majority a voice in national affairs.

In addition to lifting the state of emergency, the ANC wants the release of all political prisoners and the return from exile of top ANC officials without fear of prosecution.

The state of emergency has been in effect since June 1986, and the ANC says it is used by police to suppress political activity and peaceful dissent.

The government says it wants to lift the emergency, but that it remains necessary to combat black factional fighting that has claimed more than 600 lives this year, many in the southeastern province of Natal.

The communique stressed the need to end that political violence, which pits rival Zulu factions against each other.

The government also has demanded the ANC renounce its largely ineffective guerrilla war.

"The ANC will therefore look into the question of the armed struggle and take appropriate decisions," Mandela said.

While the two sides appear to have made progress, both stressed that extremely difficult and long negotiations lie ahead before there can be any hope of a peaceful settlement.

De Klerk has rejected majority rule for South Africa's 28 million blacks.

Pope to address Mexico's businessmen and poor

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, who arrives Sunday on his second visit to the world's largest Spanish-speaking country, will tell Mexican business leaders that "material goods have a social function," when he meets with them next week.

"He will tell businessmen, those who have everything and sometimes more than they should, that material goods are meant for all, to make possible for man to live a decent life. He will speak to them about the morality of the business world," said Monsignor Genaro Alamia, a spokesman for the Conference of Bishops said Friday.

The pope also will have a special message, "not just one of compassion," Alamia said, "for the poor and the neglected, those ignored by our materialistic society. He has much to tell them."

The pope made his first visit here — and his first trip outside of Italy — in 1979. This trip will be his 47th outside Italy as pope, his 10th to Latin American and his second here.

It is an eight-day visit that begins Sunday afternoon when the pope, being greeted as a distinguished visitor and not as head of the Vatican State is met at the airport by foreign minister Fernando Solana.

Mexico does not have diplomatic relations with the Vatican, a situation that may change as a result of the pope's trip. Despite the lack of diplomatic relations and sometimes acrimonious church-state relations, this country of 85 million is 90 percent Roman Catholic.

The pope's first full day in Mexico will include a Mass and homily in Chalco, on the outskirts of the capital, a dusty valley of adobe and concrete homes with communities without water.

"When he comes here he will truly see the misery in which the people live," Jose Manuel Mondragon, a Chalco resident, told The Associated Press. "We hope he brings us a message of hope. We live in such poverty we often do not even enough for a soft drink."

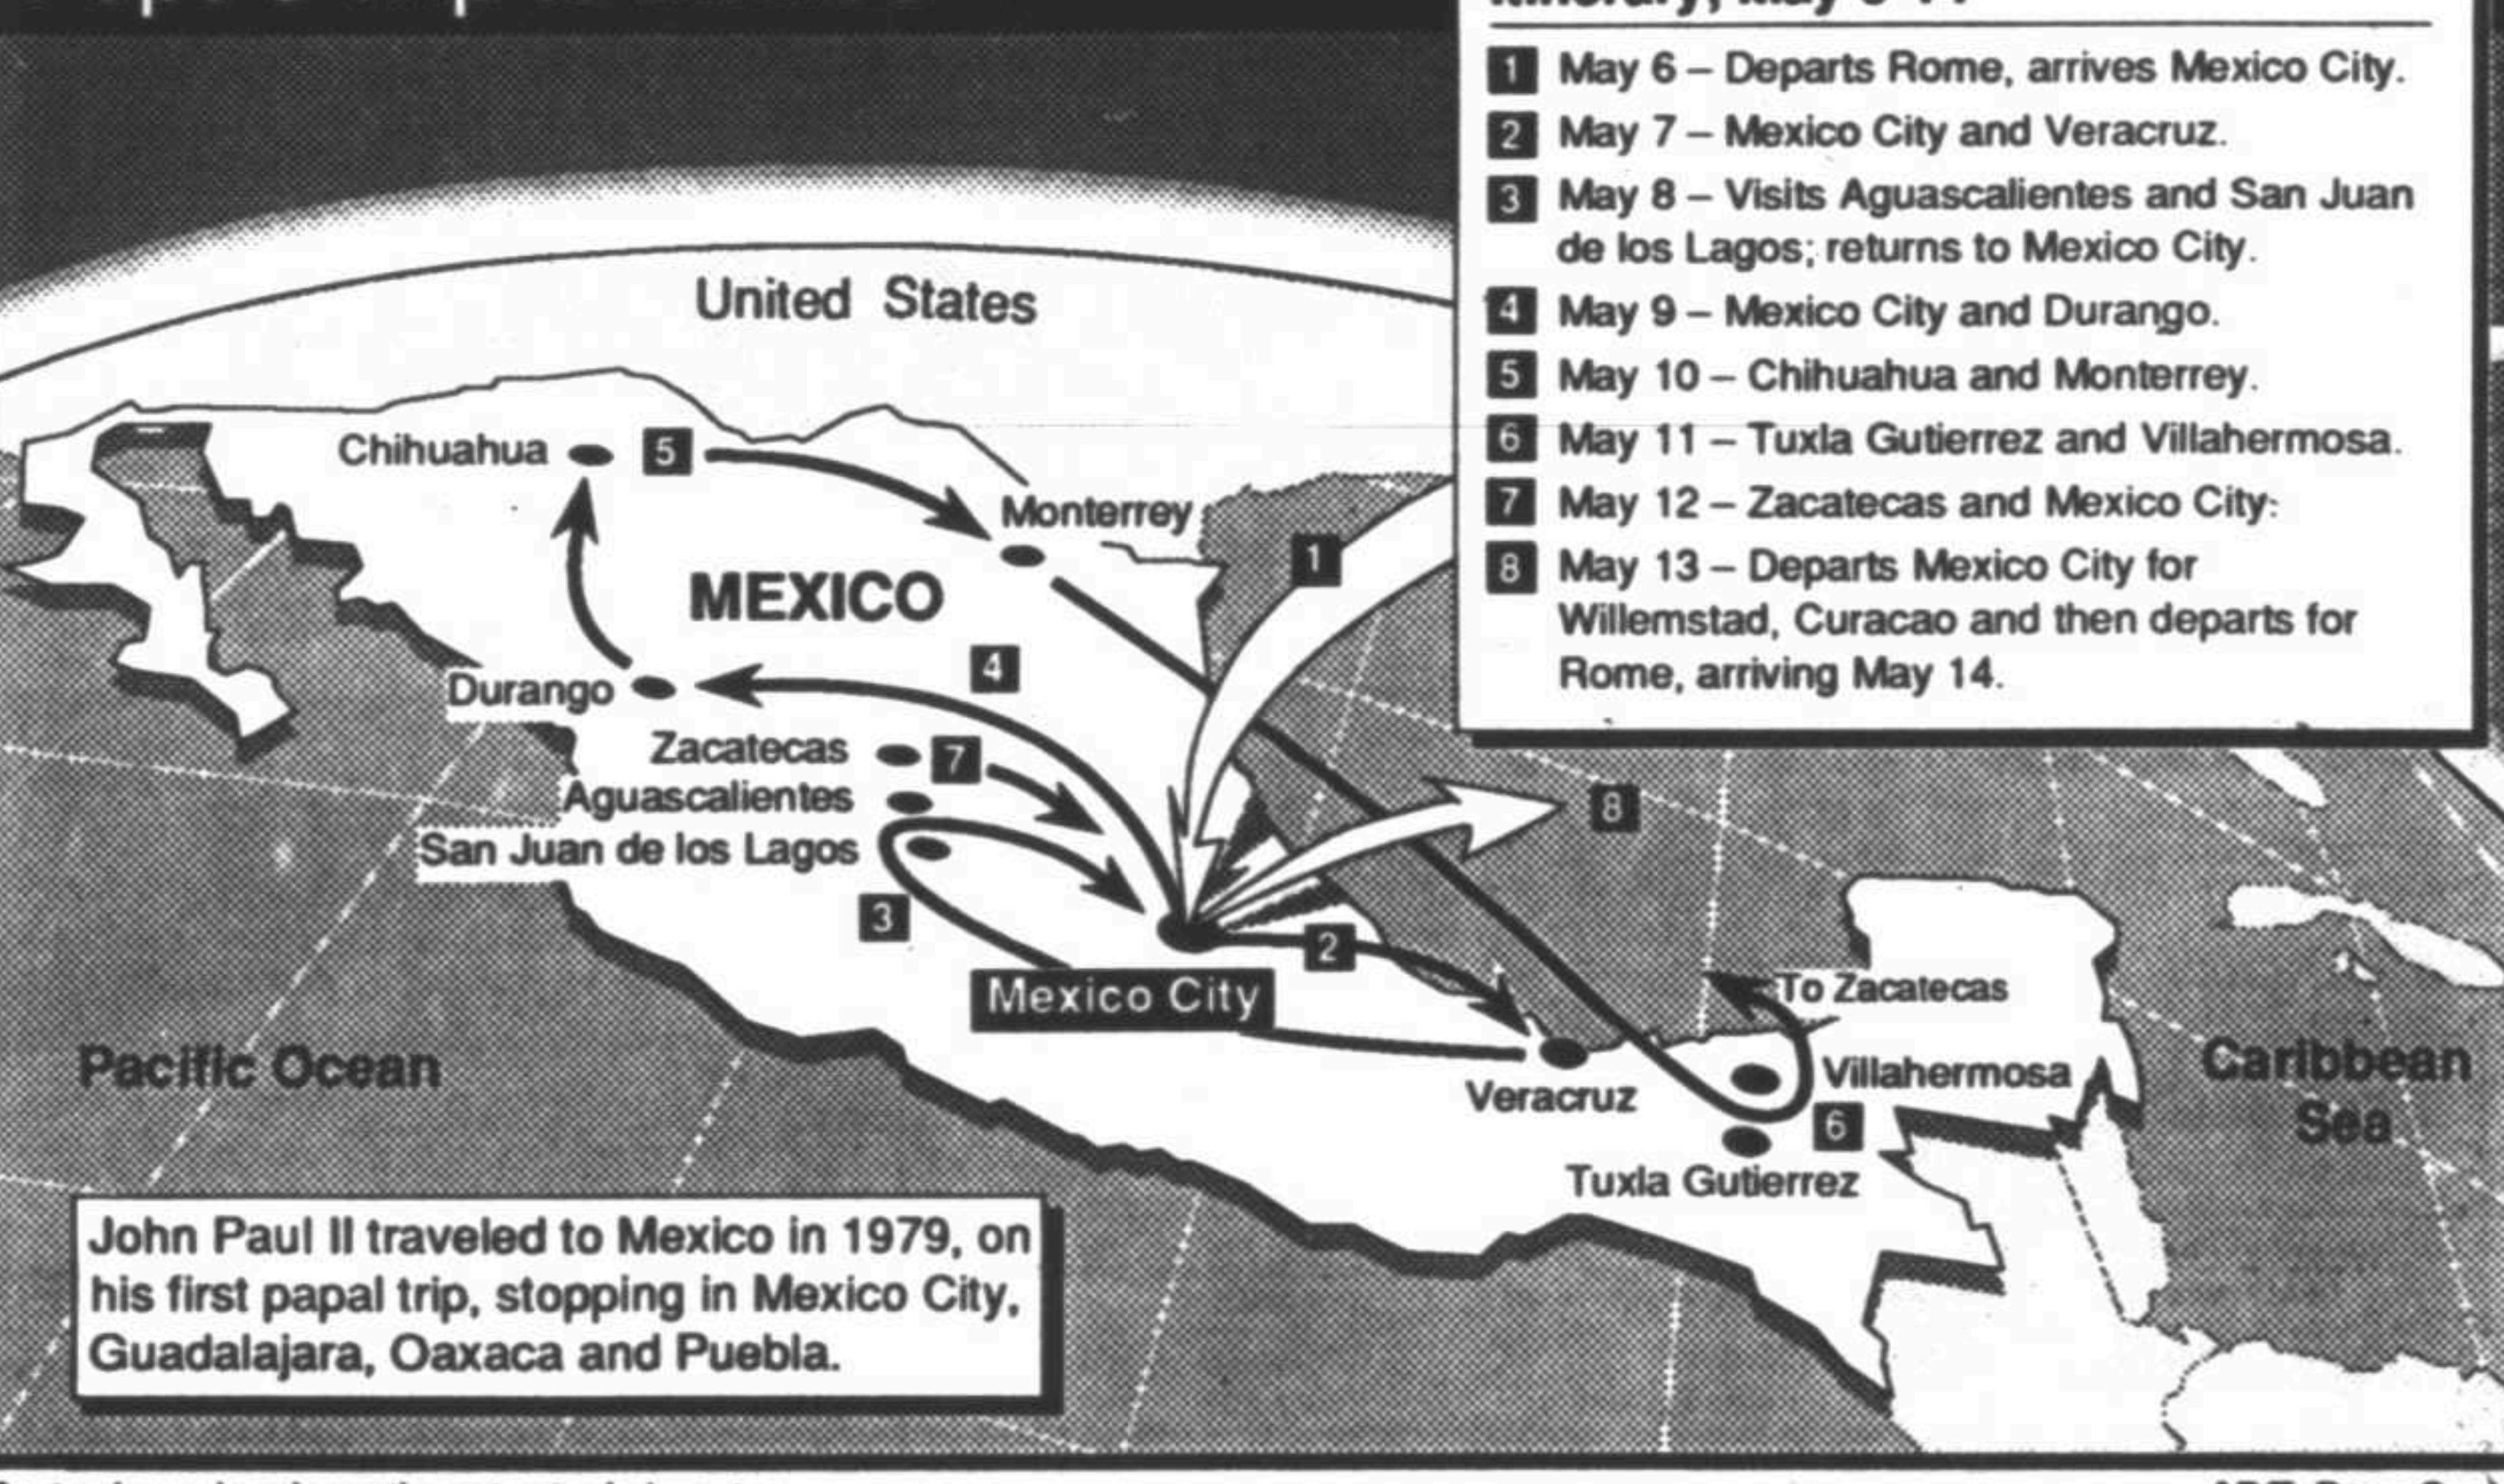

The pope will also attend a ceremony in honor of Juan Diego, a possibly apocryphal Mexican Indian to whom the Virgin of Guadalupe appeared in 1531, a few years after the conquest of Mexico by the Spanish.

The Virgin was used as a banner in the war of independence from Spain and is revered by Mexicans.

The honoring of Juan Diego represents a challenge to both the church and the state, Alamia said. The church must intensify its evangelization of Indian groups in Mexico, he said.

Many Indians are turning to evangelical Protestantism, a trend that concerns the Roman Catholic church.

On behalf of my family, I would like to thank the people of District 4 for your support in my candidacy for City Council.
We live in a wonderful city. Sure we have problems, but with God's help and by working together, there's nothing
we can't accomplish.
