Good news: inflation slackens in August

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation slackened in August, for the second consecutive month, as consumer prices rose by only a modest three-tenths of 1 per cent, the smallest rise in nine months, the government reported today.

The increase was the lowest since a similar rise last November and followed a rise of four-tenths of 1 per cent in July and increases of six-tenths in May and June.

The steady decline in wholesale farm prices was reflected on grocery shelves last month as food prices rose only slightly.

Meanwhile, the cost of services which had been the fastest rising component of the Consumer Price Index this year, slowed sharply last month.

The slowing of inflation this summer has been one of the few bright spots in the nation's economic picture, which has seen unemployment rising again and the rate of economic growth slacken.

Grocery prices, which had contributed to an annual inflation rate of about 10 per cent at the beginning of the year, rose only two-tenths of 1 per cent in August, following a decline of one-tenth of 1 per cent in July.

The cost of other commodities, such as household goods and autos, rose three-tenths of 1 per cent in August, but these had not contributed to the inflationary surge earlier this year as much as had food. Carter administration economists are counting on slow increases in food prices to help hold down the overall rise in consumer prices during the rest of the year.

If averaged out over the entire year, the August increase would mean a 3.6 per cent rate of inflation, a sharp improvement over the earlier pace. Consumer prices rose at a 10 per cent annual rate in the first quarter and at a rate of 8.1 per cent in the second quarter.

Despite the improvement in the pace of inflation, the Labor Department reported that the purchasing power of workers' paychecks declined for the second consecutive month. Real spendable earnings — takehome pay adjusted for taxes and inflation — for the average worker declined six-tenths of 1 per cent because of inflation and a decline in the average number of hours worked, the government said.

In August, the Consumer Price Index stood at 183.3, meaning that a basket of goods and services that sold for $100 in 1967 now costs $183.30. Consumer prices last month were 6.6 per cent higher than a year ago.

All percentages in the price report are adjusted to account for seasonal influences but the index itself is not adjusted.

The Labor Department said the cost of services rose five-tenths of 1 per cent in August, the smallest increase since December, when these prices rose only four-tenths of 1 per cent. The slowdown was largely due to the first decline this year in mortgage interest rates, seasonally adjusted. Gas and electricity prices continued to rise last month, but at a lower rate than in June or July.

At the grocery counter, the government said beef prices declined while prices also fell for pork, poultry, eggs, sugar and ground coffee. However, prices for fresh fruits and vegetables rose last month after declining sharply in the preceding three months.

Prices for non-food commodities continued to rise at a relatively small rate last month, an encouraging sign since these are regarded as a more sensitive measure of inflationary trends than food prices, which often fluctuate widely.

Clothing prices rose sharply last month as the new fall fashion lines went on display, but prices for used cars, alcohol and beverages declined. Fuel oil and coal prices rose nine-tenths of 1 per cent last month while gasoline and motor oil rose two-tenths of 1 per cent.

Sale of county hospitals considered

By Pampa News Staff

While no official action or open meeting discussion has taken place on the matter, local officials reportedly are considering the sale of the county's two problem-plagued hospitals.

"I think the time has come that we no longer need to be in the hospital business," Judge Hinton said Tuesday.

After making comments in the presence of news reporters that the sale of the hospitals is a possibility, Judge Hinton asked that reporters not put the information on the air on in newspaper stories.

Before the hospitals can be sold, the action must be approved by the hospital board, the commissioners court and a vote of the people.

R.W. Sidwell, president of the hospitals' board of managers, confirmed that the sale of the institutions has been discussed.

"I might say this is just a thought," he added, and he also requested that the information be withheld from the newspaper.

Sidwell said a management firm has indicated an interest in the local facilities but no purchase price was named. He did not identify the firm, but said it is not the same one that owns the now-closed Worley Hospital.

A dwindling patient load at the hospitals has resulted in a cash loss of more than $200,000 so far this year, according to Barry Breen, chief accountant.

Commenting on the situation, Hinton said, "I think we have got to do something to get new doctors in here."

At a recent meeting of the hospital board there was a discussion of needed repairs. The extensive repairs that reportedly are needed present the board with a problem because no funds for such improvements currently are available.

The possibility of a bond issue was mentioned but brought quick and unanimous opposition from board members.

Contacted Tuesday by The News, hospital board member Bill Tidwell said he had not heard anything about the possible sale of the hospitals.

"But I have heard of a leasing program," he said. "I would be in favor of this. One firm purchased the Littlefield hospital and leased one in Lubbock."

Tidwell said he has talked with a representative of another company that purchased several county-owned hospitals in South Texas.

Mrs. Susie Wilkerson, another member of the hospital board, said she would "consider any type arrangement that would guarantee class A medical care for the people of the community and at the same time not levy a heavy tax burden upon the taxpayers. I truly feel that part of the financial condition of the hospitals is due to lack of forethought of board members — past and present."

One of the largest hospital groups in the country is Hospital Corporation of America (HCA) with corporate offices in Nashville, Tenn. and division offices in California, Georgia, Virginia, and Texas (Arlington).

A spokesperson at the firm told The News today that HCA owns 12 Texas hospitals, about half of which were purchased from previous owners. Others were built.

One of the Texas hospitals purchased by the firm is the University Hospital of Lubbock. At Arlington, an old hospital was purchased by HCA and the firm later built a new facility to replace it.

Hospitals were built by the company at Levelland and Big Spring.

Claire Maness, an administrative assistant of the organization, spoke proudly of the branch of HCA that deals in managing hospitals of other owners.

"In every case where we have had a contract with a hospital for more than one year, the savings we have provided amounted to more than the fee charged."

She said the HCA has a department for physician recruitment. And there also is a training process for administrators of HCA hospitals.

Asked if any Gray County officials had contacted the firm about the possibility of HCA managing or purchasing the county hospitals, Ms. Maness said, "That doesn't ring a bell."

The nine-year-old company has 95 hospital facilities located across the country and including one each in Saudi Arabia and Panama.

CIA drugged travelers

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of President Nixon's traveling party were drugged during a trip to an "unfriendly" nation sometime in 1971, the CIA's former scientific chief told investigating senators today.

Dr. Sidney Gottlieb told a Senate health subcommittee that the President was not affected but that his personal physician, Dr. Walter Tkash, was.

Gottlieb said one symptom of the drug was that those affected by it cried at inappropriate times.

He said that he has seen documentation indicating that foreign intelligence agents used drugs on American officials until 1973, the year Gottlieb left the CIA.

Gottlieb apparently made the disclosure as an afterthought after he had concluded reading a prepared statement. His testimony was taken in front of senators in a small room and more material won't turn up this afternoon, Turner told Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the subcommittee.

Gottlieb requested the unusual procedure through his physicians because of a heart ailment.

Gottlieb also said that it was his understanding that in most cases foreign intelligence agents used drugs to steal documents from American officials.

He did not say this was the case in the alleged drugging of members of the Nixon traveling party. He gave no reason for that alleged occurrence.

Gottlieb was in general charge of the CIA's testing of mind altering drugs in the 21 year period beginning in about 1952.

Earlier, CIA Director Stansfield Turner told the panel the surviving records of the agency's drug tests are so fragmented and confused it still is not possible to say the entire story has been told.

"There is no way I can look you in the eye today and say tested drugs developed by the Navy to induce prisoners of war to talk freely. The drugs were tested in Europe on eight unwitting subjects, each of which was a defector from the Soviet Union.

In his testimony, Turner rejected what he said are inferences in the press that his agency has deliberately withheld information on the drug experiments. He reminded senators that he voluntarily turned over nearly eight linear feet of documents over the last seven weeks.

Turner said that all of the scores of universities which worked on covertly funded CIA drug research have now been notified of their involvement.

He said a search is under way to notify willing and unwilling subjects of drug experiments of possible dangers to their health. The CIA director characterized as "incredible" testimony given Tuesday in which Dr. Charles Geschickler, a Georgetown University medical researcher, said the CIA secretly funneled $375,000 through him into the university's building fund and neither asked nor received anything in return.

A Department of Defense spokesman also disclosed that in September, 1952, the CIA was mentioned but brought quick and unanimous opposition from board members.

Contacted Tuesday by The News, hospital board member Bill Tidwell said he had not heard anything about the possible sale of the hospitals.

"But I have heard of a leasing program," he said. "I would be in favor of this. One firm purchased the Littlefield hospital and leased one in Lubbock."

Mileage up to 18 cents

Travel, salaries raised

By ANNA BURCHELL

Pampa News Staff

The Gray County Commissioners Court today approved raises for county employees and increased travel allowances for the coming year to an estimated $70,000 over last year's payroll figures.

The raises affect 109 persons. During the discussion of raises, J.O. McCracken, commissioner, pointed to the poor financial condition of both hospitals.

"I used to think that the hospital was the finest thing we had. I was proud it was the one thing we had that broke even. Now all we can do to get money is raise taxes," McCracken said.

The Commissioners and the board of managers for McLean General and Highland General will meet together at 2:30 p.m. today to tour the hospital and to discuss the hospital budget.

McCracken, in discussing the hospital, said he would like to stress the point that the public should be so well informed on the needs of the hospital that when it comes time to fill a need even if it is a bond issue, taxpayers would be so well acquainted with the issue through news media accounts, it would come as no surprise.

County Attorney David Martindale, who had requested a $400 monthly raise, was tentatively approved for a six per cent hike as were most other county employees. However, he was allowed a $50 monthly travel allowance.

Commissioners who now receive $150 monthly travel allowance were approved for a $200 monthly allowance. They will also receive a six per cent salary hike bringing their new salary to $916.18 a month.

Exceptions to the six per cent increase include operators and truck drivers who will be given a $100 a month increase bringing their new salary to $798.31.

County mileage was increased from 16 cents to 18 cents. Sheriff's deputies will receive a $100 a month hike.

The deputies pay will be $883 with the increase and the chief deputy will receive $937.17.

A news reporter inquired if there is a limit Gray County deputies can drive their car at county expense. "There isn't," Judge Hinton said.

Ernest Lueddecke in charge of janitorial services at the courthouse annex will receive a $100 a month travel allowance instead of $50 he is now receiving.

In other discussion, one of the commissioners reported that Sheriff Rufe Jordan said funds for the Texas Commission on Jail Standards have been cut by 45 per cent.

A representative from that commission recently inspected the Gray County jail and reported its noncompliance items, which the sheriff estimated could be repaired for an estimated $50,000. At one time the estimate ran as high as $500,000.

The 1977 payroll was $906,000. Commissioners will meet on Oct. 1 to further discuss and consider approval of the tentative raises they set this morning.

Judge Hinton said he expected that the day would come soon when Justice Department would allow law enforcement officers to work no more than 40 hours weekly. Sheriffs' deputies are now working an average of 60 hours weekly.

The 1977 payroll was $906,000. Commissioners will meet on Oct. 1 to further discuss and consider approval of the tentative raises they set this morning.

'Bubble Boy' marks birthday

HOUSTON (AP) — David, the "Bubble Boy," observed his sixth birthday today in his plastic isolator, anxiously awaiting a miniature spacesuit that will permit him to explore wooded areas and beaches.

David, a victim of severe combined immune deficiency, was delivered in a germ-free area six years ago and placed immediately in a sterile "bubble unit."

His parents had had another boy who died because of the deficiency, so doctors knew to take precautions at David's birth.

The disease robs the body of its germ-fighting abilities and David has never been touched by unglazed hands.

Last December, physicians reported on immunological changes that eventually may mean David is outgrowing the defect.

There was nothing new to report today, however, at Baylor College of Medicine and Texas Children's Hospital.

"We have nothing new to report at this time," a hospital spokesman said. "We had hoped David would have tried out the spacesuit before his birthday, but there were minor problems and it was returned to the (Johnson) Space Center for reworking."

There was hope David can start making short tests with the suit in October.

The first of three child-sized astronaut suits was delivered some weeks ago but doctors found it unacceptable because of a defect in the container used in moving it from the space center to the hospital.

David alternately spends six weeks at the hospital and six weeks with his parents and 9-year-old sister, Katherine, in their ranch style home about 45 minutes from the hospital. He is scheduled to return to the hospital early next month.

The mother, Carol, and father, David, have asked that their last name and address not be reported, the mother explaining that "anonymity is our best hope for leading reasonably normal lives."

David's inherited sex-linked disorder killed an older brother at 7 months. Doctors say the disease afflicts an estimated one in every 10,000 male infants.

Elaborate preparations were made prior to David's birth after medical analysis indicated the unborn child had a 50-50 chance of having the disorder.

After the spacesuit is tested at the hospital, doctors believe David will be able to spend up to four hours at a time in the rubberized garment which has a soft transparent plastic helmet. A 10-foot hose connects the suit to a ventilator mounted on a pushcart.

No OD for Priscilla says doc

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A young Fort Worth doctor apparently shot down today a defense contention that Priscilla Davis was hospitalized last June for an overdose of drugs.

Lawyers for millionaire Cullen Davis suggested earlier that his estranged wife was unable to sign medical consent papers because of a drug-induced coma.

In response to a prosecutor's question, Dr. Michel Heard said attending physicians treated Mrs. Davis with a variety of drugs, including morphine and seconal.

"Do you give morphine and seconal to a patient who is in a coma for an overdose of drugs?" the state attorney asked.

"No sir," Heard replied. "Why not?" he was asked. "It's just not done," he said.

Heard, 27, testifying for the fifth day in Davis' capital murder trial, was on duty the summertime 1976 night when Mrs. Davis and Gus Gavrel, a young acquaintance of her elder daughter, were brought critically wounded to John Peter Smith Hospital.

Slain in the midnight shootings at the Davis mansion were Davis' 12-year-old step-daughter, Andrea Wilborn, and Priscilla's live-in lover, Stan Farr.

Dr. Heard, then an intern and now a hospital resident, treated both survivors, and it is his testimony that has become a pivotal issue in the legal drama.

Questioned first by the prosecution, he said Gavrel was partially paralyzed by a bullet lodged in his spine and, in his opinion, was in a state of shock that night.

But Heard conceded on cross examination that he could not recall whether Gavrel was conscious or in a coma, alert or disoriented when he treated the patient in the hospital's emergency room.

It is a crucial point. The defense has sought to show that Gavrel, who signed surgical consent forms, told a police officer and others he did not know who shot him.

Prosecutors contend his condition before and after surgery precluded his knowing or remembering little he said about the shootings.

Since testimony began five weeks ago, both Gavrel and Priscilla have testified that Davis was the "man in black" who shot them.

Although not yet in the record, the defense has indicated through affidavits and its questioning that it intends to show that Davis was perhaps the victim of a bizarre and still vague conspiracy.

The defendant's wife is suing him for divorce, with millions riding on the outcome, and a $13 million civil suit has been filed against Davis on behalf of Gavrel.

"So there is no way I could have been the killer," he said.

Mrs. Master, like Priscilla, has said in an affidavit she did not know when Davis returned to her home that night, but she awakened at 12:40 a.m. and he was there.

At 12:45 a.m., according to previous testimony, Mrs. Davis appeared at a home near the mansion, pleading for help and crying. "Cullen's ... up at the house killing everybody."

Turner assured Kennedy the CIA has now turned over all the material it can find on the formerly top-secret drug-related projects that bore the code names MK DELTA, MK ULTRA, MK NAOMI, MK SEARCH, MK CHICKWIT, and MK OFTEN.

Turner's comments came in a hearing in which it was also disclosed that the CIA used the Navy as a conduit for funds to finance a 1955 experiment into the use of brain concussions to produce amnesia.

Houston's zoneless legacy

A city without zoning — even the little ones — is backward, unprogressive, stagnant, reactionary. One of these times someone will have to drag its mummified citizens, kicking and screaming, out of the jungle and into the tail end of the 20th century.

That's what they say, especially those so gifted they feel confident of their superior ability to manage other people's property, and far from suffering the embarrassment that those more sensitive would find too painful, they find refuge — if one ever is needed — in the assurance that they only are doing their civic duty.

But what they say is not correct. The fate that awaits a zoneless city (there are some left) is presented in one of a series of copyright articles by Newspapers Enterprise Assn. and London Economist News Service.

The prime example of the "unplanned" city is Houston. Unzoned — and unless it is of recent date, never urban renewed — Houston, the writer asserts, is second only to Los Angeles in new construction.

The unplanned city is an advantage working in Houston's favor, say the writers. "It is free from zoning. No obstacles. No problems."

"To the cautious urban planners who have methodically ruined cities throughout Europe and North America this would seem to be a formula for disaster," they point out.

Not so. Instead of disaster, "It has produced in Houston a city that works, that has grown as the free market dictates in an organic and sensible way. More than that, given the unpromising nature of the terrain, a city of convenience and beauty, with broad roads and easy freeways and as diverse a range of buildings and community focal points as any planner could wish for."

Houston is not a hodge-podge collection of buildings because in reality it is zoned — by natural selection and by voluntary contractual agreements, the latter the answer to keeping subdivisions residential. It is the kind of arrangement the zoners say just won't work, when all around us we see evidence aplenty that zoning doesn't work, and not only doesn't work but deceives by promoting a false sense of security.

Some concrete suggestions

A few years ago, during the Nixon administration, the government established the Consumer Product Safety Commission, which was charged with making the world safe for safety. It went into operations with the fullest gusto, and its philosophy animated any number of zealots who wanted to turn the world into a rubber room.

They investigated everything, these zealots from tricycles to Tris. The taxpayers found themselves spending hundreds of thousands of dollars on projects designed to take the risk out of living. If a man tripped, it was not because he was uncoordinated, but because the threshold was dangerous, installed by a greedy building contractor.

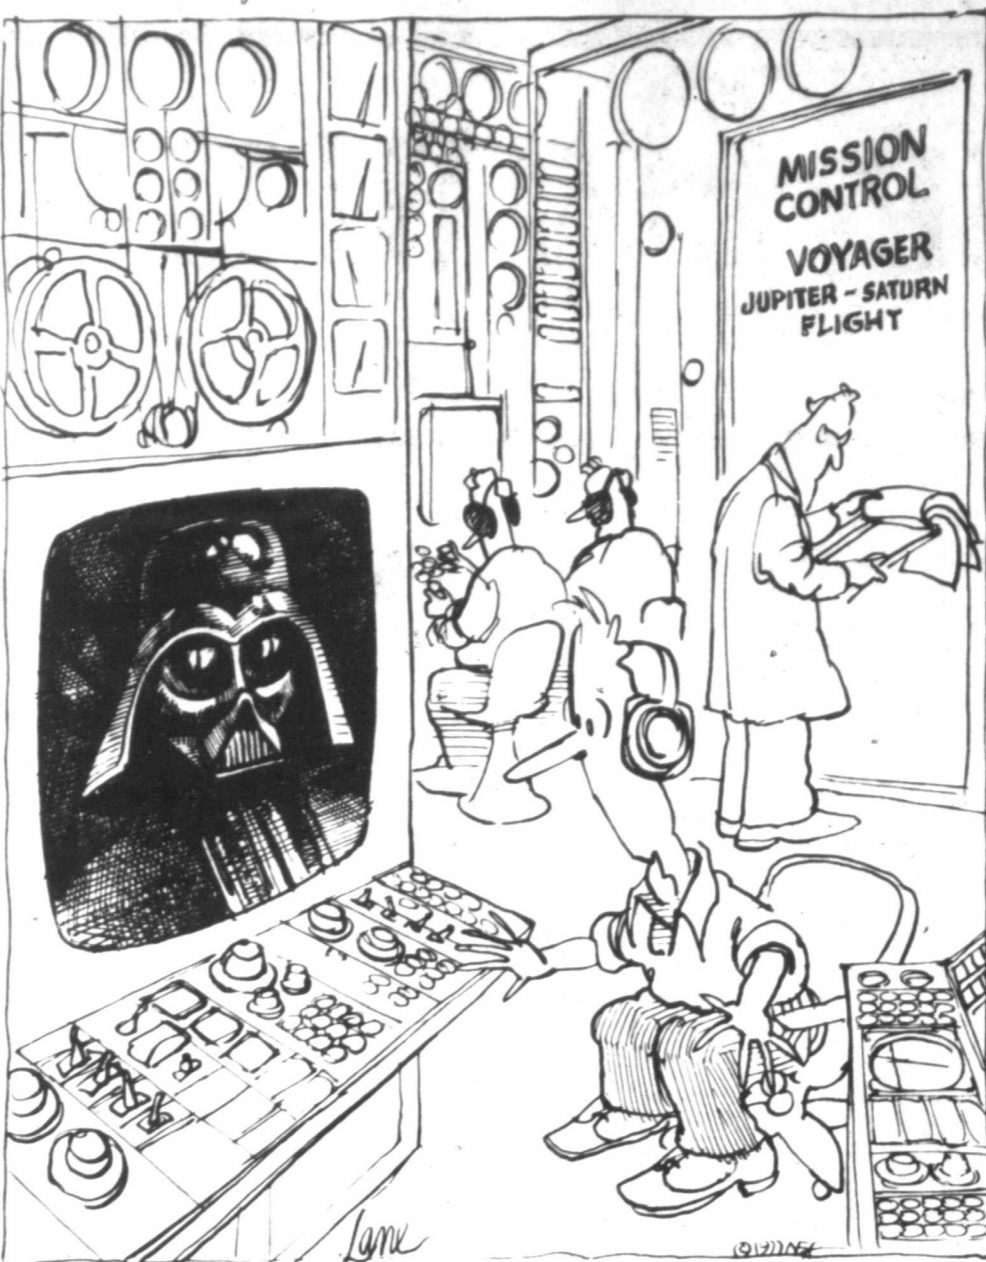

In the name of safety consumers found themselves paying additional costs for their merchandise. The reason is that the Consumer Product Safety Commission mandated that lots of products coming to its attention be equipped with all sorts of safety devices, all of them jacked up prices. A fifty dollar lawnmower might now retail for $75 — and be more inefficient, to boot. But making living needlessly costly did not halt the bureaucrats so long as a few more children — and this is by no means proven — kept their fingers.

Now the Consumer Product Safety Commission turns its attention to another youthful enthusiasm, skateboards. In four years' time, the agency finds, there were 13 skateboard-related deaths. Which strikes us as a damn few, given all the other silly reasons that Americans die, but it is too many for the Consumer Product Safety Commission, which has found fertile diggings in the skateboard industry. Just think of the official studies that can be written, and all the suggestions the government might make to make skateboarding safer.

Why, the government might even undertake to require certain safety devices. Skateboarders might have to be ticketed if they're caught without knee pads and elbow pads and all the other things the industry has already thought of and sold to smart youngsters.

Failing that, the government might resort to the final expedient, requiring skateboard licenses. Sound preposterous? There were those who thought, at the time the Consumer Product Safety Commission was founded, that an investigation of skateboards was preposterous.

Nation's press

Sinai curve proved wrong

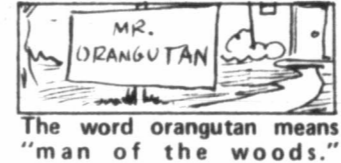

National Review
An unfortunate consequence of the renewed interest in the relationship between the money supply and inflation is that people who don't understand money feel compelled to write about it. Life was simpler in an earlier era, when Keynesian economists would have been content to neglect money altogether, preferring instead to play with their magical multipliers, accelerators, and Phillips Curves.

A representative sample of the newly faddish perversion of monetarism was offered by Allen Sinai of Data Resources at recent Senate Banking Committee hearings. He starts with the familiar theorem that the increase in money plus the increase in money plus the increase in the rate at which money changes hands (velocity) equals the rate of increase in inflation plus the rate of increase in real output. But Sinai proceeds as if the increases in inflation and velocity were fixed by fate, so that more money will simply buy more goods. The Federal Reserve should therefore provide enough money to finance the prevailing rate of inflation plus whatever real GNP growth is deemed appropriate. Sinai also said this in late 1975, and was proved quite wrong — inflation came down as far as money growth did, velocity soared, and interest rates plummeted.

Data Resources' economic muddle used to say that inflation was caused by rising wages, rising wages were caused by low unemployment, and low unemployment was caused by inflation. That hopelessly circular reasoning was smashed by reality, and now they have no explanation of inflation at all — only extrapolations of past trends and ad hoc excuses for bad forecasts. Sinai therefore explains part reductions in inflation as "exogenous" or "autonomous," which is fancy talk for unexplained. He offers the incredible notion that "as volume drops, producers charge higher prices to maintain profits," which implies, strangely enough, that inflation and profits should pick up as business slows down. The pathetic attempt to deny the slightest link between money and inflation leads Sinai into such sophomoric errors as explaining rising prices by pointing to other rising prices ("costs"), and adopting the Anglo-Italian notion that a rapid expansion of the money supply could hold interest rates down indefinitely. This is just another clumsy effort to absolve the authorities of responsibility for inflation. Calling it a computer "projection" doesn't make it any more sensible.

The word orangutan means "man of the woods."

By JIM FITZGERALD

"It is not easy being a sportswriter, especially when you are writing about a new sport." I explained to my wife when she asked what happened to my can of beer.

We were at Memorial Park in East Detroit to see my first slo-pitch softball game. The Detroit Caesars were playing the Cincinnati Suds. Ed Hayes bought the beer.

Ed is public relations director for the Caesars. Years ago he was sports columnist for the old Detroit Times and I was his admiring reader. So it was a kick to find him behind a large beard at the popcorn counter. I immediately began asking him questions concerning this new variety of baseball.

"Don't they sell beer at this counter?" I asked.

"They didn't but Ed found a counter where they did. While he was treating, Ed quoted an incredible statistic from the world of sports. He said he had never once in his life had a drink of alcohol.

I admitted I had never heard of a sportswriter who didn't booze at least a little bit. Ed explained that he had been the designated driver in an exceedingly wet sports department. It was necessary that someone always remain sober enough to distinguish a hot smash from a blazing fast ball. Ed got the job because his desk was nearest to the wall thermometer.

I didn't find it easy to take notes on Ed's startling revelations. We were standing and I had a can of beer in one hand and a box of popcorn in the other. To free my pencil hand, I stuck the popcorn under my left arm. I used the beer can as a desk for my note pad, holding the can with three fingers and the pad with the fourth finger and the thumb.

Considering how many years it has been since I wrote sports on a regular basis, I thought it was a splendid performance. I could see the admiration in Ed's eyes, especially when I kept writing as we walked.

"You are spilling your popcorn all over the ground," my wife said. "Are we playing some kind of Hansel and Gretel game?"

"The box was closed at both ends when I put it under my arm," I explained. "Obviously I applied a little too much pressure in the elbow area, causing one end of the box to pop open. You must remember that the last baseball game I covered was in 1959. It will be a while before I completely regain my timing and touch."

A few minutes later, after buying more popcorn, Pat and I were seated high in the bleachers behind home plate. "This will require a switch in tactics," I said.

I put the can of beer and box of popcorn between my legs, above the knees, for between innings. This freed both hands for taking notes. The Caesars hit three home runs and scored seven runs in the first inning, and I recorded all the action with a dexterity reminiscent of a young Grantland Rice.

You might wonder why I didn't share the popcorn with Pat, letting her hold the box. She refuses to share popcorn with me, at movies or ball games, because she doesn't like the way I eat it. She insists popcorn should be eaten one or two kernels at a time. Like most normal people, I grab a fistful of popcorn and then slowly open the fist as it is pressed against my face.

"In one minute you get more popcorn in your nose than I get in my mouth in one hour," she explained on our first date. "This is unfair to me. You must promise to always buy me my own box of popcorn, or I will never marry you."

Now you know why our wedding vows were different than most. But back to the slo-pitch game...

At the start of the second inning, Pat had a question for the sports expert. "What happened to your beer?" she asked.

Good lord, it was gone. I could see the can foaming far below on the ground under the bleachers. When I had relaxed my thigh muscles enough to allow my fist inside the popcorn box, I had apparently forgotten to keep the upper muscles tense enough to hold the can of beer secure.

A man cannot return to sportswriting after 18 years and expect to immediately be as good as he ever was. Besides, this was a new game.

"I am not used to night baseball," I explained. "I lost my beer in the lights." Onward and Upward.

Berry's World

"Have I ever told you that your being a 'news freak' drives me up the wall?"

In Washington Analyzing the vote

By Martha Angle and Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Although the nation elected a new President more than 10 months ago, the first of the detailed studies seeking to explain what motivated the voters has only recently been made public — and it shatters a number of popular political myths.

For instance, it's widely assumed that the two contenders' position on various domestic and foreign policy issues was the most important aspect of the four nationally televised debates between Democrat Jimmy Carter and Republican Gerald R. Ford.

Not so, says the massive survey of 1976 voting behavior directed by Arthur H. Miller and Warren E. Miller of the University of Michigan's Center for Political Studies.

"Extensive research on the debates demonstrates that their most salient aspect was the manner in which the candidates performed and not issue concerns," they report.

When voters participating in a nationwide poll were asked about the debates, "nearly half of all comments focused either on the candidate's competence or his performance," the Michigan study found. "References to various candidate personality characteristics were also quite prevalent."

Another popularly accepted notion is that the concept of "trust" was of paramount importance in last year's election campaign. "Despite the attention given to the issue," says the newly issued analysis, "it had relatively little direct impact on the vote."

One apparent reason for that surprising conclusion is that Carter and Ford were trusted about equally by the electorate, thus cancelling out any advantage or disadvantage either man might have held in another contest.

But the study notes that "the widespread distrust of politicians" turned Ford's pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon into a major political liability. At the time of that controversial action, in the fall of 1974, about 61 per cent of those participating in a national survey disapproved of the decision.

Time did not heal that particular wound very quickly because two years later, when Ford was fighting for political future in the 1976 presidential campaign, the disapproval rate had dropped only to 57 per cent.

"The skepticism engendered by the pardon may have set the tone for much of the public's evaluation of his (Ford's) subsequent performance in office," says the report. "It appears that the public judged the pardon both on the basis of moral considerations and as a reflection on Ford's ability to make good decisions" as president.

Ford's tough primary battle with former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, "contrary to popular belief, was not so much an ideological contest as a reflection of the personal style and appeal of the two candidates, as well as a referendum on Ford's performance in office," the Michigan analysis reports.

The 128-page report document was unveiled early this month at the annual meeting of the American Political Science Association. It and similar studies of every presidential election during the past quarter century are widely respected and heavily relied upon by the country's political scientists.

The survey found that an unusually large proportion of the electorate, 15 per cent, remained "undecided" about the choice between Carter and Ford as late as a few days prior to the election.

Finally, the analysis seeks to destroy "the popular belief, often expressed by the media, that the country is moving in a conservative direction."

After carefully studying voter attitudes on issues such as school busing, legalization of marijuana, women's equality, government-financed health insurance and increased taxation of the wealthy, the study concludes that there was either a very slight shift toward liberalism or no change at all from 1972 to 1976.

$1 million effort on to block canal treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative groups are concentrating on about 30 "key" members of the Senate and probably will spend upwards of a million dollars in an effort to block ratification of the Panama Canal treaty.

The campaign, involving mass media advertising and an effort to bury uncommitted lawmakers under an avalanche of anti-treaty mail, is being mounted as the Senate Foreign Relations Committee prepares to hold hearings on the treaty next week.

In a "dear friend" form letter signed by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, the Conservative Caucus is seeking contributions to defray what it calls "quite frankly... the biggest financial risk" in its history. The letters carry a "United States Senate" letterhead but are printed and mailed at private expense.

With a goal of $300,000 by Sept. 30, the group hopes to have $475,000 by the time the treaty comes to a vote next year.

That may seem like a lot of money, the letter concedes, "but not if we are serious about defeating the President of the United States and almost the entire liberal political establishment in America."

Accompanying the letter is a detailed "fact sheet" on the Panama Canal, pre-addressed postcards to be returned to senators and other postcards to be sent to friends, all urging defeat of the treaty.

The American Conservative Union, meanwhile, is running its own mail campaign, with Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., signing the letter. It also contains an appeal of contributions, but ACU spokesman says the emphasis is on the treaty issue rather than soliciting money.

The ACU already has invested $400,000 in its anti-treaty drive and plans to spend at least $50,000 more on radio spots and a television documentary. Meanwhile, it has a number of other projects in the works and is coordinating a loosely-joined "Emergency Coalition to Save the Panama Canal," made up of about a dozen organizations with a total membership of at least 10 million, according to ACU legislative director Gary Jarmin.

The effect of the anti-treaty blitz, organizers hope, will be a deluge of mail and messages pouring into the offices of senators — in particular those who are uncommitted or, in the judgment of anti-treaty strategists, might ultimately decide to vote no.

Most important among these are Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., whose own decisions could have important influence on party colleagues.

Baker has been singled out for special attention because he is up for re-election next year in a state where the canal treaty could become the major campaign issue. Already he has been confronted by large news-paper ads declaring that "Senator Baker alone can save the Panama Canal."

Open space in Panhandle impresses visiting Briton

"I can't believe all the space you have here," remarked Paul Boynton, who is visiting the United States from England for the first time. Paul and his wife Cathy are guests at the Ledbetters' of 1611 Grape.

Cathy is no newcomer to the Pampa area. Her first visit was as a 10-year-old exchange student while her father was a minister in Pampa from England for 10 weeks.

She came back in 1970 when the English university she wanted to attend asked her "to do a year around."

Cathy later attended Pampa High School for a short while and worked at Highland General Hospital.

Paul and Cathy are friendly, perpetually smiling people with British accents always associated with tea drinkers and "old chaps."

They both have nothing but praise for the U.S. and the people here. They like the space and friendliness of Pampa.

Cathy hasn't noticed any changes in the six years she's been gone except for "a bit more building going on."

Today is their last day in Pampa, and where do they plan to go next? "The Grand Canyon and California," Cathy smiled.

The two met in their freshman year at the University of Nottingham and were married in December 1975.

Paul is a civil engineer with the city of Coventry, England, and Cathy is a medical social worker.

"Coventry has a population of 300,000 but the area is only as big as Pampa," Paul is entranced with the way things are spread out here. "The stores around here are spaced out in England, everything is piled on top of each other."

Although they have glowing terms of this area, they are happy living in England.

Marcia says money from Ash

HOUSTON (AP) — Marcia McKittrick, who said she was touched by the look in the eyes of a young man who lost his father, has testified money for the contract slaying of Dr. John Hill came from millionaire oilman Ash Robinson.

Miss McKittrick, sentenced to 10 years in prison for her connection in the 1972 slaying of Hill, had twice earlier refused to testify in the $7.6 million suit brought by the family of Hill against Robinson.

The Hill family, including his widow Connie Hill and son Robert, 17, allege in the suit that Robinson masterminded the slaying as revenge for the death of John Robinson Hill, Robinson's daughter and Hill's first wife.

Hill had been charged with failing to give proper medical aid to his first wife which resulted in her death. He was awaiting a second trial on the charge when he was killed. The first trial ended in a mistrial.

Miss McKittrick, 27, said the look in Robert Hill's eyes when she refused to testify in the case on Monday, convinced her that she should tell the jury everything.

Robert Hill sat in almost a direct line from Miss McKittrick as she testified. Miss McKittrick, who has said in previous interviews she wants Hill's forgiveness for what she has done, occasionally glanced at young Hill during her testimony Tuesday.

Robinson met with Lila Paulus, now serving a prison after she was convicted of being the go-between in the alleged conspiracy with Robinson.

Her testimony Tuesday was almost identical to accounts Miss McKittrick gave at the trial of Mrs. Paulus, who was sentenced to 35 years in prison after she was convicted of being the go-between in the alleged conspiracy with Robinson.

Miss McKittrick testified Vandiver at first planned to use adhesive tape to kill Hill but shot him after the two men got into a scuffle on the steps of Hill's River Oaks mansion.

Robinson, 79, who never has been criminally charged in the Hill case, sat calmly with his wife Rhea during Miss McKittrick's testimony, occasionally cupping his hand to his ear to hear what was being said.

Miss McKittrick was assessed a six-month jail term Monday by State District Judge Arthur C. Leshar for refusing to testify in the case.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A former Houston policeman — who was granted immunity to testify against two other former officers charged with the death of a prisoner — has admitted under cross-examination, "I am attempting to save my hide."

Former officer Louis Kinney, who says he took part in the beating of Joe Campos Torres, testified Tuesday that patrolman, Terry Denon, pushed the prisoner into Buffalo Bayou last May.

Denon, 27, and Stephen Orlando, 21, are charged with murder in the death of Torres, whose body was found May 8 in Buffalo Bayou, near the Houston police headquarters. The case was moved here on a change of venue.

Glenn Brinkmeyer, another

Rookie 'saving hide'

former officer who has agreed to testify against Denon and Orlando in return for immunity from state prosecution, was expected to take the stand today.

Both Kinney and Brinkmeyer could still face federal prosecution for allegedly violating Torres' civil rights.

During cross-examination Tuesday afternoon, Bob Bennett, Denon's attorney, asked Kinney, "Did your attorney tell you if these officers drew a lot of time in state court, you would be less likely to be prosecuted in federal court?"

Kinney replied, "My attorney told me we have to win this case. I am attempting to save my hide."

Defense attorneys are attempting to prove that Kinney's testimony against Denon and Orlando is prompted by a desire to escape possible federal prosecution.

Earlier Tuesday, Kinney testified, "I kicked him and hit him twice in the side. 'I didn't hit him as hard as I could because I didn't want to break anything.'"

Kinney testified Denon slugged Torres in the back, Brinkmeyer slung him to the ground by his handcuffs, and Orlando hit Torres across the shin four or five times with a flashlight.

After the city jail refused to accept Torres, arrested on a disorderly conduct charge, because of injuries, Kinney testified the officers took Torres back to the bayou.

Kinney testified, "Orlando said, 'This would be a good

DARS observe week

Local members of the Daughters of the American Revolution this week are observing the 190th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States of America.

Mayor R.D. Wilkerson has signed a proclamation in which he urges "all our citizens to pay special attention to our Federal Constitution and the advantages of American Citizenship."

Constitution Week is Sept. 17-23 each year, according to Mrs. Jack Skelly, regent in the local DAR chapter.

Constitution Week first was observed in 1955 and has been observed annually since, by presidential proclamation.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor John Wayne won't be saddling up to join Ronald Reagan in his fight against ratification of the Panama Canal treaty. He's signed on with the pro-treaty outfit.

There had been published reports Wayne would join the former California governor and others in actively opposing the pact and that he would tape radio commercials against its ratification.

But in a telephone interview Tuesday, Wayne said, "I have agreed to support the treaty if what I understand about it is true."

The treaty would turn over control of the canal to Panama by the year 2000.

Until recently Nic Knievel, 37, was a sedate Eugene auto dealer, but he's trading his business suit for the starblazed, flameproof garb of a stuntman.

"When I put it on, my kids don't even recognize me," he says.

The car he will use, powered by a snowmobile engine, is a modified version of a tiny racer built in Butte, Mont., by Knievel's father, Robert.

LONDON (AP) — Evangelist Ruth Carter Stapleton, President Carter's sister, is wowing the British press, and at the same time, giving them something to think about.

Newspapers spoke of her "movie-star" looks and "dazzling Carter smile" when she attended a press reception organized by her British book publishers Tuesday.

Author of the book "The Gift of Inner Healing," she told reporters that prayer and positive Christian loving thoughts were directly linked to physical health.

Montgomery, Ala. (AP) — Attorneys for Cornelia Wallace say a judge who owes his position to Gov. George Wallace wouldn't be a fair arbiter of the Wallace divorce proceedings. They have asked him to step down.

In a brief submitted Tuesday, the attorneys argued it would be impossible for Family Court Judge John W. Davis III to decide the case objectively because of his association with the governor.

Despite his being appointed to his post by Wallace, Davis' father, Dr. John W. Davis Jr., has been one of the governor's chief physicians.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Is the world ready for another Knievel? It'll find out Sunday when Evel's younger brother tries to leap 112 feet in a mini racing car.

Washington (AP) — West Bank mayors or other Palestinians publicly known as Palestine Liberation Organization sympathizers would be acceptable at a reconvened Geneva Peace Conference, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan has told Carter administration officials.

However, it was learned that privately as well as publicly Israel flatly rejects the seating of actual representatives of the PLO, which is committed by its charter to dismantling Israel.

And, while ruling out a separate Palestinian delegation, Dayan left the door open for having some Palestinians in the Egyptian or Lebanese delegations as well as with the group from Jordan.

Carter, Lance decision 'near'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and his longtime friend Bert Lance reportedly are nearing a decision on whether Lance will keep his job as head of the Office of Management and Budget.

Carter scheduled a news conference today and there were indications that some sort of decision on the Lance affair would be forthcoming, although Press Secretary Jody Powell discouraged speculation Tuesday that an announcement would be made.

Lance played doubles tennis with Carter as his teammate Tuesday and the former Georgia banker was described by an aide that night as saying he has "no intention of resigning."

But there were two developments Tuesday that appeared to erode Lance's position.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, who visited Carter on Monday night, was believed to have urged the President for the second time to let Lance go.

The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee released new testimony by a government lawyer, indicating that Lance actively sought to clear his record with federal bank examiners.

Meanwhile, the Los Angeles Times quoted White House aides in today's editions as saying Carter had left it up to Lance to decide whether he should resign, but both were weighing the politics of the situation.

Powell said Tuesday that Carter would not be swayed by public opinion about his old friend and the Los Angeles Times said one senior White House aide had heard Carter telling Lance during a Monday meeting: "Bert, come back and let me know what you think."

The newspaper said one Carter aide pictured the President as anxious to hold the press conference, despite the certainty of a flood of Lance questions, and quoted the aide as saying: "He said he's tired of hiding and wants to get on with it."

Byrd revealed his Monday meeting with Carter, but refused to say what the two had discussed. Before Lance's testimony to the Governmental Affairs Committee last week, Byrd had said Lance's resignation was inevitable.

But on Tuesday he refused to say if his opinion had changed, telling reporters "I think the President and Mr. Lance are evaluating the situation and I think they both need a little time in which to do that. I think they will be aided by silence, not by public statements."

The new information revealed by the Senate committee, which spent nine days taking testimony on allegations involving Lance's financial practices, dis-

'PLO could accept' - Dayan

However, Dayan said Israel has several major differences with the United States. Among them, he said, are new Israeli settlements in occupied Arab territory and the U.S. call for an almost total withdrawal from the land the Arabs lost in 1967.

Later, after meeting with members of the Senate foreign relations committee, he specifically denied a report that he had met with King Hussein of Jordan last weekend. But Dayan hinted he may have met with another Arab leader.

"When and if some of us are meeting with Arab leaders, it is not us that are in trouble — it is the other party," he said. "So we cannot discuss it."

'PLO could accept' - Dayan

Israel's proposals, which rule out creation of a Palestinian state, were likely topics at today's meeting of Egyptian foreign minister Ismail Fahmy with President Carter and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. Ministers from Syria and Jordan will be here next week.

The current talks are designed to clear the way to a peace conference by the end of the year. Dayan told reporters he believes "ultimately an agreed formula will be found."

At a news conference Tuesday, he said: "I estimate the Geneva peace conference can be convened even before the end of the year with what I know of the attitude of the Arab states."

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

The severe thunderstorms that roamed southeastern portions of the Texas Panhandle during the night dissipated before daylight and skies were clear over the entire state.

Only some fog in the Alice area in South Texas blotted an otherwise clear morning and forecasters said the entire state would have clear to partly cloudy skies and continued warm temperatures today. It was expected to be windy in the Panhandle, but otherwise it would be a nice day.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s although there were some readings in the 60s in the Panhandle and in the mountains of Southwest Texas. Some early morning readings included 72 at Amarillo and Wichita Falls, 62 at Texarkana, 67 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 71 at Austin, 65 at Houston, 74 at Corpus Christi and McAllen, 77 at Del Rio, 76 at San Angelo, 73 at El Paso and 75 at Lubbock.

National weather

The heaviest September storm on record in the Northern California community of Redding flooded several homes and two shopping malls.

The National Weather Service said Tuesday the four-day rain total was 6.8 inches, the highest for the first three weeks of September in 100 years of record-keeping.

Some flooding was reported during the weekend, but the worst was Monday.

Elsewhere, rain fell south of Buffalo in western New York, flooding some highways and drainage areas. A flood warning was in force on Oatka Creek, where moderate was expected.

In south-central New York, a flash flood watch was in effect for the Catskills and the Mohawk Valley.

Light rain continued today over much of New England and northern Pennsylvania and New York. And there are gale warnings along the New England coast.

Thunderstorms occurred in South Carolina, over the North Carolina coast and in southwestern Oklahoma. Light showers were reported along the Washington and Oregon coasts, in the Northern Rockies, in portions of the Central Plains and over the Middle Mississippi Valley.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My girlfriend Betty (fictitious name) was so beautiful a few years ago that when she walked down the streets heads would turn. She still has a beautiful face, but she must have gained about 50 pounds. Maybe 75.

Betty has tried Weight Watchers, Tops and Overeaters Anonymous but she never stayed with any of them. She's also been to doctors who have put her on special diets, pills, shots, etc. Nothing worked.

Yesterday Betty told me she went to a fantastic doctor who specializes in weight reduction.

He charged her $100 to weigh her, take her blood pressure and tell her he couldn't take her because she didn't weigh enough! He said he treats only extremely obese people, and she will have to gain at least 15 pounds before he can take her. Can you believe this?

So now Betty is eating up a storm so this doctor will take her. What do you make of this?

CYNICAL FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: I think Betty is a compulsive overeater who has found the perfect excuse to continue eating for a while. And I can't believe that a legitimate physician would tell an obese person to gain weight to qualify for a weight-reduction program.

DEAR ABBY: I recently moved near Arlington Cemetery. A friend of mine, who lives in another town, asked me to please visit her nephew's grave in Arlington Cemetery and say a prayer for him. I told her I would be glad to, but here's the problem: Her nephew died in action and his body was never recovered.

My friend tells me that her nephew's grave has a headstone with his name and the usual information on it. Abby, can a headstone be on a grave without a body interred? I think it would be sheer hypocrisy to say a prayer for someone who isn't there. If you think I'm wrong, I'll visit his grave and say a prayer.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: If a serviceman's body has never been recovered, a memorial marker can be placed in a special, separate section of the cemetery. Visit the nephew's grave and say a prayer. You will be praying for his soul—not his body.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please straighten out the "John Smith Jr." and "John Smith II" confusion? My wife wants to name our son after me, and she insists that he will be "John Smith II." I say he will be "John Smith Jr."

I know I'm right, but I don't know under what circumstances a child becomes "the II."

Can you help me?

JOHN SMITH

DEAR JOHN: A man with the identical name as his father is called "Jr." as long as his father is alive. He may drop the "Jr." after his father's death, or if he prefers, he may retain it to avoid being confused with his late father.

When a boy is named after his father who is a "Jr.," he is called "3rd." A boy who is named after his grandfather, uncle or cousin becomes "the 2nd."

There can only be one "Jr." in the family. And only one 2nd, 3rd, 4th, etc.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 75 and have walked all my life. I still walk every day only I am having trouble with my leg. I can only walk a few blocks and have to stop while the pain leaves. I do not have high blood pressure and all my tests come out okay.

My doctor gave me Ronicol time span tablets, one a day, and I've taken them for more than a year. I just cannot tell the difference. What do you think of this drug?

I just feel awful when I do not get my walk. I would hate to give it up. It's the best part of my life physically.

Is there anything you could suggest to me? I would try anything. I do not take any other kind of medicines. I'm not heavy. 5 feet 6 and 117 pounds.

DEAR READER — Helping you depends upon what you really have. Your doctor must think the pain is caused by poor circulation as Ronicol is used to increase circulation. Your description of developing a pain with walking that goes away with resting suggests that may be the case.

Other possible causes include arthritic changes which might involve the hip or knee. You might ask your doctor to arrange for a consultation with an orthopedic specialist and see if he can provide any help.

You might also get some help from simple aspirin. Why? Because it is a good pain reliever and it seems to have some anti-clotting action that might be helpful. Its "blood thinning" action might help your circulation if that is the problem. So whether you have pain from arthritis or poor circulation it could be tried.

Talk to your doctor about it first as some people do not tolerate aspirin well but most do. A few people are inclined

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — After taking the clothes from the dryer, I discovered some yellow stains on a dress shirt belonging to my husband. Before I finished my folding I found the source of the trouble was a yellow-orange crayon my little daughter had left in the pocket of a sun dress. I have tried using many washing products that should remove stains but with no luck. I would appreciate some help. —MRS. W.K.

DEAR MRS. W.K. — Heat from the dryer and a piece of a crayon can certainly play havoc with a load of clothes. You could try loosening the stain with kitchen shortening, apply a detergent and work all into the stain. Then launder as usual. If you wish to repeat the process pretreat with a liquid household cleaner. The American Institute of Laundering suggests that such clothes be taken to the dry cleaner for safe removal of crayon stains. Always check pockets before doing the laundry. —POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — Often recipes call only for the yolks of eggs. I think I have come up with a unique way to save the whites. I store each egg white in a separate plastic sandwich bag and then put them all in a carton. This way I know there is only one egg in each bag. They do not dry out in the bags. —ALICE.

THE NEVER-ENDING WRONG by Katherine Anne Porter (Atlantic-Little Brown, 63 pages, $5.95)

THE PUBLIC BURNING by Robert Coover (Viking, 534 pages, $12.95)

ROBERT COOVER'S book, "The Public Burning," is a failed attempt to mix gallows humor, satire and straight politics and history to show how Red Menace hysteria did the Rosenbergs in.

(Photo by Lynn Sweigart)

By Carol Feinschlag

Recently, a radio talk show host asked some college students to identify Sacco and Vanzetti. Responses ranged from "stars of vaudeville" to "owners of an Italian restaurant in Manhattan."

Katherine Anne Porter relates in the foreword to "The Never-Ending Wrong" that when she told a young newspaper reporter that the subject of her new book was Sacco and Vanzetti, he responded, "Well, I don't really know anything about them."

For me it's just history. "It is my conviction," she writes, "that when events are forgotten, buried in the cellar of the page, they are no longer even history." So the 87-year-old short story writer ("Flowering Judas") and novelist ("Ship of Fools") has contributed a slim but affecting volume to the many already written about the shoemaker and fishmonger who died in the electric chair at Boston's Charlestown prison 50 years ago this year, on August 23, 1927.

The Italian immigrants and self-proclaimed anarchists were found guilty of killing a paymaster and a guard during a holdup in South Braintree, Mass. in April, 1920. Miss Porter was one of thousands who demonstrated in cities around the world to try to save the two men from becoming victims of the raging xenophobia and super-patriotism that made a fair trial impossible.

Fear and hatred of foreigners flourished. The once-open U.S. immigration policy has been recently revoked. Trial Judge Webster Thayer gloated on the golf course over what he'd done to those "anarchist Dago bastards." And the fact that Sacco and Vanzetti had fled to Mexico to escape the World War I draft didn't help their case.

Unlike the many books on this subject which have shown history's verdict at odds with the jury's, Miss Porter's intent is not to examine Sacco and Vanzetti's guilt or innocence. Her intent, rather, is to examine the guilt or innocence of the demonstrators.

She describes marching in a picket line that included Edna

Some 200 people are known to have committed suicide because of an unfavorable horoscope, palm reading or other alleged look into the future, according to the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal.

St. Vincent Millay and John Dos Passos ("I wouldn't have expected to see them on the same street, much less the same picket line or in the same jail.") She described being escorted to jail by a perfectly polite policeman and being bailed out, time and again, by Edward James, Henry's cousin.

She admits having been duped by the Communists, whom she later discovered valued Sacco and Vanzetti solely for their propaganda potential. Rosa Baron, who headed a group of Boston demonstrators, left no room for doubt when she indignantly asked Miss Porter, "Saved? Who wants them saved? What earthly good would they do us alive?"

That this case still incites guilt and discord fifty years later was illustrated when Massachusetts Governor Michael Dukakis proclaimed August 23 Sacco and Vanzetti Memorial Day. The Governor's legal council cited "the very real possibility that a grievous miscarriage of justice occurred with their deaths."

Like Sacco and Vanzetti, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg have become symbols — to some people they're the great American Martyrs; to others they represent creeping communism curtailed before it engulfed our democratic institutions.

Novelist Robert Coover's "The Public Burning," promoted by the publisher as the novel of the decade, is an over-written, 534-page hodgepodge of history and fantasy; a failed attempt to mix gallows humor, satire and straight politics and history to show how Red Menace hysteria did the Rosenbergs in.

Major characters are all real people — Richard Nixon, who narrates most of the story, Eisenhower, William Douglas, J. Edgar Hoover, etc. — engaged in unreal activities. Interspersed with the Nixon narrative are like-inaugural address, excerpts from contemporary issues of Time, from the execution day (June 19, 1953) issue of the New York Times and from the Rosenberg Trial transcripts.

Coover has been quoted as

Books about cases that will not rest saying that "The Public Burning" started out as a novella; a short form that would have accommodated his meager message quite well. As it is, Coover's only real feat lies in making Nixon the most interesting and appealing character in the book.

FBI paid informers $1.6 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — By financial standards, Informer No. 505 was a real go-getter. No. 505 earned $11,100 from the FBI in 1973 and a total of $46,383 over seven years ending in 1976.

What did the FBI get from No. 505 to warrant the payments? "Approximately 55 leaflets and pamphlets regarding Socialist Workers Party activities, approximately 36 SWP newsletters, financial statements, membership lists and schedules of party activities."

On the other hand, Informer No. 28 apparently told the FBI hardly anything it wanted to know about the small Trotskyite political party. No. 28 received only a single $5-payment in 1966.

Those details emerged from FBI documents made public Tuesday by the Political Rights Defense Fund, which is financing the party's multimillion-dollar lawsuit accusing the FBI of illegal harassment and disruption of legitimate political activities.

During the course of the four-year lawsuit, lawyers asked the FBI for details about money paid to informers to spy on the party. The FBI was required to provide the information in a procedure which allowed the informers to be designated by code numbers to protect their identities.

The documents show that the FBI paid more than $1.6 million during a 16-year period to 301 informers who joined the party or its affiliate, the Young Socialist Alliance, as a way of gaining more information about party activities.

The bureau has acknowledged having 309 informers who were members of one group or the other, and the documents show that all but eight of them were paid.

The FBI has acknowledged that more than 1,000 other informers spied on the party without joining it. The bureau has remained silent about money paid to those informers.

Informer No. 505, according to the documents, was the highest-paid of the list of 301 informers and earned the most in a single year. No. 505's annual earnings from the bureau began with about $3,500 in 1970, the year he began working, and rose to the high of $11,100 in 1973. His earnings dropped to $2,800 last year.

The records show that the other informers usually were paid from $2,000 to $5,000 annually for several years. All of the payments were in cash.

Other FBI files, released in the course of the lawsuit, have described bureau efforts to encourage informers to sow dissension among party members, stir up factional disputes and use a variety of tactics to disrupt party activities.

After investigating the party for 38 years, the FBI last September closed the case to comply with new Justice Department guidelines restricting intelligence-gathering activities against domestic political organizations.

Only one federal charge was brought against party members as a result of party activities during the 38-year investigation. That was an indictment of 18 party leaders in 1940 for violating certain sections of the anti-subversive Smith Act. Those sections later were ruled unconstitutional.

Museum may stuff poor Victor

LONDON (AP) — Britons mourned today for Victor, the giraffe who died for love, and the Glasgow museum proposed stuffing him so it could put him on display.

The 18-foot-tall animal did the splits at Marwell Park Zoo Thursday night while trying to mate one of his three wives and couldn't get back on his feet. After 125 hours reclining and the loss of 500 of his 2,000 pounds, he was hoisted to his feet in a canvas sling Tuesday but started gasping and died minutes after the workmen lowered him for a rest.

Victor's death was watched by more than 200 spectators, many of them weeping, and made front-page headlines in the British papers. His plight attracted much foreign attention also, and his owner got more than 1,000 telegrams suggesting how to get him back on all fours.

"After The Fall, he became a nation's hero," the Daily Express said. "He died for love of a woman. Or rather, great-hearted creature and father of 18 calves that he was, he died for love of three women."

"His final, tragic moments as his mighty frame lay stricken and his own dumb tears rolled from under his yard-brush eyelashes, filled us with pity for him. Because the whole country rose to him, and to the grandeur of his fight for life." The Daily Mirror commented: "Who on the right side of sanity could have envisaged a lump rising in the nation's throat over a giraffe? Who but the British could actually see their stiff upper lips trembling over an unknown beast?"

"Yet daily they bombarded our telephone switchboard and those of the British Broadcasting Corporation... begging for news — and hoping it would be good... Victor made a whole nation pause in its stride."

Groom to win battle of the Tigers

Coaches will tell you that conference games are always important. But the Groom-McLean game Friday night has added significance.

It will be Groom's homecoming, and McLean's chance to prove that they have returned to respectability.

Last year the McLean Tigers were embarrassed by the Groom Tigers, 51-0, enroute to a disastrous 1-9 season. This time, however, first-year McLean coach Bill Coward will be taking his troops into Groom with a 2-1 record, including a 29-14 district 1-B win over Lefors Friday.

"I saw them beat the Pampa Sops (35-8) and they look like a different team this year," said Groom mentor Russell Roberts.

"They just look good down on the field," he said. "The coaches must be doing a good job with those kids."

Coward said one of his first projects at McLean was to install in the players a winning spirit. "These kids just decided that they were going to do the best job that they could. "They're attitude change is responsible for the two wins in a row."

But a third win will be no easy task. Groom is coming off of impressive district victories over Miami (32-14) and Texline (32-3). The fullback-halfback attack of Kent Reed and John Krizan is averaging roughly 300 yards rushing per game.

"Groom runs the trap and quick pitch so well that we're just going to line up at them and not do anything fancy," Coward said.

"They have that tradition to beat," he said. "I don't think this year's Groom team is as good as in past years, but those kids are just as hard to beat because they always think they'll win."

"But our kids feel they have as good a chance as anyone to beat Groom. We have a saying down here. 'There isn't a horse that can't be rode, or a cowboy that can't be thrown.'"

Roberts said his main concern is stopping the McLean outside veer, highlighted by Sammy Haynes and Curtis Simpson running the dive play behind 200-pounders Jerry Rolan, Scott Raines and Randy Kennedy.

But probably an even greater threat is the probability of the Tigers looking ahead to next week's showdown with Wheeler.

"I haven't seen it in the players yet, but I'm sure they have their minds on Wheeler because I do," Roberts said.

"But this game is homecoming so that makes it important also."

(My call: Groom by 36)

Canadian at White Deer

The Wildcat and Buck defenses were sieves last week in losses to Sunray (38-0) and Panhandle (42-8). Canadian has shown signs of good defense against Phillips and Shamrock, and if the Wildcats can shake off the injury bug, they should knock off an inexperienced White Deer squad. (Canadian by 8)

Wheeler at Lefors

The Pirates don't figure to gain much on the ground against Wheeler, but their aerial attack may pose a problem for the Mustangs. Last week Lefors completed three passes for 142 yards and two touchdowns.

Even so, Wheeler should breeze by out-manned Lefors in preparing for next week's clash versus you know who.

(Wheeler by 28)

Miami at Texline

The Warrior machine is starting to roll as evidenced by the 50-6 swamping of Higgins Friday. Texline had its troubles in hosting Groom, and shouldn't find Miami a more accommodating guest. (Miami by 18)

Landry says Tony "not in groove"

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The question comes up every time Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry gets around writers: Are the Cowboys getting their money's worth out of million-dollar bonus boy Tony Dorsett?

The answer: They will. Landry is confident that as soon as Dorsett, the No. 1 draft choice and Heisman Trophy winner from Pittsburgh, absorbs the complex X's and O's of the Cowboy offense then he will run with abandon.

"Knowledge of the offense is very important," said Landry Tuesday. "Tony has great running ability but he needs to learn our blocking patterns. He's just not in the groove."

Dorsett ran only four times for 11 yards in Dallas' National Football League 16-10 overtime victory over Minnesota last week. He will see more action against the New York Giants in Texas Stadium Sunday although he fumbled and missed some blocks.

"Tony got so far behind when he was injured in training camp that he hasn't caught up," said Landry. "He should be stronger in the latter part of the season. He still doesn't have the feel for our very complicated offense."

Dorsett ripped off 99 yards against Baltimore in a pre-season game to give the Cowboy staff an indication of things to come.

But since then he's spent most of his time on the sidelines with his helmet tipped back on his head and his feet crossed.

Veteran Preston Pearson was the catalyst in the victory over the Vikings, catching a touchdown pass and rushing for 63 yards.

Dorsett admitted "Preston did a tremendous job. He was probably the difference in the game."

Landry was asked if opponents keyed on Dorsett when he entered the game.

"That one got a guffaw out of Landry who answered, 'In the NFL, they don't read college clips. When Tony turns loose, then maybe the other teams might start keying on him.'"

Dodgers dethrone Reds for NL West pennant

By ERIC PREWITT

AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers have clinched the National League West title with a flourish, ending a race that never was.

"We jumped ahead with a 22-4 record and never looked back," manager Tom Lasorda said after Tuesday night's pennant-clinching 3-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The Dodgers, second to the Cincinnati Reds by 10 games a year ago, dethroned baseball's defending champions with a combination of solid pitching and power hitting.

Tommy John, 19-6, came within one out of pitching a shutout Tuesday night, before allowing the Giants a run and being saved by reliever Lance Rautzhan. Rick Monday's 14th homer — the Dodgers' 180th of the season — provided the margin of victory.

"To beat out Cincinnati, a team that had won two World Series in a row, is a tremendous accomplishment," said Lasorda, who was drenched with champagne, shower water and ice cubes during the postgame celebration.

"The Reds thought they guaranteed themselves another pennant when they got Tom Seaver," said Dodgers second baseman Davey Lopes. "Well, we may not be as good position by position, but collectively, we're the best team in baseball."

"Until someone can prove differently, I'm going to keep feeling that way."

The Philadelphia Phillies, on the verge of repeating as Eastern Division champs, will meet in the Dodgers in the NL playoffs opening in Los Angeles Oct. 4.

The Reds, who won behind Seaver's two-hit pitching at San Diego Tuesday night, are now 11½ games behind with 10 to play and never could get within striking distance of the pace-setting Dodgers.

"The only thing I asked of them in spring training was that they believe in themselves as much as I believed in them," said Lasorda, who became the Dodgers' manager after Walter Alston retired last fall.

"We never even thought about the Reds," third baseman Ron Cey said between sips of champagne. "Once we had the lead, we felt all along that if we stayed healthy, we were going to win it."

"A lot of things had to go right — and they did."

Lasorda said, "This is my greatest thrill in 32 years of baseball."

The one it topped, obviously, was being named manager after 27 years in the Dodgers organization.

"To manage this club is a great thrill and an honor. These guys worked hard, knew what they had to do to win and knew they were going to win from the day they left spring training."

AC regents allow ex-cons to play

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP)

Two former Kentucky jail inmates will be allowed to serve the next two years of their paroles playing basketball — on scholarship — for the Amarillo College Badgers, regents of the school have decided.

Regents of the 6,000-student state junior college decided Tuesday night to honor basketball scholarships awarded to the two athletes without the school officials' knowledge.

The two athletes — one convicted of manslaughter and the other of armed robbery — had their paroles transferred from Kentucky to Amarillo when they were granted the scholarships.

"These scholarships as executed by the college are valid and binding legal contracts," said Dr. John E. Jones, chairman of the junior college's board of regents. Jones said the two men could play on the team if they maintain their scholastic eligibility.

Charles D. Lutz, Jr., president of the school, said he did not know the parolees had been awarded scholarships until he read it in a copyrighted story in the Amarillo Globe-News.

"There has been an obvious breakdown at Amarillo College that allowed such a thing to happen," he said then.

The parolees, 6-foot-7 John H. Luster, 24, and 6-foot-10 Stephen Lamont Varner, 21, are both former Louisville, Ky., residents. They were recruited by first-year Amarillo College Coach Jim Calvin.

"This has been blown out of proportion," said Calvin, a former coach at Murray State University in Kentucky. "It's not like we went out and recruited a couple of convicts. There was a lot of things nobody ever mentioned. After the regents found out the true facts, I think they dealt with it properly."

Varner had been sentenced to seven years in prison for manslaughter and aiding and abetting a robbery, according to Bob Zollinger, a Louisville prosecutor. Luster had been convicted on two charges of robbery.

Luster's prison sentences totaled 10 years, the prosecutor said. He served about three years before he was paroled on Aug. 20, 1977. The parole was transferred to Amarillo on the basis of the scholarship.

Luster, described by Calvin as "a real pro prospect," also served a six-month sentence in Hamilton County, Ohio, for assault with a dangerous weapon. He was arrested at the University of Cincinnati, where had been awarded a basketball scholarship.

He was charged with attacking a student with a knife, according to a Cincinnati Police Department records clerk.

The robbery charge stemmed from a December 1973 incident in which Luster and two other men beat and kicked a man and took $60 from him, a prosecutor said.

Varner's manslaughter conviction stemmed from the September 1973 beating death of an elderly man.

"The pen, man, that's behind me. You know? I just want to look to the future," said Varner. "What happened to me in the past, that's no one's business. I have hopes to make the pros."

Luster had no comment.

A full scholarship at Amarillo College covers tuition, fees, books and room and board. School officials said coaches are responsible for checking student athletes' backgrounds before granting the scholarships.

Lucchesi to sue Lenny Randle

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

AP Sports Writer

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Former Texas Ranger Manager Frank Lucchesi, explaining that he wants to make sure a player never again punches a manager, says he'll sue Lenny Randle for attacking him in a spring training incident.

"The monetary end of it might be fine for some people, but that's not the primary motive why I filed," the 50-year-old Lucchesi told The Associated Press on Tuesday night.

The Orlando Sentinel reported in today's editions that Lucchesi's attorneys would file a $200,000 personal damage suit against Randle today or Thursday.

"I want this thing to go down to the wire with the jury deciding," said Lucchesi, who vowed he would not settle out of court.

Randle, upset over losing his second base starting job to rookie Bump Wills, punched and kicked Lucchesi on March 28 during spring training in Orlando. Fla. Lucchesi's cheekbone was fractured and one rib was cracked. He was hospitalized for five days.

Randle, who was fined $10,000 and suspended 30 days by the Rangers, was subsequently dispatched to the New York Mets, where he has hit near .300 all season. He pleaded no contest to a reduced charge of misdemeanor battery in a Florida court and was fined $1,000.

Sex changes shock Baptists

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An Oklahoma Baptist church leader says church members were shocked to learn that sex change operations have been conducted at Baptist Medical Center. He says action will be taken to stop the surgery.

The hospital's board of directors had voted in favor of the operations, but suspended them this summer at the request of Baptist church officials after complaints from an unidentified rural preacher who had learned of the operations.

"This is more than a medical issue," said the Rev. Richard B. Douglass, president of the Baptist General Convention of Oklahoma. "The ultimate problem is that when we own an institution, we are publicly identified with what happens there."

The Rev. Mr. Douglass predicted that when the convention's hospital committee meets Oct. 6 it will vote "strongly against" continuation of the operations.

Some church officials said that if the operations are not vetoed next month there may be a floor fight over the issue at the state convention's annual meeting in November.

The Rev. Mr. Douglass said that from a theological standpoint, the Baptist church firmly believes that the "wholeness" of the individual can't be achieved through a physical change, but only a spiritual change.

"I am sure the average member of the average Baptist Church in Oklahoma would feel very negatively about this kind of operation," he said.

There are 600,000 Baptists in Oklahoma, about one-fourth the state's population.

Dr. David W. Foerster, a surgeon at the Baptist Medical Center who has performed sex change operations, says he is confident that the operations will be resumed.

News reports have listed Oklahoma City as among the nation's top centers for sex change operations. Since 1973, about 50 such operations have been performed at the Baptist hospital. Hospital officials have said there is a waiting list of 50 patients.

An undisclosed number of sex change operations have been performed at Oklahoma City's University Hospital, affiliated with the University of Oklahoma.

Israel gathers support

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon charged today that Israel moved troops and armor across the Lebanese-Israeli border as right-wing Christians battled Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon.

Villagers in the area said the Israelis' purpose appeared to be to increase the effectiveness of their artillery support for the Christians.

It was the first time President Elias Sarkis' government has openly accused the Israelis of sending troops across the border in the southern fighting.

The government's Beirut Radio said armored Israeli units drove 500 yards into southeast Lebanon and set up three bridgeheads on the heights around the village of Kfar Kila.

Villagers fleeing from the embattled areas in the foothills of Mt. Hermon said they saw Israeli troops erecting hilltop artillery positions around Kfar Kila. The villagers said the Israeli artillery and tanks directed a relentless barrage at the town of Kham, a Palestinian guerrilla stronghold two miles from Israel.

Farm protest strengthens

BOISE CITY, Okla. (AP) — "We just can't go on this way," says Fred Ottinger, a Panhandle wheat farmer who hopes to see a groundswell of support for a protest calculated to pull farmers from a deepening financial hole.

The 43-year-old lifetime farmer said Tuesday he sees evidence of growing support for a loosely-knit group calling itself American Agriculture.

Based in Springfield, Colo., the group is advocating a farmers' strike beginning this December unless farmers receive a government guarantee of 100 per cent parity, a full return on their investment.

Farmers from several surrounding states will converge on Pueblo, Colo., Thursday to meet with U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Robert Bergland.

At least 20 farmers from the Boise City area will go to Pueblo, Ottinger said. At least one will be among those driving farm equipment to emphasize farm problems.

Ottinger said about 150 farmers met in Boise City Monday night to talk about the Thursday meeting and the proposed farm strike.

"We asked them to stand up if they were for the strike and, as far as we could tell, the support was 100 per cent," Ottinger said.

The strike, scheduled for Dec. 14, would halt the production and sale of farm products and the purchase of agriculture equipment and production supplies, Ottinger said.

Farmers at the meeting also vowed to drop their membership in any farm organization which fails to support the planned strike.

The farmers say the return they are receiving on their investment has reached a 44 year low. Parity averages 64 per cent for all farm products, ranging upward from a low of 40 per cent parity on wheat prices as of Aug. 15, Ottinger said.

"In the past it has been almost impossible to organize farmers," Ottinger said. "But we're all in such critical financial shape we're ready to do something. We're going to have to do something or not be in farming."

Ottinger said farmers at the Boise City meeting Monday night contributed $1,200 toward establishing and manning an office to answer other farmers' questions about the group's plans.

American Agriculture has major organizations in 13 states, including Oklahoma, according to Ottinger. He said the group is working without officers or membership fees.
