Moss announced for chamber post

BILL MOSS
...chamber manager...

The new executive director for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce and the Board of County Development will be Bill Moss, currently serving in a similar position with the Monahans chamber.

Moss, employed by the chamber May 28, was announced by the chamber board Tuesday. His name was temporarily withheld to allow him to inform his own board of his employment change.

He was chosen from a field of some 30 candidates. His selection was decided from a committee comprised of city, county, BCD and chamber officials.

BCD sponsorship decision for July 4th to be solicited

Members of the Board of County Development (BCD) were to be asked at noon Wednesday to accept sponsorship of the annual July 4th celebration here planned and carried out by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

The change, if approved by the five-member board, would allow the chamber to save some $1,000 in liability insurance expenses normally associated with the event.

By having the BCD accept the official sponsorship, it was noted, the July 4th celebration in Towle Park would come under an annual liability insurance plan which covers all entities of Scurry County to include the BCD.

The move is part of a continuing effort by the chamber to make all of its projects "break even." The two major expenses associated with July 4th have been the liability insurance coverage and the expense of the fireworks display which traditionally closes the celebration (see related story).

Chamber president Elizabeth Potts commented that planning and implementation of the annual event would remain with chamber volunteers. Kent Horsley is heading up this year's July 4th for the second year.

The motion to request BCD sponsorship was passed by a unanimous vote of the 12-member board with all members present.

Those present were Potts, Jack Denman, Mike Banta, Joe Coronado, Donna Gray, Barbara Williamson, Margaret Drum, Herbie Figueredo, Harley Bynum, M.L. Duke, David Kattes and Fred Castillo.

The action came during the regular June meeting of the chamber.

Other reports offered during the meeting included:

—An appearance at the chamber's request of the newest member, Burnett Safety Services. This was part of a new feature implemented by the chamber with new members asked to describe their operations.

—A report that the chamber will begin "appreciation" events for local industries next July 14.

Q. — How can local taxing entities be losing money due to real estate declines when the value is going up?

A. — Real estate values are comprised of both agricultural-related land and residential property. Appraisal district officials note residential property declined an average of 3 to 4 percent while ag values were increased an average of 16 percent. The net effect was an overall decline in real estate value of some 4 percent.

Income shortfalls haunt city budget

Due primarily to the continued decline of sales tax returns here--now running at a minus 25 percent--and an unexpected shortfall in water sales, the City of Snyder is now expecting to end its current budget year some $397,000 below its initial estimates for income.

This fact was presented to city council members at their first budget workshop Tuesday, and possible ways to offset this shortfall while planning for a new budget took up the majority of discussion time.

The indication Tuesday was that city residents may see a rate hike in city service charges as well as a possible tax increase to help offset these budget losses, it was noted.

But, before this occurs, the council told city administrators to come back to them next week with proposals for more ways to cut city operating expenses.

Regarding this, councilmen discussed possible salary reductions and other reductions in personnel costs as a means to keep spending down.

The overall budget figure for 1987-88 presented Tuesday totals $4.6 million. Last year's budget was $4.4 million.

City officials note the main increase in the proposed budget is due to an expected $300,000 increase in money said need for "capital improvements." More than $184,000 of this is tied to water treatment plant improvements linked to too high trihalamethane levels in the city drinking water.

Most of the problems in next year's budget, it was noted, are due to the shortfalls in income.

Regarding the sales tax, the city now expects to receive $220,000 less income than projected in the current budget. Other decreases in the franchise tax and income from liquor sales will cause this loss to reach a minus $238,000.

Less income than projected from such city services as water, sewer and sanitation is also projected to be $158,000 under budget.

City Manager John Gayle noted water consumption is currently lagging about 9 percent behind last year, due in part to recent heavy rains.

Also affecting the city budget this coming year is the discontinuation of the federal revenue

Davis awaiting jury's decision

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — With a family fortune at stake, a civil jury began deliberating today whether oil heir Cullen Davis was the man in black who gunned down a 12-year-old girl in August 1976 and left her to die on the floor of his $6 million mansion.

Andrea Wilborn, the defendant's stepdaughter, was the first to die in a midnight shooting spree that claimed two lives and left two others critically wounded.

A jury of eight women and four men got the wrongful death case last Tuesday after three weeks of chilling and often conflicting testimony by 30 witnesses.

The defendant's ex-wife Priscilla maintains Davis, 53, was the bewigged, black-clad intruder who wounded her and killed her boyfriend, Stan Farr, 30, and Andrea, her daughter by a previous marriage.

Bubba Gavrel, then 22 and left partially paralyzed by an assailant's bullet, settled his own personal injury suit against Davis last year for land and cash reportedly totaling $1 million.

Fireworks display won't be cutback

The fireworks display which closes Snyder's annual July 4th celebration will continue to be a free display to the public offering thousands of dollars worth of professional-level fireworks, the chamber board was told Tuesday.

To insure the quality of the show can be maintained, chamber volunteer Wedge Turner has secured more than $4,000 in pledges from local businesses and individuals to pay for the show.

He told the board Tuesday, "Our fireworks show has an area reputation, and I want to insure that we can have a show to be proud of even though our economic is flat right now."

Turner said he hopes to raise at least $5,000 to pay for the fireworks. He noted $675 of this is involved in an insurance policy required by the professional firm which sells the fireworks.

The fund raising effort has been headed by Turner with billings to be sent by the chamber. He noted if he is successful in raising $5,000, this would provide a carryover for next July 4th.

The effort is being aided by a July 4th queens contest, also. Donations to various queen candidates will go towards the fireworks expense.

MOSQUITO FIGHTERS — Pete Rascoe and Pete Wishert are shown spraying a field of weeds for mosquitos Tuesday. Wishert and Rascoe are employed through Scurry County and the City of Snyder to run both the direct spray rig pictured here and the city-owned fogging machine. The recent heavy rains have made the current crop of insects particularly bad and County Sanitarian Louie Vaughan said individuals can help the problem by mowing high weeds and eliminating objects which catch water. Assistance sought for victims of fire

A local couple whose mobile home was extensively damaged by fire Monday are currently being aided by friends and coworkers and local support is sought.

Assistance funds and items are now being solicited for John and Wanda Sparks.

Sparks now is employed by Wadleigh Construction on a part-time basis, but a company spokesman said the project he is now involved in will soon end.

Staffers at Wadleigh are heading up the effort to assist the Sparks, who have a 2-year-old daughter and a 9-year-old son.

Also lost in the fire was the couple's stove, refrigerator, televison and most of their furniture.

Any other donations of clothing, bedding, towels and small appliances would be appreciated also, it was noted.

Such items can be delivered to the Wadleigh Construction yard on North College Ave. just south of the U.S. Highway 84 overpass.

For more information, Helen Wadleigh can be contacted at 573-5627.

Snyder's Chic Hale is a rock hound and he serves as a director of the Prospectors Club headquartered in Big Spring.

Hale brought us an article that is timely as we approach the various budgets, tax rates and straw votes later this summer. The article is entitled "The Tate Family." It reads:

You may have heard of the Tate family. They're in every club. There is Dick Tate who wants to run everything. Ro Tate is always trying to change things. Agi Tate stirs up trouble whenever possible, with the help of Irri Tate, who is always there to lend a hand.

Everytime new ideas are suggested, Hesi Tate and Vegi Tate are there to say they can't work. Imi Tate just wants to copy other clubs and never try anything new.

Devas Tate loves to be disruptive, and Poten Tate wants to be a big shot. But it's Facili Tate, Cogi Tate and Medi Tate who always save the day and get everyone pulling together.

People are strange creatures. A sign in a gas station along I-20 captures this thought.

We noticed where the Panty-of-the-Month Club asked for a brief word with wives about Father's Day. The June offering is "designer briefs handsomely gift wrapped, scented with cologne and enclosed with a personal letter on gold embossed stationery."

The firm's Father's Day feature is a jungle brief by Pierre Cardin. As a special bonus, a subscriber would get a free "hot pink stuffed stegosaurus with a note saying 'My Love For You Is Not Extinct.'"

Thanks, but we'd prefer golf balls.

In Brief

Chief said out

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officials removed the chief of Moscow's air defenses and strongly criticized his district for practices that may have helped a West German pilot fly unimpeded to Red Square, the army newspaper said today.

But the Defense Ministry daily Krasnaya Zvezda did not say whether Marshal Anatoly U. Konstantinov had been replaced before or after Mathias Rust's unauthorized flight in a private plane from Finland to the heart of Moscow.

Bond probe

ATLANTA (AP) — A U.S. attorney said today there is insufficient evidence to prosecute Mayor Andrew Young or other city officials for obstruction of justice in the handling of drug allegations against civil rights activist Julian Bond.

But federal prosecutor Robert Barr said an investigation of narcotics allegations against a number of prominent Atlantans is continuing. He declined to identify any of those involved.

"There is evidence that federal laws have been violated," Barr said at a news conference.

Reagan said haunted by Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who rode to victory in 1980 on a wave of popular dismay over Jimmy Carter's handling of the Tehran hostage crisis, now finds himself facing not one but two Iran crises of his own.

At home, the final year and a half of his administration promises to be mired in investigations of secret arms sales to Iran that were designed to win release of American hostages.

And in the Middle East, Reagan's plan to protect Kuwaiti oil tankers from Iranian attack is under fire from members of Congress who fear it will embroil the United States in the Iran-Iraq war.

On top of all that, the Lebanese magazine Ash-Shiraa, which first disclosed the secret arms sales last November, reported that some of the American hostages in Beirut have been moved to Tehran, raising the specter that they could be punished if the United States takes military action against the Khomeini government.

Although U.S. officials and other experts don't believe the hostages are in Tehran, the report was ominously reminiscent of the uncertainty that marked the last year of Carter's presidency.

Two weeks before the November 1980 presidential election, candidate Reagan said he wasn't sure what he would do to free the 52 Americans who had been taken captive in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, "but I certainly wouldn't stand by and do nothing."

His uncertainty over how to free the hostages has not diminished.

The Tehran 52 were freed the day Reagan took office, but early in his administration, shadowy Lebanese terrorists believed to have ties to Iran began grabbing Americans off the streets of Beirut. Eight are now in captivity.

Armed with the knowledge that Carter's preoccupation with the Tehran hostages crippled U.S. foreign policy, Reagan at first gave the Beirut captives scant public attention.

But the pleas of the hostage families struck a chord in his heart and helped impel him into the arms-for-hostages deal that has shackled his foreign policy.

Reagan's desire to break those shackles contributed to his decision to let 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers fly the Stars and Stripes and to offer them U.S. Navy protection, according to some congressional and administration officials.

"The purpose of this policy seems to be to help the administration recover from the disgrace of supplying Iran with missiles in exchange for hostages," Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., sponsor of a bill to halt the reflagging of 11 Kuwaiti tankers, said Tuesday.

A Middle East expert at the Brookings Institution, Judith Kipper, says, "We must stop thinking about Iran as a crazy nation. They are smart, whether it is the shah in his pinstripe suit or the ayatollahs in their robes."

"The Iranian revolution was a major event in the 20th century," she continued. "We are not in a popular world anymore," ruled solely by Washington and Moscow. "Little nations such as Iran and Kuwait can juggle the superpowers."

Elderly population rising very rapidly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans who live past age 100 could quadruple by the turn of the century, presenting the nation with a new set of challenges as this segment of society grows rapidly, a government study shows.

"The extension of life will probably result in ever larger numbers of economically and physically able very old people along with large numbers of chronically ill, dependent persons," observed the report, "America's Centenarians."

As of 1986, there were an estimated 25,000 Americans aged 100 and over, but that could easily jump to more than 100,000 by the year 2000, according to the study published by the National Institute on Aging.

Compiled by the Census Bureau, the study found that the number of centenarians has increased from only 14,200 in 1980 to its current level and is growing rapidly.

Past studies have analyzed the elderly primarily as a group aged 65 and over, and in recent years the segment had been divided into the 65 to 84 and the 85 and over populations. The new report is the first to give extensive detail on those aged 100-plus.

"Centenarians are rare among the American population, but their numbers are rising rapidly," the study found, particularly thanks to improvements in medical care.

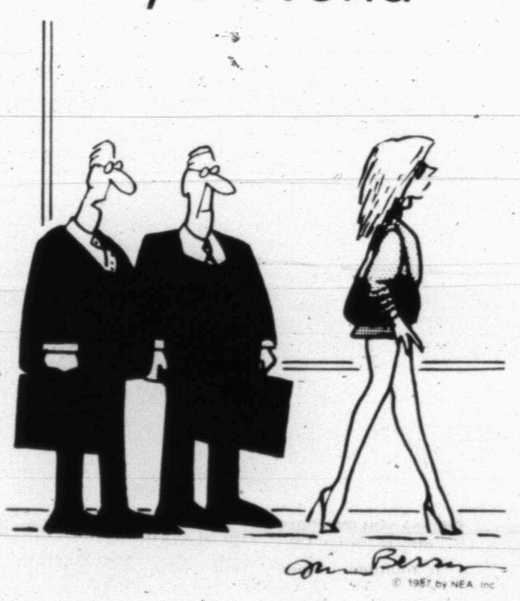

During the past century average life expectancy in the United States has increased an average of 30 years to the current 71 years for men and 78 years for women. "This represents a greater gain than during all of previous human history," the report states.

"As a consequence partly of the increasing numbers of very old people, the nature of American society will probably be very different 100 years from now," the study comments.

Two major concerns for this population are economics and health, the study points out.

"If, indeed, miniskirts ARE back — does it bode well or ill for the market? I forget!"

Bernhard Goetz now a folk hero

NEW YORK (AP) — On the last day of 1984, Bernhard Goetz proclaimed that his life was finished.

To a degree, he was right — his life as an average, anonymous New Yorker had come to a close. Suddenly, with five blasts from a .38-caliber Special, he was headline material, a folk hero to many, a villain to others.

"People are looking for a hero or they're looking for a villain and neither...is the truth," Goetz told the police in New Hampshire, where he surrendered nine days after his encounter with four young men on the subway.

At his trial, Goetz remained silent through weeks of testimony. On videotape, the jury caught glimpses of an agitated figure whose high-pitched voice stuttered and stammered through police interviews.

The jury heard Goetz tell police about a 1981 incident that changed his life. Three thugs jumped him at 2:30 p.m. on Canal Street; only one was caught, and charges against him were reduced to malicious mischief. Goetz suffered a chest injury that took six months to heal, and a permanent knee injury.

But there were other, psychic injuries. "I wasn't a monster until several years ago in New York," the jury heard Goetz tell police.

He applied for a gun permit, and started carrying one even after he was rejected. Though New York winters are harsh, he would not wear gloves — they made it harder to reach for his gun. He drew his pistol twice when accosted on the street, but did not shoot — until Dec. 22, 1984.

The man who fired those shots was 37 years old at the time, the president, founder and sole employee of the Electrical Calibration Laboratory. He traveled widely to test, repair and maintain electrical equipment.

Goetz was born in Queens. His father, a German immigrant, was a bookbinder; in 1960, the father was accused of molesting two 15-year-old boys, and although he was convicted, the charges were reduced to disorderly conduct.

The family in turmoil, Goetz was sent to a boarding school in Switzerland, where he spent his high school years.

In 1965, Goetz returned to the United States to enroll at New York University, where he would obtain a bachelor's degree in nuclear engineering.

By this time, the family had resettled in Orlando, Fla., where Goetz's father made a real estate fortune. That fortune was divided by the children upon his death in 1984, four months before the shootings.

Other details about Goetz's personal life are sketchy.

He was married out of college to a woman named Elizabeth. They were divorced after four years, and had no children.

Daren Benbenek earns BBA degree

The degree of bachelor of business administration was conferred upon Daren W. Benbenek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ordon Benbenek, during Angelo State University's 1987 spring commencement exercises.

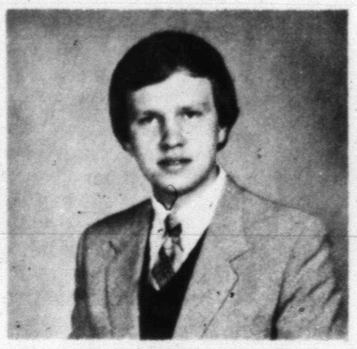

Benbenek is a 1981 honor graduate of Snyder High School where he was active in band, French Club, the National Honor Society, and UIL math and science competition.

He also attended Western Texas College and in 1984 graduated Summa Cum Laude with an associate degree in arts.

While at WTC, Benbenek was active in Phi Theta Kappa, the national honor fraternity of community and junior colleges. As a member, he travelled with the fraternity to two national conventions. He later transferred to Angelo State University where he pursued an accounting degree.

Benbenek is currently residing in San Angelo where he is employed by the state department of Highway and Public Transportation. He first worked for the agency as a summer employee of the resident engineer's office in Snyder, and for the past two years, has worked in the accounting department at the District 07 headquarters in San Angelo.

Upon graduation, he was promoted to the position of Accountant I. He plans to remain in San Angelo and continue working for the DHT.

Keeping your chances alive

By James Jacoby

Today's bidding is both subtle and sophisticated. South's double of two spades was negative, announcing four hearts and values to bid at the three-level. North's three-spade bid simply said, "Partner, I have a very good hand, and we're going to game." After four diamonds by South, four spades by North then meant that he had control in spades and was interested in slam, obviously in diamonds. South went along with that interpretation — he asked for aces and bid the diamond slam.

How should declarer go about making his contract? Of course it is generally right that the player making a pre-emptive bid has shortness somewhere, and that could well mean a singleton diamond. So, after taking the ace of spades, declarer might well come to his king of diamonds, cash the ace of clubs and then take a diamond finesse. That would work, but it's the wrong play. Even though you think West has three diamonds to the queen, if East turns up with the lady, you're set before you get started. Instead, play the diamond ace. Discard your losing spades on the K-Q of clubs and let your slam hopes ride on the favorable location of the heart king. When that finesse works, you make your contract. What it boils down to is that taking the diamond finesse will make or break you. Playing for the queen to drop still gives you an additional chance when the pre-emptive bidder had only a singleton in diamonds.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Your Birthday

Thursday, June 18, 1987

In the year ahead, you are likely to set loftier goals for yourself than you have in the past. They can be attained, provided you have the tenacity to see them through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless your goals are clearly defined, you may have little to show for your efforts today. Taking scatter shots at multiple targets won't cut it. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If your attention span is not up to the task you take on today, you'll be a good starter but a poor finisher. Be sure the match is equal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but be moderate in partaking of the good things life has to offer. Overindulging has penalties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although you innately know what is most expedient, you may still act against your better judgment today and create complications.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have to perform a critical task, be sure you have back-up to check your work. You may be a bit error-prone today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you may feel lucky today, it's still wise to avoid risky undertakings, especially those where you are gambling for a hefty financial return.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Companions will take you at your word today, so be careful you don't make promises that you have neither the means nor the inclination to deliver.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be extremely selective about who you confide in today. Don't make disclosures you want kept secret to people who talk too freely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Prudent management of your resources is not numbered among your best assets today. Be careful how you handle money for yourself and for others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The end does not justify the means for you today. Don't do anything that puts your reputation on the line for a desirable, but temporary, gain.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Disguising your true motives when dealing with others could prove counterproductive today. You're better off being up front because people will know if you are not.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be cautious in your financial affairs today, especially if you do business with people or firms with whom you are unfamiliar. They may be OK, but who knows?

Thumbnail sketches given for four youth shot by Goetz

NEW YORK (AP) — Following are thumbnail sketches of the four young men Goetz shot aboard a subway train on Dec. 22, 1984. All were residents of the Claremont Village public housing project in the Bronx at the time.

—Troy Canty, born Sept. 9, 1965, the youth who asked Goetz for $5 and the first one Goetz shot; wounded in the chest, an inch from his heart; the only of the four to complete testimony at Goetz's trial; arrested at least a half-dozen times for crimes such as criminal mischief and petty theft with sentences from conditional discharges to a month in jail; he and the other three specialized in prying open and robbing the coin boxes of video game machines; finishing up almost two years at Phoenix Academy, a drug rehabilitation center in Westchester County and is now a cooking school student — wants to be a chef; completed ninth grade.

—Barry Ailen, born Jan. 10, 1966, shot in the back with Goetz's second bullet; was sworn in to testify at Goetz's trial but invoked the fifth amendment right against self-incrimination when questioned; arrested four times for crimes such as criminal mischief and petty theft; currently doing 1½ to four years in Greenhaven prison for violating probation by snatching a gold chain off a woman's neck; had been arrested and paroled originally for a similar offense.

—James Ramseur, born Aug. 15, 1965, Goetz's third shooting victim, bullet went through left arm into left chest; initially refused to be sworn in as witness when brought to Goetz's trial from Greenhaven where he is doing eight and one-third to 25 years for pistol whipping, robbing and raping and sodomizing a pregnant teen-ager on a Bronx rooftop on May 5, 1986; he later agreed to testify after the judge threatened to lengthen his prison time with contempt of court sentences, but near the end of his testimony he balked again and was sentenced to six months and fined $1,500. On March 26, 1985, he was arrested for faking his own kidnapping; he told police he

Miller receives medal from AF

Air Force Master Sgt. Donald L. Miller, whose wife, Betty, is the daughter of M. E. and Dorothy Adams of Rural Route 1, Hermleigh, has been decorated with the Meritorious Service Medal at Dyess Air Force Base, Tex.

The Meritorious Service Medal is awarded specifically for outstanding non-combat meritorious achievement of service to the United States.

Miller is a first sergeant with the 1993rd Communications Squadron.

Former resident earns recognition

LUBBOCK--Former Snyder resident Janie Hernandez has been named Methodist Hospital's Employee of the Month for June.

Hernandez is a nurses' aide on the fifth floor of the hospital's East Building.

She has been employed at the hospital for 14 years. She served as an aide in the hospital's West Building before being transferred to her current position when the East Building opened on Sept. 3, 1974.

A native of the South Plains, Hernandez attended schools in Hermleigh and Snyder. She moved with her family to several area towns while her father worked for the railroad industry.

Hernandez's husband, Joe, is employed by Eagle Picher Industries. They have two daughters who are also on staff at the hospital: Mary an aide in respiratory therapy, and Diana, a service aide.

Perkins graduates from AF course

Airman Arthur W. Perkins, son of Janice Robinson of Austin and the nephew of Teresa Wilson of Snyder, has graduated from the integrated avionics specialist course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

He is a 1986 graduate of Snyder High School.

Reagan said haunted by Iran

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who rode to victory in 1980 on a wave of popular dismay over Jimmy Carter's handling of the Tehran hostage crisis, now finds himself facing not one but two Iran crises of his own.

At home, the final year and a half of his administration promises to be mired in investigations of secret arms sales to Iran that were designed to win release of American hostages.

And in the Middle East, Reagan's plan to protect Kuwaiti oil tankers from Iranian attack is under fire from members of Congress who fear it will embroil the United States in the Iran-Iraq war.

On top of all that, the Lebanese magazine Ash-Shiraa, which first disclosed the secret arms sales last November, reported that some of the American hostages in Beirut have been moved to Tehran, raising the specter that they could be punished if the United States takes military action against the Khomeini government.

Although U.S. officials and other experts don't believe the hostages are in Tehran, the report was ominously reminiscent of the uncertainty that marked the last year of Carter's presidency.

Two weeks before the November 1980 presidential election, candidate Reagan said he wasn't sure what he would do to free the 52 Americans who had been taken captive in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, "but I certainly wouldn't stand by and do nothing."

His uncertainty over how to free the hostages has not diminished.

The Tehran 52 were freed the day Reagan took office, but early in his administration, shadowy Lebanese terrorists believed to have ties to Iran began grabbing Americans off the streets of Beirut. Eight are now in captivity.

Armed with the knowledge that Carter's preoccupation with the Tehran hostages crippled U.S. foreign policy, Reagan at first gave the Beirut captives scant public attention.

But the pleas of the hostage families struck a chord in his heart and helped impel him into the arms-for-hostages deal that has shackled his foreign policy.

Reagan's desire to break those shackles contributed to his decision to let 11 Kuwaiti oil tankers fly the Stars and Stripes and to offer them U.S. Navy protection, according to some congressional and administration officials.

"The purpose of this policy seems to be to help the administration recover from the disgrace of supplying Iran with missiles in exchange for hostages," Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., sponsor of a bill to halt the reflagging of 11 Kuwaiti tankers, said Tuesday.

A Middle East expert at the Brookings Institution, Judith Kipper, says, "We must stop thinking about Iran as a crazy nation. They are smart, whether it is the shah in his pinstripe suit or the ayatollahs in their robes."

"The Iranian revolution was a major event in the 20th century," she continued. "We are not in a popular world anymore," ruled solely by Washington and Moscow. "Little nations such as Iran and Kuwait can juggle the superpowers."

Elderly population rising very rapidly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans who live past age 100 could quadruple by the turn of the century, presenting the nation with a new set of challenges as this segment of society grows rapidly, a government study shows.

"The extension of life will probably result in ever larger numbers of economically and physically able very old people along with large numbers of chronically ill, dependent persons," observed the report, "America's Centenarians."

As of 1986, there were an estimated 25,000 Americans aged 100 and over, but that could easily jump to more than 100,000 by the year 2000, according to the study published by the National Institute on Aging.

Compiled by the Census Bureau, the study found that the number of centenarians has increased from only 14,200 in 1980 to its current level and is growing rapidly.

Past studies have analyzed the elderly primarily as a group aged 65 and over, and in recent years the segment had been divided into the 65 to 84 and the 85 and over populations. The new report is the first to give extensive detail on those aged 100-plus.

"Centenarians are rare among the American population, but their numbers are rising rapidly," the study found, particularly thanks to improvements in medical care.

During the past century average life expectancy in the United States has increased an average of 30 years to the current 71 years for men and 78 years for women. "This represents a greater gain than during all of previous human history," the report states.

"As a consequence partly of the increasing numbers of very old people, the nature of American society will probably be very different 100 years from now," the study comments.

Two major concerns for this population are economics and health, the study points out.

"If, indeed, miniskirts ARE back — does it bode well or ill for the market? I forget!"

Bernhard Goetz now a folk hero

NEW YORK (AP) — On the last day of 1984, Bernhard Goetz proclaimed that his life was finished.

To a degree, he was right — his life as an average, anonymous New Yorker had come to a close. Suddenly, with five blasts from a .38-caliber Special, he was headline material, a folk hero to many, a villain to others.

"People are looking for a hero or they're looking for a villain and neither...is the truth," Goetz told the police in New Hampshire, where he surrendered nine days after his encounter with four young men on the subway.

At his trial, Goetz remained silent through weeks of testimony. On videotape, the jury caught glimpses of an agitated figure whose high-pitched voice stuttered and stammered through police interviews.

The jury heard Goetz tell police about a 1981 incident that changed his life. Three thugs jumped him at 2:30 p.m. on Canal Street; only one was caught, and charges against him were reduced to malicious mischief. Goetz suffered a chest injury that took six months to heal, and a permanent knee injury.

But there were other, psychic injuries. "I wasn't a monster until several years ago in New York," the jury heard Goetz tell police.

He applied for a gun permit, and started carrying one even after he was rejected. Though New York winters are harsh, he would not wear gloves — they made it harder to reach for his gun. He drew his pistol twice when accosted on the street, but did not shoot — until Dec. 22, 1984.

The man who fired those shots was 37 years old at the time, the president, founder and sole employee of the Electrical Calibration Laboratory. He traveled widely to test, repair and maintain electrical equipment.

Goetz was born in Queens. His father, a German immigrant, was a bookbinder; in 1960, the father was accused of molesting two 15-year-old boys, and although he was convicted, the charges were reduced to disorderly conduct.

The family in turmoil, Goetz was sent to a boarding school in Switzerland, where he spent his high school years.

In 1965, Goetz returned to the United States to enroll at New York University, where he would obtain a bachelor's degree in nuclear engineering.

By this time, the family had resettled in Orlando, Fla., where Goetz's father made a real estate fortune. That fortune was divided by the children upon his death in 1984, four months before the shootings.

Other details about Goetz's personal life are sketchy.

He was married out of college to a woman named Elizabeth. They were divorced after four years, and had no children.

Daren Benbenek earns BBA degree

The degree of bachelor of business administration was conferred upon Daren W. Benbenek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ordon Benbenek, during Angelo State University's 1987 spring commencement exercises.

Benbenek is a 1981 honor graduate of Snyder High School where he was active in band, French Club, the National Honor Society, and UIL math and science competition.

He also attended Western Texas College and in 1984 graduated Summa Cum Laude with an associate degree in arts.

While at WTC, Benbenek was active in Phi Theta Kappa, the national honor fraternity of community and junior colleges. As a member, he travelled with the fraternity to two national conventions. He later transferred to Angelo State University where he pursued an accounting degree.

Benbenek is currently residing in San Angelo where he is employed by the state department of Highway and Public Transportation. He first worked for the agency as a summer employee of the resident engineer's office in Snyder, and for the past two years, has worked in the accounting department at the District 07 headquarters in San Angelo.

Upon graduation, he was promoted to the position of Accountant I. He plans to remain in San Angelo and continue working for the DHT.

Keeping your chances alive

By James Jacoby

Today's bidding is both subtle and sophisticated. South's double of two spades was negative, announcing four hearts and values to bid at the three-level. North's three-spade bid simply said, "Partner, I have a very good hand, and we're going to game." After four diamonds by South, four spades by North then meant that he had control in spades and was interested in slam, obviously in diamonds. South went along with that interpretation — he asked for aces and bid the diamond slam.

How should declarer go about making his contract? Of course it is generally right that the player making a pre-emptive bid has shortness somewhere, and that could well mean a singleton diamond. So, after taking the ace of spades, declarer might well come to his king of diamonds, cash the ace of clubs and then take a diamond finesse. That would work, but it's the wrong play. Even though you think West has three diamonds to the queen, if East turns up with the lady, you're set before you get started. Instead, play the diamond ace. Discard your losing spades on the K-Q of clubs and let your slam hopes ride on the favorable location of the heart king. When that finesse works, you make your contract. What it boils down to is that taking the diamond finesse will make or break you. Playing for the queen to drop still gives you an additional chance when the pre-emptive bidder had only a singleton in diamonds.

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

Your Birthday

Thursday, June 18, 1987

In the year ahead, you are likely to set loftier goals for yourself than you have in the past. They can be attained, provided you have the tenacity to see them through.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless your goals are clearly defined, you may have little to show for your efforts today. Taking scatter shots at multiple targets won't cut it. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If your attention span is not up to the task you take on today, you'll be a good starter but a poor finisher. Be sure the match is equal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Have fun and enjoy yourself today, but be moderate in partaking of the good things life has to offer. Overindulging has penalties.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Although you innately know what is most expedient, you may still act against your better judgment today and create complications.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you have to perform a critical task, be sure you have back-up to check your work. You may be a bit error-prone today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you may feel lucky today, it's still wise to avoid risky undertakings, especially those where you are gambling for a hefty financial return.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Companions will take you at your word today, so be careful you don't make promises that you have neither the means nor the inclination to deliver.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be extremely selective about who you confide in today. Don't make disclosures you want kept secret to people who talk too freely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Prudent management of your resources is not numbered among your best assets today. Be careful how you handle money for yourself and for others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The end does not justify the means for you today. Don't do anything that puts your reputation on the line for a desirable, but temporary, gain.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Disguising your true motives when dealing with others could prove counterproductive today. You're better off being up front because people will know if you are not.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be cautious in your financial affairs today, especially if you do business with people or firms with whom you are unfamiliar. They may be OK, but who knows?

Thumbnail sketches given for four youth shot by Goetz

NEW YORK (AP) — Following are thumbnail sketches of the four young men Goetz shot aboard a subway train on Dec. 22, 1984. All were residents of the Claremont Village public housing project in the Bronx at the time.

—Troy Canty, born Sept. 9, 1965, the youth who asked Goetz for $5 and the first one Goetz shot; wounded in the chest, an inch from his heart; the only of the four to complete testimony at Goetz's trial; arrested at least a half-dozen times for crimes such as criminal mischief and petty theft with sentences from conditional discharges to a month in jail; he and the other three specialized in prying open and robbing the coin boxes of video game machines; finishing up almost two years at Phoenix Academy, a drug rehabilitation center in Westchester County and is now a cooking school student — wants to be a chef; completed ninth grade.

—Barry Ailen, born Jan. 10, 1966, shot in the back with Goetz's second bullet; was sworn in to testify at Goetz's trial but invoked the fifth amendment right against self-incrimination when questioned; arrested four times for crimes such as criminal mischief and petty theft; currently doing 1½ to four years in Greenhaven prison for violating probation by snatching a gold chain off a woman's neck; had been arrested and paroled originally for a similar offense.

—James Ramseur, born Aug. 15, 1965, Goetz's third shooting victim, bullet went through left arm into left chest; initially refused to be sworn in as witness when brought to Goetz's trial from Greenhaven where he is doing eight and one-third to 25 years for pistol whipping, robbing and raping and sodomizing a pregnant teen-ager on a Bronx rooftop on May 5, 1986; he later agreed to testify after the judge threatened to lengthen his prison time with contempt of court sentences, but near the end of his testimony he balked again and was sentenced to six months and fined $1,500. On March 26, 1985, he was arrested for faking his own kidnapping; he told police he

Air Force Master Sgt. Donald L. Miller, whose wife, Betty, is the daughter of M. E. and Dorothy Adams of Rural Route 1, Hermleigh, has been decorated with the Meritorious Service Medal at Dyess Air Force Base, Tex.

The Meritorious Service Medal is awarded specifically for outstanding non-combat meritorious achievement of service to the United States.

Miller is a first sergeant with the 1993rd Communications Squadron.

Former resident earns recognition

LUBBOCK--Former Snyder resident Janie Hernandez has been named Methodist Hospital's Employee of the Month for June.

Hernandez is a nurses' aide on the fifth floor of the hospital's East Building.

She has been employed at the hospital for 14 years. She served as an aide in the hospital's West Building before being transferred to her current position when the East Building opened on Sept. 3, 1974.

A native of the South Plains, Hernandez attended schools in Hermleigh and Snyder. She moved with her family to several area towns while her father worked for the railroad industry.

Hernandez's husband, Joe, is employed by Eagle Picher Industries. They have two daughters who are also on staff at the hospital: Mary an aide in respiratory therapy, and Diana, a service aide.

Perkins graduates from AF course

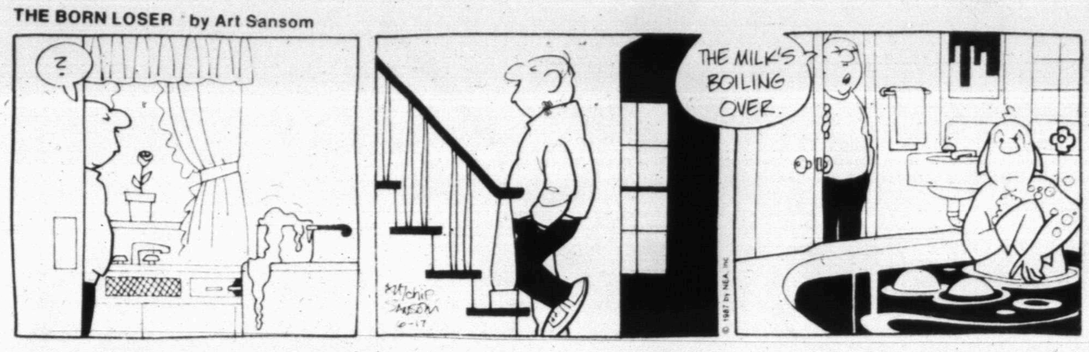

Airman Arthur W. Perkins, son of Janice Robinson of Austin and the nephew of Teresa Wilson of Snyder, has graduated from the integrated avionics specialist course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

He is a 1986 graduate of Snyder High School.

LAFF-A-DAY

"I'd like to lead you in battle, boys, but I can only move one square at a time."

With Brewster in bull riding...

Western posts first points

BOZEMAN, Mont. -- Adam Brewster won fourth place in the first go-round of the bull riding here Tuesday, earning defending champion Western Texas College its first team points at the College National Finals Rodeo.

Brewster, a sophomore from Snyder, scored a 74 to net 30 points. He was to compete in second-go action this evening.

In the only other results from Tuesday, WTC's Robert Fifer bucked off in the first go-round of the saddle bronc. He suffered an injury during the event, and may have to scratch in the second go-round.

"We think he might have separated some ribs," said Coach Bob Doty. "The doctor said he would just have to see how it feels, but he looks doubtful for Thursday night right now.

"Adam made a good ride. They called out a 75 at first, then lowered his score by a point. It didn't make me real happy, but they did it," panned Doty.

Western Texas has potential points from other competitors, including Keith Hudson, whose 9.0 clocking in the calf roping is still winning the second-go. Some 57 of the 87 calf ropers had competed in the second round as of Wednesday morning. Hudson timed in at 9.9 in the first-go for sixth place. His combined 18.9 should easily qualify him for Saturday's finals.

In addition to Brewster's second-go in the bull riding tonight, Troy Budvarson and Wesley Henderson are out in the second-go of the saddle bronc and Mike Carrillo is up in the first-go of the bareback.

Henderson took a no-score in the first go while Budvarson marked a 66 for 10th place.

"If Troy could score a 70 or above I feel like he'll definitely make it back (to the finals)," said Doty. "If he scores in the 60s it will be nip and tuck."

Western is currently sitting in a four-way tie for 11th place in the team standings, but Doty noted that it was "too early in the second round to tell much by that." Blue Mountain is leading the team standings after placing 1-2-3 in the first-go of the calf roping.

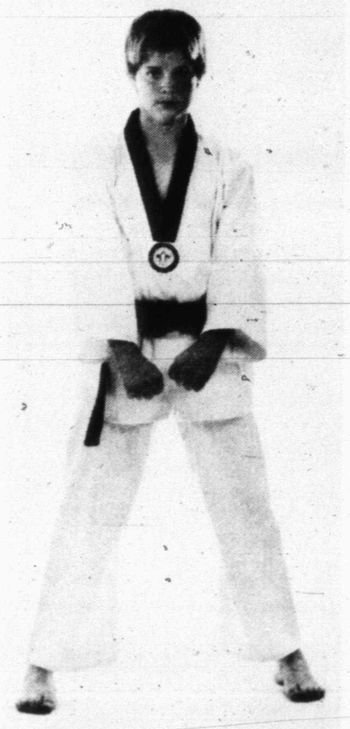

In results involving area competitors:

- Former WTC cowgirl Shelly Tate, now with ENMU, is third in the second-go of the goat tying with a 7.5 and is seventh in the average with a 15.9.

- Don Ed Eddleman, another former WTC student, is 10th in the average of the calf roping with a 23.3 on two head. With 30 ropers left to compete, it is not likely Eddleman will make it to the finals, since only the top 10 qualify.

- TSU's Andy O'Neal is fourth in the average of the saddle bronc with a 129 on two head. Teammate Pat Yancy was the first-go winner in the bull riding with a 77. He scored a 68 in the second-go and leads the average with a 145.

- Odessa's Jim Sharp scored a 58 in the first-go of the bull riding.

READY FOR NATIONALS – Snyder's Curtis Cox will be one of several local youths competing at the 7th U.S.T.U National Olympic Taekwondo Championships this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Tulsa Convention Center.

Cowboys put 2 on waivers

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Cowboys have placed quarterback Reggie Collier and tackle Howard Richards on recallable waivers, team president and general manager Tex Schramm said today.

The Cowboys informed Collier and Richards last Friday of the action, which gives each National Football League team 10 days to express an interest in either player. If Collier or Richards is claimed, Dallas can pull them off the waiver wire and try to make a deal.

If neither player is claimed, they will become free agents and be allowed to make their own deal.

Richards, who was the Cowboy's No. 1 draft choice in 1981, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram he was surprised to be waived. "I knew there would be some changes, but I really didn't expect this," he said. "They really didn't give me a reason. They just said I didn't fit into their future or their plans for 1987."

Collier, a multi-talented player who was the team's No. 3 signal-caller last season, was unavailble for comment.

The Cowboys may make more changes in the team roster as they try to rebound from their first losing season in 22 years. Schramm said it is possible that other veterans may be waived.

Tennis glance

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) - Chris Evert, who is out to stop Martina Navratilova from winning the Pilkington Glass women's grasscourt tennis tournament for the sixth consecutive year, whipped Lisa Bonder 6-1, 6-1 in the second round of the $200,000 championship.

The No. 2 seed needed just 51 minutes of precision tennis to beat Bonder.

Helena Sukova, the No. 3 seed from Czechoslovakia who has reached the final in the last two seasons, moved into the third round with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over American Pam Casale.

Jabbar inks 2-year pact

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Two more years of the sky hook.

That will give Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 20 years' worth of his personal shot before he retires from the NBA, something Los Angeles Lakers owner Jerry Buss obviously wanted to see.

Abdul-Jabbar, who has made enough sky hooks already to become the NBA's all-time leading scorer, signed a contract Tuesday night to play the next two seasons with the Lakers.

He will receive more than $5 million in salary for the next two years. A $3-million salary for 1988-89 would be the most lucrative ever in team sports.

"I'm very pleased about the fact I'll be able to continue with the Lakers through the 1988-89 season," said Abdul-Jabbar, who at 40 played a key role in the team's championship this season. "I'm very flattered the Lakers had the confidence to sign me for that long, and I hope that the relationship will continue to be mutually beneficial."

Buss thinks it will.

"Naturally, we're very happy to have Kareem back for two more years," Buss said. "He remains a major force in the league and on this team, and there is no reason to believe that his productivity will diminish in the near future."

Abdul-Jabbar, a six-time Most Valuable Player in the league, averaged a career-low 17.5 points a game this season. He also averaged 6.9 rebounds, up from 6.1 a year ago.

He had planned to retire after next season, his 19th in the NBA, before he and attorney Leonard Armato finalized the deal Tuesday in a meeting with Buss.

Instead, Abdul-Jabbar will become the first ever to play 20 seasons in the NBA.

"Playing 20 seasons wasn't something I was trying to do, but it looks like I'll have a shot at it," Abdul-Jabbar said. "It's already enough being I'm the only 18-year man."

Goetz acquitted of attempted murder

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernhard Goetz, who sought justice down the barrel of a pistol, has found vindication in a New York City courtroom.

Goetz was acquitted of all attempted murder and assault charges Tuesday in the shooting of four young men he said tried to rob him on a subway train on Dec. 22, 1984. The jury convicted him only of a single felony count of illegally possessing the .38-caliber gun he used to shoot the four.

"I'm glad it's over," Goetz, who could avoid imprisonment or be jailed up to seven years, told the limousine driver who sped him from the courthouse, "The last two years have been hell."

The shooting attracted worldwide attention and sparked national debate on self-defense, crime, vigilantism and the right to carry guns. Some people saw Goetz as a near mythical thug-buster fighting back against urban crime and others as a menace for firing five rounds in a crowded train.

The case also had racial overtones, because Goetz is white and his victims — Barry Allen, Darrell Cabey, Troy Canty and James Ramseur — are black.

"We didn't feel it was racial," juror Michael Axelrod said on ABC's "Nightline." "We didn't lower ourselves to that.... To say that this is a racism thing or this is a vigilante thing is a bunch of garbage, because it just wasn't there. This was another attempted murder case."

Goetz, a 39-year-old electronics specialist, had been charged with four counts of attempted murder, assault and illegal possession of weapons; and one count of reckless endangerment.

The prosecution portrayed him as an enraged man who shot with vicious intent; the defense painted a picture of a reasonable man perfectly justified in pulling the trigger under the circumstances.

Goetz did not testify, but the jury saw his videotaped confession.

When he decided he was going to be robbed, Goetz said on the tape, "My intention was to do anything I could do to hurt them. My intention — you know, I know this sounds horrible — but my intention was to murder them, to hurt them, to make them suffer as much as possible."

He said his only problem was that he ran out of bullets.

In an impassioned argument to the jury, prosecutor Gregory Waples called Goetz a "dark spirit" who fired in "a blind, self-righteous, volcanic fury."

But defense lawyer Barry Slotnick said Goetz had read a potential assault and robbery situation correctly and did what he had to do.

Waples stressed that a witness had testified, and the defendant himself had admitted, that Goetz shot Cabey while the young man was seated. In addition, Goetz told police that after he shot Cabey, he walked over and said to him, "You look all right; here's another."

The shooting left Cabey paralyzed from the waist down and brain damaged.

But the jury discounted Goetz's confession, said juror James Mosely.

"Really, what it comes down to is that rapid succession of fire that so many people heard," Mosely said. "So many of the witnesses did not hear that fifth shot. They did not hear a shot separated from the other shots."

Axelrod said Goetz was a victim of circumstance, not a cold-blooded killer.

"He didn't get on the train looking to murder people, he didn't get on the train hunting people, he didn't approach these people in any way," Axelrod said. "They approached him and he was just sitting on that train."

Acting Justice Stephen Crane set sentencing for Sept. 4 and allowed Goetz to remain free on $50,000 bail.

After the verdict, Slotnick said his client was relieved. "He felt as if a great burden was lifted off his shoulders," the lawyer said. "All he wants to do is fade into the woodwork. This has been a terrible chapter in his life."

Watergate affair observes its fifteenth anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifteen years ago today, police officers were summoned by a guard to the modernistic Watergate Office Building next to the Potomac River. They arrested five men in business suits who were wearing surgical gloves as they rifled the files in a sixth floor office.

The story was mildly interesting to newspapers because the arrests were made in the offices of the Democratic National Committee and because the men were carrying walkie-talkies and had bugging equipment.

Richard Nixon, then running for a second term as president, was spending that day in Grand Cay, a Bahamian island owned by his friend Bob Abplanalo. He recalled in his memoirs that he returned the following day to his house in Key Biscayne and saw a small story on the front page of the Miami Herald under the headline: "Miamians Held in D.C. Try to Bug Demo Headquarters."

On Monday, Nixon's press secretary, Ron Ziegler, gave the administration's reaction. He called the break-in "a third-rate burglary."

With that small start began the biggest political scandal in American history.

In the ensuing years, its fallout would cause the first resignation of a president, the coincidental first resignation of a vice president, and the trials and jailing of many of the top administration officials; including the attorney general, the White House chief of staff, the head of the president's domestic counsel and his White House lawyer.

The Watergate scandal went far beyond that burglary.

The White House tried to hide its role in the affair and payoffs were made to the burglars to buy their silence. The coverup efforts, it was learned late in the game, were sanctioned by Nixon himself.

Eventually 25 men were convicted. As a result of Watergate, the nation learned about a White House-led burglary.

Accident victim needs evaluation

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A year ago I fell from a horse. My skull was cracked on the left side from about 3 inches above my ear to about mid-skull. The horse planted his hoof about 4 inches above the base of the skull, which made a good-sized dent but only required stitches.

Despite a "normal" EEG, I lost most of the "c" words in my vocabulary. There was bleeding from my left ear and from my nose, eyes and mouth. The problem is that I've lost my sense of smell, my balance is messed up, my left nostril is blocked and there is constant pressure in my left ear. The neurologist sent me to an ear, nose and throat doctor, who sent me back to a neurologist. What can I do?

DEAR READER — It's not clear whether you suffered major neurological damage during your accident. You probably had bleeding into (or injury to) parts of the brain that control speech (or memory) and other parts of the nervous system, such as the vestibular (balance) mechanism in the inner ear. Some of the effects of the accident may be permanent; others may improve with time.

You need a thorough evaluation in the neurology clinic of a teaching hospital. This evaluation probably will include a CT scan or magnetic-resonance imaging to assess the amount of damage in the skull around the ear and speech center. Perhaps there is a surgical procedure that the specialists would recommend to correct the damage or relieve the pressure on certain nerves — the nerves of smell, for instance.

This is a complicated problem that — in my opinion — requires the services of neurologists. In a large teaching hospital, such specialists are trained to diagnose and treat severe head injuries. In addition, other specialists (otolaryngologists and neurosurgeons) would be readily available to coordinate your case.

DEAR DR. GOTT — A while ago you ran a letter from a man, 73, who had trouble with drooling after suffering a small stroke. We have two elderly relatives with the same problem. They carry a small mirror. When they eat, they very inconspicuously prop the mirror at their place setting and check occasionally to see if they are drooling. It's given them so much self-confidence that they are not afraid to eat out.

DEAR READER — I was not aware of this useful technique until I read your letter. Thank you for writing. I hope that your suggestion will help other people who have the same problem.

Col. North refuses to give private testimony to panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. Oliver L. North, contending the appearance would violate his rights, has refused to give private testimony to the Iran-Contra committees this week, the chairman of the Senate panel said today.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said he would recommend that the committees skip the private session and call North for public testimony in mid-July.

Inouye said the panels could start contempt proceedings against North but he recommended they avoid that option to save time. The vice chairman of the Senate panel, Warren Rudman, R-N.H., said he agreed.

The lawmakers, asked how a private appearance might violate North's rights, said reporters would have to ask North's lawyer.

"We've contended his position is untenable," Inouye said.

"I always had great difficulty in inventing frivolous defenses," Rudman added.

Inouye said North's action was unprecedented. But he also said contempt proceedings would take two to three months.

"I will be recommending we take the second course, which will be to go into public session," the chairman said, adding he expects North eventually to testify "a week or more."

On Tuesday, President Reagan said there "ain't no smoking gun" to implicate him in the diversion of Iranian arms-sale profits to Nicaraguan rebels and that the American people are losing interest in the hearings.

He also argued that much of the witnesses' testimony to the congressional committees investigating the affair "wouldn't be permitted in a courtroom."

His chief of staff, Howard H. Baker Jr., denied that Reagan had received an undated memorandum — found in North's National Security Council files — which proposed diverting arms-sale funds to the Nicaraguan rebels.

"The president did not know about the memo," Baker told the regional reporters.

Reagan has repeatedly denied knowing about the diversion of funds.

"There ain't no smoking gun," Reagan told reporters before entering a luncheon with Senate Republicans.

Asked about it again as he left the Capitol, Reagan said, "I have said repeatedly that I never saw any such memorandum."

In other developments:

—Assistant Attorney General John Bolton criticized Lawrence E. Walsh, the independent counsel in the Iran-Contra scandal, and independent counsels in other cases, saying the Justice Department would recommend that Reagan veto legislation to keep intact the law under which they are appointed.

These special prosecutors appointed under the 1978 Ethics in Government Act, Bolton said, "are utterly without review, utterly without supervision; nothing is too trivial for these people to investigate."

—North's wife Betsy invoked the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination when she was called to testify recently before a grand jury investigating the Iran-Contra affair, The Washington Post reported today.

Citing unidentified sources, the Post said Mrs. North also refused to cooperate with the Iran-Contra congressional committees. Mrs. North's name surfaced in the hearings when Albert Hakim, who was involved in the Iranian arms deals, testified that he had investigated ways to set aside money for the North family.

—The depositions released by congressional investigators showed that one of Secord's assistants later changed her testimony, telling the panels in a sworn affidavit that the shredding more likely took place in November.

The two employees' original testimony, given under oath in private on April 10, appeared to conflict with the testimony given in public last month by Secord, chief operator of Iranian arms shipments and the private Contra resupply effort.

In a weekend interview, Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the House committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair, said that if it turned out Reagan knew about the diversion of funds, "You would have a demand for impeachment proceedings."

Hamilton said that if Reagan had received the North memo, "That would be the smoking gun ....and I think it would be a very serious matter for Congress."

On Tuesday, Reagan told the out-of-town reporters, "I think that spotlight (on the hearings) has been growing so dim in recent days that when you get a mile and a half away from the Potomac River there are an awful lot of people that have gone back to their favorite television shows. And I don't blame them."

Moss announced to chamber post

To allow him to fulfill commitments with his current chamber, Moss is expected to report here July 15.

He holds a masters degree in education from Sul Ross University in Alpine, receiving it in 1969. He was employed by the Pecos and Monahans school districts. Prior to joining the Monahans chamber he worked one year for a bank in Monahans. In 1985 he was chosen as citizen of the year in Monahans.

He is married to Judy Greene, a Snyder native. They have one married child.

Moss' salary with the local chamber will be $26,000 plus car expense.

'Check' Sells

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla.--Services for "Check" Sells of Oklahoma City, Okla, former Snyder resident, are pending at Resthaven Mortuary.

He died Tuesday in Oklahoma City. He was the brother of Edna Anderson of Snyder.

He is also survived by his wife, four children, one granddaughter, his mother, Mrs. Mike Sells of Oklahoma City; two brothers, Orville of California and Glen of Lubbock; and another sister, Wanda Land of Oklahoma City.

Robert Ragland

HOBBS, N. M.--Services for Robert O. "Whitie" Ragland, 56, of Hobbs, N. M. were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Griffin Funeral Home.

He died Friday. He was born Jan. 30, 1931.

He is survived by his wife, Carol; one daughter, Debbie Alford of Snyder; one brother, W. G. and one sister, both of Ohio.

The Quebec Bridge on the St. Lawrence River near Quebec City collapsed in 1907 and carried 75 workmen to their deaths. The bridge was started in 1900 and was then the world's largest cantilever bridge. After the accident, construction work was continued and both cantilever sections had been completed when the center span fell into the river, taking the lives of another 13 workmen.

Three weeks may be all time needed

AUSTIN (AP) — Although the Legislature failed to enact a budget in its 140-day regular session, House Speaker Gib Lewis says it may take only three weeks in a special session to get the job done.

"I will be optimistic and predict three weeks," Lewis told reporters as the House Appropriations Committee returned to work Tuesday on the 1988-89 budget.

Gov. Bill Clements has said he will call a special session beginning Monday to enact a budget needed before the state's fiscal year ends Aug. 31.

While Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that lawmakers face a $6.5 billion deficit, Lewis said he expects the problems to be quickly remedied on this try.

Higher taxes are inevitable, he said.

"We're going to have to have a tax bill. Let's go ahead and be realistic about it. We're going to have one," Lewis said.

The exact amount hasn't yet been determined, but Lewis said it would take a revenue hike of $5 billion to $6 billion to fund the spending plans being discussed.

Shortfall hurts city budget plan sharing program, which pumped $120,000 income into the current city budget.

And, to meet safety standards regarding trihalamethanes, work at the water treatment plant is expected to cost some $184,000.

This project helped increase the city's overal capital improvement budget for next year from the current total of some $78,000 to a projected $378,000.

Also included in the new budget is new sanitation equipment at a cost of $54,200; and new street equipment at a cost of $74,700.

City Secretary and Finance Director Jeanne Johnson noted that although salaries and merit raises to city employees have been frozen, some increase in personnel costs can be attributed to proposed increases in Social Security — from its current 7.15 percent level to 7.51 percent — and insurance costs.

Later budget talks may address possible changes in employee benefits, including the adoption of a "cafeteria plan." The plan, currently offered by several insurance companies, allows deductions for certain expenses such as child care and medical expenses before Social Security and income taxes are figured.

Currently the city pays both the entity's obligation and the employees' share of Social Security costs.

During the meeting, councilmen also discussed using some reserve funds to offset losses and the possibility of spreading costs for capital improvements over several years through a bond issue.

The second round in budget considerations is set for June 23. At that time, council members will consider insurance changes.

All councilmen attended Tuesday's session to include John Johnson, Joe Fowler, Mike Post, Ralph Williamson, Fred Castillo and Paul Zeck. Also present were Mayor Troy Williamson, City Engineer Don Osborn and Gayle.

City vehicle in minor wreck

Three mipor traffic mishaps were reported in Snyder Tuesday, one involving the city's animal control vehicle.

It was reported at 4:13 p.m. in the 1800 Block of 25th St.

Involved in it were the 1985 Ford animal control truck owned by the city and driven by Jackie Phillips Jenkins of Dunn and a 1974 Ford pulling a trailer and driven by Raymond P. Payne of Lovington, N.M.

Also Tuesday, Leslie Light of 2600 34th St. filed a report at 10:24 a.m.

Light told police that her 1984 Oldsmobile had apparently been struck by an unidentified vehicle while parked on the lot at Snyder High School earlier in the morning.

Another mishap occurred at 12:51 p.m. in the 3600 Block of College Ave.

Involved in it were a 1970 Volkswagen driven by Brandi Jo Bell of 3603 40th St. and a 1979 Dodge driven by Roy Allen Jones of Hermleigh.

No injuries resulted from any of the Tuesday accidents.

Cooling unit said stolen

Police are investigating a single misdemeaor theft report filed Tuesday.

Joe Dan Jones, owner of Classic Paint and Body Shop, reported the theft at 6:06 p.m.

He said a Sears brand 1 ½ ton air-conditioning unit had apparently been stolen from outside his shop. No value was estimated.

In other Wednesday action, police jailed one man on a warrant for failure to pay a misdemeaor fine and one for driving while intoxicated.

Business has second break-in

Police are investigating the second burglary reported this week at Concrete Inc. offices.

Officers on routine patrol of the area — on Ave. O north of 23rd St. — around 2 a.m. Wednesday discovered a break-in at the business.

The only item found missing from the office area was a pocket knife.

Company employees reported a burglary of the business when they reported for work Monday morning.

In that incident, an undetermined amount of change was taken from the office area.

At the time he had recently completed a 60-day jail term for theft; he has an extensive police record as a juvenile for petty crimes.

—Darrell Cabey, born Aug. 26, 1965, the fourth and most seriously wounded of Goetz's shooting victims, the one Goetz says he told, "You look all right; here's another," before firing a bullet into his spine while the youth was sitting down; paralyzed from the waist down, suffered some brain damage, confined to a wheelchair, living at home; arrested once for allegedly pulling a shotgun on a man during a robbery but charges dropped, no convictions; Cabey reportedly said Goetz was approached because "he looked like easy bait." His lawyer, William Kunstler, says Cabey "does not remember who Goetz is."

Dear Abby

Wrong Size of Breeding Band Puts the Squeeze on Pet Birds

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1987 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was saddened by the letter from your reader whose canary lost its feet due to tight leg bands. The saddest part is that this need not have occurred.

Leg bands on canaries (usually one on the right leg of the males and the left leg for females) are a means of identifying the year the bird was hatched as well as the identity of the breeder. It also is proof that the bird is free from disease and is in this country legally. Bands are specifically sized for different species of birds since there is a wide variety in the size of their legs. Articles on banding always caution that in the event of any swelling under a leg band, the band must be removed immediately. The canary whose owner wrote to you lost its feet because gangrene set in when blood circulation was cut off.

We will be happy to provide a free leaflet on proper leg-banding techniques to any of your readers who write to us requesting one.

ARTHUR FREUD, AMERICAN CAGE-BIRD MAGAZINE, ONE GLAMORE COURT, SMITHTOWN, N.Y. 11787

DEAR MR. FREUD: (Any relation to the late Sigmund?) People who are in the business of selling birds and, therefore, must "band" them routinely, should know how to band them humanely. I hope you get a flock of requests in response to your offer.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the canary who lost its feet because of too-tight leg bands brought back painful memories. In your answer you wisely suggested that a vet should have been consulted, but in our case it didn't help.

Some years ago, I had a beautiful talking budgie — a clever, loving pet who had a vocabulary of more than 100 words and phrases. My husband and I adored him.

One day, when he had just turned 3 years old, I noticed the banded leg had swollen just above the band. I took him to the vet who had to anesthetize him in order to remove the band. The doctor said, "I wish these breeders would either use plastic bands, which are easier to remove, or use a band large enough to allow for the growth of the legs." My poor baby recovered from the anesthetic and I took him home, but later that night he became very sick and finally died lying in my husband's hand. Apparently, a blood clot had formed due to the restriction of the band, and when the band was removed, the clot moved and killed him. We were heartbroken. It's the only time I ever saw my husband cry.

Abby, until people who attach these bands realize the problem and try to improve the situation, I would respectfully suggest to anyone purchasing a young bird to have the band removed immediately while it is still loose on the leg.

STILL MISS HIM IN VANCOUVER, B.C.

DEAR ABBY: I am a college tennis coach. Last month our state championship fell on the same Saturday as my girlfriend's brother's wedding. The wedding was scheduled for 4 p.m. at a small church, which was about a 30-minute drive from where the tournament was to take place.

The tournament finally ended at 3:30 so I decided to drive directly to the wedding in my tennis clothes.

I arrived at the church door and asked the mother of the groom (my girlfriend's mother) if it would be OK if I went into the church and sat in the back. I apologized for my appearance and explained that I had rushed over directly from the tennis tournament. She didn't say a word — she just looked at me in amazement. (I guess you could say I was snubbed.)

Abby, I know I wasn't appropriately dressed for the occasion, but if I had showered and changed clothes, I would have missed the ceremony. Was I wrong?

IN THE DOGHOUSE

DEAR IN: Your intentions were good, but your judgment was poor.

Killeen doctor won't be disciplined

AUSTIN (AP)--A Killeen physician accused of improperly treating two pregnant women will not be disciplined by the Texas Board of Medical Examiners.

The board voted Tuesday not to discipline Dr. Harold Wood and declined to accept the gynecologist's offer to give up his medical license.

The decision means that Wood can continue practicing medicine in Texas. However, his medical license still carries restrictions imposed last year by the board after he not only failed to treat a patient with cancer, but never told her she had the disease that eventually killed her.

Jury selected in James Cross's retrial

AUSTIN (AP) — Seven men and five women have been chosen to hear testimony in the retrial of James Cross, accused of killing two sorority sisters two decades ago.

Testimony begins Thursday morning.

However, defense attorneys will argue at a change of venue hearing Wednesday afternoon that the trial should be changed to another city.

"We contend that due to publicity in this county Cross cannot receive a fair and impartial trial," Cross attorney David Botsford said Tuesday.

Botsford's motion to move the trial carries an affidavit from two Austin attorneys, David Reynolds and Bill White, who say they do not believe Cross can get a fair and just verdict in Travis County.

Cross, now 44, was sent to prison for life in 1966 after confessing to the slaying of two University of Texas sorority sisters. A recent ruling of the Court of Criminal Appeals sent the case back for retrial.

District Judge Mace Thurman said he expected the trial to last at least a week.

In the questioning of 60 prospective jurors Tuesday by Thurman and attorneys a total of 27 were excused because they said they had formed an opinion or bias that could affect the verdict.

No alternates were chosen to sit with the jury.

Cross, now gray-haired, sat quietly and occasionally talked with his attorneys. He was sentenced to life in prison in 1966 after confessing to the slayings of Susan Rigsby and Shirley Stark, both 21 and from Fort Worth.

He was tried on charges of murder in the July 18, 1965, strangulation death of Ms. Rigsby. In his confession, Cross said he killed Ms. Rigsby and her friend in his Austin apartment.

Their bodies were found 12 days later in an overgrown vacant lot in Austin. The charges against Cross in Ms. Stark's death were dismissed after he was in prison.
