TEXANS AND WALSH M'ADOO STRATEGY CATHOLIC VOTE

By H. N. Fitzgerald
Record News Staff.

NEW YORK, July 17.—"I attended every session of the convention and now that it is over I wish to go on record as having said that Senator Thomas J. Walsh is the one outstanding figure of that memorable convention and I believe I voice the sentiment of the delegates and visitors."

The speaker was the Hon. Robert Ewing Thomason of Texas. He gave this high praise to the senator who had uncovered the oil scandals, had driven from high office three republican cabinet officers and had exposed the rottenness which stunned the nation. Senator Walsh is as cold as an icicle, as quick as a flash of lightning, as stern as a stoic and his rulings in the stormiest political convention in history never called for an appeal from decision of the chairman.

* * *

HE NEVER once lost his poise. He never made an arbitrary ruling. He never lost his head nor his temper. Devoted heart and soul to the candidacy of McAdoo, this did not sway him or cause him to make arbitrary or unfair decisions. Before the break came there were many delegates ready to vote for him for first place on the ticket. After Davis had been nominated he would have been given second place on the ticket if he had not adjourned the convention when the stampede for him began.

Then at the night session to nominate a candidate for vice-president his pointed letter was read in which he declared that he preferred to be a senator from Montana, where he could be of great service to the people, rather than presiding officer of the Upper House. He is certain of re-election in a state where four-fifths of the votes are said to be for him.

One of the Texas delegates, Terry of Clarksville, voted for Walsh for president when the stampede for Davis was on, and Reed of Canyon City after Davis had been nominated by acclamation, rushed to the platform, grasped the chairman by the hand, and told Walsh that he was the greatest presiding officer the country has known and the outstanding figure of a convention that is to be historic.

And thus it came to pass that the delegation from Texas, klan or anti-klan, declared a willingness to vote for a Catholic for the second highest honor in the gift of the convention.

* * *

WHEN the delegates from Texas found seats in the convention on opening day, they must have been amazed with the program outlined. Cardinal Hayes made the opening prayer; Thomas J. Walsh had been slated for permanent chairman; James D. Phelan of California had been picked by McAdoo to place his name before the convention while Isidore Dockweiler of California, Senator G. H. Fitzgerald of Nevada and J. T. F. O'Conner of North Dakota had been selected as floor managers.

All from the Cardinal of New York to the brilliant lawyer from North Dakota had been selected by the McAdoo campaign managers and all are prominent in the councils of the Catholic church. On the other hand those who spoke for Governor Smith, his campaign managers and his advisors, were taken from the ranks of protestant denominations and Franklin D. Roosevelt headed the list.

When the fight came over the anti-ku klux klan plank, the delegations from California, Nevada, Montana, and five of the delegates from North Dakota, voted for the rejection of the plank. John Burke, former governor of North Dakota and former treasurer of the United States headed the delegation from the land where the non-partisan party was born.

New Mexico, the Philippines, and Porto Rico where the Catholic church is numerically the strongest, sent delegates who voted to reject the anti-klan plank and the delegates from Louisiana did, likewise. There are more Catholics in Louisiana than in any southern or southwestern state.

These are some of the sidelights of a convention that has passed into history and in order that the record may be kept straight.

DRUGGED MAN QUITS HOSPITAL

But His Methods of Going Is Still Matter Of Mystery

W. H. Tabor, picked up Wednesday in an unconscious state induced, according to physicians, by a "shot" of hycine, a drug said to be more potent than morphine, has left the Wichita General hospital.

How he left has not been made clear.

Early Thursday afternoon nurses reported to The Record News that the man had mysteriously disappeared from his bed between the hours of 2 and 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, after he had apparently been in a critical condition.

Neither could they say in what conveyance he was taken home.

Found Unconscious.

Tabor was found unconscious and evidently in a serious condition on the banks of Holliday creek early Wednesday afternoon. He was taken to the hospital immediately and did not regain consciousness until Thursday morning. His ailment was diagnosed as an over-dose of drugs.

It developed yesterday that the man was a victim of a "shot" of hycine, a drug said to resemble morphine and heroine but which is more potent than either of these. On man, declared to be a drug addict and who is now in the county jail, was arrested with him, locked up at the city hall Thursday morning and then transferred to federal authorities. He was taken before U. S. Commissioner Lantz and later sent to jail. No charges have been filed, it is said.

Second Man Freed.

Another man was also arrested with the trio but was later released when no evidence was introduced to warrant his being held.

Still a fourth man, however, was arrested by Deputy U. S. Marshal John Says Thursday morning and is now held in the county jail in connection with the case. He is accused by Tabor's companions as the one who furnished the supply of drugs which the former used. It is also declared by federal authorities that he is under indictment in Eastland county on a murder charge and is now out under an appeal bond.

The two men now held in jail will at least face charges of violating the federal narcotic laws, it is presumed.

Milk and Ice Fund Is Given More Donations

MILK AND ICE FUND
Carl Williams	$10.00
F. H. Price 108 Denver	$3.00
Anonymous	$4.00
J. Y. Baldwin	$1.00
Previously Acknowledged	$421.15
Total	$438.15

With the cry for ice and milk coming from all parts of the city and the Salvation Army doing everything possible to answer the worst of the cases, the situation was relieved temporarily Thursday when donations totaling $17.00 were turned in to The Record News' milk and ice fund. A great demand for ice and milk is being received at the Salvation Army headquarters and when it is possible all these demands are met. The supply of milk is limited and for this reason a restriction must be placed upon the amount issued although there are some cases that really need the milk but cannot get it because of the lack of funds.

Reports from the Salvation Army headquarters are that the sick woman mentioned previously is getting along nicely. The woman with four small children was at the point of death when discovered by the Salvation Army and that organization immediately began supplying several quarts of milk daily both to the woman and the undernourished children. One of the children, a little boy of seven years, weighed only 30 pounds and plainly showed the marks of starvation. With the aid of milk the little fellow has begun to gain in weight and to show an entirely different appearance.

Anyone desiring to help such cases as the one cited, should send contributions to The Record News' milk and ice fund and the money will be turned over to the Salvation Army.

Grain Rate Cut In West Turned Down By I. C. C.

Declare Investigation Shows Railroad Earnings Not Too Much for Hauling Grain From Southwest

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Reductions in western railroad rates on grain products and hay, sought by 10 states of the Mississippi-Missouri valley cereal growing region under the leadership of Kansas and supported by most farm organizations concerned, were definitely refused today by the interstate commerce commission. At the same time the commission decided that the results of an independent investigation it had conducted into the level of rates on these same products in all sections of the United States had demonstrated no need for any changes, and preceding before it, bearing upon both issues were dismissed.

Railroad earnings in the western region from the Rocky mountains to the Great Lakes and south as far as Texas would have been reduced about $17,500,000 annually had the contention of the producing states been granted. The commission held the financial status of the carriers did not justify the step, while in general it held that the financial condition of the western grain farmers was showing a slow improvement relieving them of the necessity of the reduction.

Commission Split

A sharp dissent was recorded within the commission over the views of the majority, Commissioners McCord, McManamy, Eastman, Campbell and Lewis for various stated reasons refusing to follow the majority of one which controlled the action.

The rates affected by the decision are those applied to wheat throughout the growing territory where it constitutes the most important crop and have presented the most troublesome and controversial problem before the interstate commerce commission in recent years. The states which led in the presentation of the complaint denied today—Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Illinois, Oklahoma, Missouri, Minnesota and Louisiana—obtained in January, 1922, the first railroad rate reduction granted after the war, for the grain products concerned.

Cuts Previous

Later in 1922, a general reduction of 10% in all rates was granted by the commission and early in 1923 the same western states promptly moved before the commission to obtain a secondary reduction on their own products. After the first hearing, the commission ordered a retrial of the issues, and instituted its own investigation into grain rates in all sections of the country.

Reasons For Slash

Clyde M. Reed, chairman of the Kansas public utilities commission for the state and farm organizations, contended that the depressed price of grain products required a new lower level of freight rates for all the commodities concerned. He held also five financial conditions of western railroads would justify the cuts demanded, because the valuation of the property used by them in rendering transportations was less than the commission had hitherto calculated, and further, because the expenditures of railroads of the west on maintenance during 1923 were unduly swollen.

The majority of the commission refused to sustain either of the views, declaring that western railroad earnings were still below the fair return level and that while maintenance expenditures might have been unduly heavy in 1923, there was no ground for holding that they had been so great that the western roads might stand rate reductions on grain, their greatest commodity in point of haul.

Negro Fire Toll Is Two and Nine

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, July 17.—W. E. Harvey, 35, and John Hayden, 35, firemen, and nine negroes, are dead and 10 other negroes still are missing, as a result of an early morning fire in a two-story negro apartment house at Eighteenth street and Tracy avenue today.

Six other firemen were seriously injured when a wall, a weakened mass of brick and hollow tile crumbled and buried them in the wreckage.

The fire was caused by a terrific explosion in a candy store on the ground floor of the building. A gas stove in the store was used late yesterday and firemen at the ruins today believed that accumulated gas, resulting from a leak in the stove was the cause of the blast.

GRAND JURY IS CONVINCED HE IS INNOCENT

"Confession" of Thomas Disproved, Officers In Probe Say

TWO OTHERS HELD

Investigators Believe They Are Still Far From Solution

Charlie Davis, negro named in accusations made by "Judge" Thomas as the one who on July 8 shot down and fatally injured 13-year old Wesley Ashmore was released from custody late Thursday afternoon.

Convinced of Innocence.

Repeated appearances before the grand jury during which time he was exhaustively grilled concerning his supposed part in the murder of the boy thoroughly convinced the jury and prosecuting officials that he could have had nothing to do with the case. His own statements, borne out by testimony of other witnesses, established his innocence beyond all doubt, it was said.

Thus has the "confession" made by Thomas been entirely disproved.

A story told by Thomas last Friday afternoon seemed for a time to clear up the mystery of Ashmore's death. He "confessed," it seems, to the crime but named Davis as the one who had actually struck the blows that brought death to the youthful cold drink clerk as he was at work in the G. C. Johnson stand, 1411 Ninth street.

Details of Statement.

Thomas declared that he had met Davis near the stand early in the afternoon of the day the crime was committed and that they had gone together to the place. He declared that Davis had gone in, beaten the boy and robbed the place while he, Thomas, remained outside on watch.

The original statements were made to Constable Frank Morgan who had arrested both negroes shortly after Ashmore was attacked. The tale was later repeated to District Attorney James V. Allred and still later to the grand jury. Both blacks were immediately rushed from the county.

The story told by Thomas, however, brought doubts to the minds of officials almost from the first. Davis stoutly denied his innocence and told a straightforward story that rang true. An exhaustive investigation subsequently established the fact that his claims were correct.

Statements Langthrow.

Thomas had been in the custody of Constable Morgan and his deputies from the first and had been questioned incessantly. According to the constable's statement, the original "confession" was made while he and Thomas were alone on a country road outside the city. They had gone out there, it was said, in order to be alone and talk the thing out to a finish."

Since his first statements Thomas is understood to have volunteered a bewildering variety of stories, statements and "confessions" that in the main have been laughable for their absurdity. His final appearance before the grand jury Thursday clinched the innocence of Davis and the latter was accordingly discharged.

Three Still Held.

The "Judge" is still being detained, not because he is supposed to know anything of the murder but merely for more questioning. Two other negroes are also being held but officials have practically agreed that they are in no way implicated in the murder and robbery.

So far as is known, no other clues have been unearthed that hold out much prospect of leading to a solution of the murder.

"The Woman He Desired" .... By Louise Gerard

CHAPTER I

The Triple Alliance.

When John Wilson was a little boy his mother used to tell him fairy tales. She was a young widow who had to work hard for a living and she had not much time for entertaining her small son.

The story John loved best was about a princess. Being a fairy princess, of course she had golden hair, blue eyes, skin like alabaster and hands no bigger than pose-leaves.

"When I'm a man I shall really marry a princess," he said one day at the conclusion of this favorite story.

His mother laughed softly, for princesses and her boy were far asunder. "Never mind, John, if you are poor, I love you," she would whisper.

And the little boy was quite happy again.

When John was 5 the princess was 4, and when he was 8 she was 7. When John was 12 the princess was 11. Then he left school and went into the iron foundry. The image of the princess grew fainter. But sometimes when he was indulging in strong language she would come and look at him with soft, reproachful eyes and put her tiny hands to her ears, and the rough youth would stop, and try to mould himself on lines his ideal would approve.

When John was 22 the princess was 18, and the faint shadow of her came between him and the temptations that beset a healthy young man who has just started to make money.

Then, although Wilson's years increased, the age of the princess remained stationary. But she was a dream maiden now, a high-born, honorable, dainty little thing, possessed of every womanly charm and virtue—an ideal—and in a hot, hard hunt for wealth the man almost forgot her.

Yet sometimes, when he rested for a moment from the heated scramble, she would come and sit beside him. And he would smile at her sadly.

A lamp was burning on a table in a third-rate New York boarding house. It showed a tawdry room, smelling of cigarette smoke and patchouli. On a disheveled bed a woman lay—a common looking creature.

By the bed two men stood. They were both tall, slim, handsome, and elegant, unmistakably well-bred.

"Well, mon pere, so that's the end of Cissy," the former said presently.

"And the end of 'The Triple Alliance,' too," his father remarked.

Turning from the bed, with a casual air Eugene de Gilbert lighted a cigarette.

"I'm not so sure of that," he said in response to his father's remark.

"Not so sure?" the Count de Gilbert repeated.

"Why, what's to prevent us from using Desiree?"

"The very thing, Eugene!" the Count cried excitedly. "The very thing! You must go fetch her at once."

Eugene flicked the ash from his cigarette.

"Not me," he replied. "If I set a foot in France I shall have to fight for my country—a damned uncomfortable job. You, mon pere, you must fetch her."

"Your business is to go to France and fetch Desiree. There's no time to waste. The funds are low. Now I'm off to the shipping office to book your passage, and then to see about getting Cissy under the daisies as cheaply as possible."

Whistling gayly, Eugene de Gilbert went from the room, leaving his father staring at the woman who had been dead barely half an hour.

Several weeks later a little party of three had just come back from a ball at a fashionable hotel to the second-rate lodging house where they were staying. One of the three went straight up to the shabby back sitting room and sat there awaiting the arrival of the other two. Two men entered.

"Hello, here's Desiree all alone in the dark" the younger remarked.

The older man switched on the light.

The flare showed a young girl, slender and fragile, with a thin, transparent face, misty blue eyes and a wealth of golden hair coiled like a crown on the top of her small head.

Crossing to her side, Eugene drew

HE URGES WORK FOR ALL BOYS

Rotary Governor Says Idleness Leads Into Crime

"Rotary came into the world as a kind of a fence builder," declared Harry Rogers of San Antonio governor of the Rotary clubs of this district, at the luncheon of the local club yesterday. "The idea was to rebuild the fences as they were torn down and destroyed. A let down came in patriotism and Rotary strove to put the bars up again. Religious appreciation was dampened and Rotary strove to put it back in its place, even though Rotary has no special sectarian significance. A let up in the development of our boys took place, and Rotary strove to put them in the place they belonged, the greatest one thing in our country.

Will Have Better Men.

'We are going to have better men in this country if Rotary has its say. I want to make myself heard here. We don't want a law, constitutional amendment or other organ in this nation which will prohibit boys from working until they are 18 years old. If you want your boy to grow,—if you want him to develop, put him to work. I believe that this country needs to get back to the idea of work. Criminal statistics show that nine-tenths of the crimes committed in this country are committed during the playtime of life.

Workers survive.

"We do not want to stop our boys from working. It is necessary to their development. If you want your boy to grow, let him work. When the last tale is told you will find that those who have worked survive, and that those who have played are doomed to perish."

Mr. Rogers commented briefly upon the purpose of his visit, which was as he said in the way of a getting-acquainted trip. It was at the district convention of Rotary clubs of the thirteenth district held in this city last April that Mr. Rogers was elected their district governor.

Rotary Speaker Says Texas Group Below Standard

Ben F. Donnell, Times Publishing company, spoke to the Rotary club at their weekly luncheon yesterday on his experiences at the national democratic convention just finished at New York.

He commented at length upon the various conflicting elements of the convention and expressed some surprise that so much was accomplished when there was so much discord.

The Texas delegation was the subject of a portion of Mr. Donnel's talk, and he stated that in his opinion as a whole it was not up to the standards of delegations sent to the Baltimore and other former conventions.

MONEY At Work

Brief but important lessons in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments

A successful store must attract people into it.

By Lawrence A. Adams, assistant marketing specialist, U. S. bureau of agricultural economics.

A soda fountain in the Sahara desert would not make money, for there would be too few people to support it. Before any one opens a store, he should carefully estimate who his customers will be and how many of them there are. Money is often thrown away by some one opening a store where there are not enough people to support it. The fact that there is one successful store in a village or in a certain city block does not necessarily mean there is room for another.

A store cannot succeed without customers and a certain number are necessary. If they are not there the store will fail. If competitors already are serving them the chances of a new store getting the trade is problematical.

A little analysis may save great regrets.

COUNCIL TO GET BIDS ON SYSTEM

Officials Say Present Tax Assessment Methods Obsolete

Mayor Collier, City Clerk McBroom and Tax Assessor Hyer are busy preparing specifications to be used to selecting a new tax equalization system to take the place of the one now in use. Recommendations will be made at the next meeting of the city council and bids called for on a new and improved method. A contract will probably be let within the next two or three weeks.

Officials say they have learned from past expreience that the existing hit or miss system of tax equalization is costing the city money and arousing tax payers who in many instances have just complaints against unequal valuations. No systematic assessing can be done under the plan, and it is to get one of the more modern and improved types that the preliminary survey is being made.

The system to be installed may cost as much as $10,000, it is said.

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

JULY 18, 1924

THE ROYAL LAW:—If ye fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well: but if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convicted of the law as transgressors.—James 2:8, 9.

PRAYER:—Dear Heavenly Father, we are all Thy children by creation; make us all truly Thine by regeneration.

COPPER.

This is the electrical age and now a copperless world in twenty years is predicted by a famous geologist and engineer. He has investigated. He has returned the verdict that shortage of copper will limit electrical expansion in another twenty years because electricity can not live without copper.

At the intense rate of production he says, that must come the supply of the world will stand hardly a score of years. He points out that one big power project, such as those proposed on the Colorado river, will take from 300,000,000 to 500,000,000 pounds of copper, which is one-sixth of the world's production.

Europe is ten years behind hand in the use of copper, and rehabilitation of Europe, he declares, would tax the output and make the demand exceed supply. Furthermore, he goes on to say that our civilization, based on electrical power, will dwindle and die and then will come a new civilzation simpler than ours. Man will turn his ambition to breaking up the atoms and will get from it light and heat and power. These atoms are to be obtained from coal or perhaps from lead.

These geologists and electrical engineers are kill-joys.

Not long ago an eminent engineerpredicted that the supply of petroleum would be exhausted in twenty years and then the motor age would perish. Now a combination of geologist and engineer predicts the speedy passing of the electrical age. Fortunately, predictions are not always accurate.

WHAT AN INDICTMENT.

There is an election for president coming. There is an election for a new congress coming. More than four million, three hundred thousand illiterates will be entitled to vote in November for president of the United States and members of congress.

This is the report submitted by the National Educational association. Its chairman said that although there are 4,391,000 acknowledged illiterates in the United States the association is convinced there are more than double this number who were either overlooked in census taking or concealed their illiteracy.

And the report emphasized that more than three million or the acknowledged illiterates are native born and that the illiteracy of parents is the chief barrier to school attendance.

To help the cause of education along, the law makers of Georgia in senate and house, refused to ratify the child labor amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Four years ago only 47 per cent of the qualified voters of America cast ballots in the presidential election. Fifty three per cent remained away from the polls. This is the record of the shiftless voters:

In 1896 80 per cent of the voters cast ballots; in 1900 73 per cent; in 1906 66 per cent; in 1912 62 per cent and in 1920 less than fifty per cent.

What is wrong with the qualified voter of America who has been classified as a shiftless voter? Why don't he assume the responsibility of citizenship?

Texas has 1,450,000 qualified voters. There has never been an election where the total vote reached 650,000. Why this shameful record on the part of the qualified voter of the Lone Star State?

A prediction: The democrats will hold another national convention in the City of New York in the year 2002. Too many blandishments.

"The Woman He Desired"

out a bracelet, a handsome piece of jewelry—a band of rubies and diamonds, worth at least £500.

"Ma cherie, would you like to try on this pretty bracelet?" he asked.

"Put it away, Eugene, at once," the old Count said, a tremor in his voice.

"Oh, Desiree doesn't understand," Eugene said, laughing.

Nevertheless he put the bracelet into his pocket. Then he crossed to the girl's side and leaned over her, his handsome face expressing cruelty.

"Give me a kiss, Desiree."

She moved her head away quickly.

"I don't like being kissed," she said.

"But I like kissing you," he replied. "And I know another who would like to—Manuel Bassino, our new millionaire friend from Brazil. Why did you run away from him just now? Why didn't you wait and say goodby when he had so kindly given us a lift in his motor? Millionaires don't grow on every tree."

A few days later the Count de Gilbert brought a frind back to dinner. The visitor, who was a man of about 40, was far from prepossessing, and to add to the disadvantages nature had bestowed on him, years of disapation had left their mark. Once the meal was over Desiree got up and seated herself as far away from him as possible. But she did not escape for long. Within a few minutes he was at her side again, breathing heavily, talking in a thick gutteral voice with a rasping American accent.

"You could be my queen if you liked to be a bit pleasant to me," he said with heavy emphasis.

His touch sent a shudder through her. Quickly she drew her hand away. Without a word she rose and made toward the door, almost falling over a chair in her haste to escape.

Manuel Bassino watched her go, chagrin and desire on his coarse face.

"I'm just crazy for that girl," he said to the count, "so crazy that I'd marry her in spite of everything. Though I know you'd let me have her without that, if the check was big enough."

Eugene laughed, but his father bristled fiercely.

"My niece is not for sale," he said haughtily.

CHAPTER II

John Wilson Again.

"But would $25,000 square the deal?" returned Bassino.

"I shall not allow my niece to marry before she's 21."

Here Eugene put in a word or two in French, a language the Brizilian did not understand.

"Let him have her," he said quickly. "With her married to him we have a regular source of income, and we can still use her judiciously, if necessary."

"Look here," Bassina said in an anxious manner, "I'll give you a check for $50,000 if I can marry her at once."

"Well, of course, that is rather different," the old count answered.

Bassino's impatience increasing, he immediately drew out a check book and a fountain pen. Going to the table, he wrote out a check for the amount and handed it to Desiree's guardian.

The Count de Gilbert took it, folded it carefully and put it into his waistcoat pocket.

A week later Desiree sat knitting, a drooping, graceful figure in a shabby serge frock, with the sun shining on her crown of golden hair.

The sound of a heavy footstep on the stairs caused a frightened look to pass over the girl's face.

"Eugene, there's Mr. Bassino," she said, a note of terror in her voice. "He's been here every day this week. Please, please, don't go and leave me alone with him," she pleaded imploringly.

Her cousin laughed, but a moment later the door opened and Bassino came in. Nodding to Eugene, he crossed to the girl's side. For a moment or two he watched her, a look of longing on his coarse face; then he turned to her cousin.

For a few minutes the two men talked together; then Eugene got up and went from the room.

Although Desiree did not raise her eyes, she heard him go, and she knitted more industriously than ever, as if to bring something between herself and Bassino, but presently he drew his chair close to her side.

"Come," he said affectionately, his sensual face close to her innocent one, his hot breath fanning her thin cheek, "all girls like pretty things. What would you like? I'm a millionaire. And I guess not many have come into your life, but you're such a little beauty, Desiree."

The free use of her name brought a touch of hauteur to the girl's sensitive face. Before she had time to say anything he had taken one of her hands. She tried to draw it away, but he held it in a vise-like grip.

"Your uncle's fixed up that you're to marry me," he went on.

"No, no!" she gasped, trying to get away.

He slipped an arm around her, drawing her close to his side.

"Girls who say 'No' must be kissed into saying 'Yes'," he said, his voice hoarse with passion.

She struggled frantically, giving little gasping screams. But she was helpless against his strength. He drew her closer, crushing his lips on hers.

The next night Desiree was sitting on the bed in a stuffy room on the top floor of the lodging house.

"Uncle, I don't want to marry Mr. Bassino. I don't, really," a helpless little voice said.

"Nonsense," her uncle answered.

"There's 'the Necklace of Tears.' That's mine when I'm 21. Can't I sell that instead of having to marry Mr. Bassino?" she asked in a desperate voice.

"If I say you are to marry Mr. Bassino, that's enough," her uncle went on in a sharp tone. "So stop crying, and don't let me have any more of this foolishness."

Angrily he turned from her and left the room, switching off the electric light behind him.

For a moment or two Desiree did not move, transfixed by the fate that had overtaken her.

Then she dropped on her knees by the bedside.

"O God, in this great, dark world is there no-one who will save me?" she moaned.

The prayer of a frantic, helpless child left to the mercy of a couple of scoundrels.

In a large house on the outskirts of an English manufacturing town a Christmas party was in full swing. here were fully a hundred people present. Mrs. Green's parties were always popular; she had a liking for pretty young girls, she loved match-making, and she generally managed to get plenty of eligible men.

The man with her was of medium height, with a width of shoulder that made him appear short and heavy, his plain, strong face clean-shaven and inclined to redness.

Although John Wilson had striven hard to attain money, and now possessed an income of over £10,000 a year, he did not love wealth for its own sake, or use it merely to make a display.

However, he was not thinking of these matters at that moment. In a half-smiling, tolerant, quizzical manner he was listening to his hostess.

"Well Mr. Wilson," she was saying, "it's Christmas again and you're still not married."

Wilson had no immediate reply.

At that moment vaguely before him was the little phantom friend of his boyhood, the fairy princess, fragile, lovely and high-born, quite different from the merry, laughing, pretty girls around him.

"Perhaps I'm not a family man," he suggested.

"Every man says that until he has a family."

Mrs. Green paused, regarding her guest thoughtfully.

"I'll tell you what's the matter with you, Mr. Wilson. You stick too close to business."

He laughed good humoredly.

"If I hadn't stuck to business where should I have been?" he asked.

"I'm going to the south of France for three months—to Nice. Why don't you go there for a few weeks and see how other people live? It would do you a world of good—get you out of the groove."

With shrewd, kindly eyes Wilson surveyed his hostess.

"I believe you've got the welfare of the world at heart, although you make such a pose of frivolity," he remarked, "and I'll think about your suggestion."

Then the band struck up, and excusing himself, Wilson went off in search of his next partner.

Desiree left the house, and after walking for perhaps 15 or 20 minutes saw the tall figure of a man ahead of her on the road. That man was John Wilson.

However, Wilson had no eyes for the dog, only for the girl. She looked about 16 or 17, a slender, fragile child. Beneath a halo of golden hair large, misty blue eyes were set, vague and haunting, heavy with tragedy. Her face was thin and ethereal, with a look on it that wrung his heart.

In his early days that look had been on his mother's face, when she had half-starved herself so that her thoughtless cub should not feel the nip of hunger—a look he had removed before he was 14, and by the time he was 16 he had given her comfort; for the last five years of her life, until her death, 18 months ago, luxury.

So Goes It

By BURNS HEGLER

There are men who take all manner of risks, and by doing so, get their names in the hall of fame. Some do these things because of the glory of achievement which spurs them on. Others do it for the sheer love of the thing. And still others do it because they like publicity, and know daring things make front page items.

Some choose to break airplane altitude records; others, by the same means make speed records. Still others are content with the auto race track; again there are those who scale mountain heights.

There are men who like to go out into African jungles and tickle unfriendly lions under the chin, or rope an elephant or two. But the world over there are a lot of brave men who get their thrills out of life by doing daring things.

As for us, we have always contented that the bravest of them all is the man who acts as a judge at a baby show. But now we have found a man who has gone the whole list of dare-devils one better. To him, without further controversy, we award the fur-lined bath tub.

He is Ernest Linnekamp of Italy. He is not a soldier of fortune, nor has he performed any great physical feat, but he took a great chance and should stand at the head of the list of those who have done the apparently impossible thing.

Linnekamp is a painter of renown, and after years of success in Europe, he came to the United States and tried to pick the 15 most beautiful women of the United States. And he coolly added, that after he had looked them over and picked them out, he was going to paint them.

Today he is a sadder though a wiser man. Most everything happened to him as the result of his attempt. He was sued and he was threatened, and countless other things happened to this brave soul.

It is a sad case. But it should be written in the book that this man attempted what no other man had ever had the daring to do. That out of thousands of beautiful women he attempted to pick a scant 15. He will never try it again, but he deserves a medal for his bravery and his recklessness.

Chronic Loafers Must Quit Parks, Officials Warn

A campaign to rid city parks of chronic loafers who use the shade and coolness afforded there as daily parking places has been started by heads of the park and police departments.

Several complaints have been made lately by women, it is said, who have sought to enjoy the parks but have been embarrassed by men hanging around the parks, apparently with nothing to do but stare. As a result, the park watchmen have been given instructions to order the loafers out and if those are not promptly obeyed to call the city police.

REAL POLITICS

When Pedro, who's running for sheriff
Just over the Mexican line,
Discusses the taxes or tariff
With the lads from the mill or the mine,
The crowd does not heckle or hoot him,
As they do in the old U. S. A.,
But draw automatics and shoot him,
And end his campaign right away.

A candidate badly protected,
Has very good cause to expect
That he'll probably not be elected
For he will not be there to elect,
And that's what he carries two guns for,
And is careful to keep 'em in reach,
For he won't get the office he runs for,
If he's dead 'ere the end of his speech.

No murmur of verbal dissension
Is ever observed in the course
Of a Mexican party convention;
They always are opened with force.
There are no forensic orations;
The voting abruptly begins
As soon as they've made nominations,
And the handiest rifle shot wins.

A row which would pass as a riot
In this sometimes tumultuous land
Would be viewed as an era of quiet
To the south of the Rio Grande.
We think we have witnessed disorder
Among our political powers,
But the people just over the border
Would laugh at that notion of ours.

Thinkers and Politics

A little book by Henri Barbusse called, "The Knife Between the Teeth," is a plea for international communism.

As an argument it is not convincing. In fact, it is not an argument so much as an impassioned appeal.

But in the first part of the book he says some things in regard to the duty of intellectuals in politics which are strinking. Very often what a man says, by the way, is much more interesting and convincing than the gist of his preachment.

He tells us that most people, with the intellectuals at their head, affect to despise politics. They regard politics as a field particularly full of offensive vulgarities.

In the present time and under the present conditions, where the struggle between right and wrong is waging, he considers that this attitude is vicious, that it is "a sign of aristocratic myopia, or, rather, a pretext easily explainable but little excusable, to remain comfortably hidden from the rough and tumble of life amidst clouds and phrases."

The tricks, the pettiness, the sodidness, the dull and narrow passions of politics are but scattered instances, and to build upon them the generalisation that poljtics is an essential evil is an "infantine sophism unworthy of intelligence."

He procedes then to give us some very burning words of exhortation and of warning, in a passage that is almost a classic.

"If the living world is to achieve a better order, or if it is to remain where it is, the matter must be effected by political measures, and all words and ideas are of no avail. To act politically is to pass from dreams to things, from the abstract to the concrete.

"Politics is the effective working out of social thought; politics is life.

"If we admit any sort of connection between theory and practice, we must take our part in political life.

"To leave the men of practical politics alone in their efforts, even if we do so with an amiable neutrality, and to say that we will have no dealings with those men, this is to abandon the cause of humanity."

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE.

CANCER.

Today's aspects are adverse, and decidedly unfavorable to any initiative work, speculation, or new effort. It is a day on which feelings are liable to be easily ruffled, and when foolish temper is prone to take the place of calm and collected judgment. Nothing of a strenuous character, outside of usul avocations, should be attempted, and a persistent effort must be made to control your feelings.

A child born today will give evidences of great nervousness and temperament. It will require forebearance and patience to raise it to satisfactory maturity. It will be quite useless to tell this child "don't" and let it go at that; even in infancy, it will be necessary to reason with it, and explain the "why fors" and the "where fors." By tackling the job, however, in the right spirit, the parents of this child can change its nervousness into steadiness, and make a power for good of its temperament.

If today is your birthday, you worry too much about trifles, which you are apt to magnify into troubles. The chief source of your worry is not real, but imaginary evil-small vexations and trivial afflictions.

In the presence of a great sorrow, all petty troubles disappear you are too ready to take some cherished misery to your bosom, and to pet it there. Very often it is the child of your fancy, and, forgetful of the many means of happiness which lie within your reach, you indulge this spoilt child of yours until it masters you. You shut the door against cheerfulness, and surround yourself with gloom. The habit gives a coloring to your life. This condition is encouraged by your selfishness. You can choose to look at the bright side of things, or at the dark. You can be wrong-headed and wrong-hearted, or the reverse, as you yourself determine. Your disposition is simply willfulness in the wrong direction.

Freedom of will and action is the possession of every man and woman; sometimes it is our glory, and very often it is our shame.

Successful people born on this date, are:

John Cruger, ex-mayor of New York City.

Theodore W. Dwight, educator, the founder of the Columbia School of Law.

Matthew C. D. Borden, merchant.

Rose Hartwick Thorpe, author "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight."

Tom L. Johnson, capitalist and politician.

Irrigation

By A. M. McPHERSON

Kahn Bldg., Eighth and Indiana

Consulting Engineer

SOILS AND SOIL PHYSICS.

Soil Bacteria and Deep Plowing.

A gentleman in this city who owns some land under the irrigation project read what we said yesterday about how difficult it would be to grow crops the first year on spots which had to be leveled off to make a field irrigate well.

He said that when he had his land plowed last he had ordered his men to plow at least ten inches deep and deeper if possible. It was done as he had ordered.

His reason for insisting on deep plowing was that in previous years tenant farmers had only scratched the surface, never going more than three or four inches deep. He thought by deep plowing he would turn up fresh soil and get a better crop. However instead of getting a good crop it is a poor one.

The idea of deep plowing is a good one but not applicable in every case. In fact deep plowing is often the wrong thing. In this particular case what happened no doubt, was that the fertile top soil was turned under so deeply that when the seeds sprouted the roots were unable to reach the fertile soil before the plant food stored in the seed gave out and as a consequence the plants died.

Soil bacteria and their products which are as necessarial to plant growth exist largely in the top few inches of soil, or in that part of the soil that is plowed and stirred up. Turning this soil under deeply puts it beyond the reach of the young plants.

If the gentleman had plowed only six inches deep he would probably have had better crops. Then next year plow eight inches deep and so on until the desired depth had been reached. In other words plow deep gradually.

When the maximum depth of say ten inches had been reached his field would be in far better shape than ever before because the whole ten inches would then be filled with bacteria and plant food.

Deep plowing is generally good farming practice, but where a field has been plowed shallow for years or where land is first broken it is often a mistake.

Next point of destination he has not yet decided, says Mr. Gaston. He is now in the way for a good rest, he declares, before he starts out on another field.

Dissolve Charley Bond Injunction

Judge H. R. Wilson, of the 30th district court, dissolved the temporary injunction and settled the controversy over the $22,000 bond issue of the Geraldine school district of Archer county Wednesday morning. The temporary injunction had been granted when the petition was presented.

Those asking for the injunction asked for an order restraining the sale of bonds and the expenditure of the money on the contention that the election had been illegal.

It was, however, held by the court that the amount to be charged for the printing of the bonds and the discount was excessive and the court held that the injunction should remain in force in regard to this phase of the case.

INTERURBAN TO WICHITA TALKED

This City Probable Terminus Of Electrified Line From Dallas

Wichita Falls people who have been to Dallas and Denton lately report considerable interest in those places regarding building of an interurban line from Dallas to Denton with Wichita Falls as the probable terminus for the line at some future date.

The Dallas-Denton branch of the Katy railroad is being electrified and it is expected that electric cars will begin operating over the line September 1. Already poles to carry the trolley wires are strewn along the right of way of the railroad, and other work is being done. Five interurban cars for use on the line have arrived in Dallas.

Poles to carry wires connecting the interurban system with the high voltage line reaching from Fort Worth to Bowie have already been scattered along the route to Decatur, and it is believed that the line will eventually reach Wichita Falls.

It has not been announced what provision will be made for the present Dallas to Wichita Falls trains, but it is believed they will continue to be operated for a short time after the interurban is built to Denton.

UNION PUTS BAN ON PROMOTIONS

Scheme For Labor Day Condemned By Carpenters

At a special session of the local carpenters' union Tuesday night a resolution was passed in which the members unanimously announced that they were opposed to any promotion schemes for the Labor Day programs and celebrations. The members of the union said that the Labor Temple association had been induced to place in the hands of an agency a promotion scheme for the celebrations and although the carpenters own a controlling interest in the Labor Temple association they were not consulted concerning this proposition.

One of the members said that the carpenters were taking the stand because they wished to protect the local merchants. He added that he believed it wrong for merchants to spend their money for advertising which is not worth the amount they are called upon to pay for it. He added that some kind of a celebration would be given but that the merchants of the city would not be forced to put out money on worthless advertising.

Dorothy Dix

When a Man Begins to Roll Up His Sleeves and Work for a Girl; When a Fireside Looks Better Than a Cabaret; When He Doesn't Want Her to Do and Say a Million Things He Encourages Other Girls to Do—Then He's in Love for Keeps.

A young man who had many heart attacks, each of which he believed at the time to be fatal, which proved to be only a mild case of chills and thrills that was cured by the next pretty face he encountered, asks me how he can distinguish near-love from real love, and tell when Cupid has dealt him a mortal blow.

Alas, son, I know not. No woman has ever yet been able to assay a man's love vows, and determine what was pure gold and what dross in them. Still less can she tell beforehand whether she is a passing fancy or a grand passion. Even matrimony does not solve the problem, for the majority of wives spend their lives guessing as to whether their husbands regard them as lady loves or useful kitchen utensils.

Even men themselves appear to be unable to determine whether they are in love for keeps, or just pro tem, as is witnessed by the fact that thousands of men diagnose their sentimental symptoms wrongly, and even go to the extent of applying the drastic remedy of marriage to what they believe to be lovesickness, only to find out that what they though to be an undying affection was merely what our Christian Science friends call "an error of mortal mind," and that they did not have it after all.

Whether there is no acid test that a man can apply to his emotions to find out whether they are the real, genuine, blown-in-the-bottle kind of love that will keep uncorked for years, or whether it is only the made-overnight stuff that will grow flat and stale, and become unpalatable in a day, I do not know. But, at any rate, a man is wise to try to get a line of his own heart before he takes the journey to the altar with any lady, for divorces are messy things and alimony is hard money to pay. And nothing gets more on your nerves than having to live with a life partner for whom you have lost your taste.

Speaking by and large, and not by the card, I should say that the first sign of real love, that a man can detect in his system is the desire to work for some girl. If she speeds him up, he is in love with her. If she slows him down, he is not. If she makes him roll up his sleeves and set his teeth and go at his job with more energy and pep than he ever did before, if, when he thinks of her at night, he gets up and sets his alarm clock for ten minutes earlier, then it is love.

For when a man really loves a woman, he doesn't take it out in mooning around and writing sonnets to her eyebrows. He gets out and hustles so as to bring that vine-wreathed cottage nearer, and work isn't a drudgery any more. It is the magic pathway that leads to Her, and he is trying to find a short cut to it.

The next symptom of real love is when a man becomes obessed by the desire to pay a woman's bills, when he actually looks forward with pleasure to doing without the things he wants in order to give her food and clothes.

As long as a man shudders at the thought of the high cost of living, and gets cold feet every time he passes a millinery store, he is safe. But when he begins to figure out that two can live as cheaply as one, and every time he sees a display of bungalow aprons he wants to go in and buy the whole lot, he had better watch his step, for he is on his way to the Marriage License Bureau.

Then there is the setting down test. True love rejuvinates the old, but it ages the young. The minute a man really falls in love he wants to quit playing and begin the serious business of life. He feels suddenly old and sober and responsible. A fireside looks better to him than a cabaret, and a quiet talk than jazzing.

Therefore, if a girl is just a playfellow, if he thinks of her only in terms of gay parties, and believes that they are predestined mates because they are such good dance partners, he does well to distrust his affections for her, no matter how much she may fascinate him. That sort of love doesn't last. You either have to settle down, or settle up, when you get married. And those who have to settle up pay a price that bankrupts them.

Another test of real love is a man's attitude toward a girl. Men have two standards of conduct for women—a very liberal one for the women they care nothing about, and a very rigid one for the women they love.

As long as you think it all right for a girl to go on wild parties, and drink out of men's flasks, and skylark with the boys, and say and do risky things, you don't love her, even if you do like her tremendously and find her a good pal, and think that matrimony wouldn't be such a pill with a good sport wife like that.

When you find the One Girl you will want her to wear enough clothes to cover her decently, and you will want her to be gentle and ladylike and sweet and pure and innocent. You don't want her to do a million things that you encourage other girls to do.

For you will be thinking of her as your wife, with your name and honor in her hands, and you will want her to measure up to the standard that the late Mr. Caesar set up for good wives.

The final test of love is when you don't care a rap whether a girl is pretty or homely or stylish or dowdy or brilliant or ordinary, or whether she comes up to your ideals or breaks them into smithereens, but you know she just looks good to you. You don't know why you have picked her out, but you have. She's IT. There is just something about her that has got you, and when you are with her you are peaceful and happy and satisfied, and you know beyond all peradventure that she is your woman.

And that's the love that lasts.

(From Business Survey)

A chain store maintains a wide range of goods, they profit from many stores, and many sales. There is less overhead per sale, and through large quantity buying they effect great savings for their customers.

The chain store must sell goods of unquestioned quality or they cannot hope to win trade, and they must sell at a very small margin of profit or they will have a slow turnover. So by selling great volume at a small individual profit, the company is able to succeed and to give the public exceptional values.

The J. C. Penny company is one of the great chain stores which have succeeded in providing the public with goods of merit at reasonable prices. And that the company is gaining the volume of the trade one need only examine their recent report. According to this report for the first four months this year the company sales amounted to $17,882,342. This represents a gain of $3,415,000 over the same period last year. The J. C. Penny company is rapidly taking its place at the head of the great chain store companies, and they are doing it upon the only sound basis it can be done, of merchandising a greater volume of goods of unquestioned merit at prices that attract trade, and to hold that trade by a service that wins the loyalty of their customers. This is the only formula for success, and the J. C. Penny company officers have applied it with unusual effect as their latest report shows.

When a Man Begins to Roll Up His Sleeves and Work for a Girl; When a Fireside Looks Better Than a Cabaret; When He Doesn't Want Her to Do and Say a Million Things He Encourages Other Girls to Do—Then He's in Love for Keeps.

A young man who had many heart attacks, each of which he believed at the time to be fatal, which proved to be only a mild case of chills and thrills that was cured by the next pretty face he encountered, asks me how he can distinguish near-love from real love, and tell when Cupid has dealt him a mortal blow.

Alas, son, I know not. No woman has ever yet been able to assay a man's love vows, and determine what was pure gold and what dross in them. Still less can she tell beforehand whether she is a passing fancy or a grand passion. Even matrimony does not solve the problem, for the majority of wives spend their lives guessing as to whether their husbands regard them as lady loves or useful kitchen utensils.

Even men themselves appear to be unable to determine whether they are in love for keeps, or just pro tem, as is witnessed by the fact that thousands of men diagnose their sentimental symptoms wrongly, and even go to the extent of applying the drastic remedy of marriage to what they believe to be lovesickness, only to find out that what they though to be an undying affection was merely what our Christian Science friends call "an error of mortal mind," and that they did not have it after all.

Whether there is no acid test that a man can apply to his emotions to find out whether they are the real, genuine, blown-in-the-bottle kind of love that will keep uncorked for years, or whether it is only the made-overnight stuff that will grow flat and stale, and become unpalatable in a day, I do not know. But, at any rate, a man is wise to try to get a line of his own heart before he takes the journey to the altar with any lady, for divorces are messy things and alimony is hard money to pay. And nothing gets more on your nerves than having to live with a life partner for whom you have lost your taste.

Speaking by and large, and not by the card, I should say that the first sign of real love, that a man can detect in his system is the desire to work for some girl. If she speeds him up, he is in love with her. If she slows him down, he is not. If she makes him roll up his sleeves and set his teeth and go at his job with more energy and pep than he ever did before, if, when he thinks of her at night, he gets up and sets his alarm clock for ten minutes earlier, then it is love.

For when a man really loves a woman, he doesn't take it out in mooning around and writing sonnets to her eyebrows. He gets out and hustles so as to bring that vine-wreathed cottage nearer, and work isn't a drudgery any more. It is the magic pathway that leads to Her, and he is trying to find a short cut to it.

The next symptom of real love is when a man becomes obessed by the desire to pay a woman's bills, when he actually looks forward with pleasure to doing without the things he wants in order to give her food and clothes.

As long as a man shudders at the thought of the high cost of living, and gets cold feet every time he passes a millinery store, he is safe. But when he begins to figure out that two can live as cheaply as one, and every time he sees a display of bungalow aprons he wants to go in and buy the whole lot, he had better watch his step, for he is on his way to the Marriage License Bureau.

Then there is the setting down test. True love rejuvinates the old, but it ages the young. The minute a man really falls in love he wants to quit playing and begin the serious business of life. He feels suddenly old and sober and responsible. A fireside looks better to him than a cabaret, and a quiet talk than jazzing.

Therefore, if a girl is just a playfellow, if he thinks of her only in terms of gay parties, and believes that they are predestined mates because they are such good dance partners, he does well to distrust his affections for her, no matter how much she may fascinate him. That sort of love doesn't last. You either have to settle down, or settle up, when you get married. And those who have to settle up pay a price that bankrupts them.

Another test of real love is a man's attitude toward a girl. Men have two standards of conduct for women—a very liberal one for the women they care nothing about, and a very rigid one for the women they love.

As long as you think it all right for a girl to go on wild parties, and drink out of men's flasks, and skylark with the boys, and say and do risky things, you don't love her, even if you do like her tremendously and find her a good pal, and think that matrimony wouldn't be such a pill with a good sport wife like that.

When you find the One Girl you will want her to wear enough clothes to cover her decently, and you will want her to be gentle and ladylike and sweet and pure and innocent. You don't want her to do a million things that you encourage other girls to do.

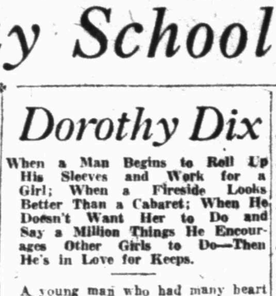

For you will be thinking of her as your wife, with your name and honor in her hands, and you will want her to measure up to the standard that the late Mr. Caesar set up for good wives.

The final test of love is when you don't care a rap whether a girl is pretty or homely or stylish or dowdy or brilliant or ordinary, or whether she comes up to your ideals or breaks them into smithereens, but you know she just looks good to you. You don't know why you have picked her out, but you have. She's IT. There is just something about her that has got you, and when you are with her you are peaceful and happy and satisfied, and you know beyond all peradventure that she is your woman.

And that's the love that lasts.

Crabs Plunge to 8 to 2 Victory Over Spuds

SOUTHPAW CRUMPLER HOLDS SLUGGERS TO FIVE SAFETIES

Coombs Parks One in Fourth With One on Base for Homelings' Only Scores

By BLONDY CROSS.

Tex Wisterzil and his Galveston nine stormed the Spud lot Thursday, routed Paul Musser, and took to Lefty Wright like three-year-olds to an all-day sucker. Lefty Roy Crumpler was in perfect southpaw form, held the homelings to five safe swats, and gave up two runs.

Galveston captured the initial tilt of the two-game series by an over balanced tabulation of 8 to 2.

The hardest hitting ball nine in the Texas loop was held at bay by Lefty Roy in all but one of nine innings of argument. In the fourth couplet, Cecil Coombs, otherwise known as Cece, Oldfolks, Rookie, and a few other and various cognomens, poled the pellet for a home run ride over the port barriers with Dallas Locker of Wichita Falls perched on second. This whack gave the Tannermen their sole contribution to the run column for the day. At few other stages in the game did the Spuds threaten to get to Crumpler for more than a base bingle or so.

Bans Applaud Musser.

Paul Musser, veteran saliva merchant, opened the first on the rubber for the homelings, and outside of a break by the Crabs for a marker in the second act, seemed on the verge of giving Crumpler a tough run for honors of the day. Musser made the grade quite efficiently through six innings, but jumped for cover in the seventh when safe knocks and an infield miscue started the visitors on a tour of the paths.

And Spudder fans crossed up the dope sheet by cheering the toiler in defeat as he walked to the dugout, showing their appreciation of the fact Musser had been trying hard to win.

Crabs scratched at the door in the first, but didn't get through. Shortstopper Turgeon made all three putouts. Hurt opened the conflict with a pop to Turge. Brandrimer fluked one back of third which went for two bases. Brandrimer was held at the hot corner cushion. Bagwell hoisted to short and was followed by Brown who duplicated.

Crabs Start in Second.

Galveston squeezed around for a marker in the second. Mueller drew a pass. Burkett walloped one to port for a pair of pillows, and Mueller stopped temporarily at third. Morrow aviated to left. Coombs made the catch, and pegged perfectly to the platter, scaring Mueller back to the bag. Crumpler followed with a sacrifice hoist to the same sector, tabulating Mueller. Hurt popped to White at second.

Three Crabs batted in the third. Bandrimer flied out to left. Whiteman singled through short, but was nailed at second, Jonnard to Turgeon, on Bagwell's third strike. Musser whiffed a pair in the fourth, and the other Crab was cut down by Jonnard who caught a foul.

Coombs Hits It Over.

Spuds got away for two in the latter half of the fourth. With Locker on base by virtue of a four-ball donation, Cecil Coombs hammered the horsehide across the left barriers, a circuit drive.

Morrow led off the Galveston fifth with a single to left, but passed away on first while Musser and the Spudder infield were retiring the next three batters via the popup route.

Slight menace was indicated in the sixth by the visitors when Whiteman, first up, bingled to left. Spuds tightened, however, and nobody got clear around.

Rally In Seventh

The well known seventh inning rally was quite noticeable in the Galveston half of the round. Six hits and a couple of miscues amassed a sextet of counters in the Crab scoring column. Musser came in for a bit of rough treatment, and was forced to evacuate. Lefty Wright swarmed out to the dome and met disaster face to face. Lefty got the worst of the meeting. Morrow introduced the inning with a two-cushion bombardment of the port palisades. Crumpler laid one down third base way which bobbled. Crumper made first, and Morrow rested at third. Hurt doubled to left, scoring two. Brandrimer singled through short, advancing Hurt to third. Whitman lined out to Tanner. Wright was sent to the rescue. Bagwell bobbled one between the box and third, beating it out and, loading the paths. Brown cleaned the cushions perfectly when he singled by second and the ball got through Fitz to center. Mueller fouled out to Jonnard. Burkett singled through short, tabulating Brown who was on third. Morrow, at bat his second time for the inning, was retired by Turgeon to first.

Another In Ninth.

Galveston brought the score up to 8-2, Crabs in the ninth. Bagwell led off with a bounder down the third base line, an easy out had it not bounced over Tanner's head, which went for two bases. Brown was called out on strikes, but Mueller sent Bagwell to the pan with a liner to center.

BANKERS DASH POND'S HOPES

Seven Runs to Win In Last Knots' Laundry Chances

Halted on their last jump for the title to last-half season's chances in the Twilight league, and that with victory apparently within their grasp—that will go down in history as the sad turn of fate for Pond Laundry. Security National bank will be marked up as the perpetrators of the staggering deal, for they took in Pond yesterday by the close margin of 11 to 10.

It was in the seventh and last frame Security pulled out of its second-to-cellar pace and ripped away Pond's game. At the beginning of that fateful stanza, Pond was leading 10-4. Seven tallies in one inning to win—that was Security. Pond loped through with their half, scoreless, needless. Security started and sent across six scores for the tie before a man was counted out. Then Pond tightened and two went by the board. To save an extra inning and make Pond's defeat sure, Andree socked out a three-bagger and Norwood trotted in with the contest.

Some real bigtime baseball was played. Heffner, shortstopper for the loser, turned in a fielding game such as has not been seen before on Twilight this year. Five chances with ease he handled.

Riley poled two three-baggers for Security. Andree, with three safe cracks and the deciding blow, was high in the way of the willow.

Carpenter and Brown, Merrill slung ordinarily good baseball, but the breaks went to Security at last. In that seventh, the wreckers batted around and then some.

Levine Grabs Decision Over Rivers In Eight Rounds of Fastest Milling

Lewis and Altus in Slashing Draw—Paul Gets Edge on Denton—Savage Loses Fast One to Riley—Duke on Bill

SPORTS—LLEVINE GRABS—DCC11 .....

The prelims and semi-finals of the legion card saved the bill Thursday night, because the Maywood-Trammel bout was the poorest staged here this year.

Trammel wouldn't fight. Maywood fought the best he know how, but Maywood's style of battle is never conductive to action which borders on the thrilling.

At the end of 10 rounds of slow milling, Referee Everetts called the affair even up. Trammel had a bit the edge during the early rounds, but Maywood scored more during the latter cantos. Neither boxer was hurt.

The fight was so rotten and so interspersed with wrestling that one enterprising fan chirped after it was all over, "If those fellows had had hrons they would have gored each other to death."

However, taking all in all, fight fans were treated to the best card of the year regardless of the poorness of the main evnt. Tabby Levine of Wichita Falls took a referee's decision over Joe Rivers of Fort Worth in eight rounds of the fastest scrapping produced in a local ring this season. Rivers proved a willing mixer, but lacked the steam in his punches that Levine had. This bout was a main event in itself, and it so far eclipsed the Trammel-Maywood go that there can be no comparison made. The boys are feathers.

There were two referee's used, and each worked in an efficient manner. Everett handled the main go and semi-final. Referee Adolph Friedman took care of the rest of the bouts. Friedman gave Ewell Paul of Wichita Falls a decision in six rounds over Jack Denton of Amarillo. Both boys were out for blood, and fought furiously practically the entire route. This fight was a good one, also. Paul, although not outweighing Denton, according to announcement of weights, had such a long reach that his opponent was hard put to stand up and swap punches.

Red Lewis of Galveston and Young Altus of Altus, Okla., tore into each other for six rounds, receiving a draw. This bout was the best heavyweight scrap, doubtless ever staged in Wichita Falls. The two kept at it hammer and tongs practically all the way, slashing and tearing in a manner to make the average bantamweight ashamed of himself when it comes down to speed of movement and willingness to fight.

Sam Riley of Altus, 147 pounds, gained a decision over Mickey Savage, 133 pounds, in four rounds. Riley won all right, but Savage carried the fight all the way, did practically every bit of the leading. Riley was good at countering, and packed more of a sock than did Mickey. Savage would shoot a right or left and Riley would counter with rapid fire short and stiff, left and right hooks. Had the bout been billed for six or more rounds, Savage would probably have beaten his heavier opponent, it appeared during the fourth round. This bout was worth the price of admission alone, and it kept the exceptionally large crowd in a steady uproar.

Benny Hunt, local negro boxer, floored Rattlesnake in the second round of a four-round curtain raiser, but the bout was called a draw. This fight, not as good as the rest, but better than the main go, was enjoyable due to the antics of the boxers and their amusing style of fighting.

Walker Risks Title in Battle With Leonard

NEW YORK, July 16.—Articles of agreement for a 12-round no-decision contest between Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., world's welterweight champion, and Benny Leonard of New York, world's lightweight title holder, to be held in Boyle's Thirty Acres in Jersey City on Thursday evening, August 21 were signed today by the two principals and Tex Rickard, the promoter. The match will be for Walker's welterweight title.

Another stipulation is that the winner of the match will sign to meet Dave Shade, Pacific coast welterweight in a title watch.

U. S. ROWERS IN OLYMPIC WIN

Wills and Richards Lead In Tennis Victories Of Day

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, July 17.—With a brilliant all-around showing on the various Olympic battlefields, the United States today captured the rowing crown after a series of seven sensational finals at Argenteuil, took a big lead in the swimming competition at Les Tourelles and remained in the fight for all five tennis titles on the Colombes courts.

In addition the boxers continued their conquering march, with four straight victories to their credit in the afternoon and two in the evening.

The rowing championship went to the United States which scored a point margin over Switzerland. Yale's spectacular eight oared victory and the double sculls triumph of Jack Kelly and Paul Costello, were the high spots, while at the nets, Miss Helen Wills, the American champion, and Vincent Richards led the list of four American victories, the former defeating her old rival, Mrs. Molla Mallory and Richards taking the measure of the Frenchman, La Coste. Two American entries, however, Mrs. Jessup and R. Norris Williams, fell by the wayside.

The men swimmers scored decisive victories in the diving and breast stroke contests, rolling up points which put the United States in the lead with a total of 56 to Australia's 26. The modern Pentathlon came to a conclusion with the United States outside the scoring the first American being in eleventh place.

BRAVES PASS AWAY, 5 TO 0

First Perfect Game Tossed By Card Pitcher Since '76

ST. LOUIS, July 17.—Pitching a no hit game, the first for this season, Jess Haines of the St. Louis Cardinals, shut out the Boston Braves today, 5 to 0, before a crowd of 15,000 drawn by a tuberculosis society benefit. This was the first time a Cardinal mounds man had pitched a no-hit game since 1876. Haines fanned five men and walked three. Two Braves died on first base, while another expired on second, reaching there when two passes were issued in the sixth inning.

HINES IS 64TH TO HURL PERFECT GAME.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Jess Hines' feat in holding the Boston Braves down without a hit or a run today, is the sixty-fourth no-hit, no-run game to be pitched in the National league since organization of the elder circuit, according to available records of the league. Furthermore it is the first one to be hurled by a St. oLuis Pitcher since George Washington Bradley, now a Philadelphia polic officer, pitched a no-hit game against the Hartford National league in St. Louis on July 15, 1876, the year the National league was organized.

Hines, game, like Bradley's, cannot be termed a perfect game as in both games players of the defeated team reached first and scond base.

The support behind Hines was perfect but he walked three men, two of them in one inning, forcing a man to second base. Despite the imperfection Hines' name will go down in the league record as the first to twirl a no-hit, no-run game in 1924.

Eighth and Ohio

Prairie, Gulf, and Texas Co. Cut High Gravity Oil to $1.75 a Bbl.

FOLLOW LEAD OF SINCLAIR

No Major Purcheser of This District Left Paying Old Prices

The last of the major purchasers of crude oil in north and central Texas officially dropped their prices for high gravity oil from their connections in those sections yesterday when the Texas company, the Prairie Oil and Gas company, and the Gulf Pipeline company posted new prices, the top grade being listed thus: 33 degrees gravity and above $1.75 a barrel.

This is in effect a lowering to the plane of the Sinclair Oil Purchasing company's posted prices of Tuesday, where for the second time in 72 hours they revised their prices, lowering the top grade of oil three degrees in each instance, the final top price at last being $1.75 for all oil above 33 degrees gravity.

This price is a reduction of 50 cents a barrel on all oil measuring above 39 degrees gravity, and 25 cents a barrel on oil measuring between 36 and 39 degrees gravity.

The Gulf Pipeline company made the initial cut yesterday, their bulletins being posted at the opening of business, as was the Texas company's. The Prairie followed a little later in the day. This was the second revision of Texas company prices within 24 hours, new prices posted Wednesday morning naming 36 degrees gravity and above at $2.00, in accordance with the first cut of the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company's cut of last Saturday.

The new prices of the Texas company and the Gulf Pipeline company apply to north and north central Texas; of the Prairie Oil and Gas company to Oklahoma, Kansas and north Texas.

The Magnolia's old schedule is still from 40 cents to 25 cents below the schedules of these companies. The Humble Oil and Refining company purchases oil in this district on the basis of Prairie prices. Thus do the cuts and revisions of yesterday leave this district without a single purchaser of high gravity crude whose prices remain at the old $2.00@$2.25 level.

The schedule of the three companies as posted yesterday follows: (The main at the old $2.00-$2.25 level.

Below 30 degrees gravity	$1.25
30 to and including 32.9	1.45
33 degrees and above	1.75

FINDLAY, Ohio, July 17.—The Ohio Oil company today reduced the quotations of seven grades of central west crude oil 10 cents a barrel. The new prices are Lima $2.08; Indiana $1.88; Illinois $1.87; Princeton $1.87; Plymouth $1.25; Waterloo $1.35 and Wooster $1.90.

These are the only activities of the Texhoma on this lease at present. Both are located in the southwest corner of section 5, Burnett land, SA&MG survey, abstract 271, Wichita county.

To the north of the Orton land group of producers, the Texhoma has set casing at 1,776 feet and expects to drill in today on their No. 4 Kemp and Kell, direct north offset to the Panhandle Refining company's No. 1, B. Orton, 1580 foot producer.

With the exception of a wildcat test drilling on the Boulding land in Montague county near Nocona the Texhoma has no other field activities at present.

STANDARD CUTS GASOLINE 1c IN INDIANA TEERITORY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 17.—The Standard Oil company of Indiana today announced a reduction of one cent a gallon in the price of gasoline for its entire territory, effective tomorrow. The company said the action was made possible by a reduction in the price of crude oil recently made by the companies furnishing crude petroleum.

This follows a similar reduction by Standard Oil company of New York, Tuesday, for all of its territory, including New York state and New England. At that time the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation and the Texas company announced similar reductions.

Prairie Oil-Gas Co. Announces Purchase—Proration to Supersede Former Policy of Run-Proration

Simultaneously with the posting of their new revised price schedule yesterday morning the Prairie Oil and Gas company caused a bulletin to be posted at the local offices of the Prairie Pipeline company announcing a change in their proration policies. According to the bulletin posted yesterday morning one-half of oil run through the lines of the Prairie Pipeline company will be purchased and paid for as heretofore, the remaining oil to be stored, to be bought and paid for within a year.

With the posting of the bulletin the position of the Prairie Pipeline company in regard to making runs from wells was made clear also, that company now to work on the basis of taking what oil it can of old production, allowing no well or lease to have to be shut down because of insufficient storage, although taking practically no production of wells completed after the date of the bulletin's effectiveness, July 17, 7 a. m.

Previous to yesterday morning the Prairie Pipeline company had conformed to policies outlined in a bulletin of June 30, announcing that effective July 1 the company would prorate runs from wells, the proration in the case of Archer county reducing the runs of that company about half to 2,500 barrels daily.

Explanations made by company officials yesterday were to the effect that in the future where practicable the daily output of a well or lease would be run, and that enough old oil would be run from storage to allow one tank on each lease for emergency storage. It was stated that the company frowned upon the drilling of any new wells, but that it was possible that connections would be made where it was necessary to drill offsets. The company expressly stated that it was not their intention to cause a shut down of any lease through lack of storage facilities or failure to take oil, but that of oil taken and run only one-half would be bought, and the remaining half stored to be bought and paid for within a year.

United States Daily Output Up 24,400 Bbls.

The daily average of crude oil production of the United States increased 24,400 barrels during the week ending July 12, according to figures of the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute made public yesterday. Oklahoma showed a daily average production of 478,300 barrels, an increase of 1,350; Kansas 77,700, increase 1200; north Texas 79,050, increase 200; central Texas 168,650, decrease 700; north Louisiana 55,950, increase 1850; Arkansas 148,650, decrease 1300; gulf coast 126,500, increase 10,850; eastern 108,000, increase 500; California 620,200, increase 700; Wyoming and Montana 129,850, increase 9,650.

Daily average imports of petroleum at principal ports for the week ended July 12 were 171,143 barrels compared with 237,571 for the previous week.

Gasoline stocks decreased 922,323 barrels during June, according to the report, which covers approximately 65 per cent of the operating capacity of the United States. Pipe lines and tank farm crude oil stocks east of the Rockies increased 5,240,000 barrels in June.

Gulf coast crude oil was reduced 25 cents a barrel, grade "A" quoted at $1.75 a barrel and grade "B" $1.45. There was no other changes reported for the major district, Pennsylvania crude, Bradford district, being quoted at $3.25 a barrel; midcontinent $1.25 to $2.25 and California crude $1 to $1.40 a barrel.

GRAY CO. WELL GETS NEW TEST

Holmes Plugging Back to 2,813 to Test Sand At That Depth

W. H. Holmes and others are making preparations to pull casing and plug back to 2,813 feet in their cable tools test in Gray county about nine mi s east of La Fors, a few miles from the recently completed Wilcox well. Six-inch casing is being pulled now from its seat at 3,093 feet and should be out of the hole today or tomorrow.

Eight-inch casing was set on top of twelve feet of sand encountered at 2,813 feet 9 inches, depth measured with a steel line for just such a circumstance as this. Some water trouble prevented the completion for a producer from the sand at this depth when it was first drilled and it was drilled deeper. With the shoving of the Wilcox Oil company's well not far distant at approximately the same depth it was decided to plug back, try to shut off the water, give the sand a shot and make a well if possible.

OIL STOCKS FALL BUT RECOVER

Cuts In Crude And Refined Products Unsteady Price

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Strength and activity of the low-priced Western railroad shares was the outstanding feature of today's irregular stock market. Industrials showed the effects of profit taking and bear selling in the early trading, but developed a firmer tone during the latter part of the session.

Rails bounded upward under the leadership of the Rock Island issues, the common closing 2 1-2 points higher at 33 3-4 after having crossed 34, the 6 per cent preferred showing a net gain of nearly a point at 75 3-4 and the 7 per cent preferred climbing 1 3-8 to 87 7-8, all at new high prices for the year. Revival of merger rumors was an important influence in the accumulation of these issues.

Other strong spots in the railroad group included Kansas City Southern, Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred, Western Maryland second preferred, Peoria and Eastern, Chicago and Northwestern preferred and the "Katy" and Missouri-Pacific issues.

Fresh selling developed in the steel shares on the publication of relatively poor quarterly earnings report by Republic, but all made moderate recovery and net losses were limited to fractions, Bethlehem Steel touched a new 1924 low at 41 1-2 on unfavorable dividend rumors but snapped back later to 42 7-8.

Oils were subjected to further pressure on the extension of price cuts for crude and refined products, but they steadied later on the announcement of a 50 cent cut in mid-continent crude by Prairie, coupled with the statement that prorating in that field would end about August 15. News of the retirement of J. S. Cosden as president of Cosden and company did not upset the market for these shares. Pan American "B" closed more than a point higher and Atlantic Refining which has been under pressure recently as a result of a court decision awarding large damages against that company to the Superior Oil company, also made good recovery, showing a net gain of 3 points at 83 1-4.

Copper shares developed a firm tone on buying based on the belief that a settlement of the reparations problem would stimulate European consumption of the red metal. American Smelting and Refining closed more than 2 points higher at 67 and Utah advanced a point to 71. Sugars lost ground on unfavorable trade reports.

WHEAT HITS NEW HIGH LEVEL

Report of Damage To Canadian Crop Sets New Mark

CHICAGO, July 17.—Estimates that the wheat crop of the three prairie provinces of Canada had been curtailed 200,000,000 to 250,000,000 bushels led to further high price record breaking here today. All deliveries of wheat, oats, and rye reached a new top for the season. Wheat closed nervous, 2 to 2 1-2 cents net advance, with corn 1 3-4 to 4 1-2 cents up, oats showing 3-4 to 1 3-4 cents gain, and provisions up 20 to 40 cents.

In the face of immense sales to realize profits, the wheat market here finished at the best prices of the day and year. Considerable wavering had taken place at first owing to uncertainty over the effects of rains in Canada, but the market soon began to soar when it was seen that Winnipeg quotations were up and that reports from Canada were continuing to pour in telling of severe crop damages. A large territory surrounding Saskatoon was said to have suffered practically complete failure of wheat production and farmers there were said to be turning their cattle into the fields.

Except September delivery, corn as well as other cereals over-topped the season's high price record. Receipts were abnormally meager, temperatures too cool and crop reports unfavorable. In oats, the Canadian news was again the factor.

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—The cotton market today was active and aside from a moderate decline in the early trading on improved weather in the eastern belt, the trend of prices was upward. Although July was comparatively inactive locally, it advanced suddenly to 28.10 near midsession, or 70 points over the previous close in sympathy with the jump of 100 points in New York where shorts apparently are experiencing somewhat of a squeeze. October advanced from 24.92, the low point of the morning 25.77, or 85 points up, while December advanced from 24.77 to 25.60, or 83 points up. The highest points were reached in the final trading and the close showed net gains for the day of 65 points on July and 75 to 76 points on new crop months.

Judge Applies "Rule of Reason" And Gives Defendants Decision In State Gasoline Pump Suit

State Files Appeal And Case Goes to Higher Courts

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, July 17.—Three Texas oil companies today escaped millions of dollars in fines by a decision of Judge Calhoun of the Travis county district court in holding for the defendants in the anti-trust cases brought by the state against the Texas company and the Gulf Refining company of Houston and the Producers Oil & Refining company of Fort Worth. The companies were charged with restraint of trade in the leasing of gasoline pumps with a provision that the retailer should use only the products of the company.

The companies have in effect hundreds of contracts providing for the leasing of pumps and other equipment. The equipment is leased, according to charges of the attorney general, with the understanding that the retailers will use only the gasoline and cash sold by the company leasing the equipment.

Should the attorney generally finally be upheld in the higher courts it is estimated that the fines will run as high as $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Judge Calhoun applied "the rule of reason" as laid down by the United States supreme court. He held that the various contracts were separate agreements with each individual retailer and therefore not in restraint of trade. He stated that the law in Texas to be that a lessor may lease property with the understanding that the leasee should not buy similar products from competing concerns. Similar agreements have been held by the federal courts not to be in restraint of trade and the judge said his decision would follow those courts. The state gave notice of appeal.

The chums had heard water running somewhere. As they were thirsty, Billy walked to the cellar steps and was half way up, with Stubby and Button just behind him, when they heard some one exclaim. "Chester, come quick! Come quick! The water is running in the sink, and the cellar floor is flooded."

This was followed by the loud laughter of two people.

"Whatever shall we do?" said a girl's distressed voice.

"Get a mop and mop it up!" replied a boy.

"But the mop is in the cellar, and I'll get my feet wet if I cross the floor to go to the cellar. Besides, I have on my best white shoes."

"Where do you keep the broom? That will do."

"Behind the kitchen door, usually, but with the house all torn up with housecleaning, I don't know where it is."

"I'll find it. You stay out of the room so you won't get wet."

"Who ever would have thought that just because I happened to set that coffee pot over the hole in the sink it would make it overflow?"

"No one would," answered the boy. "And here is all this mess just because we hadn't any sense and tried to cool a bottle of ginger ale by setting it in the coffee pot and letting the water run on it."

The three listeners on the stairs heard him get the broom from behind the kitchen door.

"Where are you going to sweep the water?" asked the girl.

"Down the cellar stairs! It won't hurt anything down there," and before Billy, Stubby or Button could move, a deluge of water struck them full in the face, blinding them and sousing them from the tips of their noses to the ends of their tails.

This made Button sneeze, and he climbed back to the top of the boxes. Billy turned on the stairs, but before he could really face about, another sweep of the broom sent a second deluge on him, and blinded by water and mad with rage he rushed up the stairs to escape it. Instead of getting out of the way, he ran straight into the boy who was sweeping, which surprised the boy so that he let go the broom handle and it, too, flew out of his hands and hit Billy on the head. This made Billy so angry that he jumped for the boy and butted him straight into the sink, where he sat down in the overflowing basin. The girl, too panic-stricken to move, stood in the doorway wringing her hands and crying, "Dont butt me, Mr. Billy Goat! I didn't do a thing!"

(But Billy is angry and we will have to wait till tomorrow to see if he does.)

TECH CLUB SEES WATER PLANT

Outing Enjoyed By Large Crowd At Pleasant Spot

At one of the most instructive and enjoyable picnics given in Wichita Falls this summer approximately 50 members of the Technical club and their families met at the Wichita Falls Electric and Water plant south of the city Thursday evening. The picnic was the second of four that will be held by the Technical club this summer. The first one was the Texhoma refinery. The place selected by the committee is one of the most beautiful spots in Wichita Falls, with several bodies of water, shrubbery, flowers, and a large spray which keeps the entire vicinity cool.

Explains Electric Plant.

Preceeding the eating of sandwiches, cantaloupes, ice cream, cake, lemonade and everything that goes with a successful picnic, W. F. Ivers, connected with the electrical part of the plant illustrated the works of the plant by aid of charts. He traced the production of the electricity from the time that fuel oil was used until electricity was placed in the homes.

Mr. Ivers said that the local plant had an oil storage capacity of 75,000 barrels and that the plant consumed 400 barrels daily or approximately one and a half cars. He further added that the total transmission lines controlled by the plant was 250 miles and that the complete net work of lines would equal 1,200 miles. He pointed out how the adjoining towns were dependent on the local plant for electricity and that Bomarton would be added to the list Friday. He said that the local plant would soon be connected with the Dallas plant by the way of Decatur and Denton and when this line was finished Dallas would be partly dependent on Wichita Falls for some electricity.

Mr. Ivers said that the local plant supplied 6,800 homes, 1,650 stores and factories, 275 ranges, 1,500 washing machines, and 2,500 vacuum cleaners.

Explains Water Methods.

Following Mr. Ivers' speech, Frank Lawton, manager of the Wichita Falls water department explained the method in which the water was placed in the homes in Wichita Falls. By aid of charts, Mr. Lawton traced the process of the water from the time that it left Lake Wichita until it was placed in homes in Wichita Falls. He explained how the water was purified and filtered. He added that 4,700,000 gallons of water had been consumed in Wichita Falls Wednesday. In purifying the water Mr. Lawton said that 100 pounds of alum was used daily.

Following the two speeches the crowd was conducted through the plant and shown the different departments in the same. From the plant the party was conducted through the water department and shown how the water was filtered.

Immediately following the supper the party went to the front of the plant and had their picture taken. After this a two-reel comedy was shown. The comedy was loaned to the Technical club through the courtesy of the Gem theatre.

M. M. Clifford and P. B. Curd, members of the city council, were guests at the picnic.

Locals May Use Air Mail Line

Much interest has been aroused in Wichita Falls over the fact that mail sent from this city can make connections with the airplane mail service if the sender so desires. Letters deposited in the local post office between the hours of 3:20 a. m. and 1:25 p. m. will make connection at Cheyenne with the westbound plane. More than a day can be saved in delivery of a letter in San Francisco if the sender desires to pay eight cents to send the letter instead of two cents. No advantage would be gained by sending the mail to New York by plane.

There are three zones in the United States with New York and San Francisco at the ends and Chicago and Cheyenne in the middle. One sending mail to San Francisco would be forced to pay only eight cents as connections would be made at Cheyenne.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the many friends who came to render assistance and speak tender words of sympathy to us in the loss of our precious little boy Wesley. We also wish to thank them for the beautiful floral offerings.

GRAND JURY IN EIGHT NEW BILLS

Investigators Continue Labors Today; May Adjourn Soon

After having been in session nearly two weeks, eight more true bills of indictment were returned Thursday morning by the grand jury in a partial report to Judge R. R. Wilson of the 30th district court. All of the defendants are being held in the county jail on charges of theft, burglary or receiving and concealing stolen property.

No indictments charging murder were returned.

The report, which has been expected daily for the last week, was delayed because of the grand jury's investigation into the death of Wesley Ashmore. This has occupied the attention of the jurors from the first.

No indication has been given as to when the grand jury will finally adjourn, although it is expected that it will be in the near future. Work will continue as usual this morning.

Included in the indictments returned yesterday were the following:

Carl Ferguson and J. B. Stour, burglary.

Alvin Ireland, two bills, theft and receiving and concealing stolen property.

Robert Brown and Buddy Lyons, two bills, theft and receiving and concealing stolen property.

"Catfish" Martin, two bills, theft and receiving and concealing stolen property.

Cougar Trailed by Motor

VISALIA, Cal., July 3.—W. W. Lovern, pack train concessionaire in the Sequoia National Park, recently trailed a six-foot mountain lioness through the night by the lights of his automobile. When the car got close to the lioness, she came directly into the glare of the headlights. In his haste Lovern shot through the windshield, but killed the beast. The lioness had frequented the road and occasionally had been seen by motorists, to their consternation.

Muny Clubbers In Hilarious Session Family Evening

A large attendance greeted the committee from the Nash Hardware company who were hosts at the regular weekly family night program at the Muny club Wednesday evening and a hilarious evening followed the golf, swimming and dinner events. Some interesting contests were staged for which the committee had provided some valuable and highly acceptable prizes.

E. J. Bartles won a Burke Standard Jigger by a masterful demonstration that it was possible to whistle under highly adverse conditions. Charles Welchs won the ortorial contest against a stiff field of competitors and won a frivolous rubber contrivance which he manfully presented to another infant of the fair sex.

Dr. Terril won a round dozen golf balls that through patience and modesty an unstable container may be stretched to large capacities without blushing or mussing the hair.

The program closed with a highly impressive reversion to one of the ancient forms of East Indian worship which was designed to lower the proud heads of snobs and elevate other portions of the population.

Altogether the program was a howlink success and great credit is due the young men of the Nash Hardware company as hosts.

YOU HATE TO LOOK AT A PIMPLY FACE

There is perhaps nothing more distressing to people who are bothered with them and surely nothing as displeasing to others who see them, as pimples, botches, bumps, rash, scrofula, eczema, "breaking out" and similar skin disfigurers.

But now that Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are proving to be so dependable in quickly getting rid of these diseases of the skin, it seems foolish for people to neglect using them and making themselves attractive to others instead of being slighted all the time.

All dealers have Black and White Ointment, and Soap, in the convenient, low-priced, liberal packages. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the liberal 25c size.—Adv.

PRO FISHERMEN ROBBING LAKE

City Attorney Begins Move To Prevent Law Violation

Reports that a band of "professional fishermen" are taking game fish from Lake Wichita daily and selling them through the Archer county oil fields have aroused city officials to drastic action. Warnings that this practice must be stopped have apparently gone unheeded, and more drastic steps are to be taken at once.

City Attorney W. E. George is preparing to start injunction proceedings in district court at Archer City, asking that two men known to be violating the ordinance be restrained from continuing their practice. Other court action will follow if it is found necessary.

The laws regulating catching of fish in Lake Wichita have but recently gone into effect. The city council at a meeting three weeks ago passed a new ordinance regulating taking of fish from the city's lake, and since then the aid of state game and fish wardens has been enlisted in an effort to enforce the new rulings.

With the lake now connected with Lake Kemp by meaps of an irrigation canal, large numbers of small bass are coming in, it is said, and these are being trapped by the "professionals."

Criminal Cases To Be Tried Soon

Trial of criminal cases will be resumed next week before Judge H. R. Wilson of the 30th district court, it was announced yesterday by District Attorney James V. Allred. A number of settings have been made and a jury panel drawn.

All of the defendants scheduled for trial are now prisoners in the county jail who are anxious to have their cases called. A number of them, it is understood, will enter pleas of guilty and accept sentence.

Loot Found on Irish Farms

DUBLIN, July 3.—The Free State civic guards have raided a number of farmhouses in county Longford and discovered in them many articles of antique silverware bearing the crest of the Mackey-Wilson family. They were looted from Currygrane which was destroyed by fire. This was the home of Field Marshall Sir Henry Wilson, the British army chief of staff in the European war, who was assassinated on his doorstep in London.

Cabmen Ordered To Be Polite

Eight More Get Right to Enjoy Saturday Picnic

Only one more day before the big Record News picnic at Lake Wichita. Saturday morning approximately 200 boys and girls with their parents if they desire to take them will go to Lake Wichita as guests of The Record News and have a day of good times. There will be plenty to eat and drink and various kinds of amusements have been arranged by those in charge of the picnic. One more day remains for some worker to secure three names of persons who desire to take The Record News and thereby gain the right to attend the picnic free.

Realizing that the time is short eight workers got busy Thursday and secured three names each. They did not have to collect any money but merely secured the promise of three people to subscribe to The Record News. Those who added their names to the lucky list Thursday were: Louise Banner, J. E. Hill, Lona Mae Guesham, Clarence Witherspoon, Huston Scarbrough, Rosella Parham, Lontella Warren and Donald Howell.

TABERNACLE SERMONS CLOSE SUNDAY NIGHT

"While men engage in controversial discussion over the modes of application of the sacred rites of baptism, the gospel keeps spreading to the ends of the earth, and does its mighty work of redeeming from sin," said Evangelist R. L. Benton last night in a sermon on "Baptism" at the tabernacle on Denver and Tenth streets.

Mr. Benton will preach the closing sermon of the tabernacle series Sunday night and it is thought the tabernacle will be moved next week and another series of meetings held by Evangelist McCutcheon from Dalworth Park.

Mr. Taylor will speak Friday night on "A Life and Death Question".

Speaking of the importance and meaning of baptism, Mr. Benton said, "Baptism is a sacred rite, and was designed to be administered to those who were mentally able to comprehend the sacrifice of Christ and had faith to believe He died for them. Real belief will evidence itself in a fruitful life subsequent to the baptism."

FOOT AND MOUTH SCARE IS OVER

Strange Malady Here Investigated By State Official

Fears that the dreaded foot and mouth disease had appeared in north Texas were dispelled Thursday when Dr. L. G. Cloud, state veterinarian, declared after an inspection of a number of Wichita county cattle that the malady with which they were suffering was not the foot and mouth complaint.

Dr. Cloud looked over the situation here on the solicitation of officials to whom an appeal had been made by Wichita county farmers. Several cases have been reported of cattle and horses afflicted with a mouth ailment that had symptoms of the foot and mouth disease. Veterinarians here were unable to identify it positively, however, and aid was accordingly sought from the state department.

In his report, Dr. Cloud stated that the disease had appeared in many sections of Texas and had not been classified as yet. It was said to be practically harmless, however, and with proper treatment soon disappears.

"When my little girl was two months old a rash appeared on her head which rapidly spread and assumed the form of pimples. The pimples festered and scaled over causing the child to scratch and irritate her scalp. The itching was intense.

"I tried several remedies but without success. I then procured a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and after the first application saw an improvement. I continued the treatment and now she is completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. Herman Liebreich, 2815 Aurora St., El Paso, Texas.

More Contractors Facing Charge Of Breaking Code

Two more Wichita Falls contractors were arrested Wednesday evening on charges of having violated provisions of the city's new building code. This makes four such cases coming up since the new code went into effect a month ago.

Both men, who are engaged in building residences here, were taken in custody by building inspector Fred Smith when he found that the work they were doing did not comply with provisions of the code.

The two appeared in city police court Thursday morning but their cases were continued and will be disposed of Friday morning.

HEAT SLOWS BOYS' CLUB INTEREST

Interest in the Boys' club which is sponsored by the Salvation Army has dropped considerably during the warm summer months, according to Salvation Army officials. Many of the boys are working and are unable to attend the meetings. At the beginning of the summer there were more than 160 enrolled in the club and it is thought this number will be increased to 200 with the advent of cool weather and the opening of school.

The boys in the club are organizing a baseball team and the first practice session will be held Friday afternoon. A game has been matched with a club of Dallas in about two weeks and the boys in the local club are planning to practice as much as possible before they leave for Dallas.
