Jail Officials Block Plot For Wholesale Break

BARS OF JAIL CELLS FOUND PARTIALLY CUT

Ten Prisoners Are Locked In Strongest Cells by Sheriff

STEEL WIRE USED

Wire From Jail Broom Used To Attack Iron Bars

Ten prisoners in the Wichita county jail Friday were placed in one of the strongest compartments of the jail after officers had discovered an attempt to escape by using broom wire to cut cell bars. Three bars had been partially severed when the discovery was made.

Officers were not of the opinion Friday that all of the 10 men occupying the cell were implicated in the attempted delivery although some of them have previously given trouble to jailers.

Using a compound made for grinding valves in automobile motors to supplement the cutting qualities of the strong broom wire, the prisoners were believed to have been at least three days in cutting the three bars.

A broom reinforced with steel wire had been missed in the county jail several days ago and jailers had suspicioned that prisoners had obtained it to remove the wire. Prisoners are allowed to use brooms not strengthened with wire, officers said.

Bars Found Cut.

Sid Johnson, jailer, and W. P. Timmons, night jailer, discovered the bars cut Thursday night and Deputy Sheriffs Cliff Keirsey and Warren Belcher located an empty can which had contained the valve compound and the broom wire hidden in a mattress in the cell.

The bars which had been cut were in the cell of Jack Carter, under 99 year penitentiary sentence in Dallas for robbery with firearms and under indictment here on a similar charge. All prisoners in the large cell known as the "bear cage" had access to Carter's cell, officers stated.

Other prisoners included in the group were Earl Carter, under a five year sentence; Marion Fetters, under a 12 year sentence and Red Cabe who has been sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary.

Jail Riot Recently.

Carter, who is scheduled to face trial on the local charge Monday, was said by officers to have participated in a jail riot several weeks ago at which time it was believed that an intended attempt to escape on the part of several prisoners were frustrated.

Carter has since displayed queer actions which brought about doubt in some quarters as to his sanity. Of late, however, he has appeared to be mentally normal, officers said.

He is charged with the robbery of the Gulf Refining company filling station at Eighth and Brook streets.

Lindbergh's Airplane Loaded On Cruiser

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., June 3 (AP).—Captain Lindbergh's trans-Atlantic monoplane, "Spirit of St. Louis," packed in two long wooden crates weighing three tons, was safely placed aboard the American cruiser Memphis this morning. The Memphis left shortly afterward for Cherbourg, where Captain Lindbergh will embark tomorrow, with Washington, D. C., as his destination.

Gray May Try For Two $25,000 Air Prizes

Aviator Here Would Enter Wichita Falls Ship In Double Event; Seeks $15,000 for Trip

Between $15,000 and $20,000 will be needed by Lieut. Robert H. Gray to buy and equip an airplane to fly from Dallas to Hongkong, he told several Wichita capitalists, who are potential financial backers of the project, in a conference held Friday morning, according to Raymond Allred, attorney.

Lieutenant Gray, who is the guest of Mr. Allred during his stay in Wichita Falls, for the proposed flight outlined his general plans during the conference.

The flier anticipates entering two contests with one flight. In making the Dallas-Hongkong trip he will make his first stop at Honolulu and in doing so will automatically be entered in the United States-Hawaiian contest in which a prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the first aviator flying from the United States to Hawaii. For the Dallas-Hongkong "hop," William Easterwood, Dallas chewing gum magnate has posted a prize of $25,000.

Lieutenant Gray will fly alone if he enters the contest.

TEXAS AIR MAIL PILOT TO COMPETE.
By Universal Service.

DALLAS, June 3.—Herbert Kindred, air mail pilot on the Dallas-Chicago run, today announced his entry for the $50,000 prize money offered for two flights across the Pacific ocean. Dallas financiers, Kindred said, will finance a special built monoplane powered with two Wright whirlwind motors of the same type and design that carried Capt. Charles Lindbergh from New York to Paris in one hop.

As the $25,000 Dole prize is offere for a non-stop flight to Honolulu, Kindred will start from Dallas, the hopping off place for the $25,000 Easterwood two-stop flight to Hong Kong. Rules of the Easterwood flight permits a stop for rest and refueling at Honolulu, the destination of the Dole flight.

Kindred has been flying for 13 years. He served in the air force during the war.

AROUND WORLD FLIERS TO SEEK TEXAS PRIZE
By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 3.—When Lieutenant Leigh Wade and Linton Wells start their 15-day flight around the world they hope to pick up $25,000 on their second hop.

That amount has been offered for the first flight from San Francisco to Honolulu by James B. Dole of Honolulu. The offer is not good until August 1.

"We shall time our departure from New York on our round the world flight in order to give us time to change to pontoons in San Francisco and then, if we have to, we shall hop off at midnight in order to be the first to fly to Honolulu," said Wade today.

"We expect plenty of competition on that leg of our flight but we do not intend to be beaten."

Byrd May Try It

Although no one has definitely entered the race from San Francisco to Honolulu, it is reported in aviation circles that Clarence Chamberlin and Commander Richard Byrd may be in it.

Chamberlin is first going to try to fly to Berlin but expects to be back by that time.

Wade and Wells are also considering grabbing off another $25,000 for a flight from Dallas, Texas to Hong Kong. That would require three days longer as it would throw them off their course twice.

Lieut. John Harding, who flew around the world with Wade in 1924 may join Wade and Wells on the last half of their trip. Because he is a crack mechanic, Wade and Wells plan to send him to Japan where they will pick him up and take him as far as Queenstown, Ireland, with them.

LINDBERGH TO SAIL FOR HOME AT NOON TODAY

He Flies To Paris From Visit To England Early Friday

FOG DELAYED HIM

Cherbourg To Bid Flier Farewell Saturday As He Sials

By Universal Service.

PARIS, June 3.—Unescorted, and flying at a considerable height, Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, America's hero of the trans-Atlantic flight, arrived here today from London.

The airman circled over Le Bourget field several times, then spiralled down and made a perfect landing a few minutes after 10 o'clock a. m.

Lindbergh's trip from Kenley aerodrome was marred by one stop, forced by the heavy fog, at Lympne, on the English side of the channel. Lindbergh landed and had to wait for an hour or more before the pall of fog lifted sufficiently for him to continue on his way to Paris.

He was greeted warmly at Le Bourget, and again congratulated on his flying prowess.

Sails for U. S. Today.

Tomorrow morning, Lindbergh will say farewell to Le Bourget and fly to Cherbourg. He is expected to land at Cherbourg between 11 o'clock and noon. A reconnoitering plane will accompany the American airman, who will fly a Nieuport pursuit plane.

Lindbergh will land in the aviation field, which is a little more than 30 miles from Cherbourg there, he will be greeted by the American consul, Wiley, Rear Admiral De Casquery and officers from the Memphis.

The American airman will be taken in an automobile to the city hall of Cherbourg, which is, even now, gaily bedecked with flags and bunting in his honor.

There, the acting prefect will extend an official welcome. Lindbergh will be entertained at luncheon, and after a few final greetings from the people of France, Lindbergh will go in a launch to board the Memphis.

Plane on Cruiser.

Dispatches from Southampton state that the cruiser Memphis arrived at that port today from Rotterdam, and picked up the spirit of St. Louis, Lindbergh's plane. The plane was in two crates, weighing three tons. It was placed on the after-deck.

Shortly after noon, the Memphis cleared from Southampton and sailed for Cherbourg. The Vice-Admiral on the Memphis said that he expected to reach Washington on the morning of June 11.

Almost as soon as Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget today, he was an interested spectator of a display of stunt flying by French airmen in his honor. Twelve French military airplanes took part, and Lindbergh was all attention as the French aviators put their machines through dizzy paces.

Formal greetings took place in the hangar at Le Bourget. The group extending greetings included Parmley Herrick, son of the American ambassador; R. F. Mamoney, president of Ryan Airplanes, and builder of the "Spirit of St. Louis"; a number of American attaches, and several French officials.

He Crosses Channel

Lindbergh crossed the channel in a British fighting plane.

"I am leaving tomorrow," said Lindbergh, regretfully. "Were the choice left to me, it would be weeks, and even months, before I left. However, I will take the first opportunity to return to France."

Lindbergh again made enquiries about his flying helmet, which he lost in Paris. He is said to regard the cap as a fetish.

A reception at the Swedish church in Paris was attended by Lindbergh in the afternoon. He was accorded sincere welcome by a number of the most prominent Swedish residents in Paris.

"Your deed belongs to America, but Sweden is anxious to have at least a small corner in your heart," said Count Ehren, the Swedish minister. Lindbergh said that he would visit Sweden on his next trip to Europe.

Some speculation as to the contents of a hat box, which Lindbergh carefully guarded, was dispelled when it became known that the box contained a Paris millinery creation for Lindbergh's mother, contributed by a Parisian milliner.

Child During War

When the World war was being fought, Lindbergh was just a child. Today, however, he was made an honorary member of the famous Lafayette Escadrille, air fighting unit.

At a luncheon at the International League of Aviators, Dr. Gros, founder of the Lafayette Escadrille, presented Lindbergh with a medal making him the only honorary member of the unit.

"This means more to me than anything I have received in Europe," said Lindbergh.

Bandits Head North Out of Friona After Robbery

CLOVIS, N. M., June 3. (AP)—Officers of this city watched all roads in this vicinity this afternoon in an effort to intercept two men who robbed the Friona State bank of Friona, Texas, about 40 miles east of here.

AMARILLO, June 3. (AP)—The Friona State bank at Friona, about 50 miles southwest of here was robbed of about $4000 at 1 o'clock today by two bandits, one masked and one unmasked, a long distance call from G. B. Anderson, cashier of the bank said.

Three persons, F. M. Osborne, assistant cashier, Floyd Schlenker and a farmer whose name was not known were in the bank when the bandits entered. They were locked in the vault and released about 10 minutes after the robbers had left the city headed north.

The bandits are reported to have

State Engineer Arrives Here To Draft Plans For Fish Hatchery

Survey Includes Beautiful State Park of 170 Acres At Site At Diversion Lake

Preliminary survey to draft plans for the establishment of a fish hatchery and state park which will incorporate 170 acres of land adjacent to Diversion lake will be started here Saturday by S. G. Garrett, chief engineer of the game, fish and oyster department of the state of Texas, it was learned Friday.

Mr. Garrett arrived here early Friday afternoon and has made arrangements with Hubert Harrison, manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, and several others interested in the project to accompany him to the site of the hatchery early Saturday morning. This is the first step in the actual development of the hatchery, which is now assured, Mr. Harrison said.

Following the completion of his survey, Mr. Garrett will return to Austin, draft final plans on the project, and advertise for bids within about 30 days, he stated. Work on the grounds will be started immediately after the contract is awarded, it was indicated.

Approval of Wichita Falls as the site for one of the largest hatcheries and parks in the state was made by Will J. Tucker, game, fish and oyster commissioner, and Gov. Dan Moody, on their visit here during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention.

Park Planned

According to present plans, the development of this project will result in one of the most beautiful recreational centers in the state within a few miles of the city. The park will embrace 149 acres of fertile land which will be transformed into a veritable garden through the planting of grass, flowers and shrubs, and every attraction "dear to the hearts of vacationists" will be added, it was affirmed.

The hatchery is to include 20 additional acres of land, which has already been deeded with the park area to the state. This will be stocked with bass, trout, a new species of fish to this section, the rainbow trout, and many other aquatic favorites.

POSTAL TRADE SHOWS GAIN

Receipts For May Total $26,163 Here

Postoffice receipts for the month of May at the local office show a total of $26,163.80, according to statement issued Friday by O. P. Maricle, postmaster. This sum exceeds the May, 1926, receipts by $3,282.13, it was learned, and receipts for that month totaled $22,881.67.

"Business is holding up exceedingly well," Mr. Maricle declared adding that he did not expect any "summer slump" as is usually predicted.

"Of course the larger the city the more definite a slump will be noticed in the summer time, and I suppose Wichita Falls has entered hers, though conditions are very good," he added.

GIRL, 16, PINS DEATH BLAME

She Accuses Husband In Murder Plot

MARION, Ind., June 3. (AP)—Arthur Walser, 29, of Fairmount, Ind., was confronted today with a confession which authorities said they had obtained from his 16-year-old wife, Dorothea, in which she implicated him in the murder of her 12-year-old cousin, Clifford Cox.

Mrs. Walser's purported confession declared that her husband prepared a poison potion which she gave to her cousin last week, causing the lad's death. The motive, she said, was to obtain $440 in life insurance carried by the boy in her favor.

Mrs. Walser is held in jail here with her two-months-old baby. Walser has denied his wife's implication.

Pretty Movie Actress May Die After Wreck

LOS ANGELES, June 3 (AP)—Evelyn Egan, 20-year-old motion picture actress, was probably fatally injured late last night when she drove her automobile into a steam shovel on a Hollywood boulevard. Her head was crushed, and at the receiving hospital, where an emergency operation was performed, it was found necessary to remove her left eye.

Butcher's Helper Held In Death of Woman

CHICAGO, June 3. (AP)—Michael Hirsch, 32-year-old butcher's helper, was questioned today in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Mary Seitzema, 37, whose body, with the clothing partly torn away and with three strands of wire twisted about her neck, was found on the floor of her bungalow here when her husband returned from work.

BELLANCA SHIP WILL TRY FOR DISTANCE MARK

Clarence Chamberlin Makes Ready to Hop Off 4 A. M. Today

BAROGRAPH SEALED

Instruments On Monoplane Looked For Record of His Flight

CURTISS FIELD, NEW YORK, June 4.—(Saturday).—(AP)—Clarence D. Chamberlin, after examining weather reports announced shortly after midnight that he would take off for Europe in the Bellanca monoplane at 4 a. m.

Chamberlin did not say what his destination was to be but said he would fly as far into Europe as his fuel would permit.

He would not name the navigator who is to accompany him, but said he was not going to attempt the flight alone.

Barograph Sealed

Carl F. Schory of the National Aeronautical association arrived at the field at midnight and proceeded at once to install and seal the barograph which will indicate the duration of the flight.

Reports from the weather bureau at midnight indicated favorable flying weather up the Atlantic seaboard, over Nova Scotia and Newfoundland with favorable winds prevailing over the entire route to the Irish coast. Fog and rain northeast of Newfoundland, the report said, could be avoided by steering a course somewhat south of the great circle.

When Chamberlin arrived at the Bellanca hanger at 11:20 to announce his readiness to attempt the trans-Atlantic flight he had been awake since 9 a. m. Friday and faced the prospect of remaining awake until he lands.

To Try For Berlin

Asked if he should find himself approaching Europe off the coast of Spain whether he would continue on to Rome, the pilot replied in the affirmative. It was regarded as most probable that the Columbia would seek to reach the Irish coast, however, and if possible fly to Berlin, thereby exceeding the non-stop mileage record of Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh on his New York to Paris flight.

BERLIN MAKES READY FOR U. S. AVIATORS.

BERLIN, June 3. (AP)—Although no word had been received here late tonight of the projected European "mystery flight" of the Bellanca monoplane Columbia, which might have Berlin as its destination, the German airdrome at Tempelhoferfeld has been instructed to keep in readiness for the possible arrival of the plane.

The mammoth German airport is equipped with a battery of powerful searchlights, the beams of which are visible 80 miles away, so that there would be little difficulty in locating it.

Deputy Police Commissioner Weiss announced tonight that as soon as definite information was received that the plane had hopped off and that its destination was Berlin, the police would get in touch with the American embassy and would arrange measures to insure safe landing facilities.

Stars and Bars Wave Over Texas Capitol

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3. (AP)—The confederacy's stars and bars wave about the capitol today as Austin commemorated officially the 119th anniversary of Jefferson Davis, head of the lost cause of the sixties.

State departments were closed at suggestion made by Governor Moody in his recent proclamation calling for observance of the anniversary.

Hambone's Meditation

First Milk and Ice Funds Go To Aid of Stricken Children

Youngsters in tattered clothes—youngsters with bare feet and hungry eyes—youngsters asking for sick relatives—women asking for their babies—all these are being promised an answer to their pleas since the milk and ice fund has received so generous a response the past two days.

The total for today is $84.50. That is going to be used immediately to relieve the more acute needs of these youngsters and the sick and aged of Wichita Falls who are unable to buy the very necessities of life. And over the week-end, each contributor to the fund can feel he or she has done something to help a cause that needs help worse than any ever issued in this city.

Mrs. Effie McHam of the welfare board is spending more than her quota of "eight hours a day" in going to see these families and in issuing milk and ice tickets to those who must have nourishment and cold water for fevered hands and faces. The typhoid fever that has broken out in many of the poorer districts is causing the need to grow with every hour, she states, and all the money that can be given is asked as soon as possible.

On Friday, a 13-year-old girl who has the responsibility of an entire family came to the offices of the Welfare association, asking for "some of the milk and ice." On investigation it was learned that her father has smallpox and is confined in the city quarantine house, her brother is very sick with typhoid, and her mother is mentally deranged.

This case is one of the more brutally realistic ones that must be helped TODAY.

been in a large coupe, with the last two license numbers being 15.

The two men, said to be average appearing persons, robbed the bank quickly and quietly, going about getting the money in a manner which characterized them as professionals.

A complete check on the loss has not been made but Mr. Anderson declared he was sure it would be between $2000 and $4000.

The Friona bank was robbed last September, less than $100 being taken at that time. The bank is the fourth to be robbed in the Panhandle in the past few weeks, the Pampa bank being robbed a short time ago of $25,000. Previously the Ovalo and Odell banks were robbed.

Banks in Amarillo have been heavily guarded all day in anticipation of a robbery here. It is believed by members of the sheriff's department that the robbers decided to take their chance on making a good haul in a small town.

Great T.-O. Fair Is Predicted

Carter, chairman of the committee on the postal carrier investigation, it was voted that the council go on record as acquiescing in the movement to grant Saturday half holidays during the months of July and August.

Hamilton Praises Workers

W. B. Hamilton, general chairman of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, preluded his statements relative to the fair with an appreciation of the work done during the convention by the various chairmen and committee members.

"I wish to thank all sincerely for the work that was done, and to give credit to those who made the convention the best that was ever held anywhere by the association, in the opinion of men who have been attending them since its organization. I realize more than ever how very thorough the staffs of every department of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce are, and what great results are being brought about," he said.

In speaking of the coming fair, Mr. Hamilton asked the co-operation of the council and the city entire in carrying out the program, in bringing people here and "in making it your fair."

Sketches Program

"This community owns the Texas-Oklahoma fair," he asserted. "It can not be the work of the chamber of commerce, or the fair association alone—it is everybody's work, and the attitude we ask the citizens to take is that each of us owes a particular service to make it a success."

Mr. Hamilton sketched a general plan of program, and predicted that the fair would be more unique and better in every respect than ever before, with the unqualified support of the citizenship behind it.

W. E. Chauncey, president of the local school board, when asked to tell something of the bond issue on June 7, stated that money was needed for additions to the present buildings, and that $250,000 was the least that could be asked.

"We must have it or close our doors to many boys and girls of the city," he said.

The council went on record as endorsing the issue and in requesting all members to vote on that day.

Praise for Spudders

Several expressions of appreciation of the Wichita Falls Spudders were heard at the meeting, when the invitation to luncheon was extended. After an open discussion on the unpaved gaps in the residence district, which is being considered by the city council and chamber of commerce, Senator J. D. Parnell made a brief address on the coming road bond issue, asking the building of lateral roads into the rural district. Senator Parnell also urged that the citizens of the city investigate the six constitutional amendments that are to be voted on in the state of Texas on August 1.

It was voted that council meetings would be discontinued until the second Friday in September after the last Friday in June.

Grace Sanderford Heads Business Women's Club

Grace Sanderford was elected president of the Business and Professional Women's club of Wichita Falls at the annual election of officers held at the Y. W. C. A. Friday night.

Other officers named at the meeting are: Miss Jim Covey, first vice president; Ethel Andree, second vice president; Winnie Maye Giddings, secretary; Florence McNeill, treasurer; Mary Cowart, corresponding secretary and Mrs. C. V. Millican, parliamentarian. Ruth Patton is the former president of the organization.

County Refunding Bonds Ready For Approval

Refunding bonds, totally $500,000, which were recently ordered issued by the county commissioners court to retire 30-year road district bonds, issued in 1917, were forwarded Friday to the state comptroller for approval by E. P. Walsh, county auditor.

The refunding bonds will yield 4 3-4 per cent. The bonds to be retired, which carried a 10-year option clause, yielded 5 per cent.

By replacing the 30-year bonds with the refunding bonds the county will save approximately $12,000 in interest payments.

11 Kiwanians Leave Today For National Meeting At Memphis

Five Kiwanians of Wichita Falls leave here on the 11:55 Fort Worth and Denver Saturday morning for Memphis, Tenn., where they will attend the four-day 11th annual convention of the national organization which opens Monday, June 6. They will return Friday or Saturday of next week, it was learned.

Though a special Texas train was not arranged, clubs are assigned to special Pullmans on the Texas and Pacific lines from Fort Worth to Memphis, arriving there shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday morning. Those attending the convention from here are Mr. and Mrs. Julian Bobo, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Jackson Jr., Paul L. Pearson and J. N. Sherrill.

At the same hour over 4000 Kiwanians at the convention are observing the Kiwanis "zero hour" Monday evening, members of the Wichita Falls club will gather at a designated point on the Municipal golf links for the same purpose. For 15 minutes all will stand silent in observance of the Kiwanis ritual, as members of every club over the world have been asked to do.

A picnic supper will be served the members and their guests following the program which will be held in place of the usual weekly luncheon. Dr. F. R. Collard and Don Haynes are in charge of arrangements.

Birthday Of Jefferson Davis Observed In Program Here

Observing the 119th anniversary of the birthday of Jefferson Davis, members of the W. R. Scurry camp of the Sons of the Confederacy, the W. R. Scurry chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Lone Star chapter of the Children of the Confederacy sponsored an interesting program in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church Friday morning.

Decorations of Confederate flags and flowers were used and Mrs. C. C. Hagemann, president of the U. D. C. presided. Several Confederate veterans were present.

The program was opened with prayer by the Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church and Miss Mary Virginia Barron, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Fred C. Barron, sang, "Tenting Tonight." A paper, "Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War," was read by Mrs. Anna Witherspoon; Mrs. Jerry Schaefer sang, "Lorena," and Judge Edgar Scurry made an address. Miss Emma Carter read a paper, "Jefferson Davis As a Citizen," and Willis Clark talked on "Jefferson Davis, United States Senator and President of the Confederacy."

Mrs. C. Y. Tully and Mrs. W. M. Priddy sang, "Bonnie Blue Flag," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. O. E. Maer and Arch Greenwood read a paper entitled, Jefferson Davis, the Soldier." Joel MacGregor led in the singing of Dixie, and the program was concluded with the singing of Jefferson Davis' favorite hymn, "How Firm a Foundation."

A large number of friends and members of the local organizations attended.

13 WEDDINGS

May Is Light Month For Cupid At Vernon

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, June 3. — Cupid was evidently asleep on the job in Wilbarger county during the month of May and allowed an unlucky number of swains and maidens to be struck by his love darts. There were only 13 marriage licenses issued here during the month, county clerk's records show.

While the marriages dropped to a new low figure, divorces also showed a marked decrease during May. Only four suits for divorce were filed in the 46th district court. In an average month, from 20 to 30 marriage licenses are issued and from 10 to 15 divorces filed.

LIONS HONOR BALL TOSSERS

Program Called Tonight at Stadium

The boys will warble; the girls will step 'em off, ala Irene Castle, while the Lions roar at the Spudder "home coming" reception to be held this p. m. at the Ross stadium.

The blow-out has been termed a vod-vil presentation with singers who can sing and dancers who can dance, in honor of the home town club.

"Shep," the boss of the city council, will serve up the ceremonies and A. B. Ross will master the stage props.

The Spudder ball tossers will be introduced to the cash customers by his honor the Mayor and in addition to a brace of professional acts the following amateurs will do their stuff: Majorie Hoenscheidt, the Imperial quartet, Francis Shafer, James McLean, Jean Vandervoort, Chief Longboat, the Crowson Kiddies, May Morris, Frank Humphries and E. F. Bohmfalk.

The presentation was originally scheduled for Wednesday night but Jupiter Pluvious got in some wet work and rain checks were distributed. The show is sponsored by the Lions club and the entire "village" is invited to attend.

Rally Today For All City Camp Fire Girls

A "camp rally" for all Camp Fire Girls of the city and their guests will be held at Havaner's park Saturday, with games starting the program at 4 o'clock. The purpose of the rally is preparation for the summer camp at Craterville Park, Okla., from June 13 to 27.

Following the registration and games, a free swim is being offered all who attend by park officials, and from 5:30 to 6 o'clock special swimming events and contests have been arranged under the direction of Mrs. Pat Hengy. Miss Edna Kay has charge of the games.

All are asked to bring picnic suppers which will be spread at 6 o'clock, and at 7 o'clock the evening program will be staged.

At the close of the program, Kiwanis awards to the two girls winning the greatest number of points on health charts for the past four months will be made. These winners are to have a free week at camp.

Fire Loss Here Third Lowest In State

Wichita Falls ranked third lowest among Texas cities during May in the amount of fire loss per capita of population, according to a report filed Friday by J. L. McClure, fire chief, with W. E. McBroom, city clerk.

The loss in Wichita Falls was $2.95 per capita. Port Arthur was lowest on the list of Texas cities with a loss of 89c per capita and San Antonio was next with 99c per capita.

PARENT SENDS CHILD TO JAIL FOR REST CURE

Mother's Drastic Act At San Antonio Brings Quick Results

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, June 3.—Little Miss Independence, age 14 years, stamped her foot angrily and said: "No!"

Then as if to add defiance to her anger she continued:

"No, tell you. I won't; I'll go to jail first. No, no, no. I wont!"

The wailing of a woman drowned out whatever else the child might have wanted to say. The woman was the girl's mother.

"Very well, miss, you'll go to jail."

The tone was sharp. Chief Deputy Sheriff Alphonse Newton spoke the words.

"Go ahead and send me to jail," she snapped back, "go ahead. I won't go back home. My mother whips me and abuses me."

The mother turned to the deputy. Her tears were gone as she defended herself thus:

"I have punished her, yes, but not enough it seems. Send her to jail."

And so little Miss Independence went to jail.

She found companions, but not to her liking. One continually cursed the fate that had put her in jail. Another assured her that she would get used to jail all right. "It would take time, that was all."

It was lonesome in jail at night. No one paid the child any attention. She even cried a little. Perhaps she had been too angry with her mother.

Morning came after a night of dreaming about home.

Her mother and Deputy Newotn called at the end of the girl's first twenty-four hours in jail.

There was no anger, no defiance. The girl was subdued.

Today she was back home, and home to her now is the most desirable place in the world.

"I'll never run away again," she says.

Patron Gives $1000 for School Furniture

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, June 3.—A donation of $1000 to the Kincheloe school in Wilbarger county has been made by J. H. Kincheloe of Vernon for the purpose of purchasing equipment for the school. It was specified that the money was to be used for this purpose and not for payment of teachers' salaries. General equipment will be purchased in an effort to make this one of the best schools in the county, according to school officials.

Mellon Gives $1000 For Aviator's Family

PARIS, June 3. (AP)—Andrew J. Mellon, American secretary of the treasury, has cabled $1000 to Theodore Rousseau, treasurer of the American committee which is raising a fund for the families of Captain Charles Nungesser and Captain Francois Coli.

The fund now totals about 750,000 francs, or about $30,000 at the present rate of exchange.

New Design In Parachutes Makes Flying Safer, Inventor Claims

BY J. S. PHILIPS
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 3. (EFS)—Since early boyhood, when he played around automotive plants in Los Angeles, J. M. Russell has been interested in saving lives. In his field—aviation—a man had a single chance in time of disaster. Either his life was saved or it wasn't.

That condition continues to prevail for men of the air. In case of a crash, fire or any other catastrophe in the air, they survive or don't.

Russell helps to avoid the "don't." He has invented a parachute which he says surpasses the official government military and naval parachute, which he helped design. His new chute opens faster, shocks the jumper less, falls more slowly, and—very important—can be so handled as to "fall away" from an attacking plane in war time.

Russell's new chute, which he "thought out" after the war while parachute engineer for the army, acts a sa shock absorber. Its center part is 12 feet in diameter. When first opened, this fills out and breaks the fall, then the lobes on the side fill with air and again break the descent.

Three important features which have bothered (to put it mildly) air men since first they took to the skies in heavier-than-air machines has been worked out by Russell.

Holds Jumper Steady

In his new lobe chute, the jumper does not act as a pendulum in a wind and swing about. Sometimes jumpers have nearly looped the loop in this way, almost falling on top their own chute rather than under it. Through the lobe compensation, "absorbing" the wind, the jumper remains directly below it.

Again, due to its construction, there is no vent in the center of the chute for wind to pass through. But a cord attaches to the center of the top, and by pulling this and collapsing the chute, one may "fall away" from the pursuing enemy as rapidly as a plummet may drop. This fall becomes normal again by permitting the chute to fill again with air.

And third, naval fliers in tests here discovered that the chute may be used safely from a distance of only 80 feet above the ground. This lessens the low altitude menace.

The chute, when inflated in the air, looks much like a balloon tire.

Where a decade ago parachutes interested only military and naval men, today, with the growth of commercial aviation, there has come about a wide demand for them. One danger, say airmen, in dropping from a disabled or burning plane, lies in the possibility that the ship will continue in a downward circle and strike the jumper. This, of course, means certain death.

Makes Flying Safe

In his perfection of a chute which can be "dropped" by pulling the center cord, Russell believes he has made a considerable and permanent contribution to the safety of aviation.

DALLAS GIRL SEEKS THRILL

She Offers To Finance Hop Across Atlantic

DALLAS, June 3. (AP)—A Dallas society woman Friday offered to pay expenses of Connor Porter of Lexington, Texas, on a trans-Pacific flight if he agrees to take her on the flight.

Porter recently sought financial aid from the Dallas Chamber of Commerce to enter the Dallas-to-Hong Kong flight for which William Easterwood, Dallas capitalist, has posted an award of $25,000.

The Dallas woman, who stipulated that her name be withheld for the present, said that if Porter would furnish the airplane and allow her to accompany him, she would pay all other expenses.

Robert J. Smith, aviation secretary of the chamber, through whom the offer was made, estimates the expense which she would pay at about $10,000. Mr. Smith said he would forward her offer to Porter.

Excavation Work On Olney Swimming Pool

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, June 3.—With the excavation work practically completed the contract for the concrete work on the new swimming pool was let today to A. D. Neal. The pool is being built by R. H. Rachuig, C. F. Butler and E. F. Evans. Preliminary plans for the pool have been altered some and the report as given by Butler today states that the pool will be enlarged to 122 feet in length and 72 feet in width, ranging from two to 10 feet in depth. The present plans call for completion about June 20.

Singing Convention To Be Staged at Olney

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, June 3.—Olney was selected as the meeting place for the next fifth Sunday singing convention at the meeting at Graham last week, according to J. E. Lunsford, president of the Young county organization. Upon invitation extended by Mr. Lunsford, those in attendance voted unanimously to hold the next meeting in Olney.

Approximately 1500 were in attendance at the last singing convention held here a year ago and at least two thousand are expected here on July 31. The sessions will probably be held in the new municipal building.

SQUASH USED IN NEW RECIPE

Jaded Appetites Must Yield Here

BY MRS. FLOYD BILLINGSLEY, 1825 Elizabeth Street.
Winner of the First Prize in The Record-News Menu Contest.

MENU.

Stuffed Squash
Black-Eyed Peas with Okra
Carrot Salad
Hot Rolls Butter
Iced Tea
Strawberry Short Cake

RECIPES

Stuffed Squash.

4 medium-sized squash
1 lb. ground beef
1 can No. 2 tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup uncooked rice
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 pint water

Remove the seed from squash at top, mix meat, salt, rice and cinnamon, together and fill them with it. Place in deep pan, cover with tomatoes and water. Bake in slow oven one and one-half hours.

Carrot Salad.

4 large carrots
1 small can crushed pineapple
1 package of orange jello.

Brush and grate the carrots, add pineapple and stir into jello. Set aside to congeal. Serve on lettuce leaf with dressing.

Rolls.

½ pint sweet milk
1 tablespoon full of sugar
½ cake yeast
2 tablespoons full of shortening
1 teaspoon salt
1 pints flour

Heat milk, add yeast and other ingredients to flour. Make into dough and leave to rise. When it has doubled its size, work down and cut into rolls. Let rise again and bake 25 minutes in medium oven. Makes about 18 rolls.

Strawberry Short Cake.

2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
5 tablespoons shortening
½ cup sugar
1-3 cup milk
1 egg

Mix liquid ingredients and stirr into dry. When dough is smooth, drop with spoon onto pan. Brown and serve with crushed strawberries and single cream.

The above menu costs approximately $3 and will serxe six people at Sunday dinner and supper in the evening. All vegetables are available during summer months, except strawberries, which can be substituted with dewberries, blackberries or peaches, any one making a delicious cobbler.

Dutch Peach Cakes

Submitted by Mrs. W. B. Smith, 315 Flood street, winner of the $1 guaranteed for every menu printed during The Record News Sunday Dinner Menu contest.

Recipe

2 cups flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder
2 whole eggs
1-2 cup sugar
2 cups milk

Mix as usual, adding enough flour to make a soft dough. Roll to one-half inch thickness, cut as desired, and place in greased pie pan. Arrange thick slices of peaches on each cake and sprinkle with sugar. Bake 20 minutes in a hot oven, letting the sugar form a thick syrup on each cake.

(Editor's Note: Mrs. Smith's recipe for peach cakes seemed particularly pleasing at this time, as fresh peaches are just being received on the local market. The question of "timeliness" was considered in making this decision).

Dorothy Dix Advises Mental Test For Husband Who Hates His Babies

The Unnatural Father Who Hates His Two Little Children—Is the Happily Married Woman With a Stain on Her Past Unfit for Motherhood — Shall She Marry the Man Whose Home Life Shocks Her?

Dear Miss Dix — I have been married five years to a successful young man who has no bad habits, is generous to me and loves his home, but NOT his children. When I told my husband that our first child was coming, he was furious. When the second child was born he told me that if I ever had another baby he would leave me. He never speaks of these children to strangers except as his "two mistakes," yet they are as lovely children as were ever born. You would think any father would be proud of them.

I try to keep them out of his way as much as possible, but when they play together he calls out angrily, "Shut that door so I won't hear those brats." The other day the little boy went into the yard where his father was fixing his automobile, and he took the child up by the neck of his coat and literally threw him over the fence. The child was not hurt, but ever since he is afraid of his father and hides behind my skirts. This injustice makes me so furious that I am considering leaving my husband and taking away the children that he hates. I loved my ausband terribly, but he is killing my love for him. Please advise a

HEART-BROKEN YOUNG MOTHER.

Answer:

I should think that your best plan would be to call in an alienist to see your husband. Something surely is wrong with the mind of a man who takes such an abnormal attitude toward his own children.

He is not to be judged as a rational human being, for the natural instinct is for a man to desire children and to rejoice over them, especially to be filled with pride over his first-born son. Only a diseased mentality could account for a man hating the children that had been borne him by the wife he loved.

You may well pity your husband more than you blame him, because he is throwing away the greatest happiness that ever could come to him, for life has no keener joy than a father can get out of his children. The man who begins his day with a romp with little children who swarm over his bed, who has fresh little lips pressed to his cheek and little arms clinging about his neck; who hears little feet scurrying to meet him when he puts his key in the lock of an evening; who watches the mystery of little children's minds unfold, gets the thrill and the kick that nothing else on earth can give him. And he who deliberately defrauds himself of this commits a sort of mental and moral suicide.

Of course, the root of your husband's trouble is jealousy. Silly, childish jealousy. He wants to be the only baby in the house. He wants all the petting and the coddling himself. He wants to monopolize you in every way, to be first with in every way, and not to have any one else have a prior claim on your interest and time and attention.

Some times a husband is justified, to a degree, in his jealousy of his children, because the first baby puts his nose so completely out of joint that he would be more than human not to resent his deadly rival.

I know many cases where, before the arrival of the first baby, the husband was truly lord of the home and everything was done for his happiness and comfort, but after the advent of the little stranger the man never existed again, except in the secondary role of the baby's father. The house was run for the baby. The mother lived alone for the baby and the husband's only use was to work for the baby.

Probably your husband loves his babies a great deal better than he realizes, and I think it would be an excellent plan if you could let him miss them for a little while and find how silent and desolate is a home in which the baby voices are hushed and in which there are no little faces blooming like flowers around the rooms.

So take your children and go off on a long visit to your mother, but don't forsake your poor, afflicted, big baby at home. If you will have patience, he will get his senses back, and be cured of his malady.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—When a young girl in my teens I trusted a man who betrayed me. No one else knew of my folly, not even my family. I repented bitterly my wrongdoing and determined to live right after that and have done so. I fell in love with a successful young business man from a fine family. Before we married I told him my secret, but he married me anyway. We have a lovely home and no woman could wish for a better husband, except for one thing. He says that I have forfeited my right to mothedhood and am unfit to be a mother. He loves children, but doesn't want my child. Life without children is desolate and wasted to me.

Do you think my husband has a right to make me pay this supreme penalty? Do you think I would make a good mother? I would do overything in my power, to spare my child the bitterness and heartaches I have known.

MRS. X. Y. Z.

Answer:

I think your husband is taking a very narrow view of the subject and a very unjust one.

There is a vast difference between the woman who stumbles in her ignorance and youth off the straight-and-narrow path and the one who elects to follow the primrose way.

You have washed your soul white with your tears of remorse. You have atoned for your little sin by years of good living, and your husband should be big enough to see this and to realize that you are perhaps a better woman than you would have been if you had not had your bitter lesson.

And certainly you would be a wiser mother and be more careful in protecting your own daughter because you know from experience how easy it is for girls to make a mistake in the folly of their youth when life and love are calling to them, and they have not learned how many pitfalls there are for unwary feet.

It is stories like yours that make one question the wisdom of a woman ever telling her husband if there is a stain upon her past, for while he may say that he forgives, he never really does so. And he never forgets and never fails to reproach her with it. Yet how many of these men are entitled to cast the first stone?

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix — I am engaged to be married to a very nice young man with whom I am much in love, but recently I have been to visit his people and what I saw there has made me doubtful about whether we would ever be able to be congenial and happy together. I have been reared in a home in which modesty and refinement were insisted upon, both in person and speech. I have never heard my father or brothers tell a coarse story. None of us were allowed to appear out of our rooms unless properly clothed, but in my fiance's home they observed nothing of what I consider the decencies of life. The various members of the family had no hesitation in going about in any state of undress, and the conversation consisted of filthy jokes and an unnecessary discussion of sexual matters. I was unspeakably shocked and I fear that these things will prey on my mind after we are married. Do you think this will wear off, or am I too old-fashioned to exist in 1927?

LOU.

Answer:

I think that there will be small congeniality between you and the young man, and that you will always be shocked at him and that he will always consider you a prude. Better think a long time before you marry into a family whose ideals are so different from your own. When the china vase and the earthenware pot undertake to float down the stream together, it is always the fine vase that gets smashed.

DOROTHY DIX.

SCONES

2 cups bread flour
2 level teaspoons Calumet baking powder
1-2 level teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons salt
1-4 cup sugar
1 egg
1-2 cup milk

Sift dry ingredients three times. Rub in fat with tips of fingers or fork. Add well beaten egg and milk. Turn out on floured board and roll to 1-4 inch thickness, and cut into two inch squares. Brush each square with milk and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., for 15 minutes.

Take a Chance? Well, Here's Woman Advising "Sparrow Pie" as Delicacy

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, June 3.—"Four and twenty blackbirds, baked in a pie——"

Yum, yum!

It may sound crusty, but a regular bird of a pie has been suggested for Texas housewives — sparrow pie! and you needn't twitter about it, either.

For sparrow pie is quite the latest thing.

Nimrod, who stopped at nothing short of dinosaurs, would probably feel disgraced to see grown men stalking down the wily little sparrow—with nigger-shooters — but that's what may happen.

After all, the big game season is on as far as mosquitoes are concerned; and since some sparrows are no bigger than certain mosquitoes, and vice versa, it will be within the law.

With the coming of the nesting season, the sparrow question looms once more—a matter worthy of our consideration as well as tabby's, according to Miss Allen D. Schultz, director of science in San Antonio schools and a recognized authority on outdoor life.

"Sparrows drive out almost all small singers and insect-eaters," Miss Schultz explained. "The most beloved birds, such as orioles and red birds and wrens, flee before them.

"Just as the chaparral bird drives out the mocking bird, eats the eggs and appropriates the nests—while the mocker meantime fills the air with feathers—so the sparrow robs smaller birds of their homes."

Miss Schultz said that fully five valuable insect destroyers, including the berwick wren and the blue bird and the chickadee, depend on last year's woodpecker holes for their nests. They cannot build homes of their own. When the sparrow drives them out, they are simply homeless. Thus several of our best beloved birds are threatened with extinction.

"In Monroe, Mich., the sparrow question has been settled by an old English recipe—sparrow pie," Miss Schultz said.

"Only the meaty parts of the bird are used, and it is made like any other meat pie; also, it is very appetizing. Texas housekeepers, particularly from the western part of the state, have praised the same dish to me."

Mrs. Floyd Billingsley Wins $5 Prize In Menu Contest; New Prize Offered

If the judges in The Record News Sunday Dinner Menu contest ever stopped to wonder if there were many good cooks in the city of Wichita Falls, ample positive proof has been received during the past week. And it seems that the slogan, "The City that Faith Built," could well be changed to "The City that Good Cooks Built," as far as the judges are concerned.

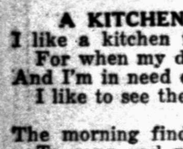

Menus poured in—recipes were received not only from local housewives, but from women in the Wichita territory who can also lay claim to being good cooks—dishes that had never been heard of but that sounded "fit for kings" were all considered by the judges.

As a result, the first prize of $5, after long consideration, is being awarded to Mrs. Floyd Billingsley, 1825 Elizabeth avenue, Wichita Falls, for having scored highest on the five points named in the requirements.

Mrs. Russell Scrivner, route 3, Iowa Park, wins the second prize of $2.50 after a close race with Mrs. Billingsley. The contest ran highest in deciding between Mrs. Billingsley's stuffed squash and appetizing salad, and Mrs. Scrivner's "catfish dinner."

As will be noticed, both menus are well balanced, are original, are appropriate to the season of the year, are not expensive, and explicit directions and discussion accompany each. The Record News feels gratified at the generous response shown by its "housewife readers," and believed that interest in the contest will mount with each week.

The second week of the contest is now begun, and menus received before Thursday noon will be considered for the next prizes of $5 and $2.50. Each recipe of special interest that is printed inthesecolumns will be paid for at the rate of $1 each.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

By Marjorie K. Rawlings

A KITCHEN FACING WEST

I like a kitchen facing West,
For when my day is nearly done
And I'm in need of peace and rest,
I like to see the evening sun.

The morning finds me fresh and gay,
To song and merriment inclined.
Let kitchen then be dark and gray,
I am so blithe, I do not mind.

As hours go by and trials increase,
And as my mind grows tired and dull
My laughter and my singing cease—
Life does not seem so beautiful.

Then through my westward windowpane
The sun streams in across my floor,
My table, in a golden rain—
And I can smile and sing once more!

FRESH CATFISH DINNER SERVED

Recipe Given Here For Delightful Meal

SUBMITTED BY MRS RUSSELL SCRIVNER
Route 3, Iowa Park.
Winner of second prize in The Record News Sunday dinner menu contest.

FRESH CATFISH DINNER
Fruit Punch
Catfish Fried in Butter
Baked Potatoes or Browned Potatoes
Cucumbers with Egg and Lemon Sauce
French Slaw Rolls
Lemon Milk Sherbet with Fresh Blackberry Sause
Orange Cake Coffee

There are two possibilities in this menu, one the elaborate "company" dinner, the other the more simple family dinner.

For the family dinner the fruit punch may be omitted entirely, or used as a drink with the dinner instead of being served as a first course. In that case the coffee would not be served. Any favorite recipe may be used, but the one I have in mind is:

Fruit Punch

Make a syrup by boiling 1 c. sugar with 1-2 c. water for 10 minutes; add 1-2 c. tea infusion, 1 c. strawberry juice (from either preserved or fresh berries); 1-2 can grated pineapple; juice of 3 lemons and 3 oranges and let stand 1-2 hour. Strain and add enough icewater to make 3-4 gallon of liquid. If desired add 1-2 c. maraschino cherries and 1 pint charged water.

This is a large recipe and will serve from 18 to 25 persons as a first course. The quantities may be reduced proportionally for a smaller amount.

Catfish Fried in Butter

Make a batter in the proportion of 1 c. flour, 3-4 c. milk, 1 egg, 1-2 t. salt and 1-8 t. pepper. Beat well. Dip the fish in this batter, covering completely. Lower quickly into deep hot fat and fry to a rich golden brown. If more convenient saute in about 1-2-inch of fat turning once to brown on both sides. Serve on a hot platter surrounded by the browned potatoes, or garnished with slices of lemon, cold sliced cucumbers and tiny red radishes.

Baked potatoes are attractive if an incision is made lengthwise, a piece of butter dropped into the opening, a little paprika and salt sprinkled on the butter and sent to the table covered with a napkin. Do not serve baked potatoes in a covered dish as they steam and become soggy.

To save heating the oven in hot weather, the potatoes instead of being baked may be boiled or steamed without removing the skins, then peeled, browned in butter and sprinkled with salt, pepper, paprika and if possible rolled in chopped parsley. In this case they are served around the fish.

Cucumbers With Eggs and Lemon Sauce

Pare two good sized cucumbers, slice in halves lengthwise, and scoop out seeds. Cut each half into three pieces crosswise, cover with boiling salted water and cook until tender (about 35 minutes). Drain, save 1 c. of the liquid. Melt 2 T. butter, add 2 T. flour and when blended add the cup of liquid from the cucumbers; stir until boiling, season with salt and pepper, then pour slowly, beating constantly, onto the beaten yolk of 1 egg. Return to the fire, cook a minute, add 1 T. lemon juice and the pieces of cucumbers, heat thoroughly and serve. This recipe serves six.

French Slaw

Allow a firm fresh head of cabbage to stand 1-2 to 3-4 of an hour in cold or icewater. Shred or chop fine. If the slaw is served on individual salad plates I like it better shredded, but if served from a salad bowl it is nicer finely chopped. Into a large mixing bowl put 1-2 a small onion diced very fine or if obtainable and the flavor is liked, use a clove of garlic cut very fine. Now add 1-2 c. olive or other salad oil, 1 t. salt, 1-4 t. pepper, a dash of dry mustard and mix well. Add 1-4 to 1-3 c. vinegar according to taste (sour slaw is delicious with fish) and beat well. Now put in the cabbage and toss together until the dressing is thoroughly mixed with the cabbage. One small green pepper diced fine is a nice addition. Serve either individually with lettuce on each salad plate or from a salad bowl lined with lettuce leaves. Garnish with strips of pimento.

Use a favorite recipe for lemon milk sherbet, or if it is inconvenient to make ices at home purchase a packer of lemon sherbet. Serve with a sauce made of cooking together until rich and syrupy, 1 qt. fresh blackberries and 2 c. sugar. Cool. Pour 2 or 3 T. of sauce over each serving of sherget as it is sent to the table.

Orange Cake

1 c. shortening (Crisco or butter or mixed).
2 c. sugar.
3 c. cake flour.
4 eggs.
4 t. baking powder.
1 c. milk and warm water.
1 T. orange juice.
Grated rind 1 orange.
1-2 t. salt if Crisco is used.

Mix according to standard directions for butter cake, bake in three large or four small layers (preferably three). Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Put together with a filling made by boiling together 1 c. sugar, 1-2 c. flour, 1 c. water and juice of 2 oranges, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add 2 T. butter and boil one minute longer. Remove from the flame, cool, spread between layers of cake and cover the top with either this filling or a boiled icing colored with vegetable yellow and flavored with orange.

To some a fish dinner is not complete without coffee, preferably served black.

The entire dinner may be served from the kitchen in courses, instead of from the table as is customary in the family dinner.

MODISH MITZI Mitzi Will Find a Way By JAY V. JAY

"How," asks Mitzi to a dear friend of hers who lives in Paris, "how can I get into the openings and see fall styles?" The dear lady doesn't know. She tells Mitzi that after all her suit with the narrow collar is very smart, and who could wish for a more becoming or chic hat?

Nobody knows how she can do it. She's been introduced to the most influential people short of Lanvin, Chantal, Lebouvier, Paul Poiret, Worth, and they don't know how she can do it. Her friend, the Countess of somewhere in France, who is one of the best dressed French women refuses to tell her.

Mitzi had come to Paris to learn about style. And now, when she might learn about it three months in advance of other people, she finds the way impassable. The Frenchman who admires her so much, who tells her how charming the metallic embroidered blouse of her suit is, cannot tell her the right directions.

How? How? How can she get into the openings? The dress she wears is new—the pleats, the round neck and the color at one time gave her much pleasure. But now, when her curiosity is aroused about new styles, it has become just a dress. She has a plan. Next week it may work.

Next Week—Presses.

FAN POTATOES

4 potatoes
12 toothpicks
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup fat (drippings or butter)
Deep fat for frying

Scrub the potatoes, peel, and cut lenghtwise into slices 1-4 inch thick. Cut into strips 1-4 inch wide. Fasten five of these strips together at one end with wooden toothpicks. Spread the open end fan shape and parboil for 10 minutes. Drain thoroughly, spread in an open roasting pan. Baste with the melted fat and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) until tender, or for about 12 minutes, basting from time to time. Sprinkle with salt and serve hot.

ALLIGATOR PEAR

Even though the avocado is unknown to a large number of people in the United States, it has its nativity in America. Particular attention was given it by Spanish writers following the conquest of Mexico and Northern South America. The first introduction of the avocado into the United States was made in 1833 when some trees were brought from Mexico.

The total dry matter in the edible portion of the avocado is greater than that found in other fruits. It ranks among the highest in the per cent of protein found in fruits, the carbohydrate supply is low, but the mineral supply is higher than that of the average fruit. Te fat content is very high but through experimental work it has been found that the coefficient of digestibility of this fat is on a par with butter.

RICE AND FRUIT PUDDING

Steam one cup of rice with a little salt in a double boiler. When done put in a buttered baking dish. Make a thin custard of two cups of milk, half cup of sugar and two eggs, well beaten. Pour this over rice. Take tart apples, slice thin, thoroughly cover rice and add plenty of brown sugar to cover apples. Bake till apples are done. This is delicious and will be made often if once tried. Any fruit can be substituted in place of apples, but we think the tart apples are the best.

Moral Courage

THERE is an American Crime Study commission in Chicago. This commission invited Judge W. W. McCrory of San Antonio to appear before the researchers. He appeared. He declared in his foreword that, "Unsurpassed in physical courage the American people have the lowest moral courage of any people of the world." He qualified the statement, however, by adding, "with the exception of the politicians they elect to office."

There was a discussion of the prohibition laws. Judge McCrory waded in. He declared straight from the shoulder that if all the violators of dry statutes in Texas were sent to prison, "the population of the state would be made up of clergymen and women." While he held the floor, the Texas judge made this comment, "Although the prohibition laws generally are violated throughout Texas, there has been little opposition to them. The American apparently is without moral courage where the prohibition laws are concerned."

And this Texas judge made this fact known, "Texas has the most radical liquor laws ever passed. Possession of a quart or more of alcoholic liquor is prima facie evidence for conviction. Sixty to 75 per cent of the cases tried in state courts are liquor cases. Except for the dry law, Texas is the most law abiding state in the union." This for the pessimists who are ever finding crime waves in Texas. This for the so-called uplifters who are ever declaring that crime is on the increase in Texas and criminals are growing more numerous every day.

Judge McCrory is one of the best known district judges of the Lone Star state. He has been before his people for many years. He speaks out in meetings. He tells the truth as he sees it. He lets the world beyond the pale of Texas know that crime is not rampant in Texas and that criminals are not given a free hand in Texas. Are they punished? Well read this from the address of the judge, "Big bomb and gunmen from Chicago and New York will find the Lone Star state an unhealthy hunting ground. There is no place for the bad man in Texas. If he starts operations he is expediciously bumped off. When a man with a few notches in his gun is killed, juries usually acquit the slayer."

W. W. McCrory was an appointee of Governor Pat Morris Neff. Then his people re-elected him to the office of district judge. He was invited to the city of Chicago to say something and he said it.

Relief for Flood Sufferers

HERBERT HOOVER says there are 700,000 flood victims. Congressman James B. Aswell of Louisiana demands a special session of congress. He insists that it is necessary to make an appropriation for flood relief without delay. His contention is that $300,000,000 should be appropriated by congress to provide money for rehabilitation of public enterprises, such as road and bridge building in the devastated areas.

Those who have been ruined cannot eat or wear sympathy, they cannot pay taxes or mortgages with sympathy and cannot rebuild their homes and bridges and school houses and farms with sympathy.

Early in the stages of the flood Senator James A. Reed of Missouri appealed to the president to call without delay a special session of congress. There was a deaf ear turned to the Reed petition.

Aswell says there is something like a billion surplus in the treasury at Washington and that the present crisis justifies the expenditure of at least a portion of it. What is the president going to do about it? What are the congressional leaders of the Republican party going to do about it?

Texas' Alien Land Law

ACCORDING to Washington advices the appeal of Texas to enforce its claim to 225,000 acres of land in Texas, acquired by David Fasken, a Scotch-Canadian, was dismissed by the supreme court for want of jurisdiction. Texas sought to obtain the land under its alien land law, which prohibits foreigners from acquiring land in the state. The suit was dismissed in the lower court on the ground that Fasken was entitled to own land in the state under treaty right. The state appealed directly to the supreme court and Charles Black of Austin represented David Fasken. Now what is the status of the so-called alien land law of Texas?

Teachers Given a Lift

SAN ANTONIO is proud of its public schools. It's board of education has submitted a revised salary schedule which will increase instruction cost upwards of $125,000 in the independent district. This schedule calls for a flat annual raise of $50 for teachers from one to ten years of experience in the local schools and of adjusted raises for professional qualification as high as $270 a year.

It is said that fully 900 of the 955 teachers and principals and special educators in the system are expected to be effected and no teacher will be reduced by new schedule. Education comes high. Educatioh calls for the expenditure of huge sums every year. This is well. It is as it should be. Superstition should be blotted out. Illiteracy should be blotted out. Ignorance is their mother and society is responsible for its illiterates and largely responsible for its criminals.

Why shouldn't the educators of the world, the teachers of the world be paid living salaries? They are not.

Wheat Yield for Three States

ACCORDING to a Dallas News writer the wheat estimates for Texas is 12,000,000 bushels, Oklahoma 40,000,000 bushels and Kansas 120,000,000. In 1926 Texas produced a very large wheat crop and millions of bushels of Texas wheat had European buyers. That is, the bulk of the crop was exported through the port of Galveston. It is different this year.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK, June 3. (EFS)—When New York gets hold of a dainty morsel like the Snyder-Gray case it hangs on to it like a longshoreman to a joke. You can't pry it loose.

• • •

During the trial an army of police had to guard the courtroom entrances to keep the morbid crowd from interrupting proceedings. The day Mrs. Snyder climbed to the Perjury Perch to tell her story the curious stormed the corridors in such numbers that men and women actually had their clothing ripped from their backs. They scratched and clawed and elbowed and fought and cursed, and when the doors were finally closed, refused to disperse, but loitered about the hallways of the building trying to think up some way of eluding the vigilance of the minions of the law.

The day the Murder Tandem were removed to Sing Sing from the Queens county jail in Long Island City, the crowds began to foregather in the neighborhood of the jail along about dawn. When the time appointed rolled around and the gates swung open, the thousands of curious rushed forward with a mighty roar, many of them nearly losing their lives under the wheels of the motorcycle police escort of police motorcycles that rode ahead to clear a path.

Two aldermen with their families and friends fell in line with the procession, announcing that they regarded the trip as a picnic.

Newspaper men, ever faithful, had arranged to accompany Mrs. Snyder and Gray, in their own cars. They stuck to the end, accompanied by a news photographer in an airplane, who circled over the long line of cars, clicking his camera and laughing in childish glee.

Warden Lawes of Sing Sing was deluged from newspaper offices with so many bizarre requests for special privileges that he was forced to abolish everything of the kind. They wanted special photographs of the cells the condemned pair would occupy. They wanted a detailed list of what they would eat, what they would wear, what books they would be allowed to read. One Tearful Tilly became actually tearful when the harassed warden explained to her it would be quite impossible to run her in as a matron outside Mrs. Snyder's cell for a week.

She was all set for a Sunday special.

• • •

Souvenir hunters have made a wreck of the grounds of Mrs. Snyder's former home in Queens Village. The American beauty rosebush the art editor planted a few weeks before he was murdered, has gone the way of the famous crabapple tree in the Hall-Mills murder case.

Every day hundreds of automobiles slow down outside the Snyder house. Scores of persons roam around the grounds, peer into the windows of the pretty little salmon-colored cottage with its fetching robin's-egg-blue casement and arbor, and try to open the garage.

One woman, not content with taking a few sprays from the bed of Chinese lettuce, tore up a rosebush and carried it away in her car. Many of the visitors bring their lunch and eat it sitting, chatting and laughing on the lawn. When they depart the grounds are littered with egg shells, banana skins and orange rinds.

Lorraine Snyder, the nine-year-old daughter of the convicted woman, remains in the house most of the time. The minute she shows her face on the street the curious surround her, and pelt her with questions, one of the favorite being if she knows what's happened to her mother.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

Both Anne Tracy and Mr. Jones who is the Tracys' milkman, object to the engagement of Phillip Wynne Tracy IV to Natlee Jones.

Phillip's mother plans to interest her son in other girls and decides to give him a party. She tells him about her old friend, Mrs. Hilliard, and unconsciously arouses his interest in the woman. He goes to the depot to meet her and takes her to luncheon. Shortly he finds he has fallen in love at first sight and wishes Natlee were not coming to the party.

At the party Natlee overhears Phillip making love to Mrs. Hillard and breaks the engagement. She refuses to even be friends and tells Rodney Maxwell all about it. Rodney comforts Natlee by telling her that he loves her and will smash Phil's face, but she begs him to forgive Phil.

On a midnight ride Lyra confesses her love for Phillip.

The next day Phillip tells his mother that he is not going to college and sends Lyra a very passionate love poem which his mother finds. Lyra tells Anne she is not too old for romance. The whole affair, however, sinks into nothingness because war is declared.

Rod and Phillip enlist together. Natlee tells Rod she is glad he is going with Phil and breaks his heart.

Here the story further unfolds—

CHAPTER XXI

MRS. TRACY'S FIRST GRAY HAIRS

"You see, mother, dear, I could not be the last Tracy and welch on my ancestors. If I had not enlisted I never would be able to look my grandchildren in the face."

In spite of her grief Anne Tracy smiled.

All that morning Phillip had proclaimed that he was not a marrying man and now he was looking forward to carrying on the line and name of Tracy. Her trembling hand was laid upon the rough brown hair in benediction.

"If you feel that way about it, my son, go, and God go with you," she said, in a voice that was a prayer.

"Oh, Rodney is going with me, mother."

"I am glad of that, Phillip."

Poor Rodney Maxwell—Everyone seemed glad that he was going to war.

It was a good thing that he had not heard the "gladness" voiced the second time, as the first time he heard it seemed to him that his cup of unhappiness was running over.

Part of Rodney Maxwell's slowness of speech and action was because he had always craved the love of relatives and friends. He always wanted to do something that would make someone happy—he wanted people to like him. His father and mother had both died when he was too small to realize his loss. Only the most distant relatives were left behind. These knew that he had money enough to care for himself luxuriously and because of that considered they had no responsibility in regard to the lonely child and lonelier youth.

It was always his fate to give more than was given to him.

His love for Phillip was received as a matter of course by him, who, however, always depended upon Rod to help him out of any scrape he might get into.

Rodney knew that Natlee Jones loved Phillip, but unconfessed even to himself his heart was always saying that Wynne might fall in love with someone else and then Natlee might let him comfort her.

After his last talk with Natlee, however, where he saw that she would never love any one but Wynne, Rodney hoped he would be lucky enough never to come back.

"I must go and tell Rod, mother, and you must arrange to go down to the recruiting station and sign your consent to let me go."

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV got up from beside his mother's chair and tenderly raising her to him he looked down into her eyes. The anguish he saw there made him a little ashamed of his affair with Lyra Hilliard.

"Mother," he said, brokenly, "if I come back I'll be a better son to you than I have been. Darling mother, you must always remember that whenever I have hurt you it was not because I intended to, it was because I forgot. If I had stopped to—"

He hesitated. He could not at this sacred moment lie to his mother. He knew that however much he would have stopped to think he he would have gone to Lyra Hilliard. He must get away and read that note. It was fairly burning in his pocket. He must make arrangements to leave as soon as possible.

He dropped his cheek down upon his mother's head and in doing so was surprised to see here and there among her black braids a thread of white.

Perhaps for the first time in his life he told himself that his mother was too young to have this sign of age or sorrow.

Would his life have been changed if she had given her love as she had a perfect right to do—to some other man? He didn't want to think of it—his mother was only "Mother" to him—she was not a woman with human desire for the tenderness and love which she had never had. For a single instant he contrasted her with Lyra Hilliard and was horrified.

He kissed her forehead and then her tear-filled eyes as he silently asked to be forgiven all the sorrow he had caused her.

As though she could stand no more, Anne gently pushed her son away.

This was goodbye—how many more times they would say those dread words it mattered not—today was the real break—today the real farewell was being said. Both mother and son knew that now, not later when he really left her, their hearts were saying in unsion "goodbye."

"Go, Phillip—I must have a little while to get myself in hand and then I will go down and sign my consent to your enlistment."

With another lingering caress, Phillip left his mother and hastened to his room. He locked the door, thinking as he did so, that it was the first time he could remember that door had ever been locked.

Hastily he took out the letter from Lyra and with shocked surprise he read:

"Wynne—the world—your world has completely changed and I am glad. That may sound heartless, but it will have to stand.

"I saw your triumphant ride down the drive from my window this morning, and I watched you and heard you until you were out of sight and heard you calling out all your friends to join you in signing up for the war.

"Wynne, you never thrilled me as you did at that moment—the moment when I was bidding you goodbye.

"What glorious wind-up to a glorious experience. That memory I hope to keep forever, even if all the others fade.

"Last night after I returned home from that ride I knew that the play was over—I knew that we must part—I knew that, as I really did not love you, I must not let my vanity take you any further on to where we would both be disgraced—for disgrace was inevitable when people knew.

"I have too much to lose and you must not have any more to forget. This is why I am writing this letter—this is why I am bidding you goodbye in this fashion. You may think it is cruel but, dear boy, I am really being kind to you. I have to thank you for the most wonderful few weeks of my life, and you must remember you gave them to me when I thought good times of that kind were over. That was not the least of their thrill.

"You are going to France, dear boy, and when you are there you will have no time to think of me. Fate also has been merciful to you. This greater thing which will wipe everything else out of your life for a while has come just at the right moment.

"Goodbye, Wynne, and better luck next time.—Lyra."

Phillip Wynne Tracy IV read that unfeeling letter over once again, and then he slowly tore it into tiny bits and heaping them up on a large ash tray which stood beside his bed, he touched a match to them. Quietly, with set face, he watched them burn.

During that time he also burned his faith and trust in women. He would have no more to do with any of them, he said, forgetting his mother and Natlee. All the time Lyra had been playing with him. She took him on because she knew that he was easiest of all the boys that were his friends. She flattered him by telling him he was a man. She made him minister to her vanity in every possible way—well, he would show her he was a man. He would not let his love for a false woman in any way hurt him. Now, without a qualm, she had killed his pride, and with it she had killed his reverence for all women.

"Damn her," he said, "she won't get away with it in this fashion. I'll make her say that she was lying both in words and actions all the time. I'll make her own up that if it hadn't been me it would have been someone else."

The flaming paper became a little heap of gray ash. He abruptly sat down on his bed and flung his arms across the table standing by it. As he did so he jarred the little tray to the floor, scattering the ashes all over the room. His first love affair was dissipated forever.

"My God, Lyra—do you know what you have done?" he asked, as though she could hear. His face dropped on his outstretched arms and he burst into sobs.

In a little while it was another Phillip Wynne Tracy that stood before his mirror than the one who stood before it on the day he started out to meet Lyra Hilliard.

The eyes had narrowed—they never again would be the round eyes of inquiring youth. The mouth had straightened and thinned—even the complexion had lost its youthful glow and in its place there was a sallow tint that spoke eloquently as did the faint lines from the nose to the corners of the mouth of experience and mental pain.

Quite sedately and firmly Phillip walked to Lyra's door and knocked. He was beyond caring for convention now.

There was no answer. He opened the door and found the room in the disorder of a hurried packing and departure.

This gave Phillip another shock. He wondered what Lyra had said to his mother as an excuse for such a hurried return to her home.

He looked around the room. Beside the dressing table a glove was lying on the floor. As his eyes rested upon it he laughed. It was a laugh not good to hear, especially from one so young. It spoke only of cynicism and disbelief.

Slowly, so slowly that to an observer he would have seemed to be propelled against his will, he walked to the dressing table and picked up the glove.

As his hand touched it he shuddered—there is something so intimate about a glove—Phillip felt almost as though he were holding Lyra's hand.

Natlee carries out her intention to visit Mrs. Tracy. How she receives her is told in the next chapter.

The ladies of the Baptist church will serve the dinner.

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

Out of the depth have I cried unto thee, O Lord.

Lord hear my voice: let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications.

If thou, Lord, shouldest mark iniquities, O Lord, who shall stand?

But there is forgiveness with thee, that thou mayest be feared.

I wait for the Lord, my sould doth wait, and in his word do I hope.—Psalms, 130:1-6.

Power Company Will Occupy New Offices

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, June 3.—The Texas-Louisiana Power company will move into their new offices in about 10 days. The building recently purchased by them on Main streets is being remodeled and all new furnishings will be installed. In addition to the light company's office, they will carry a complete line of electrical equipment which, according to O. P. McCary, local manager, will rival that of any electrical store in northern Texas.

Additional Teachers Selected At Vernon

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, June 3.—Three additional teachers to complete the faculties of Vernon schools have been elected by the board of trustees. Mrs. George T. O'Banion was elected to head the English department of the high school; Miss Stella Senor of White City was elected to a position in the Junior High school, and Ben Roberts as principal of one of the ward schools. Miss Senor formerly taught at Electric at Mrs. O'Banion at Bowie.

Visitors Climb Odds To Overcome Lead

Shreveport came from behind in the seventh inning to take the series opener 9 to 7 from the Spudders. Bunched hits in the fifth and seventh innings by Shreveport accounted for eight of the Sports nine runs, while the Spudders were unable to hit Williamson, who had relieved Adkins in the fourth, in the late innings to come home a winner. The Sports garnished fifteen hits off the offerings of Estell and Steengrafe, while Wichita Falls was getting eleven. Six of the Spudders hits went for extra bases, five doubles and a homer.

Play Again Today.

Shreveport and Wichita Falls play again Saturday afternoon at 4 p. m. with a double-header Sunday to offer the fans as a wind up of the Sports present stand in Spudderville. The score:

SAN ANTONIO, June 3. (AP)—Unleashing an attack on Jack Robertson in the ninth, the Bears put five runs across the plate on four hits, including three doubles, to come within one run of tying up the final game of the series here Friday, which was won by Beaumont, 6 to 5. Until the ninth, Robertson kept the hits scattered and held the Bruins scoreless.

Andy Messenger, obtained from the Kansas City Blues, made his first appearance with the Bears, using an underhand delivery, with which he held the Exporters to eight hits, netting four runs, when he was relieved for a pinch hitter. The score:

Pirates Collect Victory From Phillies

PITTSBURGH, June 3. (AP)—In a game replete with sensational pitching by Vic Aldridge and batting by his teammates, Pittsburgh defeated Philadelphia today, 11 to 1. The Pirates collected 15 hits, including circuit clouts by Wright, Grantham and P. Waner. In the second inning, after Philadelphia loaded the sacks on three Pirate errors, Aldridge fanned the next three batters. Joe Harris, league batting leader, had a perfect day at bat with two singles and two walks. The score:

BUFFS 1, CUBS 0.

WACO, June 3. (AP)—The Houston Buffs took the final game of the series here today with the Waco Cubs, 1 to 0, in a pitchers battle between Jacobus and Elliott. In the fifth inning, Kane singled, stole second and scored on Hock's double. Windle and Blackerby were the only locals to hit Jacobus, Windle getting three hits and Blackerby a double. This victory for the visitors gave them one win out of the three-game series. The locals leave for a road trip that takes them to all other league parks before returning home. The score:

Burkburnett Team Will Play at Olney

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, June 3.—The Burkburnett Gulf team will meet the Olney boys in a two-game series here Saturday and Sunday. From all reports the Burk team will afford stiff opposition to the locals. Olney has lost only two games this season.

The Olney line up will be strengthened by the addition of two former Olney players who have been away for some time. Don Anderson, who played with the locals two years ago will be on the field for Saturday's game and Collie West, also a former star for Olney will be in the lineup for one of the games, if not for both.

Chas. Richardson, manager of the Olney club, reports that the diamond is being treated with crude oil this week so that the games Saturday and Sunday will be free from the effects of blowing sand.

RUNYON SAYS

Jack No Gentleman— Whipped Good Man— Jumped At Decision— Not Much In Navy—

Those who haven't cared for Mr. Gene Tunney's highbrow may like Mr. Jack Sharkey's exceedingly low brow. As sure as you are a foot tall the limber Lithuanian with the phoney monicker will meet Mr. Tunney for the heavyweight title this fall, and probably win it.

Mr. Sharkey, as champion, might be a relief to the ringworms who have irked under the era of balloon pants, high hats and gentlemenly demeanor and who have pined for the good old days when fighters commonly spoke out of the corner of their mouths and were no gentlemen.

• • •

Whatever else may be said about Mr. Sharkey, he is most assuredly no gentleman. He is a great fighter. Perhaps the greatest heavyweight we have had since the days before Dempsey became a gentleman, but Mr. Sharkey will never be in demand in drawing rooms or social soirees.

As he stepped out of the ring at the Yankee stadium the other night after his masterly kayo of Edward James Maloney, Mr. Sharkey emitted a string of oaths, long as a well rope, for the edification of the ladies and gents assembled at the ringside and then departed mid their joint blushes.

That's the kind of a hairpin Mr. Sharkey is—rootin,' Tootin,' Cuttin,' shootin' son of a gun from Binghamton. One good thing about Mr. Sharkey, whenever he fights, Mr. Tex Rickard need not worry about alloting his front seats. He can give them to the deaf and dumb and put millionaires and their frails about 10 rows back, where they cannot hear Mr. Sharkey's gabble, but foul mouthed Jack's dirty tongue doesn't make him any the less a fighter.

• • •

He whipped a corking good man when he whipped Edward James Maloney, and even if I may be overrating Edward James' ability a trifle, the manner in which Mr. Sharkey did the job makes him a great fighter to me.

He is entitled to the match with Mr. Tunney right now.

• • •

Mr. Sharkey's peculiar bobbing weaver style is exactly the style that is calculated to discombulate Mr. Tunney. Once before Mr. Tunney met a bobber and did not know what to do about it. He fought little Jeff Smith, the old globe trotter of Bayonne, at New Orleans a couple of years ago and Jeff was still afoot and bobbing at the end of 15 rounds.

Mr. Tunney was then making a ridiculous claim to a ridiculous title—the American light heavyweight championship. By the way of protecting this preposterous title he insisted on a no decision bout with Jeff Smith which I have always contended was the height of caution and conservation.

• • •

Tunney got the newspaper decision as I recalled, but the fact that he was only able to outstruggle the much smaller and much older Mr. Smith shows that Mr. Tunney is mystified by expert bobbing. Mr. Sharkey goes far beyond Jeff Smith as a bobber, because he combines a sort of roll with his bobbing that is reminiscent of old Dan "Pork" Flynn, and is very confusing. Only those who have a deep seated grudge against Jack Dempsey would care to see him in the ring with Mr. Sharkey. The limber Lith would slash poor Mr. Dempsey to ribbons. The floundering Paulino would be a joke against Mr. Sharkey.

The improvement of this ex-sailor who, by the way is the only navy trained man who wasn't innately a man of some reserve and modesty is astonishing.

As battling Skee or "Skin," he wasn't much of a fighter in the navy, but after he settled in Boston as a professional pug he began moving right along.

He was knocked out by Quentin Romero-Rejas and outgalloped by Bud Gorman and others, yet he kept right on improving and learning how to fight. He is now one of the masters of the manly art of scrambling ears. A big fast fellow who can perhaps whip any man in the world, with the possible exception of a few of the newspaper men around New York that he was talking of whipping just before the Maloney fight.

If Mr. Sharkey will allow them that—I have in mind the reasonable handicap of a near beer bottle in either hand—I will guarantee that Mr. Sharkey runs second. However, I think Mr. Sharkey will change his attitude toward the world in general before he is much older. He all live and learn, you know, but I doubt that Mr. Sharkey will ever alter his language.

Perhaps, we should allot that small privilege to a great fighter. They tell me even George Washington swore on occasions.

Two American Stars In British Net Final

STANFORD HILL, England, June 3. (AP)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who fell before Mrs. Molla Mallory in the final for the American women's lawn tennis championship last year, reversed the decision today, eliminating the champion in the semi-finals of the north London tournament, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4. Miss Ryan enters the final against Miss Helen Wills, former American champion, who came through the other semi-final today by defeating Mrs. Beamish of England, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3.

Sharkey and Tunney May Fight at Chicago

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Possibility that Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney would meet in a championship fight in Chicago developed today.

Tex Rickard is considering a trip to Chicago at the invitation of sportsmen interested in getting a big bout for that city.

Rickard said he had not made definite plans but he is considering the advisability of using Soldiers field at Chicago, with its seating capacity of 150,000 for a title bout in September.

DUNDEE WHIPS PETER LATZO

New Welterweight Ruler Crowned in Bout

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Joe Dundee, Baltimore Italian, won the world's welterweight championship tonight, dethroning Pete Latzo of Scranton, Pa., with a decisive victory on points in a 15round match.

Dundee clearly outboxed and out punched the champion in a fight that started slow but finished in wihrlwind style. Latzo apparently was weakened by making the class weight of 147 pounds. The decision o fthe two judges and Referee Eddie Forbes was unanimous.

The semi-final, scheduled for eight rounds, ended abruptly in the second round when George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight was declared the winner on foul on K. O. Philipan of New York.

Johnny Indrusano, Boston Italian, carried off a close six-round decision over Billy Alger, San Francisco welterweight. Indrusano, a sparring partner of Latzo's, was substituted for Willie Harmon as an opponent for Alger.

ROUND ONE—Latzo came out with a rush and they mixed with an exchange of light lefts. The champion sunk his right into Dundee's ribs and they clinched. They sparred cautiously, with Latzo doing most of the leading. Latzo employed a half crouch and worked into Dundee's leads. Dundee hooked his left to the jaw and Pete backed away. Latzo landed both hands to the body just before the bell.

ROUND TWO—Dundee jumped in with a left to the ribs and Pete chopped his about the head. Latzo tied the challenger in a clinch and the crowd yelled. Dundee landed twice to the ribs as they were locked head to head. The referee was kept busy prying them apart. Dundee snapped the champion's head back with an uppercut and took a right to the jaw in exchange. Latzo landed a hard overhand right to the chin. Latzo backed Dundee to the ropes with both fists swinging just before the gong.

ROUND THREE—Latzo opened up and landed two hard swings to Dundee's head. The challenger shot back his right but absorbed a stiff wallop on the jaw in exchange. They were hitting up a faster pace and Latzo was forcing the milling. Joe's left bounced off the champion's jaw and his right connected to Latzo's ribs. They were locked in repeated clinches and the referee pried them apart just before the bell.

ROUND FOUR—Dundee jabbed to the jaw with his left before they clinched. Dundee pounded away at Latzo's side but the crowd became impatient and yelled for more action. Few decisive blows were landed, as they kept at close range, their arms locked together. They exchanged lefts to the head but were quickly tangled up again. Latzo tripped Dundee on the jaw with a snappy right hook and the pace was livelier for a few moments just before the bell.

ROUND FIVE—They were locked together like a pair of wrestlers again without delay. Dundee fought his way out of a clinch and conencted with a left and right to the body. Dundee blocked Latzo's left and bored in with both hands. Latzo swung an overhand to the jaw and backed Dundee to the ropes. In a corner Latzo landed again with his right but the challenger smiled. Dundee swung two vicious rights to the body. They were sparring at the bell.

ROUND SIX—Dundee missed a right hand swing and Latzo kept in with a vicious attack. The challenger bounced off the ropes to connect with a stunning left hook to the jaw. Dundee's left stopped Latzo's rush and they were locked together again. Latzo slipped to the floor after missing a right swing but bounced up without a count. They were mixing it at a livelier pace and Dundee had the better of several close exchanges just before the bell.

ROUND SEVEN—Dundee crashed a right to the jaw that jolted Latzo and hooked a hard right to the ribs. They exchanged hooks to the head and Dundee crossed with his right. Latzo seemed to be tiring a bit. The champion swung his right repeatedly but seldom broke through Dundee's defense. They broke into a clinch at the gong.

ROUND EIGHT—Latzo's foot was tangled up in a towel when he came out. After getting rid of this he jumped in and exchanged stiff lefts to the head. Dundee slipped and went to one knee after breaking out of a clinch, but was quickly back on his feet. The challenger kept battering Pete's ribs in every exchange. Latzo took a stiff right on the shoulder and ducked another. Dundee finally landed to the neck and hooked his left to the head. The champion rushed in with both fists flying but was tied up in another clinch at the bell.

ROUND NINE—Latzo opened up at a fast clip. He landed twice with his left to the head, but Dundee retaliated with a right uppercut. Dundee belted the champion on the nose and crossed with a stiff right to the head. After an exchange of blows Dundee leaped in to land his left to the chin. Dundee crashed his right to Latzo's ribs viciously several times and blocked the champion's counter blows. Latzo smashed a right to the head and they backed to the ropes. They broke out of a clinch at the bell.

ROUND TEN—Latzo stuck in both fists to the head and backed Dundee off with a right hook. The challenger came back and shot a stiff left to the face. Latzo's right side was blotched with red from the effect of Dundee's steady hammering. They fought their way out of a clinch but were head to head again shortly. Dundee's right crashed to the ribs twice and Latzo was wild with a left hook. They were in a lively mixup at the bell.

ROUND ELEVEN—Dundee shot a hard left to the head, opening a cut over Latzo's right eye. The challenger followed it up with a vicious low handed attack that had the champion in distress. Dundee smashed the right to the body and sent Latzo back on his heels with a left jab. Latzo went back to the ropes after taking a left to the jaw. The champion swung both fists to the head and then clinched. Latzo missed with his right, but blocked Dundee's counter. Latzo swung his right to the head just as the bell rang, and Dundee went after him to retaliate when the referee blocked him.

ROUND TWELVE—Latzo apparently sensing that his title was slipping at the pace he had been traveling so far, opened up with a rush. He clipped Dundee about the head but the challenger refused to take any chances and covered up. Latzo sent Dundee to the ropes with a vicious two-fisted attack. They came out at a furious mixup and had the crowd in an uproar. Latzo backed Dundee to the ropes and flailed him with both hands but the referee pried them apart when the bell rang.

ROUND THIRTEEN—They rushed together and exchanged hard rights to the head. Dundee was willing to mix and brought the champion up with a stiff left uppercut. Dundee fired with both hands to the head without a return and they clinched. Latzo took a stiff right to the jaw and backed off, apparently unable to keep up the pace. They stood toe to toe and slugged with both hands but Dundee's blows were the more accurate. Latzo was fighting desperately but took two rights to the chin just before the gong.

ROUND FOURTEEN—Dundee jumped in with a snappy left to the jaw and then caught Latzo with his right coming in. Latzo took a stiff smack on the nose. The champion kept boring in and hooked his right twice to the head. Latzo landed four times to the head without a return but there was little steam behind the blows. Dundee outboxed the champion at the close range and landed with both hands to the head. The bell broke up a rally by Latzo.

ROUND FIFTEEN—After shaking hands they came together in a wild exchange of punches. Dundee chased Latzo about the ring, crashing his right to the head. Latzo landed his right to the jaw but took a brace of hooks in return. Latzo tried gamely to land his right but was outfought at close range. Dundee's right crashed and Latzo was holding on. Latzo missed with his right and Dundee smashed both hands to the head as they fought along the ropes. The bell broke up their last exchange.

Claims a Throne

Young Archduke Joseph Francis is being boomed by a coterie of Italian supporters as the most likely candidate for Emperor of Hungary. The legal successor, Archduke Otto, is still in his teens. Joseph Francis is related to the Italian royal house, which explains Italys' enthusiasm for his cause.

NEWLIN FORMS 42-PIECE BAND

Instruments To Be Bought At An Early Date

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, June 3.—A 42-piece band was organized at Newlin this week with Prof. Paul James as director, and the membership expects to secure instruments at an early date and active practice begun.

With the organization of this band Hall county now has four bands, with Prof. James director of each. The Estalline band, winner of the W. T. C. C. prize in the six months class; the Harold Chapel band, another six months old band which is said to be doing some excellent work, and the famous Gold Medal band, winner of the six year class this year, besides the different winnings of previous years.

Grain Harvest Work Shows Good Progress

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, June 3.—Farmers in the Barwise and Enterprise communities northeast of the city report that harvest is about half finished and the crops are yielding better results than expected due to the dry season.

Most of the cotton is planted and in many places a good stand is up, but feed crops are badly in need of a heavy rain, the occasional showers being of little benefit.

Cash Will Operate Electra Swim Pool

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, June 3.—Owing to the fact that V. T. Cash, scout master of Electra, has taken contract to operate the Electra Municipal swimming pool during the summer he will be unable to accept the position as director of the Boy Scout summer camp to be held at the scout camp grounds on the diversion lake, south of Electra.

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, June 3.—The contract was let this week for the erection of the Church of God, located on North Dunbar street, at a cost of approximately $2700. The contract was let to E. Swafford, and the building is expected to be completed at the end of June and will be dedicated soon after completion, and when the new furniture is placed, which will include a new piano. Dirt was broke for the building May 31, and Rev. R. P. Johnson is pastor.

Delaney and McTigue Must Cancel Extras

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion and Mike McTigue, his challenger, both were barred today by the New York tSate Athletic commission from engaging in other matches before their title bout at Yankee stadium on July 7.

The commission cancelled McTigue's scheduled engagement here June 10 with the Australian heavyweight, Tom Heeney.

Bears Succeed In Drive To Depress Stock Prices On New York Excchange Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 3.—Bears succeeded most of today in depressing values on the stock exchange. Losses of one to six points were registered. Specialties which enjoyed activity of late suffered most. Bears took advantage of the excessive speculation on the Chicago board of trade in wheat, corn and cotton on thin margin and pyramids. Wheat dropped three cents and this induced selling of stocks on the Chicago exchange which spread to New York.

Another development was that the public took as bearish the unchanged bank rate. The market also felt the effect for the first time of the interstate commerce commission examiner's decision on the New York Central lease plans. The $2,000,000,000 flood loss estimate did not help matters. On top of this the banks called $20,000,000 in loans. Unfortunately the short interest was small, particularly in the specialties.

In the late afternoon banks were buyers of such investment issues as Steel, American Telephone, Atchison and other high-grade issues. Money loaned at 4 1-2 per cent. Exchange was steady.

Heavy buying developed in National Distillers which lifted that stock nearly half a dozen points. It was one of the few issues to buck the downward trend. The buying was based on reports that the Dupont company had acquired control of the company. National Distillers is understood to have a process for taking alcohol from the waste of glycerine. The company is also a manufacturer of grocery store products and is in possession of medicinal whiskey.

Short selling developed in General Motors but the bears in this issue are likely to pay "through the nose." General Motors in the second quarter is expected to earn approximately $9 a share. In the first quarter it earned nearly $6.

This would make $15 for the first six months. It is estimated that the company will earn at least $5 a share in the third and fourth quarter, making a total for the year of $25. Such earnings would warrant additional extra dividends.

Latest plans of the company, the writer learns, call for a change in name from General Motors to General Manufacturing corporation. It is thought that stockholders in General Motors will receive unit certificates in the companies controlled by General Motors such as Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Yellow. General Motor is already a general manufacturing company, being interested in Frigidaire, glass companies, auto bodies, heating apparatus, etc.

Pittsburgh Coal was in demand throughout the day. Pittsburgh Terminal Coal is understood to be acquiring stock in the mining company. These two stocks have been strong ever since the strike was won against the union miners. The logical place for the stocks, it is said, would be in the treasury of the steel corporation, as the latter now takes from the Pittsburgh Coal company 6,000,000 tons of coal a year.

St. Paul issues were active and strong. A banking group, it is said, plan a big campaign both in the inside and outside stocks. Union Pacific was bought on a scale down. U. P., it is rumored, plans to segregate its investment from its railroad and form a separate investment company similar to that of the Chesapeake & Ohio. Later, it is said, the U. P. will offer its investment stock to shareholders as a means to pay for the Chicago Northwestern.

Endicott Johnson which has been backward, has been under accumulation by a new group. The last 60 days has seen a phenominal increase in the price of raw hides and skins. This should help the leather stocks of companies having raw material inventories purchased prior to this increase.

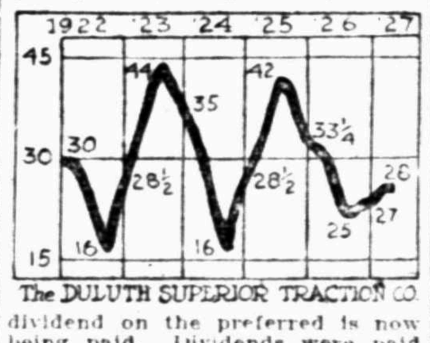

THE DULUTH SUPERIOR TRACTION CO.

Five-Year Record.

The street railway systems of Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis., are operated by the Duluth Superior Traction company under indeterminate permits in each state. The company also operates two interurban lines and controls the urban and interurban bus business of the cities. The single track mileage is about 110. The company has power plants and sub-station equipment and has been permitted to fix a straight 6 per cent fare in Duluth.

Funded debt totals $3,384,000. Capital stock outstanding includes $1,500,000 in 4 per cent cumulative preferred shares of $100 par and $3,500,000 in common shares of $100 par. The regular 4 per cent

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—The cotton market was lower today. Unfavorable features in the weather news evidently failed to inspire much fresh buying and after selling up to 17.20 at the opening, October broke to 16.85 in late trading under realizing or liquidation, and local selling. October closed at 16.95, the general market closing steady at net declines of 17 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to a decline of two points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, but prices almost immediately firmed up on covering promoted by reports that rains in the central belt were accelerating the rise in the Mississippi river and reports of dry hot weather in Texas.

July rallied to 16.82 and December to 17.46, net advances of about four to seven points on active months, by this bulge met considerable realizing while there was some local and southern selling on rumors of showers in the southwest. Later advances failed to show anything more beneficial than very light showers at a couple of points in West Texas, causing slight rallies during mid-day, but realizing continued and failure of the weather news to inspire more general or aggressive buying evidently stimulated reactionary sentiment.

Prices weakened in consequence the market selling off rather sharply during mid-afternoon. A few stop orders were uncovered on the decline which extended to 16.50 for July and 17.10 for December, or about 28 to 30 points below yesterday's closing quotations. In the case of December contracts this made a decline of 47 points from the high level of the week and after stop orders had been executed, prices rallied 9 or 10 points from the lowest on covering in late trading.

Exports today, 21,071, making 10,422,116 so far this season. Port receipts 10,271. U. S. port stocks 1,168,509.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, June 3. (AP)—Grain prices were under active selling pressure today and with adequate support lacking from new buyers sharp declines were witnessed. Much of the selling was attributed to renewal of legislative efforts to place the Chicago board of trade under control of Illinois state officials. Other reasons given were improved wheat crop prospects in Canada and the northwest.

Wheat closed weak, 2⅝ to 2⅞c net lower, corn 4⅝ to 5⅛c down, oats 3⅝ to 4⅛c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c drop.

TEXAS VEGETABLES.

By Universal Service.

SAN ANTONIO, June 3.—A considerable decrease in tomato and watermelon shipments was noted today in reports from lower Rio Grande valley rail points.

In fact only a few vegetables moved out of the state during the day. The carlot shipments included 39 cars of potatoes, nine cars of onions, 28 cars of watermelons and 74 cars of tomatoes.

With the Wharton and Eagle Lake potato deals about closed interest in potato quotations shifted to San Antonio where the market on cobblers continued strong with an active demand. Carlots of cobblers sold at $4.00@4.25 per hundredweight.

Watermelons were dull and the demand limited due to cool weather in northern cities. Most shipments were rolled unsold.

San Antonio quoted Tom Watsons in carlot bulk per hundredweight, 28 to 30-pound averages at $1.60@1.75 and 24 to 26-pound averages at $1.20@1.30.

Tomatoes were steady at Jacksonville on pinks and slightly stronger on green wraps which sold in four basket crates, at $1.25; pinks unwrapped, brought 65 cents cash track.

Trading in watermelons in the cities of the nation today was restricted and markets ruled barely steady to weak. The demand for new potatoes continued active and markets were firm to strong in most centers. Tomatoes exhibited a better undertone and markets were generally about steady to firm.

DUN'S REVIEW.

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Dun's tomorrow will say:

During a period when a seasonal contraction of business activity is occurring there is the anomalous condition of increased firmness in commodity prices. Not only is the monthly index number higher, but the excess of advances in quotations has widened being more marked this week than for some time. In the movement the rise in foodstuffs is the outstanding feature, yet some other products among them hides and leather, cotton goods and certain metals, also are stronger and there is a more general resistance to declines.

Such a phase, however, does not imply any actual or prospective change in the character of demand, and the fact that many prices are relatively low should not be disregarded in considering the greater reluctance of sellers to make additional concessions.

Weekly bank clearings $9,438,137,000.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, June 3.—Heavy selling for both accounts finally undermined today's stock market, although operators for the rise made several valiant attempts to retain control of the price movement. The first selling attack around mid-day encountered strong resistance, although a few wide open breaks occurred in some of the specialties, but th esubsequent rally encountered another large volume of offerings which eventually carried May issues one to nearly nine points below yesterday's final quotations.

So great was the volume of trading that the ticker at times was nearly half hour behind the actual market, the last quotation being printed 18 minutes after the market closed. The day's sales totaled 2,712,400 shares, a new high record for the year.

Banks called between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 in loans during the day, but the call money rate held steady at 4½ per cent and there appeared to be plenty of funds available at that figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged. Retention of the 4 per cent rediscount rate by the New York federal reserve bank was generally expected.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the selling movement, which was based chiefly on the belief that the technical position of the market had been weakened by the recent rapid advance, and that a downward readjustment was inevitable. The usual week-end profit taking also swelled the volume of selling.

Selling pressure was particularly effective against some of the standard industrials. U. S. Steel common sagged from 126½ to 123⅜. General Motors from a new high record at 202 to 197⅝, Baldwin from 224⅜ to 219 and American Smelting from 164⅞ to 160⅝, but all of them rallied slightly from the low levels.

Rails also yielded to selling pressure after repeated attempts had been made to rally by driving shorts into the Missouri Pacific and Chicago Great Western issues. The breaks in Colorado and Southern, Gulf, Mobile and Northern, New Orleans, Texas and Mexico, Pere Marquette, Western Maryland second preferred and Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred, ran from about four to six and a half points, while New York Central, Wabash common, Western Maryland common, Reading and several others lost two points or more. Earlier, new peak prices had been established by Delaware and Hudson, Norfolk and Southern, Texas and Pacific, and a few others.

In all 669 individual issues were traded in a new high record for all time.

Foreign exchanges also were heavy. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85 3-16 and French francs just below 3.91½ cents. Japanese yen showed independent strength by climbing 10 points to 46.25 cents.

LOVELY BRIDES OF JUNE

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Make the Wedding Day One of Peace and Happiness

By Beatrice Fairfax.

An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage

ARE there more brides or roses in June? And which are lovelier?

Under favorable conditions, roses can be made to bloom every month. But they outdo themselves in June.

While girls are always attractive, the outdoor life of Summertime brings their prettiness to perfect blooming.

As for June, James Russell Lowell sums it up:

"And what is so rare as a day in June?

Then, if ever, come perfect days. Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune

And over it softly her warm ear lays."

Earth and heaven, brides and roses, all seem in tune at this time of year.

Sometimes June fails to live up to her promise and gives us chilly days. But one rare June day atones for all the disagreeable one. Neither are brides perfect.

Yet does not every bride seem perfect that enchanted moment when she marches down the aisle in dim, religious light to slow wedding music with her snowy veil and June blossoms?

A very wise woman remarked: "One marvels that a friend can ever seem less than beautiful."

Certainly in the eyes of love, and to the waiting bridegroom, the bride is beautiful. When two persons are in love, the glamor of romance blinds them for the time to imperfections and each is perfect to the other.

"You bet she's pretty!" would be the quick reply of the average young man, were you to ask him whether his fiance was good-looking. Probably, Adam made the same remark about Eve—in different language.

"My wife has always kept her youthful slenderness," laughs Hal. "But I have to be careful how I brag about it because a good many of her friends are getting stout and remarks about slenderness make them sore."

Hal is tremendously proud of his Eileen. She is supple and slim and has the vivid coloring that goes with active health. Eileen declares her large nose spoils her looks. But because she has kept her husband in love by her clever, good-humored charm she is as beautiful in his eyes as the day she walked to the altar.

Men love and marry beauty just as a flower attracts a bee. But this beauty may be intelligence, modesty or exquisite health of mind and body.

The average man would gladly marry the woman he loves any month of the year. But, after all, a wedding is a bride's day. She's the star. The groom is a poor second, while the bride rises superbly to the occasion and is usually a model of unruffled poise and joy.

The wise bride to be, knowing the value of beauty and the importance of first impressions, avoids a great rush of pre-nuptial entertaining and an exhausting, elaborate wedding, since they mean a haggard bride with pallor that rouge cannot hide.

Moderation — neither too much nor too little—motto of the classic Greeks—is a secret of happy marriage. So why not begin by making your wedding neither a drab, dingy elopement nor an extravagant show!

A young married woman confided to me that she and her fiance were so exhausted by betrothal parties and entertaining as well as preparations for an immense wedding that when the great event came she was utterly exhausted. And when they finally started on their honeymoon, both bride and groom were as tired and cross as two sticks.

"I hadn't enough money with me or I would have left him the first day of our honeymoon and rushed home to mother," she confessed. These two were fond of each other, but they were too nervously exhausted to cope successfully with the emergencies of travel and their new companionship. How much better, a few friends gathered in the dim, lovely light of the restful church, or the two families in the sunshiny home living-room—and a rested, poised bride and groom at their charming best!

In order to please she must base her perfection on health of mind and body and sound preparation for the life facing her, so that when the rosy glow of the honeymoon fades—as it must—to the sunlight of common day, a superb friendship between her and the Dearest Man, will replace illusions with unchanging loyalty, companionship and affection, making their home the sweetest place on earth.

For Beauty's Sake—and His

She Must Make Endless Efforts to Please

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

IF he should just chance into her home one morning without warning she would be panicky, horror-stricken. She would be quite certain that he could never love her again. How could he when he'd seen her with her hair uncurled, her nails unmanicured, in a simple little house frock?

And he—all he'd know was that he was looking at her and she was an angel. He wouldn't even know that she looked any different from the way she always did when he saw her.

But when she knows he's coming—ah, there's a whole day of preparation. There's the new dress to be fitted, the sheerest of stockings to be bought, nails to be manicured, hair to be cut and curled, endless powdering and rouging to be done.

And when she sits out under the stars in the moonlight all he knows of all this preparation is that there is a slim white wraith beside him, a lovely, charming wraith whom he can scarcely see, but whose presence he feels through all his being.

How Decayed Teeth Cause Eye Troubles

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

HAVE you bad teeth?

Then look out for your eyes.

Of course many other harmful things come from bad teeth, and in a general way I believe the idea is overworked. But there is truth in the statement that a focus of infection in a tooth may lead to many disasters such as heart troubles, rheumatism, neuritis and a lot of other things.

CHARLES A. L. REED, M.D.

Now we are informed by Whitehead (British Dental Journal) that bad teeth are often the causes of bad eyes.

The eye is a delicate mechanism, very sensitive to infection, either that coming from outside or that borne to it by the blood stream.

Few toxins are more dangerous than those generated by a bad mouth, and quite a number of people suffer eye trouble, which may be so severe as to destroy their sight, simply because they have neglected the elements of mouth hygiene.

Inflammation in the colored part of the eye may cause adhesions between this and the front of the lens, or secondary glaucoma, a very painful disease which destroys the sight.

Inflammation may attack the lens on the inside of the eye itself and cause cataract or floating spots that interfere with vision.

Although some people have terrible mouths and yet have no eye trouble, a single bad tooth is sufficient to cause nearly any of these diseases.

Conditions in the mouth which flood the system with poison are inflammation of the gums or other parts of the mouth, ulcers of all kinds, decayed teeth, root-abscesses, pyorrhoea and a general want of cleanliness.

Very often the removal of one septic tooth will show a person with defective eyes how far from fit he really was before.

A man may have a thoroughly septic mouth and suffer no trouble, either in his eyes or anywhere else, until he catches a cold or some other infection. Then the balance is disturbed and anything may happen. Whitehead quotes a typical case: A doctor of forty-eight, who was apparently perfectly healthy and never had anything wrong with his eyes, went out fishing. It was a cold day and he got thoroughly chilled by the wind. Soon afterward he started to suffer from sore, bloodshot eyes and was found to have extensive inflammation of the iris and surrounding parts. His doctor referred him to a dentist, who found an abscess at the root of a molar in his lower jaw. The tooth was promptly removed and the eye was well within a week.

Another patient found that his sight got gradually worse until in six months he could see no more than would enable him to count fingers at three feet distance. He had several decayed stumps hidden by a gold bridge. Finally his doctor cleared all these teeth out and in a month all his inflammation had gone and his sight returned practically to normal.

These examples of Whitehead's show that many people who suffer from eye trouble can hope for great improvement if they will go to a good dentist. But they also point to the extreme importance of keeping the mouth in good condition. It is not sufficient to wait until a tooth aches, until the sight is disturbed or until the joints start to become painful. None of these things would happen as far as the teeth are concerned, if people would make a point of seeing their dentist three or four times a year, or brushing their teeth scrupulously, even once a day, and of eating proper food.

Physical Habits Are Results of Mental Ones

By Lucy Lowell.

"DEAR LUCY LOWELL:

"I was very interested in your article on overcoming bad habits. I, too, believe that the way to overcome a bad habit is to replace it with another sort of action. But wouldn't this form a habit?

LUCY LOWELL

"As I understand it, a habit is an action we repeat so many times that it becomes automatic and then we have to go on repeating it whether we wish to or not.

"Now it seems to me it would be better to watch ourselves so that we never would develop this senseless, automatic repetition of action.

"Perhaps we might do this if we could understand better just what causes habits. Are they caused by heredity or are they innate in us? Are they mental or physical? I would like your opinion on this.

"GRACE D."

TO begin with, Grace, every action is merely physical reaction to thought. All material things as well as all deeds and words first were thoughts before they appeared as actions.

It stands to reason, therefore, that if the thought were to be controlled there could be no objectionable physical expression of mood or impulse.

Every physical habit is no more than an indication of a mental habit and the former is of vastly less importance than the latter.

I do not believe that habit is inherited any more than I believe disease is inherited. There is a thing called the "Mendelian Recessive"—a tendency on the part of children toward the characteristics of their parents and ancestors. But this is not something which must be weakly submitted to; it may be overcome by conscious effort. Not always easily, of course, but surely.

Children are inclined to imitate parents and elders and this inclination gives rise to the fallacious belief in heredity. Each individual is apart from every other; no law is laid down which says because a parent has certain mental or physical characteristics the child must have them as well.

Your theory seems right to me, that the time to break a habit is before it fastens upon the character. As you say, a habit is largely senseless, automatic repetition of action.

But of course there are not many thoughtful enough to avoid forming habits. And our idea is to help the weaker ones to overcome habits already formed.

Our Rhyming OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

HOW strange it seems that at the set of sun the thoughts you hold most closely to your heart are not of splendid triumphs you have won, great struggles where you played the victor's part! You cherish not gifts kindly years bestowed or any rank or fortune you attained, prize not the strength with which you bore your load or joy of heights whose shining peaks you gained; not these, but little fleeting things like words a loved one spoke at twilight long ago; a Springtime hour when, to the song of birds, you glimpsed new beauty in a soul you know. How strange it seems that at the close of day the thing that brings most gladness to your thought should be remembered laughter, sweet and gay, or some small kindness that your hands have wrought.

Do You Know?

The usual height at which swallows, wild ducks, geese, and other birds fly when travelling long distances is from 1,000 feet to 2,500 feet. Cranes have been know to fly five miles above the earth.

The Japanese have forbidden the ancient Korean custom of carving a design on the neck of a girl who has jilted her lover.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

A Well Set Table

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is the precisely correct place for the bread-and-butter plate? T.

THE bread-and-butter plate should be placed on the left of the place-plate, above the tips of the forks, or, if the forks are unusually long, slightly to the left of them.

When I set a place at table, I keep in mind the fact that I want all lines to go either horizontal or perpendicular. That is, there should be no cross lines, no lines that do not go straight up and down or straight across. To do this, for instance, you place the water glass or goblet at the tips of the knives, and on a line with the bread-and-butter plate, which is placed at the tips of the forks. That at once forms the frame for your place.

Then place your knives and spoons perfectly straight at the right of your plate and the forks, perfectly straight, at the left of the plate. That continues the frame. Now place your butter spreader on the butter plate parallel with the edge of the table. Do not, as most hosteses or waitresses do, place it "any old way" in an uncertain angle, so that it makes another line with the silver pieces. Place it across the rim, the top rim of the plate, with the tip and the handle touching the rim.

Now place your napkin straight, parallel to the forks, on the left side of the plate. Have the open corner toward the plate.

If you do this, you will find that the lines go agreeably to the eye of the beholder.

Do not, as many hostesses do, place your oyster fork across your knives, on the right, or across your forks, on the left. If you place an oyster fork (and they are not used much now at formal parties), place it parallel to the other pieces of silver, either on the right or on the left. Some people stoutly maintain that this fork should always be on the right, with the knives, but there is no reason why this should be. As a matter of fact, it should be placed on the side on which it best balances with the other pieces of silver.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

FOLLY'S DAUGHTER

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By ANN LISLE

Folly Takes the Money.

IT was almost dawn when Folly Duane tip-toed into the room where Jill lay asleep. She came in silently with the padding grace of a cat. And she looked like a kitten with wide shallow blue eyes and tiny pursed lips and little twitching nose. She might have been anywhere from thirty to forty and was desperately eager to look twenty. And this morning she almost accomplished it!

ANN LISLE

Folly had finished a promising evening. A girl with whom she had danced in a First Company in Chicago several years before had telephoned at six to say that Folly must drop whatever she was doing and come out to dinner. Myrtle explained that the party was most unexpected as her sweetie had just come to town and had bumped into an old friend who was a Very Important Producer and that they had decided to throw a party and had asked her, Myrtle, to get a hold of a live one.

Myrtle was lying. Folly knew that. Girls were always calling her up at the last moment and asking her to fill in. And Folly always said she'd let them know in fifteen minutes as she must see first if she could cancel a date with a nice old slow-poke who might not be free the only other evening she had open this week. . . . Folly had most of her evenings open this or any other week! She wasn't young enough or cute enough or clever enough to compete with the new crop of girls who danced a whirling Black Bottom instead of the Charleston which was about Folly's limit and which she couldn't do very often in one evening. And she hadn't been able to get herself comfortably settled like Myrtle with her nice old Adam Blair.

The other girls weren't afraid of Folly. She was on the edge of being a back number. She couldn't steal their sweeties. And so when they needed a girl for a foursome and all the flappers and ponies and cuties were engaged, Folly was called in on the pretense that it was a sudden party some one was throwing and wouldn't she be a dear and bust her date and help make the party snappy? And Folly always took fifteen minutes to "make arrangements" and always went.

Tonight it had been worth while. Tonight she had met Sam Kerby. And Sam had liked her. He had asked her to have dinner with him again that week. He had taken her 'phone number and address and name. He had put them in his little red book instead of on his cuff. Folly really expected to see Sam again. He had brought her home. He had kissed her clumsily, but with a passion she had not felt in the expert kisses that generally came her way.

Sam Kerby was a theatrical producer of some note. His tea-cup revues and half-shell girl shows played the vaudeville big time. Some of them were on the movie circuits. There was talk of his doing a regular Broadway show soon. Folly wondered if he couldn't be persuaded to give her a part—a tiny part, but still her name on the programme.

She walked over to the mirror and looked at herself critically in the faint morning light. She did not switch on the electricity because she had a vague notion of looking at herself pitilessly in the pitiless light of day. . . She was vaguely intoxicated, faintly drunk with liquor, faintly dizzy with hope. She smiled at herself and decided that she really could pass for twenty-two or three, if only she had the right clothes. . . . Well, maybe Sam would buy them for her.

But first she must win something more than his passing fancy. If she seemed prosperous, young and gay, Sam might actually put her in his show. But if she looked as if she needed charity, e would probably think he had done a lot for her if he petted her a little and bought her a bracelet.

Folly looked scornfully around the shabby room where she and Jill lived in a makeshift way that was better than comfort in a boarding house because it gave Folly a good address to offer managers—and men.

She smiled a little with self-pity and hope. Then she looked down and saw the three-dollar bills and the silver Jill had left on the bureau. Not much more here than her room was costing her every day. Nothing here to help her buy clothes with which to win Sam. She opened the drawer casually and felt around among Jill's things. She took out the purse idly and stood thinking. Then she opened the bag and took out the dollar-bill which Jill was permitted to keep for her stake each day....The girl could manage without cash for a few days.

The bill opened magically. And inside it was another—for fifty dollars! Folly gasped and then put her hand over her mouth to stifle the sound.

After a minute she tip-toed over to the bed and stood looking down at Jill oddly—almost sternly. She twisted the fifty-dollar bill in her fingers for a moment or two. And during that moment her shallow blue eyes deepened, darkened, filled with something oddly like fear. Then she shrugged her shoulders and went back to the mirror and considered herself. Shallow blue eyes with faint rings under them, short nose uptilted and open-nostrilled, button mouth and round face sloping suddenly to a tiny pointed chin. The face in the mirror was like that of a kitten—a kitten who loved cream and would do anything to get it. Above its weak, sensual, fading prettiness was a mop of curling, tangled, glinting yellow hair. And the hair was as soft as a baby's. It matched Folly's little helpless, adorable hands.

The hands reached out and folded Jill's dollar and put it back in her purse with the dimes. They seized the fifty-dollar bill and hid it in a pair of thin beige silk stockings. And then with nervous precision those little helpless-looking hands carried the stockings to the closet and tucked them in a far corner of the shelf under the lining of Folly's best blue turban.

There was a self-satisfied look on Folly's little button mouth when she finished her work. And she slipped out of her clothes, leaving them in a heap in the middle of the floor as she crept into bed at Jill's side. The clock struck six.

An hour later Jill leaped out of bed and danced out into the room with a smile on her lips. This was her day of days. She was going to MacNeil Shannon.

To Be Continued.

MOODY AIDES WIN VICTORY

Miller's Vote Saves Bill On Civil Service

AUSTIN, June 3. (AP)—Rallying around a hard-pressed standard, senate administration leaders today killed the Fairchild lateral road bill, disapproved by Governor Moody and the highway commission, 13 to 14, and Lieutenant Governor Barry Miller saved both the administration civil service bill and the Stuart highway reform bill, opposed by Moody, by casting his vote to break ties.

Without necessity of a roll call, the senate passed the "White primary" bill, designed to exclude negroes from voting in democratic elections after Parr had lost his amendment proposing a fine not exceeding $1,000 or confinement in jail not more than one year for any person who should violate party pledge by not supporting the nominee in the general election.

Recent decision of the United States supreme court held present Texas statutes excluding negroes unconstitutional.

Miller Breaks Tie.

Motion by Parr of Benavides indefinitely postponing the house administration civil service measure was 14 to 14 until Miller voted not to table, "in deference," he said, "to the administration of which I am a small part."

The bill then was set for special order for tomorrow morning.

The Stuart highway bill, fought by the administration, was kept alive by Lieutenant Governor Miller who voted "no" on motion of Love of Dallas to motion to reconsider, made by Bailey of Cuero. Had the Love motion prevailed, the bill would have been killed.

Miller earlier in the day helped to call it up for reconsideration of recent senate action in indefinitely postponing it by voting "aye" in another tie.

The vote on the civil service bill, regarded as the most clearcut administration and anti-administration struggle on attempts to kill it by, indefinitely postponing: Ayes, Bailey, Bledsoe, Bowers, Fairchild, Floyd, Greer, Hardin, Holbrook, Miller, (Eugene), Parr, Russek, Stuart, Wirtz and Woodward. Noes, Berkeley, Hall, Lewis, Love, McFarlane, Moore, Neal, Pollard, Price, Reid, Smith, Triplett, Witt, and Wood.

Fairchild's beaten "lateral road" bill caused one of the most angry debates of the session. As originally introduced, it would have appropriated from the state highway fund $1,000,000 for the first year of the coming biennium and $2,000,000 for the second for construction and maintenance of lateral roads.

Love of Dallas offered an amendment which would have diverted ten per cent of highway funds to lateral roads, or a greater amount than that Fairchild proposed.

Price Fights Hard.

Wood of Granger, administration floor leader, declared that the highway commission already has allotted tentatively all state aid available for this year and Fairchild of Lufkin answered:

POULTRY MEN MEET TUESDAY

Producers Sign For New Cooperative

A double meeting of the Wichita County Poultry and Egg Marketing association will be held in the courthouse at 8 o'clock Tuesday night, June 7, according to announcement from officials. Further details of the organization are to be worked out at this meeting, and all who are interested in the progress of co-operative marketing are asked to attend.

A special section of the meeting will be held for the producers, at which time matters of vital significance in the marketing question will be discussed. Every person who raises poultry in Wichita county is asked to attend.

Several of the most prominent producers of the county have signed up for the association, and others have signified their intention of joining immediately, it was learned. An opportunity to sign will be given at the Tuesday night meeting.

289 Aided In Tornado Area

Many Homes Restored At Rock Springs

SAN ANTONIO, June 4. (AP)—Rehabilitation with most people means nothing more than a term used in connecetion with the relief fund drives which follow outstanding disasters such as the Rock Springs tornado. Very few of these people who contribute to such funds ever see the results of their generosity but the work of the rehabilitation is a very intricate and complicated task which is planned in the hands of skilled Red Cross workers.

At Rock Springs, for instance, rehabilitation has been accomplished in 289 cases. Many of these were families including several members. In each case a complete history of the individual or family, a record of the resources, liabilities and losses had an estimate of the economic conditions before and after the storm has been made.

Rebuild Homes.

In each case where a home or store was badly damaged arrangements have been made to supply a new structure or rebuild the old one. The new buildings are not large or as valuable as the old in most cases, but they are substantial and enable the owners to carry on.

In all cases where the victims of the tornado will need financial aid for sometime trust funds have been established which will furnish the victims an income until they again become self-sufficient.

One young man with a family, who lost an arm and cannot return to his old trade, has been supplied with a modest home suitable for a chicken farm, enough capital to start the venture, $35 a month for seven months and funds for a correspondence course in poultry raising. The Rde Cross saved the man's life by rushing a serum from New York to combat infection in his wound. The serum came by air mail at a total cost of more than $50.

In another case the father was killed, and the mother, who is not well, was left with two young children. This family will receive $50 a month for two years and $35 a month for seven years. By this time it is thought that the children will be able to contribute to the family income.

Orphans Aided.

An orphan girl was allotted $600 to be expended so that it will cover most of the cost of her education and an aged woman has been allotted $20 monthly for the rest of her life, enough with her small income to assure her something to live on for the rest of her life.

The Rock Springs disaster has already dropped into the limbo of yesterday's news and is recalled only now and then. Ten years from now it will be remembered only when tabulations are made of disasterous storms, but many of the victims of the storm will still be drawing the benefit of the relief fund. Re habilitation does not end until every possible effort has been made to restore the economic independence of the individual.

LOT OF LUCK, ALL BAD.

TOLEDO.—Bad luck is in hot pursuit of Claude Overholt, huckster of this city. One day last week his wagon skidded and one wheel was broken off. He had that fixed and the next day a street car struck his wagon. The same day his horse became ill. And how does a huckster do business without a horse and wagon? As a crowning insult, when he applied for a huckster's license he was handed license plate No. 12. He remonstrated and refused to take the license, but was not permitted to have another.

ANCIENT OF CAKES.

OTTAWA, Ont.—This is the kind of a cake mother would have liked to make. It is 80 years old, and still good to nibble at. The cake is kept in a museum, and was found on Beach Island, in the Arctic, a relic of the tragic expedition of Sir John Franklin in 1845. It is made of pemmican, a compound of beef, fats and dried fruits.

The SQUIRE of Smithville

Why do people clean up the front yard and let all the rubbish gather in the back?

Mannequin By Choice

Beautiful Elizabeth Ponsonby, daughter of Arthur Ponsonby, famous British statesman, might have had an impressive career either in society or politics. Instead she chose to go in for fashion designing, and has begun at the bottom by taking on a job as a professional mannequin, to the horror of some of her aristocratic friends.

Today { At the Theaters

By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: "Summer Bachelors," with Madge Bellamy; comedy and Pathe News showing Lindbergh's flight to Paris.

Olympic: "The Cheerful Fraud," starring Reginald Denny; also comedy and Fox News.

Mission: Tom Mix in "Outlaws of Red River," also chapter 4 of "Return of the Riddle Rider."

Garden: Yakima Canutt in "Hell Hounds of the Plains," and chapter 7 of "The Melting Millions," also Fable comedy.

Gem: Harry Carey in "Driftin' Through," and comedy.

How does poor hubby spend his leisure hours while his wife is away on her vacation? This question is answered in a very interesting and entertaining manner at the Olympic theater where "Summer Bachelors," starts today.

Based on Warner Fabian's sensational novel of the same name, this highly diverting film promises to surpass the novel in popular esteem. The story deals with those husbands who dive for telephone booths to call up their favorite blonde as soon as their wives step on the outgoing train.

The beautiful Madge Bellamy is one of the blondes in "Summer Bachelos" so there is some excuse for the tempted husband in the story. A cast of outstanding stars support Miss Bellamy, including Allan Forrest, in the role of Tony Landor, the only real bachelor in the story. Matt Moore in the part of Walter Blakely is a typical summer bachelor, however, while Leila Hyams is the summer girl. Hale Hamilton, Charles Winninger, Walter Catlett and Cosmo Bellew are other well-known stars of the stage and screen who are bachelors, for the summer only.

Olive Tell plays the highly diverting role of the wife who has gone to the country but who knows her husband's weakness for pretty girls.

All in all, "Summer Bachelors" is one of those rare combinations of cast, story and direction, which go to make up a nearly perfect picture and perfect entertainment. This is one film you should not miss.

Warner Baxter in Zane Grey's "Drums of the Desert," showing at the Olympic theater through Tuesday.

California Special To Leave Here July 16

Consideration of making a change in the date of the California train scheduled to leave here July 16 in order to consolidate with a similar excursion being planned by the Farm Bureau association was brought up at a meeting of the valley development committee of the local chamber of commerce Friday morning.

After considerable discussion it was decided to carry out the original plans and to have the Wichita Falls train leave as scheduled and separate from any other group, it was announced.

Approximately 100 persons are expected to make the excursion in the interest of studying conditions that would benefit this section.

41 Criminal Cases Set for Trial in June

During April and May 51 felony cases on the criminal docket were disposed of and 41 cases have been set for trial during June by District Attorney Ben Allred and his two assistants, E. F. Fruechte and Sam Spence.

At the present time there are 200 cases pending on the docket, the principals in 83 of which have not yet been arrested.

Farmer Dragged Across Field Under His Plow

Olney C-C Moves To New Office Quarters

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, June 3.—The Olney Chamber of Commerce has moved its offices from the City National bank building to the new municipal building. Larger office space and more desirable quarters are now made possible.

The new quarters provide space for the deputy supervisor of the oil and gas division, Geo. W. Tilley. The interior of the chamber's offices is being provided with all the necessary equipment, including maps, display tables, etc. A permanent display is being gathered and will be prepared for in the office.

Broke Up Bad Bilious Spells

Alabama Lady Took Black-Draught And Says She Was Astonished at Quick Relief. "Nothing Else Helped Me"

GADSDEN, Ala.—"Ever since I have known about Black-Draught, it has been my regular standby for indigestion and constipation," says Mrs. Della Mayben, of 507 Tuscaloosa street, of this city. Mrs. Mayben told of how she first took Black-Draught more than fourteen years ago:

"I was suffering with a bad case of swelling across my abdomen. Every bite I ate disagreed with me, and I had very severe sick headaches.

"I was bilious. My appearance was so awful that I began to worry about myself. I had a dull, dragging feeling. My system was being slowly poisoned, but I did not know it.

"At first I fooled along, taking one thing, then another, until I read of Black-Draught. I decided to try it as nothing else helped me. I was truly astonished at the quick relief. In a few days I began to feel like a different woman. Instead of being dull and listless, I began to feel bright and energetic. I could accomplish a lot more work.

"From that time on, I have rarely been without a box of Black-Draught in my house. Whenever I feel a bilious spell coming on, I at once begin to take it, so that now I do not have bad spells like I used to."

News Of The Field

DISCOVERY ON PUMP.

Holbrook and Woods have placed their No. 1 Davis, located in section 1395, T. E. & L. survey, northeast Young county, on the pump and the well produced 30 barrels of oil in the first 15 hours from sand at 888-97 feet, thus opening another shallow pool for that district.

TEST IS JUNKED.

Roxana Petroleum corporation has given up as a hopeless task the attempt to extricate an elusive bailer in the hole at No. 1-B Farmer, located in the Bell county school lands of Archer county. The test is being abandoned as a junked hole at 1350 feet.

PLAINS PRODUCTION POOL.

Gulf Production company is drilling away on two wells in the area opened up by the Plains Production company on the Lyle and Wilson farms in Archer county. Gulf's No. 3 Wilson is drilling below 1250 feet, while No. 2 has spudded and is down 320 feet.

NEAR FLUHMANN POOL.

Humble Oil and Refining company and Fain-McGaha Oil company are drilling below 1775 feet and expecting to hit the 1860 foot sand within the next few days in their No. 1 Belcher, located in section 19, block 9, H. & T. C. survey of Wilbarger county and near the Fluhmann pool.

NORTHWEST ARCHER.

The Texas Company and Harry Hines have made location to drill and are rigging up on No. 1 C. A. Mangold, located 920 feet south and 473 feet west of the northeast corner of block 31, Mangold subdivision, and in the P. Castleman survey of northeast Archer county.

ANDREWS COUNTY.

Maer and Staniforth have completed a fishing job in their No. 1 Taylor, located in Andrews county of West Texas. At last reports the test was drilling at 3155 feet after shutting off a gas flow at 3010 feet, which gave rise to expectations of striking production in the big lime. The bit is now in anhydrate.

NEAR ARDMORE.

Northeast of Ardmore of Carter county, Oklahoma, Harry Hines and associates are drilling at 2500 feet in a wildcat test.

NEW SHALLOW WELL.

Boller et al. have completd another shallow producer in their No. 3 Gregg, southeast of the Prideaux pool and in northeast Young county, which is being placed on the pump with an estimated output of around 100 barrels from sand at 743-75 feet.

MAER-STANIFORTH NO. 8

Maer and Staniforth have made location for their No. 8 Wilson, 300 feet east of No. 6 in the Day Land and Cattle company survey of Archer county. Maer and Staniforth have completed six producers on this lease, but are now faced with the possibility of having to abandon their No. 7, where the derrick was pulled in.

H. E. Bell, Oil and Gas Supervisor Quits Post In Row Over Department

AUSTIN, June 3. (AP)—H. E. Bell, chief supervisor of the oil and gas division of Texas railroad commission tendered his resignation today after a difference last night with Commissioner C. V. Terrell and Lon Smith before a house committee considering a bill affecting Bell's department.

No action had been taken on the resignation today. Commissioners said they had not discussed it.

Bell, an appointee of former Gov. Pat Neff's railroad commission, is understood to have claimed in his letter of resignation that he had been hampered in affairs of the oil and gas division since Smith and Terrell became members of the commission.

The house committee last night upheld Smith and Terrell by striking out of the oil and gas conservation bill a provision binding the railroad commissioners to appoint deputy oil and gas supervisors recommended by Bell. The bill was aimed primarily, under call of Gov. Dan Moody, to provide stricter regulations and penalties affecting oil and gas development. It was reported favorably by the committee after the disputed provision had been eliminated, over protest of Bell.

Casing Crews Band To Demand More Safety

BORGER, Texas, June 3. (AP)—Definite steps toward forming an organization of oil field casing crews to seek safety regulations will be taken at a meeting here Monday at 7:30 p. m. H. D. Whitney of the Whitney crew, announced today.

Twelve crews are operating near Borger and at Sanford and nearby points, but the leaders do not know how many men will join the movement. The men in Borger have announced they will not go on any more jobs until after Monday's meeting.

HUGE GASSER

Shamrock Well Flows 210 Million Cubic Feet of Gas

One of the Panhandle field's largest gas wells, if not its largest, is the Watchorn Oil and Refining company's No. 1 Shelton, in Section 19, block 24 of H. & G. N. survey, in the Shamrock field of Wheeler county. It is making an estimated production of 210,000,000 cubic feet of gas from a series of sands from 1693 to 2007 feet, the latter being total depth. The rock pressure is so great that it is reported as threatening the destruction of the large steel rig over the well.

HURDLE FIELD IS EXTENDED

Prairie Finds Upper Pay In New Producer

SAN ANGELO, June 3.—Texas Company No. 1 J. M. Perry, standing 450 feet in oil struck at 1965 feet and still drilling Friday indicated another extension of the Hurdle field in Upton county one-half mile and slightly south of Prairie No. 1-C Lane.

At the same depth the Prairie Lane struck an upper pay, being completed for 500 barrels daily from 2019-13 feet. The Perry is seven feet higher on surface elevation. It is 330 feet out of the southwest corner of section 3, G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. survey.

WICHITA MEN BUY 100 ACRES

Half Million Paid For Brown County Tracts

Second major sale of producing properties in the Fry field of Brown county was made public in Wichita Falls Friday when Ed Peterson, J. P. McCarty and Carl Bailey, Wichita Falls oil men, purchased from Tower and McKanna of New York and Wichita Falls, 110 acres for a reported consideration of $500,000.

The leases involved in the transaction have been proven to be among the most prolific in West Texas, consisting of 70 acres on the J. W. Shores farm with 15 producing wells and 40 acres on the J. T. Benson farm with 14 oil wells. The two properties are credited with a daily average production of well over 4000 barrels.

The first sale in the Fry field during 1927 and the largest ever made in Brown county was the George C. Henshaw sale, which involved a consideration of approximately $2,000,000.

BAPTISTS ELECT HEAD

Seminole Hits New Oil Peak

TULSA, June 3.—The Seminole field reached a new peak during the 24 hour period ended Thursday morning, when its total production was 365,620 barrels from 497 wells. The Bowlegs pool produced 137,670 barrels of this total, leading all other pools in the field; Seminole proper made 127,020 barrels; the Searight pool mad 36,270 barrels, and the Earlsboro pool did 64,660 barrels. The increase over the previous day's production is almost 14,000 barrels.

Texas Company has completed its No. 1 Reed, SE corner SE NE of 14-8-6, which produced 3685 barrels the last 24 hours. The total depth of this well is 4246 feet.
