BRITISH DROP MANY BOMBS ON NAZI PORTS

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Sept. 28.—The air ministry said today that British bombers dropping high explosives at the rate of five a minute had started great fires at the new Nazi base of Lorient on the French Atlantic Ocean coast.

Smashing at German objectives on the West Coast of France to destroy factories deep in the hills, the British squadrons reported that an "intense" three-hour attack had left Lorient harbor in flames that could be seen 70 miles away.

Lorient lies southeast of Ireland, providing an ideal submarine base, and with Brest is one of the most westerly points yet reached in force by British bombers.

Other British bombing planes struck deeply into Germany, damaging railroad yards and munitions plants as far as Düsseldorf, the ministry said.

In the attack on Lorient, the ministry added:
"Fires spread rapidly in the outside buildings and others started near a block of warehouses on the east bank."

"One huge blaze engulfed buildings near the harbor power station and lit up a great part of the docks and the (Scorff) River."

"Following raiders were guided by the fires and added to the damage. Incendiary bombs set a timber yard ablaze."

Lorient is a fortified seaport and military base of perhaps 50,000 population, with harbor facilities for both commercial and naval ships. It has big naval establishments and ship building yards.

The provisions under which producers of corn, cotton, rice, tobacco and wheat may earn 1941 parity payments were announced today by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. Payments will be made to eligible producers on a fund of $212,000,000 appropriated for this purpose.

The 1941 parity provisions are essentially the same as those in effect for the 1940 program. A producer who participates in the 1941 AAA Farm Program will be eligible for payments if: (1) the 1941 planted acreage of the commodity for which payment is made does not exceed the farm acreage payment for such commodity; (2) he plants within the total of acreage allotments of corn, cotton, rice, tobacco and wheat established for his farm in 1941; (3) he does not offset his payment by overplanting the commodities on any other farm, wherever located, in which he has an interest.

As provided in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, the 1941 parity payment rates for the five commodities will be based on the amount by which the returns from the 1940 crop of each fall below the parity income. The rate for the crop can not exceed the amount by which the 1940 average farm price is less than the parity price and will be as nearly equal to parity as the available funds permit. Rates will be announced later when the information upon which they are based is available. In 1939 and 1940 the rate of payment and the average farm price combined could not exceed 75 percent of parity.

As in the two previous years, parity payments will be made on the normal yield of the farm acreage allotment determined for each commodity under the 1941 program.

AUSTIN, Sept. 28.—E. J. Mathews, University of Texas registrar, today said 10,150 students had registered for first semester studies at the University, a gain of 102 over last year. He expressed confidence that all-year enrollment would show a gain.

Mathews expects more than 100 additional enrollees before the first semester ends. All-year registration for 1939-40 rang up a University record of 11,078.

Washington Hums With Preparation For British Aid

By HOBART C. MONTEE
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The senate has ratified the Havana treaty providing means of preventing any totalitarian European or Asiatic power obtaining a territorial or political toe hold in this hemisphere.

The offices of the executive branch of the government, including the White House, were humming with activity which gave every evidence of being directed toward an immediate increase of assistance to Great Britain.

Chairman Key Pittman, of the senate foreign relations committee linked the senate's ratification with the military alliance.

"The senate's immediate and unanimous ratification of the Havana convention conclusively proves that there is a solidarity in this hemisphere," he said. "It minimizes the effect of the proclaimed solidarity in the Eastern Hemisphere, as outlined in the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis treaty. It furnished concrete evidence that the countries of the Western Hemisphere are prepared to meet any aggression with a united front."

Lord Lothian, British ambassador, declared after a conference with Mr. Roosevelt that Britain "needs more of everything—and needs everything quickly." There were increasing expressions here that from the standpoint of American interests, it was well-nigh imperative that Britain win the war.

Reports persisted that the sale of 25 or more army "Flying Fortress" bombers to Britain was being considered. These planes are among the longest-range and heaviest load-carrying bombers in the world. With even a small fleet of them, the Royal Air Force could carry the war into East Germany where great quantities of arms and munitions are manufactured.

El Paso County Is "Best Policed" Of Any In State

By United Press
EL PASO, Tex.—The "best policed county" in the United States was that way because of an efficient, highly-systemized district patrol system that entails the interviewing of all county residents and distribution of crime control suggestions.

El Paso county officers periodically conduct personal interviews with county residents. In the interviews the residents are asked about crime conditions in their vicinity, whether they have called the sheriff's office and what kind of service they received and whether they have any suggestions to make.

The interviewer leaves a mimeographed list of crime control suggestions that warn residents as follows:

"Don't do business with unidentified persons selling subscriptions. Demand proper credentials from peddlers or solicitors."

List identifying marks, serial number, etc., of personal belongings as an aid in case of theft. Report strangers loitering around."

If your dog barks at night, investigate."

Place your car in the garage, remove keys and lock garage. When you leave on vacation call the sheriff's department and notify neighbors."

Don't keep excessive amounts of cash on hand. If strangers come in to cash or change large bills at different times call the sheriff. This method is often used by hold-up men to ascertain the amount of cash on hand."

In case of accident call the doctor first and then the officers if they are needed."

In case of fire call for the sheriff's department."

Remember—you are under no obligation to cash a check for an unknown person."

Check references given by a new employe."

O'Daniel Asks A Ruling On Game Commission Head

By United Press
AUSTIN, Sept. 28.—Attorney General Gerald C. Mann today was requested to give an opinion on whether Murrell L. Buckner of Dallas, as a matter of law ceased to be a member of the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission in January, 1940, when he took office as chairman of the democratic executive committee of Dallas county.

The opinion was requested by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, who said that a number of persons had questioned him on Buckner's status and he therefore desired a ruling by the attorney general.

Buckner's term on the commission does not expire until Sept., 1943.

During the state campaign last summer the governor criticized the Game Fish and Oyster Commission for being a "millionaire's club" and for use of its boats for "pleasure trips."

Commissioners replied that the governor's sons had used the department vessels. O'Daniel said it was without his knowledge.

Will J. Tucker, executive secretary of the Commission, who was honored recently with the award of the association of game conservators with a trophy for having done most for wild life in the western hemisphere, was absent from Austin today.

Other members of the commission beside Buckner are: A. E. Wood, Austin, chairman, and Gene Howe, Amarillo with terms expiring in September 1941; Bee Davenport of Mission, whose term ends September 1943; D. K. Martin of San Antonio and W. O. Yarbrough of Corpus Christi with terms extending to September 1945.

Tin Discovery In Nevada Loans As A Defense Aid
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—The discovery of deposits of tin ore in the lower levels of a Gold field, Nev., gold mine was confirmed today in a report which, however, indicated that the discovery still was a "prospecting of speculative possibility."

(The possibility that international complications in the Far East would cut off the United States' main supply of tin made the discovery one of tremendous importance, experts said. This country now obtains most of its tin from the Netherlands Indies, Indo-China and the Malay States.)

Henry P. Kervin, president of the jumbo Extension Mining company, learned of the presence of the ore in his mine last December. Tests indicated that the ore began to appear at the 700-foot level.

The discovery was reported to the strategic minerals division of the U. S. Bureau of Mines and three engineers made a preliminary survey. Their tests thus far have shown that the percentage of tin ranges from 1 to 3 per cent, indicating that the ore is worth about $10 a ton. The deposits were said to cover an area four miles square.

Engineers considered the possibility that other abandoned gold mines in the west might have tin ore at levels not touched by gold mining operations.

Japan Seeks a Pact With Russia Like Nazis Have

By JOHN R. MORRIS,
United Press Staff Correspondent
SHANGHAI, Sept. 28.—Japan is following up the Japanese-German-Italian military alliance with overtures to Russia for a pact similar to that which Germany negotiated at the start of the war, authoritative advices from Tokyo said today.

The overtures are being made both directly and through Germany.

It was admitted that success depended entirely on the attitude Russia took to the new pact. It was said that Russia's attitude could not at this moment be determined.

The view of the Japanese army toward the three-power pact was shown plainly by the newspaper Tai-Ri-Ku Here, the organ of the army in China.

It said that if the United States extended further aid to China it would be considered a challenge and the alliance would become effective.

"The alliance is a factual reply to America's loan to China and its embargo on scrap iron," the newspaper said. "The alliance tends to frustrate America's scheme to support the old system. Should any of the three signatories be challenged, the challenger will be dealt with by force."

Dispatches from Nanking said that the Japanese-sponsored Wang Ching-Wei regime, which purports to rule in Japanese-occupied territory, had long favored the new three-power pact which it calculates will speed up the collapse of the "old powers," and thus "bring peace and order not only to the far East but to Europe."

At Shunking, official spokesman for the Chinese government asserted that despite the alliance China was assured of continued Russian aid against Japan.

It was understood that a formal statement would be issued some time today on the three-power alliance.

Political quarters at Chungking expressed belief that the alliance would result in a firmer American attitude toward Far Eastern affairs, and it was even suggested that war between the United States and Japan might result.

Regardless of the consequences of the pact, officials said, China is determined to continue the war.

A United Press dispatch from Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, said that the Japanese-German-Italian Alliance seemed an explanation of why a Japanese "trade" mission had remained there for the last two weeks without showing any eagerness to pursue economic negotiations.

Conservative quarters said the result in new Japanese demands on the Netherlands Indies. It was added, however, that the Netherlands Indies authorities were not willing to discuss with the so-called Japanese new order in Asia.

Headquarters of Third Army Being Moved To Texas
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The War Department announced today that headquarters of the Third Army at Atlanta, Ga., is being shifted to Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

The headquarters originally was located at Fort Sam Houston but was moved to Atlanta in 1936 because the commander of the Fourth Corps Area, whose headquarters were in Atlanta, also was named commander of the Third Army.

Under the re-transfer, Maj. Gen. Herbert J. Brees, commander of the Eighth Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston, will succeed Lieut. Gen. Stanley D. Embick as commander of the Third Army. Embick, member of the Joint U. S.-Canadian Defense Board, retires from active duty next Jan. 31 on reaching 64.

The department said that Maj. Gen. Ben Lear, who recently was ordered to headquarters of the Sixth Corps Area, Chicago, will command the Second Army. He succeeds Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, who goes on a leave of absence Oct. 1, prior to his retirement Jan. 1.

Tokyo-Berlin-Rome Pact Is Called Stop Light for U. S. Aid To the Enemy of Totalitarian Countries

By RICHARD C. HOTTELET
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Sept. 28.—Authorized German quarters today described the Tokyo-Berlin-Rome pact as "a red light on the horizon" against any material aid by the United States or Russia that would affect the outcome of the war in Europe or Asia.

The transfer of 50 over-age United States destroyers to Britain was cited as a parallel in response to a question as to whether Russian supplies of war material to China would bring the three axis partners into collision with Russia.

"The decisive point is what effect material aid might have on the course of the war," authorized German quarters said. "We are not of the opinion that the sale of 50 old destroyers, which probably will be used for convoying, will affect the outcome of the war."

It was indicated in this connection that Russia could continue to supply China without involving the three power alliance as long as the signatories did not regard Russian aid to China as affecting outcome of hostilities in the Far East.

Authorized quarters said that the pact was directed "against anyone attempting expansion or prolongation of the war." They said it was "directed against any country but only against the war-monger spirit."

Before Japan joined the axis powers in a military alliance Germany, Italy and Japan were bound in an anti-comintern pact, to which Manchukuo and Spain also adhered. The anti-comintern pact is directed against the spread of communism and authorized German quarters said today that it still is in existence.

Continuing German-Italian conferences here, Adolf Hitler today received Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in the presence of German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop. They conferred at length. How long Ciano would remain in Berlin was not disclosed.

Official sources said today that the new alliance envisages a world order in which Western Europe and all of Africa are to be within the German-Italian sphere of influence, much of Asia is left to Russia, the Far East is allotted to Japan and the United States is recognized as the leading power in the Western Hemisphere.

A spokesman said:
"So long as the United States pursues the Monroe Doctrine as practised by Washington and Lincoln it will not have anything to fear from Germany."

Official sources outlined the vast scope of the alliance in denying foreign suggestions that it either encircle Russia or exclude it from collaboration with the signatories.

"The alliance on the contrary, delineates spheres of interest," a spokesman said.

spokesman said—"The Far East, Japan; Russia its own huge continent; Germany and Italy, Europe west of the German-Russian demarcation line and Africa."

"This does not mean that any nation is excluded from the other's sphere but that each recognizes the other's leadership in his sphere."

Then, referring to allegations that the alliance was aimed at the United States, the informant said: "The three-power pact is not directed against any nation but against war mongers who seek to interfere with the new world order. We respect and recognize the Monroe Doctrine and recognize its intention to South America as well as North America, but in the same way we demand non-interference with axis leadership in Europe and Africa. We will not tolerate destructive forces."

(The Monroe Doctrine, intended to safeguard the young American states from intrigues of European powers was proclaimed by President James Monroe in his message to congress December 2, 1823. However, its essence had been the policy of preceding presidents, including George Washington.)

After saying that the United States had nothing to fear so long as it pursued the Monroe Doctrine, the spokesman said:

"Such a delineation of spheres and leadership, which is uncontested so long as the United States remains passive, should not be permitted to become activist so that the nations concerned would seek its application outside their realm."

More Army Contracts Are Let Saturday
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The War Department today awarded contracts totaling $5,000,757 for the ordnance department, quartermaster and signal corps.

The contracts included S. O. Yarbrough and George T. Reinhardt, Austin, Texas, emergency construction; Fort Sam Houston, Tex., $592,867; Allen Boat Company, Inc., Gretna, La., Diesel tug, $40,450.

Average Student Of U. Of T. Spends $63 Monthly Expenses
AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 28.—A survey released today by the Daily Texan, University of Texas student newspaper, set the collegian's average monthly expenditure at $63; broke it down this way:

"A total of $82.82 or 52 per cent for room and board; $12.66 or 20 per cent, clothing (including out-of-town purchases) $16.75 or 27 per cent, laundry, cleaning and pressing, amusements and incidentals."

AIR RAIDS ON LONDON MEET STIFF DEFENSE

By WALLACE CARROLL,
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON, Sept. 28.—British fighter planes attacking at tremendous altitude broke up two German aerial thrusts at London today in battles over south England.

Bombs crashed in the London area during the daylight raids, after 24 hours of intensive aerial operations over the capital and surrounding territories. Incendiary bombs started big blazes in warehouses in central London but during two daylight air raids the Nazi pilots flew so high to avoid defense fire that their aim was poor, many casualties resulted from bombing of an apartment block in east London.

British spiffires and hurricanes attacked the German warcraft at such great altitudes that the fighting often could not be seen from the ground.

A report that a strong German formation had crossed the Kentish coast, headed toward London brought a morning air raid alarm and sent up a fleet of interceptor planes.

The Germans were flying too high they could not be seen over Kent county. As they reached the southeast outskirts of London the British fighters went into them with machine guns firing. Anti-aircraft guns blazed at such of the German planes they could pick out without danger to British planes.

At the end of the fight, the German planes fled homeward. German air fleets had climaxed an almost continuous 24-hour attack on London with a ferocious bombing of the central area in the early morning hours, while Royal Air Force planes were heavily attacking invasion ports and communications in western Germany.

It was asserted officially that 133 German planes had been shot down during raids yesterday, and it was probable that many more, damaged, had crashed on the way back to bases.

In the provinces, bombs, mostly incendiary, were dropped on seven northwest towns, two midland towns and one Scotland town, as well as on many towns and villages in southeast England including one tiny village renowned as a beauty spot.

Rescuers worked long trying to extricate people trapped when a row of houses in the workers' district of a northwest town was destroyed by a bomb.

According to air ministry figures, the Germans up to midnight had lost more than 1,000 planes in attacks on Britain since Sept. 1. They had lost more than 1,000 during August. Loss of 34 British fighter planes yesterday was admitted, but it was said that pilots of 16 of them landed safe.

Grounded Freighter Pulled Off Shoal After a Trial Run
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28.—Coast Guard tugs succeeded today in pulling the $3,000,000 S. S. Exchequer off Horn Island where it grounded during a trial run.

The 17,000-ton all-welded freighter, launched at Pascagoula, Miss., June 8, went aground yesterday 10 miles south of Pascagoula.

Meanwhile, Coast Guard headquarters reported that the fishing schooner William Hays, object of two searches in the Gulf of Mexico within the past month, was safe at Buras, La. The schooner, reported missing after it left Galveston, Tex., for its home port at Pensacola, Fla., put into port with motor trouble.

Two men were killed by a falling mast two weeks ago when the boat was caught in a Gulf storm.

It's Not the Cost—
It's the Upkeep

Let's not be deluded about this thing called defense. It's not something you can manage all at once by a vote in Congress or a sweep of the presidential pen. The time for sighting, "There, that's done," has not yet arrived.

What has been accomplished so far is only a start. Army and navy officials are trying to make that clear to everyone. The sacrifices have not yet begun. Congress has appropriated 15 billion dollars for defense—twice as much as both the army and navy received during the 15-year period between 1925 and 1940.

A war machine has to be kept up. Large grants must be set aside for supplies, equipment and man power. New funds must be provided each year to keep the machine up to date. For unless it is kept up to date, it will be hardly worth starting.

No one is prepared to say just how much a good sound defense program is going to cost on an annual basis. The Division of Industrial Economics of the National Industrial Conference Board recently concluded that Americans could divert as much as 17 to 19 billions a year from their national income to defense purposes. The experts conceded such a financial schedule would leave the country pretty much on a subsistence basis, but it could be done.

It probably won't cost that much. Defense officials understand that total defense consists not only of guns and tanks and naval vessels and airplanes but also of reasonable contentment among the people in their way of life. They realize that the manner in which American democracy operates must be kept attractive enough to warrant the sacrifices demanded.

America can build a defense machine as mighty, as efficient as the Nazi machine of aggression. But there will be a difference.

The sacrifices that will be borne will be dictated by the people, not by any over-lord. The bill for our safety will be incurred by the representatives of the people and will not be levied against us by any empirical leader.

Above all, we are still democratic enough to defend ourselves without giving up all the reasons for that defense. We know what it's going to cost. We have decided it's worth the price.

The Next Big Push?

River Boating Is Not So Placid For Half Dozen Scouts

By United Press

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—Six adventurous youths are convinced that river boating has its difficulties.

The half dozen Boy Scouts from Piedmont, Cal., wanted to end a summer camp in the mountains by shooting the dangerous Feather river rapids in the Sierra Nevada mountains in three small rowboats. When the proposition reached their parents, a vigorous protest resulted in a compromise. The boys moved operations to the placid Sacramento river.

As they started down the river near Corning, about 10 miles north of Sacramento, John McWethy and Horace Carter, both 18, were in the first boat; Charles Hammill, 18, and Bob Tuttle, 17, were in the second boat, and Dave Henderson, 17, and Dave McNeil, 24, camp athletic instructor, in boat No. 3.

After one day on the river, McWethy became so seasick he went ashore and took the nearest railway train home. Carter went with him.

Boat No. 2 hit a snag which ripped out the bottom of the boat. Hammill and Tuttle had to swim ashore and hitch-hike home.

France Lacks Cars
For Hauling Wine

By United Press

VICHY—French wines may not be on every table this winter. This is due not to a wine famine but to a shortage of tank cars.

About half of the total stock is still in the army's possession and it is not known when they will be returned to their proprietors. They were used to transport gasoline for the army's needs and, upon their return, will have to undergo a thorough disinfection. This naturally will affect the whole French metropolitan and even colonial wine industry. Through this shortage of rolling stock, wine delivery will be seriously complicated.

At the beginning of the war last September, the army requisitioned all tank cars available to carry wine for soldiers and gasoline for the motorized units and French aviation.

The lack of wine tank cars seriously hinders wine producers in France, especially in the Bordeaux region, which is one of the most important in France, and that of the Provence, where there also are important vineyards. Algeria also will be hit by this shortage, as a great quantity of wine from North Africa is shipped to France to be used to "cut" or strengthen French wines. With half of France occupied, the situation is made more difficult for the return of the empty cars. Their absence threatens serious difficulties during the next few weeks with the grape harvests approaching. Growers insist that if they do not have tank cars soon most of the new wine will stay where it is and that will mean ruin for the vineyard country.

Another problem arises from the army's requisition of tank cars. As they have not been used in the last two months they are slowly drying out and repairs will have to be made to prevent leakage.

Many French departments have no vineyards, but all drink wine. If something is not done to return the tank cars to the wine growers most of these departments will not be able to get wine this winter. The Paris region also will be deprived of wine, while most of the new harvest will remain in the southern departments where there is already a serious oversupply.

South Carolina To

COLUMBIA, S. C.—The U. S. Forest Service is expected to follow an expanded four-point program in South Carolina national forests this fiscal year.

The program will include erosion control, further construction of recreation areas, fire fighting and setting out of new trees.

Tree planting, ground cover planting, gully work, and terracing will come under the erosion control feature, according to plans outlined to state foresters by regional officials.

Two new recreation centers with extensive lakes and picnic areas are to be constructed in Abbeville county and in Pickens county.

SERIAL STORY

THIS COULD BE YOUR STORY

BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

Copyright, 1940, NEA Service, Inc.

All characters, organizations and incidents of this serial are entirely fictitious.

YESTERDAY: Sue Mary keeps a date with Nick, hoping to find out more of the facts behind the strike. Nick talks glibly for a while, then, as Sue Mary questions him, becomes evasive. He takes about the office, Vera. She is going to a gambling place with Nick. Nick suggests they go, too.

NICK AND VERA SET A TRAP

CHAPTER XIX

THE Bird Cage was crowded and noisy. Sue Mary had been afraid she would be conspicuous, since she wasn't wearing a formal, but about her people moved wearing all types of clothes: women in sports dresses, afternoon frocks, and breath-taking evening gowns adorned with orchids, gardenias, and jewels. She touched her own simple blue crepe, one of those she had bought only a short time ago, and fangled the bracelet at her wrist.

This would have been fun, a thrilling adventure, if only she weren't ever conscious of the real reason that brought them there.

They stopped at the bar for a few moments while Nick looked the crowd over. Sue Mary's eyes opened wide at the crystal, the mirrors, the soft rose hangings, the modern chrome furniture, the amusing, sophisticated murals.

Then they walked through the other rooms where people crowded about tables and piles of money and chips were in evidence everywhere. It was in the last room—a smaller one with only a few people—that she saw Vera and Ross Clark, Jr.

Vera was beautiful. Regal, thought Sue Mary, remembering Babs' adjective. She wore a plain, heavy white jersey gown with a low-cut bodice that showed her tanned shoulders; her head was held high and her black braids worn like a coronet.

Any man would find it hard to ignore such beauty. Sue Mary admitted, but looking at young Clark she saw he was too far gone to see Vera or anyone else. He was swaying and the drink in his hand had spilled over the cuff of his coat. His face was flushed and his blond hair matted. He was intent on the game and it was a simple matter for Vera to step back beside Nick.

They moved over to the window while Sue Mary turned to watch the play at the table. When she looked back she couldn't see them. She went over to the door and in the mirror saw them standing in the hall. Their voices came to her. She strained to listen.

"WELL, how much do you think he dropped?" Nick's voice was insistent.

"I haven't been able to keep count," Vera said a bit impatiently. "I'm not an adding machine. But my best guess is about $5000."

Nick whistled softly. "That much? I wonder how he's going to pay off."

Vera murmured something and then Nick asked, "Well, have you suggested anything to him?"

"Yes, he was pretty desperate when he dropped the third grand. We went in the bar for a drink and I mentioned casually that he could sell some of his real estate and make that much or more."

And then I managed to plant the idea of how good some of his property would be for an airport site."

She laughed. "He wasn't too drunk to get the idea. He pointed out that since he was a member of the committee named to select the site he couldn't very well sell his own land. I had to be careful, but I said something about using a friend as a front and so on and so on. I could see he was thinking about it."

"And then we came back here. If he keeps on losing he'll have to do something. He owes everybody in town, they say."

"Well, keep up the good work," Nick told her. "Do you think Sue Mary gets the pitch on this?"

Sue Mary gripped her hot hands and turned back to the table. They mustn't know that she did understand. She must keep up this pretense of innocence.

She only wished she knew what to do. All the things she was learning spelled trouble, but how to use the information was still beyond her.

Obviously they meant to get young Ross Clark involved in the airport sale. By blackening his name they could have it reflect on old Governor Miller, for it was he who had appointed young Clark to the committee.

He and old Ross Clark had been law partners as young men, but he could never know that young Clark would be such a weak link in the chain. She could imagine the stories in the papers. The governor's appointee on the committee pulling a fast one to make money so that he could pay his gambling debts; using the taxpayers' money in a time of national crisis. That would certainly reflect on the old governor's suitability for a second term.

SHE read the papers carefully for the next few days and finally was rewarded. The airport site was awarded to Nick and Vera.

announced that another site was being discussed: one that had fine possibilities. If they could agree on a price, an announcement would be made soon. Speed was an important factor, since the new site must be purchased and work started as soon as possible.

The paper also told of more trouble at the Smithson factory. Handbills had been distributed when the morning shift went on; handbills advising the workers that their labor representatives were double-crossing them. Urging them to demand more of a voice in the bargaining.

Fist fights had started and police had been called to augment the plant guards. Union and plant officials declared negotiating procedure could stand any investigating, and insisted satisfactory progress was being made. But a picket line appeared and the company indicated there might be a shut-down until peace could be restored.

Gull Plane officials made a statement that their schedule would be severely upset if materials didn't come through from the Smithson factory, and the papers pointed out that Gull Plane outfit was a vital factor in the new national defense program.

SUE MARY had a date with Joe that evening. "Well, it looks as though we're in for it," he told her grimly. "We all want to work. We all take our jobs seriously. We know the union won't let the company take advantage of these war-time emergencies, and we know we're working for the good of the country. Yet a certain bunch of half-wits are causing trouble enough to force the factory to close down."

"I was talking to some of the boys this noon, and none of us knows exactly why this business has started. And I took a look at that picket line. Some of the guys in it I swear I never saw before: long-haired guys, professional pickets. And by the way—I thought I saw that guy Nick."

"Nick—?" Sue Mary's voice broke. "Nick—why should he be there? And I don't think you would be able to recognize him anyway. You only saw him once."

"That's right—once when I took you home, he was leaving with that Natalie person. But I got a look at him, and I'm sure this was the same guy."

"I wouldn't be surprised anyway. He's the kind that starts trouble like this. A super-American working for the underprivileged."

Bulldogs Lose To Odessa High By An Overwhelming Score

The Ranger Bulldogs, playing their second game of the season against Class AA competition, went down in overwhelming defeat before the Odessa High School team Friday night by a score of 59 to 0. This was the second bad defeat for the Bulldogs in two starts, a week earlier having lost to Ysleta High at Ranger by a score of 40 to 0.

Flashes of improvement were noted in the game at Odessa, with punting being greatly improved. Most of the Ranger punts went out of bounds and were for longer distances than punts in the Ysleta game. No Ranger punt was blocked.

At times the Bulldogs showed some ability at open field ball carrying, which was lacking earlier in the season and the passing attack showed some improvement.

Next week the Bulldogs go to Stephenville for their first conference game, against what is expected to be the toughest team they will meet throughout the 1940 season. Stephenville defeated

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 29.

The Golden Text is: "Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom" (Luke 12:32).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: Neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you." (Luke 17:20, 21).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Take heart, dear sufferer, for this reality of being will surely appear sometime and in some way. There will be no more pain, and all tears will be wiped away. When you read this, remember Jesus' words, 'The Kingdom of God is within you.' This spiritual consciousness is therefore a present possibility" (page 573).

FOOTBALL RESULTS

The Rising Star Wildcats and Gorman Panthers played to a scoreless tie at Rising Star Friday night. It was each team's second conference game in District 12-A. Hamilton defeated Eastland by a score of 23 to 0 at Hamilton Friday night.

The Voice of Wisdom Is the Voice of Experience That Is Carefully Studied

Text: Proverbs 4:10-27

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D., Editor of Advance

THE voice of wisdom is the voice of experience, but of experience carefully considered and studied. It is not enough to take the voice of experience alone or in any limited way, because one may not see all the results of action.

Years ago, on a visit to New York, I preached on Sunday at a little church in a Long Island community. I was entertained for the day by a man who had an official position as inspector of certain public buildings in New York. He was manifestly a man of fine Christian integrity, with a family around him, particularly of boys, who reflected something of an ideal home life. It was a pleasure to be in the home.

When he told me of his occupation, I chaffed him somewhat good-naturedly, suggesting that men like him in such responsible positions of inspection could do much to prevent graft in city life. He took me quite seriously, and I have never forgotten his reaction.

He was not a man to pursue honesty as the best policy, but was a man inherently honest who would have been honest if it had not been for his own interest. But he spoke out of the voice of experience, as a father of sons to whom he was determined to set an honorable example.

HE said that he had noticed, where men became wealthy and prosperous dishonestly, that although apparently no bad result came to themselves, the consequences upon their sons and members of their families were often very disastrous.

What does a grafting or dishonest father gain if he builds up worldly goods and attains a sort of success, to find that his sons are imitating his success and possibly his energy, but also his crookedness, and are going down to ruin in a worldly as well as a spiritual way, because of the false heritage that he has given them?

Observe what is happening in the world. Think about it, as that man had thought about it and observed. Take a long range view, and see if the voice of wisdom is not right when it links human welfare with uprightness and with right choice.

"THE path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." That is a rich and beautiful figure, and in contrast is the way of the wicked that is full of darkness and stumbling.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence," says the voice of wisdom, "for out of this are the issues of life." We think immediately of that other saying, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." It is in our will, the inner choice backed by good judgment, that our destiny rests. To set before oneself the goal of good living, the way of honor and decency, is to be worldly wise as well as spiritually sound. Even where men have to make great sacrifices to maintain their integrity, the upright way is justified, for what comfort or gain is there for any man in realizing that what he has won has been won at the cost of himself?

THE PAY OFF

BY HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

MARVIN WARD, the 1939 titleholder, pulled the best crack of the 47th National Amateur at Winged Foot. Commenting on the chance of Warrington Bannerman McCullough, Jr., the final, Bud Ward remarked: "It would be a novelty to see this championship won by an amateur."

Whereupon Richard Dorval Chapman, who has played golf seven days a week since childhood, proceeded to thump Duff McCullough, Philadelphia automobile parts salesman, 11 and 9, in the most lopsided playoff since Charles B. MacDonald lambasted Charles E. Sands, 12 and 11, in the first National Amateur in 1895.

As the new amateur champion, Dick Chapman, the Greenwich socialite, has officials of the United States Golf Association turning handsprings.

Chapman, who leans to the frivolous, repeatedly has said that he wanted to win the crown to capitalize it in radio work and as a night club crooner.

CHAPMAN, who is 29, went on the wagon and trained a year to scale the heights.

He joined Winged Foot for the express purpose of adapting his game to that exacting course and to get acquainted with its rolling greens. Not once in a full week's play, during which he was eight under par for 157 holes, did he consult his caddy.

Chapman is the son of the late John D. Chapman, the United States senior champion of 1931.

Because of his father's fondness for golf, Dick Chapman was practically raised on courses.

Yet his play is strictly unorthodox. He looks like a hacker Off stride, he is as likely to shoot a 90 as a 69.

Gold Lode Is Found After 45 Years

By United Press

BAKERSFIELD, Cal.—A ledge of gold-bearing ore, originally discovered 45 years ago and lost when the prospector left the claim, has been rediscovered and is being worked.

A prospector named Clark made the discovery in 1895. The ore ran $60 a ton. Clark abandoned the diggings when his mother in the East became ill. Later he followed the gold rush to the Yukon.

The ore vein is in Sand Canyon, tributary of Goler Gulch in the Randsberg region on the Mojave desert. The owners are Bruce Carroll and Ernest Larkin.

New Ford Model Cars On Display By King-Ball Co.

Hundreds of people visited the King-Ball Motor Company's showrooms in Eastland Friday where the 1941 Fords were on display. A general line of the new models was arranged for convenient inspection and an employee of the company was present to explain the various new improvements shown for the first time in the 1941 cars.

Running boards have practically disappeared from sight on the models due to the increased width of the new bodies; the 85-horsepower V-8 engine is still unique as it is the only eight cylinder car in the low price field.

In addition to beauty both inside and outside the Ford people have emphasized the greatly improved ride in all 1941 models.
