Judge Fillmore Announces For District Judgeship

Judge H. W. Fillmore, in announcing his candidacy for Judge of the 30th Judicial District of Wichita county, says:

"In aspiring to the office of District Judge, I am fully cognizant of the importance and great responsibilities of this office. I realize that our district judges preside over the highest trial courts in our State, and are called upon to consider legal matters and make decisions where the property rights and personal liberties of our people are concerned, especially those important cases involving the juveniles and youth of tender age, the proper handling and disposition of which are so important to their lives.

As an attorney with several years of experience gained in the private practice of law, as well as upon the trial bench, I know that the people of our county are vitally interested in the legal training, experience and qualifications of anyone wishing to assume the duties of this high office and being mindful of the importance of the office and the high type of service the people of our country expect, and are entitled to from one assuming the duties of district judge, I firmly believe and submit for your consideration that my university training and experience gained in the private practice of law, together with the experience gained as county judge, in which capacity I presided over the trial of cases involving the probating of wills, appointment of administrators, and guardians, and also the trial of civil and criminal cases, well qualifies me to serve, and to serve you well, as district judge, and that the varied experiences

ORDERS FOR THE DAY

Your way of living has been touched by the call to service. It will never be quite the same again. Either your close ones, or the close ones of friends in your circle have already moved out.

First thing to do is to accept this. Do not fight it.

Second thing to do is to determine a course of action to meet the circumstances. Here are a few suggestions:

1. Make up your mind to accept what comes as bravely as will the boys who sign up.
2. Undertake a few hours of war or production service that will make you a part of the fight.
3. Look on cheaters and self-seeking people or firms with contempt but do not let them or their acts throw you off your stride.
4. Rise cheerfully to each day, do tasks efficiently, enjoy relaxation, visit with friends, live above normal instead of below it.
5. Write regularly and often to those in service who expect to hear from you.
6. Determine and determine now to make yourself a help to the nation's effort instead of a hindrance. Taking that attitude is the first step.

Do these things and you will be doing your part in this world emergency. But do not make the mistake of trying to do too much—of going too far in any direction. Keep stable. Be fair. Be efficient. Stay cheerful. Think straight. Radiate confidence. Will to win.

Sugar Stamp No. 1 Expires Saturday

Offices of the Wichita County Rationing Board Wednesday issued a statement reminding holders of sugar rationing cards that Saturday will be the last day for using Stamp No. 1 in the purchase of sugar. Holders who do not use the first stamp by Saturday night will have lost that much sugar-purchasing power, it was said.

Applications to the rationing board, First National Bank building, for sugar and canning must be filled by individuals or family units. A servant living in a home must make separate application.

Sales of corn sugar and glucose are not restricted by the federal rationing board on other sugars, it was announced Wednesday.

Welfare Department Gives Crowell Aid

When the tornado struck Crowell, in Ford county, on the night of April 28, demolishing 200 homes and damaging 80 percent of all buildings, at least eleven persons were killed and more than 125 persons injured. Some 1600 persons were rendered homeless. Joe B. Owen, Wichita Falls, area supervisor of the Texas Department of Public Welfare, went immediately to the scene and assisted in arranging for emergency care of the storm's victims. Surplus commodities, being held in warehouses in Fort Worth, Dallas, Lubbock and San Angelo for the school lunch programs, were quickly diverted to the disaster. Trucks were dispatched with wheat flour, prunes, dried beans, dehydrated soup, canned pork and beans, frozen egg yolks, and apples. An emergency feeding program was set up to serve 1,000 of the storm's victims at a central feeding station, to continue for two weeks, in cooperation with other federal and community agencies.

New Paint & Body Shop Locates Here

Clifford Wells, former Burkburnett man, has returned to Burkburnett and opened the Clifford Wells Paint & Body Works at 209 Ave D., the building formerly occupied by the Sheppard Field Motor Co.

Mr. Wells is well known to the people of Burkburnett, having worked here as a paint and body man for a number of years. Since leaving here Mr. Wells has worked in some of the largest paint and body shops in the country. He was employed for quite awhile at Topeka, Kansas, in the largest paint shop in that state.

He extends an invitation to his friends and former customers to visit him.

Ben L. Robinson Announces For Co. Commissioner

Ben L. Robinson of the Cashion community, was in the Star office Saturday and announced that he would be a candidate for the office of county commissioner of Precinct 2. Mr. Robinson is chairman of the county AAA, and has been busy attending to the affairs of the organization. He announces that he will make his formal announcement in the near future and will try to contact every voter in this precinct.

Alan T. Bryce Candidate For County Clerk

In announcing my candidacy for the office of County Clerk of Wichita county, I do so in the belief that I am fully qualified for the office, both from a standpoint of experience and ability. I have been engaged in the real estate and mortgage loan business for nearly twenty-five years, and have first hand knowledge of the various instruments and documents filed for record in the office of the County Clerk, and am thoroughly familiar with the routine duties.

Born in Springfield, Illinois, 49 years ago, I came to Wichita County in 1916, establishing residence in Electra. I enlisted in the army early in 1918 and was in Artillery Officers Training at the close of the war. In 1919 I married Preston Moore, daughter of the late J. Bony and Mrs. Moore, pioneer settlers in Wichita County. One son, Tom, born in Electra in 1920, is now a Midshipman in the United States Naval Academy.

It is a generally accepted principle of the Democratic party that an honest, efficient public servant is entitled to re-election to a second term, and when it is definitely in the public interest, even to a third term. But nothing, expressed or implied, should lead any public official to feel that he has a right to a life-time job or pension. Especially is this true when a candidate for a county office makes a definite statement that "he will not seek re-election for more than two terms."

Most of us recognize the fact that no one man has a corner on honesty, ability or efficiency. Few men are so indispensable that the duties of any office cannot be administered with equal efficiency by another equally well qualified.

I have not been "urged" to run for office by my friends; I have no radical ideas or changes I want to put into effect; my broad experience in business, particularly with instruments affecting land titles, qualifies me for the place; and I want the office because it pays a salary commensurate with the duties and responsibilities involved. I have enough confidence in my own ability to know "I can get the job done."

I will sincerely appreciate your consideration.

Respectfully,
Alan T. Bryce.

ROTARY CLUB

Truman Garland was in charge of the Rotary program Tuesday and presented Paul Browning, who made a report of the District convention which was held in Wichita Falls the first of the week.

Garland also introduced Miss LaVon Arrington, who gave a reading.

George Backus of Vernon, was a visiting Rotarian.

Burk Youth Is Listed Missing

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Scruggs received the sad news this week that their son, Lloyd Scruggs of the Marine corps, was missing in action. The report did not say whether he was killed or had been captured.

Lloyd was formerly employed at the Corner Drug Store.

Rationing Board Says Sugar For Canning Available

At a meeting of the rationing board No. 243-B, held Wednesday night, May 13, 1942, certificates were issued to the following: Marvin G. Bliel, one passenger car tire; S. B. Dunn, one tractor tire and tube; Paul Fields, one truck tire; W. H. Preston, one tractor tire; A. T. Walling, two tractor tubes; W. A. Minick, two passenger car tire re-treads and J. C. Hinkle, three passenger car tire re-treads.

OPA form R-315, application for sugar for canning home fruits, etc., are now available at the rationing board's office. The board will meet Monday night, May 18, at 8:00 P. M., to pass on such canning applications as we may have before us, at that time. These applications may be had by persons needing them by calling at the rationing board office, 214 First National Bank Building, Burkburnett, Texas.

High School Band Picnic Wednesday

Enjoying an all-day holiday Wednesday, the High School Band members and several Band Parent Club members and the director, Sumpter Reed, went to Emerson Park near Walters, Oklahoma, and spent the day.

Games, seesaw and wading furnished diversion. Baseball teams were formed for the boys and girls. Picnic lunches were brought by the members and served under the hugh trees at the park.

Home On Furlough

Corporal Albert J. Reynolds of Company C, 111 Engineers Battalion 36th Infantry Division, Camp Blanning, Florida, is spending a ten days furlough here visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Reynolds, Mrs. Dollie Graham and husband, Kenneth, from Corpus Christi, Texas, accompanied Corporal Reynolds here for a visit also.

College students may now enlist in the Naval Reserve and, under certain conditions, be deferred from active service after graduation.

Most Of Future Draftees To Come From The 3A Class, Officials Learn

Dependency soon will receive little consideration in determining draft deferment, and the selective service system will be used to secure workers for war industry to replace men now engaged in war work who are physically fit for army service, state selective service officials told draft board representatives from this area in a meeting at Vernon Tuesday.

The nation must have a large army and as the supply of original 1A draft registrants is virtually exhausted, future calls must be filled from the 3A ranks, the officials said, estimating from 65 to 70 per cent of the men called in the future will come from 3A classifications.

They predicted legislation providing for dependents of men

Ration Board Man Is New Volunteer

The war has introduced a new volunteer to America—the man on the local rationing board. There are 21,000 men like him throughout the country making important decisions on the conservation of vital materials.

There are three such men in Burkburnett: Bob Tevis, Walter Roberts and Fred Boden. These men are giving their time to this cause. When these men first started they were on the tire rationing board, but now they have added duties with the sugar rationing in effect, and as time goes on their duties will continue to increase.

You may not see much of these men because they work quietly, frequently until late hours at night. They do not wear a uniform. The public, however, are pretty well aware of their presence in the community because for three months they have been saying who can have tires, tubes and automobiles and who can't.

The rationing board operates under a state administrator who in turn is responsible to regional supervisors, who represent the government. Orders and instructions from Washington are sent through the regional officers and from them to the state administrators and the system works very smoothly.

Hoarding Resembles First War

In this war, as in World War I, we are confronted with the problem of hoarding. Persons who do the family shopping and who buy one a day-to-day basis, or at most lay in a week's supply of canned goods, have been kept waiting in line at the cash register desk for as much as half an hour while two or three persons ahead have their double-truck assortment of canned goods counted and checked. They are buying not a week's supply but a month's, and tomorrow and the day after tomorrow they will be back doing the same thing.

Many people are known to have enough goods thus stored away to open a small grocery store of their own. The office of Price Administration has more than once called attention to this condition and stated that it was a contributing factor in price rises.

One woman whose conscience began to trouble her on this account posed the question as to what would happen if everyone did as she had done, and the reply given her was that the articles she mentioned would vanish from the market overnight in a panic of buying and, as a further result, millions of people who have neither the cash nor the space to hoard would be deprived of them. This same well-meaning woman who had yielded to a panic of possible shortage and rushed off to the store to stock up her own larder, regardless of consequences to others less well circumstanced, felt she still had two or three justifiable lines of defense for her actions.

One excuse given was that she would feel different if only the sacrifices and economic burdens of war rested upon all with some semblance of equality. Her advisor explained that unfortunately this condition seldom obtains. Many are required to sacrifice their lives or the lives of their loved ones, while many others have to sacrifice their health, eyesight, jobs and all their lifetime possessions. So, in view of this gross inequality of sacrifice, it behooves each of us to do our utmost to equalize where we can, and one of the very things which we all can do is to share cheerfully, and regardless of price increases, those necessities that will become more and more hard to get as the war goes on.

HARDIN GRADE SCHOOL —NEWS—

Sterling Graham withdrew from school here Friday. He went from here to Oklahoma and expects to go to California later. Pupils in our room are very happily water coloring now. Everyone is enjoying it and we have some nice work for beginners. We have $139.75 in Defense stamps. (Smith H4-2).

Our room has bought $167.36 worth of defense stamps. The spelling honor roll is: Nathalie Brock, Sidney Gambelin, Mary Joy Gresham, Mike Harms, Clyde Hollingsworth, Betty Lou Poole, and Nona Raley. (Jackson H4-1).

David McNeill, Billy Needham, Ralph Cozby, Leon Cox, Peggy Sue Dunn, Joe Dale Sampson, Ruth Mitchell, James Rogers, Peggy Jean Bruce, and Richard Murphy are on this week's spelling honor roll. (Solomon H5-2).

The following pupils made a perfect score in spelling: Darlene Bratton, Eddie Copher, Kate Griffin, Gloria Maynard, Johnny Pruitt and Billie Mack Thompson. (Majors H3-1).

Our exhibit was highly complimented Monday by visitors. Several have been absent the past week due to illness. Those on the sick list were Garland West, Billy Parker, Jimmie Moore, and Johnnie Vaughn. (Beck L7-1).

Those on the spelling honor roll for last week are: Eugene Blair, Wayne Bounds, Irven DeVore, Bobby Gibson, Donnie Green, James Roderick, Billy Simpkins, Ina Velle Burton, Maurine Jones, Helen Kelley, Vela Ray Kelley, Brenda Michna, Wilda Miller, Martha Parker, Shirley Stradley, and Louise Waikup. We have missed Barbara Anne Brooks who has been absent two weeks because of infection in her eyes. James Roderick's bird house received first place in the contest, Walter Clark's, second and Dale Yarbrough's third. All of the boys will take their birdhouses home after the exhibit. (Lasseter H2-2).

Beverly Wyant spent last week-end visiting in Oklahoma City. In art we have been making paper boxes, chairs, and tables. We followed the directions given in our arithmetic books and tried to make them by the exact proportions given. (Isbell H5-2).

The 8th grade banquet will be held Thursday night May 14th, at 8:00 o'clock in the Town Hall. A patriotic program has been planned. The Hall will be decorated in red, white and blue. Margaret Murphy, Genevieve Needham, Margie Spence, Helen Batchelor, and Guylene Griffin, were absent last week. (Goodwin H8-3).

We were very glad to have some of our mothers visit our room during the week. We had individual booklets showing our work in spelling, numbers, language, and writing. Our main project was "The Farm," with the frieze, "Food for Freedom." Our Victory Gardens were just coming up. We wish to thank Mrs. Kelley for the seeds she gave us. In art we made individual posters and a large number worked on the "Holland" frieze. In music we have learned "Deep In the Heart of Texas." We like to sing it. (Vann H2-1).

Dorothy Marie Bates is the first student in H7-2 to buy enough stamps for a bond. Others who have almost enough stamps for a bond are Martin McCarty, Joy Simpson, Stella Trout and Arthur Thorpe. (McSween H7-2).

Nell Marie Guinn and Billie Marie Nolar helped in the registration room last Tuesday. Wanda Kinder, Iva Jo Frieles and Geo. Green were on the absentee list last week. (McGinnis H8-2).

Everett Watson bought fifteen dollars in defense stamps. Everett Watson and Richard Loyd are leading the class in defense stamps. James Talley has moved to Lawton, Oklahoma. (Robertson H1-3).

The students in this section are now reading their tenth primer. It is "Fact and Story Readers." They will read "Pet Pony" next week. The children were very enthusiastic in their art classes this week, as they were making "Mother's Day" cards. Those that bought defense stamps this week were: Shirley Ann Tyler, Wynona Reed, and Bettie Jane Ainsworth. (Mrs. Walling H1-2).

Our attendance has improved the last three weeks. However, a few pupils are absent each day. Others that have been absent a day or two are Patsy Ann Stradley, Louise West, and Peggy Shoefstall. Donald Wills went with his mother to Kansas Friday to visit his grandmother for a few days. We are reading our 11th primer this week. We plan to read thirteen primers by the end of the term. (Billingslea H1-1).

Betty Lee Steirert was absent four days last week because of illness. We do hope she is able to be back in school next week. All of the 8th graders are looking forward to the annual eighth grade banquet next Thursday night. (Ashton H3-3).

The H7-3 history class has completed a very interesting piece of work. It is a flag representing what it takes to help win the war for us. The stars, on a field of blue, are represented by our ships, tanks and planes. The seven red stripes are composed of soldiers, sailors, and marines cut from red paper. This was interesting work and every member of the class took part in it. (Gibson H6-2).

We checked this week to see how many stamps our room has purchased and found that we had bought approximately $120 worth. Carolyn Boyd has purchased her bond and some of the others have almost enough for one. Donna Browning and Jessie Ruth Preston have bonds which were not purchased through the school. (Squier H6-1).

The High School Choral club has been working on special music which will be presented at the Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises the last of this month. The 8th grade classes have been working on music which will be used at their banquet May 14. (Allen H7-1).

United Gas Corp. Playing Important Part In Defense

"One matchless advantage of our country over our enemies is in the matter of experience with modern high-speed production methods," R. W. Lindsey, district manager of United Gas Corporation, said in a statement today.

"The secret of American superiority lies in experience, and it is our superior experience in mass production that will win the war."

"Our company, in the major part it is playing toward furnishing fuel for war industry, has an unusual story of experience to tell of its employees. The records of the company show that behind our service stands an aggregate of 30 million man-hours of experience."

Mothers Honored At Dinner Party

A dinner was given Friday to honor mothers and guests of the American Legion Auxiliary members, at the home of Mrs. H. C. Gilbert.

Mrs. M. W. Majors being the oldest mother and charter member of the Auxiliary was given a lovely potted Hydrangea by members of the organization.

In the business session presided over by Mrs. A. H. Bazell, president, plans were made for the poppy sale to be held May 29, with headquarters at the Corner Drug Store and Mrs. Majors as poppy chairman. Daughters of the Auxiliary members will be asked to sell poppies on that date. It was also voted to cooperate with the Legion in entertaining the Division Meet here June 28-29. The Division comprises 11th-12th-13th districts.

Those present were Mesdames C. F. Johnson, M. W. Majors, A. H. Bazell, H. C. Gilbert, Fred Brookman, H. W. Prinzing, E. E. Prater, Hattie Buchanan, Leo Dudley, Fannie Hoffman, W. Boydston, and Mr. Gilbert and Leo Dudley.

Clara Ladies' Aid Met On Thursday

The Ladies' Aid of the Clara Lutheran church had a well-attended meeting last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Louise Lohoefer.

The meeting was opened under the direction of the chairman, Mrs. C. Mings, with the singing of a hymn and with prayer.

Among the matters discussed in the business session was the sending of delegates to the district convention of women's groups to be held at Austin in June. A committee was appointed to collect funds for the purchase of a United States flag and the Christian flag for the church. Mrs. Brookman and Mrs. Emil Schroeder constitute this committee. The report concerning participation of the members in the Lord's Acre Plan was encouraging. The pastor, the Rev. Paul Kaiser, addressed the group on the importance of a national federation of women's groups in the church.

Following the close of the meeting, a delicious luncheon plate was served to the following members and guests: Mesdames Brookman, Brockriede, Fred Minick, Enderli, Evert, Misses Frieda and Lina Goetze, Hieserman, Arnold Holtzen, Miss Millie Kiesel, D. We can do without Japan's silk with no serious consequences. We can carry on nor- mally much more easily without Japan's silk than Japan can carry on without our market for her silk. Already, we have worthy Amer- ican substitutes for this major Nipponese export product.

It is our task now to defeat Japan, to prevent her from overpowering us and taking our democracy away from us, along with all the other fine things that we have to enjoy here in America. To wrest from us the things that have made America great — free speech, free thought, free opportunity, free religious worship — is the aim of Japan and her power-mad partners.

They seek to destroy our way of life, our homes, our churches, our schools . . . to place a yoke around our necks . . . to enslave us. We must not permit an Axis victory. Our way of life must survive.

Whipping Japan and her partners is a job for all of us. The duty of every American citizen is well defined, clear-cut. Our armed forces are fighting with traditional courage and determination. They are mak- ing sacrifices to void our enemies' designs.

Any sacrifice that we make, as civilians, is trivial compared to what these hard fight- ing men are doing. They are risking their lives that we may remain free people . . . that our American way of life may survive.

We owe it to these brave, self-sacrificing men up front on the battle lines to keep them armed, fed and clothed abundantly. We must work hard to ful- fill our obligation to them. We must use ev- ery ounce of our energy to contribute our share to Uncle Sam's goal of adequate pro- duction of food, clothing, arms and ammu- nition. We must buy Defense bonds, stamps, all that we possibly can, as soon as we pos- sibly can. Our American way of life must survive.

Uncle Sam desires that the retail merchants, the service insti- tutions and the professional men of our nation carry on as nor- mally as possible, considering that we are at war. Locally, the people who man and manage the firms and institutions that serve you are doing all they can to serve you the best they can. If war has forced certain restrictions or made limitations of certain services mandatory, accept the changes with gracious understanding, remembering that it is both their wish and their duty to adopt those business practices designed to lend greatest help in the battle to insure victory and the survival of our Amer- ican way of life.

War Material Shortage Limits Telephone Service

You probably have heard out certain government re- ductions on telephone service equipment now in effect. should like to tell you a more about these re- ductions—why they are nec- essary, and what they will do to you.

The reason for them is sim- ple and complete. They are to materials which are need- ed to fight the war.

What will they mean to you, telephone user?

You have a telephone now, you mean no change except in many Texas cities af- fected by war growth you may have to have other parties on the line. And, in all cases, you can't get an extension phone in your home if you can't one already.*

For people who have no tele- phones and want them, or for users who move to new homes, we shall supply at party-line service where there are now enough lines and switchboards. But in general, where new construc- tion of this type would be necessary, we shall not be able to provide service.*

This will mean inconven- ience and perhaps hardship to a few people now. As time goes on it will probably mean inconvenience and hardship to more people, but we need your help and sympathetic understanding in this im- portant step to save the max- imum of materials for the war.

Beside the great savings in materials already made by substitution and wartime en- gineering, the new restric- tions will mean that more lead, iron, steel, zinc, copper, and rubber used in telephone equipment will now go into arms.

In spite of all this, and while telephone service may not be available to all who want it, we believe we can keep the service up to a high standard. At any rate, we shall do our level best. These difficulties are something that neither the government nor the tele- phone companies can help. They are part of the price of protecting liberty.

*Except for those cases where the need for telephone service has been recognized by the War Production Board as necessary for defense or public health, welfare or security.

SHE LOVED A SPY

by SYLVIA TAYLOR

THE STORY SO FAR: Joan Leland, secretary to Arthur Mulford, San Francisco importer, is amazed and angry when he discharges her without notice or explanation. Her sister Sybil, with whom she shares an apartment, loses her position also and Joan accepts a secretarial position with handsome Karl Miller, night club proprietor. He pays her well because of the unusual hours. She is fascinated and accepts his love-making. Later she meets his manager, Paul Sherman and his partner, Eric Strom, who both express admiration for her. Paul warns her against Karl but refuses to give his reasons. Returning to the office unexpectedly, Joan overhears Karl and Eric in a mysterious conversation. Paul drives her home and they quarrel over Joan working for Karl. Later Karl invites her to inspect a freighter, whose captain he knows. Both Paul and Joan's sister, Sybil, warn her against Karl. Paul is found following her.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VI

Sybil shrugged. "There are a lot of people I don't trust. For instance, why is Paul Sherman following you?"

"I intend to find out tonight. He has an appointment at the club at ten-thirty. I'll try to see him there for a few minutes. I'm going to ask him to explain."

"Karl probably knows about it already. It may be his orders."

"That's ridiculous!" Joan flared. "How can you dislike Karl so much? After he got your job and has been so kind to you?"

"You're just tired, honey!" Sybil said as she put comforting arms about Joan. "You don't get enough sleep. You need more sun and fresh air. Working in that shut-in office with no outside windows is enough to make anyone ill."

"Let me alone!" her sister wept. "You don't understand. No one understands how I feel."

Sybil sighed as she went back to the kitchen.

But before Joan left for the office she had kissed Sybil affectionately, saying, "I'm sorry, Sybil! I guess I am tired. One of the things that's making me nervous is having Paul follow me all the time. I can't stand it any longer, and I'm going to settle it tonight."

Later when Joan hurried from the apartment and walked to the trolley line through the dark night, she felt strangely exhilarated. It was a thrill even to go to work when her boss was Karl Miller.

"The whole world is different when you're in love," Joan thought, and she pitied the girls who were neglected by this great emotion.

At the Club Joan paused to look at the crowd. The low ceiling was flooded with a soft indirect lighting. It was a pleasant intimate room. The dance floor was small but adequate. It formed a circle in front of the band which, according to Karl, was "going over big." The Club Elite was definitely a success.

The bar at one side of the room was crowded. Joan, glancing casually at the well-dressed men and women, saw Paul Sherman. She glanced at her watch. It was a quarter of eight. She had fifteen minutes before she was due in Karl's office. Now was her chance.

"Hello," Paul said. "Is it possible that you want to see me?"

Joan sat down beside him. "I have been seeing you almost constantly for three weeks," she said significantly.

"That's a tricky hat," Paul said admiringly.

"Be serious, Paul. You know what I mean. Why have you been following me?"

"Must have been two other people. Want a drink?"

"No, thank you!" Joan exploded. "There's no use trying to evade the issue. I saw you down at the boat that night."

His brown eyes were serious. "You didn't tell Karl?"

"No! I didn't."

"Why not?"

"I didn't want you to lose your job," she confessed. "I couldn't believe that you meant any harm."

"That's very sweet of you, Joan! I appreciate your confidence."

"Well? Aren't you going to explain? If you don't, I'm going to tell him."

Paul looked at his watch. "We haven't time to talk now. You have to be in the office by eight, don't you? I'll come in later and we'll talk then. Meanwhile, please don't say anything to Karl. Promise me, Joan!"

"I won't if you'll explain."

"You have all the instincts of a detective," Paul laughed.

"That's what Karl told me once," Joan informed him. "I'll see you later!"

Karl Miller was in his office. The moment Joan entered, he drew her into his arms. "That's an adorable hat," he said, kissing her.

"I knew you'd like it!" She pressed her cheek against his. Impossible to think about Paul Sherman, impossible to worry, or even care what happened in the rest of the world when she was in his arms.

"I'll be out of the office until ten," Karl told her. "Try to finish those letters."

"Paul wants to see you at ten-thirty," she reminded him.

"I'll be back. Good night, Liebchen!"

Another kiss and he was gone. Joan turned back to her typewriter wondering how she could keep her mind off Karl Miller and type these letters. Karl was such a man! He had lived. He was not an inexperienced boy in his twenties. Paul must be twenty-six or seven but he seemed a boy compared to Karl, Karl who was so sophisticated—so completely sure of himself.

"Ah! Miss Leland! You are alone, I see. And looking very beautiful as always—"

"Stop thinking about him!" Joan scolded herself and, fitting a sheet of paper into her typewriter, she began to work.

It was almost ten when the door opened without warning. Joan thought it was Paul but it was Eric Strom, Karl's partner, who stepped inside. Joan had not seen him since the night he dined with Karl and her.

"Ah! Miss Leland! You are alone, I see. And looking very beautiful as always," Eric's voice was soft but his eyes regarded her insolently. "Karl will be back any minute," Joan said quickly.

"I don't think so. I left him only a few minutes ago, quite absorbed in a business matter. Mind if I have a drink?"

"You're Karl's partner. It's your office, too." She was trying to control her dislike of him.

"You are very generous," Eric Strom said, but he did not open the bar concealed in the wall. Instead he approached her desk.

"You'll have to excuse me," Joan said, suddenly afraid. "I'm very busy."

But with a quick step, Eric was beside her. Drawing her to her feet, he attempted to kiss her. "You beautiful little devil!" he murmured.

Joan was terror-stricken. She tried to scream but no sound would come. She pulled away with all her strength but Eric Strom only laughed.

"Let me alone!" Joan cried as she felt Eric's arms about her.

She was not aware that the office door had opened until a hand seized Eric and whirled him around.

"Paul!"

Paul's face was grim. "You dirty rat!" He smashed his fist full in Eric's face with a blow that sent him spinning across the room.

Eric staggered to his feet but there was a smile on his evil face. "You'll pay for this, Sherman! You seem to forget I have something to say about this business."

Joan leaned weakly against the desk, sobbing.

"Shut up and get out!" Paul ordered, advancing toward Eric again.

And at that moment Karl Miller appeared in the doorway. His voice cut like a whip through the tense atmosphere. "What's going on here?" he demanded.

No one seemed inclined to answer him but he read the story in their faces. "I want to talk to Joan—alone!" She had never heard him use this tone before. His voice was edged with steel. His eyes were hard. He seemed another Karl, a man she had never known.

As Paul turned to go, Joan ran to him. "Thanks, Paul!" she said, her voice trembling.

But Paul did not look at her. His voice was strained. "Don't mention it!"

When they were alone, Karl said, "It won't happen again, Joan. I'll see that Eric doesn't annoy you."

Desperately she tried to regain control of her shattered nerves but sobbings shook her. Karl put his arms about her and his touch was magic. "Don't cry, Liebchen! There's nothing to be afraid of now."

She clung to him, feeling strength in his assurance. "Oh, Karl, I love you!" The words tripped over each other in stammering sincerity.

Karl Miller, pressing his lips against her white forehead, smiled.

The days of November marched by with astonishing rapidity. Joan was not bothered by Eric Strom again and her fears vanished. Karl was more attentive than ever, and Joan, with the radiant assurance of a woman loved, checked off each day as more perfect than the last.

Sometimes she doubted her efficiency as Karl's secretary. She typed letters scarcely knowing what she was writing. But if she was inefficient Karl did not seem to notice it.

One rainy night Joan said to Sybil, "I've never been so happy in my life."

"It's too good to be true," Sybil prophesied gloomily. "I still don't like Karl. The more I see of him the less I trust him. And another one I don't care for is that Mrs. Murdock who runs the beauty shop."

"Is that Karl's fault? He got you the job. That's enough, isn't it?" Joan had come home for dinner and Karl had told her she need not be back at work until nine, an hour later than usual.

"I never heard of such crazy hours," Sybil objected. "Karl certainly isn't very businesslike about the club. I don't see how he makes anything."

Joan walked restlessly up and down the living room. "Karl makes plenty of money. He's a very clever man," she glanced at the clock. "I think I'll go back early. Karl might need me." Shortly before eight she left.

Happily she opened the door of Karl Miller's office but the smile on her face faded when she saw that Karl was not alone. Eric Strom was with him.

"I'm just leaving," Eric said, and without a word to Joan he walked past her and down the corridor.

Karl did not seem surprised that she had arrived early. He made no comment upon her appearance. He read her thoughts, when he said, "I didn't think you'd want to see Eric, so I told you to come later."

Instantly she was reassured. It was kind of him to spare her a meeting with Eric Strom.

"Joan," Karl continued, with his quick smile, "I hate to ask you to do this on such a bad night but I can't leave the office and I want this package delivered." He held out a small leather portfolio.

"I don't mind, Karl! Where does it go?"

"Do you remember the night I took you aboard the freighter?"

She nodded and he went on, "I want it delivered there. Take a taxi and go immediately."

Joan fastened her coat and slipped on her gloves. "To whom shall I give it?"

"They're expecting you. Someone will meet you. Give him the package and come right back. You'll find a taxi outside." He kissed her briefly.

When she arrived at the pier Joan asked the driver to wait, and clutching the portfolio tightly, ran into the warehouse. She walked rapidly through the darkness, through the opening which led to the ship. There was no one in sight as she ascended the slippery gangplank.

She stood uncertainly for a moment peering through the misty darkness before she heard a voice. "Wer da?" She drew back involuntarily. The guttural voice frightened her.

Instantly a man appeared out of the night and the muscles of his scarred face relaxed when he saw who it was. "Miss Leland?"

"Yes," Joan faltered. "Here is a package from Mr. Miller."

"Danke schoen!" He saluted her and disappeared into the shadows.

Joan returned through the warehouse to the street. She shivered as the wind swept the rain in great gusts. Thank goodness, her taxi was still there.

Quickly Joan ran to it, opened the door and climbed in.

"Good evening," Paul Sherman said.

He was sitting in the corner comfortably smoking a cigarette. "I thought you might need me."

"So you're following me again!"

She felt his arm nudge hers in warning as he glanced towards the taxi driver. "Don't talk now!" he said under his breath.

"Take me back to the club," Joan ordered.

But Paul said, "Drive straight ahead till I give you further directions. And step on it!"

Joan sat in furious silence as the driver obeyed Paul's orders. They climbed the slope of Nob Hill. Not until they stopped at a hotel and were settled at a small table in the grill did she turn angrily to Paul.

"Would you mind telling me what is the idea of this? I happen to be working for Karl, and he's expecting me back at the office."

The room was warm and gay and there was a hum of voices.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D.
Of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for May 17

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education; used by permission.

TUESDAY: THE DAY OF CONFLICT

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 22:41-23:11.
GOLDEN TEXT—The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner.—Mark 12:10.

"By what authority doest thou these things? and who gave thee this authority?" Such was the challenge Christ faced when He came into the temple on the last day that He was to be able to teach there. The chief priests and elders (Matt. 21:23) asked it because they knew that they had received their authority with their offices, whether appointive or hereditary.

Jesus held no such position, yet He had just driven the money changers out of what He called "my house"—the temple. They challenged Him, and through the long day He answered and also asked them questions. Here we find a rich store of parables, illustrations, unanswerable arguments, as He met the Pharisees, Sadducees, Herodians—all His enemies who, though they hated each other, made common cause against Jesus. The discussion concludes with His facing of the Pharisees with

I. The Ultimate Question—"What Think Ye of the Christ?" (22:41-46).

The crux of the entire matter was right there for them, as it is for us, though in a somewhat different sense. They were looking for the Messiah—the Christ; but their idea of Him was that He would come as their royal leader, to break the yoke of Roman bondage and set them free. They knew He was to be the son of David, but they did not see in their own Scriptures that this one was to be David's greater son (Matt. 12:42); that in the line of David was to come the one whom David called "his son" (Ps. 132:11). They knew about Christ, but they did not know Him, and thus they were like many today. They have heard of Him; they may even admire His character and His teachings, but they do not know Him. What think you, reader, of Christ? Christ then states

II. The Final Test—Doing, Not Just Saying (23:1-4).

Having finally closed their mouths (22:46) Jesus proceeded to a solemn indictment of the scribes and Pharisees. "First of all He declared that they failed in the final test of life, which is not words but actions. Notice that He recognized their authority and their teaching, but in severe condemnation pointed out that they did not live what they professed. That is the criterion by which we shall all be judged. Those who think that because they belong to some church, or subscribe to a creed, or speak a smooth word of testimony they may then live as they please, will find themselves standing with the scribes and Pharisees on the judgment day. Why keep that kind of company? Such men are capable of

III. The Great Hypocrisy—Pride Posing As Piety (23:5-9).

They were, oh, so religious! Interpreting literally and mechanically God's command that they keep His law always near them in action (hand) and in thought (mind) (see Deut. 6:8; 11:18), they made showy leather cases and wore them on wrist and forehead as containers of the written Word. They loved the chief seats and the titles of distinction. And all this was done in the name of religion. What hypocrisy!

But wait—are we any better? What about the preacher who is not happy unless he is invited into the pulpit? What about those who take or accept the titles which our Lord expressly forbids? What about those in the pew, as much as in the pulpit (and perhaps more), who want to be recognized as "the masters" of the church? To be sure, they do not always wish it to be so crudely put as that, but they do expect to be recognized as such "or else." This too, under the name of Christianity. There indeed is the great hypocrisy!

We are thankful that our lesson does not close here. Our Lord next revealed

IV. The Right Attitude—Service Not Recognition (23:10, 11).

He that is mastered of Christ is ready to be the servant of all. To exalt Him is to at once do away with self-praise and self-glory. Pride in position, and the desire to be praised and recognized by men, inevitably lead a man into a pitfall in which he is humbled. On the other hand, the one who in humility serves the Lord will, to his own surprise, find that God has exalted him. The way up is down.

"Torrey," said a well-known preacher with whom Dr. Torrey was associated in a great conference, "you and I are the most important men in Christian work in this country." Not long afterward God set that man aside. Quite different was the spirit of D. L. Moody, who at the height of his ministry for God would say, "There are better men here behind me on the platform to speak when I am through"—and he really believed it!

Picturesque Play Set.

DON'T you find it fun to make your daughter's play clothes in cunning styles and pretty cottons? In Pattern No. 1570-B you'll find a play set for girls from 1 to 6 years old which has many practical features.

First comes a frock—delightfully cool with scalloped cap sleeves, a pet pocket, braid and button trimming and a button-down-the-back opening which makes it easy to get on and off.

Pattern No. 2949

WHATEVER color print material you use with your plain material, Millwheel will turn out handsomely. It's one of those quilts that wins prizes!

Easy Food Source

The Cistercian monastery in Alcobaca, Portugal, obtains all the fish that it requires for food at no cost and with little labor. The cooks merely drop nets into a branch of the Alcoa river, which flows through the middle of their huge kitchen.

Second, there is an adorable bonnet to match, the crown of which buttons in place. The whole thing opens flat for ironing. Third is a pair of overalls—so sensible for play and so healthy, too, because in warm weather no top is needed and the wearer is exposed to a grand sun tan.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1570-B is designed for 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 year sizes. Size 2 requires 3 1/2 yards 32 or 35-inch material for ensemble, 3 yards bias braid for frock and bonnet.

Go Slow for Safety

The little man ordered his meal and waited patiently for it to be served. Half-way through the second course the waiter came quietly to his table.

"Excuse me, sir," he whispered, "but I advise you not to hurry with your meal."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed the little man. "Why shouldn't I?"

"Well, sir," said the waiter, "you're sitting on a prize-fighter's hat, but he doesn't know it yet."

Bachelor fireman's nightmare: He dreamt the fire brigade came to his wedding—but there was no escape.

The Feel of It

"Aren't people funny?" "Yes. If you tell a man there are 270,678,934,341 stars in the universe he'll believe you, but if a sign says 'Fresh Paint' that same man has to take a personal investigation."

Not a Chance

After getting married to his former secretary, he remarked: "Well, my dear, I suppose I must get someone to take your place in the office."

"I've been thinking of that," replied the bride; "my cousin is just leaving school."

"What's her name?" "John Henry Briggs," said the bride, sweetly.

A CLEAN-UP

Ethel—We're going to give the bride-to-be a shower. Johnny—Count me in. I'll bring the soap.

Well in Hand "Oh, my husband's changed since our marriage. He eats out of my hand now."

Really? Well, it saves a lot of washing up."

Pay or Say?

The offices of the inspector of taxes and the collector of taxes were in the same building.

A woman who got into the elevator said to the elevator boy: "Taxes."

"Collector or inspector?" asked the boy.

"Taxes, please," replied the woman.

"Now, look here, madam," said the elevator boy, "do you want to pay or just have an argument?"

Once there was a man who thought he'd get ahead going to parties. He got a head.

BETWEEN-MEAL SNACKS

Dorothy Greig

Cheese Omelet with Ham-Tomato Sauce just hits the spot for a light meal.

WAR production work is hungry work. It's not only three squares a day a woman must prepare but often in-between meal snacks, too — and at such queer hours! (Girls, we're certainly in for mental somersaults on this meal business "for the duration.")

These "little meals" of the day (or night) are highly important, though. They help generate the energy required for high speed production, for our country needs us strong. So let's plan these meals as carefully as we do the main meals of the day. Simple food—of course. Hot food — most certainly. Thick, nourishing soup is one good choice for between-meal snacks. So are eggs in all their various forms.

Have you a war worker asking for "just a bite" at odd hours? Then here are a couple of suggestions you can use:

War Worker Between-Meal Snacks

#Cheese Omelet with Ham-Tomato Sauce
Buttered Toast
Canned Fruit with Cookies
Coffee

#Cheese Omelet with Ham-Tomato Sauce

Ham-Tomato Sauce
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons onion, chopped
2 tablespoons green pepper, chopped
1/2 cup spiced luncheon ham loaf, chopped
1 can condensed tomato soup
Cook the onion and green pepper in melted butter until soft. Then add the chopped spiced ham and continue stirring and cooking for about 5 minutes. Add the tomato soup and heat well to blend the flavors. (This sauce keeps well in refrigerator.) Makes 1 1/2 cups of sauce.

*Hamburger-Vegetable Soup
Rye Bread and Butter
Apple Pie with Cheese
Coffee or Milk

*Hamburger-Vegetable Soup
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons onion, chopped
1/2 pound ground beef
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pinch of pepper
1 can condensed vegetable soup
1 can water
Cook the onion in butter until soft, then add the ground beef and seasonings. Continue cooking until the meat is browned. Then add the vegetable soup and water using the soup can for a measure. Bring to boiling and simmer 5-8 minutes. Serves 2-3.

I Give You Texas

If newspaper articles were written the same way that radio programs are given, how would they sound? The Trinity Standard—in effect—inquires and then proceeds to demonstrate by publishing an article entitled "The Radio."

The radio is the most wonderful invention of modern times. It was made possible by Lee De Forest, who now seldom listens to the radio and who says that he almost regrets having made it possible. But now for just a word from our sponsor.

(Do you get the Trinity Standard regularly? If you do not get the Trinity Standard rush down to the news stand and buy a copy of the Trinity Standard office and subscribe to the Trinity Standard and you will receive the Trinity Standard once each week, and you will be able to keep informed and amaze your friends with your knowledge of local affairs. Now some more about the radio.)

The first messages carried electrically through the air were telegraphed, and the system then was known as wireless. Marconi was one of those who helped to perfect this great invention. But before we tell you more about Marconi just a word from our sponsor.

(Make the count test. Take an ordinary newspaper and crumple it in your hands while you count five, one, two, three, four, five; then take the Trinity Standard and crumple it in your hands while you count five, and notice the difference. Now some more about the radio.)

The first wireless signals were sent across the ocean by Marconi in 1901. However, it was a long time from that date until there was a radio set in nearly every home. And here is a brief message for you, while we check the latest information regarding this wonderful invention.

(When you buy the Trinity Standard you buy the best. The paper, on which the Trinity Standard is printed, is carefully selected, and in order to get the very best we pay 27 per cent more than the average market price. The ink, too, is selected with the greatest care, and is mixed with vitamins so that when you get the Trinity Standard you get not only vitamins A, B, and C, but the lower case vitamins, a, b, and c, as well. No other newspaper can make that claim. Now more about the radio.)

In the early twenties the first radio sets were marketed. At that time it was customary to sell parts, and in many instances amateurs built their own sets, using earphones, for loud speakers had not been perfected at that time. In just a moment we will be back with more about the radio.

(Are your hands beautiful, or do they look like misshapen carrots? Does your husband shrivel when he sees your hands or does he shudder? Your hands, too, may be beautiful and seductive. Every morning and night, just wrap your hands in copies of the Trinity Standard, just as all the movie stars do, and then you too will have beautiful hands, and you will exude glamour like an automobile exudes gas fumes. And now some more about this interesting subject, the radio.)

Ladies and gentlemen, we interrupt our program to bring you a special bulletin. Hitler has just surrendered, the Berlin radio states. Mussolini has denounced the Axis and a peace party in Japan has driven out the militarists and is asking for peace. But now we have some important news from our sponsor.

(The Trinity Standard is only $1.50 a year, slightly more when sent a distance. Save the wrappers from the Trinity Standard, and when you have accumulated 12 dozen, send them in to the Trinity Standard, and you will receive a lovely bridge pad free; enclose 10 cents for wrapping and mailing.)
