Little Theatre Is To Take Part Soon In Dallas Tryouts

The Little theatre of Lubbock is very fortunate in being one of fifteen Little theatres in the state to take part in the Dallas one-act play tournament, and every effort is being made to make the production the most artistic possible. Dr. Pfeiffer, head of the department of modern languages in the Tech, who has had a great deal of experience in dramatic work in the Boston School of Expression, University of Wisconsin, and the University of Texas, has consented to direct our one-act play which will be presented in Dallas the first week in April.

The play to be given is one of Dr. Pfeiffer's own translations "One Must Marry." In the play there are two men and two women characters. These parts have clever lines and call for the very best talent that can be obtained.

Friday night, January 22, the first of a series of tryouts will be held at the college in seven and at seven-thirty o'clock. Every active member of the organization is urged to come and tryout, and also to give all publicity to the tryout that he possibly can. This is a matter of civic pride, and the organization desires to deport itself in true Lubbock fashion. There are, no doubt, a great many modest people who hesitate to appear at a tryout, but it may be possible that those very people have the artistic ability that is needed for one of these roles. Come, and bring some other member with you. Let us make this tryout the best attended we have ever had. Who knows, we may win the Dallas tournament.

Food Specialist Tells Women How To Improve Food

HOUSTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—If the women of the rural section follow the instructions of Miss Lola Blair, food specialist of Texas A. and M. college, better tables will be prepared in farm homes. Miss Blair has just completed a two-day demonstration among residents of Harris county, offering suggestions regarding diet, preparing food and other health hints.

The staple diet is bread, meat and vegetables. Miss Blair said. She recommended a protective diet for the farm home as follows:

Drink at least three glasses of milk daily.

Eat two raw fruits or a vegetable daily.

One leafy vegetable should be eaten each day.

An orange or tomato should be eaten daily.

Drink at least 10 glasses of water daily.

More than 20 young women attended a demonstration at Alief where Miss Blair demonstrated how to make a plain loaf of bread, rolls and several fancy breads, including sweet raisin bread, Bohemian sweet bread, Swedish tea ring, Swedish twists and cinnamon rolls.

"I find that few women know how to make light bread," Miss Blair said. "They mix up a dough that results in a very indigestible bread due to improper selection of materials and the poor handling of them."

WAR DEPARTMENT AGAIN ISSUES ITS STAND THAT AIR BUREAU ON PAR WITH OTHERS IS UNWANTED

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The War Department yesterday officially reiterated for the third time within a year its opposition to the proposal to give the airplane co-equal status with land and sea armaments.

Secretary Davis, appearing before the House military committee, summed up the position of the department on the question thus: "Our answer is: No."

Called to give his own and the department's view on the bill creating a department of national defense, the secretary said he agreed with the findings of the President's air board and quoted the following paragraph from its report:

He Explains Situation

"We do not recommend a department of national defense, either as comprising the army and navy, or as comprising three coordinate departments of army, navy and air. The disadvantages outweigh the advantages."

The secretary's testimony duplicated to a large extent his views as set forth before the air board and also those expressed by his predecessor, Secretary Weeks, before the House aircraft committee, of the last Congress.

Mr. Davis said his opposition to the proposed department resulted from a careful analysis of the report of the numerous investigating boards and committees, and of "opinions of men who have devoted their lives to these problems."

Reads Pershing's Letter

Emphasizing that he gave special weight to the views of General Pershing, Mr. Davis read a letter written by the General on January 20, 1925 to Major-General Charles T. Menoher, then chief of the air service. It read in part:

"Military forces can never be efficiently trained or operated without an air force. An air force acting independently can, of its own account, neither win a war at the present time, nor so far as we can tell, at any time in the future."

"An air force by itself cannot obtain a decision against forces on the ground."

"Air Force Essential"

"A military air force is an essential combat branch and should form an integral part of the army."

"An air force should be established as a separate arm of the service, coordinate with the infantry, cavalry and artillery."

"An air force should not be established as a combat force distinct from the army and navy."

Mr. Davis pointed out that the War Department already had placed before the committee legislation designed to carry out practically all of the recommendations of the President's air board in respect to the army air service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP)—The war department has authorized the army air service to establish six new meteorological stations along the model airways system, one each at Uniontown, Pa., Cumberland, Md., Muskogee, Kansas City, and Dallas.

It reversed and remanded the negligent homicide conviction of Doc Brown, from Martin county. Brown was charged with responsibility of the death of Dollie Wilson in an automobile accident January 26, 1924.

WORLD COURT IS COMPROMISED TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Supporters of the world court today agreed to a proposal if the opposition to permit action on the tax reduction will before a vote on the court if the court's opponents would agree to a definite date for final action on the tax bill, Senator Curtis, republican leader, said he believed an agreement would be reached before the end of the day.

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the tax bill, said the Senate must act if the proposed tax reduction is to affect the March 15 tax payments. After passage it must go to conference and then be approved again in the House and Senate.

While the negotiations were approaching their deadlock, Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, resumed his speech against the court.

"I think numerous members of this body ought to be warned of their impending fate," he said. "They are to be deluged with more propaganda from Edward W. Rok's paid agents."

He read a letter written by Esther W. Lake, member in charge of the hook peace prize organization, to another agent in Massachusetts directing that as many telegrams as possible be sent to the Senators from Massachusetts in support of early action on the court.

TWENTY RATTLES ARE CAPTURED ALIVE

COMFORT, Texas, Jan. 21. (AP)—Twenty rattlesnakes were captured recently in a den by sons of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Marquart, who live 7 miles from Comfort on the Fredericksburg road on Block creek. Ernest Marquart was on horseback in his father's pasture east of their home, and saw a big rattlesnake crawl along a hillside. With his brothers, Ervin and Arthur, he set out to find its den. They used a crowbar to move the rocks where the snake was seen and found 20 dormant rattlesnakes in a cavity under the rocks. They tried to snare them with a fish hook, but it broke. Long poles were brought into use, the snakes being caught one by one under their middle and lifted into a barrel. All were stiff from cold, but became extremely vicious a short time after being placed in the barrel. Several years ago, Kurt and Bodo Seidensticker caught nearly 30 rattlers on a hill three miles from here.

MARTIN DURKIN, DAPPER GUNMAN, THOUGHT TO HAVE COME THROUGH LUBBOCK, IS JAILED IN CHICAGO

SLAYER OF FEDERAL OFFICER AND MAN WHO LEFT BLOODY CLOTHES ON LAKE BANK, CAUGHT IN WINDY CITY WITH 18-YEAR-OLD BRIDE

Sheriff H. L. Johnston and Deputy Vernice L. Ford told the Daily Journal last night that officers all over this section of Texas had been on the lookout for Martin Durkin and his companion for several weeks and they exhibited telegrams from federal authorities, giving description of the bandit and warning officers that he would shoot if cornered. He is thought to have come through here. At Pecos Durkin, with two six-guns on posed as a deputy sheriff from Los Angeles, and it was not until he had left that place that officers thought he was the man for whom they were searching. Thought To Have Been Here Upon receipt of the telegram, sometime ago Sheriff Johnston inquired at local garages concerning the whereabouts of the man, thinking that perhaps he might come through here. One garage man told Sheriff Johnston that he was sure that Durkin came through here before Christmas, as a man, answering the description given in the telegram, left two pistols with him over-night, giving the explanation that he was an officer from Denver. The garage man, of course, took his word for it, and never thought about the matter again until later, when Sheriff Johnston showed him the telegram. (By Associated Press) CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Martin J. Durkin, dapper police slayer, captured in St. Louis with his 18 year old bride, was in the hands of his prosecutors today—proof, federal agents phrased it, that "the government always gets its man." Federal officers have trailed him virtually from coast to coast, since he killed Edward G. Spaschnak, government agent, October 11, and shot his way out of a police trap, killing Sergeant Harry Gray two weeks later. To Try Him Soon And today the government had joined with the state authorities to bring him to trial as soon as possible, probably March 1, with the gallows the objective of the prosecution. Durkin made one last desperate effort yesterday to escape the captors who hemmed him enroute from St. Louis to Chicago. Despite the shackles on wrists and ankles, he reached around his wife and sought to grab a guard's pistol. But, an operative seized his wrist and the attempt failed. Calls For Clarence Darrow After that he manifested slight concern. His first query on arrival here was for his lawyer. His relatives were reported making an effort to obtain Clarence Darrow, noted criminal attorney, to defend him. Through the night prosecutors questioned him, his wife, Irma, daughter of Bert Sullivan, village blacksmith of Cornell, Illinois, his cousin, Harriet Gallo, of Brooklyn, and Betty Wesner, Durkin's former sweetheart, for whose baby clothing Durkin dared the police trap set at her uncle's house. From their answers the state's attorneys pieced together the story of his flight. Dressed As Woman Miss Gallo related how Durkin, after killing Gray, dressed himself in feminine attire in New York and calmly powdered his nose in the presence of policemen who were questioning Miss Gallo. In woman's garb he returned to Chicago and planted his bloody clothing in Michigan Boulevard bridge with a note indicating he had committed suicide. Then Irma and her parents took up the narrative. She met him two years ago at a Chicago municipal beach. They corresponded, Durkin representing himself as Bert Connolly, a bond salesman. On December 2 he came in a big blue sedan to Cornell and the next day they eloped to St. Louis. Durkin giving his name as James Durkin in obtaining the license. Durkin told the rest. With Irma, who knew he was Durkin, the hunted gunman within a few hours after their marriage they went to Los Angeles with federal agents not far behind. He stole an automobile in Hollywood, boldly driving it out of a salesroom. The federal agents learned of the theft and surmised he would come east. Went To Texas The fugitive, his wife, and a police dog, drove into Pecos, Texas, last Sunday. A sheriff there stopped them, but a California deputy star and a gib story of being on a hunting trip to account for the weapons in the machine won them freedom and a letter to other Texas officers to extend them courtesies. Durkin, then turned his flight toward Mexico, but burned out a bearing forcing him to abandon the automobile near Givens, Pecos County, Texas, and board a train at Alpine for San Antonio. They hid in San Antonio until Tuesday. The federal men in Dallas learned of the quarry he passed there and wired ahead to St. Louis. The capture at Webster, Grove, Mo., yesterday forenoon resulted. ## News and Views of the World of Sport

BILLY EVANS Says

ANY SORT OF BALL GAME IS SUITED TO VIL HANSEN OF SYRACUSE

A hockey game, the enthusiast laments the frequency of off-side play it stops action. In football there are any number of minor technicalities that must be enforced yet take a certain punch from the sport. In basketball, it's the out-of-bounds abomination. Recently in Washington, two of the American league teams played a game in which a net that surrounded the court prevented any out-of-bounds. I understand there was plenty of action in the game, also that it was a trifle rough. This was to be expected, since the ball was constantly in play, except for the calling of a foul or held ball. It is questionable if the out-of-bounds can be eliminated in basketball. The game is quite strenuous as it is, calls for great stamina and I doubt if the players could stand up under the strain of continuous play. However, the value of any suggestion or innovation can only be determined by making the experiment. That is often done in football. Since much of the strategy of basketball starts from out-of-bounds plays, I doubt if any coach could be found who would approve of the Washington experiment.

UNIQUE EXPERIMENT

Discussing basketball, Syracuse invariably must have quite a star in Captain Vic Hanson. I have seen Hanson play end in football. I have also watched him convert around second base in baseball. He is a star at both sports. I have never seen him strut his basketball ability, but apparently it is on a par with his other accomplishments. Recently Syracuse met Princeton at basketball and won by a fairly comfortable margin. Princeton scored 17 points, Hanson of Syracuse made 16 for the winner. He was almost as efficient as the entire Princeton team. A short time after this performance Syracuse took on Pennsylvania. The game was all over at the end of the final half, an extra period was called. Syracuse finally won the game 39-24 in overtime. Of the seven points made by Syracuse in the extra session, Hanson scored six. During the entire game he made 25 points, eight field goals and nine fouls, the total score of the Penn team. Which makes it seem as if Syracuse was pretty much a one-man team and Hanson quite a player. Hanson bids fair to win his varsity letter nine times. Incidentally he has captained football and basketball teams and is a logical choice for the baseball honor.

VERSATILE STAR

Since the inauguration of the forward pass in football, basketball and the grid game have much in common. Football has been called, aerial basketball by those who don't take so kindly to the rules governing the game as now played. In the old days it was rather unusual for a football team to have any of its players make the basketball varsity and vice-versa, but that condition no longer exists. Handling of the ball means everything in both games, incidentally speed is a necessary requisite. Like football and golf, basketball is making rapid strides for popular favor. Baseball no longer holds the spotlight.

HOME-COMING CAGE TOURNAMENT IS ARRANGED

Basketball fans of Lubbock and the South Plains will be given a real treat here Saturday night when the first annual home-coming tournament of Lubbock high school is offered, if the plans of Prof. Ernest Lowery, assistant coach of the high school Westerners do not go astray. The main feature of the program will be a clash between the Lubbock Westerners and Plainview Bulldogs, ancient rivals, not only on the basketball court, but in all other kinds of athletic activity. In olden days, many local and Plainview fans will remember, the game between these two teams was the crowning classic of the season, whether it be football, baseball, basketball, or mumble-peg, and the winner of this game was usually hailed as the champion of the region. In fact, this game in those times was in high school circles what the A. & M. Texas game was to fans of the state in college circles. And although rivalry between the two towns is now not quite as such a high pitch, the old spirit is still prevalent, and when the two teams meet nowadays, there is always a boy of fans that accompany the visiting team. This is expected to be the case Saturday, and it is understood that the more fans of Plainview are planning to be here in full array. As a preliminary to the main event, Coach Lowery is arranging a game between the second team Westerners and a quintet of stars of former days that threatens to displace the Western-Bulldog title from first place in importance, for fans will want to see some of the boys in action that performed in days of yore. The selection of this all-star team has not yet been made, but it is probable that the most of them will be taken from the championship quintet that went out from Lubbock High in 1921. The tournament will be held in the high school gym here.

SOLDIERS TO PUT UP STIFF B. B. BATTLE

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 21. (AP)—Coached by several West Point basketball stars, army men in the Second Division basketball league here are practicing hard for the championship race. The league's season opened January 29 with a game between the Second Engineers and the 15th Field Artillery.

The 23rd Infantry, last year's champions, is starting strong with virtuality the same material of last season. Lieutenant Heffner is building his quintet around these veterans and is assisted by Lieutenant Gee, quartermaster drops, attached to the regiment for football.

Ninth Infantry, runner-up in 1925, is again coached by Lieutenant Dave Ellinger, member of the West Point basketball team which won honors in the East in 1923 and 1924. One player, Clark, is left from last season's material.

Two men just out of West Point are using on the 12th Field Artillery the same methods with which Harry Fisher, army mentor, produced several first class teams. They are Lieutenant Bird and Lieutenant Ritchie, his assistant.

Other teams now being whipped into shape are the First Infantry, 19th Infantry, 15th Field Artillery and Second Engineers. The 20th Infantry will start the season without Bear and Wright, star forwards of last year, who are on furlough, but it is expected they will return to take part in most of their team's games.

Promising 'GAG MAN' PLAYS IMPORTANT ROLE

Among the host of clever persons who combine to make the perfect picture production, there are a great number who go on, day by day, doing their bit in a creditable manner without ever appearing in the spotlight. Prominent among these is the "gag man." In movie terms a "gag" is a situation, ordinarily quite independent of the plot but relating generally to the story. In other words, it is an interesting and more than often comical sidelight, that adds tone, color, and life to the story. The "gag man" is the one who thinks these situations out, and adapts them to the plot. Nowadays no good feature picture is without its "gags." In the Christie production of "Seven Days," from the stage farce by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood, which appears at the Lyric theatre Monday and Tuesday for a 2 days run, Norman McLeod is responsible for the many and various situations that provoke mirth. McLeod started in films drawing the funny little cartoons that attracted attention on the subtitles of Christie Comedies. Because he can see the funny side of things without losing the human element, he was attached to the "Charlie's Aunt" company when that film was made. When "Seven Days" went into production as "gag man" he became the director's first aide. The cast of "Seven Days," which is a Producers Distributing Corporation release, directed by Scott Sidney, includes Lillian Rich, Creighton Hale, Lilyan Tashman, William Austin, Hallam Cooley, Eddie Gribbon, Rosa Gore and others.

Lockney Man Is Here Prospecting For New Location

J. R. Teaver, Lockney business man who recently sold out one of the largest hardware and implement stores in the East Plains city, is here for a few days visiting with T. E. May, his brother-in-law, and announcing that he may possibly locate here in the near future. The line of business that he will pursue, however, has not been decided. He will spend several days looking over the situation, both as to a business location and a home site.

THE OUTWORN

Lubbock Journal: Most of the strife and bitterness in this world is caused not in contests for truth and right, but in defense of prejudices and outworn doctrines.

You stated the fundamentality of a toothy truth. We mortals make our greatest rows over things we are determined to believe whether they are believable or not.

The senate debate over the question of Gerald P. Nye's title to a seat in the upper house brought this out as it hasn't been emphasized in a long time—though Nye did win in the end.

To the lay mind the proposition seemed simple enough. Governor Borah of North Dakota appointed Nye to fill the vacancy caused by Senator Ladd's death until the next election.

It looked as if the governor of North Dakota ought to have as good a right to fill a senate vacancy temporarily by appointment as the governors of Massachusetts, Missouri and Indiana.

It is timely advice in this day of extensive trade between the United States and England. If the breach in nomenclature between the two countries is not widening it is not closing rapidly.

Perhaps the commerce department bulletin was prompted by the unfortunate error of the American manufacturer who received a request from an English firm for prices on "suspenders."

LAWYER-SENATORS CAUSE TOO MUCH QUIBBLING

SPINSTERHOOD

BEGIN HERE TODAY BARBARA HAWLEY, 25 jilts her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, and gets a job on the Telegraph as see life. Adventure begins at the roadhouse where a prominent man kills himself. By a red scarf Barbara connects LYDIA STACY, wealthy widow, with the case.

Barbara took up her stand by the wall, her body leaning against it, her eyes still searching for the black water that lay beneath. It was near, invisible, terrifying.

Now Go On With The Story CHAPTER LIV

BARBARA went to the door slowly. When she opened it, Jerome was standing on the threshold, his arms full of bundles. He stepped backward when he saw Barbara and almost dropped them.

Barbara spoke naturally. "We found each other at a flower stand on the avenue, Fancy didn't know I was in New York, she says."

EXPRESSIONS

Now we know the genesis of that most modern of expressions, "High hat" it. Every phrase has an origin as well as a meaning all its own.

A study and investigation as to where many of our present-day expressions come from, if one is inclined to that sort of occupation. Most of us are too busy employing our time in annexing a few dollars to give much time to running down where such expressions as "high hat" it, came from.

SPINSTERHOOD

Barbara ran down the platform. The cry, "All aboard!" was ringing as she reached a Pullman car.

Clanking to the left Barbara saw the goal of the taxi—the Grand Central station, with its swarms of waiting and hurrying pedestrians. She ran down the steps of the bus just as it started, and had to wait until it reached the next stopping point. There she caught a cab and gave her village address.

When she burst into the little apartment it was quite dark and cold. There had been no fire built that day. She rushed into her bedroom and began to pack a traveling bag, throwing articles into it with reckless speed.

The car was still waiting when she emerged from the building. The driver took her bags and closed the door after her. They were off again, dodging traffic and speeding between stops.

Barbara ran into the waiting room of the Grand Central station, and found a ticket window.

"Give me a ticket on the first train," she said down a bill.

The ticket seller glanced at the clock. "Gosh, lady," he said, "if you run, you can make the Star Express. It'll pull out in three minutes."

Barbara's progress through the station left a wake of staring metro-politans. She brushed past the gate man with a mere wave of her ticket in his face and was running down the stairs.

The cry of "All aboard!" was ringing as she reached a Pullman car. A porter grasped her hand and pulled her up the platform of the car just as it began to move.

"Lucky miss, you pret' near missed it," Barbara had no breath to answer him.

The Pullman conductor found a berth for her. "Kouze lucky, miss," he said. "This was a late cancellation."

When nearly dawn, Barbara lay propped up with pillows, her face against the window pane, while lighted stations and dark villages flew past and the black skyline shifted against the pale gray sky.

When she rose the next morning, she found that her berth was the last one to be made up. Everyone else had been sleeping long ago.

Two hours out from the city a man came through the train calling "The Telegraph and Tribune, last edition."

Barbara reached for her purse and stopped him. The Telegraph was on top of the pile of papers that he carried. She almost snatched a newspaper from him.

The headlines, the front page cartoon, the very ink and paper were familiar. She began to read eagerly, skipping nothing. Over the hospital column and the Chamber of Commerce notes she smiled almost wistfully.

She turned to the lovers' column, and glanced at the signatures of the letters. Winfred was still advising young girls to be chary of kisses and wives to be tolerant of their mothers-in-law. Barbara might have written the copy herself.

She read the real estate section thoroughly, but there were no familiar names in it.

She crushed the paper under her arm and made ready to leave.

As the train pulled into the city slowly, she stood in the aisle near the end of her car, studiously keeping her eyes on the green plush seat beside her. Her hand clutched at the side of the seat as the train lurched to a stop. She caught her first glimpse of the city as she climbed down the steps.

On the platform there were many people in groups talking, or running for the train she had just left.

The fruit stand at one end of the building glistened with wax-paper coverings over the trays, as it had always glistened. The baggage truck that stood near at hand was the same truck that had loaded Barbara's trunk on the train for New York six months before.

A woman came hurrying out of the station and, catching sight of Barbara, stopped a moment to nod to her as she passed. It was the traveler's aid secretary who had nodded goodby on the night that she set out for New York.

Barbara looked about desperately. But there was not another face that she knew. She turned around, to find her bags standing by themselves on the platform.

A man approached her from the row of waiting taxicabs. "Taxi, miss?" She nodded.

"The Central hotel is very good, miss."

She smiled. "Yes, I know. I have been here before."

As they went through the business district, Barbara scanned the faces of the people on the sidewalks. Here and there she caught a glimpse of someone whose name she should have recalled. But the memory escaped, retreated.

The taxi approached the Telegraph building, and for a second Barbara's hand was on the door. But she took it away and settled back as the car swung past.

She entered the hotel lobby expectantly. Her old Telegraph beat had included a daily call at its desk for news of arrivals. But the face of the man behind the desk was new to her.

She followed an indifferent bellboy to her room, and in a sudden burst of anger at his manner, dismissed him without a tip. He went out, slamming the door, and Barbara was alone.

She sat on the edge of the bed for a time, looking at the bare walls, in their conventional buff and white paint. Then she went to the window and looked out. The city seemed very small and still—almost a city of the dead. The noises from the street floated up, thin and far away, like a trifle played without a bass. After Broadway, the lights were sparse and dim.

Barbara left the window. In haste to be out of the empty room, she washed her face and brushed her hair. She went down to the cafe with a look of determined cheerfulness on her face.

But the food was tasteless and she pushed it away, and sat a long time at the table, with only a cup of black coffee before her. The other diners were all transient guests at the hotel whose faces she never had seen before.

She went out into the lobby and found an armchair behind a pillar. Here at least, there were people sitting about, and there were no buff and white painted walls.

It was after midnight when Barbara rose from the chair and took the elevator for the fifth floor.

She was startled by the ringing of the telephone next morning. "A gent-

Barbara ran down the platform. The cry, "All aboard!" was ringing as she reached a Pullman car.

SMALL BANKERS GUARD FARMERS

That Is Opinion Of Head Of Farm Bureau Voiced In Speech At Dallas

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Jan. 21.—The remedy for the farmer's problem lies in the hands of the country banker, W. D. Farris, of Ennis, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation, told delegates at the opening of the federation's sixth annual convention here today.

Declaring that he was not an alarmist, he said nevertheless he believed that farmers have the possibility of perilous times ahead.

"The remedy," he said "is within the grasp of the country banker; let us hope he will have the wisdom and courage to apply it."

"This is open season for remedies and I want to offer mine—with absolute faith in the efficiency if applied. It is not acreage production, till a not legislation, it is not easier or cheaper credit. It is neither negative nor artificial nor new, but it is the same old story, the same old gospel preached through all the years by the extension service, by the agriculture college, by the conservative farm and daily press, which we may sum up something like this:

"Ample livestock for work, food and fertility, risking a surplus rather than a shortage; abundant feed for these and food for the family and dependents on the farm, even to a superabundance; then all the acres remaining in cotton or any cash crop you think will bring the best returns."

Farmers Course Is Being Held Now In Dawson County Seat

LAMESA, Jan. 21.—The International Harvester company cooperating with the county agent and the Chamber of Commerce of Lamesa is planning a Farmers Short Course of Lamesa today and Friday. The principal speakers will be Mrs. Gordon W. Randlett, L. A. Hawkins and E. T. Eberolf. There will be programs three times a day. Such subjects as the following will be handled by the speakers: "Vitalized Education," "Home Conventions," "Boys' and Girls' Club Work," "Poultry A to Z," "My Neighbors," and others of similar nature. At each program there will be given pictures on farm and home subjects that are both entertaining and instructive. Mr. M. C. Dobbs, county commissioner, is executive chairman, and he expects 1,000 farmers and boys and girls to attend this short course.

Florida Boat Has Lost Rudder, Radio Message Announces

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Federal Telegraph company announced early today the receipt of a radio message from Port Arthur, Texas, saying the steamer Roosevelt, enroute to Miami, Fla., from Puget Sound, lost her rudder in the vicinity of latitude 11:5 north and longitude 86:05 west and asks assistance.

The Roosevelt was 600 miles north of Balboa, Isthmus of Panama. She had three small craft in tow.

The Roosevelt, owned by the Washington-Texas Barge company, has been used principally for deep sea towing.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas, Jan. 21.—(AP)—C. E. Paxton, manager of the Gulf Refining company's radio station here, verified reports to the effect that a radio message had been received from the steamer Roosevelt, but declined to make public the contents of the message, which, he said, was a private one. He said, however, that the message was not a SOS and that the vessel was in no danger. He would not comment on the dispatch reported received in Los Angeles from the Port Arthur station.

Big Ranch Is Sold To Lamesa Cowman

LAMESA, Jan. 21.—That the cattle interest is still growing and that the confidence in being restored in the future of the cow business was exemplified last week when J. S. Kelly of Lamesa purchased the Bartlett Ranch southwest of Lamesa in Andrews County.

Mr. Kelly came to Lamesa more than a year ago from Frederick, Oklahoma, he has looked the South Plains over and learned to believe in its future.

He will stock his Ranch with high grade and registered Hereford Cattle.

This was the biggest cash sale made in this locality for some time.

Mr. Kelly says the figure of the cow business looks better to him than since the deflation during the War.

THIRTY-SIX TEXAS LIBRARIES TAX SUPPORTED

AUSTIN, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Reports from tax supported libraries of Texas just analyzed by Miss Octavia F. Rogan, State librarian here, show there are 36 such public libraries, serving directly 35 counties. They serve a population of 1,050,650, or 25 per cent of the state's total. Maintenance cost of 31 of the libraries, including, of course, building costs was $288,927. Four did not report expenditures.

These figures cover only libraries supported by municipalities and counties. They do not include the endowed libraries at Galveston and Waxahachie, subscription libraries, those supported by women's clubs, high school and grammar schools, private and denominational colleges or the libraries in the 15 state supported schools. The Beaumont and the Lubbock county libraries are also omitted from calculations as they are just opening.

The figures cover the last annual reports received, but lack of uniformity in ending of fiscal year and failure of several small libraries to report at the last call prevent any precise month period being taken as the time covered by Miss Rogan's deductions. New statistics will be compiled in September.

SWIMMING POOL IN SANTONE FOR BOY SCOUTS

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Good times are in store for San Antonio Boy Scouts.

The youths are to have a $4,000 swimming pool in their home here, and likely will have a new summer home at New Braunfels, through the generosity of the Alexander Joske estate and the San Antonio Public Service company.

The pool is to be circular in shape and 100 feet in diameter. Plans for it have been approved. The Scout's new home, erected by the late Alexander Joske as a memorial to his son, Harold, will be completed by Boy Scout anniversary week, February 8 to 14.

The New Braunfels camp site offer was made by Ed H. Kiser, general manager of the Public Service company, who told the council his concern would permit the use of 40 acres on the Gaudalupe river, a few miles from the city, as long as it owns the property. Mr. Michael is to inspect the tract before the council acts.

Heretofore the scouts have held summer camp at Landa's park. New Braunfels, but this site has been sold to the public service company and partially converted into a power plant site.

The Alamo council is to raise $25,000 to finance boy scout activities this year.

MUSIC HALL WILL BE READY FOR GRADUATION

FORT WORTH, Texas, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Completion of George E. Cowden Hall of Music in time to accommodate the commencement exercises of the 19th annual session next May will mark accomplishment of the first step in a $1,350,000 building program by Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary here. The cornerstone of Cowden Hall, believed the first building ever donated to house exclusively a school of religious music, was laid January 10.

Next on the program is a $300,000 building for the school of Religious Education, with erection of a $750,000 administration building to follow. Cowden Hall, to cost $200,000, is the gift of Mrs. George E. Cowden, widow of the Fort Worth cattleman in whose name it was presented to the seminary.

The new hall of sacred music is designed to care for 2500 students, about 130 being enrolled in the course at this time. Besides class and recital rooms, there will be an auditorium to seat 1,000. Around 15 students will graduate this year in sacred music. Prof. I. E. Reynolds, formerly with the evangelistic service of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist convention, is head of the department, which has a faculty of 13.

In all, the seminary has an enrollment of 1,600, of which about 600 represent resident students and the rest extension students. The general graduating class this year will number 130, indications are.

Originally located about six miles from Fort Worth with a postoffice of its own, known as Seminary Hill, Texas, both the seminary and the city have grown until the school is included within the city limits. For a long time a shuttle line operated by an independent company connected with the Hemphill street car line, but the latter now has been extended to serve all the territory of the former.

SPECIAL DIPLOMA ISSUED DEAD STUDENT

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Texas A. & M. faculty here has awarded a formal certificate of graduation to memory of C. R. Wood, Honey Grove, senior student, who was fatally injured in a train accident here May 25, 1925.

The certificate describes Wood as an excellent student and a young man of wholesome character and exemplary habits, beloved of the student body and holding the esteem and respect of his teachers.

War Mothers Suggestion Made Favoring Albuquerque For $37,000,000 Project

(By Associated Press) CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (AP)—Albuquerque, N. M., was recommended today as the site for a $37,000,000 hospital and farm colony for tubercular patients...

Favorable action on the choice was expected to be taken by the executive committee, which is considering proposals for a revolving fund of $2,500,000 for rehabilitation in the form of credit to patients whose cases have been arrested and who wish to build homes or start in farming.

Heavy Expenditure Called Both plans call for an aggregate expenditure of $40,000,000. Site for the location of the memorial has been offered by the city of Albuquerque and other sites there would be considered the selection of which would be deferred until a careful investigation is made and a proper location determined upon.

East Not Suid No community in the east affords an opportunity in the way of agricultural lands which can be cheaply acquired and developed for the purpose of forming an industrial and agricultural center, such as is projected, the report said.

With this in mind, the memorial association is working out plans whereby funds will be available to assist arrested cases in establishing themselves in homes and in grateful occupations.

CHARGES AGAINST JUDGE OPENED TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21. (AP)—Federal Judge Harry E. Anderson, of the Western district of Tennessee, was charged with falsifying records in cases pending before him in documents laid yesterday before a judiciary sub-committee.

The charges were in the form of specifications, which the committee was asked to make a basis for investigation of Judge Anderson's acts. He was accused also of failing to administer punishment in the manner, grade and degree required by law in the particular cases now pending for investigation.

Another charge was that the judge was without training and legally incompetent and morally incapable of discharging the duties of the high office, and that he was not a resident of the district when he took office.

Judge Anderson was given a recess appointment last September and his confirmation is now contested.

Men Work All Day In Laboratory In New York To Keep Up With Burglars' Tricks And Protect Business Firms

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—In a New York laboratory, there are men continually working and studying to keep up with the tricks, old and new, of professional burglars.

These experts crack supposedly burglar-proof safety vaults, solve the mystery of electric alarm systems designed to protect buildings from thieves and open locks reputed to be impenetrable without the right keys...

When a national epidemic of burglaries became serious, it resulted in insurance companies and manufacturers authorizing the Underwriters Laboratories to assume the writing of standards of various means of protection and then to test devices to see if they measured up to the provisions.

Since efficient burglars had learned how to get around or through most appliances then being used, it became necessary to evolve others. Proficient "burglars" who could be trusted were employed to see whether the devices would give the necessary protection.

One of the methods is to attempt to muffle the alarm gong or to put it out of commission. The apparatus is set up. The expert begins to work quietly, skillfully and quickly. Suddenly the gong shatters the silence. An observer remarks that fifty seconds passed before the attack was discovered an given away by the alarm.

Grain Markets

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 21. (AP)—Proceeded by sharp breaks in prices at Liverpool and Buenos Aires, the Chicago wheat market took a sudden downward swing today as soon as trading began, and then continued to weaken. The opening, 2 1/2 cents off, to 1/4 cent up, May (new) 1.74, 1/4 and July 1.91 1/4 to 1.51, was followed by an irregular setback all around that in some cases went nearly four cents under yesterday's finish.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat. After opening 1/4 to 1/2 cent lower, May 53 1/2 to 53 3/4, corn suffered a material further drop.
Oats started 1/4 to 1/2 cent off, May 45 to 45 1/2. Later the weakness increased.
Downtown in hog values and in grain made the provision market decline.

WOOL REPORT

LONDON, Jan. 21. (AP)—The wool auctions were well attended today and offerings amounted to 11,424 steady. There was moderate competition. Frequent withdrawals took place chiefly among secured merinos, because of the high limits asked by holders.

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—A further narrowing of the differences in prices for old and new crop deliveries developed in the cotton market early today, apparently from further liquidation of long accounts in the old crop positions, which there was continued buying for new crop for foreign trade account and commission house interests who seemed to be influenced by fear of boll weevil damage next summer.

The market opened at a decline of 3 points to an advance of six points, May selling off to 19.72c before the end of the first hour, or five points net lower, while the new crop held 4 or 4 1/2 points above yesterday's closing figures, or around 19.72c for October.
The market remained quiet later in the morning but held fairly steady. March was selling around $20.25, or one point net higher, while July was 2 points net lower and October selling at $18.25 showed a net advance of five points.
The afternoon market eased on rumors that eastern belt spot interests were selling March. That position declined to 20.25c, or ten points net lower, while October sold off to 18.22c, or two points net lower. Prices were 2 or 3 points within these figures at two o'clock.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 21. (AP)—The cotton market opened irregular, despite better Liverpool cables than due and first trades showed gains of 1 to 4 points on near months, but 2 to 5 points less on more distant positions. Prices eased off a few points right after the call on reports of rain in the west and an increase in the local certificated stock of nearly 2,000 bales. Prices soon rallied, however, March trading up to 19.72, May to 19.19, and July to 18.72, or 3 to 10 points up from the initial lows and 4 to 5 points above yesterday's close, but the bulge did not hold and prices showed a tendency to ease off again at the end of the first half hour.
The market ruled quiet all morning and prices fluctuated narrowly within the early range. There was an absence of any definite trend to values and although buying was restrained by fears of large ginnings there was little inclination to sell the market short owing to the fear of possible manipulations in January and March. Around noon prices ruled about midway between the highs and lows of the morning with March at $19.66 and October at $17.75.

The market eased off slightly during the afternoon and all active months made new lows with March 11 points below the highs of the morning and three to seven points under the close of yesterday. The decline did not go far as the selling was not aggressive and prices soon rallied a few points from the lows.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. (AP)—The dramatic reappearance of William C. Durant into the stock market brought a flood of buying orders into today's stock market, which opened with a strong tone. Initial gains of one to two points were recorded by American Can, American Smelting, Baldwin, Du Pont, Hudson, Stewart-Warner, Spedometer, and Elasco common (AP) Associated Oil touched a new record high. The first sale of U. S. Steel common was 5,500 shares at 15c, up to 5-8.

Du Pont extended its gain to three and Baldwin, American Can, International Telephone and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe sold two or more points above yesterday's final quotations before the end of the first half hour. Ralls moved up with the industrials, a brisk demand for Frisco common on reports of important pending developments being one of the early features. Lackawanna moved up two points and New York Central, New Haven and Chicago and Northwestern sold a point or so higher. The initial bulge was followed by a wave of profit taking, which carried Baldwin and U. S. Steel down a point from their early highs. ## RICH MAN DIES IN Dance Denature POVERTY THRU SWINDLERS

FORT WORTH, Jan. 20. (AP)—Early land swindlers involving the Texas Desert are recalled in the recent death here of James Edward Reinn, linguist, scientist and philosopher, who made the final transition from riches to comparative poverty through the medium of unscrupulous land agents.
Born in Switzerland in 1882, educated in the universities of Heidelberg and Zurich, fluent in every European tongue, save Swedish, in addition to Chinese and several dead languages, Reinn once possessed a fortune of 3,000,000 francs. Business ventures took most of this fortune, the remnant of which he invested 30 years ago in what was described to him as a veritable new Garden of Eden, where man went back to nature and reveled in her abundance.

When he arrived in Texas, Reinn found the large tract he had bought lay in the arid region near the border, a desert of mesquite and cactus, unarable and impracticable to irrigate. Poverty faced him and his wife and five children in a country almost wholly undeveloped. He took up manual labor and found he could earn a competence without sacrificing his library and heirlooms. His later years he devoted to landscape gardening.
One of Reinn's possessions was a chair he had given to Elizabeth Ney, Austin sculptor, in which she died and which was restored to him.
While living in Austin, Reinn discovered near Copeland a field of blue clay full of odd rock formations which he termed a prehistoric graveyard, predicting that in time it would yield valuable archaeological specimens. He lacked funds for a personal exploration of it.
Reinn speculated much on the riddle of the universe, accepting none of the dogmatic explanations offered by various theologians.
As he died he said, "I am ready; I am a Roman soldier."

TEXAS BREWERIES USED FOR MANY THINGS

DALLAS, Jan. 21. (AP)—Butter, bicycles, beef, beer and a boarding house are to be found in the Texas breweries where once upon a time bubbled the amber fluid of a pre-Volsteadian era.
Most of them are gone forever. The sole former brewing plant in Dallas is now a warehouse, changed beyond recognition. In San Antonio, the Alamo Foods company retains something of an historical flavor in its name if not in the beer product which it manufactures. Its only former rival put out ice and butter. The Alamo is said to be the only brewery operating in the state.
The way of these former local prizes is typical of all the old breweries, but the most complete disintegration is represented in the fate of the Magnolia brewery plant at Houston, once the largest institution of its kind in the

Life Insurance Men To Organize Here On Saturday

A meeting of life insurance agents and co-workers in West Texas has been called for Saturday night in the office of K. L. Riggs, in the Temple Ellis building, here for completion of the organization and installation of an Association of Life Underwriters. It was announced today by C. E. Graham, local insurance man who has been a member of similar organizations. The association will have affiliation with the national body of the same name. Membership in the local association will not be confined to Lubbock. Mr. Graham said, but it is required that an individual be connected with some old line legal reserve company before he or she can be accepted. It is the plan of leaders in the movement to bring into the local association all those who are nearer to this point than any other association, of which there are none in this particular section of the state.

AUTO LICENSE IN TEXAS MADE IN LOS ANGELES

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 21. (AP)—A Houston bank has disclosed that the automobile license plates which are being offered in the 252 county seats in Texas to approximately 1,000,000 persons were made in Los Angeles and shipped to Houston by water. "Three ships," the bank reports, "of the Luckenbach line, hailing from the Pacific coast, arrived in Houston late in 1925 bearing as part of their cargoes, 19,368 cartons of 100 license plates each, or a total of 1,936,800, enough for assignment to 968,400 vehicles required to bear them, two plates to each vehicle. "Accompanying these many plates were detailed instructions showing exactly how many of each kind were to be shipped to each of the widely scattered tax collectors. This distribution was successfully accomplished by the agents of the steamship line. "That Texas still has a few 'great open spaces' and that they are now traversed in motor cars, was borne home to those connected with the work. Seminole, for instance with 300 population and 20 miles from a railroad, in Gaines county, received a consignment of 500 individual numbers."

Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, in his speech, likened General Dawes to a mule; but it's a safe bet that if the general had the floor he would liken the Mississippian to an animal that is a good deal like the mule, but a little smaller, and with longer ears.—Wilmington Evening.

FRISCO RAILROAD MOVES TO BUY M. K. & T.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—The executive committee of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad, which has been meeting in special session for the last two days, is negotiating for control of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad, it is reported in Wall Street today. Beyond stating that a special meeting of Frisco directors has been called for tomorrow, Chairman E. N. Brown, of the Frisco railroad has declined all information as to the negotiations now under way. A large interest in the "Katy" was acquired by the Kansas City Southern some time ago, as part of a plan of L. F. Love for a significant merger of southwestern roads. The entrance of the Kansas City Southern into the Katy was opposed at the time by Speyer and company, and J. and W. Seligman company, bankers who organized the Katy railroad and are also bankers for the St. Louis-San Francisco. Wall Street, therefore, now interprets the negotiation in progress as a struggle for the control of the Katy between the Kansas City Southern and the Frisco. Tentative plans of the Interstate Commerce commission of the consolidation of the railroads of the country, made public on August 3, 1921, grouped the Frisco, the St. Louis-Southwestern, the Chicago and Alton, and the Katy into one system.

The case grew out of alleged charges by the lumber firm that the defendant company, which had furnished bond for the original contractor on the building at New Hope, had not used his contract following refusal of the contractor to complete the work under terms approved by the school board. Jurors summoned for this week, who were dismissed Monday, have been called back, and the case is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock on Friday morning.
