Accident's cause undetermined

Boys Club members die in wreck

By PATRICK CRIMMINS

SWEETWATER — Investigators late Friday had not determined why a Midland Boys Club van collided with a tractor-trailer rig, killing five softball team members and injuring 13 other persons, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Just after 1 p.m. Friday, both vehicles were westbound on U.S. Interstate 20 about a mile east of Sweetwater when the van went out of control and hit the tractor-trailer, which carried Coca-Cola products, said DPS spokesman Mike Cox.

Killed were Jimmy Sheperd, 12, and Ebony Polk, 10. Jamie Polk, Denise Brown, and Anthony Johnson, whose ages were unavailable, also lost their lives in the mishap, the DPS reported.

Damon Polk, the driver and a Boys Club employee, suffered spinal cord injuries and was one of two victims transferred by helicopter from Rolling Plains Memorial Hospital in Sweetwater to Methodist Hospital in Lubbock. He was listed in critical condition late Friday, hospital spokesman Doug Hodel said.

His cousin, 12-year-old Forrest Polk, suffered chest injuries and also was listed in critical condition in Lubbock, Hodel said.

Two of the injured were flown to St. Mary's of the Plains Hospital, also in Lubbock. Marvin Brown, 11, was listed in critical condition with chest injuries, a nursing supervisor said. Also listed in critical condition with multiple fractures and lacerations was 11-year-old Quincy Hubert, she said.

Six persons were transferred to Abilene's Hendrick Medical Center, and late Friday all were listed in stable condition.

Hospitalized in Abilene were Meredith Johnson, 11, with facial cuts; Darren Polk, 11, facial cuts and a broken leg; Nakia Toland, 12, head and knee lacerations; and Lashonda Smith, 11, with a broken arm and finger, said Jennifer Jones, community relations director.

Also hospitalized in Abilene were 20-year-old Freddie Goodman, who suffered a compound neck fracture and multiple cuts. He left surgery late Friday night and was listed in undetermined condition, Ms. Jones said.

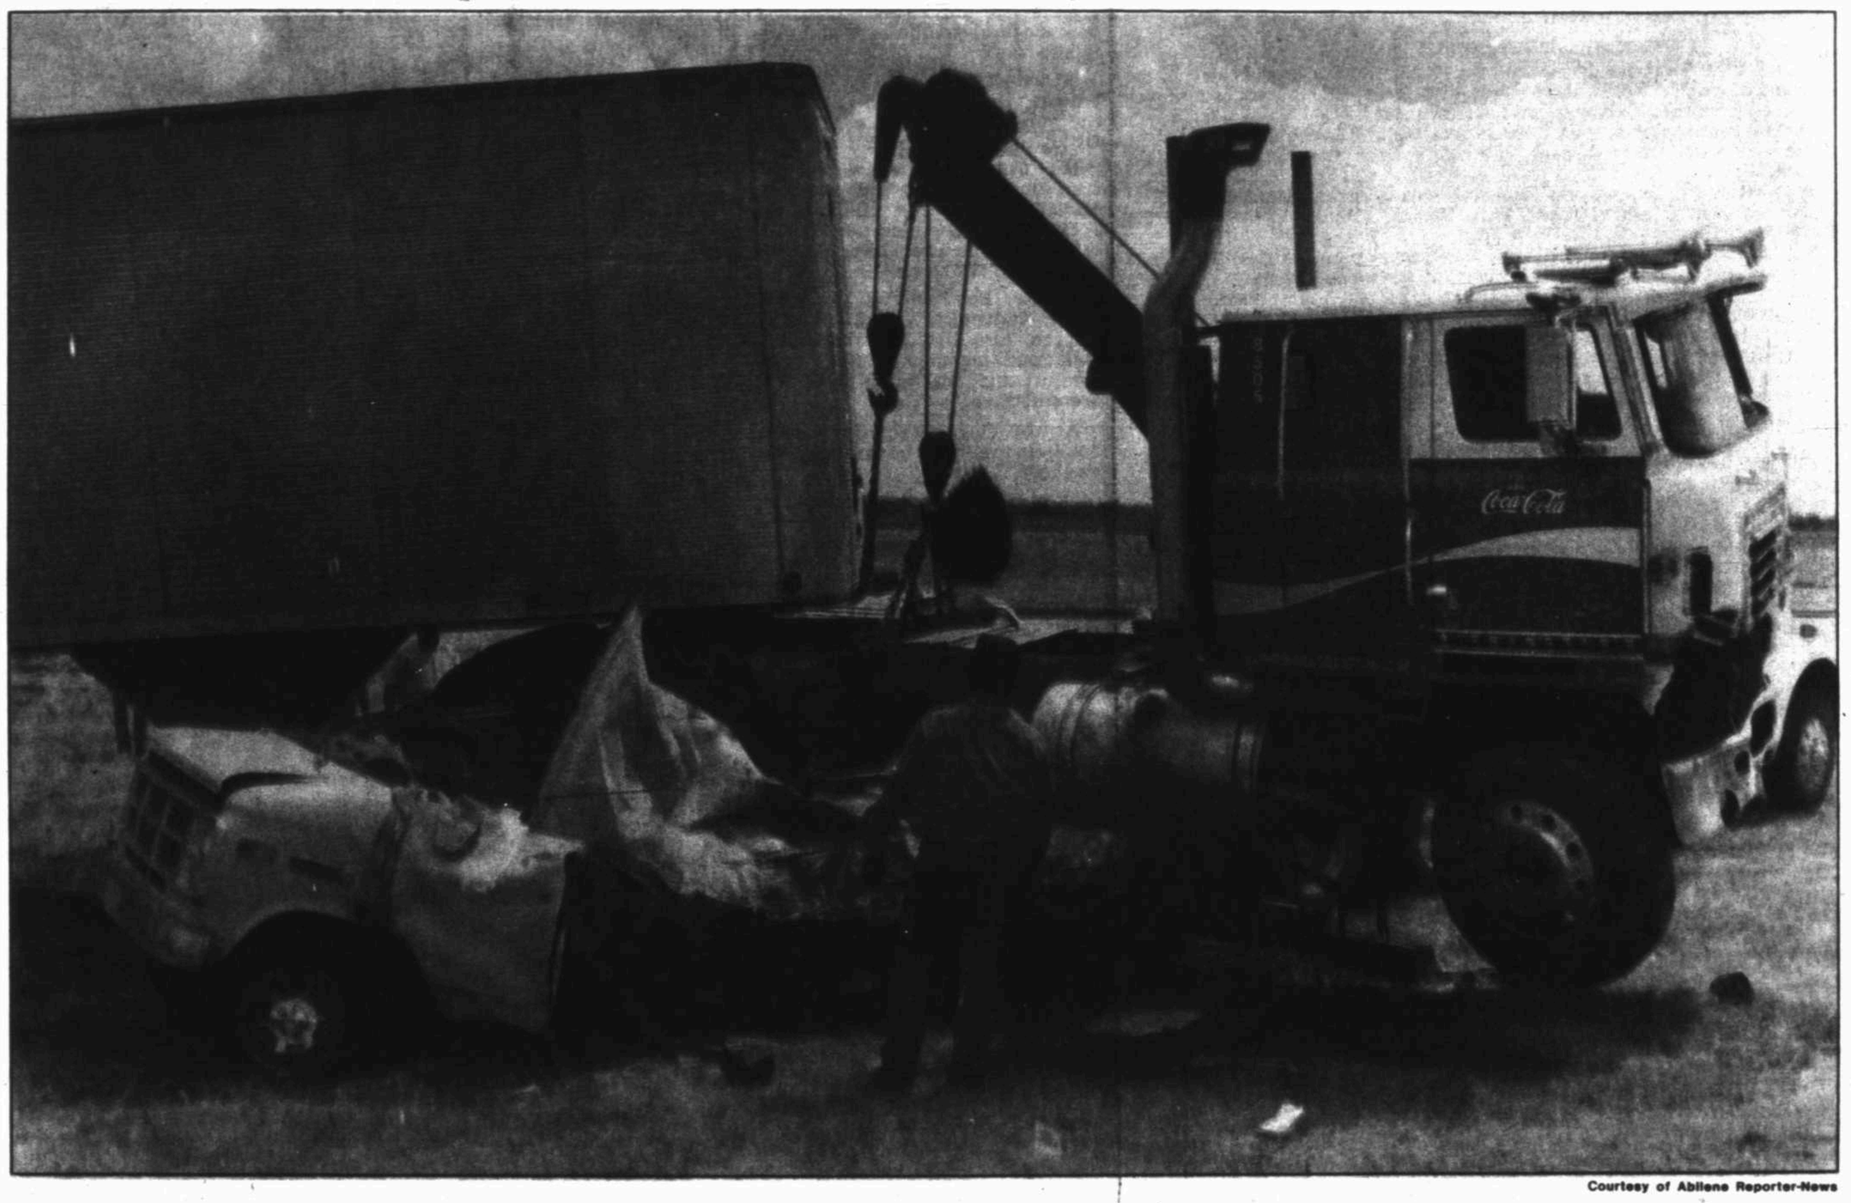

Dwight Washington, 27, who was identified as a supervisor at the Midland Boys Club, suffered cuts to the left arm and leg and was treated and released from the Abilene hospital, Ms. Jones said.

"What they (doctors) are telling me now is Lashonda Smith is the only one who might have a chance to be released tomorrow," Ms. Jones said. "The others, they are saying 'no way.'T"

Two persons, 15-year-old Tamisha Bingham Polk and Billy Tibbs, 32, were admitted to Rolling Plains in Sweetwater for overnight observation. Ms. Polk was a passenger in the van and Tibbs, an Abilene resident, was the driver of the truck, according to nursing supervisor Billy Newell.

Tibbs apparently was the only occupant of the tractor-trailer, the DPS reported.

Another Boys Club team member, Ronnie Griffith, age unavailable, was treated for cuts and released from the Sweetwater hospital, Newell said.

Wrecking crews attempt to lift a trailer from the crushed shell of a Boys Club van which earlier had carried softball team members from a tournament in Abilene. Five children were killed in the accident, which also left more than a dozen injured. The crash occurred after the van's driver lost control and collided with the tractor-trailer. The van ran off the road about 30 feet onto a soft shoulder, veered back to the road and ran under the truck just behind its red and white cab.

According to DPS spokesman Cox, only two lanes were open on the I-20 stretch where the accident occurred.

Witnesses at the scene said the van was trailing the truck in the inside lane when Polk appeared to lose control immediately prior to the accident, according to Associated Press reports.

The van ran off the road about 30 feet onto a soft shoulder, veered back to the road and ran under the truck just behind its red and white cab, said Mike Hanthorn and Bob Rogers of Attica Ind., according to the AP.

After the vehicles collided, the truck dragged the van nearly 500 feet before it jackknifed on top of it, they said.

After the accident, "the truck was sitting directly on top of the van," Sweetwater Paramedic Glen Jones told the wire service. "The van was crushed....very flat."

The children had left Midland early Friday to play in a softball tournament in Abilene.

Pete Goetz, regional director of safety for Coca-Cola, said the truck was based in Abilene and was heading west with a full load to make deliveries.

In Austin, DPS spokesman Cox said as soon as word of the deaths was reported, a Midland-based highway patrol unit was dispatched to the Boys Club on New Jersey Street to make notifications.

Cox said troopers received word of the accident at about 1:50 p.m.

Tears fall freely in aftermath of tragedy

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Tears of pain, hurt and disbelief fell freely in the aftermath of Friday's death of five members of a Midland Boys Club softball team and the injury of 13 others.

"I should have been with them," wept 12-year-old Jerry McInturff, who grieved with fellow boy and girl members of Midland's southside Boys Club. "But I backed out to go to camp. I should have been with them, but I wasn't."

Scores of boys, girls, friends, relatives and those who would console the mourners gathered at the Boys Club Friday afternoon and night to await word of the dead and injured.

Inside the club building, volunteers of the district attorney's victim assistance program were finding out names of the dead and injured, consoling the grief-stricken and worrying about how to tell parents and relatives about deaths of their sons and daughters.

G. Thane Akins, a Boys Club director and a former Midland mayor, called the accident "absolutely tragic."

"You just think it's never going to happen to your group," Akins said, "and when it does, you don't know what to do or what to say. I just think you have to be there for whatever needs need to be met. We certainly are sympathetic to all of the families involved. We certainly want to be of whatever help and encouragement we can."

Several victim assistance volunteers were at the club trying to comfort the distressed.

'I don't know what is going to happen to this town next," said volunteer Faye Higgins. "It's just terrible."

Said Mrs. Higgins of consoling mourners, "You let them talk. You are just there to listen and to give them comfort."

After the Friday afternoon crash of the Boys Club van and an 18-wheel tractor-trailer near Sweetwater, Boys Club Executive Director Nick Sanchez and Board President Chuck Clarkson traveled to Sweetwater to be with the boys and girls and their families. The injured were taken to hospitals in Sweetwater, Abilene and Lubbock.

Midland Police Chief Richard Czech and Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter offered support at the Boys Club. And the Blessings-for-Obedience Soup Kitchen provided hot coffee, cold soft drinks, and food for the mourners at the Boys Club.

Freddie Nelms, who helped organize the Boys' Club in 1960, said that the fatal accident was "the first" tragedy of its kind since the club was founded.

"We are in sympathy with the families," said Nelms, 73. "And we are sorry it happened."

The mishap, as tragic as it was, should not hamper the Boys Club program.

"We just have to pray to overcome this," Nelms said.

A saddened Belinda Merritt, 32, stopped by the club to extend sympathy.

"It's hurting," she said. "You never know when something like this will happen. A tragedy like this hurts everyone. It touches everyone. All you can do is pray. I wonder if I could do anything to help."

Ms. Merritt's brother, Ernest Merritt — who is director of Abilene's North Branch Boys Club — telephoned his sister after he had learned of the mishap.

"He was really hurt because he had seen all of the little kids" at the softball tournament, she said.

James Allen, 33, sought to console 19-year-old David Polk, whose 12-year-old brother, Forrest, and 23-year-old cousin, Damon, also were injured. At first, David Polk thought that his brother had been killed.

Southwest Savings to cut 15 branch offices

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Savings Association announced Friday it will eliminate 15 of its 109 branch offices in Texas by mid-September as part of a federal plan to revive the state's troubled thrift industry.

The offices scheduled for closing in the first stage of the association's consolidation program are located throughout Texas, including Dallas, Houston and Austin, said C. Todd Miller, chairman and president of Dallas-based Southwest Savings.

The move is part of the "Southwest Plan" announced by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board earlier this year and designed to lessen competition for deposits and loans in the thrift market.

"One of the fundamental parts of the Southwest Plan is to establish viability through consolidation," Miller said. "We feel like this is a good step forward, and progress is being made."

Customers affected by the move are being notified by mail, Miller said.

He added that it has not been determined how many layoffs will occur as a result of the consolidation.

"We just basically think that very few (workers) will be affected," he said. "I know its less than 50."

Since Southwest Savings acquired four insolvent savings and loans in May, the association has eliminated 186 positions through attrition, according to a prepared statement by Southwest Savings. That represents about 10 percent of a 1,950-person work force.

"We have tried to create openings from the attrition," Miller said.

He said the 15 offices that will be closed and merged with other Southwest Savings branches include some operated by the thrift before the May acquisition of Stockton Savings Association of Addison, Lamar Savings Association of Austin, City Savings and Loan Association of San Angelo and Briercroft Savings Association of Austin.

More consolidations of branch offices will be announced.

The intitial stage of consolidation is expected to save Southwest Savings and its subsidiaries $6.8 million in annual operating costs, the association projects.

In a related matter, a Southwest Savings subsidiary, SWS Mortgage, is combining some functions of Drew Mortgage of Houston and Investors Mortgage of Austin. That move will eliminate 68 administrative positions, with a savings in operating expenses in excess of $1.5 million, company officials said.

Frank Cole, director of consulting for Alex Sheshunoff & Co. Inc., said the Southwest Savings announcement means the Southwest Plan is being carried out, but it is still behind schedule.

WEATHER SUMMARY
Chance for rain slight

From Staff and Wire Reports

Rain clouds drifted by, thunder occasionally crackled as lightning flashed, but very little rain settled on Midland Friday afternoon and night.

Chances of rain soaking the soil and banging against asphalt and concrete are about 20 percent today and Sunday, according to the weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

On Friday, the weatherman gauged .01 inch of rain — slightly more than a trace, despite the thick clouds.

Saturday's high temperature is to be near 101 degrees, according to the NWS, and winds are to be southerly at 5 to 15 mph. For Saturday night and Sunday, the weather service is calling for partly cloudy skies and less than a 20 percent chance of afternoon and evening thunderstorms. The low temperature is to be in the lower 70s, and the high is to be in the upper 90s.

Friday's high temperature was 96 degrees, which didn't threaten the record high of 107 degrees for Aug. 12, set in 1936. The overnight low was 69 degrees, and the record low for Aug. 13 is 61 degrees, set in 1931.

STATE

Strong thunderstorms developed over North Central Texas Friday, as the remains of tropical storm Beryl mixed with moist, unstable air as it moved north over eastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas.

Several funnel clouds spun over an area west of Bonham Friday, but no tornadoes were reported, said forecasters from the National Weather Service.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over the Coastal Plains, East Texas and North Central Texas, while isolated thunderstorms dotted the Davis Mountains.

The storm system produced some very heavy rains in East Texas late Thursday as it continued its move across the state. Some towns in that areas received more than 10 inches of rain in a 24-four hour period.

The sky continued to be mostly cloudy over the Northeast part of the state and generally partly cloudy elsewhere Friday.

NWS forecasters call for partly to mostly cloudy skies through Saturday with isolated, mainly afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms, over most of the state. Highs Saturday should range from the mid 90s to the low 100s.

NATION

The hot weather continued to pound out record high temperatures Friday, especially in Michigan, and humidity reached almost unbearable levels along the Ohio Valley and the northern Atlantic Coast.

Cloudiness and scattered showers and thunderstorms, remnants of the former tropical storm Beryl, kept temperatures down Friday in the south-central part of the nation, including western Missouri and eastern Kansas.

The Pacific Northwest escaped the heat Friday with temperatures in the Portland and Seattle areas in the 70s.

Showers and thunderstorms developed across much of the eastern half of the nation but were scattered. Thunderstorms were concentrated in the Ohio Valley, the north Atlantic states, western portions of the central Plains and the northern Rockies.

Showers and thunderstorms also extended across the southern Atlantic and Gulf Coast states.

Records for the day included 86 degrees in Alpena, Mich., and 87 in Beckley, W.Va.

Today's forecast called for scattered showers and thunderstorms along the southern Atlantic Coast and southern Georgia, Florida and Alabama to the lower Mississippi Valley. Scattered showers and thunderstorms were also predicted from Montana across the Great Plains, the upper and middle Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes region to the north Atlantic coastal states. Showers and thunderstorms were expected to be numerous from central Missouri to the upper Mississippi Valley.

"Feel free to shed a tear," said Allen. "You've got to let go. You're no less of a man. When you've got to cry, you've got to cry. Sometimes it takes a man to cry," he said.

"I was concerned about the kids and the parents and the families," Allen said. "My son could have been on the bus."

Allen was trying to be supportive of friends and relatives of the dead and injured.

"I do what I can do," Allen said. "It's in the Lord's hands now. We might not understand, but He knows. I think this is one of the more tragic things since the little baby fell into the well" last October.

Nine-year-old Jovan Jones was concerned about the boys and girls in the van.

"I bet all five of them were my friends," Jovan said. The driver of the van, Damon Polk, was "like a Daddy to me, a brother," Jovan said.

R.V. Culp, who has lived in Midland since 1929 and was raised on Midland's south side, said that the accident is "something that hits everybody — the whole community. It affects the whole neighborhood."

The Rev. Bob Porterfield, pastor of West Kentucky Avenue Baptist Church, said that the community will "pull together to help bring comfort and healing to those that are still alive."

At the Boys Club, Porterfield counseled relatives of victims of the accident.

"You could be gone in matter of seconds going down the road," he said of death. "Something goes wrong, and all of a sudden, you're not alive anymore.

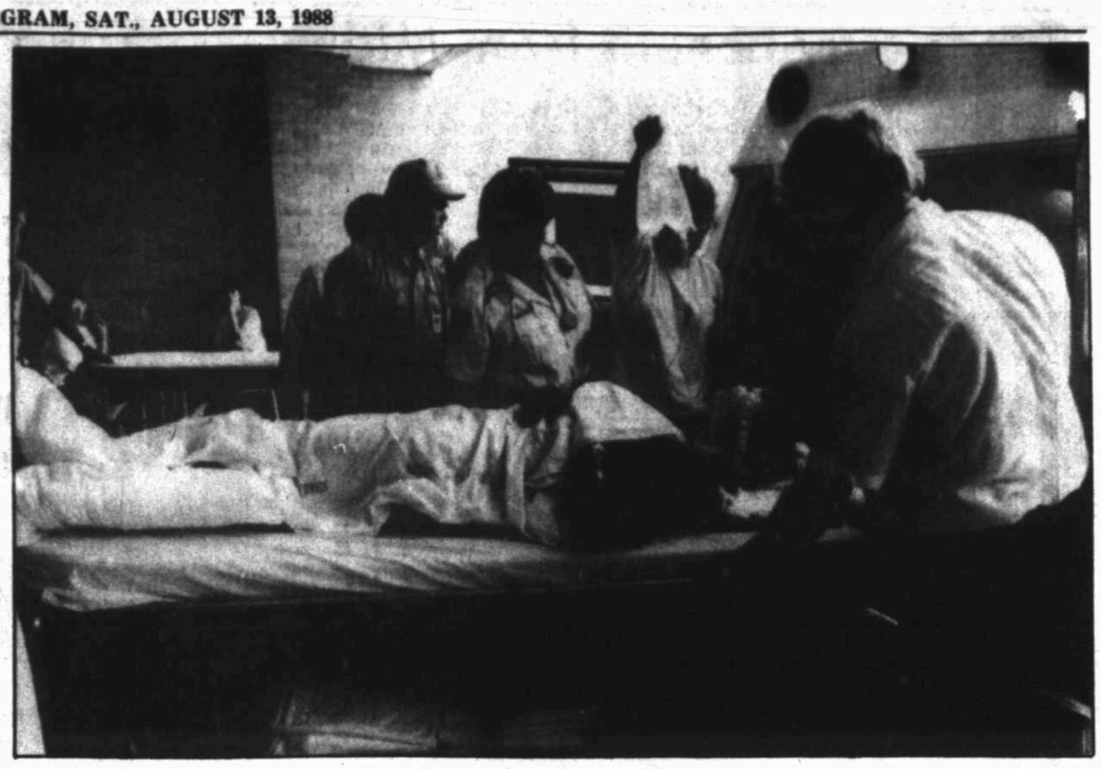

"It's real hard to accept," Porterfield said. "They keep thinking, 'Well, this is a bad dream. I'm going to wake up and be able to talk to them (the dead) after awhile."

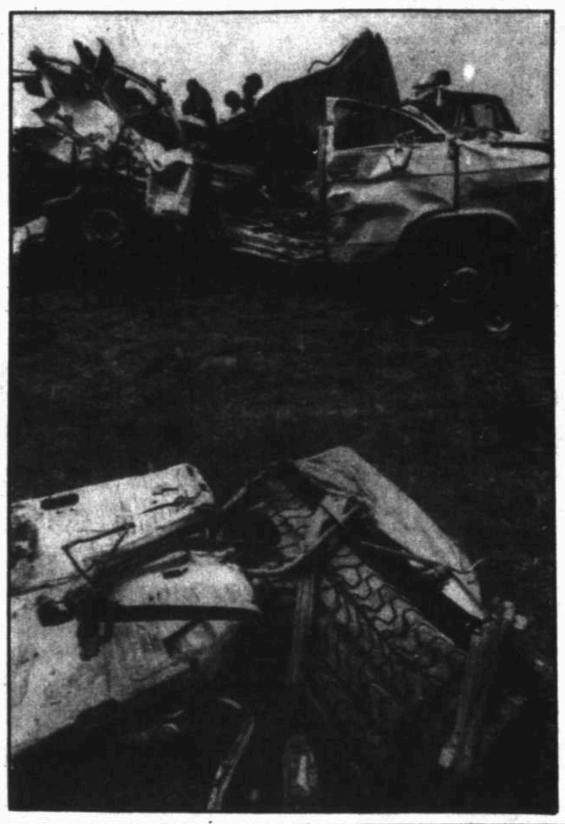

The minister said that a distraught young brother of one of the boys killed kept saying: " 'He's not dead. This is not real.'

"A little cousin was saying, 'I prayed for them. I prayed for them,' " said Porterfield.

"We can't let this destroy us," the minister said. "We've got to look for Someone much greater than us for strength to overcome this difficulty.

"In times like these, you need an anchor," Porterfield's wife, Delphie, said in recalling an old song. "You need an anchor. In times like these, you need a Savior."

Abilene paramedics, above, transport victims from the accident scene near Sweetwater when a truck collided with a van carrying a Midland Boys Club softball team. Shoes and athletic equipment belonging to team members, left, are scattered along Interstate 20 after the Friday afternoon collision.

Justice says attorneys don't serve for money

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

Cook

AUSTIN — Attorneys who serve on the Texas Supreme Court "aren't doing it for the money," the high court's newest justice — who replaces a man leaving the court to earn more money — said Friday.

Eugene A. Cook, a 50-year-old Houston lawyer who specializes in business and family law, takes retiring Democratic Justice James Wallace's seat on the court until the Nov. 8 election. Although he has never run for office and says he's "not a politician," Cook expects to be the Republican candidate for the job in November.

Cook "will bring added integrity and credibility and fairness and honor" to the court, Gov. Bill Clements said Friday in announcing the appointment, his third of the year.

Five of the nine seats on the court are up for grabs this fall.

Wallace, who has said he is "tired of being the lowest paid lawyer in the courtroom," leaves the bench Sept. 1. The state Republican and Democratic executive committees have until Sept. 12 to nominate candidates for the November election to fill the four years remaining in his term.

The GOP is expected to stick with Cook. At least 10 men and women — including Beaumont Appeals Court Justice Jack Brookshire and Bridge City attorney H.D. Pate — are reportedly interested in the Democratic nod.

Cook said he is taking a "very, very substantial pay cut" from his position as partner in the law firm of Cook, Davis & McFall in accepting the $78,795 a year post. He suggested the state should pay justices more, in the range of $90,000 to $100,000.

Chief justice says races will cost more than $2 million

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice Tom Phillips — bringing his GOP re-election campaign to Midland — culminated a two-day visit here Friday with a "non-partisan" speech to area attorneys — with one exception.

Speaking to members of the Midland Bar Association gathered at a Midland Country Club luncheon, Phillips — the Republican nominee — reiterated his support for a review of the method in which Texas selects its judiciary.

A supporter of an appointed judiciary, Phillips predicted that more than $2 million will be spent before the Texas Supreme Court's political races conclude in November.

"All of the members of the court have put their judicial and administrative duties first before their political responsibility," said Phillips. "And unlike other branches of government, we do not recess for elections and we will be in session throughout the fall."

However, the chief justice admitted that the elections are taking somewhat of a toll on the court's schedule, which is consumed by pressing judicial and administrative responsibility.

Texas' Supreme Court justices hear about 120 cases of the more than 1,500 filed each year, said Phillips, a Harvard Law School graduate and former Houston trial lawyer.

"Probably, the court has more significant matters on its docket now and will see more significant matters coming up in the next two or three years" than in recent time, he said. "The decisions the court has made in this term and will make in the next few terms will probably chart the course of civil law in Texas in the years to come."

Though the Supreme Court has managed to keep up-to-date with its judicial schedule, Phillips said the court can't afford to shirk in the area of administration.

Plans to lobby lawmakers for more money is among the primary goal for Phillips and his fellow justices.

"We're going to go to the Legislature and ask — despite the tough times — for more money for our judiciary," he said. "In addition, we're going to ask for better equipment for the appellate system."

Replacing Shaw might not be easy, official says

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Democratic Party might not have such an easy time of replacing resigning state Rep. Larry Don Shaw on the November ballot, the Republican candidate for the job and the secretary of state's office said Friday.

Shaw, D-Big Spring, announced Friday morning that he is resigning from the Legislature and moving to Austin Sept. 1 to work as a special assistant to House Speaker Gib Lewis. Democrats say Shaw's move out of the sprawling 69th House District makes him ineligible to run for re-election, and thus they can pick another Democrat to face Republican Troy Fraser of Big Spring in November.

But Fraser maintains that the state Election Code doesn't work quite that way. "The secretary of state, as far as they're concerned right now, I am the winner," Fraser said.

Assistant Secretary of State Randy Erben, however, wouldn't confirm that statement. "Whether they can replace him, I don't know," said Erben, whose Republican boss Secretary of State Jack Rains is the state's chief election officer.

Erben said the Election Code "doesn't want to frustrate the will of the electorate." Shaw defeated Cecil Gilstrap of Big Spring in the March primaries to win the Democratic nomination for his fourth term in the House.

Erben said he will wait for the Democratic Party to submit papers on the case before making a decision.

Fraser also accused the "powers that be in Austin" of "manipulating the process" after a poll showed Shaw's re-election chances were slim.

"The people in Austin are the ones that removed him from office and created a job for him at taxpayers' expense," Fraser said.

Shaw could not be reached for comment on Fraser's allegations late Friday. However, he said last month that the addition of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen to the Democratic presidential ticket had boosted his election chances and given him hopes of his first easy victory in the district.

Texas may benefit from Midwest's drought, USDA says

LUBBOCK (AP) — The U.S. Department of Agriculture's most recent crop report indicates that Texas producers of some agricultural commodities may benefit from the misfortune of drought-stricken farmers in the Midwest, according to a Texas Tech University agriculture expert.

Kary Mathis, chairman of Texas Tech's department of agricultural economics, said the USDA's annual crop survey released Thursday provides some good news for Texas feed grain, corn, sorghum and soybean producers in the Panhandle. However, cotton producers in the state may suffer because of low market prices stemming from the last year's bumper cotton crop.

THe USDA projects that nationwide corn production will be down 37 percent from last year, resulting in the smallest output since 1983. Soybeans are predicted to be off 23 percent and sorghum production could be 24 percent less than last year's crop.

"Because of the drought's devastation of these improtant midwestern crops, market prices will be high," Mathis said. "Those crops are also important in the Panhandle and because farmers there have had rains, the crop prospects are good."

Texas producers who have good crops may realize higher prices due to the drought elsewher, he said.

While other crops suffer, U.S. cotton production is estimated to grow 1 percent from last year's record harvest. While many fields last year were abandoned before harvest because of expected low yields, more acres will be harvested in 1988, Mathis said.

The large crop will mean greater cotton reserves and lower prices.

Woman who unwittingly transported aliens has car seized

STATE

EL PASO (AP) — When Angie Granado unwittingly gave two illegal aliens a ride to the airport, her mother's car was seized — and like hundreds of others, she found that legal U.S. residents are the first line of immigration enforcement.

Ms. Granado, 23, paid $600 to get her mother's car out of a federal impound yard under a federal law that makes it illegal to give a ride to an undocumented alien. It is aimed at professional alien smugglers, but no one is exempt.

"I'm supposed to know whether people are undocumented before I pick them up or I'm supposed to ask for documentation," said Ms. Granado, who gave the Mexicans a ride at a friend's request. "But whether I knew they were illegals or not, I broke the law."

State Rep. Paul Moreno, D-El Paso, said the car-seizure provision of the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986 targets Hispanics.

"This is the worst thing that can happen to us," Moreno said Thursday. "It's a tool for intimidating Hispanics. We have to be immigration officers ourselves if we want to stay out of trouble."

Manuel Avila of the U.S. Border Patrol denied the patrol was using the law to single out Hispanics.

"El Paso is a predominantly Hispanic city, so the majority of the people we stop for questioning are Hispanics," he said.

Avila said 704 alien-carrying vehicles have been seized since October in the El Paso sector, which stretches from Sierra Blanca, Texas, to the Arizona-New Mexico border.

Avila said 408 of the seized vehicles were returned after the owners paid penalties and impound fees that can be as much as $2,500. Unclaimed vehicles are sold at auction.

The 1986 immigration act also requires employers to enforce the federal law by making sure all their employees have documentation showing they can work legally in the United States.

Ms. Granado said she used her mother's 1979 Chevrolet to take four people earlier this year to the El Paso International Airport.

"I took a man who showed me his amnesty papers, the man's wife, the wife's sister, plus a 1-year-old baby," she said. "Unfortunately, only the man and the baby were legal; the two women were not. An agent for the Immigration Service stopped us (at the airport) and I was accused of being an accomplice to smuggling aliens."

A second offense could result in a $500 fine and five-year prison sentence for each alien involved.

"Believe me, that experience taught me a lesson," Ms. Granado said. "Never again will I give someone a ride. Hey, no more good Samaritan. I don't give a ride to anybody."

Ex-du Pont staffer indicted for forging petitions

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman employed by the defunct presidential campaign of former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont faces 44 counts of forgery for allegedly putting 44 improper signatures on the petitions to get the Republican on Texas' March primary ballot.

Roseanne Robertson was indicted Thursday for holding a "forgery party" where she and others allegedly forged the signatures on the petitions, assistant district attorney Casey O'Brien said.

The misdemeanor charge carries a maximum punishment of up to $2,000 in fines and a year in jail.

Ms. Robertson was dismissed from the du Pont campaign on Jan. 15, about two weeks after the alleged party took place, O'Brien said. The exact number of signatures placed on the petitions was unknown but 44 people told investigators they had not signed or authorized their signatures on the documents, the prosecutor said.

Ms. Robertson's attorney, Tom Alexander, labeled the charges "a tempest in a teapot."

Ms. Robertson also has a suit pending in Harris County, accusing du Pont, his campaign's attorney and national political director of conspiracy, slander and fraud.

Clements won't be addressing Republican Convention

AUSTIN (AP) — Bill Clements, governor of the state Vice President George Bush calls home, will not be addressing the Republican National Convention in New Orleans next week.

While other Texans and governors of other states will play key roles at the convention, Clements has been relegated to a low profile, some say, because of concern he might hinder rather than help Bush.

Reggie Bashur, the governor's press secretary, dismissed that view, noting that Clements will conduct daily press briefings.

"He'll be very visible and accessible to the Texas and national press," Bashur told the Dallas Times Herald. "The governor is chairman of the Texas delegation, which will entail a lot of work. The governor did not request a speaking position because of his chairman responsibilities."

The Democrats' convention last month had a Texas flavor, with high-profile roles given to House Speaker Jim Wright of Fort Worth, state Treasurer Ann Richards and state Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Texas Republicans also will play key roles at the GOP convention. Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas will nominate Bush, and Bush's son, George W. Bush, will read the Texas delegation's vote that will officially give Bush enough delegates to secure the presidential nomination.

But Clements — who last month angered black supporters of Jesse Jackson by saying they would "go fishing" rather than vote in November and who last week misstated the gun control position of Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis — will not address the delegates.

Clements' one chance to get on prime time television may be on Tuesday, when he will sit with the Bush family in the Superdome.

Republicans say the governor's recent snafus have nothing to do with the decision to leave Clements off the podium.

But many Democrats say the fact that Clements will not speak to the convention this year is proof that his second term has produced too many political miscues for the GOP to allow the national spotlight to focus on him.

"Governor Clements doesn't always follow the Republican script, such as promising no new taxes and then signing the largest tax bill in Texas history," said Ed Martin, executive director of the Texas Democratic Party.

"He's a frank individual who has some problems with his credibility, not only with the signing of the tax bill but his involvement in 'Ponygate,' " Martin said, referring to the governor's role in approving illicit payments to football players at Southern Methodist University.

Jim Oberwetter, who is coordinating Bush's Texas campaign, said the absence of Clements from the speakers' platform is not significant.

"The Democrats would just love to drive wedges between who's speaking and who's not. But we're not going to play their game," Oberwetter said.

At-large elections must be opposed to get Hispanics in office group says

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Hispanics must continue to oppose at-large election systems in many Southwestern states, particularly California, in order to have a better chance of electing more Hispanic officials, organizers of a voter registration project said Friday.

The Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, a 14-year-old nonprofit, non-partisan organization, is celebrating is 1,000 voter registration drive.

U.S. Sen. and Vice Presidential candidate Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and U.S. Treasurer Katherine Davalos Ortega were scheduled to address a dinner celebrating the 1,000th campaign Friday evening.

The dinner also was to honor Willie Velasquez, founder and president of SVREP and the Southwest Voter Research Institute, a spinoff organization, who died of cancer in June at the age of 44.

At a news conference earlier Friday, project officials released a 14-year study entitled "The Political Empowerment of Texas Mexicans, 1974-1986."

The study found that the number of Hispanic voters in Texas has increased to more than 1.1 million since 1974, but that turnout at election time continues to be low. The study also found that Hispanics and whites differ most on bilingual education spending and the English-only movement.

Andy Hernandez, newly named president of the SVREP and SVRI, said that Texas is ahead of other states in electing Hispanic officials to local office because numerous lawsuits forced local governments to change from at-large to single-member-district elections.

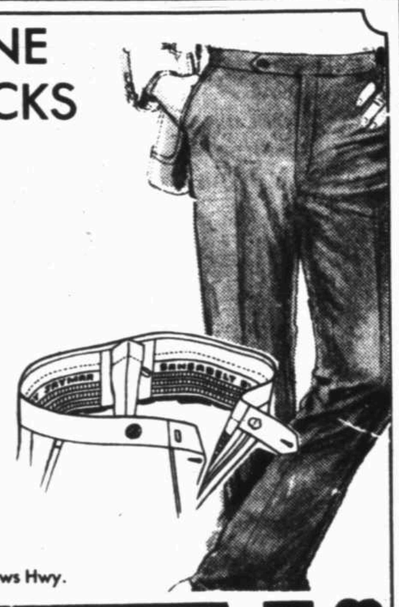

California, which boasts the largest Hispanic population in the country, has only 1.2 million Hispanic registered voters and only 500 Hispanic elected officials. Most of the local governments operate on at-large election systems, which tend to dilute minority votes.

Texas has more than 1,500 Hispanic elected officials.

"There's a great challenge ahead of us in California to bring California to a point where Hispanics in California will have a greater political power," Hernandez said.

Hernandez said more resources will be devoted to the project's California operations. Also, Richard Martinez, field director of the California office, was named executive director of the project.

Martinez said the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in California recently ruled against Watsonville's at-large election system, the first local government in California to have its at-large election system ruled unconstitutional.

Comedians fueding over delis' pastramis

By KILEY ARMSTRONG

NEW YORK (AP) — "Take my deli — please," comedian Henny Youngman implored recently, joining a pastrami war declared by his colleague Jackie Mason.

"Go figure — by me moving from one deli to another, it would cause so much tumult," Mason said.

"In most places, they have wars because of religion, race or creed. Only in New York could they have a war over pastrami."

It supposedly began with a tiff over chicken soup from the Carnegie deli — a local landmark used in the Woody Allen movie "Broadway Danny Rose," and Youngman's favorite breakfast haunt.

"A delivery boy from the Carnegie who barely spoke English and didn't know who Jackie Mason was wanted to charge him for a delivery of chicken soup," said a spokesman for the Carnegie.

"When I heard about it, we sent up a whole pot of soup," said Carnegie co-owner Milton Parker.

However, when Mason asked Parker to close the Carnegie so he could hold a private party there, Parker declined.

That, said Youngman, was a mistake. "You get national advertising," he said.

Mason, who is on Broadway in a one-man show, retaliated by staging a show-business bash at the rival Stage deli, which like the Carnegie is on Seventh Avenue near 54th Street. Guests including Joan Rivers, Jane Alexander and Phantom of the Opera star Michael Crawford were treated to fish, corned beef, pastrami, turkey and beef brisket.

Mason "had my pastrami and told me it's better than the Carnegie's," said Stage owner Louis Auerbach.

"That's baloney," said Parker. "The only thing he ever ate here was chicken matzo ball soup or borsch."

Then, things got really ugly. Auerbach struck below the belt by revealing that the Carnegie's famous New York pastrami was actually made in — Secaucus, N.J.

"New York water — it's the best water in the country," proclaimed Auerbach, 63, noting that his pastrami is pickled in that precious elixir.

"The New Jersey water happens to be good — not quite as good as New York, but our change in formula offsets that," Parker contended.

"Every deli likes to brag about their own," notes Youngman, who remains ever-faithful to the Carnegie's Nova (Nova Scotia salmon) and cream cheese on a bagel.

Mason said the trouble started after the Carnegie's popular co-owner, Leo Steiner, died last year. At the funeral, Youngman eulogized Steiner as "the deli lama."

"I loved Leo Steiner and ever since he died, it's not the same at the Carnegie," Mason said through a spokesman, Mark Kane.

The large, front table where old-time comics swapped shtick over blintzes has been replaced by a four-tier, revolving cake stand — stocked by a new pastry chef.

Still, "I always have a table there," said Youngman. "Anywhere I want to make it."

"I lost my wife last year. I go there to cut the lonesomeness," said Youngman. "I invite different people — Milton Berle and Red Buttons and Jack Carter."

"Revenge is a very funny thing," he added. "Years ago, after the Stage changed hands, they wouldn't take a message for me. That was the end of them for me."

Meese performs last duty in office

Meese

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin Meese III, whose 3½-year tenure as attorney general was marred by an independent counsel's probe of his affairs, signed as his final act Friday an order for similiar special prosecutors to investigate members of Congress suspected of criminal conduct.

Meese said he acted on his last day as head of the Justice Department to ensure that legislators and top executive branch officials be treated equally under the law.

"Having all high officials covered by the same general procedures makes good sense," he told reporters. Since Meese came to Washington in 1981 as counselor to President Reagan, two separate independent counsels have scrutinized his financial dealings.

Meese said the order means that senators and House members will be treated similiarly to the top executive branch officials covered by the Ethics In Government Act of 1978.

Asked if his act was a parting shot at his critics in Congress, Meese replied: "No, not at all." No one currently under investigation will be subject to the order's provisions, he said.

Meese said his authority to impose the rule derived from the attorney general's power to appoint special prosecutors, as was done in the Watergate scandal.

He said he waited to sign the order until his successor, former Pennsylvania Gov. Richard L. Thornburgh, was approved by the Senate on Thursday so as not to cause Thornburgh any problems at his confirmation hearings.

Meese said he discussed the regulation with Thornburgh, and, "I believe he agrees with it." Thornburgh, who was sworn in at the White House on Friday, could rescind the rule at any time.

Under Meese's order, if the attorney general receives specific and credible information indicating that a senator or congressman has violated criminal law, he must launch a preliminary investigation of up to 90 days to see whether a special counsel should be named to conduct a full probe.

Based on the results of the preliminary probe, the attorney general can either close the case or appoint an independent counsel to investigate.

A Justice Department official, speaking on condition he not be named, said the order would require Meese to follow these procedures if allegations were made against a legislator. But Meese said if the legislator was the subject of a related criminal probe, that could take precedence.

Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., chairman of a House Judiciary subcommittee that reviews the ethics law, said Meese's order was unnecessary because the act already allows the attorney general to call for a special prosecutor.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, has agreed with that view. The 1978 ethics law, designed to guard against any conflict of interest by having an outside person handle investigations, does not specifically spell out that legislators are covered.

Frank said the order, signed after Congress had recessed until after Labor Day, was a "vindictive and petty act by a man who has not shown any class since he came here...One last mark of irresponsible bitterness of a guy who messed up."

Meese, however, said the rule will allay public concern that "a party in power in the White House would somehow be more lenient towards its own members of that party on the (Capitol) Hill, or that it would be more vigorous in its prosecution of the opposing party."

Procedures under Meese's order and the ethics act will differ somewhat. For instance, Meese's rule calls for the attorney general to appoint an independent counsel to investigate legislators; a three-judge panel selects the counsel under the ethics act.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., contended that this difference undermines Meese's action because the message to his successors is "use attorneys who are under the thumb of the attorney general, instead of under the auspices of the federal court."

Earlier in the administration, Meese sought to have the act declared unconstitutional, but the Supreme Court upheld it last June 29. Meese said the law resulted in unequal administration of justice because normal criminal cases are handled by the Justice Department.

Meese, 56, is leaving the government to serve as a distinguished fellow at the Heritage Foundation, a conservative Washington think tank, and at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University in California. He also intends to hit the lecture circuit.

While at the White House, Meese was investigated by independent counsel Jacob Stein on allegations that he may have used his office for personal gain. Stein brought no charges against Meese.

More recently, independent counsel James McKay investigated Meese on allegations of conflict of interest and looked into his relationship with E. Robert Wallach, a lawyer who has been indicted in a case involving Wedtech Corp., a defense contractor in the Bronx, N.Y.

McKay said last month that prosecution of Meese was unwarranted, although the attorney general probably violated tax and conflict-of-interest laws. Meese harshly criticized McKay's comments and said the special counsel's report vindicated him.

At his news conference Friday, Meese said neither he nor anyone at the White House would have helped Wedtech secure government contracts had they known Wedtech was a "nest of criminals."

"I would not have had anything to do with it," he said.

Thornburg takes oath as 76th attorney general

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Pennsylvania Gov. Richard L. Thornburgh took office as the nation's 76th attorney general Friday with a vow to "make drug trafficking and drug abuse Public Enemy No. 1."

Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia, one of the conservative jurists appointed to the court by President Reagan, administered the oath of office to Thornburgh in the Roosevelt Room of the White House.

Reagan saluted Thornburgh as an ex-prosecutor with "a nationwide reputation for attacking the drug problem head on and cracking down on drug traffickers."

Thornburgh succeeds outgoing Attorney General Edwin Meese III, who resigned after saying he had been vindicated by an independent counsel investigation of his affairs.

Reagan paid tribute to work done in the drug area by by both Meese andd Vice President George Bush, the prospective Republican presidential nominee.

"Under Vice President Bush's leadership, federal, state and local law enforcement officials have been working together as never before to stop drug runners from smuggling illegal drugs into the United States," he said.

"The results of that work and the work that Attorney General Meese led are incredible."

Bush was present at the swearing-in ceremony, but Meese did not attend.

Thornburgh swore his oath on a Bible once owned by William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania. It was held by his wife, Virginia.

"I firmly believe that unless we sustain a vigorous effort to make drug trafficking and drug abuse Public Enemy No. 1, we could well stunt significantly the capacity of today's young people to contribute to a better quality of life for tomorrow's America," Thornburgh said.

He said said he would use "every resource of the Department of Justice, consistent with strict observance of the civil rights and civil liberties of all our citizens, to fight other unique threats to our traditional values."

Thornburgh, 56, was confirmed by the Senate late Thursday.

Fahrenkopf: Platform reflects Bush's call for new direction

Associated Press

George Bush and Michael Dukakis swapped charges on the economy Friday while Republicans finessed a disagreement over Star Wars in completing a conservative platform the vice president will take from next week's New Orleans convention into the fall campaign.

GOP chairman Frank Fahrenkopf said the platform reflected Bush's call for a "new direction" in some areas. Still, he added, "We're a conservative political party. We're proud of that. We're not afraid of the 'c' word."

But Leslie Dach, a top aide to Dukakis, said in Boston the Republicans had produced "a right-wing platform mired in the past."

Bush met privately with advisers to discuss topic No. 1 on the minds of Republicans — his choice of a running mate — but offered no public clue. In Illinois, Gov. Jim Thompson announced he did not wish to be considered for the post.

"The vice president's job requires a lot of national and international travel," he said. "My wife couldn't travel with me because I've got a 10-year-old in school..."

AN ABC poll reported Bush and Dukakis in a statistical dead heat, with Bush at 49 percent support and Dukakis at 46, a margin smaller than the poll's six-point margin of error. Several other polls this week have reported Dukakis leading, although by less than in the days following the Democratic Convention.

Both Bush and Dukakis were pointing their efforts toward next week — the vice president by previewing the convention themes of peace and prosperity and his Democratic rival by airing the first television commercials of the fall campaign in Texas and California in a bid to take the sting out of an attack the GOP will launch against him from New Orleans.

Fahrenkopf urged Bush to make a dramatic announcement of his choice of a running mate Wednesday night after the convention bestows its presidential nomination. Bush has been saying he would wait until Thursday morning to announce his decision and would tell "a soul" in advance.

Bush, campaigning in Washington, told Reagan administration loyalists he stands for "low taxes and high opportunity" for all and accused Democrats of favoring policies that would doom the economic recovery. Dukakis, completing a five-state campaign sweep, fired back that Republican "borrowing and spending" caused this week's rise in interest rates.

Dukakis said climbing interest rates were an "irresponsibility tax" forced on Americans by deficit spending of the Reagan era. "...We deserve an explanation from the Republicans at that convention about what they're doing to the American people," he said.

HEAT, HUMIDITY and elephants of all shapes and sizes were in abundance in the convention city, where Republicans will flock next week to nominate Bush and his vice presidential partner. One red, white and blue inflated plastic pachyderm was anchored atop a hotel overlooking the vast Superdome convention hall.

The politicians weren't the only ones looking forward to the convention. "There are going to be a lot of men at this convention, they said, so it'll be good for us," said Bonnie Holloway, a dancer at a New Orleans go-go club.

Republican platform writers completed a 30,000 work blueprint for the future that they said was far more specific than the one approved by the Democrats last month. Officials released a list of 125 issues that they said Democrats had ignored.

Republicans sidestepped a dispute over Star Wars when the Bush forces agreed to accept a draft penned by conservatives that called for "rapid and certain deployment" of the missile defense system.

The platform also rules out higher taxes and expresses firm opposition to abortion.

Bush and Reagan staged a joint appearance before Cabinet officers and senior appointees of the administration, with Bush appealing for their help in the fall campaign.

"IF WE state in plain terms the case for low taxes and high opportunity, for a strong America and a peaceful world, I believe we'll have another Republican victory in November," he said.

Bush said that the "McGovern or Carter or Mondale Democrats...are just itching to get back into the game....

"Given the chance, I am convinced that they would repeal the tax cuts that we've worked so hard to enact and defend, and that would defeat and simply bury this recovery," he said.

"Measure us by our performance. Peace is breaking out all over the world. Earlier this week, on the same day, the headlines announced not one, but two cease-fires in very troubled areas of the world — one between Iran and Iraq, and one between Angola, Cuba and South Africa."

Reagan said he would crisscross the country this fall to help Bush.

"The other folks talk; George Bush will deliver. The truth is that what we've achieved is just the beginning, the best is yet to come," he said.

DUKAKIS, CAMPAIGNING in Virginia, stepped up his criticism of Reagan administration spending policies and said interest rates will continue to rise "if we continue to live on a credit card.

"As we all know, sooner or later the bill collector comes to the door," the Massachusetts governor said.

Dukakis has been criticized in Virginia because he opposes construction of two new Navy supercarrier task forces which would be built at the Newport News, Va., shipyard. Gov. Gerald L. Baliles said he parted company with the presidential candidate on that point but added, "I have no doubts, no reservations and o hesitations," about Dukakis on his commitment to national security.

Dukakis aides also said the campaign was airing the first television commercials of the general election campaign in Texas and California in the three days leading up to the Republican National Convention.

Mental hospital abandons plans to take Hinckley on field trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mental hospital Friday abandoned plans to take John W. Hinckley Jr. on a field trip after the Secret Service turned up a new cache of writings by the man who shot President Reagan seven years ago.

The decision by St. Elizabeths Hospital was announced at a hearing originally convened by U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker to consider the plan to allow Hinckley to join other patients on a supervised outing.

But letters by Hinckley found this week during an investigation by the Secret Service prompted hospital officials to drop their request.

Based on "recent materials received" Thursday night, the hospital "determined that further clinical assessment by Mr. Hinckley's treatment staff is necessary before it would permit him to participate in such an off-grounds activity," said Dr. Raymond F. Patterson, reading from a letter sent to the judge.

"The hospital no longer plans to include Mr. Hinckley in the upcoming recreational activity in the community," Patterson, director of St. Elizabeths Hospital's forensic services unit, added.

Comments during the hearing by U.S. Attorney Jay B. Stephens and defense lawyer Vincent Fuller indicated that the writings were letters Hinckley had sent to an unidentified third party.

Parker said he would not grant Stephens' request to release the writings, which prosecutors had placed under court seal Thursday night, until Fuller had a chance to file an objection.

Fuller said Hinckley may have some "proprietary interest" in the writings that would prevent them from being released.

Hinckley, who wore a sport jacket and tie, sat impassively throughout the brief hearing.

The White House declined comment. "We have never taken a position on Hinckley matters, and we wo't now," spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Outside the U.S. Courthouse, Stephens said he would continue his efforts to make the writings public because "they relate to a matter of great national importance, they relate to an individual who shot the president of the United States."

"The public should be aware of what these materials are," Stephens said, indicating that the writings figured directly in the hospital's decision the request to take Hinckley on a field trip.

"We provided materials to St. Elizabeths last night; they withdrew their request for an off-site visit this morning," Stephens said.

The decision also came after federal prosecutors cited "disturbing entries" made this week in Hinckley's treatment record at the hospital.

Hinckley, 33, has been confined to St. Elizabeths since he was acquitted by reason of insanity of shooting Reagan, presidential press secretary James S. Brady and two other men on March 30, 1981.

Brady, who was shot in the head, remains confined to a wheelchair and has difficulty speaking as a result of the injuries he suffered.

Hospital officials had not formally outlined its specific plan for the outing. But court records indicate the field trip may be a picnic or a party at a bowling alley.

The hospital dropped a request in April 1987 to allow Hinckley to visit his parents during the Easter weekend after investigators turned up evidence he had traded letters with multiple murderer Theodore Bundy, who is held o Florida's death row.

A psychiatrist testified last year that Hinckley also had once received a letter from Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, who is imprisoned for trying to kill President Ford in 1975.

Hinckley's correspondence with Bundy and other writings seized from his room last year remain under court seal.

Fire breaks out in Empire State Building

NEW YORK (AP) — A fire Friday that spread smoke through the upper floors of the 102-story Empire State Building forced 1,500 tourists into the streets before it was put out two hours later.

The fire broke out about 1 p.m. in a utility room on the 86th floor of the skyscraper and spread up a shaft to the top floor, the Fire Department said.

Three firefighters required treatment for heat and smoke in the 93-degree weather, and one was taken to a hospital, said fire spokesman John Mulligan. One building occupant suffered a cut on the arm but declined threatment, he said.

There was no general evacuation and no one was trapped, but people from the smokier upper floors were brought out. Elevator service was not disrupted.

Some 1,500 tourists visiting the popular observation decks on the 86th and 102nd floors were among those told to leave the building, said Nick Cavatoro, a spokesman for the building owners. He said the decks would reopen today.

Fifth Avenue traffic was backed up for more than 20 blocks north of 34th Street. The Fire Department had 40 trucks and 125 firefighters at the scene.

"There was lots and lots of smoke, but that's all. It was coming out the vents," said Tracie Ricks, who works on the 65th floor.

"Everyone was kind of nervous. But there was no problem getting out," said a co-worker, Karen Mial.

Homer Bishop, acting chief of the department, described damage as moderate in the utility shaft.

The 86th floor blaze was under control at 1:43 p.m., the fire department said, but five minutes later, fire was discovered on the top floor.

Efforts to put it out were stymied for a time by lack of pressure because a pump on the 84th floor was not working properly, officials said.

"The greatest difficulty up there was the extreme heat and humidity," a sweat-soaked firefighter, Mark Keisey, said as he left the skyscraper. "At times it felt like we were on our last legs."

The Empire State Building is probably best-known as the site where movie ape King Kong made his last stand.

Its most serious real-life disaster occurred July 28, 1945, when a U.S. Army B25 bomber, lost over Manhattan in fog, crashed into the building's 79th floor. Three plane crewmen and 11 civilians died and 26 were injured as flaming gasoline bathed the 78th and 79th floors that Saturday.

Kids at Thousand Oaks live for chance to tote Pokes' gear

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN
Staff Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — It's kind of a ritual with these neighborhood kids — a daily hike from the locker room of this tree-lined campus to the practice field.

Like clockwork, they line up at 9 and 11 in the morning and 3 and 5 in the afternoon for an opportunity most kids their age will never have — carrying the equipment of their favorite Dallas Cowboy idols.

It's a big deal here in Thousand Oaks — big for kids like Greg Andrews, 8, whose family lives just down the street from the Cowboy training camp.

"I've been doing it for three years," marvels Andrews, who wants to grow up to be a star like No. 40, Bill Bates.

And Bates is obliging. "I can't believe his dramatic growth over the years," says the Cowboy safety.

Greg and Bill have a special relationship as do dozens of other professionals and children who are here everyday.

"Greg is a good kid. He's nice to talk to during that long walk up to the field...hopefully I've had a positive influence on him," says Bates.

Certainly, his young admirer thinks so.

It's not uncommon here at Cowboy camp for players like Bates to share a meal with kids like Greg.

"I had him over for lunch and we had sub sandwiches. My mom and dad thought it was great...they're big fans of his," says the youngster.

Greg wants to play football, but there's a conflict.

When pee-wee football season is going on in Thousand Oaks, Greg is carrying Bates helmet and shoulder pads

Given the choice, Greg would rather be with Bill, although he admits that will have to change at some point.

He's even gotten his 11-year-old brother Chris into the act.

Chris was never interested in carrying the Cowboys equipment, but now its the in thing to do — in fact, all the neighborhood kids do it.

When Greg isn't toting Bill's cumbersome gear, he's right at the locker room door waiting for his other favorite player — No. 24, cornerback Everson Walls.

And that's fine with Bates, a free agent in 1983 who needed a friend like Greg when he was trying to make a spot for himself on the team.

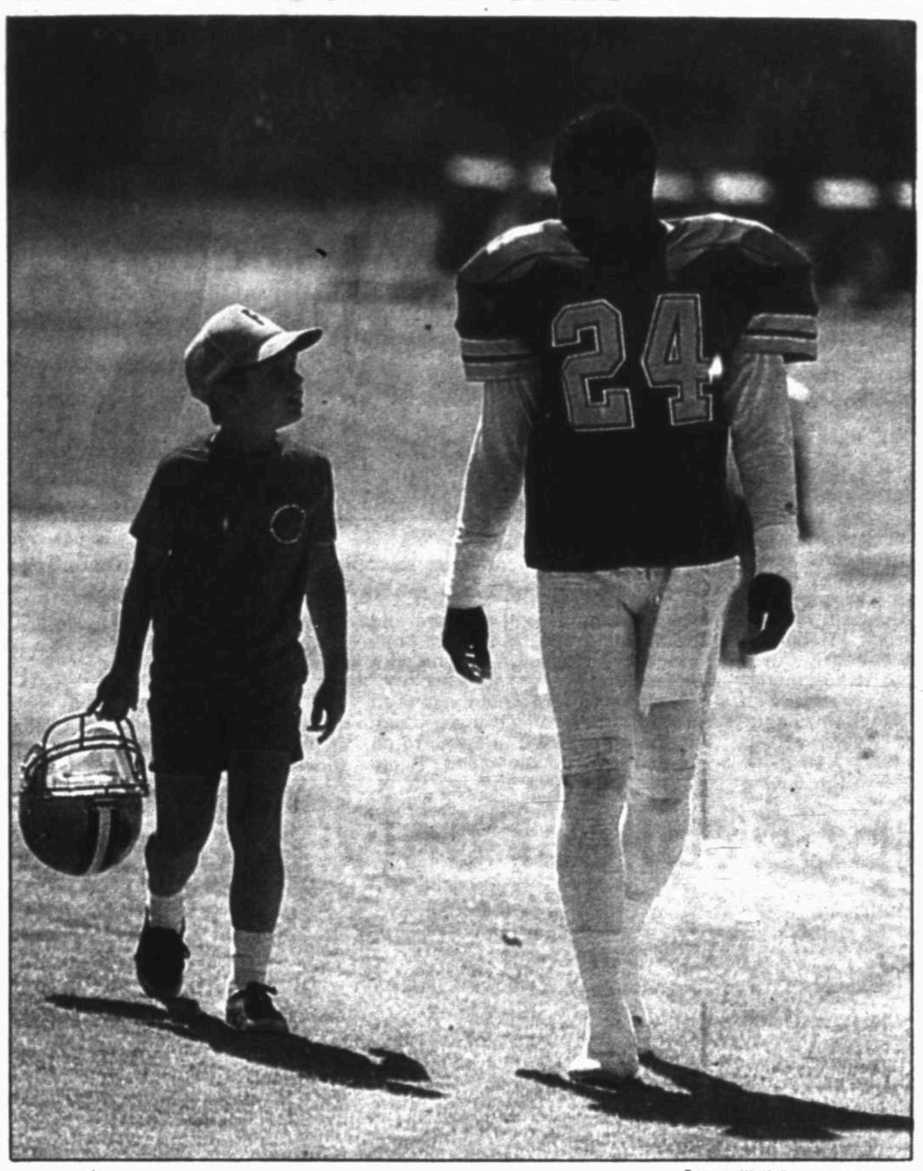

"Rookies who have a tough time in camp,or who aren't getting along with other teammates look forward to this," says Bates. "It's a nice break to be asked to come home and be part of some of these families."

Bates said he thinks the kids are a plus to the team.

"It means a lot to them and it means a lot to me to hear them say 'I want to be like that guy when I grow up.' "

And, if that translates into something meaningful later in life, Bates adds it's all been worth the effort.

"I know as a kid I always looked up to older people. It's important that they're surrounded by positive activities" when growing up.

A leg up, but a step behind

By CHRIS VAN WAGENEN

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Dallas Cowboy wide reciever Mike Renfro thinks of two things in life — one past, the other present.

The past — a 1980 AFC championship game against the Pittsburgh Steelers on a cold snowy day at Three Rivers Stadium.

The present — keeping his job as a starting reciever and finishing his career as a Dallas Cowboy.

"It's just another year. I just take it one day at a time ... this time is no different," says the wide receiver, a nine-year veteran of wars under the Cowboys and the Houston Oilers.

Renfro considers himself a workhorse — not exactly dripping with talent, but then not lacking the competitive ability either.

A starter as a rookie under former Oiler head "Bum" Phillips, Renfro said he has experience on his side in making this year's cut.

But he also knows full-well, the task has become more difficult, particularly this year with the arrival of Michael Irvin.

Irvin, the Cowboy's No. 1 pick in the draft from the University of Miami, is attracting a lot of attenton here at camp and Renfro is painfully aware of it.

"I've had to work hard every year. There's always people out there that want your job. It's just something you have to face."

Lord knows just how Renfro has done it since joining the NFL from TCU, where he was once a three-time All-Southwest Conference choice.

Particularly difficult is the hardship of knowing he was just one game shy from a Super Bowl showdown with the Los Angeles Rams.

Now, eight years later, this Dallas Cowboy is still haunted by an apparent game-winning touchdown strike from former Oiler Quarterback Dan Pastorini in the closing minutes of that championship game that was ruled out of bounds.

To this day, Renfro claims his feet were in the end zone — not out. "It was obvious the refs couldn't make up their minds," he reminisced. "It took five minutes to call it."

Renfro says even the football commissioner admitted later that from the replays, he was inbounds.

Second-round PGA Championship leader Paul Azinger.

Azinger snatches lead from club pro

By BOB GREEN

PGA

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — Paul Azinger, who didn't even expect to be in the tournament, shot a 5-under-par 66 Friday and took the second-round lead in the PGA National Championship.

Azinger, troubled by "a sore back and muscle spasms" early in the week, reached the halfway point of the final Big Four golf events of the year with a 133 total, nine under par.

"Early this week I didn't expect to be playing," Azinger said. "I'm just tickled to be in the field."

With about one-quarter of the field still out, he held a one shot lead over club pro Jay Overton.

Overton, constantly chatting with a growing gallery, also had a 66 and was at 134.

"That's what club pros are supposed to do," the graying, 37-year-old Overton said of his on-course conversations with spectators. "If we're not nice, we get fired."

The Oak Tree Golf Club, ranked as the toughest par 71 course in this country but a tempting target in the absence of wind, was subjected to a record-setting barrage of low scores.

With about one-quarter of the field still out, 34 players had broken par for the day. The previous single-day record for subpar scores in the PGA was 31.

In addition to Azinger and Overton, Curt Byrum and Calvin Peete also had 66s and Dave Rummells came within one stroke of the PGA record with a 64.

"I can't believe how low the scores are," said Rummells, a third year touring pro who matched his career high finish with a tie for fourth last week.

"But the conditions are perfect for scoring; light winds and the greens are soft so you can throw it right in there," he said.

Rummells scored nine birdies, including five in a row on the front, in his course-record effort that, he said, could have been better.

"I felt like I could have shot in the 50s out there," said Rummells, who finished 36 holes at 137, five under par.

Ray Floyd, 45, a two-time winner of this title, was three off the pace at 136. Floyd had a second consecutive 68.

David Graham, 42, who won the PGA in 1979, shot a 67 and was tied with Rummells, Steve Jones and Tommy Nakajima of Japan at 137. Jones and Nakajima each had a 68.

Nick Faldo of England, a playoff loser to Curtis Strange in the U.S. Open, and Doug Tewell were next among the early finishers at 138. Faldo matched par 71 and Tewell, whose home is on this course, shot 68.

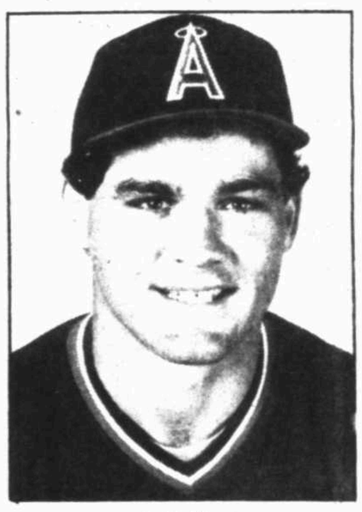

Greg Norman also had a 71 and was at 139.

"I'm basically disappointed," said Norman, who hadn't played since injuring a wrist in the U.S. Open. "It was moving day this morning. The course played two shots easier."

After split, San Antonio still in first

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

McCollom

Norm Carrasco drilled a run-scoring single to left field to drive in the winning run as Midland's Angels beat San Antonio, 3-2, in the eighth inning of the first game of a doubleheader Friday night.

The win enabled Midland to forge a half game lead in the Texas League West over the Missions.

San Antonio reclaimed the top spot by winning the second game on Domingo Michel's two-run homer in the fifth for a 4-3 win. Midland hit three homers in the nightcap. Unhappily, all were solo jobs.

The teams wind up the series with a 7 o'clock game tonight and a 6 p.m. game Sunday. Tim Burcham, 7-6, goes for Midland tonight while Greg LaFever, 8-5, will pitch for the Missions.

Carrasco, driving in the winning run for the second straight game, scored Jim McCollom from second base with his line drive in Midland's opening game victory.

It was McCollom who forced the extra innings by delivering a two-out, two-run single in the fifth inning off starter John Wetteland.

McCollom then opened the eighth with a single, stole second and rode home on Carrasco's hit.

That gave the former Clemson star three hits in the opener of the twinbill and six hits in eight at bats in the first two games of the series, not to mention seven RBI.

With a .429 average over the last 16 games going into Friday's action, McCollom didn't hurt that pace.

FRANK DeMICHELE was the beneficiary of Carrasco's decisive hit, which gave him two wins and a save in a three-game stretch.

San Antonio nicked starter Steve McGuire for a run in the first when Domingo Michel singled with two out, stole second and scored on Adam Brown's single to center.

The Missions made it 2-0 in the fourth when Michel led off with a double and scored on Ed Amelung's single to right.

McCollom's game-tying single chased Wetteland, who brought a 10-6 record into the game. Mike Hartley, 4-1, suffered the loss.

SAN ANTONIO opened the second game impressively when Mike Huff greeted Midland left hander Marty Reed, normally a relief pitcher, with a triple off the fence in right center. Joe Kesselmark followed by also rattling the fence in center for a triple and then scored on second baseman Carrasco's high throw to third.

Midland's first was even more impressive.

McCollom made it 7-for-9 with a prodigious homer over the green eye aid in center, his 17th of the season. Lee Stevens then lost one over the center field fence, just to the right of McCollom's homer. The back-to-back wallops came off Tony Mack, a 5-0 relief pitcher who was starting because of Thursday's rain out.

Mack once pitched for the Midland Cubs.

Stevens, however, wasn't finished with Mack. In the third, he gave Midland a 3-2 lead with an even longer homer than his first.

Officer sheds new light on Gretzky's reaction

Associated Press

EDMONTON, Alberta — Wayne Gretzky was "a devastated young man" after being traded to the Los Angeles Kings, said a police inspector who led a security detail that escorted Gretzky to and from a news conference where the trade was announced.

"He no more wanted to get on that plane to L.A. than fly to the moon," city police inspector Dick Bevan said Friday. Bevan was with Gretzky from the time he got off a private jet owned by Bruce McNall, the owner of the Kings, until he reboarded the aircraft several hours later.

Bevan refused to discuss published reports that there was a heated exchange between Gretzky and Edmonton Oilers owner Peter Pocklington before Tuesday's news conference, and that Gretzky refused to read a prepared statement explaining the trade.

On Thursday, Pocklington said Gretzky had a massive ego and was a great actor who had faked the tears shed during Tuesday's news conference.

Pocklington later said his faked-tears comments, made to an Edmonton Journal reporter, were taken totally out of context and issued a statement saying the trade was Gretzky's idea.

However, Pocklington did not deny making the comments, and Journal editor Linda Hughes said the paper stands behind its story.

In a front-page article Friday, the Journal said Pocklington hired Jef Goodman, a speech writer for former prime minister Pierre Trudeau, to make the trade look like a humanitarian gesture.

Pocklington told the news conference he was letting his superstar go because Gretzky wanted to establish a home in Los Angeles with his new wife, who is expecting the couple's first child in January.

The Journal said it was told by a caller that he had been told by one of five policemen assigned to the security detail — at taxpayer expense — and that when Gretzky was handed a prepared speech to read he threw it on the floor.

Other callers said policemen described a scene in which Gretzky refused to sign a piece of paper and swore at Pocklington at one point.

The Pursuit softball team of Midland will try to cap an outstanding summer of competition with a strong showing in the Amateur Softball Association national tournament Labor Day weekend in Bloomington, Minn.

The team will be involved in active fundraising until their departure on Sept. 2.

Pursuit, in only its second year of existence, won the state ASA open tourney in Laredo with convincing wins over Laredo, and the Houston Lady Rebs (twice).

The Midlanders defeated Laredo 11-0, before trouncing the Lady Rebs 13-7 and 18-5. Pursuit pitcher Eva Bartley was named tournament Most Valuable Player.

Other All-State selections included Cathey Perkins, Deanne Hamilton, Felicia Sanders and Julie Lowrey. Other team members include Aileen Miller, Janet Sloan, Kathy Condron, Ronda Edwards, Cheryl Searcy, Felicia Farias, Donnie Davis, Cindy Marlar and Kelly Nolan.

Coaches are Steve Edwards, Bill Condron and Coy Marlar.

Edwards said Pursuit could fare well in Bloomington despite their lack of national tournament experience.

"Talent-wise, we match up pretty well," he said. "We should be very competitive, but I just hope the inexperience factor doesn't hinder our performance."

In an effort to get some experience, Edwards scheduled his team for tournaments throughout the Southwest. The Pursuit came through with tourney wins in Midland (at the Coors Classic), Odessa, and Oklahoma City, as well as finishing high at Dallas, Fort Worth and Las Vegas.

Red Sox continue red hot at home, break AL record

Associated Press

BOSTON — The Boston Red Sox set an American League record with their 23rd straight victory at home, beating the Detroit Tigers 9-4 Friday night as Jim Rice's two-run homer capped a six-run third inning.

The Red Sox, winning the opener in a showdown between AL East leaders, surpassed the league mark of 22 set by the Philadelphia Athletics in 1931. The all-time home record is 26 by the New York Giants in 1916, followed by Pittsburgh's 24-game streak in 1978.

Dwight Evans went 3-for-4 and hit two of Boston's four doubles and Mike Greenwell drove in two runs as the Red Sox broke loose in its return to Fenway Park. Boston, leading the majors in batting and runs, is hitting .335 with 23 home runs and has outscored opponents 151-73 during its streak.

Boston moved back within 3 1-2 games of Detroit. The Red Sox were tied with the Tigers last week before a 2-7 road trip in which they batted only .229 and lost four times in Detroit

Bruce Hurst, 13-4 this year but just 5-10 lifetime against the Tigers, won the opener of a three-game series that will be the final time the teams play this season.

A crowd of 34,732, the 32nd straight time more than 30,000 fans have jammed Fenway Park, saw the Red Sox remain undefeated at home since June 24.

The Red Sox erupted in the third against Doyle Alexander, 11-7. Jody Reed led off with a single for Boston's first hit and scored on Wade Boggs' double one out later. Spike Owen, Evans and Greenwell followed with singles that put the Red Sox ahead 3-2.

Hurst won for the seventh time in eight decisions. He gave up four runs on seven hits in six innings and Bob Stanley finished for his fifth save.

Hurst shut out Detroit for 10 innings last Sunday for Boston's only victory in a five-game series at Tiger Stadium.

Indians 6, Rangers 3

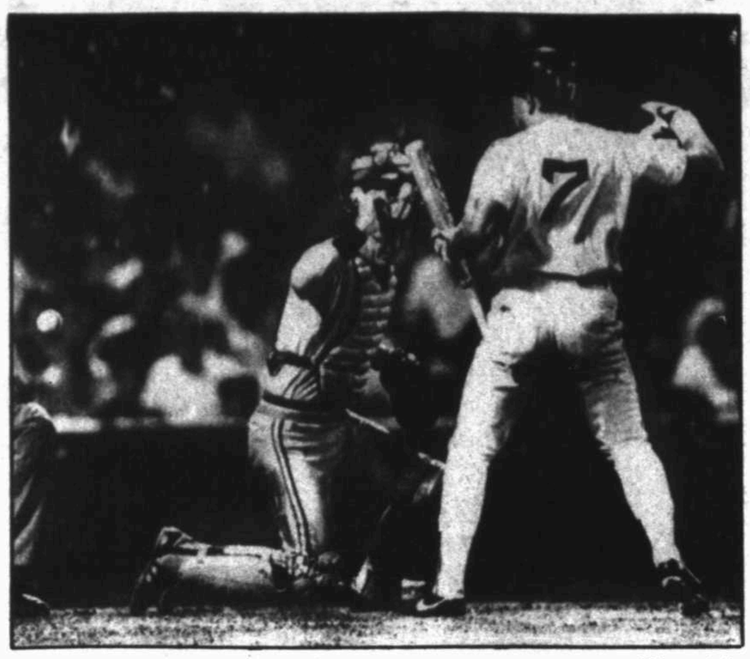

CLEVELAND — Rich Yett allowed five hits in 6 1-3 innings for his first victory since June 8 and the Cleveland Indians took advantage of five Texas errors to snap a five-game losing streak.

Cleveland's victory was only its second in the last 13 games. Texas shortstop Scott Fletcher made three errors after committing just one in his previous 53 games. The five errors were a season high for the Rangers.

Yett, 6-4, was on the disabled list June 14 to Aug. 4 with a pulled ribcage muscle. Don Gordon, the third Cleveland pitcher, pitched 2 1-3 shutout innings to earn his first save.

Cleveland took a 3-2 lead in the fourth inning with two unearned runs against Jose Guzman, 10-9.

With one out, Brook Jacoby was safe when second baseman Curtis Wilkerson misplayed his grounder for an error, and went to second on pinch-hitter Ron Tingley's single. Paul Zuvella forced Tingley at second but Fletcher threw wildly to first trying to complete the double play, allowing Jacoby to score and Zuvella to advance to second. Julio Franco then singled in Zuvella with the lead run.

Detroit's Mike Heath tries to control a wild pitch as Boston's Spike Owens attempts to move quickly out of the way.

Texas took a 1-0 lead in the first on Ruben Sierra's run-scoring groundout. Cleveland tied it in the third on Mel Hall's RBI double but the Rangers went ahead in the fourth on Geno Petralli's run-scoring single.

McDowell had an RBI double in the seventh.

Blue Jays 3, Royals 2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jim Clancy allowed seven hits in 8 1-3 innings and Tony Fernandez tripled and singled as the Toronto Blue Jays held on for their fifth straight victory.

Clancy, avenging a 5-1 loss last week to the Royals and Floyd Bannister, struck out seven and walked only two to raise his record to 6-12. Clancy allowed singles to Pat Tabler and Frank White in the ninth and was replaced by Tom Henke.

Bill Buckner singled to load the bases. After Jim Eisenreich struck out, Jamie Quirk singled in two runs but Henke settled down to strike out Kurt Stillwell on a 3-2 pitch and earn his 23rd save.

Bannister, 9-10, gave up just six hits and had a season-high 10 strikeouts but couldn't keep the Blue Jays from snapping the Royals' three-game streak. In beating the Blue Jays last week in Toronto, Bannister had eight strikeouts.

Yankees 6, Twins 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Rickey Henderson hit a two-run single in the top of the ninth and Dave Righetti worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the inning to give New York its first win of the season when trailing after eight innings.

New York was 0-40 this season in games they trailed after eight innings. The Yankees snapped a four-game losing streak and moved to within four games of first-place Detroit in the American League East.

Steve Shields, 3-3, had seemingly allowed another New York opponent to win in the late innings when he gave up Randy Bush's 12th homer, a two-run shot, in the eighth for a 4-3 Minnesota lead.

But the Yankees, who have lost six games when they were just one out away from victory, stormed back against Twins' bullpen ace Jeff Reardon.

With one out in the ninth, Juan Berenguer walked Don Slaught and was relieved by Reardon, 0-4. Pinch-hitter Jack Clark singled, sending pinch-runner Wayne Tolleson to second.

Reardon, who has 30 saves, blew his sixth save opportunity.

Brewers 8, Orioles 3

MILWAUKEE — Mike Birkbeck survived a shaky first inning to win his sixth straight game and Robin Yount's two-run double capped a four-run fourth as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Baltimore Orioles.

The Brewers have beaten the Orioles 11 straight times at County Stadium. Birkbeck, 8-5 overall but 6-0 since returning from the minors July 2, allowed three runs in the first, giving up three opposite-field doubles but was bailed out by the Brewers' rally.

In the cards: Expos collect only four hits, but still beat Mets

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Mike Fitzgerald's sacrifice fly in the 12th inning led the Montreal Expos to a 5-2 victory over the New York Mets Friday night despite the combined four-hit pitching of David Cone, Roger McDowell and Randy Myers.

Myers, 5-2, who came in to start the 12th, walked Tim Raines and Andres Galarraga to open the inning. Hubie Brooks fouled out, advancing the runners, and Tim Wallach was intentionally walked before Fitzgerald flied out to right, snapping a 2-2 tie. Fitzgerald is 3-for-5 with 10 runs batted in when batting with the bases loaded this season.

Nelson Santovenia followed with a two-run single, the Expos' first hit since the seventh inning.

Montreal is 16-5 in extra-inning games this season.

Andy McGaffigan, 4-0, pitched two perfect innings in relief of Bryn Smith, who allowed five hits in seven innings, and Tim Burke, who allowed two hits.

Cone struck out 12 and gave up three hits in eight innings before McDowell pitched three hitless innings.

Raines robbed Kevin McReynolds of a three-run homer in the eighth when he caught a drive while reaching over the left-field fence.

Hubie Brooks hit his 15th homer in the second, giving the Expos a 1-0 lead. Montreal made it 2-0 in the fourth when Raines walked, Brooks singled and Wallach hit a run-scoring groundout.

New York scored twice in the fifth. Third baseman Wallach's throwing error scored one run and Wally Backman's double-play grounder drove in another.

NL Roundup

Padres 4, Astros 3

HOUSTON — Dennis Rasmussen allowed six hits in 8 1-3 innings for his ninth victory in 10 decisions and the San Diego Padres handed the Astros' their third consecutive defeat.

Rasmussen, 11-7, won his fourth straight, striking out two and walking two before Rafael Ramirez chased him with a double. Mark Davis got his 20th save, striking out Ken Caminiti and getting Alex Trevino to fly out.

Tony Gwynn hit a game-winning double in the seventh and two singles, extending his hitting streak to 10 games.

Bob Knepper, 12-4, allowed four runs and nine hits in 6 1-3 innings.

Stan Jefferson singled with one out in the seventh and Gwynn followed with a double into the right-field corner to snap a 3-3 tie.

Houston took a 3-0 lead in the first on a two-run double by Kevin Bass and a run-scoring throwing error by third baseman Chris Brown.

San Diego pulled to within 3-2 in the second on Roberto Alomar's RBI double and Dickie Thon's sacrifice fly. Brown hit a run-scoring double in the fifth.

Cardinals 4, Cubs 0

CHICAGO — Joe Magrane pitched a one-hitter and Tom Brunansky homered as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs.

Magrane, 2-6, gave up a ground single to left field to Vance Law in the second inning and one out later, walked Jody Davis. Magrane, who spent two months on the disabled list earlier this season, then retired the next 22 batters in earning his first victory since June 17. He walked one and struck out six.

The shutout was the third of Magrane's two-year career and first since last Sept. 29 when he defeated Montreal 1-0 on three hits.

In the process, Magrane stopped two hitting streaks, 20 games by Rafael Palmeiro and 12 by Mark Grace.

Brunansky hit his 16th homer in the fourth inning off Rick Sutcliffe, 9-10, and the Cardinals scored two more runs in the seventh.

Sutcliffe pitched a complete game, allowing 10 hits and striking out six.

Samuel was hitless in 15 at-bats and 4-for-35 when he singled in two runs in the fourth. He doubled in two more in the sixth.

Gross, 11-8, pitched his first complete game since May 17, striking out two and walking one. He had lost six of his last eight decisions.

Mike Dunne, 6-9, gave up seven hits and seven runs in 5 1-3 innings.

In the second game, Bob Kipper, 2-4, walked Chris James with one out in the eighth and Jordan followed with his fifth homer.

Ivy League swimmer phenomenal

By FRANK LITSKY
New York Times News Service

AUSTIN — A Harvard senior with a 3.0 grade-point average in anthropology seems unlikely to take a year off from college to swim. David Berkoff is in the middle of such a year, and the move paid off Friday, when he shattered the world record for the men's 100-meter backstroke.

His time of 54.95 seconds came in a morning heat of the U.S. Olympic trials. He expected to swim faster in the evening final, where the first two finishers would qualify for next month's Seoul Olympics.

Berkoff is 21 years old, slight for a swimmer at 5 feet 11 inches and 155 pounds. He comes from Huntington Valley, Pa., a Philadelphia suburb, and wears a tiny gold earring in his left ear.

Though he was favored in the 100 meters, Berkoff was apprehensive because he swam poorly Wednesday in the 200-meter backstroke. He should not have worried. In the Texas Swimming Center's fast 50-meter pool, he led his heat from the start and won by 9 feet.

Igor Polyansky of the Soviet Union broke the 100-meter record three times this year, finally lowering it to 55.00 seconds four weeks ago. Berkoff's fastest previous time was 55.43 seconds last March.

The backstroke has a windmill arm motion and a flutter kick. But the rules allow almost anything as long as the swimmer stays on his back.

In the fall of 1984, when Berkoff started college, he and the Harvard coach, Joe Bernal, began experimenting with a different style. In Harvard's 25-yard indoor pool, Berkoff started swimming the first 20 yards or so underwater, using a dolphin kick borrowed from the butterfly stroke, but no arm motion.

A few backstrokers have experimented with this technique since the 1960s. Berkoff has refined it, and perhaps a third of the backstrokers here used it.

Olympic Trials

Among them was Jay Mortenson of Madison, Wis., the second-fastest qualifier at 55.63 seconds.

There is a tradeoff with the underwater technique because so much more oxygen is needed that oxygen debt strikes sooner than usual late in the race.

In his record heat, Berkoff swam the first 25 meters, or half a lap, 5 feet underwater. He once stayed underwater for 50 meters, though not in an important race. Whatever the distance underwater, it creates an eerie sight because a lane appears empty early in a race until a swimmer knifes up from the deep like a dolphin.

"When I hit the finish wall," Berkoff said, "I figured I swam 56 middle. When the crowd went crazy, I saw the scoreboard, and I thought, 'Did it go wrong?' I was shocked. But I think I can go faster in the final, and in Seoul I think I can go 54 low."

A race between Berkoff and Polyansky would be a highlight of Olympic swimming. They opposed each other last February in a short course meet in Bonn, West Germany. Berkoff won both races.

"Afterward," Berkoff said, "I told him he had been my hero since he set a world record in the 200-meter backstroke in 1985. I said I really admired his intensity."

And how did Polyansky respond?

"He said, 'Thank you,'" Berkoff said.

Friday's other qualifying leaders were Matt Biondi in the men's 50-meter freestyle (22.50 seconds), Melvin Stewart in the men's 200-meter butterfly (1:59.19) and Mary Wayte in the women's 200-meter individual medley (2:16.64). Rowdy Gaines and Rick Carey, who won three gold medals each in the 1984 Olympics, ended their competitive careers. Gaines (23.30 seconds) placed 17th in the 50-meter freestyle heats and Carey scratched from the 100-meter backstroke.

Cowboys, Raiders face off today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Plunkett, 40, makes his 1988 preseason debut for Los Angeles, and Danny White and Herschel Walker of Dallas also will see their first action as the Raiders and Cowboys meet Saturday afternoon.

Plunkett, a hero of many past Raider glories, has not played since December of 1986, when he finished the year with a torn rotator cuff that eventually required surgery and sidelined the veteran quarterback for the 1987 season.

Plunkett is scheduled to play in the second half of the 1 p.m. PDT game at the Coliseum. Steve Beuerlein, a fourth-round draft choice from Notre Dame in 1987, will be the Raiders' starter for the second straight week.

Beuerlein apparently has the inside track at the starting job, with Plunkett battling 33-year-old Vince Evans for the backup spot.

Raiders' coach Mike Shanahan, five years younger than Plunkett, compared Plunkett and Beuerlein.

"With a young quarterback, you know he's going to make mistakes. There's no way around it," Shanahan said about Beuerlein. "You'd like to have someone with exprience, but there's only one way to get it.

"Steve hasn't been there much (in game action), while Jim has been there a lot."

Shanahan hopes Beuerlein gets that experience during this exhibition season.

"You want to see the way he handles himslf on the field, how he gets in and out of the huddle, leadership and the way he directs the team," Shanahan said.

Plunkett has been doing all that for three NFL teams — the Patriots, 49ers, and Raiders — since coming to the NFL as the first pick in the 1971 draft.

Beuerlein was six years old when Plunkett threw his first NFL pass.

Beuerlein threw just five passes in the 1987 exhibition season before spending the year on injured reserve. He completed 7 of 15 passes for 119 yards last week in a 24-10 loss to the San Francisco 49ers.

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry kept both White and Walker out of the preseason opener last week against San Diego. The Cowboys blew an 18-point lead in the final 7:30, losing 24-21.

"Herschel will start and play the first quarter for sure," Landry said. "We are going to start Steve Pelluer at quarterback, but Danny will be second. He will come in late in the second quarter. Paul McDonald will start the second half."

Pelluer has been working as the No. 1 quarterback this summer.

Landry said he anticipates some trading since he has five quarterbacks, including Kevin Sweeney and rookie Scott Secules. It's too early to say which will go, he said.

"We're going to have to, eventually (do some trading). They are all capable of playing in the NFL. We are going to have to start thinking very heavily about the quarterbacks," Landry said.

Collins suspended

NEW YORK — Running back Tony Collins was suspended by the NFL for at least a year Friday after failing a drug test he took after signing with the Indianapolis Colts last month. Collins was released by the New England Patriots last spring after reports he had resumed drug use.

A&M to admit guilt

DALLAS (AP) — Texas A&M will acknowledge Saturday in a meeting with the NCAA Committee on Infractions that its football program broke several NCAA rules, the Dallas Times Herald reported Friday night.

The newspaper reported in its early Saturday editions that while admitting guilt on some of the 31 rules infractions alleged by the NCAA, the Aggies will contest the others, as well as seven alleged procedural violations.

The newspaper said its information came from an unnamed source familiar with the case.

A&M officials, including athletic director-football coach Jackie Sherrill, and the school's attorneys from the Chicago law firm Coffield, Ungaretti, Harris and Slavin will meet Saturday in Syracuse, N.Y., with the Committee on Infractions and NCAA enforcement director David Berst.

The Associated Press was unable to contact Sherrill for comment. Assistant sports information director Alan Cannon said Sherrill left the A&M campus immediately after conducting his team's practice Friday to fly to Syracuse.

The Times Herald said A&M's attorneys and NCAA officials declined to comment. Sherrill declined to comment on specifics but said, "Our attorneys feel good," the Times Herald reported.

The NCAA alleges players and recruits or recruits' family members received or were offered cash, loans, clothes, medical services and legal services by representatives of A&M's football program.

Texas A&M might admit to less than half of the 31 rules infractions, the source said, adding that school attorneys and NCAA officials already have "washed out quite a few" of the charges. The source, however, declined to provide an exact number or say which rules were violated or "washed out," the Times Herald reported.

The NCAA also alleges A&M coaches acted improperly during the investigation and that several players and their families were coached on how to respond to NCAA investigators. The NCAA views efforts to mislead investigators or influence former athletes to provide inaccurate information as serious as actual infractions.

After hearing the case, committee members will deliberate, make a decision on probation and sanctions (if any), then forward the decision to the NCAA. The NCAA would then tell A&M of the decision and the school would have 15 days to accept any sanctions or appeal to the NCAA Council, which meets in October.

"We're going to go and present our case and hopefully present it in the right way and take whatever degree (of penalty) they feel inclined and go about our business," the newspaper quoted Sherrill as saying.

Overton: 'If I'm not nice, I'll get fired'

By OWEN CANFIELD

EDMOND, Okla. — As director of golf at Innisbrook Resort in Tarpon Springs, Fla., Jay Overton works six days a week — mostly in the office — overseeing a staff of 21 assistant professionals.

"I try to hit 50 balls a day, that's my goal," Overton said.

Maybe some of the golfers struggling at this week's PGA Championship should try the same thing. Overton shot a 5-under-par 66 on Friday, leaving him with a two-day total of 134, 8-under par, and the early second-round lead.

By the end of the second round, Paul Azinger had stolen the lead. Azinger finished the day at 9-under, one stroke up on Overton.

The son of a former golf professional, Overton did most of his damage on the front nine, birdying Nos. 1, 2, 6 and 8 to make the turn at 4-under. He birdied Nos. 10 and 11 and coasted from there, stumbling only once on his way to the top of the leader board. That came when he put his tee shot in the sand on the par-3 17th and couldn't get up and down.

"I just hit a bad shot," he said. "I had pushed a few shots yesterday so I worked on it. It was the only one that happened like that today, and it happened at a bad time."

As he made his way along the back nine, the gallery began to swell, although many had a tough time figuring out who Overton was.

"On 16, the television cameraman right over the creek was trying to pick up our second shots," Overton said. "You could hear him through the radio saying 'Someone give me some color. Which one is he?'"

He was the one who spent a good deal of time between shots commiserating with his caddie and speaking with members of the gallery.

"That's the way club professionals make a living," he said. "If we're not nice, we get fired."

Overton first had a club placed in his hands when he was 23 months old. The presenter was Sam Snead, who was playing a benefit with Overton's father. Overton went on to become NAIA national champion at Campbell College, N.C., and turned professional in 1973.

He served four years as an assistant pro at Pinehurst Country Club in North Carolina before taking over the head job in December 1977. He joined Innisbrook in 1978 but never tried to join the PGA Tour as a full-time player.

"If you could have seen my putting stroke back then and my bank account, it'd be obvious why," he said.

Career highlights include winning tournaments such as the Izod International and the North Florida Section PGA. In four previous PGA Championships, Overton had never made the cut.

He has made the cut this time, which he said proves to himself that he isn't as bad a player as he had shown in his previous tries at the PGA.

He admitted Friday that he has often thought about one day winning a PGA Tour event. But he didn't make any predictions about where he might finish, and didn't really seem to care.

"I can hit the ball six times in the water on No. 1 tomorrow and I'd be happy," he said.

"If I come in dead last or win the tournament, it's not going to change what I do one bit.

The Golden Bear fails to qualify

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, five times a winner of the PGA Championship, got knocked out of this year's tournament Friday when he took 15 strokes to finish two holes.

Nicklaus shot a 1-over-par 72 during Thursday's first round and was 2-over on the day heading into the par-4 15th hole.

"I hit my tee shot through the bunker and had to wedge it back out," Nicklaus said. He missed the green with his third shot and wound up with a double bogey.

"After that I had to give myself an opportunity for 3 at No. 16," Nicklaus said.

His tee shot on the par-5 hole drifted right and landed in a hazard that runs through the fairway.

"I couldn't find that and had to go back and drop it," he said.

Nicklaus then pushed a 3-wood into the gallery along the right side of the fairway, and somehow lost it again.

"Nobody could find it," he said. "I don't ever remember that, no."

In fact, it marked only the second time in Nicklaus' career that he had lost even one ball in competition. The first time was at the 1986 U.S. Open at Shinnecock Hills, N.Y.

He finally got onto the green at 16 with his sixth shot, then 3-putted.

"I started blocking some shots and couldn't stop it," Nicklaus said. "I picked a bad time to start."

The Golden Bear wound up with an 8-over 79, which left him with a two-day total of 151.

Even Iranians anxious to compete in Olympics

By HANNS NEUERBOURG

TEHRAN (AP) — Iran looks forward to next month's Olympic Games in Seoul and even the bloodiest fighting in the Gulf war never made it reconsider its decision to compete, a top sports official said.

"We tried to train our athletes during the most critical periods of the war. ... and we were supported in this by our imam," Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, said Bahram Afsharzadeh, general secretary of the Iranian National Olympic Committee.

Iran will send a team of 30 athletes to Seoul, including about 10 who were temporarily exempted from military duty to train for the Games, Afsharzadeh said Thursday.

Preparations started early in 1987, long before the Seoul organizers issued their invitations, he said. "We were delighted to accept," he said, speaking through an interpreter at his office.

The team includes 17 wrestlers, Iran's top speciality. The wrestling tradition dates to ancient times in Iran, with about 20 different types still being practiced today.

The Iranian team also will include eight cyclists, a marathon runner and four Iranians participating in demonstration sports.

"Our wrestling team is in very good shape and we are fully relying on their success in winning medals," Afsharzadeh said.

Since Iran first competed in the Olympics in London in 1948, wrestlers have won most of the 35 medals the country has collected, including golds.

Weightlifting is another tradition in Iran and its athletes have won many trophies in the past, including some at past Olympics. This time, no Iranian weightlifters will be present in Seoul because they failed to meet the very high Iranian standards for qualification.

Afsharzadeh said the decision not to send any weightlifters had no relation to the reported defection of several team members during the Asian Games two years in Seoul.

Seoul will mark the first time since the 1976 Montreal Games that Iran will compete in the Olympics and the first time since the Islamic revolution in 1980.

He said Iran did not compete in Moscow in 1980 "because of the Soviet aggression against a Moslem country, Afghanistan."

When the Games moved to Los Angeles in 1984, he said, "none of our athletes were prepared to participate in the Games held in the country that was supporting our enemy in the war."

Asked whether Iran ever considered not participating in the Seoul Games, Afsharzadeh said "at no time."

On the impact of the war on sports in Iran, he said Iran was subject to a kind of psychological warfare because foreign teams declined to come for fear of war, preventing Iranian athletes from improving their skills through international competition.

"Due to the war propaganda in foreign countries, foreign teams were prevented from coming," he said. "Even FIFA decided that athletes ... were not authorized to compete in countries where there is war." FIFA is the world's ruling soccer body.

"We hope that now after the cease-fire more foreign teams will come to our country," Afsharzadeh said.

Training of athletes in Iran has been made easier because of international competitions held in Iran, including the annual festival commemorating the Iranian revolution.

This year, 17 countries took part, mostly from the Third World and Soviet bloc but also a few athletes from Western countries.

Domestically, Afsharzadeh said, all along the border with Iraq "we tried to organize sports events near the front line," including cycling races.

Iran's team at Seoul will all be men.

"Participation of our women athletes in international games will not be practical because the manners practiced at international games are contrary to the values of Islam, which requires women's bodies to be fully covered if men are present," Afsharzadeh said.

OVERTON—

The exceptionally low scoring did not extend to Jack Nicklaus, however.

The 48-year-old Golden Bear, holder of a record five PGA titles, required 15 strokes to play the 15th and 16th holes, shot 79 and was certain to miss the cut for the final two rounds with a 151 total.

He 3-putted both the 15th and 16th and, on the par-5 16th, drove into a creek, hit into the woods and lost his ball and eventually made a 9 on the hole.

Defending champion Larry Nelson was 71-141 and Tom Watson was one shot better at 140 after a 68.

Overton, who surpervises a 21-man golf staff at the Innisbrook Resort and Country Club in Tarpon Springs, Fla., never before had qualified for the final two rounds of this tournament.

"I kept hitting the fairways and trying to go for the middle of the greens. I guess the pins were in the middle today," he said.

"I was very fortunate, got a lot of good breaks.

White indicates desire for trade

Associated Press

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. — Faced with the role of supporting quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys, Danny White says he is not ruling out the possibility that he will ask to be traded.

"That's always an option," White said before Thursday afternoon's training camp practice. "I guess if the right opportunity came along, I can't say that wouldn't be a possibility."

Give or take an injury and Gary Hogeboom, White has been the Cowboys' starting quarterback for most of the past eight years.

But this year, the ball has been passed to Steve Pelluer, and White enters the season as backup.

White vows that he will not let the debate within himself interfere with his loyalty to the Cowboys.

"I'm going to be happy and content and I'm not going to create any problems for this organization," White said. "They've got enough problems without me creating any more.

"But when it gets to the point where I'm going to start to become a problem, then I will simply ask to be traded or do something else. When or if that happens, I don't know."

This is not the first fine line the Cowboys have walked with a key player in recent months. Tony Dorsett, unwilling to accept a role behind Herschel Walker, was traded to Denver.

In Saturday's game with the Los Angeles Raiders, White will play in the second quarter. It will be the first action he has seen in a scrimmage or pre-season game this summer.

Several players have said White is throwing the ball better than he did last season. Dallas Coach Tom Landry said the wrist White fractured in 1986 no longer appears to be giving him trouble.

Landry said he won't hesitate to use White at any time, but White does not believe Pelluer should have to look over his shoulder pads after every bad pass. He said it's not fair to put any starting quarterback in that situation.

Landry said he wants White on this year's team, but he has not ruled out the possibility of a trade. Quarterback coach Paul Hackett hopes it does not reach that point.

"We need to utilize and get out of Danny all of the experience and the wisdom he has to allow us to be as good at the quarterback position as we can be," Hackett said.

White, 36, said he believes he has another three or four years left playing footbal, but he doesn't know if those years will be in Dallas.

"The thing I'm going to have to fight is that I get the feeling sometimes that my life is being wasted, that my talent is being wasted,"

Houston team wins state title

WACO (AP) — Houston Northwest scored eight runs in the first inning and held on to defeat Austin Balcones 14-4 Friday for the Little League state championship.

Houston advances next week to the Little League Southern Regionals in St. Petersburg, Fla. — the next step toward a possible berth in the Little League World Championships at Williamsport, Pa.

RENFRO

But Renfro and the Oilers didn't have the benefit of replay then and it was the Steelers who eventually went on to the Super Bowl.

"The refs blew the call ... it was a matter of inches," he says. "It was the biggest non-catch I ever made."

Renfro still carries that scar, but he doesn't like to dwell too much on it. For now, his mind is centered on the competition in camp.

"Every year, five or six guys come after me, but this group is by far the most talented I've ever competed with" at Thousand Oaks.

Renfro said he debated up until April whether to return to Cowboy camp, but was convinced he could contribute to the team after talking it over with Coach Tom Landry, even though Landry made no guarantees about his role.

"I don't run as fast or jump as high, but I have experience on my side ... I've got the track record and I've been here long enough to know that not always the best man wins."

Man finally finds way to dentist

PELL CITY, Ala. (AP) — A man who set out for his dental clinic and took an unintended 1,120-mile detour last month finally reached the dentist's chair, where he was rewarded with free dentures.

"I ain't embarrassed," said 76-year-old Frank Collier of Centreville. "It could've happened to anybody."

In fact, it almost happened to Collier's friend, 80-year-old Deacon Brisco Huff, who agreed to drive Collier from Centreville to the dental clinic 74 miles away in Pell City on Thursday.

Huff took two wrong turns and had to stop six times to ask for directions.

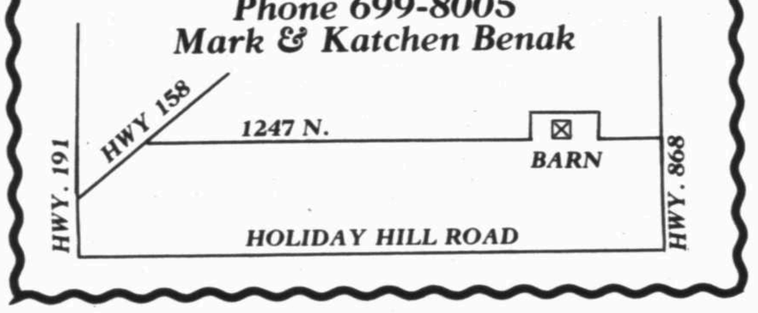

"I got lost, too, but I was determined not to go as far as he went," said Huff.

Collier, a retired mill worker who had never left west Alabama except for one other trip to Pell City, ended up driving 560 miles — all the way to Muncie, Ind., before he found out how far off course he had gone. Police in Muncie helped Collier get in touch with family and friends, who drove him back.

"They told me they didn't think I'd better drive no more," Collier said Thursday. "I told them that was fine with me because I was tired of it."

"I was trying to follow the road this fellow took when he brought me up here the first time I came, a long time ago," Collier explained. "I thought I could find my way back my own self. I got on that interstate (I-65) and didn't know how to get off. I just kept a-goin', kept a-goin', right out of the state, almost out of the country."

Some of the estimated 25,000 protesters at Universal Studios stand attentive Thursday as they listen to organizers at the entrance to the studio during the demonstration against Friday's scheduled release of "The Last Temptation of Christ."

'Last Temptation' opens with tight security at theaters

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Last Temptation of Christ" opened in nine cities Friday amid tight security that included guards standing as sentries alongside movie screens and theater patrons being searched.

Thousands of Christians furiously objected to the film, saying it depicts Jesus as filled with doubts and lust, while some critics praised it as a masterpiece.

Filmgoers snaked around streets by the thousands for tickets to the first showings, vastly outnumbering the protesters who turned out in several cities.

Uniformed security guards checked purses and bags of movie patrons in New York, Los Angeles and Toronto, and guards also stood alongside screens in those cities, but no disturbances were reported.

In New York, Rabbi Yosef Friedman, an Orthodox Jew, carried a sign in front of the Ziegfeld Theater that read, "Rabbis Protest Mockery of Any Religion," while in Chicago, about 50 demonstrators gathered.

About 30 protesters in Washington, D.C., waved placards and marched behind a mannequin of Jesus, while dozens of demonstrators gathered outside theaters in San Francisco and Chicago.

Although a demonstration by 25,000 Christians at Universal Studios was peaceful and polite Thursday, 75 Los Angeles police officers monitored the crowds at the Century Plaza Theater and security guards checked purses and bags of movie patrons.

Police Cmdr. William Booth said no officers will be in the theater in Century City despite fears of slashed or spray-painted screens.

Vandals tossed balloons filled with paint at the Century City theater about 5 a.m., splattering it with yellow paint, said security guard Fabian Munez. By noon, someone had spread glue on the floor in the women's rest room, said patron Jo Drott, 24.

Hours before the film was to open, a group of directors including Warren Beatty, James L. Brooks, Peter Bogdanovich, Michael Mann, Sydney Pollack and Walter Hill called a news conference to express support for the film's director, Martin Scorsese.

"We owe a debt of gratitude to this group of somewhat misguided zealots. The film now will be seen by a lot of curiosity-seekers," said John Badham, director of "Short Circuit" and "WarGames." "What is not terrific is their effort to rewrite the Bill of Rights."

The Directors Guild of America was the latest group to enter the fray, which has spread from the studio lots to Congress to churches nationwide.

Protesters have declaimed the film as sacrilege, saying it portrays Christ as a deranged and lust-driven human, who while being crucified, dreams he marries and has sex with Mary Magdalene and lives his life as an ordinary man.

Cardinal Bernard Law, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston, urged Catholics to boycott the film, calling it "morally offensive and repugnant to Christian belief."

"It is inconceivable to me that a person of faith in Jesus Christ would go to this movie," Law wrote in the archdiocese newspaper. "One way to be heard is by not going. Another way is to write the producers."

But proponents say the film illustrates the central mystery of Christianity, showing a fully human Jesus wrestling with doubts and temptation, then rising above them to accept his role as God's son, willingly crucified so the rest of humanity may be forgiven its sin.

Willem Dafoe, who portrays Jesus in the film, said he is baffled by protesters' complaints.

"I just think this is a beautiful, powerful, positive film. Some people that for the most part haven't seen it are coming out against it — that I don't understand," he said in an interview on NBC-TV's "Today" program.

...(The film is) "morally offensive and repugnant to Christian belief...It is inconceivable to me that a person of faith in Jesus Christ would go to this movie. One way to be heard is by not going. Another way is to write the producers."
— Cardinal Bernard Law, archbishop of Boston

Universal Studios has accused the protesters of censorship for asking the studio to destroy the film. In a suprise move, the studio moved up the release date from Sept. 23 to Friday, saying it wanted the public to judge the movie for itself but perhaps also wishing to capitalize on the publicity.

Church leaders opposing the movie have primarily been Protestant evangelicals and conservative Catholics, many of whom have refused to watch it. The Mormon Church also condemned the film Friday, saying it "trivializes the message and mission of Jesus Christ."

Other Christian leaders, such as the Episcopal bishop of New York, said after a screening that they had no objections to the release of the movie, and some said it was an enlightening or educational tool.

Film critics also had mixed opinions, some calling it overwrought and boring at two hours, 40 minutes, others calling it the most impressive biblical epic ever.

Richard Corliss of Time magazine said Scorsese "may have created his masterpiece" while Michael Medved of "Sneak Previews" said it was ironic that so much controversy could be generated "by a movie this awful."

The movie opened Friday in nine major markets — Los Angeles, Chicago, Washington, San Francisco, Seattle, Minneapolis, New York, Toronto and Montreal. Universal spokesman said no decision has been made whether to add other cities next week.

Several movie chains have refused to book the film, including the Newton, Mass.-based General Cinema Theaters, the nation's fourth-largest movie chain with 1,338 screens in 318 locations. The company refused to say why, however.

On Friday, The Wometco exhibition chain, which has more than 90 screens in Florida, said it also had chosen not to screen the film.

Garth Drabinsky, chairman of Toronto-based Cineplex Odeon, which is showing the film and is co-distributor, said supression of the film would signal the beginning of the decline and fall of the motion picture industry.

Scorsese, a Roman Catholic, says his film is an affirmation of faith that he hoped would provoke people to think about Jesus as a man confronting temptation.

Based on the 1955 novel by Nikos Kazantzakis, which was denounced as heresy by the Greek Orthodox church, "Last Temptation" has had a long journey to the big screen. Director Sidney Lumet acquired the rights to the novel in 1971 but abandoned the project because of difficulties in writing the screenplay.

Barbara Hershey, who plays Mary Magdalene, urged Scorsese to read the novel while she was filming "Boxcar Bertha" with him in 1972, and that began his 15-year quest to make the movie.

During the journey, such actors as Robert DeNiro, Eric Roberts, Aidan Quinn and even Sylvester Stallone were suggested for the role of Jesus.

LIFESCOPE

Are You Singing The "Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song?" Lifescope Says, "Real Love Can Overcome!"

Stephen, the man so full of faith and the Holy Spirit's power, did spectacular miracles among the people.

But one day some of the men from the Jewish cult of "The Freedmen" started an argument with him, and they were soon joined by Jews from Cyrene, Alexandria in Egypt, and the Turkish provinces of Cilicia, and Ausia. But none of them were able to stand against Stephen's wisdom and spirit. So they brought in some men to lie about him, claiming they had heard Stephen curse Moses, and even God. Then the High Priest asked him, "Are these accusations true?"

[Stephen gave a lengthy history of God's dealings with the nation of Israel and he ended with this:]

"You stiff-necked heathen! Must you forever resist the Holy Spirit? But your fathers did, and so do you! Name one prophet your ancestors didn't persecute! They even killed the ones who predicted the coming of the Righteous One - the Messiah Whom you betrayed and murdered. Yes, and you deliberately destroyed God's Laws, though you received them from the hands of angels."

The Jewish leaders were stung to fury by Stephen's accusation, and ground their teeth in rage. But Stephen, full of the Holy Spirit, gazed steadily upward into heaven and saw the glory of God and Jesus standing at God's right hand. And he told them, "Look, I see the heavens opened and Jesus the Messiah standing beside God, at His right hand!"

Then they mobbed him, putting their hands over their ears, and drowning out his voice with their shouts, and dragged him out of the city to stone him. The official witnesses - the executioners - took off their coats and laid them at the feet of a young man named Paul. And as the murderous stones came hurtling at him, Stephen prayed, "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." And he fell to his knees, shouting, "Lord, don't charge them with this sin!" and with that, he died.

Celebrant Singers to perform

John Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers, an internationally known Christian music ministry headquartered in Visalia, Calif., will present a concert of contemporary gospel music at 7 p.m. Thursday at St. Paul Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive.

"Their two hour service is a beautiful blend of inspiring praise and worship music featuring 10 singers and a 12-piece orchestra," says a news release from Stone Ministries, Inc.

The music of Celebrant Singers includes a selection of contemporary gospel songs, liturgical music, praise songs, and worship choruses. Team members will share a word of personal testimony, and a short documentary film of the Celebrant Singers overseas ministry will be presented.

Members of the group come from many different denonimations across America.

"Chosen from hundreds of nationwide auditions, these talented young adults have dedicated their lives to sharing the Gospel of Jesus Christ around the world," the release says.

They are not salaried but rather are responsible for raising approximately one-third of their travel expenses. The remainder of travel costs is raised by free-will offerings, record sales, and partners of the ministry.

Recently, Celebrant Singers were involved in an extensive four-month outreach throughout India, France, Italy, and Northern Ireland. In 1984, while in Rome, the team was invited to sing for Pope John Paul II. In addition, they were honored by a special private audience with the Pontiff.

Currently, the Celebrant Singers are involved in a "report" tour throughout North America. Traveling from 100-500 miles daily, they will present nightly services in churches, auditoriums, colleges, service clubs, military bases, hospitals, prisons, and outdoor arenas to nearly a quarter of a million people who will gather to hear their message.

John Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers is an outreach of Stone Ministries, Inc., a non-profit Christian corporation ministering to the needs of people through music and the arts, Jon F. Stemkoski, president.

The public is invited to attend the service presented by Jon Stemkoski's Celebrant Singers. Admission is free, but there will be an opportunity to give to the Celebrant Singers' ministry through a free-will offering. For more information call 694-2544.

Missionaries witness cocaine industry prosper in country

NEW YORK — In the past few years, Walter and Susie Henry have watched as the growing of coca leaves in Bolivia changed from a centuries-old habit to a cut-throat business promoting violence and drug addiction.

The United Methodist missionaries, who have served in the South American country for 19 years and are currently in the United States on furlough, said cocaine use and production has permeated the Bolivian society. "Entire communities are involved, sometimes, in one way or another," Mrs. Henry added.

In regions such as the Chapare area, one of the biggest producers of coca, involvement in the cocaine business has all but taken over other aspects of life. "The church has really lost a lot of ground," Henry explained. "Churches that had been there are no longer funcitoning.

Since 1969, when the Bolivian people officially formed their own Evangelical Methodist Church, the Indians who constitute the majority of the population, have taken on the leadership role in the church. The Board of Global Ministries now has five missionaries in Boliva, said Harry Newman, a field representative for the Mission Education and Cultivation Program Department, Board of Global Ministries.

According to the Henrys, the current crisis in Bolivia is not because of the coca leaves, which is a legal crop. The leaves have always been chewed by the natives and even visitors, in the way one might chew tobacco or smoke cigarettes. Chewing the leaves also helps with altitude sickness, they explained.

But in the late '70s, the concoction and exportation of a cocaine paste — which is further refined into liquid or white powder in Columbia — began in Brazil. "I think some of the people involved originally didn't even know what it was for," Henry said.

Even though cocaine production was illegal, it continued to grow and in the early '80s "the roots of the cocaine business really went deep into the society," according to Henry. Bolivian government officials were implicated by the United States in the drug-running.

Crime and violence has increased, the Henrys said, citing an incident where a Canadian pilot who was to testify against drug runners was machine-gunned to death five blocks from their home.

Many young people roam the streets as addicts, smoking cigarettes laced with cocaine, they added.

The Henrys have been working with Heifer Project International, which provides livestock to poor farmers, for the past few years.

Excommunicated bishop: Pope wrecking church

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Dissident Bishop Richard Williamson, excommunicated from the Roman Catholic Church in the church's first split in 118 years, says Pope John Paul II is wrecking his own job.

"He is like a soft drink seller praying for cold weather," Williamson says. "He's going to put himself out of business."

Williamson, 48, was ousted from the church at the end of June after he and three others were consecrated bishops by Rebel Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre in a ceremony in Switzerland.

Pope John Paul II promptly excommunicated him and the four new bishops, provoking the first major schism in the Roman Catholicism since 1870. Also ousted was retired Brazilian Bishop Antonio de Castro who took part in the ceremonies.

Williamson predicted the "official church in 10 years will almost have disappeared."

"The only Catholic church strong will be the Catholics that keep to the complete faith," he said. "For us the future looks bright, but for the mainstream church, people will have gone the modern way and cease to be Catholics."

Lefebvre's traditionalist followers are estimated at 100,000 to 500,000 by the Vatican and more than a million by Lefebvre's headquarters in Econe, Switzerland.

Lefebvre, 82, denounces church reforms of the 1962-65 Second Vatican Council, including its affirmation of religious liberty, ecumenical relations with other Christians and putting the Latin liturgy into modern languages.

He charges the church has been "Protestantized" and "democratized." He was suspended from functioning in 1976, but defied it and expanded his movement, ordaining more than 200 priests.

Consecrating the new bishops brought his ouster and theirs.

Rain prayer urged

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The National Catholic Rural Life Conference has called on Christians across the country to join in prayer on Monday for mutual community support and drought relief.

"The drought of 1988 has reminded us of our dependence upon water, as well as our dependence upon our creator who gives us that water," said the national group's executive director, Joseph K. Fitzgerald.

Marian Year to come to end on Monday

ODESSA — Roman Catholics residing in the Diocese of San Angelo will officially bring to a close the special Marian Year during a Mass to be celebrated by Bishop Michael O. Pfeifer, O.M.I. The Mass will be held at 7 p.m. Monday at St. Mary's Church, Odessa.

Aug. 15, the date officially designated by Pope John Paul II to close the special year, is a holy day in the Catholic faith commemorating the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The pope announced the special year on Jan. 1, 1987. It was to run from Pentecost Sunday, June 7, 1987, to the Feast of Assumption on Aug. 15 of this year. The 14-month period of special Marian devotions had the purpose of helping Catholics worldwide to prepare to enter the third millenium of Christianity.

This was only the second Marian Year ever to be observed in the almost 2,000-year history of the Catholic Church. The previous one was held in 1953-54 at the direction of the late Pope Pius XII.

Just prior to the start of the special year, Pope John Paul II issued a special encyclical letter on the Blessed Virgin Mary, entitled "Mother of the Redeemer." The pope is known for his very strong devotion to the Blessed Mother.

Pfeifer also issued a pastoral letter just prior to the start of the Marian Year entitled "Mary in the Mysteries of Christ." He also led the Diocese of San Angelo in a special prayer of rededication of the diocese to Mary as part of the Marian Year devotions.

During the course of the year, the San Angelo bishop has traveled over sprawling West Texas diocese, visiting parishes and mission stations, leading the people in special devotions to Mary, especially praying of the Rosary, one of the most ancient and traditional of catholic prayer devotionals.

Particular churches and missions throughout the diocese were designated as "Marian Year Pilgrimage Churches," where the faithful could go to make special devotions honoring Mary.

'Throw Momma From Train' star dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Anne Ramsey, whose grotesque character in "Throw Momma From the Train" won her an Oscar nomination and a following in the twilight of her career, died of throat cancer. She was 59.

Her husband of 34 years, actor Logan Ramsey, was at her side when she died Thursday evening at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where she had been for about a week, hospital spokeswoman Peggy Shaff said Friday.

The actress often appeared with her husband in projects, including Clint Eastwood's "Any Which Way You Can," scheduled to air Friday night on CBS-TV.

She appeared in two Barbra Streisand films, "Up the Sandbox" and "For Pete's Sake" and played Nick Nolte's addled mother in "Weeds." In "Goonies," she uttered the line, "Put that kid's hand in the blender and hit puree."

Mrs. Ramsey's television credits included roles in "The Young and the Restless," guest appearances on "Hill Street Blues," "Night Court" and "Knight Rider," and movies-of-the-week roles in "White Mama," "The Boy in the Plastic Bubble," "Blind Ambition" and "Marilyn."

However, it was her role opposite actor-director Danny DeVito and Billy Crystal in the dark comedy about matricide, "Throw Momma From the Train," that put her on the fast track.

After 37 years in show business, she became famous as the actress with the face of a mother no one could love.

"Some people say I'm not a very pretty woman, but I'm a very beautiful woman inside," she said when asked about her appearance.

As the murder-provoking harridan of "Throw Momma," the diminutive hunch-shouldered actress played her most tormented and tormenting role. DeVito, as brow-beaten son Owen Lift, tries to arrange a swap of murder victims: He will kill his writing teacher's ex-wife if the teacher (Crystal) kills his mother.

"She became such a cult hero to young people after 'Throw Momma' that the kids wouldn't leave her alone. But she loved kids. She enjoyed it all," said her publicist, Stan Rosenfield.

"I loved that woman. I loved everything about her," DeVito said. "I was so delighted over the success she achieved over the past year. She was a woman of courage and should be admired by all."

Mrs. Ramsey was nominated for an Academy Award for "Throw Momma," but lost to Olympia Dukakis of "Moonstruck." She will be seen in four still-to-be-released films: "Dr. Hackenstein," "Scrooge," "Good Ole Boy" and "Homer and Eddie."

It was the removal of part of her tongue during throat cancer surgery three years ago that gave her the speech impediment evident in "Throw Momma From the Train." She began chemotherapy treatments when the cancer recurred in April.

During filming of "Throw Momma," Mrs. Ramsey was undergoing oral surgery and was enduring intense pain, said DeVito. He said the actress never asked to be excused from work.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Ramsey is survived by a brother and sister, Rosenfield said.

A private burial was planned in Omaha, Neb., but the family kept the date and location secret, Rosenfield said. A public memorial service will be held Aug. 20 at St. Michael & All Angels' Episcopal Church in Studio City, he said.

CHICAGO (AP) — Bernardine Dohrn says she has few regrets about her activist past, though she concedes the political movement of the 1960s was occasionally fraught with "arrogance, sexism and racism."

"I was determined not to be like my mother's generation," Dohrn, former leader of the Weather Underground and once listed on the FBI's "10 Most Wanted" list, told an audience Thursday at the downtown Cultural Center. She said she had wanted "no marriage, no children."

But Dohrn's views have mellowed since she spent 11 years in hiding and served a seven-month prison term for refusing to cooperate with a grand jury investigation of a 1981 Brink's armored truck robbery in which three people were killed.

Dohrn, 46, has married and has three children. She lives in Chicago, working for children's welfare issues, with her husband, William Ayers, also a one-time member of the Weather Underground who is now a teacher of education at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

"Remembering the past is a more revealing process than studying the present," Dohrn told her audience. "The appeal of the '60s protest movement comes from a simple notion — that what you do makes a difference."

But Dohrn said radical movements she was involved in were often "chaotic, inconsistent and messy.

"In our militancy and intensity, we somehow lost hold of what brought us into the movement in the first place — a spirit of unity and democracy."

Murray

REGINA, Saskatchewan (AP) — Singer Anne Murray has an unwelcome admirer — a farmer who's convinced that the Canadian-born entertainer is in love with him and has been jailed for harassing her.

Robert Kieling, 52, is seeking to be released from jail until his appeal of a six-month sentence is heard. He argued in court Thursday that he should be let out on bail to harvest his grain crop.

Kieling believes Murray is in love with him and has been convicted 11 times since 1980 for bothering her. He's under a court order not to contact her or any members of her family.

His most recent conviction for breaching the order came June 29 after he telephoned her office 263 times in the first six months of this year. Crown attorney Alistair Johnston said the calls continued right up until he was sent to jail.

Kieling also was convicted for sending Murray a letter in December asking her to come visit him by taking the train to Saskatchewan from her hometown of Springhill, Nova Scotia.

Carter

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Jimmy Carter, who has been mountaineering and game-viewing in Tanzania, will meet President Yoweri Museveni during a one-day visit to Uganda next week.

During his stopover Tuesday in Kampala, the former U.S. president also will talk with officials in the ministeries of health and agriculture, Susan Zelle, acting director of the U.S. Information Service, said Friday.

Museveni is a former guerrilla leader who seized power 32 months ago.

Carter and a party of 35 leave Wednesday for a visit to Marxist Ethiopia, the Soviet Union's staunchest ally in Africa.

On Sunday, Tanzanian President Ali Hassan Mwinyi will present Carter, 64, with a certificate for his succcessful ascent of Mount Kilimanjaro, Africa's highest peak. Then Carter's party will fly to the Kenyan capital of Nairobi.

There, Carter will meet with Kenyan government officials while other members of the party visit a village during the one-day stay, the U.S. Embassy said.

Leader of Burma resigns after 17 days as president

WORLD

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Sein Lwin resigned Friday after 17 days as leader of Burma and the focus of a bloody popular uprising against 26 years of repression, economic ruin and isolation imposed by a socialist military regime.

His government acknowledged 95 people were killed during a week of violence in which soldiers regularly opened fire on unarmed protesters, many of them high school students or Buddhist monks. Diplomats in Rangoon say hundreds were killed and some estimates surpass 1,000.

Reports from Burma indicated security forces in at least two towns had sided with the protesters, and a guerrilla leader w ging his own war against the government called for a coordinated nationwide offensive to support them.

Rangoon radio said Sein Lwin resigned as president of Burma and head of its only political party, but it did not announce a successor or say why he stepped down. The radio said People's Assembly and the Central Committee of the Burma Socialist Program Party would met next Friday.

Josef Silverstein, a leading American expert on Burma, said by telephone that a likely candidate to succeed Sein Lwin was Kyaw Htin, a relatively liberal military officer. Kyaw Htin, who received some military training in the United States, has been No. 3 in the government and party.

Sein Lwin, 64, was elected president and party chief July 26 after the resignation of Ne Win, who had held power since a coup in 1962 and applied economic policies that made this potentially affluent nation one of the world's poorest.

Students, monks, workers and other filled the streets of Rangoon almost immediately, demanding Sein Lwin's ouster. They blamed the former general for brutally crushing student demonstrations in March and June, and cited his bloody suppression of Rangoon University riots after the coup.

Demonstrators recited chants and waved placards calling him "dog, a butcher, a Nazi."

The protests spread to two dozen other cities, and the killing began Tuesday.

Western diplomats who estimated the death toll in the hundreds said no firm information was available because of the chaos and because of a "battle for the bodies" between soldiers and protesters.

"When someone is killed (the protesters) try to get it, so they can display the bodies, and the government tries to get it to cremate it" and destroy evidence of of deaths, one said.

Friday's broadcast by the official radio said the capital "has been peaceful since last night and law and order was maintained...There were almost no demonstrations or violence. The people of the whole city of Rangoon are making preparations to protect against looting."

It said about 1,000 gathered near a pagoda Friday in the Rangoon suburb of North Okkalapa but dispersed. Thousands of people were said to have fought and trapped soldiers in the suburb in the previous two days.

Japan's Kyodo news agency said soldiers had retained positions around three barricaded "liberated zones" in North Okalappa and two other suburbs but were seen leaving after Sein Lwin's resignation was announced.

Brang Seng, head of the Kachins and a leader of a 10-group guerrilla coalition, called for an offensive "from north to south," to draw soldiers from two dozen towns and cities where they blocked protests.

A spokesman for Brang Seng quoted a statement as saying rebels would attack government troops but also urging soldiers to join the fight "for peace and democracy." The spokesman, who would not give his name, read the statement by telephone in Bangkok.

Many ethnic rebel groups have fought since independence and control vast areas of Burma, a nation of 38 million people about the size of Texas.

Tourists arriving in Bangkok said some shops reopened Friday and some buses were running in Rangoon, which has been under martial law and an 8 p.m.-4 a.m. curfew. Protesters have destroyed streetlights in the city and burned buildings, houses and police stations.

About 200 soldiers and 100 policemen stayed indoors at Victoria Point in Burma's southernmost province of Megui while 2,000 protesters marched for a third straight day Friday, a Thai official said.

Chalerm Supamorn, governor of Ranong province bordering Megui, said the checkpoint had been closed Wednesday at the request of Burmese authorities who feared people would cross the frontier to incite protesters.

Rangoon radio denied on Friday that protesters controlled Victoria Point, a prosperous market town of 5,000 people 500 miles southeast of Rangoon.

Kyodo, quoting sources it did not identify, reported from Rangoon on Thursday that protesters occupied government offices in Pegu, 45 miles northeast of Rangoon. A Western diplomat said demonstrators roamed freely in Pegu and the army took no action.

Numerous less reliable reports spoke of military disaffection in other areas.

The Japanese agency quoted Rangoon sources Friday as saying soldiers and demonstrators fought at Moulmein, 100 miles southeast of the capital.

President says Iran now regional power

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — President Ali Khamenei said Friday that Iran has emerged from eight years of war against Iraq as a victorious regional power with new worldwide respect.

Also on Friday, Iran denied Iraqi claims that it shelled Iraqi military positions. A U.N. fact-finding team arrived in the Iranian capital to investigate allegations of Iraq's use of chemical weapons.

"Today, the system of the Islamic Republic of Iran, for all the ineffective efforts of the enemies, has turned into an important power in the whole of the region," Khamenei said at a prayer sermon at the Tehran University campus. His remarks were broadcast on state-run Tehran radio.

"The nation of Iran is counted as an armed and established military force in the region," he said.

Khamenei said Iran gained worldwide respect because of the military prowess it displayed in the war, which he said the country acquired without depending on outside powers.

"These eight years of war and resistance taught other nations that it is possible to defend themselves without depending on big powers," he said, adding Iraq had been defeated because "it has not been able to achieve its despicable objectives."

Iran and Iraq agreed last week to an Aug. 20 cease-fire in their conflict, which killed or wounded an estimated 1 million people.

Iran had recently suffered a series of losses on the battlefield, leading it to accept a U.N. cease-fire resolution July 18.

In another development, British diplomat David Reddaway arrived in Tehran Friday for talks about British and other foreign hostages held in Lebanon by pro-Iranian groups. Before leaving London, Reddaway said he would speak with officials about the 18 hostages, who include Anglican envoy Terry Waite and two other Britons as well as nine Americans.

The foreign hostage held longest is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press. He was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

A spokesman for the War Information Headquarters in Tehran dismissed Iraq's claims of Iranian shelling as "false propaganda," the official Islamic Republic News Agency said.

Baghdad accused Iran Thursday of shelling Iraqi military positions near the Shatt al-Arab waterway, where the Persian Gulf war broke out in September 1980.

The accusation was made in a statement issued by the Iraqi mission to the United Nations in New York. It was not carried on newscasts in Iraq.

In his speech, Khamenei urged Iranian volunteer and other forces to remain at the front to defend the country and to give more power to Iran on the international political scene.

"Even after the war, defense will continue and members of the armed forces and volunteers must be present to defend Iran's territorial integrity alongside the country's reconstruction," he told the throng of worshipers.

Worshipers chanted "Down with the U.S.A.!" "Down with the Soviet Union!" and "Down with Israel!" and pledged to obey revolutionary patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

The audience at Khamenei's sermon included about 100 Iraqi prisoners of war, with about 25 of them wearing red headbands indicating they want to fight Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The crowd was smaller than that at a similar sermon attended by an Associated Press reporter four weeks ago.

An official at the prayer service said the crowd was small "because so many people have followed the call to go to the battle front." He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Plastic collection boxes were on hand at the sermon for worshipers to contribute to the war effort.

Since Iran announced it was accepting the U.N. cease-fire resolution, the once all-pervasive slogan "War, war until victory!" has been abandoned, said a Westerner based in Tehran.

The Islamic Republic News Agency said a four-member team of chemical weapons experts would travel to the northwestern Kurdish town of Oshnaviyeh in the province of West Azerbaijan.

Iran alleges that a chemical attack on the town earlier this month injured more than 2,000 civilians, including many women and children.

U.N. reports have confirmed Iraq's use of chemical weapons in the past.

At the United Nations, a spokesman said Friday that the 350 unarmed U.N. military observers monitoring the cease-fire between Iran and Iraq will have headquarters in both Tehran and Baghdad.

Ortega offers to renew peace talks with rebels

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua on Friday offered to renew peace talks with U.S.-supported rebels either in Managua or Washington.

Ortega, who is on an official visit to Ecuador, also criticized the U.S. Congress for approving new aid to the rebels and called it an act of "aggression." He demanded that such aid be stopped.

Representatives from the leftist Sandinista government and the Contras agreed on a cease-fire March 23 under a Central American peace plan that Ortega and four other presidents in the region signed in July 1987.

The cease-fire often has been violated but extended by both sides, most recently by Nicaragua unilaterally until Aug. 30. But the two sides have deadlocked on a permanent truce and have failed to agree on a site or date for talks since the last round ended June 9.

Leaders of the rebels, known as Contras, said they would hold no further meetings in Managua, the Nicaraguan capital. The Contras claimed the Sandinistas refused to allow them freedom of movement.

"We invite the Contras...to come to Managua" Aug. 26-29, Ortega told a news conference.

"We see no sense in having the meeting in another country," he said. "The only place outside of Managua that we would accept would be Washington. In Washington it would be possible to achieve something because Washington is part of the aggression against Nicaragua."

On Wednesday, the Senate approved by a 49-47 vote a Democratic plan to provide $27 million in humanitarian assistance to the Contras. Senate Republicans, who had sought military as well as humanitarian assistance, voted against the proposal.

Adolfo Calero, a Contra leader, said Thursday that talks might be possible in September.

In a statement made available to The Associated Press in Managua, Calero said the Contras would agree to a meeting "but not to discuss democratic reforms, rather to carry them out."

He charged it is the Sandinistas who "have moved away from negotiations, now that they perceive that we don't have aid from the United States."

The peace plan, which aims to negotiate an end to the 7-year-old war in Nicaragua as well as leftist guerrilla wars in El Salvador and Guatemala, calls for cease-fires, democratic reforms and an end to outside military assistance to rebels.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz, Cuban President Fidel Castro and Costa Rican President Oscar Arias were among those attending Wednesday's inauguration of Ecuadorian President Rodrigo Borga, a moderate leftist who replaced Leon Febres Cordero, a conservative.

It was Castro's first trip to South America in 17 years. The presidents of Argentina, Uruguay, Colombia and Venezuela also were present.

Ortega arrived the day after the inauguration, because Febres Cordero cut off diplomatic relations with Nicaragua in 1985.

Botha says U.S. sanctions could hurt peace plan

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha on Friday accused U.S. congressmen of "recklessness" and said a tough sanctions bill passed by the House of Representatives could jeopardize a regional peace plan.

Botha said the legislation would not help South African blacks and might "obstruct or make impossible" an initiative to end South Africa's 73-year rule over South-West Africa, also known as Namibia.

"The recklessness of members of Congress who do not care in the least whether their actions adversely affect the search for a peaceful solution to the problems of southern Africa as a whole is astounding," Botha said.

The sanctions bill would halt U.S. investment in South Africa and impose a near-total trade embargo. It was approved by the House on a 244-132 vote Thursday.

The bill faces a possible Republican filibuster in the Senate and a likely veto by President Reagan. Earlier legislation, which passed despite Reagan's veto, bars imports of various South African commodities and forbids South African planes to land at U.S. airports.

Botha said the bill emerged "for purely internal political aims."

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater also denounced the bill, saying it would "destroy America's flexibility" to seek change through diplomatic pressure.

Republican members urged the House to adopt a policy of "black empowerment" to increase the economic and political power of blacks and weaken apartheid's foundations.

But Rep. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich., a sanctions supporter, said: "Black economic empowerment in the face of apartheid is an impossibility."

Leading black anti-apartheid activists in South Africa, including Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, have urged the West to intensify sanctions as a means of pressuring the government to grant full political rights to the 26 million blacks.

Many black moderates and conservatives, as well as several prominent white liberals, support the government's contention that sanctions will have the harshest effect on blacks and will harden the white minority's resistance to political change.

Botha said he found it "particularly remarkable" that the House acted on the bill "exactly at a time when positive progress was being made with the peace negotiations between South Africa, Cuba and Angola."

The three countries Monday announced a cease-fire in the Angolan civil war. South Africa said it was prepared to begin implementing a U.N. plan for Namibian independence Nov. 1, provided agreement could be reached on a timetable for withdrawing Cuba's troops from Angola.

The estimated 50,000 Cuban soldiers have been supporting Angola's Marxist government in a 13-year war against a South African- and U.S.-backed rebel movement. The movement, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, is not a party to the cease-fire.

"It would be ironical if Resolution 435 (the U.N. independence plan for Namibia) should reach the point of implementation only to be obstructed or made impossible as a result of provisions in the American legislation," Botha said.

U.S. cruiser won't be sent to gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — The Navy has decided not to send another of its billion-dollar "Aegis" cruisers to the Persian Gulf to replace the USS Vincennes, which shot down an Iranian airliner July 3, officers said Friday.

Lt. Cmdr. Tim Taylor, a spokesman for Mayport Naval Station in Florida, said the departure of the USS Mobile Bay has been postponed.

The Mobile Bay had been scheduled to leave the base Friday to join the U.S. Navy Joint Task Force Middle East, which includes 27 warships in the gulf and Arabian Sea.

Military sources in Bahrain indicated privately the decision was related to an expected cutback in the size of the U.S. force after a truce in the 8-year-old war.

They said the Vincennes was expected to remain in the region until early September, and one said an end to the war would "sharply reduce any need" for the Navy to send another warship to the region.

Notice of Effective Tax Rate

1988 Property Tax Rates in Midland County

This notice concerns 1988 property tax rates for Midland County. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the county used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare property taxed in both years. Compare it to the tax rate the county proposes for this year. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the county can set before tax payers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:	General Fund	Farm-to-Market/ Flood Control Fund	Special Road/Bridge Fund
