Hospital - clinic work is delayed

County hospital directors were told Tuesday night that a problem with sand under the mostly clay building pad of the new hospital and physicians' clinic has forced a work stoppage that will last at least 2 1/2 weeks.

Architect Robert Cox of Austin and Project Manager Bob Wallace of Lockhart said some tangential work continues, but the general contractor, Cooper Construction of Odessa, has been told not to proceed with any concrete work.

After a long report by the two men at the board's regular 6 p.m. meeting, the panel voted to have the building and maintenance committee of Kenneth Rogers, John Martinez and Dale Geiger work on the problem and make any necessary decisions.

Cox recommended hiring the Midtech soil testing company of Midland to bore test holes and analyze where injections of lime and a concrete-like substance might be used to stabilize the sand.

Then he wants to bring in the Land Stabilizer Co. of San Antonio to do the injections for $70,000 to $80,000 that he said the district should not have to pay.

"Do we have to have a meeting every time something like this comes up?" asked

County's tax rate to fall

Mitchell County commissioners said Tuesday that increasing oil values should allow a property tax decrease next year.

Following a workshop with County Auditor Susan Buckalew, County Judge Ray Mayo said the 66.341 cent rate per $100 in valuation will probably fall by 2-3 cents.

"The values are up because of the oil and gas, so the effective tax rate should come down," he said. "That's what we're counting on."

Pct. 4 Commissioner Bill

Preston of Loraine said the decrease might be as big as four cents.

Ms. Buckalew's review from 11 to 11:35 a.m. came after a series of workshops last week that developed a tentative overall $436,000 budget hike to $4,067,000 for calendar 2002.

She said after the meeting that a three cent drop would be below the effective rate, or the level that would bring in the same amount of tax revenues next year.

She will bring more exact figures to an Aug. 7 workshop after values are set Wednesday by the county appraisal district and will have a proposed budget for the court to consider adopting on Aug. 13.

The additional funding will provide five percent raises for county employees, increase clerks' hours in the Pcts. 1 and 2 peace justice courts from parttime to fulltime status and give Sheriff Patrick Toombs an extra fulltime deputy to a total of four.

In the court's 9 a.m. called meeting Tuesday, a $154,176 contract was awarded to an Aspermont company to sealcoat 16 1/2 miles of roads.

After reviewing offers of $192,700 from Van Zandt Paving and $206,330 from Jones Brothers Construction, both of Odessa, the panel voted to accept the Lipham Co.'s bid.

With Raymond Van Zandt and Danny Jones there, Commissioner Preston said the contract calls for completion by Sept. 15 of seven miles of roads in his Pct. 4.

Also, three miles in Colorado City Commissioner Ed Roach's Pct. 1, five miles in Cuthbert Commissioner Carl Guelker's Pct. 2 and 1 1/2 miles in Spade Community Commissioner Wendy Inman's Pct. 3.

Lipham will furnish its own rock.

Jones' bid was for 19 miles, but it was still well above Lipham's after the mileage decrease was accounted for.

Other business included the renewal of group health insurance and prescription drug coverage for 56 county employees and 14 dependents after a

Disaster plan outdated

What would Colorado City do if a snowstorm shut down Interstate 20 and too many people were stranded for the motels to accommodate?

If a high pressure natural gas line were punctured and caught fire?

If a tornado killed too many people for the local mortuary to handle and demolished so many houses that scores of local people were left homeless?

If Dyess Air Base were hit by a nuclear missile and thousands of Abilene area people fled into the safer, less contaminated rural areas?

If a truck carrying hazardous chemicals wrecked and spilled on I-20?

These types of questions are posed and answered in disaster plans that Texas counties keep on file with the Department of Public Safety's Division of Emergency Management in Austin.

They're supposed to be reviewed every six months and updated annually, but Mitchell County's dates back to April 22, 1975, signed by County Judge Bill Carter and C-City Mayor Larry Hamner, a DPS spokesman said.

A new plan was written in the late '80's by County Sanitation Officer and emergency planner Jerry Hammond, but it's been lost.

A complete plan has "annexes" that go into great detail, but the one in Austin is 31 pages long with no annexes.

County Judge Ray Mayo has been working on one with annexes since he came into office 11 years ago, but it remains a work in progress.

"It's a really detailed report, several hundred pages long," Judge Mayo said last Friday. "It deals with emergency spills on the highway to tornadoes to any sort of natural disaster."

"The whole point of it is how all the emergency agencies work together whenever disaster does strike. We already have cooperation, so we're not in desperate need of a detailed, written policy, although it certainly wouldn't hurt anything to have one."

Chief of Police Pat Taylor is working on a city plan that he keeps on a compact disc.

He has finished a warning section on the use of weather sirens and public service announcements, and he has a section on fires.

"These emergency plans are overwhelming," he said. "They have a lot of annexes, and some barely have anything to do with hazards in Colorado City."

"Jerry Hammond did one in the late '80's, but no one can find it."

An "Emergency Operations Plan" is a legal document with copies of city and county ordinances that were passed in conjunction with it and interlocal governmental agreements that carry the force of law.

The one from '75 gives broad powers to and puts heavy responsibility on an "Executive Group" of the county judge and mayors of C-City, Loraine and Westbrook, supported by county commissioners, the city manager, city council members, police chief, county sheriff and fire chiefs, who would do radiological monitoring after a nuclear attack.

Managers of shelters in the basements of the county courthouse and City Hall, the First Baptist Church and The Pit gymnasium at Colorado Middle School would have the authority to use "reasonable restraint against those who refuse to cooperate with the routine of shelter living under emergency conditions."

The local mortuary would be expanded into another, unspecified facility "to handle an ex-

AD's budget reviewed, 4 new teachers hired

Colorado City school trustees Monday night tabled consideration of Mitchell County Appraisal District's (AD) budget until their regular Aug. 13 meeting and indicated that it might be favorably viewed then.

After an hourlong executive session in which four new teachers were discussed, the session was recovered at 8:02 p.m. and Supt. Buddy Compton recommended taking final action on the proposed $238,262 AD document in August.

Chief Appraiser Kaye Nell Cornutt had submitted a 14 page memorandum to Compton last Friday after a meeting in which they reviewed compa-

New vendors to return to the Railhead

Scorching heat stifled the year's second Railhead Trade Days last weekend to some extent, but a combination of indoor fans, heavy promotion and momentum from March's event helped it salvage a modicum of success.

"The heat definitely affected it, but we had some vendors who were pleased because they expected the crowd to be smaller with the heat," said Chamber of Commerce Manager Leigh Ann Erwin, referring to 100 degree plus readings Saturday and Sunday.

Seventy indoor vendors and 25 outside showed merchandise ranging from purses, candles and sports memorabilia to Australian Outback hats.

Saturday brought the better crowd, Ms. Erwin said, adding that there is no way accurately to estimate the attendance.

The First National Bank and City National Bank donated two $50 bonds and a $100 bond for which the Chamber sold $1 raffle tickets.

Shirley Hawkins of Colorado City and Roberta Fiscus of Westbrook won First National's bonds and Charles Darlin of Snyder CNB's at the Railhead Trade Days Building at First and Elm Streets.

Local vendors included Mr. and Mrs. George Jones with sports memorabilia and jewelry, Shannon Tubb with home-made bath and body products, Jean Johnson and Tammy French from TJ's Candles & Gifts and Mary Frizzell and Sissy Miller with Mary Kay cosmetics.

Local food vendors were Allen Dockrey with Poverty Hill Barbecue and the C-City Rotary Club with roasted corn and steak on a stick.

Extra promotion attracted a number of new vendors, and those who signed contracts to return Nov. 17-18 were Terry Cummins of Levelland, purses and T-shirts; Roy Mansfield of Big Spring, gift items; and Guy and Dee Dee Trojak of Haskell, crafts and collectibles.

Also, Sharon Matney of Midland, dolls and toys, and Ron Taylor of San Angelo, imported Australian Outback hats, of which a number were sold.

"It's quite a challenge, with the heat, just keeping the ones happy that you've already got," said Ms. Erwin. "They didn't expect to do very well, but overall, everybody was pleased."

GAME WARDEN Randy Bullard will assist in the instruction of Texas Hunters' Education Classes next month at Loraine High School. Successful students will earn a lifetime certificate that is good in other states.

Hunters' etiquette topic of classes in Loraine

LORAIN -- Intensive Texas Hunters' Education Classes will be held for four hours a night Aug. 6, 7 and 9 in the Loraine High School vocational agriculture classroom, qualifying hunters age 13 and older to hunt by themselves anywhere in the United States.

The cost is $10 per student. Call 737-2287 or 2225 to reserve a seat.

Taught by ag teacher Scott Brewer and Game Warden Randy Bullard, the course will end with a 50 question test on which you must score a minimum of 70 points to earn your lifelong Texas Department of Parks & Wildlife (TPW) certification.

For adults as well as teenagers, the classes will be from 6 to 10 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 6, Tuesday, Aug. 7, and Thursday, Aug. 9.

"You might say, 'I know everything about guns,' but it's not just about guns," Bullard said last Thursday.

"It also covers hunting ethics and morals, care of game, hypothermia, survival in the wild, good sportsmanship, water and boating safety and how to deal with landowners."

"It's really a good course." The instruction is mandatory for hunters who were born after Sept. 1, 1971, to get a Texas hunting license, and it is required in Colorado for those born after 1949.

You may take the course and become fully certified if you're at least 13 years old, but hunters under 17 are excused if accompanied by an adult.

You don't need it for a Texas license if you were born before September '71.

"All other states accept it," Bullard said.

Brewer teaches the course, assisted by the game warden, who reviews game and fish laws, "hunting scenarios and situations and simulated violations," Bullard said.

"We all tell war stories and personal experiences. It's a real open forum."

"Road shooting a deer is now a class A misdemeanor on the first offense and a third degree felony on the second. Killing deer on somebody's land without their consent is a third degree felony on the first offense."

"It's no cat and mouse game with the game warden any more. It's pretty serious stuff. When they look at spending time in the big house, it's a heck of a deterrent."

A third degree felony carries a possible penalty of two to 10 years' imprisonment in a state penitentiary.

The instruction leads toward the opening day of deer season on Saturday, Nov. 3, and "youth only" hunting the weekend before that.

Bullard and City DARE Officer Charles Rice, along with other sponsors, are planning their annual youth dove hunt in October, when the number of boys and girls will be increased from 15 to 30.

Clay pigeon shooting and a hamburger cookout is also part of the program to take youngsters hunting who have little experience with the outdoors.

The sponsors choose 10 youths who make excellent showings with their schoolwork and behavior to go on a deer hunt and camp overnight in January.

"Most of the students are younger, but we have grown men who get a lot out of the class," Bullard said.

discussion by Rita Lawlis and Pearlene Nolan of Icon Benefits of Lubbock.

Commissioner Inman presented a nine name petition for county maintenance of a public road off County Road 252 on the west side of Lake C-City, but the court took no action on it.

Commissioners discussed a situation on Inman's road and bridge crew in which an employee is supervised by a relative -- a violation of county personnel policy that Inman inherited when he took office 4 1/2 years ago.

They voted to "grandfather" and allow the situation but agreed to make no future exceptions.

County Librarian Nancy Mayo made an unscheduled appearance to request the installation of a 16 to 20 foot pole 10 feet from the east side of the 340 Oak St. library to hold a CCNet public access computer network antenna.

Preston said he has some 50 foot wooden poles at his precinct barn and quipped, "We can just dig a deeper hole."

The commissioners said they will grant Ms. Mayo's request.

Ms. Buckalew's proposed $5,455 budget amendment was approved to allow County Clerk Debby Carlock to use fee revenues to buy computer software.

native appraisers' salaries in area counties and other data.

Board President Larry Blasingsame, who led critical questioning of Ms. Cornutt during the board's July 9 meeting, said the panel will make a final decision next month.

"I don't think it's anything major," he told Ms. Cornutt, who was accompanied by her deputy chief appraiser, Linda McSpadden, and clerk, Melba Wilkes.

The budget seeks an overall increase of $1,844 and 4.75 percent raises for the staff.

Ms. Cornutt, who will make $32,682 if the budget is approved by the eight taxing entities the AD serves, furnished information that her counterparts make $31,200 in Garza, $39,100 in Kent, $45,203 in Lamb, $38,300 in Runnels, $51,452 in Howard, $29,400 in Sterling and $50,000 in Scurry Counties.

Other business in the 7 p.m. special meeting, which was adjourned at 8:07 with board members Charles Walker and Jesse Muñoz Jr. absent, included announcing the resignation of high school special education teacher Brenda Fillmon.

Ms. Fillmon has accepted an offer from the Hawley School District.

Lisa Stephens of Colorado City, a graduate of the University of Texas-Permian Basin in Odessa who taught high school biology last year, was hired to teach a first grade class at Kelley Elementary School.

Lubbock Christian University graduate Clay Williams of Ballinger, who has been attending the TEA's Region 18 alter-

Two other two teachers were employed -- Norman McNeese of Midland to take Ms. Fillmon's place at Colorado High School and Christy Cade of Pampa to succeed Kim G. Anderson as the counselor at Kelley and Hutchinson.

McNeese is a UTPB graduate and Ms. Cade a 20 year veteran teacher-counselor who graduated from Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Hard to read? No way, Yogi

By Bob Campbell

Sweating out the dog days of summer while reflecting on Yogi Berra and Dwight D. Eisenhower --

"If people don't want to show up, you can't stop 'em," Yogi said.

"Fifty percent of baseball is 90 percent mental."

Once when President Eisenhower was on his way to a news conference that promised to be tricky, an aide asked what he would do.

Confirming a suspicion that his frequent obfuscations were deliberate, he smiled and said, "Confuse 'em!"

That's the opposite, sometimes unappreciated approach from the cliches athletes and politicians use to avoid controversy, like in the movie "Bull Durham" when the catcher tells the star pitcher how to handle the press.

Guys like Yogi, Dwight and the Jedi Knight of doublespeak -- the late New York Yankees manager from the 1950's, Casey Stengel -- considered the necessity of talking to reporters and, rather than settling for staid predictability, decided it was more fun to confuse 'em.

Berra was funny and Eisenhower obscure when he wanted to be, but Stengel was something that's not supposed to be able to exist: a sane man who can talk without making logical sense.

The only comparable thing I know of is the comic novel "Finnegans Wake," in which James Joyce more or less invented a new English language, conceptually sound but nonetheless still unintelligible to many academicians.

Here's Casey in what the sportswriters called "Stengelese": "It might be McDermott or it might be Kochs, but then that Ford wants to win another. But there could be Sturdivant or maybe Larsen. I'd even think of givin' that Turley a chance if I didn't use some other feller."

"I've always heard it couldn't be done, but sometimes it don't always work."

Asked if he would retire if the Yankees didn't win the '54 Pennant, he said, "Well, I made it up, but I made it up both ways."

Here's James: "This battering habel allow the door and sideposts, he always said, was not in the very remotest like the belzey babble of a bottle of booze which would not rouse him out o' slumber deep but reminded him loads more of the martiallawse mares of foreign musikants' instrumongs or the overthrewer to the third last days of Pompery, if anything --" Page 64, Viking Press's '39 edition.

The title does not refer to an Irish funeral. It means Finnegan -- mankind -- wake up.

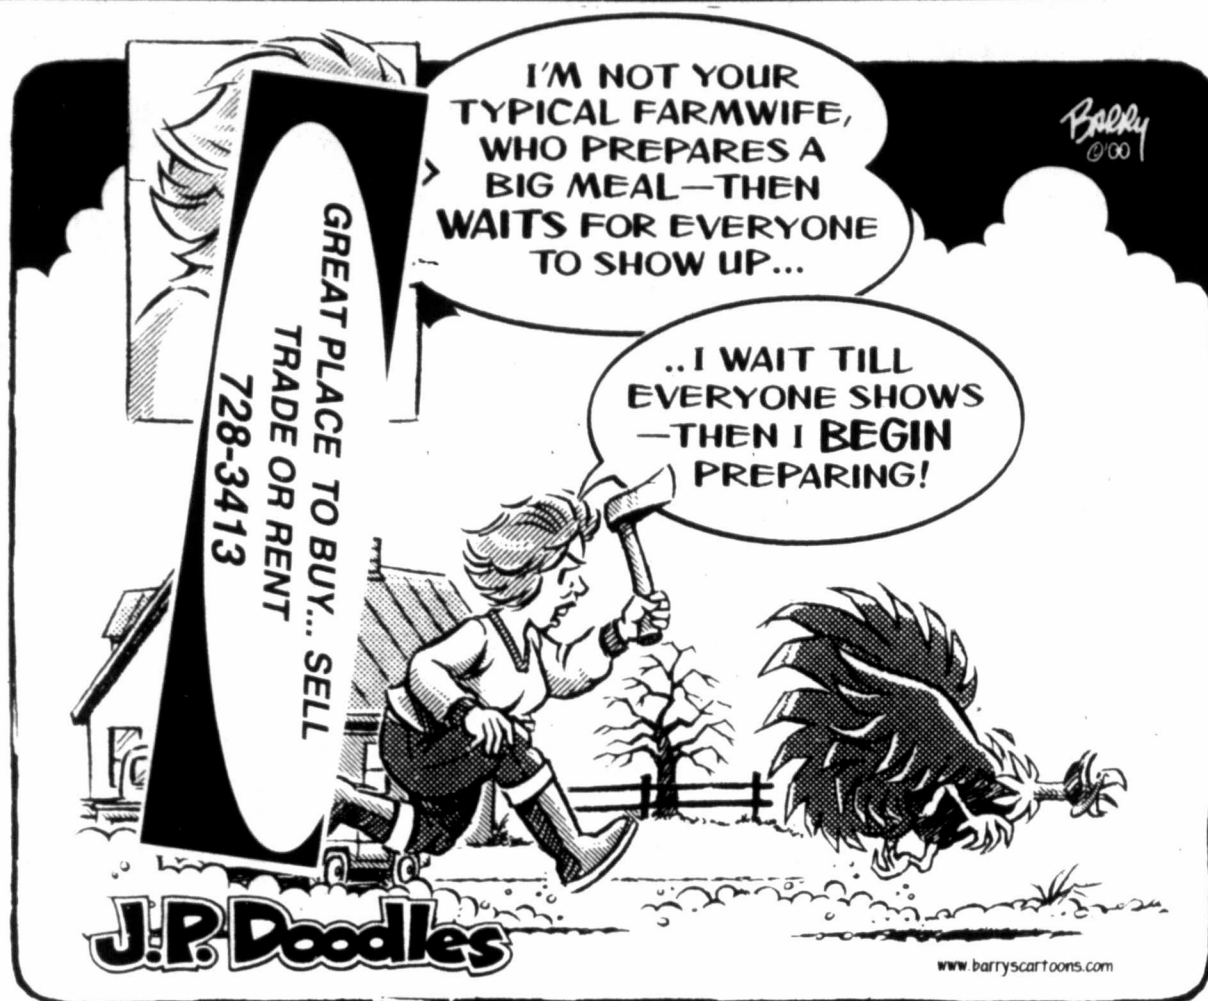

This is okay for a baseball manager who doesn't want to confide in sportswriters or a novelist who wants to do something radically different.

The tack is reminiscent of the Apostle Paul's analysis of speaking in tongues -- it's between you and God but unedifying to the church.

You think about such things, writing for a newspaper.

It's good to be imaginative and entertaining so that you're not too predictable and dull.

But you don't want to lose your thread and stop communicating the worthwhile information that gives the paper its value.

The back forty

by Roger Pond

New trends in government funding are causing charities to rethink the way services are delivered. The idea is for the government to provide more resources to local organizations and let them decide how assistance should be provided.

That's the way it was in the little town where I grew up; Neighbor helping neighbor, so to speak.

Of all the folks needing help in our little town, Duffy was probably one of the most needy. People were good about helping, though, and Duffy (not his real name) always got by one way or another.

There was the time, for example, when one of the farmers passed away and a couple of the boys from town were given the job of finding a home for his last few possessions. Things like an old saddle, a corn sheller, a pair of cowboy boots.

One of the fellows looked at the cowboy boots and said, "I'll bet Ol' Duffy could use these. He never has a decent pair of shoes."

The next time this man saw Duffy on the street he said, "say, Duffy, we were going through Ralph's stuff the other day and found a pretty good pair of cowboy boots. I thought you might be able to use them. What size do you wear?"

"Oh, 7 to 11," Duffy said. That pretty much covered it, so Duffy got the boots.

Boots don't last forever, though, and several years later the old fellow was back to stomping around in the most decrepit pair of footwear you would ever want to see. He happened by the tavern at the same time Harlan (not his real name, either) was showing the boys his newfound wealth.

Harlan never had any money in the past, but he suddenly received an inheritance that he hadn't had time to spend. He was waving a wad of bills that would choke a horse.

Harlan had twenties, fifties, and hundreds -- all rolled up and tied together with a big rubber band. Every once in awhile he would pull a fifty off the roll and order drinks for everybody in the place.

Just as Harlan was telling the boys what he planned to buy with all of his money, Duffy walked by in his tattered, old shoes.

One of his shoes was pretty much intact, but the sole on the other one had come loose in the front -- and was flapping as he walked. Duffy had to swing his foot forward with each step to avoid bending the sole underneath. This created an audible "Whap!."

Duffy's good shoe and his bad shoe worked together, "Clomp, whap!" "Clomp, whap!" "Clomp, whap!"

Duffy walked by Harlan's table, "Clomp, whap!" "Clomp, whap!"; and Harlan said, "Dog gone it Duffy, I can't stand to see a friend of mine flopping around in a pair of shoes like that!"

Then, he grabbed that big wad of bills out of his packet and yanked off the rubber band. "Here, Duffy," he said. "Take this rubber band and see if you can't do something about that sole."

Four Days On The Road In East Texas

By Tumbleweed Smith

On the way to East Texas I stopped in DeLeon and visited with Wallace Cook, a man who spends most of his time collecting jokes. In Comanche I listened to Patti O'Donnell tell me how she had a dream that she owned a gift shop in an old house. She actually found a house that looked exactly like the one in the dream. She bought it and opened a gift shop in it.

In Moody, I visited with a beer can collector and poet and heard about the cotton gin festival coming up in September.

In Crockett I met Vince Patrick who gets up at 3:30 in the morning at his home in Oakwood, drives to Crockett and does a morning radio gig at KIVY, then goes back to Oakwood to take care of his deer ranch.

In Oakland, Dale Shroyer gave me some background on the community where he lives.

I interviewed Joanne Warner, a Cajun woman who loves Cajun food and music.

Jerry Gentry has a unique business in the Davy Crockett National Forest. He offers the Ribeye Trail Ride which includes a 2 hour horseback ride, a candlelight ribeye dinner and a log cabin for the night, all for $60 per person.

Jerry House is a minister in Crockett who also owns a general store in the tiny village of Leona. He cooks barbeque on Saturday nights at the store, then hightails it back to Crockett to fill the pulpit Sunday morning.

Dennis Ivey of Crockett told me how he used to play in bands around the state and wrote a song that is popular around Christmas time. He got into music by hearing tunes on the juke box in his mother's cafe in the Madison county town of Midway.

Suzanne Conaway told me about working as a saw filer at sawmill. She lives at Stubblefield, the gateway to Nogales Prairie and Brownlee Hill. Tim Culp brought me up to date on Crockett's world champion fiddlers contest.

At Alto I learned about how ropes were sold in hardware stores long ago.

In Jacksonville, Robert Nichols told me about hunting big game in Africa. At Rusk I interviewed Mike Hall, an Elvis impersonator. TJ Hunter of Lone Oak is a helicopter mechanic now working in Bogota, Columbia keeping the helicopters working in the war against drugs.

I interviewed Max Schochler of Rusk, a day lily expert and Marion Lindsey of Alto, whose family has been in the fur business for generations. Between Alto and Rusk I met Tom and Jan Townsend, who raise miniature horses and cows and provide military vehicles and equipment to movie companies. Some of their stuff is in the movie Pearl Harbor.

My last interview on this trip was with Darell Massey, an inmate at a state prison in Rusk. He is behind bars for DWI. He has an exceptional talent in art and has done murals in the Cherokee county court house.

FOURTEEN FEET, SIX INCHES, AND GROWING is Dan Smith's assessment of a sunflower plant that spouted wild in a bed of cannas in his 1017 Vine St. backyard. The 6 foot 1 correctional officer and his wife Dot continue to water it, wondering how tall it will get. Its strong stem has withstood several high winds.

CHIPS signups urged

The CHIP insurance program is designed for families who make too much money to qualify for Medicaid health care, yet cannot afford to buy private insurance. The parents in some of these families have jobs that do not offer health insurance for children. Other parents' job offer health insurance, but the insurance is so expensive that families cannot afford it.

CHIP insurance will solve this cost problem for many Texas families. In CHIP, many families will only pay an annual fee of $15 to cover all their children in the plan. Higher-income families will pay monthly premiums of $15 or $18, which covers all children in the family. Most families also will have co-payments for doctor visits, prescription drugs and emergency care. Proof of income and childcare expenses are needed to complete applications.

CHIP covers services such as hospital care, surgery, x-rays, therapies, prescription drugs, mental health and substance abuse treatment, emergency ser-

Children who enroll in CHIP receive 12 months of continuous coverage. Families must re-enroll their children once a year.

To qualify for CHIP a child must be:

- A Texas resident
- A US citizen or legal resident (the citizenship or immigration status of the parents does not affect the child(ren)'s eligibility and is not reported on the application form)
- Under age 19
- Be uninsured for at least 90 days (although there are several exceptions to this requirement)
- Living in a family that meets CHIP Income Requirements

Call 915-235-8455 or 1-800-592-7433. A CHIP representative will be at Fuller Foods, 405 Hickory, on July 31 from 3 to 6 p.m.

DISASTER

cessive number of fatalities in the event of a large scale accident or disaster.

Tim Warren, maintenance superintendent at TXU Electric & Gas Co.'s Morgan Creek Plant at Lake C-City, said the plant has natural gas lines running in several directions from the Lone Star, El Paso Energy and Oak One companies.

Plant Manager Alvin Goodman said the plant's employees would work cooperatively with local fire departments in other types of fires, but a pipeline rupture and fire would call for another approach.

"A pipeline is a different situation," Goodman said. "Our first priority is safety. Then we would notify the affected company."

"They're the professionals, and they have the ability remotely to shut down the gas flow. We would let them handle it."

Enacted under the Texas Disaster Act of '73 and the Federal Civil Defense Act of '50, the Mitchell County plan designates the Police Department at 180 W. Third St. as the Emergency Operations Center with the sheriff's office as the alternate location.

"You sure need to keep these things updated," Carter said.

"You don't just sit down and do it in half an hour. You've got to have people who are willing to work."

The former county judge, who served from '71 to '89, said the only open courthouse door would be the one on the north side for people to go directly into the basement.

Beyond Mitchell County, all area plans should be interconnected so that C-City and Abilene, for example, have mutual responsibility, he said.

Advance agreements should be in effect with the Texas Department of Human Services, American Red Cross, Salvation Army, civic organizations, service clubs, churches and other welfare organizations, the 26 year old plan says.

(Next week: two situations in the '70's when emergency measures were taken; state and federal grant money that is available to counties that keep up to date plans; and what officials of the DPS Division of Emergency Management say about Mitchell County's outdated one.)

HOSPITAL

Rogers. "Why did we hire you and Mr. Wallace?"

"I don't think we should be deciding what needs to be done because I don't think it's our baby," Board President Kent Boyd said.

Cox said Job Supt. Raymond Chaisson asked to continue working on the north end of the pad because it does not have a potentially destabilizing sand problem, but he said "no" because one end of the 500 foot plus long complex could be affected by the other.

He noted that District Administrator Rick Rickard wants the hospital-clinic to be in operation by next spring, and he said that is still feasible.

It is at Rogers Road and South Interstate 20 east of the Wallace-Ware Units.

"Your project will be completed," the architect said. "It will be a sterling success."

"It will not be 'let's try it and see if it works.' It will be a designed, engineered solution."

He said Cooper has worked with pad injections before and has confidence in the method, which has been used at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, Scott & White Clinic in Temple and a Big Spring junior high school.

"It appears that two thirds of the site has sand below," Cox said. "The clinic is fine because it's on the north side, and a lot of the sand on the south is not under the building."

"In this process, we could basically resolve all of the sand compaction issues."

He said the only options other than injections are to tear down the pad, or base of the foundation, and start over, wiping out $500,000 of work, or keep working without addressing the problem.

He said it was found when four test holes were drilled.

Other business included a quality report by compliance coordinator-RN Linda Mize that the stringent privacy rules being enacted by the health care industry might prove unconstitutional because the industry is, in effect, trying to create new laws.

A budget workshop was set for 8 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 11, in the physical therapy room at the old hospital at 15-43 Chestnut St.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

Well, I'm back in the saddle again, but this time I'm carrying some ammunition. I was appalled by the way Kaye Nell Cornutt was treated by two members of the Colorado ISD school board in a meeting held Monday night July 16.

Ms. Cornutt went there to give the board a copy of the Appraisal District's proposed budget for 2002, so they could study it and make recommendations (it has to be voted on by the appraisal board prior to September 15th). The CISD didn't have to vote on it then, but Board President Larry Blasingame chose to attack Ms. Cornutt verbally at the meeting. According to the Colorado Record, Blasingame started off by saying that he would be honest and that he had caught some flack over last year's budget. He didn't say by whom.

Ms. Cornutt explained to Blasingame that city and county employees were getting a five percent raise next year and that she had proposed a 4.75% raise for her employees. Blasingame asked if Ms. Cornutt and Ms. McSpadden should be classified as appraisers and get a 4.75 percent raise when most of the appraisal work is done by outside companies. He also told Ms. Cornutt that she is essentially an office manager. His sidekick and fellow board member, Southwestern Bell employee Jesse Munoz told Cornutt, "That's a pretty good chunk for an office manager." 25 years ago a man would never have thought about humiliating a lady in public. I guess that's what brought on sexual harassment lawsuits.

I thought that is was very demeaning for two men to publicly denounce Ms. Cornutt in such a humiliating and degrading manner. Ms. Cornutt is a state registered appraiser and also a registered tax assessor. This certification is based on a five-year series of classes, tests, and experience (there is also additional mandatory classes after certification). She has worked at the appraisal office as an appraiser since 1985 and was hired as Chief Appraiser when Mike Burt retired at the end of 1996. A Chief Appraiser's main duties are established by the state and nowhere is it stated that a Chief Appraiser must do the actual appraising, only that he/she is responsible for it being done.

After dismissing Ms. Cornutt, the CISD board went into their own budget agenda. They approved Supt. Compton a five percent raise to $75,791, making him the highest paid superintendent in CISD history, and he's only been there for two years.

His salary is 31% of the appraisal district's total budget. I repeat that his salary is 31% of the appraisal district's total budget. Each principal received $1,000 raises and Coach James went up to $57,174 going into his fourth year as head Football coach and Athletic Director. Now, let me say this. I believe all the school raises to be justified as long as everyone is getting a piece of the action and I certainly don't object to Compton's raise, and besides the state set a minimum on what superintendents are paid.

Business Manager, Geneva Ratliff, warned that the loss of ADA and oil could cause the district some serious set backs financially and that some serious cuts might be necessary. It seems to me that the $1,844 increase in the Appraisal District's proposed budget and a 4.75% salary increase for its employees is very minor in comparison to some of the expenditures approved by the CISD board. I realize that examining and questioning the appraisal district's proposed budget is the CISD board's responsibility, but I believe there is an acceptable manner in which to do so and this sure was not one of them.

Movie Review

By Casey Eagan

Now that I've been reviewing movies for the Record for a while now, I've started to wonder what it would be like to make a career out of it.

I assume I would have to go to "Movie Review School" and spend countless hours at the theaters or in front of the TV set analyzing every detail of every scene until my eyes gloss over.

My knowledge of films would expand, I'm sure but I'm afraid I would forget the reasons why I love to go to the movies in the first place.

I think many "professional" critics stopped having fun long ago.

For instance, Jurassic Park III (rated PG-13: mild language, dinosaur violence) now showing at Snyder Cinema I and II, is a film that has not been well received by most critics.

Jurassic Park returns Dr. Alan Grant (Sam Neill, from the original), who is hired by a wealthy couple (played by William H. Macy and Tea Leoni) to be their guide as they fly above one of the remaining islands that is home to the dinosaurs from the first two films.

The couple has an ulterior motive for going to the island, however, and it's up to Dr. Grant to keep everyone from becoming a full-course meal.

There are certain parts of the plot that are a little "convenient", and it doesn't have the same flair as the original, but I thought it was fast and fun, as long as you remember that the dinosaurs are the real stars.

Did I learn anything important, other than never, ever steal eggs from a Raptor? No, but the three main actors are real pros and the computer generated dinos are incredible, earning Jurassic Park III 3 stars out of 4.

My next review if for Cats and Dogs (rated PG: mild language) now playing at Snyder Cinema I and II.

How's this for a premise? Our lovable house pets are actually as intelligent as humans and are waging a secret battle with each other, complete with the most up to date weapons and technology.

The cat's are the bad guys, led by a maniacal fluffy white kitty named Mr. Tinkles (voiced by Sean Hayes), who's plot to rule the world involves stealing a dog allergy formula invented by an eccentric scientist (Jeff Goldblum).

Attempting to head off the fiendish feline is a beagle puppy named Lou (voiced by Tobey Maguire), a rookie agent adopted by the scientist's family.

Lou eventually grows attached to his human family and decides to help them no matter what the cost.

The film tends to drag early before kicking into gear when it focuses on the four legged actors, especially the hilarious Mr. Tinkles.

The plot may not be that far fetched. For instance, my cat is evil, ruining my living room furniture in his mad quest for world domination.

OK, so it's not going to win any awards, but it's harmless fun, and my 7 year old son thought it was a riot, earning Cats and Dogs 3 stars out of 4.

COOK'S CORNER

Have you been craving seafood lately?
We have, too, and we found some highly rated recipes on the Internet.

Everyone needs good seafood recipes so they can cook like a pro, so give these a try!

Angel Hair Pasta with Shrimp & Basil

1/4 cup light olive oil
1 8oz. package angel hair pasta
1 teaspoon chopped garlic
1 lb. large shrimp, peeled & deveined
2 28 oz. cans Italian-style diced tomatoes, drained
1/2 cup dry white wine
1/4 cup chopped parsley
3 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
3 tablespoons grated parmesan cheese

Add 1 tablespoon olive oil to a large pot of lightly salted water, and bring to a boil. Add pasta, and cook until al dente; drain. To keep pasta from sticking together, rinse it quickly with cold water.

Heat remaining olive oil in a 10 inch skillet. Cook garlic over medium heat, stirring constantly until the garlic is tender, about 1 minute. Do not let the garlic burn. Add shrimp and continue stirring until pink, about 3 to 5 minutes. Remove shrimp from the skillet, and set aside.

Stir tomatoes, wine, parsley and basil into the skillet. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, until liquid is reduced by half, 8 to 12 minutes. Return shrimp to the skillet, and continue cooking until the shrimp are heated through, about 2 to 3 minutes. Serve the shrimp mixture over the pasta. Top with parmesan cheese.

Absolutely the Best Shrimp Scampi

1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
1 1/2 lbs. fresh shrimp, shelled and deveined without tails
1/2 cup olive oil
4 cloves garlic, minced
1 shallot, chopped
1/2 cup fresh parsley, minced
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano, crushed
2 tablespoons white wine
2 tablespoons brandy

In a small bowl, combine flour, salt, pepper and cayenne pepper. Mix thoroughly. Dredge shrimp in flour mixture.

In a large skillet, saute dredged shrimp in olive oil for 5 minutes over high heat. Toss shrimp often to prevent burning. Transfer shrimp with a slotted spoon to a serving dish, leaving the oil in the pan.

In the same pan, saute the garlic, shallot, parsley and oregano over medium heat for 3 minutes; stirring constantly. Spoon the mixture over the shrimp. Return pan to the heat. Preheat your broiler for medium heat.

Pour the wine and brandy into the skillet and ignite with a match or lighter. When the flames die down, stir to loosen any browned bits on the bottom of the skillet; pour over shrimp.

Place the serving dish of shrimp in a preheated broiler for about 2 minutes.

Crab Dip II

1 8 oz. package cream cheese, softened
1 oz. container sour cream
1/2 cup chopped celery
3 green onions, chopped
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1/2 pound imitation crab, chopped
5 drops hot pepper sauce

In a medium bowl, blend the cream cheese and sour cream. Mix in the celery, green onions, lemon juice, cheddar cheese, imitation crab and hot pepper sauce. Serve chilled.

Best served with buttery, round crackers, but excellent with raw veggies too. Adjust the amounts of imitation crab and hot pepper sauce to taste.

Campers enjoy piano camp

Lynn Baldwin's Studio of Music used Jazz Jammin' with Jazz' as the theme for the recent piano camp held in Snyder. Campers enjoyed learning new fun music at 5 piano sized digital keyboards, grand piano, console piano and church-sized organ. They each had piano partners and divided into 2 teams.

Each team wrote, produced and acted in a 20 minute musical featuring puppets and special music effects.

Fun days were the Hawaiian Day and Japanese Days. Parents and friends enjoyed a Friday noon program as a closing to a wonderful week of music, musical relay games and swimming.

Wolves add new Coaches to staff

CHS and CMS will have a new look to their coaching staff for the upcoming school year.

Athletic Director Gerald James will welcome new assistants Shae Sanford, Chad Burleson, Raymond House, Stephen Summers and Krissy Crawford to his staff as they begin preparation for pre-season workouts.

Coach Sanford is a recent graduate of McMurry University and will assist with JV football, JV basketball and varsity track.

"I like the small town environment," said Coach Sanford. "I'm looking forward to it."

Coach Burleson hails from Early and will assist JV football and freshman basketball.

"My wife goes to school in Big Spring, so it worked out well," said Coach Burleson. "Coaching at a smaller school appeals to me."

Coach House comes to Colorado City from Hardin-Simmons University and will coach Middle School basketball and track.

"I'm glad to be here," said Coach House. "I live in Snyder, so it's great to be able to coach so close to home."

Coach Summers will assist the Middle School girls volleyball, basketball, and track, while Coach Crawford will assist with volleyball, basketball, and softball.

5k relay to begin soon

MCYLA and the Permian Basin Road Runners will host the Rocket Docket 5k (run/walk relay) at Memorial Stadium in Midland, Texas August 11, 2001. The race day registration will begin at 7:00 a.m. to 8:15 a.m. and the race will begin at 8:30 a.m.

All proceeds from this charitable run will be donated to the Judge Lucius Bunton Memorial Law Scholarship Fund. This fund was established in 2001 following the death of long time Federal District Judge Lucius D. Bunton, III.

The scholarship fund is set up through the Permian Basin Area Foundation. The scholarship has received substantial support from local law firms and attorneys; however, that support is not enough to completely sustain the scholarship in perpetuity. MCYLA organized the Rocket Docket to raise money for the scholarship fund to ensure its longevity.

The race will be a 5k distance. All runners and walkers of any level and age are welcome. There will also be a 5k division in which three runners will run approximately 1 mile of the 5k distance. Awards will be given in all age groups.

The cost of the run is $18.00 for adults and children over age 12 prior to August 1, 2001. $20.00 after August 1, 2001. Children under 12 are free. $45.00 for 3 persons 5k relay teams.

The sponsors are T3 Wireless, Inc., Merrill Lynch, and Permian Court Reporters.

loraine news

by Bessie Ann Vaughn

Greetings. Talk about something different... I'm babysitting a fish.

I volunteered for the job while a friend is on vacation, thinking it would be fun. "Rudy" won't talk to me. He doesn't watch TV and music doesn't sway him.

I started crocheting a purple leash for Rudy so we could take long walks and get out of the house. When I learned that he was a killer fish, I stopped crocheting. Who wants to walk with a murderer?

At night when I try to sleep, the theme song from "Jaws" comes into my dreams and I yell for a lifeguard. I will never be the same.

Attending the Graham and Warren Reunion, Sunday, July 22 from Loraine were: Doris and Donald Graham, Roland Graham, Bob and Wanza Graham and Tommy and Brenda Linam.

Bill Hart of Marble Falls was a guest in the home of Juanice Butler last Thursday. Bill is her nephew.

Jan Brown is in Houston for several days. She is visiting her children.

Ross Snyder of Dallas will be here next week visiting with his mother, Bertha Fay Snyder.

For those interested in the Loraine Homecoming, it will take place Fri. and Sat., Oct. 12, 13.

A reception will be held on Friday.

Sharon Clifton, who lives near Canyon Lake, visited with Bea Lee Tuesday and planned to visit with Shep and Sally Compton in Bedford, after leaving Bea's home on Wednesday.

A picnic was held at Loraine City Park Sat., July 21 for the children of Loraine.

The picnic was hosted by the First Baptist Church Vacation Bible School.

Lela Bowlin had a good visit with her children last Sunday. The Bowlins, Fred and Barbara are from Del Rio.

Quenton, Paten, Kristian and Ryan Merket from Lamesa were in town last Saturday visiting with Joan and Narl Long.

Senior Center
Last Friday at the center we were pleased to have the Audrey Wilson band from Snyder.

Musicians and singers were Jack Denman, Don Johnson, Billy Wilson and Audry Wilson.

Charles Dunn was away on vacation.

Ken Northcutt pleased the audience with his singing and taped music.

They also enjoyed eating green enchiladas.

On Wed., July 25, the Old Soreheads from Stanton will be here to play. It is also birthdays for the month of July.

Out of the Mouth Babes
Little Billy was thumbing through his grandmother's big old family Bible when a pressed leaf fell from it.

Grandmother asked, "Billy, what fell from the Bible?"
"I don't know Granny, but I think it was Adam's underwear."

Welcome to Loraine! See you around town!

The Commission has established PUC Docket No. 24236 to review this Price to Beat filing. If you would like additional information, please contact TXU Energy Services (toll-free) at (888) 399-5027. Tips to Help You Write Your Classified Ad

1. Identify - begin with the item for sale, service you are offering, or job title of the person you're looking to hire.
2. Describe - the more information you provide to the reader the better the responses. Put yourself in the buyer's place. What would you want to know?
3. Don't Exaggerate - list the features and the condition. Make your description attractive, but believable!
