

Baby panda doing fine

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Five weeks after its birth, the only living panda bred normally in captivity is still leading a sheltered existence, isolated with its mother in an air-conditioned cage and kept away from a multitude of Mexican admirers.

On a closed-circuit TV screen at Mexico City's Chapultepec Zoo, the tiny creature born July 21 looks somewhat like a big white rat. It has grown to 2 pounds 10 ounces, 12 times its weight at birth, and is just over a foot long. But still unable to walk or open its eyes, it lives on its belly, nurses every hour, and struggles futilely twice a day to stand up.

"La Cria is growing normally and doing fine," said Dr. Gabino Vazquez, the zoo's administrator.

La Cria, which means suckling in Spanish, is what the caretakers are calling their baby until the Mexican government decides on a name.

Six zookeepers take turns watching La Cria on the TV monitor around the clock. They refuse to go near the baby, or to put it on public view, until it gets old enough to stray from the mother, Ying-Ying, a milestone expected in December, Vazquez said. Even Pe Pe, the father, is kept in a separate cage.

The precautions are being taken to prevent a repetition of the tragedy that befell the first offspring of Ying-Ying and Pe Pe. Viewed by visitors from the time of its birth on Aug. 11, 1980, it was crushed to death by Ying-Ying eight days later. Veterinarians say the spectators may have made her nervous.

The panda is a black and white mammal of the raccoon family that grows to 300 pounds. There are only about 250 in the world, most of them in the wilds of southern China or northern Burma, the rest in zoos. Successful breeding in captivity may help save them from extinction.

The Chinese have produced at least one cub in captivity by artificial insemination. But Ying-Ying and Pe Pe, gifts of the Chinese government in 1976, are the only pandas that have bred normally in captivity. Mating efforts at the London, Moscow and Washington zoos have failed, although London Zoo officials said this week that Ching, may be pregnant by artificial insemination.

Reagan doesn't like to bear bad news

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan doesn't like to be the bearer of bad news.

From welcoming back the American hostages in Iran at the opening of his administration to the highly visible and successful lobbying campaign for his tax and budget cuts before going on vacation, the president usually has an upbeat message when he turns up in front of television cameras.

But when the news is bad or likely to stir a controversy, chances are that someone else winds up as the administration's spokesman.

Cutbacks in Social Security, deployment of the neutron warhead, easing of clean air regulations, a new immigration policy, plans to sell sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia and other thorny issues were left to Reagan's lieutenants and Cabinet secretaries.

In a White House staffed with public relations specialists, it's no surprise the president's men work to build up his popularity and try to keep him being linked with issues that could detract from his image.

It's been a goal in other administrations, but usually not pursued with the zeal of the Reagan White House. For his part, Reagan makes no excuses about dropping a hot potato in someone else's lap.

For example, the president made a rare trip to the White House press room to personally announce he had chosen a woman — Sandra O'Connor — for a Supreme Court vacancy. But he came only to read a prepared statement and brought along the attorney general to field reporters' questions.

As Reagan tried to leave the podium, a reporter the attorney general here and let him answer the questions," Reagan replied, moving toward the door.

"But the right-to-life people object," the reporter persisted, "and we just wonder if —"

"All those questions the attorney general is prepared to answer," the president insisted.

Finally, under more questioning, Reagan said he was "completely satisfied" with her position. With that, he was gone.

Reagan generally has been insulated from foreign policy flaps — ranging from the congressional uproar over the proposed sale of AWACS radar planes to Saudi Arabia to the Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's call for the United States to deal with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. deals with those issues.

When the administration decided to get tough with striking air traffic controllers, it was the president who warned them they were violating an oath and would be fired if they refused to go back to work.

In this case, the administration calculated the president's stand would be politically popular and show Reagan as a strong, decisive leader.

On domestic policy, most of Reagan's public appearances have been devoted to his economic program, with a series of speeches and televised addresses to mobilize public support.

Even in the economic area, however, Reagan was portrayed by his staff as an overall orchestrator of policy instead of as a man involved in the line-by-line details of budget cuts and tax tradeoffs.

Reagan never publicly discussed the number of people who would be affected by cuts in food stamps, school lunches, welfare, housing subsidies, health cartoonists to lampoon.

In the heat of negotiations on Capitol Hill on the tax cut, Reagan spoke to a group of businessmen at the White House about his program. Citing another appointment, he excused himself early and left Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan behind to answer questions.

Reagan went upstairs, changed clothes and within a half-hour was heading for an afternoon of horse-back riding.

Extended forecast

West Texas: Mostly fair with no important change in temperature. Highs in the 80s to the upper 90s. Lows in the 50s to the 60s. Winds in the 10 to 20 mph.

Sunny weekend in forecast

For people who like to bronze their skin under blazing rays of the sun, it should be another beautiful weekend in Midland and the surrounding areas.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, skies should be fair tonight and sunny on Saturday.

The thermometer should dip to the middle 60s tonight and climb into the low 80s on Saturday.

Winds will be light and variable through Saturday.

Thursday's high of 91 missed the record high of 100 set for that date in 1977 by nine degrees. The record low of 60 set in 1970 was four degrees cooler than today's low of 64.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast for most of Texas today as a weak cool front

Escaped convict back home

By SCOTT SHEPARD
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — An escaped convict who spent his 27 years of freedom as a model citizen before his recapture earlier this week is back home today with his wife and two young sons.

Charles Rape was released from prison Thursday and placed on a 90-day "pre-discretionary leave," allowing him to return to his family and his job at a service station in the south-east Alabama city of Dothan.

"This procedure is consistent with the best interest of the public, the inmate and the Department of Corrections," acting state prison commissioner Joe Hopper said in a prepared statement announcing Rape's release.

Hopper said Rape's case will be placed on the state Pardon and Parole Board docket. He said Rape will be eligible for parole after a month on "pre-discretionary leave."

Hopper said his decision to release Rape was made with the "full support" of Gov. Fob James, who, as the court-appointed receiver of the state penal system, is responsible for, among other things, relieving overcrowding in Alabama prisons.

Rape, 33, was arrested Monday afternoon on charges that he had escaped in 1954 from a state prison in Atmore after serving nine months of a five-year sentence for grand larceny of a motor vehicle belonging to his former wife.

After his escape 27 years ago, Rape went to Miami where he ran a service station. In 1971 he remarried. Seven years ago he moved to Dothan where he is known as Charles Ray.

Following his arrest this week, Rape was taken to Kilby Correctional Center near Montgomery where he underwent routine processing procedures. He was released at noon Thursday, Hopper said.

"I sure was relieved to be out," Rape said after returning to Dothan.

Asked about living with the knowledge he could be reincarcerated at any time during the past 27 years, Rape said, "I guess you have to adjust to life. It doesn't make no difference what happens."

Dothan Police Capt. L.E. Stokes said Rape "looked relieved" when he was arrested Monday. But George Weiser, the manager of the service station where Rape worked, was shocked by the development.

Calling Rape a "real nice guy," Weiser described his employee as a devoted family man and a hard worker.

Stokes also expressed support for Rape, saying it was difficult to arrest him because of his good record and since federal judges have freed more than 300 prisoners in recent months due to overcrowding in Alabama's prisons.

"I would rather see a man like that on the street than a lot of people who are convicted of violent crimes and serve only short sentences," Stokes said.

Police said Rape's arrest stemmed from a tip they received from Opelika, which is located near Russell County, the county in which Rape was convicted in 1954.

Braniff to reduce non-Texas services

DALLAS (AP) — Braniff International promises to unveil a new strategy next week that company executives say could make the financially strapped airline an aggressive competitor in the Texas and Southwest market.

"A whole new Braniff will take off in September," Braniff president John J. Casey said Thursday.

He said the airline, which gave a hint of things to come with announcement of a new flight schedule Thursday, would detail its new strategy on Tuesday.

"The industry and the public demands are changing and we are meeting those changes with a very competitive and substantial improvement in our service," said Casey.

Company sources said Braniff is removing first-class seats from approximately 50 of its aircraft and replacing them with high-density coach seating for shorter, heavily traveled routes, company sources said.

The airline also plans a more competitive fare structure, the sources added.

Casey said Thursday Braniff would suspend service to Atlanta, Boston, Phoenix, Salt Lake City, Albany, N.Y., Hartford, Conn. and Tucson, Ariz. But he said while Braniff will drop 10 daily flights to those cities, it will add flights to an unspecified number of cities it already serves.

He said the airline also will resume service to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and, temporarily, to Brownsville — two of nine routes suspended after the air controllers strike began Aug. 3.

However, Braniff vice president of routes and regulatory authority Robert Club said the airline would seek permission to stop service to Brownsville and fly instead to Harlingen, 20 miles north, to "better serve the whole (Rio Grande) Valley area."

"We are trying to consolidate the Valley operation and we feel that flying into a central location, like Harlingen, would best serve the entire area," Culp said.

Airline to resume service in Midland-Odessa area

Braniff International will resume its schedule of four daily flights on Sept. 9 to and from the Midland-Odessa area according to Mike Jolly, Braniff International sales director.

Two of Braniff's flights were temporarily suspended because of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers illegal walkout Aug. 3. Two days prior to the strike, Braniff began a new 4:50 p.m. flight which will now be resumed along with the previously canceled 6:25 a.m. flight.

Westbound to the Permian Basin flights at 3:20 p.m. and 9:35 will also resume on Sept. 9.

Officials lift the casket containing the body of Dennis McNell from a grave at the Forest Hills Annes Cemetery in Bridgton, Maine, Thursday. New York City officials requested the exhumation of the body to see whether foul play was involved with his death.

Statement expected today in McNell autopsy

By PETER JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Authorities worked for eight hours before completing an autopsy early today on the exhumed body of Dennis McNell, whose brothers' allegations of stock fraud led to the resignation of the CIA's top spy.

Doctors were expected to make a statement today on the results of the autopsy, ordered after allegations of foul play in McNell's death. The autopsy was performed after two days of unsuccessful efforts by McNell's family to block the exhumation from Forest Hill Cemetery near Bridgton, Maine.

The examination was conducted by Dr. Elliot Gross, New York City's chief medical examiner, and Henry Ryan, Maine's chief medical examiner.

McNell, 41, collapsed at his Queens, N.Y., home May 31 after jogging. He died the next day at Queen's Elmhurst General Hospital. No autopsy was performed, and he was buried two days later.

Authorities began to suspect foul play after McNell's two brothers told The Washington Post that Max C. Hugel, who was then director of covert operations for the CIA, had illegally given them stock market information.

Hugel denied the allegations and resigned. The two brothers, Thomas and Samuel McNell, disappeared. The FBI said more than $3 million in funds were missing from a company Thomas McNell founded.

A former business associate of the McNell family told the Chicago Tribune Dennis McNell had been beaten on at least two occasions. The former associate said he thought the beatings were "a warning for the McNells to cool it with Hugel."

Gross, in a letter to Queens County

District Attorney John Santucci, had said earlier that McNell died of a "possible ruptured spleen." Gross said a ruptured spleen was "often the result of a criminal act."

Nicholas Proto, a special assistant to Gross, said the body probably will be returned to Bridgton.

"That's up to the family and the funeral home," he said. Attorney John Whitman, representing McNell's family, tried to prevent both the exhumation and autopsy. Whitman went to the Maine's Superior Court and Supreme Judicial Court, but failed.

Sheriff calls out for election on courthouse steps

LONGVIEW, Texas (AP) — A little bit before lunchtime today, Gregg County Sheriff Bobby Weaver was ordered to embarrass himself by standing on the steps of the courthouse and obeying the law.

That law required him to bellow out an order for all attorneys within earshot to gather around and hold an election.

And the man who ordered Weaver to make a spectacle of himself, County Court-at-law Judge Larry Starr, says he had no choice in the matter.

The sticky situation began earlier this month when the district attorney's office filed charges in Starr's court, accusing three members of the Gregg County Commissioners Court of violating the Texas Open Meetings Act.

Then, because Starr's salary and official budget are set by commissioners, the district attorney asked Starr to disqualify himself from hearing the cases.

"To avoid any taint, any color of interest, I determined that I should disqualify myself," Starr said, adding that he was then required to choose a special judge to hear the cases.

The qualifications were straightforward — county resident, licensed attorney, active in the practice of law for at least five years — but the method of selection is not.

"If the parties to the cases had been able to agree on a special judge then it (the appointment) would have been done by agreement," Starr continued. "But they were not able to agree. So, under the rather archaic statutes of the State of Texas and Article 30.03 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure, it is necessary for me to call an election, conducted by the lawyers of the court present."

"The election is proclaimed by the sheriff at the courthouse steps," said Starr, only slightly embarrassed by the old-fashioned procedure he was describing. "The law says such lawyers shall organize and elect a special judge."

But Starr admits he hedged his bets when it came to getting the lawyers together.

Last of nerve gas bombs shipped

DENVER (AP) — The final shipment of deadly Weteve nerve gas bombs and GB nerve agent was sent from Colorado to Utah today after several delays this week due to bad weather, a spokesman for the Rocky Mountain Arsenal said.

Art Whitney, spokesman for the

"I didn't have to, but I did write all the attorneys in the county and tell them what was going to happen so they would receive a little better notification than the sheriff yelling from the courthouse steps," he said.

Starr said an act introduced in the last session of the Legislature would have streamlined the procedures and jurisdictions of the 100 or so county courts at law in Texas. The measure failed, however.

arsenal where the bombs have been housed, said the first shipment arrived at the Dugway Proving Grounds in western Utah at about 7:03 a.m. MDT, followed by the arrival of a second shipment five minutes later.

The last of the controversial shipments included 65 bombs.

Larry Lozano's injuries may have been accidental

have been both intentional and accidental.

"Can you tell if they were accidental or intentional," Sandoval asked Santos.

"Some of them may have been intentional," he said. "I believe injuries to the neck were the results of compression."

All told, the Lozano side summoned 27 witnesses, including the ex-sheriff, jailers, deputies and Lozano's ex-wife. The defense, which represented the lawmen, brought in seven witnesses, including Jachimczyk.

THE EX-WIFE, Rufina Lozano, characterized Lozano as a good, concerned father of their two sons, Randy Rene, 7, and Lawrence Derek, 10. The suit was filed in their behalf.

Mrs. Lozano said that she and Lozano were married in Pecos in January 1970 and were divorced in January 1977, a year before his death.

She was quoted as his emotional-mental state.

"He had some nervous breakdown or something like that (in August 1977)," she testified, "and he committed himself to Austin State Hospital.

However, testimony by Austin Policemen Randy Malone and Gary Duty suggested that Lozano was committed for treatment to the hospital after he was arrested for simple assault on Aug. 3, 1977, at an Austin gasoline station.

Testimony by Elvis Shaw, a semi-professional football player who was an attendant at the station then, indicated that Lozano got upset after he found out the station would put differential grease in his car, as the station had no ramp for such serving.

THE 6-FOOT-3 SHAW, who weighs 255 pounds, said Lozano was considerably smaller and lighter than he, but was strong.

Shaw had tried to wrest Lozano off Malone, after the officer was summoned to the station to quell Lozano. "I'm pretty big, a whole lot bigger than he was," Shaw said. "I thought I was pretty strong. I hope I don't meet many guys like him."

On his second try to fell Lozano, Shaw said he was able to pull him and Malone to the ground.

"Had he (Lozano) got up, I wouldn't be there," Shaw said.

Malone had characterized Lozano "an extremely powerful man." The 6-foot Lozano weighed about 200 pounds.

Malone said he had struck Lozano in the face about 50 times but apparently did not faze the man. "My hitting him had no effect on him," said Malone, who at 5-foot-9 is about three inches shorter than Lozano and weighed about 220 pounds in 1977.

After Lozano was subdued and handcuffed, he became "very friendly."

"As soon as we put the cuffs on him, he calmed down. He was totally a different person."

The assault charges were dropped in order to get Lozano admitted to the hospital, the officer testified.

IN ONE OF THE defense's last moves, attorneys Perry Davis and Nelson showed the three-man, three-woman jury a video tape of Jail Capt. Furman Davis shattering the 3/4-inch thick, four-plate laminated 5-by-9-inch glass window in the padded isolation "Green Room" where Lozano spent his final hours.

On his second fling of a brass ring from a cell toilet drain, the glass shattered.

One contention is that Lozano had shattered a similar glass with the brass ring. Another version is that Lozano had broken the glass by using his head as a ramming rod.

San Antonio engineer P.K. Schneider had testified on Wednesday that the glass was virtually unbreakable. He said the glass might shatter if hit by a 200-pound man traveling at 140 mph.

Reagan doesn't like to bear bad news

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

The Chinese have produced at least one cub in captivity by artificial insemination. But Ying-Ying and Pe Pe, gifts of the Chinese government in 1976, are the only pandas that have bred normally in captivity. Mating efforts at the London, Moscow and Washington zoos have failed, although London Zoo officials said this week that their female, Ching Ching, may be pregnant by artificial insemination.

As Reagan tried to leave the podium, a reporter asked if he agreed with Mrs. O'Connor's stand on abortion.

Reagan never publicly discussed the number of people who would be affected by cuts in food stamps, school lunches, welfare, housing subsidies, health programs, Social Security and other areas.

Sgt. B.W. Smith of the Balch Springs (Texas) Police Department is all smiles as are Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cook and their infant daughter Sherry Deanne. At 2:42 a.m. Wednesday Smith delivered the baby in the back seat of Mrs. Cook's car.

FORT SCOTT, Kan. (AP) — Five drifters are being sought for questioning about an alleged elaborate plot to gun down 11 city officials and business leaders in this small southeast Kansas town, Police Chief James Carnes says.

"It was an intricate plan. They wanted everything down so it would work the first time. Whether there had been any rehearsals as to the killings, we don't know," Carnes said Thursday.

Carnes said police learned of the alleged plot Saturday from an inmate in the county jail, who heard about it through the jail's grapevine. He said police immediately placed one city official under protection and, by day's end, added protection for 10 others believed to be on a "hit list."

The chief said his 18-member department has been working 18 hours a day since Saturday to provide protection and investigate the case.

"They go home and eat, change clothes, get a couple hours sleep, then they're right back on the job," he said of his officers.

"We don't know who the hit men could be," said Carnes, who said the jail informant passed three lie detector-type tests. "We have indications someone is being brought in from out of town."

Carnes said police had "only one motive" under investigation but refused to elaborate. He confirmed four persons were picked up for questioning Tuesday night but released without charges being filed.

Carnes said information to date leads to "three people, silent partners." He said one of the three had been questioned.

Names of the informant and those being questioned were not released.

Community leaders were "shocked and alarmed" when they learned that they might be targets of a death plot, said Fort Scott City Manager Don Munsell. Munsell said police still are trying to determine whether the plot was real or merely a hoax.

Munsell said authorities should be able to find out by some time today whether it was a hoax.

Bourbon County Attorney Dan Meara refused comment on the incident.

The chief said there are indications the plot was hatched in February and first came to light following the arrest of a man in July and his incarceration in the county jail.

Talk of the alleged hit list spread through the jail, and someone tipped officers, the chief said. Police questioned the inmate and began checking his story.

Everything that was given us proved he knew what he was talking about," Carnes said.

He said police have found some written evidence showing routes some of the officials take to work and when they leave home. He said police also "know the weapon, a rifle," that supposedly was to be used in the killings and have a good description of it, but haven't found it.

Carnes said the 11 people on the alleged hit list have been told to alter their routes to work and their work schedules "to try and mess up their plans."

Carter agrees with Reagan's China policy

By PHIL BROWN
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — Former President Carter said today that President Reagan's decision to sell U.S. arms to China was consistent with what he would have done if he had been re-elected.

"Recent developments of the Reagan policy have been very reassuring to me," Carter told a news conference prior to leaving for Xian, China's ancient capital.

Asked whether the Reagan administration was in danger of straying from his administration's agreement to normalize relations with the Communist regime, Carter said, "During the campaign in 1980 and perhaps early in 1981, there seemed to be a deviation from the normalization commitment, but by my own assessment now is that the policy of the present administration is compatible with the agreement consummated between me and Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping at the time of normalization."

Carter, who established diplomatic relations with China in 1979, said he did not detect "among the Chinese leaders any quandary about the Reagan policy because apparently Secretary (of State Alexander) Haig explained it very well" on his visit here earlier this year when he offered to sell U.S. arms to China.

On the sensitive issue of U.S. arms sales to Taiwan, Carter stressed that any weapons sold there must not pose a threat to the mainland. "I recognized that China is facing a possible threat from the north and the south and we don't want to provide a new threat from the east," Carter said. But he told reporters Thursday night that his administration had made clear, when it established diplomatic relations with Peking, that the United States would continue to sell defensive weapons to the Nationalist government on Taiwan.

"We all expressed at the time that ... there was no time limit on the sale of defense weapons" to Taiwan, he said.

The Peking government contends that U.S. arms sales to the Nationalists violates the U.S. government's recognition, in the normalization agreement, that Taiwan is part of China and that the government in Peking is the only legal government of China.

"We look at this (Taiwan controversy) as a very difficult and sensitive issue that must be resolved by the Chinese people without interference from my country," Carter said in an interview broadcast on Chinese television Thursday night.

Carter, who met Thursday with Deng, China's most powerful political leader, and with the new Communist Party chairman, Hu Yaobang, said he found no deviation from the goals of normalization among Chinese leaders.

There were areas of disagreement, most notably over Taiwan, he said, "but those differences are clearly defined and were clearly defined in December 1978," when he announced normalization.

Carter, the first American to meet Hu since he became head of the party, said he had an "enjoyable visit" with him.

"He is an extremely interesting, very lively and colorful exponent of the Chinese interests and positions and I learned a great deal about the inner workings of the party," he said.

Hu was elected by the party in June to replace Hua Guofeng, who Mao Tse-tung had designed to be his successor.

Carter, making his first trip to China, arrived in Peking Monday. He goes to Shanghai on Sunday and to Japan next Thursday, where he will spend five days.

South African units return from Angola

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — South African forces were withdrawing from Angola today after killing "many hundreds" of black nationalist guerrillas during five days of fighting, the South African military command said.

Defense commander Gen. Constand Viljoen said advance South African units already had returned to neighboring South-West Africa after completing a "limited task" in Angola, the South African Press Association reported.

South Africa's domestic news agency quoted him as saying the withdrawal "will be completed soon" provided no further attacks are made on South African forces.

Viljoen said his troops killed "many hundreds" of guerrillas and seized or destroyed "huge quantities" of land mines, weapons and ammunition. He said eight South African soldiers died in the fighting but that he could not say how many Angolan casualties there were. SAPA said some Angolan units attacked the South Africans but were repulsed.

Viljoen's statement was the first detailed South African comment on the military action, which South African defense spokesmen had described as a follow-up operation against Angolan-based black nationalist guerrillas fighting for South-West Africa's independence from South Africa.

The general disputed Angolan claims that tens of thousands of South African troops had entered the Marxist-ruled country, and that Angolan soldiers resisting the assault destroyed a South African tank.

Angop, the official Angolan news agency, said the Angolan Defense Ministry announced that its troops shot down a South African fighter-bomber and a helicopter Thursday during the second day of bombing attacks to soften up the town of Ngiva for a ground assault.

The dispatch Thursday from Luanda, the Angolan capital, said a South African armored column was on the outskirts of Ngiva, 20 miles from the border with South-West Africa (Namibia). It said one tank was destroyed in "violent combat."

Angop also reported that South African planes and troops destroyed the town of Xangongo, 62 miles north of the border, and captured a strategic bridge on the road to Huila province.

Youths arrested for firing at police car

MESQUITE, Texas (AP) — Three teen-age boys were taken into police custody Thursday after they allegedly fired several gunshots at a patrol car attempting to stop their stolen vehicle for a traffic violation, authorities said.

The youths, described as being in their mid-teens, were driving the car along a side road near U.S. Highway 80 in Mesquite about 5 p.m. when a patrol car gave chase. The youths allegedly answered the patrol car's flashing lights with several shots from a handgun or handguns.

The youths stopped their vehicle and attempted to flee on foot, but two of them were taken into custody within minutes, police said. The third youth was arrested about 1 1/2 hours later after a search that involved a Department of Public Safety helicopter and a Dallas Police Department canine unit.

A search of the abandoned car yielded several shotguns and rifles and a box filled with jewelry, police said.

A spokesman for the South African defense forces refused to comment on the Angolan claims.

A South African newspaper, the Johannesburg Star, said military analysts it did not identify told it the South African forces were attempting to knock out radar installations at the bases in Angola of the South-West African People's Organization, or SWAPO, the army of guerrillas that has been fighting for 15 years to end South African rule in their arid, mineral-rich homeland between South Africa and Angola.

South Africa's white government denied Angola's charge that it sent two armored columns into southern Angola on Monday as the prelude to a large-scale invasion to seize Angolan territory. South Africa said it was a "follow-up operation," like other raids its forces had made in the past to destroy SWAPO bases.

South Africa has administered South-West Africa, or Namibia, as the rest of Africa and the United Nations call it, under a League of Nations mandate given it after World War I. The U.N. Assembly voided the mandate in 1966, but South Africa has refused to give up the territory on its northwest border. The United States, Britain, West Germany, France and Canada have been trying without success to get South Africa and SWAPO to agree on a plan for elections and independence.

Angola's representative at U.N. headquarters in New York delivered a request Thursday for an urgent meeting of the Security Council to demand the withdrawal of all South African forces from Angolan territory.

The message from President Eduardo dos Santos said the situation had taken a "turn for the worse," and South African mechanized units had penetrated more than 60 miles into Angola. This was 33 miles less than Angola claimed on Tuesday, when the Defense Ministry said one South African armored column advanced 93 miles beyond the border and occupied the village of Catequero.

Dos Santos said the South Africans were attacking with 135 tanks, 38 helicopters and 140 transport and "attack cars."

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim cut short a vacation in Austria and returned to New York, but his office said a date for the council meeting had not been set.

Gas leak causes evacuation

ACTON, Mass (AP) — Several hundred people in Acton and Concord were evacuated voluntarily from their homes today after styrene oxide chemical gas began leaking from a large underground industrial tank, police said.

The leaking vapor is non-toxic, said Acton police Sgt. John McNiff, but it can cause eye irritation, nausea, skin irritation, headaches and "it stinks like hell." McNiff said the gas started leaking at 10:30 p.m. Thursday from an underground tank at the W.R. Grace plant in South Acton, near the Concord line.

Firefighters and company officials tried twice to stop the leak but were unsuccessful, McNiff said. He said they would try again after dawn.

About 100 people in Acton were evacuated voluntarily from their homes and went to the Acton-Boxboro Regional High School, McNiff said.

Close to 300 people in Concord also voluntarily left their homes and went to the Concord-Carlisle Regional High School, said Concord Sgt. John Foster.

Man asked about rapes

HOUSTON (AP) — Sheriff's officers here have been questioning a 33-year-old man charged with three counts of aggravated rape in connection with at least 11 other rapes and attempted rapes.

James Donald McClean, arrested on an anonymous tip about 7:10 p.m. Thursday, was being questioned about a series of incidents, Harris County Sheriff's Capt. J.D. Peyton said.

Peyton said because the crimes occurred in a single area, the assailant has been dubbed the "Northside rapist."

Members of the Bailly Alliance Citizens group, a coalition opposed to construction of the Bailly Nuclear 1 power plant, celebrate a televised announcement Wednesday in Hammond, Ind. by officials of the Northern Indiana

Public Service Co. that the utility will scurb plans for further construction of the nuclear facility. The plant, under construction since 1974, ran into a cost overrun that pushed construction costs from an initial figure of $187 million to $1.8 billion, an increase that utility officials blamed for their reason to end construction.

Nigeria drops oil price $4 a barrel

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A move by Nigeria to cut the price of its crude oil by $4, to $36 a barrel, increases the likelihood that Algeria and Libya will make similar cuts, industry experts say.

Analysts in the United States said the price reduction, while widely anticipated in the oil markets since the failure last week of OPEC to unify its prices, was unlikely to have a noticeable effect on the retail price of U.S. gasoline.

They said, however, that it had important implications for the pricing policies of other African members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

In a statement reported by its news agency, Nigeria said it was lowering its price "to ensure the preservation of national interest in the face of adverse developments in the oil markets." It said the new price would remain in force until OPEC holds its next meeting, scheduled for December.

Nigeria's move left Libya and Algeria alone among major producers at the $40-a-barrel level, the highest in OPEC. Those countries have been hurt severely as the world oil market remains flooded by much cheaper oil from Saudi Arabia, which charges $32 a barrel and is the world's biggest oil exporter.

The United States received an average of about 840,000 barrels of oil daily from Nigeria in the first four months of the year, out of an average total of 3.7 million barrels from all OPEC nations. Those purchases have fallen sharply, however, in recent months, with some industry sources estimating that U.S. imports from Nigeria have dropped below 400,000 barrels daily.

U.S. oil company representatives indicated Wednesday they had not been notified of Nigeria's price cut as of the close of business in New York.

Analysts said Nigeria's move was unlikely to have any noticeable effect on the prices of U.S. crude oil or gasoline, in part because U.S. oil prices are pegged to the current Saudi Arabian price of $32 a barrel.

Nigeria had called last week's OPEC meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, in an unsuccessful effort to convince the cartel to lower its price range and thereby enable Nigeria to sell more oil. Nigeria's economy has been weakened considerably by a sharp reduction in its oil output in recent months.

Nigeria's oil exports have fallen by more than 40 percent in recent months from the 1.5 million barrels before the current worldwide oversupply of oil.

At the Geneva meeting, several of the OPEC members tried unsuccessfully to get Saudi Arabia to raise its price to $36 for a 42-gallon barrel. The Saudis did say after the meeting that they would cut their September production about 10 percent, but oil experts said that would have little effect in lessening the glut.

Plant scrapped, ending 10-year battle

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — The controversial Bailly Nuclear 1 power plant planned for the Indiana shores of Lake Michigan has been scrapped after a decade of legal and regulatory battles that sent the estimated cost of the project skyrocketing.

Northern Indiana Public Service Co. announced the cancellation Wednesday. In a statement, company chairman Chairman Edmond A. Schroer blamed the move on the long legal fight, saying that during 10 years of litigation the plant's estimated cost jumped from $187 million to $1.8 billion.

"Ultimately the project became a victim of one lengthy delay after another," he said at a news conference.

The utility originally had hoped to get the plant on line in 1976 and recently was aiming for a 1989 startup date, Schroer said. The utility now says that if it persisted with the project, the startup could be delayed until 1991, at an estimated cost of $2.13 billion.

"Cost increases of this magnitude are simply not bearable," Schroer said, adding the utility had spent $205 million on the plant, and would seek to raise customers' rates to cover those expenses.

saying, "I, like the overwhelming majority of citizens in northwest Indiana, breathe a great big sigh of relief that the same kind of accident which damaged the future of citizens near Three Mile Island will not damage our future."

Opponents had argued the plant, 35 miles from Chicago's Loop and abutting the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore near Gary, was too close to population centers and environmentally unsound.

Bob Vollen, lawyer for the group that led the legal fight, the Chicago-based Business and Professional People in the Public Interest, said the plant failed to comply with any of six siting criteria that have been proposed by a Nuclear Regulatory Commission task force, but not yet adopted by the agency.

In addition, the highest-ranking NRC official in the Midwest, James G. Keppeler, recommended last January that the project be scuttled.

Although construction of the plant began in 1974, the plant is reported to be only about 1 percent complete. Work at the plant stopped in 1977 at the order of federal officials who wanted to examine plans for the plant's foundation. Construction never resumed.

Government to remove TMI waste canisters

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Three Mile Island cleanup, slowed because of a lack of funds, will pick up now that the U.S. Department of Energy has agreed to remove 49 canisters of highly radioactive waste from the island, the plant owner said.

The department's pledge to study, transport and dispose of those canisters means all high-level waste resulting from the 1979 TMI accident will be moved out of the area, said Doug Bedell, a spokesman for GPU Nuclear, the plant operator.

"We now have a way in view to get all the accident-related wastes off the island, except for the damaged fuel itself," Bedell said Wednesday. "We are reasonably confident in saying we can get all the resin wastes off the island."

The Unit 2 reactor at Three Mile Island was the site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident on March 28, 1979.

Since then, neighboring homeowners and plant officials have worried that the small island in the Susquehanna River might become a permanent resting place for radioactive waste generated by the $1 billion cleanup.

Crafts. Some things to think about are arrangements of dry flowers, silk flowers, and petals to make your own flowers. (Silk flowers are being used often now for elegant and lasting bridal bouquets.) Your decorations need ribbons, and the ribbon supply is varied and lovely. Lots of new decorations are in, too.

There is a large selection of Stain-A-Frame fun forms, including many that will be great for Christmas; Makit & Bakit "stained glass" suncatchers are especially popular with the youngsters. Clock works kits are here, too. Rattan, large wood letters, spray paint, glue, sequins, and beads - inspiration is everywhere, and there are projects for all ages.

The House of Arts & Crafts will be moving in mid-October to the new La Vallita Shopping Center in the 3300 block of West Wadley. Workshops offering lots of good instruction will begin soon after the move.

Visit The House of Arts & Crafts, 3211 West Wadley, #18 Imperial Shopping Center, for your creative supplies. Bill and Maxene Juren, owners, and Eleanor Robertson, manager, encourage you to inspect their extensive stock, and they look forward to helping you with your projects.

Former AT&T head testifies

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former chairman of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. denied before a federal judge Thursday that the company's responses to a series of regulatory decisions in the 1970s were guided by a desire to block competition.

John D. deButts, who led AT&T as its chairman from 1972 until 1979, maintained the company's responses to decisions that broke down AT&T's monopoly consistently showed the firm was concerned about the effect of competition on its ability to serve the public at large.

AT&T was never concerned that it could not compete if it had to, he added.

DeButts acknowledged under cross-examination by prosecutor Gerald Connell that the timing of competition was a matter of concern since AT&T did not have a comprehensive marketing strategy in the early 1970s.

But he maintained that AT&T tried to slow proceedings at the Federal Communications Commission only because the FCC was not taking an overall look at how a loss of revenue to the Bell System would affect the average consumer.

"In essence, each of these decisions involved a weighing of the long-term consequences which increased competitive activity would be likely to have upon the availability, quality and cost of nationwide telephone service," deButts said.

"Notwithstanding this lawsuit, in which the government has found fault with my decisions...I do not in good conscience believe I could have done otherwise than I did," he added.

Color Tile reports drop in earnings

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Color Tile Inc. reported a drop in earnings despite a 9.9 percent increase in sales for the fiscal year ending June 30, officials of the home improvement products company announced Thursday.

Sales totaled $227.5 million, compared with $207 million for the previous year, according to the latest report. Earnings were $11.4 million, or $1.05 per share, a 15.7 percent decrease over thw prior year's earnings of $13.55 million, or $1.33 per share.

Many officials blamed the decreased earnings on a softened market for products dealing with large-dollar home improvements.

Wounded Voyager 2 laid up for repairs

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — As scientists reveled today in the dazzling complexity of Saturn's shining sheets of rings, storming clouds and battered moons, flight engineers said they'll need several days to heal their wounded spaceship.

"We're looking at days, at least," said project manager Esker Davis of his team's efforts to repair — from a billion miles away — the crucial camera-aiming platform. It somehow was knocked out of service as Voyager 2 sailed behind Saturn Tuesday night after taking humanity's best-ever look at the distant world.

But the news, Davis said, is still "a little upbeat and positive," since the troublesome platform no longer is jammed. However, he said, its jerky and unreliable movements mean "we are not yet at the place where we can say we are fixing the problem...There's a lot of work to do yet."

Voyager was leaving the planet far behind as it raced still deeper into the solar system on a journey of 1.7 billion miles to Uranus. Chief scientist Ed Stone said repairs were being done with special care since "we do not want to take any risks that could in any way keep us from operating the scan platform at Uranus" in 1986.

The malfunction could mean the sacrifice of planned snapshots Sept. 4 of Phoebe, the most distant of Saturn's 17 known moons.

Engineers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here were trying today to unlumber the platform with high-torque maneuvers that slowly swivel it short distances back and forth through the "sticky point." Davis said that's about like putting a car in low gear and rocking it forward and back to get unstuck from a mud-hole.

Though the cameras and three other instruments are seeing none of their post-Saturn targets, scientists already have proclaimed the mission a resounding triumph.

Voyager 2 obtained this image of Tethys when the spacecraft was 380,000 miles from this Saturn satellite. Tethys shows two types terrain — bright, densely cratered regions and dark, lightly cratered planes that extend across the satellite. Also visible is a trough is parallel to the day-night boundary. This photo was taken Aug. 25.

Convicted murderer investigated

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Don Smith, former attorney for convicted capital murderer Vernon McManus, and Regina Smith, McManus' ex-wife, are being investigated by the Harris County District Attorney's office for possible perjury and bigamy, a Beaumont newspaper reported today.

The investigation stems from the Smiths' Aug. 25, 1978, marriage and Regina Smith's subsequent court testimony that they were married on March 15, 1979, said Harris County assistant prosecutor Don Stricklin, the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal reported.

Vernon McManus, a former star football player and coach at Lamar University in Beaumont, and Regina McManus were divorced in a Harris County state District Court on Feb. 27, 1979.

Stricklin said the grand jury is examining evidence of both perjury and bigamy in its inquiry.

Stricklin said he has "verified the existence" of a Nevada marriage certificate in the names of Don Smith and Regina Lynn McManus dated Aug. 25, 1978 — six months before a Texas divorce was granted to Mrs. McManus and her former husband.
