Johnson receives stay of execution

A Mitchell County man who was scheduled to die by lethal injection Wednesday for killing a Snyder store clerk 10 years ago has received a stay.

District Attorney Dana Cooley confirmed this morning that Dorsie Lee Johnson was granted a stay late Monday by the court of criminal appeals.

"This was expected. It's not a surprise," said the district attorney.

Although no information was available this morning on why the stay was issued, it is believed that it is connected to another case pending before the court — Davis vs. the State of Texas.

In that case, a death row inmate is challenging legislation that was authorized as an attempt to speed up the process of appeals by consolidating them.

It is expected that all executions in Texas will be stayed until the appeals court makes a ruling in that case, which has been pending about a year.

For Johnson, the appeals process has been going on 10 years. He killed Allsup's convenience store clerk Jack Huddleston on March 23, 1986, by shooting him in the back of the head with a .25 caliber pistol. In the murder-robbery, Johnson and an accomplice, Amanda Miles, took $160 and two cartons of cigarettes.

Johnson was convicted of capital murder by a 132nd District Court jury in October of 1986 and received the death penalty.

Miles was sentenced to the life equivalent of 60 years.

Johnson was the subject of an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court in 1993, when the court chose his case to test Texas law on youthfulness. Johnson was 19 at the time of the murder. In a 5-4 vote, the court denied his appeal.

Following that action, 132nd District Judge Gene Dulaney sentenced Johnson to die by lethal injection on Nov. 12, 1993, a date coinciding with his conviction in 1986. A brief stay moved the execution date to Jan. 27, 1994.

One day before Johnson was to be executed, federal district court in Lubbock granted another stay. The Lubbock court later denied his writ and he appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans. That court denied the writ in December of last year.

The case went back to the U.S. Supreme Court, were the court declined to hear it.

Dulaney was the 132nd District Court judge at the time of Johnson's conviction and during most of his appeals. The current district judge, Ernie Armstrong, was the district attorney during that time.

House hopefuls to debate tonight

Candidates for 70th Legislative District will square off in a debate set for 7 tonight in the Sweetwater High School Cafeteria.

State Rep. David Counts (D-Knox City) and Republican challenger Scott McLaughlin of Big Spring will meet in their first and only debate of the campaign that concludes with the Nov. 5 election.

The 70th District is composed of Fisher, Garza, Howard, Jones, Kent, King, Knox, Lynn, Nolan, Stonewall and Scurry Counties.

READY FOR THE SHOWER - Maxine Anderson, left, and Irene Masters were just two of the people at Scurry County Coliseum this morning getting ready for the Taylor quintuplet's community-wide shower. The event will be from 4:30 until 6:30 and there will be refreshments for everyone. (SDN Staff Photo)

Schools celebrate Red Ribbon Week

Scurry County schools are planning a host of special activities marking Drug Awareness or Red Ribbon Week, which began Monday on some campuses.

Central and East activities will kick off Wednesday. Ira School's special week begins next Monday.

Snyder High School has not planned any activities due to exit-level TAAS tests today through Thursday. However, red ribbons will be distributed for students and school personnel to wear.

Larry Scott, principal, said that later in the semester SHS will bring in guest speakers in keeping with the drug awareness theme.

Snyder Junior High School has planned several campus activities to encourage students to avoid drugs.

During the week, red bows will be on the trees in the patio and the DARE flag will fly with the American and Texas flags. Posters from the counselor's office will be up throughout the building.

A "factoid" explaining myths and facts about drugs will be given each day with the announcements. Specific activities this week include:

Red ribbons were distributed Monday during the second period. Students and faculty were to wear red clothing today to emphasize Red Ribbon Week.

On Wednesday, lollipops will be distributed to students during homeroom.

On Thursday, everyone is encouraged to wear black and gold to show that Tigers don't do drugs.

West has not planned specific activities, but button and ribbons have been distributed to students. Delwyn Davis, the DARE officer, will also work with students in each classroom.

According to Debbie Brunson, coordinator for Central and East, both schools are going all out for Red Ribbon Week. Something different is planned for each day.

Wednesday, East students will receive their ribbons at an all-school assembly.

Central students will be signing pledges and carrying banners agreeing to a drug-free life. They will also receive red ribbons.

Red ribbons will be numbered and periodic drawings will be held for door prizes donated by the DARE officer.

Thursday is "sock it day" and students are asked to wear crazy socks. Friday will be "Red Day" and students will eat red snacks courtesy of the Parent Council at East and volunteer Central parents.

October 28 will be "no sweat day." Even though students will have a holiday that day, Brunson said they will be encouraged to wear sweat clothes at home.

Tuesday, Oct. 29, will be "turn your back on drugs day." Students will be asked to wear an article of clothing backwards. October 30 will be "wear red day."

Thursday, Oct. 31, will be "say boo to drugs day." Students are encouraged to wear anything that "helps promote a healthy lifestyle."

Trick or treat bags will also be distributed, filled with donated goodies and drug-free messages.

East will close out the Red Ribbon Week activities with a health fair on Oct. 31, which will also be in keeping with the "say boo to drugs" theme.

School nurses Chris Bane and Angel Duncan will have an anti-smoking booth.

Other booths will emphsize the importance of physical activitiy, safety regarding all medicines, including prescription drugs, importance of reading labels, vitamins and which foods contain them.

Outreach Health Services will sponsor a WIC information booth.

Team-building meeting slated

Some 40 school board members and administrators from four area schools and Snyder will be meeting in a three-hour "team-building" workshop at Snyder High School tonight.

Representatives from Ira, Hermleigh, Colorado City, Highland and Snyder will attend the session, which will be held in the high school cafeteria.

The workshop is mandated by Senate Bill 1, which made numerous changes in the education process in Texas.

Region 14 Education Service Center Director Terry Harlow will conduct the meeting.

Area gets taste of winter

Scurry County got its first taste of winter as a cold front dropped temperatures to 36 degrees early Tuesday morning.

Residents in Fluvanna received a trace of frozen precipitation along with rainfall totalling a quarter of an inch.

The Snyder water plant recorded four-tenths of an inch, as did residents in Hermleigh and Ira. Dunn received three-tenths of moisture while a quarter of an inch was recorded at Lake Thomas.

Residents east of Snyder reported up to a half-inch.

Tonight's forecast calls for a possible light freeze with a low of 30-35.

Upcoming events listed...

Chamber oks museum request

Snyder Chamber of Commerce board on Monday approved hotel/hotel funds for Scurry County Museum, finalized plans for the Taylor family city-wide shower today, and set events for a busy upcoming holiday season.

Scurry County Museum was granted $1,000 in hotel/motel funds.

Three new businesses — Debra's Flower & Gifts, Peggy Mae's Antiques and Crafts and the Pink Flamingo — were welcomed as new chamber members. McWilliams Pharmacy was named business of the month for October.

The White Buffalo Festival was declared successful by the board. Future events downtown and at the coliseum include:

—Oct. 26, SISD Fall Festival
—Nov. 2, Lord's Acre Festival
—Nov. 5, Election Day
—Nov. 11, Rebecca St. James Concert
—Nov. 18, WTC Westerners first home game
—Nov. 23-24, Arts & Crafts Show
—Nov. 26, Thanksgiving dinner for inmates
—Nov. 27-30, Thanksgiving Basketball Tournament
—Nov. 29, Lighting of the Square and Santa in gazebo
—Dec. 7, Downtown Christmas Parade and Snowball Dance in coliseum
—Dec. 14, Broadway Musical "Pinnochio," Worsham Auditorium

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Fat free, sugar free, salt free! Who says there's no free lunch?"

Think Rain!

Being able to think quickly is a must for a mayor, and Snyder's David Holt proved he can be alert to get out of a tight situation.

At last month's United Way kickoff luncheon, County Judge Ricky Fritz challenged the City of Snyder to a benefit basketball game.

Fritz also showed some wisdom this year by challenging city employees instead of the Lady Westerners who were the opponent for last year's benefit contest.

Holt was out of town when the judge issued the challenge. However, it was accepted unhesitatingly by mayor pro tem Vernest Tippens.

When Holt learned about last Saturday's matchup, he immediately thought of the county talent, tall deputy sheriffs and a former Hardin-Simmons player who works at the hospital.

Holt found his own ringer, also a former college player. Holt named him city chaplain — an official, but non-paid appointment.

The chaplain was long and lean First Baptist Church minister Marty Akins.

Incidently, the city defeated the county Saturday night. But the real winners are the recipients of United Way funds.

Think Rain!

It was Holt who last week told a story about another shrewd businessman, a Willie Nelson wantabee who runs a barbecue place in the Coleman County town of Santa Anna.

The restaurant owner approached the visitors with menu in hand.

"What'll it be?" he asked.

"I'll have a hamburger," said the customer.

"Don't have hamburgers," the proprietor responded.

"Then I'll have a ham and cheese."

"Don't have it," was the response.

"What do you have?" asked the customer.

"We only have chopped BBQ beef sandwiches."

"If you only have a BBQ sandwhich, why did you bring us a menu?" inquired the bewildered customer.

"Because I didn't know what you wanted," he panned.

McCormick wins via the tie-breaker

Three people tied for first place in the Snyder Daily News weekly football contest this past week, but the tie-breaker came up with a clear winner.

Mark McCormick, 2805 32nd St., won first place and $50 by picking a combined score of 27 points in the Snyder-Frenship game. The actual total was 31.

Jimmie G. Cornett, 2406 40th St., guessed 24 points and won the $25 second-place prize. Taking third, with a guess of 42 points, was Eddie Benitez of 1804 39th.

All three prognosticators missed three games.

Winners will be mailed their checks. Another contest begins in today's issue.

Parents step in to keep private school open

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The offer was too good to pass up for many parents looking for a private school for their children.

Pay $6,000 and have your children pass an IQ test, and they could study Japanese, science, music and art at the new Phoenix Academy with teachers used to teaching bright kids.

But a month into the school's first year, the bottom fell out.

The woman who ran the school went on a lavish spending spree with tuition money, buying diamond necklaces, crystal, Chinese rugs, a trip to the Cayman Islands and two Lexus luxury cars for school vehicles. She used $298,000 as a down payment for a new home and bought an $80,000 lot next door to build a $50,000 pool.

Now, with the kindergarten through eighth-grade school nearly broke, parents have joined forces to save Phoenix Academy by auctioning off many of the items Barbara Bachman bought.

"This woman is a crook," said John Taylor, who sent two daughters to the school.

Bachman, who quit her job last December teaching first grade at St. Paul's Christian Academy, did not return telephone calls. She had told the Nashville Banner that she had planned to pay back the money once her planned national chain of for-profit schools took off.

Bachman's three-month spending spree began when tuition money started arriving in June. Rent checks and teachers' paychecks bounced, and Bachman was sued.

Parents, not satisfied with the quality of Nashville's public schools, were drawn to Phoenix Academy through a flashy ad campaign. Now they have moved quickly to take control of the 188-student academy rather than put their children back in public schools.

"The public school system in Nashville stinks," said Josh Nemzoff, who sent his three daughters to Phoenix Academy. "You just can't put children like this back in that school system because they're going to sit there and be bored out of their minds."

Parents formed their own board of directors, set up a nonprofit foundation and settled the lawsuit by agreeing to pay Bachman $40,000 for the school, the house and its furnishings.

Then parents who work as accountants and lawyers waded through Bachman's paper trail and found at least $280,000 in bills. Another parent with a Ph.D. in elementary education took over as principal while the board looks for a permanent replacement.

The board fired some of Bachman's closest staff members to keep the school open, while parents pledged $300,000. First Christian Church, where the school holds classes, has agreed to forget $54,000 in past rent and cut the monthly bill by more than half to $4,000.

More money will come in Friday when Bachman's purchases, some still boxed up in the basement, are auctioned off. The auctioneer has volunteered his services, and parents plan to sell Phoenix Academy T-shirts, pencils and mugs.

Another helping hand is coming from a real estate agent: She is donating her commission for Bachman's $658,000 house.

Taylor conceded that parents didn't check Bachman's credentials. They were swayed by her slick campaign and the promise of a school where high-achievers could concentrate on their studies.

"It's a concept that will work if you don't have someone lining their own pockets with the money," Taylor said.

Parents have also told authorities about the school's problems, although that isn't their first concern.

"We've told our attorneys you can go after them with whips and chains and knives later. We want to take care of the children," Nemzoff said.

Beatles album sales soaring

LONDON (AP) — A quarter-century after they split up, the Beatles are having their hottest year ever.

Six million back-catalog Beatles albums sold this year, topped by 13 million copies of two new Beatles anthologies, Beatles publicist Geoff Baker said. That outdoes any year in the 1960s, when the Fab Four were still together.

"The Beatles are now bigger than the Beatles," Baker said.

Sales from a third anthology due out Monday could put sales over the 20-million mark for the year, he said.

Baker said 41 percent of the album buyers are teen-agers, meaning the Beatles' most lucrative fans now were born long after the band split in 1970.

"You would have thought that it would have been middle-aged people," he said.

Gross record sales, TV rights and video sales are expected to earn about $735 million this year, with most of the money going to the EMI record company.

The Beatles' cut will be split between Paul McCartney, George Harrison, Ringo Starr and John Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono. Lennon was shot to death in New York City in 1980.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, Oct. 23, 1996

Material rewards will be much easier to find in the year ahead. However, you must guard against the inclination to take things for granted. Easy come, easy go.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There are only so many hours in a day, so if you hope to be productive, you must schedule your time wisely. Do not leave important tasks to the last minute. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Do not bet on the outcome of a friendly competition today. Money could become an issue, and it will alter the spirit of the activity.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should welcome friendly suggestions today, but don't take a friend's word as gospel. Her advice may not apply to your situation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Relax and enjoy yourself today, but don't treat serious matters indifferently. You can be casual about fun activities, but not about business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You should not let others make decisions for you today, especially if bad advice could cost you money. You should call the shots yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not underestimate your competition today. Your ace in the hole might be trumped by what the opposition is holding.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, try to avoid doing business with any person who you know from experience does not keep promises.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Prudence will be essential at this time. Otherwise, you might spend too much money. When it comes time to pay the bill, you will not have adequate funds.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An important goal may not be as easy to attain today as you first thought. Prepare to take a few steps back for every step you take forward.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) At a social gathering today, do not try to converse about topics you know nothing about. If you pretend to possess knowledge you lack, you will be exposed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Avoid looking through rose-colored glasses when making financial projections today. A failure to acknowledge the facts could lead to disappointment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today, avoid business or social situations with people who are not on the same wavelength. Their presence could cause discomfort and dissension.

GENEALOGICAL BOOK DONATED — The Scurry County Library gains a genealogical book, Grandma, Where Are You, Cook/Cooke Cousins of the South, by author Marie Kellogg Taylor of Shreveport, La., formerly of Snyder. Accepting the book is head librarian Noreen Taylor. (Contributed Photo)

Mrs. Kellogg donates copy of her genealogical book

Marie Kellogg Taylor, author of a genealogical book, Grandma, Where Are You, Cook/Cooke Cousins of the South, presented a copy of her book to Scurry County Library. The book is dedicated to her mother, Naomi Vickers Kellogg, on her 100th birthday with the inscription: "...and in remembrance of all those other ancestors who thought of us before we were born as well as our descendants who will remember us after we are gone."

Mrs. Taylor lived in Snyder from February 1954 through May 1958 with her family including her husband, Robert (Bob) Taylor; a daughter Barbara of Snyder, wife of Junior McCormick; and a son, Bobby of Bossier City, La. Mr. Taylor was manager of JC Penney Co. when it was located on the north side of the Snyder square. In 1957 and 1958, he was president of the local chamber of commerce and a member of the Rotary Club. His wife, Marie, was president of the Snyder Junior High PTA and the Desk and Derrick Club. She worked at Pollard Motor Co. and for Lion Oil Co.

The women are there too

By Phillip Alder

At the World Team Olympiad on the Greek island of Rhodes, there are two events: open and women's. In the latter, the United States is represented by Jill Blanchard, Juanita Chambers, Lynn Deas, Gail Greenberg (Blanchard's mother), Irina Levitina and Shawn Quinn. In the final of the trials, they won by 79 points against Kathie Wei-Sender, Sue Sachs, Lynn Deas, Beth Palmer, Carol Sanders and Betty Ann Kennedy.

No, Deas didn't play on both teams! The winners played five-handed, but afterward requested that Deas be added. In theory, this isn't allowed, because someone who prefers to transfer to the other team might intentionally play badly. However, the American Contract Bridge League knew that this wasn't the case here, so acquiesced.

In this deal from the trials' final, at the other table Deas and Palmer stopped in four spades after Deas, with that South hand, only invited a slam and Palmer wasn't interested.

In contrast, Chambers used Gerber (the jump to four clubs, asking for aces) before blasting into six spades. Declarer won the club-king lead with dummy's ace, drew trumps and led the club jack. After winning with the queen, West switched to a heart. Chambers won with dummy's ace, played a club to her nine, led the spade five to dummy's seven and discarded the diamond queen on the club 10. This gave the winners 13 IMPs.

Let's hope both U.S. teams come home with the gold medals.

Murray's, Mrs. Dole's limos collide

NEW YORK (AP) — Well, it's one way to campaign.

A limo in Elizabeth Dole's motorcade ran into Bill Murray's limo early Monday after the two had done separate interviews for ABC's "Good Morning America."

Mrs. Dole, who wasn't in the vehicle that struck Murray's, jumped out of her car to make sure everyone was OK. No one was injured.

She then handed Murray's driver a Bob Dole-Jack Kemp campaign card and went off to catch up with her motorcade.

Murray wasn't in his limo at the time, but spoke of the fender-bender later Monday on "Live With Regis & Kathie Lee." Murray appeared to promote his starring role in the comedy "Larger Than Life," due out Nov. 1.

Outside the studio, Murray showed off the dent and said, "I was an undecided voter until now."

Native son gets hero treatment

WILLAMSTED, Curacao (AP) — Every time Andruw Jones hits a home run, it lights the sky over Curacao.

This tiny Caribbean island is so crazy about its native son that residents light fireworks whenever he hits homers for the Atlanta Braves.

Jones, 19, did that twice Sunday night, becoming the youngest player ever to homer in the World Series and leading the Braves to a 12-1 victory over the New York Yankees in the first game of the series. The Braves won again Monday night, 4-0, but Jones was hitless.

WTC takes 2nd at Midland

Places three on all-tournament team

MIDLAND — Western Texas College put three players on the all-tournament list as it placed second in the Midland College Invitational here Monday.

Western Texas White team shot a 603 to finish eight strokes behind winner Midland in the one-day tourney, played at Green Tree Country Club. Western Texas Green team tied for fourth in the competition with a 616.

Andy Ljunggren, Morten Vildhoj and Jack McCullough all placed in the top five in the medalist race. The top 10 earned all-tournament honors.

"We keep improving and we're going to be hard to beat down the road," said WTC Coach Milton Ham.

For WTC White, Ljunggren put together rounds of 72 and 76 while Vildhoj shot 71-78. Others on the team were Donald DeMasters, 69-90; Marcus Olvestad, 80-85; and Page Patterson, 76-76.

McCullough shot 74-76 for the Green team. Other individual scores on the squad were Jason Darby, 77-85; Bryan Hawkins, 73-84; Ole Fuglsang, 76-80; and Harry Hernandez, 73-80.

Playing individually were WTC students Kevin Taylor, 73-89, and Dan Moates, 75-81.

Friday, WTC begins play in the three-day Paris Junior College Invitational.

"It's probably one of the toughest tournaments we play all year," said Ham.

Morten, who hails from Denmark, is the defending medalist at the tournament. He shot a four-under-par 140 last year to claim the medalist race by five strokes.

The tournament will run through Sunday.

Lady Tigers host Mats tonight

Coach Patty Grimmett's Lady Tigers, locked into a tie for second place in the District 2-4A volleyball standings, need a victory over Lubbock Estacado here tonight to stay that way.

Estacado comes into the match with a 3-14 record. Last Saturday, the Lady Matadors doubled their number of district wins with a 15-12, 15-10 victory over Plainview. Estacado's two wins stack up against six district losses.

The Lady Tigers want to continue their winning ways, bouyed by a 15-7, 15-2 win over Frenship on Saturday. Coach Grimmett's squad is 21-7 on the season and 5-3 in loop action.

The Tigers are tied with Levelland (12-11 overall) for second place in the district. The Loboes take on Frenship (10-13, 3-5) tonight while league leader Lamesa (21-6, 8-0) is poised for Plainview (3-20, 0-8).

Tonight's action begins at 5:30 as freshman teams take the floor, followed by the junior varsity and varsity squads.

Volleyball 2-4A Glance

	District		Season
Team	W	L	W	L
Lamesa	8	0	21	6
Snyder	5	3	21	7
Levelland	5	3	12	11
Frenship	3	5	10	13
Estacado	2	6	3	14
Plainview	0	8	3	20

Saturday's Results: Snyder def. Frenship 15-7, 15-2; Lamesa def. Levelland 15-7, 15-5; Estacado def. Plainview 15-12, 15-10.

Today's Matches: Estacado at Snyder, Lamesa vs. Plainview; Levelland vs. Frenship.

Braves win, take 2-0 lead

NEW YORK (AP) — Even Ruth, Gehrig, DiMaggio and Mantle might have had a hard time coping with this.

Greg Maddux was so good, so totally in control, that the New York Yankees could barely get the ball out of the infield. He was so good that he actually allowed some pride to shine through his normally stolid exterior. He was so good that John Smoltz's Game 1 performance seemed forgettable by comparison.

And now, the Yankees have to hit against Tom Glavine. It seems the World Series won't get any easier for New York.

"You don't see pitching like this every day. Unfortunately, we have seen it every day," Yankees manager Joe Torre said after Atlanta beat New York 4-0 Monday night to take a 2-0 World Series lead.

In the 100th shutout in Series history, Maddux allowed six hits in eight innings and displayed the stunning control that has made him the best pitcher of the '90s.

He needed just 82 pitches against 28 batters, and threw just 20 balls. He went to two balls just four times, three balls just twice.

"I've had games where I might have pitched better," Maddux said, "but under the circumstances, this is a game that I'll probably take to the grave with me."

Maddux got 19 outs on grounders, all but two to the right side of the infield. The Yankees hit just one flyout against him.

New York's best chance came in the sixth, when Derek Jeter and Tim Raines singled with no outs. But Wade Boggs hit a bouncer to second that the Braves turned into a double play, and Bernie Williams grounded to second, too.

The Series shifts to more serene surroundings tonight, when Glavine pitches in Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium against David Cone. The Yankees are 5-0 on the road in the postseason this year, but only two teams have lost the first two Series games at home and bounced back to win: the '85 Royals and '86 Mets.

"We've been coming back from a lot of things people don't give us credit for doing," Game 2 loser Jimmy Key said.

NFL coaching fallout is underway

Mora resigns Monday; ends tenure with Saints

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jim Mora resigned Monday as coach of the New Orleans Saints, midway through his 11th season and one day after blasting his coaches and players in a profane tirade following a loss to the Carolina Panthers.

Mora had coached the Saints since 1986, the longest tenure with one team of any current coach in major professional sports. His resignation came on the same day Dave Shula was fired as coach of the Cincinnati Bengals.

His eyes red and his hands shaking, Mora announced his resignation at a news conference. Unlike Sunday's postgame outburst, Mora praised the team as he read from a statement.

"They work very hard and this team is very, very close to being a very, very good football team," Mora said. He refused to take questions, walked briskly to the parking lot and drove away.

Mora was the first coach in Saints' history to post a winning record, and he got the team to the playoffs four times — their only playoff appearances. However, the Saints lost all four.

The Saints are 2-6, having lost their first five games, then winning two before the 19-7 loss at Carolina. His career record is 93-78 but he's 24-32 since a 12-4 season in 1992.

Owner Tom Benson said Mora's decision caught him by surprise. He said he and general manager Bill Kuharich would immediately begin looking for a new coach.

Special teams coach Bobby April said the coaches and players will stick to their usual schedule. The Saints have an open date this Sunday.

As recently as two weeks ago, Mora said he would never resign. Sunday's loss, the second this season to NFC West rival Carolina, apparently changed that.

The game was followed by a profanity-laced news conference during which Mora assailed the effort of his players and coaches.

Shula gets his walking papers from Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — The only surprising thing is that Dave Shula lasted this long.

The head coach with the famous family chin and football pedigree never lived up to the Shula reputation during 4½ losing seasons in Cincinnati. He couldn't win enough games or players' respect, but kept his job because Bengals president Mike Brown liked him.

Worried that a 1-6 start had eroded public support when the team needed it most, Brown reluctantly fired Shula on Monday. Offensive coordinator Bruce Coslet, a former New York Jets head coach, takes over for the season and could get the job long term if he wins.

Although Shula lost 50 games faster than any coach in NFL history and finished 19-52, that's not what got him fired. Brown made only the second mid-season coaching change in franchise history to try to help the team's campaign for a new stadium.

The Bengals must sell 50,000 season tickets and specified numbers of club seats and luxury boxes by next April to get a new stadium. They didn't even come close to selling out two of their three home games this season, and fans were clamoring for a new head coach.

"Our stadium project is a critical thing to the future of the Bengals," Brown told a news conference as a subdued Shula stood by his side. "It has to succeed if we're to make it a go here in Cincinnati, and we have undercut our public support here by the way we have not so much played but failed to win."

Shula, 37, was the youngest coach in the league and one of the least successful. His best season was last year, when the team went 7-9 and raised expectations it would contend for the playoffs.

Surging Raiders gallop past SD

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The wait is over. After one year and 13 days, the Oakland Raiders finally won an AFC West game.

"It's been a long time since we won in our division," coach Mike White said after Monday night's 23-14 victory over the San Diego Chargers. "We have the toughest division in football. This was a real breakthrough for us, and now we have to keep on going from here."

The Raiders (4-4) certainly have more momentum than San Diego (4-3). Oakland won its third straight game, knocked out San Diego quarterback Stan Humphries early and never gave the Chargers' struggling running game a chance to get going.

It is Oakland's first three-game winning streak since November, just before it went on an 0-6 nosedive that left it 8-8 and out of the playoffs. Monday's lose reversed not only a loss at San Diego during that 0-6 streak last year, but a 40-34 defeat to the Chargers at Oakland on Sept. 22.

"It feels really good to see our team coming out of a hole now," cornerback Albert Lewis said. "Everyone's very, very positive in here. I think we've matured to the point where I think we have learned to fight our way through adversity — like when we got a bad call when (the officials) said San Diego scored that touchdown."

Lewis was referring to Tony Martin's second TD catch of the night, a questionable call that pulled the Chargers to a 20-14 deficit. Martin didn't appear to reach the end zone, and was pulled away from the goal line by cornerback Larry Brown. However, an official made a delayed call that it was a score.

But the Raiders got a big break to wrap up the game when San Diego's Darrien Gordon muffed a fair catch with 3:53 left, and Dan Turk recovered. That set up Cole Ford's third field goal of the night, from 34 yards with 2:11 left.

Shutting down the run — the Chargers had only 29 yards on 20 carries — and the play of tackle Chester McGlockton were huge for Oakland.

"I think our defense was exceptional," White said. "I think Chester McGlockton probably had the best game I've seen him play as a Raider."

McGlockton disagreed, saying, "I don't think it was even close to my best game."

UIL takes no action

AUSTIN (AP) — Home-schooled students who want to participate in UIL activities will have to take their plea to the Legislature next year after the University Interscholastic League let the issue die without a recommendation.

The UIL's Legislative Council on Monday took no action on a proposal to allow children schooled at home to participate in league events, including football and other sports.

The council also took no action on a proposal to allow other non-public school students and foreign exchange students to participate in UIL events.

Dr. Jill Shugart, superintendent of the Garland Independent School District and chairman of the UIL's Athletics Committee, said public school superintendents overwhelmingly oppose home schoolers in UIL events.

"In our responsiveness to that group, I think we took the appropriate action," Ms. Shugart said.

A member of the 28-member Legislative Council would have had to bring up the issue to give it any hope of being recommended to the State Board of Education, which would have a final say.

In a UIL survey of public school superintendents, 893 opposed allowing home school students to participate with public school students in UIL events. Only 21 superintendents supported the idea and four expressed no opinion.

"I think there are a variety of reasons, not the least of which is the issue of academic eligibility and the standards very well could be different in the home school," Ms. Shugart said.

"It also could be possible for a student who became academically ineligible in a public UIL setting to leave that setting, go into home schooling and come back and play for the same team."

Under the rejected proposal, home school students would have participated in UIL events as students from the public school in whose area they lived.

Ms. Shugart said while the issue is dead before the UIL, it's likely to come up before lawmakers.

Turkish forces kill rebels

DIYARBAKIR, Turkey (AP) — Turkish forces killed 40 Kurdish rebels in a five-day offensive launched to rout the guerrillas before winter begins, officials said Monday.

The rebels were killed in separate clashes in provinces across southeastern Turkey, the regional governor's office said. Six Turkish soldiers also were killed in the fighting.

Challenge match raised UW monies

Scurry County United Way campaign is in its seventh week in an effort to raise funds to help eight local agencies. A benefit basketball game was played Saturday evening in the high school gym.

County Judge Ricky Fritz challenged city employees in a contest to see who could raise more support in fans and funds. If the county lost, Fritz would allow mayor pro tem Vernest Tippens to paint his hair green at half-time. That is exactly what happened when the county came up $4.40 short in funds and points. The final score was city 65, county 51.

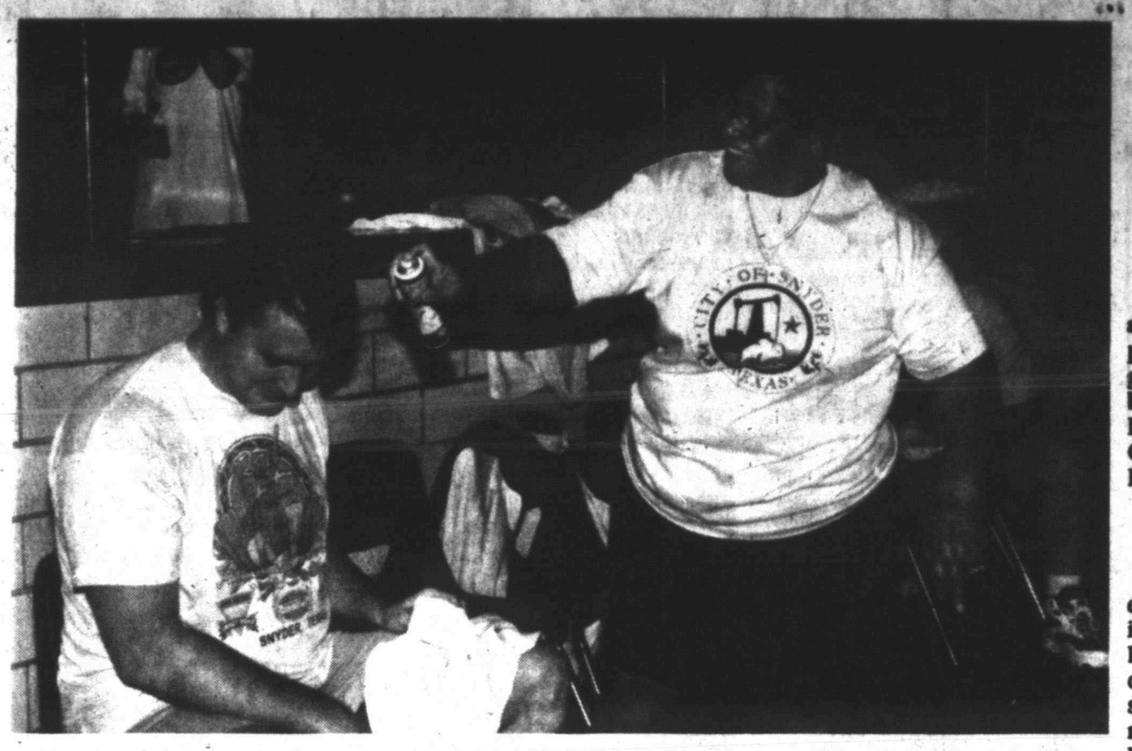
County team members were C.D. Gray, Ralph Trevey, Roy Idom, Ricky Fritz, Kevin Roemisch, Paul Atkins, Matt Cross and Lisa Cross.

Agencies benefitting from the event are Scurry County Boys and Girls Club, Snyder Child Day Care Center, Noah Project-West, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, Scurry County Food Cupboard and the American Red Cross.

Officials were Bobby Foust and Rick Kemp. Scorekeeper was Beth Bowen and keeping the clock was Carmen Carpenter.



COUNTY LOSES — Vernest Tippens painted County Judge Ricky Fritz's hair green during half-time as a result of a challenge made by Fritz that county employees would raise more money for the United Way than the city employees. The city fans raised $4.40 more than the county. (Staff Photo by Jo Ann Nunley)

Tips for parents listed

Editor's note: The following article is excerpted from a parent's guide to prevention, growing up drug free, published by the U.S. Department of Education, Washington, D.C. Oct. 23-30 is National Red Ribbon Week.

General guidelines Preschoolers

Attitudes and habits learned early can have an important bearing on the decisions children make later. Preschoolers can learn the decision-making and problem-solving skills that they will need to refuse alcohol and other drugs later.

At this age children are interested in doing things for themselves. Let your child pic om a range of options that are acceptable to you.

Suggested activities

1. Set aside regular time when you can give your child your full attention.

2. Point out to him the poisonous and harmful substances that can be found in your home. Keep all harmful products away from food storage and out of your child's reach.

3. Explain how medicine can be harmful if used incorrectly.

4. Explain why children need good food and should put only good things into their bodies.

5. Teach your child what kind of behavior you expect. Also teach the basic rules for getting along with others.

6. Encourage your child to follow instructions. Letting him help you follow a recipe in cooking or following the rules in simple board games are good practices.

7. Let your child make choices in clothing for the day by selecting from a few that your offer; let your child select two or three library books from the public library; let him select the vegetable that will go with dinner from the choices you name. These are all opportunities for decision-making.

Kindergarten - Grade 3

Five- to -nine-year- olds usually feel good about themselves. They think and learn primarily by experience and they don't have a good understanding of things that will happen in the future. They need rules to guide their behavior and information to make good choices and decisions.

Discussions about alcohol and other drugs must be related to people and events the child knows about. Discussions should focus on maintaining good health and avoiding things that might harm the body.

Adults are very important both as teachers and as role models. Helping your child know whom to trust is important.

Suggested activities

1. Discuss traffic safety rules and school rules, which your child is already familiar with, along with the family's rules.

2. Talk about things people do to stay healthy like brushing teeth, eating good foods, etc. in contrast with things some people do that are unhealthy like smoking and taking drugs.

3. Discuss how TV commericals try to get children to buy their products like high-sugar cereals and toys named after cartoon characters.

4. Discuss how medicine is necessary to treat illnesses, but must be taken with care.

5. Practice ways to say "no" with your child. Give him opportunities to play act different situations in which he must resist peer pressure or remove himself from dangerous situations.

6. Develop a list of people that your child can rely on in case of emergency.

The basic monetary unit of Guatemala is the quetzal, and its chief fractional unit is the centavo.

The United Stated produces 68.7 metric tons of cow's milk per year.

Consumers beware...

Biggest mail rip-offs listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Earn big bucks stuffing envelopes, get a free vacation or collect a valuable prize. Tantalizing offers designed to separate Americans from their money arrive at thousands of homes every day.

So far this year, 416,216 victims of these and other scams have complained to the U.S. Postal Inspection Service. On Monday, postal inspectors released a list of popular ways to fleece the unsuspecting.

The "Five Biggest Lies told to Consumers," postal inspectors say, are:

1. "You are a guaranteed winner" of a valuable prize.

This ploy asks the so-called winner to pay for chemically inert "vitamins," cheap home security systems and water purifiers, or to contribute to a fake charity, before getting what turns out to be a booby prize.

2. "This chain letter is legal."

Sooner or later everyone gets one of these, the inspectors say, but after you pay for copying and mailing out letters, it's one of life's biggest losers. Also, any chain letter that asks for money is illegal when sent through the mail.

3. "Stuff envelopes at home and earn big money."

These scams ask victims to send money for a "plan." Here it is: Send out letters asking people to send money for a plan.

4. "Your humble assistance is highly solicited in transferring millions of dollars, available from the Nigerian National Petroleum Co., to share with your good self. All we need is your bank account number."

The scam is to get some advance money from the victim, sort of a pigeon-drop via the mail. The good-faith money quickly disappears, of course. Formerly targeted at businesses, this scam is now turning to individuals, the inspectors say.

5. "You've been selected to receive a fabulous vacation."

All you have to do is pay a one-time membership fee or handling charge, the offer claims. But inspectors say the vacation can turn into a nightmare of scheduling problems, shabby hotels and nonexistent cruises that leave vacationers standing on the dock.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Whenever I go anywhere, I get a stomachache — followed by diarrhea. I believe the cause is a nervous stomach, and I must learn to relax. Should I see a specialist about this problem? I've had X-rays and a rectal exam, but they were negative.

DEAR READER: Yes, you could have a "nervous stomach," now called "irritable bowel syndrome." This harmless but annoying condition is common and causes periodic gas, bloating and diarrhea/constipation.

However, you could also have colitis, gallstones, lactose intolerance, peptic disease, or other afflictions.

Your family physician should be able to test you — with blood tests, X-rays, colonoscope, and stool analyses — to determine whether you have something serious, or whether it's run-of-the mill irritable bowel syndrome. Then, depending on his findings, he can suggest treatment.

Of course, learning to relax will help no matter what your problem. However, if you're like me, it s easier said than done.

Although your family doctor can probably order the basic, necessary testing, he may choose to refer you to a gastroenterologist for a second opinion.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a grand-nephew who has recently had his first child. I am told the child has Prader-Willi syndrome. Would you please explain what this condition is, how it is contracted, and the cure — if any? It's something I can't find in my medical books, and I understand many doctors have not even heard of it.

DEAR READER: This unusual ailment, which is caused by a genetic deficiency, occurs in children and is marked by mental retardation, poor muscle tone and uncontrolled appetite.

Youngsters with Prader-Willi syndrome are overweight because they consume enormous amounts of food. Their behavior seems totally oriented toward obtaining food. When food is refused, these children have tantrums and become difficult to manage.

The syndrome is diagnosed by the way the children look and behave; a gene analysis will confirm the condition, for which, unfortunately, there is no cure.

Consumers usually win when store scanners fail

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's some surprising news today for shoppers who don't trust those computer price scanners found at checkout counters all over town.

The prices are nearly always accurate, and when there's a mistake, the customer usually comes out on top, according to a Federal Trade Commission report released today.

FTC inspectors made purchases at 294 food, discount, home, drug and department stores over a year and a half. They found they were overcharged 2.24 percent of the time and undercharged 2.58 percent of the time.

"Overall, most stores didn't do badly," said FTC spokeswoman Bonnie Jansen. "To the extent that there are errors, they are more result of carelessness and inattentiveness rather than willfulness."

In total, there were errors in 4.82 percent of the purchases. The FTC is not releasing figures for individual stores.

Undercharges outnumbering overcharges was good news to John Motley, senior vice president for the National Retail Federation, which represents department stores and, to a lesser extent, grocery and drug stores.

"From our standpoint, we would much prefer to make mistakes on behalf of the consumer. That eliminates anybody's inclination to say this is on purpose and we're being unfair," Motley said.

Still, stores lose money on every undercharge and are looking for ways to make the system more accurate.

"It is an ongoing problem within the industry," he said.

While department stores had the highest total error rate, with mistakes in 9.15 percent of purchases, just 3.25 percent of items were overcharged.

Scanners have been an industry concern for many years, Motley said, pointing to past accusations of foul play.

"There was concerns raised by the government that this was a not-too-subtle attempt at consumer fraud," Motley said.

Jansen noted that several states have statutes regulating scanners, ranging from a requirement that stores include prices on individual items to a guarantee that a customer who finds an error will get the item for free.

Several retailers have paid large fines after their scanners were found to be inaccurate, the FTC added.

Scanners allow a computer to read a black-and-white bar code that indicates the item's price. They largely eliminate the days when customers stood in line while a cashier yelled "price check!" and waited for the answer.

The scanners also help stores keep track of inventory and conduct market research, and they save time and money by eliminating price tags on individual items.

Consumers benefit from faster checkout times and detailed cash register receipts, the FTC said.

Most mistakes come when the price on the shelf is not changed to match the price in the computer or prices in the computer are not updated, the agency said.

Grocery stores, which pioneered scanners more than two decades ago, did the best in the FTC survey, with errors just 3.47 percent of the time.

Sex Advice in Magazines Offers Useful Help to Some

DEAR ABBY: May I offer a slightly different point of view regarding "D.S.'s" comments in your column about explicit articles in women's magazines?

As a therapist, I have treated a number of lonely, socially inadequate men and women who have had little social contact with others and lack the skills to develop warm and sexually satisfying relationships. Some of these people have physical disabilities; some are excessively shy, withdrawn or physically unattractive. It is this population, and many of us who are seeking a little escape — and yes, even titillation (heaven forbid!) — who read the articles in women's magazines. Personally, I have seen articles that were helpful to women who have had very little exposure to the nuances of their sexuality. In fact, I have recommended several of these articles to clients because they normalize sexuality.

I say to women who are offended by these articles, "Don't buy the magazines." There's room for all kinds of people in this world. What could be more positive than reading about love and sex?

It is my hope that those obsessed with pornographic reading material seek therapy, for that obsession is extreme behavior which indicates the need for intervention. I suggest that "D.S.'s" overly concerned response to magazine articles is indicative of her own problems.

Thank you for giving me a forum. It galls me to see repression by people who need to "get a life."

BARBARA ROSENKRANTZ, M.A.

DEAR MS. ROSENKRANTZ: Your letter was a breath of fresh air. Obviously a great many readers are interested in the information that frank articles about sex provide, which is the reason publishers are doing such a land-office business at supermarkets.

Only when readers demonstrate that those articles are no longer of interest will the contents of magazines change.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a man my age (40) who has never asked me out. He calls me occasionally and always returns my calls and seems glad to hear from me. He has turned down every invitation I've extended — with legitimate excuses but no rain checks. He has never mentioned another woman but appears jealous if I mention a man.

I've been a "friend" long enough — I want more. I've done everything except tell him how I feel. I have been overweight most of the 12 years I have known him, and wonder if this could be the reason he isn't pursuing me. Or is it possible he just hasn't caught on?

Please think hard on this one, Abby, because I've been trying to reel this man in for a very long time.

GETTING IMPATIENT

DEAR IMPATIENT: If he hasn't responded in 12 years, he's not likely to start now. It's obvious that he regards you as a friend, and nothing more.

If you're willing to settle for friendship, stick around. Otherwise, go fishing in other waters, and you just might come up with the catch of the day.

Patients sometimes run into a moose

LEBANON, N.H. (AP) — Dr. John Sutton brakes for moose. But he's fascinated by people who don't.

The surgeon and chief of trauma at Dartmouth-Hitchcock Medical Center has carved a niche for himself by analyzing the injuries people receive when their cars and trucks collide with a moose.

Sutton's colleagues call him "Dr. Moose." It's no laughing matter for victims of moose collisions.

It took almost a month for doctors to remove all the glass from Audrey Carr's eyes after her car hit a moose last spring in rural Dorchester. Her husband, who was driving, was cut on the arms and chest. The steering wheel was crushed and the windshield shattered.

"The moose just about took the roof off the car," said Carr, who was knocked unconscious. "It caused $9,000 worth of damage to the car."

Sutton found that 23 people were hospitalized at Dartmouth-Hitchcock, Maine Medical Center and Eastern Maine Medical Center over 4½ years for injuries suffered in moose-vehicle accidents, and two of them died of head injuries. Seventy percent of those who were not killed suffered head or facial injuries, and 26 percent had severe spine injuries.

Sutton said most moose-vehicle accidents demolish the car and kill the moose. Moose have no natural predators in northern New England and don't run from a car's headlights. They can also grow nearly 6 feet high and weigh more than 1,200 pounds.

Sutton found that cars often hit the moose under the belly, lifting it off its feet and onto the passenger cab, which is crushed by the impact. His advice: When a collision with a moose looks inevitable, aim for the hindquarters.

In New Hampshire, where yellow "Brake for Moose" signs dot highways, Sutton estimated that 200 to 250 moose-vehicle collisions occur every year. He put the number at 650 or more in Maine. Vermont doesn't track the number of moose-auto collisions, but estimated more than 80 moose died in such accidents last year, up from zero in 1980.

In rural northern New England, "the likelihood of hospitals here to be taking care of someone who has hit a moose is greater than someone who's been shot or stabbed," said Sutton, who blames the increase in part on greater human traffic in rural areas.

"Everyone seems to have a moose story," said Sutton, who himself nearly hit a moose 20 years ago. "A moose ran out of the woods," he recalled. "We swerved, and the moose ran alongside us for about 20 yards, so it was a near miss."

He now drives a Volvo and his wife has a Saab, two automobiles he lauds for their moose-resistant construction.

Sutton hopes his work will help emergency rooms deal better with the injuries. He also would like to see cars better designed to withstand moose collisions. And he urges drivers not to speed on rural roads at dusk and at night, when the creatures are almost impossible to see.

"Their coats don't reflect anything," recalled Louise Jordan of Northfield, who almost hit two moose four years ago. "I thought, 'Why are there trees in the road?' I didn't realize they were moose."

The time of year also affects the chances of hitting a moose. They're more likely to wander out onto roads in the spring and summer, when they are foraging, and during the early fall, when they're rutting.

The chances of hitting a moose are slim, Sutton said. He has seen only about four hospital admissions this year.

"It's really more of an issue for moose," he said. "They almost always die in the accidents."

Suspect gunman jailed nine years after famous murders

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — More than nine years after a judge and his wife were shot in their Biloxi home, federal investigators believe they have the murderer.

Authorities in Texas are holding Thomas Leslie Holcomb, 44, of Evadale, Texas, in the deaths of Vincent and Margaret Sherry. An FBI statement accuses him of murder and conspiracy to commit murder, obstruction of justice, money laundering, wire fraud and drug trafficking.

He is also accused of accepting $20,000 for the Sept. 14, 1987 deaths.

Vincent Sherry was a circuit judge, while Margaret Sherry was a former Biloxi councilwoman. They were 58.

In another sworn statement from FBI Special Agent Gerald Peralta, former Biloxi Mayor Pete Halat's name is linked to a scam that led to the murders.

Halat, Vincent Sherry's former law partner, has not been charged, but he has hired a Las Vegas attorney to defend him in the case. David Chessnoff said he has told United States attorneys in Jackson and Washington that "if they want to arrest Mr. Halat, they should let me know, and we'll be there with bells' oh."

Halat has cooperated fully with the investigation and is being harassed, Chessnoff said.

Peralta's statement details the crimes Holcomb is accused of committing:

— About Aug. 26, 1987, Holcomb agreed to murder Vincent Sherry.

— After the murders, an unnamed co-conspirator traveled to Texas and paid Holcomb the balance of the $20,000 contract price for killing the Sherrys.

— In 1991, Holcomb intimidated and threatened an unnamed person to withhold testimony in the case.

Holcomb was charged with conspiracy to commit murder under the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, which was designed to prosecute organized crime.

The federal government has charged at least one other person in the conspiracy. Sheri LaRa Sharpe was arrested Oct. 15 in Colorado for obstruction of justice.

Sharpe was one of four people convicted in 1991 in the first federal case involving the Sherry murders, a conspiracy that lasted

Dole tries to assure voters he will cut taxes

FRANKENMUTH, Mich. (AP) — Bob Dole sought today to assure voters they can trust him to cut taxes and reduce government, while claiming President Clinton will simply say anything to get re-elected.

"It's not about promises, not about some pie-in-the-sky. It's about keeping your word. It's about telling the American people exactly what you're going to do and then getting it done," Dole said at morning rally in this town, known as "Michigan's Little Bavaria" for its German heritage.

He repeated his charge that Clinton failed to deliver on his 1992 campaign pledge to reduce taxes.

"He gave you a big tax increase. He promised you a tax cut," Dole said. "We think it's time for the government to start pinching pennies instead of the taxpayers all across America."

On the second day of his bus tour through Michigan, Dole also called for admission of Hungary, Poland, and the Czech Republic to the NATO alliance by 1998 — a year earlier than Clinton's proposal, which Dole criticized as an "election-year conversion."

Dole spent much of his day Monday pushing his tax-cut plan as the tonic for a slack economy, and pounding away at his favorite attack on the president: "I could make this speech in 30 seconds. It's spelled T-R-U-S-T. Who do you trust?" Dole asked a boisterous crowd Monday night in Kalamazoo.

"In two weeks, you're going to decide. Which one of these men do I trust. Which one of these men do I want to be president?"

Dole planned bus stops in two other Michigan towns today, ending his two-day road tour through the state where he touted his economic plan and made passing references to Clinton administration ethical lapses and questionable Democratic fund-raising practices.

Dole was then headed for a rally in Columbus, Ohio.

President Clinton was in Detroit today to call for America's NATO partners to add former Soviet bloc nations as members by the end of 1999. The NATO speech was fit into a hectic day of campaigning and Democratic Party fund raising, winding up tonight in Miami.

Vice President Gore was stopping in Montana, South Dakota and Minnesota as part of a hectic week-long campaign swing.

Jack Kemp was courting California, demonstrating the Republican ticket's resolve to fight for the state's 54 electoral votes, one-fifth of the 270 needed to win the election. The Dole-Kemp campaign and the Republican Party plan to spend at least $8 million in the state between now and Nov. 5, in an effort to close Clinton's lead of 8-10 points in most state polls.

"Bob Dole and Jack Kemp are going to win California and that means America," Kemp, a Los Angeles native, said Monday night.

Clinton's lead in national polls showed him leading by an even greater margin than in California. A CBS-New York Times poll of likely voters released Monday showed Clinton leading by 24 percentage points. And it suggested that Dole's attacks on Clinton's character were not helping. Only 24 percent of those surveyed said Dole spends more time explaining what he would do if elected, down from 40 percent just a week earlier; 63 percent now say he spends more time attacking Clinton, up from 50 percent.

Starting Wednesday, Dole plans a whirlwind of stops — Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Texas, Arizona and California by the weekend.

On Monday, Dole promised voters he would deliver his 15 percent income tax cut, a $500 per-child tax credit and a 50 percent cut in the capital gains tax while still balancing the federal budget.

"This campaign is about telling the truth. And the truth is, the government is too big and spends too much of your money," he said. "We're going to restore fiscal sanity to this country."

Dole said Clinton is "sitting on a little lead," but he told Michigan voters to think hard his economic plan, and especially about trust.

"If I know the American people at all, I think they want us to set a higher standard, not a lower standard," he said.

At another rally in Jackson, Mich., Dole ticked off a list of proposed constitutional amendments he favors on a balanced budget.

Clinton wants NATO to add former Soviet bloc nations

DETROIT (AP) — President Clinton today called for America's NATO partners to add former Soviet bloc nations as members by the end of 1999, a target that coincides with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Western alliance.

"America will be stronger and safer if the democratic family continues to grow," Clinton said to an invited audience of foreign policy experts and community leaders. It was his first major foreign policy speech of the presidential campaign.

Alluding to the sticky problem of managing Russia's suspicions that an enlarged Western alliance would pose new security threats at its borders, Clinton declared "Enlargement is not directed against anyone. It will advance the security of everyone."

"By reducing rivalry and fear, by strengthening peace and cooperation, NATO will promote greater stability in Europe, and Russia will be among the beneficiaries," he said.

Even before Clinton spoke at Detroit's Fisher Theater, Bob Dole, the Republican presidential nominee, criticized Clinton for "foot-dragging" on expanding NATO. Dole has called for an early NATO decision to add new members in 1998.

"He's been talking about NATO expansion since 1993. He's been dragging his feet since 1993," Dole said.

Clinton fit the NATO speech into a hectic day of campaigning and Democratic Party fund raising that was winding up tonight in Miami. Advocating NATO membership for former Soviet bloc nations is politically popular with Midwestern voters, many of whom have family ties to Eastern Europe.

Clinton said the 16-member alliance has been carefully laying the groundwork for expansion.

"I want to state America's goal: By 1999 — NATO's 50th anniversary and ten years after the fall of the Berlin Wall — the first group of countries we invite to join should be full-fledged members of NATO," Clinton said.

He added that Americans should know that a bigger NATO is not free of cost.

"Enlargement will mean extending the most solemn security guarantee to our new allies" — a commitment to treat an attack on one as an attack on all, he said.

Dole said Clinton had undergone an "election-year conversion" on NATO expansion while Dole has been consistently in favor of admitting Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic as soon as possible.

Clinton did not identify the candidate countries, but it is widely believed that those three would be the first admitted. Some hold out the possibility that Slovenia also would be in that group.

from 1986 to March 1989. Others convicted were Mike Gillich Jr., a Biloxi striptease lounge owner; Kirksey McCord Nix Jr., serving life without parole for murder in Louisiana State Prison; and Georgian John Elbert Ranson.

Prosecutors claimed then that Ransom was the one who shot the Sherrys, but the jury acquitted him on the two charges directly related to the shooting. He was convicted on a conspiracy and a scam charge and is in prison.

Nix masterminded the scam, which preyed on homosexuals. Sharpe, an old acquaintance, helped from the outside, delivering and sending scam mail, arranging telephone calls to victims and picking up money victims wired to Nix.

She worked out of Pete Halat's law office, although he has always maintained that he did not know about the scam or murder plot. Halat was Nix's attorney at the time and kept a bank account for Nix.

A parade of convicts testified for the prosecution during the 1991 trial. One of them said Nix ordered Vincent Sherry murdered after some of the scam money "came up missing" and Nix was convinced that Sherry took it.

During the trial, LaRa Sharpe testified in her own defense, which is why she is now charged with obstruction of justice.

FBI Agent Peralta's statement says she lied when she denied that Gillich was involved in the scam, that Ransom provided the .22-caliber pistol used to kill the Sherrys, and that Pete Halat had absolutely no knowledge of the scam.

Brown bag program scheduled

Dr. Harry L. Krenek, president of Western Texas College, will present "Heaven For Men and Dogs But Hell on Women and Mules: Women on the Texas Frontier," during the noon hour Wednesday.

The presentation will be held at Nathalie's Tea Room, 1803 25th St.

Dr. Krenek will examine the courage and sacrifice required of women who lived on the pre-Civil War Texas frontier as seen in the experience of two extraordinary but little known women, Mrs. Reuben Hornsby and Mrs. Robert Coleman.

The discussion will center around a brief review of the frontier experience of these two women and will focus on the locations and remains of the homesites of these two women who lived on the Texas frontier in the 1830s and 1840s.

Those attending the brown bag lunch will receive a map showing the location of the Hornsby and the Coleman homesites.

GM, CAW said very close to settlement

TORONTO (AP) — Tantalizingly close to a settlement, the Canadian Auto Workers and General Motors resumed talks today aimed at ending a 3-week-old strike that has idled more than 46,000 workers across North America.

The last contentious issue concerned mandatory overtime at an Oshawa, Ontario, truck plant. Union officials met in a closed-door caucus to discuss a tentative settlement of that issue.

The two sides had recessed to get some sleep after bargaining past midnight, then reconvened around 8 a.m. at a Toronto hotel. The union's deadline of noon Monday was allowed to lapse as negotiators made major progress on some of the most divisive issues.

"We have come a long way. We've resolved a lot of issues," CAW President Buzz Hargrove said during a break in the talks late Monday. "I'm determined we're not going to let this slip away from us."

GM sounded equally committed.

"We're as determined as the union to bring this to an end," said Stew Low, a GM spokesman.

The strike by 26,300 Canadian workers has shut down General Motors operations in Canada. GM added 1,560 workers in the United States and Mexico to its strike-related layoff list today, raising the total to 19,931. A total of 10,893 workers in the United States had been added Monday.

If a tentative agreement can be reached today, the union could hold a ratification vote Wednesday and strikers could be back at work by week's end.

General Motors Canada is the biggest manufacturer in Canada, and economists say a prolonged strike would have a marked effect on the national economy. Lost earnings could tally $100 million a day, according to union calculations.

The union agreed to continue bargaining after each side made concessions to resolve the most contentious issues — outsourcing and GM's plan to sell two Ontario parts plants.

Red Ribbon Week

Yesterday, Northeast students received red ribbons, stickers and wrist bracelets, all reflecting the drug awareness theme.

During Red Ribbon Week, Stanfield will focus on "Say boo to drugs." Matt Cross, guest speaker, will present an anti-drug message through magic and storytelling. Students will be encouraged to "say boo to drugs."

Stanfield's adopt-aschool partners, Lang Tire, McCormick Marketing and Lawrence IGA, have all purchased trick or treat bags bearing the message "say boo to drugs." These will be distributed to the students.

Hermleigh School isn't planning specific activities, but red ribbons are being distributed to students, along with drug awareness pamphlets. Films will also be shown.

Ira School is planning a host of activities for Red Ribbon Week, next Monday through Friday. The annual event will again be conducted by Ira FHA. Tammy Shirley is the sponsor.

Next Monday, Red Ribbon Week will kick off with the FHA members decorating the halls and lockers with red ribbons and posters depicting the hazardous effects of drugs and alcohol.

Ira Elementary students will be asked to make floats out of red wagons with drug free messages, one for each grade. The high school will conduct a door decorating contest during second period Block II. Red ribbons will be handed out to each class. Packets for each elementary teacher containing ribbons, stickers and worksheets will be assembled by the FHA.

Tuesday, candy with drug free messages will be handed out to each student, along with red markers. Red aprons with a drug free message will be given to each cafeteria worker.

Wednesday, Oct. 30, will be Wear Red Day. Plastic ribbons donated by the Snyder Lions Club will be handed out.

Thursday, Oct. 31, will be Black Out Day. Drug free messages will be made every 15 minutes on the PA system and the Grim Reaper will be walking the halls randomly choosing students to die from drug abuse.

The students will wear black arm bands to symbolize that they are dead. A door decorating contest winner will also be picked that day. The winner will receive a soft drink party courtesy of the FHA.

The Drug Free Pep Rally, Friday, Nov. 1, will begin with the elementary float parade being led by the Ira Bulldog and cheerleaders. The lunchroom workers will top of the week by serving red velvet cake in honor of Red Ribbon Week.

Jury slated for O.J. Simpson's civil trial

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — After a month of jury selection in the O.J. Simpson wrongful-death trial, the panel is complete — 12 jurors, eight alternates — and there are only two black panelists in the entire group.

It's a stark reversal from the criminal trial, which ended with a panel of nine black jurors, who were considering a case that took on strong racial overtones.

This time, it will almost certainly be a white majority jury at the end. The selection Monday of alternates — five whites, one black, one Asian and one Hispanic — made sure of that.

Opening statements begin Wednesday, when the plaintiffs will try to convince the jury that Simpson is responsible for the 1994 slayings of ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman. The families of Ms. Simpson and Goldman are suing Simpson for unspecified damages.

The defense will suggest Simpson was framed by police. Simpson has indicated that the frame-up theory will be accompanied by references to racial injustice.

In a TV interview to air Wednesday night, Simpson said his former wife was abusive to his housekeeper and there was a double standard about abuse.

"You can't say that because of an abusive incident in my life that I am now the devil and excuse an abusive incident in Nicole's life," Simpson said in the CBS interview, taped last June before a judge-imposed gag order.

"(Why is) the black guy dogged and the white girl isn't? ... I've never looked at things racially, but ... evidently they make a distinction: If you're a black male, you're bad, and if you're a white woman, you're not — for doing the same thing," he said.

How this plays with a jury with nine whites is the big question. Polls show just how large the divide is between whites and blacks when it comes to Simpson.

Three auto burglaries investigated by officers

Officers continue to investigate automobile burglaries as three break-ins were reported Monday.

Gordon Gray requested to speak to an officer at 8:18 a.m. in reference to someone breaking into his 1992 Chevrolet pickup at 3112 23rd St. An offense report for burglary of a vehicle was submitted.

At 8:32 a.m., Kelly Miller requested to speak to an officer at 2703 26th St. in reference to someone breaking into her 1988 Ford. An offense report for burglary of a vehicle was submitted.

Devela Sorrells requested to speak to an officer at 2:56 p.m. in reference to some tapes being taken from her vehicle while it was parked at Bill's Body Shop at 2706 25th St. An offense report for burglary of a motor vehicle was submitted.

A 1991 Chevrolet that had been reported stolen from Gene Sands at 2604 El Paso at 9:26 p.m. Sunday, was located at 7:17 a.m. Monday in front of Trans Texas Tools west of Snyder off Highway 180.

A deputy was requested at P.C.I. on the Lamesa Highway at 10:39 a.m. in reference to a forged check. An offense report for forgery was submitted.

A deputy was requested at Radio Shack at 10:39 a.m. in reference to the firm receiving some returned checks. An offense report for theft by check was to be submitted.

An offense report for criminal mischief was submitted at 11:57 a.m. from the Snyder High School parking lot in reference to a Chevrolet pickup owned by Mike Post being scratched.

Peggy Vernon requested to speak to an officer at 1:25 p.m. in reference to someone damaging a house in the 2600 block of Avenue U. An offense report for Class B criminal mischief was submitted.

An offense report for Class C criminal mischief was submitted at 6:01 p.m. in reference to a bicycle being damaged while in the bike rack at Stanfield Elementary.
