IOWA PARK MAN SHOT; MAY DIE

SENATOR LODGE DIES SUNDAY IN CAMBRIDGE

Veteran Massachusetts Solon Loses Battle For His Life

A WILSON FOE

His Fight On War-Time President Most Bitter In Recent History

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 9.—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge died at the Charles Gates hospital at 11:14 tonight. He suffered a stroke on Wednesday, November 5, from which he gradually grew worse. For the past two days his condition was known to be critical and little hope was held out for his recovery.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—When time shall write its final estimate of Henry Cabot Lodge, it must turn for its most colorful passages to the story of that strange twist of circumstances which set his name over against the name of Woodrow Wilson in one of the stirring periods of American history.

Both outstanding men of letters, called by some the two greatest American examples of the scholar in politics, the venerable senate leader and wartime president found themselves in disagreement, determined and irreconcilable at the very time of their most virile public service, each in his proud and resolute way sought at first to ignore the impassable barrier that was rearing itself between them; but in the end each came to acknowledge it openly, though each sought to blame the other.

Fight Over League.

The most fundamental difference between them developed over the league of nations. For his opposition to unreserved acceptance of the Versailles covenant Senator Lodge was assailed by his enemies with a bitterness equaled only by the fury with which the enemies of the league attacked Mr. Wilson; while by his own friends and followers the Massachusetts senator was eulogized and revered as the savior of American liberties, who has fought courageously against a subtle invasion of the independence of his country and had preserved for posterity the cherished traditions of the fathers.

Never the Full Story.

It may be that history will never know the full story of that epochal struggle which lifted both Lodge and Wilson to new heights of leadership. As each had been a dominating figure in the making of history, so each had hoped to become at least the historian of his times; but, worn by the rigor of the battle, both have fallen to their last sleep without completing the work that circumstance and natural inclination seemed to have patterned for them. When Mr. Wilson died, he left only scraps and patches of the great human chronicle he had hoped to set down for future generations. A few weeks ago Mr. Lodge confided to his friends that he was gathering material for a story of the league fight in the senate, and for other histories of the great days of his intimate association with men and affairs. The task was never finished.

CREW ABANDONS SCHOONER

Rescued from Sinking Craft An Brought to Galveston.

GALVESTON, Nov. 9.—The crew of the three-masted New Foundland schooner E. D. Bailey which was abandoned at sea 118 miles east of Abaco island last Monday morning was brought to Galveston today by the British steamship Boverton.

The rescued crew, comprising Captain Stephen Penny and five men, were picked up at noon last Tuesday eight miles from shore but in a heavy off-shore breeze which would have carried them to sea. Constant pumping for three days and nights required to keep their craft afloat, had exhausted them, but today they appear to be suffering no ill effects.

Drought Growing Serious

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—Drought in many parts of the country breaking records of half a century in some places is causing considerable anxiety because of forest fires and exhaustion of water supplies.

Government officials, especially those of the forest service whose duty it is to protect the national forest from fire and all other danger are watching the situation narrowly. Drought has reached serious proportions.

Farmers in some sections are hard hit by the long dry period.

The sections of the country where the worst drought conditions prevail are the New England states and southward to Virginia the Gulf state, with Louisiana hardest hit; Michigan and surrounding states, and the far southwest.

Need for care in the dry forests and woods is shown, forest service officials say, by the record of California. The fire season in that state is now considered closed but from January 1 to October 20 there had been 2,439 of the forest, brush and grain fires. A total of 827,000 acres, an area larger than the state of Rhode Island, was burned over, causing an estimated loss of $5,000,000.

East Is Winning Ceaseless Fight On Forest Fires

New England Timber Land, Dry as Tinder, Still Menaced

WANT HEAVY RAINS

Storms Needed to Bring Relief for Wearied Fire Guards

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—With the New England forests tinder dry as a result of 31 rainless days and with only ceaseless vigilance holding in check the fires that have broken out, fire wardens were hoping tonight for rain to bring to an end one of the most menacing of forest fire situations in a generation. Many thousands of acres of woodland have been burned over, causing losses totaling untold thousands of dollars.

Under Control.

The worst of the fires, on Keosac mountain between Adams and North Adams in the Berkshires, today was reported to have been brought under control after two companies of national guard had augmented the forces of citizens, firemen, wardens and foresters already on the scene. A total of more than 600 acres of tall stands of timber was burned over.

In Massachusetts the situation was the worst in New England with fires in the woodlands of Northfield, Montgomery, Southwick and Attleboro giving fighters continued trouble with a menacing blaze in progress in the forest on the New Hampshire state line near Fitzwilliam, N. H.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—With tears streaming down his face and the entire courtroom weeping, Magistrate Goodman held Wong Chin, a Hip Song, for the grand jury recently in Essex Market police court on a charge of violation of a state law.

It was not the woebegone tongman who wrung tears from the eyes of all beholders, but one of several tear gas bombs found in his possession which sprung a leak when a detective exhibited it as evidence.

MIDWEST NOT IN FAVOR OF ALTERATIONS

Voters Turn Down Many Proposed Changes In Existing Laws

A FEW ADOPTED

Texas One of States That Approves; Will Give Higher Pensions

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Voters of the midwest generally disapproved of proposed changes in state constitutions and other special propositions submitted to them in the general election.

Of the twenty-nine questions placed on the ballots in fifteen states, nineteen were defeated and ten approved. In some instances counting the votes was far from complete, but the trend in each case was such as to indicate their ultimate acceptance or rejection.

Michigan Declines.

Michigan rejected three constitutional amendments, the first abolishing all parachoal schools, the second providing for a state income tax, and the last reapportioning the legislative districts. Minnetota on the other hand, approved amendments to tax users of gasoline, the money going into the vehicle tax fund.

Missouri adopted a gasoline tax law and approved an amendment giving St. Louis the right to annex any part of St. Louis county, but defeated laws which would have provided for a workman's compensation act, increase of the supreme court judgeships from seve nto nine, exemption of religious and certain other property from taxation, a means of amending the state constitution increase of legislative salaries and election of St. Louis aldermen by wards.

More for Veterans.

Texas overwhelmingly approved a constitutional amendment increasing the state tax rate two cents to provide additional funds for confederate veterans' pensions.

A $75,000,000 road bond issue was rejected in Kentucky.

Illinois decided it wanted more roads and so voted its approval of a $100,000,000 bond issue for that purpose. Other questions approved were changes in the banking law, lease of the Illinois and Michigan canal to private interests, and a law making branch banks illegal.

Kansas rejected a plan to compensate war veterans other than those who participated in the world war, and also a constitutional amendment that would have changed the tax laws. A move to increase taxation and enforce a reduction of governmental expenditures was defeated in North Dakota.

Amendments to the Wisconsin constitution providing for reforestation, home rule for cities and towns of a certain size and an increase in the number of circuit courts were adopted. Nebraska defeated a move to hold direct primaries for congressional and state officers.

Wealthy French Writer Builds a Theatre For Production of Plays.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Baron Henri de Rothschild is building a theatre in Paris, thus enabling the columnists and humorists to poke fun at him for making sure of having his plays produced.

The baron is a man of parts. He is a duly qualified doctor of medicine and acts as head physician to a hospital which he established. He has written articles, essays and short stories, under the nom de plume of "Charles des Fontaines."

"Des Fontaines" is the name of his country house near Chantilly and near it are the stables sheltering his string of racers, entries from which have won the Chantilly derby and the grand prix de Paris for several times.

The baron's greatest ambition is to gain success as a playwright and he has made several attempts, failing, however, to score a real hit thus far. He signs his plays "Andre Pascal."

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—The body of Miss Anna Putnick, pretty 1* year old elevator operator, formerly employed at the Liberty Central Trust Co., here, was found lying in a vacant lot in East Madison, Ills., by boys playing football this morning.

Examination by police revealed the girl had been knocked unconscious by a blow on the left side of her head, and a deep cut on the left ear indicated she had been struck with a sharp rock. A cloth belt was tied tightly about her neck.

Three suspects whose names are withheld, have been arrested.

The girl had planned to attend a dance in East St. Louis, Ills., with a girl friend who lived near Granite City, and had left St. Louis at 5:30 p. m., Saturday night on a street car to meet her friend. She alighted in Granite City and it is believed was walking to her friend's home when assaulted.

WALTER JONES IN HOSPITAL; JACKSON HELD

Charges to be Filed This Morning, District Attorney Says

CASE A MYSTERY

Details of Affray are Not Known; Suspect Keeps Silence

At the hospital at 2 o'clock this morning it was announced that Jones was resting easily and was believed to have shown slight improvement. His condition, however, was still critical.

Walter Jones, aged 35, of Iowa Park is lying at the point of death in the Wichita Falls general hospital as a result of a shooting affray early Sunday morning at 3 o'clock in which he received an abdominal bullet wound from a .44 calibre sawed off Colts pistol. Jack Jackson, also of Iowa Park, is in the county jail at this place and will have charges of assault with intent to murder filed against him this morning, according to district Attorney J. V. Allred who stated last night that these would be changed to murder should Jones lose his fight for life.

Found by Neighbors.

Little is known of the manner or the circumstances of the shooting, except that it happened somewhere around 3 Sunday morning. Neighbors found Jones, after hearing the shot, lying in the yard about seventy-five yards from the farm house, located about a mile east of the Roberts and Hill oil field southeast of Iowa Park. He was taken to Wichita Falls where his condition grew worse all day yesterday, and late last night he was not expected to live.

In wounds of the kind with which he is suffering, it was said, the patient frequently lingers for several days before it can be accurately determined whether or not he will survive. Attending physicians assert that while he has a chance for life, his condition is nevertheless critical in the extreme.

Officers were called to the scene and Jackson was arrested by Constable Graham of Iowa Park at 11 Sunday morning. He was taken to the county jail here, where, according to Mr. Allred he has refused to make any statement regarding the affair.

Gun is Found.

The .44 calibre Colt gun supposed to have figured in the shooting was found on the floor of a car parked near the farm house. There is some speculation as to the exact circumstances of the affray.

Jones was under a $500 bond set by the last federal grand jury for the manufacture of intoxicating liquors.

He is married and has a wife and five children who live in Iowa Park.

ARE PRETTIEST AT 35

Berlin Artists Deny Flappers Are Most Beautiful.

BERLIN, Nov. 9.—The days of the glorification of the young girl to the exclusion of the more matured women, are over, in the opinion of a number of Berlin artists, modistes and millers, to whom was put the question recently, "at what age are women most beautiful?"

Almost unanimously, the answer was that the normal woman usually was most beautiful between the ages of 30 and 35. The "Flapper" type received few votes, the judges expressing the opinion that their faces were for the most part too empty of expression.

While the average woman's figure may be developed fully by the time she is 22 years old, most of the artists to whom the question was submitted, insisted that a woman of that age had not the harmony of body and mind which gave the face the character and balance of features necessary to the creation of a commanding personality.

COTTON PRICE GOES DOWN

Government Report Forecasting Crop Yield Dominating Influence.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 9.—Although issued right at the close of the week, the government report forecasting the crop yield based on conditions existing on November 1, and giving the total amount ginned to the same date, was the dominating influence throughout last week in the cotton market.

Fears that the report would point to a crop of approximately 13,000,000 bales and total ginnings of approximately 10,000,000 bales served to cause liquidation during the early days of the week and on Wednesday forced the price level for January contracts down to 22.40.

NEW LICENSE PLATES

Will Have White Figures On Maroon Back Ground.

AUSTIN, Nov. 9.—A pair of new license plates will be furnished to each automobile owner when he pays his 1925 license fee, instead of merely issuing seals to be attached to old plates as in the past. The state highway department has decided on this change because considerable revenue has been lost by illegal transfer of the seals, it is said. The new plates will be about the same size as those now in use. The word "Texas" and the numerals "1925" will be placed vertically on the end of each plate. Letters, figures and border will be white on a maroon background.

FORGET WORK, HE SAYS

Texas' Part In World War Should be Remembered On Nov. 11

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 9.—Governor Neff Sunday night issued a proclamation asking the people of Texas to "forget the jingle of the dollar, the click of factories, the whirl of wheels" and assemble in commemoration of Armistice day, Tuesday, Nov. 11.

"Just six short years ago, as time runs," the proclamation said, "the armistice was signed by the victors and the vanquished of the greatest and the bloodiest war ever waged among men since time began. The signing of that document will be recorded by the historians of the future as marking one of the four most epoch-making days in the march of civilization. The first day chronicles the birth of the man of Gallilee, who came to make free the souls of men. The second records the signing by the unwilling hand of a kingly tyrant of the Magna Charta that sought to set free the mind and declare the divine rights of man. The third was the day on which a proud and patriotic people gave to a waiting world the declaration of American independence, which unshackled forever the consciences and the religious beliefs of men. The fourth, Armistice day, sounded the death knell of the divine right of kings, proclaimed the divine right of the people, and caused the fing of freedom to float in victory around the globe.

4,000,000 Die.

"In the work and welfare that made possible this day, four million brave, courageous sons and daughters of America were bathed in the red blood of battle. They fought on land, on sea, under the oceans and in the air. American genius bridged the Atlantic ocean over which advanced with steady tread and without fear of death or danger the most valiant and best equipped army that ever marched to martial music; American bravery was present at the death of greater armies than the Caesars ever knew; American valor witnessed the overthrow of more autocratic thrones and the flight of more titled royalty than was ever before known in the swing of the centuries; American blood consecrated the soil of France and Flanders to save the land of Lafayette from pillage and plunder; American gold sustained the soldiers of the allied armies on the battle front and fed their families at home.

"Texas, true to their shrines at Goliad, the Alamo and San Jacinto, fighting beneath foreign skies with nerves of steel and hearts of gold, added an imperishable luster of fadeless glory to the light of the Lone Star.

"In high and holy commemoration of their heroic suffering and sacrifice, let each of us, the farmer in his field, the merchant in the mart, the plainsman in the pasture, and the pastor in his pulpit, remember to fittingly commemorate November 11 as Armistice day.

"Let us recall the deeds of valor that made it immortal, and observe this day in that spirit of grateful remembrance to which its sacrifices and sacredness justly entitle it. A people who, in times of peace fail to do honor to their defenders in the days of peril will not accomplish anything worthy to be remembered by posterity.

Proclaims the Day.

"Therefore I, Pat M. Neff, governor of Texas, hereby call upon the people of this state to suspend for at least one hour during this historic day the selfish pursuits of the maddening crowd, forget the jingle of the dollar, the click of factories, and the whirl of wheels, and assemble in churches, institutions of learning and the public forums, and there engage in solemn and impressive ceremony worthy of the memory of all those who engaged in this world-wide conflict in behalf of freedom and justice and truth."

BATTLEFIELDS LOSE LURE

Tourists Now Turn to Monte Carlo and Other Points.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The demand for tourist accommodations on excursions to the battlefields has fallen off noticeably of late but reservations for Nice, Monte Carlo and other points along the Riviera are at a premium, bonuses of 100 francs being frequently given for sleeping car tickets to southern France. This winter the rush promises to be even greater than last year's record invasion.

Those interested in visiting the battlefields constitute a mere drop in the bucket of the tourist traffic reported by travel bureaus here. Most of those going north merely view the former battle front from train windows on one day trips to Rheims to have a look at the famous cathedral.

Mothers

AND THEIR CHILDREN

Must Enjoy Reading

The problem of getting children to read is growing increasingly difficult. They are inclined to let the movies take the place of literature. Therefore, if you are going to get your children to read, remember that first of all they must enjoy reading. If they are bored by a book, no matter if it is a classic, do not insist on their reading it. It is better to put it away and substitute a well-written book with a more adventurous appeal. Even if you think a book should be read by a child, do not force it on him at the expense of causing him to dislike reading for himself.

Demos Only Hope Of Progressives, Bryan Declares

Latest Election Not as Bad As That of 1920, Says The Commoner

HE LAUDS COOLIDGE

Says President and Dawes Are of High Character; Country Safe

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—In a statement issued here tonight summarizing his opinions of the election returns, William Jennings Bryan declared the democratic party remains "the only hope of the progressive element of the country."

The republican victory, he said, was not as disastrous to the democrats as that of 1920, when overwhelming republican majorities were returned in senate and house. He counselled democrats to "find consolation in the fact that the high character of President Coolidge and General Dawes insures that the country will have the very best service that they can render."

"The third party, even under the able leadership of Senator LaFollette," said Mr. Bryan, "polled such a small percentage of the total vote that his supporters must be convinced that it is impossible to build up a class party in the United States.

"If the democrats do half as well two years from now as they did two years ago they will control the next congress and lay the foundations for the campaign of 1928."

The jury considered simultaneously the cases of 76 Filipinos, who were among those on strike from the McBryde plantation at the time of the riot. Sixteen were acquitted. The court sentenced two of those convicted to four years and eleven months imprisonment, and the others to four years each.

Jesus Feeding The Multitude Is Kay Theme

Speaks On Miracle At Sunday Morning Services

313 MEN PRESENT

Says Miracle of Being Saved by Christ Is One of Greatest

The lesson of the miracle of Jesus feeding the multitude was given Sunday morning by Judge John C. Kay in his lecture to his men's Bible class at the Strand theatre. Three hundred and thirteen were present. Judge Kay's lecture was as follows:

No More Taxes.

Gentlemen, now that the election is over and all the promises have been made to us, I am quite sure that the taxes will be abolished, that we will not have to work so hard, and that every goose will be a swan. It is always that way.

The lesson this morning is about a great miracle. Now, I do not know how you, or some of you, feel about miracles. They give me less trouble than anything else in the Bible. The miracle this morning was the feeding of the five thousand with five loaves and some little fishes. The Savior was trying to get away from the crowd. Do you ever do that? Do you ever feel like—"Go on off, now, all of you and let me alone"? Do you ever get away from the crowd and make an honest, earnest effort to catch up with your own private thought? Now, if you don't do that once in a while, your thinking is not going to be clear. A man ought, from time to time, even as God found it necessary, go out to himself to do his real, honest, earnest thinking. I do not do that so often as I should. I think that you do not.

Wanted to Get Away.

The Savior went to get away from a multitude that approached him on the seaside, and He went across a narrow sea, and they ran around the end of it and found Him again on the other side, and He fed them in this great miracle.

Now, there is something peculiar about the miracles of our Lord. He performed none at Gethsemane, in the hour of his agony. He performed no miracle at the cross, when they said: "If thou be the Son of God save Thyself and come down off the cross". He performed none when they sought to kill Him at Nazareth. In other words, He performed none for Himself.

Oh, if we could get away from doing all our service for self. I saw a little strip in the comic paper the other day, in which one of the characters was called Mr. I. I. Me, and I said: "Are you any relation of mine?"

But the Savior fed this great multitude that had gathered about Him, a great many of them, as He afterwards said, from improper motives, following Him only for the loaves and fishes. Now, let me tell you something. If you join the church with a view of it keeping you up in your business, and helping you commercially or socially, you are the shabbiest sinner in town, because, He said, "These followed me for the loaves and fishes." Just tagging along behind for—what? For what they could get out of it. There are men like that in every age and in every country.

Why Believe It.

Now this miracle—sometimes, there comes into our hearts a whisper that the Bible would have been just as well if it contained no supernatural matters. I have sometimes thought, when I was not thinking very well, that the Bible would have been less difficult to me if it had left out all of those matters that sounded supernatural, like the virgin birth, and all the miracles, and, a man might ask himself, why religion has brought along all of these stories in connection with the plan of salvation and in connection with the philosophy of the gospel? Why am I asked, indeed, required to believe also these things? A man will ask himself these questions, I know. Now, the answer consists in a very deep truth. The answer lies in the fact that a God who could not do anything that you could not do, would be no God. If He is no stronger than I am, in all weakness and sin, then He can do me no good. So it was that the Romans often laughed at their gods, and the Greeks often said that "our gods stand helpless and hopeless on Olymupa."

And one of the old Persians, in one of his hours of disbelief of his gods, cried out that "It is no use to try to bribe the helpless gods with blood and cakes". So that your God and my God must be greater than we are great, stronger than we are strong, and infinitely more pure than we are pure. Then, a miracle, to my mind, is an exhibition of power that comes from out the blue and beyond the ken of men and the minds of men.

Doesn't Square.

But some of the scientists say that it does not square with experience: Some of these fellows that have put in their lives just following one wagon track—a man like that knows less than anybody. If you can ever get him out of his wagon track, he is helpless and hopeless.

A fellow will tell you that a miracle is impossible with God. A botanist will tell you that, when he does not know, to save his life, why a bean will come up, and stick up on top of the ground when it comes up. hTat does not bother him. He cannot explain it but, he says, that is alright, that is just "nature. What he means by "nature" is that it is something he does not understand. I asked one of them once, why the cotton-bloom turns red on the second day? He said it was the action of the oxygen in the air and the sunshine, a perfectly natural process. I said, "Brother, why doesn't a magnolia bloom do that, too?"

Ah, the mind of man, as it reaches out and out, comes evermore at last to a door that is shut, and must ever remain shut. There is no science, there is no philosophy, there is no problem in nature that you can sound to its utmost depths. I think nobody believes more in the scientist than I do, except when they walk outside the realm of pure science and begin to tear down this old Bible that I have been raised on, and I say: "Thus far shalt thou come, and no farther."

There are miracles everywhere. That I am alive. That I can see is a miracle to me. That I can hear. That I can feel. That I can taste. All of these things refuse such an analysis as my mind is enabled to give them, and stand there as great mysteries to me and, I think, to you.

Now, when the Savior had fed these five thousand, He went away again and left them. Was that miracle lost on them? I think, on a great many, it was. You know it does not mean anything to a great many people that the grass grows, as it is shown in this lesson, and that the trees bloom and bear fruit, that the clouds come and bring the rain, that the blue and yellow stars slip over us by night and the mighty sun by day. All of these things, I say, do not awaken the curiosity of many men. Yet, all these things cry aloud to me reigns and rules over us, and that He reigns and rules over us, and that all nature is in accord and in tune with His order, and His system, and His fiat. So, let us not worry about our belief in the miracles. There is something more important that you and I should believe and adopt, than these. There is one miracle, above all miracles to you, and that is that the Christ would come to a sinful, weak, degraded man and wipe his heart clean with a new religion and a new life, and make a new man out of him. That is the greatest, to you and to me, and the most practical of all the miracles. If you believe in that, you believe in all of them. If you fail to believe in that, you believe in none of them. That is the miracle of all miracles. That is the important thing of all the important things, and that is the great thing in the life of this man, and that man, and of every man that adopts Him.

Then, has this miracle been performed in your heart and in your life? Have you gone out into life saying that "He has touched my heart and made it whole"? If you have, then you can say with all the saints, that "He has washed me and I am whiter than snow".

DUTCH TRY TO SAVE TULIPS

Crops, Once a Money Maker, Have Been Diminishing Lately.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 9.—A desperate, costly effort to save the Dutch tulip and hyacinth crops, which have steadily been dwindling the last few years, will be made this winter. Thousands of acres of tulips and hyacinths will be placed under wooden boxes, packed with straw and covered with oilcloth and wet steam pipes installed, giving a temperature of 100 degrees in the afternoon hours.

Savants declare this is the sole means of preserving the crops which formerly netted millions of guilders annually, but are fast becoming extinct. The big banks are aiding the farmers with financial operations.

BED HIS ONLY SAFE PLACE.

Iowa Man, Injured Kicking at Pig, Breaks Arm Reaching Doctor.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Nov. 9.—Harry Lewis, living near Nevada, had his share of accidents, all within a few hours, yesterday. He kicked at a sow that was nosing her pigs away from the trough, missed her, struck the edge of the trough and tore loose the ligaments in his right leg. The accident caused him to fall, and he crushed two of the pigs to death. Limping to the house, he tried to crank his car to go to a doctor, and the engine backfired, breaking two bones in his right forearm. He sent for the doctor and went to bed.

State G. O. P. Leader Claims Many Butte Votes Not Counted

W. E. Talbot of Dallas, state republican manager, Saturday gave out the following:

In order that there may be no misunderstanding, I desire to make the following statement to the press and I sincerely hope in justice to the many thousands of voters in Texas, both republicans and democrats who supported Butte that you publish this statement in your columns.

There has been no intention of our organization to make a contest on this election unless it was shown in the final tabulation that the vote was very close. If the majority was overwhelming we would be good sports and take our defeat like men. However, before the polls had closed we began receiving reports from boxes all over the state that where George C. Butte's name was written in on the democratic column it was not counted. Since election day letters and telegrams have continued to pour in, giving this same information, which proves conclusively that it was done generally over the state. Herewith follows a list of specific cases.

In Bexar County.

Bexar—Irregularities.

Coryell (Oglesby)—A. All scratched ballots thrown out (thirteen votes). B. Election judges said "The Attorney General did not have any say as to the election law, but that he followed instructions from democratic committee."

Collin county — Fifteen ballots thrown out.

Grayson (Tiago) — Fifteen not counted.

Goliad (Goliad) — All scratched ballots thrown out.

Galveston (Galveston) — A. Precinct 5; Tremont Hotel, said "Sure, I threw out twenty-five or thirty ballots with Butte's name written in democratic column. I don't know exactly how many. I did not count them." (Presiding Judge Sam Dearinger). B. (Said he was told to discount all ballots where the name George C. Butte was written in the democratic column instead of in the republican ticket.) C. (A. A. Hutchins, presiding judge at precinct 18 admitted throwing out a few ballots for the same reason.)

Jim Wells—County Judge instructed election judges not to count Butte votes where written on democratic column.

Ballots Mutilated.

Jefferson (Sabine Pass box) — Irregularities (scratched ballots classified as mutilated and all rejected.)

Kaufman (Elm) — Ten ballots thrown out.

Leon (Normangee) — Sixteen ballots not counted (Butte 110, Ferguson 81.)

Limestone (Mexia) — A. (Ruling of election judges who had all ballots thrown out that did not conform to his views.) B. Isadore Newman called his attention to attorney general ruling and the judge told him the attorney general was not the law and that he was governed by the election law which he held in his hand. (A number of affidavits can be furnished.) C. Frad Bennet, supervisor of the polls here, stated that 192 ballots not counted on account of voters not complying with Terrell election law. He further held it was a clear violation of Terrell election law to write in any name under the column where a printed name had been inserted and that the only way to write a name in would be to write it in the column provided for such a purpose on the ballot.

NOW FOR AN INSIDE VIEW

Oklahoma Representative Once Was Arrested Sight Seeing at Capital.

CLAREMORE, Okla., Nov. 9.—Thirteen years ago two Oklahoma youths, visiting Washing for the first time, were arrested by an irate policeman for climbing a statue in front of the union station to obtain a better view of the capitol.

Today one of the youths, Wayne C. Bayless of Claremore, was found to be the winner in the congressional race in the first Oklahoma district, and will make a more dignified entry into the capital.

Bayless's ability as an orator, marked even then, released them from the clutches of the law, according to the story told today by his companion in the escapade, W. H. Cates, Claremore newspaper man.

Baldwin's Pipes Will Move Again To Downing St.

British Premier Kept On Jump Last Four Years; Now at It Once More

LONDON, Nov. 9.—Stanley Baldwin's pipes and household furniture are about to be moved for the fourth time within two years.

When the Lloyd-George coalition crumbled and the Bonar Law government was formed the Baldwins gave up their home in Eaton Square and moved into Number 11 Downing street, the official residence of the chancellor of the exchequer.

Upon Bonar Law's retirement all the household belongings of the Baldwin family were taken out of Downing street and moved into the house next door—the celebrated No. 10, here Mr. Baldwin established himself as premier.

He was there only a few months when the country turned down his protective tariff pleas and he had to go house hunting again while the MacDonald family made themselves at home in No. 10.

Now the labor leader is going back to his simple brick house in "'Appy 'Amstead" indistinguishable from any other house in the row where he lives and Mr. Baldwin's family is making ready to re-enter No. 10 Downing street.

Meanwhile the retired labor party ministers, whose homes have been guarded day and night for the last nine months, with messengers rushing in and out with dispatch boxes at all hours, will become calm again and the "bobbies" on their beats won't give them any more attention than is received by the dwelling place of any ordinary taxpayer.

A POLICE HEAD "ON PARADE."

Atchison Chief Must Wheel Another in a Wheelbarrow.

ATCHISON, Kan., Nov. 9.—As a result of an election bet, Chief of Police W. C. Linville must wheel Earl Hellener, city engineer, down Commercial street in a wheelbarrow late today. The public has been invited to attend what promises to be the best comedy ever staged on Atchison's main thoroughfare.

SCHOOL BARS JAZZ MUSIC

Decision Is Made By Bloomfield, Mo., High School.

BLOOMFIELD, Mo., Nov. 9.—Jazz music is to be barred from the programs to be given in the Bloomfield high school, according to an announcement of the superintendent, Roe Johns.

The superintendent in making the announcement said it was the policy of the administration to encourage only those things that make for the betterment of the youth of the town, and it is felt that they get too much jazz music at other places without encouraging it in school.

Mother Kidnaps Own Daughter In California City

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9.—June Shosted, 6, child of Mrs. Lois Polin, was being taken from California by kidnapers today, the police believe.

The girl was stolen from her foster mother and aunt, Mrs. Elsie Shosted, who won the custody of the child after four hotly contested legal battles with the real mother, who is the wife of a captain in the United States army stationed in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Shosted asserted Mrs. Polin, her husband and a strange man seized the child from her side while she was walking along a street here, and fled with her in a motor car. Mrs. Shosted says she sprang on the running board of the machine to rescue the child, but was hurled into the street by one of the men. She asserted Mrs. Polin struck her many times.

Attempts of the police to find the child and her abductors failed. It is believed the party escaped into Arizona.

Mrs. Shosted says she took the child to shield her younger and unmarried sister from disgrace. This happened in Kansas six years ago. Since that time Mrs. Shosted and Mrs. Polin have waged court fights for possession of June.

ANDREW W. MELLON.

Andrew W. Mellon is willing to serve another four years as secretary of the treasury. Andrew W. Mellon is one of the rich men and astute financiers of America. Warren G. Harding called him from his vast business enterprises to the head of the treasury department of the government. Now Calvin Coolidge is going to retain Mellon at his post.

Pennsylvania is behind Mellon. He is the most powerful political leader of the state. Pennsylvania gave upwards of a million majority for Coolidge and Dawes. Pennsylvania democrats received the worst beating in their history. They lost six congressional districts, all they had to the republicans and yet the democratic nominees had the backing of the LaFollette organization.

Admirers of Mellon credit him with being the second Alexander Hamilton in American history. His taxation plan was defeated by progressive republicans, led by LaFollette. LaFollette had the balance of power in house and senate and he used it. Republicans will have a majority of 24 in the new congress. They will control the senate. Now the administration will make another fight for the Mellon income tax proposition and with the sweeping majority won by the republicans at the polls the second Alexander Hamilton in America's history may put it over.

He has the backing of big business, the backing of powerful leaders of his party and the backing of the commercial organizations of the republic. Mussolini LaFollette held the whip hand in the old congress. He tossed it aside to make his race for the presidency and to become the builder of a new political organization which he predicted would sweep the country in the near future.

Voters of America have placed the big stick in the hands of Calvin Coolidge. Will he make use of it? Will he drive from the party polls the leaders and their followers? Calvin Coolidge is calculating as well as cool. In New England they use honey to catch flies. The president is a New Englander and if he cannot find honey he will use maple syrup as a fly catcher.

Those who know him best say that "the sane and the safe" will control the nation for the coming years and "the sane and the safe" are the gentlemen who believe in sitting steady in the boat and letting well enough alone.

HANS HACKEL.

Hans Hackel, prominent German language editor and publisher of the St. Louis Post, the foremost German daily in America, committed suicide the day before election. He had been bitterly criticised by some few of his readers because he gave his support to the republican nominee for president.

Hans Hackel was a soldier in the Spanish-American war and although he was born in Germany he had lived 30 years in America and was widely known as a writer and lecturer in the German-American circles of the United States.

On election day the German-Americans of St. Louis and Missouri voted almost solidly for the republican nominee and as a result the democrats lost the state, Davis lost the electoral votes and the democratic donkey was sent into winter quarters without provender.

Criticism killed the noted writer and war correspondent. Now his political favorite is in for a long lease of power and all the offices in Missouri will be filled by republicans. The moral of this tale is that an editor should think wisely before he shoots so accurately.

HARVEY A GOOD GUESSER.

On November 2 Colonel George Harvey, in a newspaper interview predicted a majority of 277 in the electoral college for Coolidge and Dawes. He guessed that the republicans would carry Kentucky, Oklahoma, and Tennessee and he made this postive declaration: "Mr. LaFollette will carry Wisconsin. He cannot count confidently upon another." Mr. LaFollette carried Wisconsin. If there is another state in sight for him the wire hasn't carried the news to Texas.

Sub Rosa

THE TIRED BUSINESS GIRL.

Yesterday I had the pleasure of having lunch with a crowd of business girls, and as they always associate "mimi" and "advice" together, I was asked a very serious question by one of the girls.

She is engaged to be married and showed us a beautiful engagement ring.

"Should I marry him, Mimi?" she asked—"I'm not wild about him, I haven't the passion of a Juliet of her Romeo but I love him in a way and I admire him greatly, and I'm sure he will make me happy. And I am so tired of working, so weary with this everlasting, every day grind."

I looked at her tired, pretty face, her underweight, little body—her drooping shoulders—certainly this dear child did need a rest—a rest—if not a husband.

My heart swelled within me. I knew she could not take a rest, and I knew her health would not hold out if she continued with her work.

"You are too physically and mentally tired just now to fall madly in love with anyone," I explained to her—"to be swept off your feet with great passion requires a lot of energy—to have the emotional side of your nature paramount requires freedom from worry.

so,"I haven't a doubt that if you marry your fiance you will be perfectly happy, and I am sure when you are rested, and have a little home of your own, you will experience all the thrills and ecstasy that are talked about in novels."

More Truth Than Poetry

AFTERWARD

Last month many Great Politicians,
Of wide and distinguished renown
Forgot their exalted positions,
And bowed when they met me down town.
They spoke of the tax situation,
And said it was easy to see
That the hope of our glorious nation
Depended on strong men, like me.

They asked me to give them suggestions
On reducing the national debt,
On the tariff, and other questions
That haven't been settled as yet.
They said that the country's protectors
From bluster and shallow preteence,
Were its honest and able electors—
Plain people like me, who had sense.

They said that the only solution
Of the problems and trials of the hour,
Is upholding the old constitution,
And putting strong statesmen in power.
They said that the soil of the nation
With the seeds of destruction is sown,
And that its last single chance of salvation
Lies in men of sound mind—like my own.

But ah! these Great Men are forgetful!
When our intimate chats I recall,
As I greet them, they're hurried and fretful—
And don't seem to know me at all.
I stand, in the chill of November
As they snap "How'dye do?" and move on
And then with a sigh I remember
That election is over and gone.

SOME CONSOLATION

If labor comes as high in England as it does in America, the members of the deposed cabinet will not suffer any financial loss by getting turned out.

By Dr. Frank Crane

THE WRECKERS.

There is a class of people who make a living out of wrecking, or beach combing.

They lie in wait for ships that have been wrecked and gather up the fragments that have been strewn on the shore.

They are reminders of a certain kind of people that are met everywhere. Their business is to tear down, to destroy, to remove the waste. We even have them in the animal life and a large part of the insects and of the furry and winged wild things get their living by destroying other things or by handling the waste products.

An animal does not lie dead very long before the insects and carrion crows are at work removing the flesh from his bones and he is never left until his bones are white.

A certain part of the human race are wreckers.

The butchers take animal life in order to supply food for man.

The wood choppers fell trees and remove the growth from the land in order to make room for human habitation.

Undertakers remove human beings from the scene of their activity and scavengers remove the waste.

There are wreckers of ideas as well as of things. Some men seem to be gifted with the spirit of perpetual denial. They oppose, tear down, and destroy other men's beliefs. Perhaps it is necessary to do this in order to remove the growth of superstition and possibly some good goes along with the bad. It is difficult to tear down evil without, at the same time, destroying that which is good.

Wreckers have their place in the human economy. There is no bread without the destruction of grain, and most of our clothes are raked from the backs of animals.

As we look at the whole drama of human life we are minded of the Irish story of Orchil who sits under the earth and continually weaves, weaving life upwards and death downward.

For man must pass and it is as necessary that he should die as that he should be born.

What Today Means to You

SCORPIO.

Conditions, according to today planetary aspects, are mainly adverse during the early morning, followed by a short and fairly good period lasting until noon. This is the best part of the day, but even at that favors only ordinary and routine affairs. After noon, the vibrations change, and the next oncoming aspect is Saturnine and adverse. The signs clearly indicate that nothing of a speculative or hazardous risk should be attempted, and every effort should be made to avoid the making of any important decisions; the launching of any new enterprises along untried lines should be postponed to some more propitious opportunity.

A child born today will enjoy a normally healthy life, although it will be subject to one or more aggravating illnesses just subsequent to the period of adolescense. Its character will be reliable; its disposition, more serious than gay, its mentality, introspectively keen. This child, will, unfortunately, lack a sense of humor, and will take life altogether too seriously. Even in its younger days it will be worried by problems that have, so far, remained unsolved. It should be compelled, as far as possible, to mingle freely with playmates of its own age in order to cure it, as far as practical, of an ever present desire for solitude, and unnatural introspection—breeders of morbidness.

If today is your birthday, you like to lead, and will never fill a secondary place if you can possibly forge your way to the front. In your anxiety to be in the vanguard, you often tread on others' toes to their discomfixture and, sometimes, to your own disadvantage.

You are philanthropic, and take a great deal of interest in social and public affairs. This ambition on your part is not subject to criticism, although you would possibly achieve more success along the lines that you have mapped out for yourself, if your opinions were not so "downright," and your expression of them were a trifle more diplomatic. You are very strong on conviction, but short on your judicial temperamentality.

If single, you should select, as a mate, one who will be in sympathy with your broad-minded interests, or, at least, a good listener.

You are fond of travel, and enjoy reading books of the better sort.

Successful people born on this date are: Gagner Swaynem, soldier and lawyer; Amos E. Dolbear, physicist and inventor; Henry Van Dyke, clergyman and author; Isidor Singer, journalist and author; Winston Churchill, author, a popular writer of historical fiction; Alexander P. Moore, editor—ambassador to Spain.

So That's It, Is It?

The Man With The Broken Nose Or The Strange Adventure of a Rolls-Royce

By MICHAEL ARLEN.

"Steady," said George Tarlyon to the restless shape.

"You'll throttle yourself," said George Tarlyon.

To prevent him from doing that we, with a sudden and well concerted movement, unscrewed his head and muffled him with a handkerchief. We looked upon his face for the first time.

"You're a nasty, cruel old man," said George Tarlyon.

Achmed Jzzit Pasha looked all that the Armenian had said he was, and more. A fierce old face it was that looked murder at us. His eyes, under white, bushy eyebrows, were frantic and furious, and never for a second did he cease to struggle. I thought of that fine old Turkish warrior of the last century, the man of Plevna, Osman Pasha; this old man is of the same breed, I thought.

We had so far heard nothing of the Armenian; but that Achmed Jzzit Pasha realized that we two were only accessories was evident, for not even his struggling with us concealed the fact that he was listening, listening intently.

A slight noise, as of a drawer hastily banged, came from the next room. It was only a small noise, but it had a mighty effect on the old slayer of men. His eyes simply tore at us, his fat little body heaved frantically, he bit my finger in trying to howl—he went quite mad, that violent old Turk. I admonished him severely:

"It's only little Anais packing up to go away with her brother," I told him; but the old Turk knew not resignation nor repentance, and still we had gently to battle with him.

"He's an infernally long time about it," grumbled Tarlyon at last—and at that very moment the horn outside blew twice. We welcomed it.

"Now," said Tarlyon to the heaving old man, "we are about to release you. Your girl has flown, so it's too late for you to make a noise. So don't. And for form's sake he showed the revolver, though I never saw a man who looked less likely to use it. "You may not realize it," he added severely, "but we have saved your life. After the first shock has worn off you will thank two disinterested men for having saved you from the wrath of an Armenian."

With another sudden and well concerted movement we let go. The Pasha did not make a noise. But in the next few seconds he revealed, for a Turk, an astonishing knowledge of the baser words and idioms of the English language. Then he leaped out of bed, a funny little creature in pink flannel pyjamas, and rushed out of the room. Breathless, we found him in the next room.

Now I have very little acquaintance with girls' bedrooms, but a glance was sufficient to show me that no girl alive could have a bedroom like that. There was no bed in it, and very little else; just a thing like a tallboy, but made of steel, or so it looked; and that, if I may say so, had certainly been ravished. * * *

Then the old man really began to howl, and we hadn't the heart to stop him. He howled himself back to the bedroom, and we followed him, looking and feeling like all the things he said we were.

"But aren't you Achmed Jzzit Pasha?" I pleaded. But the life had suddenly gone out of him; he sat on the edge of the bed.

"My name is Wagstaffe," he said weakly, "and I have the finest collection of Roman coins in the country. Or rather, I had. My son, Michael Wagstaffe, has them now—thanks to you two idiots!"

Tarlyon had an idea which took him to the window; I had the same idea, and followed him. (We looked down upon the face of Brook street, and behold! it was empty. Never was a Rolls-Royce car with lamps alight so invisible!). We went back to Mr. Wagstaffe on the edge of the bed.

"We are sorry," I muttered, but he seemed not to hear us. George Tarlyon is usually a fine upstanding fellow, and some people have thought him handsome, but now he looked as though he had seen horrid spectres after dining entirely on pate de foie gras.

Mr. Wagstaffe was whispering, almost to himself: "Two years ago, when I drove him out of the house, he swore that one day he would steal my coins. And now he has stolen my coins. I always knew he would keep his word, for he is a devil. And he always knew that, come what may, I would not prosecute my son for a thief. * * * My Roman coins!"

And Mr. Wagstaffe wept.

We explained our position to him. We gave him a brief outline of the facts. We begged him to understand. We pointed out that if his son really had been an Armenian and if he had really been Achmed Jzzit Pasha we had undoubtedly saved his life. I couldn't help thinking that he ought to be grateful to us, but I didn't say that.

He seemed to find a little solace in our discomfiture.

"Ah, he's a clever boy, Michael," sighed Mr. Wagstaffe. "He is always on the lookout for what he calls the Mugs. I gather that you two gentlemen are Mugs—the same, perhaps, as what are known in American as Guys. But I, his father, can assure you that he is not an Armenian; nor has he ever been nearer to Armenia than the bankruptcy court, but he has been here twice. He calls himself the cavalier of the streets, but when he is up to any of his tricks he disguises himself as an Armenian—the disguise consisting merely of his saying he is an Armenian. It's so simply, he says, for the Mugs believe him at once, on the ground that no one would say he was an Armenian if he wasn't. I have only been back from America a week, and he must have been searching all London for me. He probably saw me at the theatre this evening, and was going to raid my house alone when you two intelligent gentlemen got in his way.

"But he is not a bad boy really—he's got ideas, that's what it is; and also Mugs have an irresistible fascination for him. Take your case, for instance. I have no doubt but that he will be ready to return me my coins in exchange for a cheque—though, of course, that depends on the cheque. And I can see, gentlemen, that you are eager to show your regret for breaking into my house and assaulting my person by offering to pay the cheque yourselves. I thank you, though, indeed, it is the least you can do, and an infinitely more convenient way of settling the matter than wearisome arguments in a police court—provided, of course, that house breaking and assault are matters for argument. I have never yet heard they were. * * *

I giggled. I simply couldn't help it.

"That's all very well," said Tarlyon, "but what about my car?"

HOW IT STARTED

"Mending His Fences."

This expression, heard frequently when the talk is political, is used with reference to a politician who is trying to strengthen his support before a nomination, or an election, by making sure of those whose loyalty is questionable.

For its origin we find the following story:

John Sherman, a prominent statesman of the last century, was three times, the first in 1880, a candidate for the republican nomination for the presidency. A short time before the republican convention of 1880 he retired for a short time to his farm at Mansfield, Ohio. Previously active as senator, he had, of course, made friends and enemies. And it was thought not unlikely that some of both would find their way to Mansfield to confer with him on the coming election.

One day he was occupied in replacing some rails on a fence. A reporter inquiring as to what the candidate was doing, was told:

"He's over there mending his fences."

The ambiguity of the expression is obvious. It was immediately taken up and has survived to this day.

Don't Rush to Mother With Your Matrimonial Woes, Young Brides. Because Long After You Have Forgotten Them She Will Remember —and Blame Your Husband.

If I were to give one piece of advice more earnest than another to a young bride, it would be this: Don't tell your mother all of your troubles. Don't run to mother with all your little disappointments and worries and anxieties.

This will seem a hard saying to both the bride and the mother, and they will cry out that a mother is a daughter's natural confidante, the one person in the world to whom she can always go, secure of sympathy. But that is just the trouble. It is because mother is always ready to pity, instead of judge, that makes her the most dangerous confidante that a young wife can have, because it leads her into continually exaggerating every pin prick of her new life into a deadly wound.

No human man is the impossible conglomeration of charms and virtues of a young girl's imagination. Nobody could be a combination of Romeo and Mr. Rockefeller and Job, and the latest jazz dancer, that every girl in love thinks that she is marrying. Nor is matrimony merely a state in which a girl is emancipated from the control of her elders, has the spending of her husband's money, wears beautiful negligee, and is continually flattered and made love to.

So, naturally, when the bride finds out that she has married a very human man, full of faults and weaknesses, instead of a godling, and when she ascertains that her husband is selfish and opinionated, and has ways that irritate her, she is bitterly disillusioned.

Also, she gets another shock when she discovers that marriage calls for perpetual self-sacrifice from a woman, that there are quite a few thorns among its roses, and that, generally speaking, the holy estate falls far short of what poets and romancers have press-agented it to be.

Follows a time of adjustment, when the little bride is trying to swallow her bitter pill of disillusion without making too many faces over it and attempting to fit her dream to reality. They are not happy days for her. Her castle in Spain lies in ruins about her. She is hurt, bewildered, despairing.

Then it is that she longs to run to mother and weep out her sorrows on her breast. Then it is that she vivisects her husband for mother's benefit and turns the spotlight on his every blemish. Then it is that she makes husband's hasty word sound like a premeditated insult, when his careless act becomes a crime, when a necessary economy turns into miserliness.

The young wife who thrashes over all of her husband's shortcomings with her mother doesn't really intend to do her husband an injustice or misrepresent him. But she is angry with him, and still smarting from some domestic scrap, and the temptation to tell it all to some one who will "poor dear" her and pity her and never even think of looking at the other side of the case is more than she can resist.

So every time that John complains about the coffee or refuses to buy Mabel a new car, or says he is too tired to go out of an evening, Mabel chases over to mother's and cries into her best handkerchief while she tells mother all about it, and is commiserated on how unreasonable John is. Or else she writes mother a tear-stained letter in which she pours out her woes, and mother gets a picture of John firmly fixed in her mind as a close-fisted brute, who takes a delight in torturing her angel child.

And she hates John accordingly. In the meantime Mabel has forgotten all about her accusations against John. She loves him and he loves her, and in her heart she knows that in their quarrels she is just as much to blame as he is. So they kiss and make up and all would be well if only Mabel hadn't told mother about it.

But the thought of Mabel's martyrdom rankles in mother's mind. She magnifies John's every weakness into a terrible sin. She throws a sinister light on his every shortcoming and she either reduces Mabel to a pulp of self-pity by her sympathy, or else eggs her on to getting a divorce.

Many a man who considers himself a model husband, who adores his wife, and spends his life working to make her happy and to give her everything she wants, and who has never suspected but that his wife is also happy and contented, wonders why his mother-in-law dislikes him and looks upon him with a suspicious eye.

The explanation would amaze him. It is because every time he and his wife have had a disagreement she has told mother all about it while she was still in a rage. She has let her anger color her story and long after she has forgotten all about it mother still remembers.

The woman who rushes to tell mother every time she and her husband have a little spat justifies her lack of loyalty by saying that she has told nobody but mother. But mother is not always discreet. In fact, mother is so sloshing over with sympathy for her poor, persecuted child, that she is just bound to weep over Mabel's sad fate with her cronies. That is the way that, nine times out of 10, the scandal gets started about the John Jones' fighting like dogs and cats, and Tom Smith being a brute who actually beats that poor, pretty, little wife of his, or Simpson being so stingy that his wife has to get every nickel out of him with a corkscrew.

Therefore, I say, don' tell your troubles to mother, little bride. When you and your husband have family squabbles, referee your husband's faults. That is something you have learned in confidence and that you are in honor bound not to reveal.

Don't tell your troubles to any one, least of all to mother. The less we tell, the less we have to be sorry for.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

BE READY FOR ROUGH GOING

If all roads were well paved and ran on easy gradients there would be no need of strong and high powered automobiles.

If all the ways of life were smooth there would be less need of the self-discipline and industry that build strength and ability.

Perhaps the time will come, when because of the work of those who have gone before them, life will become so easy for our descendents that they will become in mind and body, a flabby and worthless race.

But that time is so many hundreds of thousands of years ahead that it is idle to speculate about it now.

Just at present the smoothest road is likely to turn rough just around the corner—the easiest and most comfortable existence may at any time become beset with difficulties and perils.

"It is dreadfully rough weather captain," said the timid passenger on the transatlantic liner.

"Yes," said the captain, "it is, and it will get ten times rougher before the night is over."

Which wasn't much of a consolation, but it at least prepared the passenger for what was coming, and perhaps lessened his terrors when the skipper's prophecy was fulfilled, and the vessel began staggering through seas that swept her from one end to the other.

Vessels are built for the roughest going, and almost never, unless they strike an iceberg or a derelict, are they lost at sea.

Men and women, setting out on a journey far more mysterious than the voyage of any ship across the sea, must be likewise fitted for rough going, or the journey will end long before the harbor is in sight.

True, the lives of some people seem to be cast in pleasant places. They are cared for from birth to the grave, and know few trials or sorrows.

But these are few. To the most of us, the road may turn rough at any time, and lucky are we if it is rough at first, so that we may learn how to keep on our way, despite the ruts and the mires and the hills, and gain the strength and the confidence that will enable us to maintain our way no matter what may lie before us.

The young people beginning life complain of the contempt of their elders, or the injustice and the mistreatment they encounter.

But these things are a part of life. No one is ever treated quite fairly. Always must there be cruelty and consequent heart burnings.

These things can be got through as all trouble can be got through, and once one knows what is ahead, he can stiffen his courage to meet it, sure he will arrive safely at the other side.

The first years of life are not wasted, even if they bring few rewards, if they give the training and instill the courage necessary to meet the rough going that may be just around the corner, or may await many years ahead, when the vigor of youth is gone, and only will and determination can hold us to our course.

HURT IN CAR ACCIDENT.

Medicine Mound Woman Suffers Fractured Shoulder.

SNOW IN MOUNTAINS

Flurries General Over Montana Cattle Are in Danger.

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 9.—Snow flurries were general throughout western Montana last night with sporadic storms in the southwestern sections at times approaching a blizzard. PARLIAMENT SUMMONED

Viennese Body to Meet Nov. 11; To Name New Ministry.

VIENNA, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Parliament has been summoned to meet November 11 for the appointment of a new ministry, to replace that headed by Ignaz Seipel which resigned yesterday on account of the general railroad strike.

The strike is effective, but the strikers are running trains transporting foodstuffs and those carrying workmen.

The situation created by the strike and the simultaneous resignation of the government is considered in parliamentary circles as full complexities because the men's demands involve an additional annual expenditure of 250,000,000,000 kronen by the railroads, which were in a fair way to become self supporting.

FIRE LOSS IN HOUSTON

Lucey Manufacturing Plant is Swept By Flames.

HOUSTON, Texas, Nov. 9.—Fire that broke out shortly after 8 o'clock tonight in the foundry of the Lucey Manufacturing Co., here destroyed the foundry and much valuable machinery before being brought under control. The loss was estimated at $175,000.

For a time it seemed the wind would carry the flames to other buildings of the plant and a general alarm brought all the fire fighting appartus into action. The foundry will be rebuilt at once, it was announced by officers of the company.

Color Cut-Outs

Betty Cut-out's room in school was going to give a play to celebrate children's book week, and everybody was to have a part. Betty was very glad when Mildred, one of her best friends, was chosen to be the leading lady.

"What will you have to do?" Betty asked Mildred, as they were walking home from school.

"Miss Parks told me today," replied Mildred, "that she was going to have five short sketches of some stories that everybody knows, and I'm to be Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood, Alice in Wonderland, Little Bo Peep, and the last—that is a surprise, and I cant tell you!"

MONEY AT WORK

A Brief, but Important Lesson Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Just what is meant by the stock broking term "pyramiding"?

The Magazine of Wall street says, quite truly, that pyramiding is "a process whereby some market fortunes have been made and perhaps four or five hundred times as many have been lost."

Let us suppose John Doe starts out to pyramid. He buys 100 shares of stock at $20 per share. He deposits a margin of $400 cash, which is 20 per cent of the total price of $2,000. Suppose the stock goes up to $24. Doe has a paper profit of $4 per share, or $400 more. He pledges this paper profit as a margin on 100 more shares so that with an original cash deposit of only $400 he will have purchased title to 200 shares, worth $4,800 at the new price of $24. This is pyramiding.

If the price continues to mount, well and good. John Doe's profits are enormously multiplied. But prices seldom rise uninterruptedly. They see-saw back and forth. At the first drop, John Doe's broker will demand more margins. Due to the pyramiding the margins will be large and if Doe cannot furnish them immediately, he will be "wiped out" entirely, paper profits and original margin.

Bear Hurricane Breezes Atop Southwest Conference

1923 CHAMPIONS RIDE ON NEXT RUNG WITH RICE OWLS PUSHING BEHIND AND MENACING LEADERS

Golden Bruins Invade Dallas For Battle With Mustangs Coming Week-End

DALLAS, Nov. 9.—As a result of the week-end scores in the Southwestern conference, an important bearing has been given the game to be played here next Saturday between the Southern Methodist university and Baylor elevens.

S. M. U. maintained its undefeated status by playing Arkansas to a 14 to 14 tie at Fayetteville, and Baylor overwhelmed the University of Texas 28 to 10. As the Mustangs had six conference games on the schedule this year, two of which have resulted in ties the mathematical "break" goes to Baylor the only team with a chance to play five games to a decision.

The victory of the Texas Agies over Texas Christian university, 28 to 0 and Rice's loss to Austin college a non-conference team, 6 to 2 were the other games of conference elevens of the past week.

Four teams in the conference can be counted still in the race. H. S. M. U. wins only one of its remaining two games, Baylor also breaks even and Texas A. & M. wins its next two games, all three will be tied. Rice could not win either game to permit that standing, but other combinations can put them in a triangular tie.

The standing for the conference games:

Team	W	L	T	Team	W	L	T
Baylor	3	0	0	T. C. U.	1	3	0
S. M. U.	2	0	2	Arkansas	0	1	1
Rice	2	0	0	Oklahoma A. & M.	0	1	0
Texas A. & M.	1	1	1	Texas	0	3	0

* * * * * * * *

Three teams in a mathematical tie for the top and with a fourth eleven pushing them so hard that there really are a quartet of logical contenders for the title in the second week of November makes the 1924 Southwest conference race the most hotly contested in the annals of the organization.

* * * * * * * *

Mustangs May Kick Golden Bears.

Baylor's Golden Bears after vanquishing both Texas A. & M. and the Texas Longhorns are on the cards this week-end doubtless for the toughest struggle of all in Dallas with the S. M. U. Mustangs. The Bears by virtue of their victorious march to date are ruled the favorites, the Mustangs, winners of two conference games and tied by the Aggies and Arkansas, teams already defeated by Baylor, are destined to be the under dogs. But the Bears may tell under the strain of successive tough contests and fall before the brilliant aerial and running attack of the Ponies. The wily Frank Bridges still has a herculean task yet before him.

The S. M. U. team under the tutelage of Coaches Morrison and Freeland has developed the forward pass to such an extent that it has become S. M. U.'s most powerful offensive weapon, and incidentally it is the most feared offensive weapon in the southwest.

These coaches with Stollenwerck as the greatest and most accurate passer this conference has ever known, hurls that pass at most unexpected moments. The score is never too high or too low for Stolly to take a chance on his pass, and the position of the ball on the field is given absolutely no consideration whatever. Perhaps it is unorthodox football to pass within one's own 20-yard line, but S. M. U. does it and has been uniformly successful in doing so. Furthermore it is quite likely that it will continue to prove successful until Stollenwerck has hung up his S. M. U. uniform for the last time.

Both Baylor and S. M. U. have splendid defensive clubs. The Mustangs' running and plunging attack is trumped by the Baylor running and plunging attack, but the S. M. U. offense with its pass looms even more powerful than Bridges' offensive with the wide open formations. It might also be added that S. M. U. has a quartet of backs, who are dangerous whenever they get that ball. Stollenwerck is the greatest triple threat man in the conference. He is the best safety man in the conference.

While he can pass with the accuracy of a bullet, he recognizes few superiors in the conference when it comes to carrying the oval. He is exceptionally fast, shifty, and his three years of conference experience have taught him much in the football art. Logan Stollenwerck is not far from the most valuable football player in the conference. He is one of the remarkable trio, which has done much to assure success for the S. M. U. system.

Another member of the remarkable trio is Lawrence Reisor. The latter is a fair passer. He can plunge the line, but it is on the defense that he shines most brilliantly. He is the backbone of the S. M. U. defense, the greatest defensive back in the Southwestern conference last year, a better, smarter defensive back this year. He has the knack of sizing up the situation in an instant, and he can generally be found on the side of the line where the play is aimed.

The third member of this sparkling trio is another veteran, a star who is playing his fourth year in big-time football circles. That man is Eugene Bedford, known to his teammates and admirers as Blink, one of the greatest wings that ever trod a Texas gridiron, the greatest receiver of forward passes the southwest has ever seen. Here is a man who not only has risen above the spectacular George McCullough of University of Texas fame in receiving passes, but a star who has proven even more brilliant along this line than Montgomery the great Texas Aggie and later Oklahoma university end, who up until this year was recognized as the superior of all pass receivers the southwest had ever known.

* * * * * * * *

But the Mustang aerial attack is not all. The S. M. U. forward wall is light, but it is speedy and chifty, and already has shown the power to withstand the drives of the most gruelling conference line smashes.

Irish and Illini! What a Battle!

Could Notre Dame accomplish what no Big Ten eleven seems able to do?

Could Rockne's men break down the Illini defense and stop the mad dashes of Red Grange?

And could the "Irish" backfield rip its way through the Illini line and around the ends to a victory of its own?

With the Western conference title as good as "in" for Illinois and Notre Dame facing but one more big test to prove its title of greatest team in the west outside the conference, these queries are coming up.

And the Notre Dame officials have brought the discussion out of the ethereal regions by announcing their willingness to enter a post-season game with the Grangemen to decide the matter.

The staging of such a game as is up to Illinois.

Whether or not the Illini leaders would consider such a proposal is not known. They might feel that they would be breaking the spirit of the Big Ten rules to enter a post-season contest with the Indiana team although the rule refers to conference affairs.

The offer is receiving careful consideration, however, it is said.

There are two valid reasons for believing that Notre Dame might succeed where Big Ten and other teams have failed in their efforts to check the Illinois machine.

First of all the Notre Dame backfield is the only second line combination than can compare with the Illini quartet.

Struhldreher at quarter, Crowley and Don Miller at the halves and Layden at fullback form the greatest "driving" backfield in the game today. The way in which that backfield combination swept through the Army and Princeton and annihilated Georgia Tech indicates its strength.

Not one of these four may be the equal of Red Grange as a broken field runner but around each man Rockne has built a wonderful interference which carries through in perfect style.

The Illini backmen, Grange, Britton, McIlwain, and Hall, have not yet faced the first defense the Notre Dame line forms or the second defence Rockne's star backs produce.

That line of "Irishmen," replete with German names, held the Army to one touchdown and prevented Georgia Tech and Princeton from crossing the goal line. Tech's lone score was a goal from field.

Michigan scored two touchdowns against Illinois. It must be stated, however, that the scores were made against a team consisting partly of substitutes. Nebraska plunged through Zuppke's regular line, however, for a touchdown. Even Butler scored on the Illini.

* * * * * * * *

But aside from the comparative strength of the teams—which is mainly a matter of personal opinion—the game would be one of the season's biggest events for the simple reasons that Grange makes the Illinois eleven one of the most spectacular teams on the field this fall and Rockne has made Notre Dame one of the most colorful squads the game has ever known.

LELAND STANFORD SEEKS GAME WITH GRANGE AND ILLINI

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Coach Bob Zuppke of the University of Illinois announced here last night that he had received an invitation from Leland Stanford for a post season game to be played on the Pacific coast between the team which has as its star the phenominal "Red" Grange and the coast eleven.

Coach Zuppke said that he personally favored accepting the invitation but that no decision could be made until he returned to Champaign and gained the approval of university officials and of western conference officials.

Chicago-Illinois Tie Means Little For Stagg Team

Zuppke's Illini Still Leads In Big Ten Title Scramble

THREE BIG SURPRISES

Ohio State and Minnesota Elevens Weaken Dismally

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—When Illinois came from behind to tie Chicago Saturday, 21 to 21, the Maroons lost their last good chance to win the championship of the western conference. A defeat for Illinois from either Ohio or Minnesota coupled with victories by Chicago in its own remaining conference games, would of course give Chicago a clear title as the only undefeated conference team. But with that chance remote there remains for Stagg's pupils only the hope that either Minnesota or Ohio will tie Grange and company and thus leave the title divided equally between Illinois and Chicago.

Standing Changes.

The Saturday tie, coupled with Michigan's win from Northwestern and Indiana's upset of Ohio, changed the conference standing considerably. Illinois remains first with Chicago second, Michigan moved up to third place and Ohio dropped from that position to fifth, below Iowa. A triple tie for sixth place developed among Perdue, Indiana and Northwestern with Wisconsin and Minnesota trudging at the rear of the procession. Minnesota plays Illinois next Saturday and Wisconsin faces the more or less cheerful prospect of grappling with Iowa and Chicago on successive Saturdays.

Chicago's inspired stand against Illinois, while the biggest upset yesterday, was but one of three surprises. The crumbling of Ohio State before Indiana and the tying of Minnesota by Ames were the others. As to the other contests in the Big Ten, the victors came through according to form.

The 12 to 7 defeat of the Ohioans was a heart-breaker for them to lose, but a welcome victory for Indiana, which had previously been defeated by Chicago and Northwestern.

Iowa Defense Poor.

The Iowa and Minnesota elevens definitely joined the ranks of the weak teams Saturday. The Hawkeye line which was the only hope of Coach Ingwerson has been so badly crippled by injuries that it is far below its expected strength and none of its backfield seems to get started except for Parkin. The Hawkeyes escaped with a 7 to 0 victory over Butler, but only after a desperate contest.

Minnesota, held to a 7 to 7 tie by Ames, apparently is just about as helpless on offense as is Iowa.

Northwestern, smothered 27 to 0 by Michigan, simply was outclassed. Notre Dame, living up to its reputation, took the wrecked Wisconsin eleven to a terrific cleaning, piling up a 38 to 3 count. The Badgers presented a weak line and virtually no backfield.

Standing of the teams:

Illinois	2	0	1	Purdue	1	3	0
Chicago	2	0	2	Indiana	1	2	0
Michigan	3	1	0	N'western	1	2	0
Iowa	1	1	1	Wisc.	0	1	1

Fowler Victor In All-City Title Golf Competition

Morris Norton Loses Fina Round Sunday, 3 and 2

W. D. Fowler is the 1924 Wichita Falls golf champion!

After winning his way through the semi-finals Saturday, Fowler came back Sunday and defeated Morris Norton in the final round of the first all-Wichita Falls golf tournament on the Country club course, 3 and 2, in 18 holes.

At the ninth hole Fowler was 3 up, but Norton tightened his play and fought back, halving a majority of the holes the remainder of the way.

Fowler will receive the championship flight cup permanently, which has been purchased permanently with proceeds from entrance fees of the tourney.

The only other match played Sunday was a round in the fourth flight between W. S. Hamilton and W. E. Fitzgerald, the former winning, 2 and 1. Hamilton will meet T. T. T. Reese in the semi-finals.

Terriers Drub Lawton, 20-0

NEWTOWN, Nov. 9.—Flashing a classy attack in every department, the Newtown Terriers ran over the Lawton Indians here today, 20 to 0 before one of the largest crowds of the season.

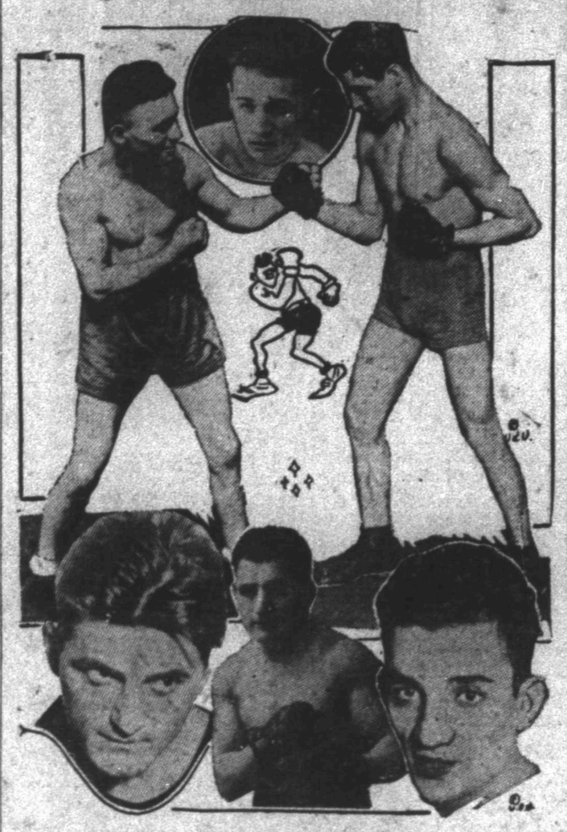

The game sparkled with sensational feats. Captain Tate, the great little wingman of the Terriers, waged one of the greatest games ever seen here. Scintillating forward passes by the Terriers and brilliant end-skirting forays of Stone and Farquhar were the outstanding features of play.

The powerful Healdton eleven is scheduled to invade Newtown next Sunday.

FIRPO WORKS OVERTIME.

Luis Firpo will be working overtime this winter if he meets all the opponents that are supposed to be matched with him. Now the Wild Bull of the Pampas is down for an engagement with Bartley Madden in Madison Square Garden sometime next mont

"Logical Contenders" To Get Chance

What seems to be a real serious effort to find the honest to goodness "logical contenders" for the featherweight and lightweight ring titles, is under way.

Tex Rickard has selected the six men, who, in his opinion, have the best chance of any of the present day little fellows of ascending the ladder to the titles mentioned. He wants to pit these men against each other in a series of battles—the winner in each class to get the first crack at the champion.

It's up to the New York state athletic commission how far Rickard goes with his plans. He needs the O. k. of the commission on his proposed cards and their help in forcing the fighters to go through with the elimination series.

The six men Rickard thinks rank first in the field of feathers are Louis Kaplan of Meridian, Conn.; Danny Kramer of Philadelphia, Kid Roy of Canada, Lew Hutley of New York, Lew Paluso of Salt Lake City and Mike Dundee of Rock Island, Ill.

Rickard's choice of feathers may be altered by the commission, however, as the members are intent upon dropping Kramer for Bobby Garcia and substituting Jose Lombardo of Panama for the Canadian hopeful.

The featherweights will swing into action Nov. 21, at Madison Square garden. At least the first round of bouts will be held that night. Present plans call for 10-round battles in the preliminaries and 15 rounds for the semis and finals.

Of the men mentioned Kaplan and Dundee seem to be the best.

Any one of these lads could give Johnny Dundee a run for his title right now, Rickard believes.

Dundee has relinquished all claims to the title, however. The tourney therefore will simply produce a man who can boast of the title until beaten. He will serve as a stepping stone for whoever finally is acclaimed king.

The lightweights Rickard figures as leaders in the scramble for Leonard's title are Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, N. Y., Sid Terris of New York, Sammy Mandell of Rockford, Ill., Luis Vincentini of Chile, Sid Barbarian of Detroit and probably Archie Walker of New York. Bernstein and Mandell meet first.

Of the men who will meet for the honor of waiting for a crack at Leonard's crown Vicentini or Sid Barbarian should emerge with the honors.

There's many a slip between the signing of a bevy of fighters for such a tourney and the completion of the affair. But if Rickard's plans go through fight fans ought at least to have some interesting reading these winter days.

BREAKS OF THE GAME

By BILL BRUCE

If reports from Scotland are true another tragedy has been written in ring history.

Dixie Kid, former welterweight champion of the world and one of the greatest and most popular fighters in the game, was arrested recently on charges of being a drug user. He may be sent back to the United States, his native land.

Twenty years ago the Kid fought Joe Walcott 20 rounds at San Francisco for the welterweight title and won the decision. His ring career extended over a period of 20 years. Greatly outweighed by Sam Langford, the Kid twice gave him weight galore and lost thrilling battles to him.

A five-round victory over Georges Carpentier and fights with Mike Twin Sullivan, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Larry Temple and Willie Lewis are some of the high spots in his career.

Why is it that men who write brilliant pages in sport history so often end their days in want or tragic circumstances?

* * *

Baseball must be a bigger drawing card than a presidential election. You don't hear of any fans camping out all night just to be first in line at the polls.

* * *

Johnny Dundee, freed of the necessity of defending his featherweight title or even meeting the leading aspirants, plans to utilize the winter for a trip to Europe. Plans for matches in England, France, Germany and Italy are being laid by his manager, Charlie Johnston.

Johnny's ring name of Dundee will make him a drawing card in Scotland and England. His manager can trot out his real name, Joseph Carrora, for his battles in Italy. But what kind of a yarn can Johnston pull that will make Johnny a drawing card in Germany?

* * *

On Election Day the old-time Western Conference slogan rippled from coast to coast, "Beat Wisconsin."

* * *

Speaking of European trips the present journey of the Giants and White Sox through the British Isles and the European mainland is proving to be a beautiful fizzle. One game in Ireland drew less than 20 paid spectators. Other games in Ireland and England were canceled when little prospects of good crowds were held.

Some New York critics point out that the absence of the genial Ted Sullivan may be an important factor in making the trip a bloomer. Sullivan went ahead of the teams when they made trips in 1914 and 1915 and by his own personality and the air of romance and mystery he wove about the teams made them big drawing cards.

This year little thought was given about Sullivan.

This may be a contributing reason, of course. But our guess is that occasional cable news telling of world's series scandals and other "messes," which seem to have centered about the Giants and Sox, have robbed these teams of the glamor that was theirs.

Also, tennis and golf have become of more general interest and popularity in Britain and the mainland of late years and Europeans do not have to depend upon the exhibition tours of the teams for thrills.

* * *

That post-season Penn-Californi game may turn out to be a joust between the East-West champions.

* * *

Manager Jack Hendricks of the Cincinnati Reds opines as how Long Kelly of the Giants is the best utility player in the National league.

Kelly's worth as a first basemtn was known before the season arrived. During the 1924 campaign McGraw used him at second and in the outfield to replace injured men or regulars in batting slumps. He came through with flying colors.

In the world's series, while playing second, George saved one game when he pulled a beautiful play on Leon Goslin.

* * *

With two negroes and an Indian in the lineup, it cannot be charged that the University of Southern California eleven lacks color.

* * *

Bob Martin, once hopeful heavyweight who finally quit the ring when he failed to make the grade, hankers to return and seek the honors which eluded him the first time. The man who won the A. E. F. heavyweight title during the war, says he has fully recovered from an injury which handicapped him the last 18 months of his ring activities.

Martin suffered an injury to his head at that time. He forgot the incident later and then noticed that his eyes were bothering him. He had his eyes treated with no beneficial results. Then a doctor examined his head and found that he had sustained the blow and decided that it was the accident and not the eyes themselves that was handicapping his vision.

Martin is sincere in his hopes but he is entering upon a vain quest. The big smiling fellow lacked the two necessary assets for a good heavyweight—a cruel fighting heart and ring generalship.

Tiger Comeback Against Crimson Miracle of 1924

34-0 Victory Over Harvard Greatest In 47 Years Of Rivalry

WAS DAY OF UPSETS

Pennsylvania Hard Pressed To Retain Clean Slate

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Out of the greatest array of football upsets any day this season has witnessed, Princeton's sensational comeback yesterday to a victory of unprecedented proportions over Hasvard stands out as the miracle of 1924 gridiron annals.

The Tiger reversal, the sudden ascension to dazzling form of a team that had seemed of mediocre mold, came out of a clear sky. This new found Orange and Black thunder bolt swept through the bewildered Crimson from start to finish, the score being 34 to 0, and its followers are now confident that on top of this triumphant wave it will smash Yale and ride the "Big Three" championship.

Tiger Now Favorite

Princeton, on its amazing showing yesterday when Harvard was sent back to the most decisive defeat in the 47 years of rivalry between these two ancient foes will enter the fray a favorite against Yale, Saturday, in the Tiger lair. But the Blue, while up to its brilliant 1923 standard, apparently also brought its attack to high pitch yesterday when Maryland was trounced at the New Haven bowl 47 to 0, and will be ready to give the rejuvenated Junglers the battle of their lives.

But Princeton's startling victory was not the only upset of yesterday's program. Scarcely less notable was the victory of Rutgers over Lafayette by a margin of 43 to 7, and the downfall of Syracuse, its first defeat of the season, at the hands of West Virginia Wesleyan 7 to 3.

Pennsylvania retained its place at the top of the eastern football heap as the only major eleven undefeated or untied but the Quakers in chalking up their eighth victory, were hard pressed to take the measure of Georgetown, 3 to 0, a field goal by the Red and Blue backfield star, Kruez, saving the game in the last period.

Army Has Close Call

Other surprises were the decisiveness of Boston College's triumph over the vaunted Marquette team of Wisconsin, 34 to 7, the upsetting victory of the Haskell Indians over Brown, 17 to 13 and Army's close call with Florida, 14 to 7, in three of the five intersectional battles of the afternoon.

Yale's victory over Maryland and West Virginia's clean cut triumph over Colgate 34 to 2, completed the intersectional fray, in which the east came off with three victories and two defeats.

Cornell and Dartmouth, sharpening their weapons for their annual battle in New York Saturday, came through with decisive victories over Susquehanna and Boston university, the Ithacans rolling up 91 points, one of the highest totals in the east this season.

Drake Still Out Front in Valley Conference Play

Missouri Downs Oklahoma To Capture Second Place

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 9.—Drake, although scored against yesterday for the first time this season by a Missouri Valley conference team, today retained its leadership of the conference through the fact that it is the only eleven that has not been defeated. Kansas yesterday played the Iowa team to a 6 to 6 tie.

Kansas recently has shown remarkable improvement in her record. After losing three straight games at the beginning of the football year, the Jay Hawkers won their first victory a week ago by swamping Washington university of St. Louis, 48 to 0. Yesterday they presented an almost impregnable line when backed up near their goal and Drake was able to make a touchdown only through the use of a pass. The Drake team, however, was able to make big gains at line smashes when the ball was in their territory or in the middle of the field, and were able to complete many forward passes.

In the only other conference game yesterday, Missouri defeated Oklahoma 10 to 0. This brought Missouri back to the fore as a serious conference contender, following its defeat a week ago by Nebraska. The Missouri eleven is the only team that has won three games.

Iowa State and Washington both played non-conference yesterday, the former playing Minnesota to a 7 to 7 tie, and the latter defeating James Milliken 10 to 0. The other three conference teams rested.

The conference standing:

Team—	W	L	Td	Team—	W	L	Td
Drake	2	0	1	Kansas	1	3	1
Missouri	3	1	0	Washington	0	2	0
Iowa State	2	1	0	La. State	0	2	0
Nebraska	2	1	0	Tennessee	0	2	0
Grinnell	1	1	0	Clemson	0	3	0
Oklahoma	1	2	0	Mississippi	0	3	0
Kan. Aggies	1	3	0

NOCONA WALLOPS BELLEVUE, 54 TO 0

NOCONA, Nov. 9.—The Nocona Indians, high school team, walked over the carcasses of the Bellevue eleven at the tune of 54 to 0, in a game played here Saturday. Time about was taken by the linemen for touchdowns. It was easy for the Indians all through the game. The next game will be here Armistice day between the Indians and Henrietta Benreats. Their intentions are to proceed to take a few bearcat scalps. Preparations are being made to that effect. The fur will fly and the tommyhawks will too. The Indians want revenge

SOUTH BEND GRID ENTHUSIASTS SEEK NOTRE DAME-ILLINI TILT

Harry Wilson, Army All-American Back, Declares Fighting Micks Can Stop Grange

By ROBERT EDGREN

Illinois and Notre Dame undoubedly are the strongest elevens in the country. It's unfortunate football schedules can not be arranged to make possible the holding of a post-season game each year, a contest that would settle all mythical claims to championships.

Zowie! What an attraction a game between Illinois and Notre Dame would be. The new Illinois stadium would only be large enough to hold a small part of the crowd that would come from all over to see such a meeting on the gridiron. If accommodations could be provided for such an attraction England's attendance records of 250,000 for soccer would be left far behind.

I happen to know that Notre Dame would be very keen for a game with Illinois. The South Bend folks witnessed the Illinois-Michigan encounter and reported back to Coach Knute Rockne that "Red" Grange, while a mighty star, could be stopped by the simple method of tackling him on the left side and far away from the powerful right arm that bowls over countless would be tacklers.

Micks Would Stop Him?

Maybe the Notre Dame scouts got the right line on the Illinois Thunderbolt, but still possibly Grange would gallop through the Hoosier line like he has other teams this year for from two to five touchdowns each game.

A few days after Notre Dame defeated the West Point Cadets 13 to 7 a curious fan asked Harry Wilson how he thought Grange would fare against the Notre Dame eleven.

"He wouldn't do much better than I did," quickly answered the Army's star who was All-American halfback at Penn State last season. "Every time you try to gain through that Notre Dame defense," explained Wilson, "four or five birds suddenly spring up from nowhere and the next thing you know you're scrambling out from under the pile."

Illinois is not just a one-man team although Grange is the key to the offense. Grange weighs 170 and his greatest asset is uncanny ability to shake off tacklers and change his pace when loose in the open field.

The Notre Dame attack is more rounded. Rockne has a veteran backfield in Crowley, Miller, Layden and Suthldreher and it's difficult to tell one from the other.

All Run Alike

They all run alike with great speed and high knee action that makes it tough for tacklers to bring them down. All four throw and receive passes with equal skill. They are particularly effective when starting from behind Rockne's peculiar lop formations that greatly bewildered opposing linesmen. Perhaps in all football's history there never was a backfield that possessed the versatility of the present Notre Dame set of backs.

Talk of a possible clash between Illinois and Notre Dame would probably bump against some opposition on the ground that Notre Dame is not a member of the Western conference. While not a member the South Bend college enforces most of the conference rules and this year actually opposed Wisconsin, one of the Western conference colleges.

We might even hear from some of the esteemed gentlemen who always fear that college sports are being overdone and attract too much money through the "gate." This objection would fall flat regarding a post-season football game because the contestants in such an encounter would be well repaid by the honor of competing and the receipts could be turned over to the Red Cross after a small share could be set aside for the American Olympic team, for which it is necessary to do public begging every four years.

'GROG" INSTEAD OF PEANUTS IS FRENCH BLEACHERITE'S MENU

PARIS, Nov. 9.—The New York Giants today defeated the Chicago White Sox 1 to 0. There was much excellent fielding and team work which aroused enthusiasm among the spectators, but, as during Saturday's game, the French spectators were cold and puzzled over the intricacies of the pastime. The weather also was cold—almost wintry—and the spectators drank "grog" instead of eating peanuts.

The teams will play their last game here on Thursday instead of Wednesday, as there is no school on Thursday in France.

The score:

Sox	0	6	1
Giants	1	10	1

Batteries: Foreman and Ruel; Bentley, Nehf and Gowdy.

Alabama And Georgia Lead Southern Race

Pair Battle for Top Honor In Thanksgiving Classic

ATLANTA, Nov. 9.—Alabama and the University of Georgia are cooking up a regular football game Thanksgiving day. With Washington and Lee, they are the only teams in the southern conference who have not suffered defeat. The generals, however, have encountered one tie game, that with V. P. I. Alabama and Georgia have other claims to fame than excess of assets over liabilities. The Alabama contingent has scored twice as many points against conference opponents as any other outfit in the organization, and the Georgia eleven is now the only one not scored on in the big ring.

A Day of Long Runs.

The Crimson won from Kentucky 42 to 7, but Hughes, a Wildcat back, spoiled Alabama's clean scoring sheet by stepping off 97 yards for a touchdown. Brown on the next play carried his Crimson jersey to a touchdown from the kickoff being credited with 99 yards in the effort and Rosenfeld crowded into the picture of long runs for the day with a 76-yard sprint. Wycoff of Tech and Reese of Vanderbilt got touchdowns as rewards for dashes of 54 yards. It was a day set apart in the football calendar to the glory of runners.

Georgia ran into a scoreless first half with the University of Virginia and had to fight for the lone touchdown of the game in a program that almost developed an inch by inch process.

Georgia Tech won from Louisiana State, 28 to 7, after two successive reverses.

Vanderbilt, advertised by its supporters as a team up and coming, justified this faith by defeating the Mississippi Aggies, 18 to 0, this marking the first conference loss for the Mississippians.

"North Carolina Day."

V. P. I. also fell from its high estate when the Gobblers tumbled before the wolf pack of North Carolina State in a game regarded as an upset. This was State's entrance into the won column while V. P. I. had won two games and tied the same number. The score was 6 to 3.

The University joined in making it a "North Carolina Day" by winning from V. M. I., 3 to 0, at Chapel Hill.

The green wave of Tulane washed over the dam with a rush and finding the Auburn plainsmen in its path, swept them aside, 14 to 6.

Florida was not successful in its Alligatorial assault against the flanks of the Army Mule but that animal was greatly harassed before the engagement ended 14 to 7.

Teams standing:

Alabama	4	0	0	N. Carolina	2	2	0
Georgia	4	0	0	Auburn	2	2	1
Wash&Lee	3	0	1	Sewanee	1	2	0
Miss A&M	3	1	0	Virginia	1	2	0

Tulane	2	1	0	Maryland	1	2	0
Geor. Tech	2	1	2	V. M. I.	1	3	0
V. P. I.	2	1	2	N. C. State	1	3	0

Maskat Planning Entertainment Of James E. Chandler

Imperial Potentate to Be Here for Annual Fall Ceremonial

COMES NEXT FRIDAY

250 Novices to Make Trip Over Burning Sands At Auditorium

Masonic officials in Wichita Falls are making elaborate plans for the entertainment here next Friday of James E. Chandler, Imperial Potentate of North America shrindom, who will be in the city in connection with the annual fall ceremonial to be staged by Maskat temple. The ceremonial number of "The Wildcat," official Maskat publication, was mailed out to Nobles here Saturday and outlines in some detail the preparations being made.

Now on West Coast

The Imperial Potentate and a number of high officials in the imperial line are now in California and on their return to the east are to visit a number of tempels in Arizona, Texas and intervening points. They will arrive here from Amarillo over the Fort Worth and Denver at 2:45, accompanied by L. G. Hawkins of Vernon, potentate of Maskat temple, and other local shriners.

The Maskat temple band and patrol, together with other Masons, will meet the party at the union station and escort it to the Kemp hotel where Mr. Chandler will have his headquarters during his stay in the city. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon a parade will be staged through the down town streets, after which the Shriners will move on to the auditorium at Call Field. The parade will be headed by the colors, Maskat temple band, the imperial party, patrol, 100 nobles in full dress uniform, and other nobles and novices.

250 Over Hot Sands

Some 250 novices will make the journey over the burning sands Friday night. The first section starts at 6:15, dinner follows at 7:30, the second section goes on at 8:30 and the third section at 9:45.

The imperial potentate and his party go from here to Fort Worth where they will be guests of Ben Hur temple there.

WANTS AIR MADE SAFE.

Father of Dead Airman Urges Adequate Planes.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 9.—Charging that the death of Captain Burt E. Skeel during the Pulitzer speed races at Dayton October 4, resulted from an unsafe plane, F. E. Skeel, father of the dead aviator, has prepared a letter to congress and Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service, pleading that appropriation be made to purchase proper equipment or that this branch of the service be abandoned.

Captain Skeel's death resulted when one of the three army racers collapsed during this year's classic, while another crumpled in the air six weeks before the race, causing the death of Lieutenant Alexander Pearson, who was practicing for the event.

PLOT FELT CERTAIN.

French Claim Spanish Sought to Incite Rebellion.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—(AP)—French secret service officials are positive that Spaniards arrested in the past few days at Perpigan, Cerbere, Banyuls and other points on the Franco-Spanish frontier were all concerned in a plot against the Spanish dictatorship.

On Thursday night fifty or more individuals arrived at St. Jean-De-Lux from Bordeaux and met later at the village of Ascain for a conference. Then in small groups they are said to have crossed the frontier, arriving early Friday in the village of Vera, province of Navarre. Two civic guardsmen in that village were shot dead when they demanded to know the strangers' business there.

Truce Coming as Result of Arrest of Chinaman.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Police tonight expressed the belief that the truce between the Hip Song and On Leong tongs will become permanent following the arrest today of Cain Jack Len, 49, a Chinese said to be wanted in Cleveland, Ohio, as a fugitive from justice. Len is reputed to have been directly responsible for the tong war throughout the United States in which 15 Chinese have lost their lives, police said.

According to the police, Len is wanted in Cleveland on an indictment charging him with having "threatened to kill one Wong Sing if he did not hand over to him the title to a vast tract of land in Ohio valued at about $76,000."

Candidate When Voters Gave So Many Names Asks Recount.

DETROIT, Nov. 9.—Detroit voters who tried to vote for Charles Bowles, "sticker" candidate for mayo., misspelled his name 120 different ways in attempting to write on the ballot, a check of the votes has disclosed.

Mr. Bowles said today he would ask for a recount of the votes and it was intimated legal action might be taken to have counted the votes discarded because of errors in spelling the name.

Check of the ballots showed Mr. Bowles, who has no middle initial, was given ten different ipitials, the most frequent being W.

Blood Transfusion Used in Effort to Save Officer's Life.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—Blood transfusion was made at the city hospital today in an attempt to save the life of Police Sergeant Robert Woody, 52, who early this morning was shot and critically wounded in a running street fight with four bandits who abandoned their burning automobile while officers' bullets rained about them.

Two men, Clay Cratty, 23, and Nicholas Hare, 24, both of this city, are under arrest in connection with the shooting.

How World War Leaders Look Today

What roles are leading figures in the world war playing now? Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F., is a civilian, having been retired from the army only a few months ago. The former kaiser is living in obscurity in Holland. His "lion," Von Hindenburg still wears a uniform, but has no army to command. The deposed king of Bulgaria is in retirement in Switzerland. Marshal Foch, generalissimo of the allied armies, is still an active figure in the French army, but not a conspicuous one. Gen. Douglas Haig, now Earl Haig, British commander, is living the life of a retired English gentleman. They are seen as they look today. Above (left to right): Pershing, the former kaiser, von Hindenburg, Foch. Below: Haig and Bulgaria's ex-king.

FASHION POINTS TO HEELS.

Detachable Ones, Set With Jewels Are Latest in Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 9.—Detachable heels, which can be screwed on, and slippers matching milady's gown, is the latest innovation here. Jeweled heels, mother-of-pearl encrusted heels, heels made of semi-precious woods—amaranth, violet, ebony—black satin heels with hand-painted designs, white kid heels with pyrogravenrs, are among the modes. The heels cost as much as $100 a pair, and are kept in jewel boxes when not in use.

Father and Son Banquet Planned Friday, Nov. 21

To be Interdenominational Gathering Following Fathers' Day

AT JUNIOR COLLEGE

Committees Appointed And Are to Meet This Week

A large interdenominational "Father and Son" banquet is in prospect for Wichita Falls for the evening of Friday, November 21, as a result of a meeting of representatives of the Protestant churches of this city at the First Methodist Church, South, yesterday afternoon. The banquet will follow "Fathers' Day" observance in the pulpits next Sunday, and will be open to all fathers and their sons of eleven years or over.

It is planned to make the banquet a real get-together meeting, and arrangements are being made to hold it at the Junior college where sufficient room can be found to accommodate the large number expected.

About forty attended the meeting at the Methodist church yesterday, comprising representatives of the various churches and of the local high school Hi-Y club. Committees on programs, publicity, and general arrangements were appointed and dates set for their individual meetings this week. The meeting was the result of a movement by the Hi-Y club, to secure a better observance of "Fathers' Day" and was presided over by Rayborn Porter, educational director for the First Methodist church.

LIP STICK CAUSES HER DEATH

New York Girl Seeks to Hide Trace of Pimple and Is Poisoned.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Use of a lip stick to cover traces of a small pimple on her face caused the death here today of Georgia Knickerbocker, 14-year-old Jamesville girl. The girl, before her condition became serious, explained to the hospital physicians she had discovered the pimple while she was preparing to attend a Hallowe'en party last week. She daubed it with a lipstock and the resulting poison spread rapidly through her system.

Southern States Vote Closely On Changes In Law

Florida Denies Itself a Right To Tax be Put On Incomes

SCHOOLS MAY LOSE

South Carolina May Veto $10,000,000 to Help Education

ATLANTA, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Although Florida emphatically approved a constitutional amendment Tuesday providing that no inheritance or income tax be levied by the state and exempting the head of a family from taxation of personal property to a valuation of $500, five days after the election the result of proposed changes in the organic laws of several other states remain in doubt. So close have several contests developed that the official review of the returns by state canvassing bodies will be necessary to decide the results.

South Carolina will not know for several days if its legislature is to meet annually or bienially. The result is regarded as very much in doubt pending the call of the state board of canvassers by the secretary of state. The proposed state bond issue of $10,000,000 for educational purposes is conceded only a narrow chance of passage.

Biennial Sessions.

Biennial sessions of the general assembly were received with enthusiasm in Georgia where a heavy majority was polled in favor of the change. Georgia also voted to exempt certain manufacturing industries from taxation for a period of five years and authorized the creation of a new county, Peach, to be the state's 161st county.

Fate of the proposal for a constitutional convention in Tennessee is in doubt. The latest tabulation gives the convention proposal a lead of 1,200 votes.

By a vote of approximately three to one, Alabama favored seven amendments. Perpetual exemption from poll tax will be granted to all world war veterans and authority is given for forming drainage districts, good roads and sea wall districts in the state. A number of amendments with more local than state significance were also authorized.

Local Amendments.

Louisiana's constitution is only a few years old and for some years it will be necessary for the entire state to vote on many local amendments, 13 being on the ballot at this election. The only proposed change of more than local interest was a proposal, adopted without serious opposition whereby pensions of confederate veterans will be increased. Orleans Parish, voting alone on a proposed substitution of the aldermanic form for the present commission government in New Orleans refused to make the change.

Mississippi took a position of letting well enough alone apparently, the voters defeating all three amendments submitted. One provided for abolishment of equality on assessments, paving the way for a graduated state income tax. The remaining two were to make levee board members elected by the people instead of appointed by the governor.

Loans for Farmers.

On the basis of available returns in North Carolina, that state has authorized a state bond issue of $2,500,000 for farm loans to former soldiers for the purpose of establishing homes. The proposal for a state owned steamship line and terminals seem to have been defeated on the face of incomplete returns. The vote in favor of limiting the state debt was decisive as was the vote for making sinking funds available for the purpose set aside. The vote on the question of increasing salaries of members of the general assembly was close. A heavy vote was polled in favor of homestead tax exemption.

In addition to the far-reaching amendment against income and inheritance taxes, Florida carried an amendment authorizing the legislature to provide a uniform rate of taxation and for special rates of taxation on intangible property owned for municipal, educational, scientific, literary, religious or charitable purposes.

Georgia adopted an amendment to permit coastal paving, six coast counties having a chance, as a result of the election, to pave highways that will connect with interstate roads.

Joe Leiter Seeks Lost Prestige In Chicago Market

Man Who Nearly Cornered Wheat In 1898 Asks Reinstatement

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—Joe Leiter, whose attempt to corner the wheat market in 1898 ended disastrously, appealed today for reinstatement as a member of the Chicago board of trade.

Mr. Leiter is defendant in litigation pending with a sister and his brother-in-law, Lord Curzon, whose first wife was Mary Leiter, a sister of Joseph and daughter of Levi Z. Leiter, pioneer merchant, whose estate is involved. Joseph is a trustee of the estate.

Leiter went into the wheat corner in 1897 on the bull side. At the end of that year he is credited with having had 9,126,000 bushels of wheat which had probably cost him from 80 to 85 cents a bushel. Wheat had sold December 9 at $1.09 a bushel.

Armour Broke Him.

P. D. Armour is credited with chartering a score of lake vessels, hired ics breakers and brought down through the Soo Canal and from Duluth some 2 million bushels. Big receipts had forced the market down to 97½ cents.

Leiter's more than 9 million bushels were costing him $4,450 a day for insurance and storage, and 1898 brought a declining market, and then came the Spanish-American war. Ten million bushels came in from February 1 to June 1, and on June 10, when the price ranged from $1 to $1.03 a bushel, the government crop report indicated a record crop and the next day the price collapsed to 89 cents. Mr. Leiter's loss has been estimated at between 2 and 3 million dollars.

Retired Admiral Advocates U. S. War Protection

New York Most Vulnerable City That Ever Existed

OTHER NATIONS BUILD

ZR-3 Could Have Damaged City Billion Dollars In Hour

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Asserting that "our probable enemies are becoming stronger to attack and we weaker to resist" and that New York was "the most vulnerable city that ever existed," Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, today urged that the United States take adequate precautions to achieve "that higher destiny for which we shall have to fight" by understanding better "what this wicked world actually is."

The admiral spoke at a service of flags at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, which followed a parade of military and patriotic organizations.

"Becoming Effeminized."

"Certain other nations are becoming stronger militarily, while we are becoming effeminized," said Admiral Fiske. "We can see, for instance, that in Japan the people are sternly repressing all tendency to luxury, and that a nation-wide movement, almost feverish in intensity is acting to aggrandize its air force, even working women and little boys and girls contributing their mites.

We on the contrary, are becoming more and more accredited to luxury and pleasure while gaudy fashion shops almost monopolize our grandest avenue."

"Another Rome."

The ZR-3 if it had come on a mission of destruction, could have done a billion dollars of damage in an hour, said the admiral, adding that "this means that in not many years it will be possible for a score of similar craft to fly over New York, coming from almost any part of the world, and do to New York what other enemies did to Babylon and Carthage and Nineveh and Rome."

Admiral Fiske argued that competition among nations, while often leading to war was also the stimulus of progress, and that "from this last it would be illogical to expect human beings could escape," he said. the United States was surrounded by virile, ambitious and intelligent, but poor nations, and mentioned Germany, Russia and Japan as representing this type.

How Often Do You Use Your Telephone?
Do you use your residence telephone often enough to warrant the expense of a "one-party-line?" Consider the number of hours that your line is not in use, and you will probably conclude that a "selective-ringing" telephone would handle your traffic just as well—and at a reduced expense.
By sharing your line with another subscriber you not only save money, but you enable the Telephone Company to add more telephones to the exchange—and thus make your telephone more valuable. For the value of your telephone increases in proportion to the number of other telephones you can be connected with.
In this and other cities where "selective-ringing" service is offered, as many as one out of two residence subscribers finds that this service satisfactorily meets their needs.
