U.S. Planes Airlifting Cargo Into Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government sources said today U.S. planes have begun an airlift to Phnom Penh to resupply the isolated Cambodian capital with military equipment.

Military sources said the Cambodian high command asked for the emergency airlift after pro-Communist rebel forces cut the Mekong River lifeline at the beginning of their current offensive New Year's Eve.

The United States agreed to meet the Phnom Penh request last Saturday, the sources said, and since then U.S. Air Force C130s, piloted by American civilians, have made eight or nine flights to Phnom Penh daily carrying arms and ammunition.

The flights have carried no food because Phnom Penh has enough rice and other food stockpiled to last through a one-month siege, the sources said.

Rebel forces Sunday overran a string of government positions along the Mekong and threatened the river town of Neak Luong, 35 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, military sources said.

The town's fall would permanently cut the capital's main supply line, the sources said.

In South Vietnam, a Saigon military spokesman said armor-led Communist infantry tried to overrun a militia outpost west of Saigon today, but they were repulsed by government warplanes and artillery.

The South Vietnamese command said the warplanes destroyed five Communist armored personnel carriers and killed at least 55 attackers in fighting at the base one mile south of the Cambodian front and 58 miles west of Saigon.

In Saigon, a high-ranking American source said Sunday U.S. aircraft have been making regular reconnaissance flights over North Vietnam and Viet Cong territory in South Vietnam in violation of the 1973 truce agreement.

A 1,000-man South Vietnamese task force battled its way into the county capital of Hoai Duc, 60 miles northeast of Saigon, Sunday to break a month-long Communist encirclement.

In Phnom Penh, military sources said the pro-Communist Khmer Rouge insurgents captured a series of government outposts ringing Neak Luong during the past week, bringing the town under siege.

The sources said the guerrillas have been shelling the town daily for the past two weeks with about 500 artillery rounds hitting Neak Luong each day since last Saturday.

Refugees managing to flee the town by helicopter Sunday said the U.S.-built hospital at Neak Luong is packed with wounded. They said government casualties are running at more than 30 dead a day.

The refugees reported 400 wounded in the beds and corridors of the hospital, rebuilt by the United States after a misdirected B52 strike devastated Neak Luong in 1973. It has a capacity of 190.

City To Seek Condemnation Proceedings

City Manager Mack Wofford said today he will ask city commissioners at their meeting tomorrow to authorize City Attorney Bob Gordon to file condemnation proceedings against nine property owners who have refused to accept offers for purchase of right-of-way needed to widen and pave S. Cuyler St.

The city manager said the nine owners have turned down state appraisals on 19 parcels of land located on SH 273 (S. Cuyler) between Brown St. and the S. Cuyler underpass.

A ten-foot strip of land on each side of the street, Wofford said, is necessary for the improvement funded by a 1966 bond issue.

The city's share of the approximately $700,000 project was estimated at around $230,000, one half of the right-of-way cost plus cost of storm sewers.

Wofford said total right-of-way cost is expected to run in the neighborhood of $60,000 to $70,000 split 50-50 between the city and state.

He stated the city already had closed deals with other property owners for 49 of the total 68 right-of-way parcels needed.

The city manager added he will furnish the city commission with names of owners who have not agreed to right-of-way purchase offers or who have not yet been located.

He said he will ask that immediate steps be taken to condemn the property in order to get the street improvement project underway.

Two Men Injured In Local Gunfight

Two Pampa men are in Highland General Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds, which were sustained late Saturday in what witnesses described as a gun fight.

Police are attempting to piece together evidence of the incident which occurred in the parking lot of a local night spot.

Officers were notified by hospital personnel after one victim, Gilberto Villereal, arrived at Highland General by private car. Villereal underwent surgery for gunshot wounds to the shoulder and leg early Sunday.

Another victim, Pedro Rodriguez, arrived at Highland shortly before 6 p.m. Sunday. Police said he was undergoing surgery for a gunshot wound to the right eye early today.

Officers investigating the incident said seven spent .25-caliber shell cases were found at the scene of the shootings. Bullet marks in the building indicate as many as 11 shots were fired in the spree.

Warmer Weather Returns To Area

Warmer weather is expected to return to the Panhandle areas following an arctic cold front that dropped temperatures near the zero mark with highs lingering in the teens Sunday.

Pampa recorded an overnight low of 11 with a high Sunday afternoon reaching only 18 under sunny skies. Less than an inch of cold, dry snow blew across the city late Saturday night into the early hours of Sunday.

Skies are expected to remain fair to partly cloudy through Sunday, with a warming trend raising the temperature into the upper 50s Tuesday after an overnight low tonight near 30.

In UPI reports: The coldest winter storm of the year dumped five inches of snow in Abilene Sunday and brought a hard freeze to all of Texas but the lower Rio Grande Valley early today. Overnight lows fell below zero in the Panhandle.

The National Weather Service said Sunday night the snowfall was over and skies were clearing across all of Texas.

"There's a little bit of ice on the highways south of Abilene but I think everything is passable," said NWS forecaster Jeff Brown.

The Arctic air mass dropped lows below zero early today in the Panhandle and readings weren't too much warmer around the rest of Texas. Lows ranged from near 10 to the 20s over most of the state.

A very slight warming trend was expected to begin today with clear skies and plenty of sunshine.

Snow fell over much of the state from the Pecos River to Northeast Texas.

The heaviest snows fell between Abilene and Waco, with snow flurries occurring as far south as San Antonio.

The body was transported to Smith Funeral Home in Panhandle.

Names of survivors were not available this morning.

W.D. Woman Found Dead

WHITE DEER — Carson County officials are investigating the death of Mrs. Sue Hussey, 39, 806 Texas, who was found dead in the garage of her home early today.

Mrs. Hussey's son called Metropolitan Ambulance Service in Pampa at 8:45 a.m. today. Officials said the death had occurred several hours earlier.

Justice of the Peace W.G. Dutch Grant is withholding a ruling in the death pending an autopsy report.

Carson County Deputy Frank Whitehead and Deputy Bill Price, Skellytown, were still investigating the incident late this forenoon.

The body was transported to Smith Funeral Home in Panhandle.

Names of survivors were not available this morning.

SPE To View Metals Movie

The Panhandle section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers - AIME will hold its monthly meeting Tuesday, Jan. 14, at the Pampa Club in the Coronado Inn.

Guest speaker will be Samuel Stennis, plant manager of American Smelting and Refining Company's zinc plant in Amarillo.

He will present a film entitled "Challenge of the Earth," which explains the origin and manufacturing process of many useful metals.

Social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7. Members and guests are urged to attend.

Gray Commission To Meet Tuesday

Gray County Commissioners will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday to consider the agenda which includes appointing members of a grievance committee and study of the hospital budget.

Bills will be considered for payment and monthly reports of county agencies will be submitted for study.

COLBY CALLED CIA Investigation Gets Under Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller wants to get his White House investigation into illegal domestic spying to work immediately, so today's first witness was to be Central Intelligence Agency Director William E. Colby.

The eight-member panel was named by President Ford to look into reports that, in violation of its charter, the spy agency illegally eavesdropped, shadowed and otherwise kept tabs on dissidents in the United States.

In an interview with Newsweek magazine, Colby was asked about a report he prepared for Ford on the allegations in the Dec. 22, 1974, New York Times that the CIA was illegally spying.

He said he could not talk about the report, but "what I could say is that in the 25 years' history of this agency ... various things have happened that maybe shouldn't have happened, you know, but they're exceptional, few and far between."

Colby said he hoped current investigations of the agency would help change the public impression of intelligence from the cloak-and-dagger of the paperback novels to what he said were the wide, sophisticated views of modern intelligence gathering.

"Any kind of review that increases public understanding of the real nature of intelligence today I think is very welcome because things fall into proportion," he said.

Colby will have a chance to welcome many of them, beginning with today's six-hour session. Other witnesses expected include former CIA directors Richard Helms and James A. Schlesinger — now defense secretary — and possibly Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The executive director may be introduced. The Washington Star-News said Saturday he will be David W. Belin, 46, an Iowa lawyer who, along with President Ford, investigated the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Much of today's meeting will be devoted to organization, a Rockefeller spokesman said. This will include whether to ask Congress for the power to subpoena witnesses and compel them to testify. The aide said Rockefeller wants to get "right down to work," but "substantive issues" will be taken up.

Newsman are barred. The commission was expected to meet in private and public hearings are not expected. It must make a final report by April 4 which may be kept confidential.

PIF To Pick New Officers

Directors of the Pampa Industrial Foundation will meet at 11 a.m. Wednesday in the Chamber of Commerce office to elect officers for 1975.

Kan Fancher, president, said the board also will hear year-end reports.

Current PIF officers, in addition to Fancher, are Harold Barrett, E.L. Green Jr. and Fred Neslage, vice presidents; Aubrey L. Steele and Floyd Watson, treasurers; E.O. Wedgworth, executive vice president and secretary; Don Lane, legal counsel; and William Chambliss, auditor.

'TO POINT OF MADNESS' Baron Dies Defending Castle

MONTAUBAN, France (UPI) — The police parachute team turned searchlights on the castle in southern France and an officer called through a loudspeaker, "Give yourself up."

Inside the shabby 30-room chateau, 22-year-old Baron Jean-Louis de Portal picked up his shotgun. His 24-year-old sister, Marie-Agnes, shouted out, "If you want us, come get us."

The 70-man parachute unit stormed the castle early Saturday, shooting the baron in the stomach three times and forcing the Portals out of their ancestral home for non-payment of debts.

The young nobleman, who had insisted that "justice comes at the end of a gun," died of his wounds Sunday at Montauban Hospital.

His sister and 52-year-old mother, Anna, charged with complicity in commit violence, were in the hospital's psychiatric ward. The family's troubles began in 1972 when a French court sold the castle because Jean-Louis' father, Baron Leonce du Portal, failed to pay his debts.

"We will resist to the death," the 89-year-old nobleman told his wife and two children. The family barricaded itself into the home of five generations of Portals.

The baron died a year later. His wife, a former Polish servant, refused to let authorities examine the body, keeping the remains in an oak coffin in her bedroom.

Anna, Marie-Agnes and Jean-Louis lived on vegetables grown on the rundown 387-acre estate, refusing to accept an expulsion order, police said.

Authorities said Jean-Louis shot and wounded a policeman who tried to talk to the family. He also took a journalist hostage but the captive escaped by leaping from a window, police said.

Last Friday, Jean-Louis opened fired on two farm workers sent to the chateau by the new owner, according to authorities. Police moved early Saturday to end the 30-month siege.

Police first tossed grenades in the courtyard as a diversion, scattering chickens, turkeys and howling dogs. Then, a special parachute unit crashed through the mansion's thick wooden door.

Anna, dressed in a nightgown, stood at the foot of a staircase in the entrance hall. She crossed herself, invoked the devil and surrendered.

Jean-Louis and Marie-Agnes were in the dark attic. Police said the sister screamed out, "Shoot, kill them!" and Jean-Louis fired his hunting shotgun. Officers fired back.

"It's a sad story of people who loved their land to the point of madness," Police Chief Roger Guiganti said as officers buried the coffin of the old baron in the village cemetery.

BAIL DENIED — Convicted Watergate break-in mastermind G. Gordon Liddy takes a stroll after hearing the Supreme Court has denied continued bail pending disposition of his appeal. The government is now considering whether or not to order Liddy returned to jail. He was freed Oct. 15 when he was released on $5,000 bond. (UPI Photo)

WHEN LAWMAKERS CONVENE Hobby Plans To Place Senators To Business

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby doesn't intend to waste any time getting the Senate down to business when lawmakers convene for the 1975 Legislative session at noon Tuesday.

Hobby says he plans to announce his committee assignments the opening day and has already asked most of the committee chairmen to begin holding meetings the first week of the session.

"They come to work. They're ready to go," Hobby said.

Things are expected to move somewhat slower in the House where the first day will be devoted primarily to the election of a new speaker to preside over the 150-member body.

Rep. Bill Clayton, D-Springlake, collected enough pledges to win the post months ago, but told reporters he would not make any decisions on his committee assignments until after his formal election.

About 20 to 25 House liberals met privately Sunday night and decided to nominate Rep. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, to oppose Clayton, although they conceded Parker has little chance of victory.

There were indications that another candidate might also be nominated as a gesture of opposition to Clayton.

The House will also have to adopt rules — tentatively scheduled for Wednesday — before the new speaker can announce committee lineups.

Clayton wants to increase the number of committees and set up special panels on public school finance, energy problems and several other issues.

Clayton — if he wins as expected — will probably replace virtually all of the committee chairmen and vice chairmen who served under retiring Speaker Price Daniel Jr.

Daniel and most of his lieutenants backed Rep. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, for the speaker post.

Hobby is not expected to make many changes in the committee assignments he announced two years ago when he first took office as lieutenant governor.

All but four of the 31 senators are returning this year. The four new Senate members will be sworn in at the start of Tuesday's session by Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court.

Lieutenant governors administered the oaths to new members in prior years, but Hobby said he had checked the statutes and found there was no legal authority for it.

The secretary of state will swear in the House members and preside over the House session Tuesday until a speaker is elected.

Sales Clinic To Swing Into Action Tuesday

First session of the two-night Patterson Public Relations and Sales Clinic sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and Pampa Daily News is scheduled for Tuesday night in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium.

The clinic, conducted by Frank A. (Pat) Patterson, founder of the method, will run from 7:30 to 10 p.m. both Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

At noon today more than 50 firms and approximately 160 persons had been registered for instruction in the many facets of public relations and salesmanship.

Gene McMeen, Patterson representative, said today reservations for the course will be taken at the Chamber of Commerce office up until 5 p.m. Tuesday and at the door until 7 p.m. Tuesday night.

The clinic is open to men and women employed in sales, parts, service and credit departments, secretaries, bookkeepers, tellers, officers, executives, supervisors and shop and factory workers.

Subjects to be covered include achieving success, approaching people, customer buying motives, organizing thinking, presenting ideas effectively, telephone techniques, quoting prices, overcoming resistance, closing the sale, remembering names, effective speaking and suggestion selling.

The McGovern Voter

One of the popular non-sequiturs of the post-Nixon era is that if ex-President Nixon was so bad, then his 1972 opponent, Sen. George McGovern, must have been good. There is even a bumper sticker, seen from time to time, "Don't Blame Me, I Voted for McGovern." But the point seems lost on most people.

Such a fallacy is central to Americans' lingering belief in the democratic system, a belief that seems to be sinking fast. Most of those who voted against the McGovern lunacies probably cannot be persuaded that their ballot was ill-advised inasmuch as it was against McGovern. For Nixon, yes, against McGovern, no.

The stark reality of all this, clearly, is that the idea of democratic majoritarianism—scared wit on the civics texts—has failed to enhance the quality of life, even failed to give voters what they wanted.

It is often pointed out that Richard Nixon's public posture used to stress opposition to such items as a guaranteed annual wage, huge budget deficits and race and sex quotas in hiring. But, after his reelection, his administration pursued just those policies. When people thought they were voting against those ideas, they got the opposite.

Equally interesting is that some of George McGovern's followers have grown disillusioned with him—and this occurred without the benefit of his election. McGovern, it seems, didn't even have to be elected to prove he'd do the opposite of what he said he would do. These followers still deserted him.

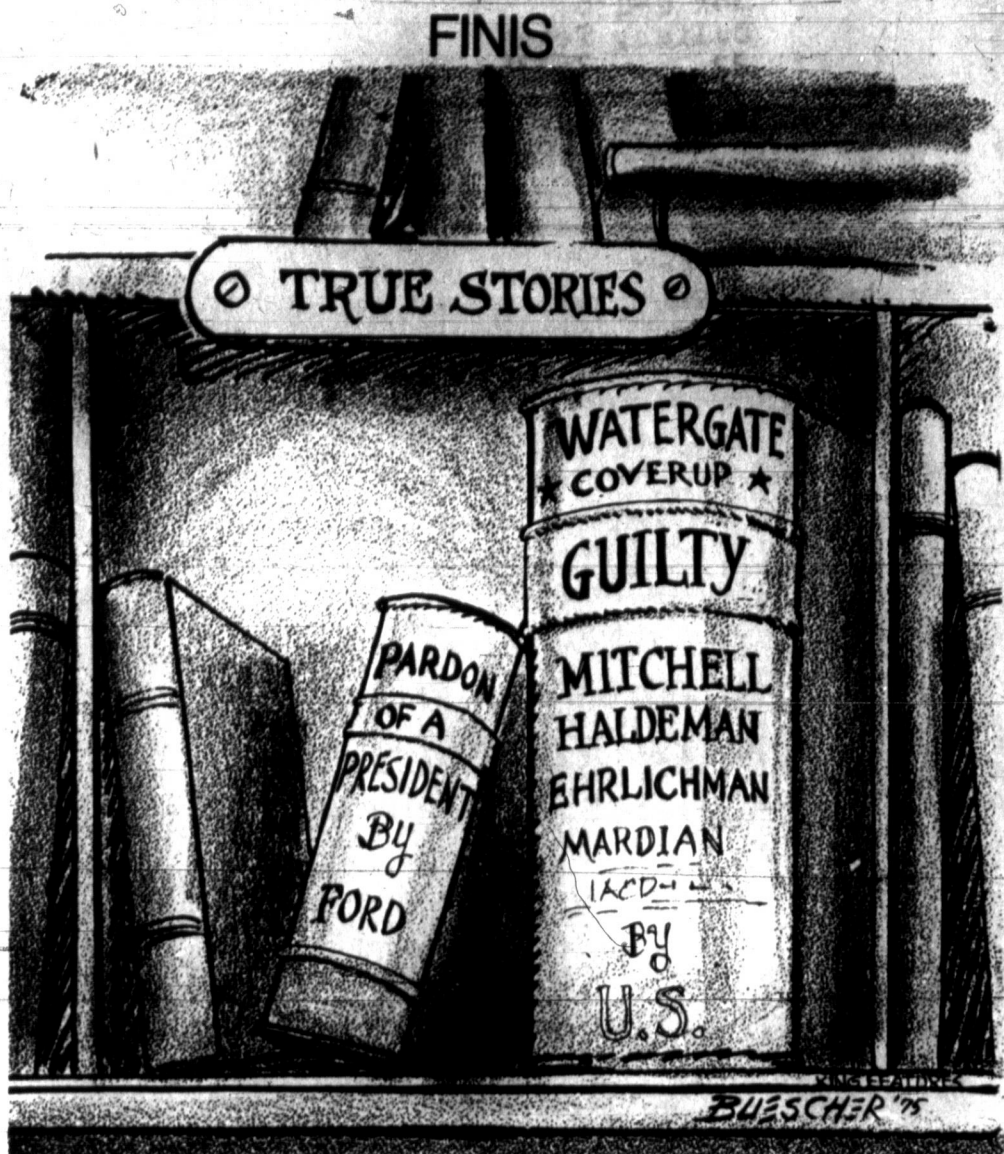

Martin Peretz was, in 1972, a McGovern speechwriter. In a December issue of Rolling Stone, Peretz revisits the McGovern campaign, and his words have the sound of heartbreak.

McGovern, writes Peretz, was a thoroughly equivalent candidate, waffling on the issues according to the complexion of his audience. Peretz even suspects McGovern, for all his clean-politics rhetoric, participated in some questionable last-minute fund-raising. Moreover, he sees McGovern as at once a breast-beater and a weakling.

For all his arrogance, concludes Peretz, "He knew, I suspect, that he was a weak man. He invoked God more routinely, more desperately than any presidential candidate in memory. But McGovern was also a supplicant of the Democratic party and to the electorate as a whole. In one of his more disdainful references he compares Americans to Willy Lohman in 'Death of a Salesman' and

INSIDE LABOR
Medics Organizing Unions

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — When Congressman Wilbur Mills entered Bethesda Naval Hospital for detoxification, there was only one protest. And not from the Women's Christian Temperance Union — but from the West Coast Union of American Physicians. Its leaders just didn't believe the gentleman from Arkansas had been properly certified and therefore should not have been a guest of the government medical facilities, and that Mr. Mills should have been dispatched home soon after he signed in.

They demanded more money, more nurses, longer operating hours, additional patient care, new equipment and round-the-clock electrocardiograph technicians. They lost. But they may not the next time. For their association has just affiliated with the Coalition of American Public Employees (CAPE) — a swinging group in which the dynamo is Jerry Wurf, president of the big American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees (AFSCME). In CAPE also is Terry Herdon's 1.6 million-member National Education Assn.

Though practically unknown, the Physicians National Housestaff Assn. has members and organizers in more than 100 affiliated hospitals across the nation and represents over 10,000 physicians in labor-management negotiations.

It's the sign of the times in the hospitals from New York's behemoth medical centers to Los Angeles's complexes. Everybody's doing it, skilled and unskilled. Doctors and nurses. Especially the nurses. Already organized, they're now launching pressure groups such as N-CAP, the acronym for Nurses Coalition For Action in Politics. They're set to wheel and deal, endorse candidates and parties.

The day of the $100-a-month nurse and intern is gone. The day of the $300 and $500 a day private hospital room is racing in. Where once the New Year brought predictions of white collar power to replace the blue collar in politics and social action, 1975 will see the white jacket as the symbol of coming power in the community.

The doctors and nurses are delivering a new day — just watch.

Ford vetoed a bill to increase travel allowances for government officials. Someone should be forced to stay home and run the country.

It would be simple to needle or twit these doctors and dentists as men ready to down their stethoscopes, up their scalpels and whir up their picket drills. But they're not to be mocked. Many of them are alarmed by the almost inevitable passage in this Congress of a National Health Insurance bill. This, according to some of the embattled physicians, will result in "book medicine" and "medical analysis by functionaries in government bureaucracies."

So the doctors organize into outfits such as the Union of American Physicians, some 4,500 strong headquartered in San Francisco. It is interlocked with the Springfield, Mo.-based American Federation of Physicians and Dentists. It has locals in some 25 regions. And it isn't interlocked with traditional labor — not yet.

They are serious unionists. They've threatened and taken job action mostly on the West Coast. They claim some 55,000 members. If true, the old American Medical Assn. (AMA) had better not sneer at its younger colleagues. The latter are creeping up in shouting distance of the AMA membership.

It's a new day. The era is gone when the personable young Dr. Kildare took his oath, went home and set up shop and shingle in the front room. The private practitioner of house-call vintage soon will be as rare as the whooping crane.

Medicine is becoming heavily institutionalized — research — centered and "governmental." I'm told by a chap from the magazine Medical Economics that there are only some 185,000 practicing

DESPITE DIFFERENCES
U.S.-Soviet Trade Continues

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9 — The Kremlin's testy muttering and sputtering against the new foreign trade reform act has all the earmarks of barking that's worse than the bite.

Despite that public growling, the Soviet Union actually is doing considerable business with the U.S.

Foremost in this brisk backstage trading are the following:

— Continued large-scale purchases of U.S. grain. Last fall, Moscow sought to buy 3.2 million tons but that was cut to 2.2 million tons by President Ford because of a reduced U.S. crop (due to adverse weather conditions). These curtailed grain shipments to Russia are now underway — to be completed by spring.

— Possible purchase of several score latest-model U.S. wide-bodied airliners — with a total price tag of around $1 billion. Involved are Boeing's 747s for international flights, and Lockheed's L-1011 TriStars for domestic routes. Officials of the two companies have been in Moscow for weeks negotiating with Aeroflot authorities.

— Large imports of U.S. office machinery, mining and road building equipment; also tractors and other agricultural appliances.

Key factor in the Soviets' need for U.S. goods and supplies is their admitted serious failures in the production of consumer goods under the current five-year plan.

These long-prevailing shortages are what's behind the flurry of glowing pronouncements by Kremlin potentates about "reorienting the economy in favor of the long-neglected consumer." That line, graphically reminiscent of the late deposed boss Khrushchev, apparently still has some popular appeal — or at least they think so.

Also reminiscent of Khrushchev are the officially acknowledged causes of these "incomplete fulfillments" — mismanagement, extensive inefficiency, waste and misuse of equipment and facilities, failure to complete plants and other production means, unsound and unwise planning.

A glaring instance of the last was Russia's concentration of its aviation expansion resources on developing a supersonic airliner.

They produced this plane — and that's about all. Meanwhile, the U.S., which abandoned the SST and focused on developing wide-bodied long and short-range jet airliners, is doing a brisk world business in them.

And Aeroflot, pressing to expand both at home and abroad, is faced with having to acquire U.S. carriers.

While Boeing and Lockheed are eager to sell to Aeroflot, two possible hitches stand in the way:

(1) Russia's demand that various components of the 747s and TriStars be made there. (2) reluctance of Washington authorities, particularly in the Pentagon, to approve such sales.

They are flatly against production of crucial parts in the Soviet Union — especially sophisticated equipment and other advanced technology.

The Russians don't have that, and obviously would love to get it.

That's why one informed U.S. official says, "There is no question Aeroflot wants our planes and is ready to buy them, but on their terms. We are not about to do business with them on that basis. If they want our planes, that's fine. But we will make them and they can buy them — like all other customers throughout the world."

The next few weeks may tell the story.

Prior Planning

Certain inclusion in the new record-high defense budget is a $100 million item to "enhance the military airlift."

— Prompting this unusual proposal is what is known in the Pentagon as "prior planning" — that is, getting ready for what is expected to eventuate in a few years, if not sooner.

Expressly in mind is the likely withdrawal of a large proportion of the 500,000 U.S. troops now stationed abroad. The requested $100 million to "enhance the military airlift" is to provide the planes and facilities to transport troops and supplies overseas to meet contingencies.

Defense Secretary James Schlesinger characterizes this "enhanced airlift" as "deterrence." As it will be spelled out in hearings before a House Armed Services subcommittee starting later this month, this program calls for the following:

— All of the Air Force's 275 C-141 Starlifter jet transports to be extended around 25 feet to enable them to carry 30 per cent more cargo. Cost of this modernization is estimated at $675 million spread over three or more years. First request is $25 million for this purpose.

— Purchase of a large number of new 747-sized tankers to refuel the stretched-out Starlifters and other carriers. Cost of these tankers is upwards of $30 million each. The Air Force now has some 650 smaller tankers.

— Refurbish the inadequate wings of the 78 huge C-5 jet transports — at an estimated cost of $700 million over a period of years.

— Commercial airlines to be paid to equip 110 wide-bodied jet airliners, foremost among them 747s.

Dear Abby

Sealed with a kiss at the "post office"

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR READERS: A reader asked if I knew the official rules for the kissing game kids played years ago, called "post office."

I didn't, so I asked my readers, and what a variety of answers I received! Since there is nothing in the literature to authenticate the rules, and I know of no living authority (does anyone?), here are some of the responses. Take your pick:

DEAR ABBY: When I was a teen-ager, no party was complete unless we played post office. One person was chosen to be the postmaster, and another was chosen to go into a dark room (usually a closet) which we called "the post office." The postmaster would whisper a message to the postmaster who came out and announced that there was a postcard for Nancy. Nancy would then go into the closet and what went on in there nobody knew but Nancy and the guy in the closet.

Then the guy came out and Nancy stayed in and told the postmaster that there was a letter for Jimmy. Jimmy went into the closet, and what went on there nobody knew but Nancy and Jimmy. A postcard was a quick kiss, a letter was a longer kiss. And a special delivery must have been a really passionate kiss because the guy (or girl) would come out of the closet with his hair mussed up, red in the face and all flustered.

We played this game until everybody in the room got kissed. DENVER

DEAR DENVER: That's the way I remember it. Today the kids are a little more sophisticated. They play a game called "pony express." It's just like post office, only there's a little more horsing around.

DEAR ABBY: How well I remember post office! It was a lot of fun for the popular, good-looking boys, but not for the not-so-good looking. The one time I was called into the "post office," a girl said she had a "letter" for Chub. My heart was all flutter. She put her arms around me and said, "Oh, I forgot to stamp it." Then she brought her foot down hard on my left foot and crushed two toes.

CHUB MUNGER, HELENA, MONTANA

DEAR ABBY: I played post office as a child in England. Here's how we played it:

One member of the party would be elected "postmaster." He (or she) would then station himself (herself) in an adjoining room.

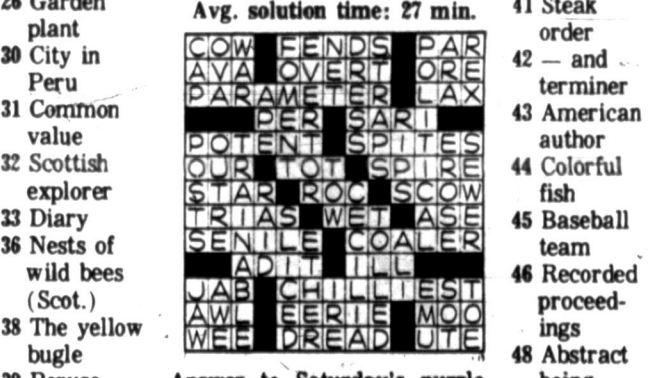

Each person remaining would be given a number, let us say one through twenty. Through the door, the postmaster, called out a number. Whoever had that number would join him in the other room. If they were of the opposite sex, they would kiss. If not, they would shake hands.

The postmaster would then join the rest of the party, and the one whose number — called took his turn at being postmaster.

The trick was to try to guess the number of the person you wanted most to kiss. DALE IN S.F.

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

"Head lice — they're getting into everyone's hair these days."

While not literally true, this line from a new State Health Department film, "Head Lice: Questions and Answers," points to a continuing and growing problem in cities and towns throughout Texas, and the nation, for that matter.

School nurses and public health clinic nurses may see "pediculosis," an infestation with human lice, from time to time. Of late, this has been a more frequent occurrence.

The general public may not hear so much about pediculosis, for those affected are reluctant to spread this information. And, it isn't a reportable disease, thus keeping it from public attention.

The person who does understand a louse problem is the victim. Pediculosis can be a night and day torment with the itching and burning and discomfort which it causes. The constant scratching can produce an infection. And, it can be so distracting as to cause learning problems in school.

Human lice are a group of insect parasites which live on the bodies of their victims. They are known as sucking lice and depend on the blood for nourishment. The warm human body also provides warmth and moisture, says the Health Department.

The three types of human lice are: PEDICULUS HUMANUS CAPITIS, the head louse; PEDICULUS HUMANUS HUMANUS, the body louse; and the crab louse, PHTHIRUS PUBIS.

The head and body louse have almost the same physical size and shape, but the crab louse has a rounder body and its second and third pairs of legs are larger than the first pair near its head. All types are small, with adults ranging from one-sixteenth to one-eighths of an inch in length.

The eggs of lice — called nits — are attached to the hair shafts of their hosts with a cement-like substance. In the case of the body louse, the nit may be attached to clothing fibers.

Three types of lice infesting humans live only on humans. Animal lice, on the other hand, can't maintain themselves on humans. And, it's possible for a person to have more than one type of lice. Of the three kinds of human lice, only the body louse has been implicated as a vector of louse-borne relapsing fever and epidemic typhus in times past.

While head lice are being experienced more often in school situations, the other forms of lice also are prevalent in our society.

While lack of cleanliness may contribute to the spread of lice, it is possible for anyone to become infested. Crab lice are very sluggish and dependent on the man, dying within 24 hours of removal from the host. An infestation will spread slowly through a group of individuals such as a ship's crew or commune residents. They are spread chiefly by sexual contact, but often are acquired by such other means as infested toilet seats or beds and by close personal contact.

Body lice infest the clothing of man, particularly undergarments next to the skin. They are also known to wander about extensively. The habit of living mainly on clothing — and traveling to the skin for nourishment — has restricted body lice in civilized communities to a small minority of people who seldom wash or change their clothes. All forms of lice may be found on clothing, however.

The head louse attaches its nits (or eggs) to human hair, the nits resembling a stubby branch. The nit is cemented at an oblique angle, and this is helpful in distinguishing it from foreign substance in the hair.

The eggs, incubated by body heat, hatch in about a week. The louse nymphs undergo three growth stages requiring eight to nine days. Sexual maturity is reached in approximately two weeks.

While the presence of lice may be noted by the itching, the first visible signs of infestation may be the nits attached to the hair. Head lice and their nits usually are found in the hair behind the ears and along the nape of the neck. The eggs may be seen in clusters along the hair.

However, it's possible that some other foreign substance such as globules of hair spray may be confused with nits. This has happened.

Also, some investigators have observed that casts from hair follicles may be found on a hair and that these nodules, which will slip up and down on the hair shaft, are mistaken for nits.

State Health Department authorities emphasize that the temporary presence of head lice isn't necessarily an indication of lack of personal hygiene. An infestation might be acquired by almost anyone.

Head lice may be spread in a number of ways. The spread from individual to individual may be accomplished by using the same comb, scarf or hat, or sleeping in the same bed since lice do come off on these objects. They also may be spread by upholstered head rests of chairs and couches and perhaps less frequently via the head rest of a school bus.

No matter how the head lice are acquired, they may be hard to get rid of. You'd think that swimming or washing your hair would get rid of the lice and nits. However, this isn't the case. They resist water and ordinary soap and water.

Bathing or washing your hair at temperatures you can tolerate won't kill out the head lice. Some may wash off, however, but the nits will stay alive and hatch out.

Killing off head lice may turn into a family affair. If one person has head lice, the entire family needs to be treated at the same time. To rid household articles of lice, clothing, bedding, towels and washcloths should be laundered frequently in hot water. Washable head gear also should be laundered at the same time.

Combs and other hair-styling articles need thorough and frequent cleaning, and the home should receive a thorough vacuuming, including the bathroom.

Personal hygiene, frequent bathing and shampooing of hair are very important in preventing the establishment or re-establishment of lice. But if you're infested, you'll need a louse-killing insecticide shampoo to rid yourself of the lice. These are available at drug stores. Your family physician may prescribe one, or you may receive the names of these products from your school nurse or public health clinic. Nost drug store have two or three brands in lotion, cream, gel or shampoo form.

It is important in treatment to follow the directions closely and continue the treatment for the prescribed time. Remember, you're dealing not only with lice but their eggs as well. Dead Nits may be removed from the hair with a fine comb following proper treatment, which dissolves the tough cement binding the nit to the hair.

In a bulletin, "Twenty-Three Most Frequently Asked Questions About Lice," the State Health Department gives some valuable hints on dealing with lice.

For instance, it states that lice seldom live longer than 48 hours when removed from the human body. Under ideal laboratory conditions, male body lice have lived as long as 32 days and female body lice have survived for 46 days; however, under normal conditions, even body lice seldom live longer than a day or two when deprived of their human host.

Each female head louse may lay from 50 to 150 eggs in its lifetime while the female body or crab louse may produce 200 or more.

What effect does temperature have on lice? Hot temperatures will kill them. Such high temperatures are suitable for laundering purposes but not for shampooing the head or for bathing.

Dry heat, steam, or pressing with a hot iron will destroy lice since they can live only a few minutes at 120 degrees Fahrenheit.

Most home water heaters supply water at 140 degrees to 165 degrees. Washing in cold or lukewarm water won't kill them.

How do head lice travel? They are transported by people and do not hop, jump or fly. They have powerfully developed legs, each provided with a claw and an opposing thumb-like process that is adapted for clinging.

Bazooka Shells Fired Toward Israeli Airliner

PARIS (UPI) — Two men fired three bazooka shells toward an El Al Israel airliner at Orly field today. They missed the Israeli plane but hit the Yugoslav airliner which was filled with passengers.

Police said one shell tore a large hole out of the fuselage of the Yugoslav Air Transport Boeing 707 jet under the left wing, injuring the plane steward and a passenger.

The Israeli Boeing 707 with 140 passengers aboard took off safely as Flight 221 bound for Montreal and New York. An El Al spokesman said there was no damage to the plane.

Sources close to police said Criminal Brigade experts were working on the theory the attackers were politically motivated. But police said they were not sure whether the assailants wanted to hit the Israeli or the Yugoslav plane.

The attackers opened fire at the planes at 12:30 p.m. (6:30 a.m. CST) from an elevated car ramp which connects two parts of the field, Orly West and Orly North. They fled after what police said was the most daring guerrilla attack yet on a plane in France.

"It's a miracle there hasn't been a larger number of killed and wounded," a French security forces officer said.

The two men drove up to the airfield in a white, apparently stolen, Peugeot four-seat limousine, police said.

Police quoted witnesses as saying, "One of the men alighted from the car, set up the bazooka still under an orange-colored wrap, took off the canvas and opened fire."

An airfield employee who saw the attackers told police the bazooka recoiled with such force that it threw the attacker back against the car. After the second shot the bazooka's recoil broke the window of the car, police said.

Police said the assailants left the car with two bazookas inside in a sprawling working class suburb close to Orly, and apparently continued in a taxi or a car driven by an accomplice.

One of the attackers dropped a loaded pistol at the car ramp in his haste to flee, police said. A radio station said the bazookas were of Soviet make, but police had no immediate confirmation.

The Israeli plane was allowed to take off for New York and Montreal at 1:02 p.m. (6:02 a.m. CST).

The attackers opened fire with a bazooka from a car which they drove past the runway on which the Israeli plane was located," a police official said.

He said the shell missed the aircraft, which is usually under special guard on French airfields, and hit the Yugoslav airliner parked nearby.

Police said the attackers who managed to sneak onto the runways through police and customs services, have not been identified, and evidently escaped.

Airfield sources said the bazooka was brought to the airfield wrapped in an orange-colored cloth by two men who drove up in a white Peugeot limousine.

They stripped the cover from the weapon and fired two shots at the Boeing 707 El Al airliner as it began taxiing down the runway for take-off at 12:30 p.m. (6:30 a.m. CST), sources said.

ACLU Files Suit Against Houston City

HOUSTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Joe Singleton has scheduled a hearing for Friday on a $55 million suit against city officials over alleged files on prominent citizens not involved in criminal activities.

The ACLU filed the suit last week asking $5 million in actual damages and $50 million in punitive damages to be paid to all persons or organizations who may have been the objects of illegal surveillance.

The suit named as defendants former mayor Louie Welch, former police chief Herman Short, Singleton, Mayor Fred Hofheinz, police chief Carol Lynn and Capt. B.G. Bond, new chief of CID.

"Elected officials, federal judges and many prominent citizens were made the object of investigation by police informers, infiltrators, wiretappers, covert photographers and other surreptitious domestic spies on the subjected whims of the defendants," the suit said.

M.L. "Joe" Singleton, who headed the CID for six years, said he was happy with the suit filed on behalf of former school board member Gertrude Barnstone and attorney Larry Sauer.

"I agree wholeheartedly with Mrs. Barnstone and the ACLU," Singleton said. "Those files should not be destroyed and they should not be made public. I had considered asking my lawyer to file the same sort of suit."

It reportedly takes about 12 years for stored DDT in fat tissue to work its way out of the human body. — CNS

Ziegler Raps Nixon's Treatment

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Richard Nixon is a "beaten man," harried by vindictive bureaucrats and in effect locked in a cell, a political prisoner and exile on his estate at San Clemente, Ronald Ziegler says.

"What is happening to Richard Nixon as a human being is very serious" because of the way he has been treated since resigning the presidency, said Ziegler, Nixon's top aide.

"The fact that he has survived this period to me is remarkable."

Ziegler who was closer to Nixon than any other assistant in the final days of his presidency and has been his chief aide since, gave his first lengthy, public interview to the Los Angeles Times. It was printed Sunday.

Ziegler bitterly criticized the government for its treatment of Nixon, especially financially, and the charges that Nixon escaped punishment for Watergate, while his top assistants face, or have already served, prison terms.

"He resigned in disgrace. He is certainly a beaten man," Ziegler said.

"What severity of penalty does this society want from a leader? If society wants to put him in a cell, there is a cell out there," Ziegler said, pointing toward Nixon's estate. "Have you seen the size of his office? What more is wanted?"

"It's the first American political exile — self imposed, certainly self imposed — but certainly exile. You only have to be here to sense it is exile — the abandonment by friends, the isolation, the vindictiveness of some in Washington, including some in Congress and some in the Ford White House," Ziegler said.

However, Ziegler made a point of saying that he does not think that President Ford himself has been "vindictive" or knows how Ford's aides treat Nixon.

Ziegler was particularly annoyed at the statement by his successor, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, that the government will bill Nixon $8,440 for half of his last flight on Air Force One the day he resigned.

Nessen announced last week that since Nixon ceased to be president somewhere over Jefferson City, Mo., when Ford took the presidential oath, Nixon forfeited his right to presidential transportation at that instant, and would have to pay for the remainder of the flight to California.

That's absurd," Ziegler said. "It is unbelievable. He was president when he left Washington. What was he supposed to do — alight in Jefferson City and make his way out here by train?"

Ziegler complained that Ford aides will not release Nixon's personal belongings, including souvenirs and mementos, nor even for ward mail.

"Richard Nixon has to pay lawyers to get his mail sent out," Ziegler said.

Ziegler said he personally had been embarrassed because the White House did not forward his mail, including a credit card bill. He didn't pay the bill because he never received it, and the next time he tried to use the credit card he was told it had been canceled.

Ziegler said Nixon is only "slowly" recovering from his surgery in October, and is not yet well enough to begin work on his memoirs, but that when he does "it will be a very important piece of history — not a book justifying him, but a very, very important book."

He said the act of Congress depriving Nixon of his presidential papers and tape recordings set an ominous precedent.

"If the private notes of Richard Nixon's conversations with Mao Tse-tung or his notes to world leaders — if they should be made public — then Sen. (Sam) Ervin's discussions with Sam Dash and the private conversations of Sen. Lowell P. Weicker with his staff should be made public too."

Ervin and Weicker served on the Senate Watergate Committee, and Dash was its counsel.

Carlos Schiebeck called it "a sharp bang. It woke up the entire family" in Buena Park.

Long Beach police said the quake was felt slightly there and they had received about 300 calls.

The seismological laboratory at Cal Tech said the tremor struck at 3:22 a.m. PST (5:22 CST) with a magnitude of 3.8 on the Richter Scale, a moderate force. The epicenter was calculated to be in northeastern Long Beach, a spokesman said.

Two gentle quakes shook parts of the West from Alaska to Southern California Sunday, but there were no reports of damage.

One quake was centered on the ocean floor just off the West Coast, about 65 miles south of Los Angeles. It registered 4.7 on the Richter Scale, according to scientists at Cal Tech's seismology laboratory.

It was felt at 1:22 p.m. PST in parts of Los Angeles and Orange County. A slightly smaller quake, measuring 4.3 on the Richter Scale, rumbled through the Anchorage-Palmer area in Alaska. A spokesman at the Palmer Observatory said the quake was centered 25 miles west of Anchorage.

The Alaska quake was in the same general area as four others during the last three days of 1974.

President Millard Fillmore was born in a log cabin in Cayuga Co., N.Y.

A NATIONAL CRISIS Illegal Aliens Streaming Into Country For Jobs

United Press International. Illegal aliens are streaming into the country and taking jobs away from Americans at such a rate that officials are using words like "flood" and "national crisis" to describe the phenomenon.

An estimated 4.5 million of them, mostly from Latin America but some from Europe and Asia as well, are living in the United States. Some authorities say the figure is closer to 8 million—or about one for every 27 U.S. citizens.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is overwhelmed by the sheer numbers of the gate crashers and has so far been unable to make more than a token effort to detect them and send them home.

The work of immigration agents is doubly frustrating because, although it is against the law for illegal aliens to take jobs, hiring them is perfectly legal.

In boom times most Americans are unaware of the problem. But with the deepening recession and widespread layoffs, they are discovering that hundreds of thousands of illegal aliens are holding down paying jobs—and in many instances are willing to work cheaper to avoid detection.

Officer Questions Orders Reliability

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Two attorneys for a decorated Air Force veteran being forced out of the service for questioning the reliability of the nation's missile launch system say they fear his treatment may stifle similar questions from other missile officers.

"The next guy that comes along with the same questions may be afraid to ask them," attorney Clyde Amyx said this weekend. "Maybe these questions will never again be raised by a missile officer."

Maj. Harold L. Hering's problems began in 1973 when he was training at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., to be a Minuteman missile officer. He questioned the launch system's capability to deliver legitimate orders from the proper authorities.

As a result of his concern for the system's integrity, the 38-year-old winner of the Distinguished Service Cross was put up for administrative discharge Saturday.

A board of inquiry at Warren Air Force Base in Cheyenne ruled he should be drummed out "for failure to meet duty performance standards required of an officer."

"We have no evidence of this kind of question being posed before," said Judge Advocate Gordon Edgin, who is participating in Hering's defense with Amyx.

"The people we've talked to indicate that it's the first time it's been asked."

The attorneys said Hering was convinced launch orders at lower command levels would always be lawful because of the checks and balances built into the system.

But he wondered about the existence of similar checks at the higher levels.

Within 24 hours he was summoned before the base commander and asked to confirm he had questioned the system.

Edgin said authorities refused to provide any concrete assurances to Hering about the reliability of launch orders.

"He never for one minute doubted his ability to perform his duties," Edgin said. "He just wanted to assure himself that an unlawful launch order could never enter the system."

Edgin said Hering persisted in voicing his concern because, even though he believed the chances of a system failure were slim, the consequences would be catastrophic.

The case now goes to Air Force headquarters in Washington, D.C., and then to the secretary of the Air Force.

94th Congress Faces Gloomy Work Period

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 94th Congress convenes Tuesday with chances of a second honeymoon with the Ford administration dimmed by serious threats to any marriage: lack of work and money.

The new Congress faces the worst economic picture since World War II, with unemployment soaring, sales and profits of some major industries shrinking, and inflation continuing.

The energy shortage also looms over the economic problems.

The gloom has prompted Democrats, strengthened by 75 predominantly liberal freshmen, to reverse a tradition of slow legislative starts.

They plan to ram through emergency relief for the staggering economy in the form of an immediate tax cut.

Chances for a honeymoon such as President Ford proposed shortly after he took office last August will become clearer Wednesday when Ford plans to outline his economic and energy programs in his State of the Union address.

Both Ford and the Democrats are expected to recommend tax cuts, but the sizes are likely to differ.

Congress appeared ready to step into the energy situation by giving Ford standby powers to ration gas and force major utilities and industries to switch to coal from scarcer fuels.

Ford would like to de-regulate natural gas at the wellhead.

The new House breaks down to 291 Democrats and 144 Republicans. The new liberal members may mark a shift to the left in the House, displacing the Senate's role as a pioneer of new legislation.

In the Senate, Democrats would hold a commanding 63-37 edge if disputed races in New Hampshire and Oklahoma are ruled in their favor.

If they lose both, the margin would be 61-39.

The leadership in both houses will be unchanged, although there may be several changes in House committee chairmanships.

The only doubtful post is a minor one, chairman of the Senate Republican Conference. The election pits liberal Jacob K. Javits of New York against conservative Carl Curtis of Nebraska.

The administration and Congress were almost certain to quarrel over increasing aid to South Vietnam, again threatened by invasions from the North.

Ford is reportedly considering a request for some $300 million or more in emergency military aid for the Saigon government.

A companion fight could result if the Pentagon asks for a record budget in the face of a $36 billion deficit and pressing economic needs.

Other significant action expected this session: —Enactment of a national health insurance program, which has been waiting in the wings for passage for two years.

Southwest Gets Disaster Funds

DALLAS (UPI) — Twenty percent of the Presidential disaster declarations made in 1974 involved the five Southwestern states under the Dallas regional office of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, according to statistics released this weekend.

Natural disasters affected every state in the region last year causing damages in excess of $160 million.

There were nine incidents sufficiently severe to require a major disaster declaration including three major disasters in Louisiana, three in Oklahoma, two in Arkansas, one in Texas, and an emergency situation in New Mexico which required federal aid in the amount of $578,000 for fire suppression.

Moreover, the May 31, 1974, declaration which made federal assistance available to flood victims in Phillips County, Ark., came only nine days after the signing of the new Disaster Relief Act of 1974, which expands the scope of earlier disaster relief legislation and introduces several new forms of assistance.

Joe D. Winkle, FDDA regional director.

The new law simplifies procedures by which local governments obtain funds to repair or restore public facilities and offers grant assistance to individuals who have serious disaster-caused needs that are unmet by other assistance programs.

To complicate matters in pioneering the new procedures in federal disaster assistance, a major disaster was again declared in Arkansas a week later on June 8, 1974, after severe storms and tornadoes ravaged a seven-county area with concentrated damages in Forrest City.

Then, on June 10, 1974, Oklahoma joined its neighboring state in receiving federal aid under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, when floods, storms and killer tornadoes affected 2,000 families in 14 counties, causing damages in excess of $50 million.

Federal agencies in the Dallas region have continued to stay active with major declarations in Louisiana on Sept. 23, due to Hurricane Carmen losses, and on Nov. 1, after a tornado ripped through Crowley.

The President declared aid available to flood disaster victims following severe weather in Texas and Oklahoma during November. In addition, disaster relief work continues to be done for the communities in Louisiana and Oklahoma, which had major disasters in the spring of 1974 prior to the passage of the new law, as well as long-term federal assistance for disaster victims from previous years.

Police said today Mike Dal Chisem, 17, was charged with two counts of burglary stemming from investigation of the Jan. 5 break-in of Pete's Place, 216 N. Cuyler, and the adjoining Singer Sewing Co.

Chisem was picked up by Odessa police on investigation of another incident. He was returned to Pampa on a warrant issued by the police department.

He was lodged in county jail after Justice of the Peace G.L. "Nat" Lunsford set $2,000 bond each on two counts of burglary.

Coin-operated machines were rifled of $350 in Pete's Place during the early January burglary. About $153 was taken from money bags in the Singer Co., which adjoins the recreation center.

A radio is also missing from the Singer Co. Owner John Sanders told police the radio is valued at $30.

SCIENTISTS CLAIM U.S. Needs Policy On Food

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A report from a group of leading scientists says the pace of agricultural productivity is slowing and to meet the needs of the future the United States must develop a coherent national policy on food.

The National Research Council report released Sunday said food supplies predicted for the next decade are based on already known technology and past research. The production increases needed in the future can come only from new research it said.

"In a sense we are living on borrowed time unless we deal with this matter," Sylvan H. Wittwer, head of the council's Board on Agriculture and Renewable Resources, said in a news briefing corresponding with the release of the report.

Americans and the country's leaders are not taking seriously enough the possibility of long-term food problems for people if science fails to progress, according to Wittwer, who also heads the Michigan State University Agricultural Experiment Station.

Wittwer said the nation needs a research drive similar to the "Manhattan Project" — the World War II effort that produced the atomic bomb — to carve out discoveries like basic improvements in the ability of plants to convert solar energy into food.

Vinson, all of Pampa and three brothers, Odder Hosea and Connie Hosea, both of Pampa, and Lonnie Hosea, Amarillo; and six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

MRS. ELVA DUREE SAYRE, Okla. — Funeral services for Mrs. Elva Duree, 74, 524 S. Finley, who died Sunday while visiting in Ontario, Calif., will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at First Baptist Church in Sayre, Okla. Officiating will be the Rev. E.D. Maddux of Pampa.

She was born July 27, 1900 at Tecumseh, Okla.

Survivors include one daughter, Jean Banks, Pampa; three sons, T.J. Pampa, Rex and Keith, both of Keyes, Calif.; two brothers, H.F. Maddoux, Sayre, and Roy Maddoux, Keyes; two sisters, Ola Nabors and Eulice Davenport, both of Pampa; and 12 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

EDWARD F. GOODE, MT. VERNON, Tex. — Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. today in the Harvey Funeral Home Chapel at Mt. Vernon, for Edward F. Goode, 64, of Dallas, brother of Mrs. Lois Teel of Pampa. Mr. Goode died Sunday in the Mission Manor Nursing Home in Mt. Vernon.

Officiating was the Rev. Bob Evans, a Baptist minister. Burial was in Mt. Vernon Cemetery.

Mr. Goode was born Jan. 19, 1916 in Camel and was married to the former Clarine Martin.

Survivors include the widow, Dallas; another sister, Mrs. Louise Lloyd, Greenville, and four nieces.

Police said today Mike Dal Chisem, 17, was charged with two counts of burglary stemming from investigation of the Jan. 5 break-in of Pete's Place, 216 N. Cuyler, and the adjoining Singer Sewing Co.

Chisem was picked up by Odessa police on investigation of another incident. He was returned to Pampa on a warrant issued by the police department.

He was lodged in county jail after Justice of the Peace G.L. "Nat" Lunsford set $2,000 bond each on two counts of burglary.

Coin-operated machines were rifled of $350 in Pete's Place during the early January burglary. About $153 was taken from money bags in the Singer Co., which adjoins the recreation center.

A radio is also missing from the Singer Co. Owner John Sanders told police the radio is valued at $30.

Ford Planning Address Vital To Presidency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford hopes to answer the questions of Peter Kimball and many other Americans this week in a State of the Union speech that is vitally important to the future of his administration.

Kimball, a 22-year-old admissions clerk at George Washington University Hospital, was outside of St. John's Episcopal Church Sunday. As Ford came out and entered his blue limousine, he hollered: "How about providing some jobs for the American people, Mr. President?"

Ford gave no indication that he heard. "This church service is all very nice," Kimball told reporters afterward. "but the President ought to be spending more time getting Americans back to work."

The problems of the economy and energy are central to the President's deliberations. He is working on final drafts of the State of the Union message, which he will present to Congress on Wednesday.

Administration sources agree there will be some kind of tax cut—perhaps a one-time 10 per cent rebate on 1974 income taxes and a reduction worth $10 to $15 billion in 1975.

Ford also is expected to propose increased taxes on imported and domestic oil to conserve energy and restore to the Treasury some of the revenues lost through the tax cut. Congress Joint Economic Committee has predicted huge deficits this year and next, even without a tax reduction.

The House GOP leader, John J. Rhodes, briefed Saturday on Ford's program, said: "There will be, if Congress enacts the legislation which the President will propose, more money in the hands of the American public to spend."

Youth Charged With Burglary

A Pampa youth is in Gray County jail charged with two counts of burglary.

Lounge-about

For Extra Special People

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN
CREDIT BILL TICE with designing at-home clothes so glamorous they started a trend: Women began wearing them away from home. It was the Tice hostess look, and the hostess liked it so much she wore it when she played guest at someone else's party.

It's ESP

The Tice touch caught on with such success that the Indianapolis designer now heads his own firm, ESP, which is part of the Saylor Company. What does ESP stand for?

"It's open to interpretation," says Tice. "But it just could mean Extra Special People."

A student of the design, architecture and art department of the University of Cincinnati, he majored in fashion design while enrolled in a work-study program that had him doing everything from selling fishing tackle to designing window displays.

This experience gave him a total concept of fashion. Tice not only designs but has set ideas about how his clothes should be merchandized. He feels strongly, for example, that fitting rooms in department stores are lacking.

"When a woman tries on a gown, everything should conspire to make her look superb," he says, "but in a fitting room the harsh lights and stark cubicle do anything but flatter."

Fabrics and Colors

Tice believes in emphasizing femininity with his creations, something he does with fabrics, such as chiffon, satin and a new fiber, Chino, that has the look and feel of the finest silk. Color plays an important part in his collections. He likes shades from the soft hues of apricot, pale blue, lavender and flesh to the dramatic tones, such as peacock turquoise.

Because he feels a woman's personality should be reflected not only by fashion but by home fashions, Tice who recently won a Coty Award, expects to branch out and design linens and other boudoir accessories.

LOUNGE PAJAMAS with pizzazz by Bill Tice, left, are done in a new fiber, Chino, that has the look and feel of silk. The multi-color flowers on the Oriental tunic top repeat all colorations of striped tunic hem.

Sean, Candice In Desert Saga

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — It was exciting when Rudolph Valentino carried Vilma Bank off across desert wastes to his Moorish stronghold. But it's even more exciting when Sean Connery carried Candice Bergen off.

Rudy set the ladies swooning when he carried Vilma off in "The Son of the Shiek," and Connery should get even better results with his new picture, "The Wind and the Lion," because he abducts Candice in glorious color, an asset Valentino never enjoyed.

The film, currently rolling in Almeria, Spain, is singular, not only because it's the first coproduction of two Hollywood titans, MGM and Columbia, but because it's curiously old-fashioned, and that's meant as a compliment.

Loosely based on an incident which actually occurred during Theodore Roosevelt's administration, it's old-fashioned in terms of period, set in a time when America was so rambunctious and filled with self-pride that a president of the United States would send the Marines to rescue an American citizen from a Barbary pirate. And international complications be hanged!

T.R. really and truly did just that to the applause of the nation.

But "The Wind and the Lion" is even more old-fashioned in terms of mood, for it's a romantic, high adventure with a handsome, brave and exotic hero and a beautiful heroine and love scenes the more moving because they are devoid of overt sex.

Brian Keith is Roosevelt; John Huston, his secretary of state, John Hay; and Connery is Raisuli, the desert chief — all real persons drawn from history.

On the other hand, the kidnap victim, Mrs. Eden Pedecaris, played by Candice, is fictional; for the American snatched by the real Raisuli was a man.

For purposes of a screen relationship, a sex switch was called for.

John Millius, writer-director of "The Wind and the Lion," says he read a story about the historic confrontation between Raisuli and Roosevelt about seven or eight years ago and became obsessed with it.

He finally presented the idea as a movie theme to producer Herb Jaffe at lunch, and Jaffe accepted the challenge of bringing it to the screen. It wasn't easy, but he eventually got Columbia and MGM to collaborate on the venture with United Artists set as the releasing agency.

DESERT ROMANCE--Sean Connery and Candice Bergen are starring in "The Wind and the Lion."

The picture will cost something over $4 million, which is a big budget by today's standards, but, Jaffe points out, "You have to give people something special to get them out of the house."

Though the film is being made on a grand scale, using more than 100 riding extras to cite but a single luxury touch, Jaffe saved money by shooting it in Spain where, according to his calculations, the extras cost only a fourth of what they would in Hollywood.

Financial consideration, however, didn't determine his choice of location.

"We came here because the physical aspects couldn't be duplicated in the States," he explains. "Right here we have the mountains, the desert and the sea, not to mention Moorish architecture."

A Moorish castle in Seville plus a Moorish castle and fort on a hill overlooking Almeria are providing interior sets for Raisuli's stronghold while another Moorish castle between Almeria and Granada with lines that a set designer couldn't improve and with a snow-covered mountain as a backdrop provides the exterior of Raisuli's lair.

While Spain hasn't directly helped with financing, Jaffe points out that it has made national lands and buildings available to him and his company.

Sean Connery says that at the time of his divorce from Diane Cilento he adopted the close-mouthed policy of never publicly discussing his private affairs.

And he applies this policy so rigidly that, when his reigning ladylove, Micheline Roquebrune, a French actress, visited him on location in Almeria, Spain, where "The Wind and the Lion" is shooting, most members of the crew, including the assistant publicist, didn't even learn her last name.

All anyone knew was that Connery had a lady visitor for three days whose company he seemed to enjoy.

The day I encountered Micheline on the set, she was wearing a close-fitting pants suit, high-heeled boots and her arm in a sling.

She'd broken her finger, she explained, when a mirror fell on it. But, beyond that, she was as close mouthed as her fellow.

Texas Leads Nation In Bicentennial Planning

Mrs. Elbert Walker and Mrs. L.A. Barns were hostesses at a recent meeting of Las Pampas Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution which was held in the Hospitality Room of the Citizens Bank and Trust. Mrs. J.B. White, regent, presided and led in the pledge to the flag and the American's Creed. The invocation was given by Mrs. Quentin Williams.

Mrs. E.L. Norman, bicentennial chairman for the chapter, introduced Mrs. Clotilde Thompson, chairman of the Gray County Bicentennial Commission. Mrs. Thompson spoke of plans to enlarge the Gray County Museum and to have a section where children could touch the exhibits when on tour.

As part of the county's celebration, three flag poles have been set at the Museum, one for the national flag, one for the state flag and one for the bicentennial flag. She stated that Gray County is top in the celebration plans for Texas and Texas is leading the nation.

Texas plans are also being used by other states, she told.

To finance the program, bicentennial coins are being sold and can be bought at the First National Bank. She pointed out that these commemorative coins would increase in value through the years.

Mrs. Thompson explained that each person or organization in this county is free to do whatever he wishes to help in the celebration. Plans have been made for city wide participation through the heritage, the festival or the horizon committees. Mrs. Thelma Bray is coordinator of the activities of these committees.

Mrs. L.A. Barns, defense chairman, reported that, according to the National Defender, U.S. diplomats have been murdered at their posts abroad in the last three years. As a consequence, the killing of U.S. ambassadors has now become epidemic, with the slaying of Ambassador Roger P. Davies in the P. Davies in the U.S. Embassy on Cyprus.

A Burkett pecan tree will be planted at the proper time in the park which surrounds the Pioneer Cottage. Mrs. J.V. Young, conservation chairman, told the group.

The following officers were elected to serve a two year term beginning in May of this year. Mrs. P.R. Britton, regent; Mrs. J.S. Skelly, Jr., vice-regent; Mrs. Quentin Williams, chaplain; Mrs. E.L. Norman, treasurer; Mrs. L.A. Barns, registrar; Mrs. A.D. Hills, historian and Mrs. J.R. Spearman, librarian.

Delegates elected to the State Conference of the Texas Society of the DAR which will be held March 18-19-20 in Amarillo are Mmes. J.S. Skelly, L.A. Barns and A.D. Hills. Alternates are Mmes. W.C. Whitley, James Hopkins, and Siler Hopkins.

Miss Mary Britton was a guest.

Upsilon Members Feted With Dinner

Upsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met Jan. 6 at the Reddi Room of Southwestern Public Service Company. Following the opening ritual, the business meeting was conducted by chapter president, Vickie Moose.

Social committee chairman Jane Radcliff, announced that the group would have a social on Jan. 16, but members would receive details later.

The program speaker, Mrs. Mildred Prince, was introduced by Andrea Wyatt. Mrs. Prince, a home service representative of Southwestern Public Service Company provided a cooking demonstration for the group, after which they sampled the meal. The menu consisted of Potato Casserole, King Ranch Casserole, Sour Dough Biscuits, Blender Coconut Custard Pid, Chip-Dip with chips and celery, steak prepared in the microwave over, Pineapple-mint Salad, and fruit punch. Mrs. Prince also gave hints on the micro-wave oven.

Mrs. John Duggan attended as a guest. Upsilon members attending were Nancy Chase, Virginia Dewey, Rochelle Lacy Judy Fields, Janette Martin, Vickie Moose, Sandy Osborne, Jan Ott, Janice Snider, Patsy Strawn, Cile Taylor, Jane Radcliff, Dena Whistler, and Andrea Wyatt.

The next regular meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Jan. 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Taylor.

The Christmas social was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Chase, south of city. Refreshments consisted of fruit punch and a favorite hors d'oeuvres brought by each member. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson.

their guest also attended the Beta Sigma Phi New Year's Eve Dance in the Heritage Room. Proceeds from this city Council project go for the scholarship awarded each spring to a senior at Pampa High School.

HD Members Study Fibers And Fabrics

Mrs. A.P. Coombes, president of the Goodwill Home Demonstration Club, presided at the Jan. 7, 10 a.m. meeting hosted by Mrs. Lettie Smith, 2216 N. Wells.

Following the club prayer, roll call was answered with "what happened the last time I tried to be a plumber." Mrs. Elaine Houston, County Home Extension Agent, presented the program on "Fibers and Fabrics." Points of interest were to buy wisely, the satisfaction received from clothing depends on the ability to successfully purchase fabrics to meet needs. Reading labels, handtags, and both ends of fabric bolts to identify the brand name, fiber content, finishes, and care instructions, are all necessary, the speaker continued.

Permanent care labeling went into effect July 3, 1972 and is required for all apparel and piece goods.

The consumer must read these to keep informed, she told.

Mrs. Houston listed new things to look for in textile developments, spun lace, double feature, new textured kodel, filament polyester, heat transfer printing, ultrasonics, double knit, poka dots, anti-static Crepeset and nylon, fusable bonded web and others.

Concluding the program, Mrs. Houston demonstrated a step-by-step method of making a knit blouse with a crew neck, mock turtle neck or turtle neck.

Luncheon was served to Mmes. Paul Johnson, Lee Jackson, G.B. Hogan, Cecil Barnett, Laura Kilgore, A.P. Coombes, Elaine Houston, Lettie Smith, and two guests, Mmes. Robert Eubanks and Thomas O. Etheredge.

The next meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. Jan. 21, with Mrs. Cecil Barnett, 508 Doyle.

Church News

BAPTIST LUNCHEON
The Baptist Women met at 12 noon, Wednesday, Jan. 8, at the church for their general meeting of the month. Mrs. Paul Turner offered the prayer of grace before the luncheon.

The president, Mrs. Jerry Wilson, was in charge of the meeting following the meal. She informed the group that the February mission action project will be to continue to furnish "new baby" kits for the Rio Grande River ministry. She reminded the ladies that the church is still some short of their Lottie Moon foreign mission's offering and encouraged all to participate if they have not already. She noted that the mission action closet is in need of good used clothing and to contact Mrs. E.E. Shelhamer or Mrs. L.V. Hopp for further information on this project.

Mrs. James Everett directed the Royal Service study on "What Southern Baptists Are Doing in New England." Assisting her on the program were Mmes. David Hutto, Louis Tarpley, Roy Don Stephens, Larry Upshaw and Mr. James Everett and Mr. Steve Rejdi.

The "Call to Prayer" was given by Mrs. Upshaw to dismiss the meeting.

FIRST BAPTIST WOMEN
The Ruby Ashworth Mission Prayer Group met at the church Wednesday, Jan. 8, at 10 a.m. The chairman of the group, Mrs. Owen Johnson, was in charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Louis Tarpley voiced the opening prayer. The group decided to name themselves after Mrs. Ruby Ashworth, who is a home missionary serving in the state of Utah.

The study on American Indians was opened with a reading of the 23rd Psalm in the universal Indian language by Mrs. Ed Langford. It was stated that the home mission board serves 20 different states in work with Indians. The study continued with a question and answer session from the Royal Service magazine.

Mrs. Johnson brought the "Call to Prayer" with Mrs. Langford leading in the prayer for missionaries having birthdays on this date.

The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Lee Moore.

The next meeting of this group will be Feb. 12 at the church.

Members in attendance were Mmes. Ed Mackey, W.G. Harvey, J.P. Heath, Moore, Tarpley, Langford and Johnson.

Nixon reportedly offered to return the pardon. Instead of legal immunity, he's been getting lawful scrutiny.

Defense, Franco Ruin Minnesota

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — "Whatever it takes," has been Pittsburgh Steeler Coach Chuck Noll's season-long reply when asked how his team won its games.

Sunday, at chilly and windblown Tulane Stadium, it took a stifling defense combined with just enough offense to give the Steelers their first Super Bowl championship with a 16-6 victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

"I'm really proud of this football team," Noll said. "We came in with the idea of getting the job done and let nothing stand in our way. It's especially fitting that in a championship game our defense shut out the champions of the National Football Conference. I can't think of anything more fitting."

"I think that our front four won the game; they were just outstanding," said Pittsburgh linebacker Jack Ham, who along with each of his teammates earned $15,000 for the win while the Vikings got $7,500 each.

The front four of Joe Greene, Ernie Holmes, L.C. Greenwood and Dwight White, which averages just 26 years of age, in addition to stopping the Vikings' running attack, also harassed quarterback Fran Tarkenton. They blocked four of his passes, intercepted another and pounced on him in the end zone for a safety after a fumbled handoff for the only scoring in a defense-dominated first half.

White was hospitalized for most of last week with a viral infection and missed all six Pittsburgh workouts here but was determined to not only play but also to start.

"White is a good indication of the attitude of this team," Noll said. "The doctor told me there was no way he could play after releasing him from the hospital Saturday but Dwight just said, 'I'm gonna play.'"

"They are very aggressive and got good penetration," said the 14-year veteran Tarkenton of the Steeler front four. "I don't think I've had two passes blocked on me since I've been in the league. They were the best team, they deserved to win, we didn't."

Almost overshadowed by the Steeler defense was the performance of running back Franco Harris who rushed for a Super Bowl record 158 yards and also scored the club's first touchdown on a nine-yard run. The TD came only four plays after special team member Marv Kellum recovered Bill Brown's fumble of the second half kickoff on the Minnesota 30-yard line.

After Rocky Bleier was stopped for no gain, Harris scooted the left side for 24 yards. He was thrown for a three-yard loss on the next play but then got the ball again and rambled around the left side for the touchdown.

"I had a head cold, but you know, you can't let a cold stop you," said Harris who was voted the game's most valuable player and will receive an automobile for his efforts. "They say there's no cure for a cold, so I wasn't looking for one."

Harris' touchdown increased the Steelers' lead to 9-0 but the Vikings, who entered the game as 3 1/2-point underdogs, kept their fans' betting hopes alive when Terry Brown recovered a blocked Pittsburgh punt in the end zone to account for Minnesota's only points. Fred Cox missed on the extra point attempt when his kick struck the left upright and bounced back.

There was still a little over 10 minutes left to play but the Steelers came right back and marched 66 yards in 12 plays for the deciding touchdown that came on a four-yard pass from Terry Bradshaw to Larry Brown.

The big play of the drive was a 30-yard pass from Bradshaw to Brown on which the Steeler tight end apparently fumbled the ball away to a Viking after getting hit. However, the officials ruled the play was dead before the fumble.

"From our vantage point, Brown had not reached the ground when the ball came loose," said Viking Coach Bud Grant who became the first coach to lose three Super Bowl games. "Our bench reacted immediately—there wasn't any question in their mind it was a fumble."

The official who called it was across the field and behind him and the official who ruled it our ball was in front of the play. When they didn't give it to us, it became a very big play—bigger than any we could make."

"It wasn't a very good football game," Grant continued. "There were enough chances for both teams to win a number of times with all the penalties, interceptions and official fumbles."

The victory represented the supreme moment in the career of Steeler owner Art Rooney who never before in the 42-year history of the club had won a National Football League championship.

"Today's win made all the other years worth it," said Rooney who will celebrate his 74th birthday Jan. 27. "I felt before the season started we could win it. The players felt that way and they made me feel that way, too. I'm so happy for the ballplayers, coaches and fans."

Miller Cops Win

PHOENIX (UPI) — There are a growing number of pros who think Johnny Miller, the tall, blond Californian with the big drive and fine putting touch, is the world's best golfer today and maybe they are right.

Miller shot rounds of 67-61-68-64 in the Phoenix Open for a 72-hole score of 260. That was the best winning total since Mike Souchak took the 1955 Texas Open with a 257, but that is only part of the story.

The other part has to do with how easily he outstripped a field that started out with U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, PGA king Lee Trevino and every one of the top 15 money winners of 1974 except Jack Nicklaus.

Miller won by 14 strokes over childhood friend Jerry Heard and when it was all over he had played the Phoenix Country Club course 24 shots under par. His total included 25 birdies and two eagles, which has to rate as one of the most powerful performances in PGA history.

When Arnold Palmer was the king of the fairways, the way Miller is now, he won the 1962 Phoenix Open by 12 shots and everyone said that was a mark that probably would never be beaten.

How wrong they were. Miller not only beat it, but he also shattered the hopes of most of his fellow pros who now have to face him this week in the Tucson Open, second stop on the 1975 PGA Tour.

His Phoenix victory gives him 12 career triumphs as he starts his fifth year on the tour. Nicklaus, whom Miller always likes to compare himself with, won 16 tournament titles in his first five years, including three Masters and one U.S. Open and PGA. At this point, Miller has won only one of the major tournaments—the 1973 U.S. Open.

"You have to win your share of the big ones to rank among the best," Miller said. "This year, that is my goal."

Heard put on a pretty good finish on his own in the Phoenix, sinking a 40-foot putt for an eagle on the final hole for a six-under 65, only one shot higher than Miller. That zoomed Heard, who was sixth on the money list last year, past half a dozen players and into second place, which was worth $17,100. He finished with a 72-hole score of 10-under 274, normally good enough to win.

But Miller was in a class all by himself as he grabbed the top prize of $30,000 for his second Phoenix victory in a row.

Tommy Aaron closed with a 67 to grab third place, another two shots back, while Mike Hill wound up at 277. Roy Pace at 278, J.C. Snead at 279 and Tom Watson, Butch Baird, John Mahaffey, Dick Waits and Gene Littler at 280.

Irwin finished far back at 282, four more shots ahead of Trevino. Neither was a factor here from the start.

Chaos Wrecks City Of Steel

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Disorder erupted among about 11,000 football fans celebrating Pittsburgh's Super Bowl victory Sunday night. Bottles and beer cans were thrown at police, 60 persons were injured and police arrested 250 persons for being drunk in the streets or disorderly.

Police in riot gear moved in and closed off the downtown area to incoming traffic. Order was restored by 10 p.m. EST.

"It is worse than we had anticipated," City Police Superintendent Robert Colville said.

The celebration began peacefully after the Pittsburgh Steelers' 16-6 Super Bowl win over Minnesota. But violence broke out when about 40 persons climbed atop a city bus and police moved in.

Two policemen were among the injured. One was hit by a flying beer bottle and suffered facial cuts.

The other injured officer was thrown to the ground in front of a gushing fire hydrant and was kicked by several persons when he was cut off from other police by the crowd. The officer was found lying in a pool of water "and could have drowned," police said.

No one was hurt seriously.

"There are a lot of teenagers down here who got their hands on some alcohol," Colville said.

Colville said he decided to close off the area "when it became apparent that peoples' lives were endangered."

He cited as an example the stopping of a bus in the Market Square area, while more than 40 men piled on top. Colville said there was concern that the bus might tip over, causing injury to passengers inside.

action Sunday. Milwaukee ripped Philadelphia, 99-88, and Chicago beat Seattle, 127-123.

Milwaukee scored the first eight points in the fourth quarter to finally take the lead and beat Philadelphia. The 76ers led by as many as 13 points in the first half as the Bucks committed 15 turnovers. But Milwaukee cut down on the mistakes and closed to within one point, 70-69, at the end of three quarters.

Eight minutes into the fourth quarter Milwaukee had a commanding 89-76 lead. The Bucks coasted home from there.

Abdul-Jabbar had 29 points to lead all scorers. Doug Collins led Philadelphia with 21 and Billy Cunningham added 20.

The Bulls were extended to two overtime periods by the Sonics before pulling out their fourth straight victory. Chicago forward Bob Love hit two free throws with 14 seconds left in regulation time to send the game into overtime and then Seattle's Archie Clark hit a last-second jumper in the first overtime to necessitate a second extra period.

Buffalo's Bob McAdoo said he wasn't playing any differently because a national television audience was watching, but the opponents' green jerseys did bring about a little extra effort.

That extra effort saw McAdoo score 41 points, pull down 13 rebounds and block seven shots as the Braves beat Boston, 114-101, Sunday, to cut the Celtics' lead over Buffalo in the National Basketball Association's Atlantic Division to one game.

"It's not playing on TV," explained McAdoo, who often this season has wondered aloud about the lack of respect and recognition accorded his team, compared to that given Boston. "It's just playing against the Celtics. They're the champs. We go out there and do our best against them."

Randy Smith also helped the Braves, pumping in 24 points, adding 12 assists and grabbing six rebounds.

Dave Cowens was high scorer for the Celtics with 22 points.

United Press International Coach Gus Ganakas substituted freely Saturday, getting 18 points from his reserves, and Michigan State rolled to a surprisingly easy 86-78 victory over No. 11 ranked Michigan.

"I think this was the best we've played this season both offensively and defensively," Ganakas said after the win over Michigan.

Saturday, nine players figured in the scoring as the Spartans set a school record with a 64 per cent field goal pace from the field. Ganakas used guards Benny White and Bob Chapman off his bench as well as forward Edgar Wilson—and there was no lack of cohesion.

Elsewhere, top-ranked Indiana embarrassed Iowa, 102-49, to insure that no one meddles with its first-place ranking this week.

All 15 Hoosiers scored in the rout, including 16 points by Kent Benson and 10 each by Scott May and Steve Green.

The victory tied an Indiana record for most consecutive wins, 17, set by 58, eighth-ranked Alabama scored an 86-71 victory over Mississippi State, ninth-ranked Kentucky was upset by unranked Auburn, 90-85, and 10th-ranked Arizona State nipped Utah, 96-93.

Third-ranked North Carolina State was idle.

Indiana raced to a 32-9 lead in the opening minutes while Quinn Buckner scored 13 of his 16 points. By halftime, Iowa had committed 19 turnovers, 11 of them on steals by Indiana, and the Hoosiers led, 43-18.

Leading, 53-24, after a couple more minutes, Indiana then ran off 26 straight points, built a lead as high as 57 points at 100-43 and rang up a 53-point victory, 102-49, to insure that no one meddles with its first-place ranking this week.

The victory tied an Indiana record for most consecutive wins, 17, set by the 1953-54 NCAA championship club. The Hoosiers are now 14-0 this season.

Ralph Drollinger and Dave Meyers scored 17 points apiece as UCLA ran its home win streak to 75 games in a Pacific8 contest against Washington State. Marques Johnson hit 15 points and Richard Trgovich added 12 each as the Bruins pushed their season mark to 12-0 and their conference record to 2-0.

Washington State 6-11 center Steve Puidokas led all scorers with 19 and Ron Davis had 11 for the Cougars. Nelson Barnhill added 10 points. Puidokas, who entered the game with a 24.8 scoring average, was held to six points in the first half by the 7-1 Drollinger. Drollinger matched Puidokas in rebounds with 10.

BROWN GRABS RECORD

In 500 Free Victory

LUBBOCK — Ted Brown broke a Pampa High School record while capturing first place in the 500 yard freestyle in Harvester swim team action Saturday in the finals of the Texas Tech Invitational Meet.

Brown, the only Harvester to make the finals, finished the freestyle event in 4:59.3. The Pampa junior also grabbed sixth place in the 200 yard individual medley with a time of 2:14.8.

Julie Harkrader also set a Pampa High record by finishing the 100 yard backstroke in 1:22.6. She did not win the event, however.

The Pampa girls' medley relay team of Vicki Carter, Gay Carter, Marita Carter and Brenda Hoskins placed first in consolation.

Three hundred and sixty-six from 25 schools attended the Lubbock meet.

Pampa will next compete Feb. 7-8 in Amarillo.

Lefors Holds Grid Banquet

LEFORS — Barney Sawyer, Bobby Dunn, Lynn Allison and Kim Squiers were named football captains, highlighting the Lefors football banquet Saturday night in the high school cafeteria.

The four seniors had been voted on by the players some time ago, but the announcement was not made until Saturday night.

Mrs. Joyce Walberg and daughters, Zindi and Donna provided the entertainment at the banquet. Rick Wadley, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Lefors, gave the invocation, and Bob Roy Klein, sophomore player, brought the benediction.

Head coach Leonard Tolbert introduced the 1974 Pirates, who lost in the Class B state semifinals to Celina.

The banquet was sponsored by the Mothers' Club.

Groups Hopes To Get Blasphemers Out Of Arts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christ is portrayed as a sex fiend and a thug. Leering priests are shown trying to seduce altar boys. The Trinity is compared to three perverted sex acts. And Andrew McCauley is fighting mad. As far as I could see, public blasphemy — in plays, magazines and nightclub acts — was only sporadic until a couple of years ago, the balding, conservatively dressed lawyer said. Now, it's an epidemic. Last June, he founded a group called Citizens Against Sacrilege in the Media. Its aim: To put the blasphemers out of business.

"I think we have a better chance than you might think," said McCauley, who works for the Manhattan law firm of McLaughlin and Lawlor. "Most states have antiblasphemy statutes on the books, and the courts have upheld them. Like obscenity, blasphemy is considered an abuse of free speech."

For example, he said: —A statue of Mary is "unbelievably desecrated" in the movie "The Exorcist." —A fictional cab driver in a magazine article says a priest "must be pimping for Cardinal Spellman." —The face of Christ crowned with thorns appeared in all three major New York City newspapers as an advertisement for a pornographic film. —Christ, priests, the saints, the Trinity and other sacred figures are alluded to in a "grossly sexual" way. "Christianity is getting the cobalt treatment of contempt and ridicule and scorn so that every last cell of faith is being destroyed," McCauley said.

In his view, pornographers have resorted to blasphemy because even kinky sex has lost its appeal and "they need something new to jab the jaded nerve endings of their customers."

Moreover, he said, the United States has entered a "post-Christian era and Christianity has become a bone in the throat to the neopagans."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JAN 14
Your birthday today in retrospect, this will seem to be a year of pioneering and modest beginnings for a whole new way of life. But now, you're most concerned with getting from one day to the next and experience constant personal effort, encouragement, incidents of triumph, success. Today's natives believe in humanity, the future and generally act on principle.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: A holiday mood prevades even the duller routine and you find it easier to get things done. Mechanical repairs are favored. You may be able to cash in on hobbies.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Speculative details crop up in all enterprises. You have something especially good working for you behind the scenes. Be willing to do your share in group activities.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Your experience deepens with little outward show. There's much to learn and many people explaining what they know or think. Come to your own conclusions. You needn't say much.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: You attract confidential information and show reliability in dealing with it. A long-pending negotiation approaches finality.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Easy talk circulates around everything except what should be thoroughly discussed: money, budgets, thrift. Make purchases for your home where details are in order.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Sudden intuition helps avert a potential problem or solve one that has baffled you. Use no one else's name for any project, take the credit or blame yourself.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Spread the news, share your good fortune and cheer everyone up! Express yourself in romantic terms; send tokens of your affection if you can't be there in person.

Unfortunately, he said, the laws are rarely enforced. The district attorneys are reluctant to prosecute because they think they have more important things to do. We want to convince them otherwise.

A Broadway production called "Good Evening," in which two actors joke about the Holy Spirit making advances on the Virgin Mary was, he said, "the catalyst that got the organization going."

Since then, according to McCauley, "the floodgates have opened."

Her attorney filed suit last week seeking to force the TRC to sponsor the girl's care at the hospital. The suit claimed the hospital said the family would have to pay the cost or take Debra out.

Lias said the hospital agreed to continue her care until the appeal is settled.

"We never told her that she would have to pay or go," Lias said. "We have stabilized her physical condition somewhat and given her some occupational therapy. We also have outlined a maintenance program that she can continue outside the hospital, and we need her bed for another deserving patient."

FOR MS-VICTIM Stepfather Trying To Get Treatment

HOUSTON (UPI) — Debra Higgins, 23, has multiple sclerosis. She is almost blind and unable to walk unaided. Doctors say she cannot benefit from further hospitalization and should be discharged but her stepfather refuses to give up.

James Higgins filed suit to try to force the Texas Institution for Rehabilitation and Research to continue to treat Debra in the hospital.

"My money's gone. But I've got a lot of fighting left to do for Debra. Somehow I must take care of her for the rest of her life," said Higgins.

Higgins said he can no longer afford the $100-a-day bills at the private hospital.

James M. Lias, associate director of the Texas Institution for Rehabilitation and Research, said during the weekend Debra's attending physician recommended her discharge because she cannot benefit from further hospitalization.

Debra was stricken with the disease at 17 in her hometown of Reynoldsburg, Ohio. Higgins sold his business and the family home and brought Debra to John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, Tex., almost five years ago.

Later she became an outpatient of the Texas Institution for Rehabilitation and Research, but medical complications caused her hospitalization there again in November.

The $60,000 Higgins brought with him is gone and the family needs assistance to continue her care.

The Texas Rehabilitation Commission, a state agency, rejected a request for aid for vocational rehabilitation.

Icy Chill Lingers Over Midsection

United Press International
An icy chill lingered over the nation's snow-clogged midsection today as a raging winter storm which left more than a score of persons dead in a two-day Midwest rampage moved on to torment the Southland.

Tornadoes raked Georgia and Florida, adding to the death toll.

At least 29 persons died in the weekend one-two punch of blizzards and tornadoes.

One twister roared through Panama City, Fla., ripping through a row of house trailers and homes and leaving a 1-week-old girl dead and three other persons injured. The funnel cloud damaged several house trailers and homes, downed power lines and overturned a two-ton truck.

Other tornadoes skipped across nine southwestern Georgia counties, injuring six persons and causing considerable damage.

The snowstorm which battered the Midwest during the weekend, piling up 10-foot snowdrifts swept across the South and the Ohio Valley Sunday and early today, dumping a five-inch blanket of snow from Texas to Mississippi and piling up eight to nine inches of snow in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Snow swirled over the Appalachians early today and heavy snow warnings were posted for a 200-mile-wide area from Tennessee to southern Vermont.

Travelers' warnings were posted from southern Indiana through most of Tennessee and for portions of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana.

Three persons were killed Sunday when a single-engine private plane crashed near Paintsville, Ky., during a snowstorm. The plane was en route from Augusta, Ga., to Springfield, Ohio.

The bodies of two men were found in Iowa farm fields Sunday — victims of the wild storm and plummeting temperatures. One died while apparently attempting to walk from his stranded car to a farmhouse near Lohrville. The other was a snowmobiler who apparently became lost while helping stranded motorists and died of exposure. Iowa's toll of storm-related deaths stood at 10.

The bodies of a mother and her 7-year-old son were found near their snowmobile just outside of Willmar, Minn., bringing Minnesota's storm death toll to six.

Five storm-related deaths

From the start, such an accurate aiming was achieved that the two participants were only three to five kilometers apart, Tass said. A kilometer is about five-eighths of a mile.

A subsequent attempt to link Soyuz 15 to Salyut 3 last August failed and the cosmonauts had to be brought down in a hazardous nighttime landing.

Officials said the current flight is not connected with a planned space linkup next July between Soviet Soyuz and American Apollo spacecrafts.

were reported in the Omaha, Neb., area and two were reported in Michigan.

The mercury plummeted to two above zero in Chicago early Sunday and brisk winds pushed the wind chill factor to around 35 below zero. One man died of exposure. His body was found lying on a near Southwest Side street.

Temperatures were below zero in much of the upper Midwest early Sunday and the cold wave continued early today as subzero weather gripped portions of the northern Plains and upper Mississippi Valley and temperatures were well below freezing as far south as central Texas.

Comos Begin Work Abroad Space Station

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two cosmonauts began a hard day's work aboard a three-room, 20-ton space laboratory today, but took time out to marvel as the rays of the sun bathed the Soviet Union's snow-white orbital station.

The 43-year-old cosmonauts — Lt. Col. Alexei Gubarev, the commander, and civilian engineer — docked their Soyuz 17 spacecraft Sunday with the orbiting Salyut 4 laboratory.

"A strenuous working day lies ahead," the official news agency Tass said after the spacemen conducted initial experiments, ate supper and went to sleep.

The cosmonauts, both on their first trips in space, took off Saturday from the Baikonur Space Center in Central Asia and boarded the orbiting lab 33 hours later.

"The cosmonauts accomplished the operation brilliantly," Tass said in describing the docking.

There was no indication how long the cosmonauts would stay aboard the space station, which was fired into orbit on Dec. 26.

The cosmonauts marveled at their first encounter with space.

"A fantastic sight," Gubarev said as the Soyuz spaceship maneuvered the last 100 yards to a linkup with the Salyut lab. The rays of an orbital dawn bathed the white lab.

Tass said the cosmonauts performed the tricky docking out of radio contact with ground controllers. It said their radio went dead just before the linkup, but sprang to life again on the next orbit.

From the start, such an accurate aiming was achieved that the two participants were only three to five kilometers apart, Tass said. A kilometer is about five-eighths of a mile.

It was the first successful Soviet docking since the Soyuz 14 spaceship linked up with the Salyut 3 laboratory last July on a 16-day space mission.

A subsequent attempt to link Soyuz 15 to Salyut 3 last August failed and the cosmonauts had to be brought down in a hazardous nighttime landing.

Officials said the current flight is not connected with a planned space linkup next July between Soviet Soyuz and American Apollo spacecrafts.

The Almanac

United Press International
Today is Monday, Jan. 13, the 13th day of 1975 with 352 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Horatio Alger, author of "rags-to-riches" stories, was born Jan. 13, 1834. This is American actor Robert Stack's 56th birthday.

On this day in history: In 1864, famed composer Stephen Foster died in a New York hospital, three days after he had been found ill and almost penniless in a hotel room.

A SAVINGS ACCOUNT THE BEST INFLATION FIGHTER

A savings account at Panhandle Savings continues to be the best hedge against inflation. The last seven years show very few months an investor could have pulled his original investment in stocks or bonds without suffering a loss. But the Panhandle Savings investor received the highest accrued dividend allowed by law, and his money was insured safe by the federal government. Savings accounts at Panhandle Savings are now insured up to $40,000 and plans are available with dividends up to 7-3/4%. Proof once again that your best hedge against inflation is a savings account at Panhandle Savings and Loan.

TV MAILBAG

'Star Trek' fans want show back

By RICK ROBERTS
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:
Q. I would like to know if NBC is considering a comeback of my favorite show, "Star Trek." The show is still strong today even after five years of syndication. I read that the entire cast is willing to return, if the show will be under the guidance of creator Gene Roddenberry. Surely, this must impress the NBC network. — F.C., Oromocto, N.B., Canada.

A. Sorry, but NBC officials say they have no plans to bring "Star Trek" back on television. Also, they say they have not heard of any of the former cast members being willing to come back if it should ever be started again.

There is an animated version of the series which appears on weekends. It looks like that will have to be enough for hardcore "Star Trek" fans.

The series has been somewhat unique in that it was one of the few to have such a loyal audience. "Star Trek" fan clubs have been organized, and every so often they mount letter-writing campaigns in an attempt to get the show back on the air.

Q. Will Cher Bono be returning to television with her own show? — L.R., Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Cher will have her own series on the CBS network beginning Feb. 16.

Her show will begin on a regular basis one week after she starts in a special.

The special will be her first solo appearance on television.

Appearing with her on the special will be Elton John, Bette Midler and Flip Wilson.

The show will be aired from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Sundays in most parts of the country. It will replace "Apple's Way."

Producer of Cher's variety show will be George Schlatter, who was the creator and producer of "Laugh-In."

Q. I heard that Bob Crane will be returning to television in a new series. Is that true? — J.M., San Francisco, Calif.

A. Crane, who starred in "Hogan's Heroes" for several seasons will be returning to television next September in a half-hour situation comedy.

The show, originally entitled "Second Start," will be called "The Bob Crane Show."

In it, Crane will portray an insurance executive who decides to start a new career and enters medical school.

Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies. Inquiries should be addressed to Rick Roberts, T.V. Mailbag, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

QUEEN CITY FARE

CINCINNATI (UI) — The Cincinnati Opera, the nation's second oldest, has announced a June 18-July 26 season of six productions, including Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," the first Wagnerian presentation by the company since 1961. The 55th season's other fare includes "Faust," "Il Trovatore," "The Merry Widow," "Turandot," and "Trovatore."
