GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The Soviet delegation to nuclear arms talks with the United States arrived at the American mission today for the first in-depth negotiations in 15 months.

The Soviet delegation, headed by Victor P. Karpov, was met by the American delegation chief, Max M. Kampelman. Kampelman shook Karpov's hand and said "Welcome to our mission."

As he and his two fellow negotiators arrived, Karpov was asked by a reporter if he had received any new instructions from the new Kremlin chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev. Karpov replied "Not yet."

Then the two delegations went to penthouse offices of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, an eight story building, where today's talks were being held.

U.S. officials said the first meeting of the delegation heads Tuesday made a good start, and they predicted a comprehensive discussion of issues during their first in-depth session today.

"The president says this is a new opportunity for progress, and we are going to take that approach both substantively and psychologically," Joseph Lehman, spokesman for the U.S. delegates, said Wednesday.

The Americans hope "to get down to earnest business right away," he said. Lehman predicted a "full and lively dialogue" on the topics of space weapons, and strategic and medium-range nuclear weapons.

The presence of three Soviet negotiators, Karpov, Yuli Kvitsinsky and Alexei Obukhov, is in line with the formula adopted in January to have the two types of offensive missiles as well as defensive systems considered separately.

Meanwhile in Washington, the Reagan administration on Wednesday accused the Soviets of continuing a "vigorous" buildup of triple-warhead SS-20 missiles — one of the key weapons U.S. negotiators are trying to limit at the talks.

There are now 414 SS-20s in the Soviet Union, an 18-rocket increase since Jan. 9 and a hike of 36 since Oct. 16, the State Department said.

During a 15-month hiatus in U.S.-Soviet arms control talks, "they embarked on a vigorous construction program of SS-20 bases, which continues today," the department said. "They have had more new bases under simultaneous construction than we have ever witnessed. We have seen a steady growth of Soviet deployments over the last year."

At Tuesday's opening session, only Karpov participated. All three U.S. negotiators, Max Kampelman, John Tower and Maynard Glitman, attended.

But Lehman said, "I wouldn't place too much emphasis on superlatives." He said he did not know (See TALKS, Page 2)

TRLA and LSC

Agencies to discuss investigation

While the Legal Services Corporation seems to be all set to continue with its investigation of the Hereford office of Texas Rural Legal Aid, the tenor of the probe could be affected by a meeting planned for this afternoon by officials from both agencies.

TRLA's Executive Director David Hall, contacted Wednesday at his Weslaco office, said he is not concerned about the investigation itself as much as how LSC intends to carry it out.

"I'm not worried about a proper sort of investigation," he stressed. "It's the one that took place before that bothered me."

Hall referred to a four-day visit to Hereford last November by LSC investigator Wendell Wylie, who published the results of his interviews with local residents in a 10-page report often critical of TRLA.

Congressman Larry Combest announced Tuesday that LSC's Office of Compliance and Review will send five persons, including Wylie, to Hereford next week to continue the investigation and attempt to verify complaints made to Wylie last fall. The team will include two auditors who intend to go over fiscal records at the local office.

Hall said LSC has asked him to transport records from the Weslaco office to Hereford for the audit, but said "I don't think they understand what that would entail."

Hall said TRLA has hired a Washington, D.C. attorney to represent its interests as the probe continues.

"We're going to talk about what is the appropriate scope of an investigation," Hall said of today's meeting.

The OCR's acting director, Victor Fortuno, said Wednesday he did not know what Hall has in mind but OCR was open to the idea of a meeting.

LSC initiated the investigation in response to petitions signed by some 3,000 local residents who claimed TRLA was not doing the job it was put here to do.

Iran, Iraq claim attacks on two capital cities

By The Associated Press

Iran said it hit the Iraqi capital of Baghdad with a missile early today, and witnesses in downtown Baghdad said an explosion demolished most of the 12-story main branch of the government-owned Rafidan Bank.

Reporters were barred from the area.

After Iran's attack, the official Islamic Republic News Agency of Iran said Iraqi warplanes fired missiles into Iran's capital Tehran and the northeastern city of Tabriz, killing 17 people.

An Iraqi spokesman confirmed the air raids on the two cities, and said a ship headed for Iranian ports had been attacked in the Persian Gulf.

Iraq, at war with Iran since September 1980, did not comment on Iran's claim that it attacked Baghdad.

No official information was available on the cause of the explosion. Reporters were prevented from reaching the bank by armed security officials.

board. He said the larger board reduces by half the number of constituents each member represents.

Pennington's proposal offers a "major overhaul" of the 1984 education reform package.

In addition to returning the state board to an elected panel in 1986, Pennington's bill calls for eliminating prekindergarten programs for 4-year-olds, including school librarians in the career ladder program and eliminating competency testing for teachers certified prior to the passage of the last summer's reform law.

The bill also would eliminate competency testing for specialists, such as nurses, who are subject to certification in their individual fields and would provide an across-the-board pay raise for teachers.

No one testifying favored an appointed board over an elected board.

REC meeting features U.S. Rep. de la Garza

U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza will be the featured speaker Saturday evening when Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative holds its annual meeting at the Bull Barn.

The meeting begins at 5 p.m. with a fish and chicken dinner, according to A.W. Anthony Jr., chairman of the co-op board. Entertainment will feature James Storie and Gentle Country. Also highlighting the event will be drawings for door prizes and give-aways totaling more than $1,000.

Members will elect three directors during the business meeting and $400,000 in capital credits will be returned to members. Director candidates are: Position 1—Clark Andrews and Kenneth Frye; position 2—Donald Wright and Don Richardson; position 3—Clarence Martin and Gilbert Kaltwasser.

Rep. de la Garza, chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, is a 20-year veteran of Congress from Texas' 15th District. During his House service, de la Garza's record has included active promotion of legislation to protect and improve the farm and rural economy through crop stabilization programs, expanded export trade, rural development programs, soil conservation, and agricultural credit.

Paul Wesslynd of the Rural Electric News Service says, "When de la Garza speaks, his listeners hear that the fate of the world depends on agriculture and that it is the government's business to make sure the people on the farm can continue to do their work."

Bill proposes election of state board

AUSTIN (AP) — Members of the State Board of Education should be elected in 1986 even though current law dictates otherwise, a group of lawmakers say.

Bills proposed Wednesday to the House Public Education Committee would make the education board an elected panel again.

The measures were proposed by Reps. Randy Pennington, R-Houston; Kelly Godwin, R-Odessa; Gene Green, D-Houston; Milton Fox, R-Houston; and Talmadge Heflin, R-Houston.

The 15-member board was appointed by Gov. Mark White as part of an education reform package passed last summer. The board is supposed to serve until November 1986 at which time an elected board will be chosen.

"Last year we didn't provide for an interim board," Green said.

Fox and Heflin also propose to have the board elected and have the election in April 1986 instead of November 1988.

"The election would provide the State Board of Education to be picked on a non-partisan basis and elected by plurality rather than majority election system," Fox said.

Candidate forum set

Candidates for the April 6 elections have been invited to air their views during a political forum planned for March 28.

The legislative affairs committee of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce, headed this year by Walcott School Superintendent Eddie Derr, will host the forum at 7 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center Banquet Room.

Fox and Heflin also want April local school board elections so all school elections are held on the same day.

"The thrust of this bill gives the right of people to express their views," Fox said.

Godwin's bill aims to return the state board to a 27-member elected

Candidates for the Hereford mayor and city commission races, Hereford school board and Deaf Smith County Hospital District board are expected to attend.

All candidates will be given the opportunity to make short statements and will be asked questions pertaining to their races by a panel composed of members of the committee.

Failing grades cause ineligibility

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin school officials report nearly 21 percent of students in major spring sports in the nine district high schools are ineligible because of failing grades, the Austin American-Statesman said today.

The American-Statesman said an Austin High School debate club lost six members and had to drop a team from a statewide tournament last weekend.

A concert band at Anderson High School lost 30 percent of the musicians.

At least a dozen agriculture students at Lanier High School may not be able to show animals in the county livestock show.

At Travis High School five of the 25 girls competing to be cheerleaders next year were disqualified.

The 1984 Legislature passed a new law saying students may not take part in sports or other extracurricular activities if they fail in at least one course. The same Legislature also raised the minimum passing grade from 60 to 70.

Nearly 30-families evacuated

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) — Irritating sulfur fumes from a burning warehouse forced the evacuation of about 30 Titus County families and sent five firefighters to the hospital Wednesday, officials said.

The fire began just after midnight, was put out by mid-morning, rekindled and burned until late Wednesday afternoon at International Chemicals Inc., about four miles west of here, Fire Chief Larry McRae said.

Firefighter Billy Joe Brown, 32, fell into liquid sulfur and was in stable condition at Titus County Memorial Hospital with second- and third-degree burns on his arms and legs, according to a hospital spokesman.

The other four were not seriously injured.

The warehouse held stockpiles of sulfur that is ground for industrial use, said Bob Aycock, the plant's executive director. He added that the fumes were irritating but not hazardous.

Titus County Sheriff John Moss said deputies evacuated about 30 families north of the plant in the West Hope and Marshall Springs communities. They later returned to their homes.

One of suspects in custody

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — One of two suspects charged with capital murder in the execution-style shootings of five Mexican nationals is in jail without bond today, authorities say.

Rudy Hernandez, 35, offered no resistance when officers swarmed into a mobile home in Atascosa County, just south of San Antonio, at about 7 p.m. Wednesday, city police Sgt. Perry Smith said.

Judge Joe Garza ordered Hernandez held without bond, and he was taken to the Comal County jail from San Antonio, Smith said.

Smith said authorities were acting on a tip when they made the arrest and said "we hoping for another one" that will lead them to 19-year-old Jesse Garibay.

Garibay, who was still at large Wednesday night, and Hernandez are charged with capital murder in last week's shootings. One man, Victor Serrano, died in the incident and four others were wounded.

Serrano died last Thursday after he and his companions were robbed and shot on an isolated roadway near Bulverde in Central Texas by two men who picked them up in San Antonio. The men promised the five a ride to Denton, investigators said.

Campaign to convey warning

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Friends of slain drug agent Enrique S. Camarena say they want billboards along the Texas-Mexico border to warn tourists not to travel to Guadalajara, where Camarena was abducted last month.

About 25 people, who have formed the Friends of Enrique S. Camarena committee, plan to solicit financial support in El Paso, Tijuana, Calif., Nogales, Ariz., and McAllen, Texas, to erect billboards in those cities, a spokesman said.

Fernando Sanga, a retired farmer who lives in Brawley, Calif., told the El Paso Times in a telephone interview Wednesday that, as a group member, he hopes to convince El Pasoans to contribute money for a billboard in the West Texas city.

He said the billboards are intended to send a message to authorities in Washington, D.C., and Mexico to hasten the investigation of Camarena's killers.

Officials said about $300 has been raised to pay for the first billboard, put up this week in Camarena's hometown of Calexico, Calif.

Medical center gets approval

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — A doctor at Hershey Medical Center today received federal approval to use an artificial heart that he and others developed as a means to keep patients alive until a donor heart can be obtained, a spokesman said.

Dr. William F. Pierce is now the second doctor in the country with U.S. Food and Drug Administration approval to use an artificial heart, said Carl Andrews, the spokesman.

Andrews said there are currently no potential patients for the heart.

The air-driven device, nicknamed the Penn State Heart, is the result of 15 years of work by Pierce and his associates, Andrews said.

Pierce sought FDA approval on Dec. 12. The FDA subsequently responded with further questions to the application. The doctor answered those questions, leading to today's approval.

Denial won't affect talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief U.S. adviser on the arms control talks with the Soviet Union disagrees with claims by the Reagan administration that a Congressional vote against additional MX missiles would have an immediate impact on the Geneva negotiations.

Paul Nitze said Wednesday that if the House or Senate deny the administration $1.5 billion for 21 of the intercontinental missiles over the next few weeks, "I am not sure it would make an immediate and dramatic difference."

Testifying before a House Armed Services subcommittee, he said, "It is not correct to say we would see an immediate, direct correlation."

Seated next to Nitze was Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who, along with Reagan and other top administration officials, has been saying for weeks that a congressional vote at this time against the MX would weaken the U.S. bargaining position in Geneva, Switzerland.

On Wednesday, Weinberger said if Congress refuses to fund the controversial missile, the Soviet Union "will have won the negotiation before it starts."

Also, other foreign leaders

Gorbachev meets Bush today

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev, wearing the mantle of Kremlin statesman, held a second day of talks with world leaders today after his first meeting with a top U.S. official, Vice President George Bush.

Bush and Gorbachev met for an hour and 25 minutes Wednesday, and the vice president said afterward: "If there was ever a time when we could move forward with progress in the last few years, I'd say that this is a good time for that."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain, who met Gorbachev in Britain in December, said after her 55-minute meeting she found him "anxious" for success in the superpower arms negotiations in Geneva.

President Francois Mitterrand of France, who spent 45 minutes with Gorbachev, echoed the sentiments of some other Western leaders by cautioning against expecting "profound modifications of policy."

Gorbachev, named Communist Party chief following the death of Konstantin U. Chernenko, received West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Finnish President Mauno Koivisto in the Kremlin today, and was to meet later with Prime Minister Brian Mulroney of Canada.

The official news agency Tass said Kohl and the new Soviet leader discussed "key issues of Soviet-West German relations, the situation in Europe and in the world."

At age 54 the youngest man to assume Kremlin power in six decades, Gorbachev presided over Chernenko's Red Square funeral Wednesday. He then met with Bush, Mrs. Thatcher, Mitterrand and a host of other world leaders who had come to Moscow to pay their respects to Chernenko.

The session with visiting heads of state and government were the latest signs of a swift transition that began publicly hours after the announcement of Chernenko's death Monday with the proclamation that Gorbachev had been selected to succeed him as Communist Party leader.

The Soviet Union had remained in official mourning for Chernenko until his burial by the Kremlin wall. But life swiftly returned to normal afterward. GUM, the giant department store on Red Square, reopened 20 minutes after the funeral ended.

By nightfall, a giant portrait of Chernenko on the House of Unions had been removed. Red and black flags that had fluttered on city buildings for two days were also gone.

Bush, who reportedly carried an invitation from President Reagan to a summit, told reporters Reagan is ready to meet with Gorbachev whenever the Soviet leadership is ready.

In its report on the BGorbachev meeting, Tass made no mention of a summit, but said Gorbachev "reiterated the Soviet Union's readiness, provided the U.S. side was also ready, to work in practice to improve" Soviet-American relations.

Texas, Oklahoma wage boundary battle

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A lawyer says that whether Texas and Oklahoma officials can straighten out the long-standing quarrel over exactly where their mutual boundary is located depends on how much money is available in the battle.

The Texas attorney general's office says the state should ask the U.S. Supreme Court to help resolve the dispute.

The court should "finally determine, identify and mark the entire boundary between Texas and Oklahoma," according to a position paper on the dispute from the attorney general's office.

But Milton Richardson, an assistant state attorney general, told the Wichita Falls Times that a resolution depends on money for court costs and crews to survey and mark the state line. He said the price tag could be as high as $7 million.

Mapping the 1,000-mile boundary, could take several years.

"We need an appropriation for it," said Richardson. "We don't have any funds for it at present. The Legislature could put something in."

State Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, says he will work to put the allocation in the appropriations bill for the new state budget. Farabee is a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which could aid the effort.

But Farabee warned that the state's tight budget also may squeeze out any extra funds for the boundary battle.

"I don't know what the budget can bear," said a Farabee aide.

Officials said the state boundary issue has been settled — and unsettled — many times since the Treaty of 1819 when Secretary of State James Madison insisted the Sabine, Arkansas and Red rivers be part of the United States.

Despite increase of fatalities

Texas mileage death rate falls

AUSTIN — The mileage death rate in Texas continued to fall in 1984 despite an increase in traffic fatalities, according to figures released by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"The mileage death rate in 1984 declined by three percent to 2.9 deaths per hundred million miles traveled," said Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director. "This is the lowest rate recorded in Texas history. However, we also had a 2.4 percent increase in the actual number of persons killed in traffic crashes last year."

The statewide death toll from motor vehicle accidents in 1984 totaled 3,193 compared to 3,823 in 1983 mileage death rate was three fatalities per hundred million miles traveled.

"The fact that we had a six percent increase in the number of miles driven coupled with a three percent decrease in the mileage death rate indicates that we are still making progress in traffic safety," Adams said.

"Compared to the record death toll of 4,701 in 1981, we've had a saving of over 2,000 lives in the last three years," he pointed out. "However, the growth of our state in the coming years will lead to continued increases in the number of miles being driven, licensed drivers and vehicles on our roads. In light of this potential for additional fatalities, we must take all possible steps to reduce this staggering toll on our roadways."

DPS statistics indicate that at least 26.8 percent (1,049) of the 1984 traffic fatalities involved drunken driving.

"We believe that DWI is a far greater contributor to fatalities than what is indicated by these figures," Adams pointed out. "We are working to improve the reporting system to get a more accurate measure."

Adams said the new DWI law is having an impact on the drunken driving problem.

"It will take a few years to gauge the full impact of the statute, but the data from cases filed by Highway Patrol officers indicate that these offenders are being handled more effectively by the criminal justice system," he said.

Statewide DWI arrests in 1984 totaled 132,606 compared to 149,621 for the previous year.

More than 97 percent of the persons killed in passenger vehicles last year were not wearing seat belts when the crashes occurred. More than three out of four motorcyclists killed were not wearing helmets when the accidents occurred.

TALKS

when the negotiations would split into three parts, but said the step probably would be taken in the "early stages" of the negotiations.

Soviet strategy is to stress the "inter-relationship" among the three issues, enabling them to block progress on reduction of offensive weapons, the primary U.S. goal, if they are unable to stop President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, the so-called "Star Wars" program of research into a space-based anti-missile system.

The negotiations are off-limits to the public as well as members of Congress. On Tuesday, Karpov and Kampelman agreed to be bound by a confidentiality rule, and as a result they and others negotiators will not discuss the details of the talks.

SENATE

would "touch almost every element of government," cutting nearly $300 billion from spending over three years and reducing the deficit by roughly half by 1988 — to just over $100 billion.

Eleven of the committee's 12 Republicans voted for the plan. Republican Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa, who wants even deeper cuts, voted "present."

Of the panel's 10 Democrats, nine voted against the plan and one — James Exon of Nebraska — voted present.

As Domenici outlived it to the committee, the plan would:

—Cut an additional $400 million from the $21.1 billion reduction in Reagan's military buildup already approved by the committee.

—Embrace Reagan's proposals to terminate the Economic Development Administration, the Appalachian Regional Commission and the rural housing program.

—Freeze for one year Medicare payments to hospitals and doctors while not raising Medicare costs to some patients, as Reagan had proposed.

—Chop the federal Amtrak subsidy from $700 million a year to $400 million and reduce activities of the Small Business Administration by two thirds — two programs Reagan wanted to eliminate completely.

—Not cut farm subsidies as the president had requested.

—Cut mass transit grants by 25 percent and Urban Development Action Grants by 20 percent.

—Cut $200 million from the college student loan program.

Joggers reap physical, emotional rewards

By LISA BALL
Staff Writer

Many people are letting time run out on them because they are not physically fit. Instead, they should be using their time to run.

Running has several advantages over other sports, according to William J. Bowerman and Dr. W.E. Harris in their book "Jogging." The authors point out that jogging is free and that no special equipment nor facilities are needed. An individual can jog anywhere.

Jogging also takes little time. The two men stated that for beginning joggers, jogging takes only 30 minutes three days a week, or 90 minutes out of 10,080 minutes a week.

Physiologically, jogging improves the heart, lungs and circulatory system by gradually expanding their capacity to handle stress. Jogging also may reduce the amount of fat and increase the amount of muscle as well as redistribute weight and decrease the waistline.

"Jogging helps the self-image, too," said Martha Emerson, girls physical education coordinator at Hereford High School. "Jogging also improves overall fitness."

Emerson stressed that doctors need to help individuals work out an exercise program.

"If you've never run, you need to start gradually, maybe even walking, and increase the distance every day," she said. "Most importantly, though, you first need to see your doctor."

After deciding to start, the jogger must find the best place to run. Grassy areas are the most advantageous because the grass has some "spring" in it that makes it easier on the joints of the ankle and knee.

"It's the pounding on the hard surfaces that jars the knees, ankles and shins," Emerson noted. "In Hereford, Veterans' Memorial Park is a pretty good place to run. The track (inside Whiteface Stadium) is okay if it's not overused. It gets better in the summer when it is softer."

Clothes are an important aspect of jogging as they help to regulate the body temperature. In his book, "Running A to Z," Joe Henderson describes the 20-degree rule.

"The rule states that the temperature automatically climbs by 20 degrees during a run," he stated. "A nice 70-degree day suddenly feels like a steamy 90; a chilling 30 becomes a pleasant 50."

"The right clothes for running are the ones that seem too skimpy while you stand still. Start dressing each day with a foundation of socks, shoes and shorts. The wardrobe builds from there."

James F. Fixx suggests in "The Complete Book of Running" that joggers should wear cotton or wool socks if they must wear any. He continues by saying that nylon shorts are best in hot weather because they are light and quickly dry when wet. Cotton shorts will provide a touch of warmth.

Fixx also stressed that all running clothes should be thoroughly washed often. Dirty, salt-soaked clothes will chafe the skin, he said.

Perhaps the most important piece of equipment the jogger needs is jogging shoes.

"You need good running shoes with good support and cushion," Emerson said. "It pays to have good shoes if you're going to run a lot. You're only asking for problems if you let the shoes wear out."

Fixx points out that each shoe lands on the ground some 800 times a mile. In a 10-mile run, that is 8,000 times. If that is multiplied by the weight of a 150-pound person, the total impact is 600 tons for each foot during every 10-mile workout.

Fixx stated that a running shoe should be flexible at the ball of the foot. A stable heel also is important.

One rule of thumb he suggests when buying running shoes is to purchase shoes that are snugger than street shoes, but that do not pinch or cramp the toes nor let the foot slide forward so that the toes jam against the front.

Before taking off for an afternoon jog, the individual needs to take time to warm up. During a warm up, the circulation is stimulated and the body temperature rises, thus increasing the efficiency of muscle contraction.

The time of day to run also is an important factor to consider for health reasons and personal safety.

Emerson described early morning and late afternoon when the wind is less as a good time to jog. She also said that it is best to avoid running when it is cold since cold air is not healthy to breathe through the mouth.

In the summer, however, a different problem arises.

Summer running can produce one of the most dangerous illnesses — heat stroke.

"Because heat does not leave the body as easily when the surrounding air is hot, the body temperature increases, and there is the possibility — especially if you persist in running hard — that it will rise to the danger point, 104 degrees F. or so," Fixx stated.

If the body's thermo-regulatory mechanism is unable to keep the temperature low enough, the runner may suffer from heat cramps, heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

Heat cramps occur in such voluntary muscles as the calf, and are usually the first sign of trouble.

Following heat cramps, heat exhaustion may occur as a result of fluid loss.

"Heat exhaustion acts much like a circuit-breaker," Fixx stated, "usually preventing the third, more serious stage."

This third stage is heat stroke during which the body's temperature is extremely high and the skin is usually hot and dry. In the event of heat stroke, the victim's body temperature must be immediately lowered with cool water or rubbing alcohol or by placing the victim in a tub of cold water.

A few tips given by Fixx to avoid heat problems are drinking water while exercising, dressing lightly in light-colored clothes to reflect the sun and dousing with cold water whenever possible.

Aside from heat difficulties, personal safety is another important consideration in jogging.

"A single woman who jogs the same path everyday is leaving herself open for trouble," Emerson stressed. "It's also safer to have someone with you in case you get hurt, especially if you're jogging in a secluded area."

Emerson also said that individuals need to use common sense to know when to stop.

"Pay attention to your body," she said. "You know your body better than anyone else knows it."

Seat belts save lives

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I survived a three-car crash. Our car was totaled. If we hadn't been wearing seat belts we would have been seriously injured or killed.

With so much being written about seat belts, why do people refuse to buckle up? Please devote some space to this problem.—THE D'S IN STOCKTON, CALIF.

DEAR CAL: A recent issue of Science Digest ran an excellent article on this subject. According to Elizabeth Horton, the writer, a fatal car accident occurs every 10 minutes in the United States, adding up to 22,576 occupant deaths a year. According to the National Safety Council, seat belts could have prevented 9,900 of those deaths. Yet 80 percent of the people refuse to use them.

Why? Because many believe it is safer to be thrown from a car than trapped inside. E. Scott Geller, a behavioral psychologist at Virginia Tech who has been studying seat belt use for six years, says, "WRONG," Geller claims being thrown from a car is 25 times more dangerous than being strapped in.

Another reason for refusing to buckle up: "I'm a careful driver. I won't have an accident." This reasoning discounts the fact that careful drivers are often victimized by terrible drivers. Some excellent drivers end up in hospitals, wheelchairs and cemeteries because they were hit by drivers who were careless or drunk.

Many people don't use seat belts because they are "only going a few blocks." Eighty percent of accidents happen at speeds of less than 25 miles per hour, and 75 percent happen within 25 miles of home.

Even for individuals who are aware of all the above, there is yet another hazard. They simply forget to buckle up. So, here is my message for every driver. It is YOUR responsibility to buckle your seat belt and announce to your passengers, "Buckle up, everybody. This car doesn't move until you do. No one is going to get killed while I'm driving."

Congratulations to New York state, the first to fine drivers and front-seat passengers who fail to buckle up. The fine could cost $50. Illinois and New Jersey followed the Empire State by a few weeks. Now—how about the other 47?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were right to tell that 31-year-old woman that she shouldn't be taking showers and engaging in heavy petty with a 13-year-old youth. However, please consider another aspect.

About 45 years ago, I was a shy, insecure boy troubled by my sexual awareness. I had no special physical or social attributes. A woman 25 years my senior, the mother of a schoolmate, befriended me.

I don't know what the attraction was for her, but she took me first to her heart, and eventually to her bed. During our many afternoons together, I learned generosity, compassion and the importance of caring. I feel I owe her an enormous debt for a lifetime of sexual confidence and a happy and satisfying marriage.

I have no idea where the woman is. (She would be in her 80s by this time.) But it would be wonderful if she read this and knew how grateful I am.—FOND MEMORIES IN ARIZONA

DEAR FOND: Since you gave me no numbers, I can only guess. But I'd like to remind you there's a huge difference between a 19-or 20-year-old man and a lad of 13. I hope "Mrs. Robinson" saw your letter.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers' booklet, "Booze and You—For Teenagers Only." Send 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois.

Health

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Too much zinc

DEAR DR. LAMB — My lips get irritated inside and sore (not broken sores, just sore) and the corners of my mouth become cracked and sore. I read that zinc can heal this. My dentist gave me the Z-Bec vitamin, which helps, but it doesn't have much zinc in it. How much zinc is safe, with no side effects, or does zinc even have side effects?

DEAR READER — It would be helpful to know what your basic disorder really is — whether you are talking about canker sores, dryness or something else. Perhaps you should see your physician, or even a dermatologist.

Zinc is important. Z-Bec contains a number of different vitamins, not just zinc. However, you may need more vitamin A, although too much of that can be harmful, too.

Zinc is essential to appetite, growth and the taste buds' function. For an adult, the recommended daily dietary allowance (RDA) is 15 mg. Most people get that from their diet. Meat, liver, eggs and seafood (particularly oysters) are good sources of zinc. You will get some from whole-grain cereals, but the zinc in these foods may not be well absorbed.

Too much zinc can be harmful. Recent studies show that it can reduce "good" HDL cholesterol, which could increase one's risk of developing fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. Another report showed that 150 mg. twice a day might suppress the immune system, which fights infectious diseases. Smaller amounts don't seem to have this effect. It is generally stated that one should not take more than 15 mg. of zinc supplement a day above what is in one's diet without medical supervision. A Z-Bec tablet contains 22.5 mg. of zinc.

You probably will want to read about the other minerals that are important to your body, so I am sending you The Health Letter 17-6, Nutritional Aspects of Minerals. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a spur on my heel. I have been going to a doctor every week and he uses a vibrator on it. Another doctor put cortisone shots in it, and that didn't seem to help, either. A doctor told me he didn't think surgery was best. What can you tell me about spurs?

DEAR READER — A painful heel is not necessarily caused by a spur. Many people have a spur on the heel and have no pain; others have heel pain and have no spur. Therefore, the presence of a spur and pain does not mean the pain is caused by the spur. That is one reason surgical removal of a bone spur on the heel may not help.

A spur sometimes forms because the bone is injured at that location because the muscle and ligament attachments pull on the bone at that point. These muscles and ligaments stretch from the front of the foot to the heel, like the string on a bow. When you pull on these, they pull on the attachment at the heel.

Often there is an associated inflammation of the tendon and muscle structures, which causes pain. In a way, this is a strain across the arch.

This is corrected by removing the strain. The weight bearing is decreased from front to back over the main arch. This is commonly done by putting in a wedge on the inner part of the foot, to put more weight on the outside of the foot and less across the arch.

One also can get relief by staying off one's feet. When one is not putting weight across the arch, the strain and pain disappears. However, no one wants to spend the rest of his life with his feet up in the air.

Read my comments about spurs in The Health Letter 11-10, Common Foot Problems: What to Do About Them, which I am sending you, and then see if you can find a foot doctor who can help you as it suggests. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What can cause abdominal pain? I have diabetes and I had an ulcer this year, but got rid of it. I weigh 165 and am 5 feet 1. I went to see a specialist and he did an electrocardiogram, and I am to go back for a stress test. He gave me some pills for my heart.

DEAR READER — Anything from the neck to the tailbone can cause abdominal pain. Evidently your doctor is checking to see if your abdominal pain is really caused by your heart. That can happen, and often does. It is always a problem to separate abdominal pain caused by the heart and abdominal pain caused by digestive organs.

Ulcers can cause pain. Some can penetrate into the pancreas and can cause a particularly bad pain. The colon is a frequent source of abdominal pain. The gallbladder, the kidneys and even the spine also can be sources of abdominal pain.

Drunk driving facts given by scholars

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — Many people think it highly important to prevent drunk driving, enforce speed limits and use seat belts.

However, now as many adopt those beliefs into their own behavior and fewer agree about stringent penalties for infractions in those areas.

Those are among some of the findings in a study made by scholars from The University of Texas and Indiana State University-Evansville.

The co-investigators are Dr. Alan Carsrud, an applied psychologist who is a lecturer in the UT Austin Department of Management, and Dr. Joseph A. Palladino, an associate professor of psychology at Indiana State.

In a survey of 20 persons (in Indiana) about their views on traffic safety issues, the study found that 99 percent of the respondents think preventing drunk driving is "very important" or "important."

Yet, the respondents agreed less about how stiff the penalties should be for drunk driving. For a first-time drunk driver when no accident is involved, only 61 percent of the respondents agreed the driver should be fined $250 or more, only 49 percent agreed the DWI offender should be jailed for 48 hours, and only 45 percent agreed an individual's license should be suspended for 90 days or more.

In DWI cases involving accidents, however, higher percentages of respondents approved tougher penalties: 79 percent were for the $250 fine; 76 percent for 48 hours in jail, and 70 percent for license suspension.

Drs. Carsrud and Palladino also found that 93 percent of the respondents deemed it important to enforce auto speed limits, but 58 percent admitted to driving over the 55 mile-per-hour limit on the open highway.

Another area where attitudes and personal behavior didn't jive was in use of seat belts. While 70 percent claimed it important to use seat belts, only 35 percent said they "always" or "frequently" used them. Despite the fact that only a little more than one-third of the respondents used seat belts, those surveyed expressed the belief that 47 percent of highway deaths could be prevented if everyone wore seat belts.

Less than half (45 percent) of the respondents favored automobile manufacturers installing air bags in cars as safety devices.

Answers in the Carsrud-Palladino survey turned up an "it-can't-happen-to-me" attitude, the scholars report.

For example, many of the respondents did not think it very likely persons would be apprehended for speeding. (Only 37 percent thought it likely a speeder would be caught.) Even less likely, in the view of the respondents, was the probability of being arrested for drunk driving. (Only 25 percent thought a person would be arrested for DWI.)

Although the two scholars believe advertising campaigns have made citizens more aware of the seriousness of drunk driving and speeding and of the need to wear seat belts, the fact that persons are not altering their behaviors accordingly will make it hard to get public support for and compliance with heavy penalties, they say.

Nothing that "individual responsibility can only take us so far," Dr. Palladino says that solving the problem of drunk driving cannot be left entirely at the individual level. In his view, the problem should be approached from a larger perspective—mandating passive restraints in cars, making cars that can survive being hit at more than five miles per hour, increasing enforcements (although he says there are "more bars than policemen"), placing uniform limits on "happy hours" and raising the excise tax on alcohol to reduce consumption.

Both scholars point to inconsistencies in governmental policies that, for example, punish persons for drunk driving while not raising alcohol taxes as one means of curbing consumption.

Drs. Palladino and Carsrud suggest that more public service announcements need to inform the public better about how much alcohol it takes to become legally intoxicated. They found the public overestimated the number of drinks one must consume over a period of hours in order to become drunk.

As antidotes to drunken driving, governmental policies aimed at trying to make cars safer would have implications for business, Dr. Carsrud says. Such policies, he notes, would "have an impact on automobile corporations and would affect car buyers by making the prices of cars higher."

An implication for small business owners, on the other hand, would be a policy that makes bar owners responsible for DWI accidents occurring to their patrons, Dr. Carsrud says. Fifty-seven percent of the respondents did not think bar owners should be held legally responsible for the actions of drunk drivers.

NCAA roundup

Sooner coach cautious

By The Associated Press
North Carolina A&T is seeded 16th and last in the Midwest regional but Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs, whose top-seeded Sooners meet the Aggies tonight in the opening round of the NCAA Basketball Tournament, isn't taking them lightly.

Early in the season, the Aggies played mighty Georgetown to within 61-56 and held Patrick Ewing to 11 points.

"I was impressed with the way they played Georgetown so close. Anybody that plays Georgetown to a five-point game gets my attention really quickly," Tubbs said.

Oklahoma-North Carolina A&T will be the third of four games today in Tulsa and it pairs the high-scoring Sooners, ranked fourth nationally, who lead the nation in scoring at better than 91 points a game against a team that grudgingly surrenders an average of 66 points.

"I'm sure they would like to slow things down a bit," Tubbs said. "But we're going to do our best not to let them."

In afternoon games, Ohio State meets Iowa State while eighth-ranked Louisiana Tech faces Pittsburgh. Southern California-Illinois State winds up the four-game slate, one of four scheduled around the country today with four more on tap Friday.

With no shot clock in the NCAA tournament, the Aggies will be able to exploit their experience with a spread offense and a tight zone in an attempt to bottle up Oklahoma All-American Wayman Tisdale, who averages 27 points. North Carolina A&T features a lineup whose tallest player is 6-foot-6 center Claude Williams.

Illinois State Coach Bob Donewald said he is unfamiliar with Southern Cal, which tied for the Pacific-10 Conference title, and posted an overall 19-9 record.

The rest of today's schedule looks like this:

East, at Hartford, Conn. — Georgetown vs. Lehigh, Temple vs. Virginia Tech, Loyola of Chicago vs. Iona, Southern Methodist vs. Old Dominion.

Southeast, at South Bend, Ind. — Kansas vs. Ohio University, Purdue vs. Auburn, North Carolina vs. Middle Tennessee State, Notre Dame vs. Oregon State.

West, at Salt Lake City — St. John's vs. Southern University, Iowa vs. Arkansas, Nevada-Las Vegas vs. San Diego State, Washington vs. Kentucky.

On Friday, the scene shifts to four different locations:

East, at Atlanta — Illinois vs. Northeastern, Georgia vs. Wichita State, Syracuse vs. DePaul, Georgia Tech vs. Mercer.

Good Shepherd hosts spikers event

A charity volleyball tournament for Operation Good Shepherd has been announced for March 23, to be played in the Stanton Junior High School gym.

Sponsored by Wesley United Methodist Church, the tourney will have mixed teams in A and B divisions. Play will be round robin.

Fee is $30 per team, and entries must be received by Monday.

Checks should be made payable to Wesley United Methodist Church and mailed or taken to: Wadna Nall, Route 1-Box 303, Hereford (364-7390); Ann Washington, Route 2-Hwy. 385, Hereford (364-0229); or La Nell Kendrick, 106 Pecan, Hereford (364-8251).

Spectators will be charged 50 cents for the entire tournament.

Southeast, at Dayton, Ohio — LSU vs. Navy, Maryland vs. Miami of Ohio, Michigan vs. Fairleigh Dickinson, Villanova vs. Dayton.

Midwest, at Houston — Memphis State vs. Pennsylvania, Alabama-Birmingham vs. Michigan State, Texas Tech vs. Boston College, Duke vs. Pepperdine.

West, at Albuquerque, N.M. — North Carolina State vs. Nevada-Reno, Tulsa vs. Texas-El Paso, Virginia Commonwealth vs. Marshall, Alabama vs. Arizona.

With the No. 1 seed meeting No. 16, No. 2 facing No. 15, etc. in each region, this is the time for major upsets. San Diego State, virtually unnoticed despite a 23-7 record, hopes to pull one of them against UNLV.

"I hope we have a few more surprises left in us," says Coach Smokey Gaines. "I feel we have a surprise or two left, and wouldn't it be something, though — beating the ninth-ranked team after most people said we wouldn't even be here."

Gaines was one of them. With a team that returned few veterans, the coach picked his own team to finish last in the Western Athletic Conference. Instead, the Aztecs knocked off Texas-El Paso in the championship game last week, gaining an automatic bid to the NCAA's 64-team field.

UNLV has won 26 of 27 games since losing by 36 points to Georgetown on national television, but the Runnin' Rebels barely escaped lowly San Jose State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association tournament.

"I feel we have a good chance to beat them if we play smart," said Leonard Allen, the Aztecs' center. "We compare with them well, and they really didn't have that tough of a schedule. Around campus, I had people coming up and saying, 'Len, you play UNLV, huh? Well, you had a good year, anyway. You had an excellent season. Too bad you have to play UNLV.' Hey, UNLV has to play us, too."

In the East, Virginia Tech was undermanned against Temple. Already without senior point guard Al Young, who underwent arthroscopic surgery last week, Coach Charles Moir apparently has decided to bench senior forward Perry Young and his roommate Tim Lewis, for missing practice on Wednesday. Perry Young is the team's leading scorer, averaging 19 points a game, while Lewis was to have replaced Al Young in the starting lineup.

"If I had to make a decision right now, they wouldn't play at all," Moir said. "They're going to dress, but whether they'll play is another story. They're definitely not going to start."

North Carolina, in the NCAA Tournament play for the 11th consecutive season, had better be wary of Middle Tennessee, according to Coach Dean Smith. The Blue Raiders, 17-13, finished fifth in the Ohio Valley Conference but defeated Youngstown State to win the conference tournament.

"I imagine our players don't really know a lot about Middle Tennessee State," Smith said. "Middle Tennessee is certainly capable, as it proved in its conference tournament last week."

Auburn finished seventh in the Southeastern Conference, then won four games in the postseason tournament, beating Alabama for the title.

"The thing about them is they got beat real bad on some nights, then they would beat that team the next time out," said lame-duck Coach Sonny Smith. "What it sounds like to me is there will be two teams out there that are a lot alike."

"As soon as I saw we were playing Purdue, I thought to myself, 'Sonny, ol' boy, you ain't gonna have any problems getting your players up for the game.' Last year we opened with Richmond and lost, and a lot of the problem was the fact we couldn't get it across to our players Richmond was a good ballclub."

NIT roundup

Huskers win first round

By STEVEN WINE Associated Press Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska's offense was balanced and its defense had Canisius off balance in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

All five Nebraska starters hit double figures in a 79-66 victory Wednesday night, while at the other end of the floor guard Harvey MCoach Moe Iba said. "Harvey really did a great job on Hall, chasing him around."

Hall, Canisius' career scoring leader, was held to 16 points and missed eight of 13 field goal attempts.

"That was our game plan... to put as much pressure on him as I could," Marshall said.

Marshall also scored 14 points for the Huskers, who broke a four-game losing streak and improved their record to 16-13.

The contest was the only NIT game scheduled Wednesday night. Ten games are on tap tonight, with four on Friday night concluding first-round play in the 32-team tournament.

A crowd of 7,443 at the Bob Devaney Sports Center watched center Dave Hoppen celebrate his 21st birthday by scoring 21 points to move into second place on Nebraska's career scoring list. Forward Bill Jackman added 15 points and a career-high 10 rebounds.

At the beginning of baseball eight called balls were required for a walk. That was reduced to six in 1884 and four in 1889.

Nebraska made 14 of 18 free throws in the final 6:10 to pull away from the Golden Griffins, who had reduced a 58-47 deficit to 61-58.

The Cornhuskers hit 33 free throws in 41 attempts. Three Griffins fouled out, including 7-foot center Mike Smrek with 8:33 left.

"We're not used to that physical of a game back on the coast," Canisius Coach Nick Macarchuk said. However, he also indicated he felt the game was called too closely.

"My only concern was that there were two big men out there tonight, and they (the referees) just wouldn't let them play," Macarchuk said.

Smrek scored 14 points and Michael Ray Jackson 10 for Canisius, 20-10. The game was the Golden Griffins' first post-season tournament appearance since 1963.

New Mexico opened NIT play Tuesday night with an 80-67 victory over Texas A&M.

Play continues tonight with Alcorn State, 23-6, at Louisville, 16-16; Virginia, 15-15, at West Virginia, 20-8; Kent State, 17-12, at Cincinnati, 16-13; Wake Forest, 15-13, at South Florida, 17-11; Bradley, 17-12, at Marquette, 18-10; Tennessee, 18-14, at Tennessee Tech, 19-9; Florida, 18-11, at Southwestern Louisiana, 16-13; St. Joseph's, Pa., 18-11, at Missouri, 18-13; Montana, 22-7, at UCLA, 16-12, and Santa Clara, 20-8, at Fresno State, 21-8.

On the Ball

By DENNIS BALL
Sports Editor

Soon, some more boys of summer will be making their debuts in the world of baseball through Little League programs.

And soon, some more boys and girls will be out to get some physical enjoyment from other summer programs. As the 1984-85 school year winds down, students of all ages anticipate the three-month-or-so vacation, some with aspirations of becoming a star in summer athletics.

A nice thing about those star dreams is that the people with those ideas don't have to worry about the no pass-no play rule. Also, more often than not, they don't have to worry whether they lose a ball game — they still can get a free snowcone after the contest regardless of the outcome.

It's nice to be young. But all those things soon will change. There will be conflicts of interests with sports in school. At times, the you've-got-to-win theme will be drilled so hard into athletes' minds that it should make them dizzy.

I had a coach in high school who once ate a live lizard to get the team fired up for a game. Tail first.

All this in front of 15-, 16-, 17- and 18-year olds. When I coached Little League baseball, I faced a coach from another team who made a donkey of himself every time his team took the field. If the Giants (whom the other fellow coached) were behind, he played the game under protest.

And all this in front of 10-, 11- and 12-year olds.

During a junior high football game a couple of years ago just outside of Lubbock, a seventh-grade coach wished to have a conference with an official. Perfectly legitimate, except that while the official was on the sideline the coach's team ran a play.

Penalty: five yards. Then the coach stormed onto the field screaming at the top of his lungs, "You can't penalize me for that!" He was met in the center of the field by the referee who dropped his flag and tagged him for another 15 yards. And that really made him mad.

Ranting and raving like you've never seen before.

All in front of 13- and 14-year olds.

A Little League baseball coach in a town not far west of here wanted to win at all costs. If it meant not playing everybody on his team — which is really the purpose of Little League so everyone can learn the game — that was fine.

At least to him.

Sure, you've got to provide a feeling of "we're behind you all the way" to your team. And that's got to include everyone — coaches, boosters, parents, substitutes.

But it can and should be done in ways other than the above cases, especially in Little League programs.

As summer kicks up in Hereford (Kids, Inc. already has met and is planning programs), remember that the fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders soon will be the sophomores, juniors and seniors involved in high school programs. And soon thereafter, those sophomores, juniors and seniors will be the businessmen and women you'll have to deal with.

Summer programs are where young athletes get a taste of what athletics is about. They'll remember how it tastes for a long time, so think before you act because they'll copy you.

Besides, you probably don't need someone to eat a live lizard to persuade you to buy a new car, insurance or anything else from them.

White says he'd rather leave

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White, still upset over his demotion to being Gary Hogeboom's backup last year, says he would welcome a trade to two other National Football League teams.

"Los Angeles (Rams) or Atlanta would be my choice," White said. "I'm not going to sit on the bench the last three years of my career. I told them that."

White, who grew up in nearby Mesa and was an All-American at Arizona State University in 1972 and 1973, started six games for the Cowboys last year while Hogeboom started the other 10.

The 33-year-old White said the big rap against him remains the fact that he hasn't led the Cowboys to a Super Bowl berth.

Dallas came close in 1981 only to see San Francisco 49ers wide receiver Dwight Clark make a leaping touchdown catch in the final minute to win the NFC championship game that year.

"You know, if Dwight Clark hadn't made that catch, none of this (controversy) would have happened," said White, here visiting relatives while the NFL winter meetings take place.

Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry said he benched White because he "felt it was necessary at the time and I think it helped. Danny was our No. 1 quarterback when the season ended."

Nets fighting for fifth place

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

With a month left in the National Basketball Association season, teams in the middle of the standings, such as the Washington Bullets and New Jersey Nets, are starting to put their games into a playoff context.

Since the team that finishes in sixth place in the Eastern Conference will have to play powerful Boston or Philadelphia in the first round, fifth place is a desirable spot to be.

So when New Jersey defeated the Bullets 114-109 Wednesday night to tie them for fifth, each with 33-33 records, the Nets knew precisely what it meant to them.

"It was an important game for us because of where we are in the standings," Coach Stan Albeck said. "Any time you can beat a team that's just ahead of you, it's got to be a big plus."

Micheal Ray Richardson scored 27 points to help the Nets snap a three-game losing streak. His backcourt

Former netter here on St. Mary's squad

SAN ANTONIO — Adolfo Garcia, a 1981 graduate of Hereford High School, will be lending his athletic talents this season to the tennis team at St. Mary's University.

A sophomore at St. Mary's and a member of the Political Science Majors Organization, Garcia is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolfo Garcia of 507 Grand Ave.

Among the opponents Garcia and his teammates face this season are Incarnate Word College, Trinity University, Southwestern University, Texas Lutheran College, Schreiner College, the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor and Huston-Tillotson College. They'll also host St. Edward's University, the University of Illinois and Grinnell College.

mate, Otis Birdsong, added 24 points, while Net forward Buck Williams had 16 points and a career-high 22 rebounds.

The Nets led by as many as 15 points midway through the third period, but Washington rallied to tie the score at 89-89 on a basket by Cliff Robinson with 7:53 to play.

The Nets responded by scoring eight of the next 10 points to lead 97-91, and the Bullets, who were led by Gus Williams with 29 points, got no closer than three points the rest of the way.

Lakers 120, Jazz 105

Los Angeles, which leads the Pacific Division by 16½ games, won its fifth straight decision as Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 27 points against Utah.

The Jazz, who also lost to the Lakers by 15 points on Tuesday night, cut an eight-point deficit to 92-91 by scoring the first seven points of the fourth quarter. But the Lakers responded with 10 in a row to regain a comfortable margin.

Fred Roberts led Utah with 24 points.

Celtics 123, Suns 106

Larry Bird, who scored 60 points on Tuesday against Atlanta, came back with 31 more to lead Boston over Phoenix.

The Suns trailed only 91-89 in the third quarter, but Scott Wedman scored six points during a 15-5 run that made it 106-94 and Phoenix got no closer than nine the rest of the way.

The Celtics, winners of 52 games in 66 outings, got 25 points from Kevin McHale, while the Suns were led by Charles Jones with 19 points.

76ers 121, Clippers 103

Philadelphia stayed 2½ games behind the Celtics while handing Los Angeles its 11th straight loss, including five under new Coach Don Chaney.

George Johnson, averaging just 3.1 points per game, scored a season-high 18 points as 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham substituted liberally en route to their 15th consecutive victory over the Clippers in Philadelphia.

Bucks 128, Cavaliers 93

Milwaukee won its fifth straight game and routed Cleveland behind 25 points from Terry Cummings.

The Bucks, who extended their Central Division lead to 10 games, led 87-71 after three quarters, then bombed the Cavaliers 41-22 in the final period.

Cleveland, winners of 10 of its previous 12 games to pull into strong playoff contention, got 20 points each from Phil Hubbard and World B. Free.

Mavericks 118, Kings 100

Dallas got 32 points from Mark Aguirre and pulled away from Kansas City in the fourth period for its fifth triumph in six games.

Monkey replaces paralyzed hands, feet

NEW YORK (AP) — It's hard to find a nurse's aide as dedicated as Henrietta. No task is too small if it will help her quadriplegic employer. She works day and night without complaint. She even does windows — unless she's in heat.

Henrietta is a monkey. A former house pet, "Henri" has found a second career as one of eight small monkeys in the United States who have been trained to be the hands and feet of paraplegics.

The project, developed by Mary Willard of Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York, has been restricted by the scarcity of Capuchin monkeys — the breed once favored by organ-grinders — from Central and South America.

Now, with the establishment of a breeding center in Homestead, Fla., Ms. Willard hopes to train up to 40 female monkeys a year as "helping hands" to the severely disabled. Males are not used, because they are not easily housebroken.

An estimated 1.5 million Americans suffer partial or complete paralysis, so the program has the potential to become as widespread as guide dogs for the blind.

The program is funded by a $125,000 annual grant by the Veterans Administration. It costs about $8,000 to produce one Helping Hands monkey, Ms. Willard said. With the help of private contributions, she hopes to offer them to patients for as little as $150, the current price of a Seeing Eye dog.

Guided by a pinpoint laser beam, Ms. Willard's monkeys can retrieve or replace objects, open and close doors, pick up telephone receivers, turn lights on and off, perform simple feeding tasks, even vacuum and wash windows.

For Sue Strong, who spent seven years confined to a hospital room after a 1971 van accident, Henri has opened a new world of freedom and companionship.

Ms. Strong had been completely dependent on paid attendants who provided round-the-clock nursing in her two-room Manhattan apartment.

But since Henri joined her two years ago, she says, human help is only needed for cooking, feeding the monkey and some cleaning. "If someone can get me out of bed and into my wheelchair, Henri can handle the rest of the day," she says.

Ms. Strong, 36, operates the laser flashlight with her teeth from a chinrest on her wheelchair, and rewards Henri for each task completed.

When Ms. Strong is thirsty, she calls Henri's name softly, pointing the laser beam at a bottle of juice. The monkey carries the jar to the wheelchair, places it on a tray, unscrews the cap, places a straw in the bottle, and tucks one end of the straw into Ms. Strong's mouth.

Self-defense course slated here April 30

A self-defense course designed primarily for rape prevention will be taught April 30 in Hereford.

Bob Watson, a law enforcement trainer from Lubbock, will present a four-hour course focusing on use of the Kubotan, a small cylindrical weapon designed to temporarily incapacitate.

Originally developed for undercover police officers, the Kubotan principle is now being taught to private citizens and law enforcement officers throughout the nation. Watson has been offering the course in Lubbock since early in January and has already trained 350 women.

A maximum of 20 women will be accepted for the course, so early registration is encouraged.

Watson was invited to Hereford by a local woman who lost a friend to an attacker and read about the course in the newspaper. The Deaf Smith County Sheriff's department is lending its endorsement to the class.

In addition to the Kubotan instruction, participants will learn personal survival tips, how to break choke holds and hear a lecture on the five different classifications of rapists.

"I've had a lot of women come into the class as skeptics who were enthused when they left," Watson commented.

The class will be held from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Hereford Community Center. The $20 registration fee includes a manual and the Kubotan.

To register, call 364-5515 after 5 p.m.

Polly's Pointers

Polly Fisher
Pine is costly

DEAR POLLY — Why is pine not used for burning in fireplaces and stoves? It's so plentiful. I'd save a lot of money if I could burn pine in my stove. — VI

DEAR VI — Pine is a soft wood that burns very quickly. It's also light in weight compared to hardwoods. You'd have to burn a far greater volume of pine than a hardwood like oak to get the same amount of heat. It's just not an economical source of heat. Pine also produces more obnoxious smoke than the good-burning hardwoods. However, because pine ignites easily and burns quickly, it is excellent for kindling. Those few sticks you use to get the fire going.

The best woods for fuel are hardwoods such as oak, ash, hard maple, hickory, locust, pecan, apple, beech and birch. They give a lot of heat relative to volume and produce little smoke.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "The Energy Saver's Guide" which has some additional tips on burning wood in a wood stove or fireplace. Others who would like this issue should send $1 for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1216, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to include the title. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I cut boxtops and UPC symbols from almost everything and save them for rebates and special offers. Many of these UPC symbols and proofs of purchase don't have the product name on them. It makes it hard to identify them when looking for those from specific products. I write the product name and size on adhesive stickers and fasten them to the backs of the proofs. This is especially good for product packages that are plastic (such as paper towel wrappers) and can't be written on. — MRS. S.V.

DEAR POLLY — To deaden the clattering sound of a rotary beater, stand the bowl on a folded, dampened dishcloth or towel. — P.H.S.

Polly will send you a Polly Dollar ($1) if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Association offers advice on utilizing volunteers

AUSTIN — Keys for success in utilizing volunteers were offered today by the American Heart Association in Texas. Figures indicate that some 18,700 Texans volunteered their time to the Association in 1984, making it one of the most successful volunteer organizations in the state.

An important factor in this success is that the volunteers are united in working toward a single goal: the prevention of premature death and disability caused by heart and blood vessel disease. Heart Association volunteers come from all walks of life. Some had had a personal experience with heart disease. For many, the fact that heart disease claims the lives of over 50,000 Texans each year is reason enough to enlist their services as a volunteer.

In years past, the stereotype of a volunteer was that of a middle-class suburban woman who devoted her spare time to organizations for altruistic or social reasons. Today, this stereotype has all but disappeared. The work of the Heart Association, for instance, often requires specific skills in addition to the volunteer's time and enthusiasm. Other volunteer jobs emphasize possession of necessary personal traits, augmented by careful training. The Heart Association has found that carefully matching the volunteer's skills and interests to appropriate jobs within the organization results in a mutually beneficial relationship.

Another key to success lies in the enlistment of volunteers for specific tasks. At the Heart Association, volunteers recruit other volunteers. Orientation sessions are helpful in defining the nature of their role and informing them of the goals of the organization. They make a point of determining what benefits each volunteer hopes to obtain from his or her work and that reasonable expectations are actually met.

According to the President of the American Heart Association in Texas, James J. Atkins, M.D., "It's important to maximize the rewards that volunteers derive from their work. And it is equally important to minimize any barriers to a volunteer's effective performance."

Because the goals of this Association are accomplished at the community level, one will find volunteers engaging in a variety of activities. These range from conducting fund raising and community service programs to leadership roles at various levels. The programs implemented by the Heart Association in Texas begin with useful, new ideas proposed and developed by volunteers. To hire individuals for this same work would be prohibitively expensive.

During National Volunteer Week, April 22-28, the American Heart Association in Texas joins in a salute to volunteers everywhere who are working with unmatched enthusiasm and motivation to make life better for all of us.

For more information on the volunteer opportunities within the American Heart Association in Texas, contact your local Association office listed in the White Pages.

Baptist Women assemble for supper, mission program

Members of Baptist Women of First Baptist Church met recently in the church fellowship hall for a salad supper and mission program with Costline Lee and Leatrus Clark serving as hostesses.

Lee called the meeting to order with Beverly Curtis leading the opening prayer. Minutes were read and approved.

During the business session, a hospital visitation was planned for March 21 as the mission action program. Following the visit, members are to meet in the home of Bea Hutson.

Lolita Vinson gave the calendar of prayer for missionaries in the field and Clark gave a report on the Week of Prayer stating that aid had been given to an international student who is the son of Japanese parents serving as missionaries to Brazil.

Jennie Terrell presented the program entitled "Who Cares About the Stranger." She was assisted by Frances Crume, Jerre Jackson, Mildred Drake, Virginia Curtsinger and Donnie Owen.

The intercessory prayer for mission work was led by Lee.

There were 21 members present.

Planetarium to feature 'Journey to the Future'

The Space Shuttle has made space travel practical, but it wasn't designed for interplanetary travel. Climb aboard the imaginary spacecraft Orion for a trip into the future during the feature presentation, "Journey to the Future," at the Don Harrington Discovery Center, 1200 Streit Drive, in Amarillo.

The planetarium show is at 2 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays through May 4. Admission is $2 for adults and teens, $1.50 for senior citizens and children ages 6 through 12.

The journey begins as viewers travel past the sun, on to Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and the outer planets, then inward again and to our natural satellite, the Moon. Along the way, the space traveler will see the 3,000 mile-long canyon and 17-mile high mountain on Mars, the icy rings of Saturn, the deserts of Venus and Jupiter's moons, Ganymede and Callisto.

A space short subject is also being shown in conjunction with the planetarium feature, called Destination Infinity.

CABERNET SAUVIGNON

Cabernet Sauvignon is the father of red wine grapes. It is the noble grape of the Bordeaux region of France and it produces California's most outstanding red wine. Cabernet grapes tend to make a wine that many inexperienced tasters characterize as "bitter." This bitterness is actually an astringency due to the tannin, a substance found in grape skins and wooden casks. A young Cabernet Sauvignon wine often contains a good deal of tannin, making the wine rather steely. Without tannin, however, the Cabernet Sauvignon could not age into the velvety smooth wine it eventually becomes. Certain California wineries blend small amounts of the Merlot grape along with the Cabernet to lessen the astringent quality and to hasten the aging process.

Cullen Davis company agrees to bankruptcy reorganization

DALLAS (AP) — Millionaire brothers Cullen Davis and Ken Davis have agreed to an effort by creditors to immediately force payment of millions of dollars in loans in agreeing to voluntary reorganization of a chunk of their business empire.

Attorneys for the Fort Worth brothers, in documents filed Tuesday in U.S. bankruptcy court, agreed to reorganization of Kendavis Holding Co. under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

A bankruptcy court trustee said Wednesday the brothers are also expected to agree to reorganization of Kendavis Industries International, a management subsidiary of Kendavis Holding.

Creditors claim the two companies owe them more than $300 million. Eight banks tried to force the companies into involuntary bankruptcy in a petition filed Feb. 21.

Bank officials said they failed to reach a refinancing agreement with the Davis companies after 18 months of intensive negotiations.

Assistant U.S. trustee
George McElreath said Wednesday he had received the Davis' consent order to reorganize the second company as well. McElreath oversees such proceedings for the court.

But officials said by late Wednesday, the paperwork had not shown up at the bankruptcy clerk's office in Dallas.

"The filings give them 120 days to propose a plan of reorganization," said McElreath.

He said although most creditors permit a company that amount of time to come up with a plan, they can try to speed up the process by appealing to the court. Any reorganization would have to be approved by all parties and a federal bankruptcy
judge, McElreath said.

Forbes magazine lists Cullen and Ken Davis among the 400 wealthiest Americans.
Kendavis Holding Co. is an umbrella for at least 52 other corporate entities.

The business empire includes energy exploration, equipment and services, rubber products, lighting fixtures, air conditioning and heavy equipment, often sold in international markets.

In 1976, a shooting at Cullen Davis' hilltop mansion left his 12-year-old stepdaughter dead and his estranged wife, Priscilla, and another guest wounded.

Charged with capital murder in his stepdaughter's death, Davis' first 1977 trial ended in a mistrial. He was acquitted of the charge later in the same year.

He was accused in August 1978 of paying a man $25,000 to kill the judge who presided over his divorce from Priscilla and again went to court. After a mistrial in early 1979, he was acquitted later that year on the capital murder solicitation charge.

Ken Davis said after banks filed the involuntary bankruptcy petition in February that the proceeding was "imprudent and unnecessary," adding the companies had a positive cash flow.

But creditors said the Davis brothers had failed to meet their financial obligations.

The banks, in court documents on file in Dallas, say the Davis business empire has lost $132 million over the last two years and is headed for "substantial losses" in 1985.

Bank officials want U.S. bankruptcy court permission to monitor the business activities and examine financial records of Kendavis Holding and Kendavis Industries International.

"There is a significant probability that the (companies) will have to take extraordinary measures in order to provide cash in the foreseeable future," bank officials said in the filings.

Kendavis spokesman David Sturgiss on Wednesday afternoon declined comment on the company's financial condition and on bankruptcy proceedings because he said he has not been briefed by company attorneys.

The attorneys could not be reached by telephone for comment by The Associated Press.

Can VCRs be made bootleg-proof?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Engineers, encouraged by movie and cable companies, are working to stop videocassette bootleggers from doing what they're designed to do.

Every time a person tapes a pay cable program or copies a pre-recorded videocassette, the copyright owner loses money. Video Week, a trade publication, estimates, for example, that there are three or four bootleg copies of the popular Jane Fonda Workout for every legitimate copy sold.

In an attempt to prevent unauthorized taping, Macrovision of San Jose, Calif., has developed a system that its chairman says would make the tape recording so "unwatchable" that it has no value.

The chairman, Victor Farrow, said he will know in two or three months if the system works well enough to put on the market.

Making copies of prerecorded videocassettes or pay cable programs without permission is a crime, but most cases go undetected

because the recording is made in private homes.
"Time-shifting," in which viewers record regular TV programs for later viewing, has been declared legal by the Supreme Court.

The Electronic Industries Association reports more than 1.4 million VCRs have been sold this year. About 16.4 million VCRs were in use at the end of 1984, according to the Motion Picture Export Association of America.

Producers, actors, writers and others involved in movie making have long argued they should be paid whenever one of their films is played, but have never established a way to collect fees from home viewers except from cassette sales and licensing fees paid by cable operators.

Allen Cooper, vice president and planning for the Motion Picture Association of America, said his group would prefer a moderate royalty fee on blank tapes and recorders, but failing that would find a way of preventing illegal copying
"an absolute necessity."

Farrow conceded a determined copyright infringer could beat even the most sophisticated scrambling device. "If something can be invented, it can be defeated."

Researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology plan to demonstrate today their own system for preventing home taping. Prof. Andrew Lippman of MIT's media laboratory says the system alters the video signal so all TV sets can receive it but most VCRs can't.

Finding a reliable system that does not compromise the quality of the original when it is shown on the TV screen faces some other technological hurdles.
Earlier approaches often resulted in a scrambled TV picture coming from the original cassette during legitimate viewing.

HOW TO HAVE A HAPPY HEART

Now at last I am through with my work here, and I am ready to come after all these long years of waiting. For I am planning on taking a trip to Spain, and when I do, I will stop off there in Rome; and after we have had a good time together for a little while, you can send me on my way again.

But before I come, I must go down to Jerusalem to take a gift to the Jewish Christians there. For you see, the Christians in Macedonia and Achaia have taken up an offering for those in Jerusalem who are going through such hard times. They were very glad to do this, for they feel that they owe a real debt to the Jerusalem Christians. Why?
Because the news about Christ came to them from the church in Jerusalem. And since they received this wonderful spiritual gift of the Gospel from them, they feel that the least they can do in return is to give them some material aid.

As soon as I have delivered this money and completed this good deed of theirs, I will come to see you on my way to Spain. And I am sure that when I come the Lord will give me a great blessing for you.

Will you be my prayer partners? For the Lord Jesus Christ's sake, and because of your love for me—given to you by the Holy Spirit—pray much with me for my work. Pray that I will be protected in Jerusalem from those who are not Christians. Pray also that the Christians there will be willing to accept the money I am bringing them. Then I will be able to come to you with a happy heart by the will of God, and we can refresh each other.

And now may our God, who gives peace, be with you all. Amen.

Farm export picture not good

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard E. Lyng, a former deputy of Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, says the bleak farm export picture may be "even worse than the statistics would indicate."

Lyng and Block, who appeared Tuesday at a farm policy forum, agreed on the need for export improvement. But in later remarks Lyng told the forum that exports cannot be a magic solution to the nation's surplus problems.

"In the long term, there are not as many opportunities for expansion as some people would hope," said Lyng, who retired as the Agriculture Department's No. 2 official to open his own consulting business this year.

Block challenged the agriculture industry to use the attention it is receiving during its current hard times to work for long-range policy changes that will leave farmers in better economic health.

"Never has agriculture had so much publicity, never have we been in the spotlight" as during the financial crisis now besetting some producers, Block told a farm policy forum. He said cutting federal spending is the most beneficial action farmers and agribusiness can work for.

"Never have the masses had concern for agriculture like they have today ... Let's go out and work as an industry and bring that deficit down," he told the conference sponsored by the nutrition advocacy group Public Voice, the Farm Bureau and the Food Marketing Institute.

Block also made a pitch for the administration's long-term farm-policy proposals, saying their "market-oriented" approach that casts subsidies aside will do farmers the most good in the long run.

Such an approach will maximize exports, where the main opportunities for expansion lie, he said. "We cannot afford to pull back into a shell" and produce only for domestic consumption, Block told the group.

Lyng, in an apparent departure from the policies of the administration he used to work for, also said government should support the incomes of certain farmers without regard to the value of what they grow.

"We need to face up to the need for income support, not related to the value of the commodity," he said.

While Lyng was not specific about what form such support should take, some — including Carter administration Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland — have advocated targeting federal subsidies to farmers on the basis of need, rather than farm size or production.

Lyng, who was one of the authors of Reagan's proposed long-term farm bill now under debate in Congress, said drafters considered various forms of income support when writing the proposed legislation, but those ideas did not survive review by administration budget watchers.

Commodity prices won't rise soon enough to help crunch

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new outlook report by the Agriculture Department says there is little hope that commodity prices will soon improve enough to help relieve the financial crunch on thousands of farmers, although many livestock producers are seeing brighter times.

"These lower prices likely will continue through the year, unless there are major weather problems that stunt production here or abroad," the department's Economic Research Service said Friday.

"Stocks of most crops will increase this season because the larger 1984 harvest will easily outweigh small increases in domestic use and exports."

After drought and government acreage programs cut production in 1983, farmers returned to more normal production last year and harvested bumper crops, which helped depress commodity prices.

"No quick turnaround in the farm financial situation is expected," the report said. "Agricultural production appears to be abundant worldwide, while growth in demand is only moderate."

The analysis said that "discussing financial problems of farmers can easily leave the impression that all agricultural sectors are stressed."

Developments that have contributed to the deterioration in crop prices "have benefited livestock and poultry producers," the report said. "Increases in consumer incomes and reduced feed costs will help boost livestock returns this year."

Following the 1983 cutback in production, feed costs rose sharply and low returns forced many livestock and poultry producers to trim output and cut back on breeding stock.

"Now, however, depleted stocks of feedstuffs have been substantially rebuilt from the 1984 harvests," the report said.

FmHA hopes to aid borrowers

The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is making changes in its regulations to encourage commercial lenders to help their farm borrowers, who are having economic problems, by taking advantage of the FmHA's debt adjustment program according to Curtis N. Simmons, county supervisor.

The debt adjustment program is part of the Farm Credit Initiatives announced by President Reagan last September. It is designed to help banks and other lenders reduce the amount of loan payments down to a level farmers can afford.

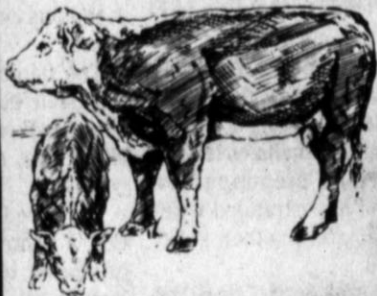

The program allows FmHA to guarantee a portion of farm loans owed to banks and other lenders under certain conditions. FmHA agrees to make up part of the loss to the lender if the borrower defaults. This government guarantee makes it possible for the lenders to stay with their farm borrowers longer than they could otherwise.

The new regulations will help banks and other lenders cooperate with the program by allowing them to write down interest in exchange for the government guarantee. Previously, they were required to write off a minimum of ten percent of the principal of the loan. When the change becomes effective, they can reduce the loan through interest or principal or a combination of both.

Under another part of the President's Farm Credit Initiatives, FmHA is reviewing loans of its own borrowers. FmHA county supervisors will be getting additional staff help from other U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies to review FmHA loans.

FmHA also has selected expert credit teams that will assist farm borrowers if the bank they have loans with has failed. In addition, the agency is cooperating with state and other agriculture agencies and groups to establish a "hot line" telephone service in some areas.
