Arms revisions considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was meeting with the National Security Council today to consider revising a proposed treaty with the Soviet Union on reducing strategic bombers and missiles.

Options under review at today's White House meeting included one giving the Soviets more leeway to retain the heavy land-based missiles that account for about 70 percent of their nuclear arsenal, according to administration officials who asked not to be identified.

Consideration of a compromise also could be a signal to Congress that if it approves deployment of the controversial MX missile, the administration would urge the Soviets to join in a cutback on multiple warhead missiles on both sides.

The options for Reagan's consideration and possible adoption were assembled by an interagency task force as a way of breaking an impasse in the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START), which resume in Geneva, Switzerland, on June 8.

Initially, Reagan called for a reduction of one-third in the approximately 7,500 strategic warheads amassed by the two superpowers. The treaty he outlined a year ago would also set a limit of 850 missiles on each side, thereby overcoming the advantage the Soviets now have in ground missiles.

Cutbacks in strategic bombers and submarine-launched missiles, categories where the United States has an edge, would be left for a later phase of bargaining.

Now, to try to overcome the Soviets' rejection of the plan, the task force has considered raising the ceiling on missiles above 850 or eliminating it entirely in the first stage of a U.S.-Soviet treaty.

The panel, drawn from the Pentagon, the State Department, the Central Intelligence Agency, the National Security Council, and the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, has also considered altering provisions that deal with "throw-weight," the total nuclear force that reaches a target.

Another option, officials said, is to stick with the Reagan proposal.

While rejecting Reagan's initial proposal, the Soviets countered with a plan calling for a 25 percent cutback in missiles and bombers on both sides. This was rejected by U.S. negotiators.

The task force has stepped up its pace over the last week or so to enable Reagan to make a decision before U.S. negotiator Edward Rowny resumes his talks in Geneva with Viktor Karpov, his Soviet counterpart.

Next Tuesday, the United States and the Soviets will resume another set of talks in Geneva on nuclear missiles in Europe.

Reagan has already advised the Kremlin that U.S. negotiator Paul Nitze will offer a compromise to the president's original "zero-option" proposal. It called for the Soviets to dismantle all the missiles targeted on Western Europe in exchange for the scrapping of deployment of 572 U.S. missiles beginning in December.

The compromise would permit the Soviets to retain some of their European missiles while only a fraction of the new U.S. arsenal would be installed.

Transplant patient doing well

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Eleven-month-old Amy Hardin underwent liver transplant surgery today using an organ donated by a Florida family whose baby died in an auto accident, Amy's father said.

"Dr. Najarian said she was doing well," David Hardin said after the surgery was completed this morning. "He said there were no complications."

Dr. John Najarian, chief of surgery, headed the operating team at the University of Minnesota Hospitals.

The donated liver was rushed from Tallahassee, Fla., to Minneapolis for the operation, which was completed around 7 a.m., said Hardin, of Cahokia, Ill.

Doctors learned Monday afternoon of the availability of a liver from a 10-month-old child, he said. The donor family was not identified.

Preparations for the transplant, including the removal of Amy's diseased liver, began around 11 p.m. Monday, Hardin said. The donor liver arrived around 3 a.m.

The hospital's public relations director, Ralph Huessner, said he would issue a statement later today on the girl's condition.

"The doctors do seem very positive and they said Amy is in top shape," Hardin said from the waiting room where he and his wife, Robin, had been since the surgery preparations began.

Amy was born with biliary atresia in which the bile ducts malfunction and the liver becomes hard.

ODESSA — Ector County Commissioners Court voted to annex more than 4,000 acres of Midland Independent School District land into the Ector County school district despite warnings from an attorney the decision is "illegal" or "unwise."

The unanimous approval during the special meeting Monday afternoon followed a year-long effort by residents of the Ridgewood Subdivision, located in far west Midland County and Midland Independent School District, to be annexed into the Ector Independent School District.

Housewife Jean Berridge, a Ridgewood resident, began the effort last year when ECISD trustees voted to charge MISD students who transfer into ECISD schools $1,260 tuition, due to overcrowding in the Odessa schools.

Mrs. Berridge's children are among the 67 students living in the area who attend Odessa schools. Eleven other students in the Midland district, while one attends private school and one does not attend school, she testified.

Referring to Section 19.261 of the Texas Education Code, the residents on Feb. 15 presented ECISD trustees a petition signed by a majority of the registered voters in the area asking for annexation into ECISD. Ector school trustees approved the request April 5.

According to the Texas Education Code, the next step the petitioners should seek is approval of the county commissioners, said Richard Bonner, attorney for the residents.

Besides the Ridgewood Subdivision, the request for annexation into ECISD also includes Mission Estates,

County Judge Jan Fisher

developed by HBF Corporation of Midland.

MISD attorney Charles Tighe questioned the inclusion of the 4,000 acres of uninhabited land and the exemption of a mobile home area immediately south of the area in question.

"The petition...describes not only the Ridgewood Subdivision but approximately 4,000 additional acres of uninhabited land, all of which is also in the Midland District and within Midland County. The developer of that area is, we believe, promoting, encouraging, and most likely helping to finance the effort that is now before you."

According to Tighe, the residents' "reliance" on Section 19.261 is "misplaced."

ECISD boundaries were defined by the Texas Legislature in 1921, he said. Therefore, "we do not believe you have the power or the jurisdiction to unilaterally affect in any way territory within the Midland Independent School District and within tioned in the public hearing concerning the legislation.

"I can only conclude that the members of the board were not aware of the legislation, or, for some reason and at someone's request, simply have chosen to ignore it."

County Judge Jan Fisher responded that as a lawyer having studied the legislation, she is not convinced it overrules the Texas Education Code.

"The legislation Tighe presented is not as clear cut as you have presented in your case," she told Tighe.

Tighe cited two court rulings which prove Section 19.261 of the Texas Education Code does not authorize ECISD to expand its boundaries. According to those cases, he said, "The statute applies only to land within the county in which the school trustees or county board sit. Otherwise, there would be absolutely no reason to include the language in each county."

"That statute applies only to territory within a single county and provides no basis for an independent school district to detach, annex, disannex or do anything else to land in another county and within another independent school district without that district's consent," he said.

According to Dr. Bill Walker, ECISD director of business, an area may detach and annex into another school district as long as it does not "cause harm" to the former district.

By his calculations, he testified MISD would not be damaged by losing the students.

Thatcher facing electoral challenges

By DAVID MASON
Chief European Correspondent

LONDON — Margaret Thatcher, who next month seeks another term as prime minister, has enhanced Britain's special relationship with Washington and proudly lived up to Moscow's nickname, "The Iron Lady."

Abroad, the most stunning success in her four years in office was driving an Argentine invasion force off the Falkland Islands after ordering a hazardous military operation 8,000 miles from home.

But if on June 9 she wins a new five-year term, as public opinion polls indicate she will, a long-term arrangement for the Falklands and uncertainties about two other British colonies — Gibraltar and Hong Kong — will challenge her hard-line negotiating style.

Her success in dropping the inflation rate to a 15-year low of 4.6 percent from a peak 21.9 percent a year after she was elected will be another hard act to follow. She pledged to continue her conservative economic policy.

Along with President Reagan, Mrs. Thatcher has taken the firmest stand in the Atlantic alliance on the need to modernize its nuclear missile forces, unless the current Geneva arms reduction talks succeed.

Britain has agreed to base the first 96 of the 572 missiles NATO plans to deploy in five Western European countries beginning later this year unless the Soviet Union dismantles or cuts back its missile force.

Through much of her present term, Mrs. Thatcher has been at odds with her European partners over Common Market budgetary problems, which she remains determined to resolve in Britain's favor. Britain, she contends, contributes far more than its fair share of the cost of running the 10-nation community.

Mrs. Thatcher, who calls herself "one of the senior leaders of the Western World," took office May 15, 1979, before Reagan, President Francois Mitterrand of France and Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany.

Although the Falklands are now back in Britain's hands, following a 74-day undeclared war which ended last June 14, Mrs. Thatcher still has not charted a long-term future for the South Atlantic islands and their 1,800 British inhabitants.

Argentina has refused to accept a formal end to hostilities, and Britain is keeping a task force of some 4,000 men, plus planes, ships and submarines, in the Falklands.

Mrs. Thatcher's critics doubt that Britain can long accept the expense of such a force so far from home. Eventually, they say, negotiations will have to be held with Argentina on the Falklands' future.

The future of Gibraltar, which Britain has ruled since 1713 under a treaty which Spain contends is unjust, will also be high on Mrs. Thatcher's agenda should she return to office.

Mrs. Thatcher has said she will do nothing to change Gibraltar's status against the desires of its residents, who want to remain British subjects.

Monetary reform plan debated

PARIS (AP) — U.S. officials reacted cautiously today to French President Francois Mitterrand's proposal for a conference on reforming the world monetary system.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said Mitterrand's speech, in which he advocated a return to a cooperative Western monetary system, was very broad and would have to be studied carefully.

Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said U.S. officials will "have to think about" Mitterrand's proposals, which he said contained new elements with which the United States "might agree."

Baldrige and Regan were meeting with foreign, trade and finance ministers from 24 nations in Paris for the annual meeting of the Organization of Economic Cooperation and Development.

A U.S. official speculated one reason for Mitterrand's proposal Monday was his continuing worry about the strong dollar, which the French president believes is hampering French economic recovery.

In a speech Monday, Mitterrand said the global economic crisis is severe enough to warrant a return to fixed currency exchange rates between the United States and its allies.

Mitterrand also indicated France would consider withdrawing from future economic summits if the one scheduled for Williamsburg, Va., in less than three weeks ends in failure.

In contrast to Mitterrand, U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz conveyed the Reagan administration's optimistic economic outlook to the ministers. He also urged allies to

"beware" that trade with Soviet bloc countries does not become too important to their economies.

Mitterrand, at a reception for the ministers, said, "Today, as after the war, the world (economy) has to be reconstructed...The moment has come to think about a new Bretton Woods." He referred to the agreement that regulated currencies from the end of World War II until the early 1970s. "Outside such a position, there is no safety."

Mitterrand said consultations should begin with "an international monetary conference at the highest level."

"Time is pressing," he said, without specifying when such a meeting should take place. His Socialist government is struggling with a devalued franc, high inflation and a serious trade deficit.

Shultz said the United States is headed for a "year of unmistakable and significant growth" that could help stimulate recovery in industrial and developing nations.

The secretary of state arrived Sunday from two weeks of shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East. He is to meet with Mitterrand today and return to Washington Wednesday.

The OECD meeting, which ends today, is laying the groundwork for the summit of seven major Western industrialized nations in Williamsburg at which President Reagan will be host.

Mitterrand recalled the monetary agreements of last year's Versailles summit and asked whether such conferences had any meaning.

"Didn't the seven countries affirm their desire to coordinate interventions?" Mitterrand asked, referring to the promise the Europeans thought they secured from the United States to intervene more often in money markets.

"If not, then why keep having round after round of international meetings? We will see if we are on the right course and each will draw the conclusions with regard to the usefulness of such summits," Mitterrand said.

This amounted to a warning that France would consider withdrawing from such meetings if Williamsburg ended.

The Reagan administration's policy is to intervene in exchange markets only when they are extremely disorderly. Previous U.S. administrations intervened frequently.

New budget compromise considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders are considering a new budget compromise from five Republican holdouts who want to raise taxes by $14 billion next year and make further cuts in President Reagan's defense buildup.

The group has proposed a budget that would partially repeal some of this year's tax cut and include lower federal deficits than those recommended by Republican Senate leaders, according to sources who spoke on condition they not be identified.

Because the five GOP moderates hold a temporary balance of political power in the Senate, their plan, agreed upon privately Monday, was likely to get serious attention.

As behind-the-scenes maneuvering continued, votes were scheduled today on various proposals to modify the budget approved by the Senate Budget Committee.

For over a week, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., has been trying to find 51 Republican votes for a budget blueprint so no Democratic support would be needed.

Baker and Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, have been pushing a budget scheme that would permit almost no tax increase and a defense hike reluctantly accepted by President Reagan.

But the five GOP holdouts have refused to go along. They insist on new revenues to offset rising federal deficits, and because there are only 54 Senate Republicans, Baker has been blocked.

New legislation makes it crime to tamper with consumer goods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has passed legislation making it a federal crime to tamper with consumer products — an action prompted by the seven Tylenol-cyanide deaths last year.

The House voted 292-0 and the Senate passed it unanimously by voice vote. Now they will try to resolve differences between the two versions.

Both measures provide a maximum sentence of life imprisonment and a $100,000 fine if serious injury or death results from tampering with a consumer product.

Under the Senate bill, tampering with the intent to damage a business would bring a maximum penalty of 10 years imprisonment and a $20,000 fine. The House bill mandates no federal penalties for persons who tamper with products solely to damage a business' reputation; the tampering must include a significant threat of bodily harm.

Rhode Island, Mark Hatfield of Oregon, Charles McC Mathias Jr. of Maryland, Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and Robert T. Stafford of Vermont — have drafted a new proposal as a possible way out of the deadlock.

Last year in Chicago, capsules of the popular painkiller Tylenol were removed from their bottles, treated with cyanide, returned to the shelves and purchased by consumers. Seven people died from taking the tainted drug. The crimes remain unsolved.

Numerous copycat incidents were reported around the country in the wake of the Chicago poisonings.

The legislation, which covers foods, drugs, cosmetics, medical devices and other consumer products designed to be ingested or consumed, also provides penalties for making false claims of tampering with such products, and for threats and conspiracies to tamper.

A similar measure was included in anti-crime legislation passed by Congress last year but vetoed by President Reagan for other reasons.

The president has said he favors an anti-tampering bill. Congressional sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the five are suggesting: — A military buildup limited to 6 percent in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, and 5 percent in the succeeding three years. The president originally wanted a 10 percent Pentagon increase, but has tacitly accepted the 7.5 percent figure included in the proposal urged by Majority Leader Baker.

— Deficits of $180 billion in 1984 and $141 billion in 1985.

— Non-defense domestic spending $11.4 billion above Reagan's recommendation.

— Tax increases totalling $70 billion over three years — $14 billion in 1984, $22 billion in 1985 and $34 billion in 1986. It would mean limiting this year's income tax cut to $300 per taxpayer, although the emphasis will be placed more on the amount of new revenues than on how to get it.

Until now, the five had held out for a complete repeal of the 10 percent increase. Reagan has said he would veto any legislation which tampers with the tax cut, which voters will be seeing for the first time in July when changes in withholding begin.

Senate Democrats have also abandoned original intentions of repealing the 10 percent tax cut, but Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said Monday he wants to limit the reduction to lower and middle income taxpayers BY IMPOSING A CAP.

Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, senior Democrat on the budget panel, said he and other members of the Senate minority would wait until the Republicans demonstrate they are unable to pull together 50 or 51 votes for a budget plan before dealing for a bipartisan compromise.

Ector panel votes to annex land

MISD has a total indebtedness of $31,394,006, Walker said. Because annexation of the land would result in a loss of tax revenue for MISD, Walker suggested paying the Midland school district $158,541, or .505 percent of that debt.

That money would go for retirement of the debt in lieu of taxes that would be lost from this property.

In an effort to be fair, although the amount could be paid over a period of 10 to 15 years, Walker suggested paying the $158,541 in one lump sum Feb. 1, 1985, so it could earn interest "to offset any decrease in interest they might expect."

In compliance with the law, the commissioners must proceed with plans for the bonded indebtedness and voted to approve Walker's recommendations.

According to Walker, the state presently pays ECISD $1,035 in average daily attendance for each MISD student who attends ECISD schools. That figure is about 40 percent of the total cost of educating those students.

"(The Ridgewood parents) chose to move into Midland County and into the Midland District, an area in which some of the children go to Midland schools and which area is served by the Midland District bus system, and in which area, if the need arises, the Midland District will build schools," Tighe said, later adding about 200 to 300 students would need to reside in the area to validate the building of a school.

"If, however, the Ector District is unwilling to absorb the additional tuition it deems necessary, and the parents are unwilling to pay that additional amount, that is a problem the Ector District and those parents must deal with and resolve themselves," Tighe continued.

He added if the area is annexed into ECISD, those parents who send their children to MISD would have to transfer, "and the Midland District will have to absorb the additional tuition or require the parents to make up the deficit."

He added, "We further believe that there is ample reason for refusing this request by balancing the interest of a developer whose primary aim is to make money as against the harm that will be done to relations between the two communities."

Mrs. Fisher pointed out the "irony" of the developer being Midland Chamber of Commerce President Larry Bell.

"Whether the developer is from Midland, Tucumcari or Timbuktu doesn't have a thing to do with it," Tighe said.

"I agree," Mrs. Fisher replied. "I didn't bring it up. I believe you made reference to it."

Texas had richest, poorest in 1981

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas had the richest and the poorest of 305 metropolitan areas in terms of 1981 per capita income, according to statistics released by the Commerce Department.

A per capita income of $16,467 gave the Midland metropolitan area the nation's highest per capita income in 1981, the statistics showed.

The bottom three areas rated also were in Texas. The Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito area ranked 303rd with per capita income of $6,172. Laredo was $6,148, or 304th. The McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg was $5,606, or 305th.

Per capita income for the United States was $10,495, up from $9,483 in 1980, the department said.

Following are the figures released Monday for per capita income for 25 metropolitan areas in Texas. The first figure is per capita income in 1980, the second figure per capita income in 1981 and the last figure the area's 1981 ranking among 305 metropolitan areas:

Abilene: $9,383; $10,737, 89th.

Amarillo: $9,634; $10,706, 91st.

Austin: $9,139; $10,442, 110th.

Beaumont-Port Arthur-Orange: $10,038; $11,294, 59th.

Brownsville-Harlingen-San Benito: $5,512; $6,172, 303rd.

Bryan-College Station: $6,862; $8,013, 277th.

Corpus Christi: $8,783; $10,078, 139th.

Dallas-Fort Worth: $10,999; $12,144, 31st.

El Paso: $6,631; $7,300, 299th.

Galveston-Texas City: $10,465; $11,592, 43rd.

Houston: $11,798; $13,303, 10th.

Reagan says rejection would injure security

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, lobbying for approval of the MX missile, says rejection of the weapon by Congress would deal "a blow to our national security that no foreign power would ever have been able to accomplish."

Speaking at a memorial dinner for the late Rep. John Ashbrook in Ashland, Ohio, the president called on Congress to support the MX program and promised, in turn, to combine it with "vigorous arms control."

Reagan stopped in Ashland for several hours Monday night after a long weekend at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., then returned to the White House.

Rogers burns Atlanta; Astros down Mets

Cubs secure cellar spot

By the Associated Press

Steve Rogers has won 138 games in 9½ major league seasons and 137 of them came somewhere other than Atlanta.

The sunny South isn't Rogers' favorite place despite Monday night's six-hitter as the Montreal Expos defeated the Atlanta Braves 5-3. It was his 10th victory in his last 11 decisions against the Braves, but his first triumph ever in Atlanta, where he had been 0-6.

"Steve's not a hot-weather pitcher," said catcher Gary Carter, who homered in support of his batterymate. "It was warm (upper 60s), but not like it usually is here. It didn't drain him."

Rogers not only pitched a complete-game victory to snap his Atlanta jinx — "I would have hated to retire without one," he quipped — but also delivered a run-scoring single to cap a two-run second inning against loser Rick Camp.

Carter belted his fifth home run in the eighth. The Expos scored in the fifth when Tim Lincecum walked, stole second and came home on the third of Warren Cromartie's five hits. Carter homered in the eighth and singles by Raines and Cromartie plus an error gave the Expos a run in the ninth.

"We usually beat him (Rogers) at home," said Atlanta's Chris Chambliss, who homered and tripled. "He's really good. You don't want to get behind him. He doesn't give you much to hit. He's really good."

"I was aware of it," Rogers said of his failure to win in Atlanta. "It's a fact. But that gave me no extra drive to win tonight. Early in my career it was a worry. I was 0-4, but I really haven't pitched here very often."

Cromartie, who had hits in his last two at-bats in his previous game, tied club records with five hits in a game — a double and four singles — and seven consecutive hits.

"I don't want to brag, but I did that three years ago in Chicago," Cromartie said of his five hits. "But this is by far the best game I've had in two years."

National League

Astros 6, Mets 4

Alan Ashby triggered Houston's five-run fifth-inning rally from a 4-0 deficit with his third home run of the season and Frank LaCorte pitched four innings of one-hit relief. Ashby's home run accounted for the first run off loser Rick Ownbey and Phil Garner, whose two-run double tied the score, scored the go-ahead run from second base when Mets first baseman Danny Heep forgot about him and argued a call with umpire Terry Tata on Jose Cruz's two-out infield hit.

Dodgers 4, Cubs 3

Bill Russell scored from third base as Ken Landreaux beat out an infield hit with two out in the ninth inning as the Dodgers won for the 19th time in the last 24 games. Earlier, Landreaux cracked his fifth home run of the season and rookie Greg Brock hit his sixth, a two-run shot. Dave Stewart, 3-0, the third Los Angeles pitcher, earned the victory by working two scoreless innings.

Pirates 5, Padres 3

Jason Thompson cracked a tie-breaking two-run double with two out in the 14th inning to cap the first five-hit performance of his career as the Pirates ended a five-game losing streak. With two out in the 14th, Johnny Ray doubled off loser Mike Couchee for his fourth hit. After Richie Hebner was intentionally walked, Gary Lucas, the fifth San Diego pitcher, came on and was greeted by Thompson's tie-breaking double.

Giants 5, Cardinals 4

Darrell Evans tied the game with a run-scoring double in the bottom of the ninth and pinch hitter Dave Bergman won it with a bases-loaded single as the Giants defeated St. Louis relief ace Bruce Sutter. The Cardinals, who have lost four in a row, scored three runs in the top of the ninth on an RBI double by Darrell Porter and a two-run single by Rafael Santana to take a 4-3 lead.

Spurs out to drown Lakers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The first round of the battle of the big men clearly belonged to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

But 7-foot-2 center Artis Gilmore and the San Antonio Spurs get another chance tonight when they face Abdul-Jabbar and the Los Angeles Lakers in the second game of the National Basketball Association Western Conference finals.

The defending NBA champion Lakers jumped out to 1-0 edge in the best-of-seven series with a 119-107 victory Sunday at the Forum, as Abdul-Jabbar, also 7-2, led the way with 30 points and eight rebounds.

Gilmore scored just seven points and had six rebounds when he fouled out with 5:18 remaining in the contest.

Among those who believe Gilmore will fare better in the future, however, is Abdul-Jabbar.

"Artis was in foul trouble and they couldn't afford to go inside to him when they were playing catch-up," the Laker center said. "But it was only one game, and I'm sure he will be heard from before this series is over."

San Antonio Coach Stan Albeck, whose club beat the Lakers four times in five meetings during the past regular season, said he'll try something new for the second playoff game.

"We are going to look at the films and devise some strategy and hopefully it will work," said Albeck. "I think it will. We are not disillusioned. I remain optimistic and so does the team. You will see a better team."

While the matchup at center is the focal point for the playoff series, the Lakers received some excellent play in other areas. Guard Norm Nixon popped in 30 points for Los Angeles, and the Lakers also got a morale booster when Bob McAdoo was able to play 22 minutes.

It was the first appearance for the reserve forward-center since he dislocated a toe on his right foot in practice Feb. 16. The Lakers had been thin in the frontcourt since McAdoo was hurt and rookie forward James Worthy went out with a broken leg.

The big battle in the Spurs, Lakers NBA series is between Artis Gilmore and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

McAdoo was a key player in the Lakers' drive to the NBA title last year — including a 4-0 playoff sweep of San Antonio. In his return to action Sunday, he scored four points and had six rebounds.

"Bob was rusty, but he did some big things on defense and the boards," said Laker Coach Pat Riley. "He's going to get better as the series goes on. Just having him on the bench was an inspiration."

Riley believes the Lakers' playoff experience is a plus for them in the series against the Spurs.

"The one edge we have is that we are the defending champion," he said. "We have guys who have been there. They know how to play in these games."

Lee facing Plainsmen

Today marks the beginning of the 1983 State baseball playoffs and the Midland Lee Rebels are out to try their luck. Their opening opponent — the Monterey Plainsmen.

Game time is 4 p.m. at Lowery Field in Lubbock with an if necessary doubleheader in the three-game series scheduled for Friday at 2 p.m. at Lee Field.

Lee qualified for the playoffs by finishing second in District 4-5A with a record of 9-5, 16-11 overall. Monterey won District 3-5A with a 14-2 mark and was 25-5 for the season.

The San Angelo Bobcats will also be in Lubbock today for their first bi-district game against Lubbock Coronado.

San Angelo won the 4-5A at 11-3, 17-10 while Coronado finished second in 3-5A at 12-4, 19-7.

Stanley beats Sox off Angels

By the Associated Press

A week's rest didn't hurt Bob Stanley...nor did it help the California Angels.

"I felt pretty strong," said Stanley, who pitched for the first time in six days to lead the Boston Red Sox to an 8-2 victory Monday night over the Angels. "I've learned a little about when you feel too strong. You throw nice and smooth...don't try to throw too hard."

Boston's relief ace entered the game in the third inning with a 4-2 lead, the bases loaded and one out and completely shut down the Angels, allowing only two hits the rest of the way.

The performance lowered Stanley's earned run average to 1.11. In his last 212-3 innings, covering nine games, Stanley has allowed just one unearned run and 14 hits.

"I'm eating it up," Stanley said of his outstanding start, "particularly when you have a six-run lead and mostly righthanders up there. I had a good sinker. I threw just a couple of sliders."

The victory was the sixth in seven games for Boston, the American League East leader.

"Stanley came in and just shut the door on us," said Manager John McNamara of California, the AL West leader which had won three of its previous four games. "I'm not surprised to see where the Red Sox are in the standings. They look like a very good ballclub."

Reid Nichols led Boston's 12-hit attack with four hits, including a two-run homer and two doubles. Nichols keyed a three-run rally in the second and a four-run uprising in the third.

Mariners 6, Orioles 4
Jamie Allen drove in three runs and Al Cowens scored twice and stole three bases as Seattle defeated

Baltimore. Allen hit a solo homer in the first inning and rapped a two-run single in the second following a walk to Jim Maier and a double by Julio Cruz.

"I don't consider myself a home run hitter," said Allen, who also homered in his final time at bat in Boston Sunday. "At first I thought to myself, three homers in a row would be great. But I told myself that I'm a line drive hitter, and it worked out pretty well the second time up."

Blue Jays 6, White Sox 1
Cliff Johnson snapped an 0-for-18 slump with a home run which triggered a six-run sixth inning, leading Toronto and Luis Leal over Chicago. Leal, 2-3, checked the White Sox on three hits, struck out six and walked two.

Five of the runs in the sixth inning were unearned as a result of two errors by shortstop Jerry Dybzinski, spoiling left-hander Britt Burns' season debut after coming off the disabled list because of a shoulder injury.

Sophomore mistake is really coaching miracle

Lane six was conspicuously empty at the Texas Tech University track Saturday as the starter raised his gun for the finals of the Region I 400-meter run.

A not-so-hushed murmur could almost be heard above the gun's blast as seven runners started their path to a state berth. "Where's Midland Lee's Brackens? Marc Brackens has just pulled a sophomore stunt. He didn't show up for the race!"

ONE WRITER covering the meet quickly quipped, "What difference does it make? He couldn't finish in the top two anyway. He's not going to Austin. He probably knows that."

There was a ring of truth to the caddy remark. Brackens — maybe TERRY WILLIAMSON — could have finished fifth. After all, he's only a sophomore and was making his Region I debut. Not many sophomores get out of the regional meet, but he had earned the right to compete. Where was he?

Brackens was then seen sitting on the front row of the bleachers, watching the 400 meters like the 3,000 other fans. He was a spectator, who was acting like he was enjoying the whole thing.

"Hey, Marc...Brackens — why aren't you running? Do you know that this is your race?"

"I scratched out of the 400. Coach wants to put me on the mile relay team. He says we have a good chance to go to state," Brackens said.

BRACKENS' statement explained why he wasn't running. Lee coaches Sam Volpe and Eddie Woliski had decided to keep him fresh for the 1600-meter relay. Still, those hearing Brackens speak couldn't help but suppress a giggle.

"Did you hear that? Volpe is trying to pull out a miracle. That 1600 relay team doesn't stand a chance of going to Austin. The world has gone nuts and Volpe is leading the parade. And Woliski is going to go along with the boss."

Time comes for the 1600 relay. "Look at Lee! They've got (Walter) Jones and Brackens on the first two legs. They're both sophomores. This should be good for a laugh at least."

The laugh never came. Jones blazed out of the blocks to a 48.39-second split on the first lap. Lee was in contention and Brackens had the lead early in the second lap — "Well, this is where it will fall apart."

Brackens still had the lead after 48.30 lap when he handed off to senior Carleton Johnson — "Did you see that? That kid's a runner. I knew it all the time."

CARLETON posted a 49.21 lap as Lee still held the lead. He handed off to Luther Johnson, who turned in a 48.74. Luther was passed by Odessa Periman's Dennis Alexander on the last turn with a 47.6 split of his own and Periman won the race with a torrid 3:13.7. But Lee was second with a school record 3:14.5 and headed for Austin and the state track meet.

"Volpe is a great coach. He will always find a way to pull off a miracle. Woliski's going bananas as usual. He'll probably take the credit," was the substance of the following conversation.

Brackens said, "Don't you think this is better than running in the 400? We're going to state." No reply came.

Volpe said, "I thought we had a chance, but I didn't think we could run that kind of time."

"Yep, that's Volpe. He can create miracles, but we still need to teach him something about charisma. What's that 'I thought we had a chance' bit? He already had room reservations in Austin. He really needs a press agent."

The showdown Whorehouse in

Sheriff Dodd
Mona (Coila

Chicken Ranch

What could Jackie Onassis and Abbie Hoffman possibly have in common?

Helping box office sales at "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," that's what.

Ticket sales were not going well in the (preview) off Broadway production of "Whorehouse," until publicity played in the New York City and area press (except for the New York Times) over a fight the night Jackie Onassis was in the Entermedia Theatre audience.

After a successful two month off-Broadway run, "Whorehouse" was moved to the 46th Street Theatre, on Broadway. By mid-December ticket sales were in a slump, when good fortune once again hit in the form of free publicity.

This time one of America's most wanted fugitives, Abbie Hoffman, came to see the show, stopping backstage to have his picture made with one of the stars afterwards. A publicity hound, Hoffman released the picture to Associated Press 48 hours later and AP released it over its national wire.

Both episodes caused ticket sales to soar.

It all fits. After all, "Whorehouse" began with national publicity.

Established in 1890, LaGrange's Chicken Ranch (so nicknamed because clients paid off their debts with poultry during the Depression) made national press and met its downfall in the 1970s when a zealous television reporter from Houston launched a one-man crusade against it.

Jackie Onassis nor Abbie Hoffman will be among those in attendance at Midland's Yucca Theatre for Thursday's gala benefit premiere of "Whorehouse," but a certain television reporter — Marvin Zindler — and former Midlander — Larry L. King — will.

It was King's Playboy Magazine article (April 1974) about the Chicken Ranch which served as the inspiration for the musical. The musical form of "Whorehouse" represents the combined efforts of three Texans: King, Carol Hall and Peter Masterson.

The 30-member Midland Community Theatre cast has been in rehearsals since March 24 to portray the Aggies, crusaders, hookers, politicians and residents of the small Texas town in the fictionalized musical version.

The production opens to the public Friday with performances Thursday through Saturday until June 4. A Sunday show will be staged May 22. Admission is $12.50, $10.50 and $8.50.

Ticket prices for the premiere, which includes a barbecue dinner, drinks and music, range from $2,500 per couple to $200 per couple.

The governor (Rick Wannall) is riding the UT-Aggie fence while, behind him, his aide (Joe Woolsey), left, and the senator (Jim Galyean) carry on.

Sheriff Dodd (Michael Trost) reminisces about old times to Mona (Coila Motrow).

Midland Community Theatre's production of "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," on stage at the Yucca Theatre Friday-June 4, opens with this scene featuring the bandleader (Tim Ryan) and Durla (Heather Wilson).

King, Zindler to attend 'Whorehouse' premiere

For reservations call Theatre Midland's box office, 682-4111. Proceeds from the show and Thursday's opening benefit will go to renovation of the Yucca Theatre, designated an historical landmark by the Texas Historical Society in 1982. The theater was acquired by MCT in the spring of 1981 as a permanent home for the Summer Mummies. "Whorehouse" is directed by Don Bachmann, MCT's executive director, musical direction is by Dr. Stanley Engenbretson, and set design by Stewart John, who worked on the set of the first "Star Trek" movie. Guest choreographer for the production is Jerry Yoder, who performed in the first stage version of "Whorehouse." Stage manager is Max Howard, assisted by Jim Ruiz and Joe Craig. Principal roles are being played by Coila Morrow, the madam Miss Mona; Rochelle Rabouin, Miss Mona's helper Jewel; Drew Anderson, Melvin P. "Watchdog" Thorpe; Trudie Thomason, the waitress Dotsy Mae; Rick Wannall, the sidestepping governor; Bill Shaner, the mayor; Jim Galyean, the senator; and Michael Trost, the sheriff, Ed Earl Dodd.

It was the role of the sheriff which secured MCT a first in "Whorehouse" history. MCT's opportunity began last fall with a call from King. "Originally I wanted to come back to Midland and play the sheriff myself," King said in an interview. "I had played it on Broadway a while and I used to act in the MCT and Permian Playhouse in Odessa 30 years ago or so and I just wanted to come home and play in it myself. So I talked with the people here at MCT and we agreed that would happen." But time and circumstance were to alter King's plans. "I got involved in writing another musical and contractually just can't get back here because I have to be in New York and Washington D.C., working on that play." Although the amateur rights will not be released until this September, an exception has been made for MCT. "It's my home town and they wanted to go ahead and do the show anyway," King said. "Because it's my hometown we gave them special dispensation to be the first community theater in America to do 'Whorehouse.'" "And I'm glad its going to happen here first."

Capitol view to be obstructed

AUSTIN (AP) — Even a rare vote by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby could not win final Senate passage of a bill that would protect remaining views of the Capitol. Presumably as a lesson to Sen. Craig Washington, senators refused Monday to suspend the rules for final passage after they had tentatively approved a measure that would prohibit certain construction near the Capitol. Washington, D-Houston, has consistently voted against suspending rules that enable a bill to be tentatively approved and finally approved on the same day. However, he could get final approval today or another day.

Mrs. Richardson died Saturday in a Midland hospital after a lengthy illness. She was born Feb. 3, 1918, in Tulsa and attended school in Stephenville. She was married to Carl Richardson April 18, 1937, in Glen Rose. They lived in Jal, N.M., and moved to Midland in 1948. She was a member of North A & West Tennessee Avenue Church of Christ. Survivors include her husband of Midland; a son, Don W. Richardson of Pine Bluff, Ark.; two brothers, Robert C. Thompson of Midland and Earl Thompson of Stephenville; and a grandson.

Commissioners consider housing subdivision

By GAIL BURKE Staff Writer

Midland County Commissioners made a break for higher ground Monday when they were asked to approve a preliminary plat for a subdivision in the southeastern part of the county.

Commissioners, in a regular session at the county courthouse, told developer Jerry Mack the plat would be approved only under the condition he "hold the county harmless" should any damage be caused by water. County engineer Bill Harral told the court areas surrounding the subdivision — on South Lamesa Road about one-fourth mile south of Interstate 20 — "could be subject to flooding." However, Commissioner C. Wallace Craig said flooding could happen only "under the worst circumstances." "They're building in the middle of an old dry lake," Harral said. According to Brian Martin, attorney for Mack, the "first phase of this development is near a low spot. We don't believe it's a dry lake bed." Craig alluded to the potential drainage problem, saying, "It's like a cup of water. If you fill that cup with half sand and try to put all the water back, it's going to spill out." Because Harral requested Mack to level the property, Martin said his client filled in the "low spot" to avoid any drainage problems for the eight ranchette houses to be built on the eight to 10 acres. "They filled it (dry lake) up with three feet of dirt," he said. "They spent that money...75 to 80,000 yards of dirt and took up the water storage area. It could flood out someone that wasn't flooded before." In a telephone interview following the meeting, Martin said, "The only drainage problem we'll have is if we have a 100-year rain. Then everyone will have a problem." Martin said he was aware of the commissioners' concerns about drainage and "in the highly unlikely event there is flooding the developer has agreed to defend the county if there should be any action taken." In other action, commissioners: —Approved a letter of intent for a matching grant funding the Midland County Elderly Nutrition program. —Accepted annual certification of juvenile detention facilities. —Reappointed Edward Weyman to the board of trustees of the Permian Basin Center for Mental Health/Mental Retardation Center. —Approved closing a bank account formerly maintained by a committee on aging. The $150 will be turned over to Casa De Amigos. —Approved a budget amendment of $700 to cover unexpected cost of a telephone line for the Juvenile Probation Department and a $1,000 increase in the department's budget. The $1,000 was shifted from the Culver Youth Center's home repair budget to the department's budget. —Approved deeding Midland County property along A Street to the City of Midland. —Accepted bids for road repairs. Bids submitted by Ennis Paint Manufacturer included $5.79 per gallon for 3,000 gallons of yellow striping paint; $5.62 per gallon for 800 gallons of white striping paint and $2.10 per gallon for 1,000 gallons of Touene. Also, a bid submitted by Pottery Industries included 24 cents per pound for 1,800 pounds of glass beads.

Slaying suspect not suspect in second death

DALLAS (AP) — Investigators piecing together the details of a Dallas police officer's murder say a suspect apparently was not involved in the abduction-slaying of a theater manager. Vernon Elwin Morales, 44, and his companion, Rosemary Conclio, 38, died Saturday in a murder-suicide at a farmhouse south of Little Rock, Ark., after authorities surrounded the residence. Both were named in capital murder warrants issued in the May 2 slaying of Officer Ronald Baker, who was shot five times and run over twice with a van in an apartment complex parking lot in the Pleasant Grove section. Police had checked out a possible connection between Morales and the execution-style slaying of Ingrid Phillips, the manager of a Pleasant Grove theater, investigators said Monday. "There was information originally that led us to believe there might be a connection (to Morales)," said Lt. Ron Waldrop. "But there are now several pieces of evidence to indicate he wasn't involved." Mrs. Phillips was abducted Thursday after the theater was robbed of about $700, police said. She was taken to the Grove Hill Cemetery, where she was forced to kneel and was shot once between the eyes, according to investigators. Police used metal detectors to search the cemetery and recovered a bullet slug that was believed to have killed Mrs. Phillips. Tests should determine positively if Morales was involved in the killing, Waldrop said. Baker apparently was killed after he went to the apartment house to return a driver's license. Investigators theorize Baker was killed after he intervened in a dispute between Morales and Ms. Conclio.

Man convicted in shooting

DALLAS (AP) — A 37-year-old man has been convicted of capital murder in the shooting death of a teen-age grocery store clerk. A state district court jury deliberated two hours Monday before returning the guilty verdict against Harold Joe Lane, of Mesquite, in the death of Tammy Davis, 17. Miss Davis was killed Nov. 20 during a holdup at a Winn Dixie market in North Dallas.

Hi honey!
Just got back from Fairgate and I couldn't be more pleased! They have a town home that's 'perfect' for us! You're gonna love the location too! It's in Northwest Midland close to lots of shopping, schools and Loop 250. I love the 3 bedroom, 2 bath floorplan. It's more than 1600 square feet! It's a beautiful home and just what we've been looking for. I'll let you handle the financing. Call 697-4151 and ask about Fairgate's "Nothing-Down" plan.

What are sweep account rates?

Q. What are "sweep accounts" and what interest rate are banks presently paying on those accounts? I inquired at my savings and loan association. No one there knows anything about sweep accounts?

A. You can be sure that somebody at your S&L knows something about sweep accounts, but it's obvious that particular S&L doesn't offer them. Some banks and S&Ls have sweep accounts. Some don't.

The arrangements on sweep accounts vary from one bank or S&L to another. So, it's impossible to come up with a hard and fast description that fits all such accounts. We'll have to settle for generalities.

In the typical sweep account, your first $2,000 is in a checking account paying 6.25 percent interest. Any money in the account above $2,000 is automatically "swept," by computer, into higher-yielding investments — usually repurchase agreements backed by U.S. Treasury or federal agency securities.

The interest paid on the amount above $2,000 depends on the bank or S&L. You have to shop around to get the best rate.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 Industrials fell 1.27 to 186.00, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down 2.29 to 165.81.

The NYSE's composite index was off .12 at 95.36. But at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.75 to a record 444.37. The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market closed up .01 at a record 502.65.

thing that distinguishes it from any other road jutting off from Texas 73, is a nondescript sign
