Wellington Rockettes took the bi-district girls basketball championship 49-47 from the Anson Tigerettes in a two-period "sudden death" overtime Tuesday night, March 3, in Guthrie Gym.

Pat Tompkins hit two free shots as the second extra period opened to win the victory. The first shot teetered with indecision on the basket for a breathless moment; the second went squarely in.

Abernathy won the state girls AA championship last year, and lost only one forward and one guard this season. Their scoring centers around Guinn, a six-foot-one-inch forward who averages from 35 to 40 points per game.

With Wellington representing districts 5 and 6, Abernathy 1 and 2. The other teams playing will be the winners in districts 3-4 and 7-8.

Hugh Longino, Early Mail Carrier, Dies

Hugh M. Longino, first rural mail carrier in the Panhandle west of Quanah, died at his home at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, March 1, following a long illness. He was 81 years of age.

He came to Collingsworth County 52 years ago, and 51 years ago on February 1, he started work as mail carrier on Route 1, Wellington. He remained 37 years, staying beyond his retirement date in order to serve his country during World War II.

In those early days, Mr. Longino recalled that he knew personally almost everyone living in Collingsworth, and knew the location of the others well enough to go to their homes.

Mr. Longino began carrying the mail in a buggy, and part of his equipment was a lantern, for frequently it was after dark before he reached home.

From the rich memories of this period, he recalls that he doctored babies, herded stock and fixed fences for people on his route when they got in a tight. But he also recalled that they were good to him, sharing produce and fruits.

Later he delivered the mail on a motorcycle, then by car. The only time he ever felt his life was endangered in his work was when he was caught in a freak April blizzard only a few years before he retired, and his car stalled and was covered with snow.

Mr. Longino has been a member of the Wellington Methodist Church since 1909, and served it as Sunday School superintendent 12 years and on the board of stewards 18 years. He was secretary of the Woodmen of the World 18 years.

He was once elected to the city council and appointed to the school board, but he had to refuse these honors because he was in government employment.

Hugh Martin Longino was born Sept. 18, 1877, in Hopkins County, the son of James T. and Martha Longino. He lived there until he was 18, then spent 10 years in the Indian Territory near Antlers, before coming here.

He was married to Miss Edith Myers, member of one of the first families to settle here, on August 23, 1908.

Funeral services for Mr. Longino were held at First Methodist Church Tuesday at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Frank Weir, pastor, and the Rev. J. F. Michael officiating.

Pall bearers were nephews: Chester Guthrie, Leonard Karnes, Webster Longino, Raymond Wilson, Walter Dobbs, Jimmy D. Dobbs, Elmer Turner and Francis Turner.

Burial was in West Wellington cemetery under the direction of Kelso Funeral Home.

Buck Creek Watershed Survey Begins March 4

Field examination of the Buck Creek watershed in Collingsworth and Donley counties began Wednesday morning, March 4, and will continue through Friday, March 6, with the Wellington Soil Conservation Service as headquarters.

This is the first step in a proposed flood control project which would consist of a series of detainer dams on Buck Creek and its tributaries, Fred Squires, rock unit conservationist of SCS said. Making the examination are Leland Barnes and J. M. Cunningham of Soil Conservation Service, Fort Worth; Duane Barte, district conservationist from Pampa; representatives of Salt Fork Soil Conservation District and the Collingsworth County Water Control and Improvement District. SCS personnel is assisting.

The visiting workers will end their work here when they meet with sponsors of the proposed flood control project Friday at 9 a.m. in the district court room. This will include representatives of Salt Fork SCD, Collingsworth County Chamber of Commerce, Commissioners Court, Rotary Club and Kiwanis Club.

The examining party will work partially from aerial photographs and partially from on-the-ground observation.

Buck Creek and its tributaries will be studied from the source in Donley County to the point where it flows into Childress County, Squires said. The watershed covers 112,510 acres, all but 32,000 acres of which is in Collingsworth County. Squires explained that 50,050 acres of this is cultivated land and 62,460 is in pasture. A flood plain covers 3,370 acres.

The flood control project is sought under Public Law 566, which provides for up-stream flood control measures, by means of small detainer-type dams.

Asked about this as applied to Buck Creek, Squires said there would be a dam "at least on every major tributary, if the project (Continued on back page)

Mr. Davis had been in good shape in Austin, but if the engineering is not completed, the bonds voted favorably by the people, and construction started on this dam by the end of next year, then we can wave goodbye to our last source of good water for the Greenbelt Area."

"We must have this project under construction within the next year and a half."

Ehrle Warns Greenbelt Dam May Be Lost

State Representative Will Ehrle, Childress, warned today that the Greenbelt Dam Project may be lost to the citizens of the area by their own inaction.

Ehrle said that a new Red River Water Authority has been proposed which could possibly later absorb the water rights of the Greenbelt Authority. "Federal Water districts and studies could also affect our rights," Ehrle said.

"We are presently in good shape in Austin, but if the engineering is not completed, the bonds voted favorably by the people, and construction started on this dam by the end of next year, then we can wave goodbye to our last source of good water for the Greenbelt Area."

Animal Health Meeting Called Here for Thursday Night

An animal health meeting, with Dr. C. M. Patterson, veterinary for the Texas Extension Service as speaker, will be held Thursday night, March 5, at 8 p.m. in the district court room. This is especially for the discussion of leptospirosis and brucellosis.

Also present at the meeting will be W. W. Grisham, new district 1 extension agent. This will be his first public appearance here.

The meeting is sponsored by the Farm Bureau.

"Leptospirosis is scattered all over Collingsworth County, and ranchers are undecided as to whether to vaccinate now or wait until the disease gets in their herds and then vaccinate," County Agent Bob Lynch said.

Lynch said he has talked with veterinarians in adjoining counties and from their plotted maps of livestock men here they have served, it is certain the disease is spread to all parts of the county, as well as in adjoining counties.

Lepto, as the disease is commonly called, broke out about a year ago around Vinson, and for several months could not be identified.

"It's a mystery how it spreads. Lepto is supposed to spread through drinking water, but a lot of livestock men here have lepto who have not bought any new animals their cattle do not drink out of streams, yet they contracted the disease," Lynch said.

"We don't know how many cattle have died from lepto here. We do know some have died, but others have recovered."

It is not known if there is brucellosis in county herds, Lynch said. So far, all herds tested have been clear of the disease.

The Need Does Not Change

The need for the public schools never changes, but times and conditions may change or require to be changed methods and practices of public education. This is inherent with anything that grows, for growth is the result of change.

Our Texas public schools were created 105 years ago. In 1854 the first law was passed establishing the public school.

It is a healthy thing in our democratic way of life to have intelligent understanding of the important function of our basic institutions. This is especially true of the schools. The initiative and resourcefulness and the wisdom and leadership that our schools are inculcating in the youth of today are the answer to the problems of citizenship in the years ahead.

Yes, "bring me men to match my mountains." That is the need of our times and must come from the public schools—schools that are strong in virtues required for building strong men and women.

We can be assured of this and do our part in understanding and helping the public schools to fulfill their great obligation to our times by being a participant in the annual Public Schools Week, March 2 through 6. Schools will hold open house; accept their hospitality, and you will enjoy the experience of going back to school—if but for a day.

Administration School Aid Plan Has Same Fallacies as Others

The administration's school building aid program is conservative compared with the kind of bill the federal aid-to-education lobby wants. It is conservative compared with what the administration itself proposed last year. Contrasted with both of those programs, it looks deceptively good.

The program the President asks now calls for federal aid of $2,500,000,000, spread over 25 years. This is vastly less than the teacher lobby request for federal aid rising by the year until it reaches $4,700,000,000 in 1963.

The President's program has the glittering facade of requiring no cash outlay during the next fiscal year. Thus it would not unbalance his budget which is precariously balanced—provided business improves handsomely and the gasoline tax and postal rates are increased.

But the dangers in this program are manifest. They are the same as in others of the kind.

In the first place, all past experience shows that once a federal aid program of this type is inaugurated, it grows. Communities become dependent upon it instead of standing on their own two feet. They demand more and more.

Incidentally, one can only wonder how many communities have failed to supply their own needs for classrooms during the past few years since agitation for federal aid was first raised, in the expectation the government would do the job for them.

In the second place the program would entail a vast burgeoning of bureaucracy. The surveying and book-keeping in Washington would be monumental. Therefore a good deal of tax money required to finance the program would stay in Washington. The communities could do better to finance their own classroom needs and not have overhead costs skimmed off in the national capital.

Finally, despite official disclaimers, any federal aid program has inherent in it the danger of federal control of local school affairs.

If Congress would reject this and other new spending programs, and at the same time effect some economies in existing programs and reduce federal taxes, the communities which are unable to finance their own school needs (if there be any such) then could do so at less cost.—The Houston Chronicle.

Good Grades, Cars Don't Mix

That was a provocative little story that came out of Los Angeles recently on the relationship between car ownership by high school pupils and their grades.

A school principal found, in a study he made, that not a single straight-A student he questioned owned an automobile. But no less than 83 per cent of the pupils who failed in their studies did.

In between, only 15 per cent of the B students owned cars, but 41 per cent of the D students did. He says that the results of his survey are typical nationally.

High school joy-riding and good grades don't mix. Q. E. D.—The Houston Chronicle.

High style in recent years has dictated a blond streak at the front of milady's hair, put there by means best known to the lady and her beauty shop. But Colvin Moore comes by this mark of fashion naturally—a cause of much distress to her a teen-ager. It is an inherited characteristic—among women of her family—her mother had it and also her grandmother. The day of dress rehearsal, he put it to his parents like this: "Well, it's do or die." He did . . . but the audience came away completely delighted with it all.

* REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where a $65-a-week New Jersey pencil pusher has sued the salesman to get out of a deal he says he was high-pressured into for a $5300 car.

My doorbell Liberace neighbor says if the court unhooks this dotted line dope it will be a sad day for the sucker farming business.

Says, though, what is really needed is legal protection for high pressure salesmen, who frequently get slick-talked by some high pressure customer into thinking he can meet the payments.

I see where 70 per cent of a physics class in one university flunked here the other day, and most of them started screaming to press, radio, Congress, etc.

My self-leaner neighbor says this shows how the world moves. Back when he was schooling, kids thought it was their own fault if they didn't pass.

Says folks had lots of quaint notions then. Such as they looked on work as honorable and thought a man ought to earn his pay. And when a teen-age thug killed somebody they reproached him instead of TV.

I see where pretty near every problem you can think of is now being meditated by some committee or other.

My out-of-step neighbor says he notes that whatever the subject of their study, these committees most always find more money would fix it.

And says now that we have got the formula, maybe we could do with fewer committees. Like, say, we wouldn't need to keep whole droves of doctors on hand if they all prescribed nothing but castor oil.

I see where the new Lincoln penny has what looks like a typographical error on it, with the word "OF" coming up "oF".

My orderly neighbor says this makes it look like the work of a careless first grader, but the artist says he done it on purpose.

Which leaves the gate open for newspapers to claim they don't make mistakes; they just misspell words and put in those odd lines like "etaoin shrdlu *xx!" for their artistic effect.

I see where it is reported that the Sioux Indian chiefs have asked Russia for $5 million aid to relieve distress among their people.

Seems Congress has been so busy relieving distressed Hotentots, foreign millionaires and other distant unfortunates that some home distress has gone unattended, such as among Indians and taxpayers. But my dark cloud artist neighbor says even if the Sioux get this aid money from Russia, Uncle Sam would take most of it away from them for income taxes, so they can't win.

A Responsibility We Cannot Shirk

Next to national survival, the public responsibility of most urgency today is that of providing adequate educational opportunities for all our children.

From our schools must come not only an enlightened citizenship capable of self government, but also the knowledge and technical skills needed by industry, business, agriculture, the armed forces, and the trades and professions which are so necessary to the maintenance of a high standard of living for all the people.

This bank urges you, during Public School Week, to visit the school in your community. Lend your support to the work it is doing.

Impala Sport Coupe—like every Chevy—has Safety Plate Glass all around.

Chevy stops quickest... goes farthest on a gallon!

Chevy showed the best brakes of the leading low-priced three in a test of repeated stops at highway speeds conducted and certified by NASCAR*. Chevy also won over the other two in a NASCAR economy run—with the highest gas mileage for 6's and V8's at cruising speeds of just over 55 miles an hour.

Here's a car that knows how to get the most out of a gallon. And it's the only car in its field to bring you hydraulic valve lifters in all popular engines—6 and V8. This means smoother, quieter performance for you.

There are many other advances just as fundamental as the efficiency of Chevrolet's engines and the dependability of its new brakes (with more lining area than any other low-priced car). But why not stop by your dealer's and let Chevy do its own sweet talking!

Training at Record Peak Says Guard Leader

WASHINGTON — At the height of World War II, a well known combat general remarked that, "Training is the tip-off!"

Maj. Gen. Donald W. McGowan, Chief of the Army Division, National Guard Bureau, says, "This still holds true today. Training is still the measure of a unit's ability to carry out a given mission."

For the 5,500 company - size units of the Army National Guard, the year 1959 will mark the beginning of a phased program to bring the Guard to the highest possible degree of mobilization readiness. But even in its present stage the Guard has already attained the highest degree of readiness ever reached in peacetime by a reserve element of the United States Army.

"The reason for this," explains General McGowan, "stems from the fact that we are now fully engaged in unit training, in that important training phase when Guardsmen learn to function as a team through application of platoon and company tactics."

An important part of this news is the fact that the National Guard thus gets out of the costly and time-consuming business of repetitive basic individual training. Heretofore this has been a never-ending process. In every community the continuing in-pull of recruits with no prior service placed the burden for basic training upon the local unit commander.

Vigorous participation by the National Guard in various individual training programs with the Active Army has made possible the advance into unit training. Now nearly all members of the Army National Guard are either veterans or graduates of training with the active Army or have received the equivalent of this training. Two years of National Guard training (including two field training periods) is considered the equivalent for the purposes of designating individuals eligible to participate in unit training.

With its basic training worries behind it, the 21 infantry divisions, 6 armored divisions, and numerous nondivisional organizations of the Army National Guard can concentrate on their unit training and on their mobilization readiness.

Exactly what does this mean in terms of the Guard's mission to train to defend?

Hedley-McLean Road Sought

Men from Hedley and McLean were in Austin recently to request paving of a road between those two towns.

Appearing before the State Highway Department were R. W. Scales and V. F. Wade of Hedley and E. L. Sitter of McLean.

They requested a road to run from McKnight, just west of the Collingsworth-Donley County line, at Highway 203, northward to join with State Highway 273 south of McLean.

The estimated cost of the project is $965,000, including $250,000 for a bridge across Salt Fork of Red River.

In addition to being a short distance west of the Collingsworth County line, this road also would be near the proposed Greenbelt Dam.

A Look Toward Technology

Farm Prosperity, Problems Probed in Soils Meeting

Speakers at the annual Soil Fertility Day program Thursday, Feb. 12, discussed four facets of the vast industry that is agriculture. Cecil G. Kersey, who formerly lived at Childress, spoke from the railroads' standpoint; Robert G. Cherry, A&M College, discussed the economics of farming; Dr. G. M. Watkins, dean of agriculture at A&M, told what goes into educating an aggie and Jerry Sotola, with Armour & Company, spoke from the packer's viewpoint.

The annual event was sponsored by the Fort Worth and Denver Railway and the Extension Service.

Kersey

Prosperity in agriculture and livestock is fundamental to every business man in the Wellington area, Cecil G. Kersey, Executive Assistant, FW&D Ry. Co., Houston, told the group.

He expressed optimism for the future of the railroad industry because of new developments and said it would prosper in proportion to agriculture.

"Because of technological advancements in diesel locomotives, cars with greater capacity, higher train speeds, longer trains, and the new piggyback developments, railroads can haul products of farm and ranch more economically than any other transportation media. Railroads haul freight for less than 1 1/2¢ a ton mile. This is less than half the cost by any other known overland method. Freedom from governmental regulation to operate as a transportation agency using all kinds of vehicles, and freedom to price transportation service in a competitive market are definitely needed to give the most efficient and economical service possible for agricultural products. This would definitely benefit all agricultural interests, he said.

Today a train can easily haul 125 cars with two truck trailers each or 250 truck loads piggyback with only one engine and one crew, he pointed out. Railroads seek freedom to provide piggyback service from areas they serve.

Fort Worth and Denver Railway were cosponsors of the program with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Soil Conservation District.

Cherry

Through the annals of American history, few investments have paid off like agricultural research and the Extension Service, Robert G. Cherry, Economist from Texas A&M College said. Each Texas citizen "cuts a melon" in dividends every day, the economist stated.

Cherry is Economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M College System.

One of the problems farmers and ranchmen face today is getting the public to understand how agricultural progress has contributed to the general economy and to each person individually. "Most people understand how we help the farmer and ranchmen," he pointed out, "but they tend to overlook the fact that the city man benefits from our work just as much as the agricultural producer."

In the last 10 years the average Texas income has risen 38 percent. It might be reasonable to expect that the farm price of food would have risen around that same amount. But instead of the price of food, at the farm level, increasing, the opposite has occurred. Food prices at the farm have actually gone down by three percent.

What does this mean to you? Well, let's look at the personal saving to you, the economist suggested.

If the farm price of food had increased the same as personal income, each Texas family would have paid an average of $284 more for its food last year. For the entire state of Texas this adds up to be $768,000,000. The state government's investment in the Texas Agricultural Extension Service for last year was just 13 cents per person. Everybody benefits when research and Extension increase agricultural efficiency, he pointed out.

Moseley Honored by Area FHA

30 Million Gas Customers in 1957

Gas utility and pipeline companies sold more than 77 billion therms of gas to 30.5 million customers during 1957, establishing new records in gas sales and total customers. A therm is equal to about 100 cubic feet of 1000 Btu natural gas, and the amount sold in 1957 provided energy equivalent to the power produced by 575 Hoover Dams. Gas sales have more than doubled since 1947 when about 22 million customers bought nearly 30 billion therms.

OODLES OF OOMPH ON A HATFUL OF GAS

—regular, low-cost economy gas! A mere sprinkling of it takes The Lark for miles and miles with peak performance, whether you drive the spirited six or the super-responsive V-8. And you drive it so easily, park it so tidily, turn it so neatly—because it's a sensible three feet shorter outside than conventional cars. (But plenty of room inside for six.) And with all its economy (cuts insurance, repair and maintenance costs), it's so richly, rightly styled, it's fashion approved by Harper's Bazaar. And beautifully engineered. This is common sense on wheels, folks—and about time you tried it. You can—today. Do it!

Dun & Bradstreet Lists 142 County Business Firms

Each January business concerns in all parts of the United States receive from Dun & Bradstreet requests for their annual financial statements. This year the number of requests going out nationwide will approximate three million, with over 140 going to Collingsworth County businesses.

The Collingsworth County section of the current issue of the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book contains listings of 142 local names comprising manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers. It does not include some of the service and "professional" businesses, such as barbers and beauty shops, real estate and stock brokers. Thus the figure for businesses in Collingsworth County would actually be higher than the 142 quoted above.

Better than 95 per cent of all commercial transactions in the United States are made on credit terms and the buyer and the seller are brought together by means of credit information.

When the owner of a business or his accountant returns his financial statement to Dun & Bradstreet, the owner has taken the first step in establishing his responsibility as a seeker of credit.

The statement becomes a part of the credit report on his business along with a financial analysis, a description of what the business does, and a record of how it pays its bills.

On the basis of the information in the report, a rating is assigned and the businessman is listed in the Dun & Bradstreet Reference Book. This makes it possible for his suppliers and insurance underwriters, who use the book, to look him up and in this way he is assisted in getting his goods and insurance.

In other words, should a manufacturer or wholesaler receive an order for merchandise from a merchant in Wellington the listing and the rating of the merchant can be checked in the Reference Book. And it makes no difference where the seller is located. The listing of the Wellington businessman appears in every issue of the Reference Book in the United States.

A Reference Book listing contains the name of the business and the rating. The rating consists of two symbols. The first, a letter of the alphabet, indicates financial strength or capital. It is the difference between what the business owes and what it owns. The second symbol, a numeral, reflects a composite of financial stability and payment record.

Oklahoma Group to Organize on Salt Fork Dam

Oklahoma groups again are pushing plans for a dam across Salt Fork River 7 miles west of Mangum, with the allotment of $10,300 by Congress for core drillings at the site.

A meeting has been called for Wednesday, March 4, to set up a permanent organization of Soil Conservation District supervisors to work for the project, according to Ray K. Babb Jr. of Mangum, temporary chairman of a group from Greer, Harmon and Jackson counties.

In a meeting Monday, February 16, Babb told the group that the $19,000 allotted by the Reclamation Bureau and the Budget Bureau will finance core drilling at the dam after January 1, 1960, and if the budget bureau restores the original figure allotted for the drilling, $34,000, the survey can be resumed after July 1.

The latest reclamation bureau report specified:

"The bureau only considers the Salt Fork dam project as a potential supplemental supply for the Altus-Lugert irrigation project."

Noted in the report was the finding that "waters of the Salt Fork would be usable (for irrigation) only if mixed with water of better quality."

(This condition would not apply in Collingsworth County, as Salt Fork flows through salt beds a short distance after crossing the Oklahoma State Line.

The report continues to say, however, that the Salt Fork dam near Mangum could be developed either as an extra water source for the Altus-Lugert project for irrigating 20,000 acres of land in the area.

Flood control as well as recreation are being considered as side benefits by the Oklahoma group. In announcing the congressional allotment, Rep. Toby Morris of Lawton told sponsors of the dam the government now considers the Salt Fork dam project as a new conservation undertaking due to lack of appropriations in the past. "Next year we will have the advantage of asking for funds for an established program," he added.

The core drillings will determine whether the project is practical. The proposed Salt Fork project at Mangum would be an earth-filled dam 102 feet high and 5,900 feet long, with a reservoir holding 179,500 acre feet of water.

Sell Seed in 1960

SCD Gets Start of Improved Bluestem

There has been released from the Experiment Station at Woodward, Okla., an improved variety of native sand bluestem grass, Fred Squyres, work unit conservation has announced.

"Sand Bluestem has been one of our outstanding native grasses for years," but it had one drawback, in that the germination is always low, which is common with a lot of native grasses," he remarked.

"Through the efforts of the experiment station and Soil Conservation Service, the plant was improved from the standpoint of germination. It is now feasible to commercially produce it for seed production purposes.

The grass was released in 1958 and through the Soil Conservation Service, A. J. Garland of Ashtola, got enough to sow five acres. He planted it from this, he harvested 270 pounds, and sold Salt Fork Soil Conservation District all the seed that was for sale which is 30 pounds.

That seed has been sold to Monty Mitchell, Earl Patterson, Dan Henard, Bo Yates, and Douglas Coleman.

They will grow Woodward sand bluestem for seed production. Most of this will be under irrigation and fertilized.

It is the plan of these men to make this seed available locally for the 1960 season.

See Democracy in Action

This is Public School Week!
Visit a public school... see the fine job that is being done in them...

Today's public schools teach more than the three R's, but the job of the school remains virtually the same. It is a basic institution of this great and free country. It teaches your children about the benefits of our way of life. It teaches them to enjoy and appreciate freedom.

All people of Wellington should be proud of their school system. You are urged to pay some tribute to the schools during this week. The school officials and teachers invite you to see what they are doing to build character, to mold citizens worthy of their heritage of American citizenship.

Agencies Work Together

ACP Program for 1958 Helps 340 With Conservation Work

The following report on the 1958 Agricultural Conservation Program for the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District was made by Millard Brown of the local ACP office.

The 1958 Collingsworth County Agricultural Conservation Program, ACP, shared with 340 farmers in the County in established selected conservation practices needed to improve and protect their soil and water resources on their farms.

In addition to sharing the cost of conservation practices, the County ACP also helped provide technical services necessary to the success of the practices by transferring $3640.00 to the Soil Conservation Service.

The County ACP Development Group, composed of the ASC County Committee including the County Agent and designated representative of the Soil Conservation Service, developed the County ACP. In doing this, the group consulted with the governing body of the Soil Conservation District and recommendations from the ASC community committees and other agricultural agencies and groups with agricultural interests. The program was designed so that, along with conservation education, technical services, and other conservation efforts, it would be most useful in meeting local conservation problems.

Practices carried out on farms with ACP cost-sharing were needed land treatment measures.

During the 1958 program year about $48,715.00 of ACP cost-sharing was used on the 340 farms to help solve particular problems by establishing needed conservation practices. This represented about 27 percent of the farms in the county. These practices included the following: 16 farms establishing a permanent vegetative cover for soil protection on 555.2 acres;

Sixteen farms deferred to improve vegetative cover on range land on 4675.0 acres; 15 farms controlling competitive shrubs to improve vegetative cover on range land on 1209.0 acres; 16 farms constructing wells for livestock water as a means of protecting vegetative cover for 1355 ft.; 9 farms constructing dams for livestock water as a means of protecting vegetative cover for 25,953 cubic yards.

One farm establishing sod water to dispose of excess water on 3.7 acres; 46 farms constructing terraces to detain or control the flow of water and check soil erosion for 530,561 ft.; 3 farms constructing diversion terraces to intercept runoff and divert excess water to protected outlets for 3936 cubic yards; 57 farms establishing summer legumes as a protection from erosion on 2024.6 acres; 97 farms deep plowing sandy cropland to protect from wind erosion on 4298.1 acres;

Three farms controlling bindweeds as a necessary step in the control of wind erosion on 2.3 acres; 82 farms seeding rye to establish a cover for the control of wind erosion on 4559.1 acres; 2 farms applying cotton burs to cropland for the control of wind erosion on 43.3 acres; 25 farms listing or chiseling cropland as a protection from wind erosion on 3168.0 acres.

There were 94 purchase orders issued to vendors to assist farmers in paying for their conservation work when the practice is completed.

Emergency flood damage practices carried out are as follows: 1 farm removed debris deposited by floods on 10.0 acres; 3 farms leveling flood damaged land to permit resumption of normal cultural operations on 39.7 acres; 77 farms reconstructing terraces to detain or control the flow of water and check erosion for 71,94,562 feet; 27 farms reconstructing dams for livestock water as a means of protecting vegetative cover where its usefulness was destroyed by flood for 111,740 cubic yards. There were 74 purchase orders issued to vendors under the emergency practice to assist farms in paying for the work when the practice is completed.

The ASC County Committee transferred to the SCS $3190.00 for technical assistance in carrying out the provisions of the emergency flood damage program.

There were 74 farmers who participated in the 1958 emergency flood damage program and received cost-sharing in the amount of $57,216.67 to assist in getting the above practices completed.

Visitors Participate in Public School Week Here

Collingsworth County schools this week are observing Public School Week with special programs, open house, or visitation days.

This is an annual event, when parents and the community as a whole are urged to take note of work the public schools are doing and to visit them.

Open House will be held at Quail school Friday, March 6, Herman Moseley, superintendent, has announced.

Work will continue on schedule until 1:30 p.m., when the Quail high school choir will give a 30 minute Assembly program.

Announcements and instructions will be given students and parents desiring to visit in the different classrooms at the assembly.

After assembly, three 15-minute class periods will be held. Teachers in grades one through six may choose any three subjects they wish to teach. Subjects will be designated for grades 7 through 12.

Classes will end by 3 p.m., when parents will be invited to see a motion picture in the visual aid room. Students will remain in their rooms until the regular dismissal time.

Dodson
Dodson schools held Visitation Day Tuesday, March 3, but parents will continue to visit the school through the week, T. E.

Lennon, Supt., reported.

Science was emphasized for visitation day, with every grade setting up an exhibit, and almost all students of the school participating in the demonstrations.

Lennon explained that science begins in the Dodson schools in the primary class and through the third grade is integrated with other subjects. Beginning with the fourth grade, however, a pure science program has been set up.

Magnets, electricity and machines were among demonstrations set up by the younger students. High school science students were making a cloud chamber, using dry ice, in which to demonstrate the path of cosmic rays.

Wellington
Wellington schools are holding open house throughout the week, according to M. L. Burks, high school principal.

Visitors will be able to see regular class work and listen to the lessons for that particular day, he said.

Members of the Masonic Lodge visited the school Monday.

Sammorwood
A guest program, presented by the Shamrock Irish Band Tuesday provided the formal entertainment at Sammorwood high school during Public School Week.

Visiting by parents will continue through the week.

Housing Authority Sells Second Series of Notes

The Wellington Housing Authority has accepted the bid of the Chemical Corn Exchange Bank of New York on $306,000 temporary notes, N. M. Higdon, secretary announced this week.

The interest rate is $1.76 and the premium amounted to $4.00.

This is the second series of temporary notes issued by the housing authority. The money will be used to pay off the first series of $291,000 bought by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York and maturing March 13.

The $15,000 additional already has gone into construction costs.

The second series will be dated March 10, 1959 and will mature on September 11 of this year. By that time, the exact cost of Wellington's low rent housing unit will be known and at that time either long term notes or another short term series will be sold.

The Wellington project was approved for $375,000, but Higdon estimated the completed cost will run slightly under that, probably about $36,000.

Two other bids were received on the second series of temporary notes: one from the Chase Manhattan Bank of New York, with $1.87 interest rate and $4.00 premium and the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, $1.93 interest rate and $13.00 premium.

again in the third, but Anson came alive and with Davis a long-shot artist leading the team, they made 14 points to Wellington's 6 and edged to a 34-32 lead.

Scoring continued on both sides during the final period and with two minutes of the game left Anson went ahead three points. Marcella Savage then scored a field goal for the Rockettes, to pull within one point of a tie.

Anson started a freeze with a minute to go, and the Rockettes had to foul to get possession of the ball. Anson scored one free shot on this foul and missed one.

Theda Martin hit the basket to tie the game 47-47.

With six seconds left, Anson fouled and Pat Tompkins missed the free shot.

Centers Theda Martin and Watkins, who tops Theda by an inch, jumped to open the first overtime period and Anson got possession. Taking the ball downfield, an Anson player accidentally kicked it out of bounds to give Wellington possession. Every opportunity for the Rockettes to shoot was a poor one but they shot anyway—and missed them all and the teams went into the second period sudden death overtime still 47-47. In this play, the first team to score two points wins.

Martin and Watkins again jumped for the ball, there was a scramble and Zenith Phipps recovered for the Rockettes. As she did, an Anson player reached across her back and fouled Zenith. Wellington got a one and one free shot.

Pat Tompkins went to the line and tossed. The ball rimmed around the goal, then toppled in. Pat tossed the second one squarely in the basket to give the Rockets the 49-47 championship.

Mrs. M. W. Martin of Cuba, N. M. is here this week visiting her mother, Mrs. J. C. Devenport, and sister and brother, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Crawley and Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Devenport.
