

Trade Day To Celebrate Homecoming

With the usual large crowd in Bogata this Saturday for the 17th Annual Bogata Homecoming, an especially successful monthly Trade Day is expected by Bogata Trade Day Association officers.

The Bogata Trade Day is held the second Saturday of each month, and this month coincides with the annual Bogata Homecoming, June 14.

Activities of the day pertaining to Homecoming will include meetings of individual graduating classes, a fish fry, program, and dance. The Trade Day will have a drawing for prizes donated by Bogata merchants at 3:00 p.m. at the Trade Day grounds on Highway 271 at the Tip Top Drive In.

Many of the merchants in downtown Bogata are planning to open special booths at Trade Day this month, and with shoppers looking for something different for a Father's Day gift, the Bogata Trade Day is the place to look. Items as diverse as guns to gumballs can be found at the Bogata Trade, and a special selection is planned for this Trade Day, which can be part of a fun weekend for people coming to Bogata for Homecoming of Father's Day.

Merchants participating in the Bogata Trades Day drawing and prizes they are donating are: Joe Ford Grocery, a ten pound bag of sugar; United Dollar Store, Bird Bath; Lassiter Hardware, Patio Cooler; Bogata Furniture, $10.00 Gift Certificate; Mankins Grocery, three pounds of Folger's Coffee; Bogata Cleaners, suit or dress cleaned and pressed.

SSI Status Changes Must Be Reported

Persons who receive the Supplemental Security Income payments each month (gold colored checks) are reminded that reports of change should be reported promptly to the Social Security Administration in Paris.

Vernon W. Daniel, District Manager, stated that these checks are now the responsibility of Social Security and any changes which might affect the amount of SSI check must be reported to the Paris office. Some of the things which must be reported include: change in mailing address, change in amount of income from any source, marriage, termination of a marriage by death or divorce, change in living arrangement, or admission to a nursing home or public facility.

Daniel pointed out that some of these changes do not affect the amount of the SSI checks, but some may increase or decrease the amount payable. The report may be made by telephone to the Paris office, and collect calls of this nature may be placed. In fact, collect calls are accepted on any matters pertaining to social security of SSI. The number is 784-2593.

Maverick Stolen In Clarksville

A Red River County Sheriff's office spokesman reported Tuesday morning that a car had been stolen Thursday, June 5 at 11:30 a.m. from G.A. Hines Auto Sales and recovered in Cleburne, Texas the next day. The Idabel man left a 1968 model car on the Hines lot and took a 1973 Maverick Grabber for a test drive. He returned and told Hines he would buy the car, but wanted to talk to his father about the purchase, and left again. Hines reported the car missing to the sheriff's office at 4:00 p.m. and a local bulletin was put out. A service station reported that a man answering the description had filled the car up with gasoline and drove away at a high rate of speed.

A check of registration of the 1968 model car revealed that it was registered to an Idabel woman, who gave Red River County authorities the identification of the man driving the car. He was arrested in Cleburne, where he had given a Cleburne auto dealer a check for another car. The man is being held in Cleburne for charges and trial before he will be released to Red River County authorities.

100 Attend Groundbreaking Ceremonies For Nursing Home

More than 100 visitors and residents of Deport were present at Grant Park and at the site of a groundbreaking of the new 102 bed Deport Nursing Home Tuesday morning.

The four-shovel groundbreaking ceremony followed a gathering in the park in which Texas Senator A.M. Aikin was the principal speaker.

Aikin is a native of Milton and a graduate of Deport High School. He topped the list of county and city officials who came to extend best wishes to Roy and Martha Castlebury, owners of the $500,000 facility.

Deport Mayor Charles Foster opened the ceremony with a welcome address. The Rev. Ed Barrentine, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Deport, gave the invocation. County and city officials who attended were Jimmy Sparks, county commissioner; Lester Crutchfield, county judge, who introduced Senator Aikin; Jean Brown, county clerk; Myra Nell Wilson, district clerk; Lloyd Sterling, department of public welfare; Louie Noles, county sheriff; all the members of the Deport city council, Duane Glover, Duane White, Mrs. Ross Skaggs; S.A. (Nig) Woodall and Roy Castlebury; and Bud Nobles, Deport city marshal.

Some of the residents of the Deport Nursing Home were present for the ceremony. Following the addresses, the group walked across the street to the building site, and Senator Aikin, Roy and Martha Castlebury, Jimmy Sparks and Charles Foster broke the ground for the new building.

The original home now in operation was established in 1957 and employs approximately 30 people. The new facility will bring 30 new jobs to Deport with a staff of 60.

Softball Tournament Now In Progress

A men's softball tournament will begin tonight (Thursday) in Jolintown, with the Jolintown team hosting Como, Quitman, Monticello, Mount Pleasant, Paris, Dallas and Denison.

The concession stand will be open, and will feature homemade pie, stew, cake, and soft drinks. The women of Jolintown will have charge of the concession stand, and the proceeds are to go to pay the debt of the ball park.

The public is invited to attend.

Bogata Man Beaten And Stomped

Ray (Shine) Stephenson, the owner and operator of a domino parlor and other property in downtown Bogata, was severely beaten and stomped Tuesday, June 10 between 6:30 and 7:00 p.m. inside his business on Main Street in Bogata.

The daylight attack apparently took place between 6:30 p.m., when Joe Greger closed his Bogata Furniture Store across the street from Shine's Domino Hall, and 7:00 p.m., when Bogata News publisher Bob Wright found Stephenson sitting on a bench in front of the building that adjoins the domino hall. He was bleeding from the mouth and nose and was semi-conscious when found.

A trail of blood led from the front door of the domino hall which was locked, to the bench where Stephenson was sitting.

Difficulty in the direct dial telephone service between Bogata and Clarksville caused a seven minute delay between the initial attempt and final contact with the ambulance service in Clarksville. The party calling for the ambulance had to go through two operators two different times before the ambulance could be reached.

Red River County sheriff's officers, who were waiting for Stephenson when he reached the hospital, said that he had suffered a broken nose, several broken teeth, a broken jaw and some broken ribs. Difficulty in making x-rays of Stephenson, who is dwarfed, slowed the determination of further injuries.

Deputies were in Bogata Tuesday night to investigate the beating and to find witnesses.

THE SCIENTISTS TELL ME ...

By Robert L. Haney, Science Writer
The Texas Agricultural Experiment Station

They've Found A Better Way to Diagnose Iron Deficiency

Iron deficiency in humans is a major health concern in Texas. A better way to detect it is of great importance to better health.

Like many elements, iron is essential to good health. Among other things iron is essential to hemoglobin production in red blood cells.

Nutritional problems among large portions of the population were revealed in a study made by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The 10-state nutrition survey that included Texas gave iron deficiency a high priority health rating, especially among pregnant and lactating women and low income groups.

A new human iron deficiency diagnosis method is attracting international attention. Dr. George W. Bates, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station biochemist who developed the technique, says it should help us to better understand and measure the extent of human iron deficiency in both developed and undeveloped nations.

Several standard iron deficiency diagnosis methods have long been used, but these can be inconsistent and misleading. Therefore, Bates and Graduate Student Gary Graham of the Texas A&M University Biochemistry and Biophysics Department developed what they call "differential chelation-ultrafiltration," or simply, DCU. They believe it provides "unparalleled accuracy."

If DCU is accepted

by the science world, Bates says it should prove especially valuable in nutrition studies of iron deficiency. The new technique should also be valuable in preventive medicine, since it enables diagnosis of latent iron deficiency before the condition develops into severe anemia.

Asked just how serious iron deficiency is, Bates said, "Iron deficiency in various stages is perhaps the most prevalent nutritional problem in the world today, affecting the health, vitality and economic productivity of countless millions."

"While iron deficiencies have been recognized and treated for centuries, it is only within the past few decades that reasonably large groups have been examined and a true appreciation of the prevalence of iron deficiency has been recognized."

"Studies in Southern Germany have shown 65 percent of the women tested to have latent iron deficiency and 14 percent to have overt anemia. These figures compare with 10 percent and two percent for males."

"In Sweden, 40 percent of the women tested showed signs of iron deficiency and 25 percent were anemic."

"In the United States, iron deficiency anemia may be found in 12 percent of nonpregnant and 20 to 58 percent percent of pregnant women."

"It is estimated that the iron assimilation for the average American or European diet is generally not sufficient to satisfy the nutritional demands of women in their child-bearing years."

Basic blood chemistry research conducted by Bates and his associates is giving medical science new insight into this complex, but basic problem of animal and human metabolism.

When something containing iron is eaten, it enters the digestive system and eventually comes into contact with the membranes surrounding the small intestine. Here it is absorbed into the blood stream through a process involving a blood protein called transferrin. Apparently, the transferrin protein finds its way to the intestinal membranes where it loads up with iron and returns to the blood stream. Once in the blood stream, the transferrin carries the iron to the red blood cells where it is used in production of hemoglobin, the oxygen transport protein essential to cell life.

Bates' blood chemistry work is gaining attention both in the U.S. and abroad. He has discussed his DCU method specifically for the Hungarian Institute of Hematology and the Hematology Congress, Israel. Last fall he was invited to and participated in the international Conference on Coordination Chemistry in Ireland. The biochemist was symposium speaker on metals in biological systems during the American Chemical Society national meeting in New Jersey and discussed his DCU method at the Texas Medical Association meeting in Houston.

Gardening Made Easy

By Barrie L. Kridler

This is one of the greenest springs because of all the rain and if you've fertilized yards and the shrub and tree plantings you should really be seeing new growth. It's amazing how fast plants can grow once they get established and trees are no exception. Even plants that are reputed to be slow growing like live oaks and pecans can amaze you if they are properly planted with a lot of peatmoss, watered well during dry spells and fed monthly with a few handfuls of fertilizer. Live oaks and pin oaks I planted only a few years ago are now producing shade enough to sit under and a place to hang baskets. Trees and shrubs in containers can be set out all summer but get with it this week and put in some trees for summer enjoyment. If you put it off another year you are just that much farther away from a shady retreat.

Set out copper plants, lantana, periwinkle, celosia, portulaca (moss rose), marigolds and zinnias in sunny spots for color all summer. Dehlias, cannas and glads are quick to grow now and will bloom in 8 to 12 weeks from planting. Keep on planting them all summer and you'll have fresh color all summer long and into the fall. Work in peatmoss and other organic matter when you plant to hold moisture this year during the summer. Use those grass clippings from the yard to mulch the plants and they will grow faster and better.

In the shade put in more caladiums (either the started plants or the cheaper bulbs) begonias, impatiens, coleus, ferns and try wandering jew. Can you believe all the hanging baskets around town? They really add a lot to porches and patios—lots of lucky moms got them this Mother's Day and they'll enjoy them all year.

THE BLACK earth yielded to the shovels of Senator A.M. Aikin, Roy and Martha Castlebury, Jimmie Sparks and Charles Foster during ground-breaking ceremonies at

Consumers' Corner

Multipurpose Furniture
The smaller, more compact homes of today are calling for less furniture and for furniture that has multiple uses.

Among the multipurpose pieces that are gaining in popularity are the small chests in place of night tables, low chests in place of lamp tables, sleeping units with storage underneath, and a hutch on top of a buffet, instead of a separate china cabinet.

Chests, cabinets and cases with squared-off lines can be grouped side by side for more storage in less space or placed separately as needs change.

For flexible storage in relatively small spaces, modular wall systems should be considered. These units include wall-hung, pole-suspended, free standing or stacked systems of chests, cabinets, record and file cabinets, desk and bookshelf units. The units, all of the same width and depth, can be changed to be used in many combinations to meet various needs or to be easily moved to a new home. Wall systems offer expandability. One can start with a small section and add to it as finances permit.

Wasp From India Battles Bean Beetle From Mexico

A miniature "war of nations" is being waged in Maryland and the soybean grower on the sidelines may be the winner. The battle is being waged by a tiny wasp from India against the Mexican bean beetle, a primary pest of soybeans in the Middle Atlantic states.

The pest has been on the rise in that area for the past three years, and chemicals to keep it under control have been costing soybean growers over $5 an acre.

Dr. Allen Steinhauer of the Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station released numbers of the beneficial wasps two years ago at six different sites. Within several weeks, they were destroying bean beetle larvae in soybean fields as far as 40 miles away.

Results from additional releases have been so promising in reducing beetle population, that large-scale control efforts may be tried.

The non-stinging wasp—which is smaller than a gnat—was discovered by an Agricultural Research Service entomologist on a search in India for insects beneficial to man. Early tests in New Jersey pointed to the wasp's effectiveness, and additional wasps were brought in.

Since the Maryland test began, parasitic wasps have been sent to Florida, South Carolina, Virginia, and Delaware for separate studies.

Researchers say the wasp is probably adaptable to any soybean growing area in the U.S. It must be re-released each year in Maryland since it does not overwinter in that state.

Scientists consider the soybean plant ideal for biological controls because it can tolerate 40 percent defoliation without a loss in bean yield. Therefore, growers can postpone insecticide use until this threshold is reached.

In the meantime, the tiny beetle-hunting wasp can be at work.

SPEED SKATER

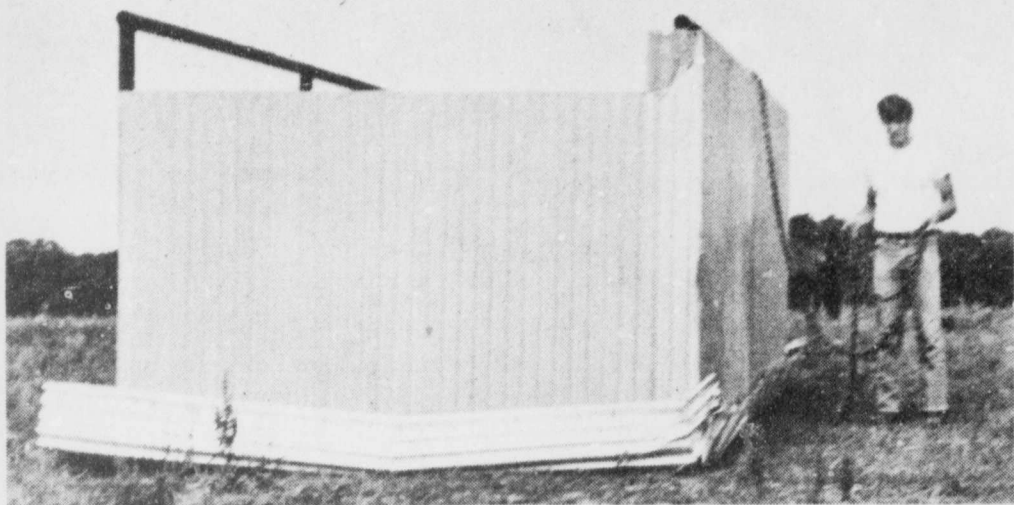

Champion speed skaters are capable of sprinting 500 yards at 30 miles an hour. They cover six-mile courses in just under 15 minutes.

A HANDSHAKE was exchanged between County Judge, Lester Crutchfield, and Senator A.M. Aikin before Aikin made an address to those attending the groundbreaking ceremonies of Deport Nursing Home Tuesday morning. (Staff Photo).

Farms selling more than $20,000 worth of farm products are considered large enough to provide operators with an income comparable to that of non-farm people. Average investment required to operate such a farm is now estimated at $390,000 and rising.

CANCER Answerline

American Cancer Society

A rancher explains: "My great-aunt from England is visiting with my family for a while and I worry about her because she insists on staying out under our Texas sun. I'm sure it's not good for her."

ANSWERline: You are wise to be wary. Senior citizens and too much sun just don't mix well. Elderly people are susceptible to skin cancer when they take too much sun. If your aunt prefers our sun to England's famous weather, please treat her to a big sun hat!

Question: "How did the Pap test get its name?"

ANSWERline: The Pap test, the famous and extremely important early diagnostic test for cancer of the uterus, is named for the man who developed it, the late Dr. George Papanicolaou.

A busy mother explains: "My favorite uncle died of cancer a month ago and although I don't have much free time, I'd like to do something to help in the fight against cancer. What can I do?"

ANSWERline: Please check with your local American Cancer Society office. There are dozens of important tasks for volunteers and the ACS can make good use of whatever time you can spare. For example, a free hour could be used to transport cancer patients to treatment centers, or you could explain health habits to school children.

Question: "Does this country have the worst problem in the world with cigarette smoking?"

ANSWERline: Cigarette-related disease is a great American problem. Indeed one authority calls it an epidemic. However, Scotland, England, and Wales have the sad distinction of leading the world in lung cancer deaths.

A young woman writes: "I have heard that people over 40 should have a 'procto'. I want my parents to have this kind of protection. But I can't bring myself to talk about anything as personal as a test for bowel cancer with them."

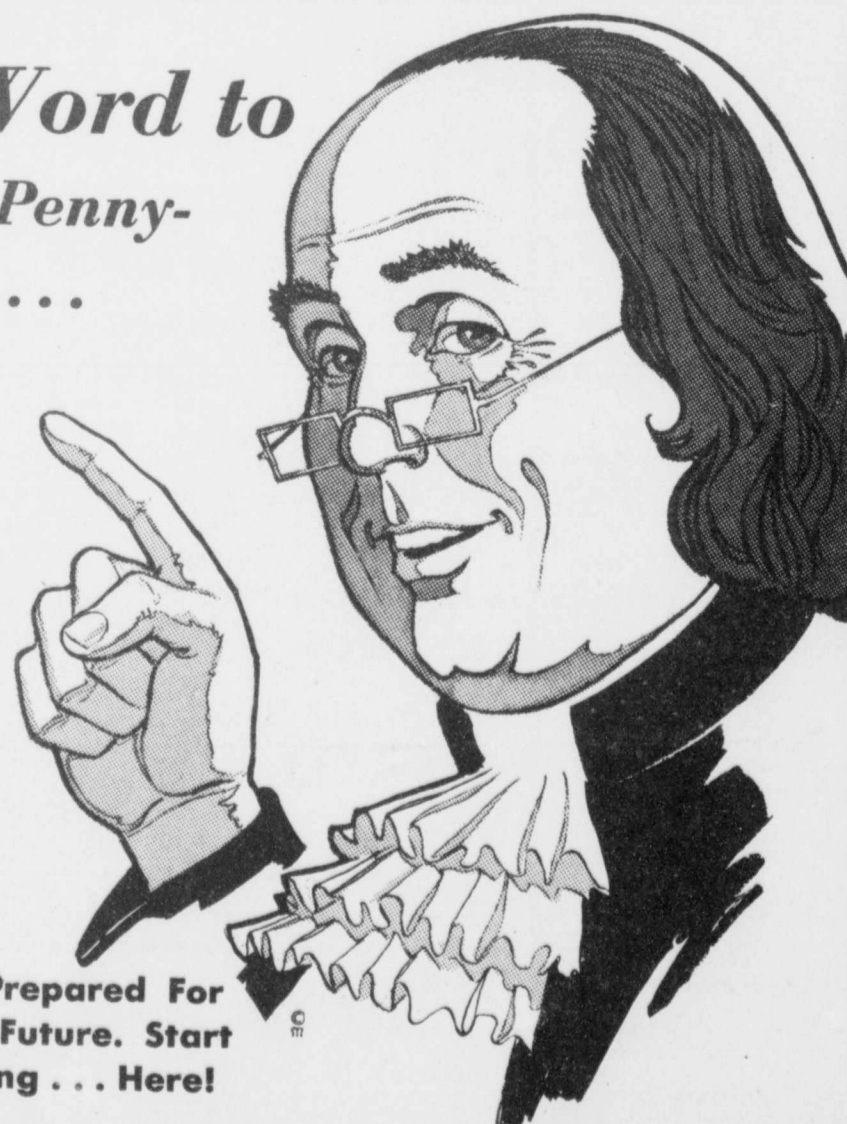

ANSWERline: Your sense of caution or rather, precaution, is very good. A "procto" is a way of finding possible bowel cancer early. If your parents have regular checkups your physician might suggest the test. If not, ask your local ACS to send your parents some information about the importance and need for both checkups and proctos. That way they'll get a valuable idea for continued good health and you won't have to introduce the subject yourself. If they then delay having a checkup, you might do a little nagging. Please remember that there is nothing embarrassing about doing all you can to help save people you love.

Question: "Isn't it true that cancer is exclusively an old person's disease?"

ANSWERline: No. While half of cancer deaths occur among people over 65, cancer strikes all ages. In fact, more school children, about 3,500 die of cancer than from any other disease.
