MUST HAVE 85 PER CENT OF PATRONS REGISTERED; INSPECTION ON JULY 1

Postmistress Fanny M. Black states that but very few have registered for free city mail delivery which is authorized to start August 1 providing all requirements are met and urges patrons to do so at once.

A representative of the postal department will be in Perryton, July 1, to make a report and it is necessary that action be taken at once. There is no cost to the patrons served by the delivery except the mail box which can be obtained from any of a number of local stores and should be purchased and put up at once.

The free city delivery must serve at least eighty-five per cent of the patrons in the proposed district according to the postal requirements and extensions of the districts will be made as soon as other parts of the city have met the requirements.

In case property owners in this district are unable to put in concrete walks, gravel, cinders or caliche walks or walks of any material that will drain, will be suitable for the present but some provision must be made, not only in front but also along the side of the property.

It is thought that free city mail delivery will force free express delivery for the business district which is also being sought.

At the regular business meeting of the Farnsworth 4-H Club, held Monday evening, plans were made for an open air box supper to be held on Friday evening, July 18, at Farnsworth. The proceeds from the sale of boxes will be used to send two representatives from the club to the A. & M. college short course which is to be held during the last week in July.

The boy and girl making the best records in their club projects will be the ones chosen to make the trip.

A committee composed of Jewell and Joe Brown, Margaret Rogers, Vaneta Morgan and Iva French was appointed to make all arrangements for the box supper and program. Because of the warm weather it was decided to hold it out of doors. All political candidates will be invited to make short talks and Perryton has been invited to furnish music for the occasion.

NO ONE BUT MEMBERS MAY PLAY ON LOCAL GOLF CLUB IS RULING

After July 1, non-members of the Perryton Golf Club will be asked to refrain from using the course which is being maintained on Wolf Creek, south of Perryton, according to a new ruling made by officers of the organization.

The course is a private one and is being maintained by the payment of dues by the golf fans who wish to play. It takes funds to keep up such a course and it is not fair to the members who are paying their dues to permit others to play who do not help to support the organization.

Several days grace is being given with this ruling to permit those who wish to continue using the grounds to become a member of the club. Membership can be obtained from any member of the committee composed of R. P. Hurn, C. E. Woods, or C. W. Claybaugh, or from President J. H. Scott or Secretary Virb Conley.

Guest cards will be issued to traveling men who wish to play on the course, while in Perryton.

MAKE STUDY OF WHEAT FIELDS

ETYOLOGIST FINDS DISEASES AND PESTS AFFECTING WHEAT IN THIS SECTION

T. L. Thomas, chief etymologist of the state experiment station with headquarters at A. & M. college, with County Agent Guy R. Sheets made a tour of Ochiltree county inspecting the wheat that is affected by insects and diseases. They found at least four distinct diseases, the most severe being the "foot-rot" and found that insects are doing a great deal of damage here. Thomas was here to make a survey of the situation and will report his findings to headquarters at A. & M. college.

A number of farmers are alarmed because of the increased acreage of wheat that is affected with the diseases and insects. The crop will be cut short by many thousands of bushels in the North Plains section because of these and local wheat men are eager to find some means of checking same.

Charles Fike was a dinner guest Sunday of Randal Jones.

ELLIS TO OPEN FRIDAY NIGHT

WESTERN ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT BEING INSTALLED AT COST OF AROUND $8,000.00

The Ellis Theatre was dark last night and will be closed again tonight, Thursday, while the new Western Electric talking equipment is being installed, but will be ready to open Friday night, according to the management. This new equipment is to replace the present DeForrest equipment which has been in use in the theatre which has been than a year.

The Western Electric equipment that is being installed will cost approximately $8,000.00. It is a much more powerful unit than the old set and is of the latest type, with many improvements over the equipment of a year ago. The DeForrest equipment will be installed in the American Theatre as soon as the building can be remodeled and redecorated and made ready for sound, giving Perryton two excellently equipped theatres.

The Ellis Theatre will open Friday night with William Powell and Marion Shilling in "Shadow of the Law." The American will also run Friday and Saturday with a silent picture.

Hotel Holds Opening

New Hotel Hiland At Booker Holds Formal Opening On Last Saturday

Booker's new twenty room modern hotel had its formal opening on last Saturday, June 15, and a number from Perryton attended. The new Hotel Hiland was built by Mr. and Mrs. Bony Cook and is a credit to any town, regardless of size.

It is completely modern in every respect with every convenience to be found. On Main street are three new store rooms which are for lease. A Coffee Shop is being run in conjunction with the hotel.

The New Hotel Hiland building is not the only improvement to be noted in Booker. Six or seven other new bricks have been built during the past few months, paving is being laid on Main street, city water and sewer has been installed and gas mains have been laid. Many new residences also speak of the prosperity and development of this growing city.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Callaway and T. D. Moss represented Perryton at the banquet held on the night of the opening in the new Coffee Shop.

EARLY SUNDAY MORNING RAIN TOTALS .47 INCH

The rain which fell early last Sunday morning totaled .47 inch, so reports Attorney Jack Allen, who keeps the official government guage. This moisture fell at a good time for feed and late grain fields. The precipitation was general over the Perryton territory.

TESTS 60 POUNDS AND AVERAGES EIGHTEEN BUSHELS TO THE ACRE

BROUGHT IN BY DEL WILSON AND IS SOLD TO EQUITY FOR 71c; MOISTURE TESTS 13 3/4; SECOND LOAD COMES IN WEDNESDAY A. M.

The first load of 1930 wheat was received in Perryton Tuesday evening at about 5:30 o'clock, brought in buy Del Wilson and sold to the Perryton Equity Exchange. The wheat was of fine color and tested 60 pounds and according to Mr. Wilson is making an average of around eighteen bushels to the acre. The moisture tested 13 3/4 and it sold for 71c a bushel.

The second load was brought in Wednesday morning by T. M. Osborn, testing 56 with a moisture content of 15. It was likewise sold to the Equity.

According to wheat growers and grain dealers the average over the Perryton trade territory is expected to reach around twelve bushels to the acre, even including the light wheat area in the west part of the county and the hail sections to the northwest. Some wheat in this territory is expected to average better than forty bushels.

Wheat in this particular section is said to be the best in the Panhandle according to reports and Ochiltree county is again expected to be the banner wheat county of Texas.

Harvesting all over this trade territory will probably be well under way by Monday and the peak of the rush is expected to be reached during the latter part of the week. Grain dealers are cautioning farmers to not cut their wheat until it is thoroughly dry and does not contain any green grains. All of the wheat that has been received is too wet to handle, according to reports.

CITY COUNCIL ORDERS PAVING

ONLY FEW PROPERTY OWNERS OPPOSE PAVING; TO BE STARTED IN NEAR FUTUE

Only twenty-six property owners appeared before the protest meeting of the city council held Monday of this week to decide the paving issue and but a very few of those appearing actually opposed the proposition, the majority of them stating that they would pave if the program was carried out but were not in favor of it.

Following the meeting the city governing body decided to go on with the proposed project and ordered the paving in. According to Mayor C. E. Forbes the actual paving work will be started as soon as one of the paving districts can be signed up which should be within ten days or two weeks.

Mayor Forbes also states that there is plenty of local help available and that there will be no demand for additional laborers.

Will Reduce Acreage

W. B. Dennison Will Plant Flax and Soy Beans; Believes In The Farm Board

W. B. Dennison, pioneer Ochiltree county wheat farmer, and president of the Perryton Equity Exchange, the largest and most successful farmer's organization in the country, plans to lend all the support possible to the Federal Farm Board. He says all the wheat of the Equity will be sold through the farm board if he has his way, and that he is sure his members will be of the same opinion.

Dennison also plans to reduce his wheat acreage at least twenty per cent for the coming year as a further means of helping to wipe out the surplus. He will try about fifty acres of flax, some soy beans and grain sorghums and is urging other farmers of this section to mix up their operations. "The summer fallow system should be practiced as this will not only help the Farm Board but it is one of the safest ways to make wheat in this section," he said.

Secure County Agent

Lipscomb County To Have County Farm Agent After First Of September

Lipscomb county will have a county agricultural agent after September 1, according to John R. Edmonds, District Agent, who spent Tuesday night of last week in Perryton. Mr. Edmonds met with the Lipscomb Commissioners on Monday before coming here and they voted to make the appropriation necessary for the employment of a county agent.

Community leaders from Follett, Higgins and Lipscomb, as well as a number of prominent farmers met with the commissioners in the interest of the employment of a county agent.

Jerome Woods, who has been attending Georgia Tech, returned home last Friday. He visited a few days this week with friends at Liberal, Kans., after which he will assist at the Perryton National Bank during the summer.

LIONS LOST TO SPEARMAN TEAM

SPEARMAN CUBS ADMINISTER SECOND DRUBBING PRECEEDING BANQUET TUESDAY

"Let's hear no more about this base ball game," were Dave Shanks' comments at the Lions club banquet held in the Hotel Perryton Coffee Shop, Tuesday evening, following the game between the clubs at Spearman and Perryton on the local field.

And his remarks voiced the sentiments of the entire Perryton delegation, who went down in defeat before the fast Lions team from Spearman by a score of 11 to 3, the second such drubbing that has been administered to the local Lions in this field of sport.

Of course it was all in fun, and both clubs had plenty of it at the ball game as well as the banquet. The program was rather an impromptu affair but was quite successful for the purpose for which it was intended, to get better acquainted with their neighbors. And the Lionesses present seemed to enjoy the gathernig as much as the Lions.

The Perryton band, under the direction of Lion L. O. Byerly, serenaded the gathering with several snappy tunes.

THIS CHANGEABLE COUNTRY OF OURS

NO WONDER EUROPEANS FIND LIFE IN AMERICA SO EXCITING

By Caleb Johnson

The most interesting thing about America, in the eyes of foreigners is the speed with which we change our habits, customs and way of living. Life in America seems very exciting to Europeans, accustomed to a social structure in which every individual is fixed in his job or social position, and never moves out of it.

In America the only constant thing is change. And our lives, our businesses, our whole scheme of existence, are predicted upon the probability that, whatever we may be doing this year, the chance is better than even that we will have to do something else next year. Wherever we live today, we may be living a thousand miles away tomorrow.

One of the principal causes of this constant shifting of bases is the speed with which new inventions are developed and put into practical and general use. They affect everybody to some degree; they probably affect the farmer more than they do any other single class.

Twenty years ago there were eighteen million acres of farm land in the United States growing fodder for horses, for example. Now 25,000,000 motor vehicles have displayed the horses and these machines get their fodder from the oil-wells. The blacksmith and the wheelwright have disappeared, but in their places we have a million and a half men working for wages as drivers of motor trucks, to say nothing of the garage workers and other people employed in looking after the rest of the great motordriven fleet.

These men have been taken away from the farms. They no longer produce their own food. So there is an offset to the farmer's loss on his hay and oats. He must grow more food for people, less for horses.

Artifical silk, the product of a modern invention, has almost ruined the cotton market; women prefer silk, real or manufactured from wood pulp, and invention has cheapened both kinds while incomes have increased so that tens of millions who used to have trouble buying enough cotton goods for clothing now can dress in silk, or its imitation, rayon. Now a new process for getting a sugar substitute out of cotton seed may bring cotton back as a profitable crop.

A few years ago few homes and fewer business buildings were warm enough for comfort in winter, in the northern parts of the country where population is thickest. People had to wear wool indoors and out to keep from freezing. Innumerable inventions and cheapening means of production of heating devices make such protection unnecessary indoors, while outdoors, in motion, light clothing suffices even in the coldest weather except for a heavy overcoat. The closed car put the finishing touch on the wool industry. Sheep farmers who thought they were established for life have gone out of that line into others.

When most of the people lived in the country the nation as a whole ate bulky foods. Now we are moving into the cities and demand concentrated nourishment. This has immensely cut down the consumption of wheat and corn, enormously increased the demand for dairy products—milk, cheese and butter—for pork, for eggs and poultry. The industrial shift to the towns means a parallel shift on the farm. It takes two acres of land to produce dairy products equivalent in food value to one acre in wheat.

We are shifting rapidly to the cities. Census returns up to the latter part of April indicate that the farm population has fallen off even more than was anticipated, and that with hardly an exception the cities have grown hugely: Atlanta has increased its population 35 per cent in ten years; Austin, Texas, 48 per cent; Lakeland, Florida, 130 per cent; Ventura, California, 186 per cent; Decatur, Georgia 121 per cent; Phoenix, Arizona, 60 per cent; Lynchburg, Virginia, 34 per cent, and so on. In between the farm and the city however, are the small towns which also seem to be sharing in the increased concentration of population, so far as incomplete returns show.

A few years ago to own a coal mine was to have a fortune. Today it is hard to sell coal except from favorably located mines, so rapid has been the extension of natural gas pipelines to centers of population and the substitution of oil fuel for ships and railroads.

Ten years ago the radio was unknown; today half a million people are engaged in making, selling, servicing radios and broadcasting. There are perhaps as many more engaged in the various occupations incidental to flying.

How the extension of electric light and power lines has brought hundreds of thousands of workers into new occupations in that field alone, and by enabling factories to operate close to the source of their raw materials, is converting hundreds of rural villages into industrial centers, is a familiar story. That expansion has not stopped; it may almost be said to have hardly begun. And every new step which it takes means another shift of people from place to place, of men and women from one sort of a job to another sort of job.

There will never be a complete end to unemployment until such changes as those and the changes which are still to come have ceased. That time is not in sight and there is nothing to indicate that we shall ever reach it. So long as there are new things to do, more young people will try to do them than the new industries have permanent places for. There will always be a fringe of the less competent out of work. But unemployment does not always mean distress. With all of our fluidity of occupational relationships, we, the American people as a whole, have a larger cash reserve, in savings banks and life insurance surpluses available as loans on policies, as well as in commercial checking accounts, than any other people in the world.

One interesting fact which has just been disclosed is that the heavy withdrawals from savings banks and on life insurance policies at the time of the Wall Street slump last Fall were not entirely, as had been supposed, to relieve the distress of those who had lost their money in the stock market. It turns out that these withdrawals were largely by thrifty people who realized that the time to invest in sound securities was when prices were at the bottom, and the stockholders' lists of the great basic corporations reflect this in the immense increase of the number of individual stockholders since last Novermebr.

Most of us think we want security. Really most of us, being Americans and therefore deriving our heritage from ancestors afflicted with the wandering foot, want adventure. We can grumble loudly enough when any of the constant chances in our industrial and economic scheme affects us adversely, but at heart most of us feel that we would rather live excitingly in America than safely somewhere else.

BUILDING PIPE LINE MISSOURI

BIG PHILLIPS GASOLINE LINE MAY BUILD ACROSS OCHILTREE COUNTY

Phillips Pipe Line company, a wholly owned subsidiary of Phillips Petroleum company, announces the completion of all plans for the construction of their recently authorized $15,000,000 pipe line. This will be the largest gasoline pipe line ever built, having a total length of approximately 1,000 miles and is the first in the Mid-Continent field. While the exact routing of the survey has not been announced, it is thought that the big line will cross Ochiltree county.

Surveys for this construction job have been completed, pipe purchased and delivery being rushed for actual laying. Construction operations have been separated into six sections to facilitate completion by around January 1, 1931. The construction program will require a hundred inspectors and the labor of over 1,000 men. 100,000,000 pounds of pipe will be required which will be fusion weld. The pipe will be fully concealed, including river crossings. The pipe covering will be between 24 and 36 inches.

The line will run northeast from Borger, Texas, through Oklahoma and Kansas to Wichita, thence on to Kansas City and direct to St. Louis. Ten pump stations, equipped with either electric motor driven centrifugal pumps or Deisel type including safety and fire devices, each of 800 pounds pressure will insure a uniform and constant rate of flow through the line. Distributing terminals are provided at Wichita, Kansas City and St. Louis. The line is so designed and the operation so arranged, in connection with terminal storage facilities, as to permit the transportation of large quantities of different grades of gasoline, one following the other, without loss or intermingling. All construction incorporates the latest safety devices.

Terminal facilities at Kansas City have been arranged to permit of extension of the line north and east. Facilities at St. Louis include dockage on the river to permit barging gasoline as far north as Minneopolis and St. Paul where the Phillips Petroleum company has a large distribution unit for the northwest territory. The St. Louis dockage also permits of water transportation to Memphis and New Orleans and via the Ohio River to Louisville, Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

In addition to adequate storage facilities at all terminals complete provision has been made for peak load demands. All terminals will be fully equipped to handle the gasoline by pressure and gravity flow, thus making prompt and economical shipments to adjacent territory by truck or combination truck and rail haul. Modern tank wagon truck and truck trains consisting of one or more trailers will be used.

Bulk stations will be placed approximately fifty miles apart for the entire length of the line, to serve the adjacent territory. Phillips gasoline will be "pulled out" of the line into these bulk stations for distribution by tank wagon, truck train or rail in the same manner as at the Wichita, Kansas City and St. Louis terminals, eliminating the previous necessity of pumping into tanks and pumping out, with its attending loss.

The line has been designed as a closed system, eliminating the possibility of loss by evaporation or fire hazard and will be divided into twenty mile sections, each policed by a line walker who will inspect his section once a day. A telephone line for which 1,300,000 pounds of copper and 25,000 poles will be required will parallel the entire system, interconnected with the ten pump stations. Line walkers will carry extension telephone rods, affording them instant communication with the nearest pump station in making reports.

The long experience of the Phillips Petroleum Company in transporting crude oil and natural gas by pipe line has been applied to the engineering presented by this natural and refinery gasoline pipe line. Many surveys and over two year's time was devoted to the proposal before it was presented for final approval.

When completed this line will serve as a main artery of the Phillips' system of distribution of finished gasoline to a large marketing area where the company has already over 8,000 retail outlets, and is expanding retail facilities. Crude will be refined at its source of supply in Texas and transported as finished gasoline to the consumer under Phillips control all the way, as compared to the present method of transporting crude to the refinery and re-shipment of refined product with the accompanying losses. The line itself will hold 10,080,000 gallons of gasoline.

It is a story innocent man convicted of a of a great prison escape, and did fight to establish his in- e. Two women are mixed up life. The scenes include a Broadway apartment, a prison r, a factory action sequence, amorous episodes at a swanky ry club.

NOT LIKE THE AUTOMOBILE

The American mispronunciation of his name worries Maurice Chevalier, especially since he saw an authentic press report to the effect that a woman in Chicago filed suit for divorce, declaring in her complaint that she quarrelled with her husband over the pronunciation of "Chevalier."

The famous French song and dance hero of Paramount films, who is appearing next Monday and Tuesday at the Ellis Theatre in "The Big Pond" things that it is high time an educational campaign be started to prevent any possible repetition of incidents similar to the Chicago one.

And so he okayed the following phonetic pronunciation of his last name:

"Shev-al-yay"—with a slight accent on the "al."

FARRELL SAYS STARDOM NOT EASY LIFE

The life of a motion picture star is no bed of roses, especially if he doesn't like outdoor sports and athletics of all sorts. Vigorous roles call for perfect physical condition at all times, and they must live active outdoors lives to stand the strain of the demands so often of stories which feature strenuous characters.

Charles Farrell, co-featured with Janet Gaynor in "High Society Blues," Fox Movietone musical romance showing next week at the Ellis Theatre, is one of the most active of Hollywood's stars along athletic lines. There is no sport in which Farrell is not proficient as his many friends will eagerly attest.

Boxing and swimming are perhaps his two favorites, although he also goes in for golf, tennis, basketball, handball, horseback riding and yachting at every opportunity.

Lately Farrell has been giving more than his customary attention to boxing, in anticipation of a visit from Mickey Cochrane, star catcher for the Philadelphia Athletics.

During his recent personal appearance tour through the East, Farrell and Cochrane renewed a friendship that started and continued throughout their college days at Boston University. Both were members of the college boxing team.

"Remember the day you knocked me cold?" Cochrane recalled. "I wonder if you could still do it?"

Farrell promptly invited him to visit him in Hollywood.

"We'll have a great time," Farrell promised, "and incidentally we may do a bit of boxing. I have a gymnasium fixed up at home where we can work out."

Cochrane expected to spend the winter on the Coast, but other plans intervened. Farrell, however, is taking no chances in case his old pal should drop in on him. "I want to show him I'm just as good now as I was in college," the actor said.

Farrell and Miss Gaynor make their second appearance as singers in "High Society Blues." Five special songs were written for the production by Joseph McCarthy, author of "Rio Rita," "Irene," "Kid Boots" and many other Broadway successes and James F. Hanley, who has written scores of popular song hits.

David Butler who made that other notable Gaynor-Farrell success, "Sunny Side Up," directed this new hit.

SCREEN LOVERS IN NEW TALKIE

JANET GAYNOR AND CHARLES FARRELL SHINE IN "HIGH SOCIETY BLUES" AT ELLIS THEATRE

The audible screen's greatest pair of sweethearts, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, are given co-starred in "High Society Blues," Fox Movietone musical romance, coming soon to the Ellis Theatre.

"High Society Blues" is adapted from a short story by Dana Burnet, which recently appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and details the troubles of a wholesale grocer from a small Iowa town, who sells his business to a chain-store corporation for several millions and then tries to crash the exclusive social set of Westchester County, New York.

Miss Gaynor is the daughter of the socially prominent and wealthy family which controls the chain-store system, while Farell is the son of the Iowa grocer, addicted to the ukelele.

The Iowans buy an estate right across the road from Janet's family and try to be neighborly, but Janet's mother, who has arranged an engagement between her daughter and a foreign count, snubs the outlanders.

How the Iowa grocer, with his dander aroused by an insult to one of his wife's pies, finally brings "high hatted" society to its knees while meantime an absorbing romance blossoms between Janet and Charles, makes one of the most interesting productions of this type yet turned out for the audible screen.

The young stars are surrounded by a cast of unusual strength, including William Collier Sr., Joyce Compton, Hedda Hopper, Louise Fazenda, Lucien Littlefield and Brandon Hurst.

David Butler, who guided Miss Gaynor and Farrell so successfully to new fame in their first musical comedy on the screen, "Sunny Side Up," also directed this delightful comedy romance.

Both Miss Gaynor and Farrell sing in this production, five tuneful melodies having been provided by Joseph McCarthy and James Hanley.

DIX COMEDY IS A BIG SUCCESS

"LOVIN' THE LADIES" SAID TO BE SCREEN IDOLS MOST HILARIOUS COMEDY

Lauded as one of the most entertaining and enjoyable films Richard Dix has ever made, "Lovin' the Ladies," all-talking comedy romance, opens next Wednesday and Thursday. Audiences and critics in other cities have acclaimed the film one of the outstanding laugh hits of the year.

RICHARD DIX

The picture brings Dix to the screen at the height of his popularity. Talking pictures have been introduced since his scores of successful silent films, and they have not found Dix wanting. In fact, he is even better suited to dialog films than to silent pictures—the result of extensive stage training.

Curiously enough, "Lovin' the Ladies" gives Dix the first chance he has had in pictures to play a role he originally created on the stage. The film was adapted from William Le Baron's Broadway comedy, "I Love You," in which Dix was starred several years ago on the New York stage. The play was an outstanding hit during its long run on Broadway, and the film is said to even surpass the original.

Dix is cast as an electrician who attempts to break into the smart set. Developments prove to be unusually amusing, giving Dix great opportunity to demonstrate his ability at handling light comedy.

A notable supporting cast is to be seen in the film. Lois Wilson, who will be remembered as Dix's heroine in several silent pictures, is playing with him again and is said to be more appealing then ever. Allen Kearns, stage comedian, Rita La Roy, Renee Macready and Anthony Bushell also are seen in important roles.

Making Chickens Pay

Cows and Chickens Play Big Part On Hall Farm In Booker Community

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Hall of the Booker community are proving that farming on a moderate scale, with chickens and dairy cows as a side line, can be practiced profitably right in the heart of the North Plains wheat belt where wheat farms often contain thousands of acres. These folks have 125 acres in wheat and 50 acres of row crops. They milk four to six cows which helps to take care of the grocery bills. All of the cows are the registered Milking Shorthorns. Their chicken business is proving as profitable as the farming operations.

Mr. Hall keeps 400 Brown Leghorn hens and specializes in the sale of infertile eggs. Mrs. Hall keeps purebred Buff Orphingtons, and specializes in the sale of baby chicks, hatching eggs and show stock, as well as fryers for the market. She kept 200 hens through the season but is reducing this number through culling. She sold 1,400 day old chicks and over 4,000 hatching eggs during the spring season and now has 1,200 youngsters that are frying size, that will make her future flock. Last fall Buff Orphingtons from the Hall farm won blue ribbons at the Beaver county poultry show, the North Plains poultry show and the Tri-State poultry show at Amarillo.

Home grown feeds are used mostly but are fed in the form of a balanced ration, both for the chickens and the dairy cows. The hens averaged $3.00 per bird last year on the Hall farm and with the demand for hatching eggs, baby chicks and show stock increasing, poultry will pay larger dividends on the Hall farm in the future.

The Halls are leaders in community work. Both take a real interest in the poultry show game and fair work. Mrs. Hall is president of the Beaver County poultry association and is vice-president of the North Plains poultry association. It all helps to make farming a safer business in this section whether the farming is done on a large or moderate scale.

Harve Urban and Edward Ballard, Enid, Okla., came in Friday to harvest on their farm near Perryton.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Crum had as their Sunday guests, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Batman, Mrs. Elizabeth Sooter and Miss Ida Leatherman.

Dr. Powell, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, will be at Dr. Brewer's office, Tuesday, June 24. Glasses fitted, tonsils and adenoids removed. 21-1t-c

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Bishop, Jet, Okla., and daughters, Mrs. Irene Potter, and children of Nash, Okla., and Mrs. Emma Dell Carson, Jet, visited from Saturday until Monday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. George. Mrs. Bishop is a sister of Mr. George.

Carter Pens at The Herald Office.

Miss Clarkie and George Connelly came in Sunday from Stafford, Kans., to spend the summer with their father, E. M. Connelly.

Mr. Hester, Houston, and S. E. Murrell, Amarillo, were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Ranson.

Hints for the Home

• by Nancy Hart

Cheese

Cheese may be served at the end of dinner or luncheon, or it may be served with the salad course. When served with salad it is usually in the form of cheese balls or cheese spread on wafers.

When served at the end of a meal it may follow a sweet course or take the place of a dessert. This is especially appropriate when a fruit or other sweet salad has been served. Plain cheese, cheddar cheese, may be selected. It should be cut into cubes of uniform size and served on a plate. If you do not possess a special fork for cheese service, any sharp tined fork will do.

Unsweetened wafers or crackers should be served with it, either on a separate plate or at one side of the cheese plate. A special cheese plate, with a section for the cheese and another for wafers may be used. Small plates are set before each guest for this course.

Rye crackers are considered appropriate for swiss cheese, and hard water crackers, split in two in the middle, are usually the best selection for roquefort or camembert cheese. A cheese knife, of broad dull blade, is used for these cheeses, while a cheese scoop is used for cheese of the Edam or pineapple variety. The tops of these cheeses are cut off to form a lid and the entire cheese is placed on a plate or cheese dish. There are silver knobs with screws or spikes that may be attached to the tops of these cheeses to serve as a handle.

The cream cheeses are usually served whole on a cheese dish, with a bread dull cheese knife. Sometimes Bar le Duc or currant jelly or strawberry preserves is passed with these cheeses. Wafers are, of course, included in the service.

With Vinegar

Use vinegar in cakes when you wish to diminish the number of eggs. About a tablespoon of vinegar for each egg. The eggless cake is heavy, but the cake with one egg and one or two tablespoons of vinegar is light in texture.

Add a little vinegar to the water in which eggs are poached to keep them from breaking. Add a few drops of it to water for boiling eggs that seem to have thin shells, to keep the shells from cracking.

Add vinegar to the water in which fish is boiled to keep it hard and firm. Don't add more than a tablespoon of it to a kettleful of water.

Use vinegar to bleach the skin if it is spotted with stains from peeling apples and potatoes, and such like kitchen tasks.

Rhubarb Pie

Two cups fresh rhubarb chopped, one-half cup seeded raisins, one cup sugar.

Have ready a pie tin lined with plain paste. Fill in the rhubarb cut in pieces about one-quarter of an inch in length. Sprinkle over the sugar and the raisins and put the top crust in place. Bake in a moderate oven three-quarters of an hour.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

"T.B."

My rural readers will pardon me, I'm sure, for once more calling their attention to what is still one of man's fiercest, most unrelenting foes; it seems to me that good advice in the presence of an enemy is never out of place.

Thoughtful men have been battling this scourge since the dawn of history; for its annihilation men of great wealth and greater hearts have spent countless millions in research, and the noble work still goes on. Just what measure of success has been achieved may be noted by any observing one who reads; and our more recent decades have been singularly noted for advances made.

Tuberculosis is a communicable disease. If you never come in contact with it you are fortunate indeed. But contacts in the densely populated districts are often unavoidable; the fog of dust you encounter on the windy thoroughfare may contain many of the death-dealing germs: your resisting power against disease may be low; your own lungs may become infected, especially if you are carrying a colony of influenzal or other baccilli; you never can tell.

Steer clear of the person who coughs without covering the mouth and nose with a handkerchief. Be duly alert against the fellow with a chronic cough, who continually expectorates on the grass under the shade tree, or on the sands of the beach near by. Shun the resorts where "lungers" (poor fellows!) abound, if possible; the best precaution you may take is none too good; prevention is many leagues superior to cure.

It is the duty of physicians to survey their clientele with eternal vigilance. Teach them to observe every precaution against scattering or contracting disease. I am sure that proper quarantine—and that only—will end the "white plague" for good and all. Outdoor air is not always pure—indeed far from it in crowded localities, where ignorant victims of disease are carriers and distributors; promiscuous expectoration is a crime.

I CANNOT PRAISE THIS KONJOLA TOO STRONGLY

Says Wichita Lady Suffered For Twelve Years From Stomach Trouble

MRS. DELLA SETTLE

"I cannot praise this Konjola too strongly, because I tried many other medicines and treatments, but none gave the remarkable relief that Konjola did," said Mrs. Della Settle, 1718 Mildred Avenue, Wichita. "I just had to force myself to eat, and nearly everything I ate made me sick. I had cramping pains in my stomach and bowels until I could hardly endure them, and I simply felt miserable all the time.

"Finally I decided to put Konjola to the test. That proved to be a wise decision. Right from the start I noticed improvement. I now have a much better appetite, and meals are a pleasure as food digests without pains or misery in my stomach. My bowels are functioning as they should, and it is certainly a relief to be rid of that tired, worn-out feeling. I gladly indorse this splendid medicine that restored my health."

Konjola has become the most talked of medicine in America because it makes good. And Konjola makes good in the most stubborn cases when given a fair trial and from six to eight bottles are used.

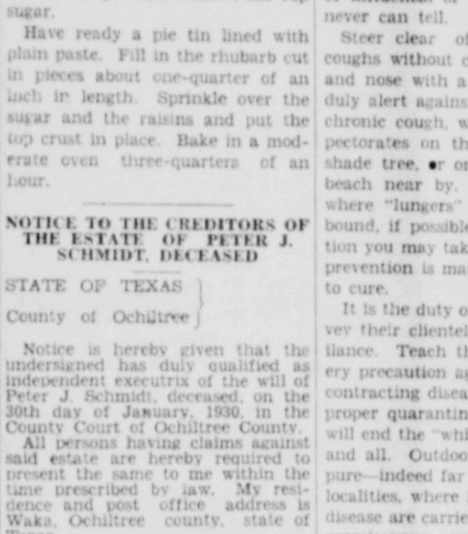

Konjola is sold in Perryton, Texas, at the Perryton Drug Company drug store and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. 21-1t-c.

PERRYTON MAN MIXED FARMER

C. E. McGARROUGH DOES NOT DEPEND ENTIRELY UPON "GOOD" WHEAT YEARS FOR HIS LIVING

The price of wheat is not worrying C. E. McGarrough, Ochiltree county farmer, regardless of the fact that he has nearly 2,000 acres of grain and some of it is exceptionally good. He will make a living if wheat goes down or up, and will probably have some money on the side. McGarrough is practicing mixed farming and he finds that it pays real dividends.

In addition to his large wheat operations, McGarrough has several hundred acres of grain sorghum for his livestock, has 22 head of exceptionally good dairy cows, 600 laying hens and is now brooding out better than 2,000 baby chicks for future use.

This man is known as one of the successful wheat farmers of this section. Last year a part of his wheat was on summer fallowed land and made 42 bushels per acre. He has a patch this year that is on summer fallow soil that will not miss 40 bushels far, though some farmers close by have almost complete failures. He is a firm believer in the summer fallow system of farming.

He keeps 22 head of good milk cows, has a 100-watt Delco light system and is now putting in a larger milking machine. He has a large electric refrigerator and can sell either sweet cream or sour. He raises most of his fed for his livestock.

As for poultry, McGarrough is setting a mark for others to follow. His White Leghorn hens paid real dividends last fall and winter while many other chickens of the country were on a strike. In March he purchased 2,128 baby chicks and only lost 88 during the first seven weeks. The others averaged 22 ounces each at that age, which is further proof of his ability. He uses the hot water system for brooding, with plenty of room and sunlight and a balanced ration.

With his cows, his chickens, and grain sorghums as a side line, this man is not so dependent on a wheat crop, because he has 52 pay days along with his one for wheat.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bowen and children, Booker, were dinner guests Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bowen.

FUNERAL HELD TUESDAY

Blanche Thomoson was born August 26, 1904, and departed this life in Perryton, Texas, on June 16, 1930.

In 1920 she was united in marriage to John Shea who passed to his reward on September 11, 1928. A son, J. B., was born to this union.

At the age of eleven, Mrs. Shea made a profession of faith and was united with the Baptist church. She leaves a son, father, step-mother, three sisters and three brothers to mourn her passing.

Mrs. Shea and son came to Perryton from Abilene about two weeks ago to make their home with her sister, Mrs. Wallace Buckhaults, who lives south of Waka. She had been in poor physical condition since arriving here and became seriously ill on last Friday, suffering from typhoid and pneumonia.

The funeral services were held from the Wilson Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon with Rev. C. Lex Shelby in charge. Interment was at the Ochiltree cemetery.

At Appliance School

Texas-Louisiana Power Company Is Training Employees In Use Of Appliances

Miss Viola Glaspie of the Texas-Louisiana Power Company has returned from Fort Worth, where she attended an intensive two-day course in the use of electrical appliances at the Texas Hotel on Thursday and Friday of last week.

This school is the first of its kind ever held by a utility for women employees only and was attended by forty-eight students from properties of the company all over the state. It was organized to give the women a thorough knowledge of the appliances and their uses, so that they can better assist the home makers of their communities obtain the fullest benefit from the use of electricity in the home.

The construction, operation and proper maintenance of the different appliances was brought out in demonstration conducted by factory representatives. Power company officials explained rate structures, meter reading and the importance of proper customer contact.

A feature of the course was the laboratory periods, during which the girls used the various appliances to make cakes and waffles, sweep floors, freeze ice cream, wash clothes and perform other household duties under the guidance of nationally known home economics experts. Thursday evening the young women were honored with a banquet at the Forth Worth University club.

ROGERS RANCH BIG BUSINESS

LIVESTOCK, POULTRY AND HOG RAISING ARE COMBINED WITH WHEAT AND FEED CROPS

E. W. Rogers, manager of the F. P. and E. W. Rogers Ranch near Farnsworth, is making farming a business and his operations require as much capital and business judgment as the modern business place in the city. The "ranch" is really a modern livestock farm with 2,300 acres in wheat, 1,000 acres in feeds in addition to his pasture land and the livestock he keeps. On the place you find dairy cows, chickens and hogs, in addition to the large number of sheep that are fed out each year.

Last year $125,000 worth of livestock and grains were sold from the farm. The Rogers brothers have been taking the lead in the development of the sheep business in this section and fed out 1,150 head last year at a net profit. Sheep feeding is proving to be an ideal combination with wheat raising and the growing of feed stuffs.

E. W. Rogers and his son, Bob, have built up a record with their purebred Duroc Jersey hogs. They took their show herd to Amarillo, Lubbock and Dallas fairs last fall and were in the good money classes with the best of showmen from various parts of the nation. They have supplied a number of 4-H members of Ochiltree county with purebred pigs, in addition to furnishing foundation hogs for a number of breeders of the Panhandle, and they find the swine game very profitable.

Rogers and his daughter, Margaret, keep fine White Wyandotte chickens and were winners at the North Plains Poultry Show in Perryton and the Tri-State Show in Amarillo. They are improving the flock for the shows next fall, and plan to furnish some keen competition for others of this section.

Registered milking Shorthorns are kept on the Rogers ranch and these are proving exceptionally good as a dual purpose animal. From eight to 15 are being milked regulary, with more coming on for future use. This ranch took the lead in shipping the registered milking Shorthorns into this section.

Frank Rogers, banker, and one member of the firm, has been a believer in the summer fallow system for wheat for the past several years, and the crop of the past season has made a believer out of his brother, E. W. A portion of the present crop is on summer fallow soil and should make better than 30 bushels per acre, while some of the other wheat will not make more than five to 10 bushels. In the future the summer fallow system and crop rotation will be a part of the program on the Rogers ranch.

E. W. Rogers, the ranch manager, is proving to be a real community leader, as well as a business farmer. He is president of the North Plains Poultry Association, a director in the Tri-State Fair, a leader in 4-H club work, an officer in the newly formed Milking Shorthorn Association here, and a member of the school board for the Perryton independent school district.

"Farming is a business," declares Mr. Rogers, "and it takes real capital and a lot of planning to make the business pay. With plenty of good livestock real dividends can be declared," he added.

J. H. Shearer is now able to be up and will soon be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Smith and daughter, Miss Eula, left Sunday for Bovina to attend the funeral services of Mr. Smith's sister, Mrs. Bob Crowell, who passede away Saturday evening at her home. Services were held Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Oris Bruner were guests for Sunday dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Addison Cutter.

Eighth Annual Rodeo

Many World's Champions Will Appear in Anvil Park Contests On July 4-5

Canadian, Texas, June 18.—You will have an opportunity to see a number of world's champions and noted stars at the 8th Annual Anvil Park Rodeo to be held at Canadian on July 4 and 5. Leonard Stroud, his wife, Mayme, his congress of cowboys and cowgirls consisting of Josephine Wicks, champion relay rider at Chenenne one year ago, Gene Kreig, winner of the ladies bronc riding last March at Fort Worth; Claire Belcher, winner of the ladies bronc riding at Houston last month, and world champion contestants, will exhibit daily in front of the grandstand.

The major events will consist of bronc riding, calf roping, wild Brama steer riding and Mexican steer bulldogging. In the bronc riding, contestants compete for large purses and to match their skill against each other. For the bronc riding, the worst outlawed horses that could be obtained in the North Panhandle country are used, a number of which are unrideable. Those horses are not trained buckers as is commonly thought, but are animals that cannot be broken. They are old horses in excellent condition, made such by being used only a few times each year, and carefully grained and handled the remainder of the time, and whose spirit has never ben subdued.

For the calf roping, a well trained horse is one of the essentials, as well as skill and ability of the rider. Men that enter this part of the program are men of experience gained by daily work in the vast cowherds of the great Southwest. The calf when caught, must be thrown by the roper and then tied down by three feet. Calf roping is a difficult task as a small loop must be used to prevent the fast calf from running through the loop.

Other events on the program include girls bronc riding on real broncs, and not many have the courage or skill to undertake such a task. Trick and fancy roping, trick and fancy riding, and high school horses make the well rounded program perfect.

The Rodeo would not be complete without the clowns. The Morris Brothers of Gainesville, Texas, will be here with their educated mules and they will add fun and hilarity to the program each day. The kiddies and older folks will get a deal of enjoyment out of their funny frantics.

It will be only at Canadian that the people will have an opportunity to see the sports of old time cowboys perpetuated in the only typically American contest of them all. This show began as a small affair some eight years ago, and has grown until it shows to thousands of people each year.

Miss Eugenia Mitchell and Miss Lorna Hutchinson leave today, Thursday, for Boulder, Colo., where they will attend the University during the summer session.

WHEAT PRICES DROP!

The Federal Farm Board Advises

Storing Wheat on the Farm Instead of Dumping it on the Overloaded Market!

The combine has brought about a change in the marketing of wheat. Railroads and elevators are unable to cope with the situation of millions of bushels of wheat being dumped on the market during the period of a few weeks.

To meet this situation the Federal Farm Board advises the storing of wheat on the farm. This means the building of permanent granaries. In this connection, we want to serve you.

8c to 12c Per Bushel For Permanent Granaries

We are in a position to furnish plans, specifications, carpenters and material to build a permanent storage granary on your farm. The cost ranges from 8c to 12c per bushel. If you store your wheat in terminal elevators, you pay for a granary but you don't get one. Build one now—your storage this year will pay for it—and next year and the years afterward will cost you nothing.

Miss Nobody from Nowhere

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

"There's somethin' I'd rather you would do. 'Twood help an awful lot if you'd do it," Ivy urgently added.

"What is it?"

Eve asked the question without suspicion. Her mind was centered on the girl's condition—surely a serious one for a dancer. Ivy's next words startled her.

"It's my job," she muttered. "I'm goin' to lose it; that's all."

"Oh! I'm sorry!"

"Yep. Jake said he didn' wanta be hard on me, but he couldn't be left in the lurch again. So the nex' time I didn't come or send a substitoot, it would be the air for mine."

"I see."

Eve saw with a clearness that made her wince. Evidently Miss Davenport expected a great deal from her fellow-beings. She would not have been surprised if this stranger in her room, having put her to bed and eased her pain, now announced her intention of substituting for her at the cabaret and at once departed to do so. She herself had already shown that she was a friend in need. Probably her associates also were the kind who did that sort of thing . . . But Jake's! To dance at Jake's! Eve felt that she had definite limitations and that one of them had been reached.

"You oughtn't to talk," she restlessly pointed out.

"If you'd go up there and report to Jake you could bluff your way through the dances," Ivy hurried on. "You'd do fine. The other girls 'd help you if you tol' 'em what it meant. The fellas would, too. They are all my frien's. They'd see you weren't put up against it, 'cause they'd know you was tryin' to help me."

"But, good Heavens, I can't—"

Eve became conscious of her tone and checked her words, appalled. This girl had come to her days ago, offered her a job because she believed her to be down and out. Now it was clearly up to her to reciprocate. The demand was a wild one, of course, but surely she was the last human being who should fail any one in trouble. She though of Hamilton—of the swift willingness with which he had come to her help in her crisis. She could never repay him, but here was a chance to pass on the mercy and kindness he had shown her. This girl's job was at stake, her very bread and butter. As for herself, she could stand Jake's for one night, whatever possibilities Jake's might hold.

She leaned over the bed, in which Ivy now lay in the exhaustion of extreme pain.

"Tell me what you want me to do", she said kindly, "and I'll try to do it. What bluff must I make?"

She was rewarded by the look in the other girl's face and she struggled up on an elbow.

"There nothin' to it," she said eagerly. "Even if you can't dance all the dances—an' I'm bettin' you can—it'll help you just to go there an' tell Jake how t'is, an' offer to take my place. Talk to him first, and then go to the dressin'-room. Ask for Queenie Morris. She's Jake's head hostess. She's my pal, too, an' the best of the lot. She'll do the rest."

"I understand. But . . . you're quite sure Jake's place is all right?"

The girl in the bed was spent by the effort of talking as much as she had done, but she rallied to this question.

"I'll tell the world it is," she brought out. "Don't you get no idee of white-slave stuff. There's nothin' like it at Jake's. Straight business, on the level, good eats, good music, a pretty good crowd — an' Jimmy Murphy on the spot to throw out rough ones. It ain't a club. 'Most any one can get it, but they can't stay in 'less they behave. The substitoots git three dollars fer the night an' a five-cent card fer every dance they give visitors, besides their tips. You'll git that tonight, of course. All I'm worrin' about is to hold my place for the winter. See what I mean?"

Eve could not help wondering how, on a few dollars a night, Miss Davenport's income ran to apartments, silk lingerie, over-stuffed furniture, and painted beds. As if the sick girl had read the thought, she hurried on:

"You'll knock down six or eight dollars a night without tryin'. I make ten or twelve. Any guy that's a real guy'll slip you a dollar or two for dancin' with him a lot,' specially if he lands on your feet most of the time. An' there's always some guy will pay for your supper, too. Say—" she asked the question with sudden anxiety—"you got anything to wear?"

Eve looked at her blankly.

"No. I didn't bring an evening dress."

"Then take one o' mine, any you like. You an' me's about the same size. But hurry. That closet . . . see?"

Eve hurried, and selected the least flamboyant of Miss Davenport's several dancing-gowns—a fairly simple creation in white and silver.

"The slippers to match is on the top shelf."

Eve found the slippers without difficulty. Evidently Miss Davenport had a sense of order. They were a trifle large, but, like the gown, they passed muster. Ivy, blue-white around the mouth, approved the result, and Eve also received from the long mirror in the living-room the assurance that it was not bad.

"I only got one evenin' wrap," Ivy confessed, "but it goes with 'most anything." It did.

"Do I have to dance with every one that asks me?" Eve inquired, when she was ready to leave.

Ivy looked at her with a flicker in her pain-filled eyes.

"Say, haven't you never even been in a cabaret?" As Eve did not reply she answered the question: "'Course you got to dance with 'em if you wanta make a hit. The big features is the program dances, an' you gotta help. If they ain't perfect gentlemen you tip the wink to Jimmy an' he gives 'em the air. But it's like I told you," she added more faintly. "You do what I said. If you can't dance or don't wanta, they'll all help you out. They're my frien's," she weakly ended.

Within the next hour, when she had reached Jake's, Eve discovered that Miss Davenport had not overrated her own popularity.

Jake was in the fastness of his private office, a small partitioned retreat off the main room. Eve's modest request to see the manager, combined with the mention of Miss Davenport's name, procured an immediate audience with him.

He was dressed in immaculate evening clothes and his brilliantined hair clung to his head like thick black paste. He turned upon her the unwinking gaze of two remote black eyes and waited for what she had to say.

"I've come to substitute for Miss Davenport," Eve explained.

"S'matter 'ith her?"

"She's sick."

"Againeh?"

The personal charm of Jake, as set forth by Miss Davenport, was escaping Eve thus far.

"S'ure name?" he ended.

"Berson." Eve had decided to accept Miss Davenport's version.

"Know howt' dance?"

"Miss Davenport says I do. I can't do solo-work, but I think I can get along in the other dances."

"S'ope so. Awright. Report t' s' Morris."

Eve followed to its end the narrow passage he had indicated, guided by the sound of voices. The door of a room at the right was yawning slightly, and a glance through the opening suggested that here was her destination. Half a dozen girls in evening gowns occupied its limited space, lending themselves to various occupations. One, in the only easy-chair, sat holding a hand-glass and touching up an already striking facial color scheme. A second was down on a knee sewing the beginning of a run in the top of her silk stockings. A third fluffed her bobbed hair before a full-length mirror, and the remaining three, were smoking and resting. Eve tapped the door panel and waited on the threshold. No one answered, so she pushed the door wide.

"Pardon. Where shall I find the head hostess—Miss Morris?" she asked.

The girl who was sewing the stocking run raised her eyes from the absorbing task.

"Right here," she said brusquely. Her manner implied that she could endure "runs" but not interruptions.

"Miss Davenport told me to come to you," Eve explained. "She's sick."

"Again!" Miss Morris' exclamation held more sympathy than Jake's, and she added briskly, "Gawd! the poor kid!"

The information interested all the girls. Miss Morris nodded.

"Fine," she said heartily. "Stick around till I finish this damned thing, and I'll put you wise to what you gotta do."

Eve entered the crowded room. One of the smokers spoke languidly.

"W'at's eatin' Ivy?" she wanted to know. "Same ol' ting?"

She was a tall girl with green eyes, a superb figure, regular features, and red hair as closely cut as Jake's. She had a look of distinction, a voice as harsh and shrill as a Russian's, and her accent was the one heard in New York's lowest East Side slums.

"Yes. She says she's had such attacks before."

"I'll tell the woild she has. They are the t'ings she ain't got nothin' else but. I'm wonderin' how long Jake'll stand for it," the tall girl drawled.

"Don't strain your mind tryin' to think, Maizie. But if you really wanta know, I'll say Jake'll stand for it as long as Ivy can dance better than the rest of us. You ain't feelin' up to Ivy's acrobatic waltz yourself, are you?"

Eve decided that she liked Miss Morris. Queenie, having thus suppressed Maizie, and also conquered the run, now felt up to other duties. She rose, shook out her skirt, cast a critical glance at the reflection of her legs in the long mirror, and turned to the new-comer, prepared to give her undivided attention.

"Set down," she invited. "Here, Stella, don't be a pig!"

She seized the legs of the girl called Stella, a tired-looking and plain-faced young person who was lying at full lenth on the room's one couch, and swung them to the floor. Stella retrieved the cigarette dislodged from her lips by the briskness of this maneuver, and gloomily huddled in the couch's top corner. Miss Morris pressed the visitor into part of the vacated space and fitted herself into what was left.

"What's your label?" she asked.

"Berson."

"New in the business?"

"Yes."

"I thought so." Miss Morris had the air of one adjusting her shoulders to a burden. "Well, things don't light up here till the theatre crowd blows in," she resumed, "and that ain't for ten or fifteen minutes yet."

CHARLOTTE JULIA TEVIS

Charlotte Julia Tevis, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Tevis, was born July 23, 1917, and passed away June 10, 1930, at Shattuck Hospital following an osteomyelitis operation.

A beautiful service was conducted at the Baptist church Thursday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, by Rev. C. Lex Shelby, pastor of the First Baptist church, who after reading Matthew 5:1-11, made a very consoling talk, taking as the text, "Blessed are the pure in heart; for they shall see God", paying a beautiful tribute to the little girl's sweet life as one so loved and helpful in the home and among her friends and repeating some of her last words that have been such a comfort to her loved ones: "I want to go when Jesus wants me to go."

Interment was made at Ochiltree cemetery. We cannot but feel that one so pure and sweet, with a trust in a Saviour, has only left this world for a Heavenly Home. We are reminded of that beautiful poem by Edgar A. Guest, "The Richer Life."

You who mourn her passing on
Know you not where she has gone?
Doubt ye that she knows the truth
That has baffled age and youth?

You who weep for her today
Who from earth has gone away:
Know you not that she has found
Footing on a surer ground?

Would you weep for one who rose
Victor over mighty foes?
Would you mourn for her today
High promotion called away?

She is done with care and pain
Failure cannot strike again
God has called her out of strife
To a cleaner ampler life.

To a richer world than ours,
Clearer sight and wider powers,
To a life that know no scorn
She has gone for whom you mourn.

RADBURN

Something new in town building has been accomplished in New Jersey, twenty miles out from New York City. The town of Radburn has been planned and built with an eye first to safety in the streets. It has been laid out so that all streets in the residential districts are "dead-end" thoroughfares. No through traffice rushes past homes, endangering the lives of children. Schools, playgrounds, parks and recreation centers have been so located that no child has to cross a street carrying motor traffic to get to any of them. And there are plenty of open spaces, in the midst of which dwellings have been built which house today about 600 people, where there was nothing but a farm a year ago.

Radburn calls itself "Tomorrow's Town." It is certain that new methods of town planning must develop to meet the new tools of civilization.

MIRACLES

Nothing but gas and water are needed to make artificial silk, by a new process discovered by Professor Harold Hibbert of McGill University, Montreal. That is amazing, even to such of us as have got used to the idea of transmission of electric currents through space. Gas—carbon dioxide, produced from coal—is invisible and, to our unaided sense, without weight. Water is a fluid which takes solid form only as ice, in our ordinary experience. But by combining the two to make a permanent, tangible solid which will take the place of rayon fibres produced from cotton or wood pulp, Dr. Hibbart has performed a miracle which seems none the less miraculous when he explains how it is done.

This is another step in the progress of science toward the goal of cheap methods, everything we need to eat, wear and use. The method, in general, is to take the short cut where Nature takes the long road around.

DOLLAR

Eighty-six years old, owner of a fleet of 50 great passenger and freight ships and one of the world's largest lumber enterprises, Captain Robert Dollar still runs the details of his own great business. He started to work at 11, in his native Scotland, at wages of 60 cents a week. He has made every cent of his great fortune by hard work and still gets to his office in San Francisco at 20 minutes to nine every morning. When he feels like it he calls up Mrs. Dollar, tells her to pack the bags for a trip, and the happy old couple start out on one of his own ships for a voyage to China or around the world. On every such trip, Captain Dollar finds new opportunities for American trade and new business for the Dollar ships.

SPELLING

There is a great revival of interest in the old-fashioned "spelling bee." Helen Jenson, a 13-year-old girl of Council Bluffs, has just won a prize of $1,000 and the title of National Spelling Champion in a contest at Washington. Newspaper men, Congressmen, women's clubs and other bodies have been conducting spelling bees in many cities.

This is interesting and more or less important. Correct spelling is an accomplishment which reveals a great deal of the character of the individual. Good spellers are persons who concentrate on details, who have a keen eye and a pictorial memory. Few persons who learn chiefly by ear are good spellers. The "phonetic" method of teaching children to read, a fad which is being abandoned in many schools, is responsible for much of the atrocious spelling which makes so many girls unable to earn more than a bare wage as stenographers. Good spellers remember words as pictures. And that is as it should be. Spelling is of importance only in connection with reading and writing, and reading and writing are a means of expression designed to appeal to the eye only.

TEACHERS

One reason why our public schools are not as good as they could and should be is that we do not pay the teacher the same respect—to say nothing of salary—that they do in Europe. To be a school teacher in Germany, for instance, is to achieve at once a degree of a physician or a lawyer.

Texas set an example years ago of one way of increasing the teacher's self-respect. In 1860 a "teachery" was built in the Blum school district in Guadalupe County—a home for the teacher. Now Texas has 1,330 of these teachers' homes, costing an average of $2,200. One teacher, H. E. Dietel, of Schumannsville, taught one school and lived in one teachery for 40 years. He became the foremost citizen of his community.

The rural school without a home for the teacher or teachers is a relic of the dark ages.

Hale Center Farmer Gives It His Endorsement

"Argotane Has Made a New Man of Me and Restored My Health," Says Stringer

To the large number of men whose statements have been published in the press of the county is now added the name of Fred H. Springer, of Hale Center, Texas, living on rural route 2, and who is a very prominent and well known farmer, while talking with the Argotane representative, at South Plains Drug Store, Plainview, Texas, recently.

"Argotane has made a new man of me and restored my health," he said, "and I am more than glad to recommend it. I was in a very run-down condition, and was very weak and nervous. I had the "flu" and then my condition got worse. When I got up from the flu I wasn't able to do my work. I was bothered with stomach trouble, and food did not agree with me, but the attack I had of the flu made it worse, and I was surely in a bad shape. I got to where I didn't eat anything. I had a distressing feeling, caused by the gas that formed on my stomach and anything I ate would not digest.

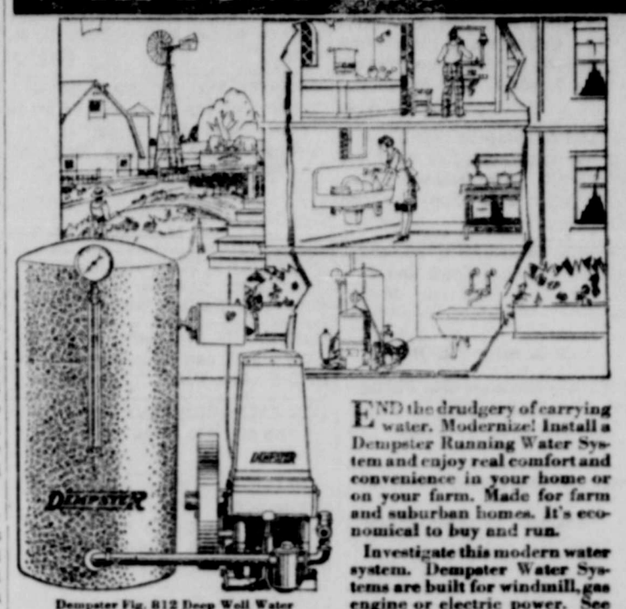

"I have only taken one-half bottle of Argotane, and it certainly has improved my case in every way. All my stomach trouble has left me, and I eat and sleep just fine. I am gaining in weight and strength every day, and do not have those restless spells. Argotane has restored my health after nothing I took seemed to do me any good, and I know from my own experience that it is a good medicine.

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Perryton at the Shindler Drug Co. 21-1t-c.

After the First Twenty-five Thousand Miles

THE VALUE of sound design, good materials and careful craftsmanship is especially apparent in the new Ford after the first twenty-five thousand miles. Long, continuous service emphasizes its mechanical reliability and economy of operation and up-keep.

As you drive the Ford through many months and years you will develop an increasing pride in its appearance and a growing respect for the substantial worth that has been built into it. From every standpoint—in everything that goes to make a good automobile—you will know that you have made a far-seeing, satisfactory purchase.

Wherever you go, you hear enthusiastic praise of the car and this significant, oft-repeated phrase—"I'm glad I bought a Ford."

A FORD owner in New York tells of a 13,000-mile trip across the United States and back in sixty days and says "the car was extremely economical to operate, comfortable and speedy." A grateful father tells how the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield saved his wife and children from serious injury.

To test tires, a large company drove a new Ford day and night, for an average of 500 miles every twenty-four hours. It was still giving satisfactory service after 105,000 miles.

A Ford car that had fallen into Fernan Lake was submerged for twelve days before being raised. After a new battery and carburetor bowl were installed, it was driven back to Spokane under its own power.

Many police departments have written of the special advantages of the Ford in crowded traffic because of its alert speed, acceleration, and ease of control. An increasing number of fleet owners are also purchasing the Ford because their cost figures have given conclusive proof of its economy of operation and up-keep.

In addition to important triumphs in Germany, France and Italy, the Ford won six out of seven leading places in a contest in Finland, first and second in the Rafaela races in Argentina, first and second in the run from Copenhagen-to-Paris-to-Copenhagen, three gold medals in England, first ranking in the durability test over the tortuous Amancaes road in Peru, and first place in the 1930 reliability run conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden.

This contest was an exceptionally severe test of endurance and sturdy construction because it was held in the dead of winter and covered 600 miles of steady running over snow-covered country roads and mountainous hills.

Get 95% Calf Crop

W. M. Tandy Proves That Feeding Gives Big Returns During Breeding Season

W. M. Tandy of the Notla community has a new method of getting a larger and more vigorous calf crop, and his plan is working admirably. Last July and August, Tandy fed seventy cows and thirty heifers during the breeding season and secured a ninety-five per cent calf crop, while in the past he had been getting only an eighty per cent calf crop from his cows and about sixty per cent from the heifers.

In addition to getting more calves the youngsters are much more vigorous than in the past and the cows and heifers came through much better than ever before. The heifers were bred younger but because of the extra feeding were not stunted and are as large at three with the calf crop as heifers that have not produced.

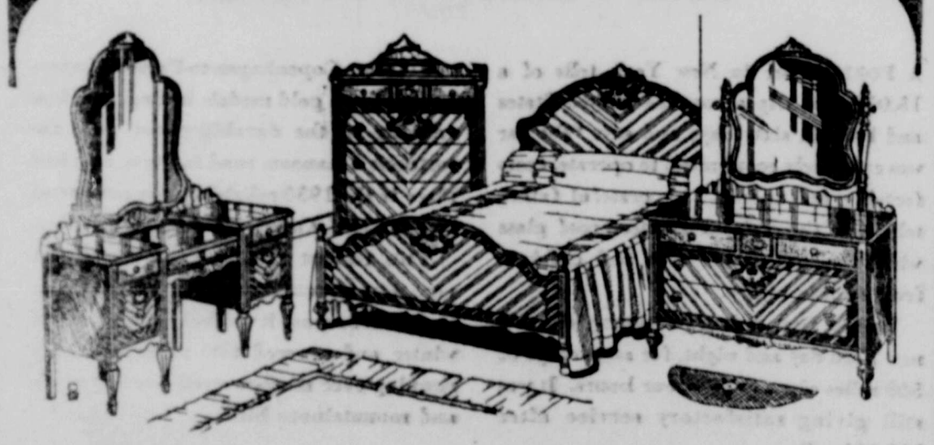

Mr. Tandy fed two pounds of feed per day for each head and figures that the feeding operations cost him $225. He has much better heifers and cows and a much larger calf crop and says that the plan pays real dividends, and plans to practice this method in the future. The method will be told thorough the county by County Agent Guy R. Sheets and other stockmen will probably follow a similar line.

Miss Vallye Coleman, Marlin, Texas, was a guest of Miss Navis Witt Tuesday night.
