Baker Subpoenaed in Payoff Case

CHRISTMAS SEAL TIME — Members of the Pampa High School Quill and Scroll Club, school journalists, were busy yesterday and today stuffing envelopes with letters containing Christmas Seals. The letters are addressed to Pampans who are being asked to support the annual yuletide seal sale of the Gray County TB As-

U.N. Off To Shaky Opening

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The 1964 General Assembly was off to a shaky start today under a stopgap arrangement to avert a showdown on Russia's right to vote.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko were meeting for lunch at Soviet delegation headquarters in continuing talks to resolve the potentially crippling dispute.

It was expected that they also might touch on other East-West issues such as disarmament if time permitted.

The United States had demanded that the Soviet Union and seven Soviet satellites be deprived of their assembly votes under U.N. charter regulations for failure to pay assessments for peace-keeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

Weeks of efforts to arrange a compromise were climaxed by high-level talks carried on by U.N. Secretary General Thant up to the time of the assembly's opening session Tuesday.

Thant emerged from those talks to tell the assembly:

"There is an understanding to the effect that issues other than those that can be disposed of without objection will not be raised while the general debate proceeds."

The annual general debate, in which foreign ministers and other delegation leaders make policy statements, was scheduled to run almost until Christmas.

The arrangement afforded at least another month for U.S.-Soviet talks on the financial issue.

Under the no-voting agreement, the assembly proceeded to elect Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana as president of its 19th session. Quaison-Sackey, 40, is the youngest assembly president and the first Negro to hold the office.

Under the "no objection" arrangement, the assembly then admitted Malawi, formerly British Nyasaland, Zambia formerly British Northern Rhodesia, and the fabled former British Mediterranean island of Malta to membership, raising the U.N. roll to 115 countries.

New U.F. Total Passes $59,000
The new total in the Pampa-Lefors United Fund campaign stood at $59,651.47 today following a check-in coffee of special volunteer workers this morning in the Coronado Inn.

Today's figure is an increase of some $3,600 over the last report.

"Operation Over the Top," the final phase of the United Fund's drive to raise $70,000 was kicked off yesterday at a joint luncheon meeting of civic and business leaders and the Jaycees.

Keynote speaker for the meeting, held in the basement of First Methodist Church, was Rev. Don Hauck, pastor of First Presbyterian Church.

Hauck said that the drive has got to go over the top because we need the services provided by the United Fund.

'Bagman' Tells of Paying for Favors

By HALE MONTGOMERY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate investigators called for former House employee for questioning today in their operations of Bobby Baker. Baker himself was summoned under subpoena to testify next.

Rules Committee counsel Lennox P. McLendon said he could not say whether Baker, the one-time page boy who made a fortune while working for the Senate, would answer questions.

The former secretary to Senate Democrats invoked constitutional protections against testifying when he was called before the committee last summer.

The former chief clerk of the House District of Columbia Committee, William N. McLeod, was called as today's first witness to explain a $1,500 payment that self-styled "bagman" Don B. Reynolds said he gave McLeod.

Reynolds, an insurance man from suburban Silver Spring, Md., told the committee Tuesday he paid the money for the "many favors" McLeod had done for him. These included helping shepherd through Congress in 1960 a bill authorizing construction of the $17 million D.C. Stadium.

Reynolds said he was the "bagman" for Democratic party payoffs in 1960, including $15,000 for the campaign chest of then Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

He said he served as the go-between in funneling up to $35,000 in alleged kickbacks from the D.C. Stadium contract to political campaign chests and to individuals, one of whom was Baker.

GOP Renews Demands
The committee's four-hour public hearing Tuesday, during which Reynolds was the only witness, brought renewed GOP demands for the appearance of former White House Aide Walter W. Jenkins.

Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., also accused committee counsel Lennox P. McLendon of trying to "becloud the record and discredit" Reynolds, instead of searching for the facts in the case.

Committee Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C., told Curtis the request to summon Jenkins would have to be decided by the full committee. Then he snapped: "What are you laughing about? You have a vote."

Curtis replied with a smile. "It always has been 4-to-3 against me." Democrats control the committee 6-3.

Reynolds' testimony ranged from the alleged D.C. Stadium kickbacks to the now-famous stereo photograph President Johnson received from Baker in 1969. But the questioning by McLendon concentrated on the kickback charges.

Republican Contention
Republicans contend that Baker, who was then secretary to Senate Democrats, acted as middleman in handling $25,000 in kickbacks from contractor Matthew H. McCloskey, former chairman of the Democratic Finance Committee and onetime U.S. ambassador to Ireland. McCloskey's firm won the contract for the D.C. Stadium.

Reynolds said that McCloskey agreed to overpay him by about $35,000 for a performance bond he wrote on the stadium job. The understanding was that money would go to Democratic party campaign coffers. Reynolds got the other $10,000. He, in turn, gave $4,000 to Baker and $1,500 to McLeod.

"In compliance with the previous agreement with Bobby, I transferred $3,000 to Bobby Baker on three separate occasions, each time consisting of fifty $100 bills," Reynolds said. "I was told that these funds were to be directed for use in Mr. Johnson's campaign, and they came from the excess funds submitted to me by McCloskey Co.," he said, adding that he had heard Baker and McLeod discuss use of the funds by others also. He said the only name he could recall

Friends Ponder 'Torch' Case of Canyon Student

GALVESTON (UPI) — The friends of Alton Wade Crook, 18-year-old college basketball player, tried to figure out today why he turned himself into a Viet Nam-style human torch.

Crook meanwhile, lay in critical condition, the skin over two-thirds of his body charred and blistered.

Crook played championship basketball last season with a crack team from Sanford-Fritch, a school in the Texas Panhandle.

In September, he entered West Texas State University at Canyon on an athletic scholarship. He was supposed to start at center Tuesday night for the WTSU freshman basketball squad.

But over the Thanksgiving holiday, he had a quarrel with his family.

In Depressed Mood
"He came back real depressed," a roommate said. Sunday night after his roommates went to bed, Crook walked into the cold, windswept night, across the campus and to a service station.

He told attendant Billy Dunn that his car was stalled down the street and asked for a five-gallon can of gasoline.

Crook took the can and disappeared down an alley. Dunn looked up a minute later and saw Crook, a mass of flames, staggering toward him.

"Let me die! Let me die!" he screamed.

Ambulance Called
Across the street, someone in a restaurant saw the flames. A police car cruising nearby put in a call for a fire truck and an ambulance.

By the time the ambulance got there, the fire had been quenched with a small extinguisher from the restaurant.

Crook was moved Tuesday from a Canyon hospital to Galveston's John Sealy Hospital, where a nurse said:

"If we keep him alive, we'll be very happy."

Tuesday night, the West Texas State freshman team played its season opener, minus Crook at starting center. They lost, 75-36, to the varsity team from South Plains Junior College.

100,000 Greet Pope in India
BOMBAY, India (UPI) — Pope Paul VI arrived in India today as "a pilgrim of peace" to this predominantly Hindu land. He was met by a wildly cheering crowd of 100,000 at the airport which turned his welcome into one of warmth and enthusiasm.

More than a million persons lined his route into the city.

Completing the longest journey ever made by a reigning pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church, Pope Paul's Air India jetliner landed at 5:16 p. m. (6:46 a.m. EST) on a flight from Rome.

En route he stopped for an hour at Beirut, Lebanon, where he thanked "both Christians and non-Christians" who gave him a tumultuous welcome there and expressed hope for "harmony among all men."

17 Floats to Appear in Yule Parade

Christmas season in Pampa will officially take on the yuletide glow tomorrow when the annual Santa Day Parade begins its journey through downtown Pampa at 4 p.m.

The parade will form at 3:30 at the intersection of Cuyler and Craven and move north down Cuyler to Francis and then onto the Court House lawn.

Santa Claus will then meet and talk to youngsters and distribute candy.

A total of 17 floats had been received at noon today in addition to Santa Claus and several other special entries.

The Pampa High School band will not be able to participate in this year's parade, said Cameron Marsh, high school principal, due to a number of band members who are in California performing for the World's Championship rodeo.

Wes Langham will serve as parade marshal.

The Pampa Jaycees will hold their annual Pancake supper beginning at 5 p.m. tomorrow at the Pampa High School cafeteria.

Pancakes, sausage and coffee will be served. Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Highlight of the supper will be the pancake eating contest between Sheriff Rufe Jordan and Harold Comer, chairman of the event for the Jaycees. The loser has agreed to donate $20 to the Pampa-Lefors United Fund campaign. The contest is scheduled to begin at 8:30 p.m.

Jaycee officials said that anyone who desires to enter tomorrow's parade and has not made official entry should contact the Chamber of Commerce.

Entries so far are: Assembly of God Church, Girl Scouts, Brownies, Jayceeettes, Leather and Lace Riding Club, Top O' Texas Car Association, Exceptional Scout Troop, S. B. Deb Club, Hep Kat Club, M. Y. F. of First Methodist Church, Dolphin Swim Team, High School Choir, United Church Women of Pampa, high school art class, and Robert E. Lee and Pampa Junior High School bands.

Christmas Seal Sale Launched in County

The annual sale of Christmas seals will officially be launched in Pampa and Gray County this weekend.

Some 4,000 envelopes containing the gaily illustrated yuletide seals will go into the mails Friday. It was announced today by Bob Clements, campaign chairman for the Gray County Tuberculosis Association.

Proceeds are used to carry on the fight against tuberculosis, other respiratory diseases and the illnesses of breathing.

The Citizens Bank & Trust Co. has employed and donated the services of members of the Pampa High School Quill and Scroll Club to prepare the Christmas seal envelopes for mailing, thereby serving a twofold public service in assisting the association in the seal campaign and providing funds for the school club to use in furnishing an evening's program while attending the annual state convention of the Texas High School Press Association this weekend in Denton.

The Quill and Scroll Club members began their job yesterday and expected to have it completed today. The seals are due to go into the mails tomorrow.

Drive Chairman Clements said he hoped recipients of the seal envelopes will buy the seals and return their checks or cash without delay.

"Christmas seals have just as big a job, if not bigger, to do this year as they have in the past," he said.

Now, Here Comes A Cigarette You 'Can Live With'

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The 30-year search for a "safe cigarette" that tastes like a tobacco cigarette and is harmless has ended in a lettuce patch, the president of a new cigarette company said today.

Perry Resnick of Philadelphia, Pa., said his firm has developed a cigarette made of lettuce leaves.

His cigarettes are "satisfying both to the taste and the family physician," Resnick said. They soon will be marketed as "the cigarette you can live with."

Early testing in eastern hospitals indicates the lettuce cigarettes have little or no effect on the circulatory system, in contrast with the effects of tobacco cigarettes, Resnick said.

Burch Countering Moves for Ouster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican National Chairman Dean Burch is countering moves aimed at his ouster with elaborate plans to rebuild the GOP from the precinct up.

There is also a possibility that the beleaguered party chairman will propose a "little" national convention to which all elements of the party will be invited. The purpose of such a gathering would be to draft a new statement of Republican policy.

Burch, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater's personal choice to head the party's national committee, is under heavy fire because of the overwhelming defeat Republicans sustained in the Nov. 3 elections.

Moderates and liberals in the party have demanded his removal from the chairmanship in a move to wrest control of the party organization from Goldwater conservatives.

The extent of the rebellion against Burch will be measured at a meeting of Republican governors in Denver this weekend.

The conference is viewed in some quarters as an important prelude to the Jan. 23-24 GOP National Committee meeting at Chicago.

A committee spokesman predicted that no significant move to oust Burch would develop at the governors' meeting. He said that, come what may, Burch will fight any such move and that, under no conditions, will the Goldwaterites step aside voluntarily.

Burch is prepared to take the offensive in the battle with a blueprint to strengthen the party. He himself will concentrate on organizational matters. His present thinking is to let policy matters be decided by the party's spokesmen in Congress and by GOP governors.

The heart of the Burch plan centers on strengthening the party's precinct work, financing and public relations on a permanent basis, rather than merely conducting holding operations between elections.

By LYLE WILSON

United Press International
Conservatives of all parties will find an issue upon which they can agree when President Johnson in early January submits to Congress his 1966 fiscal year budget.

LBJ will budget for a deficit, as usual. Deficits have become a way of political life, especially for Democratic politicians.
For example:

The four-year grand total of deficit of the Kennedy-Johnson administrations, 1961-64 inclusive, is an imposing $24.8 billion. President Johnson will add $5.7 billion to the deficit accumulation at the end of the current, 1965, fiscal year. That will lift the five year deficit grand total to $30.5 billion. That is big time spending of money, especially when you don't have it.

The budget has not been in surplus or balanced with income equal to outgo since fiscal 1960 which ended at midnight June 30 of that year.
There was a surplus of $1.2 billion that year, an Eisenhower surplus. The previous year, however, like had a nightmare deficit of nearly $12.5 billion.

It is not the taxpayers who are failing in the effort — if there is any real effort—to balance the U. S. budget. Ten years ago, 1955, the taxpayers came up with $60.2 billion for federal expenses and government cost $64.3 billion. Treasury income in the current fiscal year is expected to reach $81.5 billion, $31 billion more than 10 years ago. But it will not be enough. The Johnson administration will spend nearly $6 billion more than that, making good on a Parkinson law:
That expenditures in government must rise to overtake revenue.

LBJ won for himself a year ago a reputation as an economizer by combing some spending out of the 1965 budget he had inherited from the late President Kennedy. That Kenedy budget was approaching its final form when LBJ took over. The new President began turning off chandelier lights in the White House while his associates planted stories around Washington to the effect that the country was headed for a record-breaking $100 billion spending budget despite the struggle of economizer Johnson to hold the line. But, presto, when the budget was published spending was proposed at only $97.9 billion. Only???

It was made to seem that great economy had been won.
That was the idea, that LBJ had performed an economy miracle. Moreover his spending
the previous Kennedy year.

Projects Image

So at Kennedy's expense, the image was projected of LBJ as a close man with the taxpayers' back. The administration announced last month that the spending figure had been reduced another $700 million to $97.2 billion. But the projected deficit was up nearly one billion from the originally projected figure.

Republicans challenged the economy claims of a year ago and will do so again in protest against the 1966 budget. Moreover, there was a Republican tendency a year ago to challenge the integrity of the Johnson budget as part of an overall assault on the respectability of the entire Johnson administration. The Republicans will be under great pressure again to make a big thing of that, linking alleged questionable budget practices with the Bobby Baker case and other items that figured during the presidential campaign in Barry Goldwater's issue of morality in Washington.

On the issue of big time spending and big time deficits, conservatives should be able to get together regardless of how they may react to the money issue.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

The agonies of those who died, of the fortunate ones who were saved and of those who now have been left behind came forth all too clearly in the accounts of the joint U.S.-Belgian rescue mission to the Congo.

And it becomes the more unfortunate that this mercy mission now should fall into the old cold war pattern.

The same U.S. planes which air-lifted the Belgian paratroopers into Stanleyville and Paulis in rebel-held Oriental Province ferried out nearly 1,700 hostages of the Simbas, or lions, as the rebels call themselves. For more than 80, including at last three Americans, rescue came to olate.

Left behind when the rescue mission was declared concluded were an estimated 900 foreigners still in Simba hands, their position even more precarious now than before.

For the propagandists of Moscow and Peking, the operation was tailor-made. They ignored the lives at stake and denounced the mission as a pretext to re-establish Western imperialism in the Congo.

Instrument of Policy

Communist regimes make short work of any demonstration against themselves but mob action can also be an instrument of policy.

Therefore it was no surprise when mobs attacked the U.S. Embassy in Moscow, and U.S. legations in Prague and Sofia.

In Cairo, a mob made up mostly of African students, burned the U.S. Embassy library. In Algeria, President Ahmed Ben Bella promised more arms for the Simbas and even volunteers.

But amid the general uproar which went up from black Africa, there were dissenting voices, and the protest themselves were based not so much on communism but upon black African nationalism.

A voice of powerful dissent came from Nigeria whose Foreign Minister Jaja Wachuka praised the U.S.-Belgian action and said that in a similar situation Nigeria also would attempt to protect its citizens.

Outcry Caused Concern

In the United States, there also were doubts. But the doubts were not concerned over the righteousness of the action but whether it had been stopped too soon, perhaps because of undue concern over the outcry it aroused.

Thus reaction fell into three categories—praise in the West, the cynical protests of Moscow and Peking each of whom sought to turn it to their own ends, and the indignation of Africa based mostly on a widespread hate of Congolese Premier Moise Tshombe.

Tshombe, as president of an independent Katanga Province early in the history of the Congolese republic, acquired the hatred of other African leaders for his use of white mercenaries, many of them drawn from the white supremacy areas of Southern Rhodesia and South Africa.

Tshombe has been banned from the councils of the Organization for African Unity and he has been under further attack for his use of white mercenaries now in his attempt to crush the rebellion in Oriental Province.

New Mexican Cabinet Called Friends of US

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The cabinet of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, which yesterday took over the running of this third largest nation of the Western Hemisphere, is a lineup of technicians who can be considered as being friendly to the United States.

The key man in the cabinet is Luis Echevarria, who after replacing Diaz Ordaz as minister of government on a temporary basis, was confirmed in the job by his former boss, for the next six years. Now 42, Echevarria is a man to watch when the governing Party of Revolutionary Institutions picks its candidate for the 1970 presidential elections.

In another key post is Antonio Ortiz Mena, minister of finance, who is one of the only three men kept by Diaz Ordaz from the cabinet of outgoing President Adolfo Lopez Mateos. Ortiz Mena is an economist of the highest order, who is largely credited with the economic boom which Mexico has enjoyed over the past few years.

Interior Panel Has Widespread Duties

It is a privilege and a pleasure to be assigned to the House committee on interior and insular affairs because it could truly be said that this is the committee of the House of Representatives most directly involved with conserving and developing the natural resources of our country.

One of the oldest committees in the House (it was set up in 1805 as the committee on public lands), the interior and insular affairs committee has served through the years to initiate some of the more significant and memorable pieces of legislation enacted by the Congress. In the 88th Congress, the committee's accomplishments accounted in large measure for the complimentary name by which the whole 88th Congress may be remembered by history: "The Conservation Congress." In every field of its jurisdiction, the committee led the way to House passage of meaningful, substantial measures.

Again in the 89th Congress the committee is expected to be led by the gentleman who has served it so well as chairman through the three preceding Congresses, the Honorable Wayne N. Aspinall of Palisade, Colo. Congressman Aspinall's knowledge, energy, and dedication to his work has earned him a well-deserved national reputation as a conservationist ranked with the great of American history.

The responsibility of the committee on interior and insular affairs involves considering, reporting on, and helping to bring enactment of legislative measures providing for the maximum utilization, management, and conservation of the public lands, minerals, water supplies, forests, and other natural resources of the United States; legislative matters involving the government and administration of the territories and other off-shore areas, and legislation affecting the Indians, Aleuts, and Eskimos of the United States and their lands and claims.

During the 88th Congress, 662 measures dealing with these matters were referred to the committee. Of this total, 164 (representing a total of 357 of those referred) were reported to the House and 144 were passed into law. Approximately 20 per cent of all public laws enacted by the 88th Congress had first been cleared by the committee on interior and insular affairs.

The subcommittee on irrigation and reclamation was extremely active during the 88th, in exercising initial jurisdiction over legislation relating to the federal reclamation program and multiple-purpose development of the nation's water resources, and legislation involving the Nation's water and power policies and saline water research program. Twenty-five bills enacted by the 88th Congress originated in this subcommittee.

Perhaps of greatest national importance was the bill which moved from the subcommittee through to enactment to provide for expanded water resources research in colleges and universities in each of the 50 States and Puerto Rico. The committee and subcommittees have properly been called "the workshops of Congress," for it is here that the proper foundations are laid for good legislation. Many great challenges will face the committee members when the 89th Congress convenes in January.

Because of the great opportunity to serve not only present-day Americans but also our future generations, the men and women who are privileged to serve on this committee are looking forward to writing another chapter of this committee's distinguished and historic record.

Sincerely,
Your Congressman,
Walter Rogers

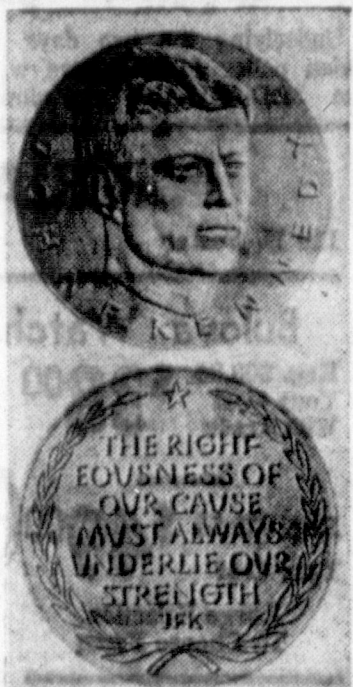

Reprieve Given

Bowlegged Lion

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (UPI)—Leo, the bowlegged lion, got a temporary reprieve Monday night from an order that would banish him from his backyard home.

The Abington Township Department of Public Safety voted at its meeting to rescind its order on owner Howard Sautter to get rid of the three-year-old, 300-pound animal. But at the same time, the township solicitor was instructed to draw up an ordinance making it illegal to keep wild animals in the township.

So it appeared that Leo, loved by Sautter and some of his neighbors, feared by others, and loathed by a few, will have to move to new quarters in the near future.

LAST WORDS—The West German state mint of Baden-Wuerttemberg has issued this coin in commemoration of the first anniversary of John Kennedy's death. It bears the words from the last sentence of the speech he was to present in Dallas on the day of his death.

GOP Governors Urged to Look Beyond Leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican governors who will meet this week in Denver to discuss the GOP's future already have been urged to look beyond the Republican National Committee if they are to become a "third force" within the party.

The Ripon Society, a research group of moderate-to-liberal Republicans, Monday issued a series of recommendations including sharp criticism of former GOP National Chairman William E. Miller.

"We believe that a strong Republican Governors' Association with an increased voice in the leadership of the national party is essential to the recovery and health of the Republican party," the Ripon report said.

"We urge that all necessary steps toward that end be taken now."

The Ripon group, located in Cambridge, Mass., and with members in over 30 states, proposed that the Governors' Association set up its own full-time professional staff, name its own treasurer, raise its own money, and "communicate directly" with Republican members of Congress.

The society said it was during Miller's regime that the governors agreed to accept national committee financing and let the committee treasurer serve as their treasurer. They also could deal with Republicans in Congress only "through" Miller.

Absolute Concentration Needed for Test

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of five dispatches on extra-sensory perception by the UPI's national reporter. It discusses "Who can get the message and who can't."

By HARRY FERGUSON
United Press International

One day a Duke University student who usually scored well in tests for extra-sensory powers began floundering and flunking. A few questions brought forth the information that a certain girl had arrived in Durham, N.C., thereby diverting the student's mind from extra-sensory matters to sensory ones.

If you wish to test yourself for unusual mental powers, absolute concentration is the first order of business. Without it you are bound to fail. Coleman Cooper consistently showed promise in experiments in Dr. J. B. Rhine's laboratory at Duke. But one day he was called to the telephone and received disturbing news. When he returned to the laboratory and attempted to identify each card in a pack, his average promptly fell to three out of 25. The laws of chance are that you can average five out of 25 without any extra-sensory powers at all.

It appears you must go into training if you are going to have success, both physically and mentally. George Zirkle was coming up with an average of 14 correct predictions out of 25 cards at Duke when he caught influenza. He continued the experiments in the hospital and his average fell to eight. When he recovered, he was back at 14 again.

Age No Factor.

Rhine says age is not a factor. He has found extra-sensory powers in persons ranging in age from 4 to 60. Nor is intelligence any help because students getting high grades at Duke did no better on the average than those receiving mediocre ones. A group of 20 children at varying stages of retardation were tested. The most retarded did just as well as the least.

There is no difference between the performance level of men and women. Extroverts of either sex do a little better than introverts. The one price-less ingredient that seems to characterize a person with unusual extra-sensory powers is a feeling of complete confidence. No doubt must ever cross his mind that he is going to perform well above the average. Confidence, in turn, is helped by a relaxed environment and congenial persons who are putting the subject to the test.

The feeling of confidence mysteriously comes and goes as any professional golfer can tell you. On Monday he gets a sudden conviction that he is going to sink long putts and he disappears and he starts missing three footers. Obviously the mind is the controlling factor because he is using the same muscles to strike the ball with the same putter. Nobody has found even the smallest clue as to why this feeling comes and goes, but if you should stumble onto the solution, Arnold Palmer would appreciate hearing from you right away.

A Sixth Sense?

Whatever the reason, only about one person out of five has extra-sensory powers. One theory, interesting but unproved, attempts to explain why all of us don't have it by going all the way back to prehistoric man. It assumes that in the days of the cave man everybody was equipped with extra-sensory powers as an added protection against their enemies. Gradually the increased use of the five normal senses—sight, hearing, taste, touch and smell—resulted in less use of the sixth sense. It began to wither in a majority of mankind, but for some reason survived strongly in a minority of us.

If you are gifted with extra-sensory perception, it can manifest itself in three ways. You can be telepathic—able to receive messages from other minds. You can be clairvoyant—know things about an object, situation or event that is not known to any other person at that time. You can have pre-cognition—the ability to visualize something that is still in the future.

Distance Doesn't Matter.

You have to be close to the person or object—in the same room, for instance—for telepathy to work? Not at all. Rhine cleared up that matter many years ago with an experiment involving Miss Sara Ownbey and Miss Frances Turner. He explains it this way in "New Frontiers of the Mind."

Miss Ownbey sat in the laboratory of Duke University with 25 extra-sensory perception cards in front of her. Miss Turner was 250 miles away. They synchronized their watches to the south of their homing target, but they also are highly proficient in approaches from east, west and north.

The laws of chance are that Miss Turner could guess five of the 25 cards correctly without any telepathy at all. On the first test she got 19 and on the next two 17. Over an extended period of time she averaged 10.1—twice what the law of averages dictates. There is some evidence that telepathy is more effective at a distance than it is when two persons occupy the same room. Rhine's hypothesis is that the receiver of the messages can concentrate better because he is not distracted by the presence of another person in the room.

In an attempt to solve the mystery of extra-sensory powers scientists have done much research on the ability of carrier pigeons to find their way unerringly home.

Deliberate attempts to confuse the pigeons and throw them off course have failed. The performance of homing pigeons can be improved by selective breeding—raising the ones which perform best. There is some evidence that pigeons do better when they are taken

Department Store Sales Show Rise

DALLAS (UPI)—The Dallas Federal Reserve Bank reported Tuesday that department store sales in the 11th Federal Reserve District were up an average of 14 per cent in October, compared with the same month in 1963.

By the same comparison, sales were up 11 per cent from Jan. 1, 1964, to Oct. 31, 1964, and up 12 per cent from Feb. 3, 1964, to Oct. 3, 1964.

Individual city department store sales increases in October included: Corpus Christi, 24 per cent; Dallas, 15 per cent; El Paso, 10 per cent; Houston, 20 per cent; San Antonio, 18 per cent; Shreveport, 6 per cent; and Waco, 11 per cent.

It is an unsolved mystery and J. Gaither Pratt, in a discussion of the subject in his book "Parapsychology," uses this chapter heading: "Winged Messengers. What Is Your Secret?" Tomorrow: Is there such a thing as mind over matter?

HORROR AS GROUNDS

PATERSON, N.J. (UPI)—Mrs. Jane Arnoldi sued for divorce Tuesday on grounds her husband thought more of Frankenstein and other monsters than he did of her.

Mrs. Arnoldi said her husband, Charles, read horror stories instead of talking to her and kept models of monsters such as Frankenstein around the house.

The thing that finally drove her out of the house, she said, was her husband's insistence on describing surgical operations in detail at mealtime.

'Caveman' Starts Long Stay

NICE, France (UPI) — A French furniture maker crawled into a dark cave Monday and began a slow descent 1,000 feet beneath the surface of the earth.

"See you all in March," he shouted back to well-wishers in a voice that echoed against the walls of the cavern. Then he disappeared to begin an experiment that may produce by-products for U.S. astronauts.

The modern day "caveman" is 35-year-old Antoine Senni of Nice. He calls himself a "spelonaout" — a combination spelunker, or cave explorer, and astronaut.

Senni said he plans to spend four months at the bottom of the Oliver Cavern in a test of man's ability to experience life where there is no day and no night.

Officials of the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration are interested in Senni's project. They have asked him for a report on the physiological and psychological effects of his experiment. It is believed that Senni will be living in conditions that parallel men in space.

Steelworkers Start Draft of Demands

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The United Steelworkers union (USW), embroiled in its first major internal power struggle, today begins drafting contract demands it will make soon in the nation's booming basic steel industry.

Developments here will be watched closely by the Johnson administration in Washington and by executives of the "big 11" steel companies who hold labor agreements with the 1.2 million-member USW.

The union's 33-man executive board, headed by USW President David J. McDonald, was to convene in a downtown hotel suite at 10 a.m. EST.

In that group will be I. W. Abel, the union's secretary-treasurer, whose candidacy for the giant labor organization's top post presents a serious challenge to McDonald's 12-year reign.

Following their morning meeting, members of the executive board were expected to present contract recommendations to the 170-member Wage Policy Committee at a 2 p.m. session. The policy makers will continue their discussions Thursday.

Four days ago at a news conference in Texas, President Johnson made it clear he does not want a wage-price spiral in steel.

The President said he was certain "the parties have the wisdom to reach a new agreement without a strike and without labor cost or price increases."

MOVING UPWARD — Contributions to the Pampa-Lefors United Fund campaign boosted the chart to the 80 per cent mark at a noon report meeting yesterday. Painting the chart, right, is Norman Henry, general drive chairman, and Duggan Smith, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce. Worker cards were redistributed at the meeting yesterday to start the final push for the drive goal. (Story on Page 1)

New Soviet Shakeups Set

MOSCOW (UPI)—The leaders of the new series of shakeups in their camps are to be named by Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev's "bare-brained" mistakes, East European sources said today. They said the leaders are seriously considering basic changes in the decentralization of Soviet industry promulgated by Khrushchev in 1957. Other changes could involve the consolidation of some government ministries and possibly a reshuffling of some No. 1 posts.

Arrests Expected In Murders of Rights Workers

WASHINGTON (UPI)—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover expects arrests shortly in connection with the summer slaying of three civil rights workers in Mississippi, according to Negro leader Rev. Martin Luther King.

King said Hoover informed him of the imminent arrests during a meeting Tuesday at FBI headquarters. The meeting was held at King's request. The two, accompanied by aides talked in Hoover's office for more than an hour.

King did not say how many arrests were expected, but other sources indicated that 10 or 11 persons may be charged, including some "in official capacities."

The two met after Hoover sparked a verbal feud by accusing King of being the "most notorious liar in the country." The FBI director made the charge recently at a news conference.

After Tuesday's discussion, King said in a prepared statement that he stressed to Hoover that there should be no misunderstandings between the FBI and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Resistance to the civil rights movement, especially in Alabama and Mississippi, was discussed during the meeting, King said.

Hoover made no statement after the late afternoon discussion.

However, sources said Hoover went into great detail to explain the accomplishments of the FBI in the civil rights field and to praise "the brilliant record of Negro special agents in the FBI."

Last week, the FBI said officially that it knew the killers in the Philadelphia slayings and that "intensive investigation is continuing to develop the case for prosecution as soon as possible."

The Lighter Side 'Gratuity Form' Now Set for Freeloaders

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Pentagon recently created consternation in the ranks of military-type freeloaders by tightening the rules governing acceptance of gratuities from defense contractors.

Some wag in the procurement branch accepted the directive as a challenge to prepare yet another form to be filled out in triplicate. This one is called the "gratuity acceptance report."

A copy of the form which is being surreptitiously circulated among military purchasing officers has fallen into my hands. Being a rather interesting specimen of bureaucratic fun and games I have taken the liberty of passing along an abridged or expurgated version below:

Estes and Partner Start Action on Tourist Venture

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—El Paso, Tex., businessman Paul Slone and his "consultant," Billie Sol Estes, ventured into New Mexico Tuesday to iron out kinks in their plans to convert the deserted mining town of Madrid into a tourist attraction.

The two were expected to confer today with Joe Huber, who is acting as legal agent in the transaction. Huber said his mother owns half the town and his late father's estate owns the other half.

Slone and Estes also were expected to have a first-hand look at the old ghost town, which is nestled in the mountains between Albuquerque and Santa Fe. A large party probably will accompany them.

The two men were joined in Albuquerque Tuesday by Sammie Burke of Las Cruces, N.M., Dave Jungerman of Torrance, Calif.; Sam Powers of Albuquerque and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mirabel of El Paso. Mrs. Estes also was in the party.

Burke is owner of Burke Outdoor Advertising Co., while Jungerman identified himself with Renee-Derm of America. Powers is an inventor and welder and Barbara Mirabel a professional singer.

Each declined to reveal his role in the enterprise.

Palestine Youth Wins 4-H Honors

CHICAGO (UPI)—Eddie Platt, 17, of Palestine, Tex., was named winner Tuesday of a $500 scholarship for his work in the national 4-H Electric program.

The award, a grant from Westinghouse Educational Foundation, was announced at the 43rd National 4-H Club Congress, which will continue here through Thursday.

Young Platt, who plans to become an electrical engineer, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Platt. He is a senior student at Palestine High School, where he also played football.

Three other $500 scholarships for Texas teen-agers were announced earlier. Jolene Lewis, 19, of Murchison got a $500 scholarship Monday from General Foods Corp. for her work with the 4-H organization's foods-nutrition program.

Nancy Appel, 17, was named winner of a $500 scholarship from Montgomery Ward for her work in the national home economics program, and 16-year-old Dale Henderson of Kerrville got a $500 sheep scholarship from Wilson & Co., Inc.

There were 500 horse-drawn transit lines in 300 cities in this nation in 1880.

Eidinoff Hearing Again Postponed

TYLER (UPI)—The sanity hearing for Dr. Harold Eidinoff of El Paso, committed to a state mental hospital after he killed a lawyer in the climax to a "hate photo feud," was postponed until mid-January Tuesday.

Eidinoff's sanity hearing, called at his request, was scheduled to begin Monday. But he paid a surprise visit to the Smith County courthouse Tuesday to ask that it be put off. He said he is having trouble finding a lawyer to plead his case, and asked for the delay to give him time to find one.

Eidinoff has been confined to the Rusk State Hospital since 1959, when he shot and killed attorney Ted Andress at the El Paso Airport. It was the climax to a four-year feud that started when Andress showed other people nude pictures of Eidinoff and his bride they took of each other on their honeymoon in 1936.

This familiar little transmitter isn't worth fifty cents (41¢ to be exact) but it can make you sound like a million dollars if you give it half a chance

Follow these two easy steps and you'll get remarkable clarity, naturalness and just the right volume level from your phone.

1. It's all in the way you hold the phone. Start by resting the receiver comfortably flat against your ear without applying pressure.

2. Then swing the transmitter directly in front of your mouth. Automatically, it will be the right distance from your lips. Speak in normal, conversational tones.

Today's telephone circuits reproduce your voice eight times better than they did 25 years ago; three times better than just 10 years ago. Multimillion dollar changes within the telephone system itself have made this dramatic progress possible. New kinds of dial switching equipment. New kinds of cables and radio relay systems. Rapid application of telephone science's newest art, electronics. Nowadays your telephone serves you better in so many ways. Speed. Convenience. Dependability. And especially, in the everyday business of making your voice sound like you.

Gardening News

By MAYBELLE CARLTON

The home greenhouse has become very popular all over the country, especially in colder areas. More gardeners, especially men nearing retirement age, are turning to the greenhouse for relaxing activity the year round. Pampa has seven to his writers knowledge. Each one is a different size and type, built by the owners. They are Messrs. and Mmes. Milo Carlson, D. A. Caldwell, Glen Cox, Ira Carlton, W. L. Campbell, A. J. Mitchell and Walter Spoonemore.

A green house may be defined as a structure made of glass, many kinds of plastic and fiberglass, in which plants may be grown with protection from adverse weather conditions. It provides the gardener with an environment in which many factors of plant growth can be controlled; light, heat, moisture, ventilation and soil. Thus enabling growth of many plants out of season.

A small greenhouse may easily change the gardener's pleasures from the average five to six months, into 12 months a year. From it may be had fresh flowers and even some vegetables all winter. Potted plants to brighten the home and for the church. Seedlings may be started early, and put into the garden at the proper time, having much earlier blooming season.

Cuttings of favorite shrubs, perennials and trees may be had to increase the planting in garden and to share with friends. This writer has many such cuttings and seed of trees and shrubs from California and Arizona for experimental purposes.

The possibilities for fun, plants and flowers that a greenhouse of modest size offers are endless.

When selecting plants to be grown, it is obviously important to choose kinds that thrive in the same environment. Most often the amateur wants a mixed house. This can be done with real success, provided care is taken in making selections. Experimenting can be fun and very often a plant proves all authorities wrong. The Christmas Poinsettia has done just that in this writer's house. We are told that unless the Poinsettia is placed in total darkness from 4 p.m. until 9 a.m. next day the plant will not bloom. For the average gardener this is too much trouble. In the greenhouse, in full sun, ours bloomed from early December until April. So it's not expensive to experiment and is always inspiring.

Modern building methods and materials make possible the finest greenhouses. These materials include red wood, aluminum and stainless steel. One may purchase a pre-fabricated type that goes together in sections. Which ever type is chosen there are many factors to be considered. It must be light, airy, well ventilated and tight. The greenhouse site should be chosen with great care. A place where it will get the maximum amount of sunshine, especially the morning sun. Maximum exposure to light at least in winter, is essential to all flowering plants. Lack of light is one of the limiting factors to plant growth during the winter when there are many dull cloudy days.

Ventilation is one of the most important factors. Fresh air must be present when the temperature goes up. An absence of it will cause mildew and mold. In the home greenhouse, where the roof is lower than in the commercial house, the temperature will soar as soon as the sun comes out. There are many types of shades to lower at these times to help control the heat. This writer has a lath shade that has proven successful.

Heating must be adequate. In this area the gas that heats our home is good. Other areas may heat by steam, or hot air. Which is usually best accomplished by means of tubes or pipe coils.

Watering is very important, as plants vary according to their kind, condition, vigor, age and season. The more active the growth the more water is required. Watering should be done early in the day so the foliage will be dry by night. Humidity may be controlled somewhat by the process of damping down. Spray with a fine mist in the air and on the plants. Wet the floor and benches. This is required on warm sunny days more than when cloudy.

Cleanliness is of utmost importance. If it is not maintained, disease and pest soon take over. If dead leaves, old pots, flats, stakes and such are allowed to accumulate they are likely to serve as breeding places for organisms that cause disease and insects.

Dear Abby... Something's Gotta Give — Husband or Friend's Dog

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a very dear friend whom I've had for many years. She recently lost her husband and lives alone with her small dog. When my husband is on the road, I invite her to spend the night with me. We have a one-bedroom apartment with a large double bed. This friend lets her dog sleep with her at home, so naturally when she's here she does the same. I fixed up a "bed" for the dog on the floor, but he wouldn't sleep there. My bed has begun to take on a doggy smell and my husband is complaining. My friend is very sensitive so I have to be careful not to say anything that might hurt her feelings. What can I do? I wouldn't give up her friendship for the world.

TRUE FRIEND
DEAR FRIEND: If your friend enjoys sleeping with her dog, that's her business. And if you don't mind sleeping with her and her dog, that's your business. But you owe your husband more than you owe your friend, and if you don't know that, you belong in the doghouse. I admire your loyalty, but your husband's complaint is legitimate, so tell your friend she can't have her dog in your bed, or you'll "lose" your husband.

DEAR ABBY: Is there anything wrong with a girl going with a man who is legally separated from his wife? I am almost 19 and my parents have told me that they do not want me to go out with this perfectly wonderful man (he is 27) because, as far as they are concerned, he is still married and will be until he is divorced. They say I will hurt my reputation if I am seen with him. Abby, he is working on getting a divorce and he says that he is sure he can get one eventually, so I don't see why I shouldn't date him in the meantime. I would like your opinion.

TROUBLE AT HOME
DEAR TROUBLE: If you have marriage in mind, you could wait a long time before this man's divorce comes through. And it may never happen. Your parents are thinking of your welfare and future happiness. I agree with them.

DEAR ABBY I am 21 and am engaged to a young man who is away in the service. I work and keep myself busy and would never think of going out on him, but I get many chances. My fiancé could not afford to buy me an engagement ring, but that didn't matter. We love each other and have plans to marry as soon as he gets back. My problem is trying to convince other men that I am engaged. They say that since I don't have a ring, I am not engaged, and if I don't want to go out with them why don't I just say so? Does a girl need an engagement ring to be officially engaged? How can I convince these persistent men?

ENGAGED BUT RINGLESS
DEAR RINGLESS: Ring or no ring, if you and your young man have agreed to marry, you are indeed officially engaged. It's not necessary to con-

51TH YEAR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1964 13

UPI All-America Bypasses Carl

NEW YORK (UPI) — Colleges from the Central Plains states of Indiana, Illinois, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Kansas provided eight of the 11 players named today to the 1964 United Press International All-America football team.

Notre Dame and Illinois placed two players each — end Jack Snow and quarterback John Huarte from the Fighting Irish and center Dick Butkus and fullback Jim Grabowski from the Illini.

Two players from the state of Oklahoma also were chosen, but from different schools — tackle Ralph Neely from the University of Oklahoma and back Jerry Rhone from Tulsa.

Rounding out this brilliant showing from America's heartland were tackle Larry Kramer of Nebraska and halfback Gale Sayers of Kansas.

Joining those eight to make up the first team were guard Rick Redman of Washington, and Larry Elkins of Baylor and guard Tommy Nobis of Texas.

The all-star team was selected in a nationwide ballot of 259 sports writers and broadcasters. They gave the most votes to Snow, who was named on 237 of the ballots. He received 213 first team votes and 24 for the second team for a total of 2,487 points. Runner-up in the voting was Butkus, named on 230 ballots for a total of 2,355 points.

Butkus was one of three repeaters from the UPI's 1963 All-America team, the others being Redman and Sayers. They were three of the four juniors on last year's team, the other being Navy quarterback Roger Staubach, who only made honorable mention this season.

Only two juniors are on the 1964 all-star eleven—Nobis and Grabowski.

Neely and Elkins were second team choices last year. There was a close race for the fourth backfield spot. Grabowski won it by 24 points over Bob Timberlake of Rose Bowl-bound Michigan.

Geographical Selection
Geographically, the Midwest and Midlands won four berths each with the Southwest winning two spots and the Far West the other. It marked the second straight year the Midwest placed four players on the team and marked the first time since World War II years that there were as many as three repeaters.

The South, usually prominent in first team All-Americas, the East and the Rockies were shut out this year's All-America. However, the South was second to the Midwest for the largest number of players on the first three teams, winning seven of the 33 berths. The Midwest placed 11, the Southwest with five, the Far West with four and the East with three each.

The first team would be any coach's dream team. It has speed, weight and height. The line averages 221 pounds per man, the backfield 191. In height the line averages just over six feet, two inches, the backs just over six feet.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 1964 United Press International All-American football team under the point system used a player receiving the first place vote of every person participating in the poll would receive 100 points.

McLean Edges Past Lefors For Three

By KEITH GEISLER
News Sports Correspondent
LEFORS — Invading McLean took three tooth- and nail-tussles from Lefors last night, coming from behind to win the boys game, 47-41, coming from behind again to win the girls game 38-35.

The Pirettes' inability to hit from the foul line in the final quarter cost them their best chance for a win in the last two years as a three-girl assault on the basket by McLean provided the winning margin.

Lefors was a one-girl shooting gang as Vicki Stone smacked 30 points through the hoop, offsetting the efforts of Jan Bailey, Barbara McCurley and Sharon Goldston until the final minutes.

The first quarter finished in an 8-8 tie, but Jan poked the Tigresses into a 25-22 halftime lead.

Vicki kept the Pirettes close, and then hit two buckets in a row in the final seconds of the third quarter to give Lefors a 30-28 lead.

McLean came right back with six straight points to open the fourth quarter and held the lead as Lefors missed several free throw chances.

Jan had 14, Barbara 10 and Sharon nine points.

A full-court McLean press which stole the ball away from Lefors in the final minutes and stone-cold shooting by the Pirettes in the final frame was the difference.

Outstanding player on the court was 6-3 Eddie Jay Windom, who was all over the court offensively and defensively until fouling out in the last quarter. Windom dominated the boards and scored 20 points, while his replacement, Eddie Finley, did a fine job in the key minutes.

The first quarter ended 9-9 and then Eddie Pruett started poking them home for Lefors and George Green for McLean, with Windom scoring as the half ended to give the Tigers a 24-23 lead.

Pruett popped in eight points to give Lefors a 37-35 lead, and Windom scored the tying bucket in the fourth quarter and then fouled out. Gene Hester hit to put the Tigers ahead for good as Lefors could sink only two of eight free throw attempts, and booted away the ball against the press several times.

Green followed Windom with 10 points, Pruett had 16 and Ace Roberts 11 for Lefors.

McLean also won a B girls game, 26-14. Pam Bailey had 12 for McLean, Linda Tillman 10 for Lefors.

The Pirates meet Mobette at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Shamrock Tournament.

ALL MINE — Ropes Roper (33) of Pampa snatches a rebound out of the hands of Perryton's Kelly Wolff (42) while Tommy Butler (44) stands by. Pampa made their season record 5-0 last night with a 54-44 win.

Hornets Hop On Higgins

HIGGINS — The Mobette Hornets rallied from far behind to take a 64-60 win over Higgins last night, although the Hornets dropped a 42-29 decision in the girls game.

Eighteen points behind midway in the third quarter, Mobette roared back, led by Billy Whitten, who scored four straight points to clinch the game in the final frame.

Dominating the rebounds, Higgins moved into an 18-10 quarter lead. They ran the edge to 18, but Jim Johnston started taking back the boards, joining Whitten and Eddie Vowell as they rattled the nets to cut the edge to 34-30 at the half.

Gerald Gudge, Whitten and Johnston kept rolling in the third quarter, with Whitten scoring the go-ahead basket, 48-46.

Four times Higgins tied up the game in the final frame and four times Mobette went back out in front as Joe Fred Mixon dominated the backboards. Whitten finally hit a basket and came right back with two free throws, and the Hornets held the four-point edge for their first win of the season.

Whitten had 19, Gudge 17 and Johnston 15 points, Gary Roth had 17 for Higgins.

The Hornets just couldn't find the bucket and Higgins moved to 13-9, 29-17 and 35-19 quarter stops. Kay Smith's deadly outside shooting netted 27 points for the winners. Judy Bailey had 15 and Judy Rowell nine for Mobette.

The Hornets face Lefors at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Shamrock Tournament, with the Hornets meeting Spearman at 2:30.

Guerrero Leads Warriors Win

By MIKE McHONE
News Sports Correspondent
BOOKER — Big Ray Guerrero led Miami to a 53-44 victory over Booker in the Warriors' first cage game of the season last night, but the Kiowettes upset the Warriorettes in the girls game.

Afflicted with the first game jitters, the defending bi-district champs fouled constantly, while 6-0 Treela Hummer dominated the defensive boards to stop the Miami scoring.

Miami took a narrow 9-8 quarter lead, but Elise Fare started finding the range on long shots and Booker moved to a 22-17 halftime lead. Adding it up at the charity stripe, Booker held the edge at 29-21 after three periods.

Elsie led the scoring with 18. Judy Sale and Jeannie Cates had 12 apiece. Patches Dodson headed the Warriorettes with 21. Bev Weiss had seven.

The 6'4½" Guerrero was all over the court, dominating both backboards and scoring 24 points to stop the speedy Kiowas.

Guerrero canned 14 points in the first frame to give the Tribe a 16-12 margin. Ken Gill joined the shooting in the second stanza as Miami led 28-23 at the half.

Ben Rutz and Bill Hughes led the fast-breaking Kiowas as they drove back to tie the game at 34-34, but Guerrero drove for a bucket just before the buzzer and a 36-34 Warrior lead.

Dave Bowers broke it open in the final frame as he soaked in seven points while Guerrero fired another six and starved Rutz.

PHS 8th Wins
Pampa's eighth grade cagers opened up yesterday with a 32-24 win over Highland Park there. Ronald Love led the team effort with 14 points, Tommy Ivey had eight.

from the rebounds.

Gill and Bowers had nine points each to back Guerrero. Butch Henton had 11 and Rutz and Larry Trosper 10 each for the Kiowas.

Miami plays at Panhandle Friday.

SWC Roundup

By United Press International
Southwest Conference basketball teams premiered Tuesday night with Baylor and Texas racking up dazzling 100-plus scores over their non-conference guests.

Baylor's 103-85 victory over Arlington State marked the first time a Bear squad ever made it past 100. The Baylor run-and-shoot offense functioned with nary a setback throughout the game. The Bears were leading 52-47 at halftime.

And in Austin, the Texas Longhorns dealt destruction to Texas Wesleyan, 104-84. It was the second highest score Texas ever produced and the Steers' highest at home.

Texas Christian ended its 15-game losing streak by trouncing Austin College 91-66. That happened despite 33 points canned by Austin's diminutive ace, 5-foot-9 Bernie Popp.

Southern Methodist triumphed over Oklahoma City University 89-76 in Dallas. The Ponies led at the half with a flimsy 45-34 edge.

Aggies Flop
The only Southwest Conference team that fared badly in the non-conference encounters Tuesday evening was Texas A&M, defending conference champion. The Aggies lost 82-73 to Memphis State, a game played in the Tigers' Tennessee homeland.

Harvesters Win Fifth, Down Perryton, 54-44

By JEFF COHANE
News Sports Editor

PERRYTON — The Pampa Harvesters found their hands full last night before Davy McDaniel broke open the ball game to lead the Big Green to a 54-44 victory, their fifth straight win of the season.

Leading almost all the way, the Harvesters never could get the big jump due to the rebounding of Perryton's 6'4" pair of Tommy Butler and Mike Mitchell and the Harvesters' own inability to hit at the free throw line. Pampa was outshot from the floor, hitting only 34 percent, and from the foul line, making only 14 of 30 charity attempts, as compared to 19 of 20 the night before. The fouls made the difference however, as the Rangers, hitting six of eight, were overwhelmed by the amount of violations they committed. Perryton also took rebounding honors, 17 to 16, with Butler dragging down eight. Mac McWilliams pulled in five and Ropes Roper four to top the winners.

McDaniel, scoring the highest total of his career, 22 points, put the Harvesters into a big lead in the first quarter, saw the margin melt away before a press in the second period, and racked up the big margin again in the third frame.

Perryton tied the game at 2-2 in the first minute, but that was the closest they ever came as Curlee stole the ball and McWilliams did the same, hitting from outside. McDaniel stuffed in a rebound and then hit from the corner to give Pampa an 11-5 lead as Lanny Lewis led a defensive half-court press and Pampa had a 15-10 quarter lead.

Lewis headed the press and Roper beat Butler to the boards and the Harvesters moved the edge to 11 points. Perryton suddenly put on a press of their own to stifle the Pampa shooting and fed Butler under the basket, cutting the lead to four points. Roper stuffed in a basket just before the buzzer for a 26-20 halftime edge.

Kelly Wolff fouled out early in the third quarter, but scored four points before he left to cut the margin to three. McDaniel moved it back up, but Butler ripped the cords to slash the difference to 30-28.

McDaniel, Curlee and Lewis went to work at that point to put the game back out of reach, Lewis and the Curlyhead stole the ball like pickpockets at a parade and McDaniel obligingly stuffed in close-ups and hit outside, joined by McWilliams to move the bulge to 10. Curlee was fouled at the buzzer and added a free throw for a 43-32 margin.

McDaniel opened the fourth quarter with a stiff shot, Curlee added another charity and Pampa slowed it down. The rest of the period was a back-and-forth march to the free throw lines, with the Rangers cutting the edge slightly on more conversions and the outside shooting of half-pint Bob Boxwell.

Roy Harper and Larry Stephens sparked the Shockers to a 68-53 win in the opening game as Morris Johnson dominated the backboards. Steve Williams slammed home 22 points and The Harp had 18 to make the Shockers 4-1 going into the Phillips Tournament.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Hoover's Other Comments

Predictably, so much controversy has been stirred by J. Edgar Hoover's critical comments about Dr. Martin Luther King that the rest of the now-famous interview with the Federal Bureau of Investigation chief has been largely overshadowed.

This is too bad, because Mr. Hoover had commented on some matters of more general importance than his personal appraisal of the civil rights leader.

For one thing, he discussed the rise in crime — which has been greatest in our cities. The Federal Government is going to great expense these days to try to "renew" the cities, and lure the deserting middle-class families back into them. Certainly this money will be merely squandered unless the cities are safe as well as glittering.

He identified two sources of part of the trouble. One is the growing tendency of courts to be lenient with offenders and hard on the police officers who arrest them, evidently in support of the theories of some sociologists that crime is not the fault of those who commit it. The other is the tendency to treat ham-handed, 200-pound, be-whiskered young men as "juveniles," no matter how awful and repetitive their offenses.

It may be true that crime can be obliterated by improvement of "society," but any such approach will take a long time. So far, poverty has been shrinking as crime has been growing. So far, more people have more education and more are committing crimes. But, even so, perhaps in the long run crime rates will fall because of such improvements.

That will be of absolutely no help to the hundreds of Americans who encounter thugs daily, and wind up maimed or dead — let alone those whose property is taken or destroyed.

Mr. Hoover is hardly an expert on civil rights, but he is an expert on crime. His message that we should not let the softness that is so becoming in our hearts spread to our heads deserves serious consideration.

Just What I Wanted!

Memo to the ladies:

Are you looking for a Christmas gift for The Man in Your Life?

Something just a bit more exciting than a gift certificate or a special gift decanter of his favorite after-shave lotion?

Girls, your search is ended. A perusal of yuletide goodies offered in some of the more than 3,000 different mail order catalogues now being distributed throughout the country turns up a number of items almost any man would be surprised to get but just might not buy for himself.

Such as:

An initial branding iron (for branding initials), $4.

Sailcloth ditty bag (for holding sailcloth ditties), $1.50.

Whale tooth with kit for do-it-yourself scrimshaw, $7.40. Even if your man has a scrimshaw, chances are it isn't a do-it-yourself scrimshaw, and he'll appreciate this refinement.

Thorny oyster shell, $25. (Un-thorny shells a bit higher due to cost of unthorning.)

Bocce balls, $10 the set.

Down-filled sleeping booties for climbers. (Even a nonclimber would be grateful for these if he likes to sleep.)

The catalogues contain many other suggestions, any one of which would make your man think old Santa had been mighty good to him this Christmas. But those listed here seem to fit in most easily with everyday living.

Some of the items may seem a trifle expensive. But the look on his face will make it all worth-while.

Whoa, It's This-a-way!

The Post Office Department has discovered that up to now the U.S. mailman has been going one way and his horse the other.

If you are under the impression that relatively few carriers deliver mail on horseback these days, it should perhaps be explained that the horse in this instance is the one on the insignia on the shoulder patch ever mailman wears on his uniform.

The Post Office Department has issued this statement:

"The insignia shows a post rider, symbol of the postal service for generations. When sewed on the left shoulder of the uniform, the horse on the old insignia is riding in the opposite direction from the postal employee.

"With the new insignia, both the wearer and the horse will be going the same way."

To achieve this more logical arrangement, the postal service has ordered more than 200,000 new, horse-in-the-right-direction shoulder patches for its uniformed personnel.

Couldn't the present shoulder patch merely be moved from the left shoulder to the right shoulder?

Well, yes. But this would have shattered two fine, old government traditions.

One is that the shoulder patch has always been worn on the mailman's left shoulder.

The other is that if there is a simple, in-expensive way to do anything, the government will think of something better.

So Nuts to the Squirrels

As so many philosophers have remarked, it isn't the big head-aches that get you down. It's the measly little ones.

Squirrels, for instance. Maybe you're not a bird watcher or feeder. But millions of people are. And squirrels are driving them squirrely.

Squirrels are nuts over bird feed. They will eat it by the hour and do anything to get to it.

And while they are eating it, the birds can't get at it. This distresses not only the birds, but the people who like to feed birds.

The resulting battle of brains between the bird feeders and the squirrels has developed into one of the great intellectual conflicts of all time. So far, the squirrels have won, paws down.

Nobody can convince a bird feeder that squirrels can't think. And their tenacity is marvelous. They know they're not welcome, but they come anyway.

There just must be some way to keep squirrels from taking over bird-feeding stations. If there is, the bird feeders would like to know about it. So would the birds.

The squirrels couldn't care less. With their brains, who worries?

Red China At The Door

Already we see pressure being mustered for the annual debate at the U. N. General Assembly over admission of Red China to that world body. The long-heralded nuclear detonation by the Red Chinese is being put forth as the latest "realistic" reason why Mao's cruel regime should be accredited.

It is ironic that law, justice, morality and even the security of the United States and the free world do not seem to be factors to the sophists who keep insisting that reality is the norm which should be invoked in this decision.

If we invoke "law" — Red China would not stand a chance of admission. But, too often of late, one gets the sinking feeling that law is now what the existing judges feel it should be.

The UN Charter expressly limits membership to "peace-loving" states and disqualifies states that use "force" or the "threat of force." How could any fair judge declare brawling Red China eligible by these norms?

Red China has cruelly executed more than thirty million human beings. It imposes the worst kind of bondage on its six hundred million people. How could a judging body interested in justice and morality reconcile these damning realities to sanction by membership?

Would not the norms of right and wrong be completely obliterated by a judgment acknowledging Red China to be a "peace-loving" state?

The security of the United States is also involved. As a self-declared outlaw, Red China has almost fallen apart of its own transgressions. Probably only an infusion of western-grown wheat saved it last year. If left unsanctified and unaided, it could still fall apart with its people scrambling for freedom. But if it is elevated by UN membership and nurtured by recognition and its increments, it will go into the seventies to become a nuclear power that will blackmail, or destroy us.

The admission of Red China should be a vetoable decision. The admission of a new nation is such, and the USSR has used its veto on this score unsparringly to gain its ends. Admission of Red China should be far more a substantive issue (involving as it does an actual amendment of the charter itself) than, say, the admission of Outer Mongolia, which was, concededly vetoable. The Charter (Article 23) says: "The Security Council shall consist of eleven members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, Great Britain, the United States, and the Soviet Union shall be permanent members. How can this clear reference to Chiang's duly-elected government be expunged without an amendment that would be subject both to Chiang's and the United States' veto?

Of course, Red China and the USSR would gain immeasurably by U.S. recognition that would bring a swarm of red agents to embassies and consulates in Washington, New York and elsewhere. But worse would be the shattering blow that world morality would receive by such a decision. Somewhere along the line, and our churches and schools should take the lead in this, morality and standards of right and wrong should be elevated to a great height to serve as a beacon for the struggling peoples of the world.

Judging the Red bandits, defiant in a welter of blood and bestiality, to be a "peace-loving" state would be another hypocritical decision that would further erode the moral code we need so badly.

Eager to be Secretary of State as McGovern Bundy, one-time Harvard dean and special White House adviser on foreign affairs, who rated high in President Kennedy's councils and is equally well regarded by President Johnson; and Senator J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, whom Kennedy almost appointed State Department head. Fulbright and Johnson are old close friends.

MORE OUTS AND INS—Also due to leave the State Department is Abba Schwartz, controversial head of the Bureau of Consular & Security Affairs, who has long been under congressional fire.

On the other hand, Mrs. Frances Knight, director of the Passport Office, is definitely being retained. She already has that assurance from the White House. This is a big triumph for her, as she and Schwartz, nominally her superior, have been at bitter loggerheads for more than a year. Their feud is one of the most torrid in Washington.

Backstage Washington

Thorough Shakeup Pending in Cabinet And Among Presidential Appointees Despite Denial

ROBERT ALLEN

PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — Those White House-inspired reports that President Johnson contemplates no sweeping personnel changes are decidedly misleading.

That isn't what's happening behind the scenes.

Despite the soothing published assurances, the real fact is that every State and Justice Department official holding appointive office already has been formally notified to submit his resignation by December 15. These written resignations are to be post-dated as of January 20, start of the President's own Administration.

Heading the list of these requested resignations are Secretary Dean Rusk and Acting Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach.

This is only the start. Similar White House directives are going to appointed officials in all other departments and agencies. The inside word is there will be no exceptions. Everyone holding office "at the pleasure of the President" will get the same order.

In other words, the stage is quietly being set for a big shake-up.

There is no explanation for the curious contradiction between the lulling public word and the patronage ax being busily readied backstage.

Little doubt can be raised about the latter.

In the State Department — among those definitely slated for replacement or reshuffling are Secretary Rusk, who probably will be offered the UN Ambassadorship; Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, who will be asked to take a top European embassy; Assistant Secretary G. Mennen Williams, in charge of African affairs, who may or may not be offered another job acceptable to him.

contrast in the prospects of these two officials is deemed to be directly related to a statement the President made some months ago to Senators James Eastland, D-Miss., and Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., chairman and member of the Internal Security Subcommittee.

The President told them flatly he intended to "thoroughly houseclean" the State Department after the election. In return, the two Senators expressed willingness to delay publication until after the balloting of hundreds of pages of testimony on State Department personnel — that could have proved highly explosive campaign ammunition.

One top Justice Department official who already knows he is on the way out is Assistant Attorney General Herbert Miller Jr., head of the Criminal Div.

The 40-year-old Republican, appointed by President Kennedy, has submitted his resignation and been told it will be "accepted." Miller recommended that a special grand jury be convened to dig into the business operations of Bobby Baker, former secretary of the Senate Democrats, but nothing was done about it.

Miller has a fine record in the Criminal Division, but is not viewed with enthusiasm around the White House.

SANTA CLAUS' HELPER — The Internal Revenue Service has refunded $224,253,662 in taxes to corporations — plus another $24,043,506 in interest.

Forty-three firms got more than $1 million each.

Largest refund was $19,458,175 to Bethlehem Steel; second largest, $12,257,641 to Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry.

That's what the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, headed by Senator Harry Byrd, D-Va., reports in the latest accounting of corporation tax refunds for fiscal 1962. These reports traditionally are several years behind the actual settlement of refunds.

Under the law, the Joint Committee passes on all tax repayments exceeding $100,000.

In its report the committee stresses that the 1962 refunds totaled $130 million less than in 1961 when they amounted to $354,252,940. In 1961 such payments reached a record high of $698,563,689.

In addition to Bethlehem Steel and the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry., the other corporations receiving $1 million or more in tax refunds were:

Chicago & Northwestern RR Co., Chicago, Ill. 5,106,288
Lone Star Steel Co., Dallas, Tex. 4,924,212
American Motor Sales Corp., Detroit, Mich. 4,817,615
Maryland Casualty Co., Baltimore, Md. 3,760,070
Standard Oil Co., Chicago, Ill. 3,416,937
U. S. Steel Corp. & affiliated Cos. 3,000,000

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Educate the Stupid? Great! But Where Do You Start?

By SAM CAMPBELL

Up at Ann Arbor, Mich., once a year, the nation's economists like to gather together out of the cold and swap lies about the Gross National Product.

The event is called "Conference on Economic Outlook." The taxpayers furnish room and heat free of charge at the University of Michigan.

Anyway, one of the visiting yarn-spinners this year was a fellow named Robert C. Turner from down in Bloomington, Ind. He's a professor there at the University of Indiana, has a lot of time on his hands, so he wrote a scholarly paper titled "Long Run Economic Growth."

Who Got The Prize?

The UPI story didn't tell whether Prof. Turner's piece won the prize or not, but it must of been a crackerjack because the UPI gave some quotes. It said Turner noted a longrun tendency for "disappearance of jobs for stupid people."

"It is an unfortunate fact," Turner went on, "that a significant percentage of our population is persons of very limited intellectual equipment, with I.Q.'s, let's say, of less than 80."

Well, now, I wish he hadn't said. It sounds so personal. But I will say this for him, he did have what he called a "temporary solution." He figured this "temporary solution" would be to improve the level of education, skill and attitudes of persons who are in low I.Q. jobs. That's what the UPI said he said.

Upgrade Lowbrows

That's the best thing I've heard since my old friend Johnny Hopley won the Burlington, Wis., contest with a story about a snooker player who whiplashed a fly's back by bouncing the insect off the six ball with a ricochet shot.

Professor Turner had bigger things in mind than just an educational program to upgrade the lowbrows.

"Looking further ahead," he said, "after we have made the most of this temporary solution, I think I see an economy in which it is going to be necessary to have a substantial number of persons withler on a permanent government dole, or to create artificially, jobs that they can handle."

Obviously, what he is gunning for is some kind of "War Against Stupidity."

You know, he's got something there. We should put on our coonskin thinking caps, load our intellectual muskets, and get behind this fellow. Really, I mean it.

For the depths of ignorance amongst us working stiff's has reached appalling proportions. Do you realize that 50 per cent of the American population is below normal in intelligence?

Just contrast this figure with the vast gains made in Lower Slobovia where by virtue of a massive educational drive 50 per cent of the population has been lifted to a level above normal!

You can be sure that professors over there don't spend their time writing papers that propose education for the uneducable: training perhaps, but not education.

But if you think such papers seem a little stupid, wait. You haven't seen anything. Heh. Just meet the guy who pays the professor's salary, while he writes. Who's stupid?

Wit and Whimsy

Miss Jones (after an appendectomy) — Oh, Doctor, will the scar show?

Doctor — Not if you're careful.

He who finds he has something to sell.

And goes and whispers it down a well.

Is not so apt to collar the dollars.

As he who climbs a tree and falls.

Judge — You are accused of shooting squirrels out of season. Have you any plea?

Hunter — Yes, your honor. Self-defense.

Don't drive as if you owned the road — drive as if you owned the car.

Don't expect a woman to become president. She'd never be able to say "no comment."

Jim — Where do you suppose those scenario writers get their ideas?

Joe — Well, judging from the product, I should say they get them from each other.
