Odessans Acquire Local Bank Interest

Acquisition of a majority interest in the Security State Bank of Big Spring was announced Saturday by E. G. Rodman and W. D. Noel, well-known oil operators and financiers of Odessa.

The two have purchased most of the holdings of C. T. McLaughlin of Snyder, one of the organizers of the bank, and those of members of his family and of trusts which he operates.

This delivery, with other smaller blocks of stock expected to come into the deal, gives the Odessans more than 50 per cent interest.

All stockholders of the bank were being notified at the end of the week that Noel and Rodman are offering the agreed price for any shares that are proffered by Feb. 15.

Both Rodman and Noel will go on Security State's board of directors, replacing J. Mark McLaughlin of Snyder and Robert Hinn of Dallas, among those disposing of their stock. Other board members due to remain are J. Gordon (Obie) Bristow, G. W. Dabney, Ted O. Groebl, Larson Lloyd, C. T. McLaughlin, R. L. Tollett and V. A. Whittington.

The new directors emphasized in a statement to The Herald that all officers in the bank will continue in present positions. These are Dabney as president, Lloyd as executive vice president, Chester Cathey as cashier, and Jane Eubanks and Oneta McDaniel as assistant cashiers. No change of any sort in personnel is contemplated, the directors said.

"We look upon Big Spring as a growing, progressive town, and upon Security State Bank as a growing, prosperous bank," the Odessans said. "We want to keep it an integral, helpful part of the community, and we want it to serve the best interests of the community."

Security State has been in operation since July, 1956, and now shows assets of over $5,289,000. Its deposits as of the end of the year were over $4,829,000, loans were more than $1,955,000. It has capital stock of $137,500, surplus of $137,500, undivided profits of $132,613, and reserves of $52,104. There are 11,000 shares outstanding.

Rodman and Noel, both highly successful in oil drilling, leasing and related activities, have in recent years turned their investments to banking. They have controlling interest in the American Bank of Commerce of Odessa, and the San Angelo National Bank in San Angelo, as well as shares in several other banks.

The two have operated as partners since 1942, when they acquired oil interests in Upton County and drilled some productive wells. They own the Odessa Natural Gasoline Plant, helped bring about Odessa's comparatively new refining and petrochemical center, and are associated in a variety of other interests.

Rodman started in the oil business as a roughneck in Kansas in 1917. After World War I, he was in banking and in the oil supply business. He came to West Texas in 1926, first operating in McCamey, several years later moved to Odessa and opened his own supply company. This branched out into several stores in the Permian Basin, and meanwhile Rodman was getting into drilling and production as an independent operator.

Noel worked as an oil field roustabout during the summers while he was attending Texas University, and after getting his degree there in 1935, came to West Texas. He worked for a time with Gulf, then formed a partnership with M. H. McWhirter and J. B. Tubb for some farmout lease development. They hit highly profitable production in Upton County, and Noel has continued principally since that time as an independent oil operator.

Developments on the financial front, or lack of them on one, furnishe prime news. E. G. Rodman and W. D. Noel of Odessa acquired a majority of stock in the Security State Bank. They announced no personnel changes would be made. At Austin, for some reason the application by Coahoma interests for a bank charter was passed over for a second time to March 2. An erroneous report it had been approved got out and touched off a premature celebration, but joy gave way to puzzlement.

Church-School Issue Rejected By State Board

AUSTIN (AP)—The Bremond school controversy headed for the courts Saturday as the State Board of Education ruled it has no authority to enter the case.

The board upheld a Dec. 29 decision by Education Commissioner J. W. Edgar that he has no power to bar the wearing of religious robes by nuns while they are teaching in a public school.

Waco attorney Lyndon Olson, attorney for the Protestant group which made the protest said an appeal will be filed within 30 days to a district court here.

Also sustained was Edgar's ruling that he cannot forbid the Bremond School District to lease and occupy a Catholic school building for public school use.

The board voted 14-1 to affirm Edgar's decision. It agreed with Edgar by the same vote that between September, 1947, and October, 1960, certain situations in the former St. Mary's school at Bremond violated the constitutional principle of church-state separation.

TO U. S. COURT

Dr. E. S. James, editor of the Baptist Standard and one of the 17 litigants in the case, said he feels the case possibly will reach the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Dallas religious leader replied "personally, yes," when asked if he hopes the U.S. Supreme Court will ultimately rule on the matter.

The dissenting board vote was cast by Ray Holbrook of Texas City. "We are impliedly approving the local board's decision that ecclesiastical garb is satisfactory," he said.

Saturday's decision exhausted administrative remedies available to the Protestants within the state educational system. The case originally was filed in court, but the State Supreme Court held the Protestants had to take it through the administrative system first.

Here is what the case is about:

In 1947, in order not to lose state aid to school bus service, the Bremond School Board, hard-pressed financially, agreed with the local Catholic church on a $1 a year lease of the church's school building for public school use.

MOST CATHOLICS

The school was renamed Elementary No. 1. All but one of its students are Catholics. Most of the Central Texas town's Protestant children attend Elementary School No. 2.

Up until October, 1960, religious objects decorated the building and religious instruction was given in the school, according to the Texas Education Agency's records.

Nuns continued as teachers, although three Protestants now teach with the four sisters. The nuns, of the Order of St. Felice, wear their religious robes when teaching.

In October, 1960, the local board ruled that no religious instruction should be given during school hours and removed all religious books, objects and pictures from the school building.

The Protestants' suit, filed first in 1959, said the support of the school and payment of the nuns with public money was a breach of the principles of church - state separation.

After the local board removed all the apparatus of religious instruction from the school and prohibited sectarian teaching during school hours, the Protestants still maintained that the holding of public school classes in the church-owned building violated the Constitution.

Noted Surgeon Interprets Signals

TURIN, Italy (AP)—An Italian surgeon said Saturday there were sounds that might have been heartbeats and heavy breathing on a tape recording of radio signals on a frequency used by Soviet satellites.

The recording was made two nights ago by Achille and Giovan Battista Judica - Cordiglia, who monitored the signals on radio receiving equipment they have set up in their home to intercept American and Soviet space transmissions.

The same short wave signals were monitored by the observatory at Bochum, Germany.

The signals were received before the Soviet Union announced Saturday it had launched a giant new Sputnik. The Turin brothers said the signals were different from the those they had heard previously from satellities.

"In addition to the usual bip-bip," Achille said, "it seemed to us that there were sounds indicating the movements of a human being or animal in a physical state of apparent difficulty."

"We could not be sure what these sounds were," said Giovan, "but we thought they might be moaning or heavy breathing of a being in difficulty in a space ship."

The brothers asked Prof. Mario Dogliotti, an internationally known surgeon, to listen to the recording.

"At intervals a rhythmic noise could be heard which repeated, with a frequency of 80 to 90 times per minute, the fundamental rhythm of the human heart or of the heart of a superior mammal," Dogliotti said in a statement.

"Also audible are some sounds which recall, in an impressive way, difficult breathing. On the whole, the sounds might be those suggested from a human being or other mammal, but it cannot be stated definitely."

The radio signals heard by the Italian brothers were at the same time and on the same frequency as those reported by the Bochum observatory. The observatory said it also heard fragments of Russian language speech on another frequency so close to the first one that they seemed to have some relationship to each other. The observatory describes the signals as in or near the Soviet Union, emanating from an object in motion.

Snow Hits Panhandle, Rain Due

By The Associated Press

A heavy snow whitened the Panhandle Saturday as a great snow storm spilled down from the Plains and threatened all of Texas with a wet weekend.

Saturday evening the snow measured 11 inches at Higgins, close to the Oklahoma border, and 7 inches at Perryton 47 miles to the northwest.

Light snow and sleet fell as far south as Muleshoe and Childress.

The Weather Bureau said the heavy snow would continue during the night and forecast up to another eight inches for the northern Panhandle by Sunday noon.

Roads throughout the Panhandle were open but became increasingly slippery during the night. Buses fell behind on their schedule. Several minor accidents were reported in the Dalhart area.

Other snow measurements were Spearman 6 inches, Shamrock 5, Amarillo 4, McLean 3, Channing 2 to 3, Pampa and Wheeler 2, and an inch at Clarendon, Hereford, Vega and Littlefield.

Freezing rain and sleet fell at Childress.

The Kansas City Weather Bureau issued a "heavy snow warning" for the Panhandle. The warning said the snow would end in the Panhandle Sunday after overnight lows of 15 degrees. The regular forecast for the area, issued in New Orleans, contained no such warning, however.

Clouds increased throughout the state. The Weather Bureau predicted occasional rain through Sunday.

The snow storm that spread into the Panhandle was heavier in eastern Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Missouri and north Arkansas. Driving was hazardous in those states.

Kansas City forecasters said a band of freezing rain or sleet was expected to slicken "extreme North Texas" and south Arkansas by Sunday. The storm was drawing behind it colder weather and stout north winds.

Far West Texas, with clear skies, was expected to escape the worst of the new storm.

Brownsville with 72 degrees was 50 degrees warmer than Dalhart soon after noon.

GARDEN CITY—Willard Wayne Lawson, 27, Stanton, goes on trial here Monday in 118th District Court. He is charged with rape.

A special venire of 80 Glasscock County citizens has been summoned to be in the court Monday morning. Judge Ralph Caton will open court at 9 a.m. and Gil Jones, district attorney, will represent the state.

Lawson is accused in an indictment of raping his 17-year-old sister-in-law last Aug. 23. The alleged offense occurred in Glasscock County.

John Richard Coffee is defense attorney.

Read Gets Assignments

Rep. David Read, Big Spring, has been named to five House committees by Speaker James A. Turman.

They are the committee on common carriers, on labor, on public printing, on counties, and on constitutional amendments.

Rep. Read is serving his first term as the representative from the 101st Legislative District.

Car Inspections Behind Schedule

Only one out of every three registered motor vehicles in Howard County now displays a current 1961 inspection stamp.

Capt. R. W. Hammett, Motor Vehicle Inspection Division, Department of Public Safety, Midland, said that of the 21,389 registered motor vehicles in Howard County, only 6,952 have as yet been inspected and stamped as required by law.

This total, he said, represents only 32 per cent of the motor vehicles in the county.

Capt. Hammett urged all motorists who have not as yet had their cars inspected to do so at once.

Gregg-Marcy Lights Up, Controls Due In A Week

Traffic lights at the intersection of Gregg and Marcy Drive, have been installed and are operating as blinkers, pending the arrival in about a week of the controls. Roy Rogan, city electrical engineer, said the controls were handmade to fit the traffic going through this intersection and that the lights came in well ahead of them.

When completed the lights will be actuated, through pressure, to allow traffic to go straight through, turn left or right.

"When there is no traffic on Marcy," Rogan said, "the lights will always be green on Gregg (U.S. 87). When a car traveling east on Marcy is to make a left turn, the straight through and left turn signals will allow him to turn while holding up the west-bound traffic. Cars moving west will proceed in the same manner. The left turn signals will be activated only if a car is in the left turn lane, otherwise the signals will be for straight through traffic."

The intersection has been the scene of many traffic snarls because there has been no control, with U.S. 87 having the right-of-way. At certain periods of the day, traffic across the intersection is heavy and cars going east or west on Marcy find it hard to get through.

"When the controls arrive," Rogan said, "the situation will be automatically relieved, and we hope it will not be too long. The lights now blink red on Marcy and yellow on Gregg."

El Paso Man Hears Sounds From Sputnik

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Sounds like "breathing, like a heart beating," were picked up Saturday night on the Sputnik radio band by Prof. John M. Sharp, El Paso ham radio operator who has monitored satellite radio signals since the first artificial moon went up.

Sharp, a Texas Western College language expert, described the new Sputnik's sound emissions as "completely different" from others he has detected from satellites sent up by the Russians.

Sharp said there were three sounds, seemingly superimposed on one another. One was the regular Sputnik "beep," common to Russian moons, a second was a high, rhythmical musical tone "more like a man's breathing than anything else," and the third, a measured and quicker sound like the pulse of a man.

The moon apparently passed over or near this city, Sharp said. His equipment picked up the Sputnik signal for six minutes from 8:12 p.m. to 8:18 p.m. Saturday.

Medics Claim Success In Dog Leg Replanting

HOUSTON (AP)—Two Miami, Fla., men claim they have made the first successful replant of animal legs in the United Staes.

The significant scientific development—reported before this only in Russia—was done by Dr. Robert Knowles, a veterinarian, and Dr. Clifford Snyder, a plastic surgeon, the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyrighted story in its Sunday editions.

"This gives new hope that this may be accomplished with people," said a Houston area medical and surgical authority who asked that his name not be used.

Knowles was in Houston this week for the annual convention of the Texas Veterinary Medical Association.

The team successfully put back amputated legs of dogs, kept the legs healthy and growing, and functioning to a limited extent, Knowles said. They spent more than a year working on the project.

Y Addition Bids Set For Feb. 21

Bids will be invited for Feb. 21 on the construction of an addition to the YMCA building. This will be an all-purpose room to serve for additional physical and small group activity as well as for two handball courts. The brick and tile structure will be added to the south end of the plant. The improvement is being financed by the Dora Roberts Foundation.

Commission Asks Bids On Roadwork

Texas Highway Commission will take bids on Feb. 17 and 18 on 2,243 miles of road work including three projects in the general Big Spring area.

None of the jobs, which will probably require expenditure of as much as $11.88 million, is in Howard County.

Nearest projects to Big Spring included in the list:

Ector County: U.S. 81 etc., 469.8 miles seal coating from Crane County line to Judkins, etc.

Lynn County: Farm 212, .914 mile grading and surfacing from Farm 211, two miles west of Garza County, south to U.S. 380.

Tom Green County: Ranch 584, 2.3 miles grading and resurfacing from Ave. N in San Angelo to Loop 306 at Knickerbocker road.

Heaviest Sputnik Ever Launched

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union Saturday launched the heaviest Sputnik in history — more than seven tons — as part of its program to develop a heavyweight space ship for manned flight.

The Moscow radio broke into its scheduled broadcast at 8 p.m. to announce the launching. It made no mention whether an animal or man was aboard and did not specify where or at what hour the Sputnik was launched.

The official announcement, based on a Soviet Tass news agency statement, said the device was circling the earth every 89.8 minutes on an ordit at an inclination of 64 degrees, 57 minutes, reaching 203.5 miles from the earth at its farthest point and coming to within 138.5 miles at its closest point.

Apparatus on board functioned normally "while it was being put into orbit and during its further movement along the orbit," the statement said.

"The scientific and technical tasks set for the launching of the satellite have been carried out," it added.

Previous space ships launched by the Soviet space scientists were in the five-ton class.

Last May 15, a space ship was launched to test the separation of the capsule from its carrier, for return to earth on signal. It carried a dummy the size of a man inside a cabin that scientists said simulated temperature and space conditions an astronaut would travel in.

BURNED UP

Last Aug. 19, the Soviet scientists sent up a number of animals including two dogs, Belka (Squirrel) and Strelka (Little Arrow), and announced the dogs were brought back alive after 24 hours aloft.

Last Dec. 1, the dogs Pschelka (Little Bee) and Mushka (Little Fly) were hurled into space in another five-tonner. In the recovery attempt, the space ship shot off course and burned up in outer space. The dogs died with it.

(There were rumors that the Soviet Union attempted and failed in another spectacular space ship experiment to mark Premier Khrushchev's visit to the United Nations last September and October. The Russians kept mum about this and there never was any confirmation).

The weight of the newest Soviet space ship was set at 6,483 kilograms or 14,292 pounds in the Tass announcement.

In terms of the U.S. weights, based on the short ton of 2,000 pounds, that put it in the 7.1-ton class.

By Soviet calculation it was a 6½-ton affair, using metric standards that would make its weight 6.48 metric tons.

NOT INCLUDED

Tass said the announced weight did not include that of the last stage of what it called an improved multistage rocket.

Last Tuesday, the United States sent Ham, a chimpanzee, soaring high into space in a space capsule weighing 2,400 pounds and almost simultaneously orbited the Samos II satellite whose weight, including instrumentation in the final stage, was announced as 4,100 pounds.

The U. S. Discoverer series of earth satellites were chiefly in the 1,700-pound range, but Discoverer XVII, launched last Nov. 12, was orbited at 2,100 pounds and its 300-pound re-entry capsule was ejected and caught safely in the Pacific two days later.

Discoverer XIX, sent up last December to take the earth's temperature, also had a 2,100-pound payload. It burned up late last month after more than 400 orbits around the earth.

IKE'S MOON

The heaviest U. S. satellite was the 9,000-pound—4½ tons—Atlas-Score that was launched Dec. 18, 1959. It broadcast President Eisenhower's Christmas message and relayed radio messages from ground stations.

The Midas II launched last May 24 had a 5,000-pound payload. It was intended to test a system for detecting missile launchings.

Poll Tax Sales Compare Favorably With Last Year

Howard County citizens rallied sharply as the fading days neared in which to pay poll taxes or get exemption certificates. This surge sent the county's total for 1961 well over that of 1959 and to a point which compared favorably with 1960.

Mrs. Zirah LeFevre, county tax assessor, said Saturday she had completed checking all poll tax receipts and exemption certificates issued by her office. The poll tax receipts for the current year was 6,652. The exemtpion certificate total was 1,560. Combined total for the county is 8,212.

In 1959, used as a comparison year because it, like 1961, was an "off" year politically, the county had 7,780 poll tax and exemption certificates. In 1960, a year when there was a presidential election at stake, the county piled up 10,984.

This year, the interest in poll tax payments was apathetic until the last few days before the deadline on Jan. 31. On the final day, the tax office issued more than 1,100 poll tax receipts and 128 exemption certificates.

Santa Maria Conference

U. S. Navy Adm. Allen E. Smith Jr., left, sat at a conference table aboard the hijacked Portuguese liner Santa Maria with Portuguese rebel leader Henrique Galvao, right, and a woman interpreter, during negotiations aboard the vessel off the coast of Brazil. The liner put into Recife, Brazilian harbor, and passengers were disembarked.

Portuguese Skipper Tells Own Version Of Hijacking

Editor's Note — What happened that night in the Caribbean when the liner Santa Maria was seized by Portuguese rebels? Here is the story as told by the ship's captain to Morris W. Rosenberg of The Associated Press staff at Recife.

By CAPT. MARIO SIMOES MAIA

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—At approximately 1:30 a. m. on Jan. 22, a frightened sailor of my ship came running to my cabin to report that some passengers were taking hostile action on the bridge.

He said they had apparently seriously wounded the third officer, who was the pilot on the bridge at the time, and an apprentice officer with him.

When I heard this news I first concluded in principle that it was perhaps a matter of a passenger having gone mad, because such incidents have occurred now and then among passengers—or perhaps there were disorders among passengers who had too much alcohol.

I went up toward the bridge. When my eyes reached the level of the bridge floor I saw a man standing in the door across the bridge aiming a machine gun at me.

HALT ENGINES

I quickly dropped down the steps and ran into my cabin. Locking the door and cutting off the lights, I called the engine room to halt the engines.

I started to leave by a side door of my cabin when I saw through the glass door an officer lying on the deck covered with blood. I thought he was dead until I noticed a leg moving.

When I started out the door to try to pull him into the cabin, I saw a man aiming a rifle at me. I locked myself in the cabin and in the dark, by counting the holes of my telephone, tried to telephone the crew to have them armed with bars or anything for weapons.

None answered in the crew rooms because at that time they all were lying on the decks with guns pointed at their heads.

In all, one officer was killed and three wounded—one with a shot in the back, two with shots in the lungs.

OVERHEARD CALL

In my cabin at the time, after failing to get through a telephone call, I overheard on the communication system someone trying to call another point on the ship.

"Ah, senor commander, this asked. A voice responded:

"Who is calling?"

"This is the commander."

"Ah, senor commander, this is the doctor of the Portuguese Immigration Service speaking. I am badly wounded. Galvao (Portuguese exile Henrique Galvao) and his followers have taken over the boat."

I tried again to telephone the bridge to see if anyone would answer. A strange voice, with an authoritative air, replied:

"This is Capt. Galvao, who in the name of Gen. Humberto Delgado has just taken your ship by assault. You must not try any kind of resistance because it will be violently repressed. Surrender will bring you benefits."

CUT OFF

I replied I could surrender only after meeting with my officers and principal members of the crew. This was arranged. We came to the sad reality that there was nothing we could do.

We were cut off and, only because of the force of arms, we submitted to Galvao.

I told him we were surrendering because the crew was unarmed and vital points of the ship had been captured by him and we thought this was the best way to defend the lives of the passengers and the ship itself.

We declared we would continue to work only under the force of guns. That is the way we worked until yesterday.

Any movement of ours was watched by armed men at all times.

I went to the bridge a few times near the coast of Brazil. Each time I heard guns being cocked. We were under that kind of situation until the ship anchored in the harbor.

DIE TOGETHER

Once in here under the protection of Brazilian authorities I told Capt. Galvao that all officers and crew had reached a decision: since the ship was now in a Brazilian port, we would all prefer to die together than sail out again with him and his men.

We had already had noisy demonstrations among the passengers near Recife protesting the situation.

The decision of the ship's crew disoriented Galvao's force completely. Although they wanted to use force against the crew they did not because Brazilian authorities, including the captain of the port and Adm. Dias Fernandes himself were aboard.

Galvao himself thought about disembarking all passengers and members of the crew who were not necessary to the operation of the ship, and leaving aboard the technicians necessary for moving the ship in hopes it could leave the harbor again.

LEAVE OR DIE

But we maintained the firm decision that everybody aboard would disembark or die.

Thanks to the conversations of the two admirals (Brazilian and U.S. Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith) Galvao had to face the evidence of facts and permit total disembarkation.

I admire and am profoundly grateful to the passengers. They declared—the Americans in particular—that they would not disembark from the ship if the crew did not also disembark.

I also want to thank, from the bottom of my heart, the U.S. Navy for everything they did for us.

During the time of the ship's seizure we tried various ways to force them to dock in any port because of the poor control of the ship.

I had as little contact as possible with Galvao. We would exchange good mornings, and that was all. All work was forced at the point of a gun. I and my chief officer lived with machine guns outside our doors. I ate in my cabin.

NUMBER UNKNOWN

We could never count with certainty the number of Galvao's followers aboard. Galvao claimed about 100 but we could only count about 60, including five members of the crew—four men and a 15-year-old boy. The rest of the crew maintained a loyalty which I have rarely had the privilege of seeing.

There were 16-20 Portuguese among Galvao's men. The rest were Spaniards, Venezuelans and Cubans. Some had recently come from Russia, having been trained in Russian brigades. They had been in Cuba with Fidel Castro.

If all had been Portuguese this could vaguely be considered a political matter. But the majority were not Portuguese. This was an authentic case of piracy.

Capt. Galvao has declared that the attitude of the crew was cowardly. I declare that he was the one who committed cowardice because he forced unarmed people to submit to him by force of arms.

We could not defend ourselves with our bare hands. If they had laid their weapons aside there would not have been enough pieces of them left to divide among all the members of our crew.

Kiwanis Pancake Supper Is Feb. 24

Pancake gourmets would do well to mark a ring around Feb. 24 on their calendars.

That will be the date of the annual Kiwanis Club Pancake Supper. These annual suppers are prepared and served by the Kiwanis Club as a method of boosting revenue for its underprivileged children work. Over the many years the suppers have been presented, they have become almost an institution in Big Spring.

Last year, the Kiwanians, acting as cooks, waiters and dishwashers, served mountains of pancakes to more than 2,000 Big Springers. This year, if all goes as anticipated, they will serve an equal or larger number.

Tickets are now on sale for the supper. Adults are charged 75 cents and children 50 cents. The tickets entitle the holder to eat all of the pancakes, bacon, syrup, butter and coffee he wants.

The place will be the Howard County Junior College Student Union Building. This was the location for the supper last year. Prior to 1960, the club had served the suppers in the high school cafeteria. The Student Union Building offers more convenient facilities for handling the big crowds which turn out for these yearly events, the club says.

The pancake supper will be served from 5 to 9 p.m. on Feb. 24. If tickets are not bought in advance the diner can buy them at the door.

H. W. Smith and Jack Roden are general chairmen for the event. They will be assisted by all Kiwanians, plus members of the Key Club and Circle K. Club. These are organizations in the high school and junior college sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

A committee is now busy hustling the mountains of food needed for this mammoth supper. Special equipment for cooking the pancakes will be moved into the HCJC student union kitchen on Feb. 24.

Merchant Helps Nab Con-Man

Don't try a con-game in Big Spring.

It didn't pay off for a man now being held on a charge of drunkenness because the manager of White's Store smelled a rat when the man posing as the pastor of a non-denominational church, asked that a television set be delivered to the pastor's home.

John Polone, manager, remembered that his company had been taken for a pretty heavy loss in Denver, Colo., not too long ago, and called Police Detective Jack Jones in for an investigation.

The television set and a purchase contract were taken to the address given and the man, a little on the tipsy side, signed his name but refused to list himself as the pastor of the church. "It's OK for a man to sign his name, but if he doesn't sign his title or position, we couldn't charge him with the con game," Jones said. "But we did get him for being intoxicated."

Jones said the man had called for, and had delivered, a 1954 model car which he told the dealer the church would pay for, and a roll-away bed. Both items were recovered.

Jones said the game had been going on all over the United States for nearly two years. "These men will come into a town," he said, and can always find a church door open. They rent a house and then start calling for various items, to be paid for by the church. Of course that always brings what they want and then they disappear. This one didn't."

THE UNDENIABLE

God Will Do No More

At Calvary the Lord paid the price for your salvation. On Pentecost the Holy Spirit inspired the apostles to speak the truth of the gospel, and to write it down in a book. Men are called by the gospel (II Thess. 1:14). Hence, when the gospel is brought to a lost man, there is no more the Lord can do (in keeping with His will) until man acts.

You must purify your soul "in obeying the truth" (I Pet. 1:22). God will do no more for the sinner, until he obeys.

Peter preached the gospel to the lost, telling them how to be saved, then exhorted them; for it was their move next. "Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized everyone of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost . . . And with many other words did he testify and exhort, saying, Save yourselves from this untoward generation." (Acts 2:38-40).

Peter was preaching under the great commission the Lord gave, when he said, 'Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." (Mark 16:15, 16).

The lost person must make a move, by believing, repenting and being baptized for remission of sins, as we have seen. Then Salvation is a definite promise to him.

Edwards Lists Aggie Program

Ed Edwards, new president of the Texas A&M Club has announced several events in the club's spring program.

These include a spaghetti dinner on Feb. 18 for the patients and employes of the Big Spring State Hospital. This is similar to the club's highly successful venison dinner given last December.

The traditional Aggie muster will be held on April 21 at Cosden Country Club, and sometime during April, the club will bring back JoJo White for the Little League clinic. June 21 has been pegged as the date for the 11th annual scholarship banquet from which the club obtains funds for its scholarship awards. Another service planned is to make available the members in aiding school counselors upon request.

Other new officers of the club are Billy Dunn, vice president; and Ralph Hughes, secretary-treasurer.

James Tidwell, immediate past president, has been invited to participate on the program of the 15th annual conference of Aggie Club officers at College Station. He is scheduled to outline the local club activities for a period of 15 minutes and then devote a like period of time to answering questions.

(Motor Trend's CAR OF THE YEAR Award goes to Pontiac's Tempest!)

The Motor Trend Magazine Car of the Year Award to Tempest marks the second time in three years that the Pontiac Motor Division has received this honor. The editors who selected it are: Robert Ames, Associate Editor; James Miller, Managing Editor; Don Werner, Editor.

These men edit one of America's leading car magazines—Motor Trend. What they know about cars can help you buy your next new car with complete confidence. They study all the different makes. Compare. Drive. Then they make one award for the year. The Motor Trend Car of the Year Award. This year these editors voted solidly for Pontiac's newcomer—the Tempest. The one car that will give the car buyer top performance, ride and economy for his nickel. Read what these experts say!

Don Werner—"We studied the design features of 28 American cars. The Tempest pulled ahead of the whole crop of '61 cars. The flexible driveshaft is a fantastic innovation. It's the most sensible, dependable power train we've seen."

Bob Ames—"Equalizing the weight on the front wheels and the weight on the rear wheels (with the front engine/rear transmission) gives the Tempest great traction and ride. Pontiac engineers scored a great breakthrough with the Tempest."

Jim Miller—"The Tempest 4-cylinder engine and the triple alloy steel driveshaft team up as a smooth, going combination. I had to look under the hood to convince myself they hadn't put in a V-8. That 4-cylinder engine should do wonders for gas economy."

Take it from this group of sharp automobile experts. Tempest is a winner. Check the facts! 110 to 155 h.p. from a gas-saving 4. Big car ride! Independent wheel suspension. 15-inch wheels at no extra cost! Priced with the compacts. See your Pontiac dealer.

30-Day Weather Outlook

This part of West Texas is right on the edge of an area the U. S. Weather Bureau expects to have above normal precipitation in the next 30 days. If we fail to get in the favored spot, at least we can expect normal precipitation, the Bureau says. Temperatures should be around normal.

13 Are Injured In 80 January Wrecks

Thirteen persons were injured in a total of 80 accidents on Big Spring streets in January.

Thirty-two of the 80 were caused by failure to yield right-of-way. There were no fatalities. Gregg and 4th was the scene of 19 of these accidents.

Chief Jay Banks, of the police department, said that the city has been divided into five patrol districts, and that records are kept on the number and type of accidents in each district.

"This will give us a better idea on what districts need the most attention to correct traffic violations," he said.

Districts two and three each accounted for 30 of all types of accidents. No. 2 is from the T&P railroad on the north, Brown and Park Road on the west, Bell and 7th east to Main, and south to Marcy Drive. No. 3 is from the T&P on the north, Main on the west, to city limits on south and east. The two districts take in most of the main traveled streets south of the railroad.

Accounting for all the 80 accidents were failure to yield 32, speeding 10, running stop signs 2, following too close 10, improper turn 9, mechanical failure 3, passing without sufficient clearance 5, improper backing 9, running red lights 4.

Jessie Smith, attending the University of New Mexico, was one of the winners and he submitted McCall's name as the name who was most influential in Smith's selecting the profession as a career.

CRMWD Has Delivery Gain

Water deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District gained by 7.42 per cent during January.

The district delivered an aggregate of 566,064,526 gallons to the member cities and repressuring companies during the month as compared with 526,950,004 a year ago, according to figures compiled by O. H. Ivie, assistant general manager-production.

Bulk of the gain was in the consumption by member cities of Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder. Their total draw was 351,182.360, whereas January of 1960 required 323,443,000 gallons. For repressuring, companies last month took 214,882,166 gallons as compared to 203,506,554 a year ago.

Deliveries to the various customers during January, with those of a year ago in parentheses, were:

Odessa 188,327,760 (168,000,000), Big Spring 130,779,600 (121,599,000), Snyder 32,075,000 (33,844,000), SACROC 149,598,666 (131,768,154), Sharon Ridge 35,182,800 (40,199,400), Lion Oil 24,539,600 (28,282,200), Texas Gulf 5,561,100 (3,256,800).

Dr. Sellards, Geologist, Dies

AUSTIN (AP)—Dr. Elias Howard Sellards, 85, University of Texas geologist and anthropologist, died Saturday of infirmities of old age.

Dr. Sellards gained nationwide acclaim in 1921 as the expert geologist employed by the Texas attorney general's office in the Oklahoma-Texas state boundary suit.

Oklahoma filed suit claiming the land to the southern high water bank of the river. Involved was oil land worth millions of dollars. The United States government intervened because of certain reserved mineral rights.

The U. S. Supreme Court upheld Texas' contention that the boundary was the southern low water mark.

The task of Dr. Sellards was to supply scientific evidence of the habits of the river, its shifting as it built the valley. Dr. Sellards and his colleagues succeeded and the U.S. Supreme Court upheld Texas.

Dr. Sellards also achieved success with fossil discoveries. He found some of the largest, and rarest, fossils in the world.

Dr. Sellards' book, "Early Man in America," was regarded as an authoritative work on anthropology. He wrote hundreds of papers on geology and anthropology.

Payne Has Difficult Job

"I like boys,' said Leslie Payne. "I like to be around to work and play with boys."

This explains why Leslie Payne has accomplished what is often times difficult for a smaller community—to have an active Scout troop.

Troop No. 12, sponsored by the American Legion post in Sterling City, has consistently been offering boys a good program and has enjoyed a good enrollment, despite Payne's crowded schedule.

Like many other leaders, the thing that involved him directly in Scouting was one of his sons. Payne never had the opportunity to be a Boy Scout when he was growing up, but with his eldest boy, he got interested in the work and soon was serving as assistant scoutmaster.

Payne held this post for a year before becoming the scoutmaster, a position he has served in for the past 2½ years.

His unit meets regularly in the Scout hut in the city park and carries on a sound Scouting program. It is represented in most of the council camps and gets a lot of outdoor activity on an individual troop basis.

"I wish I had more time to give to these boys," he said, "but being an Humble dealer doesn't allow near enough time for working with them".

This is not all the story, for Payne now 43, also serves as president of the Sterling City Lions Club and thus is a leader in numerous other community affairs. He is a member of the American Legion.

LESLIE PAYNE

Payne was reared in San Angelo and in 1941 he was married to Annie Ruth McCleery in Mertzon. They have three children, Carolyn Jean, who is a student in San Angelo College, Jerry, 16, who has been a scout for five years, Mike 10, a Cub, and Alan, 6. Mrs. Payne, incidentally, is a den mother in the Sterling City Cub pack.

"The boys of Scouting age are impressionable and I think Scouting is one of the best things that can happen to a boy," said Payne. "I hope the program excites more interest in scouts and in leadership, for Scouting needs more leaders for our boys."

Cycle Billing Planned For Water Office

Water users in the City of Big Spring will, within a few months, begin receiving their bills on a cycle basis, Roy Anderson, assistant city manager, said Thursday. The purpose is to relieve the terrific end-of-month work load on the water department by distributing it over three dates during the month.

"The city now has close to 9,000 meter customers," Anderson said, "and it is a difficult task to get the monthly bills out. By dividing them up into three cycles we can take some of the work load off mailing the statements."

The city will be divided into three sections, based on the number of meters in each section and on the future potential. Bills will then be mailed out on the first, 10th, and 20th of each month, or on other dates agreed upon.

Anderson said it would take several months to complete the survey for dividing the city. "A cross filing system will have to be set up," he said, "so that new tap numbers will be checked against the present numbers. Meter readers will have to learn the sections for reading on the date assigned for each section."

Other utility companies are changing to the cycle billing dates instead of the end-of-month billings and the plan is being used in most cities comparable to Big Spring. Pioneer Gas Co., and Texas Electric Service Co., are both using the system in Big Spring.

Agency Indicates Preference For Trans-Texas Air Service

An indication that Big Spring's position might be favored in the settlement of a new system of air transportation came Friday in a communication to the city.

City Attorney John Burgess was in receipt of a report from the Bureau of Air Operations, stating that the unit takes the position that Trans-Texas Airlines should provide air service to Big Spring (plus a number of other cities); this meaning that there would be at least two stops a day each way before fly-overs would be permitted.

The Bureau of Air Operations is an arm of the Civil Aeronautics Board (representing the public) and the final decision on air routes will have to come from CAB.

In the bureau's findings, Big Spring is classified as an "intermediate point."

It made no mention of a carrier competing with Trans-Texas, Central Airlines, which could be taken to mean that Trans-Texas is favored. The bureau proposed that American and Continental services should be suspended in cities like Big Spring.

The finding is another step in the complicated Southwest Area Local Service Case, involving routes, schedules and certificated carriers in four states.

It is in support of Big Spring's position, since the city — through the municipal administration and the Chamber of Commerce—has appeared in favor of east-west service by Trans-Texas.

Local representatives testified in this vein before a CAB examiner in Dallas last September.

The Southwest Local Service Case comes about because of desire of American and Continental to withdraw from such service, and the petitions of several "feeder line" carriers to step in with service.

WATER USAGE MAKES GAINS

Water consumption for the City of Big Spring went up to 94,517,000 gallons in January, from 86,868,000 last January. Cosden & Cabot's consumption of 34,982,000 was a slight increase over a year ago when they used 34,731,000 gallons.

The stock pen meter, which is read and reported each six months, showed 1,166,600 gallons.

Total consumption for all users ran to 130,645,600 gallons for January, an increase from 121,509,000 for January 1960.

Owners Urged To Brighten Up Lake Cabins

Cabin owners at Lake J. B. Thomas are being urged to fix up, paint up and clean up.

R. A. Schooling, lake superintendent, has mailed notices to lease holders calling attention to the damage suffered by some docks last autumn when Lake Thomas suddenly filled up for the first time. The maximum elevation of the water line has afforded a chance for owners to make sure that their pier or dock facilities do not extend out more than 100 feet from elevation 2,258, which is service spillway level.

Permits to construct such appurtenances must be secured from the Colorado River Municipal Water District, but for piers and docks of less than 25 feet out from elevation 2,258, no permits are required.

Schooling asked lease holders to survey their property during this season before the spring season starts, to tidy up the premises, to paint where possible, and otherwise to make the lake shore as attractive as possible.

TOKYO (AP)—Red China and the Soviet Union agreed Saturday on expanding cultural relations between the two nations. Radio Peiping said the plan, signed in Peiping, stipulates that the two parties will send theatrical troupes to perform in each other's countries.

Yes, Junior, You Can Get Better Grades

Jimmy, a potential genius in mathematics, was getting an F in arithmetic.

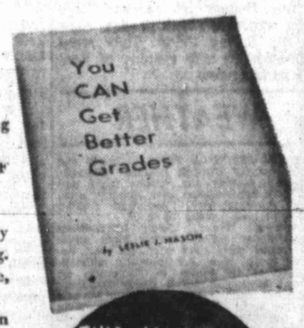

But it took only an afternoon to change him from an F student to an A student.

Magic?

Not at all. The man who did it merely watched Jimmy work a problem and saw the one thing he was doing wrong. A simple correction in work habits brought immediate, startling improvement.

The man was Dr. Leslie J. Nason, professor of education at the University of Southern California, who has spent 40 years developing practical, effective methods of study.

He presents those methods in an easy-to-read series called "You CAN Get Better Grades," starting Monday in this newspaper. You won't want to miss a single one of this illuminating series.

Chaplain In Last Week At Hospital

This will be the last week that Marvin Berkeland will be at the Big Spring State Hospital as chaplain.

He is leaving the hospital on Feb. 14 to assume his duties March 1 as director of chaplaincy service for the Lutheran Welfare Society of Iowa.

His new duties at Des Moines, Iowa will include enlistment of ministers to provide services to hospitals and special schools of Iowa, supervision of their activities in the hospitals, leading seminars and workshops for ministers and serving as a consultant to the staff members on spiritual matters which they encounter in their duties. The society has been primarily a child care agency for the past 21 years and runs a large adoption agency as well as provides care to unwed mothers. Rev. Berkeland will act as consultant to these services.

MARVIN BERKELAND

Rev. Berkeland came to Big Spring on Sept. 1, 1957 and inaugurated the chaplaincy service at the hospital. His arrival coincided with a transitional period at the hospital. One of his first programs was to organize a clinical pastoral training program. In addition, he brought in the local clergy for training programs and encouraged a wide interest in the hospital, its religious programs and its need for a chapel.

His ministry to the patients, individually and in his Sunday services, has added to the hospital and religious life of all patients at a time when worship, with a reaffirming of faith, is especially important, said Dr. Preston Harrison, superintendent. He added that employes had looked upon the Rev. Berkeland not only as friend but as a counselor and that he would be missed deeply.

"His three and one - half years at the hospital have been constructive and creative, and he has added much to the spiritual and mental health life of the patients under his care," observed the Rev. John R. Thomas, chaplain coordinator for the Board of Texas State Hospitals and Special Schools. "He has contributed materially to the chaplaincy program of the State hospital system."

The Rev. Donald N. Hungerford, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, will serve as chaplain at Big Spring State Hospital until a replacement is found for Rev. Berkeland. It is considered that such an appointment is not likely before May or June.

CALL THE MA'SHAL, THEY WENT THAT A-WAY, THE WRONG WAY

Times have changed in Big Spring. The old horse is now taboo unless he's ridden in the right places, as the two-way conversation over the police radio indicated Saturday afternoon:

"What's the penalty for riding a horse on the sidewalk?"

"Are you sure it's a horse?"

"Well, it has four feet and four hoofs, and has two girls on its back."

"There's a city ordinance against riding bicycles or horses on the sidewalk, and in the street unless they are going in the same direction as traffic."

"Well, they're heading in the same direction, but on the wrong side of the street."

"Well, check the driver's license and inspection sticker, and then use your own judgment."

"10-4." ("OK", or "I understand.").

Legislature's Still Just Getting Ready

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN (AP)—The Legislature is four weeks old and it has done almost nothing but get ready to go to work.

That applies chiefly to the House where there are ominous signs of a factional battle between backers of Speaker James Turman and Rep. Wade Spilman. The Senate could not move on major matters until the House organized.

Gov. Price Daniel, eager for fast, positive action on budget balancing and other vital issues, is working behind the scenes to put out the smouldering fire in the House that threatens his program.

The powerful teachers lobby also is reported doing all it can to patch up splits that developed as an aftermath of the bitter Turman-Spilman speakership contest.

After a long and painful process of committee selection, for which Turman said he had no apologies, the House received and scheduled study on bills bearing on such key questions as spending, taxation, deficit retirement, redistricting and water.

10 DAYS DEEP

The Senate is 10 days deep into finance committee hearings. Study started in its powerful State Affairs Committee on other proposed legislation involving state policy. The Senate has a big lead over the House in tackling its agenda. It may be able and willing to put on the kind of pressure it will now take for the legislature to finish its work in the 140 days suggested in the Constitution.

On actual legislation, the lawmakers have finally passed only one bill: The one putting up the money for members' year-around salaries as authorized by the voters in a constitutional amendment.

The House then took an up-hill-and-down action on the related question on obligating the state to pay half of the social security tax obligation that goes with the $4,800 annual salaries. It passed the Senate bill, but in a wordy squabble failed to give it the two-thirds vote needed to put it into effect at once.

CALLED BACK

The House then had to call the bill back from the governor's office to try again to muster enough votes to make it immediately effective when the governor signs it as he is expected to.

It was an interesting sign of the type of dissension in the House that in the past has brought on delays that have prolonged sessions at considerable expense to the taxpayers. It could happen again and again this session.

Turman reminded the House last week that the public is expecting it to get busy, and it has plenty to work on — about 400 bills including numerous tax measures. The Committee on Revenue and Taxation starts its monumental job Monday at 2:30 p.m. The House Appropriations Committee also begins work Monday.

Business interests frankly advocating a sales tax as the best route to present and future state financial stability organized last week under leadership of Tom Sealy, Midland lawyer and former chairman of the University of Texas regents. Former state Sen. Searcy Bracewell of Houston was retained to argue the case of "Citizens For a Sales Tax" during the session.

Another organization of business, industrial and professional men announced plans to back a "broad based sales tax." It is the Texas Industrial Conference, which went on record to that effect at a meeting in Dallas Friday.

The general manager of the conference, Kennedy England of Dallas, said he would urge the organization's views for a tax that "allows growth" while caring for the state's needs as the occasion demands during the session. This group does not plan to open an Austin office.

Maverick Gets Labor's Support

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas AFL-CIO Committee On Political Education voted Saturday to endorse the U.S. Senate candidacy of Maury Maverick Jr., of San Antonio.

The endorsement came after state Sen. Henry Gonzalez charged that top state labor leaders had been "unfair" to him in their efforts to swing the labor endorsement of Maverick. Gonzalez is also in the U.S. Senate race.

Caplin Brings Varied Experience To New Post

The new U. S. commissioner of internal revenue, Mortimer Maxwell Caplin, has a background of law and tax practice to bring to his new job.

He has served on the tax advisory group of the American Law Institute and on the American Bar Association tax section, has been on his state bar tax section, received the award from this unit and the Society of Certified Public Accountants for exceptional service, has authored numerous articles on tax and corporate matters, and has been in demand as a tax institute lecturer.

Caplain was born in Charlottsville, Va., took his bachelor of science degree and his LL. B. degrees at the University of Virginia in 1937 and 1940. During the war he was in the Navy and was a beachmaster during the Normandy invasion. Later he served as a law clerk to a U. S. Circuit judge, practiced in New York and Virginia and was a professor of law.

Mishap Victim Returns Home

STANTON — Tommy Ralph Flowers, 17, critically injured in a car mishap 7½ miles northeast of here on Nov. 20, was returned home Saturday.

He has been in the Methodist Hospital at Lubbock since a short time after the mishap, and he has never regained consciousness. He was returned to the family home in an Arrington ambulance.

Tommy, together with his brother, Steve Lynn, 15, and Royce D. Reynolds, 16, was driving home early in the morning when the car failed to make a sharp curve and overturned.

He was thrown some 30 feet from the car into a clump of high weeds with severe head injuries and a punctured lung. The car rolled over Royce, who was painfully but not seriously hurt. Steve, still in the car, managed to extricate himself, got out a jack and freed Royce. Despite a badly bleeding leg, he then went to look for his brother. Unable to find him in the darkness, he then made his way back to a store on US 80, and aroused the proprietor who summoned the Highway Patrol. Nearly three hours after the accident, they found Tommy, in critical condition from his injuries and the cold rain, almost obscured in the weeds.

Post Office Has New Range Stamp

Big Spring post office has placed a new 4-cent commemorative postage stamp on sale which pays tribute to the development of modern range conservation.

The stamp, in three colors, includes a reproduction of the famous painting "Trail Boss" by Walter Russell, distinguished painter of early western life. This takes half of the stamp. The other half depicts modern trends in range management.

E. C. Boatler, postmaster, said that he has a large stock of the special stamps on hand. Collectors who have been buying the stamp have described it as one of the most attractive commemoratives to be issued by the Post Office Department in some time.

The stamps were first placed on sale Feb. 2 at Salt Lake City. They went on sale here on Feb. 3.

Sheffield Swears No Fraud Intent

HILLSBORO (AP)—Soft spoken and portly B. R. Sheffield swore Saturday that he never had tried to defraud the state.

The Brady land promoter, now 55, testified also that he never paid money or gave any other kind of payment to former Land Commissioner Bascom Giles in connection with veterans' land deals.

Sheffield wore cowboy boots and a brown business suit and smoked cigarettes frequently as he testified in a bland voice. His wife preceded him to the stand.

Dist. Atty. Les Procter cross examined Sheffield without developing any new points and the defense then rested its case. The trial is to continue Monday.

The land dealer said that he and Giles were associated in some residential and business developments in Austin prior to the veterans' land scandals, but that he and Giles never were officially partners.

6-YEAR TERM

Giles was sentenced to six years in prison in 1956 for his part in the veterans' land deals.

Sheffield is charged with passing to the Veterans' Land Board a forged document, specifically a land purchase application of Alfonso Mireles, which was one of 54 used by L. V. Ruffin, 41, former Brady real estate dealer, in selling to the State Land Board a 10,800 acre ranch in Kinney County for more than $353,000.

A Lubbock jury previously convicted Sheffield and sentenced him to 10 years in the case, but the Court of Criminal Appeals threw out the decision on a technicality.

The state says the document is a forgery because Mireles' signature was falsely certified by a notary public, Mrs. Doris Cunningham. She swore that it was signed in her presence.

(Mrs. Cunningham is now a resident of Big Spring).

Ruffin has testified that he paid veterans $100 each to sign application forms, often in blank, to be used in promoting several block land deals with the state but says he was acting strictly for Sheffield.

PAYMENT CLAIMED

He said Sheffield told him that he (Sheffield) had to pay Giles $75,000 in connection with the Kinney County transaction.

Sheffield said Saturday that he simply was taking part in some land transactions with Ruffin and with another state witness, Stanley Stribling of San Angelo. He testified he thought these were honest transactions.

Asked if he had ever paid Giles or any other official any illegal payment, he said:

"Not a dime."

Sheffield said he had a fifth grade rural school education and that he never made any business transactions without the advice of a lawyer. He said he first met Giles when he called the former land commissioner to discuss building some houses on property Giles owned in Austin.

Sheffield said he first became interested in the Veterans land transactions through his long friendship with Earl Rudder, who was appointed state land commissioner by Gov. Allan Shivers to succeed Giles. Rudder, also of Brady, is now president of Texas A&M.

MEET GILES

"Rudder came to my office some time in 1952 and said he wanted to meet Bascom Giles and asked me if I would introduce him to Giles," said Sheffield. He said he did so.

Defense evidence has indicated that Rudder at one time was interested in a land deal with the Veterans' Land Board involving four veterans. The deal was never completed.

Sheffield said that after the investigation into the veterans' land program began, he asked Rudder to go to Austin and talk with Shivers to "see what was wrong and tell the governor that I never had intended to do anything wrong."

Rudder went to Austin in Sheffield's car along with one of Sheffield's lawyers, Ben D. Geeslin, the witness said.

"That night he came to my house and told me 'I can be land commissioner if I want it," said Sheffield.

NO WRONG

He did add that he had no reason to believe there was anything wrong in Rudder's dealings with Giles.

Sheffield said he did not take the Mireles application to the Veterans' Land Board, and does not know who did. He said it was one of a batch of papers left in his office by Ruffin to be notarized by Mrs. Cunningham. She had testified earlier that she had often notarized stacks of papers for Sheffield, although she could not recall specifically the Mireles document.

Mrs. Sheffield testified just before her husband took the stand.

The large heavyset woman confirmed testimony of her husband that Sheffield can read, but cannot write. Both the Sheffields said the land dealer used the telephone extensively, because he could not write.

DOWN TO EARTH

She said while she and her husband were living in Austin before 1950 that Giles had visited in their home often. She said of Giles:

"He was a down-to-earth country man, like us, who made you feel he was right on a level with you."

Giles and her husband were engaged in frequent business trades, she said. She described the trades and she said the men were "like horse traders, just trading to be trading."

She too testified that her husband, whose business affairs she helped handle, never engaged in any fraudulent veterans land transactions knowingly. She said he never paid Giles anything for any wrong purpose.

Sheffield built large government housing projects in many parts of Texas during the war. Mrs. Sheffield, 53, said he suffered a nervous breakdown and developed ulcers during that busy period.

Inola Blackwell Gets Award

Inola Blackwell was awarded a $100 check for "sustained superior performance" Friday, bringing her total extra earnings during six years at Webb AFB to $410.

The check, awarded by the Wing Incentive Board, was presented to Miss Blackwell by Lt. Col. Clifton L. Bray, commander of the 3560th Pilot Training Squadron where she is assigned as a steno-clerk. Col. Bray stated that during his time as squadron commander he has been favorably impressed with Miss Blackwell's performance. Her administrative knowledge and understanding of the Squadron's operations together with her desire that all action items get immediate attention has greatly enhanced the administrative efficency and smooth flow of work to be accomplished, according to Colonel Bray.

Miss Blackwell spent her first five years at Webb working in the Field Maintenance Squadron. She was given "Outstanding Performance Ratings" in 1957-58-59 and 60. During this period, she won a $10 suggestion award and earned awards of $100 for her outstanding work from 1957 through 1959. She is serving as secretary-treasurer of the International Little League at Webb; a member of the American Business Women's Association and active on the women's bowling team. She is presently enrolled at Howard County Junior College.

Formerly of Smithfield, Okla., Miss Blackwell graduated from high school there in 1952 and attended the South East State College at Durant before coming to Texas in 1954.

Fight Prevented

Big Spring police were called to the Big "M" Cafe at 10 p.m. Friday by Charles Downing to prevent what appeared to be a possible gang fight. Police said several boys were ganging up at the place, but began clearing out when the officers arrived.

Burk Wins AF Contracts

Two contracts totaling $77,073 for a job at Webb AFB and Ozona AFS were awarded to the J. D. Burk Construction Co., San Angelo, last week after competition by formal advertising, according to Capt. Harry C. Hon, Air Force contracting officer.

The $65,283 job at Webb calls for modification, air conditioning and soundproofing the Academic Building. Ten of the 27 firms invited, submitted sealed bids for this contract.

The remaining $11,790 contract was for modification of an Airman's dorm at Ozona Air Force Station. Bids for this job were received from six of the 31 prospective bidders invited.

DEAR ABBY

GRAYING HAIR

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am in my early 30's. I am married to a woman the same age. She is very young looking. In fact, she is constantly asked for her "I.D." card when we go where drinks are served.

Now for my problem: My hair has suddenly started to turn gray and I am beginning to look more like her father than her husband.

My barber suggested I let him dye it. He said he could do it to look so natural no one would know it was dyed. In your opinion would this be deceptive and morally wrong? GRAYING FAST

DEAR GRAYING: It is no more "deceptive" or "morally wrong" for a man to dye his hair than a woman. Although in my opinion, gray hair doesn't "age" a man—it only makes him look more attractive. But black, red, green or gray . . . be glad you have enough to drag a comb through.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: How can I get a boy to like me better than any other girl? I am 14 and he is 15. WANTS A BOY FRIEND

DEAR WANTS: Keep your hair smelling nice. Be pleasant to his friends. Laugh at if you mean it, but don't giggle. Let him know you like him, but don't want to "own" him. Talk about things he likes to talk about. Be an attentive listener. Dress like a girl. Don't try to make him jealous. Respect his freedom. Let him lead when you are dancing.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Paul and I were married a year ago. He was divorced and had two sons who lived with their mother. I am expecting our first baby in May. Paul says if I have a boy he wants to name it Paul Jr. I don't want to because he already has a son named after himself. His first-born, Paul Jr., is now 8 years old and lives two blocks from us. Am I "stubborn, narrow-minded and small" for feeling this way? PAUL'S SECOND WIFE

DEAR WIFE: No. I think you are sensible. Tell Paul he had better come up with another name. Only one "Junior" to a Pappa.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DESPERATE AND UNDER AGE": Send me your name and address at once and I will send you the name and address of a free Home for Unwed Mothers immediately. This will be strictly between us.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Dangers Pointed Out Of Poisoning

To the Editor:

I wonder how many times the subject, and the dangers, of poisoning dogs has been brought to the attention of the public?

I feel that a person who puts out poison of any type for the purpose of killing dumb animals doesn't have what is called good common sense. That person might as well hand the poison to a child. I wonder if these people realize that a small child will pick up anything that faintly resembles food.

Stray animals are a great deal of trouble, but why poison them? The city pays dog-catchers to pick up and destroy these stray animals in a painless manner. It's a shame there isn't some kind of punishment for a person who stoops low enough to poison dumb animals.

Today, someone lost their dog. I want these people to know that everything possible was done to help the dog. My neighbor and I found the dog and it was taken to the veterinary. It died within 20 minutes of the time it was found. I only hope that some mother will be able to explain to her children the cruelty of other people.

Sincerely,
MRS. E. L. HINKLIN

To the Editor:

"There oughta be a law!" Many Texans have futilely made that remark upon witnessing cruelties perpetrated upon helpless animals. Now there is hope that there can be such a law.

Recently, following close onto the news story of a Dallas man who permitted 17 of his 57 horses pastured in a barren field to starve to death, the remaining horses hauled off too weak to stand, the Hon. Robert H. Hughes of Dallas introduced a bill in the Texas Legislature (House Bill 5) to "put teeth" into the present weak and obsolete laws protecting animals from cruelty and sadism.

All humanitarians everywhere should express to their representative their earnest desire that H.B. 5 become an effective humane measure to stamp out cruelty to animals in Texas. Then instead of the despairing "There oughta be a law!" Texans can say "Thank God! There is a law!"

To The Editor:

I would like to join many of our citizens of Howard County in protesting the late action of our county commissioners in shifting their responsibilities to a so-called juvenile board. These people are not experienced in juvenile work and the laws governing the juvenile. From what I read and have heard. . . the law of the State of Texas does not provide any substitute for the laws in which they put in the book.

Through the changes the taxpayers are out $8,400 per year for this new setup and we still have no (investigative) juvenile officer. I think Shorty Long should feel proud that he held the juvenile job for the past 10 years at a salary of $30 per month. Now we have to call on the sheriff's department and city police department to do the work that is costing us $8,400 per year. May I ask what are we going to do for a juvenile officer.

I would like to praise Sheriff Miller Harris on the stand that he took in the meeting for discussion of the duties of a juvenile officer. As we all know, the sheriff's department is working short-handed and have more to do than they can do now.

MEN IN SERVICE

Nine days in the air without shaving or a change of clothing. That was the plight of the crew of a Navy patrol plane watching the Portuguese liner Santa Maria until it docked in Brazilian waters this week.

A Big Spring man, Petty Officer 2.C. Charles Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cunningham, 1308 Shepherd, was one of the men on the plane. He said the crew left its base at Jacksonville, Fla., thinking they would be out only a short time, and ended up with nine-day patrol. "We landed and slept in hotels at night but had no change of clothing or shaving needs," he told his parents by telephone after landing in Miami Friday afternoon.

Ranger Civil War Feat To Be Celebrated

By JOE BENHAM

SAN ANTONIO (AP) —Two months before the Civil War began, a group of former Texas Rangers captured every Yankee soldier in Texas without firing a shot.

Descendants of some of the men involved will join the United Daughters of the Confederacy and other San Antonio citizens Feb. 16 in re-enacting and commemorating the 100th anniversary of the surrender.

Maj. Gen. David Twiggs, a Georgia-born soldier who became a hero of the Mexican War, signed over the 2,330 U.S. troops and more than $1 million worth of ordnance in Texas after Maj. Ben McCulloch and about 300 volunteers—many of them fresh from a buffalo hunt—rode threateningly up and down the city's military plaza.

McCulloch had been a captain of the Texas Rangers until the state seceded at a bitterness-tinged convention early in 1861.

He and the Rangers then became the nucleus of the Confederate volunteers.

The convention, held in Austin, named Samuel Maverick, P. N. Luckett and Judge Thomas Devine as Confederate Commissioners of Public Safety to take over federal posts and equipment.

Most of the troops in Texas were in frontier forts set up to defend settlers against Indians. Twiggs' command, included 166 men in San Antonio.

Their surrender was on behalf of all U.S. soldiers in the state.

Jim Maverick, a descendant of Samuel Maverick, will portray his kinsman at the pageant.

A bronze plaque noting the anniversary will be unveiled.

Vote Potential Short Of Record

LAMESA (SC) — Dawson County voting potential fell 517 short of last year's record - breaking number, Leland C. Miller, tax assessor - collector reported.

Miller said final county figures showed 3,744 poll tax and 1,135 exemption certificates were issued this year, slightly behind 1960's all - time high of 5,426.

Officials believed the 4,909 potential for 1961 also established a record for an off-election year. The last off - election year total was 3,384, the previous high.

Growning concern over the upcoming municipal election on April 4 was attributed to the large number of poll tax issuances.

Bad Check Earns Prison Term

LAMESA (SC) — Pete Leal was convicted in 106th District Court of defrauding by worthless check (over $50) and a Dawson County jury recommended a two-year prison term and a $2,000 fine.

The jury returned its verdict about 9:30 p.m. following a two-hour deliberation. Olan Wise was foreman of the group.

Leal allegedly defrauded V. J. Coleman and Son of $1,639.50 with a check given in September, 1959 as payment of a load of milo.

He was returned here from La-Salle County jail in Cotulla to face trial. Sheriff Henry Mayfield returned the prisoner here with a bench warrant issued by Judge Truett Smith.

The trial concluded a week-long criminal session here.

Lamesa Water Usage Dips Again

LAMESA (SC) — Lamesa's water consumption dipped for the sixth straight month during January as pumps registered 31,972,000 gallons.

The tabulation was slightly higher than a comparative reading a year ago, according to W. E. Sealy, water superintendent. The highest daily usage total was recorded on the 30th with 1,211,000 gallons and the lowest on Jan. 9 at 744,000 gallons.

The consumption has dropped steadily since August when Lamesans used more than 74 million gallons of water. The monthly average is more than 52 million gallons.

Marijuana Charge Draws Prison Terms In Dawson

LAMESA (SC) — A Dawson County jury convicted Emma Vasquez Rodriguez of possession of marijuana here last week and assessed punishment at 15 years in the state prison.

A brother, Guadalupe Vasquez, was found guilty of an identical charge a day earlier and sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary.

Defense Attorney William Davenport, San Angelo, filed motions for new trials in both cases, citing five trial errors in the woman's case and three in her brother's.

Both were arrested by county deputies on Dec. 7, 1960 and quantities of marijuana were allegedly found in their possession.

Neither elected to waive the 10-day sentencing period and were remanded to custody.

O. H. Prestor Jr., was foreman of the jury, which deliberated less than an hour before returning a guilty verdict.

Instructor Of Week

T.Sgt. Billy J. Rose, right, explains the workings of an aircraft engine to a student, Airman 3.C. James F. McConnell Jr., in his instructor duties with the inspection, in-flight refueling and helicopter training branch of the Department of Aircraft Maintenance Training at Sheppard AFB. Sgt. Rose, son of T. R. Rose, 1226 E. 15th, Big Spring, was chosen as "Instructor of the Week" at Sheppard Air Force Base recently.

Annual Stock Show To Include Horses

Something new has been added to the annual Howard County FFA and 4-H Fat Stock Show this year.

A division will be devoted to quarter horses. At least 10 quarterborse entries are anticipated—the animals belonging to the boys and girls who are participating in the new 4-H Quarterhorse project.

Something usually found in the annual fat stock show is to be omitted this year. There will be no capon competition.

Jimmy Taylor, county agent, who serves as superintendent of the show, said that in the past capons had been relegated to a somewhat unimportant part of the show. Most of the youngsters who showed capons were concerned primarily with lambs or steers they had in competition and interest in capons was never high. This year, with the addition of the quarterhorse competition, it was voted by the sponsors to drop the capon event.

The show will be sponsored in 1961 by the Big Spring Junior Chamber of Commerce. The Jaycees have sponsored the annual show for many years. Winston Wrinkle, president of the Jaycees said he will name committees to held with the show details soon.

The show will be on March 14, 15 and 16 in the Howard County Fair Grounds buildings, west of the city. Between 150 and 165 head of animals will be entered. These will include three classes of fat steers, six classes of lambs and the quarterhorses.

Taylor is ordering ribbons and trophies for the show this week. If all goes well, the north building at the fair ground will be enlarged to the same dimensions as the south building by the date of the show. The Howard County Commissioners Court has authorized the enlargement of the building.

A budget of $685 has been set up to finance this year's show. This is slightly less than the budget last year.

The money for the budget is to be raised by the sale of memberships in the Howard County Junion Livestock Association. This is the plan followed annually to produce revenue.

The membership campaign will be started this week. It is the hope of the Jaycees that every person approached will enroll.

The judges will be selected and announced within a few days.

As has been the custom for many years, a big auction sale will be the closing feature of the show. The sale is on the night of the final day. Usually all of the prize winning animals shown are sold to the highest bidders. The same rule applies this year with the exception that the prize winning quarterhorses will not be sold.

Explorers To Strengthen Unit

The first Explorer Post emergency unit in Howard County is making plans to maintain and strengthen its position and services. During 1961 the unit will take refresher courses in emergency first aid, various types of rescue, water safety, emergency shelter and food preparation, and relief measures for stricken areas.

Explorer Post 9 will work with the Civil Defense program and is equipped to help in disaster rescue work by providing rest areas, food, and shelter for about 20 people. The Post has a portable 500-watt electric generator to provide emergency electricity.

Turner Ferguson, and Nelson Clemow, advisor and assistant advisor, said they hoped other units will train for and provide equipment and ability so that the combined units will be able to render greater assistance in case of a disaster.

Post 9 will also maintain its Indian dance team which is available for performances for the Indian Y, Boy Scout, and private functions. The post is sponsored by the Men's Bible Class of Wesley Memorial Methodist Church.

Sgt. Rose Named Top Instructor

T. Sgt. Billy J. Rose, son of T. R. Rose, 1226 E. 15th, was selected as Instructor of the Week recently by the 3750th Technical School, at Sheppard AFB.

Sgt. Rose is an instructor in inspection, in-flight refueling and helicopter branch of the Department of Aircraft Maintenance Training.

In a letter which notified Sgt. Rose of his selection, Col. Frank M. Madsen Jr., commander of 3750th Technical School, stated:

"Your selection for this honor is based on the very effective manner in which you have continually presented technical information to the students of your classes. Your initiative and teaching skills have been noticed and respected by your students, fellow instructors and supervisors. The professional and superior manner in which you have performed instructional duties together with your exceptional qualities as a noncommissioned officer are truly representative of the high standards desired in this school. I commend you for such exemplary performance of instructional duties. I am sure these efforts will be continued and that your work will be an inspiration to other instructors on our staff."

Sgt. Rose came to Sheppard AFB in the spring of 1959 from Kadena Air Base, Okinawa. During his 10 years of military service he has served three years overseas.

Sgt. Rose was graduated from Big Spring High School in 1948 and attended Howard County Junior College, where he majored in engineering.

His wife is the former Miss Loraine McLeod of Odessa. They have two sons, Larry Wayne and Darrell Keith.

Hawks Hang On To Tip NMMI

Benefitting hugely from the masterful guarding job rookie Elvis Spridling did on big Roger Ronner, the HCJC Jayhawks survived one crisis after another to whack New Mexico Military Institute, 56-47, here Saturday night and retain at least an outside chance of a first place finish in the Western JC Conference.

The victory was the sixth in eight conference starts for HC. Among other things, it moved them into second place, a half game ahead of the Bronchos from Roswell, who boast a 5-2 mark.

Overall, the Hawks are now 19-4. NMMI is 9-6. HC plays Amarillo in another crucial test this week.

The contest was as close as the score would indicate, and the issue remained in doubt until Ronner finally fouled out late in the game.

Ken Weaks, returning to form after a cool spell following the holidays, got 15 points, but seven of these came from the free throw line. Charles Knotts hit with crucial shots and paced the field with 18 points, followed by 12 for Spradling, who did yeoman service on offense as well as defense.

Roger Staubach poured 16 points through the hoop to keep the Bronchos in contention. Ronner got 11, which included only two field goals, thanks to Spradling's guarding.

HCJC led 28-22 at the half. In the last half HCJC duplicated its score, but NMMI came up with 25 points to tighten the game. HCJC was hampered by a low percentage of hits from the field in the last half. The Hawks hit 11 of 26 in the first round for a sizzling 42 per cent, but only 6 of 21 in the last part for a mere 28 per cent. This gave an overall connect of 36 per cent. NMMI hit only 6 of 24 in the first half, but warmed up to 9 of 24 the second for an overall of 31 per cent.

The visitors set a strong defense up the middle for HCJC, and with shots failing to fall from the outside, this dulled the Hawk attack.

For the Hawks to have a chance at tying for the title, some other team in the league must upset Lubbock, and the Hawks must do this here, too, while continuing the difficult assignment of losing no more games.

After a see-saw beginning, the Hawks led 10-8 after 10 minutes and stretched it to 19-11 with 6:50 to go in the first half. The third canto was hardly underway when the visitors narrowed it to 35-29 and then to 37-35 with only a minute and a half to go in the quarter.

Ronner fouled out with seven minutes to go in the third and HC began to ease away but not before the visitors gave local fans heart failure by narrowing the margin to 41-39 with 8:50 to go. Doug Laws hit, but then Charles Knotts fouled out with 5:26 left. Law came through again with a field goal with 4:29 left and gave HC a 47-39 advantage. They never let up after that.

Spradling was HCJC's top rebounder with nine, while Bill Edwards followed with seven. Ronner and William Miller led NMMI with six each.

HCJC hit 42 per cent of its shots the first half, getting 11 of 26. NMMI connected on six of 24 for 25 per cent. In the final half, the Hawks dropped off to 28 per cent, getting six of 21. NMMI hit nine of 24 for 37 per cent.

Spradling stuck to Ronner like fly paper and limited him to two field goals. Roger Staubach, a boy better known for his football ability, led the Cadets with 16 points. Ronner added seven free tosses to aggregate and wound up with 11 points.

HCJC was led by Charles Knotts, who counted 18 points and Ron Weaks, back on the beam with a 15-point outburst.

The Hawks thus gained revenge for a 74-69 defeat handed them by NMMI in Roswell the night of Jan. 14.

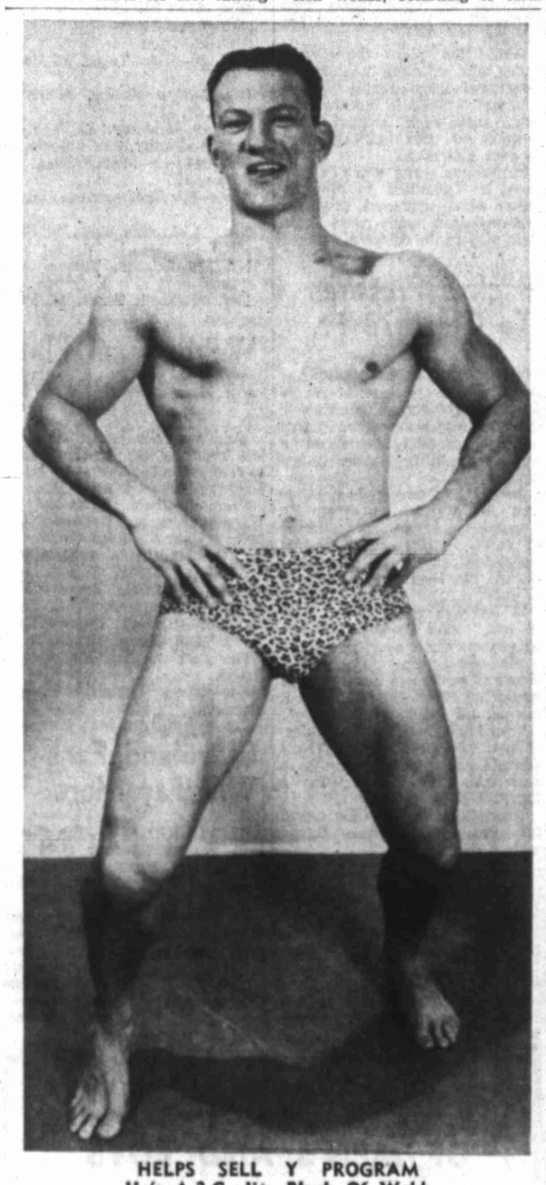

Maxie's Barber Shop, an independent team, clipped the H-SU Buttons, 72-59 in a curtain-raiser.

A.3.C. Jim Black Fine Specimen

One of Webb's most perfectly built airmen, A. 3. C. Jim Black, was the center of attraction at the recent talent show held at the John H. Lees service club. A standing - room - only crowd appeared for the occasion, considered a big success for the Webb facility.

The main objective of Airman Black's appearance was to sell the YMCA's physical conditioning program.

Checking in at Webb on January 8, Jim joined the local YMCA three days later. At the Y, he instructs in amateur wrestling on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. He helps in weight-lifting and body-building programs on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

A slimnastic class for Webb women, to be programmed at the Service Club in the near future, will be conducted by the airman.

The Indianapolis native has never entered a "Mr. Physique" contest, despite his so well-proportioned body. He worked at a health studio while attending Indiana University, during which time, he said, he was ineligible to attend contests of this nature.

Lightweight wrestling at his Indianopolis high school in 1956-57, Jim went on to take the Indiana AAU middleweight crown in 1958 while at the university. The versatile athlete played baseball in high school and in college. He was first-string catcher when Broad Ripple high school won the City Championship in 1956-57. In 1958 Black made the State All-Star team which went to the All-American Amateur Baseball tourney at Johnstown, Pa.

Airman Black, now 20, has used weight lifting alone in his body-building program. He does not go in for Olympic lifts, and recommends only weights which can be handled comfortable with at least 10 repetitions.

German Ace Cops Ski Event

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Hanspeter Lanig, a blond German Olympic ace, won the International Slalom Derby Saturday with a margin of six seconds over his nearest rival.

In races through two 58-gate, 3,000-yard courses Saturday, Lanig finished second and 10th, but his over-all time for the two-day event was the best in the field.

The premeet favorite, Fritz Wagenerberger of Traunstein, Germany, was first in both races Saturday. But he was disqualified for missing a gate in Friday's opening event, and was ineligible for the slalom championship.

The best time for a single race was turned in by 17-year-old Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., who darted down the court in 59.1 seconds. He was the only one among Saturday's competitors to beat one minute. He, too, was disqualified for the over-all competition Friday.

Frogs To Open Spring Drills

FORT WORTH (AP)—The Texas Christian Horned Frogs swing into spring football drills Monday.

Coach Abe Martin, who will start assembling his ninth eleven since taking over in 1953, expects 80 candidates for the first drill.

Martin said the team would drill through March 3, but the spring game probably would be held on Saturday, Feb. 25. The NCAA code restricts spring drills to 20 sessions in 30 calendar days.

Ohio State Wins 16th In A Row

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — First-ranked Ohio State, runaway leader of the Big Ten, trounced Michigan 80-58 Saturday before 6,000 fans and a regional television audience.

Phil Powell Claims Second 'Life Begins At 40' Meet

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP)—Former champion Phil Powell of Wichita Falls took the lead early and won his second "Life Begins at 40" golf championship here Saturday by defeating Norman Copland of Northbrook, Ill., 3 and 2.

Powell, who won the unique amateur tournament in 1958, went ahead on the first hole and the Illinois golfer was never able to catch up.

A strong southeast wind with gusts up to 30 miles per hour raked the Harlingen municipal course during the finals of the 9th annual event.

Powell won the first hole with a birdie 3 and the two golfers halved two with bogeys. They halved three with pars and Powell took four with a par to go two up.

After they halved five and six with pars, Copeland took number seven with a birdie 3 to slice Powell's lead to one hole. But the Wichita Falls amateur won eight and nine with birds to go 3-up.

They both parred 10 and Copland won 11. They halved 12, 13 and 14 and Powell won 15 with a birdie 3 to regain his three hole lead going into the 16th.

Powell parred the 16th by sinking an 18-footer. Copland had a chance to keep the match alive by dropping in an 8-footer for a birdie but it missed by a whisker.

Two other former champions started in the championship flight but were eliminated early. Three-time winner David (Spec) Goldman of Dallas was knocked out in the first round and defending champion Lonnie Wendland of McAllen was eliminated in the second. The men who knocked over former champions were themselves eliminated in the next rounds.

Loudermilk Hits 19, But Ags Win

COLLEGE STATION, Tx. (AP) —Texas A&M broke loose in the second half to score an 80-66 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Southern Methodist here Saturday night.

The Mustangs held A&M's high scoring Carroll Broussard in check during the first 20 minutes, and the Aggies left the floor at intermission with a 30-29 lead.

Then Broussard broke loose for 12 points in the final period, and helped by four team mates who scored in double figures, the Cadets took command.

In hitting 50 per cent of its second half shots (19 of 38), A&M was never in trouble after going in front by 34-33 on Wayne Annett's basket and then upping the advantage to 12 points, 58-46, with eight minutes to play.

Broussard led A&M scoring with 17 points, while Jan Loudermilk connected for 19 for SMU.

A crowd of 6,500 sat in on the important conference contest which left the Aggies with a 4-2 mark and SMU with a 3-3 league record.

Broussard was closely guarded by the Mustangs' Laudermilk and got only five points in the first half. Loudermilk rebounded 17 times.

Final team shooting percentages were 33 of 74 for 44.6 per cent for A&M and 21 of 56 for 37.5 per cent for SMU.

Owls Upset Texas, Boost Tech In Lead

HOUSTON (AP) — The sharpshooting of Olle Shipley and Steve McQueary led Rice to a 63-59 upset of Texas Saturday night and dumped the Longhorns from a tie for first place in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

Texas Tech's 65-59 win over Baylor put the Red Raiders in first place.

Shipley and McQueary scored 14 points each to pace the Owls to a 3-3 conference record. The loss puts Texas at 4-2 in the conference.

Texas got off to an early lead, but the Owls took over and pushed their margin to 16 points during the first half.

Jim Brown helped the Longhorns close the gap, however, to hold Rice to a 38-31 halftime lead.

Donie Lasiter scored 20 points for Texas—nine of them during one four minute stretch to tie the game, 51-51.

But Shipley and McQueary put the Owls back in front.

Hogs Trim TCU Frogs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The Arkansas Razorbacks, with five men scoring in double figures, trimmed Texas Christian 88-70 in a Southwest Conference basketball game Saturday night before 5,000 fans.

Pat Foster and Tommy Boyer netted 50 of the Hogs' points. Foster got 29, mostly on outside jump shots, and Boyer got 21, all ten field goals on corner set shots.

The victory was Arkansas' fourth against two losses on conference play. The Hogs pushed their season record to 11-4, best in the league.

TCU was sliding to its 13th defeat of the season against only three victories. The Horned Frogs were outrebounded 64-47 and outshot, 42 per cent to 35.

Alton Adams dunked 22 points for TCU and grabbed 14 rebounds. Johnny Fowler added 14 points.

The Frogs tied the score twice in the early stages, but Arkansas moved ahead 46-40 by halftime and held a 7 to 13 point lead throughout the second half.

Long-Shot Late Entry Cops Race

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — Sister Antoine, a 4-year-old filly who wouldn't have been in Saturday's $60,400 Santa Margarita Handicap except for three late scratches, came flying through the stretch to win it in a photo finish from Paris Pike and Geechee Lou.

Bill Harmatz gave Sister Antoine an energetic ride through the long stretch pull and got her up in time to overtake Paris Pike, who had taken a brief lead. The winning margin was a half length.

Sister Antoine paid $48.60, $22.40 and $13.40; Paris Pike $17.40 and $11.60, and Geechee Lou $5.

The winner's time for the mile and one-eighth was 1:49 3-5.

A's General Manager Dies Unexpectedly

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Parke Carroll, former general manager of the Kansas City Athletics, died Saturday. Carroll, who was in his early 60s, had not been ill.

Carroll was admitted to Kansas City Research Hospital at 3:30 p.m. and died an hour later.

He was general manager of the Athletics while they were owned by Arnold Johnson. He was replaced this year by Frank Lane when Charles Finley bought the controlling interest from Johnson's estate.

Carroll had been manager of the Kansas City Blues of the American Association and took the same job with the Athletics when they moved from Philadelphia in 1955.

He was sports editor of the defunct Kansas City Journal Post.

Maxwell Shares Lead With Casper, Venturi

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Billy Casper, Ken Venturi and Billy Maxwell moved into a tie for the lead Saturday after 72 holes in the 90-hole, $50,000 Palm Springs Golf Classic.

Playing different course, each posted a score of 274 and goes into the final round of this desert marathon Sunday one shot in front of Bob Rosburg. The latter carded a 73.

Casper played the swank Bermuda Dunes Country Club's par-72 course in 68, Maxwell toured the Thunderbird club's 71 in 68 and Venturi had a one-under-par 71 at the El Dorado course, rated the roughest in this resort land.

The final round, with the field trimmed to the low 60s and ties, shifts to the exclusive Tamarisk Country Club. It will be nationally televised by CBS from 1:30 to 3 p.m., Pacific Standard Time.

The leader through the second and third rounds, darkhorse Al Mengert, had miseries.

Mengert, a teaching professional at Phoenix, Ariz., took a whopping 76. He still is in contention, however, at 277. He had previous rounds of 68, 65 and 68.

Alone at 278 was Doug Sanders, who shot a 66.

U.S. Open Champion Arnold Palmer, who fired a final round 65 to win this tournament a year ago, faces a rougher assignment Sunday. He took a par 72 at El Dorado Saturday for 279.

"I'm not putting as I should but I hope to do better," said Palmer.

Tied with Palmer were Jay Hebert, who had a great chance for a sub-par score but got into trouble on the back nine and took a 73; Paul Harney, who also had a 73, and Gardner Dickinson, who shot a 67.

Texas Tech Raiders Gain Hold On First In SWC

LUBBOCK (AP) —Texas Tech gained a clear cut lead in the Southwest Conference basketball race by downing a battling Baylor team 65-59 here Saturday night.

The University of Texas and Tech were tied with identical 4-1 won-lost records going into Saturday night's action. But Rice gave the Raiders a big assist by defeating the Longhorns 63-59.

Baylor, behind at half-time 36-27, kept the 8,700 fans on edge by outscoring the Raiders in the second period and cutting the Raider lead to 5 points in the closing moments.

Del Ray Mounts, Harold Hudgens and Mac Percival led the Texas Tech attack with 19, 18 and 13 points, respectively.

Don Brownlee paced the Bears with 11 points, the same total obtained by the Raiders' fourth high-scorer, Roger Hennig.

For the game, Texas Tech hit 45.3 per cent and Baylor had 33.3 per cent as both hit consistently. Baylor had the rebound edge 46-35 despite Hudgens' bringing down 12 and Percival 11 for the Raiders.

Harold Henson of Baylor had 11 rebounds.

Baylor outscored Tech by one field goal from the floor, but the Raiders cashed in on 17 of 27 free throw attempts while the Bears connected on only 9 of 15.

K State Rallies To Nip Oklahoma

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Kansas State went on a scoring spree in the final minutes and defeated Oklahoma 71-63 Saturday night. The victory gave the Wildcats the undisputed lead in the Big Eight basketball race.

Larry Comley set the pace as the Wildcats scored 12 straight points to put the game on ice after Oklahoma had struggled to a 55-55 tie with 6:23 to go.

Comley hit a jump shot and two free throws to make it 59-5, and his teammates kept the score going upward.

Comley was high with 28 points and led in rebounding with 12. The Wildcats' Cedric Price had 19 points and 10 rebounds.

Kansas State pushed its lead to 12 points early in the second half after holding a 37-26 margin. At that point Stan Morrison and Edward Evans began hitting for the Sooners and the gap closed slowly with OU finally tying the score at 55-55.

Swap Of Pilots Oddest Of News

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The game of musical chairs involving managers in big league baseball is old hat but trader Frank Lane and Bill Dewitt provided a bizarre twist by trading managers Joe Gordon and Jimmy Dykes last year.

The swap of managers was by far the sports oddity of 1960 in the opinion of 52 of the 144 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the Associated Press' annual year-end poll. The aftermath was even funnier when Gordon and Lane wound up together again at Kansas City.

The Yanks' firing or "retiring" of 70-year-old Casey Stengel because he was too old rated second in the poll with 24 votes. Casey got the ax after he had captured his 10th pennant in 12 years at the helm of the Yanks and had won seven World Series.

Pittsburgh's victory over the Yanks in the World Series was third with 15 votes. The Pirates won their first pennant in 33 years and it was their first World Series conquest in 35 years.

The Chicago Cubs also came up with the unusual when they had Manager Charley Grimm change jobs with baseball broadcaster Lou Boudreau.

But it was the Gordon for Dykes deal that tickled the fancy of most of the experts.

"Why don't we make a really big deal?" asked Dewitt, president of the Detroit Tigers of Lane, general manager of the Cleveland Indians. "Let's trade managers."

What started out as a joke on the telephone was turned into reality two weeks later by these two opponents of the status quo.

So Dewitt sent Dykes to the Indians and Lane moved Gordon to the Tigers.

The year before Lane had fired Gordon and then re-hired him the next day with a raise in pay.

The season had barely ended when Gordon quit the Tigers and signed a two-year contract to manage Kansas City. So what happens next? Lane quits the Indians and signs as general manager of the Athletics, winding up again with his old pal Gordon.

The results of the recent National Football League dealings, wherein Minneapolis took seven players from each of the league clubs other than Dallas not withstanding, the 1961 Vikings will experience their misadventures, their self doubts, and their troubles until they get their feet on the ground . . . So says Bedford S. Wynne, co-owner of the Dallas Cowboys, who visited here the past week . . . Wynne reasoned the worst was over for the Cowboys, adding that his team "began to come on" in its final four games of the 1960 season . . . He and his business partner, Clint Murchison, Jr., are well pleased with the coaching job Tom Landry did with the Cowboys . . . "That's another place where we're better off than Minneapolis," Wynne stated. "They (the Vikings) are starting off with a rookie coach (Norm Van Brocklin). Tom already had long and valuable experience when we hired him" . . . Wynne expects Eddie LeBaron, the Cowboys' diminutive quarterback, to come back and help the Dallas cause in 1961, although there have been reports Eddie has hung up his cleats for good . . . He's reasonably certain Don Henrichs will also return and expects Don Meredith, the one-time SMU wonder boy to eventually take his place as one of the all-time greats in the NFL . . . According to Bedford, Meredith developed about as expected in NFL play the past year . . . As far as Dallas' attendance woes are concerned, the problem is still there, Wynne admitted . . . "Dallas was simply saturated with football last year," he said . . . He indicated, though, that the Cowboys are prepared to battle the AFL Texans or the college boys for the affections of the state's fans — on a long-term basis, if it has to be . . . This is for sure: Something will have to give in Dallas football eventually . . . The side which wins will have to be a good poker player and perhaps gamble everything on its hole card.

'Tampering' Charges Didn't Stick

Sports publicists at some of the senior colleges in West Texas don't like to admit that their schools' B and freshman basketball squads have been playing the HCJC freshman squad . . . They usually refer to the Jayhawk outfit as the varsity troops . . . An area school recently accused HCJC officials of 'tampering' with one of its players, only to learn that another West Texas school was guilty . . . Ray Pope, the former SMU athlete, has received a three-year extension on his coaching contract at Monahans High . . . The NFL Cowboys lost far more money in Dallas this year than did their AFL rivals, the Texans . . . Some observers placed the loss at over a million . . . The Snyder Tigers will play non-conference football games with Borger, Andrews, Kermit, Breckenridge and Levelland, as well as Big Spring, this fall . . . Gary Walker, the local shot putter, should develop into a real champion this spring . . . A national publication has offered Casey Stengel $100,000 for his baseball story . . . Bob Rosburg is supposed to be the best putter among the pro golfers touring now, with Bill Casper, Art Wall Jr., and Dow Finsterwald not far behind . . . Joe Gerald, the nifty little quarterback for the Sweetwater Mustangs, is recognized as one of the nation's outstanding students in high school English . . . He recently won a runner-up award in the annual achievement awards competition staged by the National Council of Teachers of English . . . Texas University-bound Ernie Koy Jr., of Bellville High averaged 41.8 yards on 36 punts last fall, which is better than most pro booters can claim . . . Odessa has firmed up its junior high school program in athletics, including the adoption of a plan for each seventh grade to field two football teams and play a double round-robin schedule within the city . . . George Steakley, the local bowling impresario, is making plans to move to the Houston area after the winter leagues end play here.

BEDFORD WYNNE

Did Jones Turn Down Midland Offer?

Did Thurman (Tugboat) Jones turn down the head coaching job at Midland's Robert E. Lee High School before he signed on as an aide to Red Rutledge at Highland Park? . . . As a Scottie assistant, he will be making more than most head coaches in the state. . . . The opening of Sunland Park's spring racing season is almost a month away but there are already 500 horses on the grounds . . . The paid crowd at the Class AAAA state championship game in Waco between Wichita Falls and Corpus Christi Miller, which had been estimated at 10,000, was officially 4,465 . . . All playoff teams are apt to give Waco a wide berth from now on . . . Not even Baylor draws well there against the best kind of opposition . . . Lou Viscusi, the Houston fight manager, has told newsmen there that the proposed fight between Sonny Liston and Floyd Patterson would possibly be billed for Houston's new domed stadium . . . That upcoming heavyweight title bout between Patterson and Ingo Johansson, now scheduled for Miami Beach, was originally to have been staged in the Orange Bowl but was moved indoors to protect closed TV interests . . . Viscusi probably was talking through his hat on any fight pitting Patterson against Liston, because Sonny is not about to get a title bout as long as Frankie Carbo controls part of his contract . . . Once its stadium is built, Houston can seat 66,000 for the fight . . . Decatur Baptist College, which competed in the last Howard College Basketball Tournament, is leading its zone in the Texas JC Conference race . . . The Midland Bulldogs have been averaging about $600 at the gate in each of its District 2-AAAA basketball games . . . The Sweetwater school board hopes to sign its next head grid mentor for no more than $7,000 per annum . . . It is believed here that neither Billy Savage or Melvin Robertson (the former Stanton mentor) ever had much of a chance of landing the head job at Sweetwater, although the board adopted a resolution expressing appreciation for their work.

N'mandy Town Adopts Cager

By DAVID MASON

PONT L'EVEQUE, France (AP)—This little Normandy town has adopted an American GI and has appealed to President Kennedy to let him stay in France to complete his education.

The GI, incidentally, happens to be a mainstay on the local basketball team. He is SP4 John H. Givens, 24, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Givens, stationed with the Army Aerial Support Center at nearby St. Andre, warmed up to his French surroundings almost from the moment he arrived in December 1959. It was through his basketball skill that he became acquainted in Pont l'Eveque.

Givens had played on YMCA and high school basketball teams in Milwaukee and found a spot as a forward on the local Army squad. He soon was hooping baskets in Pont l'Eveque and in early 1960 got taken on as center or forward.

Local families set aside a room for him on game nights and he eats at the family table. His French developed to the point where conversation flows easily.

Everything was going well until Givens announced he was booked to return to the States next June. The local citizenry, unknown to Givens, got together and Bernard Chauviere, president of the Pont l'Eveque Sports Union, drafted a letter to President and Mrs. Kennedy.

"Mr. Givens epitomizes the friendship of France and the United States," Chauviere wrote, and then he added two requests:

1. That Givens be given a grant so he can study at the nearby University of Caen after he completes his military service in France.

2. That Mrs. Kennedy become the sponsor of the Pont l'Eveque basketball team.

The letter was sent to the American embassy in Paris and was forwarded to the State Department for the White House.

"This all came as a big surprise to me," Givens told a reporter. "I don't know what to say."

Bowie Postpones Further Racing

BOWIE, Md. (AP)—Bowie Race Course, battered by snow since the opening of its scheduled 43-day meeting last month, Saturday postponed further racing at the southern Maryland track until next Wednesday.

The action came after officials cleared away portions of a seven-inch snow fall and found the track would require considerable work to be restored to running condition.

Earlier, Bowie had hoped to resume racing Monday, a scheduled day, and pick up one of its lost days on Tuesday — normally a dark day at the track.

The new snow storm, which hit Friday, forced cancellation of the cards scheduled Friday and Saturday.

Quint Finally Gets A Bucket

NAMPA, Idaho (AP) — Sophomore basketball teams from Nampa and Boise high schools played to a scoreless tie in their regulation game Friday night but Nampa won in overtime, 2-0.

The Nampa players, considerably shorter than their Boise opponents, were instructed to play a control game, seeking only sure shots. During regulation play only six shots were attempted, and all failed. No foul was called during the game.

In the overtime, Nampa's Richard Grimes was found and he made both free throws.

Johnson Is 2-1 Choice

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The National Boxing Association will have a new light heavyweight champion Tuesday night, and the odds are 2-1 he will be Harold Johnson of Philadelphia.

The 32-year-old warrior takes on 23-year-old Jesse Bowdry of St. Louis in a 15-round bout at Convention Hall with the winner to be recognized as successor to the venerable Archie Moore, from whose brow the crown was removed by the NBA for failure to defend the title within what was considered a reasonable time.

The veteran and skillful Johnson, four of whose eight defeats were suffered at the hands of Moore, is considered by critics to pack too many guns for his youthful opponent, who jumped into the title picture through a decisive victory over Willie Pastrano.

Neither Johnson nor Bowdry has been defeated in Miami Beach appearances. Johnson fought here three times, his last appearance being a 10-round decision over Bob Satterfield, March 12, 1957. Bowdry has fought here four times, his 10-round decision over Pastrano last Dec. 27 being his most recent showing.

The bout will not be televised.

Teamed as an entry with Calumet's On-and-On, Yorky paid $6, $3.10 and $2.70 in winning $45,045 for his owners. Don Poggio paid $5.80 and $4.10 and All Hands paid $8 to show.

Coming to the 33rd hole two up over Willie Turnesa, White Plains, N.Y., and Mrs. John Fitton, Hamilton, Ohio, Miss Williams calmly canned a 65-foot putt for a birdie three.

David Freed Given Cup Post Again

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — U.S. tennis fathers gave David Freed another chance as Davis Cup captain today and took new steps toward opening up competition to the pros.

Freed, 51-year-old Salt Lake City financier, was chosen by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association to try to salvage the wreckage of the 1960 campaign which was marked by defeat and controversy.

"Hope springs eternal in the human breast," Freed said. "I debated a long time whether to accept. I welcome the chance to try to win back the cup."

Last year the Americans were beaten in the inter-zone finals at Perth, Australia, by Italy — the first time in more than 30 years they had failed to gain the challenge round—and later the team was criticized for so-called poor sportsmanship.

Two members of that team—Chuck McKinley, 19, of St. Louis and Dennis Ralston, 18, of Bakersfield, Calif.—are under a year's probation for their antics. McKinley, who hurled a racket into the stands at Perth, is under suspension until May 1, 1961.

Yet they are the two key members in Uncle Sam's plans for recovery of lost prestige now that their older teammates, Barry MacKay and Earl (Butch) Buchholz, have turned professional.

Bernard (Tut) Bartzen, 33, of Dallas, served as a sort of co-captain to Freed last year but will not have the same capacity in the 1961 setup.

"Bartzen asked to be relieved of this responsibility," said George Barnes of Chicago, president of the USLTA. "He wants to concentrate on his playing." Bartzen sat at courtside and helped Freed formulate strategy in the 1960 venture. This year Freed does it alone.

The USLTA, at the final meeting of its annual convention, also approved the open tennis plan submitted by Perry Jones of Los Angeles.

Under the plan, the United States will recommend to the International Lawn Tennis Federation, which meets in Stockholm in July, that each country may sanction an open tournament at its own discretion.

Professionals and amateurs would be permitted to play together where approved. Countries opposing open tennis could forbid their players to compete.

Backus Prepares To Clear 70 Ft.

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Backus got off a toss of 64 feet in the 35-pound weight throw Saturday in the Millrose-Metropolitan AAU meet and promptly announced he was ready to break the 70-foot mark.

Only Hal Connolly has gotten past 70 feet in the event. He smashed the barrier with a heave of 71-2½ in the national AAU championships last year and Backus has been trying to match it since.

"I feel I'm ready to get over 70 feet," said Backus. "There's no reason why I shouldn't. I had a real good throw in Boston a couple of weeks ago that I thought would go over 70 feet, but it missed. I'll get it soon.

"I'm building up to the National AAU meet in two weeks. That's where Connolly and I really go at each other. I'm aiming for a throw of about 72 feet."

When Connolly made his record last year, Backus was second with a 68-2¾ effort.

Polk's 'Thin Ten' Phrase Takes On A New Meaning

LUBBOCK — Polk Robinson's "thin ten" description of his Texas Tech basketballers takes on additional meaning as the Raiders prepare to meet University of Arkansas in Fayetteville Tuesday night.

Robinson so dubbed his squad after a withdrawal from school left the Raiders with just enough for an intra-squad scrimmage.

But a comparison of Raider and Razorback weights emphasizes the accuracy of the phrase.

Texas Tech's starting lineup will give away 22 pounds per man to the host Razorbacks. Texas Tech's starting five averages 178 pounds, while Arkansas has an average scale reading of 200.

Slimmest of the Raiders is Roger Hennig of Mathis. Although he stands 6 feet 4 inches, he weighs only 150 pounds.

Although basketball is theoretically a "negligble contact" sport, Robinson and fans alike have marveled at the way the slightly-built junior has been able to bounce back from being shaken up. He's averaging 12.8 points a game in conference play.

Weighing several pounds less than his program listing of 155 to 5-10 Del Ray Mounts of Perryton, the Raiders' leading scorer. Tom Patty of Carlsbad, N. M. stands 6-5, weighs 185. The quintet's heavyweights are 6-3 Mac Percival of Vernon, the Southwest Conference's leading rebounder, and 6-9 Harold Hudgens of Ballinger, who are about 200 pounds each.

After meeting Arkansas, the Raiders return to Lubbock to meet Southern Methodist Saturday (Feb. 11) night.

The hole-in-one was January's first in a 24-year golfing career.

Cleveland Fans Will Pay More

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns Saturday night announced a 50-cent increase in ticket prices at all price levels, effective with the 1961 season.

Paul Brown, general manager and coach of the National Football League club, said rising operational expenses and a desire to bring the Browns' price scale in line with that of other members of the NFL were the reasons for the increases.

Bobcats Gun Down Bovines, 73-42

San Angelo's rangy Bobcats gunned down the Big Spring Steers, 73-42, in a District 2-AAAA basketball encounter before a scattering of fans here Friday night.

The Bobcats, out of the race for the championship but still bidding for a high finish in the six-team league, got some pin-point shooting from Roy Franklin and Carroll Keilers from out front and experienced no trouble with the game but outclassed Bovines.

No Big Spring player hit in double figures. Ronnie Hamby led the way for Big Spring with nine points while George Ryan bucketed seven.

Franklin, a Negro youth, found the range for 21 points to set a torrid pace for the Tabbies while the 6-feet-7 Keilers hit for 17 points.

Big Spring jumped into a 4-0 lead early in the game but the Cats quickly caught up on buckets by Frank Drones, William Sinches and Franklin and were never again headed.

The defeat was the eighth in a row in conference play for Big Spring. San Angelo's conference record is 3-5. Overall, Big Spring boasts a 9-18 mark while San Angelo is 20-12.

Big Spring's B team withstood a late rally to defeat the San Angelo C squad, 57-49, in a preliminary contest.

At one time, Jimmy Marcus' team led by 18 points and the local mentor put in his scrubs. San Angelo then spurted to close the gap and eventually pulled to within three points of the locals. The Dogies were pulling away again when the final buzzer sounded, however.

Mike Nelson, showing improvement with each game, hit for 20 points to lead Big Spring. Jeff Brown followed with 17. San Angelo was paced by Ben Aguirre, who had 17 points, and Richard Moya, who wound up with 14.

The victory was Big Spring's 12th in 22 assignments.

Jack's Sentence Gets Interest

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—A sentence in President Kennedy's State of the Union message interested oil operators.

The President said he plans to send to Congress a message on measures to increase the development of the nation's natural resources.

Such resources, as outlined in the 1960 Democratic national platform, range from water, soil and pure air to such minerals as coal and oil.

The President's remark carried particular significance to the oilmen because the natural resources section of the 1960 platform pledges support to the establishment of a national fuels policy.

Such a proposal is before Congress. Similar concurrent resolutions last year failed to reach the floor of either house.

Oil spokesmen traditionally have contended such a study is unnecessary. Two weeks ago, however, they pledged cooperation should President Kennedy, at the executive level, or Congress order a study.

Oilmen found one paragraph in last year's unsuccessful joint resolutions particularly objectionable.

The proposed joint committee would have been directed to give consideration to "the optimal allocation of the various fuel and energy resources to their most productive economic uses, including . . . the geographical distribution of these resources."

Oil spokesmen feared this meant authority for the government to allocate markets to certain fuels by substituting end-use controls for normal competition among all types of energy. Oil's end-use controls charges have been denied by the national coal policy conference, one of the major backers of the fuels policy proposals.

WILL CHECK IN DEEP PAY

Pan American Petroleum Corp. No. 14-B F. D. Breedlove is a new Breedlove (Devonian) field location slated to check the pay at 12,600 feet with rotary tools. Location is 3,350 from south and 2,348 from east lines of labor 69, league 238, Briscoe CSL survey. It is eight miles southwest of Patricia.

Activity Slips To Only 226 Working Rigs

A Friday survey of rotary drilling activity in West Texas and Southeast New Mexico found 226 rigs making hole, a decrease of five from the previous week's 231.

The survey, taken by Reed Roller Bit Co., counted only drilling units.

The most active point in the Permian Basin was found to be Lea County, N. M., with 39 rigs. Andrews County, with 17, placed second.

Roosevelt, N. M., Winkler and Pecos counties each counted 13 units.

Last year at this time 258 rotaries were active.

The county tally, with previous figures in parentheses, include:

Andrews 17 (18); BORDEN 2 (2); Brewster 0 (1); Chaves 2 (3); Crane 8 (9); Crockett 6 (6); Crosby 2 (1); Culberson 3 (4); Dawson 5 (5); Dickens 1 (2); Ector 10 (9); Eddy 5 (6); Fisher 3 (2); Gaines 11 (7); GARZA 1 (1); GLASSCOCK 2 (2); Hale 0 (1); Hockley 3 (3); HOWARD 4 (4); Irion 1 (0); Kent 2 (2); Lea 39 (38); Loving 2 (1); MARTIN 4 (3); Menard 1 (1); Midland 8 (8); MITCHELL 0 (1); Nolan 2 (2); Ochiltree 1 (1); Pecos 12 (12); Presidio 0 (1); Reagan 0 (1); Reeves 3 (3); Roosevelt 12 (12); Runnels 2 (2); Schleicher 3 (3); Scurry 1 (1); Stonewall 2 (3); Terry 0 (1); Terrell 5 (5); Tom Green 4 (5); Upton 5 (7); Val Verde 1 (1); Ward 9 (9); Winkler 13 (10); Yoakum 9 (10); TOTALS 226 (231).

Gas Producers Committee Plans For FPC Conference

MIDLAND — Formation of the Permian Basin Independent Gas Producers Committee has been announced. Its membership is being expanded to be representative of all towns and cities in the area which covers West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

Primary purpose of the group, a spokesman said, will be to alert and advise all independent producers and royalty owners concerning the pre-hearing conference to be held by the Federal Power Commission in Midland, beginning March 6.

That event is being held prior to the FPC setting dates and places for holding formal area price hearings which will develop a record that the regulatory body will use in setting prices purchasers may pay natural gas producers in the West Texas-Southeast New Mexico area.

LAY GROUNDWORK

The pre-hearing conference is being held "to lay the groundwork for a hearing to develop a record containing all significant facts relevant to the determination of an appropriate price level for sales of natural gas produced in the Permian Basin area of Southeast New Mexico, and Railroad Commission of Texas Districts 7-C (San Angelo) and 8 (Midland)," according to the FPC.

"Objective of the conference is to expedite the actual rate hearing," the FPC said.

"Matters to be considered include the type of evidence to be presented, order of presentation, simplification and delineation of issues, and the number of witnesses to be heard on any issue or subject.

"Following the conference the FPC examiner in charge will submit a report to the commission, making recommendations with respect to the hearings which will be scheduled later."

ACTIVITY

Immediate activity of the Permian Basin Gas Producers Committee will be directed toward advising all companies and individuals wishing to appear and testify at the pre-hearing conference that they must file a notice of intention, stating interest and claimed rights, prior to Feb. 15.

It was pointed out that filing the request does not obligate the applicant to appear at the March 6 event.

"However, since the applications must be in the Washington office of the FPC Feb. 15 — mailing on Feb. 15 is not sufficient notice— it behooves all who plan to appear, either in person, or by qualified representative, to file early enough to assure that their applications will reach the FPC prior to the deadline," a spokesman explained.

FORMS

The group is arranging to provide the required forms for filing notices of intentions to appear at the pre-conference hearing.

A publicity sub-committee which will have the responsibility of distributing information regarding the March 6 conference was named by the PBIGPC.

Members include R. R. Tucker, chairman; John C. Hostetler, A. W. Rutter Jr., Murray Faskin, J. Harvey Herd and Murphy H. Baxter, all of Midland.

The sub-committee also will undertake to develop a large and representative attendance at the conference. The hearing in Midland will not consider any items directly connected with determining prices to be paid for gas in the Permian Basin. Those matters will be taken up at a later hearing—time and place of which will be set by the FPC after the conclusion of the pre-hearing conference.

NO ASSURANCE

"There is no assurance that the actual area rate hearing for the Permian Basin will be held in Midland," it was stated.

The PBIGPC will undertake to convince the FPC that a fairer and more representative presentation of the facts on the price situation can be developed through holding the rate hearing in Midland rather than in Washington," the committee statement said. Invitations have been extended.

"A well-head price for natural gas which goes into interstate commerce that is fair to the producers and royalty owners, as well as to consumers, is of major concern to the Permian Basin," it was stated.

"Approximately half of the gas produced in the area goes into interstate commerce. A price change of one cent per thousand cubic feet would mean a differential of approximately $800,000 monthly in this area," the statement concluded.

Supreme Court Decision Spurs Action On Gas Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A recent Supreme Court decision may provide impetus for a new drive to get a natural gas bill through Congress.

Members of Congress from oil states say the decision points up more than ever the need for legislation exempting independent gas producers from utility-type regulation by the federal government.

Rep. Walter Rogers, D-Tex., for one, said the decision "makes absolutely necessary" the passage of a gas bill "unless we have reached the point of giving up the policy of private ownership of property."

Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., said the decision "only points up more clearly why we need a natural gas bill." He added that chances for such legislation have improved as a result.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America interpreted the decision as giving the Federal Power Commission authority to control the "end use"—that is the ultimate use by a consumer—of natural gas. The IPAA said Congress never has granted such authority to the FPC.

The case involved the question of whether Consolidated Edison Co. of New York could purchase gas and transport it to New York for use as "boiler fuel." The court upheld the FPC in ruling against the company on the ground the gas would be destined for "inferior use."

"Thus through the mechanism of a legal decision an unsound and uneconomic philosophy of government has been thrust upon the American economy," the IPAA said.

The National Coal Association took a different view, hailing the decision as upholding FPC authority to prevent waste of natural gas under industrial boilers. The coal group said the decision would have "far-reaching benefits for consumers of all fuels."

Stephen F. Dunn, president of the coal association, said the court affirmed FPC authority to "consider the conservation of relatively scarce natural gas in granting pipeline certifices" and in effect agreed that industrial use of gas would tend to raise prices to all consumers.

Rotary rigs actually making hole in West and West Central Texas dropped by 10 in the past week, and by 56 from the same time last year, Hughes Tool Co. report to the American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors, showed 244 drilling on Jan. 30 as against 299 in 1960.

Total rigs operating in Texas was reported to be 550, or 61 short of the 1960 total of 611. It was seven under a week ago. Rotary drilling in the United States dropped from 1,719 last Jan. 30 to 1,505, in 1961, a loss of 105.

Rotary rigs in the West Texas area, from rigging up to tearing down, equalled the same count a week ago, with 265, but the total number of rotary and cable was down 2 from the previous count. Total operating in Texas was up 22 over a week ago, and total in the United States exceeded a week ago by 21, to 2,510.

Suntide To Have Ethylbenzene Plant

Suntide Refining Company, Tulsa, Okla., has awarded a contract for the design, engineering and construction of a 30 million pound per year ethylbenzene plant to Badger Manufacturing Co., Cambridge, Mass.

The new plant, to be erected at Suntide's Corpus Christi refinery, is the fourth to be built using the ethylbenzene process which was developed jointly by Cosden Petroleum Corp. and Badger in 1956. Counting the Suntide plant, three of the projects are currently in engineering or construction stages by Badger.

The process scheme calls for the recovery of ethylbezene from a mixed xylene stream in a single step. It was first applied at Cosden's Big Spring plant. Badger expects to have the plant completed and on stream in mid-1961.

Nat'l Bowling League Assured Of Success

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP)—A dozen arenas costing $24 million have begun to sprout as the National Bowling League moves toward the start of its first season.

Construction has started on some. All will have to be under way by March 1. They must be completed by Oct. 1 because the campaign, featuring the biggest names in the game, opens Oct. 13.

The 12-club league will play 5 nights a week from Oct. 13 to April 25. There will be matches between five-man teams. Each club will have 66 home dates.

No new professional sports venture ever faced the future with as much confidence as the NBL.

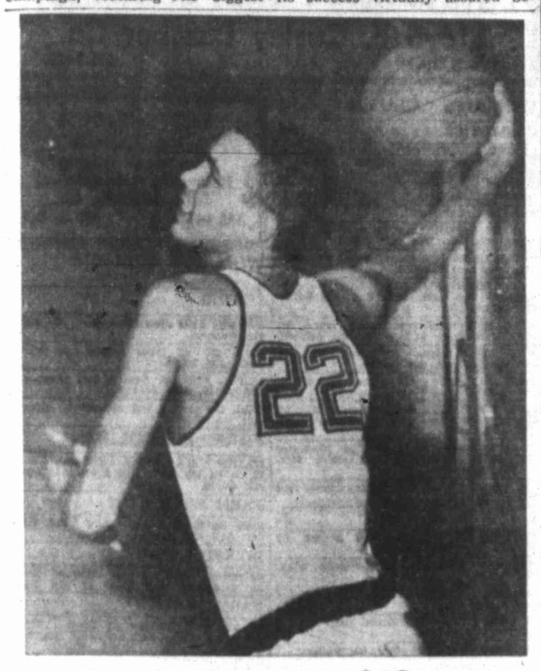

The reason is that the NBL finds its success virtually assured before it starts. There is a television contract paying each club more than $100,000 a year. It is estimated that a club won't have to average more than 1,000 attendance a night to bring in a nice profit.

There will be other revenues from byproducts, such as the concessions, increased business for regular bowling establishments and almost $300,000 in profits from a magazine that will be published annually at a cost of $500,000. The advertising in the magazine will bring $875,00 and a million copies will be offered for sale at $1 each.

Dick Charles, commissioner of the circuit, says the cost of operating a team is $175,000 a season. This includes salaries—the players average $12,500—plus transportation and lodging costs.

More than 70 players have been signed. Don Carter, the No. 1 man in bowling, hasn't yet signed although he has been offered $50,000.

All of the arenas except Dallas will be four-lane affairs. Dallas will have six and will seat 2,400. Detroit will handle 3,000, Minneapolis-St. Paul 3,000, Kansas City 3,400, Los Angeles 1,600, Fort Worth 3,000, San Antonio 3,000, Fresno 3,200, Birmingham 2,200, Miami 2,000, Omaha 2,700 and New York, which will rent a theater for its four-lane arena, over 2,000.

Gophers Lauded For Their Comeback In The Big Ten

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Is moving from last to first in the Big Ten football standings a greater comeback feat than regaining the world heavyweight boxing championship?

The nation's sports writers and broadcasters say it is on their ballots in the annual Associated Press yearend poll.

By a clear margin in the voting, the experts named Minnesota's 1960 football comeback as the greatest comeback of the year, surpassing Floyd Patterson's feat of knocking out his 1959 conqueror, Ingemar Johansson and regaining the heavyweight title.

Patterson's comeback was unique. No fighter before him ever had lost the heavyweight crown and won it back. But it's doubtful that any football team had accomplished such a complete turnaround as Minnesota's.

In 1959 the Gophers lost 7 of 9 games, winning only once in Big Ten competition. Coach Murray Warmath was hanged in effigy and old grads talked about buying up the remainder of his contract and getting a new coach.

Last season Minnesota was beaten only once in nine season games, tied Iowa for the conference title and was acclaimed as national champion in The Associated Press poll. Losing the Rose Bowl game dimmed the season's lustre only a little and Warmath was picked by his colleagues as coach of the year.

In the yearend voting, 52 of 137 writers and broadcasters listed Minnesota's comeback as No. 1 while 37 put Patterson first. On the basis of 3-2-1 scoring for first, second and third place votes, Minnesota drew 224 points and Patterson 185.

Olympic Stars To Be Honored

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Relays here April 7-8 will be dedicated to the five Texas athletes who were in the Olympic Games at Rome last summer.

They are Stone Johnson of Dallas, sprinter from Grambling College; David Clark, pole vaulter from North Texas; Earl Young, 400-meters, from Abilene Christian College; Jay Arnette, basketball star from the University of Texas; and Humberto Barrera, boxer from Robstown.

Giant Slalom Is Won By Mother

BADCASTEIN, Austria (AP) — Guiliana Chenal-Minuzzo, twice an Italian Olympian and twice a mother, won the giant slalom of the International Silver Jug ski meet Saturday. Her time down the 1,680-yard icy course with its drop of 390 yards and 55 gates was 1 minute, 42.1 seconds. Sixty girls from 14 countries participated. There were no U.S. entrants.

Bulldogs Give Hawks Scare

HCJC's Jayhawks had to pull out all stops in the last few minutes to stand off Clarendon JC and escape with a 76-74 Western Juco Conference basketball victory here Friday night.

With 7:10 to play in the game, the visiting Bulldogs trailed by 17 points (67-50) but they virtually dominated play, after that.

HCJC lost Larry McElyea and Ronnie Weaks, two starters, when it counted most and Clarendon took full advantage of the exiles.

In the last five seconds of play, the Bulldogs got off three shots at the bucket from out front that would have deadlocked the tally and sent the battle into overtime. To the credit of the battling Hawks, they never let the invaders get set on any of those late sightings.

Undoubtedly, it was one of the all-time thrillers in HCJC history. A defeat would have eliminated the Hawks from championship consideration and everybody on the local bench knew it.

The Bulldogs attacked the basket like angry bees, oftentimes dazzling the locals with their speed and passing ability.

Bobby Lesley, who kept Clarendon in contention all the way, hit a bucket with about 18 seconds left in the game to push the score to 76-74, HCJC. The Hawks then threw the ball away trying to get it in bounds and the Bulldogs got another opportunity. They retained possession the remainder of the game but couldn't ring the bell.

Lesley wound up with 26 points for Clarendon while Charley Knotts paced HCJC with 24. Weaks tossed in 16 before he departed the game for good while Ken Clearman had 13 and Bill Edwards 11.

Clarendon lost only Johnny Morrow on fouls and he didn't exit until late in the contest.

HCJC led by eight points at half time (37-29) but the Bulldogs never let the Hawks breathe too easily.

The Hawks connected on 15 of 35 shots the first half for 42 per cent and 14 of 29 the final 20 minutes for 49 per cent. The Bulldogs made good on nine of 33 field goal tries in the first for 27 per cent and 14 of 36 the last half for 39 per cent.

Knotts was the locals' leading rebounder, with 14. Weaks followed with ten. Jimmy Humphreys led Clarendon with 14, followed by John Alexander, who had eight.

The win was the 18th for HCJC in 22 starts. Clarendon's overall mark was 9-14.

For Hospital Patients

Roy Rogan, co-chairman of the entertainment committee for the Big Spring State Hospital shows Bob Bradbury, manager of radio KHEM the type of equipment the Volunteer Council hopes to obtain for use at the hospital. Bradbury has offered to provide records periodically for the patients entertainment. Rogan, electrical engineer for the city, is a long time volunteer worker for the hospital and technical advisor for the Big Spring Civic Theatre. He and other qualified workers plan to install the equipment without charge as soon as it can be purchased.

City Revises Trash Permits

An effort to keep a cleaner City of Big Spring has led to a move to give more rigid enforcement of the city's garbage and trash hauling ordinance.

All city residences will be charged for garbage service on water bills mailed out the latter part of February and payable by March 10, City Manager, A. K. Steinheimer said Friday.

A rather loose policy of enforcement of trash hauling has brought about complaint about the trash blowing off trucks and into streets.

"We are planning a rigid enforcement of the hauling and type of vehicles or containers used in hauling," Steinheimer said. "No trash may be hauled unless the truck or container is solidly built, with cover. This will not only help to eliminate blowing trash over the city, but will also prevent pieces of wood or composition material with nails from falling from the truck and causing tire damage to automobiles."

In the past, a few residents have had permits to haul their own garbage and trash. These permits will no longer be available, Steinheimer said, following the ruling by the City Commission to require all residents to pay the monthly charge for hauling garbage.

Certain business firms will be permitted to take out permits for hauling their own trash and garbage provided their vehicles or containers can pass inspection, and provided they haul at least one load per week. A permit costs the business $5.

"This does not mean that a resident may not pick up the grass from his mowed lawn, or hedge trimmings, and haul them to the city dump," the city manager said. "Those who do haul such trash must have tightly closed containers so that trash will not fall or blow out into the streets. If a person wants to clean out boxes or trash from garage or home, or if he wants to dispose of a lot of Christmas boxes and wrappings, he must pack the trash in bundles. These must be tied so that they will not come open and must be placed beside the regular pick-up place of the garbage cans."

HCJC Counts 601 Enrolled

The final registration total for the spring semester at Howard County Junior College is 601.

Dr. W. A. Hunt said that this was the figure after Friday's deadline and that it would stand unless there had been some late and yet unreported enrollments through Webb AFB. There are 134 men at Webb who have signed up for one or more college credit courses.

The total figure is up substantially from the spring semester a year ago and is within about 40 of the final figure for the autumn semester.

There has not yet been a tabulation of semester hours of work, said Dr. Hunt, but indications are that there is a greater number of fulltime students than was the case a year ago.

Prisoners Taken To Penitentiary

Four Howard County prisoners, facing terms in the state prison, were checked in at that institution Saturday by Sheriff Miller Harris and Deputy Bill Whitton.

They were Raymond Williams, 43, under two year sentence for forgery; Steve Harper, 20, under five year sentence for strong-arm robbery; Robert Lee Helm, 24, two years for burglary; and Robert E. Duke, 31, five years for forgery. Duke also has five year sentences over his head from Nolan County and Hutchinson County.

GARDEN TALK

Bermuda Still Best Grass For West Texas Climate

By BRUCE FRAZIER

Mrs. Raymond Moore of Sterling City Route writes: "Could you tell us something about blue grass in our area? We will be starting a new lawn this spring, and since there are so many new homes in Big Spring, with new lawns to start, maybe lots of other people would like to know about this. Mrs. Doolittle in her book Southwest Gardening, says bluegrass and clover are her preferences . . ."

Blue grass is one of our nation's leading lawn grasses, but because of our hot dry summers it has not become common in this part of Texas. Mrs. Doolittle was writing for New Mexico or from her experience around that state, and it does much better there than here. The reason is because of the higher altitude and cooler climate.

If you do try blue grass, plant it early when the days and nights are still quite cool. It prefers full sun and does well with a mixture of clover or some other lawn material. Still, it is not very successful in Big Spring at best. Be careful to get Kentucky Blue Grass (Poa pratensis) and not Annual Blue Grass (Poa annua). Annual Blue Grass may become a pest. It begins as a pretty green lawn cover, but it sends up seed stalks in early summer and dies out in the heat. The seed may become bothersome when they grow in flower beds the next season. This is much like our winter rye grass. The Kentucky blue grass is perennial and may be expected to come back from the roots year after year.

It may not sound like I have any imagination at all, but I still think Bermuda grass is the very best lawn grass for our climate and soil. It does have disadvantages as most plants do, but it is best suited. The proper time to plant Bermuda is when you can expect five consecutive days of 80 degree weather. Broadcast the seed, and rake the surface lightly. This removes stones and trash and also covers the seed lightly. Keep the soil moist at all times, and one can expect the first blades of grass in seven days or less. Lawns started in this manner are not very hard to do, and they cover rapidly with a minimum of work.

I admire anyone who tries new ways and plants, but still the old reliable plants are the ones that serve us best in most cases.

For answers to your garden questions, write to Bruce Frazier in care of the Big Spring Herld.

FEBRUARY WEDDINGS

Cowper-Sheppard

The Rev. Donald Hungerford, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, read twin ring vows for Sally Belle Cowper and Rodney Jack Sheppard Saturday evening in First Methodist Church.

Dr. and Mrs. R. B. G. Cowper, 902 Mountain Park, are parents of the bride; the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sheppard, 1417 Wood.

Emerald fern trees banked the altar and combined with white stock and gladioli, tied with satin, to form a setting for the bridal party. Cathedral tapers burned in seven-branched candelabra, both at the altar and along the aisle down which the bride approached. Candles and fern outlined the altar railing.

A prelude of nuptial music, presented by Mrs. Champ Rainwater, organist, and Mrs. Charles Webb of Bloomington, Ill., harpist, included "Arioso," by Bach; "Reverie" by Debussey, and the "Ave Maria" of Bach-Gounod. As solos, Mrs. Webb played "Fraischeur" and two preludes, all by Carlos Salvedo, and "Automne" by Marcel Grandjany. Mrs. Don Newsom, vocalist, sang Schubert's "Ave Maria."

Dr. Cowper escorted his daughter to the altar and gave her in marriage. White satin made the bridal gown with its yoke of marquisette appliqued at the high neckline with Chantilly lace reembroidered in seed pearls. Identical patterns of the lace marked the edge of the softly-fitted bodice, which was closed in the back with self-covered buttons.

Long tapered sleeves also carried an applique of lace. Gathers in the skirt began at a front panel and extended to the back where the fabric swept into a cathedral train.

Aurora cut crystals and iridescent sequins sparkled on the tiara which held a fingertip veil of silk illusion; the bridal flowers were orchids nested in a cascade of stephanotis, with a shower of satin ribbons and pearlized leaves.

TRADITION

Recognizing tradition, the bride named a hankerchief, which had been carried by her mother in her wedding, as something old; her bridal attire was new, and she wore a blue garter. In her slipper was a sixpence brought back from a trip to England and Europe.

Jane Cowper was her sister's maid of honor, while another sister, Brenda Cowper, was a bridesmaid; other bridesmaids were Marie Hall, Brooke Wilkerson of Houston; Mildred Meili of Fort Worth; Frances Ronshausen of Port Arthur.

Identically dressed, the attendants chose purple satin frocks with full skirts; cummerbunds marked the lowered waistlines and ended in the back with a trio of satin roses on flat bows which gave bustle effects. Elbow length sleeves were complemented with mitts, and flowers were orchids. Headdresses were of net, close-fitting, with a rose as the front ornament on the fold of each tiny hat.

Florence Ferguson of Whiteville, Tenn., a cousin of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid. Her frock was of lilac organza, and her flowers were violets. Teresa Sheppard, a niece of the bridegroom, was attired in the same way as she acted as flower girl.

Attending the bridegroom as best man was John Davenport; groomsmen were Billy Mac Sheppard, brother of the bridegroom; Tom Henry Guin and Stormy Edwards, both of Austin; Ardon Judd

Mrs. Dan Moore
(Nancy Frazier)

Frazier-Moore

Weddding vows, read by the father of the bridegroom, united in marriage Nancy Frazier and Dan Moore, Saturday evening in Abundant Life Chapel, Tulsa, Okla.

The Rev. Oscar Moore read the ceremony for his son and his bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colbert C. Frazier, 3617 Dixon.

For the exchange of rings, the couple stood before a background of palms with a prie dieu flanked by two baskets of gladioli on each side and tapers in candelabra lighting the scene.

Bob Fulton, organist, provided the wedding selections preceding and during the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in white Chantilly lace over taffeta. Pearls and sequins were scattered over the moulded bodice which joined a tiered skirt. Two flounces of lace fashioned the front of the floor length skirt, while alternate ruffles of lace and tulle formed the back and swept into a chapel train. A tiny crown held in place an elbow length veil of illusion.

The bride carried one white rosebud on a white prayer book.

ATTENDANTS

Nancy Beth Eldridge of Big Spring was maid of honor, and Lyndah Moore of Tulsa, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

Both attendants were frocks of ice blue crystalline over taffeta; long sleeves were closed with tiny velvet buttons, and skirts were draped at the left to reveal ruffles of white Chantilly lace. Picture hats were of blue tulle, pearl-trimmed, and the girls carried fans to match their dresses, with a long - stemmed white rose pinned on each fan.

Katherine Psillas of Albuquerque, N. M., a cousin of the bride, chose a dress of ice blue crystalline over taffeta with a brief train of lace ruffles; she served as flower girl.

Eddie Cook of Tulsa attended the bridegroom as best man; ushers were Ted Frazier, brother of the bride; Shannon Cook and Ray Cross, both of Tulsa.

Stanley Crowe of Okmulgee, Okla., carried the rings, and Linda Frazier of Oklahoma City, a cousin of the bride, lighted the altar tapers.

The couple was assisted in receiving guests by their parents, Miss Eldridge, Miss Moore and Miss Frazier at the reception, which followed the ritual.

On the bride's table was a floor length white cloth of net and linen; the full net skirt was trimmed with blue bows, and blue bells enhanced the three-tiered cake frosted in white and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

At the guest register was Mrs. Corbit McMillan of Tulsa.

OUT-OF-TOWN GUESTS

Coming from out of town were the grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Emily Moore of Mesa, Ariz., and Mrs. Frances Bridges of Big Spring; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Fra-

(See FRAZIER, Page 2-C)

Richardson-Hale

In a double ring ritual performed Friday evening, Sylvia Lee Richardson, daughter of Mrs. Beryl Richardson, 122 Mobile, and Sid Richardson, West Highway 80, became the bride of Charles H. Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hale, Rt. 1, Stanton.

Vows were read in the West Highway 80 Church of Christ, by T. H. Tarbet, minister, before an altar decorated with greenery. Baskets of white gladioli accented candelabra on each side.

An octet composed of Mrs. T. H. Tarbet, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scoggs, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Cates, Mrs. Kenneth Cox, David Tarbet of Abilene and Ian Burgin of Australia harmonized in singing "O Promise Me," "The Bridal March," "May The Good Lord Bless and Keep You."

BRIDAL GOWN

Gary Richardson, gave his sister in marriage. The bride was attired in a street length dress of white satin and lace, which her mother had made. The bodice was of lace with a sabrina neckline; pearls were worked into the pattern, with appliques of lace, pearl-encrusted, on the satin front of the skirt. Back interest was given by tiers of lace ruffles which completed the skirt.

Pearls also made the coronet, which held a veil of silk illusion.

The traditional bridal custom was carried out with the bride wearing an old necklace, belonging to her mother. She named her attire as something new, she borrowed the veil from Mrs. Kenneth Tindal and wore a blue garter. Birthdate pennies were in her slippers.

On top of a white Bible she carried an arrangement of white roses.

Kay Sharon Leatherwood was maid of honor, and Doris Compton was bridesmaid. Both were identically dressed in orchid sheaths with brief matching jackets accented with scallops and matching cummerbunds. Their corsages were of yellow mums.

Billy Ray Badgett of Stanton, nephew of the bridegroom, was best man. Bud Green, also of Stanton, was groomsman.

Guests were seated by Sam-

Strong Signs Of Spring Show Both In Flavor, Supply

By The Associated Press

First sign of spring showed up this week in food markets when onion and cabbage plants appeared.

Home gardeners will turn to fruit and vegetable counters for fresh produce for several weeks yet. They'll find huge supplies of most items.

Particularly abundant are cabbage, carrots, celery, greens and green onions, iceberg and romaine lettuce, yellow globe onions, red potatoes, tomatoes, purpletop turnips and rutabagas. These rate good-buy mention, the USDA Marketing Service reports.

Among fruits, look for good buys on winesap and Rome beauty apples, avocados, bananas and Texas grapefruit and oranges.

Wholesale prices on avocados and peppers are lower than a week ago. Cucumbers are a bit lower.

Much lighter supplies of yellow crookneck squash caused prices on this item to rise sharply. Snap beans are higher.

More red meat, particularly beef, can be expected in coming weeks. Good supplies of pork are available now but may tighten later. Broilers are abundant and budget priced. Dry beans and peanuts, both high in vegetable protein, claim the plentiful tag all February. Supplies of fresh eggs have increased and prices dropped sharply in recent weeks.

Joeann Odell, Kenneth Brown Take Wedding Vows Saturday

LAMESA (SC) — Joeann McGuire Odell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe McGuire, Star Rt. 1, Lamesa, was married Saturday afternoon to Kennpth Wayne Brown of Lamesa, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Brown of Elmore, Okla.

The ceremony was performed in the Lamesa Church of Christ before an arch of greenery and baskets of pink carnations. S. A. Ribble, Lubbock minister, read the vows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a sheath of beige combed cotton and matching jacket with a small faille hat and beige gloves. She carried an orchid atop a white prayer book.

Mrs. J. L. White of Lubbock, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pink cotton dress fashioned similarly to that of the bride. Her accessories were pink, and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Otha Brown was his brother's best man. Candlelighters were Sam McGuire, brother of the bride, and Charles King. Ushers were Maurice King and J. D. McAmis.

The wedding reception was held in the bride's home. Laid with a silk cloth, a centerpiece of simulated pink Spanish iris was used, and a miniature bridal pair topped the tiered cake.

Pink orchid and white flowers were interspersed with ivy in the various floral arrangements in the McGuire home.

Presiding at the serving table were Mrs. Bush Leatherwood, Mrs. Jimmy White and Mrs. Otha Brown, all of Lamesa; Mrs. William Dunkin of Lubbock and Mrs. A. A. Slaughter of Seagraves.

Registering the guests was Mrs. Sam McGuire. Out-of-town guests were from Odessa, Lubbock, O'Donnell, Tahoka, Levelland, Slaton, Pecos, Brownfield, Andrews, Big Spring, Midland and San Angelo.

A Devotional For Today

Grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. (II Peter 3:18.)
PRAYER: Lord, help us to be honest with our own hearts. Help us to admit lack of spiritual progress, to seek earnestly the reason for it, and to learn how to grow more like the great exemplar, Jesus Christ. In His name we pray. Amen.

Fulfilling A Sense Of Purpose

Most of us at some time or another reflect on the meaning of our existence, about our purpose in life. This is simply another of the evidences of the Divine spark that sets us apart from other creatures.

In these introspective moments, if we concluded that there is more than transitory import to our lives and that we are indeed cast in the image of God, we must acknowledge that we are born under obligation. Those who give expression to this understanding are among those who get the most out of life.

As you read the section in today's issue recognizing the anniversary of chartering of the Boy Scouts of America in 1910, you will note that most of the stories are about men who are working directly with boys. Over and over again, although it may not be always specifically stated, you will sense that the impelling motive of these men is first of all that they feel they "owe" something to humanity.

They love boys, and this is the qualifying key to service in Scouting. Yet they love boys because they love people, and their devotion in helping boys find the trails and bridge the pitfalls is but a fulfillment of a real purpose in life.

Honoring Service

Selection of an outstanding citizen, an outstanding young man or what-have-you in any year is not an effort to draw a fine line between individuals and to precisely weigh an aggregate of participation, but rather a means of honoring unselfish service.

It is because of this that Danl (Dan) Bustamunte was named by the Jaycees and presented with their outstanding young man award Thursday evening at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet.

His principal field of endeavor has been in working with young people, and in this area he has set a splendid example in showing that the measure of an individual is what he can do.

Bustamunte has risen above circumstances and obstacles to earn both bachelor and master of arts degrees. He has served his country in the Air Force, on two different occasions, has held various responsible positions.

Since coming here four years ago as a teacher in the Kate Morrison level, however, he has changed the attitude and the direction of numerous youngsters. Because he is himself of Latin American extraction, he has been especially effective in inspiring many young people in that area to refute a defeatest attitude and to seek to excell. As a coach as well as a teacher, he has an impressive record. Although he must be extremely proud to have been honored, Dan Bustamunte is humble enough to consider that the greatest satisfaction is that which comes when youths grow up to be good citizens because he cared.

SHUTTING THE WINDOWS WON'T DO IT

Around The Rim

Don't Eat Steaks, Don't Leave Home

If you think I am going to fiddle-faddle around and antagonize the Internal Revenue Service and the stalwarts who man it, you are crazy. Anything I say here about income taxes or any related subject is purely in jest. If you happen to hear one of those tax men mention that I wrote a column about them, you hasten to add, "I'm sure he was only joking," and this will be a favor to me.

BUT AT THIS season of the year—and what season isn't?—poor old average citizen has to start worrying about divvying up with Uncle Sam. Did I say divvy up? I meant, dragging up everything that is left and turning it over to him.

They tell me—and this is hearsay, since I do not fall within the big expense-account bracket — that the revenue people are bearing down mightily on these business deductions.

I GOT SHOOK up the other day when I heard that, for instance, you had better be mighty careful how much you eat for lunch. The income tax boys are going to check to see that you aren't making a gourmet of yourself. I understand it works like this:

You are accustomed to a 90 cent meal at midday. Then comes in B. B. Venable, the big customer from out of town, and good business demands that you take old B. B. to lunch. If you didn't, you would lose the account. And if you didn't feed him well, you would lose the account twice.

SO, OLD B. B. orders one of those prime steaks at $4.50. As I understand it, the G-men aren't going to get you for spending $4.50 on old B. B.—just don't do it too often—but are they going to let you get away with spending $4.50 on yourself? Well, you can spend it, but don't try to pull the expense account routine.

If the tax men decide—and let's assume they are in a good humor the day they check you—that it was maybe good business to eat a prime steak along with old B. B., you certainly can't charge off the whole $4.50. You would have been spending 90 cents on yourself anyway, remember? So you get to account for only $3.60, not $4.50.

INCIDENTALLY, do not—repeat, not—make out your income tax return on information furnished in this column. That's only the way I heard it. I do not even have a customer named B. B., and he has ulcers and cannot eat steaks, and I have quit eating lunch since I am on a diet. So there.

But, you have to watch the expenses when traveling, too. The tax boys say you can't throw your money around too freely on just a one day's journey. It has to be an overnight affair.

YOU WOULD THINK that overnight would mean the "duration of one night." But an IRS guide describes it thusly:

"You are away from home overnight if your business activities require you to be absent from your tax home for a period which is substantially longer than an ordinary day's work and of sufficient length to necessitate relief from duty to obtain sleep. You need not be away from your tax home for an entire 24-hour day or throughout the hours from dusk to dawn, as long as your relief from duty is to obtain necessary sleep, and not merely rest or obtain a meal."

Get it?

BY THE TIME you have pondered this one, you will have become delinquent on your return and will be assessed a penalty. Safest thing is to never, never leave your tax home—not even for a meal.

An Uphill Fight For Kennedy

WASHINGTON—Once again the Republican party has put itself in the role of last-ditch opponent of change. That is one of the important facts to emerge from the cliff-hanging vote on the change in the House Rules Committee.

It was the line set by Minority Leader Charles Halleck, and all but 22 of the 170 Republicans present and voting toed that line. If the line is to hold throughout the session, then presumably the 148 opposing the rules change will vote with the Southern Democrats against most, if not all, of the measures of the Kennedy program.

WHETHER IN TERMS of practical politics that is a winning line for 1962 and '64, it is much too early to say. There are still too many unknowns. One of them is whether the new President can make the people themselves understand what he is trying to do and why he believes it must be done.

This is his first aim, his first urgent necessity. He has the power and the resources of the White House at his disposal, and he knows how to use them. That has been abundantly evident in the first two weeks of his Administration.

IN VIEW OF the closeness of the election in November it promises to be an uphill fight. A major part of the Eisenhower bequest was the comfortable conviction that all is for the best in the best possible of worlds. The heirs of that legacy—and the historians of the future are likely to have a hard time explaining the cheerful optimism of the retiring President—do not want to be disturbed in what they regard as their just claim to a successful past and a promising future.

But the pattern of Republican voting in the House is revealing in many respects. Of the 22 Republicans voting for the rules change, 17 are from states that President Kennedy carried in November. These are the big-city states with large electoral vote totals.

AS NOVEMBER demonstrated, a candidate can scarcely hope to win without carrying two or more of these states. These are the states with large minority groups acutely sensitive to the current political climate. They are the states in which hard-core unemployment has been accentuated by automation and the shift of industry from one area to another. John F. Kennedy carried New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, New Jersey and Michigan, where all these elements are important. Of the big - city states, Vice President Richard Nixon carried only California and Ohio.

WHETHER THEIR motives were on the side of practicality or principle or a little of both, it was not easy for the 22 to stand up to their stern leader, Congressman Halleck, whose specialty is not forgiving kindness, and the pressures converging on them from every side. Both Perkins Bass and Chester Merrow of New Hampshire voted for the change even though their state has become a citadel of the down-with-practically-everything-and-everybody outlook. That took fortitude.

Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri told the House that while he thought the proposed change was phony, since there were other ways to get legislation to the floor, he would vote for it because he believes his party should not seem to be in opposition for the sake of opposition. Curtis also said that he would probably vote against many of the measures sought by the White House.

ONE OF THE interesting Republican votes on the aye side was that of a new member, William Scranton of Dalton, Pa. Scranton first came to Washington as an aide to the Secretary of State and quickly showed that he knew his way around the capital maze. He is reported to have ambitions to run for governor.

Echoes of the past resounded. In July of 1941 Franklin Roosevelt pleaded for a continuation of the draft, saying the danger was infinitely greater than it had been the previous year and if the draft act were to expire, the raw, new Army would disintegrate. On August 12 the House extended Selective Service by a vote of 203 to 202. On that cliff-hanger 21 Republicans voted with 182 Democrats to extend the draft while 133 Republicans voted against it.

NO ONE COULD have put it more aptly than Rep. Leslie Arends of Illinois. He went a long way back in time to quote John Nance Garner, a veteran graduate of the House who became Roosevelt's Vice President, as saying, "Nothing that the Congress fails to do can ever hurt the country."

The philosophy may have fitted an earlier and a simpler time, and a great many people would like to believe it still fits. President Kennedy's challenge is precisely to this comfortable assumption.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

The American Society of Criminologists at a meeting in New York the other day, spent considerable time discussing citizen crime commissions. It has been suggested locally within the past few months that the formation of such a group in Connecticut would be a desirable move. Connecticut has already been pointed out by the Crime Commission of a neighboring state as enjoying the questionable distinction of being part of an interstate crime or gambling apparatus, with headquarters in Hartford, Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, New Britain, and Middletown.

There is only spotty evidence that this may be true. But there is no question whatever that as a general rule gambling has now become an interstate operation; that influential politicians are often linked with the hoodlums; that in many regions the prosecutors, the police, and the courts are also cooperative agents of the syndicate.

But citizens' crime commissions are not an inevitable answer to all these problems.

A citizens' crime commission enjoying a wide base of public support, morally and financially does, however, have certain advantages. For one thing citizens are more likely to give information to a crime commission than to the police. One of the major obstacles, it was said, is the reluctance of community leaders to support action against public officials because of a tendency on the part of the majority to have business or social connections with those persons in authority.

The point is that crime commissions are not a panacea. But they can sometimes be a stimulating factor in stirring up lazy, lethargic, or even corrupt officials.

JFK's Economic Legacy Not As Bad As He Paints It

"Seven years of diminished economic growth. . . nine years of falling farm income. . . business bankruptcies highest since the great depression. . . some 5,500,000 without jobs . . . construction off... a million automobiles in inventory. . . .too many Americans have less to spend for items that cost more to buy. . . in the last three years a total outflow of gold of nearly $5,000,000,000."

(Quick, Willie, the storm shelter. That's your President speaking. Mr. John F. Kennedy. Things are bad. Mighty bad. Got stocks? Better sell 'em. Planning to buy a car? Better not. You'll get it cheaper later on. Ditto on that house your wife was looking at. Save your money.)

PRESIDENT KENNEDY'S dismal catalogue on the state of the economy may have been calculated to instill confidence—confidence in his forthrightness, confidence in his willingness to call an Eisenhower recession an Eisenhower recession. But it is certainly not calculated to accomplish what all of us, including the new President, very much want: Promotion of an economic upturn.

Fortunately Americans are discounters, skeptics.

WHEN, IN OCTOBER, 1929, John D. Rockefeller, the elder, reassuringly said publicly, "My son and I for some days have been purchasing common stocks," and President Hoover promised "prosperity around the corner," people generally examined the economic debris around them and said "Oh, yeah?"

Will they also say, "Oh, yeah," today as they examine their own financial fortunes? After all, 66,000,000 persons do have jobs.

IN DESCRIBING the Eisenhower darkness before the Kennedy dawn and promising that conditions will get worse before they get better, the President provided himself with a self-serving alibi. If economic conditions improve—if an upturn comes in the second quarter or the second half—he can say, "Fine, we, the Democrats, did it." And if things get worse, he can say, "That's what Eisenhower handed me."

(And, why, Willie, if he felt that way, did he describe Eisenhower as "one of two great Presidents" to whose messages he had listened in Congress?)

YET, THE NEW President inserted one reassuring sentence to forfend fear: "All this is cause for concern—but it is not a cause for panic."

And he announced plans that will support production and employment and help to turn the economy around:

Extending unemployment compensation for those who have exhausted benefits, accelerating the Polaris program, speeding orders for transport planes, and increasing military spending when and where needed all tend to improve buying power and business. Such actions are more important than words and, therefore, the President's words need not be taken at their face value.

None the less, the President took a risk.

AUTOMOBILE SALES in January have been disappointingly similar to those of January, 1958. In 1957, sales in November and December were encouraging, then came '58, ugh!

You and I have to feel pretty good to want to spend money. We have to feel sure of our jobs. And we have to do a good deal more car buying to turn auto production upward, which, in turn, will generate demand for parts which will cause steel-mill activity to rise which, in turn, will justify the recent optimism in the stock market.

IT'S ALL RIGHT to call a recession a recession, a spade a spade, and a slump a slump. But it's also well for a President to note that his words might just carry weight; therefore, he must weigh them.

The President might have pointed out that we have had three postwar recessions (one Democratic and two Republican), that they've all been short, and this one has been going on for almost a year without any symptom of dismay or panic.

It's no more certain that things will get very much worse than that they will quickly get better. Eisenhower didn't turn over to Kennedy a boom. But it's not fair to present it as a total bust.

And if the new President hopes for some Republican support for his program, denigration is no way to get it.

Indian Problem

SEATTLE (AP)—Mrs. Carol Parry, a Sioux working in the Seattle Indian Center, registers a mild complaint about TV westerns.

"It isn't right that the Redskins are always the baddies," she told a reporter.

"I have a 3-year-old son. He just lives these programs. And when they're over he runs through the house pointing his cap gun and shouting, 'Bang-bang! I'm killing Indians!'

"It can be very embarrassing when we have visitors."

First Meeting

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Juris Janson met Juris Janson for the first time on the Indiana University campus, where both are freshmen. Both are 18, born in Riga, Latvia; came to Indiana in 1951 and live in the same dormitory. The parents of one of the boys now live in Indianapolis; and the others live in Anderson, Ind.

On Job Education

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Jack Dent is cooking up a college education.

Dent, who will graduate from Ohio University next year, is paying for his education by working as cook for Dr. John C. Baker, president of Ohio University. He's studying—logically enough — food technology.

Many Descendants

WAYNESVILLE, N. C. (AP)—When Mrs. Matilda (Aunt Sis) Rogers celebrated her 110th birthday, many of her 278 descendants turned out for her party. She has 5 sons, 4 daughters, 65 grandchildren, 79 great-grandchildren and 125 great-great-grandchildren.

A Team Of Three Fine Doctors

Ever been to Northern Ireland? It's fascinating. I've just come from that picturesque section of the Emerald Isle. The countryside, always fresh from the moist caress of shifting mists, is unbelievably green and is everywhere punctuated with rugged cliffs—not big ones, but little rugged cliffs.

Most delightful of all, however, are the people. The audiences attending the three talks I gave at Belfast captivated me with their eager responsiveness.

IT WAS MY GOOD fortune to be shown around by a man named Charles White. What especially impressed me was the vitality and enthusiasm of this man. He is a well-known dealer in English china and a leader in community and church affairs. He has a glad word for each of the innumerable friends who hail him everywhere as "Charlie," and he displays from morning to night the kind of irrepressible good humor and happiness that make others similarly happy.

At first I took Charlie White to be a man near my own age or perhaps a few years my senior. But from other people in Belfast I learned his exact age: eighty-four! In genuine astonishment I said, said, "Charlie, they tell me you are eighty-four! I can't believe it."

"I JUST DON'T think old thoughts, that's all."

That's quite a remark when you reflect on it, but my curiosity was not satisfied. "You must have a good doctor," I remarked.

"I have never been to a doctor . . . Not to the kind of doctor you mean," he answered. "But I do have three doctors—and with these three you don't get old. Know who they are? 'Dr. Diet, Dr. Quiet and Dr. Merryman."

Those three doctors are very good ones indeed. Dr. Diet scarcely needs any advertising here. The connection between vitality and a sensible diet is almost universally recognized—But that is a matter best left for the medical men to explain and emphasize.

DR. QUIET deserves in my opinion all the emphasis anyone can give him. The noise, pace and pressure of today's living are enough to sap the vitality of the strongest unless offset by sufficient quiet. It is in quietness that the storage batteries of vitality get re-charged.

We need quiet of several kinds. The physical renewal of sleep is one kind: A person who fails to get enough of that soon gets into a run-down or wound-up condition. Also everyone needs intervals in quiet surroundings. And there is yet another kind of quiet no one can afford to go without: The mental quiet that comes through systematically setting aside at certain hours your cares, your worries, and your immediate concerns and fixing your mind on God, His goodness and His peace.

A THIRD GREAT influence in well being is Dr. Merryman. Doctors tell us that a cheerful disposition is a most important factor in good health. The Bible, in the Book of Proverbs, says, "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine . . ."

The Bible also implies repeatedly that cheerfulness is something we can cultivate. It urges us not to be downcast but to be of good cheer, to be glad and rejoice. "These things have I spoken unto you," says our Lord, "that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." Wonder where people ever get the idea religion is solemn and joy-killing? Strange that anyone should.

BUT PEOPLE sometimes ask how it is possible to be cheerful when you just don't feel cheerful. The fact is that if you will deliberately open your heart to cheerfulness, you can get yourself filled with it. Doing this takes practice but essentially the method is a simple one. For one thing just add up your blessings and give thanks for each one.

Dr. Diet, Dr. Quiet and Dr. Merryman . . . what a team of 'doctors'. Together they can help you develop a continuous vitality that will make you glad you are alive.

No Substitute For Whole Blood

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

The following letter disturbed me. I've decided to answer it rather than risk letting the idea be bandied around unchallenged.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is your candid opinion of blood transfusions? With all the hidden dangers of transfusions, why are they permitted when there is now on the market a manufactured substitute which gives the same results but without ill after effects or any danger?

"All that is known to date is that blood must be of a certain type, but nothing is known of what serious outbreaks might come later. — J. S."

Too many campaigns of this type are based on SOME knowledge of what is involved, but not ALL.

True, there is an element of risk in blood transfusions. Transfusions should not be given casually or without good reason. The risk involved is small, and is becoming smaller day by day, but the presence of any risk is sufficient to warrant the use of transfusions only for adequate reasons.

The same is true of surgery. Every operation potentially carries some risk. But the risk of NOT operating is so much greater that there is no question as to what to do. Operate when necessary!

The same, indeed, is true of any medication. Don't give any without a good reason. But always accept the small risk for the purpose of avoiding the greater one.

It decidedly is NOT true that a "manufactured substitute" for whole blood is available. "J.S." is referring to what is known as plasma expander, which is used primarily when a patient is in shock. It is not, as "J.S." mistakenly believes, given without risk. Although, again, the risk is small.

Plasma expander is not a substitute for a transfusion of whole blood. The latter contains red cells by which the body transport oxygen, which is desperately needed when blood has to be given for certain anemia states.

Whole blood provides albumin. It provides needed electrolytes—minerals in solution. It even provides some immediate nourishment from the modicum of blood sugar it contains.

These are absent from plasma expander.

In view of all this, I hope "J. S." will change his mind right away. But if any further argument is needed, all he has to do is weigh the one - in - a - thousand case of risk against the thousands-upon-thousands of lives which, in the last few years, would have been immediately forfeited without transfusions.

Indeed, by the same argument he uses we would have to abandon a great many things which involve risk and can be shown to have caused injury and death: automobiles, stairways, curbstones, bathtubs, chicken bones, airplanes, railroad trains, horses, rugs on the floor, kitchen knives, lawnmowers. You name it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have been advised that cranberrry juice would cure bladder infection. How would it differ from lemon or grape juice? —Mrs. E. R."

I'm afraid this is another home remedy that doesn't have much if any effect. Go to your doctor. He can use antibiotics. Drinking a lot of water — whether it has cranberry juice, lemon, or anything else, or nothing else in it—is important in clearing up bladder infections.

NOTE TO MRS. C. P.: I have not seen any evidence that the use of hormone creams will "help develop the bust." Since you are only 20, and married, you may find the you will develop later. Pregnancy often leads to such development.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading my booklet "The Way To Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Molner in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self -addressed, stamped envelope, and 20 cents in coin to cover printing and handling.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

So We Were Doing All Right In Science

WASHINGTON — Less than two weeks have passed since President Kennedy was inaugurated, but already in some things he is willing to acknowledge that the United States isn't doing so poorly after all. In his "State of the Union" message, the President told the Democratic party, the Republican party and the people abroad the following about the controversial space program:

"Today this country is ahead in the science and technology of space, while the Soviet Union is ahead in the capacity to lift large vehicles into orbit."

THE JOINT SESSION of Congress interrupted the President with a burst of applause after the first part of the sentence was finished. For the statement must have come as a big surprise after what the world has been told heretofore by the critics. Indeed, those much-discussed public-opinion polls about American "prestige" abroad—which have just been released by the State Department—put considerable emphasis on how foreign peoples last year construed the Soviet achievements in "sputniks" as proof of Soviet superiority.

Yet this last week the "Samos" satellite has been successfully put into orbit to photograph any part of the globe. Its purpose is to send back pictures such as the U-2 obtained intermittently for four years, though the new flying photographic apparatus moves around the world constantly at a height of 300 to 350 miles. It's a kind of "spy moon."

THE "SAMOS" has been specially developed as a means of reconnaissance over the Soviet Union. Someday the American people will recognize in its true light what the U-2 flights really accomplished —they saved the United States from some of the terrible consequences of a surprise attack by being able to tell if military mobilization was occurring inside the Soviet Union. The "Midas," which is next to be launched, is expected to detect Soviet missiles the moment they leave their launching pads, giving this country at least 30 minutes' warning of an attack.

NOTHING LIKE ALL this could have been developed just in the last two weeks, and President Kennedy's statement to Congress, in effect, gives credit to the Eisenhower administration. He gives Russia credit only for being able "to lift large vehicles into orbit." Thus the Soviets get an edge on "spectaculars," but on the important phases of space programs America is way on top.

When Mr. Kennedy said flatly to Congress that the United States is "ahead in the science and technology of space," this must have been true even on January 12 when a Kennedy "task force," in what is known as the Wiesner report, said:

"NEITHER THE National Aeronautics and Space Administration as presently operated nor the fractionated military space program nor the long-dormant Space Council have been adequate to meet the challenge that the Soviet thrust into space has posed to our military security and to our position of leadership in the world."

This report, too, conceded that America is ahead in "scientific" exploration of space, but the impression was conveyed to many people that America had made a failure of the whole space operation.

THERE IS ROOM, of course, for "improved organization and decision-making." That's true of any new field of experimentation. Eventually, when the new Secretary of Defense makes a careful appraisal of the facts, it will be found that even the missile program, as well as the space program, did come fully to life after the usual period initially of caution and restraint. American experts haven't been concerned with "stunts" but with truly scientific and military potentials.

So it appears that, after all, the Eisenhower administration—which fathered the "Samos" and the "Midas" and made it possible even to recover a flying chimpanzee—wasn't the mixture of stagnation and indifference that the Kennedy campaign speeches so vividly portrayed and thus helped win an election.

Scandinavian Import

Inger Stevens, from Scandinavia, tells her ideas on voice and exercising in today's Hollywood Beauty.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

'No Self-Pity' If You Would Succeed

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Inger Stevens commutes between New York and Hollywood so much that she has an apartment on each coast. The other day when she flew out here for a TV show at CBS, we had lunch together, and I found her prettier and happier than I had ever known her.

"Broken homes leave scars," she said, "that take time to heal. And I speak from experience. But if you don't indulge in that destructive emotion, self-pity, you come out of your problems toughened and prepared to handle what faces you in life more constructively. When you are able to find peace within yourself, it reflects in everything about you."

But Inger feels that you cannot rely too heavily on inner beauty for she said:

"No matter how many obligations you may have, you must find time to take care of your appearance. It goes much deeper than vanity, and it is as important for the non-professional as for an actress. I personally don't have a sense of completion if I am not well turned out. If my hairstyle is unbecoming or if I'm wearing a dress I'm not comfortable in, it affects how I feel toward myself and how others feel and act toward me."

Inger was wearing her hair drawn back into a French twist, leaving her beautiful ears uncovered.

"I like to keep my hair long because I can do many things with it—wearing it loose around my face, or high on my head with formal gowns. I think you should consider a hairstyle as carefully as you choose accessories. It must be suitable to the occasion. A pony tail is unthinkable with an evening gown, and a romantic coif is equally out of place with shorts."

Inger shampoos her hair every other day and explained: "It is oily and doesn't look well unless it's clean. Frequent shampooing doesn't take anything away from the quality of my hair, and I alternate shampoos because we build immunity to cosmetic formulas."

Inger has a lovely voice with beautiful diction, and when I mentioned it, she said: "I was 13 when I learned English. I came here from Sweden and was faced with a language barrier. Voice is a medium of expressing courtesy and respect, and too many people are careless about the way they speak.

"I find it very disturbing to be around someone with a strident voice—one without modulation. So many people talk much too loudly. They shout when they are right next to you, and unfortunately children are mimics and carry on this bad habit.

"When I was in school," Inger confided, "I was voted the girl you most wanted to listen to.

"We really don't know how we sound to others, but it is so simple to have a tape recording made to listen to yourself objectively. Having someone listen to you never has the same impact as finding out your faults for yourself. Then you know exactly what you want to correct."

Inger was eating a luncheon plate of cold meats and fresh fruit, and the talk turned to food.

"I don't have a weight problem because I don't care for rich foods. It isn't how much you eat but what you eat that gets you into trouble. That, and not taking enough exercise."

"I like to keep limber and I work out every day for 15 minutes. It is not how long you exercise to keep your figure in shape; you have to be consistent.

"I find exercising relaxing and after an intense day on the set, I sleep much better if I work out with deep breathing before going to bed. We Scandinavians believe in gymnastics as a way to health," she concluded.

EXERCISES FOR VOICE

You, too, may have a more attractive voice. You can lower it, raise it, remove an accent. You can take out the nasal sounds. You can pitch it where it's most pleasant to listen to. With Leaflet M-6, "Exercises to Improve the Speaking Voice," you will learn these things. For your copy of this important leaflet, send only 10 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lydia Lane, Hollywood Beauty, Big Spring Herald. Be sure to ask for M-6.

"Just Between Us Girls . . .

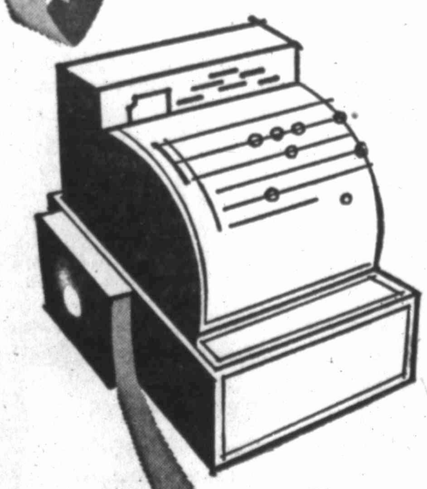

Here's a tip – if you'll follow – you'll thank me for it. I don't get a chance every day to read everything in the paper – but there's one rule I implicitly follow each and every day – and that is to read the ads in The Herald.

Through the ads I keep informed of the best current values in Big Spring – be it food, clothing, appliances or what-have-you. Only with newspaper advertising am I able to compare price . . . quality and service on whatever I intend to buy."

Mr. Merchant:

Countless Surveys heve revealed that the vast majority of women everywhere consistently read the ads in a newspaper.

Of all the advertising media only newspaper advertising is not only not resented, but is actually sought.

To Place your advertising message before a highly receptive audience use the advertising columns of The Herald to tell and sell your story.

PERK-UP

French Flair For Between Seasons

A between-season fashion find to perk-up your spirits as well as your wardrobe!

Joset Walker packs plenty of French flair into this delightful silhouette for afternoon-into-evening wear. The softly gathered bodice is extended to shape the wide sleeves.

A deep set-in band clasps the midriff making next to nothing of the waistline. In front, pleats are released atop the slim skirt.

So easy to make in a wide choice of fabrics—sheer wool, silk crepe, faille, novelty rayons or cottons.

From these corresponding body measurements select the one size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to ready-to-wear.

Size	Bust	Waist	Hips	Nape of Neck to Waist
8	33	23	34	16¼ inches
10	34	24	35	16½ "
12	35	25	36	16¾ "
14	36½	26½	37⅞	17 "
16	38	28	39	17¼ "

Size 12 requires 2 yards of 45-inch fabric for dress and ¾ yard of 42-inch fabric for lining.

To order Pattern No. NS-229, state size, send $1.00. Add 25 cents for first class postage and special handling.

Lone Star District Set For Record Scouting Year

From the springboard of a relatively static but stronger membership, the Lone Star District of the Buffalo Trail Council is all set to achieve a record year in Scouting during 1961.

The observance of Boy Scout Week, which marks the chartering of the movement by Congress in 1910, finds this district methodically gaining in membership and strengthening the program.

Membership at the end of 1960 stood at 1,429, which was actually 42 less than for the preceding year. However, many veterans in the movement feel that the units left were stronger in quality of leadership and boy membership than ever before, hence the high hopes for a banner year.

Surprisingly, the dip in membership occurred at a point where the program normally produces most of its membership—in the Cub program for boys of 8-9-10 years of age. There were 609 Cubs, or 101 less than a year ago. Already, however, several of the units here have reported substantial membership enrollment this year.

There were 631 Scouts (boys 11-12-13 years of age) or 22 more than for a year ago. The total of Explorers (boys 14 and up) was at 189, or 32 more than for the previous year.

Since the first of the year, part of the Lone Star District—Martin County—was pared off and added as part of a new district composed of eastern Midland and all of Martin County. Martin County units contained about 190 boys.

Numerous activities are scheduled this week, including campouts by several Scout units, window displays, programs before several service clubs, group attendance at church services on Scout Sunday. Several churches will use bulletin covers or inserts, calling attention to the observance of Scout Week.

The year's calendar will contain several events, too, including the traditional Roundup in the spring (and which the district would like to see re-instated on a council-wide basis), attendance of the region IX meeting in Houston in April, the traditional Davis Mountain Scout Ranch camp and the aquatic camp at Camp Ed Murphy at Lake J. B. Thomas, which is at near record level. There also will be a Scout circus on a district basis and a Cub olympics.

Several district campouts at the Roundup grounds southeast of town are also planned to liven the program. This month practically every Cub pack will have its Blue and Gold banquet for the parents and boys. A number of Explorers will make a trek to the Philmont Scout Ranch in the Rockies near Cimarron, N. M.

THESE EXAMPLES MAY LEAD OTHERS TO BOY SCOUT WORK

Much of the material in this section observing Boy Scout Week is devoted to leaders who are heading large and vigorous units or who have been in the program a number of years.

Regrettably, time and space would not permit a sketch on every unit leader, for they deserve it. But it is hoped that these will be typical and will give some idea as to how these men direct successful programs for boys.

The real hope, however, is that others will get a glimpse of the contribution that these people, and others like them, are making as volunteer leaders dedicated to the task of citizenship training and character building.

For the plain fact of Scouting, and any such program, is that it fails or succeeds at the point of contact between the scoutmaster, cubmaster, explorer advisor, their assistants and den mothers. Thus the greatest need of Scouting is more adults who will take time to serve as leaders. If you are challenged to offer your services, contact William T. McRee, Scout executive. Don't worry about experience—just to love boys is enough for a beginning.

11 Units Offer Senior Scouting

Scouting on a senior level is offered through 11 units to Explorers in the Lone Star District.

Seven of these are conventional posts, two are air squadrons and two are sea scout ships.

Sponsors and leaders of the units are:

Post 1, Big Spring Rotary Club; G. T. McMillan, advisor, Stanley C. Grant, assistant.

Sea Scout Ship No. 2, First Methodist Church, Melvin Coleman associate advisor; Fred Beckham, commissioner.

Post No. 8, Coahoma Lions Club.

Post No. 9, Wesley Methodist, Turner Ferguson and Nelson Clemow, associate advisors.

Post No. 49, Gay Hill P-TA.

Post No. 111, Forsan Civic Club, James C. Ferguson, advisor.

Post No. 116, Elks Lodge, Capt. P. G. Johnson, advisor.

Sea Scout Ship No. 136, Cosden Petroleum, C. Roy Wright, advisor.

Squadron No. 146, Webb AFB Sojourner's Club, Capt. Earl R. Lothringer, advisor.

Squadron 236, Cosden Petroleum, J. W. McClendon, advisor.

GILBERT TO MAKE REPORT

Milke Gilbert has been named to represent the Lone Star district in a report by Boy Scouts to the governor.

He is due to join with representatives of half a dozen other districts in the Buffalo Trail Council for a trip to Austin. There they will go with other council representatives to make the official report on activities during the past year to Goy. Price Daniel.

Mike is an Eagle Scout in troop No. 1 and has earned the Ad Atlare Dei award which is to be presented to him at Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church Sunday morning. He is active as a junior leader in his troop and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Gilbert, 204 Dixie.

Program Built On Scout Oath

The heart of the Scout program is its oath and law. There are slight deviations in the Cub promise but basically the objective is the same.

When the boy becomes a Scout, he promises to do his best for God and his country, to obey the Scout law, to help other people at all times, and to keep himself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight. Thus, it is a three-pointed pledge of duty to God and country, to others and to himself.

The Scout law has 12 points to it in which the boy acknowledges that a Scout is trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, obedient, kind, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent.

Facetious Inscription Describes Remarkable Scout Relationship

On the fly leaf of a record book had been scrawled the inscription —Garrett & Mims.

It had been entered facetiously, but it was descriptive of a remarkable relationship between a scoutmaster and his assistant. When Garrett Patton decided to get back into Scouting in 1953, he called up Bill Mims, one of his former Scouts, and to his surprise Bill had been thinking about returning into Scouting also. It was all so easy that Patton wanted to back up and make his pitch all over again and make sure he was understood and was understanding.

Today, it's still Garrett & Mims with troop No. 4, only there are a lot of others helping, too. For instance, there are 12 committeemen, a unit record for the district and probably for the council. Moreover, seven of them have boys in the troop. Not only that, five of them—Mims, Ladd, Smith, Richard Cauble, Howard Smith and Louis Jean Thompson—once were in troop No. 3 when Patton was its scoutmaster.

IN 1929

Interestingly, Patton cut his Scouting eye teeth in 1929 in Troop No. 4, which then as until the end of last year, was sponsored by the East Fourth Baptist Church. He got to be a Life Scout before he graduated from the troop of which he was a charter member. Then, in 1939 when Jack Hodges gave up troop No. 3, one of the more active ones of the town, to enter Scouting professionally, Patton attempted to take his place. He had a tough time until finally one day he called a council of war and told the boys the only shoes he could fill were his.

For five years he worked with this troop and matntained its high standing. It was during that interval that Bill Mims earned his Eagle badge, the highest in Scouting. Illness in the family forced his retirement, and in the meantime most of his first boys had gone off to war, Mims included. Maybe it was good not having to worry about meetings, but Patton was like a fish out of water until he was urged to take over troop No. 4. The relationship with the church as sponsor was fine and was terminated amicably only when Cosden (Big Spring Hunting and Fishing Club) asked Patton, a veteran Cosden employe, to be scoutmaster of a troop. So the charter was transferred.

GARRETT PATTON

BILL MIMS

UP TO STRENGTH

During the past seven years the troop has always been up to full strength, and frequently over. It has a balanced program of activities with frequent campouts, participation in all district and council activities. The unit has a new tile hut just south of the historic "big spring," and one of the first orders of business this spring will be to build a council ring for campfires. Right now the troop is making neckerchief slides and planning a window display for Scout week.

Troop No. 4 pioneered the business of troop buses. When a Scout's father once covered 200 miles in three hours with a load of boys, Patton vowed to have his own transportation—safer even if much slower. So he and half a dozen leaders dug down in their pockets (as they have for many other things) and bought a discarded school bus, now affectionately known as Old Red. It has worn out one motor but is still plugging right along. Each year it covers some 2,000 miles. Right now, in addition to shuttling to the Davis Mountains, Camp Ed Murphy and other places, Old Red makes a weekly route to pick up boys and take them to the new meeting places.

PLAN MEETINGS

Patton and Mims, along with Cauble and the others have a meeting of the boy leaders once a month to plan program. By and large it follows the council outline, but occasionally this serves as a springboard for improvisations. The committee is subject to call, but the leaders hope to set up regular meetings.

The scoutmaster, who is dean of district scoutmasters and who is one of very few who have the coveted Scouters' Key, was reared here. He was married in 1937 to Mae Dell Wilson and they have a son, Larry, 21, who is a Star Scout and who occasionally helps out. Their daughter is Mrs. Brenda Leonard. The family attends the East Fourth Baptist Church.

Mims also is a native of Big Spring and started his tenderfoot Scout work in 1937. After World War II service, he attended HCJC and took his degree in electrical engineering at Texas Tech. He is in civil service and is chief engineer at Webb AFB. In 1947, he was married to Bonnie Reid of Coahoma, and they have one son, Gage, 4. He is a Mason. The family attends the First Presbyterian Church. In 1951 Mims re-entered the service and when he got out, he went to work at Webb AFB and into Scouting with Patton.

WORK TOGETHER

The two men work together perfectly as a team. Patton laughingly explains that "I do the talking, and Mims does the thinking." They don't alternate as troop leaders; they're both on duty together each week unless providentially hindered.

What keeps them in the program is a burning conviction that it is a wonderful program for youth and that it can help boys get over rough spots. Numerous examples are cited of boys who were delinquents or near-delinquents but who are now stalwart citizens, some of them leaders in other Scout units. Only once have they failed on a boy, and that was a source of personal heart-break for them.

"There's no such thing as a problem boy who can't be helped if you just take time with him," they said.

Lothringer Began Scouting While At Tripoli

Capt. Earl R. Lothringer got into Scouting as an adult leader half way around the world.

That was at Wheelus AB in Tripoli eight years ago. He has been serving as scoutmaster of troop No. 146 and advisor of Air Explorer squadron No. 146, both sponsored by Webb AFB. With his retirement coming up soon, he's easing out of these places to get leadership which will keep the program going. It's probably a safe bet that wherever he goes, Earl Lothringer will be involved again in the Scouting program.

When he came to Webb four years ago, he was plunged into Scouting, first on a district training basis and eventually as a unit leader.

He has been one of the most faithful members of the board which examines candidates for Eagle Scouts. Moreover, he has served on the training committee and as a faculty member in several training courses. He also has served consistently on district operating committees.

As advisor for the Order of Arrow group, a camping fraternity for Boy Scouts and their leaders, he has worked with lads at their monthly meeting in Big Spring, Stanton, and Coahoma.

His eldest son, Earl 17, has attained the rank of Life Scout and is in the Explorer unit. Edwin, 10, is almost ready to graduate from Cubbing into Scouting. Hence it's a safe bet that the Lothringers will have a good reason for staying active for quite a long time.

Capt. Lothringer is active in other affairs, including the Webb Youth Activities Council, on the Americanism Committee of the Webb Sojourners; and attends the Masonic lodge here.

Credit On Rise

PUNO, Peru (AP) — A parish credit union, started in 1955 with 23 members and $32, expects to sponsor more than a million dollars in loans this year, says the Rev. Robert E. Kearns, Maryknoll pastor of Puno's San Juan church.

Thanks:

To the leaders and boys who helped make my scouting days some of the happiest—

To those still carying on in the traditions of Dan Beard, Mr. C. S. Holmes, and B. Reagan, who had the foresight of making scouting what it is here today . . . and always will be in the lives of boys.

Whole Family Is Active In Scouting

Jack Gulley is not only one of the most active men in Scouting in the Lone Star district — the entire family is.

Although he has been cubmaster of pack No. 48 about a year, he has been taking an active role in the Scouting program on a district level for several years. Scouting is his major community interest.

The pack, sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church where the Gulleys are members, follows a well regulated pattern — and it works, too. Once a month Gulley meets with troop leaders and den mothers for a planning session. Then on the heels of this the monthly pack meeting, always well attended, is held in the church basement. Once a week the den mothers have their meetings with the boys, and it seems like something is doing all the time.

JACK GULLEY

Gulley still maintains activity on the district committee, and he has been in demand as an instructor for other Cub leaders.

Reared in Big Spring, he entered the Air Force after graduation from Big Spring High School and flew the "hump" in the CBI theatre. After the war he went to work for the Freedman Construction Company in Fort Worth. While here for a time in 1950, he fell in love with a young Coahoma teacher, Gypsie Ted McCollum of Loraine, and they were married that year. He returned to Big Spring in 1954 to become associated with Cosden Petroleum.

Mr. and Mrs. Gulley have two children, Barney, 8, who is robust Cub, and Mary Jane, 6, who gets about as much Cubbing as anybody, because Mrs. Gulley is a den mother.

Last summer, during their vacation, the Gulleys went to Philmont Scout Ranch near Cimarron, N. M., and spent an entire week in training on the Cub program. While he was in special sessions, Mrs. Gulley was attending classes for den mothers, and the children were having fun in the mountains. With them, Cubbing is a family fun and fellowship. They are real Cubbing enthusiasts.

Scout Leader Sees Influence On Boys

"You can see it every day," says Lester Goswick, a veteran of 11 years as an adult leader in Scouting, "you can see how Scouting is working in the lives of the boys.

"But to tell the truth, I get about as big a kick out of it as the boys do."

Goswick has made the cycle in leadership. He started out as an Explorer advisor and for five years and over he had one of the top units in the district. For about a year he worked with the post and helped with the troop. Then he became Cubmaster of pack 109 and served three years in that capacity. Now, for two years he has been scoutmaster of troop No. 9. All the units are sponsored by Wesley Methodist Church.

Whatever his capacity, he has the reputation of running one of the best rounded units in the area. Besides his love for boys, there's a reason. He devotes considerable time to the program and sets up regular planning sessions. One of these is his Green Bar session with junior leaders once a month so the boys can map out what they plan to do. Another is a breakfast session at 6 a.m. once a month in the church basement when committeemen sit down and make plans, including those for courts of honor, board of review, etc.

The troop now has 25 boys and three patrols. Besides a lot of camping and general advancement, they work together on merit badges. For example, they are picking out three pigs now so by the time the boys have fed them out, they will have gained skills for a couple of merit badges.

The troop has a bus—a former school bus—purchased through the church, but paid off by the boys, committeemen and the Men of the Church who work at a variety of fund raising projects. Goswick really is fond of the bus because it keeps the boys together.

"They get to singing while we're travelling, and man you never heard such singing," he says.

Goswick was reared in the Big Spring-Colorado City area. He war married in 1942 at Colorado City to Euna Wagner, and after the war they settled in Big Spring. The Goswick's have three children, Johnny W. 13, Gary 6, and Verna, 8. Verna has been in the Girl Scout program and Gary is prime bait for Cubs when he gets to be 8. The family attends Wesley Methodist.

LESTER GOSWICK

Goswick believes the quality of the Scouting program in general is getting better, that program aids and help from the council is improving all the time, along with better facilities at the Davis Mountains camp and the Lake J. B. Thomas camp (Ed Murphy).

Sure, it takes a lot of time, but outside his family and his work as a foreman for the city, this the thing that give him the greatest sense of satisfaction in life.

Negro Saint Likely

ROME (AP)—Steps now underway at the Vatican indicate that canonization may be near for Martin de Porres, the Negro lay brother of Peru who rose from illegitimate birth to become a leader in efforts for interracial justice and one of the most influential men of his country.

Thursday Off Is Only A Theory For Active Leader

Something usually comes along to occupy that third Thursday, but theoretically that's Guy Cook's Thursday off.

The first Thursday of each month, as perhaps the most active assistant cubmaster in the district, he meets with the committeemen and the den mothers of Cub pack No. 138, sponsored by College Heights P-TA. The second Thursday is for the Scouters roundtable to talk "shop" about boys. That third one is presumably vacant (but actually hardly ever), and the fourth one is given over to the monthly pack meeting.

In the 2½ years that he has been cubmaster of the pack, he has missed only one pack meeting and only one planning meeting, and then he was ill. If he's missed a training session, he's not aware of it.

In between, there's usually something special to do—like making props for stunts or ceremonies, or gathering and distributing materials.

Cubbing is his main interest, and he figures if he wasn't investing his time in boys, he might not be doing anything nearly so constructive.

Guy Cook got interested first as a committeemen, than as an assistant. Today the unit has 46 boys, divided into 6 dens, in the pack. Each month the pack meeting at College Heights school draws a nearly packed auditorium.

Cook was reared in Arkansas, New Mexico and Arizona, and he saw duty in the First Division with the Army in the ETO. In 1946, he enlisted in the Air Force and is a technical sergeant at Webb AFB. He and Edwina L. Traylor were married in New Mexico in 1950 and there are three children in the family, Wayne, 17, who is active in Explorer post 1, Edward Guy, who is in his third year of Cubbing, and Wesley Early, 8, who is getting into the program.

GUY COOK

Pack No. 138 has become a prize winner due in part to Cook's help, and at the roundup last summer, the group had the largest number present. In fact, all but about eight of [illegible]arents turned out, too.

Cook is wrapped up in his Cubbing because "I feel I get a lot closer to the boys and can see them grow and develop, to learn the lessons of cooperation and self-reliance, to have fun on ours and in many other activities. Besides, Cubbing has been a means by which I've got acquainted with a lot of mighty fine people."

Yeats Followed His Son's Interest Into Scouting

A boy is one of the best means of getting a man into Scouting, and when David Yeats became a Cub, it wasn't long before his father, Tom Yeats, was a committeeman.

The next step for Tom Yeats was to become an assistant cubmaster, a post he held for approximately a year. For the past two years he has been serving as cubmaster of pack No. 137, sponsored by Washington Place School. It is one of the larger and more active Cub units in the district.

Yeats was reared in Gadsen, Ala., and after he completed school, he joined the Army and served in an artillery unit of an infantry division in the European theatre of operations. Upon his return, he entered the University of Alabama.

He came to Big Spring in 1948 to join the Cosden staff and is a foreman in the chemical specialty department. In August of 1948, he was married to Marcelire Bryant in Big Spring, and they have three sons, David, 10, Stephen, 7, and Timothy, 3. The family home is at 1506 Vines.

"You can see with two more boys coming up I'm not likely to get out of Cubbing soon," observed Yeats.

He probably would be active anyhow, for his pack is having a successful operation. Last week, for example, the pack meeting drew around 100 people. There are 40 boys divided into five dens.

Once a month Yeats convokes a planning meeting with the committeemen, assistants and den mothers. They plan for the pack meeting and for the den activities during the month. The pack meeting is held the last Tuesday in the month.

Aside from his church (Trinity Baptist) where he is chairman of the board of deacons and teaches a young married couples' class, Cubbing is his chief outside activity. He is thoroughly sold on it as a means of shaping youngsters in their most plastic age, in encouraging participation and initiative and wholesome creative activity. Between his church and the pack, his off-duty time is fairly well taken up, but then Yeats is satisfied that it is a good investment.

Carl Call Can Testify That Scouting Can Be Fulltime Job, But Worth It

Carl Call has a suspicion that serving as scoutmaster can get to be a fulltime job; but those wh know Carl Call have a suspicion that he wouldn't say "no" to a boy even if Scouting does involve his personal schedule.

Carl Call is scoutmaster of Bog Scout Troop No. 1, the oldest in Texas from the point of continuous registration. He had been a Scout back in Lucasville, Ohio and managed to attain first class rank. Jim Smith, who was troop No. 1 unit leader here, was organizing an Explorer post and got Carl to take over for him. That was three years ago, and Carl has been busy as a bee ever since. There were some 10 boys in the troop when he took over, and at the end of last year he had 28. Recently he re-registered 22, but this number is due to increase.

Developing boy leaders is one of his aims, and to accomplish them he has a Green Bar meeting with the troop leaders, patrol leaders, senior patrol leader, etc—once a month to map the program. Then each week the boys execute the program hey have planned. He has produced four Eagle Scouts (the very top rank) within three years, and three of these boys are still involved as junior leaders. His Eagles are Robert Goodlett, Mike Gilbert, Jimmy Burleson and Mack Green.

CARL CALL

The troop carries on a full program, especially of camping. The Rotary Club, which has a hut for the troop, loaned money for purchase of a 42-passenger bus. The boys took odd jobs to earn money to repay the loan, then took out the back seats and three tiers of short seats to install a kitchen with refrigeration, sink, stove, water tanks, so that anywhere the bus stops, the troop is able to satisfy the perennial Scout hunger. A rack on top accommodates the luggage. The troop has made three trips to Davis Mountains Scout Ranch, several trips to the Concho River, Lake J. B. Thomas and other points. There's some talk now about a junket to Grand Canyon.

Call was married on Dec. 15, 1954 to Mary A. Legg in Lucasville. They have two daughters, Vicki, 5, and Candy, 2, and his family is a staunch Scouting supporter. They attend the Airport Baptist Church.

"Sometimes you wonder," said Call, "but then you really realize that the payoff is in the building of character and training of boys for citizenship. Sometimes they fall down a bit, but in the main they come through and make you mighty proud of them."

His Introduction Was Exceptional

C. B. (Bert) Andries got an introduction to Scout leadership which, while exceptional, is not altogether rare.

When he was attending Texas Tech, he was at church one evening when a Scout troop was meeting. A committeeman, noticing his interest, asked if he would like to work with boys. Bert showed up the next week—and found himself to be the scoutmaster.

But his case, like thousands before him, proved once more that the chief qualification for running a successful Scout program is a love for boys. Andries mastered the mechanics of the program as he went along and led the troop successfully for two years. Then came a four-year hitch in the Navy before he returned to college—and to his troop (No. 91) in Lubbock.

Within a year he had graduated and had accepted a place with Cosden Petroleum Corporation as an industrial engineer.

The Downtown Lions Club didn't let him get settled good until he was made scoutmaster of troop No. 7, which is composed of Latin American youngsters. The troop was then at low ebb, but now Andries has built up a membership of 22 and has a vigorous program going within the three patrols.

He makes wide use of the boy leadership within the troop, and he has drafted another senior boy, Tommy Burleson, to serve as his junior assistant scoutmaster.

The troop undertakes to carry on a good camping program in addition to the regular weekly meetings in the Scout hut near Kate Morrison School. The Lions Club helped the boys get an old school bus, and last summer the lads departed from their program of going to the Davis Mountains and took an excursion into the Colorado mountain country. They plan to do a lot more troop camping now that they have the bus.

One recent project was to repaint the Scout hut (with paint given by Cactus Paint Manufacturing Company). The troop also has participated in various district and council activities, for example distribution of the recent get-out-the vote material for the past general election. This year they plan to pitch into some money-making projects.

Andries is a native East Texan and was reared in the New London area. He is a member of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church. He is a bachelor.

Modestly, he doesn't claim to have revolutionized the lives of boys, but he believes firmly that Scouting is a great program to help bring out the best in boys.

"I wouldn't stay in it if I didn't believe that," he said. And Bert Andries has every intention of staying in it.

GENE STURDEVENT

His Son Gave Sturdevent The Scouting Bug

C. E. (Gene) Sturdevent got a taste of Scouting as a boy, but it wasn't until he had a boy of his own that he really got the bug.

When he was growing up, he moved around quite a bit. He called Bitter Root Valley his home, but he did stay long enough in Livingston, Montana to attain the rank of first class in a troop. When he finished school, he enlisted in 1940 in the Army Medical Corps and was sent to San Francisco.

After about half a dozen years of this, he took his discharge and swore he would never look through another microscope again. However, a try at a few other jobs convinced him that lab work was his dish, and he completed laboratory technicians' school. He put in half a dozen years with private hospitals and came here in 1952 with the VA Hospital.

It was in 1954 that Paul (Bud) who is now 14, came of Cub age, and soon Sturdevent was a committeeman and then assistant cubmaster. Bud moved up into Scouts, and so did his dad. He coundn't resist the invitation to take over troop 300 at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and steadily the unit grew from six boys to 28 in three patrols.

Advance planning is indispensable for a program to attract and hold boys, he is convinced. He has regular Green Bar (boy leader) patrol meetings to map out the schedule of events for the ensuing months. Then when meetings are held, there is some ceremony, some instruction in Scouting skills, a game or two, perhaps a song, or some inspiration. But always, he keeps things moving along.

EARNS MONEY

Although the church makes some appropriation for the troop, this is rarely ever touched except for some special event like an annual budget. (Incidentally, this is coming up Monday evening at the church Fellowship Hall with Dr. W. A. Hunt as speaker.) But for all activities, trips, etc., the troop earns every penny that it requires. One of the projects it financed was the construction and stocking of an equipment trailer with supplies, tents, etc.

In 1945 Sturdevent was married to Mary P. Pitzer in Sacramento, Calif., and besides Paul, there is one other member of the family, Jo, 12. The family attends the First Christian Church.

Does he feel that he accomplishes the objectives of scouting?

OBJECTIVES

"Sometimes yes, and sometimes no," he observes, "but really I do, else I wouldn't be in the program. It's the greatest thing in the world to give boys something creative and useful to do and to develop them into good men and good citizens. We open our meeting with a prayer, and we figure this is an important part of the program, and an important part of a boy's life, too.

"Sometimes I tell 'em off and then figure not many of them will be back, and the next meeting, everybody turns out and like an angel—well almost."

Sure, it takes a lot of Sturdevent's time, but he thinks it's about the best use he can make of it.

Troop 1 Plans 50th Anniversary

Last year Boy Scouts of America celebrated its 50th anniversary.

Now this year troop No. 1 in Big Spring is planning to have its Golden Anniversary.

Congress chartered BSA in February of 1910, hence the observance of Boy Scout Week which encompasses Feb. 8, the anniversary date.

Little more than a year after that, a charter was granted for troop No. 1 in Big Spring, and by September of 1911 it was a going institution. Although it has had its ups and downs over the years, it has always been registered every year and is still a really active troop. While there likely were other troops in Texas before No. 1, for one reason or another, they let their charters lapse, so that today troop No. 1 qualifies as the oldest troop in the state from the point of continuous registration.

The big project for the troop this year, said Carl Call, scoutmaster, is to try to promote a reunion of the boys and men who have been in the troop during that period of time. Founder of the troop was the late C. S. Holmes, and two of whom were in that troop are still here—Mark Harwell and Adrian DeGraffenreid.

On Catholicism

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a result of the presidential election campaign involving a Roman Catholic church in this country "was subjected to a greater public examination and publicity in 1960 than ever before in its history," said a year-end review by the National Catholic Welfare Conference's Bureau of Information.

Shaw On Religion

NEW YORK (AP) — In one of George Bernard Shaw's letters published in a new volume called, "Letters to a Young Actress," the late famed playwright says: "Religion is of all subjects in the world the most elusive, the most dangerous, the most important, the most far-reaching and the most all embracing. To talk or read about religion to a child is the most responsible and the most anxious thing a grown-up could possibly have to do."

Harvey Hooser Won Eagle Badge After He Became A District Scoutmaster

Harvey Hooser is one of those rare individuals who served as a scoutmaster and who also achieved the Eagle rank in Scouting. But he got that Eagle badge after he became a scoutmaster.

He came up in Scouting as a member of troop No. 2 back in the days when it was sponsored by the First Christian Church and the late George Wilke was scoutmaster. He got to be a Star Scout, but when he became a scoutmaster six years ago his boys got to passing him, and this spurred him on to go to the top with his advancement, too.

Really, it was his service as county attorney that got him into Scouting as an adult leader. He came in contact with several boys in trouble, and in talking with them, he found that none, or practically none, had been with a Scout unit. M. B. McFall, Midway school principal, had been wanting to start a troop at Midway, and Hooser was a resident of Sand Springs, so he thought he'd give it a fling.

Starting with seven or eight boys, he built up an active unit which at times had as many as 40 boys. In fact they came all the way from Garden City, Elbow, Coahoma and Big Spring to be in the troop. Some five years ago members of the troop committee and others went on a note and they bought an old commercial bus, repaying the loan out of chili suppers and other projects. Later this was traded for an even better bus. The troop also acquired its own Scout hut and an acre of land at Sand Springs.

For five years the troop went to the Davis Mountains council camp, made two aquatic camps. The bus was used to take a group to the Philmont camp in New Mexico. Hooser himself was chosen to be a unit leader at the last National Jamboree.

Out of the troop have come a couple of Eagle Scouts and one boy with the God and Country award. Lots of the troop leadership has come up from the ranks.

Hooser met once a month with his patrol leaders for program planning. When they take a place with the troop or in some phase of the program, he feels a sense of accomplishment.

Hooser thinks the pay off is in seeing some boy accomplish something on his own, to equip himself as a contributing and participating citizen. Naturally, he's proud that many boys have come to him with their problems. He even had the pleasure of buying a marriage license for one.

Hooser was reared here. After service in World War II as a gunner in the Asiatic-Pacific theatre with the Air Force, he and his brother, Hartman, were married together at Las Vegas, Nev. Later they attended law school together at Baylor and now are practicing attorneys in their own firm. Harvey was married to Geraldine Holladay, a Fort Smith, Ark., girl he met in California. They have three children, Danny, 10, a Cub, Patricia, 8, and Leanna, 5. They attended the First Christian Church here.

The troop, No. 136, always included church attendance as part of its camping program. Whenever 11 a.m. came, they stopped and went to church.

"We've attended about every church between here and the Scout Ranch and in lots of other places. Figured it was good for them, no matter what denomination," he said.

Hale Would Do It Again

Boyce Hale volunteered for his job as cubmaster for pack No. 138, sponsored by College Heights P-TA. He did it deliberately, and he would do it again.

It was his wife, Virginia, who sowed the seed. She had been serving for a couple of years as a den mother when their oldest boy, Bobby, came of Cub age. When she kept coming home and telling about troubles that the pack had, particularly in adult male leadership, he got to toying with the idea of offering to help. In a round about way, W. T. McRee, Scout executive, found out that Boyce was "ripe," and he got him out to a meeting.

NOT NEW

Scouting was not entirely new, for when he was growing up at Forsan back in 1932, he was a member of troop No. 15. Later he entered the Navy and after separation from service in 1945, he lived in Kansas City, attended junior college and Park College there. In 1952, however, he came back to Texas and took a position with Phillips Petroleum, serving on the district staff.

"I had done a lot of hunting and fishing and bowling, and enjoyed myself, and I remembered how I loved to roam around in the brakes around Forsan," he recalled. "I got to figuring my wife was right —that I owed something not only to my boys but also to other youngsters."

He entered into his unit leadership with considerable enthusiasm and that the unit has doubled in membership to a total of 46 now is indicative of the type of program that is offered.

COOK

Hale gives most of the credit for a successful operation to his assistant, Guy T. Cook, and to the six den mothers, as well as faithful committeemen. Once a month they get together to plan for the pack meeting, to discuss problems and iron them out, line up general activities for the den meetings, develop the suggested themes or pick out another that is more adaptable, and to look two or three months ahead for program ideas. Most of the ideas come from Cub literature, but the program is flexible.

Hale likes to have occasional outings for the Cubs, and this is beamed at a father-and-son relationship. He used it quite successfully in planning for the Cub olympics last summer, and the boys and their families all turned out for the preparatory outing. By keeping the pact intact during the summer, it was no trick to start out in full stride in the fall.

He's proud of the job that Cook does in his place, and for the last few meetings Cook has taken over the pack operation completely.

PROUDEST

He's proudest of all, however, to see boys get an opportunity to do something with their hands, to learn coordination, to learn through games and contests to compete and yet to get along, to be occupied with something constructive.

Hale was married in Harrison, Ark., to Virginia Sue Farmer of Bolivar, Mo., and they have three children, Bobby, 10, Boyce Jr. (Skeeter), and Donna, 4. They attend St. Paul Lutheran Church. With Skeeter coming on just as Bobby graduates into scouting, Hale figures the family is all set for a long siege of Cubbing. Nothing could please him more.

Coleman Has As Much Fun In Scouting As His Boys

Get Melvin Coleman talking about Scouting, and pretty soon he's telling you about the latest camping trip or some new enterprise the boys are undertaking.

You get the idea that he has about as much fun as the boys—and you're right.

"Now that I've got into it and seen Scouting work, I don't guess I'll ever get out of it," he said. That doesn't mean there are not discouraging moments when meetings go wrong, there are heavy demands on your time and maybe you can't get help when you need it. Something always happens, however, to change the picture and he moves up to a new plateau of adventure and excitement with the boys.

CURIOSITY

"I got into Scouting partly out of curiosity and partly by accident," he explained. "Dr. Jordan Grooms (then First Methodist pastor) called me and some others down to talk about the Scout troop, No. 2, which was about to founder. I had grown up on a farm around here and had never been in Scouting, but it ended up with me agreeing to be temporary scoutmaster.

Well, there's nothing so permanent as a temporary Scout leader. He searved as unit leader in 1958 and 1959, then turned the assistant's post to Don Anderson, but Don had to drop it back to Coleman.

Once more he is registered as assistant, but he's really wearing three hats in this capacity, for he also is assistant cubmaster and assistant Explorer advisor.

ACTIVE

The units are all fairly active. The Cub pack, now on the ascendency, has 28 boys registered (and 21 were at the last meeting); 17 boys in the troop and 14 in the post.

In the reorganization process, emphasis is going to be put on boy leadership, he said. There will be a Green Bar patrol (boy leaders) meeting monthly to plan programs, and the adult leaders plan to sit back and observe troop operation under the junior assistant scoutmaster and senior patrol leader.

Troop No. 2 tries to have a camp a month, "and this is the life of the program." In between the patrols frequently have hikes. This weekend, for instance, four boys will go on their 5-mile hike, and while they are gone the troop camp site will be moved (unannounced) with only trail signs left to direct the boys to the new site. Another stunt which has produced fun is a camp without utensils. Boys bring only cans and coat hangers, but they like it so well they rarely bring utensils any more. The troop has camped in the Davis Mountains and last summer was at Christoval.

HELIOGRAPHS

The unit has acquired a set of British heliographs for Morse code signaling by sunlight. These are so precise that unless the receiving unit is beamed in on a precise compass setting, it cannot catch the reflection of the sending one.

Coleman was reared southwest and west of town on farms and after service, he settled in Big Spring. He was married in 1952 to Mrs. Frankie Nobles and they have a daughter, Charlotte Nobles, 18, and a son, Steve Coleman, 7. Steve has been making the camps with his Dad since he was 4.

"Scouting is the most rewarding experience of my life," said Coleman. "It does something to you to see the kids growing and developing. Most of them don't have opportunity to get out in the open except for Scouting. It's a wonderful experience for them."

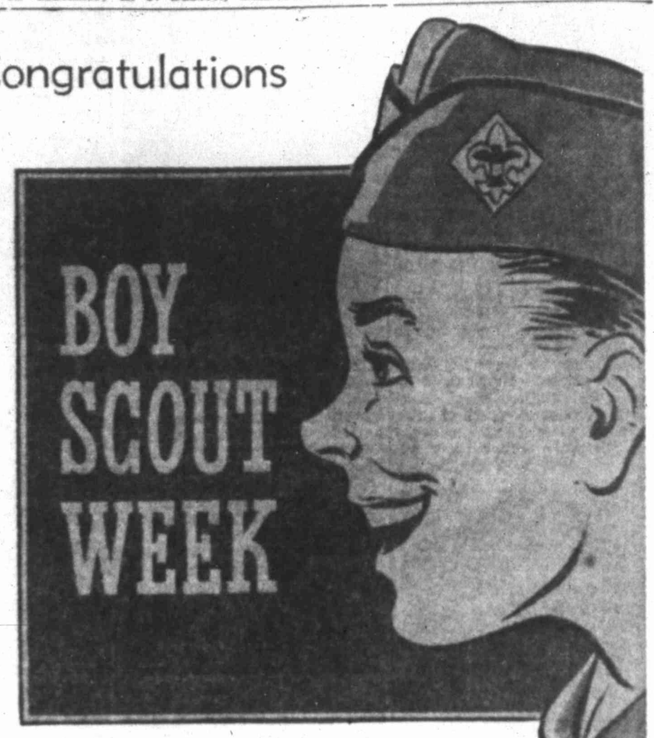

Literacy Cited

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Most college students haven't "been educated in their religion beyond the junior high level," says C. Grey Austin, University of Michigan assistant co-ordinator of religious affairs. "Too often a student feels that if he has doubts he really belongs outside the church."

Some students, he said, lose their faith in college because of such immature views.

Bradford Back At Former Post To Rebuild Troop

Like a coach who stays in the business over a length of time, Bill Bradford has come to one of those rebuilding jobs. But as a veteran volunteer leader, he's confident once more he will have a hustling and bustling Boy Scout troop No. 5 at the First Baptist Church.

Bradford had been scoutmaster of the troop but later stepped up to the Explorer advisor position with a group of the older boys. In the meantime the unit lost its scoutmaster, Sgt. James R. Sage, who was assigned overseas, and the interim created a decline in membership. Now Bradford's back with the troop and is preparing for a new program.

Ottis L. (Bill) Bradford was reared in Bryson and was for eight years a member of its troop No. 105. He attended John Tarleton College and then put in time in the service with Uncle Sam. Afterwards he spent a couple of years with Texas Tech and came to Big Spring in 1952 to a supervisory post in the Webb AFB fuel system. In 1957 he became associated with Cosden.

Wm. T. McRee, scout executive, interested Bradford in serving as an assistant with Jim Schrimshire in troop No. 5, and from Schrimshire he learned a lot of the techniques of boy leadership. He worked also with the Explorer (senior boys) post. When Schrimshire left, Bradford succeeded him and then took over the advisor's spot on the post. Out of the unit have come three boys with the Eagle rank and with the God and Country award.

The unit has taken in the Davis Mountain camps and the aquatic Camp Ed Murphy at Lake J. B. Thomas. One year Bradford took a group of the Explorers on a junket to Colorado. Bradford served as tour master for a council unit to the National Jamboree in 1957.

The troop participates in most of the district and council activities and has won numerous blue ribbon awards. It also has performed several troop good turns for the sponsoring institution such as cleaning up the church premises, etc.

As a matter of operation, Bradford will have monthly planning sessions with boy leaders and hopes to keep the troop committee on hand for regular sessions. In the past, Bradford has been available for considerable help in adult leader training, including conduct of the monthly roundtables and parts on training courses.

Last year he and Miss Averil Harris were married, and they have their home at 1803 N. Monticello. They are members of the First Baptist Church and he also is a member of the American Business Club and of the Masonic lodge.

Of The

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

The Boy Scouts with its vast man power and program resources has accepted the challenge of the times to help boys and young men grow in fitness—physically fit mentally and emotionally fit, socially and spiritually fit.

We know the future will be secure with the many capable hands training now for the great tasks ahead.

The State National Bank

Hopes To Help At Least One

"If one boy," said C. M. Bentley, "if only one boy steps up and turns out all right because of the program, that's all I ask."

That's the way C. M. Bentley, T&P brakeman, feels about serving as a scoutmaster. Just seeing boys get training in things that makes them good Americans, seeing them grow in leadership and responsibility, that's the thing that has kept him going at the job for nine years. Right now he's going as strong as ever as unit leader of troop No. 3, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

Bentley, who drives to Midland every day to put in a day on the switch engine, finds time in the evenings to work with his boys. Once a month he has a Green Bar meeting with his boy leaders and lays out a program for the month. Usually at the weekly meetings of the troop, there are two or three committeemen on hand to give actual and moral support.

Every six weeks the committee has a board of review on advancement, and on the seventh week there is a Court of Honor, where the awards are made. At the last one, there were 38 parents. No wonder his troop is getting traction on its advancement program.

The typical meeting has an opening and flag ceremony, followed by the scout oath and law, then a period for patrol meetings, 30 minutes of work on the item of program emphasis, such as first aid, etc., then a closing exercise. The boys run the program with a minimum of help or interference from the leaders.

Bentley won't stand for the boys dogging it on advancement and other activities, but the lads seem to like it. He started out with a defunct unit that had 4 boys show up for the first meeting. Now [illegible] are 26, and he's got his heart set on 42. The welcome sign is out any Tuesday evening at the hut at 10th and Bell streets.

For several years the troop had been content with yellow ribbons (third division) in various competition, but at the fall roundup, they came in with a blue ribbon, and Bentley said there are going to be more of them.

He came into Scouting as an assistant cubmaster to Jack Alexander in pack 29. Then when his son went to troop No. 9, he followed as an assistant scout master. Later he took over troop No. 9 and it became one of the largest in the area. Later he was less active, but three months ago he accepted an invitation to take on the troop No. 3 job.

Bentley is a native of Fall River, Mass. and came to Texas in 1926 when he joined the Army and was sent to Fort Sam Houston. Later he went to Bracketville with the cavalry. As a civilian he lived in Sanderson, where he worked for the T&NO, then transferred to the T&P and came to Big Spring 16 years ago. He was married in 1942 to Marjorie Helton in Marfa, and they have two children, Mrs. Sylvia Langford, and Kenneth Ray, 15, who is a junior assistant scoutmaster for his father. The Bentleys are members of Baptist Temple.

It's not all peaches and cream with a troop, but about the time he gets disheartened, one of the boys does something to make him proud, and Bentley is all fired up for a long stretch again.

CRAIG E. CAMPBELL

Leader Can Almost Claim Being Born Into Scouting

You can't "born" anyone into Scouting, but Gene Campbell had every right to claim that background.

His father, Carl Campbell, is one of the select few who this year received a 50-anniversary medallion signifying that he was active when Scouting was chartered by Congress in 1910. Mr. Campbell kept active in the program, and when his boys became of age it was natural that they went into Scouting, too.

All three of them—Don and his twin, Carl Jr., and Gene (Craig E.)—were in troop No. 155 at St. Louis. One night they came up for the Eagle badges at the same time, and this was the first time in the history of Scouting that three brothers had qualified simultaneously for the top award. He was a member of the first Sea Scout ship in Boy Scouts of America and was one of the first Scouts to serve as a den chief (in 1937) when Cubbing was catching on after its experimental run in St. Louis. So Gene Campbell has a Great Scouting background.

He came to Big Spring in 1950 to be associated with his father in the Cactus Paint Manufacturing Company. There was a period before anyone found out that he was a scouter, but five years ago his brother, Don, drafted Gene Campbell as an associate advisor of Post No. 9. When Don moved to Odessa (he has an Explorer post there), Gene took over as advisor of the post. He served two years in that capacity and became an expert in the new Explorer program for senior boys, helping to set up several units.

Two years ago when his son became of Cub age, Campbell got interested in pack No. 14 and became its Cubmaster. He had less than a dozen boys when he started. Today there are 60 boys in six regular dens and a Weblo den, which makes this the largest pack in the district and one of the largest in the council.

The unit participates actively in all district and council affairs, has numerous tours and other projects of its own. Normally attendance at the pack meetings the last Thursday of each month will be above 150 people.

As was the case with his Explorer leadership, Campbell has become an expert in Cub operation and is much in demand for leadership training. Besides, he is sort of a volunteer missionary for the program, going anytime to help organize a new unit or to help revive a faltering one.

He was married to Pauline Brown in St. Louis in 1947 and they have three children, Carolyn, 12, Robert, 9, and Betsy, 4. Mrs. Campbell, of course, is a den mother—how could she escape it?

Campbell has a meeting monthly with his adult leaders to plan activities and to plan for pack meetings. He insists on giving the committeemen a job, and they oblige by doing it.

In a phrase, Scouting is "the greatest program for boys" that he knows about, and that would be reason enough to continue his work. But, there's a sense of obligation, too, for "Scouting has given so much to me that I feel I owe it something."

Family Wrapped Up In Scouting

In Scouting, Peyton C. (Pete) Turney is the equivalent to the old west's two gun man—only Pete wears about three guns for Scouts, Cubs and adult training.

But whatever talents he has in Scouting, and they are considerable, he has an assistant who is just about as well equipped and as devoted. This happens to be his wife, Mary.

They are all wrapped up in Scouting and make no bones about it. Between it, the church and his job at Webb AFB with the U. S. Corps of Engineers, there's no time left, but that doesn't matter for Scouting is a family affair.

Turney gets a satisfaction of seeing possible juvenile problems grow into stronger boys and men with high moral character and purpose, and equipped to take on responsibility and to make contributions as Christian citizens. Seeing this come about is the constant recharger to him.

WAS A SCOUT

When he was a lad, Pete Turney was a Scout and rose to the rank of Life at his hometown of Las Cruces, N. M., in 1935. When the war came on he enlisted but a medical discharge dislodged him a year later. He went with the Civil Aeronautics Administration for several years before joining the U. S. Engineers in 1947. His assignments have taken him to Lavonn and Belton dams, Dyess AFB in Abilene and to Rees AFB at Lubbock before arriving at Big Spring in 1959. He put in a year as Cubmaster at Lubbock.

PEYTON TURNEY

He had been active in other places and hit the ground running for Scouting when he got here. He took over troop No. 39 with four boys, and now he has 26 boys. At intervals of about a month and a half he gets his junior leaders together for program planning. Similarly he convokes his troop committee for long range planning, based on the Scout quarterly. The troop, of course, meets once a week, carrying out the plans. For instance, during Scout Week they would like to put on a window display, take a campout and attend church as a group on Scout Sunday.

CAMPS

The troop always tries to get in a camp a month. All but five of his boys got in a long-term summer camp. Pete got to take in the national jamboree at Colorado Springs, Colo., as a sectional staff member. The troop has furnished leadership for Cubbing, too, for five of his boys are den chiefs.

As if running a troop is not enough, Turney doubles in brass by serving as the ceremony man for Jack Gulley and occasionally for Guy Cook in Cub pack meetings. In addition, he participates on a district committee level, principally in training. He's applied as a candidate for the Woodbadge, which is a special select group of scouters dedicated to training others. Mrs. Turney, too, is qualified in leadership training and is a member of the reserve for Cub training. She is serving as a den mother in pack No. 138.

Mrs. Turney is the former Mary Reed, and she and Turney were married in 1945 in Fort Worth. They have two children, Charles, 13, a Star Scout and senior patrol leader, and Margaret, 11, who might as well be a boy scout. They attend the First Presbyterian Church. It's difficult to ascertain who is the most enthusiastic scouter—Pete or Mary.

Task Of Guiding Teens Is An Important One

By KENNETH NORRIS

(Kenneth Norris, 17, has been assigned by Under Twenty to cover important subjects of the day for Under Twenty readers. From time to time his articles will deal with subjects of importance as seen through the eyes of a member of the Under Twenty set.)

The Under Twenty set is constantly being criticized by certain adults about their conformity, their lack of interest in worthwhile projects, their lack of participation, purpose, etc. These adults, while clucking constantly about the minus side of the teen-agers, make no effort to help them develop interests, and channel energies into activities that will help them in their adult life.

But there are many people who are very much interested in young people and who take time out of their busy lives to help Under Twenties have access to, and take part in, activities they will find interesting and absorbing. Such a man is Mr. Joel W. Schenker, president of Webb & Knapp Construction Co., probably one of the largest in the world today.

I was lucky enough to have the assignment of interviewing Mr. Schenker—backstage at a current Broadway play. The cast of this play was different, in that it was non-professional, being composed of some 30 high school and college students. Mr. Schenker is the guiding spirit of the group. I could feel that he likes young people—the students were extremely relaxed with him and felt completely free to ask questions which he answered with much thought and serious consideration.

"How did you become interested in working with teen-agers, and why did you choose the theatre," I asked. "Well," he said, "the only way American theatre is going to survive is if we can stimulate interest in it on the part of young people. That's a building job, too, and one I really enjoy doing."

Mr. Schenker is the director of the American Theatre Wing and vice president of the American Shakespeare Festival Society, a member of the Theatre Guild, and director of the Academy of Dramatic Arts. At one time or another, he has worked with almost all of show business greats.

"We need young people on both sides of the curtain these days. These groups we bring to the theatre are often dramatic groups from nearby areas, but often they are just young persons interested in the theatre for entertainment's sake. We reserve a block of seats for them and either before or after the performance we take them backstage to see what goes on and to meet the performers," Mr. Schenke said.

"Naturally, we do a great deal to help the young people in their first steps in the theatre. But that is only part of the job. They can only become interested in American Theatre if they are exposed to it. In a small way this project helps both the teen-agers and the theatre."

Homecoming Will Be Held In Fall

By LYN CLAWSON

The girls at BSHS can breathe a sigh of relief now that Twirp Week is over. Last week the girls had to assume all the boys' duties as far as asking for dates, etc., was concerned.

Last Tuesday in the Student Council meeting the Council voted to have Homecoming in the fall of this year. Karen Koger and Joan Jordan are to be the General Chairmen for this affair.

This year the Student Council and the Chamber of Commerce will again sponsor a Student Government Day. It will probably be sometime in April. The committee to plan it consists of Lyn Clawson, Mary Lock Crosland, Jerry Dunlap, Ken Lawrence and Johnny Cone.

THE CORRAL, the BSHS school paper, has recently been awarded a rating of superior by the West Texas High School Press Association. The Journalism Department of Texas Tech served as judges for all the school papers in this area. The CORRAL has been awarded the rating of excellent several times, but this is the first time that it has attained the highest rating possible.

Next Wednesday the following Future Farmers of America will leave for San Antonio for the first livestock show of the season: Dickie Carlton, Mike Houston, Mike Lowke, Tommy Welch, Jimmy Greenwalt, Jimmy Welch, Douglas Napp, Danny Coats, Robert Mahoney, Jimmy Reed, Donnie Anderson, Dick Irons, Norvin Hamlin, and Esco Hamlin.

The EL RODEO staff is now accepting applications from sophomores who would like to be on the annual staff next year. Nine students, six girls and three boys, will be chosen. Applications may be obtained in room 216 or from Katherine Hepner, editor of the yearbook for the school year 1961-1962. Boys interested in photography should contact Mrs. Erma Steward, yearbook sponsor.

Next week the BSHS Steer basketball team will play its last two games. Tuesday night they journey to Abilene and Friday night they meet Odessa High School on their own court. A bus is to be taken to Abilene Tuesday night for students. If you are interested in going you may sign up in the office. It only costs $1. The Steers did a very good job Friday night against the San Angelo Bobcats.

Follies of '61 will be held March 2 and 3 in the senior high auditorium at 8 p.m. All high school students interested in being in the Follies or in helping in any way should meet in the auditorium at 4 p.m. after school Monday to sign up and get an information sheet from Mrs. Green. If you cannot be at the meeting, see Mrs. Green sometime during the day and let her know that you are interested.

At the regular monthly meeting of Chapter I of the Future Homemakers of America held Friday, Candy Harris gave a talk on schools and social life in France. Plans were made to take cakes and valentines to crippled children for Valentine's Day.

Better Think Before You Drop Out Of High School

By JO CRAVEN

Thinking of dropping out of high school? Don't do it. Here are some important reasons why you should not — straight from the United States government.

A major youth survey recently released by the Department of Labor, entitled "School and Early Employment Experience of Youth," gives us some inescapable facts concerning what happens to "drop-outs." The truth is that young people who drop out of high school before they have graduated give up thousands of dollars in future earnings and many other kinds of job satisfactions.

The Labor Department discovered that in the past, one third of all American students have dropped out of high school before graduation. The purpose of the study was to learn what became of these drop-outs, and to compare the drop-outs' job experience, as time went on, with what happened to students who finished high school.

What happens to the drop-outs? They have the highest rate of unemployment. When they do work, they get the "less skilled" jobs, the ones that pay less and have little opportunity for advancement. The actual figures and findings are, of course, too extensive to be quoted completely here. But other parts of the survey contain even more serious warnings.

Difficult as the job situation is today for young people, the survey points out that it is bound to be more and more difficult for the high school drop-out to compete in the future. It listed these reasons:

(1) The high birthrates of the 1940s and 1950s will increase the high school age group from 14 million in 1958, to well over 22 million in 1970. In other words, only nine years from now there will be nearly twice as much competition as there is now, even for high school graduates.

(2) The increasing use of complicated machinery will mean that employers will be forced to use only skilled workers and will train only those young people who have proved their ability to finish their training.

(3) The greater use of machines in industry will threaten this country with at least temporary unemployment from time to time, even for those who have already been working for years. This unemployment will continue until new ways can be found to employ people who are replaced by machines. This means that young people of the future will have to compete not only among themselves, but also with experienced men and women who are bound to be laid off temporarily until this new problem is solved by our government.

Don't Get Upset And They Will Quit Kidding You

By BESSIE LITTLE

DEAR BESSIE: I am 14 and whenever I hear rock 'n roll music I just have to dance. My problem is that my parents are always in the house somewhere and if I dance by myself they laugh at me and embarrass me by telling people right in front of me about my "feeble attempts to dance."

My friends say I'm a good dancer and I never have to sit out a dance at school dances. I can't have my television set, so what can I do to keep them from embarrassing me? They just aren't the kind to have a long talk with. —DANCING FEET

DEAR DANCING FEET: To keep them from embarrassing you, you'll have to start with yourself. If you can't be upset by their kidding, they won't upset you. Could it be that you lack a sense of humor? At your age, you shouldn't permit some kidding to get the best of you. It is as certain as can be that if you don't get riled up over their remarks, they will come much less frequently. And, I'm sure that if you really have an important problem, you'll find your parents just the kind with whom you can have a long talk.

* * *

DEAR BESSIE: I am 16 years old. Last March I met a boy who is 17 years old. I went steady with him for six months. He went into the Army and we seemed to drift apart. Finally we broke up. He is now overseas. I am going steady with another boy. I received a letter from the boy in the Army and he said he wants me back, that he loves me. Should I break up with the boy I'm going steady with and wait two years for the boy who is in the Army or am I too young to be tied down?—CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Whether you are too young to be tied down is something only you can answer. But, you really aren't faced with an "either. or" situation. If you like the boy in the Army, which your letter seems to indicate, keep up a steady correspondence with him. Explain to him that you feel you want to go on dates, and when he gets out of the Army you can then see how both of you feel about each other. I'm sure your letters (and your honesty) will mean much to him. Naturally, your present steady should be told about this too. That way you'll be fair to the Army boy, your current date and to yourself.

DEAR BESSIE: I'm very lovesick. There is a girl in the other class whom I like very much. I would like to meet her, but there is one complication. She acts too superior to everyone. I would like to meet her; what should I do?—L. B.

DEAR L. B.: Very often that "too superior" look is just a cover up for a shy person. The chances are that this girl really would welcome the opportunity to meet you. There are several ways. You can have someone who knows both of you introduce you. Or, the next time there is a school affair you might introduce yourself and ask her to go with you. You can also ask her to a party or affair outside of school. The worst she can say is "no" and your chances that she will say "yes" are much better than you think.

* * *

DEAR BESSIE: I have two problems. First, how can you tell if a boy likes you? I like a boy in my school class. I think he likes me, but I can't be sure.

Also, when you dance with a boy what should you talk about? When I dance with this boy I ask him a question and he answers it, but that's all he will say. I try hard to ask questions that require long answers but as soon as he answers, that is it. —BOY CRAZY

DEAR BOY CRAZY: If your boy didn't like you, I'm sure you would know. If he acts warm and friendly and appears to enjoy being with you, you can be sure he likes you. If he didn't want to be with you it would be the easiest thing in the world for you to tell. Maybe what you really want to know is how much he likes you and only he can show you and tell you that.

As for dancing conversation: First, remember that it is not necessary for a couple to keep up a steady flow of conversation. The sound of silence can be beautiful! You seem to have tried the sure-fire ways. It may just be that your boy is the strong, silent type—not given to much talking. Try getting to know something about his hobby, favorite sport or special interest. Maybe with this you can draw him out. But, don't be afraid of a few silent moments.

Here Are Some Facts About Teen Marriages

By DAN HARDING

That there is an uner twenty marriage-go-round is a matter of record. It is also a matter of grave concern to many—adults and young people alike. Just what is the picture today?

The average age for marriages has, since the World War II, been dropping rapidly. The big reason for this drop is the much higher rate of marriages involving teenagers. Today the median age for marriage of women is 20.1 years. This compares with 22.6 about twenty-five years ago. The peak age for marriage (that is, the largest number of marriages) involves girls 18 years of age. Next come 19 and 17 respectively. In fact, one out of three marriages involves a girl under twenty saying, "I do."

The one out of three figure applies in another important area. One out of three first-born children in the country is born to a teen-aged mother!

How well prepared are these young couples to make a full, happy and interesting life together? Many surveys are being done on this subject today, and it should be a fertile area to explore. One interesting fact has emerged. The incidence of divorce among under twenty marriages is, alas, as high as in the older groups.

What sort of preparation should young couples have for marriage? Some leading authorities in the field are suggesting that high schools give courses in family living and that stress be placed more heavily on the economic aspects of married life. Often courses of this type emphasize the social implications, ignoring some of the basic problems young people face in early married life.

It would seem that with the increase in young marriages, more planning, thinking and doing is required than has been expended to date. Playing ostrich in this most important area may well be the road to national disaster.

TAKES MATURITY

Like all marriages, under twenty marriages can work out if the couples involved are not immature and are ready to act like men and women. Along with sexual maturity, this means being adult in thought and action—especially in willingness to understand the other person.

It sounds like a big order and is—even for adults. But, choosing a mate is a forever choice (or should be) and the time spent in an honest appraisal before marriage can save heartaches later.

To be emotionally involved, to have dreams of a home of one's own, is a very real goal. But, with it go heavy responsibilities. For the girl, there is cooking, cleaning, handling family finances, planning entertainment, and scores of other day to day chores. For the man it takes hard work to run a house and much more than love and good intentions to support a family.

In talking to under twenty marrieds, the single most important tip they have is not to be afraid to talk over problems—the trivial as well as the big ones—with your mate. Work together as a team and have definite goals to work towards. A real big booster, they tell us, is not to lose your sense of humor. That is pretty sound advice at any age.

Oh yes, one more thing they tell us—often quite wistfully—is, try to wait. It's easier with a few years of work and living behind you.

'Exodus' Is Still Tops

By JEANNE HARRISON

The theme from "Exodus" with the twin piano recording of Ferrante and Teicher remained in first place in the nation's top ten records last week. Meanwhile, Pat Boone's vocal rendition of the theme, "This Land Is Mine" began to gain popularity and momentum after a very short period of release. Pushing the number one record closely is "Will You Love Me Tomorrow," by the Shirelles.

Lawrence Welk's "Calcutta," moved up from fourth to the number three spot. Also moving well was Neil Sedaka's "Calendar Girl" which jumped from eighth place two weeks ago to the number five spot last week. Here's the lineup of the top ten:

1. "Exodus," Ferrante and Teicher
2. "Will You Love Me Tomorrow," Shirelles
3. "Calcutta," Lawrence Welk
4. "Wonderland by Night," Bert Kaemfort
5. "Calendar Girl," Neil Sedaka
6. "Rubber Ball," Bobby Vee
7. "Angel Baby," Rosie
8. "Are You Lonesome Tonight," Elvis Presley
9. "Shop Around," Miracles
10. "Corinna, Corinna," Ray Peterson

Two unusual albums are among the new releases this week. If you are a jazz bug and want to hear something unique, lend an ear to "United Nations" with Toshiko and her International Sextet. The talented Japanese pianist has joined six of the world's greatest jazz musicians in a swinging jazz album, which shows you how deeply American jazz has penetrated the world of music.

The last year has seen a tremendous rise in popularity of the themes of motion pictures. "Box-Office Blockbusters" played by David Rose and his orchestra brings together some of the best themes of recent origin in an album well worth hearing. Included are excellent renditions of themes from "Ben - Hur," "Exodus," "Gigi," "Cimarron," "The Alamo," and several others.

Can You Pass The Grooming Test?

By CHRIS RILEY

You're the picture of loveliness—in your bathroom mirror. All you can see is an area of about a square foot and it looks just fine and dandy. But watch out, other parts of you are showing. The eyes of other people take in more of you than one square foot. Whether they do it consciously or not, they're giving you an "All of You" test.

Would you have passed it the last time you made a public appearance? Think back, look over the nine questions that follow to see if all of you would have been given an okay by the guys or gals you were with.

1. Did the back of your head look as neat as the front? Did you take a hand mirror to make sure?
2. Were the sides of your face and your ears scrubbed as spanking clean as your cheeks? Was there an all too obvious boundary line where your makeup stopped and your skin began?
3. Were your gloves spotless and when you removed them, did you have clean, nicely shaped fingernails?
4. Was your outfit ironed so carefully that not a wrinkle showed—not even in back where you sit down?
5. Did you check in a full-length mirror that your stocking seams were straight?
7. Did your shoes shine with a bright polish and did you check to see that the heels weren't run down?
8. If you had to take a comb or brush from your bag, did you make sure beforehand that old hairs from bygone days weren't dangling from it?
9. If you had to remove a compact and lipstick from your bag, did you make sure beforehand that the compact mirror wasn't dusty with powder and that some of the lipstick hadn't managed to make an unsightly mess on the lipstick case?

The only passing score for this "All of You" test is 100 per cent. If you goofed even one item, you didn't make the grade because all it takes is one touch of carelessness to destroy the entire image you wanted to create.

Next time, before you leave the house, whether it's to go on a date or to school or whatever, take an "All of You" test—with the nine questions listed here—and make sure you pass with a perfect score.

PAULA PRENTISS

Paula Prentiss Takes Her Acting Career Seriously

By JOHN LARSON

In her movie debut, 22-year-old Paula Prentiss plays a college cutie with a very one-track mind. All she wants in the world is to get married and have children. Her college buddies in MGM's "Where the Boys Are" have pretty much the same ambition. When spring vacation comes, they leave their books and their snow-covered northern campus and head for Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to find boys, romance and possibly marriage.

The plot might have fallen flat if it weren't for the pleasing collection of young talent in the movie. Dolores Hart, Connie Francis, Jim Hutton and George Hamilton have terrific personalities and enthusiasm. Yvette Mimieux is pretty to look at. But newcomer Paula Prentiss is the standout with her fine sense of comedy and her girl-next-door, tall, brown-haired prettiness.

The picture has been criticized because it very often makes light of a very serious situation: How far should a girl go in order to get a guy? The answer that eventually emerges is that good girls get their guys eventually and bad girls get nothing but trouble and heartbreak when the party is over. A very moral message, but what may seem demoralizing for moviegoers is that the good girls in the film think they have a strike against them.

Dolores Hart, in trying to win George Hamilton's heart, plays a mysterous game that boils down to leading the boy on. Will she or won't she? George can't seem to figure it out, and by the time he finally realizes she's straight, George is hopelessly hooked.

ASHAMED TO BE GOOD

Paula Prentiss is more honest in her approach, but a little ashamed of it. The boy, she's fallen for asks, "Are you a good girl?" Paula answers with a face that spells inevitable doom: "I don't want to disillusion you." He hopefully insists, "I won't be disillusioned. Say anything." With downcast eyes she says, "Yes, I am"—and is sure that the romance is over. For a while it is.

When you take away the technicolor, the pretty and the handsome faces, and the gags, you're left with a rather depressing picture of the college girl. But it's true that that's what life is to some girls. We recognize the girl Paula Prentiss plays and we feel sympathy for her. She's a very real person.

What does Paula herself think about the girl she portrays? When I interviewed her last week, I soon saw Paula was a striking contradiction of her celluloid counterpart. She is serious, intense, intellectual—anything but boy crazy. She makes the girls in the film look pretty shallow and silly by comparison. But she doesn't look down her nose at them at all. "The picture covers one phase of college life, a frothy side," she says, "and in that I think it succeeds."

As a college girl herself at Northwestern U, her own interests were much broader. A question that concerned her much more than her Saturday night date might be was, "Is the system of sororities fair? Do you have to be a bona fide member of a certain group of girls to feel you really belong to college life? Doesn't more harm than good result from the pledging system?" The conclusion she came to was that she couldn't accept th standards of the campus sororities, and she wouldn't. As she says, "I rebelled."

Her interest in acting, which is now a dedication, began while she was in college. "I didn't think much of myself in the looks line," she reveals. (She is actually a kind of offbeat beauty but felt her height, 5 feet nine inches, was a big drawback.) "So I decided to develop other things. I went in for dancing and painting at first, as a means to express myself. Then I began to feel acting was a way to express myself much more, as a whole human being."

SERIOUS ACTRESS

She became a student of very serious drama, is most proud of having played Queen Margaret in Shakespeare's "Richard III." She was discovered by an MGM talent scout in a Northwestern U production of "Hatful of Rain." After reading the script for "Where the Boys Are," she was afraid she might not be able to do it. The one thing she felt she had no talent for was comedy. (This admission is a startling one to anyone who has seen the film.) But within four days of her screen test, she was signed for the picture and to an MGM contract.

What does she think of it all? Her head is swimming, but the glamour of Hollywood hasn't swerved her from her main ambition. She wants to play "Medea" some day. Boys? Sure, they're fun, but if they want Paula Prentiss, they'll have to wait.

Are Today's Funnymen Really Funny—Or Sick?

By BOBBIE CARROLL

"Would you like coffee, tea or milk?" asks the stewardess with a smile—while the wing of a plane is burning up.

This well-known bit from a Shelley Berman routine is almost a mild example of the "sick" joke. Shelley Berman dropped it from his night club act recently after there had been so many plane disasters. Even some of the comedians labeled as "sick" comics will draw the line somewhere.

IS IT FUNNY?

But the sinister laughmaker with the sickest reputation of them all, Lenny Bruce, gets some stiff competition from the non-professionals in the field of sick humor. A nauseating "joke" now making the rounds outside the entertainment field is: "Have you heard of the Helen Keller doll? You wind it up and it walks into walls."

Funny? Certainly not to anyone who is concerned about deaf and dumb children. But is this sort of joke funny to people in general, or, more specifically, to teenagers?

Most of our top new comedians have begun to resent being called "sick," but they still let that particular grotesque humor creep into their routines. It's as if they feel their audiences will be disappointed without it.

INTELLECTUAL HUMOR

Another trend at the moment is a sophisticated, intellectual humor represented by such people as Mort Sahl, and Mike Nichols and Elaine May. Unfortunately, their talents are usually confined to night club floors and occasional television appearances. One out of every two teen-agers may well wonder who they are.

That the new crop of comedians isn't offering the teen-ager much entertainment is shown by the fact that the majority of teens will say that Jerry Lewis is their favorite funnyman. They prove it at the box office, have helped him earn the reputation as the biggest money-making comedian in the world. But Jerry Lewis came along over ten years ago. Why hasn't anyone else since then been able to make young people laugh so hard?

A possible answer might be that most of the new comedians get their start in night clubs these days. That might result in their humor being over the heads of most teen-agers. Another possibility might be that teens prefer old-fashioned slapstick to sick, or sophisticated humor.

Bands Show Progress In Mid-Winter Concert

Big Spring citizens received further proof Friday evening of the progress of the school music program.

Playing in City Auditorium, the three public school bands presented a varied and well-balanced concert and drew three good rounds of applause.

Participating were the Big Spring Senior High School Band under Doug Wiehe, and Runnels Junior High School Band under Joe Burchfiel, and the Goliad Junior High School Band directed by Bill Jones.

Of course, there were two different levels of competence, seeing that junior high school students have the disadvantage of extreme youth; the youngsters, however, displayed good talent at their own levels.

BANDS IMPROVED

If anything, the bands seem to be improved over last year.

The tone was pleasing and well balanced, and the volume was held at correct levels without competition between instrument sections. Response to direction was ready and willing if not always on the mark.

Rhythm was unusually good on the part of the junior ensembles, and varied from good to fair with the senior band.

Many of those in the audience who didn't already know got an education in the value of a strong bass section. The Runnels group had but one tuba horn holding up the background, while the Goliad band had four. Although Burchfiel's students made up for their handicap, when the Goliad musicians under Jones followed onstage, the difference was unmistakable even to the musically uninclined.

DIFFICULT PIECE

Wiehe's senior musicians introduced a highly difficult new composition by Peter Mennin, titled "Canzona," a piece in the dramatic classical fashion with deft touches of modern interpretations. But they showed their true talents in an orchestrated arrangement of what started out in days of yore as a simple popular song, almost a ditty.

As played by the senior band, "The Peanut Vendor" was a Latin beat with jazz overtones, but traditional enough to please the purists. The band's technique has been well mastered for the high school level, as this rendition indicated, for the Latin and jazz mediums are the most difficult of all, particularly when subtly interwoven into an otherwise orthodox arrangement.

PROGRAM LISTED

The Runnels program included "Symbol of Honor" march, "King John" tone poem, "Melody of Peace," and "Cathedral Canyon" overture.

Goliad's concert included "Love's Dream After the Ball" march and paraphrase, "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows," an especially pleasing rendition, "La Cumparsita" tango, and "Elmira" concert march.

A rousing march, the "British Eighth," led off the senior band's schedule, followed by selections from the popular Broadway musical, "Flower Drum Song." "Canzona" and "The Peanut Vendor," already mentioned above, came next and the program closed with "Bravura" march, also done in the rousing tradition.

FIRST EVENT

The concert was the first such event given in mid-winter, the traditional date being sometime in the spring toward the end of the school year. It is obvious the musicians would not be so well trained at this time as later, yet they gave a good account of themselves. Perhaps the greatest criticism that could be leveled was that the program was too short.

The program was sponsored by the Big Spring Independent School District and the Band Boosters Club.

Proceeds went into the Boosters fund to help finance a trip to the Mardi Gras for the senior band. Officials had hoped the necessary fund would be raised by Friday night's concert, a goal which was almost realized. A cake sale which began Saturday put the fund over the mark.

The trip will be Feb. 11-15, and the Big Spring students will march during two of the gigantic and colorful parades which keep New Orleans busy during Mardi Gras season. Stopovers will be made in Baton Rouge for a tour of the Louisiana Capitol, and in Dallas for the All-State Band, Chorus and Orchestra.

Wayne Griffith and Edward Loveless won berths this year in the All-State Band.

Cattle Roundup

For scenes which find cattle pouring through the streets of Blue Springs, Arizona in "One Foot in Hell," Producer Sydney Boehm had 300 head of cattle imported from Mexico to the studio back lot. By mid-morning, with everything set, the braying longhorns were turned loose. The scene went fine, but the rest of the studio was turned upside down as the herd broke loose and milled all over the lot.

Heaven Or Hell?

Despite the fact that the picture is called "One Foot in Hell," Dolores Michaels feminine star is inclined to call it "Heaven." She said during the filming: "I'm the only girl in a cast of 14 men and that's one foot in heaven or I don't know heaven."

52 Bikinis

Lynne Cole, dark haired beauty cast in "The Captain's Table," is the owner of no less than 52 bikinis. Though many cynics would not see the need of a scanty suit for every week in the year, Lynne says, "I go abroad a lot so I can wear them all the year round." She claims to prefer vivid colors in her beach wardrobe, but her favorite bikini is mink.

Shane?

It was really double take time on the set of "One Foot in Hell," starring Alan Ladd. Down the studio street echoed the words: "Shane, where are you Shane?" The riddle was solved when Shane appeared . . . dialogue coach Carl Shane, that is.

ROLAND DRAYER

Roland Drayer Band Due At Country Club

The President's Ball at the Big Spring Country Club Wednesday evening will feature the Roland Drayer Orchestra, along with the Kurtis Marionettes.

Drayer is billed as "the man with the golden voice," and got his start on the West Coast, branching out from there to the hotel circuit. Lately, he's been concentrating on high class private and country clubs throughout the Southwest.

In addition, Drayer and his ensemble have toured Greenland and Newfoundland U. S. Air Force clubs.

A featured artist with Drayer is Karl Clifford, a trumpet expert whose bill of fare includes the playing of three horns at once.

The Kurtis Marionettes have been seen on television, including the Ed Sullivan and Jimmy Durante shows, and are well known in and around Las Vegas hotels and clubs.

The Kurtis Brothers' act features a raft of "little people" with the actors providing both voices and string-pulling.

Alley Returns As Conductor

The San Angelo's Symphony's musical fortune wheel turns full circle Monday when Edward Alley mounts the Municipal Auditorium podium to serve as guest conductor.

Alley was a member of the symphony's percussion section at the organization's first concert. Now, in the 12th season, the symphony and its conductor, Dr. Eric Sorantin, welcome Alley back—as a successful conductor in his own right.

Alley will be conducting for his former mentor as the Australian-born musician performs as violin soloist.

Alley, now associate conductor of the Boris Goldovsky New England Opera Company, will be honored with his own "day" too—so proclaimed as Edward Alley Day by San Angelo mayor Paul Hudman.

A 1952 graduate of San Angelo High School, Alley continued his education at San Angelo College and later at North Texas State College in Denton, where he received both the bachelor's and master's degrees in music.

Whiffenpoofs

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A group of foresters from other countries, in a visit to the Yale University campus, went to Mory's, the eating club renowned in the Whiffenpoof Song. They wanted to hear the song, but few spoke English. All spoke French, so each was given a copy of the song in that language.

Outdoor Western

Columbia Pictures' new Randolph Scott vehicle, "Comanche Station," at the Jet Theatre Thursday, is truly an outdoor Western. There is not a single interior scene in the entire production. It was filmed in its entirety outdoors at Lone Pine, Calif.

Star Policy

Yvonne Buckingham, British starlet, is never one to let a "gimmick" grow under her feet. The startling red-head, cast in "The Captain's Table," has taken out a policy with Lloyds of London which will give her 4,000 pounds if she does not become a star in five years.

ON THE SHELF

PAUL CAMBON, by Keith Eubank, University of Oklahoma Press. $4.

Keith Eubank, a professor of history at North Texas State College, Denton, is the author of this biography of Paul Cambon, a French diplomat who held the French-British alliance together in the chaotic days before World War I.

It is particularly refreshing to find a Texas college professor escaping from the regionalism which too often fetters them. It is difficult to determine whether the book is a history of the maneuverings which led up to World War I or a biography of Cambon, so closely was the diplomat's life involved in keeping France and England together. Either way, the story is absorbing.

Cambon was a youth when Germany crushed France in 1870, and the defeat, Cambon believed, came because France had no friends. He entered the diplomatic service to devote his life to tying other countries to France. How well he performed was demonstrated when England entered World War I on the side of France almost immediately.

The book also is a revelation of the unspoken considerations necessary in welding alliances and keeping them stuck.

Some of the incidents could have been dramatized to a greater extent, but that is not necessarily the function of a historian. But the writing is fast-paced, readable for the non-historian.—REF.

FREDERIC REMINGTON'S OWN WEST. Written and illustrated by Frederic Remington, edited and with an introduction by Harold McCracken. Dial. $7.50.

The Remington's work that everybody knows — the boldly drawn and colored pictures still reprinted by those who try to recapture the real flavor of the Old West—is joined in this 254-page volume with that which most people don't realize ever existed.

For Remington, described by McCracken as "among the last of the important documentarians to see the Old West pass into the limbo of an era gone but not forgotten," was a writer of distinction as well as a self taught artist.

The writings selected by McCracken, who is director of the Whitney Gallery of Western Art in Cody, Wyo., seem like fresh air in a room where the atmosphere has been re-breathed too many times. Some of the pieces are fact, some fiction, and without labels it's hard to tell them apart.

But all that I have read are rewarding and the black and white drawings, many of them just vignettes (there is only one color plate) make the pages come alive.

Captain's Table

Peggy Cummins and John Gregson are seen in a scene from "The Captain's Table," British comedy beginning today at the State Theatre. Advance reports indicate it's a sort of bedroom comedy which takes place on the high seas.

She Mixes Poetry With Pots, Pans

DALLAS (AP) — A woman who calls herself the Grandma Moses of poetry contends that poetry, pots and pans do mix.

She is Mrs. E. E. Burton, a homemaker with a flair for rhyme who lives in Irving, a Dallas suburb.

Mrs. Burton says she finds poetic inspiration in home and family.

For instance:

I love it my my kitchen
Among my pots and pans,
For I feel so close to God here
While working with my hands.

"I might be inspired while washing dishes if I happen to see a bird from the kitchen window," she said. "New words fascinate me and I can't wait to use them."

When her three children were small, Mrs. Burton used her talent in writing lullabyes and later in composing daily meal blessings for them.

She recalls the one used for Sundays:

On Sunday, Lord,
When the week is new
Our table prayers
Are pleas to You
That through the week
We may engage
In keeping clean
This bright new page.

"You can almost see my children growing up by reading my collection of poems," she said.

Two sons, Jimmy, 20, and Charles, 18, are in service overseas. Sherry, 17, is in high school.

Although the boys are away, they still enjoy the fruits of their mother's labors as cook and poet.

For the mail they receive from home contains, in addition to cakes and cookies, thick letters written in verse.

"I just find it easier to write in poetry form than prose," she explains.

Her cooking has changed somewhat since her sons went into service.

"I used to bake every day but my daughter is calorie conscious and now I just bake on special occasions and sometimes on the weekend."

When interviewed, she was baking "scripture cakes" for gift baskets to be given by her church. Scripture cakes, she explains, are those made from ingredients mentioned in the Bible.

Quick On The Draw

Barry Coe, who plays the first "heavy" of his career in "One Foot in Hell" made life around the 20th-Fox studio extremely hazardous for a while. Coe practised for days on his "fast draw" so as to outdo Alan Ladd in the picture. Aside from the picture he claims to be able to hit a dropped grapefruit before it touches the ground.

'River Kwai' Notable Takes Pirate Role In Disney Film

An ordained Zen Buddhist priest for more than 30 years, Sessue Hayakawa predicts that Walt Disney's fabulous $5,000,000 Panavision-Technicolor feature, "Swiss Family Robinson," will be a resounding boxoffice success.

Island Race

Third son of the governor of Chiba, a Japanese state, Hayakawa turned to Zen Buddhism to find peace when illness stopped his studies at the Kaijo Naval College. Traditionally, the third son of his family is destined to become an admiral in the Japanese Navy.

He was ordained in 1929 and, although a highly successful actor and business man for decades, has continued to pursue Zen Buddhism as a civil rather than a clerical priest, devoting at least two hours daily to the "problems" his religious calling requires him to solve.

Zen Buddhists believe in the need and their ability to predict the future as a part of their endless search for a true understanding of life's meaning.

"You must work out at least 200 problems before you can become a priest," Hayakawa explains. "So far, I have solved 600 in 40 years of daily meditation and study. I hope to add 'Swiss Family Robinson' to my successes. I am sure I will."

Sessue, who at one time was a silent screen star ranking with John Barrymore and Douglas Fairbanks in boxoffice standing, plays a pirate chief in the new Disney picture. He will be remembered for his memorable performance as the stern Japanese prison commander in "Bridge on the River Kwai." Although in his new role he is permitted more latitude in character, being at one time fierce, and at another fiercely comical.

The picture stars John Mills, Dorothy McGuire, James MacArthur and Janet Munro, and co-stars Hayakawa, Tommy Kirk, Kevin Corcoran and Cecil Parker. Bill Anderson produces for Disney. Ken Annakin directed the Lowell S. Hawley screenplay. Buena Vista releases.

The signs of the Zodiac are the subjects of a new set of 13 stamps issued by Israel.

Each of the first 12 stamps will show a different sign. The 13th and highest value will combine the signs and symbols of the 12 constellations comprising the Zodiac. The values are: 1 agorot, 2 ag., 6 ag., 7 ag., 8 ag., 10 ag., 12 ag., 18 ag., 20 ag., 25 ag., 32 ag., 50 ag. and one pound.

First day covers bearing the set of 13 stamps will be available in complete sets only—the lowest six values on one envelope, the next six higher values on a second envelope and the 13th on a separate envelope.

Collectors will be able to purchase these stamps and first day covers from their local stamp dealer, reports the Israel Philatelic Agency in America.

Nationalist China will issue on Feb. 4 (Farmer's Day in that country) three new stamps honoring the "Census of Agriculture." The design features a farmer and his tractor to indicate rural progress in mechanization. The Census of Agriculture emblem appears in the upper right corner.

First day cover collectors desiring service on the first United Nations commemorative stamp of 1961 (International Court of Justice) on Feb. 13 are reminded that first day service is given only at U.N. Headquarters in New York. Envelopes should be sent to the U.N. Postal Administration, United Nations, N. Y. prior to the date of issuance together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed. There are two stamps in the set, 4 cents and 8 cents.

Ecuador will issue a new green and blue stamp to commemorate the participation of Ecuador in the First Philatelic Congress in Barcelona, Spain. The stamp will illustrate the oldest church of Ecuador—El Belen in Quito. It was founded by Sebastian de Benalcazar over the ruins of Quito immediately after the Spanish conquest of that country.

Greece has issued a 2.50 drachmas commemorative stamp honoring the victory of Crown Prince Constantine and his crew at the 1960 Olympic Games in Rome. The Crown Prince won a gold medal in the Dragon class yacht racing. Greece previously issued an Olympic set of 11 values but this, of course, was prior to the yachting victory.

Globe Theatre Grant Announced

Fine arts in Odessa received a boost last week with a grant of $30,000 from Houston Endowment, Inc. of Houston for the Shakespearean Globe Theatre on the Odessa College Campus.

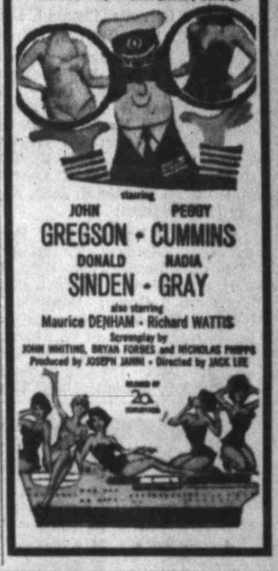

Some $60,000 is needed to complete the project, and an immediate fund drive to raise $30,000 to match the Houston Endowment grant is planned.

More Adoptions Are Filed Here

More petitions to adopt children were filed in the 118th District Court in January than in any month in more than two years, Wade Choate, district court clerk, said Thursday.

There were eight petitions for adoptions filed during the month compared with two for December and an average of three to five for the more active months for the past two years.

Only one adoption was granted during January.

January also scored a record for the number of criminal cases filed. There were 41 indictments returned by the grand jury which met last month—the largest number of true bills to be returned by a grand jury in more than two years. Most of the cases were for the more common felonies. There were few major crimes or sensational cases on the list. Of the 41 defendants who were named, 19 have asked that attorneys be appointed by the court to represent them before the court.

Divorce suits were 10 greater this past month than in December—29-19. The same number of divorces were disposed of in each month—21. One annulment was filed.

There were four fewer civil cases filed in January than in December. The number last month was 16. The court disposed of 18 civil suits during the month, the same as in December.

Only two new child support cases were added to Choate's books in January—less than the average month and five under the December total. There were 13 applications for passports in January compared with nine in December.

Building Permits Take Big Step

Building permits issued during the first three days of February total almost half of the amount of last February's permits. Through Friday the amount was $72,800 as against $148,340 for Feb. 1960.

Five new residences will be built by E. C. Smith Construction Co. at $9,000, making $45,000 for all five residences will get new roofs on Nolan at $250 each.

Largest building in the list is a new residence by Robert A. Heinze, at 502 Highland Drive, for $26,000.

With 20 days left in February during which permits may be taken out, the 1961 total may well exceed last year's second month total.

Dr. W. W. Baxley Dies In Houston

Funeral for Dr. Warren Willian Baxley, about 40, will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. in Stephenville.

Dr. Baxley, who was reared in Big Spring, died Thursday night in Houston as an aftermath to heart surgery.

He had been serving as librarian at Midwest University in Wichita Falls and prior to that as librarian at Sul Ross College in Alpine.

Dr. Baxley was the son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles D. Baxley. His father, who preceded him in death, was a dentist here for a number of years. The only immediate survivor is his mother.

Final Notices Out For Lease Payment

Final notices have been mailed to less than a dozen lease holders at Lake J. B. Thomas who have not paid their annual lakesite rentals to the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Unless the rentals are received promply, the district will be obliged to cancel the leases and to make the lots available to others that want them, said E. V. Spence, general manager.

Fire Losses Show Decrease

Fire losses in Big Spring in January ran under the losses for the same month in 1960. Three deaths resulted from one fire in January of this year however. There were 11 fewer calls answered this year.

Total loss for the month was $3,126.53, as compared to $4,421.75 last January. Building loss was $2,211.53, and content loss was $915.

The heaviest loss to building and contents was on Jan. 4, at the rear of 1605 Lancaster where the estimated total, including all content losses for January, was $2,918.94. The three deaths counted were the small children of Lottie B. Williams, 504 N. Bell, Jimmy, age one month, Margaret, 1, and David, 2, when the house caught fire while the children were unattended.
