

Carter details oil profits tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's proposed "windfall profits tax" will net the federal government only about $2 billion of the more than $15 billion oil producers are expected to get during the next three years under the president's oil price decontrol plan, presidential advisers said Thursday.

Details of the oil profits tax, including previously undisclosed figures on exemptions, were revealed at a White House briefing after Carter sent the proposal to Congress.

Before details of his plan were made public, Carter said the tax "is the only thing that stands between the oil companies and a huge bonanza of unearned, unnecessary and unjustified profits."

The administration has described the windfall tax as a 50 percent tax on excess oil company profits, indicating the government would collect half the profit resulting from Carter's decontrol of oil prices.

But White House officials made clear Thursday that a substantial portion of decontrolled oil, such as oil flowing through the Alaska pipeline, will not be subject to the "windfall" tax.

Also made clear was that oil companies will be able to deduct the proposed "windfall" tax from their regular federal income taxes.

White House domestic policy adviser Stuart Eizenstat said oil companies are expected to reap in gross revenue about $15.4 billion over the next three years "directly from decontrol."

Because so much oil will not be taxed, however, the 50 percent "windfall" tax actually will take in only $3.3 billion for the government. Since the windfall tax would be deductible from federal income taxes, this would reduce by more than $1.2 billion the amount of federal income tax paid by the oil companies over the first three years, according to Treasury Department figures.

Thus, the "windfall" tax would net only about $2 billion more from the oil companies than they would have had to pay under existing tax laws, according to the Treasury Department.

"We think it's the right balance," Eizenstat said.

In addition to the $3.3 billion windfall profits tax, the oil companies would pay $5.1 billion in regular federal income taxes and $1 billion in state taxes, thus leaving $6 billion in net additional income for the oil companies out of the $15.4 billion total over the three years, Eizenstat said.

He said oil exempted from windfall taxation includes that from relatively small wells, from worn-out wells that can be recovered only through expensive recovery techniques and from oil flowing through the Alaska pipeline.

In sending his proposed tax to Congress, Carter challenged the lawmakers to prove to "a sometimes-doubtful public" that it can resist powerful special-interest lobbying. Carter declared:

"If the oil companies cannot defeat these proposals outright, they will try to gut them so they will have no meaning."

Carter met earlier in the day with key Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee and agreed on a legislative strategy for handling the tax proposals.

Tax break unlikely for tornado victims

By JIM WEBER
Staff Writer

Wichita County taxpayers may expect little, if any immediate tax relief on property destroyed by the April 10 tornado, and officials said they have no idea how much of the county's tax base was destroyed.

A bill introduced by State Sen. Ray Farabee, however, was unanimously passed Tuesday giving disaster victims a 90-day extension for filing or paying state taxes.

Deputy Tax Assessor-Collector Otto Havens said Thursday that unless his office hears differently, "All we can do is take their (persons who had property damaged or destroyed) names and temporary addresses."

"We won't have (the amount of tax base loss) until next year when we send our appraisers out," Havens said.

"We will continue to take homestead and veteran's exemptions as long as possible until the tax rolls have to be printed," he said.

"The same tax laws apply to the county as to the city," Havens said, referring to collection of taxes assessed by the city and Wichita Falls Independent School District. Wichita County assesses and collects state taxes and city tax office handles city and school district taxes.

The Texas constitution requires that taxes be paid on property that existed on Jan. 1 of each year.

School Superintendent Dr. Lee Williamson said he is worried that many tornado victims will be unable or unwilling to pay taxes on property that was destroyed.

"I don't see how people are going to pay (taxes). I feel we are going to have a high rate of delinquencies," Williamson said.

Although insurance will cover the $10 to $13 million in damage to school property, Williamson said he knows of no any federal or state program that could help the district cover its operating budget. As a result, Williamson and State Sen. Ray Farabee have drafted legislation providing emergency state aid for school districts that suffer substantial losses in tax base from disasters. The measure would limit the emergency aid to five years and would make up 100 percent of the tax loss the first year.

Still, Havens and Williamson said, there appears no relief for persons owing or having paid taxes already on damaged or destroyed property, and the state legislature or the school district has no means of discounting what is owed in taxes.

Havens and Wichita Falls Tax Assessor-Collector David Combs agree there seems no way to figure the potential tax loss.

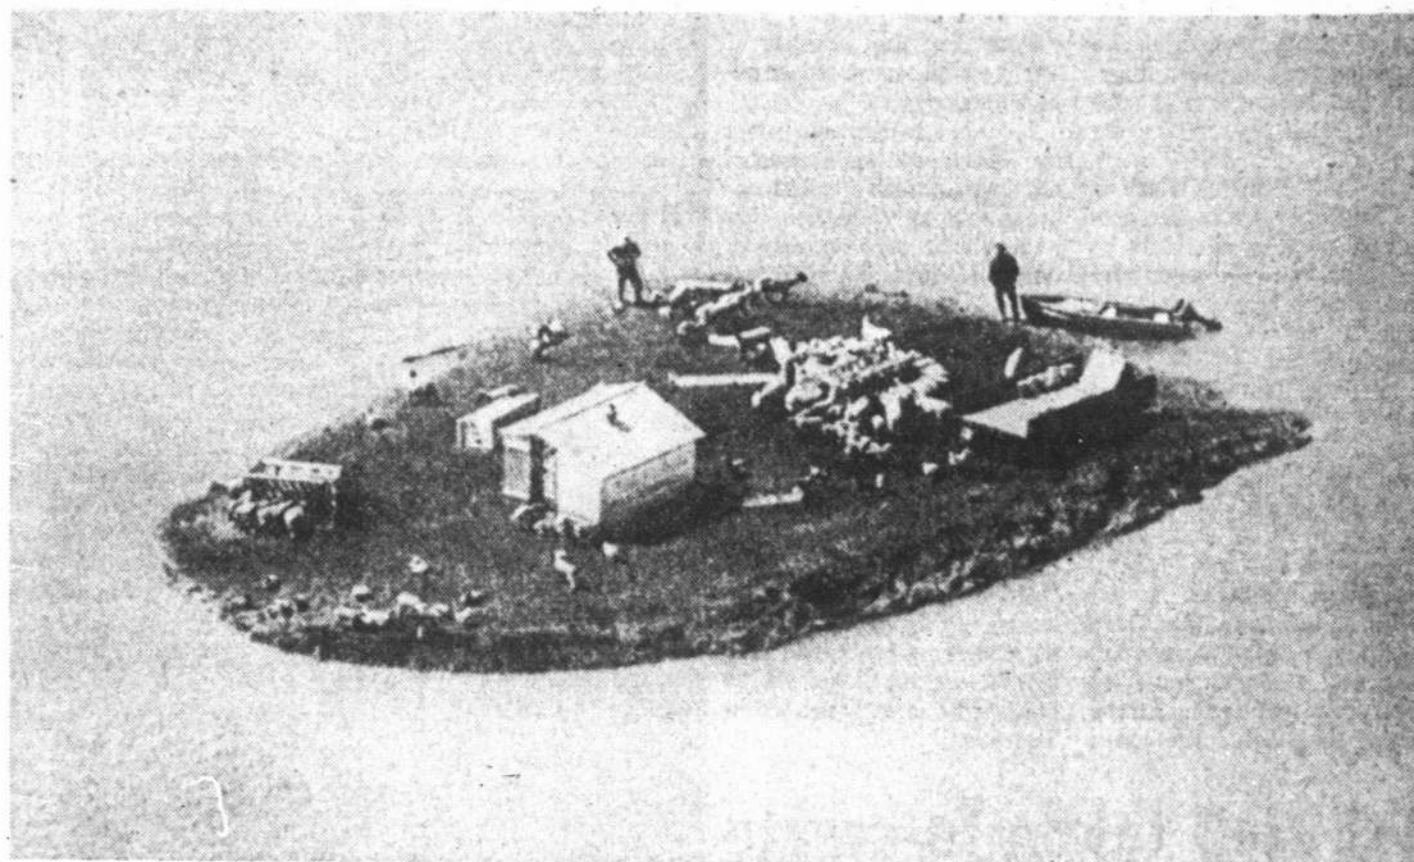

Combs said the city doesn't have any worries about capital losses. "But our budget is based on tax rolls. If that income doesn't come in, we don't meet the payroll or get our bills paid or we borrow money to operate on."

FDAA aid center to close Saturday

The Federal Disaster Assistance Administration center at the 4-H Center will be open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. through Saturday, when it will close permanently.

The center at Washington School will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and will remain open indefinitely.

The Notre Dame school center closed Thursday, according to FDAA officials.

River continues siege on two states

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

The swollen Red River flooded parts of Minnesota, North Dakota and Canada with new misery Thursday, prompting an order that thousands evacuate their homes in Manitoba as the besieged area near Grand Forks, N.D., neared exhaustion behind sandbagged dikes.

The dikes appeared to be holding but the people maintaining them were tiring, and officials urged 700 more people in East Grand Forks, Minn., to evacuate.

In the South, meanwhile, clearing skies didn't ease concern that flooding there would hurt fishing in the Gulf of Mexico when cresting rivers reach the sea in the next few days.

In East Grand Forks, where the Red River has flooded for 10 days, Civil Defense director Orley Gunderson said he was scrounging for volunteers to send to an all-but-maraoned area of about 1,000 homes called The Point, where the Red and Red Lake rivers join.

Many university students were exhausted to the point of sickness, he said, and one small dike was weak and in need of shoring up.

But bad as things were on The Point, there was more potential danger to life in other parts of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks.

The Point sits higher than those low-lying areas, some of which by Thursday were behind dikes holding back water as high as a home's second floor. And some of those dikes, though reinforced by sandbags and clay, were becoming waterlogged.

As a result, 700 more residents were urged to leave Thursday in a 24-block area of East Grand Forks — even though officials said there was no imminent danger of a breach in a nearby dike.

The Red was already at more than 49 feet, nearly 21 feet above flood stage, and was not expected to crest, at 49.5 feet, until Saturday.

In all, 270 homes had been flooded and 1,400 people had been forced out of homes in the area by the time the new evacuation was urged Thursday.

Meanwhile, floodwaters were spreading over the flat, fertile Red River Valley, engulfing many farm homes.

And after that, the north-flowing waters reached Canada — where Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon ordered people to leave towns, villages and farms in its path.

"The situation is serious and worsening," Lyon said in a broadcast announcement Wednesday. His evacuation order could affect as many as 10,000 residents from south of Winnipeg to the U.S. border.

In the South, meanwhile, parts of Louisiana reported the first blue skies since late last week, and the National Weather Service said the Pearl River would crest at the Gulf of Mexico within 24 hours.

"Once it gets past the town of Pearl River (La.) there's a lot of swamp for it to spread out in," said Larry Mayne of the National Weather Service. But new flooding of homes was not the only concern.

Robert Boudin, civil defense director in Hancock County, Miss., said the muddy flood waters would "hurt fishing and the oysters and it's going to ruin shrimping ... I'm afraid we aren't going to see any oysters around here for a long time."

Upriver, the Pearl was dropping, and some of the 3,500 people who had evacuated their homes in Marion County, Miss., were returning — "straggling back to face the misery," as Jim Thornhill, county civil defense director, put it.

City, federal officials trying to resolve regulations problem

By CINDY RUGELEY
Staff Writer

Wichita Falls officials are trying to determine how serious a problem exists in providing temporary housing for tornado victims who live in the flood plain.

Two sets of conflicting regulations govern placement of mobile homes in areas designated as being in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers flood plain, according to Ernest Lillard, public works director.

Federal Insurance Administration regulations permit the placement of a mobile home in the flood plain as long as the floor is above flood level. Wheels of the structure and the slab can be below flood level, Lillard said. However, Federal Disaster Assistance Administration regulations do not permit the placement of mobile homes in the flood plain under any condition, he said.

Lillard said FIA regulations permit mobile home placement in most of the tornado-affected areas.

But if FDAA regulations are not eased, mobile homes will not be permitted in a large portion of the Faith Village area and in areas around Lou Lane and the Tiffany and French Quarter apartment complexes.

"We think most of Faith Village is only a foot or two below standard flood plain level," Lillard said. "This would place the floor of a mobile home above the flood plain level."

Lillard said he has worked with FDAA officials to try to reach an agreement on the mobile home placement, but so far has been unsuccessful.

FDAA has not yet refused a mobile home to anyone because it would be placed in the flood plain, he said.

"Most of the lots in Faith Village are small. I have been told the mobile homes have been denied out there because of that, not because of (Faith Village) being in the flood plain. I don't know if that is just a double criteria that they are using to avoid the flood plain problem or not," he said.

Lillard said, if necessary, the city will seek congressional relief for the problem.

Besides the problem with temporary housing, city officials have some questions as to whether persons can rebuild in the flood plain.

In order to comply with FIA regulations, the city passed an ordinance in 1978 prohibiting new construction or substantial improvement to structures in the flood plain. The ordinance grants the city planning department the authority to grant waivers to the ordinance.

If the ordinance were not enforced, the entire city could lose flood insurance.

Lillard said the Small Business Administration has agreed to give loans to persons to rebuild in the flood plain if they can get flood insurance.

Companies are willing to provide the insurance, if FIA will allow construction in the flood plain, Lillard said.

"We are trying to find out from FIA whether in these situations they will grant a waiver to allow disaster victims to rebuild what property they have

1st step taken to create hospital taxing district

The first official step to create a hospital taxing authority to finance Wichita General Hospital has been taken.

Wichita General Hospital officials have applied to the Texas Legislature for a law creating a hospital district encompassing all of Wichita County except the area within Electra Hospital District.

Hospital board Chairman Dr. Philip Carpenter said the application, drawn up after an April 17 meeting between hospital administrators and city and county officials, is being made in the hope that Wichita Falls City Council and Wichita County commissioners will pass resolu-

Carswell Air Force Base crashed 15 miles northwest of here, a Jack County Sheriff's Department spokesman said.

Maj. Carl G. Decker of Colleyville, Texas, and the $4 million Thunderchief crashed about 9 a.m. near the Cundiff community on FM 1810, according to Maj. James Odom, public information officer at Carswell in Fort Worth.

Odom said Decker was a reservist assigned to the 457th Tactical Fighter Squadron out of Carswell. The aircraft was en route from Carswell to a gunnery range at Fort Sill, Okla.

The Thunderchief, a multi-purpose all-weather fighter bomber capable of delivering conventional or nuclear weapons, was carrying six 25-pound practice bombs and 1,028 rounds of 20 mm ammunition for gunnery practice, Odom said.

An investigation team from Carswell went to the crash site. Decker is survived by his wife, a son and two daughters.

Other side of the coin

All of you folk who get your mail at University Park Station on Call Field, please be patient and tolerant. Things will be back to normal soon — if they aren't already.

There are reasons why service was slow in the days after the destructive tornado. Ralph Armstrong, manager of customer service for the Postal Service, said almost 50 percent of all local postal employees suffered damage to their homes. That is 78 employees, half of whom work right there at University Park.

"We would move qualified people in for such an emergency," explained Armstrong, "but it takes months to train a person how to sort mail."

That's all the explanation we need. It was impossible for the Postal Service to acquire trained personnel to fill in during the emergency, and personnel scheduled to work were in as much disarray as anyone else. Many of them were victims.

So perhaps we all should be slower to criticize, at least until we know all the facts.

Wichita Falls residents have shown a wonderful tolerance and goodwill one to the other during this emergency. Let's not spoil it now with dissension.

I wanted to let the reader who complained blow off steam. I shouldn't have. I apologize. My congratulations to the Order of Eagles who offered their lodge on the Jacksboro Highway as an aid station and whose members served hundreds of disaster victims.

OFF ON A TANGENT — A week from Sunday, May 6, those lucky people going on the Hired

But we hope to be able to answer all questions concerning the cruise: clothing to wear, what to take in the way of cameras, etc.

Cruises such as ours are getting mighty popular, and reservations harder and harder to get. So we are indeed lucky.

State disaster fund in red

By SCOTT CARPENTER
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The high cost of providing National Guard troops and other help to Wichita Falls following the April 10 tornado has thrown the state's disaster contingency fund into the red.

Gov. Bill Clements is asking the legislature for an emergency appropriation of $815,000 so the state can deal with any emergencies between now and Sept. 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

State Rep. Charles Fennell of Holliday said the anticipated $150,000 cost of providing National Guard troops to aid in the Wichita Falls recovery and $1.9 million in other state costs prompted the governor's emergency message.

Fennell and State Reps. Dave Allred of Wichita Falls and Bill Healy of Paducah have introduced legislation in the House to provide the extra money.

The House Appropriations Committee approved the measure Thursday, clearing the way for House debate.

State Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls introduced the Senate version.

According to figures supplied by Fennell, the state disaster contingency fund's initial appropriation of $2 million was reduced by $610,065 due to floods in Houston, Kerrville and Amarillo and by fires in Jeff Davis County.

The anticipated $1.9 million cost of the Wichita Falls-Vernon disaster puts that fund $501,065 in the red.

The $150,000 anticipated National Guard troop cost for Wichita Falls was $40,621 over the available $109,379.

If the legislature passes the emergency appropriations bill, the emergency fund would have $248,935 and the Guard $24,379 to deal with emergencies before September.

tions supporting creation of the taxing authority.

"At our meeting with the city council and commissioners court, all seemed to be of the opinion that a district would be the best way to finance (the hospital)," Carpenter said.

"We thought we should be preparing ourselves for that if they passed such a resolution suggesting (that a taxing authority be created)," he said.

City and county officials have said they support the creation of a hospital district rather than float bond issues every time the hospital needs money for building or operating needs.

The legislation the hospital is asking for would clear the way for a referendum on the taxing authority, which is required before the hospital could levy property taxes not to exceed 75 cents on $100 valuation.

Wichita General Hospital officials have said that in order to pay for an estimated $9.6 million contained in the first phase of planned capital improvements, a capital fund must be developed. Hospital officials have never been able to establish enough capital with the almost $200,000 in annual tax support the city and county provide, according to hospital officials.

"We are asking (the legislature) to pass an act so if we do decide to ask for a vote on the district, we will have that part of it done and not have to wait two years for the next legislature," Carpenter said.

If a bond issue were approved instead of the hospital district, hospital financial adviser Frank Medinich said the hospital would need to bring in about $750,000 annually to pay off the bonds needed to finance the first phase of planned capital improvements.

If approved, the hospital district would create an interest and sinking fund to pay the interest and principal on such bonds. City and county officials have said they would not support the idea of the hospital selling the bonds, with the city and county underwriting the measure, unless the hospital has the taxing authority to pay for the work itself.

Enlarging the hospital's emergency room and remodeling the west wing is included in the first phase of the capital improvements master plan.

Bands withdraw because of twister

The impact of the April 10 tornado hit several Wichita Falls young people again Thursday as three city bands were forced to withdraw from annual University Interscholastic League contests after months of preparation.

McNeil Junior High School Band and Rider High School bands Nos. 1 and 2 were unable to enter their respective events. The tornado destroyed the junior high school and did extensive damage to the band room at Rider.

The bands lost several instruments, and neither school had classes last week.

Wichita Falls High School bands also were affected. Charles Enloe, director of bands for the school district, said.

"Some of the people lost homes and they lost some uniforms and instruments. They went to contest and did a good job."

MSU reorganization plan reduces deans, departments

By PAT ZAJAC
Staff Writer

A plan to streamline Midwestern State University's academic program and administration was presented to the board of regents Thursday.

The plan, which was designed to save money and improve communication between faculty and administration, was accepted by the regents but not approved, regents preferring to leave the details to the administration.

The plan calls for consolidating 19 departments and eight programs into 15 departments, and eliminating 13 full-time positions over the next two years. Majors in German and French and graduate programs in speech and drama will be eliminated.

The university's four schools, business administration and economics, education, humanities and social sciences and sciences and mathematics, will be eliminated by the plan and the 15 departments organized into six divisions. Deans of each of the four schools would be eliminated.

Although the regents neither approved nor disapproved the plan, it must be approved by the State Coordinating Board. It is scheduled to become effective Sept. 1.

"We're not in a position to say this deanship or that deanship should be eliminated. We're not that familiar with it all. We're leaving the mechanics . . . to the administration," Carter McGregor, board chairman, explained.

The reorganization will save on administrative costs, free more faculty members for teaching and provide more direct communication between faculty and administration, Dr. Jesse Rogers, vice president for academic affairs, said. He said MSU at present is over-administered.

"We don't need five deans, 19 chairmen and eight program directors to administer a university of 4,000 students," he said.

Heads of the 15 departments will work directly with Rogers on personnel and budget matters and will meet as the Academic Council on curriculum matters and academic standards.

They will be paid only from faculty salaries, but will receive three-hour reductions in teaching load. A division chairman will be appointed from department heads, but will not have his teaching load reduced. Thirteen positions will be eliminated. Some faculty members will be terminated and others won't be replaced when they retire, Rogers said. He estimated $135,000 will be cut from the salary budget in the next two years.

The reorganization will create two new positions. Director of Institutional Studies will assist the president and vice president for academic affairs in registration, student record keeping and budgeting. Director of Educational Services will assist with the graduate school, technical and vocational programs and evening and off-campus programs.

The two positions would be filled by Dr. John W. Meux and Dr. Elbert Dickerson, respectively.

Department chairmen would include Thomas Crossnoe, art; Dr. Ken Hendrickson, history; Dr. Leo Sabota, political science; Dr. Jeff Campbell, humanities, literature and languages; Dr. June Kable, communications and theater; Dr. Neil Holliman, psychology and sociology; Dr. Art Beyer, biology and health sciences; Dr. Ricky Williams, chemistry, physics and geology; Dr. Louie Huffman, mathematical sciences; Dr. Barlow Hill, education; Dr. Joe Henderson, physical education; Dr. Jerry Kaufman, accounting; Dr. Robert Harmel, business administration and economics and Dr. Don Maxwell, music. A department of nursing chairman has not been named.

In other business, the board:

— Postponed discussion on the outside employment policy.

— Approved faculty development leave for Hendrickson and Dr. Forrest Monahan. Monahan will conduct research on the Kiowa Indians. Hendrickson will be working on a book.

— Gave the administration permission to seek legislation to allow an increase in the student service fee to $15 maximum. The money would be used to renovate Clark Student Center, Dr. John G. Barker, university president, said.

Barker said a television studio will be set up by Vista Cablevision in the Fine Arts Center. A contract between MSU and Vista will be considered by regents this summer.

left. So far, they have indicated they will work with us to determine the best course of action," Lillard said.

If FIA denies the waiver, Lillard said the city would have to determine whether it would be best for affected persons to build somewhere else or for the entire city to lose flood insurance.

The city should have an answer from FIA next week as to whether the waiver will be granted.

A survey is being made of Faith Village to determine how many lots are above flood plain level, Lillard said.

If temporary mobile homes are not allowed in the disaster area, the FDAA will provide group sites outside the disaster area.

Lillard said if the Holliday Creek-Lake Wichita Dam project is approved for funding by Congress, much of the flood plain would change. Areas around Faith Village, however, would not change because they are affected by McGrath Creek. The Corps of Engineers prepared its flood plain map in 1963. Lillard said he has asked the corps to consider changes made in the creek since that time to determine if the flood plain has changed.

Debris clearance costs top $1 million

Tornado debris clearance costs topped the $1 million mark Thursday when the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers awarded two more major contracts, Federal Disaster Assistance Administration officials said.

Engineers said the new contracts, worth $232,180, boosted the total dollars now obligated for debris removal in Wichita Falls and Vernon to slightly more than $1.26 million to clear an estimated 2,900 lots.

One of the contracts signed Thursday went to Fran & Sons, Greeley, Colo., to clear about 740 lots in an area on either side of U.S. 281 and south of Midwestern Parkway.

The second contract went to Starr and Sons Inc., Auburn, Ala., for $48,700. The firm will clear about 205 lots in the area across East Central Freeway east of Old Windthorst Road.

Work is scheduled to begin on the larger contract Friday morning, with the smaller contract work starting Saturday, officials said. Both projects are scheduled to be completed in 15 days.

Plans call for the awarding of three or more additional debris removal contracts within the next few days to clear an additional 450 lots on the fringe areas of the tornado's path.

Federal Coordinating Officer Joe D. Winkle said the debris removal contractors still are encountering some problems because not all right-of-entry agreements have been submitted by property owners. These agreements are required before the contractor can begin work.

"Our latest figures show we have something under 2,600 agreements," Winkle said, "but we have contracts now operating or ready to go on about 2,900 lots."

Agreement forms are available through Saturday evening at the 4-H Center and at City Hall. Agreements must be signed by May 6.

Property owners who have questions regarding debris removal may call 322-8841, 322-8842 or 322-8843.

Witness says Silkwood barred from plant

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Karen Silkwood was banned from the Kerr-McGee Corp.'s plutonium plant and reassigned to a warehouse area the day of her death, a Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp. executive testified Thursday.

A Silkwood lawyer read into evidence a memorandum from Morgan Moore, 52, while Moore was undergoing cross-examination in the $11.5 plutonium contamination negligence trial.

The memo from Moore, then the nuclear fuel plant manager, said Miss Silkwood would not be allowed in the company's plutonium nuclear fuel plant where she had worked as a laboratory technician. The reassignment to a warehouse area began the day of her death and apparently was to be permanent.

Earlier, Moore testified Miss Silkwood was placed "under special restrictions" because the company had not received full results on specialized medical tests after her contamination.

The memo, however, did not mention anything about the medical tests.

Previous witnesses testified transfers to the warehouse area were made for disciplinary purposes. They called such reassignments "the rock pile detail."

Miss Silkwood's survivors are suing Kerr-McGee, alleging negligence in connection with her contamination. The company claims she contaminated herself, possibly while spiking her urine samples. She died in a Nov. 13, 1974, auto crash.

Moore said it was fair to characterize Miss Silkwood as a "person who cared about people and who cared about workers at the plant."

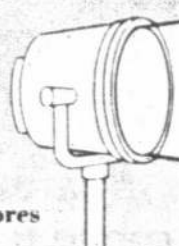

"Did you see Karen Silkwood as a troublemaker?" Moore was asked on cross-examination.

"No, sir," he said.

Escaped mental patient dies after shooting

A 15-year-old patient at Wichita Falls State Hospital, James Todd Anderson of Sunset, Texas, died Thursday of an apparent gunshot wound in the head after walking away from the facility.

The gun used in the shooting apparently was found in a parked pickup truck. The youth died about 6:30 p.m. Thursday in Bethania Hospital, according to a Wichita County Sheriff's department spokesman. Anderson had been shot once in the left temple with a .22-caliber rifle.

Michael Uriniak Jr., information officer for Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, said the victim was admitted to the state hospital about 5 p.m. Wednesday on a temporary commitment order from Montague County.

He said Anderson escaped about 9 a.m. Thursday as members of the adolescent unit were being taken to class. Uriniak said an "unsuccessful attempt" was made to detain Anderson, then Wichita County Sheriff's office was notified.

Deputy Sheriff Grady Smith said Anderson was found about 10 a.m. Thursday lying next to a pickup truck parked near Crestview Memorial Park, southeast of the hospital.

Smith said Tom Parker, an oil field worker, said he saw the victim lying on the ground as he was driving to work. A .22-caliber rifle was found lying across the boy's chest.

Smith said Gerhard Jentsch, owner of the vehicle, said he had parked there while plowing in a nearby field. Jentsch said an unloaded .22-caliber rifle was in the truck, with shells in the glove compartment.

'Mimic' to aid law officials

By ROCKY SCOTT Staff Writer

Wichita County sheriff's deputies are looking at a lot of portraits these days, but it isn't because they've enrolled in art classes.

"It's called a 'Mimic,'" said Sheriff John Gibson. "It's a machine that can put together literally thousands of faces."

Gibson's office received the $3,500 face-maker after Wichita County commissioners approved a 75-25 matching funds arrangement with the federal government paying the larger share.

"We got it a couple of days after the tornado," Gibson said, "so we really haven't had time to look at it until this week."

The machine looks like a small television set. Underneath the viewing screen is a series of knobs that lets the operator select one of the hundreds of hairstyles, mouth shapes and facial structures.

"And," Gibson said, "you can move the features up and down on the screen. You would be amazed at how much difference just raising a pair of eyes a quarter of an inch can make."

Many law enforcement agencies use an "I-don't-Knit" to help crime victims put together a composite picture of a suspect.

But the "Mimic" is more complex, Gibson said, and offers a wider range of facial and hair features.

"We have four different facial types available to use: Caucasian, Negro, Hispanic and Oriental," he said. "Once we determine the race, then we start with the picture inside that most fits the facial form. From there, it's just a matter of finding the right pair of eyes, ears and so on."

And the reproductions on the screen can be startlingly accurate, Gibson said.

"Each characteristic is coded with a number," he said. "So when we have a full composite, we can merely right the numbers down if we want to use the machine for something else."

These numbers can be transmitted over teletype to other law enforcement agencies with similar machines, according to Gibson, and they can encode their machines and have a likeness within minutes.

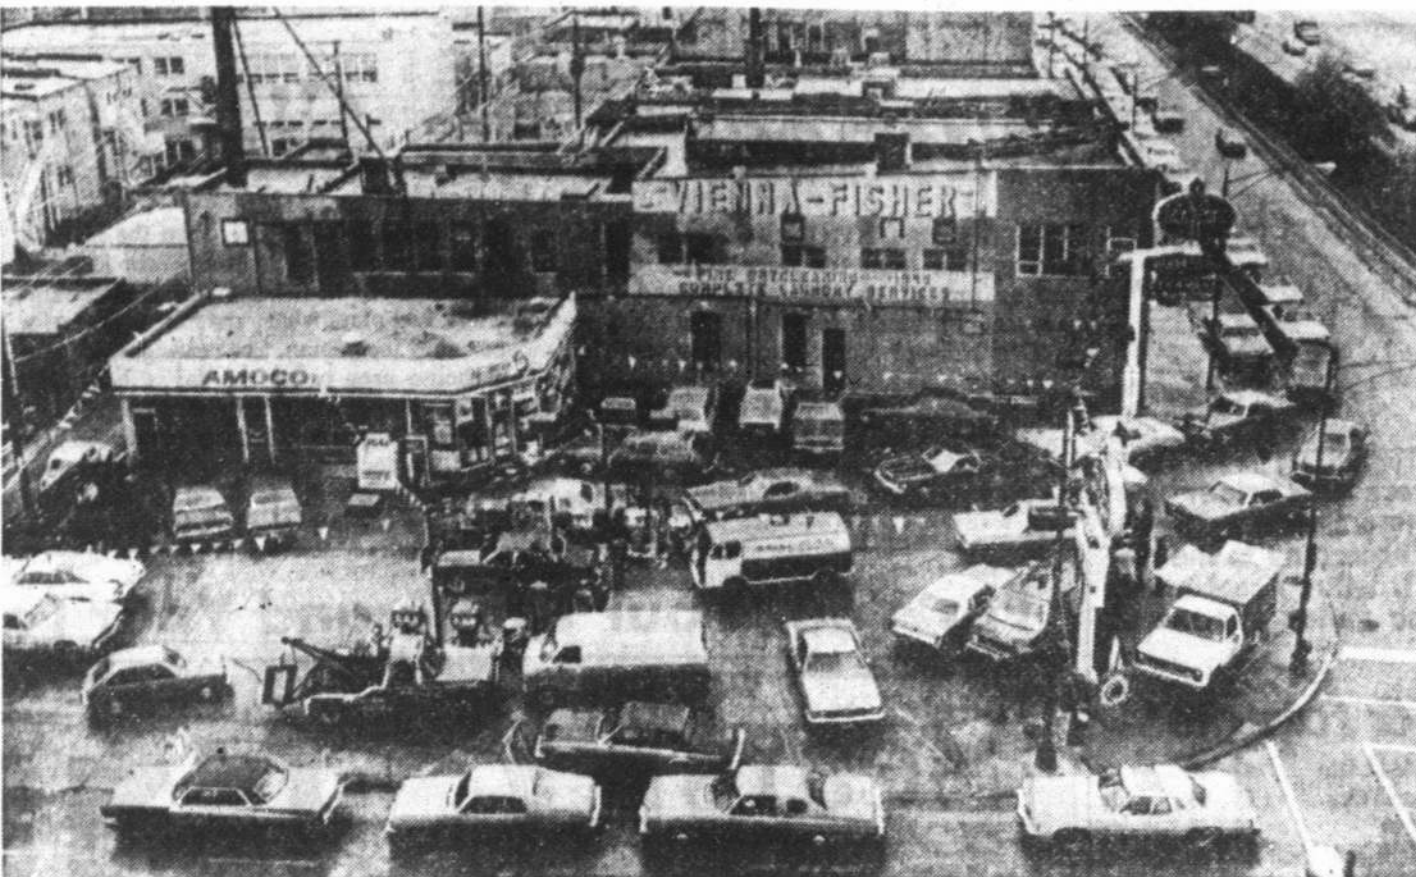

"There's also a Polaroid camera attached to the Mimic," he said, "so when we get the final picture, we just press a button and a picture pops out. We can make as many pictures as we want. It's even got a section for profiles."

Another advantage, according to the sheriff, is law officers may be able to recognize a known criminal as the victim is putting the face together.

"We know a lot of these people (criminals)," he said. "So if an officer begins to recognize the sketch the victim is putting together, he can go pull a mug shot, mix it in with four or five others and put it in a photo lineup for the victim to look at."

Gibson said he wants all law enforcement agencies in Wichita and the surrounding counties to make use of the machine.

"I really think this will help us greatly in the identification of criminals," he said, "and I want all law enforcement agencies to feel free to use the machine."

Busiest gas station

Cars are lined up Thursday morning to buy gas at Al Farmer's Standard Oil station in Chicago. Al was selling gas for 33 cents a gallon. The line in foreground at curb had to work its way around the block and enter the station at the right. The wait was about three hours. Al's bargain prices were tied in with radio advertising. (AP Photo)

Gas station gives motorists a break

CHICAGO (AP) — When Al Farmer opened his service station at 7 a.m. Thursday, motorists had lined up for eight blocks to buy his gasoline — at 33 cents a gallon.

The promotion was heavily advertised and funded by a radio station, which also kicked in a free breakfast for motorists hungering for a bargain.

"I just thought it was time the motorists got a break," said

Farmer, 31, who has operated his Amoco (Standard) station on the South Side for eight years. "I don't think gasoline prices should be as high as they are."

"I'm tired of hearing about who's going to be first at $1 a gallon," he said. "I'd rather hear about who is going to have the lowest price. Let 'em try to beat 33 cents a gallon."

Farmer says the gasoline cost him 71 cents a gallon, and he normally gets 92.9 cents a gallon for it — but he had help funding this bargain day, one of five he's run in the last two years.

Most of the tab, including sausage-and-roll breakfasts served to some of the early bird motorists, was picked up by radio station WJPC, which had advertised the gas special and which plastered a WJPC sticker on each bumper of cars being filled up.

Farmer said about 50 motorists an hour filled up at the two pumps with what Amoco calls its "Blue" unleaded gasoline until all the 4,500 gallons were gone. Many trucks and vans lined up.

"We could only handle about 50 an hour because they had let their tanks run nearly dry and all wanted fill-ups," said Farmer. "Some had been waiting to get in for three hours. A half dozen ran out of gas while in line and had to be pushed in. Everyone seemed happy to start the day so cheaply."

Farmer said Amoco salesmen "squawked a lot about the cheap gasoline and said it could cause a lot of trouble."

Farmer's station has eight pumps and says he pumps an average of 2,000 gallons a day. He normally gets 92.9 cents a gallon for the unleaded "Blue," 95.9 for premium unleaded and 85.9 for regular — about average for the Chicago area. Only the unleaded "Blue" was selling at bargain prices Thursday.

An Amoco spokesman said a dealer has the right to sell gasoline at his own price, but added that "Farmer apparently has now used up his allocation of Blue gasoline for this month and will not get more until next month."

"With an allocation program, talk of energy conservation and the rising prices of gasoline, the selling of gasoline at 33 cents a gallon is confusing to the public," the spokesman added.

Meanwhile, in Miami Beach, Fla., Joe's Shell station did Farmer 21 cents better, offering 2,000 gallons of unleaded gasoline for 12 cents a gallon.

Justice orders prison guards to end strike

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A state Supreme Court justice ordered the union representing striking New York prison guards to end a walkout Friday or be fined $450,000 for contempt plus $100,000 for each shift the strike continues.

Justice Edward Conway said the union would have to pay a minimum fine of $100,000 even if it returns to work by 8 a.m. Friday.

He also sentenced the union's executive director, Hollis Chase, to 30 days in prison and imposed a $250 fine, unless Conway orders an immediate end to the strike by about 7,000 corrections officers.

Accident victim in good condition

An 11-year-old boy who was struck by a van Thursday afternoon when he chased a baseball into the street was in good condition Thursday night in Sheppard Air Force Regional Hospital.

Gary Humphries, whose address was not immediately available, was initially treated at Wichita General Hospital then transferred to Sheppard after the 5 p.m. accident.

Witnesses said the boy was playing ball near Austin School at Fourteenth and Broad. He ran into the roadway to retrieve a baseball and was struck by a northbound van driven by Robert B. Terrell of Burkburnett.

The impact knocked the youth onto the windshield of Terrell's van, then threw him about 35 feet down the road, according to police.

A baseball helmet the boy was wearing when the van hit him may have prevented more serious injuries, according to police.

Emergency food program to end

Texas Department of Human Resources disaster recovery officials said they will close the emergency food stamp program in Wichita Falls and Vernon this weekend.

The program serving storm victims in Wichita Falls will end at 7 p.m. Saturday. The Wilbarger County program ends at 5 p.m. Friday.

Officials said emergency food stamps valued at $747,255 have been issued to 5,392 households in the eligible areas of the two counties in the wake of the April 10 tornado.

Beginning Monday, those in need of food stamps may apply under provisions of the regular program at the Wilbarger County courthouse and at the Wichita Falls TDHR office, 401 Burkburnett Road.

House passes 'asexualization' bill

Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A proposal to allow a judge or jury to order the "asexualization" of certain sex offenders was passed by the Oklahoma House Thursday.

Lawmakers voted 50-35 in favor of an amendment that replaced all the language in a bill originally designed to repeal a 1931 state law allowing the state to sterilize the insane and mentally defective and certain criminals.

The amendment was offered by Rep. Frank Shurden, a freshman Democrat from Henryetta, who said rape is "becoming a national pastime." He said he has received letters from across the country supporting the plan.

The amendment calls for "asexualization" of sex offenders, as opposed to castration, which is defined in the dictionary as removal of the genitals or ovaries. Asexualization is defined in the amendment as the "incapacitation of the external male genitalia."

Final action was not taken on the bill, but House Speaker Dan Draper, who voted against it, later said he felt it would receive the necessary 51 votes needed to send it to the Senate.

The proposal would allow a judge or jury to order asexualization of a person convicted of first-degree rape or a "detestable and abominable crime against nature" and at least two "aggravating circumstances" were involved in the crime.

The aggravating circumstances were defined as rape of a child under 18 years old, a sex crime "especially serious, atrocious or cruel," a sex crime committed by a person while serving a sentence on conviction of a felony, or the existence of a "high probability" that the defendant would commit additional sex crimes.

Other factors that could lead to an asexualization order under the bill include gang rapes, multiple rapes and sex crimes resulting in significant physical injury to the victim.

The amendment was passed despite objections it might be unconstitutional and that it reduced the administration of justice to the level of the criminal.

Shurden was asked about the U.S. Supreme Court's interpretation of laws dealing with cruel and unusual punishment. "Personally, I'd say to hell with the Supreme Court," he said.

Some lawmakers pleaded with their colleagues not to pass the amendment out of their anger over the rising crime rate, saying it would bring ridicule on Oklahoma from other parts of the country.

Cooling it down

Firemen hose down fuel storage tanks at a gas processing plant south of Medford, Okla., Thursday as a backhoe burns in the background. The fire began when pipe containing high-pressure liquid fuel ruptured while the backhoe was being used in the area. Firemen helped in cooling down the storage tanks to prevent an explosion and let the pipeline burn itself out. (AP Photo)

Panel OKs Tulsa medical plans

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Health Planning Commission, which had placed a moratorium on considering Tulsa hospital expansions and renovation projects, Wednesday approved more than $5.5 million in plans for three Tulsa medical centers.

The commissioners had placed a continuance on reviewing Tulsa hospital projects until the state Supreme Court made a decision on evangelist Oral Roberts' City of Faith Hospital.

The commissioners felt it wouldn't be fair to approve any Tulsa hospital projects while the City of Faith issue was in litigation.

However, an Oklahoma County District Court judge ruled that the commission could not impose a moratorium and the commissioners responded by Wednesday by approving projects at Hillcrest and Doctors medical centers and the Oklahoma Osteopathic Hospital.

Hillcrest, one of the primary opponents of the City of Faith had three projects approved.

They were:

— Renovation of five nursing units to meet licensure and building codes, $1.5 million.

— Relocation of the hospital's radiation therapy department and the acquisition of a Mevatron 12 linear accelerator, $2 million.

— Construction of a helipad, $300,000.

Commissioners also approved a $1.4 million project for Doctors Medical Center. That project calls for construction of a two-story annex to house emergency services, in-service education classrooms, engineering services and maintenance storage.

Indians to protest shooting

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A rally at the Capitol on Monday is planned by a group of Indians angry over the shooting death of a 17-year-old who allegedly was fleeing a crime scene.

Francis Wise, an attorney for the Native American Center, said Wednesday that her group is protesting District Attorney Andrew Coats' decision not to file charges in the February shooting of Thomas Foley.

The group wants a law she said was "ambiguous and racist" removed from the books, the ouster of Coats and the filing of a murder charge in the shooting, she said.

Charles Wilson of Oklahoma City allegedly caught Foley burglarizing his car.

Repaying neighbors

Emergency crews from volunteer fire departments in towns surrounding Wichita Falls were busy for several days after our April 10 tornado, volunteering with their specialized equipment to help victims of the storm.

They piled vehicles apart and accomplished the myriad other actions for which the specialized Jaws of Life and other equipment is designed, working with no other motivation than the desire to help their less fortunate neighbors.

Such actions were in sharp contrast to the attitude of Wichita Falls Fire Department, which in the past several months has turned back at the city limits in several instances when discovering a fire or accident is outside its jurisdiction. Wichitans who needed their help can appreciate this feeling of neighborliness on the part of others, for it overcame the natural inclination that could have been expected to follow Wichita Falls' action in calling a halt to helping outsiders.

A reality this cooperative action points up is that perhaps Wichita Falls needs a volunteer rescue corps. If for various reasons city emergency crews no longer can respond to calls outside the city limits, perhaps a trained volunteer corps of first aid and rescue specialists could be organized to reciprocate such open-handed offers of assistance.

We still feel that when and where the threat occurs, all who are equipped and trained to help should forget boundaries and respond. But as Wichita Falls and its suburbs grow, perhaps answering routine fire and accident calls from rural areas abutting the city might prove burdensome. A volunteer crew of well-trained workers whose hobby would be answering such calls for rescue help would give many a direction in which to focus their community spirit and at the same time provide a life-saving service to others.

Whether such a group is organized, Wichitans always will owe a debt of gratitude to their unselfish neighbors who came to help when help was needed.

Water supply studied

An intense study is under way on the High Plains of a problem similar to the world's diminishing petroleum supply. It's the impending end of abundant supplies of underground water.

The multi-million-dollar study is being undertaken in the Panhandle of Texas and five other High Plains states with funds supplied by Economic Development Administration of the Commerce Department.

Documentation is expected to result as to the need for water in maintaining the agricultural climate in what is known as "the nation's breadbasket." The study centers on replenishment of the underground supply or importing excess water to fill the need.

Arkansas River water ultimately may be sent west because of its high quality and abundance, but what that would do to the ecology of the area downstream is a question mark perhaps the study can answer.

The nation, indeed, the world, cannot afford to respond to the prospect of running out of ground water in the High Plains.

Ear On Washington

Hard times at Harvard

By DIANA McLELLAN
WASHINGTON — Huge embarrassment hangs over the Harvard Philosophy Department these days, we hear. Word's around that nobody wants to take the prestigious Edgar Pierce Professor of Philosophy Chair there this year. (It's a whooper: big brains like Ralph Barton Perry and implicationist extraordinaire C.I. Lewis have perched upon it.) The last we heard, the chair had been turned down by three biggies: Two from Princeton, Saul Kripke and Tom Nagel, and one from California, David Kaplan. "It's so stuffy at Harvard," one philosopher sniffed to us. Come, thinkers. Did Schopenhauer sniff of "stuffy"? Pull yourselves together, please.

Jolly Days In Georgetown — Meanwhile, Georgetown's a bustle: The big Georgetown House Tour's coming up. (This item, actually, is to remind Joe Alsop: His house is on it. Last time, he forgot. The day of Henry the K's wedding, Joe invited a conglomeration of Kissingers to his pad for a drink. When he and they rolled in, hundreds of strangers were trailing through, trampling his Tabrizes and fingering his filigree.)

Offer To Refuse — All your Royalist pals will palpitate over this one, so pay attention: We hears Generalissimo Franco offered Otto von Habsburg the throne of Spain back in the '60s. Otto's folks have been in the King biz forever. His dad, you may recall, was Emperor Charles of Austria; the Habsburg gang ruled Spain for ages right up until 1700. This hot scrap was let loose to Christopher Buckley, son of guess who, by Otto himself the other day. Chris has been rattling around Europe for his upcoming Esquire piece on King Juan Carlos. Juan Carlos, you recall, was the winner. So far.

Nuclear Ear — Of course all Connecticut swelled with pride: That super lead editorial in The New York Times credited their own Sen. Lowell Weicker, presidential candidate extraordinaire, with the notion of forming a blue ribbon commission to investigate the Three Mile Island accident and the future of nuclear energy. The senator's press secretary was tickled too, but puzzled. "When did you say all that?" the pressie asked his boss. Well, Weicker admitted, he hadn't said it at all. In fact, Sen. Dick Schweiker of Pennsylvania had said it. But it was a dynamite idea, so Weicker's pressie quietly grabbed a copy of Schweiker's press release and ringingly rewrote it. Then Weicker grandly submitted it to the floor and now it's part of history: ensconced in the Congressional Record as the offering of Lowell Weicker himself. We, too, think it's a dynamite idea. We plan to come up with it soon, ourselves.

Quote Quotient — "I can't stand that babbling!" — Texas Rep. Bob Eckhardt, storming out of his inner office to turn off the closed circuit TV in his outer office. (It carries House debates and roll calls). "I take that as a compliment. My other critics have been saying I couldn't kick and scream at the same time" — Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh, when snippies said he had to be dragged "kicking and screaming" into advising a limited evacuation around Harrisburg.

Drummond Politics, China prices

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

In conversation, Howard Baker, the Tennessee Republican leader of the Senate, makes a point of explaining that he not only "wants to run for president," he "wants to be president."

Baker cited a need to shift the balance of the presidency from administration to leadership. In his opinion the United States has not had sustained skillful leadership since Franklin Roosevelt.

He endorses Harry Truman's concept of the presidency. Asked what he saw as the principal role of the chief executive, Truman listed five: leadership, leadership, leadership, leadership and leadership.

Baker's definition of presidential leadership is "to define the issues and persuade the country."

GOP Contenders — Most political writers at this time concede the big three to be Ronald Reagan, John Connally and Baker. One reason may be that they are stressing the theme that President Carter has not provided effective leadership and they can. Obviously this view is arguable, but it may turn out to be the dominant issue of the 1980 campaign.

Stirring Up A Fight — Opponents of nuclear energy as a source of electricity are trying to picture President Carter and the chairman of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Joseph M. Hendrie, in controversy and conflict where none exists.

They quote the president as saying the United States "cannot abandon nuclear power in the foreseeable future."

They quote Hendrie as saying "we cannot have an acceptable nuclear power program if there is an appreciable risk." The president and the NRC chairman actually are saying the same thing: The risks should be significantly reduced so the United States will not have to abandon nuclear power.

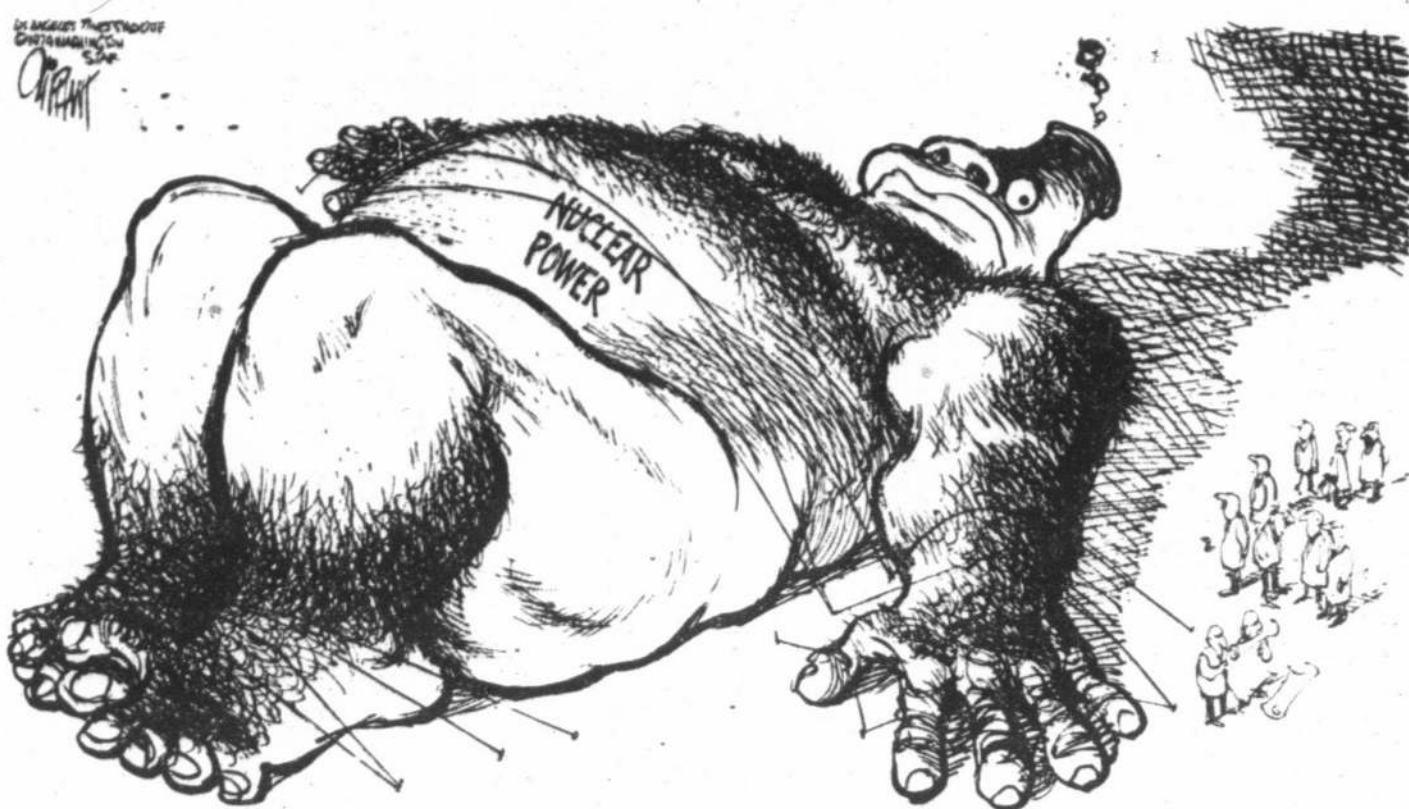

High China Prices — Two possessions the average Chinese worker dreams of having are a bicycle and a wrist watch. In relation to their earnings, these items are fantastically expensive. A bicycle costs 150 yuan, $90 in American currency. That doesn't seem too far out of reach until one considers that most families in China have a monthly income of only 50 yuan, about $30. Wrist watches are far more expensive, as much as 300 yuan, equal to six months' wages.

Terrorists Active — Terrorist violence was on the increase throughout the world during 1978. Its chief centers were Western Europe and North America, with Western Europeans most victimized.

Much of the violence is focused on the industrial democracies. It dropped off in South America except for Guatemala, El Salvador and Nicaragua.

Government officials and business executives who are viewed by the radical terrorists as "symbols of western power and wealth," are most often their targets.

Carter's Rhodesian trap

By ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Testifying before Congress on March 29, the administration's principal policymaker on Africa tightened the catch on the Rhodesian trap that was insensibly built for Jimmy Carter over two years.

Richard Moose, assistant secretary of state for Africa, had the chance before the House African affairs subcommittee to disengage the president from blind support for Soviet-backed "Patriotic Front" guerrillas. The question was whether the "front" or Prime Minister Ian Smith and his black allies were in closer compliance with settlement guidelines set by Congress.

A formidable case was made that last fall Smith and the biracial moderates were ready to comply while the Patriotic Front was intransigent. At the least, both sides could be accused of playing to the galleries. But Moose testified, in contradiction to reality, that the Patriotic Front, not Smith's group, met conditions set by Congress: an all-parties conference and internationally supervised elections.

That climaxed more than two years of a policy that has found President Carter in the uncomfortable position of supporting Marxist terrorists against the ballot box while Congress and a predicted new conservative government in Great Britain race to lift western economic sanctions against Rhodesia. The appraisal by one gloomy State Department official: "The problems are going to be horrendous for the president."

The policy originated in the belief expressed in March 1977 by one of Carter's senior aides that "the white man is finished in southern Africa." That meant the U.S. should get on the side of the blacks, even if their ideology was Marxist and their record on human rights questionable.

This policy was becoming untenable last October when the administration granted U.S. entry visas for Smith and his black colleague, the Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole. Developments behind the scenes began pressures on the Carter policy that are nearing the breaking point.

The Case-Javits amendment, which was signed on Sept. 26, requires agreement by the Rhodesian government to attend an "all-parties conference" as a condition for lifting sanctions. So long as Smith objected, it was no problem for Carter. But Senate conservatives, headed by North Carolina's Jesse Helms, persuaded Smith to agree.

Soon after Smith arrived in Washington last fall, Helms directed an aide, John Carbaugh, to inform the State Department of Smith's agreement. According to Carbaugh, the reaction from Douglas Bennet, assistant secretary of state for Congressional relations, was enthusiastic; Bennet suggested an all-parties Rhodesian conference at Camp David, site of the just-completed Mideast summit.

But Bennet soon was chastened by a cold wind from Africa. According to Carbaugh, Bennet reported that Joshua Nkomo, one half of the Patriotic Front, "will not come"; as for the other half, Robert Mugabe, "I gather he won't come, either." Shifting ground, the Carter administration soon prescribed a conference agenda, to which Smith objected. Both sides now had reservations, but there was no question who wanted to talk and who wanted to fight last October.

That set the stage for the March 29 House hearing when Rep. Stephen Solarz of New York, the subcommittee chairman, asked Moose who was complying with the Case-Javits amendment and who wasn't. Incredibly, Moose testified that Smith, Sithole and their colleague, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, all "rejected" the "concept" of an all-parties conference but that Mugabe and Nkomo "would attend."

Vouching for education

By MARTHA ANGLE & ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON — In California, birthplace of so many social and political trends, a new popular initiative is gestating that could develop into the Proposition 13 of 1980.

This issue is not taxes but education, a subject that is becoming a sore point for growing numbers of families, not just in California but all over the nation.

Sponsors of the initiative, which is still in the drafting stage, are seeking to put on the ballot a new and sophisticated version of an old idea, a school voucher system.

Under such a plan, which amounts to a GI Bill for elementary and secondary education, parents would be given a voucher by the state to use to "purchase" an education for their children at the school of their choice, public, private or religious.

Although the voucher concept is simple enough, mechanics of such a system are complex. No school district in the country has actually tried such a system, although there have been several abortive attempts.

Prime movers behind the California initiative drive are John Coons and Stephen Sugarman, law professors at University of California at Berkeley and co-authors of a 1978 book entitled "Education by Choice: The Case for Family Control."

Unlike earlier proponents of the voucher concept, Coons and Sugarman by no means are associated with right wing political philosophy. Indeed, one critic of their plan calls them "limousine liberals."

Their basic argument is that parents can and should be trusted with primary control of their children's education, and that they should be given there where-withal necessary to choose the type of school their youngsters attend.

Coons, in a telephone interview, noted that California in the past few years has experienced a sizable exodus from the public schools to private and parochial schools.

"This is an ominous development," he said. "It means the rich are fleeing, leaving behind those who cannot afford to opt out of the public schools."

With a voucher plan, low and middle income families would have the same opportunity as the wealthy to choose a private instead of a public school, although private schools participating in the system would have to meet certain conditions.

Among these, Coons said, would be an open admissions policy. No child could be turned away, and if applicants exceeded the slots available, the school would have to conduct a lottery to fill its enrollment quota.

California Teachers Association, an affiliate of National Education Association, is opposed to the Coons-Sugarman proposal and is gearing up to fight the initiative drive that will get under way this summer.

"We consider it a serious threat, even though nothing's moving yet," said OTA executive secretary Ralph Flynn. "All the ingredients are there for real trouble. Attitudes are so volatile that every alienated group might latch onto this thing."

"Coons is convinced the public school system is a failure, and he wants to destroy it to 'save' it," said Flynn. "I'm disturbed about the schools too, but there's a baby in that bath water."

Several arguments can be raised against any voucher system, including cost and constitutionality of any scheme that results, however indirectly, in public subsidies for parochial schools.

But given the climate of the times and widespread dissatisfaction with the public school system, the Coons-Sugarman initiative seems virtually certain to turn into a fiercely-debated political issue. And once again, California may be a bellwether for the nation.

Deeper chill

By DON GRAFF

It has been once more into the breach for the First Amendment, and once more it has emerged riddled with judicial buckshot.

In the latest encounter, the Supreme Court has found that a journalist enjoys no constitutional protection from questioning as to his personal opinions while working on a news story or editorial decisions made during its preparation.

The "state of mind" case, as it probably will become known in the continuing skirmishing between courts and media, arose from a libel suit brought against CBS and others by a retired Army officer objecting to the skeptical treatment "60 Minutes" accorded his allegations of Vietnam war atrocities. Questioned in pretrial proceedings, the producer declined to comment on his opinions, decisions and conclusions concerning material prepared for the program.

The court's majority in effect held that there is no constitutionally based privilege in these areas during pretrial proceedings.

That echoes the reaction to last year's Stanford Daily decision in which the Supreme Court upheld police searches of news premises without warning. In that instance, John Hughes, editor of Christian Science Monitor and president of American Society of Newspaper Editors, observed that the way had been opened to governmental intrusion that "could have a chilling effect on the operations of the press."

Other cases have involved the confidentiality of reporters' notes and sources and imprisonment of newsmen under circumstances that might appear to bring another constitutional protection into play, the one against "cruel and unusual punishment."

The current case is a variation in that it directly involves broadcasting rather than newspapers. It also applies only to libel suits involving public figures and only to pretrial proceedings. But in opening the editorial process to judicial scrutiny it sets a far-reaching precedent and raises media-wide concern.

That's putting it a bit strongly. The worst that can be said is that the courts, the Supreme Court in particular, have tended in the series of press freedom cases to be consistent in construing First Amendment guarantees in the narrowest sense.

This invocation of "absolute privilege" has been rejected by the author of the "state of mind" majority opinion, Justice Byron White. It is neither "required" nor "authorized," in his view.

We can now report that the child-proof caps on aspirin bottles are a success. The rate of headaches among adults has never been higher.

Toddlers saw the caps for what they were — a challenge to their dexterity. They regarded them much as they regarded Daddy's camera: you twist a dial, the back falls off and the exposed film wriggles all over the floor. And we all know what a good time they had with Daddy's camera.

The statistics are now in. In 1979, 35,000 toddlers assisted adults in getting the caps off aspirin bottles. (Of this number, 15,000 were rent-toddlers who were hired by the elderly.) Some 65,000 adults despaired and turned to bottles with the traditional twist tops which resulted in bigger headaches.

A whopping 85,000 adults simply learned to live with pain. The child-proof cap has been a real breakthrough in child ingenuity. I think we can do more.

We used to have a small dog and when we threw him a rubber toy hermetically sealed and encased in a waterproof, airtight, perma-plasti card, we would set our watches to see how many seconds it took him to not only open the package, but to remove the whistle from the toy. That little devil worked his way down to 12 seconds.

The point is that toddlers are now ready for the big time. They're ready for combs contained in plastic bubbles and lunch meat that can be opened and resealed simply by "peeling back flap with your finger-nail."

They're ready for bags of dog food that you open by simply pulling a string, and tin lids of cough drops that you open by "pressing firmly on the top with your thumb."

Maybe not today or tomorrow, but sometime soon, toddlers may be able to open bacon for us, or a canned ham with a key that breaks off halfway around. Or possibly a box of soap powder where you push your thumb in at the dotted line.

Children have brought a new meaning to all our lives. How do you spell relief in this country? K-I-D-S!

Court rule hits British press ban

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The European Court of Human Rights ruled Thursday that Britain's contempt of court law, used to ban a newspaper article on thalidomide birth defects, violated the European Convention on Human Rights.

The ruling, the court's first involving freedom of the press, forces Britain to study its contempt of court statute but does not mandate a change in the English law.

The case was brought to the court by the Sunday Times of London. The newspaper had waged a campaign in support of hundreds of children, born between 1959 and 1962 with deformities allegedly caused by their mothers' use of the drug thalidomide that was developed in West Germany. It was prescribed in many countries as a tranquilizer during early pregnancy.

In an 11-4 ruling, the court said the British government violated the human rights convention by agreeing to a request by Distillers Company (Biochemicals) Ltd. — the drug's distributor in Britain — that the Sunday Times be banned from publishing a planned follow-up article.

The company asked for the ban after the Sunday Times published a series of articles on the hundreds of compensation claims by thalidomide victims. One article, published in September 1972 and entitled, "Our Thalidomide Children: A Cause for National Shame," said the newspaper planned more articles detailing the entire thalidomide affair.

Distillers asked the British attorney general to issue an injunction banning the article, claiming it was in contempt of court because of pending thalidomide damage suits against the firm. The injunction was issued, but overturned on a court appeal. That judgement was appealed in the House of Lords where the injunction was reinstated before it finally was lifted in 1976 and the article was published.

In the meantime, Sunday

Times editor Harold Evans had taken the matter to the Court of Human Rights.

Evans said Thursday it will be a "national scandal" if the European court's decision does not lead to early reform of the contempt of court law.

The Council of Europe was founded in 1949 to safeguard the political and cultural heritage of Europe.

Critics seek electronic meat pricing

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Critics of the "Yellow Sheet," a daily report of prices widely used by the meat industry, Thursday called for an electronic pricing system to spur competition and lower prices.

"Why not simply have a computer system where all transactions over some minimum weight are required to be transacted through a computer so that anybody — the government, the industry, consumers or any other interested party — can see what is going on?" George Shultz said during the first day of Department of Agriculture hearings here.

"If beef prices begin to skyrocket, at least consumers will have some satisfaction in being able to look at the computer and see why prices are skyrocketing," said Shultz, a consumer advocate representing the California Public Interest Research Group.

"No longer would transactions be hidden from the public as they currently are today and competition in pricing would be mandated," he said.

The department's Meat Pricing Task Force is holding two days of hearings here to help determine if changes are needed in the pricing system. The group met earlier in the week in Omaha, Neb., and meets again next month in Washington.

The Yellow Sheet is published by a private company in Chicago and lists meat prices in the previous day's transactions. Cattlemen and processors use it to determine the going rate for meat, but Shultz called it the most "archaic, ridiculous pricing system in the existence of the United States today."

He charged that since the large majority of cattle feeders and packers use the Yellow Sheet "then everyone in the industry is buying and selling the product at the same price ... if his competitor is paying the same high price. "This irresponsible method of marketing livestock passes high prices on to consumers," Shultz said.

He said an electronic system replacing the Yellow Sheet would "encourage competition."

Clement Ward, an agricultural economist at Oklahoma State University, said that even though there may be flaws in the current reporting service, there are no data to indicate that an electronic reporting system would work in a more efficient manner than the current system.

"There is little need for impulsive change," said Ward, noting that electronic reporting "has its possibilities."

"But at this time, such a system is inadequate and long-term research into this and other possibilities must take place before the present system is changed if a change is required," he said.

Broadcasters meet Saturday

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma broadcasters and guest experts will hold discussions about important broadcast issues Saturday at the Oklahoma Associated Press Broadcasters Convention.

The convention at the Holiday Inn here will be concluded by an awards banquet held jointly with the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi.

The convention begins with a talk on cameras and microphones in the courtroom, by Ernie Schultz, information director of KTVY television in Oklahoma City. Schultz has been one of the leaders in the fight to allow broadcast journalists and newspaper photographers to take the tools of their trade into Oklahoma courtrooms.

Radio broadcasters can then attend a session with Ed DeFontaine of AP Radio in Washington, and TV broadcasters can attend a session with Doug Fox of WFAA-TV in Dallas.

Next comes a discussion of election returns and the best way to get them quickly and accurately. Representatives of the Oklahoma Election Service, Telesource of Phoenix, Ariz., and DataCommunication of Memphis will speak.

After a luncheon and presentation of AP Appreciation Awards, NBC News Correspondent Bob Dotson will speak. Dotson, now based in Dallas, was a director of special projects for WKY-TV (now KTVY) news from 1971 to 1975.

Preston publicly elected Burk mayor

By DOROTHY CROWDER
Burk Burnett Bureau

BURKBURNETT — Burk Burnett City Council Thursday re-elected Brack Preston as mayor — this time in a public vote.

Preston was chosen by fellow council members by the same 4-to-3 margin he won by on the fifth secret ballot taken by the council April 17. Thursday, he won on the first ballot, and Billy Ray Mize again was named mayor pro-tem.

Objections were voiced by residents of the community that the secret ballot process was not in accordance with the Texas Open Meetings Act and a ruling by then-Attorney General John Hill that public bodies must reveal the manner of voting.

The open vote came after an opinion was sought from municipal law authority S.G. Johndroe of Fort Worth.

Johndroe said it would be in the best interest of the city if an open vote were taken. He said such a vote would make the actions of the council consistent and would avoid any possible wrongdoing.

At Thursday's session, Johndroe told the council the election of public officials cannot be done by secret ballot. Attorney Barney Fudge of Burk Burnett, appearing as a private citizen, disagreed with Johndroe.

Fudge said, "It seems to me that it is an open question as to whether the action of the council was wrong. The conflicts in the ruling of the attorney general appear to make it an unresolved question."

Mrs. Pat Norris, who on the April 17 election split the ballot with Preston four times, made an impassioned plea to the council and to the citizens of Burk Burnett to forget the turmoil which has divided the town during the past two years and

"get on with the business of living."

"This town does not belong to any one person. It belongs to the people in it. We need to get this town back together and work for the good of everyone who lives here," Mrs. Norris said.

Voting for Preston were councilmen Pat Yarmoski, Coy Martin, Doss Hamilton and Preston. Mrs. Norris received the votes of Mize, Larry DiMarzio and herself.

The council then voted 6-0, with Mize abstaining, to elect Mize mayor pro-tem.

In other action the council heard the recommendation of the committee named to select a new city attorney. Mize said the committee recommended the appointment of Walter Nelson as city attorney and Barney Fudge as assistant city attorney. Official action will be taken at the next meeting of the council.

GM, Ford report record earnings

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors and Ford, the two biggest U.S. automakers, reported record first-quarter profits and sales Thursday, with profits up 45 percent at GM and 28 percent at Ford over the same quarter last year.

Ford said all of its improvement came from overseas operations.

American Motors Corp. last week also reported record first-quarter profits of $32 million.

Troubled Chrysler Corp. has yet to report, and analysts are skeptical whether it can break even.

GM's profits were $1.26 billion, or $4.39 per share. In the first quarter last year, GM earned $870 million, or $3.03 per share. Ford's profits were $595 million, or $4.97 a share, compared with $466 million, or $3.93 per share, in the first quarter of 1978.

GM's sales rose 20 percent from $14.9 billion, the old record, to $17.9 billion. Ford's rose 26 percent, from $9.97 billion, also the old record, to $12.6 billion.

GM's previous first-quarter profit record was $903 million, or $3.14 per share, in 1977. Ford's was $483 million, $4.10 per share, also in 1977.

Ford said its profit from U.S. operations fell from $1.85 to $1.83 per share in the quarter, but earnings from operations outside the United States rose 51 percent from $2.08 to $3.14 per share.

GM, which did not separate the overseas contribution to profits, said its strong showing reflected a "continuing high level of demand for our cars and trucks" as well as a "recovery from the inefficiencies" caused by bad weather in last year's first quarter.

GM also reported its first year-to-year improvement in profit margin on sales since 1976, from 5.8 percent to 7.0 percent.

Ford said its good results overseas came from "higher unit sales and cost efficiencies" in Europe and Latin America, and the lower results at home stemmed from "continuing adverse effects of inflation on costs, as well as substantial outlays necessary to develop new vehicles with improved fuel efficiency and reduced emissions."

Ford sales in the United States rose 19 percent from $6.5 billion to $7.7 billion, but the profit margin on those sales fell from 3.4 percent in the 1978 quarter to 2.9 percent.

Overseas, sales rose 39 percent from $3.5 billion to $4.9 billion and the profit margin improved from 7.2 percent to 7.8 percent.

Worldwide, Ford's margin on sales was the same in both first quarters, 4.7 percent.

In numbers, GM's sales of cars, trucks and buses worldwide rose 5.8 percent from 2,335,000 to 2,470,000, while Ford's rose 11 percent from 1,625,000 to 1,803,000.

Ecuador vote to end dictatorship

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Ecuadorians will end their military dictatorship Sunday by electing a president and congress, becoming only the third country in South America to be ruled by a civilian democracy.

Soldiers and statesmen throughout South America likely are circling the date on their calendars, asking themselves if a South American military dictatorship can transfer power to elected civilian leaders.

There seems no turning back in Ecuador, an oil-producing country on the western bulge of the continent. The country, plagued with political instability in recent years, has been under military rule since February 1972.

The new president and 69 members of the national legislature elected Sunday are to be inaugurated along with a new constitution on Aug. 10.

The election has more than local significance. Civilian democracy is rare in military-dominated South America, existing only in Venezuela and Colombia. Two of Ecuador's Andean neighbors, Peru and Bolivia, are ruled by military dictatorships which also have promised a return to constitutional government.

The administration of President Carter has voiced support for the transfer of power in all three countries.

Bolivia tried last July 9 to elect a civilian president, but the results were ruled fraudulent. A general seized power, and in turn was overthrown by another general. New elections are scheduled for next July 1.

In Peru, the 11-year-old military regime has given a constituent assembly until July to write a new constitution. Elections have been promised to be followed by inauguration of a president and national legislature by the end of the year or early in 1980.

Only a month ago many Ecuadoreans doubted the regime seriously meant to hold the elections. But in recent weeks, the military rulers have repeatedly insisted nothing will change their minds.

"It's now up to the people to choose their president," Adm. Alfredo Poveda, the junta chief, said on April 11.

The short time until elections and some campaign violence has dissipated public apathy.

Six persons were shot and wounded in Arenillas, a coastal city, during a rally in early April for Sixto Duran Ballen, one of the two presidential candidates.

Duran Ballen's party denounced the shooting as an attempt on his life and made the same charge when two supporters were wounded by gunfire at a later rally in Atuntaqui, a town north of Quito.

The campaign's slow start was due partly to what one newspaper called the "Ecuadorian Watergate," which attracted more attention than the candidates.

The scandal involves Gen. Bolivar Jarrin, former interior minister, who has been accused of masterminding the November assassination of Abdón Calderon Munoz, a presidential candidate who finished near the bottom of the list in the July 16 elections.

On Thursday, Jarrin failed to appear at a military court inquiry into the slaying. Jarrin's lawyers, successful earlier in having the proceeding switched from a civilian to a military court, contended that generals are exempt from testifying in person.

They presented a written statement in which the general denied any implication in the slaying of Calderon Munoz. The court ruled that Jarrin must appear in person next Thursday.

Calderon Munoz was gunned down on Nov. 29 in Guayaquil, the country's largest city, and died in a Miami, Fla., hospital several days later.

He was a severe critic of the military regime and intended to run for Congress.

Campaigning was suspended at the end of March for several days following the death of former President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra.

Velasco, a populist who attracted the support of the poor, served as president five times.

High cattle prices affect PCA loans

By JOE BROWN
Farm Editor

Higher cattle prices had a direct effect on loan volume figures presented Thursday night at the 45th annual meeting of the Wichita Falls Production Credit Association.

In his annual report, Wayne Mullins, president, explained the average amount loaned per borrower in 1978 was $90,300 compared to $68,100 the previous year.

Mullins told those members attending in Wichita Falls (there will be a similar meeting Friday night in Breckenridge, Texas) that a considerable amount of this increase was due to higher cattle prices.

For example, he said the average loaned per borrower in 1968 was $30,033, or an increase of more than $60,000 in 10 years.

Mullins said the average loan volume for the year was $20,500,000 and the outstanding loan balance at the end of the year was $24,600,000, an all-time high.

Livestock prices became so high, especially for feedlot and stocker loans, that in the latter part of 1978, PCA signed an agreement with First-Wichita National Bank and Bowie National Bank to participate in their agricultural loans up to 90 percent of the loan.

"As of March 31 of this year, the outstanding balance of participation loans purchased was $10,300,000, which increased our loan volume to $34,000,000," said Mullins.

Two directors for the 10-county association are up for election, but the results of the voting won't be known until after the Friday night session in Breckenridge.

Directors whose terms are expiring are Herbert Fleming of Charlie, Texas, and L.B. Bellah of Woodson, Texas. Holdover directors are J.D. Craft of Jacksboro, Texas, Edward Furr of Olney, Texas, and Donald Ramsey of Oklahoma, Texas.

Guest speaker for both programs is Wray Finney, past president of the National Cattleman's Association from Oklahoma.

The Wichita Falls lending association has loaned about $336 million since receiving its charter in 1934, with $186 million of this amount being loaned the past five years.

Net losses on loans by the organization to date is $314,000.

Average rate of interest of the association in 1978 was 8.49 percent compared to 7.84 percent in 1977. Mullins said there has been a large increase in the cost of money and the PCA cost for funds borrowed in April was 9.77 percent.

Oklahoma centers aid 1,135 persons

LAWTON, Okla. — More than 1,135 people registered with the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration offices set up in Southwest Oklahoma to aid victims of the April 10 tornadoes.

More than 200 people applied for temporary housing, PDAA officials said.

Wichitan convicted of aggravated robbery

An eight-woman, four-man jury Thursday convicted Norman Claborn Gooding, 28, of aggravated robbery.

Gooding was convicted of the Jan. 4, 1978, robbery of four persons at a residence in the 1400 block of Monroe. James Thomas Cole, 24, was killed during the robbery.

The 30th District Court jury took less than 30 minutes to return the guilty verdict.

Cole was shot once in the side during a struggle that ensued after three men arrived at the house.

Judge Calvin Ashley set sentencing for 9 a.m. Friday. Defense attorneys said they will appeal the conviction.

Club's last dance Saturday

BURKBURNETT (Special) — Eddie Fulp of Fort Worth will be guest caller at the last dance of the season for the Swinging Star Dance Club.

The dance will begin with a grand march at 8 p.m. Saturday and will be at Square Dance Land in Wichita Falls.

Fulps will be joined in calling by E.B. and Betty Thompson, regular club callers.

Dick Buck, individual assistance officer, said the disaster assistance centers that operated last week in Lawton, Pruitt, Marlow, and Waurika "were highly successful operations."

The one-step disaster assistance centers have been closed, but Buck said individuals in need of aid may still apply for federal and state programs through local offices of those agencies.

Counties designated as eligible for federal assistance are Carter, Comanche, Cotton, Jefferson, Stephens and Tillman.

Anyone in that area who was affected by the April 10 tornadoes may visit a nearby government agency to apply for help. A published list of those offices is available by calling 1-800-522-0184 toll free from anywhere in Oklahoma.

Center cancels flea market

IOWA PARK (Special) — Iowa Park Recreational Activity Center has canceled the center's flea market originally scheduled Saturday, according to Ken Kuckenbecker, center director.

Germanfesters prepared for annual 'eat and run'

Muenster, Texas, is a little town with a big heart. Most of its inhabitants are descendants of a pioneering group of Germans who settled in the Lone Star State in the late 1800s.

The community, located on Highway 82, 70 miles east of Wichita Falls, takes great pride in its heritage and annually shares the fruits of its accomplishments with visitors who come from miles around to partake of activities in the Germanfest.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday people of all ages will be flocking to Muenster to feast upon such good things as hot, juicy sausages, sauerkraut and homemade bread. There'll be cheeses of all kinds and desserts that will send tasters into states of rapture — cakes, pies, apple strudel and strawberries a la everything.

To counteract gourmet gorging a "German Fun Run" will be held at 2 p.m. Saturday at Sacred Heart Football Field. Muenster expects as many as 2,000 runners, if the weather holds out.

From 4 p.m. to midnight Friday, grounds and booths will be open. At 6 p.m. there's accordion music and at 7 p.m. Barbie Hess will perform a German folk dance. A chug-a-lug contest gets under way at 7:30 p.m., and a street dance 8 p.m. to midnight climaxes that day's fun.

Besides the run, German music will be played 2-4 p.m. Saturday by NTSU German Band in the park. Sacred Heart Choral Group will entertain at 3 p.m. An old-fashioned horseshoe pitch is set for 3 p.m. Folk and polka dances plus a dance for visitors are planned up through 1 a.m. Sunday.

But it's not over yet. Grounds open 10 a.m. Sunday for more music and contests. An art show opens at 1 p.m. in Sacred Heart High School gym. At 2 p.m. there's a skate board tournament, more horseshoe pitching and a motorcycle rodeo. Closing ceremonies for this unusual, happy festival are scheduled for 10 p.m. Sunday. For those reluctant to leave Muenster and its hospitality, there will be a disco dance from 9 p.m. to midnight Sunday.

Top audience pleasers continue to show on area screens

With six movie screens dark — the Sikes Senter Six theaters have not yet reopened — film fans in Wichita Falls are faced with a narrower choice of movie fare for a few weeks.

However, Parker Square Cinemas continue to play a couple of excellent pictures. "The Deer Hunter" was named best picture of the year by the Academy. It is R-rated and stars Robert DeNiro, Christopher Walken and Meryl Streep in a penetrating story of Vietnam and its effect on a small group of Pennsylvania steelworkers. "The China Syndrome," rated PG, is an adventure-thriller with an unusually topical theme: what might happen if there were an accident in a nuclear power plant. Jane Fonda, Jack Lemmon and Michael Douglas star. Opening at the Wichita downtown is "Phantasm." It is billed as a scary horror tale of death stalking everywhere. It's rated R.

Twin Falls drive-in is offering a pair of PG comedies on the west screen, "Harper Valley PTA" and "Rabbit Test." On the east screen, "House of Shame" and "Girls in Bondage," both R, will be showing.

If you missed "Animal House," the R-rated picture about goings-on in a fraternity house, you can see it this weekend at the Palace in Burkburnett. John Belushi stars. It's rated R.

At the Grand in Electra, Mel Brooks' PG "Young Frankenstein" is on tap.

'PRAIRIE TOWN,' A MARVEL OF DETAIL, SHOWS SKILL OF ORT

Legacy of artist still lives through gifts of his works

By MARTHA STEIMEL
Arts Editor

A detailed, intricately-carved miniature from the old West, a mural, busts of famous men, an appealing carving of a Mexican broomtail horse — these are the legacy from William Ort.

He was a self-taught artist who spent most of his life working for other people, but the things he created found their way into the Dallas Museum of Fine Arts, Witte Museum in San Antonio, Highland Park Art Gallery and the homes of persons like Will Rogers. Ort carved a caricature of Rogers in Santa Monica, Calif., and on Sept. 30, 1933, received the wire reproduced to the right.

Ort was born in Boerne, Texas, and moved to Wichita Falls in 1923. He and his brother, the late Ludwig Ort, worked together on "Prairie Town," the delightful village scene that is now in the possession of their sisters, Edna Scott and Juel Ort, who live across the street from each other on Kemp Boulevard.

"Prairie Town" is a marvel of detail. Figures are dressed as they were in pioneer days. Horses are saddled or harnessed, ready to ride or pull a wagon. Shelves of a store are full of merchandise; a saloon has miniature bottles, and there is even a carefully duplicated shipping crate.

Ort's sisters say that William was the man who did all the figures and Louie — their nickname for Ludwig — constructed all the buildings in the tiny prairie town. The brothers were so concerned with the authenticity of their work they aged the miniature nails they used in laying the floors that are visible in the scene.

William Ort's flair for sculpture was put to work during World War II when he constructed replicas of enemy soldiers that were used in training here. He even made a trench and casualties and wounded inside it — life-sized figures that were almost scary, they were so real, Mrs. Scott said. They were done in plastic; Ort was one of the first to do sculpture with that material.

One of the busts he made was of Herbert Hoover. Ort had the pleasure of presenting it personally to the former president. He also has done a pair of busts, one of Will Rogers and one of Wiley Post, the pilot of the plane that crashed killing both men in Alaska in 1935.

There are literally hundreds of artistic mementoes that are treasured by Ort's sisters. Plaques, clippings, listings in biographical dictionaries, paintings with unusual three-dimensional effects.

There is one more: a fragile rose, grown from a seed planted before Ort's death at 78 last month. It, too, is treasured by his sisters.

Actor flying high on acrobatics

By LIZ SMITH
Chl. Trib.-N.Y. News

Always stay in your own movie! said Ken Kesey.

Steve McQueen, looking trim, slim and like the old McQueen, is being true to himself as usual these days. But if the backers who have just anted up millions for his two new films only knew the double jeopardy their money is in, they might not be as happy as Steve looks. The man who once raced motorcycles for kicks has bought himself an old biplane and is studying acrobatic flying. So if you see somebody doing loops and barrel rolls up and down the Pacific Coast, it's probably Steve!

OSCAR REDUX: It is the producer's option as to how the Academy Awards are handled each year, and this time, it was Jack Haley Jr.'s command decision that only the actual winners might pick up their Oscars. He decided there'd be no substitutes accepting for anyone else.

I was one of millions touched by the beauty, grace and gentleness of Laurence Olivier's speech. But on re-reading it, the thing turned out to be outlandish gibberish that has no meaning whatsoever. So the effect was all in the feeling, style and delivery.

Maybe the reason Johnny Carson was so good as the emcee is because he memorized everything he was going to say, refusing to depend on cue cards. Johnny wanted to be prepared for whatever happened and not have to rely on searching desperately for his place on the cards. It worked.

ABC-TV is ALREADY thinking of starting the awards very, very early in the California evening next year, so that the show does not end so late on the East Coast that it loses its viewers.

BET ON IT: NBC hasn't yet named the new Tom Snyder show that replaces Weekend, and hasn't signed the other talented, but I'll bet you'll see Jack Perkins and Christopher Wallace in the lineup. . . Dick Cavett's two-part stuff with Robin Williams will appear May 15-16 and is the only talk show the latter has done since becoming the nation's favorite Orkian. Robin ranges from serious to comedic, with completely unpredictable improvisations in which Cavett sometimes participates. . . The Chevy Chase National Humor Test on NBC come May 10 began strictly for laughs. But Chevy, Martin Mull and Tom Scott did a serious musical number together which the producers will leave in.

FABULOUS DOIN'S in the ruins of Pompeii — as Cole Porter used to warble. The American Museum of Natural History opened a show recently in New York that you have until June 22 to see. If you miss it you'll have missed one of the best museum offerings of our time. (What's more, tickets are on a first-come, first-served basis.)

This display has everything: sex, glamor, people as they were — preserved with beauty and blemishes — plus the violence of a volcanic eruption that took place 1,900 years ago and has the impact of a current headline from St. Vincent's Island. Pompeii AD 79 is cozy, witty, well-planned, beautifully set up, and presented in a friendly, non-intimidating fashion.

Naturally, it has art, culture, history, architecture, housewares, decorations, etc. But it also has a warm Italian (Roman) heart.

There is a unique audio tour. You carry a light sound wand — no wires, no controls. It allows you to wander. And at the end of seeing Pompeii as it was, you exit on a really dramatic and fascinating note. (Also marvelous: the Volcano exhibit downstairs.)

In Boston, Chicago and Dallas, 1,292,129 people saw Pompeii AD 79. A million are expected to see it in New York. This show makes the King Tut event look like a jewelry exhibit.

Stripper details her exotic story

By STEVE OLAFSON
Staff Writer

Whether you believe her, Princess Azure has an interesting story to tell.

The 5-foot-9 inch 23-year-old stripper has "a direct lineage from the royal family of Sicily," according to the promotional signs, and on the stage, she definitely has a direct line to her audience as she sheds her several layers of garments to the tunes of Diana Ross.

The question, of course, is how a direct descendant from the royal family of Sicily winds up in a topless bar in Wichita Falls, Texas.

After Thursday afternoon's matinee, she explained.

The princess' great uncle was Francesco II, the 15-year-old king of Sicily who took the throne in 1859. That, however, didn't last long as he was overthrown in 1860 by Garibaldi, who installed a military dictatorship. The princess' family moved to Italy after that, where her great-grandfather married an Austrian princess, moved to Austria, gave birth to Princess Azure's grandfather, who eventually moved to Rome.

Once in Rome, the well-traveled family had to go to America to seek its fortune, where the princess' father settled in Albany, N.Y., "committed the unforgivable sin" of marrying an Apache-Irish woman from Georgia, and eventually fathered the princess, who was born in Orlando, Fla.

The plot thickens after that. The dark-eyed princess grew up in different parts of the country. She took tap dancing and ballet beginning at age 5. At age 7, she was doing Swan Lake on her tiptoes.

Along the way, the princess spent four years in Puerto Rico, "where I ran around like one of the natives — naked half the time or just in a pair of shorts."

At the budding age of 13, her father hit upon the idea of sending his daughter to work as a go-go dancer at the CPO Club at the Naval Air Station in Norfolk, Va., so she could earn her own spending money. She didn't take her clothes off, but her long, brown hair was just as erotic as the naked flesh to the men in the audience.

From 13 to 18, the princess plied the trade of a go-go dancer until finally, at age 18, she took the plunge to become a stripper. She's been at it ever since.

Today, she travels the country 50 weeks a year in a green

Ford van, accompanied by an extremely large Saint Bernard ("he's my burglar alarm") and her 40-year-old husband Mickey, who doubles as her personal manager and bodyguard.

Life isn't always a bowl of cherries in the world of a stripper, but as the princess said, "the 9-to-5 world is not for me."

"The main thing I like about it is the variety. There is no way I can get bored and I tend to get bored very easily."

Bored indeed! Her travels have taken her from one corner of the country to another, and along the way, Princess Azure said, "I've been raped numerous times, beaten up, robbed, stabbed, shot at and about everything else ... People also have put things in my drink like LSD and Spanish Fly."

As an added side attraction, there is always the audience to keep the princess occupied.

"You should have been here last Monday night," she recalled. "There was a crew of drunks in here who kept tugging at my dress, pulling me from one side of the stage to another. It's one of the few times I ever pitched a temper tantrum and walked off stage."

"I have a three strikes and you're out policy ... the fourth time and I give a knuckle sandwich."

And her favorite town to play? None other than Waco, Texas, home of Baylor University, said the princess, who sports a 38-24-36 figure.

Princess Azure deplores the state of her art today. Exotic dancers, she explained, used to have more refinement and class than strippers, "but today the emphasis seems to be on who can outgross the other."

"A good entertainer should get her audience involved in her show," she said. "Anybody can get up and take their clothes off. It has all the passion of washing one's hair."

But when her dancing days are over, the princess has all the middle-class dreams of many Americans. So when the spotlight goes out for Princess Azure, she and her husband hope to settle down on a farm, where the princess said she plans on having "a whole horde of little ones" who will continue the direct line from the royal family of Sicily.

'60 Minutes' interviews Carson

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Carson says in an interview with CBS's "60 Minutes" that ABC may be "doing a little stroking, as all networks do," in an effort to attract his services should he leave "The Tonight Show" before his contract expires in 1981.

"They ... made no direct overtures of my coming to the network," Carson tells Mike Wallace in discussing a recent, informal meeting with ABC executives. "I would assume that when somebody has you socially for dinner — I'm not that naive — that they might say, 'Hey, it would be nice possibly if Johnny Carson worked over here.'"

To Wallace's question, "Would you go?" Carson replies "I can't answer that."

Carson's contact with ABC apparently was related to his appearance as host of the Academy Awards ceremonies April 9, broadcast by ABC.

The "60 Minutes" segment, taped April 15 at Carson's home in Bel Air, Calif., will be broadcast Sunday at 7 p.m. EDT.

CBS had intended to use the footage in a profile of the entertainer, to be aired in the fall. But when the story broke last week that Carson might try to terminate his contract with NBC before it expires, the show's producers decided to edit some of the film for immediate broadcast.

In the report, which runs just under 14 minutes, Carson denies he fought with Fred Silverman, NBC's president, over the amount of time he now puts in as host of the late-night talk show, and sidesteps Wallace's repeated attempts to pin down his salary.

The segment includes interviews with Carson's wife, Joanna, the entertainer's sidekick and friend, Ed McMahon, and Fred deCordova, producer of "The Tonight Show."

Throughout the report, Carson is characteristically funny, telling Wallace in response to a question about Silverman's reported desire that he appear more often, "Well, I don't plan to do a guest spot on 'Supertrain' if that's what he means."

The "60 Minutes" segment was produced by David Lowe Jr., who, ironically, began his own career as a cue-card boy for Carson while Carson was host of "Who Do You Trust?" in the early 1950s. It was Lowe's relationship with Carson, as well as contacts the entertainer had previously with Wallace, that apparently led to the rare interview. The Wallace segment was the last at CBS for Lowe, who will leave the network to set up his own production company.

GRAHAM, Texas (Special) — The handsome, two-story country French home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Garvey, located 10 miles north of Graham near Jean, came about because the couple wanted their son, Dale, 12, to have the experience of rural life.

Myrl Garvey said her husband announced one day, "I want to move to the country before Dale gets any older."

"I was perfectly happy to stay where I was for the rest of my days," Mrs. Garvey said. But instead, she went to work on house plans, and within four months was ready for her home to be built. That was more than a year ago, and now the beautiful home is finished.

With the help of their architect, Clarence Wilson of Jean, the Garveys selected a rolling hill on their land as the site of their new home.

"First we dug a 430-foot water well, going through the upper and lower Trinity for an abundance of soft water," she said. "I had never built a house before, but it was a great experience and everything went according to schedule."

Because her husband is a busy school principal in Graham, Mrs. Garvey took on the construction supervisor's job. A trailer was moved to the site and she spent almost every day there.

Rock was hauled from the 6666 Ranch near Guthrie, Texas, and Jessie Molina and his father, whom Mrs. Garvey described as real artists, did the rock work. This included the outside walls, two inside fireplaces and the gate entrance. The Garvey's cattle brand, "3G" was intricately worked into the gate entrance and also over the fireplace.

Garvey, who is quite energy conscious, planned the air conditioning system and their total electric home was divided into six zones with six units and six ceiling fans.

Mrs. Garvey has decorated with a lot of mirrors, and such imported items as beveled leaded glass double front doors, alabaster slate terrazzo for the entrance hall, Spanish tile, chandeliers and wallpaper from Europe.

Using furniture she already had, Mrs. Garvey featured her late mother-in-law's console organ as the focal point in the living room. In the dining room she has an antique round oak dining table that seats 12.

Coziest room in the house is the den with its ceiling-high rock fireplace and earth tone colors. Sliding doors open onto a covered patio and swimming pool. The kitchen adjoins the den "so we can be together while I cook," she said.

On the north wing of the house is Garvey's office which has a huge desk from Mexico below a ceiling fan.

White louvered swinging doors open into the garden room, with a lime green, yellow and white color theme. Antique butcher blocks and meat grinders line one wall. They originally belonged to the C. F. Harman store in Jean.

"We will do the canning, flower arranging, and keep all Joe's hunting 'mess' in here," Myrl said.

The second level of the house features two bedrooms connected by a bath and powder room. Their son chose royal blue and red, school colors, for decorating his room.

A game room extends the entire length of the second story. On one end is a rock fireplace. A sun deck opens off the game room, with a staircase leading to the swimming pool below.

For landscaping, the Garveys plan on putting in plants dug from the pasture among the pebbles.

"We love the location. We can see the lights from nearby towns of Jean, Olney and Loving at night."

Jacksboro couple notes 75th wedding anniversary

JACKSBORO, Texas (Special) — Owners and operators of a small, family-run bakery in Jacksboro in the early 1920s, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse D. Bynum, noted their 75th wedding anniversary Tuesday.

The formal celebration was held last Saturday night at Leisure Lodge and was attended by about 30 friends and relatives.

The Bynums were married in Jacksboro April 24, 1904. They operated a bakery until 1928 when they moved to Lubbock where he worked in a bakery. The couple moved back to Jacksboro a month ago.

The Bynums reared seven children, five of whom are still living. They also have a number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

One of their granddaughters, Mrs. Rusty Bynum McLaughlin of Longmont, Colo., noted that the Bynums "have witnessed during the course of their marriage: the change from horses to automobile, the invention of airplanes, two global wars, the roaring twenties, the Great Depression, the New Deal, atomic power, nuclear energy, man on the moon, heart transplants, old math, new math, and the back to basics movement."

"Theirs is truly a devotion of life worthy of recognition," said Mrs. McLaughlin, who attended the anniversary fete. Bynum is 95; Mrs. Bynum, 93.

The couple's five children include M.O. Bynum and Mrs. Jack Durfee, both of Jacksboro; Mrs. Jim Mullins of Fort Worth; Mrs. Wes Youngblood of Lubbock; and Mrs. Bob Umels of Seattle, Wash.

ELLA ARNOLD

Auxiliary chief sets first visit

Mrs. Ella Arnold, state president of the Ladies auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will make her first official visit to District 15 in Graham, Texas, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Arnold is a native of Victoria and is a 25-year member of Victoria auxiliary No. 4146.

She has held nine major state chairmanships and many elected offices at all levels. She was named state president of the 35,000-member organization at the close of the state convention in San Antonio last summer.

Mrs. Arnold's theme for the year is "Let There be Peace and Let It Begin With Us."

Mrs. Jo Ann Cavinder of Iowa Park, district president, will be in charge.

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: HELP! We're drowning. In debt, that is. Inflation, foolishness, credit cards, and no will power have combined to put my husband and me right behind that well-known eight-ball.

We are honorable people and

Ann Landers Says

Better shred credit card, pay bills will pay what we owe, but it's going to take a long time. The sleepless nights caused by dunning letters and phone calls are beginning to get to both my husband and me.

There must be other couples with young children who are in the same kettle of fish. Please tell us what to do. — Once Out — Never Again

Dear O.: Welcome to the club. Here's a plan of action for people like you.

Go in person, if it is humanly possible, to the store manager or credit chief of all the places where you owe money. Tell them you are financially strapped but have every intention of paying your bill as soon as you are able. Ask for their patience and understanding. You'll get it.

Next — go to the bank where you do business and ask to talk to the credit counselor. Learn if it makes sense for you to take out a loan so you can pay off everyone and owe just the bank. Last step: Go home. Get a scissors and cut your credit cards into small pieces — and vow to stay out of the stores.

Child abuse inquiry slated

A three-member committee from Wichita County Child Welfare Board will contact the "proper county officials" to discuss reported problems in prosecution of child abuse cases.

While naming that panel, the board also authorized Dr. Earle Crawford, chairman, to name another committee of "two or three" to make recommendations on expanding the 10-member board.

The mission to the courthouse, and a conference with county officials, was assigned Dr. Crawford, Dr. Earl Hogard and Weldon Guest.

Members of the committee on expansion were not immediately named.

Jim Jones, supervisor of the child welfare unit of Family Court Services, again discussed problems case workers encountered in attempting to bring child abuse cases to court.

At one point, he distributed pictures of a 2-year-old child who he said had been sexually abused. This case, he said, was not prosecuted for the reason there was no corroborating witness.

After Jones spoke of other frustrations in the legal procedure, Dr. Crawford then asked Jones if he despaired of anything being done.

Dr. Crawford then said if something could not be done to rectify the problems that prevented the board from helping children from being abused, "then I will resign from this board rather than to permit this situation from going on indefinitely."

Later, the board came up with its mission to the courthouse and conference with the "proper county officials."

Where you can help!

(Editor's Note: Many individuals are concerned with what they can do to help those who have been tornado victims with specific needs, such as doing laundry, transporting people to appointments or providing hot meals and supplies. To offer information on any small, individual aid that can be given, the following column will run daily in the Wichita Falls Times and Record News family pages.)

● Marjorie Booker, district supervisor in charge of the Texas Rehabilitation Commission office at 1000 Brook in Wichita Falls, reports that a client whom the commission placed in employment needs some additional help in repair of his wheelchair, braces and crutches. Call 322-7887.

● The Rev. W. C. Harting, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, where three pickup truck loads of clothing, food and supplies were received from four Lutheran congregations in Dallas, said the clothes have been sorted to size and placed in the church basement.

"Those who suffered loss are welcome to come by between the hours of 8 a.m.-noon and 1-5 p.m. at the church, 11th and Holiday.

"In addition to clothing there also are food, pots and pans, bedding and a few items of furniture," Harting said.

Additional clothing has arrived from Houston, Cypress, Dallas, Little Rock, Ark., and Round Rock, Texas. "From phone calls we have received more clothing and a variety of items are coming in; we are discouraging their sending more clothing because it is in plentiful supply," he said.

Clothing is available in sizes from infants to adults.

● Sandwiches are available at St. Mark's Methodist Church, 4319 McNeil, furnished by Floral Heights United Methodist Church, 2214 10th. Also at Floral Heights Scout Hut across from the church there is clothing, including work clothes, baby diapers and children's clothes, bedding, linens and towels.

● Mrs. John Barker, volunteer services chairman for the American Red Cross, lists two primary needs.

"One of our big needs is for people to help us prepare food that is being distributed in vans by the Red Cross throughout the city, like sandwiches, coffee and this kind of thing.

Another need is skilled clerical help, typists mainly. "We need to see them here at the Red Cross Volunteer Office in the Naval Reserve Building at the corner of Fifth and Denver," she said.

● Peggy Darter, volunteer coordinator for Community Council Voluntary Action Center, said: "We need volunteers willing to transport and assist elderly women with grocery shopping. This need has arisen because the Red Cross car that was previously used in this work is now being used in disaster assistance. Someone or a group with a station wagon would be wonderful, as we could arrange for several from the same neighborhood to go at the same time. One morning per week would be sufficient."

Volunteers should call Mrs. Darter at 723-4194.

Mangum hospital to be carpeted

MANGUM, Okla. (Special) — The Ladies Auxiliary of Mangum City Hospital is planning to carpet the hallways of the patient area of the hospital, according to Mrs. Clarence Fike, president.

Mrs. Fike said she believed it to be a "very worthwhile project."

The overall cost should be around $3,000, said Mrs. Frank Edmonson, committee chairman. She said the auxiliary will appreciate any small or large gifts from individuals, businesses and organizations. Contributions may be deposited at First National Bank or the Guarantee State Bank.

Other officers of the organization are Mmes. Roy Doyle and E.K. Hulsey.

Utility issues post decline, DJI off 6.49

By WILLIAM GLASGALL
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Nervousness over the future of nuclear power pushed utility stocks lower Thursday as the stock market retreated in the face of discouraging inflation news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which advanced in each of the past four sessions, dropped 6.49 to 860.97. Declines led advances among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues by nearly 2-1, and Big Board volume rose to 32.40 million shares from 31.75 million Wednesday.

The Commerce Department said consumer prices rose by 1 percent in March after gaining by 1.2 percent in February. White House inflation-fighter Alfred Kahn warned there will be "bad months ahead," but said he didn't think inflation would reach double-digit levels for the whole year.

After the stock market closed, the Federal Reserve said the nation's basic money supply shot upward by $4.1 billion in the latest week. Analysts said the Fed, which has eased its monetary policy recently, may be forced to tighten again, forcing interest rates higher.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission again postponed its decision on a possible closing of eight atomic power plants for safety reasons. The plants concern reactors built by J. Ray McDermott's Babcock & Wilcox subsidiary and are similar to the Three Mile Island nuclear plant in Pennsylvania, damaged by an accident in March.

McDermott fell 1 to 16 1/2 in active trading. Duke Power, which warned a nuclear plant shutdown might lead to "rotating blackouts" in the South, dropped 1 1/2 to 16. Southern Co. fell 1/4 to 13 1/2.

A shutdown would "be an extreme hardship" for Duke, said analyst Mary Dunlea at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields. "They'll be short of power the minute they close their plant."

General Public Utilities, owner of the Three Mile Island plant, reduced its quarterly dividend from 45 cents to 25 cents a share and announced lower earnings. Although a dividend reduction or suspension had been expected, an actively-traded GPU fell 1 1/2 to 10 1/2.

J.R. leads Houston by Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Pitcher J.R. Richard blasted a home run and Craig Reynolds drove in three runs with a double and a single Thursday to lead the Houston Astros to a 6-2 victory over Chicago, snapping a five-game Cub winning streak.

Richard, 4-0, hit his first homer of the season and the eighth of his career in the third inning off loser Lynn the game?

"That's because I have heart," said Richard. "You just don't want to come out when you have that big lead but you can't jeopardize a whole season for one game."

The Astros added two runs in the fourth on run-scoring singles by Bobby Warson and Alan Ashby. Reynolds doubled home a run in the fifth and singled in a pair in the sixth.

The Cubs got to Richard for a run in the fifth when Steve Ontiveros singled, took second on a walk to Bobby Murcer and scored on a single by Ted Sizemore.

Joe Sambito took over for Richard at the start of the sixth and earned his third save although he was touched for Jerry Martin's first homer in the eighth inning.

Richard allowed only a leadoff single in the third to Barry Foote before the Cubs reached him for a run in the fifth. After Sizemore singled to score Ontiveros, Richard fanned pinch batter Larry Bliittner, walked Ivan DeJesus to load the bases but got Scot Thompson to hit into an inning-ending force play.

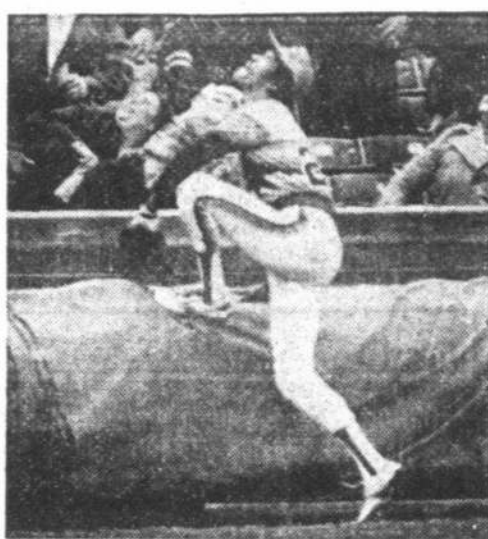

Houston's Terry Puhl stretched his hitting streak to 12 games when he singled opening the fifth inning. Puhl went to third on Dave Kingman's error on the hit and scored on Reynolds' double.

Cubs reliever Ray Burris loaded the bases on walks to Art Howe, Richard and Puhl before Reynolds delivered his two-run single in the sixth.

Bill Buckner extended his hitting streak to 11 games when he greeted Sambito with a single in the sixth. Ontiveros also singled but Sambito got Murcer to foul out, then fanned Foote.

Martin's homer was the first run allowed by Sambito this season after 102-3 innings.

The loss snapped a five-game winning streak for the Cubs.

Hawks, Sixers victorious

104-86 victory evens series

Box in scoreboard

ATLANTA (AP) — Steve Hawes and Eddie Johnson scored 12 points apiece in the second half Thursday night to give the Atlanta Hawks a 104-86 victory over the Washington Bullets and deadlock their National Basketball Association quarterfinal series at three games each.

The series will end Sunday at Landover, Md., where the Hawks have recorded two of their playoff victories over the defending NBA champions.

Atlanta took an early 8-6 lead in the game and never trailed thereafter. The Bullets did come back to gain two ties early in the second quarter before Atlanta went ahead to stay on a 12-foot jumper by Johnson to make it 35-33 with just over 7½ minutes remaining in the opening half.

Philly wins, 120-97

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Julius Erving hit 32 points, 24 of them in the second half, and four other Philadelphia players were in double figures Thursday night as the 76ers thrashed lethargic San Antonio, 120-97, to cut the Spurs' lead to 3-2 in their best-of-seven NBA playoff series.

Erving, making an unusual start at guard to enable Philadelphia to use a larger lineup, got 16 points in the third quarter as the 76ers built up leads of as many as 23 points.

The anemic Spurs, who led the NBA in offense this season, did not score in the first three and a half minutes of the game, and managed a paltry 17 points in the first quarter. They shot only 22 percent in that period.

Philadelphia held a 50-38 lead at half-time and increased that margin to 85-64 at the end of three quarters. The 76ers led by as many as 27 points in the final period.

MSU netters' 'second season' opens with district tournament

By DOUG BROWN
Staff Sports Writer

The Midwestern State University men's tennis team enters its "second season" Friday at Texas Wesleyan College in Fort Worth, and two main ingredients are the key to whether the Indians will field a winning recipe.

The first ingredient is the play of the Tribe itself. After going 10-12 in dual meets this season, the MSU men are quickly realizing when they're playing good, they're good and can compete with any team in the district.

The second ingredient will be the play of the other district teams. The University of Dallas, Texas Southern, Texas Wesleyan and Midwestern are expected to fight it out for the team title. MSU coach Loren Wood believes his Indians will have a shot at the title if the other squads help knock each other out and no one team runs away with the tournament.

"The University of Dallas defeated the defending national champ (East Texas State) earlier this season, Texas Wesleyan returns almost everyone from a team that won District 8 last year and finished 11th in the nation, and Texas Southern probably has the best player in Gabriel Odudu. So the only way we can win it is if the field is balanced and no one runs away with it,"

Area golf season in second week

By TOM SELTZER
Staff Sports Writer

Area golfers will have their choice of tournaments as the 1979 season enters its second week with tournaments at Sheppard, Jacksboro, Knox City and Throckmorton.

Bill Dollar, Sam Milam, Roy Reid and Robert Cates already have a victory under their belts by notching the Henrietta Four-Man Scramble title, the season opener, last week at the Clay County Country Club. But many golfers will be dusting off their sticks for the first time Saturday at one of the four locations.

The second annual Sheppard Air Force Base Partnership will have a strong field with Bill Holstead and D.H. Alexander back to defend their title. The highly-touted team of Bob and Gary Henderson are the top challengers, with the Sheppard team of Link Pauley-Gil Ek and the city team of Todd Finkler-Jim Simpson also among the favorites.

The Sheppard course is recovering rapidly from a tough winter and will be in good shape. But because of a few bare spots, Tournament Director E.C. Black and his associates have decided to play winter rules so golfers will have an easier time on the demanding course.

There will be four flights, and golfers will be flighted, based on past records, before the 36-hole tournament starts. Championship flight players will tee off from the blue markers, playing a 7074 yard course and other flights will play the course 400 yards shorter.

Plenty of spots are still available, and entries will be accepted through Friday evening. A buffet is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Saturday night.

The popular Jacksboro Partnership has a full field again, with the 72nd team signing up last Sunday, according to club pro James Gammon.

Teams will qualify through Friday for places in four flights and the 36-hole event will begin Saturday.

Buddy Grisham-John Butler have the low qualifying round of 67. Edward Ball and Richard Osborn of Wichita Falls are also among the favorites. The course is reported to be in good shape.

Knox City is also hosting a partnership at the 6178-yard, par 71 course. About 30 teams have entered the 36-hole event, but more entries are needed, according to Club President Kenneth Crowover.

The teams entered hail from a wide area including Vernon, Lubbock, Munday, and Olney. Among the favorites are teams are Wayne Zeissel-Phillip McAfee from Munday, David Strickland-Buck Evert from Haskell. Teams will be flighted after Saturday's opening round.

The Throckmorton Invitational has the distinction of being one of the few individual tournaments in the area. Golfers will play 36 holes of medal play and will be flighted according to their qualifying scores.

Franklin, Driver advance

Rider's boys' doubles team of Philip Franklin and Robert Driver, seeded third in a field of 18 teams here at the Regional II-AAAA meet, advanced to the semifinals with victories over teams from Arlington and L.D. Bell.

After defeating Williams-Bowers of Arlington 7-5, 6-0, the Rider duo downed Jergensen-Sanders of Bell 6-2, 6-2 in the quarterfinals. Franklin and Driver will face Hayes-Johnson of Tyler Lee, who upset the No. 2 seeded team, in the semifinals at 9 a.m. Friday. The other two teams still going are Jones-Menard of Bell, seeded first, and King-Massad of Tyler Lee, seeded fourth.

A win in the semifinals would put them in the Class AAAA state tournament.

Wichita Falls High's doubles team of Kenny Huddleston-David McCright lost their first round match to Stoker-Baker of Arlington 7-5, 7-5.

Former tennis pro leads PGA event

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Frank Connor, who played pro tennis before turning to the golf tour, fired a 7-under-par 65 for the first-round lead Thursday in the $250,000 New Orleans Open.

"Just one of those days when everything went right," said the 33-year-old Connor, who birdied 5 of the first 6 holes he played on the 7,040-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

"I was driving well. My irons were going right at the flag and I was putting good," he said. "It's a great combination — a combination I haven't had very often in the past."

Connor, possibly the only man who has played in the U.S. Open in both tennis and golf, was a decided outsider coming into this event. He hadn't qualified for the final two rounds in his last four starts and, in four years on the golf tour, hadn't made traveling expenses.

"This was the best golf I've ever played," he said. "I've had scores this good before, but I've never played this well."

The stocky man from San Antonio, who was ranked ahead of Dick Stockton on the tennis team at Trinity University, held a 1-stroke lead over veteran Jim Colbert and Doug Tewell, tied for second at 66.

Allen Miller and Phil Hancock shot 67's in the hot, muggy, overcast weather.

Lee Trevino, who once won this event without making a bogey for 72 holes, again escaped a bogey and topped the group at 68, 4 under par and only 3 back. Also at that figure were Bruce Lietzke, Tim Simpson and Lindy Miller.

Spectacular Bid wins Derby tuneup

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Spectacular Bid prepped for the Kentucky Derby by easily winning the $121,550 Blue Grass Stakes Thursday at Keeneland.

Now it's on to Churchill Downs and the Derby May 5 for the Hawksworth Farm colt who has won 10 straight races, all of them stakes. He is favored to make the Derby victory No. 11.

With Ronnie Franklin, the often-criticized 19-year-old jockey in the saddle, Spectacular Bid galloped home seven lengths in front of Lot o' Gold, who also is headed for the Derby. Bishop's Choice was another eight lengths back and 10½ lengths in front of Pianist.

Spectacular Bid ran the 1½ miles on a fast track in 1:50 and paid $2.10 with win betting

Pacers tourney set at Scotland

The annual Pacers' Women's Slow Pitch softball tournament begins a three-day run Friday at Scotland Park with 12 top entrants from Oklahoma and Texas.

Defending open state champ Lubbock is the favorite to win the double-elimination tourney and Morris Built of Abilene, last year's runnerup here, is expected to make a strong bid.

The top hopeful from Wichita Falls appears to be the Outsiders. Other Wichita Falls teams include the Senatorettes, Filles, Dusters and Certain-Ted.

The tournament kicks off at 6:55 p.m. Friday with the first of four games. Saturday's action will begin at 8 a.m. and will run until almost midnight.

The finals are scheduled for 3:15 p.m. Sunday. All games will be played at Scotland Park. Other entries include Midway, Burkburnett, Grandfield, Electra and Waurika.

Individual and team trophies will be awarded.

MSU netters play today

Wood said.

Shane Browning, Kip Koross, Dave Flack and Robert Hernandez are four players who are currently playing some of their best tennis of the season, just in time for the district tournament. Browning has posted a 15-7 record in dual meets. Koross finished at 11-11, Flack at 10-11 and Hernandez at 12-9. Other MSU players making the trip will be Johnny Chappell and Keith Karstetter.

First-round action in the single elimination singles and doubles tournament will begin at 8 a.m. Friday. The top team and top players in both singles and doubles will represent the district at the regional tournament, May 16-19 in Ada, Okla.

MSU baseball team playing now-or-never

It may not be World Series time, and it may not be the professional ranks, but Friday afternoon in Dallas two collegiate baseball teams will be knocking heads in a series just as crucial for them as last year's October meeting between the big boys.

Midwestern State and Dallas Baptist, two teams that were given new life after the forfeiture of nine Texas Athletic Conference contests by Texas Wesleyan, will be trying to eliminate each other from playoff contention with a four-game weekend series starting with a 1 p.m. double-header Friday at Dallas Baptist. Two more games will be played a 1 p.m. Saturday.

Lubbock Christian, 12-4 in league play, is virtually assured of taking first place in the TAC, but second place — and the possible playoff berth that goes along with it — is far from wrapped up. Dallas Baptist enters weekend action 11-9 in TAC play and Midwestern is 7-9.

Should Midwestern still be in the running for second place in the conference standings after the DBC series, then the Indians will have to make up a four-game series at Lubbock Christian — a series that was originally scheduled the week of the tornado.

"We've got to take three of four games from Dallas Baptist to have a good shot at second place," MSU coach Mark Benedetto said. "If we don't, we'll still come back to Wichita Falls with our head held high because we realize this is the first winning season in MSU history and we have nothing to be ashamed of. We accomplished all our goals that we set at the first of the season."

Midwestern is 25-15-1 on the season.

TAC notes

Dallas Baptist's Kevin Smith has taken over the leadership in the batting race with a .453 average. Midwestern's Dave Connacher is second at .438. Other MSU players in the top 10 include Steve Newell at .357 and Joe Guillot at .330. Other MSU batting leaders include Danny Hagen at .314, Rick Loesch at .311, Don Reed at .293 and Brett Patty at .288.

Connacher leads the league in triples with five.

Texas Wesleyan's Rick Eberly and Lubbock Christian's Tim Leslie lead the league in home runs with 14 each. Midwestern's Joe Guillot has 10 and Rick Loesch has nine.

In runs batted in, Leslie leads with 60. Midwestern's top RBI man is Loesch with 48. (LCC has played 12 more games than Midwestern.)

MSU's Frazier leads the TAC in innings pitched (75), strikeouts (84), earned run average (2.52) and is tied with TWC's Steve Daniels for most wins with seven.

Regional track

12 city athletes have chance to go to state

By MARK PEEL
Staff Sports Writer

DENTON, Texas — Nine members of the Wichita Falls High track team and three from Rider will have a chance of earning a ticket to the state meet in Austin, but there's a couple of steps they'll have to take first and they won't be easy.

Competition begins in the Region II-AAAA track meet Friday at North Texas State University's Fouts Field and out of all four regions in Texas, Region II is considered by many to be the toughest. The top two finishers in each event will have an opportunity to run at the state meet at the University of Texas which will be run May 10-12.

But first, for the runners, there's the matter of making it to the finals after Friday's preliminaries where only eight of sometimes 24 entrants earn the right to come back and compete Saturday. And in the field events, at least for weightmen John Blue of Rider and Mark Broadway of Old High, they will be facing some of the stiffest competition of the season in the form of Dallas Jefferson's Michael Carter.

Carter, the defending state champ, has already broken the national record three times this year shot put with his latest being 74-8 1/2. He's also thrown over 200 feet in the discus.

Blue leads this area in the shot with a 58-8 toss and Broadway's thrown 53-3 3/4. Broadway's also entered in the discus where his season best is 138-5.

Rider's Brad Robertson won the pole vault at the District 7-AAAA meet last week as he cleared 14-0 1/2, a personal career best. Paul Bratloff of Dallas Skyline is the top regional entrant at 15-2, but Robertson said this week that with the new pole he's got, he feels he can break the 15-foot barrier.

Coyote Ricky Cobb cleared 6-4 in the high jump for the first time last week at district, but the top entry at regional has gone 7-0 and there are 13 entered at 6-5.

The Coyotes' sprint relay team of Earl Barrett, Harold Russell, Carlos Morgan and James Powell turned in a district-winning and season-best time of 42.57 last week, but Dallas Madison won it's district with a 41.4 and there are six teams entered at Denton with sub-42.0 times.

Old High hurdler John Barnhart, who has run a 14.7 before, is entered in the 120 highs while Russell also qualified for the 100-yard dash. Russell's best century clocking this season was a 10.0 and Garland's Herkie Walls tops regional entrants at 9.4.

The Coyotes' Charles Campbell's season best time of 39.5 in the 330 intermediate hurdles comes close to the top regional entry of 38.6. Kenny Montgomery of Rider won the 220 dash at district with a season best of 22.3. Again, Walls is the top entrant in this race with a 21.5.

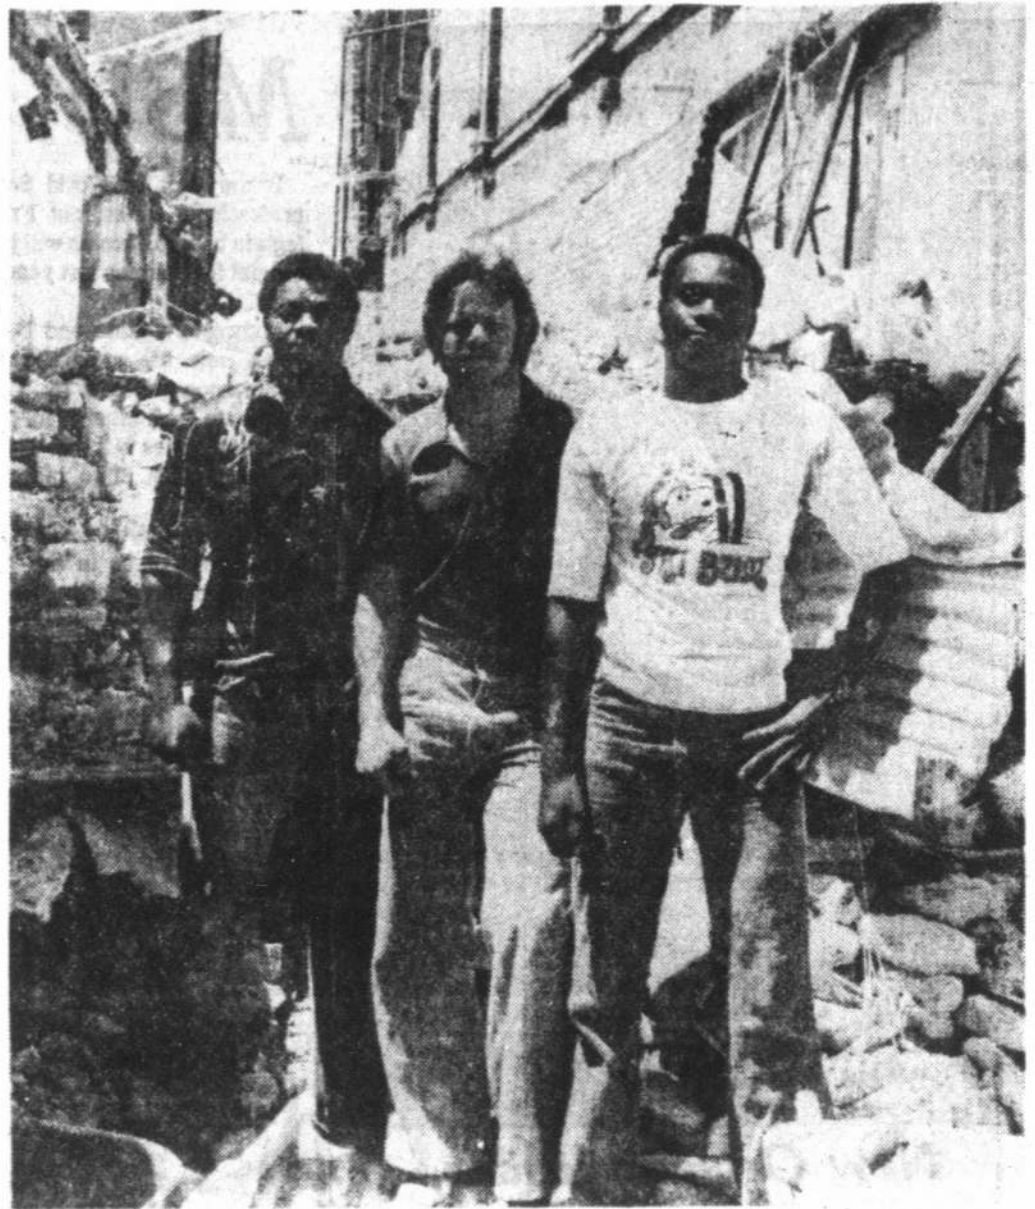

Powell, James Austin, Barnhart and Barrett placed second at district last week with a 3:27.40.

but the week before turned in a 3:25.7 at Azle. Dallas Madison is also the top entrant for the mile relay with a district-winning time of 3:13.6.

Rider coach Jay Hill, who took 11 athletes to regional last year, said he thinks all three of his entrants this year have a good chance of going to state. "John's capable of throwing 61-0 — he's done it in practice and 61-0 will get him to state," said Hill. "Brad's capable of 14-9 in the pole vault and that will get him to state, too. Kenny has a good chance because we'll be running on cinders which is what he's used to practicing on while a lot of those kids are used to all-weather tracks. If the wind's not blowing him in the face, he can really go."

On the other hand, Coyote coach Herb Marvel said he's taking a realistic view about the meet. "Because our region is so strong, realistically, we don't have all that good of a chance," Marvel commented. "What we're going to accomplish is to set some school records and just do the best we can."

Two of those records include the high jump where Cobb will be shooting to best 6-5 and the sprint relay where the Old High record is 42.1. About the sprint relay mark, Marvel said, "Last week we ran a 42.5, so 42.1 is not out of our grasp. In the mile relay, I think we'll have to run 3:20.0 or better to make the finals. We might make it with 3:22.0 or 3:23.0, but I'm not sure. If we can just get in the finals, it will be a moral victory for us."

Rain causes muddy bass tourney

By JOHN THOMPSON
Outdoor Writer

Early reports indicate this may be a rough weekend for the hundreds who will be converging on Lake Livingston this weekend for the state bass tournament.

Some of the contestants who are on the lake early for some searching are finding lots of muddy water churned up by recent rains of five and six inches.

A good number, who had intended to fish Livingston this entire week, have already pulled off and gone to other waters. No doubt most of them will return for the tournament, but they just can't handle that high, muddy water with few fish for a full week.

The worst hit creeks seem to be on the north and west sides of the lake, and with the amount of water which seems to be present, there is little doubt the entire lake will be muddy in a short while.

There is no limit on the number of fishermen who may enter this oldest and largest bass tournament in the nation. Something over 1,000 will be on hand, and everyone has a great time regardless of whether or not they catch any fish.

Entry fees are low, $6 for a two-man team, $5 for an individual, husband and wife, father-son or father-daughter team.

There are no big prizes given either, just nice trophies which are priceless to those who want to say they once placed in a state bass tournament.

Headquarters will be set up at Waterwood on the west side of Livingston. It's a little late to pre-register, so simply do so at the lake if you want to compete.

Along a somewhat different sort of fishing contest vein, a big new striper tournament has just been announced for Lake Whitney.

Termed the first annual Striper Derby, this contest is being co-sponsored by the publishers of Striper Magazine and Wilkins Harbor Resort out of Clifton.

The tournament will begin at daylight on Saturday and continue non-stop until 3 p.m. Sunday. The largest striper weighed in at that time will be worth $1,000, and there will also be prizes awarded through 40 places.

Entry fee for the tournament will be $10 per person, and the sponsors are expecting this to be a big hit with the fishing families who frequent the popular lake.

Striper Magazine will also sponsor a free fishing clinic in conjunction with the tournament on Friday. It will be held at the Thunderbird Restaurant at 7 p.m.

Anyone, whether or not a contestant, is invited to attend and hear Stu Tinney, one of the nation's leading authorities discuss methods of catching these fine trophy fish.

Tinney, in a lifetime of striper fishing, has recorded over 50,000 stripers landed, several over the 50 pound mark.

Any legal method of fishing, and any sort of bait or lure may be used. If you would like more information on the contest call Wilkins Harbor Resort, 817-622-8897.

With our striper population on the boom, it appears the fishermen and the tournaments they like to compete in, will become as much a part of the striper scene as they have with black bass.

Your horoscope

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: You will be given tasks that others should do, but you must not accept. Protect your good health instead. Hard work pays better returns than a chance to unwind. Learn to eat more wholesome food. Money problems may be resolved and savings increase. Business prospects, especially if self-employed, could be better than expectations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Cut through red tape. Spotlight is on what you want to achieve. Separate fact from fancy. Member of opposite sex is full of flattery. Know it and deal with it intelligently.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Personal possessions may get in way of romance. Be diplomatic and you'll likely win argument with loved one. You feel more secure now than in the past. Enlarge horizons.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Handle business matters cautiously.

Japanese trade limits possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., said Thursday if Japan refuses to compromise in trade talks with the United States, Congress will approve legislation limiting imports of Japanese telecommunications equipment and other products.

Jones said there is a new "attitude of intransigence" which increases "the prospects of protectionist legislation aimed at Japanese products."

Chairman of a House task force on U.S.-Japanese trade, Jones noted reports that the Japanese have refused to budge on government purchases of U.S. exports.

"Congress almost unanimously is demanding tough negotiations to lower the $11 billion trade deficit we have with Japan," Jones said in a speech on the House floor.

The principal U.S. negotiator in trade talks with the Japanese has been White House adviser Robert Strauss, named this week as President Carter's new envoy to the Middle East.

ously. Others may not live up to promises. You'll be obliged to test your theories. Relax with relatives and friends tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What appears on surface may not be true picture. Dig for hidden facts. Check reputation carefully before investing in unknown companies of people. Rely on old friendships.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may have to pay for past mistakes. You could feel compelled to pursue goals more diligently now, but results tend to reflect a half-hearted approach. Relax tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Watch money carefully. Avoid gambling, speculative ventures. What can be learned from old friends, associates may be key to future earning power.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This could be banner day for career affairs if you do not overdo or misuse the source of your luck. Tone down jumpiness in professional, personal relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may experience difficult times now with young persons. Emotional outbursts complicate matters. Money may be at root of trouble. Outlook favorable.

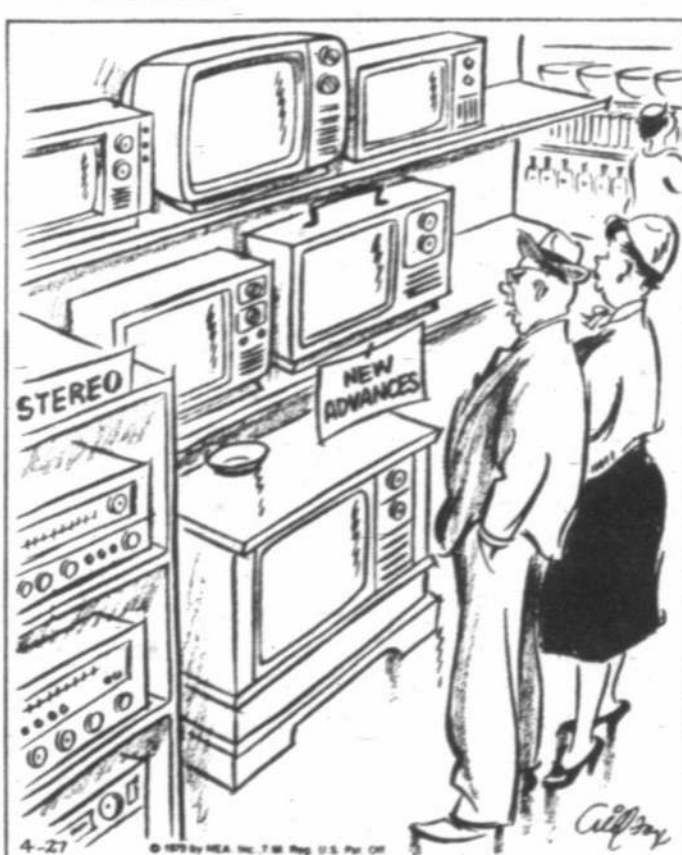

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Long-term goals need to be set now. One who painted free-and-easy picture was misinformed. Accent on revision of ideas, programs, attitudes. Plan leads to future success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't mix money and friendship or you may lose both. Friends may mean well, especially those of opposite sex, but they tend to get you seriously involved in complicated situations.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You need to know where you stand, how much pressure to exert. Ask lots of questions. You may be confused over fact you are romantically attracted to someone older.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finish one project before you let yourself become involved in another. People you admire are drawn to you and your ideas. Suddenly you become more convincing at home and at work.

Howard and Eddy produced a workable bid that is in general expert use, is part of advanced standard American and of Jacoby modern and is a bid we can recommend to all bridge players today. In fact, we will devote next week's articles to this bid.

If no one is using weak two bids, East opens one club in fourth seat. South overcalls in spades. West bids hearts. North raises spades and probably West winds up making an easy five hearts. When South opens with a weak two spades, West does not act. North jumps to four spades and that bid buys the contract.

If East and West cash two hearts and one club, South is held to 10 tricks; if they don't cash out, he makes more by setting up diamonds.

Latest consumer price rise adds to inflation worries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices soared another 1 percent in March, the government said Thursday, adding to concern that inflation is out of control.

The annual rate of price increases during the first three months of the year was 13 percent, the worst quarterly burst in inflation in 4½ years. Consumer prices increased 1.2 percent in February.

Prices increased sharply in March in all sectors of the economy. Food and housing prices were up 1 percent; clothing prices were up 1.5 percent, and transportation costs rose 1.2 percent.

The price of regular gasoline rose 3.8 percent to a record 70.6 cents a gallon in March, up from 68.1 cents in February and the largest monthly percentage increase since July of 1975.

Alfred E. Kahn, President Carter's anti-inflation chief, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee the March price report was bad and said, "We still have some bad months ahead." He said it was "highly unlikely" the administration could meet its 7.4 percent inflation target for the year.

At the White House, press secretary Jody Powell told reporters: "We can still expect months of bad news on the economy," particularly on the inflation front. He declared the administration will persevere with its present anti-inflation policies.

And he said, "The public is becoming increasingly concerned that powerful interests in this country act as if they recognize no responsibility to the public."

Pressed to say who he was talking about, Powell responded, "If the shoe fits, wear it."

The increase in prices for the 12-month period ending in March was 10.2 percent. Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said the March increase was "an economic and political disaster." He introduced legislation to give President Carter standby authority to impose mandatory wage and price controls.

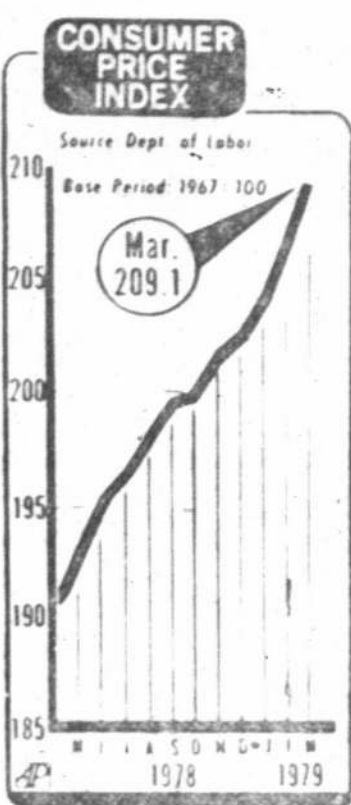

Although Carter has said he does not want such authority and would not use it if he had it, McGovern maintained that "flexible and selective controls can and should be concentrated on the largest and most influential sectors of our economy."

Unless the administration wants such authority, it is unlikely that the Congress will approve it.

Kahn said authority for controls would be "counter-productive" now, reflecting concern in the administration that businesses will raise prices as high as they possibly can if they think controls are around the corner.

The March rise in consumer prices means the nation's 35 million Social Security recipients will receive a 9.9 percent increase in benefits to offset the impact of inflation, officials said.

The average benefit will be increased by $25, to $283 a month. Checks reflecting the increases will go out beginning in July.

The Labor Department said the CPI in March stood at 209.1 percent of the 1967 average, meaning goods priced that year at $100 had increased to $209.10 last month.

The department gave this breakdown on price increases for various categories in March and for the 12-month period ending in March:

—Food and beverages, 1 percent for the month and 12.5 percent for the 12-month period.
—Housing, 1 percent and 10.6 percent.

—Apparel and upkeep, 1.5 percent and 5 percent.

—Transportation, 1.2 percent and 10.1 percent.

—Medical care, 0.6 percent and 9 percent.

—Entertainment, 0.9 percent and 6.1 percent.

—Other goods and services, 0.6 percent and 7.5 percent.

Kahn blamed the worsening inflation in recent months on higher prices for food, energy, home purchase costs and on an "overheated economy." He conceded there is little the administration can do to restrain food, energy or housing prices that result from the higher financing costs.

But he said he expects some "tapering" of inflation in the next several months. Previously, he had said he would consider the administration's wage and price guidelines a failure if progress in restraining inflation isn't evident by summer.

While Kahn declined to issue a new forecast for inflation, he said, "I confidently expect the rate will be down under the double-digit range by the end of the year."

Another one of Carter's top inflation advisers, Barry Bosworth, told The Associated Press in an interview that if inflation does not begin to cool soon, it is likely to get much worse as workers demand steadily higher wages to keep pace with steadily rising prices.

"I think the country is in for an explosion of price increases" if that happens, he said.

Jonestown bodies sent for burial

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — Fifty airtight coffins were sent off with a speech and a prayer Thursday under a court-approved plan to bury the victims of the Peoples Temple mass suicide-murder last November in Guyana.

Ministers and politicians were on hand as the coffins, wrapped in cardboard or brown paper, were forklifted out of an old hangar onto a 44-foot commercial tractor-trailer.

Two hours later, the truck was waved through Dover Air Force Base's south gate, signaling the end of five months of bickering and government red tape on a plan to get the bodies to California, near the relatives of the Rev. Jim Jones' dead followers.

"They should have been brought to the Dover Air Force Base here on the East Coast in the first place," said U.S. Rep. Thomas Evans Jr., R-Del., who had lobbied with the State Department to prevent a mass burial of the bodies here.

Five more trucks were scheduled to leave Friday and early Saturday, taking away the last of 297 identified bodies that were not claimed by relatives.

Next month trucks will haul away the 248 unidentified bodies, mostly those of children.

In California, relatives will have a month to claim identified bodies at Oakland Army Base near San Francisco or MacArthur Army Base near Los Angeles. Unidentified bodies will go directly to Evergreen Cemetery in Oakland for burial.

The trucking and burial is being financed with about $300,000 from the $10 million estate of the Peoples Temple, which is being dissolved in a San Francisco court.

Under the court-approved plan, the trucks must leave Dover at staggered times, and the travel routes must be kept secret, said William Larmore, president of Larmore Moving Systems of Wilmington, Del.

The court receiver, Robert Fabian, is having to assure Judge Ira Brown that we are not in any way allowing this to become a caravan, and as far as they're concerned, two vehicles is a caravan, and I appreciate that," Larmore said.

Fabian's assistant, Nick Delancey, said: "Larmore Moving Systems is experienced at handling sensitive loads. They've handled sophisticated electronic equipment, satellites, et cetera. While physically this load isn't sensitive to handle, it's obviously an emotionally very sensitive load."

Little things can cut expenses

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Your family spending doesn't have to go up just because the Consumer Price Index keeps rising.

Little things can make the difference, say consumer advisers and other people in the business of inflation-watching.

Gasoline prices, for example, went up 3.8 percent in March, according to government figures released Thursday. That means you'll have to use 3.8 percent less gasoline to keep your budget balanced.

Here's how:
—Check tire pressure regularly. You can lose about 2 percent in fuel economy for every pound of pressure under the recommended level. Suppose you let your tires get just one pound below the maximum. You're wasting two cents of every dollar you spend for gasoline.

—Remove unnecessary weight from the car. Are you still carrying around that sack of sand you stuck in the trunk in case of a winter emergency? An extra 100 pounds of weight cuts fuel economy by 1 percent for the average car. There goes another penny.

—Is your car properly tuned? A poorly tuned car can use 3 to 9 percent more gasoline than one in good shape. That's three to nine cents of every dollar.

—Learn how to drive with economy in mind. Accelerate smoothly and try to drive at a steady pace, avoiding stops and starts as much as possible. Depending on present driving habits, you could save up to a nickel of every dollar.

None of the above steps takes a lot of money or effort. And assuming you start out in the worst possible situation — under-inflated tires, extra weight, poorly tuned car and bad driving habits — you could cut your gasoline costs by 10 percent or more. For every $10 you spend on gasoline, you'll save $1. And you'll more than offset higher prices.

Other gasoline-saving efforts are more difficult and expensive. But they can still pay off.

The Credit Union National Association Inc. compiled some figures in connection with a model energy-saving program for credit unions. Here are examples of what you can do and how much you save:

—Buy radial tires; save the equivalent of 2 cents a gallon.
—Buy a car that gets 10 miles per gallon more than your current auto; save 14 cents a gallon.

—Team up with a friend or neighbor to drive to work instead of using your own car every day; save 7 cents a gallon.

Small savings add up in other areas of the budget as well. Food and beverages went up 1 percent. Suppose your family spends $50 a week for food. Assuming price rises in your supermarket exactly match those in the Consumer Price Index — and they probably don't — that means a 50-cent increase in your weekly bill. Fifty cents may not seem like much, but it will help you stay even.

Esther Peterson, special assistant to the president for consumer affairs, recently provided some figures on how much protein you get from different foods. At current prices, she found that 20 grams of protein — about one-third of the daily requirement for a young man — could cost as little as 13 cents or as much as $1.30, depending on whether you choose dry beans or lamb chops.

Such an alternative may seem a little drastic. But there are many options in between. If you buy a whole, ready-to-cook chicken, you'll spend 25 cents for your 20 grams of protein. Buy ground beef and you'll spend 36 cents. Substitute chicken for ground beef at one meal for a family of four and you'll save 44 cents.

Giscard in Moscow

French leader in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev appeared pale and favored his right leg Thursday at an airport welcoming ceremony for French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing who arrived for three days of summit talks.

The discussions, the fifth meeting between the two men, were scheduled a month ago but were postponed because Brezhnev was ill with a lung inflammation. Brezhnev used great care in taking the few steps from the airport tarmac to the terminal building that was crammed with Soviet citizens waving French flags.

At a Kremlin dinner in Giscard d'Estaing's honor later Thursday, Brezhnev said that Soviet-French summits "usually bring good, weighty results" and said it is necessary for the two countries during these talks "to learn better each other's positions, to try to bring them closer together."

He said Soviet-French relations "serve as sort of a barometer of detente."

Brezhnev referred to China's Feb. 17 invasion of Vietnam and said the military action was a "shock," but the Soviet leader did not mention China by name, choosing instead to call the country "a large power."

"Not long ago, the world was subjected to what can be described as a shock. A large power resorted to the use of weapons, invading a neighboring country and cynically declaring that it wishes to teach it a lesson. And though this venture has flopped, serious conclusions can be made from this," Brezhnev said, adding that the invasion had threatened to erupt into a "world war."

Giscard d'Estaing said in response "France appreciated the restraint that was displayed by the Soviet Union during the recent events in Southeast Asia."

The Soviets provided Vietnam with military aid but stopped short of sending troops to oppose the Chinese incursion.

The French-Soviet talks are the 10th since the late President Charles de Gaulle came to Moscow in 1966 and laid the foundation for what the Soviets hold up as an ideal East-West relationship.

Giscard d'Estaing said France is prepared to strengthen "the dialogue and cooperation" between the two countries, and to step up mutual efforts in favor of detente and peace.

Social Security benefits to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a silver lining to the clouds of inflation, the nation's 35 million Social Security beneficiaries will get a 9.9 percent cost-of-living increase in July. The hike will boost the typical retired worker's monthly check to $283, a $25 increase.

The record automatic increase, triggered by the latest rise in the Consumer Price Index, will cost the Social Security trust funds $10.2 billion in fiscal 1980, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said Thursday.

The maximum benefit for a 65-year-old worker retiring this year will shoot up by $50 a month, to $553. The average retired couple will get a $43 increase to $482 a month.

Supplemental Security Income benefits for 4 million needy persons who receive them also will climb by 9.9 percent, at a cost to the Treasury of $415 million. That program is funded by general revenues.

In a statement, HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. said, "These automatic increases help the elderly and the needy of our nation to cope with the terrible effects of inflation. This we must do, for these citizens — many with fixed and often meager incomes — cannot be left alone to fend for themselves against the corrosive impact of inflation."

Two companies merge to form Republic Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The merger of North Central Airlines and Southern Airways into a new carrier named Republic Airlines was approved Thursday by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The board by a 4-0 vote directed its legal staff to draw up an order permitting the consolidation, which would link two strong regional carriers into a network stretching from Grand Cayman Island in the Caribbean to the Southern states and into the Midwest and Northern United States and Canada.

The board said it would adopt the order May 10 and forward it to President Carter, who will make the final decision because international routes are involved. The president has 60 days to act on the order after it is received at the White House.

The North Central-Southern case was one of several airline merger proposals before the CAB, and the one most observers believed had the best chance of winning board approval.

The two carriers do not compete on any of the same routes, and their merger would account for less than 2 percent of the industry's revenue passenger miles.

The merger had been endorsed by the Justice and Transportation departments, the CAB's Bureau of Consumer Protection and CAB Administrative Law Judge Joseph P. Saunders, who held lengthy hearings on the proposal.

"There are no anti-competitive effects no matter what standard you use, and this merger certainly meets the public interest," said board chairman Marvin S. Cohen in recommending approval.

The other merger cases before the board have drawn opposition on the grounds they would reduce competition, with the possible result of higher fares and less service for passengers.

They are the separate attempts by Pan American World Airways, Eastern Airlines and Texas International Airlines to gain control of National Airlines, and the proposed mergers of Continental Airlines and Western Airlines and of the two largest all-cargo carriers, Tiger International and Seaboard World.

Board decisions in the National and Continental-Western cases are expected in the next several weeks.

North Central, based in Minneapolis, serves 93 cities in 17 states, mostly in the North and in two Canadian provinces. It has 3,280 employees and 61 jet and turboprop aircraft and ranks 17th among the 19 U.S. trunk and local service carriers.

Southern, based in Atlanta, serves 70 cities in 19 states, mostly in the South, and Grand Cayman. It employs 4,355, has 57 jets and turboprops and ranks 15th.

The new Republic Airlines would rank 13th and its headquarters would be in Minneapolis.

NRC postpones decision on closing nuclear plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission postponed a decision Thursday on a recommendation to close eight nuclear power plants as the head of a presidential commission said the NRC will be one target of its investigation into the Three Mile Island accident.

The NRC announced that it would delay until Friday a decision on a recommendation by staff specialists who have called for closing atomic power plants similar to the Three Mile Island facility.

The NRC staff proposed Wednesday that the power plants, located in Arkansas, California, Florida, South Carolina, Ohio and Pennsylvania, be closed for safety reviews and modifications because they pose an "undue risk" to public safety.

But operators of the plants have told the NRC that closing the facilities may lead to power shortages and blackouts and the commissioners, in delaying a final decision, asked for further consultation with the power industry.

Meanwhile, President Carter's special 11-person commission investigating the Three Mile Island accident opened its hearings and panel chairman John G. Kemeny told reporters the NRC itself is a target of the probe.

"We have to get information from the NRC. We can't do anything without it. But we also have to investigate the NRC," Kemeny told reporters.

NRC Chairman Joseph Hendrie appeared before the special panel as it began its investigation and he promised "total cooperation in every possible way."

Hendrie said the NRC is conducting its own investigation of the Three Mile Island crisis, but will provide the presidential panel any information it seeks. He suggested that the staffs of the two groups cooperate.

Hendrie was critical of his own agency's inability to get immediate information from inside the crippled Three Mile Island reactor during the crisis at the power plant near Harrisburg, Pa.

"One of the urgent questions we have to deal with is why didn't we know earlier and more accurately what was going on inside the machine," Hendrie told the presidential panel.

The NRC chairman said plant officials apparently "didn't realize the sort of circumstances they were in" in the first two days after the March 28 accident.

Tower collapse an unmentionable memory

By BOB ROBINSON

Associated Press Writer

WILLOW ISLAND, W.Va. (AP) — One year later, the scaffolding collapse is seldom mentioned. But it's not because it's forgotten.

Explains Robert Lewis Jr., a councilman in nearby St. Marys: "It's an unwritten rule that it is left out of public discussion. Of course, it's in the forefront of everybody's mind, but it's just never talked about."

Fifty-one men died when the scaffolding inside a power plant cooling tower collapsed during its construction on April 27, 1978. A year later, a few widows have remarried, more is known about what happened on the tower, and the wheels of justice are spinning, assessing blame and damages.

And though this, the second worst construction accident on record, is seldom mentioned, it is remembered vividly.

"People try to forget. But the ones it hit directly — they're never going to forget it," explains Peggy Coffman, who is active in an organization of relatives of those killed in the disaster.

Mrs. Coffman's younger sister, Lola, 32, lost her husband, Tom Cross, in the disaster. Lola and Tom had been high school sweethearts and married right out of school. Last April, they were half finished with their dream house, a brick colonial home on a ridge overlooking the Ohio River. The house was being paid for as it was built, brick by brick, paycheck by paycheck.

Tom, an ironworker, enjoyed hunting and fishing with his sons, Troy, 12, and Scottie, 8. "He was quite a likeable fellow. Everybody liked him," said his sister-in-law.

Lola said she will never forget the day of the accident. She immediately drove to the construction site, but was not let inside.

"I found Tom's truck and some of the other guys came out," she remembers. But in those frantic moments no one was certain who had been on the tower.

There was a wait. Later, Tom's body was found by his father and brother, also construction workers.

Her sons, she said, only belatedly realized the scope of the accident.

"Within a couple of weeks afterwards, they realized he wasn't coming home," she said.

Lola has remarried, and her new husband, systems analyst Bob Bowen, has tried to help the boys. "Bob takes the boys hunting. They went fishing yesterday," she said.

And the house is completed. Only the landscaping needs to be finished.

The tower, of course, is not completed. Only about half-finished at the time of the accident, it still looked imposing from the nearby highway. Later the scaffolding rubble, a twisted mass of heavy lumber, steel rods and steel netting, could be seen from the same roadway.

At the work site, preparations are under way for a resumption of tower construction. Stanley Elliott, the man who heads the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's West Virginia operations, said contractor Research Cottrell is making changes in its scaffolding system.

He said the company has agreed to give OSHA 10 days notice before it resumes construction.

The Willow Island disaster spawned about $140 million in lawsuits against seven companies involved in constructing the tower. Twenty-one of the 22 suits on file in the Pleasants County Courthouse are being handled by the law firm headed by Stanley Preiser, one of the state's leading trial lawyers.

Five widows reached settlements without going to trial.

The rest of the cases are not expected to go to trial until September at the earliest and, said one lawyer, more likely next May.

Meanwhile, a federal grand jury in Elkins, W.Va., has begun its own investigation and could return indictments.

The case was turned over to the Justice Department last fall after OSHA completed its probe of the accident.

OSHA cited the contractor, Research Cottrell of Bound Brook, N.J., with 10 willful and six serious civil violations; Pittsburgh Testing Laboratories with two serious civil violations; and United Engineers and Constructors Inc. with two serious civil violations.

In a statement issued June 8, OSHA

chief Eula Bingham said the collapse would not have occurred "if proper tests had been conducted on concrete prior to removing forms, if the scaffold framework system had been properly secured to the tower, and if beam sections supporting the concrete lifting system had been anchored and maintained to support the maximum intended load."

The violations are being appealed by the companies involved, and some residents are angry that the charges were not stronger.

Richard Bowser, whose son Lynn died in the accident, founded a group to push for an independent investigation into the accident. But, he said, many in the group choose not to speak out.

"The attorneys, they asked them not to speak out in public because they could jeopardize their chances for compensation somewhere down the road," Bowser said.

Deep bitterness also remains over news coverage of the disaster. People here resented what they saw as intrusion into their privacy and efforts to depict them as "hillbillies."

They also complained of errors in news stories, one of which mentioned the popularity of Mail Pouch tobacco. "They don't chew Mail Pouch at all in this part of the country," said Mrs. Coffman. "It's Red Man."

Marshals to keep order during protest

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — U.S. marshals, rather than local deputies, will be used to maintain order this weekend during demonstrations planned by critics of the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant, officials said Thursday.

Organizers of the protest have said they expect several thousand persons at Saturday's gathering.

The plan to use federal marshals was developed during two days of meetings between officials of the U.S. Department of Energy, which oversees Rocky Flats, and Rockwell International Corp., which operates the plant, said James Nicks, DOE administrator at Rocky Flats.

The Mercedes-Benz 240 Diesel—is it the world's finest economy car, or is it the world's most economical fine car?

Best EPA mileage figures in its class, yet first class finish in side and out. So frugal-minded that a manual shift is standard, yet so Mercedes-Benz that 4-Wheel independent suspension, 4-wheel disc brakes, even a quartz-crystal chronometer are standard. 100.

A Mercedes-Benz is engineered like no other car in the world.

WE ALSO HAVE A FINE SELECTION OF PREVIOUSLY OWNED MERCEDES.

Peace Corps due more autonomy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided to give the Peace Corps more autonomy but will resist congressional efforts to take it out of ACTION, the federal volunteer agency.

Amounting to a delicate compromise in the recent battle over the future of the Peace Corps, Carter's decision was revealed in a letter sent to seven key congressmen. A copy of the letter was obtained Thursday by The Associated Press.

The president also came out strongly against suggestions by some conservative Republicans that ACTION be dissolved and its domestic programs, such as VISTA, be scattered among other agencies.

He wrote that his Peace Corps decision was affected by "my determination that the domestic ACTION volunteer programs be maintained and strengthened, and a concern that the character of these programs might be changed if they were placed in other agencies."

Carter wrote that he had concluded the "Peace Corps should remain within ACTION and be constituted there as an autonomous operating entity."

Carter told the congressmen that he would issue an executive order establishing that the Peace Corps director and not the ACTION director runs the Peace Corps. He added that the Peace Corps would be given control over its own budget, separate from ACTION's budget in the future.

But he wrote that "by establishing Peace Corps' autonomy within ACTION we can maintain the advantages of co-location of programs that draw volunteers from like-minded people of all ages in American society and address similar types of problems at home and abroad." Administration sources said that meant that the two agencies would likely continue to do their recruiting jointly.

Further, it was learned that Sam Brown, director of AC-TION, and Richard Celeste, the recently confirmed new Peace Corps director, both supported the decision and agreed on efforts to find new ways to link their programs.

The decision signaled Carter's intention to fight to overturn a House vote of 276-116 on April 9 to put the Peace Corps into the new International Development Cooperation Agency. That agency has been proposed by Carter to consolidate foreign aid programs but has not been set up yet.

The battle over the Peace Corps will resume next week when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee begins work on a foreign aid authorization bill.

The committee chairman, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has expressed reservations over the whole concept of ACTION. He and the committee's ranking Republican, Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, were among those receiving the letter.

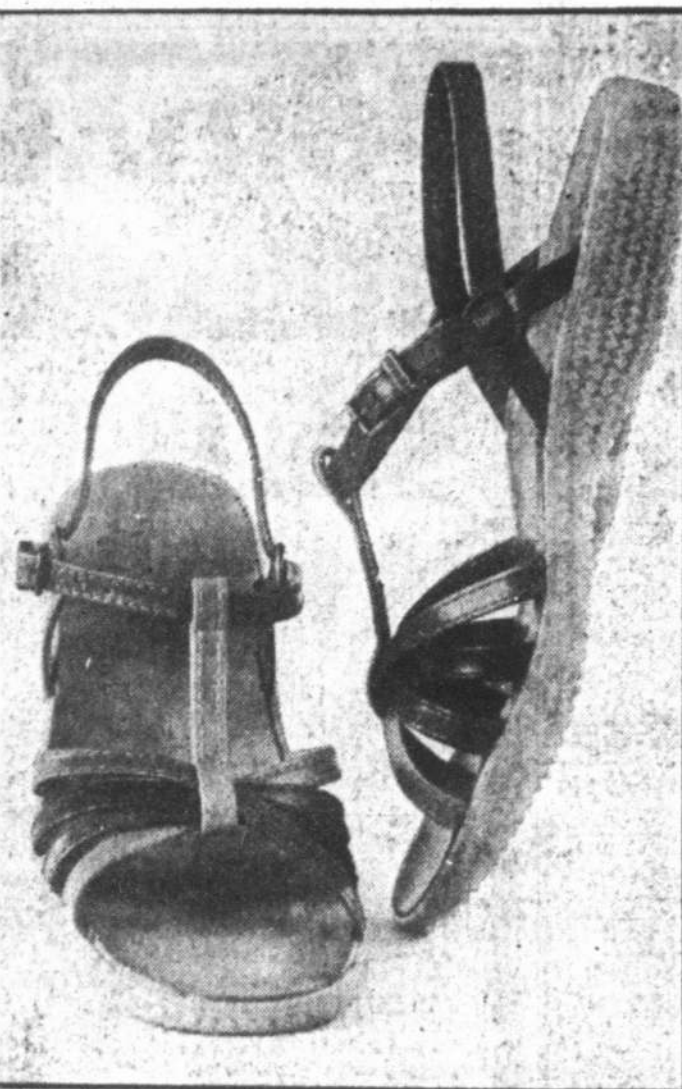

On the one hand, Carter's decision gave a boost to Brown, who opposed dissolving the agency or separating the Peace Corps from it.

Brown's management of ACTION has been criticized by Reps. Robert Michel, R-Ill., and John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, who alleged favoritism in grants and misdirection of programs. Brown has replied that the charges are politically motivated and stem from a basic disagreement over how to fight poverty.

On the other hand, Carter moved to meet the demands of some congressmen and ex-Peace Corps officials that the agency be returned to something like its original totally independent status. The Nixon administration combined it with domestic volunteer programs in ACTION.

The letter also went to Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, who co-sponsored the move to put the Peace Corps in IDCA.
