Military Pay Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP)-More than 1.5 million U.S. military personnel and 466,000 civilian employees are facing the prospect of going without a pay-check because the Defense Department is technically broke and Congress has not approved its new appropriation.

No military personnel - from four-star generals to clerks - can be paid until Congress either passes a continuing resolution to keep last year's military appropriations bill in effect or President Carter signs a new bill into law.

Teachers Negotiating

Both courtrooms and negotiating tables will be busy this weekend as efforts continue to end strikes that are keeping 250,000 students out of class rooms nationwide.

What is a docent?

Several people asked that question the other day following an announcement by the Scurry County Museum that it needs some volunteers to serve as "docents."

Well, it is merely a fancy name for a tour guide. Museums need them to show people around and explain the exhibits. And, according to recent reports, the Scurry County Museum really needs them. The county museum has gained popularity steadily and now they have so many tours being scheduled that the current group of volunteer docents can't keep up.

So, if you would like to take a 2½-hour crash course on the museum and its exhibits, go out there at 9 a.m. Tuesday, or call the museum office at 573-6197. The training session is designed to familiarize guides with the exhibits and prepare them to answer questions by individuals and touring groups. They will also give you some written material to take home. Then, you can become a docent and join those who show off the museum to visitors.

We came across this little item the other day about parental control:

"I've got the meanest father in the whole world. While others' kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to eat cereal, eggs or toast. When other kids had Cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from other kids,' too.

"At least I wasn't alone in my suffering; my sister had the same mean father I did.

"While other kids were out running around as they pleased, my father insisted upon knowing where we were going at all times. You would think we were on a chain gang. He even had the nerve to insist on knowing who our friends were.

"If he told us to be home by 12:00, we had better be home by 12:00 and not 12:15. I am ashamed to admit it but we were actually punished if we did not abide by the rules.

"The worst is yet to come. We had to go to bed early and get up early the next morning. He wouldn't even allow me to skip school like a lot of the other kids. If you stayed home from school, you had better have a good reason when he came home.

"My father even had the nerve to break the child labor law. He made us work. He made us wash dishes, make beds, cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe he laid awake at nights dreaming up mean things for us to do.

"He always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us, and sometimes we thought it would.

"My father never stayed home with us all day like some kids' fathers. He always had to go to work, sometimes holding down as many as two or three jobs. Can you imagine anyone deserting a family like this?

"I guess you could say he was a complete failure as a father. Neither my sister nor I got into any trouble in school, have ever been arrested, divorced or in any other kind of trouble. And who do you think we have to blame for the terrible way we turned out? You're right our mean father."

Dr. Fleer, associate professor of sociology at Western Texas College, will have as his subject, "The Collision of Big Needs; Parents and Children."

At Stanfield Elementary School, the PTA will hold a meeting at 7 p.m. and this will be followed at 7:30 with open house in the classrooms.

Open house will begin at 7:30 p.m. at West Elementary School. A short meeting will be held at the outset in the auditorium to introduce teachers and make other announcements.

Northeast Elementary School will feature demonstrations of physical education activities and musical selections by students, with the program beginning at 7 p.m. The program will be followed by visitation.

At North Elementary School, kindergarten pupils will present a program of songs and nursery rhymes to begin open house activities at 7 p.m. Following the program, parents and other visitors will be invited to tour the building and meet the teachers.

Parents and school personnel will meet at 7 p.m. in the auditorium at Central Elementary School. Following introductions, there will be visits to classrooms and teachers will be on hand to discuss various programs of instruction.

At the Humble-Smith School, teachers in the Early Childhood Program will be on hand for visitation at 7 p.m.

Hotdogs Endangered Species?...

Feds Inspecting Key Cancer Study

WASHINGTON (AP)-The government is taking a new, hard look at a key cancer study the meat industry claims could lead to the demise of the American hot dog as we know it.

The laborious, "slide-by-slide" review of laboratory results is expected to take months to complete and could delay plans to phase out the use of nitrites in processed meats, poultry and fish, officials said.

Scientists from the Food and Drug Administration, National Institutes of Health and the Agriculture Department have been named to a special panel to conduct the investigation.

The planned phase-out of nitrites, which the Justice Department is now reviewing for its legality, was conceived this summer after the FDA received the results of a study that concluded nitrites cause cancer in rats and may do so in humans.

The unusually large and complex project, involving 2,000 animals and costing about $500,000, took three years to complete and immediately impressed government scientists with its scope and apparently definitive results.

That was enough to convince regulatory officials at FDA and Agriculture that they should map plans to get the historic preservative, usually found as sodium nitrite or potassium nitrite, out of processed foods.

The industry warned that such traditional foods as hot dogs and bologna would never taste or look the same. And government officials expressed concern that botulism, a rare but deadly form of food poisoning in the United States, would haunt American supermarkets.

FDA Commissioner Donald Kennedy, a biologist, ordered a thorough, "slide-by-slide" review to make sure the science behind the study would stand up.

Church Sets Major Building Project

Colonial Hill Baptist Church has announced the beginning of a building campaign titled "Together We Build."

Purpose of the campaign is to provide cash and pledges up to $350,000 to finance construction of a new adult education building.

The new adult building will be located on the east side of the present church auditorium. J.D. Hinton has been engaged as architect for the project. The facilities will include a new choir room, an office for the minister of music, and classrooms for all of the adults of the church. Construction is due to begin sometime in 1979.

Myron Roe is director of the building campaign. On the steering committee are Mrs. Treva Weaver, promotion director; Carl Williams, canvass director; H.W. Cargile, special gifts director; Mrs. Mittie Tankersley, report snack director; Mrs. LaVonda Foreman, building banquet director; Mrs. Triesta Lilly, campaign secretary, and Ernie Armstrong, follow-up director.

Goals for the campaign have been set to include advance gifts and amounts that will be pledged for three years by church members. The "victory goal" is $250,000, the "challenge goal" is $300,000 and the "hallelujah goal" is $350,000.

The Rev. Miller F. Robinson is pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, located at 37th and El Paso.

Snyderite Going Back To Basics In Log House

By JOHN LONG

Darrel Johnson's log cabin is a return to the basics. It is a return, he says, to the simple life of rural living, without city ordinances or street traffic.

A Snyder resident for all his 39 years, Johnson describes himself as "a city dweller who's always wanted to live in the country." His 47-by-30 feet pine log cabin will be home to him, his wife, and two daughters.

"I just wanted to be out in the country," he explained. "Seems like the air is fresher. Seems like you just have more freedom out in the country like this."

Johnson's log cabin is on a gravel road about four miles south of Western Texas College. It is not so basic that it has no conveniences, however. The cabin will have running water, an indoor bathroom, electricity, and a gas-operated kitchen.

He bought his 308 logs from a lumber mill in Arkansas. He has been working on his home in his spare time since April. Johnson is doing much of the work himself, but he is helped by a son and daughter-in-law.

Together they have poured the foundation, done the carpentry work, and done the plumbing and the wiring. He plans to hire someone to do the Dreamboat Completed...

Ex-Snyderite Builds Own Floating Teepee

SAILING ON TEEPEE--Ken and Evonne Floyd of Tacoma, Wash., now live on the floating teepee in background. Floyd, a former Snyder resident, is the nephew of A.L. Floyd.

Ken Floyd, who attended school in Snyder, attracted attention recently in Tacoma, Wash., when he completed work on a unique "dreamboat" which he says will be the residence for his family.

Floyd, 41, son of Mrs. Eileen Pack of Kermit and the late Wiley Floyd of Snyder, launched his 12-sided, cone-shaped craft recently and now he and his wife, son and two dogs are cutting their shoreside ties, according to an article by Bruce Johnson of the Tacoma News Tribune.

The houseboat resembles a huge teepee, and Floyd has named it "Eden."

He said he couldn't afford plywood. So, he used tempered Masonite.

Floyd claims he has only $3,000 invested so far in the three-deck craft, which has nearly 1,200 square feet of deck space. The pink-colored boat has a 7½ horsepower outboard motor mounted inside a well in the middle of the first deck living area.

The Eden scoots along at about three knots. Floyd figures it weighs about 12,500 pounds and its flat bottom protrudes 3½ feet below the surface.

"We just go with the current," said Floyd. "And we don't try to go against the wind."

He admitted that the craft has steering problems and he plans to change the position of the motor to improve the rudder control.

There are vinyl windows encircling the craft on all three decks. They provide so much solar heat that the Eden is fast becoming a floating greenhouse. Scores of potted plants are springing forth inside the spacious, first-deck cabin.

"This is my garden of Eden," said Floyd, indicating how the houseboat's name materialized. Inside the main living area is upholstered furniture built by Floyd. There's also a stereophonic sound system crafted by the boat's builder. He also constructed a wood stove from a 50-gallon drum.

Floyd, his wife, Evonne, 16-year-old son, Scott and a Doberman Pinscher named Guy and a small mongrel named Spunky plan to spend the winter on the craft at anchorages on the Washington coast.

Floyd is the nephew of A.L. Floyd of Snyder.

Wynette Is Still Shakey

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)- Country singer Tammy Wynette says she's a little nervous about performing onstage since the man who abducted her three days ago is still at large, but she says she wants to keep her lifestyle "as normal as possible."

About 2,500 persons came to Carolina Coliseum Friday night for Miss Wynette's first performance since she was taken from a Nashville, Tenn., shopping center parking lot Wednesday and released 80 miles away.

"Tammy, we love you, baby," members of the audience shouted as she opened the concert with three favorite hits, "Good Girl Gone Bad," "I Don't Want to Play House" and "D-I-V-O-R-C-E."

"I love you, too," replied the 36-year-old country music queen, her right cheek badly bruised.

At no time during the one-hour show did she mention the abduction, but at a news conference earlier, she said, "Emotionally, I'm still a little shaky and uptight and worried - because I know he's still out there.

"I'm a little bit nervous going on stage because I don't know where he is. He could be out there or anywhere."

She said she kept the Columbia engagement and plans to keep her others, despite the ordeal, because, "most of all I want to keep my lifestyle as normal as possible. I felt better today and able emotionally to cope with the situation."

After she was released by her abductor, Miss Wynette told Tennessee state police she had been punched in the face and a pair of pantyhose had been tied tightly around her neck.

In 1886, the first America's Cup yacht race was held in United States waters.

China Gets Corn After 4 Years

WASHINGTON (AP)-After backing away for four years, China has ordered some U.S. corn.

The Agriculture Department said Friday that U.S. exporting firms reported corn sales to China totaling 276,000 metric tons, but that 200,000 metric tons of it can come from "optional origin" outside the United States.

Even so, the 76,000 metric tons remaining is the first U.S. corn sold to China since 1973-74 when it took delivery on 1.8 million metric tons for delivery that year.

Some corn was sold after that but China canceled those orders and stopped buying corn until now. All 276,000 metric tons of the new order are to be delivered by Sept. 30, 1979.

China also turned to the United States earlier this year for wheat for the first time in four years. About 2.5 million metric tons have been bought so far. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 36.7 bushels of wheat.

As is customary, the department did not identify the exporters selling the grain or the terms of its sale.

Argentina exported nearly 9.5 million tons of coarse grain during the first seven months of 1978, a record for a seven-month period. During July alone, the Argentine National Grain Board announced, exports reached a historic high of 2.2 million tons.

Heard the expression, "My feet are killing me"? One suggestion - be sure your shoes are correctly fitted. High heels cramp your tendons and cause imbalance of weight on your toes. Wear high heels only briefly. Switch to lower-heeled shoes that don't jolt the body with every step.

For 'burning feet' realize that nylon stockings or imitation leather shoes retain heat and burn the feet. Change to cotton stockings and real leather shoes which 'breathe' thru natural pores.

Baby Boom Generation Having Few Of Its Own

EDITOR'S NOTE-Guess who's not pregnant and has no plans to be? The American woman - in increasing numbers. The generation that was part of a baby boom is having few babies of its own. Contraception and sterilization are easy, so are abortions, and the financial temptation - a childless husband and wife both working - is often too great to pass up.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)-Are they selfish or only scared? Are they really hard-up, or do they just expect to live better? Are they so oriented toward today they can't see tomorrow, or do they see a less certain tomorrow?

The fact remains that many of yesterday's children have decided to forsake having today's children.

They have also foresaken the child-oriented, Dr. Spock-ruled society they grew up in for a more self-centered, self-determined way of living.

They are changing the future face of America.

They were raised in urban and suburban islands, served the best of educational dishes, bathed in an electronic wonderland of sight, sound and mobility, swathed in family and togetherness.

So why is it these same people, given every advantage sacrificing parents could arrange, seem reluctant to sacrifice themselves to someone else's childhood? Even their parents are baffled.

"A lot of people say we're a pleasure-seeking, hedonistic society and all we think about is the here and now, or tomorrow, or next week, or April in Paris."

So says one demographer trying to explain the changes that have swept the American family in this decade. Yet selfishness alone is not the answer.

Something happened to today's young adults to make their values different than those of their parents. They are a generation that grew up with A-bomb drills in the first grade and came of age in a world that fought off an unhappy war, donned the denims of equality and found new skepticism about government and life. They are having few, if any, babies.

Their decisions are often complex and painful - the subject of anguished pillow talk for millions of married couples, the base of bridge club despair for would-be grandmothers with no pictures to show, the quandry for corporate giants looking into the future and asking. "Who will work? Who will buy?"

Not since the Great Depression has the birth rate fallen so low. The fertility rate today is 1.8 children per woman. In 1936, it was 2.1 per woman. Children born in those years were called "A Good Times Cohort."

It bodes well for those born today - they will face less competition for education, jobs, anything. They are already dubbed "Good Time Babies." But the very same competition for education, jobs, anything is part of what dissuaded today's would-be parents from having large families and, in some cases, any family at all. They were baby-boom children - and they know competition.

But that does not fully explain why the fertility rate has dropped below the replacement level for six straight years.

It is tied to inflation, voluntary surgical sterilization, easy contraception, high tastes in living, careers for women, day care for children, the divorce rate and the uncertainties of American life. In short, skepticism about the future. Get April in Paris while you can.

Women are just not answering Mother Nature's call to reproduce. But their refusal is not without deep personal doubt.

"We have enjoyed a standard of living now that we know would be cut into," says a 32-year-old woman lawyer from Washington. "Perhaps we're a bit selfish."

"It takes a couple today two incomes to have any taste of the good life, to have that car in the garage, to have that two-week fly-away vacation and be able to run to Bloomingdale's and buy new clothes, the latest fashions, and to go discoing so many times a month or week," says Robert Avedon, president of the Population Reference Bureau.

And the fertility calendar is tight. The average age of first marriage had advanced a year - pressing the mid-twenties - and that has cut fertility time by 20 percent.

Add to that what Tom King, Bureau demographer, calls "a dramatic increase in the proportion of newlyweds who have postponed their first child three years and more," and the calendar gets tighter.

And add 30.2 percent of couples with wives between 15 and 44 who are considered sterile - almost all voluntarily. Of the remaining fecund couples, all but 20 percent use contraceptives.

There are seven million American women between the ages of 28 and 31; the time baby-boomers call the "time to fish or cut bait."

Many are deciding to cut bait, delaying pregnancy to a time they consider medically hazardous to themselves and to their babies. At reach 35 or so, many of these women opt for sterilization.

More are having one child than are having none. And many plan to continue work baby or not.

Wendy Baldwin is 33, her husband 37. They talked about children before they were married in 1971, thinking vaguely of zero to two.

Both are professionals, and make good salaries. About two years ago they began to talk seriously about babies, but could not decide.

They traveled and they worked and gravitated toward a decision: one baby. But they delayed, and bought a house. Then she was 31. They went to Europe. "When we come back, we'll think about a family," they said.

Two weeks after they were back, she was pregnant.

"It's kind of scary when you get to the point of saying, 'Yeah, let's try,' because everybody tells you it changes your life," Wendy says now. "They don't go on to tell you how it changes your life. But they're right, it changes your life."

Robin is now a year old. Eleven months ago, her mother went back to work at the National Institute of Child Health as a demographer-sociologist - Dr. Wendy Baldwin. Robin went along.

Now they have a housekeeper-babysitter at considerable cost, and Wendy works full time.

Affordable, adequate day care would doubtless increase planned pregnancies. Some couples pay up to $8,000 a year for a housekeeper-babysitter.

And that care is often unsatisfactory.

"The tendency is just to park the kids in front of the TV set," says Jean van der Tak of the Population Reference Bureau. "Even the loving grandmother from across the street is liable to do that."

And there are sociological forces at work on the birth rate.

There's divorce. Eighty percent of those divorced remarry, most within three years. But the years between are lost to childbearing.

Marriages outnumber divorces each year two to one, but the rate of first marriages is down. And divorces are increasing each year.

"There was a stability in marriage which no longer exists," says Phyllis Avedon, editor of Intercom, an international population magazine. "Many women are not sure they want to have children because they are not sure their husbands are going to be around...The divorce rate is very scary."

And there is evidence that divorce is part of the rise in illegitimate births, as many recently-divorced women bear children conceived in a desperate effort to save the marriage.

The counterpart to divorce is the growing independence of women, especially younger women of childbearing age. Many choose to dedicate themselves to careers.

The proportion of women still single at ages 20 to 24 was only 28 percent in 1960. Today it's 43 percent. One-fourth of all American households today are non-family households; the vast majority of these people are living alone. One million unmarried couples live together.

Yesterday's children are in a world they find uncertain, shapeless and less secure than childhood. That makes them wonder about having babies.

In interviews they repeatedly use the word scary.

Defense Comes Through Again!
Tigers Trim Levelland Lobos, 14-3

By BILL McCLELLAN

The homecoming heebies hit Tiger Field Friday night, causing a blocked punt, four interceptions and a half-dozen fumbles, but when the final gun sounded Snyder fans had a lot to cheer about...a new queen and a fourth consecutive football victory.

Behind by three points at intermission, Coach Mike Jenkins' Cats took advantage of two defense-garnered turnovers in the third quarter and leaped over the Levelland Lobos, 14-3.

A Tiger punt set up the first touchdown. When Snyder failed to make a third and four situation, end Scott Crenwelge nailed a 34-yard kick that brushed a would-be Levelland return man and the Cats fell on the surprise prize to regain possession at the Lobo 28.

Tailback Richard Crayton capped the five-play mini-march, racing seven yards around the left side to zero in on the pay line. Offensive tackle Baron Land booted the conversion through the uprights with 8:10 showing in the third period to put Snyder ahead to stay.

Then, less than three minutes later, linebacker Wes Partain picked off a Rob Williams pass and returned it down the sidelines 34 yards to the Lobo one yard line. Two plays later, quarterback Clay Johnson dove in for the second Snyder score. Again, Land tacked up the point-after.

Early in the fourth quarter, Levelland drove from Snyder's 43 to the 18 with flashy halfback Jack Jordan taking the handle from 26 yards on one carry. But an incomplete pass and a muffed fourth down play gave the Tigers possession again

Still later in the game, Snyder appeared to be on a scoring drive when Bobby Degrate scampered for 16 yards to the Lobo 10, but back-to-back penalties of 15 and five yards killed the effort.

While both offenses did show some solid moments on the ground, it was defense which became the key to the contest. Aggressive defensive work accounted for a plague of miscues. In fact, the only thing which took less time than an offensive possession was the naming of the queen at halftime.

Engineered like a fire drill, the intermission ceremonies while admittedly colorful barely took time to introduce Cindy Koonsman as queen before whisking her off without time to shed a tear. Unfortunately, it appeared halftimes just were not designed to hold the dreams of a high school sweetheart.

The Tigers opened the game on shakey standing when a blocked punt put them in trouble. That tough defense, led by Morris Anderson, Mike Hicks, Perry Robertson, Mark Davis, Wes Partain and a host of others, withstood the test however, and another Lobo march was thwarted.

Minutes later, the local offense which had its majority of trouble on third down and four yards to go situations relinquished possession again when all-South Plains linebacker Wes Harley picked off a Johnson toss.

The Lobos took the opportunity to push 37 yards to the Tiger 17 before finding no more room. Alan Ayers, split end, made the work pay off though as he booted a 34-yard field goal with 10:54 left in the half.

The Cats, 4-1 for the season now, will host undefeated and state-ranked Pecos next Friday as they continue a three-game home stand, which ends with the opening of district 3-3A play Oct. 20.

STRUGGLES FOR MORE--Danny Doss, a member of the kick return team for Snyder, returned one for good yardage Friday to give the Tigers possession at their own 40. Above, Doss tries to push Lobo tackler Rusty Howell (28) aside. Snyder came out of the game 4-1 on the year, while Levelland is 2-3. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

MILES--The Roby Lions, lying flat at 2-2 coming into Friday's game, ekked out their third victory of the season here with less than two minutes left to play.

Fleet running back Al Gonzales broke loose on a 26-yard scoring scamper with 1:56 remaining on the clock to give the Lions a come-from-behind 19-16 win.

Roby opened the contest with a 36-yard touchdown pass confiscated by Clay Smith in the first quarter. The point-after boot was good, and the Lions went ahead 7-0.

Miles came back to tie the totals in the second quarter however. Fullback Dennis Havlak capped a Miles drive from two yards away and then kicked the point-after.

The Lions swung ahead again as runningback Britt Stuart crashed over from three yards out with a little over three minutes left in the first half. The point-after try failed.

It looked as if Roby might hold the hosts in the third quarter, but with 5:35 left, tailback David Rowoldt took off on a 40-yard scoring jaunt to tie the game at 13-13. Miles' PAT also failed.

Then, with 6:23 left in the game, Havlak put a 31-yard field goal between the vertical bars and Miles enjoyed a 16-13 lead until Gonzales' winning run.

Roby, 3-2, will begin District 3-B play Oct. 13, hosting Garden City at 7:30 p.m.

Davis' Wife Dies In Fall

HONOLULU (AP)-The 27-year-old wife of former major league baseball player Willie Davis died Friday in a hiking accident, police said.

Amy Davis fell 35 to 40 feet from the top of a waterfall to its base in a forest area about five miles from Honolulu, said police Detective Ross Wong.

"It's a very rocky area. There's moss on the rocks and it's wet from the falls," Wong said.

Mrs. Davis was hiking with her husband, 38, and the couple's two young children when the accident occurred, he said.

The exact time of the accident was not known, Wong said, but police were called to the scene about 6:15 p.m..

Mustangs Mince Gail Coyotes, 45-0

Wilson		Borden-City
16	First Downs	7
240	Rushing Yards	58
140	Passing Yards	43

WILSON--The Wilson Mustangs played 28 points worth of football in the first quarter, then sat back and enjoyed homecoming here Friday as they skinned the Borden County Coyotes 45-0.

At least eight Mustangs got into the scoring act, beginning when quarterback Mike Nettles crossed over the Coyote pay zone from nine yards out early in the game. Minutes later, Nettles hit Lucio Trevino, extra-point specialist among other things, for a 69-yard touchdown.

A five-yard run by halfback Randy Hall netted all the offensive scores for Wilson in the first quarter. But for kicks, defensive guard Gilbert Aucina added six more points when he recovered a blocked punt in the Borden County end zone.

The second quarter began much the same way, with Nettles hitting Trevino on an 18-yard TD play. An 18-yard run by Tony Garcia, halfback, garnered yet another score. Trevino kicked five of the point-after tries, and halfback Calvin Wilke ran the other across.

Halftime homecoming ceremonies or a big heart must have weakened the Mustangs, because they only scored two more points in the class B contest. Defensive end Phillip Hernandez gave Wilson two points when he tackled Coyote quarterback Randy Diaz in the end zone for a safety in the final quarter.

Wilson came out of the battle with a 4-1 record, while Borden County is now 0-5. The Coyotes will open District 3-B play in Jayton, 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13.

Yankees Edge Kansas City In Eventful Third Game

NEW YORK (AP)-Forgive us if its sounds corny; it's still "the grand old game."

The New York Yankees' dramatic 6-5 victory over the Kansas City Royals Friday in the third game of the American League playoffs was a testament to the everlasting glamor of baseball.

It's the reason the sports' popularity is on the ascendance instead of the decline, with more than 40 million people pouring into the major league stands during the season.

The 2-1 go-ahead game like the Yankees- Red Sox showdown last Monday at Fenway Park - produced all the ingredients for high excitement.

It ebbed and flowed, the lead continually changing hands. The umps blew a trio of calls The game had its individual heros the Royals' George Brett with three home runs and almost a fourth; the Yankees' Reggie Jackson continuing his October heroics with a home run and three runs batted in, and finally the Yankees' burly Thurman Munson, pounding a thunder clap home run over the 430-foot mark in center field in the eighth inning to decide the game.

Munson's blast was preceeded by an intimate tete-a-tete between Jackson and Munson, the Yankees feuding Hatfield and McCoy in the batters circle. Jackson was jubilant when Munson crossed home plate.

"I'll probably hit into a double play," said Munson, who hadn't hit a homer in 55 games dating back to Aug. 8.

"I bet you don't," said Jackson, encouragingly. Later Jackson remarked:

"I never saw a longer ball hit into the stands by a right-handed hitter." Of his imfamous fued with Munson he added:

"I like and admire the man What ever happens outside when we take the field we are Yankees, we are driven by pride."

Of the Yankees-Red Sox game earlier in the week, which saw the Yankees' Rich "the Goose" Gossage set down Boston's Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski with the tying and winning run on base in the ninth, one historian wrote that the moment should have been preserved in bronze.

WTC Takes Second At McLennan Meet

WACO--Western Texas College, at one time in third place, fired the best tournament round of 288 here Friday to finish the McLennan Intercollegiate Golf Tournament in second place.

The hosts, which finished second in the nation last year, fired a 291 and a 292 for a two-day winning total of 583. Western Texas out-stroked McLennan by four the second day, but a first-round total of 298 gave it only 586 - three off the pace - for the tournament. In third place was Temple Junior College with a 594.

Westerner Britt Lindsey and McLennan's Larry Salter tied for medalist with 144: even par. Billy Sitton and Mike Waller of WTC placed fifth (147) and 10th (148), respectfully.

"All of the WTC golfers played well," praised Coach Bob O'Day. "Lake Waco Country Club is a fine test and the Regional V Tournament will be played there in the spring, to qualify teams for the National Tournament. It was good experience for us to play this course because of that reason.

"McLennan has an outstanding golf team and finished second in the nation last year. Anytime you can play them within three shots on their home course, you've played well."

Next action for the Westerners will be the second Western Conference Tournament at Odessa Country Club, Oct. 13.

ANSON - A 21-0 defensive game?

It amounted to just that in the first, third and fourth quarters here Friday evening, but the second period was bought and paid for via the Colorado City Express as the Wolves temporarily exploded for 21 points and a District 6-AA victory.

With 290 yards total offense for the night, Colorado City actually had its way much of the time, except for third downs when a never-say-die Tiger defense locked down tight.

Wolf star Ricky Sanchez zapped out the first visitor TD. The hard-running ball carrier jolted around left end early in the second quarter and raced 21 yards for the opening touchdown. Gary Hulme, fullback, kicked the point-after.

Still later in the period, quarterback Gene Carter found Sanchez on a 50-yard pass-run play, but the effort was killed by an officials' flag which had motion written all over it.

Hulme provided Colorado City with its second standing touchdown. The big back scored from four yards out on a dive play with 6:27 remaining in the half and then booted a second conversion kick.

Finally, with 2:02 showing in the quarter, the Wolves took advantage of an Anson fumble on the Tiger 30 and Hulme went over from one yard out. Again his PAT kick was good.

Colorado City, 3-1, and 1-0 in District 6-AA play, will celebrate homecoming Oct. 13 by hosting Ballinger at 7:30 p.m.

Cubans Win Boxing Meet

NEW YORK (AP)-Teofilo Stevenson of Cuba, outboxed and shown up for two rounds, unleashed two thunderous right hands and stopped American Jimmy Clark with 23 seconds left in the fight to lead the program of the Cuba-United States boxing matches.

The victory by the two-time Olympic and world amateur heavyweight champion gave Cuba an 8-3 triumph over the United States before a crowd of 8,061 at Madison Square Garden.

The American victors in the 11-bout competition were Jerome Coffee of Nashville, Tenn.; Bernard Taylor of Charlotte, N.C., and Jeff Stoudemire of Cleveland.

Soviet Snaps Weight Record

GETTYSBURG, Pa.- Yurik Vardanian of the Soviet Union shattered three of his own world records in lifting 832 pounds to capture the gold medal for the 181-pound light heavyweight class in the World Weightlifting championships.

Vardanian's old record for total poundage was 826½ pounds. The silver medal went to Peter Baczako of Hungary, who lifted a total of 777 pounds.

Roberto Urrutia of Cuba lifted a total of 766 pounds in two events to equal a world record and win the gold medal for the 165-pound middleweight class.

Passing Leaders

In 1932, Arnie Herber of the Green Bay Packers led all National Football League passers with only 37 completions in 101 attempts.

Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins had a fantastic 70.3 pass completion percentage in 1945, hitting on 128 of his 182 tries.

Cowboys Glad To Get It, Too...

Giants Usually A Simple Test

DALLAS (AP)-To the Dallas Cowboys, with the lone exception of Harvey Martin, there's not a more welcome sight in the National Football League than the New York Giants.

Even in Cowboys' expansion year in 1960 the Giants let the Cowboys tie them.

The Giants come to Texas Stadium for a 3 p.m. kickoff and do the Cowboys ever need them. The defending World Champions are 3-2 and coming off a harsh 9-5 Monday night loss to the Washington Redskins.

Dallas defeated New York 34-24 in the season opener--the eighth straight victory over the Giants. The Cowboys have won 22 of the last 26 games. The last Giant victory was 14-6 at Texas Stadium in 1974.

The overall series is a lop-sided 23-9-2, Dallas.

"The Giants are a very good team and this will be one of our toughest games to bounce off a Monday night game," said Dallas Cowboy Coach Tom Landry.

give the Giants a big buildup. For example, quarterback Roger Staubach will tell you about their improved pass defense.

Staubach's career record against the Giants? Thirteen wins and one loss, and 17 touchdown passes.

Martin, of course, only played a half against the Giants in September. He kicked Giant fullback Willie Spencer after getting hot about Spencer blocking at the Cowboy defensive end's knees. Martin was ejected from the game for the first time in his career.

"I thought they took some cheap shots at me and we'll see how brave they are in our stadium," said Martin after the first game.

The improving Giants also are 3-2 in the National Conference Eastern Division. They lost 23-20 to the Atlanta Falcons last week.

Panthers Plow Southland Crew

HOBBS - The Panthers, trying to rebuild an offense after an auto accident took quarterback Jim Ratliff out of the lineup several weeks ago, may have found a touch of it here Friday night.

The hosts welcomed new District 3-B entry Southland to Panther Field, then spanked them 16-6, and sent them home to notch a second victory of the season.

Wayne Jones nailed down the two Hobbs touchdowns, scoring on a two-yard end sweep and a 60-yard run in the second quarter. That long-distance strike came after the Panthers recovered a Southland fumble on the Hobbs three yard line.

Porfurio Molano kicked both two-point conversions.

The low-scoring contest saw little action in the first and third quarters, but Southland made a challenge in the final period as Hill scored on an end sweep from two yards out. The point-after kick was blocked.

Hobbs, 2-2 for the season and 1-0 in loop play, will travel to undefeated Hermleigh for a 7 p.m. kickoff Oct. 13. Southland is also 2-2 for the year.

Oilers Under The Gun Still

OAKLAND (AP)-The Houston Oilers and Oakland Raiders, two teams in search of an easy game, instead appear very evenly matched as they run into each other.

"I'm getting tired of wild games," says Morris Bradshaw of the Raiders, whose last wild one was a 25-19 overtime victory over the Chicago Bears.

The Oilers beat Cleveland 16-13 last Sunday in a game even wilder in many ways. Fans in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium were throwing so many cans and bottles, in protest of an official's call, that play had to be moved to the relatively safe end of the field for Toni Fritsch's game-winning field goal near the end.

The Oilers and Raiders both stand 3-2 and second in their divisions going into Sunday's game, the second home game of the year for Coach John Madden's Oakland team. The teams met last year, with Oakland winning 34-29; the Raiders won by one point in 1976 and lost by one in 1975.

Rookie running back Earl Campbell, the Heisman Trophy winner from Texas, was unavailable because of a hamstring injury last week but is listed as probable against the Raiders. He ranks among the National Football League's leading rushers with 399 yards on 75 carries.

"Campbell gives you moves to get you off balance and then runs over you. He's the toughest running back to try to bring down I've ever played against," the Los Angeles Rams' Isiah Robertson said after facing the rookie earlier this season.

Oakland defenders take on Campbell a week after trying to stop Chicago's Walter Payton, last year's leading rusher in the NFL, who totaled 123 yards in last Sunday's wild one.

Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler had by far his best game of the young season, throwing for 278 yards and suffering no interceptions on 43 attempts. The two starting wide receivers, Bradshaw and Cliff Branch, had eight catches apiece.

ROTAN - It had to stop sometime, and the Hamlin Pied Pipers picked the occassion and location.

Hamlin, paced by quick runningback Ronald Brown, put the first marks on previously undefeated Rotan here Friday night, handing the hosts a 27-14 defeat at the onset of District 8-A competition.

Brown put Hamlin on the board quickly, tearing over 50 yards of acreage to score. The point-after try failed.

Minutes later, it was Brown again, this time from short yardage to boost the Pied Piper lead to 12-0. Quarterback Todd Marshall then crossed over for the two-point conversion and Hamlin went ahead 14-0.

Rotan, beseiged all night with fumbles and intercepted passes, fought back with six points as quarterback David Posey took a keeper into the host end zone.

Fred Acorn, the top Yellowhammer threat with his ribbon-winning speed, made the gap shrink in the third quarter when he raced 30 yards to score a second Rotan touchdown. Posey's point-after toss to Gary Don Harkey was good for two, and the visitors narrowed the distance to 21-14.

But it was not to be for the Yellowhammers, who lost two late chances at scoring to turnovers. Late in the third period, Brown garnered his third TD of the night, clamping down a nine-play, 52-yard drive to give Hamlin the 24-14 victory.

Hamlin now stands 3-2 for the season and 1-0 in loop play, while Rotan slips to 4-1 and 0-1. The Yellowhammers will travel to Jim Ned as District 8-A action continues 7:30 p.m. Oct. 13.

Pitcher Rudy May of Montreal and second baseman Joe Morgan of Cincinnati played on the same high school team in Oakland, Calif.

The Excitement Of Snyder High's Homecoming!

IN THE BEGINNING--A spirited pep rally climaxed a parade downtown to launch homecoming activities. Hundreds were on hand to get homecoming going on an enthusiastic note.

BLACK AND GOLD ON PARADE--The award-winning Black and Gold Marching band was much in evidence as homecoming activities got underway.

RUNNING SCARED--Coach Mike Jenkins, left, as coaches always do, expresses concern over the Levelland Lobos, but plenty of confidence in his own team as he addresses the big Homecoming pep rally Friday afternoon in the Snyder High Gym. His Tigers wiped away his fears as they bounced the Lobos, 14-3, to the delight of a homecoming audience.

Will Continue Building Ships

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Newport News Shipbuilding Chairman John Diesel says the Navy's $188.9 million settlement of shipbuilding claims will allow his firm to continue building naval vessels, "even though we regret that the amount... does not fully reflect the costs of additional work performed."

The Navy announced Thursday it had settled with the shipyard in their 30-month dispute over cost overruns for 12 nuclear-powered warships. Newport News Shipbuilding had asked for $742 million because of what it said were added costs and delays in building seven nuclear attack submarines, three guided-missile cruisers and two aircraft carriers.

Veteran Survivor Benefits Increased

Congress has approved a bill which would give a 7.3 percent increase in monthly dependency and indemnity compensation rates for widows and children of veterans and servicemen who die from service-connected causes, E.H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veteran Service Officer, said.

Dever also serves as veterans' coordinator for Western Texas College, and his office is in the Administration Building at the college. Information about veterans' benefits is available from his office and he may be contacted there Monday through Friday.

The new bill still requires the signature of the president to become law, Dever said. The increase will be retroactive to Oct. 1 if the measure is signed.

Congress has also approved legislation which would:

Increase Veterans Administration compensation payments by 7.3 percent for veterans with service-connected disabilities rated 30 percent or more by VA.

Increase the number of service-disabled eligible for extra dependency allowances from VA. At present, dependency allowances are paid only to compensation recipients with disabilities rated at 50 percent or more. The bill approved by Congress would permit the payment of dependency benefits to veterans drawing as little as 30 percent disability compensation.

Increase the maximum burial allowance that can be paid to survivors of veterans who die from service-connected causes from $800 to $1,100. Earlier, Congress has approved legislation to increase the regular VA burial allowance from $250 to $300.

Increase the automobile allowance paid on a one-time basis to severely disabled veterans requiring specially equipped cars from $3,300 to $3,800.

Over Last Year...

Profits Are Up For Most Supermarkets

NEW YORK (AP) - Most of the nation's supermarket industry, benefitting from a truce in price wars and food inflation trends, are reporting sharply higher profits this year.

But A&P, which reported a big loss, and Food Fair, which filed for court protection because of its difficulties, offered sharp contrasts. Analysts say both are paying a catch-up price of consolidating unprofitable operations in the wake of new trend toward fewer but larger markets.

Safeway Stores Inc., which in 1972 surpassed the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. as the nation's largest food retailer, said its earnings in the most recent quarter leaped 84 percent to $31.7 million, or $1.22 a share, from $17.2 million, or 67 cents a share a year earlier.

Winn-Dixie Stores, the fourth largest chain, announced a 35 percent increase in earnings to $19.7 million for the quarter ended Sept. 30 from $14.6 million in the period last year. The Kroger Co., ranked as the third largest in the industry, isn't expected to announce its latest profits until next week. But analysts are expecting it to continue a strong growth trend. For the first half of the year, Kroger's earnings were up 20.5 percent to $31.3 million from profits in the comparable 1977 period.

Value Line, an investment survey published by Arnold Bernhard & Co. Inc. rates this year as a vastly improved one for the industry.

"Price wars have been virutally non-existent this year compared with 1977's highly competitive atmosphere. And food price inflation is moderating, which will lead to wider profit margins in food stores," says a recent Value Line survey of the industry.

But A&P, which embarked on a major restructuring program several years ago in an effort to recapture its shrinking market share, reported a $6.9 million loss in the past quarter. That followed a $10 million loss the previous quarter.

And Food Fair Inc., one of the 10 largest chains, filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the Federal Bankruptcy Act in an attempt to work out a plan for paying debts without having to close its grocery or retail outlets.

On 3 Year Extension

No Courtroom Battles Predict ERA Forces

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Backers of the Equal Rights Amendment, jubilant over winning three more years to gain ratification, predict they will stave off courtroom challenges to the extension.

"If a court challenge is made, I expect it to be dispensed with quickly and easily," said Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., who steered the extension to victory in the Senate on Friday.

Rep. Margaret Heckler, D-Mass., an ERA supporter in the House, added, "I would not be at all surprised to see the lawsuits, but I would not expect the lawsuits to prevail."

And in a speech prepared for delivery today to the annual convention of the National Organization for Women, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., predicted the amendment will become part of the Constitution "because this country cannot preach human rights abroad while over half of our own population are still denied equal rights."

The 39-month extension, approved by the House in August, cleared the Senate by a vote of 60-36. The margin was larger than either supporters or opponents of the ERA had predicted.

Democrats voted for it by nearly a 3-1 margin, 44 in favor to 15 against. Republicans split more evenly, 21 against to 16 in favor.

Although Justice Department representatives testified at House hearings that the extension would not require the signature of the president, House Parliamentarian William H. Brown Jr. said that matter is still being studied.

However, the question seems moot since President Carter is firmly on record favoring the extension.

Carter said Friday he was delighted by the extension vote and added: "I hope states which have not yet ratified the amendment will now take speedy advantage of this additional opportunity to do so."

Both Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, who led the Senate fight against the extension, and Phyllis Schlafly, head of a lobbying group called Stop ERA, predicted lawsuits against it.

"The purported extension...is a fraud and will have no legal effect when tested in the courts," Mrs. Schlafly said at a news conference.

She said suits challenging the extension will be filed in federal courts by state attorneys, general or legislatures. She said she understands those suits won't go to court until after next March 22, the original deadline for ratification.

Mrs. Schlafly said the extension would be challenged on grounds that it is neither a statute nor a constitutional amendment nor a treaty, which she said are the only types of measures Congress is authorized to pass.

The ERA, outlawing discrimination on the basis of six, has been ratified by 35 of the necessary 38 state legislatures, but those of Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennessee later voted to rescind their action. The Kentucky reversal ws vetoed. Congress is expected to decide whether recisions are valid if enough additional states ratify to make the question relevant.

Man Held In Forgery Of Prescription

A 25-year-old man was arrested by police on a forgery charge and four traffic accidents were investigated.

The suspect was taken into custody about 4:30 p.m. Friday at Hall Drug Store. Officers reported the man attempted to pass a forged drug prescription for preludin.

The prescription purportedly bore the signature of a doctor who formerly worked in Big Spring.

The first auto collision took place on North Clairemont about 5 p.m. It involved a 1974 GMC pickup driven by Robert Ralston and a 1970 Plymouth driven by W.A. Sumruld.

The next occurred shortly after 11 p.m. in the 4100 block of Denison. Reports indicate that a 1973 Pontiac driven by Larry Ainsworth was in collision with a parked 1973 Oldsmobile owned by Howard Limmer.

The third traffic accident was at 1:05 a.m. Saturday in the 1000 block of 33rd St. A 1978 Chevrolet truck driven by Douglas White was in collision with a 1966 Ford driven by Van Powell.

The final mishap was reported at 1:35 a.m. Saturday in the Towle Park Pavilion. Reports show that a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Kip Wadleigh was in collision with a pair of poles.

Minor damage was reported in all the traffic accidents.

Ira Observes Homecoming

IRA-Alumni from all over the United States were converging on Ira Saturday in celebration of the 8th homecoming. As many as 1,000 exes and old friends were expected.

A homecoming king and queen were to be crowned Saturday afternoon. After a day of programs and open house, a catered meal was scheduled for 5-6 p.m. in the old gym.

Topping off the festivities of the tri-annual event was a football tilt between the Bulldogs and the McCaulley Eagles set for 7 p.m.

Man Injured In Mishap

Donald Bowman, a 39-year-old Arlington man, received what were believed to be minor injuries in a single car accident north of Snyder.

Troopers of the Department of Public Safety who investigated the accident said Bowman lost control of his car, drove into the road median, and overturned. The mishap occurred about 3 a.m. Saturday, approximately 15 miles north of Snyder.

The car, a 1975 Ford LTD, was destroyed.

Bowman was taken to Garza Memorial Hospial in Post for treatment.

Juveniles Are Not Covered By New Act

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Speedy Trial Act does not apply to juvenile cases handled under local juvenile judges, the attorney general said Friday.

The opinion was asked by Bell County Attorney Patrick J. Ridley.

"The Speedy Trail Act covers criminal actions which proceed by way of indictment, information or complaint," said the opinion.

"A juvenile case under Title 3 of the Family Code is civil in nature and is therefore not a criminal action that would fall within coverage of the Speedy Trail Act. An order entered in a juvenile proceeding is expressly not a conviction of a crime nor may the order result in the juvenile's incarceration in a penal institution."

Fisher Urges Broad Tax Cut

An economy relatively free of government control, he claimed, would be a healthier economy and one that would produce more jobs. More jobs would mean more productivity, and more productivity would lower inflation.

To counter the general economic malaise of the United States today, Fisher recommended putting a firm rein on Federal spending, reducing deficits, increasing investment capital, stimulating productivity, creating new jobs, and restoring faith in the free enterprise system.

Fisher faces Democrat Charles Stenholm in the Nov. 7 election. Both are seeking the congressional spot being vacated by retiring congressman Omar Burleson.

Bill Fisher, Republican candidate for the 17th District Congressman, spoke to Snyder Jaycees at their noon luncheon Friday at K-Bobs steakhouse. His speech centered on economic problems facing the United States today and what can be done to combat them.

One of the biggest problems, he said, is economic stagnations. Citing a recent study of the economic growth of the 12 leading industrial nations of the world, Fisher said the United States ranked last.

To stimulate the national economy he recommended a broad tax cut. Such a tax cut, he argued, has been historically proven to be an economic stimulus.

"It works and we know it works," Fisher said, "so let's stick with it."

Says Calcutta Newspaper...

Freezing Helped Bring About 2nd Test-Tube Baby

CALCUTTA, India (AP)- "Superovulation and freezing" helped three Indian researchers bring about the birth of the world's second test-tube baby, but they wanted to keep the experiment under wraps for fear the infant might be malformed, a Calcutta newspaper said today.

Dr. Saroj Kanti Bhattacharya, one of the researchers, said a lack of sophisticated equipment forced the team to devise a technique different from the one used in the July 25 birth in Oldham, England of Louise Brown, the first baby conceived outside the human body.

In the Indian test-tube birth, the researchers told the Statesman newspaper they relied on a process called "superovulation," in which they "ripened" the mother's ovum with hormones before fertilizing it with the father's sperm.

Speeding development of the egg and freezing the fertilized ovum were the major innovations of the successful laboratory conception of the seven pound, six ounce girl, born Tuesday at an unidentified nursing home, the paper said.

"We didn't want too many people to know of our experiment as there was every possibility of a malformation," Bhattacharya said.

The infant was reported healty and behaving normally. The identity of the child and its parents were being kept secret in accordance with a promise to the orthodox Hindu family.

Bhattacharya said the British doctors had implanted the ovum in the mother's womb very soon after fertilization. But the Calcutta team decided to freeze the fertilized ovum for 53 days before attempting a transfer.

"This was part of our experiment," said Dr. Subhash Mukherjee, a physiologist educated in Scotland. "We wanted the injection of the ovum into the womb to take place immediately after ovulation in the next normal menstrual cycle."

Airman Dean Is Promoted

LAS VEGAS, Nev. - The U.S. Air Force has promoted Linda J. Dean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William N. Melott of 3405 Jacksboro, Snyder, to the rank of senior airman.

Airman Dean is serving at Nellis AFB, Nev., as a dental specialist.

The airman, a 1974 graduate of Harlingen High School, attended Pan American University, Edinburgh, and the University of Nevada. Her husband, James B. Dean, is the son of Mrs. Irma Dean of 763 Park View, Green Bay, Wis.

roof, though.

Johnson is learning to be a carpenter as he builds his home. If a corner is not perfectly square or if two boards or logs do not align perfectly, he is not overly concerned.

"This is about the cheapest way to build a house I know. Besides, I'm building this to suit myself," he declared.

One of the advantages of having a log cabin home is in the natural insulation of the wood. His logs are about six inches thick and that "is equal to about 12 inches of regular insulation materials," he said.

Wood lasts a long time, too. He has seen log cabins in Arkansas that are over 100 years old.

"I plan on having this house for the rest of my life," he added.

Although his home is not complete, his family will be moving into it tomorrow. He will finish the rest of the work in residence.

Over Next 4 Years...

Bill May Raise Price Of Sugar

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House has passed a bill that probably would raise the price of a five-pound bag of sugar more than 20 cents over the next four years. It is also looking favorable at a measure that could keep hamburger prices up.

The sugar bill passed Friday would add 1.5 cents to a five-pound bag of sugar this winter and 20.5 cents more by 1982, agriculture experts say.

"There is no possibility" President Carter will sign such a bill, said Thomas Sand, an aide to Agricultrue Secretary Bob Bergland.

The House bill starts at just under the maximum price level favored by Carter and provides automatic price boosts every six months as production costs rise.

But Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., said a Senate bill goes further and he doubts the president will veto the House version if it reaches Carter's desk.

He said the Senate bill has an even faster escalator clause and would drive a five-pound bag's retail price up more than 60 cents in four years.

Both bills rely on import fees, duties and possible quotas to drive up the value of foreign sugar, which makes up about 45 percent of the U.S. supply. The foreign sugar price traditionally sets the price for all sweeteners.

The House action Friday came 13 months after adoption of a renewed sugar price-support program that raised the prices paid to 16,000 producers by 3 cents a pound, or 14.5 percent.

That resulted in a price increase to the nation's 216 million consumers of an estimated 17 cents per five-pound bag.

The 1977 law further mandated a 1.2-cent boost in raw sugar prices this fall, from 13.5 cents a pound to 14.7 cents. That means consumers will be paying $1.29 for a five-pound bag of sugar that cost $1.23 this summer, even if Congress takes no further action.

The boost approved Friday by a 186-159 vote will be on top of increases already due this fall and also in addition to any other increases wholesalers and retailers pass on to customers.

Meanwhile, the House tentatively rejected an amendment to a proposed new meat-import law that would have given Carter flexibility in allowing the importation of meat to offset high domestic prices.

The bill, an overhaul of the 1964 Meat Import Act, would allow increased imports only when ranchers are rebuilding their herds, when supplies of homegrown meat are declining or when retail prices are rising.

Although Agriculture Department officials have no estimates of the impact of the bill it would be less than a similar, but more stringent Senate-passed bill on meat imports that Carter's inflation adviser Robert Strauss has estimated would add 16 to 17 cents a pound to meat prices.

Most of the imported meat, which makes up 7 percent of the U.S. supply, is lean beef that is mixed with excess fat from U.S. cattle to make hamburger.

Has Not Seen Her Picture In 'Playboy'

CHICAGO (AP) - Jackie Rohrs hasn't seen the picture of her that will be published in the December issue of Playboy magazine, but she'd like to. The management of the Chicago Bears football team already has and it didn't like what it saw.

The 27-year-old former model says her brief stint as one of Chicago's Honey Bears, a group of cheerleaders who dance at Bears home games, has been terminated because of a photograph of her partially in the nude that will be published in Playboy.

"I'm not saying that I didn't know I couldn't pose nude," Ms. Rohrs said Friday. "I simply didn't have any idea where the line was being drawn.

"I was asked to pose in a pictorial along with two other girls on the squad and I told someone in the Bears' front office before the photo session took place. I guess they assumed none of us would be brave enough to pose in the nude."

A similar incident involving a member of the San Diego Chargers' cheerleading squad who posed nude for the same forthcoming issue resulted in the disbanding of the entire unit.

Also on Friday, the 24-member squad of Angels, the New Orleans Saints cheerleaders, was disbanded over what the team said was "an accumulation of demands by the girls."

Because of the recent rash of controversies involving cheerleading squads, National Football League owners decided this week to allow each team to monitor its cheerleaders for appropriate on-field dress and off-the-field behavior.

USES OF EARTHWORMS EXPLAINED:

Many folks raise earthworms for fishing bait, but beyond that, their uses are limited.

Some claims for using earthworms that have little support are these:

--Earthworms as food or feed additives. Due to cost, major dog and cat food manufacturers are now conducting extensive research. Fresh earthworms cost $2 per pound and are 80 percent moisture. So, dried earthworms cost $10 per pound. This dried material varies from 65 to 70 percent protein and is comparable in essential amino acids to fish meal at 15 to 25 cents per pound or soybean meal at 7 to 10 cents per pound.

--Earthworms for agricultural land development. About 500 pounds of earthworms are required per acre for most soil types. If "poor land" is purchased at $200 an acre, then $1,000 worth of earthworms should be added. At least three tons of cow manure would be required annually to feed these worms.

--Earthworms for garbage disposal. This usage has considerable appeal from an environmental standpoint, but no major market has developed. Problems associated in using earthworms for garbage disposal in California include these:

1. Glass, metal, plastics and other nonbiodegradeables must be removed.

2. Since fresh garbage has noticeable odors and presents a considerable fly problem, it would probably require an enclosed facility.

3. Although there is some garbage shrinkage (one-third of volume and one-half of weight), a large portion of this is moisture loss.

4. After reduction of the garbage, it is still necessary to dispose of about one-half ton of worm manure per ton of original garbage. Value of this manure is probably not over $10 per ton.

The biggest use of earthworms is for sport fishing. This is a large and stable market and can provide some income. However, competition is increasing, and labor is a major requirement.

As far as production is concerned, normal harvests are generally below 0.4 pound of earthworms per square foot each 30 days. For a standard bed 3 feet by 8 feet, this results in an average harvest for beginning growers of 25 to 30 pounds per year. After several years, experienced growers can get about 100 pounds of earthworms per year from the same bed.

So, with this in mind, individuals interested in raising earthworms need to beware of market claims and to search out sound information on earthworm production and marketing.

This coming year you'll have greater opportunity to take charge and direct matters that have an effect upon your income or resources. The rewards are there if you're enterprising.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today you'll diligently pursue an ambition that has been thwarted. Your industriousness will break through the barriers and pay off handsomely. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In your own quiet way you can pull off a major accomplishment today. Faith in yourself and the resolve to accomplish will be the reasons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your beliefs and confidence could be put to a test today. Back up your concepts with actions and they'll be strengthened.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In an endeavor involving several people, you'll spot a flaw missed by all that could have spoiled things. You'll lead the way to correct it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be very proud of yourself today for your cooperation in handling a difficult problem. Go ahead and pat yourself on the back, you deserve it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Once you've set your sights on a goal today you won't let anything stand in your way of achieving it — no matter how difficult the task.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Past experience will play a big hang in the successful way you persuade another today to cooperate with plans important to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It might be your job today to guide or complete a project someone else has started. You won't mind a bit. You'll take pride in your accomplishment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might have the chance today to reciprocate to one who once came through for you when the chips were down. You'll show your gratitude in a big way.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A domestic project that took considerable time will finally be completed today. You can be proud of the excellent job you did.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A social situation about which you've been quite dubious will turn out successfully. You'll realize all your fears were groundless.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

October 9, 1978

Greater material benefits than usual are in the offing this coming year, owing to your enterprise and foresight. You must totally believe in what you're doing, however, to truly realize your potential.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of sizing up situations with your customary optimism, you may view the world with a jaundiced eye today and search for shadows in lieu of light. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep a rein on your magnanimous gestures today. Unbridled, you might give more to the undeserving than you should.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A busy, possibly expensive day, may be in store for you. The vexing problems could stem from overlapping unessential activities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Regrettably, your priorities may get out of focus today. You'll put your emphasis in the least-productive areas. Have specific aims.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Self-defeating thoughts must not be allowed to gain the upper hand today in evaluating competitive situations. All they offer is second place.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Beware of impulses to put down your own logic today in order to give credence to less-wise counsel from friends. Your wisdom may be superior.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Satisfy your yearnings today instead of striving to please everyone. When you appease yourself you'll bring joy to others, too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Being too exacting today will cause discontentment in the ranks, and cost you future helpers in the process.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Provided pals are not dipping into your resources or asking you to do their job, you'll offer them support today. To this extent, you're a good buddy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Rather than have a confrontation with your mate over a major issue, see if you can reach accord on minor matters first. Then present your case.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Let companions and associates have their full say today. All stand to gain from a democratic exchange of views — particularly yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Material conditions could be a mixed bag today. You might accumulate with one hand while frittering away what you have with the other.

Proxmire Uses Media To Spotlight Issues

EDITOR'S NOTE - An unusual senator from Wisconsin uses unconventional, and effective, methods to ferret out and expose the waste in government.

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Unlike most of his colleagues who prefer to make their views known by buttonholing other senators, Sen. William Proxmire plays to the crowd.

A master of the quotable quote and sports-related metaphors, he has scored again. His enemy as usual is what he perceives as waste of the taxpayers' money.

His latest target, documented by his notorious Golden Fleece Award, is Ohio State University for the development of a "bionic bug," which is a six-legged robot.

"News is a very important part of the job of being a senator," the Wisconsin Democrat says. "It's a means of communicating with other members, of letting them know your viewpoint."

But it takes more than desire to get media attention. And Proxmire has shown an uncanny ability to draw notice.

The strategy has some drawbacks. Proxmire is often accused by his opponents of being a grandstander. He presses on nevertheless.

Proxmire led the fight against subsidizing the development of an American super-sonic transport, the SST. He fought and won, at least for now, the battle over development of the B-1 bomber. He helped push through the Truth in Lending Act and the Fair Credit Reporting bill, both designed to give consumers more information on their financial transactions.

Some of these victories would probably not have been possible had not Proxmire used the press to focus attention on the issues.

"Issue-oriented senators want to change something," says Howard Shuman, Proxmire's administrative assistant. "The only way you can do that is to have public opinion actively on your side."

In awarding the Golden Fleece to Dr. Roland R. Hutchinson of Kalamazoo, Mich., for his receiving $500,000 in federal grants to study why rats, monkeys and humans bite and clench their jaws, Proxmire said:

The "studies should make the taxpayers, as well as his monkeys, grind their teeth. In fact, the good old doctor has made a fortune from his monkeys and, in the process, made a monkey out of the American taxpayer."

A former college football player and boxer and a current long-distance runner, Proxmire has been described at various times as a loner, an antisocial and an eccentric.

"All those things are true," says the man who seldom ventures into Washington's cocktail circuit. But he quickly adds, "I don't like the term eccentric because it implies that you are off your rocker."

Proxmire runs five miles to work each morning, arriving shortly after 8 a.m. He eats breakfast, changes into his business suit and starts a day that is planned to each half hour. He has not missed a Senate roll call since 1966.

He does not smoke or drink. Work and running are his outlets. He is blunt in speech; his words are quick and concise.

Raza Unida's Candidate Hopes To Break String

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Raza Unida gubernatorial candidate Mario Compean quit his job, sold his house and moved in with his parents.

All that for the opportunity to live four days a week in cheap motel rooms, commuter airliners and his used 1974 Toyota - and become probably the most unlikely campaigner Republican Bill Clements ever had.

"It's not my goal to elect Mr. Clements, but if that happens it's the next best thing to my being elected," said Compean, 38, one of the founders in 1970 of the predominantly Mexican-American political party.

"We need to break up the monopoly hold in state politics by the Democratic Party," he said. "The election of a Republican would mean that from now on, the Democrats and no one else in Texas will be able to take the Mexican-American vote for granted.

"We need to sacrifice Democrat John Hill and Democratic senatorial nominee Bob Krueger for our own good," added Compean, who is quick to say he hasn't had any contact with the Clements organization.

But Compean's obscure, discount campaign - financed by a paltry $30,000 and headquartered in a shabby building in San Antonio's poor westside barrio - is lost in the blinding glare of multi-million dollar media blitzes by Clements and Attorney General Hill.

Compean publicly boasts that the tattered Raza Unida Party is reunited and rejuvenated and will siphon off 10 percent of the Democratic votes, enough to swing the election away from Hill.

Privately, however, party leaders are hoping Compean and senatorial candidate Luis DeLeon can win at least the two percent necessary for Raza Unida to remain on the statewide ballot. Clements own poll mistakenly lists Compean as an independent and gives him only one percent.

Noting that other polls don't give him much of a chance, Compean smiled impishly and said, "I can't afford to conduct a big poll, so I conducted my own poll of my relatives and friends. I got 100 percent in that one."

Compean hopes to win at least five percent to nearly match the vote totals posted in 1972 and 1974 by Ramsey Muniz, now in federal prison, when the party was at its peak of popularity. It will take that, he said, to provide a foundation for the slumping party's planned thrust on the local level in the next four years.

"I think we're in pretty bad shape overall," said Zavala County Jose Angel Gutierrez, a founder and the acknowledged leader of Raza Unida. "We've gotton a lot of bad publicity with Muniz, harrassment by government agencies and the denial of federal grants.

"It's not beyond repair. It depends on how well Compean does in the election and if people stop trying to harass us."

Asked to realistically assess Compean's chances, Guiterrez paused several moments and said hestitantly, "My loyalty says, yeah, he'll get 50 percent plus one."

He paused several more seconds and added, "I don't know. I hope Mario gets at least six percent. I can't say."

"I'm not operating under any delusions," said Compean. "We are in a low ebb. But we're in good shape considering what has happened in the past four years."

Since 1974, the fledgling party has been rocked from without and within. For starters, Muniz, a charismatic former Baylor football player and the most well-known Raza Unida leader, pleaded guilty in early 1977 to federal charges of trafficking in marijuana.

While Raza Unida was deeply split by internal bickering between rural and urban factions, its local candidates in South Texas were repeatedly being faced by costly, lengthy legal challenges.

"We've lost just as many elections in the courtroom as in the ballot box," said Gutierrez, who faces a strong re-election challenge this year from a well-financed Democratic opponent.

A $1.5 million federal grant for an agricultural cooperative in Zavala County, the only Raza Unida-controlled county in Texas, was blocked two years ago by the party's South Texas arch-rival, Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Briscoe branded the project "a little Cuba" in reference a trip to Cuba by Gutierrez.

The county judge also claims the party and Raza Unida county officials were harassed by state and federal agencies.

And as a final indignity, LaVaca Gathering Co. cut off the natural gas supply a year ago to Crystal City, the Zavala County seat, because of an unpaid $800,000 debt.

"If anything, all of this has made us more determined," Compean said of the disastrous four-year period in which he was also divorced. "The consensus of the political watchers is that we are on the way down and it will be a matter of time before we die-off.

"If they really believed that, they wouldn't take the time to harass us. We're not going to go away.

"Raza Unida has a long-term strategy of organization," he added. "We'll have four years until the next statewide election. Until then, we will be aiming at local offices."

The first non-stop flight from Europe to the United States was completed in 1930 by two frenchmen.

Pair Of Pythons Added More Drama

CHATANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Joe Savage put more drama into his night club act than he had bargained on when two pythons refused to let him go after the big climax.

Savage's act calls for the snakes to curl around his body, then he disappears in a puff of smoke. When he failed to appear for his bows, band members rushed over and found the pythons slowly choking him. Savage was given oxygen and X-rays at a hospital Wednesday night then released. Savage said he would continue his engagement at the Tiki Hut here, but would use only one snake.

MR. AND MRS. KEITH HACKFELD

(Photo By Ted Bigham)

Vows Said In Roscoe

The United Methodist Church in Roscoe was the setting for the 8 p.m., Sept. 23 wedding, uniting Jackie Haney and Keith Hackfeld. Rev. Ray Elmore, pastor, led the couple in pledging double ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Haney and the parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hackfeld of Loraine.

Vows were read before an altar centered with an arch entwined with lemon and huckleberry flanked with small cathedral candelabra containing gold tapers. Each side of the altar was banked with palms of various sizes. The bridal path was lighted with votive candles and tied with Colorado spruce and brown satin bows.

Organist Mrs. Bob Downs provided nuptial selections and accompanied Johnny Ray Watson as he sang "You Light Up My Life," "You Needed Me" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Being escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of poly chiffon with a reembroidered Alencon lace bodice of scattered seed pearls featuring a Queen Anne neckline. Her gown was graced with capelet sleeves of poly chiffon and a chapel length train edged with Alencon lace.

She carried lemon blossoms and white silk roses entwined with stephonotis and grape ivy on her father's brown Bible.

The bride's matron of honor was her sister, Mrs. Henry Don Parrott, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Billy Haney, Mrs. Carlton Roy, Miss Sawanna Roach and Miss Karen Wright. They carried golden brown silk roses and gypsophilia and the bouquet was accented with brown satin ribbon. They wore pale yellow off the shoulder dresses and small silk flower corsages on silk cords around their neck.

Best man to the bridegroom was his brother, Stanley Hackfeld. Groomsmen were Barney Sisco, Jack Long, David Green and Fred Chandler. Guests were seated by Billy Haney, brother of the bride and Henry Don Parrott, brother-in-law of the bride.

Candles were lighted by Hank and Tim Dunn, cousins of the bride. Miss Dunn's dress was identical to the bridesmaids.

Flower girls were Sabrina Garrett and Heather Griffith, cousins of the groom. They wore silk flowers in their hair and carried baskets of silk flowers.

Ring bearers were Gabriel Haney and Danny Parrott, nephews of the bride. They were dressed in tuxedos to match the groomsmen. Guests were registered by Mrs. David Green.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was laid with a white ruffled cloth and centered with a silver candelabrum which held the bride's bouquet. Punch was served from a silver punch bowl. The four tiered cake was topped with a miniature of the bride's bouquet. The groom's table was covered with a brown and beige cloth. A dried arrangement of silk roses in a brass cuspidor centered the table. The cake was in the shape of a horseshoe.

Serving the cake and punch were Mrs. Johnny Hughes, Miss Connie Ratliff, Mrs. Gary Rayburn, Mrs. Don Freeman and Patricia Pate. Silk rose rice bags were handed out by James and Melissa Parrott, nephew and neice of the bride.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Holiday Inn with a party following at the Colorado City Country Club.

The couple are at home in Snyder where the groom is manager of Bar H Bar Western Wear.

MARRIED-Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Morgan Jr. of Bandera announce the marriage of their daughter, Sharon Elizabeth Morgan, to Lynn Carroldon Burleson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Travis Burleson of Hermleigh. They were married Sept. 9 in Bandera. The reception was held at the bride's parents home.

Frozen Egg Sub Changing Ad Angle

ATLANTA (AP)—Standard Brands, makers of the frozen egg substitute called Egg Beaters, has promised to stop using advertising that refers to a possible link between cholesterol in eggs and heart disease.

As part of a federal court agreement, Standard Brands and an Atlanta-based egg producer - United Egg Producers - no longer will advertise any claims about the "diet cholesterol issue" that might have "an adverse commercial effect" on either eggs or egg substitutes. Egg Beaters consists maily of egg whites and protein, but leaves out cholesterol-rich egg yokes.

Opening lead: ♣9

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

We really don't know how to bid the North-South hands and neither does anyone else. The best final contract is six notrump and seven spades certainly one of the poorest, so we will say categorically that this North-South pair certainly bid the hand badly.

South won the club lead in dummy and led a spade to his ace. West dropped the 10 and after pause for station identification, communion with nature, diligent prayer, alibi preparation, study about how to blame his partner followed by some more time for more study, South planked down his king, dropped West's queen and had the grand slam in his pocket.

Why did South make that play? His table explanation was that East was so tense that he just couldn't be holding the queen of spades. With the queen of spades (according to South's comment) East would have looked relaxed and cheerful.

Later on, we cornered South to ask him for the real explanation.

His reply after much cajoling on our part was, "I have played against West for years. He just doesn't false card when defending against a slam. Hence, when he dropped the ten, I knew it was either a singleton in which case I had to lose a trump trick or he held queen-ten doubleton."

Ask the Experts

A New York reader asks who was the first person to suggest a method of finding a 4-4 major fit after a notrump opening bid.

We just found an article by Ralph Cash in a 1931 Bridge World in which he suggests that when an opening notrump is raised to two, opener would lose nothing and might gain a lot by bidding a four-card major. That has to be the first and we congratulate Ralph who still plays bridge regularly in Phoenix.

Nuptial Vows Recited

MRS. JERRY RAY FORE

Elizabeth Ann Hoback and Jerry Ray Fore were united in marriage in the First Baptist Church Sept. 30 at 7 p.m. Rev. Ken Andress, pastor of the church, officiated the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Hoback of Colorado City and Mr. and Mrs. Glen Fore of Mineral Wells.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white Qiana fashioned with a high neckline of Venise lace. The short cap sleeves are adorned with an overlay of lace medallions. A sheer see through yolk outlined with lace accented the empire bodice. The A-line skirt flowed into a short chapel length train. A deep flare ruffle formed the hemline of the skirt. The headpiece was a Juliet cap of matching lace holding a lace edged veil of illusion. Carrying out tradition she wore a new gold necklace, a gift from her mother and father. For something old, she borrowed and wore her maternal grandmother's gold ring. Something blue was her garter. In her shoe she wore two pennies minted in the years of the couple's births.

The bride carried a colonial bouquet of white feathered carnations, baby's breath and light blue silk larkspur.

Mrs. Ken Albus of Midland served her cousin as maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Miss Barbara Lacik. The attendants gowns were of powder blue shantung weave polyester fashioned with a deep V-neckline. An attached caplet formed an elbow length sleeve. A fully gathered column skirt flowed from the empire bodice.

Miss Lori Michelle Pollard of Midland, flower girl, was attired in a long, powder blue, shantung weave polyester fashioned with a caplet. A gathered skirt flowed from the empire bodice. She wore a hair clip of baby's breath and silk carnations. She is the groom's niece.

Mike Pollard of Midland, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man. Jerry Bob Lee, cousin of the groom, was groomsman. Ushers were David Lee, cousin of the groom, and Robert Hoback, brother of the bride, of Colorado City.

Vows were exchanged before an altar complimented with a brass arch flanked by two matching brass rainbow candelabra, one holding seven lighted tapers and the other holding 15. Pews were marked by brass hurricane lamps.

As guests arrived they signed the bride's book attended by Mrs. Robert Hoback, sister-in-law of the bride.

Mrs. Kay Hopper was accompanied by Mrs. Judy Neill before the ceremony as she sang "Colour My World." The mothers entered to "Evergreen" and the bride's attendants entered to "Today." At the conclusion of the ceremony Mrs. Hopper sang "The Wedding Prayer."

A reception was held in the garden room of the First Baptist Church. The bride's table was covered with a white cloth and wedding cake with two cupids. Crystal appointments were used. At the end of the table a silver candelabrum holding four white tapers was surrounded by silk English ivy and white satin bows. Mrs. Robert Hoback served at the bride's table.

The groom's table was covered with royal blue velvet cloth. It featured a chocolate cake in the form of a baseball. Blue and white mints were attired on the table with coffee. Serving at the groom's table was Mrs. Mike Pollard, sister of the groom.

The bride chose a rose beige pantsuit with a corsage from her bridal bouquet for her going away attire. After a wedding trip to Acapulco, Mex., the couple will be at home in the Windridge Apts.

The bride attended Tarleton State Unviersity, Stephenville, and is a member of Gamma Sigma Sigma. She is associated with Snyder Farm & Ranch Supply. The bridegroom attended WTC and is employed with Key Brothers Implements.

Out of town guests registered from Midland, Odessa, San Angelo, Mineral Wells, Granbury, Loraine, Colorado City, Lubbock, Winters and Pheoniz, Ari.

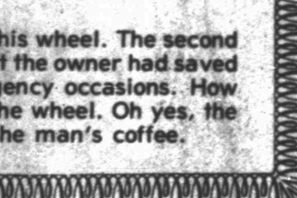
YOU BE THE JUDGE!



A man we once knew needed a lawn mower. He was a prudent man and saved his money. He shopped around and watched for a special price. One day he saw a lawn mower in a near-by city for $12 less than the lowest price he had found so far.

The man went to the city and bought the lawn mower. It had to be assembled, but that was okay since it was easier to transport that way. That night he started to assemble the lawn mower, but he was missing one vital part--the fourth wheel.

The next day the man had coffee with a local hardware dealer and asked if he had a wheel that would fit his lawn mower. He didn't but suggested that the man try his competitor down the street who "had things like that."

As predicted, the man found his wheel. The second shop didn't have a new one but the owner had saved a variety of parts for emergency occasions. How much? The man was given the wheel. Oh yes, the first merchant also bought the man's coffee.

You be the judge about doing business with a stranger or a friend...

AAUW Plans Fall Membership Drive

Officers of the local branch of American Association of University Women met recently to make plans for a fall membership drive.

Ena Flack and Ruby Butts attended the state president's conference in Belton last month where they received guidelines for developing plans for a membership drive.

It was noted that Snyder has many women with degrees from colleges and universities who are eligible for membership. Some are teachers and others are in other professions and businesses and in homemaking.

AAUW has, since its beginning limited membership to graduates of colleges and universities where women staff members receive equal pay and equal opportunity for advancement, it was emphasized. This was the best tool at the time to bring about equal opportunity, the organization felt. Where it failed, recent legislation has brought about changes and now graduates of most colleges and universities are eligible for membership. Therefore, some graduates whose schools may not have qualified in the past may be eligible now.

AAUW has an education foundation that has provided funds for women both at home and abroad to further their education. An exchange program is developing between women of the United States and women of Africa. A group of women from Africa have received grants to come to the U.S. for further education in colleges or universities and then to travel and visit in homes of AAUW members.

This year, some AAUW members visited Africa to see the effects of the association's efforts andd were so pleased with the results that they decided to make the visit to Africa a regular annual event, and work toward this objective is now underway.

AAUW is involved in other activies and has continuing goals to help its members keep their education current and their interest in their community, state and nation alive. More announcements will be made soon concerning the membership drive.

Dr. Pruitt Speaks To Art Guild Group

Art Guild Study Club met Oct. 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. Mrs. Bill Teaff was leader and hostess for the meeting.

In keeping with the club's course of study of the presidents of the U.S. Mrs. Teaff chose the life of Abraham Lincoln. She presented Dr. Franklin Pruitt, professor of history and government at Western Texas College.

Dr. Pruitt brought many interesting events in the life of Abraham Lincoln. According to Dr. Pruitt, Lincoln was a most interesting person because he fit no mold. Varying opinions of him always existed, many people praised him and others condemned him. Bitter feelings were freely expressed, explained Dr. Pruitt.

In conclusion, he pictured Lincoln as a man with a sense of humor also one of compassion who had plans of reconstruction after the civil war which he hoped would bring unity to the nation.

Inspirational thougnts were by Mrs. Wirt Holsinger.

Mrs. Teaff served refreshments to one guest and 15 members.

A short business session was conducted by club president Mrs. Hugh Lowry.

Fire Safety For Apartment Dwellers

COLLEGE STATION - Apartment dwellers can take steps to improve fire safety in their apartments, says a housing and home furnishings specialist.

First of all, make sure everyone living in the apartment knows what to do in the event of a fire in the apartment or building, Glenda Moore with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, advises.

Then, follow these fire prevention guidelines:

-Use all matches and smoking materials with care.

-Don't smoke in bed.

-Never carry lighted matches or cigarettes into closets.

-Teach children to never play with matches.

-Don't abuse electrical service and appliances.

-Repair and replace defective electric cords and appliances.

-Keep kitchen ranges clean - make sure nothing is stored in the oven before turning it on.

-Don't store mops, brooms or other combustible material near water heater or furnace.

-Keep trash in container with close fitting lid.

-Don't accumulate rubbish, such as old papers, broken furniture, old clothes, paint cans or other useless items.

In case fire does occur, get out of the building immediately, the specialist advises.

Notify the fire department - don't depend on someone else to do it.

And, never re-enter the building, she cautions.

"It was everything I'd hoped for and recommend it to anyone."
Mrs. Betty Sneed
of Snyder

Mrs. Sneed is the first patron to complete her program at Snyder's Pat Walker's Figure Perfection. Read what she said about Pat Walkers:

"I had seen Pat Walker's ads and had thought it would be the program I needed, but at that time we did not have this program in Snyder. Driving to another town was out of the question since I worked at a full time job besides doing my house work and other activities.

"After Pat Walker's opened here, I decided last December that this would be a good time to try their program. I'm happy to say it was everything I'd hoped for and recommend it to anyone who really wants to reduce. I do believe you must be determined to reduce and stay on the program. I feel much better and know I look better in a size 6 than a 10 going into a 12."

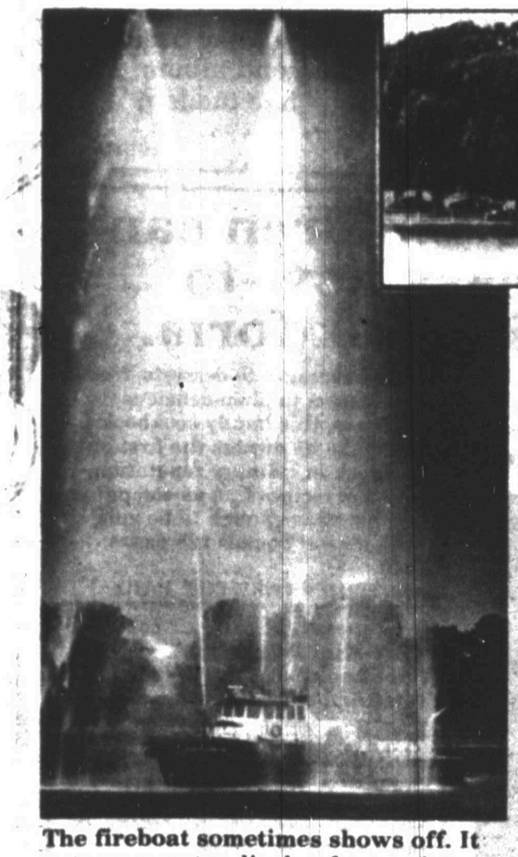
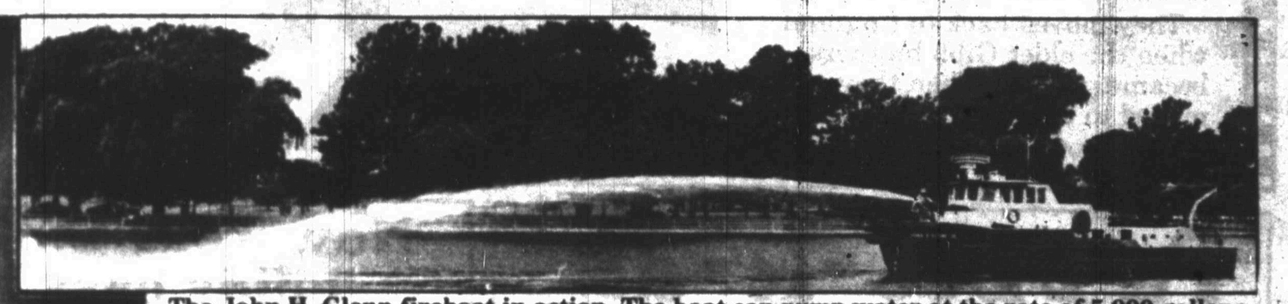
Fireboats Have Plenty of Water



The fireboat sometimes shows off. It puts on a water display for tourists and important Washington visitors.



The John H. Glenn fireboat in action. The boat can pump water at the rate of 5,000 gallons per minute. A fire truck can only pump 750 gallons a minute. The boat is named after John Glenn, the first American to orbit the earth. He is now a U.S. senator from Ohio.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The John H. Glenn fireboat has plenty of water.

All it has to do is pump water from the Potomac River.

Many harbors and rivers have fireboats.

People's boats catch fire just like their houses do.

Fireboats also put out fires on shore. They pump water to dockside blazes.

They can also hook up to hoses on land and pump water several blocks away.

Fireboats don't just put out fires.

In bad weather, they often swing into action. They rush to rescue boats in trouble.

When an alarm sounds, the firefighters can have the boat under way in 30 seconds.

The firemen live in a firehouse at the end of a dock.

Andy Gibb . . . the little brother who made it big!

The top recording stars, the Bee Gees, have a little brother . . . Andy Gibb.

He has made it big.

His two gold singles are "I Just Want to Be Your Everything" and "(Love Is) Thicker than Water."

Andy's older brothers helped him. His mother was a singer. His dad was a drummer. That helped, too.

Andy was born on March 5, 1958. The family moved to Australia when he was a baby.

They moved back to England when the older Gibb brothers became popular. Then they moved to the coast of Spain.

Andy got his first guitar when he was 12. One year later he began playing in a club.

Andy Gibb—the youngest Gibb brother.

The family moved to the Isle of Man off the coast of England. Andy formed a local band.

He decided to move back to Australia. Some rock stars go to that country to "get their act together" and perform before very critical audiences.

He planned to stay several years. He didn't stay long.

He came to this country and made his first album, "Flowing Rivers." Older brother Barry helped him. Together, they also wrote many of the songs.

Andy's concert tours have been a big success. His second album, "Shadow Dancing," has made it big, too!

Plenty Of Oil Left To Find, Says Arco's Davis

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - L.F. Davis says there is still plenty of oil to be discovered despite predictions about running out.

Davis, vice chairman of Atlantic Richfield Co., adds that predictions of running out of oil date back a century or more and that he finds them amusing.

"In 1865 somebody said there was little or no chance for oil in California," he said.

"In 1920 the U.S. Geological Survey said peak domestic production had been reached."

And in 1939, he added, the Interior Department reported U.S. supplies would last another 13 years.

"In physical terms, I don't believe there is any shortage of oil in the world," Davis said.

"Sure, we will eventually run out and we should be prepared for the day when demand exceeds production, but I don't see that day coming in this century and possibly not until we are in a few years into the 21st century."

Davis said there are two reasons for his optimism.

He said there has been a tremendous increase in the crude oil finding rate over the past five years in such non-OPEC areas as Mexico, the North Sea, China, and Egypt.

"Another big reason is the drop in world demand," he said.

"In 1955 to 1973 world oil demand grew at an average rate of more than 7 percent a year. Since 1973 annual consumption has grown only slightly more than 1 percent. We are predicting a 2.7 percent annual rate."

"The slowing of the growth in demand," Davis said, "and the rapid increase in non-OPEC resources give hope the OPEC nations will be more vulnerable to consumer pressures in the years ahead."

Davis said that even though it seems likely there will be plenty of oil over the next few decades the sources of supply will not necessarily be convenient to the United States.

"That brings us to oil as an economic and political problem rather than a physical problem," he said.

"The United States is lucky that Mexico apparently has so much oil. Right now we take over 80 percent of Mexico's oil exports and I expect we will depend on Mexico and the Persian Gulf for many years to come."

He said Mexico is talking about having 100 to 200 billion barrels of oil and production there could approximate 5 million barrels a day by the middle 1980's.

Davis rejected recent predictions Russia's oil production will peak this year and that the Soviets will be a major importer of OPEC oil by 1985.

"I would not be surprised to see the USSR production reach 20 to 25 million barrels a day by 1990 compared with the 11 to 12 million in 1977," he said.

Davis said he cannot buy the most drastic predictions that suggest a worldwide excess of demand over supply in the 1980's.

"In fact, I tend to see a worldwide abundance of oil rather than a scarcity through the turn of the century," he said.

"But no matter where you stand on the issue, whether extremely optimistic or extremely pessimistic, you have to arrive eventually at the same answer that sooner or later the available conventional oil supplies will be used up," he said.

"When that happens we had better hope that alternatives will be ready in sufficient amounts to take up the slack or mankind will be in serious trouble."

He said only time will tell whether the nation is preparing itself adequately to cope with the post-petroleum era.

"Everything considered, I think the proof of the pudding will probably come sometime after the year 2000 when the principal elements of our 21st century energy system, we hope, will be ready to fall into place," Davis said.

"That may seem very distant time but it really isn't."

Groves Goes Far After Hermleigh Graduation

Editor's Note: This is third in a series of Hermleigh Homecoming salutes.

By THEBA McMILLAN

HERMLEIGH - Arlon Groves graduated from Hermleigh High School in 1958. He was awarded an academic scholarship to Texas Tech, ranking in the top ten of five hundred applicants. He graduated from Tech with a degree in engineering physics.

After graduation, Groves accepted a position with Boeing Aircraft in Huntsville, Alabama, working under Martin Von Braughm, the German rocket and guided missile pioneer. Groves was later associated with Lockheed, also in Huntsville, Alabama.

After leaving Lockheed, he accepted a position with a division of National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in Houston, and after the third space flight, seeing the cut-back in the space program, Groves resigned his position in order to return to school.

He entered law school in Houston. Upon completion of his degree and admittance to the bar, Groves became associated with the law firm of Baker and Botts. He traveled extensively in the U.S. and abroad, as this firm has offices in New York, Chicago, London, and Houston..

Groves is presently a partner in the firm of Bard, Springs, Jackson, and Groves. He and his wife have two daughters. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. W.E. McMillan of Hermleigh.

Arlon Groves has proven himself outstanding in two major fields and is considered well-deserving of a homecoming salute.

Homecoming at Hermleigh High is set this coming weekend.

Days As Hypocrite Are Gone, Says Jeannie C.

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)-Rejuvenated Jeannie C. Riley, who has shelved her miniskirt for a new lifestyle as a "born again Christian," is no longer a hypocrite like the ones she excoriated in her sassy song "Harper Valley PTA" 10 years ago.

In 1968, a brash Miss Riley donned a miniskirt and boots and "socked it to" Mr. Harper, Bobby Taylor, the Widow Jones and other Harper Valley hypocrites. She was the first singer to wear a miniskirt on the Grand Ole Opry. Publicity pictures showed her in fetching poses with plunging necklines.

"I was being a hypocrite," Miss Riley, 32, acknowledged in a recent interview in her office in suburban Brentwood. "I wasn't pleased with myself. But there's no mask today. I am what I am and what you see is what you get."

This year, "Harper Valley PTA" was made into a movie and revived her invented image.

"I can't be objective about the movie," she said. "At one time, I'd have found it a barrel of laughs. But I don't want to be linked to raunchy little things. I don't think the movie will win any awards. I'm not fighting the movie, but I'm not sending people to see it, either."

She recalled being swept away with the image of a sassy, sarcastic young woman when the song came out.

"For about five years in my life, I was not me," she recalled. "I was a wind-up doll. The publicity surrounding me was a lie. They put it out that I was 21 and I stayed 21 until I was 25 or 26."

In 1972, she became a reborn Christian and gave her life new priorities. She quit playing nightclubs and dropped songs about a prostitute and a shotgun wedding from her act. She and her husband, divorced for five years, remarried and their daughter served as flower girl.

Though she continues to perform at fairs, she's had no major hits since "Harper Valley PTA." She attributes her decline to the false image.

"I couldn't create in that image," she said. "I couldn't be myself. I couldn't give it my best. But I'm comfortable with myself now. My values have changed so much. My peace of mind is more important than selling records."

In 1920, American women were given the right to vote.

how not to grow

One of our native wits once remarked "Those who can, play. Those who can't, coach." There are those who are never caught doing either who are great for giving advice or complaining.

Someone once put down on paper a few suggestions on how to ruin a community without even trying.

Whether one Lives within a community which has a great density of population or in a place where the greatest excitement is going downtown Saturday nights to watch people get their hair cut, the suggestions apply. They are:

1. Never attend any meetings - just sit around and criticize the way 'they' are doing things.

2. Vote against any kind of tax levy - no matter if it is to provide funds to pay for the first three blocks of paving on Main Street. The 'ins' just want your money.

3. Don't ever go to the school concert or ball game, benefit program or exhibit. Sit in a half trance in front of the television set. Don't let anyone tell you the culture in a community 40 miles away isn't better.

4. Limit your appearances in church to Easter and Christmas, and don't go then unless your wife or husband handcuffs your wrist to her's or his. Once inside the house of worship, count the times you think the minister was wrong, then recite them for all the world to hear later.

5. Don't buy at home. Either order out of the catalog or fire up the family buggy and go shopping in the next county seat. What do you owe the merchants in your own town? After all, donations made by those mail order firms and those out-of-town people keep your charitable functions going.

6. If anything is projected for the betterment of the community, save your best verbal darts for it and try to shoot it down in flames. Whether you realize it or not, your motto has become: "If it's good, it could never happen here."

7. If Your children rebel, blame the teachers for their lack of discipline. After all, what do we contribute to our education system for, if it's not for the biggest babysitting service in the world?

8. Keep the ethnic groups in their places. They already have too many rights that should belong to us alone.

Some communities grow, some don't. Those that don't invariably are populated by people who are suspcious of change and resist every waking hour to keep it from being forced upon them.

How many monuments have you seen built for persons who were long on talk and woefully short on performance? Such individuals are rarely remembered from one generation to the other.

Not that there had even been any doubt about the matter, but clear beyond possibility of being misunderstood is that Edward M. Kennedy, senior United States Senator from Massachusetts, is willing to accept the Democratic nomination for President in 1980, if the present incumbent should not be unanimous choice of party conferees.

Signs are unmistakable. The widely publicized visit with top officials of the Soviet Union is one. Others include appearances at party rallies around the country, culminating in the trip last week to New Hampshire, where Democrats were assembled for a sort of unofficial state convention looking forward to the Presidential primary early in 1980.

New Hampshire has come to be regarded as a barometer of voter sentiment in selection of Presidential nominees. With tongue in cheek Senator Kennedy began his address by asking himself a question, what was he doing in New Hampshire at that particular time?

In spite of declarations that he is not a candidate and will support President Carter in 1980, none could doubt what is really on the mind of the Massachusetts Senator. If he had actually desired to disavow intention of seeking the Presidency in 1980 he could have done that without leaving Washington. Filling speaking engagements like the one in New Hamphire can have only one purpose. That purpose is to let all concerned know he is available for a call from his party in 1980 if Gov. Brown of California or some other ambitious Democrat makes a showing that could mean Carter is not the popular choice for a second term.

If the nomination can be obtained without contesting in the primaries Kennedy beyond doubt would like very much to have it. He has some handicaps, notably the circumstances surrounding the death of a young woman companion in the course of a weekend outing participated in by married men and unmarried women in the summer of 1969.

Ten years is a long time in politics. Popular attitudes change. Millions of voters in 1980 will be too young to have been interested in peccadilloes of a U.S. Senator a decade earlier. If the nomination can be obtained without infighting that marks primary campaigns, Republicans could hardly afford risks involved in exhuming skeltons of the past.

psychologists strike out

For 30 years now penologists have been telling us that they could take a new prison inmate, diagnose his problems, treat him and cure him by the time he's released.

They have not succeeded.

Warden George Wilkinson of the federal prison in Marion, Ill., says that federal wardens everywhere are now ready to admit that rehabilitation has not worked, that we are now back to accepting prison as nothing more than a means of segregating criminals from society.

Paradoxically, the more we tried to do for convicts - psychiatric counseling, job training, grievance boards, television - the more demands, the more riots and the more recidivism.

At a men's colony in California the federal government pays some inmates from $200 to more than $500 a month in veterans education and Social Security disability benefits.

The income is tax free and subject to no deductions and the recipient may do whatever he wants with the money.

The Veterans Administration and the Social Security Administration state that under existing law convicts are just as eligible as anybody else to receive payments.

Annually the inmates of the men's colony collect a total of approximately $300,000.

Additionally, the taxpayers of California pay - for the housing, clothing, medical and dental treatment of the average inmate - $9,800 a year.

Teachers provided at the prison are also paid with state funds.

Even the books used by the inmates are paid for by the state.

And these are NOT deducted from the convicts' educational benefits which are paid in cash.

Yet with all this incentive to behave, restiveness persists.

This is another side to the prison stories we have been hearing about deprivation, overcrowding, abusive guards, bad food, homosexual rape and "cruel and unusual punishment."

When a riot makes news it is grievances which are ventilated in the media. But the generous humanitarian efforts to try to help prisoners - efforts which in some instances have resulted in "country club confinement" - have not been acknowledged.

As Warden Wilkinson says, "It is time for those of us in corrections to be more honest about what we are not able to do."

The attitude of prosecutors, judges and parole boards is toughening.

The decades of deference to the "rights of wrongdoers" by the U.S. Supreme Court have phased out; of the last Supreme Court session there were as many decisions favoring lawmen as there were favoring lawless ones.

A recent riot at a Pontiac, Ill., prison left three guards dead and three others seriously injured.

Tougher measures are a public admission that leniency did not work. The psychologists had their turn at bat, struck out.

Now, for the lack of anything better, we will try punishment again.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "To be criticized is to be complimented--it shows that you were doing something too important for the critics to ignore."

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is not one of the nation's favorite agencies--and it especially is not one of our favorites.

Recently, the University of Texas Bastrop County Science Park was designated as a chimpanzee breeding laboratory by the Department.

HEW didn't send the usual grants of money, but instead it shipped 15 chimps to the lab.

All 15 were male!!!

That's our efficient federal government in action.

There was another interesting note about the HEW we read just last week. It seems that the department, even though it gets to send its official business mail free of charge, doesn't like the postal service at any price.

The department has used a private carrier for the past four months claiming better and more efficient service.

A friend of ours interested in education brought in an article concerning the thoughts of Sen. S.I. Hayakawa on bilingual education. Keep in mind that Sen. Hayakawa is a Japanese-American.

He said that he had strong reservations about the $400 million bilingual education program under consideration by the Senate and that these programs should be restricted to helping youngsters learn English. He also blasted printed bilingual ballots.

Hayakawa added that the first duty of any immigrant is to learn the language of the new country. We agree. Let's do all youngsters a favor and teach them how to read and write in English first.

We noticed that U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen voted against the ERA amendment that would allow states to rescind their ratification. We simply can't understand his thinking, especially in view of the fact that the senator is a veteran in changing his mind.

If you don't believe it--compare his campaign material to his voting record.

DETROIT (NEA) - The tax-cut fever which broke out in California three months ago and then spread swiftly across the nation has reached epidemic proportions here, much to the dismay of the political establishment.

When Michigan voters go to the polls on Nov. 7, they will find on their ballots not one, not two, but three separate initiatives aimed at slashing both taxes and government spending.

No other state will offer so many opportunities for taxpayers to vent their spleen against Big Brother and his hand-in-the-pocket. But by the same token, no other state is in such imminent danger of finding itself in fiscal chaos because there is nothing to prevent Michigan voters from approving all three constitutional amendments - an outcome that would probably keep the state in court for years to come.

Michigan, unlike California, has no fat surplus to cushion the effects of any tax or spending cuts the voters might adopt, a point stressed repeatedly by those urging defeat of the three initiatives.

That is no guarantee, however, that the threat of service cutbacks will deter voters from approving any or all of the amendments. Two years ago, an initiative to clamp a spending ceiling on state government was only narrowly defeated - and that was in a much less agitated political climate.

A slightly modified version of that proposal, which would limit any increases in state and local government spending to the growth of overall personal income in Michigan, is on the ballot again this fall.

This time, politicians who opposed the measure in 1976 are flocking to endorse it - largely because it is the mildest of the three initiatives.

A second proposal, and one which gives the establishment considerably more concern would chop the property tax in half which allowing the state to raise its income tax by 1 percent in order to make up for part (less than half) of the revenue lost.

The third, and most radical, plan would eliminate the propety tax as a source of school financing, direct the state legislature to figure out another means of supporting public education and give parents a voucher which could be used to pay for public, private or parochial schooling.

Early polls indicate a sizeable plurality of voters are inclined to support the first two amendments, while the third is significantly less popular. The AFL-CIO, the United Auto Workers, the Michigan Education Association, the League of Women Voters and a host of other groups oppose all three.

What is interesting, however, is the fact that even the leaders of groups that stand to lose the most if the tax-cut and spending-lid amendments should pass remain convinced that the initiative process itself is a good idea.

"We don't mind it; we like it," said George Brown, of the Michigan Education Association. "We've won some ourselves in the past, and will again."

Michigan is one of 23 states (plus the District of Columbia) that permit voters to petition substantive proposals directly onto the ballot, bypassing the state legislature.

Here as elsewhere, relatively few initiatives actually get approved in any given election year. When people realize their vote has a direct impact on public policy, they tend to exercise it with great care.

But the initiative process itself remains extremely popular. By giving people a piece of the action, it encourages voter turnout. And in a year like this, when the politicians have fallen out of step with those who elect them, the initiative serves as a safety valve - a means for restoring citizen control over government.

Letter To Editor

To The Daily News:

First, please let me express appreciation for the opportunity such as your information square. It is seldom indeed that one can actually find out things, or even get a pet gripe aired constructively.

This year's fair was very good, as always. The problem I would like to comment upon was the crunching lack of display space accorded the needlework division. This is one of the most popular divisions, as shown by the amount of entries and the amount of interest shown by passers-by. As I read the judging results in your paper, I saw many listings I had not seen at the display at all. As the items were picked up to take home, I could see more than when they were packed in the display area. And there were some lovely items to see.

Personally, three of my articles were underneath others and couldn't be seen at all. The amount of care and work put in by the ladies on many of the items deserved more visibility.

Please note this is absolutely no reflection on the ladies working at the division. They did an excellent job of showing the articles with the space they had available.

I would like to suggest that most of the north wall be used for the needlework division in the future. Where could I send such a suggestion for attention and consideration?

Editor's Note--Since your timely comments require more space than we usually devote to our "Ask Us" column, we used it as a letter. it's possible

Few people exist who do not know by experience what someone means when he says that he is "worried sick" about something. Worry sickens the body and worry sickens the soul.

Doctors are finding that there seems to be no limit to the amount of destruction worry causes in the human body. It directly affects the pituitary gland, which controls not only the psychological, but the chemical balance of the body. Worry affects circulation, the heart, glands, muscles and the nervous system. Interesting research has been done on the relationship of worry to the common cold. Some medical people estimate that the average person abbreviates his own life span by as much as 10 to 15 years by common worry!

But worry isn't the problem! It is how we handle worry. We can attempt to tranquilize it, making it comparably comfortable to live with. Or we can utilize the discomfort to spur ourselves on to do something about what troubles us — doing what we can ourselves and trusting Almighty God to do what isn't in our human power to do.

God always gives us enough strength for the present day's needs. If we attempt to add, by worry, the possible needs of a couple more days to today, no one has enough strength for that task. Live each day as it comes! Do each task as it appears! Then the sum of all our todays will be good.

A very depressed man came to me and said, "Schuller, I don't make any difference to anyone. My life is not important."

"Yes you are!" I sincerely exclaimed. "You are important to somebody."

But he continued to protest, "No, I'm not. I'll tell you what my life is like. You take a bucket of water, put your finger in it and then pull it out. How big a hole is left? Well, that's me. I'm nothing. I'm nobody. I don't make any difference!"

What a depressing view of life! As we talked, I discovered why he felt that way. He had been playing it safe. He didn't want to get involved with people.

Finally, I said to him, "In a world with so many people lonely, confused, hurting, feeling rejected and insecure, there is simply no excuse for anybody not feeling needed. There are too many people who need you! So quit feeling sorry for yourself and start making some commitments to other people!"

If you're like that man, don't feel sorry for yourself if you feel nobody needs you. Don't be surprised if you don't feel important. Don't call a pity-party when you put your finger in the bucket, pull it out, and discover you didn't even leave a dent in the water. But mark this — you will be the loser because you need to feel needed! The deepest human need is not pleasure, as suggested by Freud; not power, as suggested by Adler and not even the will to meaning, as suggested by Frankl. Deeper than all of these is the need to feel needed, to experience self-respect, self-esteem and self-love! That's your deepest need — to be a star in life!

You need to be a star because it's God's plan for your life. Of course, when you become a star you pay a price for it. Satisfying that need demands involvement, commitment and caring!

Life is so constructed that each of us can choose to either make the environment pleasant or gloomy. There are two kinds of people on earth. Not the rich and the poor — for to know a man's wealth you must first know the state of his conscience and health. Not the happy and sad — for with life's years each has his laughter and each has his tears. The two kinds of people on earth, are the people who lift and the people who lean. The people who shine as stars and the ones who mope in gloom.

In what class are you as you go down life's road? Are you a leaner who lets others share your portion of labor, toil and care? Or are you a lifter who brightly shares somebody's load?

Rev. Schuller, pastor of the Garden Grove, Calif., Community Church, can be seen weekly on his nationally syndicated TV program, "Hour of Power."

Sesame Street Goes To Prison

EDITOR'S NOTE - Kids whose fathers are in prison often start out with two strikes against them. The people who brought us Sesame Street are trying to rectify that, starting their own day care centers inside the prison walls so the children have someplace to let off steam when they come to visit dad.

By BARBARA RIEGELHAUPT
Associated Press Writer

LOMPOC, Calif. (AP) - The day care center where Ben Cooper works looks typical enough. Brightly painted cabinets brim with books and games. All manner of toys clutter the floor. A huge poster of TV's Big Bird stands guard over the room, greeting youngsters each day as they frolic through the door.

Typical, except that two other doors have already clanged shut behind the kids before they reach their feathered friend. And the bird isn't the only sentry. This day care center is behind bars.

Cooper, 25, is a bank robber and the children at his center are the offspring of fellow prison inmates. He is one of 25 prisoners at the Federal Correctional Institute here who participate in a day care program that the Children Television Workshop - the "Sesame Street" folks - sponsors at about a dozen prisons around the country.

Inmates run the centers with the aid of an outside director, volunteering their time in addition to regular duties. They are carefully screened by a panel of inmates and prison officials.

Trina, a bright-eyed 3-year-old and her 19-month-old brother, are regulars at the gayly decorated Lompoc center. Their father has been in prison for 20 months.

"I got a new song for you," she tells inmate Marco Marcial, 23, as she bangs on a toy xylophone.

"What is your favorite song?" asks Marcial, a drug smuggler from Sonora, Mexico. Trina bangs again before Marco persuades her to demonstrate her talent for counting in English and Spanish.

"I like the kids," says Cooper who has served 15 months. "And since I'm doing a long sentence, being in the program helps me keep my mind open to the way things are out there."

A computer technician, he has about three years to go. He is divorced and has a 6-year-old daughter.

Funded by the federal Bureau of Prisons, the day care program was conceived by a Chilren's Television Workshop staffer to help care for children during visiting hours. It was tested at two Texas prisons and then adopted at facilities in New York, North Carolina, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Kentucky and California.

"Sesame Street" has one very basic objective - to fortify children with what they need to be successful in school," says Sandra Lindsey, CTW's West Coast coordinator. "One major part of that is how the youngster feels about himself. We're concerned about the stigma children feel as a result of not speaking English, being handicapped, coming from a poor neighborhood - or having a parent in prison.

"What we can do is to make it not as bad an experience as it otherwise would be."

More than 100 youngsters drop into the center at Lompoc each week, sometimes as many as 50 on a weekend afternoon. "It's like a little school," notes Trina's 21-year-old mother. "That's what she thinks of it as. It's a school for her and for him (her son), it's a place to play."

7-Year-Old Boy A Bed Wetter

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am desperate and in tears. I can't take it anymore! I have a 7-year-old son who still wets his bed. I have taken him to our pediatrician who sent us to a urologist. They both said there was nothing physically wrong with the boy.

I have spanked him, taken away his favorite TV shows, and even told him he couldn't play outdoors or go any place special if he wet the bed the night before.

I even tried making him wash his own pajamas and the bedsheet, but that didn't help.

To top it all off, my 4-year-old who stopped wetting his bed two years ago has now started in again! I guess he thinks if his big brother does it, it's okay for him, too!

My 7-year-old quit for five days straight before his birthday because he thought he'd get more presents, so I know he can quit.

I'm expecting another baby in four months. Then I'll have THREE kids wetting the bed.

I am ready to give up hope. Please help me, Abby!

HOPELESS

DEAR HOPELESS: If the doctors assure you that there is nothing physically wrong with the boy, try the "Wet Alarm" (Sears' catalogue lists it).

I've had hundreds of readers tell me that this solved the problem when all else failed. I hope it works for you, but if it doesn't, quietly change the sheets and make no mention of the wet bed whatsoever. No shaming and no punishments. Just total silence.

DEAR ABBY: I am a former GI, married to a girl from Southeast Asia. My problem is that she keeps after me constantly to send money over there to her family. I have been sending as much as I can, but it keeps me broke.

Abby, we are depriving ourselves of the necessities — like a telephone and new tires for our old car. We can't even pay some of our own bills, and she keeps begging and begging me to send more and more to her people. I work to support her and that's all I can do.

Please advise us both, Abby. And thank you.

30 AND DRAINED

DEAR DRAINED: If you're the only one working in your family (and I assume you are), it's time you learned how to say, "Enough is enough."

Those who have money should help those who do not, but you should allocate a set sum to send to her family — and not a dime more. Explain this to your wife.

DEAR ABBY: I always wanted my husband to wear a wedding band, so I saved up my money and bought one for him. He acted pleased when I gave it to him, but he wore it only a few times.

Every time I asked him why he wasn't wearing his wedding band, he'd say, "I forgot it."

I just couldn't believe he was that forgetful, but when I try to get the real reason out of him, he gets mad and won't talk, and I end up crying myself to sleep.

I finally came to the conclusion that either he doesn't want to be married, or he doesn't want other people to know he's married.

Outside of this, he's a wonderful husband and father and he says he loves me. What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: If he's a wonderful husband and father and he says he loves you, believe him and don't look for problems where none apparently exists, or you might create one.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Bomb Leaks Won't Deter Shipping Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)- Discovery of leaks in three nerve gas bombs probably won't deter the Army from shipping nearly 900 similar bombs from near Denver to an installation in Utah, the Pentagon says.

An Army statement Thursday said tests on the three leaking bombs and on one that was not leaking show there is "no evidence to indicate...that movement of the stockpile would present any problem." No date has been announced for the transfer from the Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver to Tooele Army Depot, 60 miles west of Salt Lake City, Utah. The Pentagon says the bombs are to be moved because the Utah depot is a safer and less costly place for storage.

Namath Says Ladies Good For His Health

HOLLYWOOD (AP)-Joe Namath reaches for the dictionary and flips through the pages until he comes to the definittion for "playboy."

"Yeah, I'm a playboy," he admits, then reads from the dictionary. "It says 'a man whose chief interest is the pursuit of pleasure.' That's close.

"My chief interest is the pursuit of my health. And ladies are good for my health."

Broadway Joe - the monicker hung on him when he was star quarterback for the New York Jets - is playing on a new field as the star of the NBC Friday night comedy series "The Waverly Wonders."

He plays Joe Casey, a former professional basketball player who coaches a winless high school basketball team. The humor derives mainly from the team's ineptness and from Casey's reputation as a swinger. The main challenge to that reputation comes from the school's principal, an attractive woman - what else? - played by Gwynne Gilford.

When he first meets the principal she tells him, "You scored more off the court than on it." She asks him how he likes his coffee and he replies, "With whiskey."

His nemesis is a plodding teacher the kids nickname Pinchface. Pinchface warns the principal that Joe is "sex crazed." Miss Gilford, her interest suddenly piqued, asks, "Do you think he really is sex crazed?"

Namath says, "I imagine I've been in some situations like this. The things we do are very real to me. Some situations I may have handled a bit differently."

He acts with such vulnerability and amiable naturalness that a character who could have been an insufferable boor comes across as likeable. As often as not he is the butt of jokes. He seems to be having fun poking fun at Broadway Joe.

The concept of "The Waverly Wonders" has been compared, unfavorably, to ABC's "Welcome Back, Kotter." There are similarities, like the older heavy who disapproves of Joe and the easy relationship with students. But executive producer Marc Merson denies a link to "Kotter."

If anything," says Merson, "it was borrowed from "The Bad News Bears" - taking one loser and putting him in with another group of losers. By discovering that he has something to contribute to these kids, he would discover himself."

Namath is in an uphill fight with his first television series, which the experts give little chance for survival. Will it be like Super Bowl III? Can Namath do the impossible again?

He doesn't brag about the show's chances for success, as he did in 1969 when he guaranteed a victory over the Baltimore Colts and the Jets delivered. But he is confident of his acting ability - and so are his co-workers.

"He has a marvelous flair for comedy," says Dick Martin, formerly of 'Laugh-In," who is directing the series. "Film comedy is very dependent on reactions because it was born in the days of silent pictures. Joe is a marvelous reactor."

"I think it's natural," Namath says of his acting. "I sure as hell like having a good time. I couldn't have gone through what I did in sports without good humor. I'd have gone nuts by now. Football is full of ups and downs. When you throw six interceptions in one game, you'd better have a sense of humor."

Female hormone support

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am in my menopause and haven't had a period for over a year, but I keep getting one infection after another. The doctor says I have an atrophic vagina and has put me on some hormone cream for three weeks and off for one and then back for three. He said this will strengthen the walls of my vagina so I won't have so many infections. Is this correct and is it dangerous to be on this type of medicine? I am so discouraged. I would appreciate any advice from you.

DEAR READER — When a woman's female hormones decrease, the reproductive organs also change. Both males and females tend to regress toward their prepuberty state when sex hormones disappear. After all, in nature's scheme of things, once you are not engaged in reproduction to replenish the species, there isn't much purpose for these body functions, no matter how important we human beings think they are.

The cells that line the vagina degenerate and change in the absence of female hormones. This change makes them more susceptible to infections from a variety of organisms. Often, if sufficient local female hormone support can be provided, the cells return to the pre-menopause state and are more resistant to infection. This is what your doctor really means about strengthening the walls. He didn't mean that the muscles in the area would get stronger.

The amount of female hormones that's in the usual salve-like preparation you are talking about is not enough to be significantly concerned about, unless you've already had cancer or suspicious evidence of cancer, or other factors that should lead to greater concern than usual.

Your doctor knows all of this and I would think that if you want to control your problem, it would be a good idea to stick with his program. I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. It explains what happens when the amount of female hormones diminish. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 13-year-old girl and would like to lose eight to 10 pounds. I want to diet but I don't know how to go about it. I also want to exercise, but I don't know what exercises to do. I would like to reduce my waist and thighs mostly. I want to jog, but I can't every day because of the weather. I would really appreciate any suggestions or any information you have.

DEAR READER — You may be surprised to learn that I am not going to send you a diet. There are too many young girls in your age group who get carried away with fad diets or the necessity to look thin and damage their health in the process. If you only need to lose eight to 10 pounds, you can do it with a very modest, sensible approach. It will take a while but learning patience might be a virtue.

Why don't you start walking every day that you can. If you walk two or three miles a day, and don't increase your calorie intake, you will use up the amount of calories in around eight pounds of fat within the course of a year's time. In addition to walking, you might learn different sports that you enjoy. If you like to swim, it's an excellent exercise.

The only dietary recommendation I would make would be to cut out the intake of obvious sweets, such as sugar used in any sweet drinks, desserts and candies. You might also trim away excess fat on any of the food you are eating. At your age, these minor adjustments in your diet plus a regular walking program should pretty well solve the problem.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 68 years old and was in the hospital for two weeks and had lots of tests and X rays. The X rays show that I have diverticulosis. I was so shocked to find I had it. I am afraid to eat much because I don't know what would make the trouble worse. So, would you please tell me what I should eat with that problem? I also have chronic gastritis and seem to have low blood, and my mouth and tongue seem to burn with too much acid.

DEAR READER — Don't be so shocked. About half the people in your age group also have diverticulosis. These are little pockets of the colon. They are nothing more than the rupture of the internal lining of the colon through the colon's muscular wall, forming these little pockets.

In many people they don't cause any symptoms at all. In others, if one of them becomes inflamed, it may act almost like an attack of appendicitis. If they rupture, of course, it behaves like a ruptured appendix.

Many patients who have these pockets complain of symptoms which really belong in the spastic colon group. In fact, many authorities think that spasms of the colon, related to poor bowel function, may be an important factor in the development of diverticulosis.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-6, Diverticulosis, to give you more information about this common problem. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I wouldn't recommend any special diet for your problem if you are not already having colon symptoms. Your best approach is to be certain that your diet includes an adequate amount of bulk. It may already, but you should be sure you have a certain amount of bran in your diet, and that can come from whole wheat bread and prepared cereals made from whole wheat that contain bran. You might want a certain amount of leafy vegetables in your diet.

It's true that roughage sometimes irritates the stomach and, because of your statement that you have chronic gastritis, you might need to be a little careful what kind of bulk you use. If you are using cereals with milk so that the cereal is adequately soaked before it is ingested, it really isn't roughage. The bran or cereal fibers swell and really become a soft gelatenous type material.

On the other hand, nuts, solid objects and some of the coarser vegetables, such as celery, do stimulate the stomach to produce more acids and may be a little irritating to the stomach itself.

I am not sure what you mean by having low blood but if you mean that you have an anemia, it's important to understand what kind of anemia it is. If it's because of iron deficiency, you can easily increase your iron intake with a daily all-purpose vitamin tablet which contains the daily needs for iron as well.

If you mean you have an anemia, and it is caused by some other factor, then you might need some additional help in that regard. This might be vitamin B-12 shots if that happens to be the problem. What kind of treatment you might need in that case would depend on what's causing it.

I am concerned about your comment that you are afraid to eat. Please be careful to maintain an adequate diet or that will lead to more serious problems than the X-ray evidence of diverticulosis.
