ROTARIANS AND LIONS TO PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

Plans have been made here for a series of three games to be played between the members of the Lions Club and members of the Rotary Club. The first game is to be played at the Recreation Building Friday evening, Feb. 21, at 7:30 with the second game played next Monday evening and the last game on Thursday of next week.

An admission price of 10 cents for students or children and 25 cents for adults will be charged, or a charge of 50 cents for the three games will be charged where tickets for the three games are bought at the same time.

Both clubs claim to have a large percentage of former basketball stars on their respective rosters, while each club is claiming that the manager of the other club team is stretching his imagination when he thinks he has any kind of a team.

Rumors have it that secret practice is being held regularly by both clubs, and both clubs are denying the rumors.

A list of the Lions eligible for competition in any or all of the three games is as follows:

T. J. Anderson, L. L. Bruce, Calvin Brown, Colonel Brasher, W. B. Crossley, C. H. Davis, B. E. Garner, R. V. Galloway, P. O. Hatley, J. J. Kelly, Floyd Killingsworth, J. N. Larson, C. J. Moore, J. E. Moroney, P. A. Nelson, Saule Perstein, E. A. Ringold, Mickey Sloan, H. H. Stephens, Hall Walker, Delbert Capps and J. C. Shaw.

Listed on the Rotary eligible list are Morris Bendix, S. P. Boon, R. B. Canfield, C. H. Koch, W. F. Creager, H. P. Earnest, E. L. Fontaine, L. B. Gray, John Hassen, F. D. Hicks, D. Joseph, P. M. Kuykendall, C. E. May, M. R. Newham, L. R. Pearson, C. B. Pruet, J. C. Smith, J. W. Tibbels and W. J. Walton.

Each club is preparing a list of the outstanding stars of its team, with the college or university at which they lettered and, in some instances, the years in which they played.

Randolph College To Play In Ranger Gym Tonight

Both the boys' and girls' teams of Randolph College, Cisco, will invade Ranger tonight for two basketball games, to be played at the Recreation Building.

This will be the first meeting between Randolph and Ranger Junior College, though both schools have been represented on the basketball court all season.

The first game will start promptly at 7 o'clock, with the second game starting immediately after the end of the first.

A small admission charge is to be made.

Traffic "Cleanup" Brings Many Arrests

HOUSTON, Tex.—Arrests increased almost 400 per cent during January over the same month of 1935 because of a traffic "cleanup" campaign, according to police records. The campaign was started to check mounting death tolls. More than 60 persons died in motor accidents in this area during 1935.

McGurn Is Dead by Gang Bullets

With two bullets in his back, Jack McGurn, above, ex-Capone killer who lived by the machine gun, died the same way in a Chicago bowling alley when three assassins poured a stream of lead into his body and then fled. McGurn had been killed an hour earlier, he would have met death on the anniversary of the St. Valentine's massacre, in which he was suspected of playing a major part.

REBELS TAKE OVER CONTROL OF PARAGUAY

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 18.—Angry veterans of the Chaco war charging they had been betrayed by political leaders, claimed full control of the country today after a swift revolt against peace terms negotiated by the government and approved by congress.

President Eusebio Ayala was a refugee on a gunboat in the Paraguay river and chiefs of the revolt announced he gave them his resignation.

The rebel officers will form a temporary government.

Complete calm was reported in the country by the rebel chiefs.

Business houses reopened and crowds filled the streets seeking to satisfy their curiosities. Casualty estimates had not been made.

Highway Is Built In Quaking Bog

MARLINTON, W. Va.—Cranberry Glades, West Virginia's scenic wonder which heretofore has been a veritable wilderness, is open to tourist travel through completion by CCC workers of a road from Richmond, W. Va., through the glades, and on to Marlinton, Civilian Conservation Corps officials announce.

Cranberry Glades, situated in the high region of western Pocahontas County, in reality is only one glade, containing some 300 to 400 acres of dense forest which abound in game. Within the glade there are five open spaces, the largest being about 85 acres. Each open space is separated from the others by winding, sluggish streams.

The area, known as the "wilderness of Pocahontas County," is drained by hundreds of clear, trout laden mountain brooks that flow into the Cranberry, Gauley, Elk and Williams rivers.

It is said there is no area of equal extent in West Virginia that is of greater importance for its influence on water flow than the Cranberry Glades which lay in an elevation of 3,400 feet above the sea and are surrounded by mountains rising from 1,000 to 1,500 feet.

Of never-ending sources of delight to the tourist, and more so to the student and collector, are the varied forms of plant and animal life. Two thousand varieties of orchids bloom in colorful contrast upon the metallic sheen of the moss carpet. As many as 32 orchids have been counted in a square foot.

Natives call the area the "quaking bog" for the ground quivers and shakes for rods around when some one walks on it. This is caused by the top carpet of mosses resting upon soft mire of about 20 feet deep.

TVA RULING TO AFFECT ALL POWER PLANS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Senate constitutional authorities, including Senator William E. Borah and George W. Norris, today joined New Deal authorities in interpreting the supreme court TVA decision as giving the go-ahead signal on government plans to utilize water power projects for low-cost electricity.

While administration officials were hailing the ruling as opening the way for other water power projects on a similar basis from coast to coast, Borah presented his interpretation of the decision, in which he characterized it as more far-reaching than some believed.

Borah said he felt the decision "broad enough to cover all questions that can legitimately arise in connection with TVA."

"If other dams come under the definition of navigable streams the law would apply to them," he said. He pointed out all the other TVA dams were on the Tennessee river or its tributaries.

C. of C. Directors In Called Meeting

At a called meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, held at the office of the secretary Monday night, Carl Jansing, local manager for Montgomery Ward, offered to have a safety program as a tie-up with the annual Oil Belt Safety Conference. Jansing explained that the program was one sponsored by his company and which brought out many safety factors which would make quite an impression upon the driving public. He was not sure that the safety demonstration could be obtained for the safety conference, but said he would make every effort to do so.

The banquet committee had no report to make, so that part of the meeting was postponed until the regular meeting of Feb. 24.

A nominating committee, composed of T. J. Anderson, J. J. Kelly and Coke Martin was appointed to submit names of applicants from which a secretary will be selected by the board at the next regular meeting.

All the members of the board have been urged by the president, Hal Hunter, to attend the meeting next Monday in order that a secretary might be selected and the banquet plans be pushed forward, as the time for the banquet is drawing near.

Huge Steel Door To Guard State's Cash, Securities

AUSTIN.—A 71,000 pound steel door was dropped into place with a clang this week, completing the state treasury's new underground vault. In it will be placed a buried treasure of more than $100,000,000 in cash and securities.

The door was literally dropped into place. A caterpillar tractor dragged it to the state capitol from a railway siding. It moved slowly along, foot by foot.

The door was maneuvered to a spot just over an opening left when the vault walls were constructed. There it was lowered and cemented into the walls.

The huge doors will swing open only at fixed times and only when operated by officials with the necessary information.

Soon grass will grow over the portion of the state capitol lawn that was excavated for the vault, removing the last outward indication of the treasure's site. It is reached from a passage within the capitol, through the 71,000 pound door.

Texas Gas Output Would Supply U. S.

HOUSTON.—Texas natural gas wells have a daily production capacity of 27,788, 181,000 cubic feet—more than enough to supply the needs of the entire United States, according to the Texas Railroad commission.

The wells are not permitted to flow freely, however, because the commission estimates the daily need is only 1,584,895,000 cubic feet and has ordered the wells prorated to meet the demand.

Many Wild West Celebrations to Be Staged This Year

DALLAS.—Memories of the "wild west" of pioneer days, often celebrated in story and song, will be recalled in the Texas cattle during 1936 in many rodeo and pioneer round-up celebrations planned in conjunction with the centennial year observance.

Plans are now going forward to stage scores of thrilling western entertainments during 1936 for Texans and their visitors from outside the state. Some of the celebrations to be repeated this year, such as Midland's Western Rodeo and Stamford's Cowboy Reunion, are nationally famous.

Fort Worth, center of the widespread Southwestern cattle industry, will take the lead with its Southwestern Exposition and Pat Stock show in March and the Texas Frontier Centennial from June 6, to Dec. 1, in which the "Gateway to the West" will present a four-months "Western Life" celebration and jubilee.

Thrills in true wild west style will be offered at San Angelo in March and Pioneer Day celebrations at Plainview and Floydada in May, in Bowie in July, and in San Angelo again in September.

The western rodeo at Midland in June will be a western event of wide interest as will be the Cow-pie reunion at Stamford, the Wild West rodeo at Pecos, the Centennial rodeo at Falfurrias, the West Texas rodeo at Borger, and the Pioneer Round-up at Clarendon, all in July, and the Cowboy reunion and rodeo at Big Spring in August.

Oil Increase May Follow Estimates Of March Demand

AUSTIN, Feb. 18.—Increase of 35,700 barrels in the U. S. Bureau of Mines estimated market demand for Texas oil in March was announced at the statewide prorating hearing of the railroad commission.

The new estimate is 1,104,000 compared to 1,068,300 barrels for February. The latter figure was 52,300 barrels above the estimate January market demand giving a total increase of 87,000 barrels since Jan. 1.

The northward field asked restoration of a former reduction the Gulf Production company announcing the increase was needed for a Smetwater refinery. The field formerly was reduced from 7,600 to 6,100 barrels a day.

ARMY PILOT FEARED DEAD IN A CRASH

SOUR LAKE, Texas, Feb. 18.—One man was reported killed and another saved his life by leaping from a crashing army airplane near here today. The plane fell in a field.

An employe of a local undertaker said an ambulance had been dispatched to the scene immediately, but details of the accident were not learned.

"Some men saw the plane fall. They saw one man jump out with a parachute. The wind was blowing hard and he drifted quite a distance away," the employe said.

"One man still was in the plane when they reached it but he was dead. The man with the parachute had not returned."

Neither of the occupants of the plane was identified. Officers left to learn where the plane was from.

Rep. O'Connor Is Now Sorry For Threat On Priest

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Representative John J. O'Connor, Dem., N. Y., strode out on the house floor today to charge Rev. Charles Coughlin had "maligned and scandalized" the house of representatives.

The short, sandy-haired chairman of the rules committee, resumed his battle with the Detroit priest in stirring fashion, keeping up the exchange of fire which began when Father Coughlin charged O'Connor with blocking the Frazier-Lenke farm mortgage bill.

O'Connor, in reply, offered to kick Father Coughlin from the capitol to the white house and it was stated the priest would arrive next week to accept the challenge.

O'Connor, however, apologized today for saying he would kick the priest from the capitol to the white house.

"I am not proud of that. I'm sorry for that. Like the great clergyman, I am Irish, too," he said.

Cisco May Get State Park Soon

CISCO, Feb. 18.—The Texas Parks Board has recommended establishing a CCC camp here April 1 for the purpose of building the proposed Cisco state park, it was announced today.

The recommendation was made known to Cisco workers in a telephone conversation with Wendell Mayes, vice chairman of the parks board.

The CCC camps are to be shifted April 1. Establishment of a camp at that time would mean that Cisco had been sent a CCC group had finished its work at another place and had come here to build up the Cisco park.

In the telephone conversation, Mayes said that the parks board had recommended to the National Parks Service that it establish a Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Cisco in the next camp allotment.

Approval by the board at Austin sends the project to Oklahoma City to the regional headquarters. Literature on the park site, Cisco, and advantages of a park here are being sent to Herbert Maier, regional park director, it was learned today.

From Oklahoma City, if it gains the regional approval, the project will be sent to Washington. There the National Parks Service will be requested to give an approval to the camp location.

Congressman Thomas L. Blanton, who will be consulted concerning parks in his district in Texas, has promised Ciscoans that he will approve the camp location here as one of the first two to be located.

The other, he has said, will be at Fort Griffin.

The park site has been donated after being secured by the city. It is the area comprising something more than 500 acres south and east of the dam at Lake Cisco.

Bruno Sentence to Be Passed On Soon

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—Bruno Hauptmann will be sentenced to die the week of March 22 if Justice Thomas W. Trenchard follows the recommendation of the attorney general's office, it was learned here today.

Royalists' Victim

Leon Blum (above), Socialist leader of the Chamber of Deputies, was dragged from his car and severely beaten in Paris by a group believed to represent the Royalists, who also aided-istocemfwypnu whom he has opposed. To Blum's followers Premier Sarraut issued a decree of dissolution against the military Royalist organization.

Eastland Youth to Aid Museum Fund

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 18.—Jack Taylor, Eastland student at the University of Texas, has been named co-chairman of the School of Business Administration for the campus campaign to raise funds for the building of the Texas Memorial Museum, it has been announced by Jenkins Garrett of Fort Worth, president of the Students' body and also general chairman of the campaign.

A minimum fund of $500,000 is needed to augment State and Federal Funds of $225,000, and this fund will be raised through subscriptions and the sale of Texas Centennial half-dollars.

Immediately upon completion of the campus campaign which opens Tuesday, Feb. 25 and continues through March 2nd, plans will be made to extend the campaign for the sale of Centennial half-dollars into every section of the state in order that every citizen of the state will have an opportunity of contributing to the successful completion of the first unit of the Texas Memorial Museum.

Left Wing Party May Control Spain

MADRID, Feb. 18.—A left wing government and amnesty for hundreds of men imprisoned for complicity in the 1934 revolt were in prospect today after a brief warning surge of radical sentiment that caused the government to call an eight day "state of alarm."

Reports from the provinces indicated little trouble, but throughout the country there was anxiety because of riots and mutinies yesterday. The result of an unexpected victory for left wing parties in Sunday's election for the one-chamber parliament.

Oklahoma Pension Law Invalidated

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 18.—The state supreme court today struck down Oklahoma's most ambitious attempt at social welfare—the $30 a month old age pension amendment voted last fall.

The decision said Gov. E. W. Marland illegally submitted the proposition, ordering it on the ballot in the September election before the secretary of state had completed hearings.

Senate Rejects a Neutrality Program

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The senate today rejected a proposal that congress work out a permanent neutrality program at this session instead of extending the present law until May 1, 1937.

The vote was 61 to 16. An amendment by Senator Bennett Champ Clark, Dem., Mo., providing for a three-month extension with the understanding the time be used to formulate a permanent policy, was defeated.

FOURTH SEVERE COLD WAVE IS COLDEST YET

The fourth severe cold wave of winter pushed its icy grip Tuesday to the gulf coast and far south into the usually warm lower Rio Grande Valley. Suffering was acute in many localities.

Only cloudiness at Brownsville and the lower valley was expected to save citrus orchards and winter gardens from the blight of a north wind which drove the temperature to 32 degrees.

Austin felt the coldest weather as the temperature there was 17 degrees, exceeding the previous low of 22.

The new cold wave struck the capitol after an influenza epidemic caused schools to close and filled hospitals with university students. State departments and courts were hampered by illness of employes, one fourth of the personnel of the capitol being ill.

Trapped in a tourist cabin which was ignited by a camp fire some one had built, Mrs. Maggie Calvin, 38, and Chamos Johns, 35, were burned to death at Houston. The temperature there dropped to 20 Tuesday. Mrs. Calvin's husband escaped from the cabin before it collapsed.

Amarillo shivered in a temperature of 4 above zero. The frigid blast caused readings of 10 at Dallas, Fort Worth and Abilene, 12 at Palestine, 22 at El Paso, 24 at Del Rio, 26 at San Antonio. Even Galveston, facing on the warm waters of the gulf, reported 28 degrees.

Government weather reports showed the huge mass of cold air extended from Canada down the valleys of the Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri rivers to Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

Northwest winds held back rescuers cutting through snow drifts with food and medicines for shivering residents facing starvation in marooned Iowa and South Dakota towns. With six new deaths from escaping gas and six killed in a snow slide near Cortez, Colo., the death toll of the month-long cold wave mounted to more than 375.

More Automobiles Registered In Texas

AUSTIN.—New automobile registrations in Texas during January declined slightly from those of the preceding month, but were substantially above those of the corresponding month last year, the report of the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said.

Reports from 14 representative Texas counties show a total of 5,215 new registrations, a decline of 4.7 per cent from the preceding month, but an increase of 19.7 per cent over January, 1935.

Each of the different price groups showed a sharp gain over January last year but only the lowest bracket indicated an increase over the preceding month, and the gain was only 2 per cent, the Bureau's report said.

Only One Day Left To Get In On the Trades Day Plans

A warning was sounded today by the Trades Day committee that Wednesday was the last day on which merchants could get their names on the advertising to be sent out over the trade territory, calling attention to the series of feature days.

"There have been some whom the committee has not contacted, though they have been called upon, and if these want to have their names added to the list they can do so by calling the office of the Retail Merchants Association," committee members stated today.

The circulars, which are to advertise the Trades Days, are to be printed the latter part of this week and all copy must be in not later than Wednesday afternoon.

Mountain Climbing Is Foolish—Yet Noble

Every time some hopeful soul is found frozen to death on the bleak slopes of a high mountain, the average stay-at-home citizen feels the necessity of taking five minutes off and trying to figure out why the late lamented went up on the mountain in the first place.

Mountain climbing is one of the riskiest of all sports, and it is also—from a purely material standpoint—one of the most supremely useless. It butters, as the old saying has it, no parsnips whatever.

The world will roll along on its slow progress to wherever it is going just about as well if all its lonely peaks remain permanently untrodden by human feet.

So when some daring Alpinist pays for his daring with his life—as happened recently to young Delmar Fadden on the high crags of Mount Rainer—most of us have a little trouble trying to understand what it was all about. Why lead with your chin, in a world where most of us get enough of a bumping around without going out of our way to look for it?

And about the only explanation you can get is that man is an incurable romanticist at heart—which is to say that he is an odd blend of poet and fool. This leads him into a great deal of trouble, and invites a good share of the discontent which eternally plagues him; but since it is also the chief thing that sets him apart from his ancient gibbering forebear, it is, on the whole, something for which to be thankful.

Because there is this wild, romantic streak in human haeris, a great mountain, to some men is always a challenge—and one that cannot be ignored. The mountain lifts its white, wind-swept peak against the incalculable blue of the sky, and a man looks at it and thinks, "It would be practically impossible for anybody to get up there."

And then, looking a little longer, he thinks, "Impossible—except for a really brave man who refused to let anything lick him"; and after that he thinks, "Besides, you would be up very high, if you did get to the top, and you could see a tremendous way." And so, pretty soon, he sets off to climb it.

Now there are many ways to take a beating in this life, but none of them is much more effective than this business of mountain climbing. All the rigors of cold and wind, the terror of high places, the torture of insufficient oxygen, the malignancy of ice and snow—the climber gets a double dose of them and every so often one or another of them kills him.

But the climbers go on climbing, anyway; and the very fact that they do is one of the finest things that has ever been recorded about the human race.

To take all that you have and risk it for something that has ever been recorded about the human race.

To take all that you have and risk it for something that you can never turn into cash—something that is a private matter between you and your own soul—that is to be truly noble.

The fact that men will do that is the best of clues to their kinship with something higher and finer than anything this earth affords.

DEDUCTION FOR BUSINESS EXPENSES

Deductions for business expenses form a large item in the return of many taxpayers and must have certain qualities to be allowed. Such deduction must be for an expenditure in connection with the maintenance and operation of the taxpayer's business or business properties; it must be an ordinary expense and it must be a necessary expense.

Typical business expenses of a mercantile establishment are amounts paid for advertising, hire of clerks and other employees, rent, light, heat, water, stationary, stamps, telephone, property insurance, and delivery expenses. The expenses of a manufacturing business include labor, supplies, repairs, light and heat, power, selling cost, administration, and other similar charges.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Many unusual projects are being carried out by investigators attached to the Peabody Museum at Yale University. Dr. Cornelius Osgood, curator of anthropology, who has devoted his research to the Far North, has completed the third of a series of Alaskan ethnological field studies.

In the field of oceanography, the Bingham Foundation at the Peabody Museum, is engaged in developing models of deep-sea fish. These fish, which undergo distortion as they are brought from the depths of the ocean, have been observed in their natural forms only by the scientists who descend in special apparatus to study deep-sea marine life.

CRUISE TO NOWHERE

by Deck Morgan
© 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Jane Weston feels her dreams have come true when she sets out on a three week's ocean cruise. She received her ticket in spite of the salary due her when the travel magazine employing her as a typist suspended publication. On board Jane meets handsome DIRK STROM who has been skiing at Lake Placid. He introduces her to his friend, SNOWSHOES, a detective. Snowshoes tells them that NORA LANE, famous actress, is on board. Miss Lane owns the famous Kokinor diamond and it is known that she usually has it with her. Dirk actually is as penniless as Jane. Injured during the skiing tournament in saving the life of a child, he accepted the cruise ticket from the child's father. MANNIE JACKSON, who appears to be a rather questionable individual, knocks at the door of Dirk's stateroom, later pretends he was mistaken in the number. Snowshoes joins Dirk, warns him that Mannie is a crook.

CHAPTER VI
Meanwhile Jane stood before the small mirror in her stateroom, rubbing cold cream on her face. It was almost a ritual tonight. She dabbed it on with her finger-tips and rubbed it in with a circular motion away from her eyes. She felt like one of the movie stars, comfortable and warm and beautiful. Tonight she was so deliciously happy!

She gathered her negligee about her—the really fine one she had picked up at a subway sale for less than a dollar—and danced to the berth. But she hadn't turned out the light. She lay back, with her head against the pillows and sighed. It was a long, luxurious sigh. Here she was on a great liner steaming into the glamorous tropics.

She had been too starved to wait for dinner in the ship's dining salon, for she hadn't had any lunch at all. She had ordered the dainty little things sent up to her, and it had come up on a great silver tray. She had tipped the waiter extravagantly, but she didn't care. It gave her such a sense of well-being now.

The city with its teaming millions, the bleak cold winds and slush in the streets, was far away from her now. She was all alone—and close to the sun and the moon and the stars—where nothing humdrum could happen.

Gone was her cares about tomorrow. In the morning she wouldn't wake up with that certain dread—that hobgoblin of fear which girls who pound the pavements looking for a job when there aren't any, know. It was like a suspension of time, and for a week she would remain in that delightful state where nothing could happen to her.

But in this moment of tranquility—this ethereal breathing spell which all of us mortals enjoy between the harsher, more real moments of life—Jane erred. She did not realize that, meeting Dirk Strom, she had broken her splendid isolation from reality. Human wills had already bent to each other and would inevitably clash.

Powerful, sweeping events had been set in motion by another thing which Jane, in her newfound bliss, ignored. She and Dirk had been singled out by men who made money out of other people's distress. And in this very moment she was brought back from her dreams of security by a rule shock which left her still and cold in her berth.

She became conscious of heavy breathing outside her stateroom in the hall. The fan above the transom kept up a sound of humming of bees. But clearly she could hear the measured breathing. A man was there close to the ventilator, and he was obviously waiting—listening. Her hands became clammy cold.

She slipped out of the bed and tiptoed to the door. She flung it open, just in time to see a pair of heels disappearing around the corner, into the long corridor which led to the elevators. She heard a door open and shut, and then she was alone. The electric fan hummed. She slammed her door, locked it and crept quivering to bed.

Dirk and the detective set in the great dining salon and watched the people come in for dinner. They had just finished the entree Long Island duckling, and were prepared for the dessert and coffee to follow.

Snowshoes was on his favorite subject of conversation. "The big racket in this country right now is the numbers racket. The football pool is no small turkey around Thanksgiving time. But they're just a chiseling game on a big scale. Now you take the jewel thieves—"

"You take 'em," Dirk said, smiling. "All this talk about unsettled money conditions has made the rich people afraid of gold and securities. A lot of them are putting all their money in jewels. The underworld knows it. There are international syndicates which do nothing but steal and market precious jewels."

"I'll just write that down," said Dirk. "There's a slice of rich Park Avenue, a slice of high-brow Broadway, and a slice of—"

He paused to watch two sleekly dressed individuals enter the dining room, walking stiffly past their table. "Times Square," he said, low. "That was Dutch. Len, and bless me! your drinking pal of a few minutes ago."

"Mannie Jackson," Dirk supplied. "I'll just write that down," said

"Don't talk shop," Dirk begged. "You give me the creeps. Every person I see tonight, I look at and wonder if he might be a blackmail-er or international jewel thief."

"Jewel thieves belong to an exclusive racket. They wear fine clothes, have grand manners, and mingle with the very people who own the jewels."

Dirk was watching the old dowager, Madame Doremus, seat herself for dinner, close by. Her companion, the mousy little girl, was trying to quiet her, but Madame, slightly deaf, went right on talking in loud, stentorian tones which everyone in the salon could have heard. She was idly fingering a large jeweled pendant about her throat, and as her hands turned to the lights a dazzling collection of large diamonds blazed forth.

"I always come in late," she said loudly to her companion, "so as to attract no attention. It's vulgar to make an entrance."

Dirk smiled. "Now, take that nice old lady," he said. "You're not going to suspect her of anything."

"Her jewels are probably paste," Snowshoes said sourly, and Dirk laughed. "She's the real thing, and too wise to come on board a ship with her real jewels."

The dining room was crowded now, and they looked about them to see three hundred guests merged into one indistinguishable mass of fine clothes under the soft lights. There was a sound as of buzzing bees, as people talked and laid plans to satisfy their various desires. And there were perhaps three hundred human wills at that moment working at cross purposes.

"I can tell 'em," Snowshoes added. "There's a slice of rich Park Avenue, a slice of high-brow Broadway, and a slice of—"

He paused to watch two sleekly dressed individuals enter the dining room, walking stiffly past their table. "Times Square," he said, low. "That was Dutch. Len, and bless me! your drinking pal of a few minutes ago."

"Mannie Jackson," Dirk supplied. "I'll just write that down," said

But it's probably a phoney name. They always are."

"There may be a few people like that who stand out," Dirk said, smiling, "but after all there are probably two hundred just like you and me, going on this cruise for a little vacation."

"Maybe," Snowshoes said sourly. "I wish I had picked some other place for my vacation. I'd rather be shooting ducks."

He watched the two men seat themselves at a table and glance furtively about the great room.

Down the center stairs came a handsome young man, tall and dark, his clean, smiling face crowned by well-groomed curly black hair. He was smiling for the world to see, and his well-timed entry attracted the attention of almost every person in the salon.

The waiter, who was leaning over the table, volunteered this information. "That is Tino Rossi, the Italian baritone."

Dirk watched his triumphant progress through the room, the cynosure of all feminine eyes. Tino walked toward a table where sat a boy and a girl who seemed to be engrossed in themselves. They did not look up when Tino approached them.

The boy had a tanned face, and was regarding the blond girl with an intent gaze. He merely looked at her, smiling a little lazily, not taking his eyes from her when he had short puffs on his cigar. But it was a respectful look, too. He looked at her as if he adored her.

"Now, you take that pair," Snowshoes commented expertly; "they're in love."

Dirk laughed. "I recognize the symptoms. Do you know who they are?"

"Sure. A house detective don't Snowshoes, "for future reference, miss anybody. He's the crooner with the orchestra. Ken Martin, used to be a farm boy. She's the dancer, Linda Hayes, late of Tonys night club in New York. The pair of them are the floor show of this ship."

When Tino Rossi presented himself at their table the boy stood up, and glanced at the orchestra stand. It was time for him to sing again. He got up, and walked nonchalantly to the stand. The orchestra began to play, and Ken Martin sang.

"I don't like crooners," the dowager said loudly, loud enough for every person in the room to hear her. "I came on board to get a rest from them."

For some reason Dirk found himself watching Tino Rossi and the girl Linda Hayes, at the table. While the boy sang they talked in low voices and once, at something Tino said, Linda flushed sharply. She was so unversed that she dropped her cigar. Tino was seated at her side against the wall. He reached out and caught her wrist, and Dirk distinctly saw him twist it. It was a nasty, swift torture, and the girl's features winced.

Dirk almost rose up out of his chair, but Snowshoes said, "Easy. Seems as if our fine baritone loves the dancer, too."

"He has a quaint way of showing his love," Dirk said hotly. "I'd like to paste him on his noble Byronic brow. That crooner had better not see what I did, or there'll be murder on board. Crooner or no crooner, I'll bet he'd fight for that girl."

When You Climb Drifts With Ladder, That's SNOW

When drifts pile to such height that it's necessary to use a ladder to climb 'em to repair telephone lines, that's snow that is snow. So Illinois refuses to concede honors to any other state, in the record blizzards that have whipped the entire width of the country. This scene gives a vivid idea of the handicaps under which linemen worked on the state highway south of Freeport, Ill., where drifts piled from 19 to 20 feet high.

Royal Service Program

The Women's Missionary Union of Central Baptist church studied in the home of Mrs. E. S. Brink, Walnut street, Monday afternoon, observing the monthly Royal Service program, with Mrs. C. C. Cash, leader. "Laborers Together with God in Kingdom Tasks," served as the topic, and the fine program was made up of the following connecting papers: study of the Bible, Mrs. W. E. Mitchell, prayer; Mrs. Noel Bell, "Together," Mrs. Cash, "The Annie W. Armstrong Offering," Mrs. H. H. Stephens, "The Baptist Hundred Thousand Club," Mrs. J. R. Watson, prayer; Mrs. W. A. Reuser, "The Margaret Fund," Mrs. F. R. King, W. M. U. training school; Mrs. George Rogers, prayer; Mrs. T. A. Arney, "All Together," Mrs. H. S. Packwood, and closing prayer; Mrs. Dan Neville.

A plate of pimento cheese sandwiches, pie, coffee and hot chocolate was served.

A bouquet of spring flowers were used in decorations.

The lesson was heard by 15 members of the union.

Mrs. Odell Bailey and Delegates Attend District Meeting at Cisco

Five delegates and sponsor, Mrs. Odell Bailey, attended the Home Economics district meeting at Cisco Saturday. Those from Ranger were: Misses Imogene Powell, Inez Baker, Lois Bragg, Nauwana Stafford, Annie Sue Austin, and visitor, Saidth May Taylor.

The meeting was opened at 10 o'clock, at the Cisco high school, and was made up of piano solos, readings and special trio.

Luncheon was served at high noon, followed with a business session in the afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock. President of the district, Miss Beryl Owens, of Baird, presided. Roll call was responded to with each person giving their own introduction. A representative from each circle told of the past work accomplished and aims of the future. The club, voted to assume the name and be recognized hereafter as the future homemakers of America.

Girls forming the Cisco club served tea at the close of the interesting session to delegates representing Eastland, DeLeon, Dublin, Cisco, and Ranger. Ranger was selected as the next meeting place, the date named for sometime during the month of April, after the State Rally to be held at San Angelo.

Royal Service Program Presented in Unique Stage Setting With Mrs. Tibbles Leader

The Royal service program given at First Baptist church Monday afternoon for the benefit of members of the Women's Missionary society, was one which offered an unusual arrangement. The stage was transformed into that of a classroom, with the leader of the program, Mrs. J. W. Tibbles, acting as teacher. Pupils carrying out the entire lesson were: Mmes. A. B. Bradford, Chester Rogers, A. W. Warford and R. S. Lee.

Program proper opened with a hymn, preceding the devotional. The lesson centered about the Baptist history, Baptist arithmetic, and Baptist projects.

The meeting was attended by a good representation approving the program one of the most valuable given many months.

Mrs. W. A. Lewis serves as president of the organization.

Ranger Fire Rate Is Not Increased Insurance Man Says

C. E. May pointed out today that many who had fire insurance locally had misinterpreted a story carried in the Times last Friday that Ranger had a 15 per cent penalty on insurance rates.

"This is not an additional 15 per cent debit," May explained today, "but is the same rate that has been paid locally since 1931. A new system of figuring debits and credits has been put in force with an average of the past five years used as the basis for the rates. By going back five years the laundry fire and the fire in the to the amount of loss."

May stated that people of Ranger were beginning to realize that when a home burned it added to the amount of loss in the town and everyone carrying fire insurance had to pay more.

The fire record for the past few years has been good in Ranger, but several large fire losses of three and four years ago are still used in determining the rate for the city, which prevents Ranger from having the debit cut down.

HERE ARE THE REAL FACTS ABOUT BRAN

Brought Out by Tests with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Some years ago, there was considerable difference of opinion regarding the use of bran. So to discover the actual facts of the case, the Kellogg Company asked for a series of laboratory tests at leading universities.

Experimental studies on a group of healthy women showed that the continued use of bran was thoroughly satisfactory. Unlike cathartics, it did not lose its effect.

Other independent tests on men indicated that, with certain people, the "bulk" in bran was more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Laboratory analysis proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplied vitamin B and iron as well as plenty of bulk. This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. It absorbs a great deal of moisture, and cleanses the intestinal tract.

ALL-BRAN corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk." It is the natural way—far better than using pills and tablets. Serve as a cereal—or use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
