

Marines Prepare To Rescue US Ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, applying both diplomatic and military pressure, today sought the help of China and ordered 1,000 Marines to prepare to enter Thailand in an effort to win release of an unarmed American merchant vessel seized by Cambodia, sources said.

Pentagon sources said 1,000 Marines on Okinawa received the order to "prepare to depart" for Thailand in a show of military force against the Cambodian armed forces who seized the ship Mayaguez early Monday in what Ford described as an "act of piracy."

The aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea and several destroyers also were steaming toward the area. And U.S. aircraft were continuing air surveillance of the Mayaguez, which was being held by two Cambodian vessels near a tiny island about 30 miles offshore in the Gulf of Siam.

State Department sources reported the administration was seeking the help of China to convince the Cambodian Khmer Rouge government to release the Mayaguez and its 39-man crew and avoid an international incident. China is one of the few countries which has communications with the new Communist regime.

But White House Press Secretary Ron Nesen declined to discuss the details of Ford's diplomatic and military strategy toward the seizure. "We cannot discuss any possible military movements," he said when asked about the Marine alert. He also said he could not answer the question whether Ford was considering a military response.

Asked if U.S. officials had sought to speak directly to the Cambodian government, Nesen replied, "I cannot talk about that." The Cambodian government has made no public statement on the incident.

The U.S. embassy in Phnom Penh was closed a month ago, a few days before the American-backed government of Lon Nol fell to the Communists.

Nesen said flatly that the Mayaguez was not a "spy ship" such as the USS Pueblo which was seized by North Koreans in 1968.

Ford meanwhile summoned members of the National Security Council to their second meeting since the incident. Nesen said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who was on a speaking trip in Missouri, did not intend to return to Washington for the meeting.

Nesen explained that the Mayaguez, a containerized merchant ship which was carrying cargo from Hong Kong to Thailand when it was seized, has been under constant surveillance by U.S. aircraft.

He reported that the vessel was seized near the island of Poulo Wai, a tiny rock about 60 miles offshore claimed by both the Cambodians and the Vietnamese. Two Cambodian gunboats then escorted the Mayaguez to another island, Koh Tan, about 30 miles north where it has been held ever since, he said.

Cambodians are aboard the ship, Nesen said. But he declined to say whether the American crew had been taken off the vessel.

The United States has received no reports of any crewmember being wounded on the merchant ship, Nesen said. The Mayaguez apparently did not go to the Cambodian port of Kompong Son as first announced.

In Moscow, the Tass news agency quoted "some reports" this ship was engaged in spying activities "before its arrest" by Cambodia.

The Tass news agency said today the American merchant vessel Mayaguez may have been engaged in spying activities before its "arrest" by Cambodia.

Tass reported the capture of the ship in a three-paragraph dispatch from Washington which quoted mostly Western sources.

"According to some reports, this ship was engaged in spying activities," Tass said.

Tass said President Ford had dispatched the aircraft carrier Coral Sea and other ships to the Gulf of Siam, and quoted the White House statement that failure to release the Mayaguez could have serious consequences.

Apart from the one reference to spying, Tass refrained from criticizing the United States — apparently waiting until the situation clarifies before making any comment.

It is the dissimilarity of people that is responsible for the entire economic progress.

Beverly Bradford and Eddie Roby were cited as the outstanding choir members Monday night at the Choir Honors Banquet sponsored by the high school choir boosters club.

John Wojcikowski, choir director, said the pair "exerted to their utmost will time and effort in choral singing and exemplified the Pampa high choir."

He presented the Hugh Sanders Achievement Awards at the ceremonies in M.K. Brown Heritage Room.

The director recognized the seniors participating in choirs. Don Lane served as master of ceremonies.

New officers for the Booster Club, announced by Lee Fraser, are Mr. and Mrs. Dick Stowers, president, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Riehart, first vice president, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Allen, second vice president, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dings, third vice president, Mrs. D.D. Spoonemore, secretary, Mrs. Doug Coffee, treasurer, and Mrs. Buzzy Tarpley, publicity.

Dana Rogers announced new choir officers. They are John Hollar, president, Gary Sanders, vice president, Tammy Long, secretary, treasurer, Debbie Lehnich, librarian, and Irene Haesle, historian.

Lee Barrett presented assistant choir director Louise Richardson with a gift. Wojcikowski received a gift from the choir members presented by choir president Mike Fraser.

Among those providing entertainment was Jeri Bohlander.

All concert choir members received certificates from Sea-Arama Southwest Choral Festival, Galveston, where the group toured this spring.

Seniors recognized include: Jerry Allen, Becky Barrett, Cindy Black, Stacey Boddy, Miss Bohlander, Brent Boynton, Miss Bradford, Shelly Covalt, Cheryl Dunn, Fraser, Jan Gray, Noel Hansen, Sherilyn Hedrick, Mary Holman, Dottie Johnston, Lelecia Lemons, Dexter McKay, Tonya Organ, Renee Penn, Lori Perilloux, Charla Polk, Roby, Miss Rogers, Gay Thames, Debbie Thompson, Renel Tigrett, Sandra Vance, Kayla Waterbury, Janet Whittell, Kathy Anderson, George Hendrick, Warren Joiner, Nancy New and Pam Thomas.

Mixed choir and sophomore girls choir also were honored.

The choir awards won this school year, along with awards of the high school band, the junior high band and the junior high choir, will be displayed this week in Tarpley Music Company, 119 N. Cuyler.

Dry Crops Savor Local Rain Storm

By Pampa News Staff

A big drink for area dry land wheat crops may have saved many fields from dying of thirst, provided they were spared hail damage in the storm that moved into the Pampa area about midnight Monday, dumping amounts of rain varying from an inch to two inches.

Tom Anderwald who lives five miles south of Kingsmill reported one and a half inches of rain.

Curtis Schaffer, who lives 22 miles south of Pampa said early today he had received about an inch of moisture.

"It's sure going to help the wheat and make the weeds grow," Schaffer said.

Leon Daughtery who lives four and a half miles north of Pampa on US 70 said his area got one and a half inches since Monday night and it still was "pouring down" at 9 a.m. He said that he got an inch of rain on Sunday night.

Charles Gatlin, 25 miles east of Pampa, reported three inches since Sunday with two-thirds of that amount falling last night and today.

"We're real proud to see this," he said. "I hope we get some more."

At the Henry Urbanczyk farm 12 miles southwest of Pampa a reported one and a fourth inches have fallen.

Mrs. Dwan Urbanczyk, south of Pampa, reported that hail, ranging from marble to pea size, fell at 12:30 a.m. today and some remained on the ground at 10 a.m. Late this morning she reported that rain still was falling and the extent of hail damage had not yet been determined.

Alvin Kalka, three miles southeast of Skellytown, said the hail had not damaged much around his home, "but a mile east it looks like a 25 to 30 per cent loss," he said. "We're not hurt too bad and it's sure going to help all the dry land wheat the hail didn't get."

Kalka said about two inches of rain had fallen in his area.

From 6 a.m. Monday to noon today Pampa had received about an inch and a half of rain with some hail about midnight last night. No damages due to the hail had been reported within the city limits.

The rest of the Panhandle and West Texas also were pelted with hail and heavy rains. Three tornadoes were reported spawned by the clouds, but there were no reports of serious damage or injuries.

Twisters reportedly touched down near Channing, Groom and Claude.

The weather forecast calls for partly cloudy skies today and Wednesday with the high today in the low 70s dropping to the 40s tonight. The high on Wednesday will be in the upper 70s.

Forecasters say this area has a 50 per cent chance for rain today and Wednesday.

Another request for approval to seek federal money designed to assist with Bi-Centennial projects was taken under study and will be reported on at the commission's next meeting in two weeks.

Bob Underwood of Amarillo was appointed as fiscal agent to represent the City in handling financial arrangements in connection with the city's proposed sewage treatment plant.

An ordinance establishing a mobile home code for Pampa was passed on first reading. Commissioners also approved on first reading an ordinance allowing mobile homes as fixed dwellings in two city areas.

Another ordinance the city commission forgot to take action on back in August of 1970 was passed on first reading, changing Lots 5 and 6 in the Hillcrest Addition from multiple-family to retail zoning.

The change had been approved by both the city zoning commission and the city, but there was slip up somewhere on adopting the ordinance. City Manager Wofford said.

Mrs. Clotilde Thompson and Kay Fancher, representing the Gray County Bi-Centennial Committee, received approval from the commission to seek a grant from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission to aid with Pampa's establishment of a Gas and Oil Museum in Recreation Park.

Wayne Steddum, Cable TV general manager, said the company is planning new services including news, sports and stock market reports on two new channels.

Late this forenoon, staff members still were studying bids received for the purchase of five police patrol cars. Bidders included Harold Barrett Ford, Culbertson Stowers Chevrolet and Pampa Chrysler-Dodge.

Mrs. Meador said since the scholarship inception, 12 persons have received the scholarship and eight have returned to Pampa to work at least one year.

Most attend school at Northwest Texas Hospital School of Nursing in Amarillo, she said.

Mrs. Meador said students who receive the scholarships must agree to work for this community at least one year.

If they do not return, they must repay the money at 20 per cent interest, she said.

She added that there has been no collection problems in the past.

Judge Don Cain said the commissioners would table the request until the June session in order to determine the legality of spending revenue sharing funds for that purpose.

After the meeting, Mrs. Meador said Highland General has employed seven foreign nurses due to the shortage, and the McLean hospital has one.

Monogue said that although there is no shortage at McLean at this time, the staff is so short that if one person becomes ill, it creates a problem.

In case of a disaster like the Lefors tornado, nurses here were called back in to help. Should it continue, nurses would have to work 12 hours daily seven days a week, she said.

The commissioners court was still in session at press time today.

Mrs. Meador asked commissioners to use $6,627.80 from revenue sharing funds for nursing scholarships, designed to train and return four registered nurses here.

The program originally was set up by the Pampa-Gray Foundation which is no longer in a position to finance it, said Robert Monogue, hospital administrator.

America's strength

What has happened in Vietnam has weakened America. But we can and will recover. We can be stronger than before if we gain a better knowledge of our own strengths and weaknesses as a nation.

We are strong not only because of our enormous wealth of natural resources, a mighty economy, a vast array of modern arms and skilled military people.

More important, we are strong because of the ideals of individualism and popular self-government on which this nation was founded nearly 200 years ago.

Putting our principles into practice has not been easy. The slavery issue caused the Civil War. Urban riots continue in our own time. Poverty remains a major challenge in this country. Large groups share unequally in the American dream. We are a pluralistic society with plural problems and viewpoints, and we sometimes have trouble reaching agreement on fundamentals.

But the staying power of our principles matches the physical scale of our resources. We are a nation widely regarded around the world as a model. We are showing the way to the world's future.

Our image is a major strength. We devalue and debase it in our own and the world's eyes when we act as though ends justify means. Then we truly weaken ourselves.

Other nations can play the bully boy better than we can. When we resort to secrecy and dirty tricks, we destroy our vision of an open society dedicated to high ideals.

We have emphasized the negative of anti-communism long enough. We need to be pro-free-dom. The nature of other governments with whom we deal is important to us. We cannot sincerely support any totalitarian government that denies freedom to its own people, even though it may also oppose communism.

The crass opportunism of a Stalin, who started World War II by making a nonaggression pact with Hitler, can be no pattern for us.

After Vietnam, America must raise her eyes to the high places of her history, from which comes her strength.

It is the people themselves that hold the greatness of America in their hearts and minds.

What we need are leaders to trust the people, to trust our own principles, and to have faith that we will prevail in an ever-more dangerous world by living up to the best that is in us.

If we ever lose hold on our moral heritage, we will be adrift indeed.

TARGETS --- This map shows the likely principal targets of any Soviet nuclear missile attack that might be directed against the United States.

Hypothetical attack on U.S. analyzed

Copley News Service

The damage done to the United States by a limited Soviet nuclear attack would depend on the kind of targets which they might choose to strike.

The Defense Department has estimated casualties that would result from various hypothetical strikes on military targets, as indicated in the accompanying charts.

For example, an attack on intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM), Strategic Air Command (SAC) and nuclear-powered ballistic missile submarine (SSBN) bases could result in some six million deaths.

The attack was assumed to occur in March, the worst case month for winds with respect to fallout. A total of 2,158 weapons were used and they were assumed to be detonated at an "optimum height of burst."

In contrast to a ground burst, where the detonation is assumed to occur within a few feet of the ground, the term optimum height burst denotes a detonation at an altitude that maximizes a weapon's radius due to air-induced shock. If the Soviets chose to surface-burst their weapons, there would be two or three times as many casualties.

The U.S. populace was assumed to make maximum utilization of existing civil defense facilities.

In addition to the estimated six million-odd fatalities, there would be more than five million nonfatal injuries, largely due to radiation sickness.

A "worst case" example of collateral damage, cited by the Defense Department, is St. Louis, Mo., because of its proximity to the Minuteman missile complex at Whiteman Air Force Base. Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger called it "one of the most prominent cases involving a relatively close co-location of strategic targets and a major urban population center, considering normal U.S. wind patterns and their effect on the distribution of radioactive debris."

Because of the prevailing west winds, St. Louis is likely to be directly downwind from a large number of nuclear blasts, and particularly vulnerable to an attack on Whitman.

Thus it has been calculated that a comprehensive strike against ICBM, SAC and SSBN support bases could result in 750,000 fatalities and 210,000 nonfatal injuries. The figures are derived from applying a "national average protection factor," a figure based on fallout shelter surveys. If the "St. Louis protection factor" is taken instead, based upon fallout shelter facilities available in the St. Louis metropolitan area (and assuming they are effectively used), the revised figures are estimated at 51,000 fatalities and 540,000 nonfatal injuries respectively.

Assuming the wind were blowing the other way—in a westerly direction—the casualties in Kansas City from a one-megaton attack on each of the Minuteman silos at Whiteman would number 216,000 fatalities and 477,000 nonfatal injuries using the national average protection factor profile, and 1,500 fatalities and 8,000 nonfatal injuries using the specific Kansas City protection factor profile.

In this case, St. Louis would remain relatively unaffected.

U.S. DEFENSE Could atomic war be limited?

By ROBERT BETTS
Copley News Service

World holocaust, with cities lying in smoking ruins, populations wiped out, perhaps a whole civilization ended—that is what nuclear war means to most people.

But what about a limited nuclear exchange?

"Unlikely, but possible," say Pentagon strategists.

"The likelihood of a nuclear exchange starting with a selective strike, however low, is still higher than the likelihood of such an exchange starting with a strike at the urban industrial centers of the United States," Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger told the Senate subcommittee on Arms Control, International Law and Organization in a hearing.

The hearing took place several months ago, but a report of it has only recently been made public. It is titled "Briefing on Counterforce Attacks."

A limited attack might result in "relatively few civilian casualties," said Schlesinger—meaning perhaps a million or less, compared with the estimated 95 million to 100 million "prompt plus fallout fatalities" that would result from a massive strike.

Schlesinger told the committee that "the ability of the United States to respond to such an attack contributes to the deterrence of such an attack. If our only option were to be able to launch massive strikes against the Soviet urban industrial base, the Soviets in these hypothetical circumstances... might believe that the United States might be self-deterred and that, therefore, low risk selectively attack the interior of the United States."

"If the United States possesses the ability to respond in kind, then the Soviet planner is faced with the prospect that the United States would respond and leave him in a no-gain situation and, therefore, he would continue to be deterred. Deterrence remains the name of the game."

Schlesinger reported that the Soviet Union had proceeded with a set of development initiatives "that are surprising in their depth and strength. Their new land-based missiles possess throw weights which on the average are three times that of the previous array of missiles."

"They appear to be acquiring on the order of 7,000 or 8,000 MIRVs (multiple independently targetable reentry vehicle) just in their ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missile) force, let alone their SLBM (submarine launched ballistic missile) force."

The Department of Defense also has information that "the Soviets have achieved or will soon achieve, accuracies of 500 to 700 meters with their ICBMs... that would represent about a fourth to a third of a nautical mile."

At the present time the Soviets have a couple of thousand warheads, Schlesinger said. He added: "As you look out beyond 1975 they probably will start a process of deployment of MIRVed missiles which we would expect to number about 200 ICBMs a year if they conform to previous trends. So, roughly seven or eight years from now they could have on the order of 7,000 MIRVed reentry bodies deployed."

Schlesinger admitted that the choice of U.S. targets the Soviets might choose to strike, should they wish to initiate nuclear warfare on a limited scale, is highly speculative.

"It does not seem unreasonable, however," he said, "to assume one of their major objectives would be to reduce the nuclear retaliatory capability of the United States.... It is precisely because we cannot confidently predict the targets the Soviets might choose to strike that we emphasize the need for flexibility in our planning and our retargeting capability, plus the need for good command control and communications capability to permit ad hoc adjustments to the situation at hand."

IRS overcompensates

The tax man used to sanctify the rite of marriage through lower income tax rates for those filing joint returns. Now it appears the Internal Revenue Service has provided an incentive for those who live in what was known, in simpler times, as sin.

In the Tax Reform Act of 1972, the IRS responded to long-standing protests from single workers by providing a special tax rate schedule.

Now most husbands and wives who work are paying higher taxes than if they were not married. As the so-called Marriage Tax has become better known, there have been increasing protests and proposed legislation in Congress.

The new inequity is startlingly large. A husband with a $15,000 annual income and a working wife who brings in $10,000 in wages will pay $628 more than if they were reporting income separately as single persons.

Familiar with this, a husband-wife team of certified public accountants in the East has outwitted the IRS. They divorce each other at the end of the year and remarry at the start of the new year. The tax saving, they say, finances an annual January honeymoon in Las Vegas.

Congress should hasten a correction of this inequity.

Men, my dear, are very queer animals—a mixture of horse-nervousness, ass-stubbornness and camel-malice.

It was once believed that serpents cured blindness with fennel roots.

ULASCEWICZ INDICTED

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anthony "Tony" Ulascewicz, the paunchy former New York City policeman who added a measure of comic relief to the tedious Senate Watergate hearings with his tales of Watergate bungling, has been indicted for filing false tax returns while employed as a White House investigator.

Ulascewicz, 55, was named in a two-count federal indictment Tuesday accusing him of underestimating his earnings for two years, reporting income of about $16,000 in 1971 and $27,000 in 1972.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

WHERE IN THE WORLD?

Where is this city? The people all speak your language, sort of, though it's really a melting pot where about a quarter of the population is foreign born. The first pioneers arrived in 1798 and today you can see a re-creation of their settlement. You can also shop in one of the biggest shopping centers in that half of the world (woolens and opals are very good buys), and see one of the finest art collections, including three Rembrandts.

Often called the Harbor City, it is one of the busiest ports in the world, surrounded by hundreds of miles of beach resorts and best seen by boat.

In between sightseeing, you can watch top entertainment and tennis, play some sets yourself and golf, fish and enjoy many other sports. In addition, this city has the only Holiday Inn on the continent, featuring a rooftop garden, a swimming pool with a panoramic view of the surrounding harbors, a health studio, jogging track, shopping mall and restaurants where you can taste standard American cuisine and local dishes such as carpethag steak, beef tenderloin stuffed with oysters, or even kangaroo.

This city is (a) San Francisco, U.S.A. (b) London, England (c) Sydney, Australia (d) Capetown, South Africa.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Suburban Neville Township has posted the following sign as a warning to motorists who may be inclined to speed:

"Neville Township reminds you! Thirty days hath September, April, June and November—and anyone exceeding our speed limit."

The poster was signed by Donald A. Clear, commissioner.

Lead-footed Ledbetter Constantly Late

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Thirty lashes with a nasty old chicken feather for saying that dogs will kill only when they are in pairs or packs. Where did you ever get that idea? It's not true: One dog alone will attack and kill chickens, other animals or even people.

I have owned two chicken-killing dogs at different times, and while the suggested cure of tying the dead chicken around the dog's neck and leaving it there until it rots is good, I have a more effective cure.

I catch the dog with the dead chicken in his mouth, and while holding the dog firmly, I take the chicken from his mouth and then proceed to beat the %$#! (expletives deleted) out of the dog with the dead chicken. This really works.

No, I am not cruel. I am just sick of losing chickens. BILL IN WELLSVILLE, N.Y.

DEAR BILL: Thirty lashes with a chicken feather isn't enough. Make it a dog leash. I got the idea that dogs will only kill in pairs or packs from three veterinarians. And have I got a bone to pick with them!

DEAR ABBY: Please tell the young girl whose boyfriend was always late that I had the same trouble with my boyfriend but married him anyway and couldn't be happier. We've been married for 18 years and have six wonderful children. (The last one was born in the parking lot of the hospital because my husband was late.)

I wouldn't trade my man for any other in the world. Being late is his only fault, but he's worth waiting for.

NADINE LEDBETTER

DEAR NADINE: Congratulations—even though you weren't able to get the lead out of Ledbetter.

DEAR ABBY: In a recent letter, a young woman who had been living with her boyfriend for two years wanted to have a big church wedding. You replied in your column that it was in poor taste since they had been living together openly.

What difference does it make whether two people have been living together openly or secretly? A wedding is for the couple's benefit and not that of the guests. If the bride and groom want a big church wedding, who has the right to tell them not to have one just because others might think it's in poor taste?

MY VIEW

DEAR VIEW: A couple should indeed have the kind of wedding they want. But if they chose to live together openly for two years despite their parents' protests, why should they expect their parents to foot the bill for a lavish, 300-guest extravaganza?

ERA Resolution Likely Dead

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. Bill Hilliard, D-Fort Worth, says he's got nothing against women and they can be as far as he's concerned. But he's opposed to the federal Equal Rights Amendment and he will do everything he can to keep it out of the constitution.

"I'm not a racist and I don't have anything against blacks, Mexicans or women," Hilliard said Monday. "I voted for the state equal rights amendment in 1972 and I'll vote for it again. I don't believe in discrimination. But all this amendment does is take away the state enforcement and gives it to the Congress."

Hilliard walked across to a window in the House chambers and pointed out to the south lawn of the capitol.

"There's a marker down there for people who fought and died for states rights over 100 years ago. And here we are today trying to give it back to the federal government."

But Hilliard is beginning to feel the light is over — at least for the state of Texas and at least for this year. He said his bill to rescind Texas' ratification of the ERA will not be brought to the House for a vote because the legislature is in session for only three more weeks.

"I doubt very seriously that it has a chance this late in the session with so many other things coming up," he said.

Hilliard blames his problems on legislative liberals who sent the bill to a study committee which studied the legal ramifications of rescinding the ERA.

"When this world goes to hell and back, the liberals are going to be paying for it," Hilliard said.

Of all the items considered by the legislature this session, none has drawn the response as the discussion of rescinding the ERA. Women representing both points of view have staged massive demonstrations at the capitol and have furiously lobbied legislators throughout the first months of the session.

"There's not one area we've had that has many people concerned and showed such an interest in it," Hilliard said. "I'll tell you what's wrong with this world today is that too many of us are afraid to vote because of political reprisals."

The staff assigned to study the legal implications of rescinding ratification of the ERA issued a 23-page report Monday, complete with complex and involved footnotes. Hilliard said the study was a delaying tactic concocted to prevent the bill from ever coming to a vote. The study offered no recommendations.

"This took just about 10 days and accomplished nothing," Hilliard said. "I think it was just a ploy to hold up the legislation. They made no recommendations whatsoever."

Texas Comptroller Calls For Annual Budget Sessions

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby says he likes the idea proposed by Comptroller Bob Bullock having the current legislature write a one-year budget and write the second year's in a 1976 special session. But, Hobby says, it's not going to be done that way.

"We need annual sessions, he's absolutely right," Hobby said Monday. "Whenever you appropriate for two years and you're shooting from the hip. But the constitution says do it two years at a time and the governor, as you know, doesn't like to call special sessions."

But Bullock said earlier in the day a special session might not be necessary. If voters approve the revised constitution in November's elections, then the legislature will be in session next January anyway and "it only makes good sense to handle the next year's budget at that time."

"But even if a constitutional session turns out unnecessary, we'd still be penny wise and pound foolish not to come back next year because the interest alone on the reserve fund — if invested wisely — would pay for a budget session many times over," the comptroller said.

Bullock said the current session should devote most of the time between today and the June 2 adjournment date to resolving school finance reform since Gov. Dolph Briscoe has designated that the No. 1 priority of the legislature. The school finance plan will cost at least $500 million, probably a little over $600 million, and budget writers are concerned it will necessitate a tax increase, something Briscoe has vowed he will veto.

Court Decision Sets Back Causes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court has set back environmental and other public interest causes by drastically curbing legal fees collectible from powerful opponents such as oil companies who are successfully sued.

The issue stemmed from a complaint by the Wilderness Society, the Environmental Defense Fund and Friends of the Earth that the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. was planning to transport Alaska Oil without regard to federal environmental law. Eventually Congress settled the issue by legislation.

Then the groups sought to collect their lawyers' fees from the company. Numerous lower courts have awarded attorneys' fees in such circumstances on the ground that a particular citizens group was acting as a "private attorney general" in forcing official policy for the public good.

But an opinion by Justice Byron R. White on Monday said this practice is wrong unless such awards are specifically provided for in a statute. He said Congress can change the law whenever it wishes.

Lawyers devoted to bringing citizens' lawsuits described the ruling as a disaster. They said their only recourse now is to Congress.

"The court has really gone out of its way to do in the private attorney general doctrine," said Washington attorney Samuel R. Berger of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights under Law.

Attorney Charles Halpern, executive director of the Council for Public Interest Law, said the doctrine has been an incentive for more lawyers to take on citizens' suits designed to confer public benefits.

The decision, he said, has reversed the past several years of very promising development within the federal court system.

Jenny Arness, 24, daughter of James Arness, star of the "Gunsmoke" television series, was found dead in her home late Monday night, apparently from an overdose of sleeping pills, sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said the death apparently was suicide and two notes found near her body indicated she was despondent. They did not say over what. A neighbor in the wealthy seaside Malibu district called authorities, saying he was worried because he had not seen her all day.

"Gunsmoke" was canceled last week after 21 years on the air, the longest running series in television history.

Arness Girl Found Dead Of Overdose

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There are indications that cigarette smoking may reduce the body's vitamin C.

Scientists at Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., a major producer of vitamins, cite literature which indicates that blood levels of vitamin C were about 30 per cent lower in smokers than in nonsmokers.

Nursing Center Celebrated Mothers Day

Sunday Pampa Nursing Center celebrated Mothers Day with a tea honoring all the mothers in residence at the home.

Special honors went to the oldest and youngest Mothers at the home. The oldest mother is Mrs. Inez Parker, a long-time resident of the home and mother of Mrs. Ben Graham, Pampa.

Mrs. Theresa Antrobus is the youngest mother at the home. She has been a resident of the home for nearly a year. Her children live in Lubbock.

The Rev. Claude Cone of the First Baptist Church gave a devotional about mothers and their great responsibility to their families. Mrs. Addie Fern Lick played several piano selections. Refreshments of cookies and punch, tea and coffee were served to the residents, staff and visitors.

The tea was the first of several activities slated to celebrate National Nursing Home Week.

Congressmen Urge Use of Diplomacy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Most members of Congress who reacted to the Cambodian seizure of an American merchant ship said they hope diplomatic means could free the crew and the ship.

There was one major exception—Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y.

He urged immediate military action and foreclosing diplomatic options, calling on President

Ford Monday to "order immediate punitive air and naval attacks on appropriate targets in Cambodia."

"In no other way can we underscore the fact that we will no longer tolerate acts of international banditry," Buckley said. "In no other way can we guarantee the future safety of American vessels in international waters."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, who called the seizure "a terribly serious thing," said any decisions should be made by the President. "I don't believe it is very wise for members of Congress to start playing foreign policy in an act of piracy."

Buckley urged "an immediate clinical strike against bridges and ports" in Cambodia. He said he opposes using international diplomatic machinery.

Almost as strong as Buckley's was the reaction of Sen. John Sparkman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He said the United States should attempt to retrieve the captured container ship Mayaguez "any way we can," including by force.

"If a person shoots at you, you've got a right to shoot back," Sparkman said.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., said on the Senate floor the seizure was "an outrage which we can't let go unchallenged."

"I don't favor precipitate action," Allen said. "But it's a question of national honor. We should take whatever means are necessary to recover the ship and its crew. If force is necessary, then force must be used."

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of a House subcommittee on military affairs, said, "Clearly, the United States cannot tolerate seizure of its vessels on the high seas. Although we cannot rule out the possible use of force, we must first attempt to resolve this by peaceful means."

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., said that under the War Powers

Act of 1973, limiting U.S. involvement in Indochina, "The President would have the right to act." But Javits said, "I believe a little patience is deserved, rather than cause a new incident or attack."

New Regime Claims Embassy

By United Press International
The new Communist regime in Saigon has claimed title to the South Vietnamese embassy in Washington and designated Algeria to take over the premises.

Radio Hanoi said today the Viet Cong government made the claim May 10 in a diplomatic note sent to the State Department.

The radio, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, said the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government was the only legal representative of South Vietnam.

Since the Communist capture of Saigon April 30,

Officials of the fallen government have continued to run the South Vietnamese embassy in Washington despite the Communist victory in Saigon April 30.

"All property of these offices, its real estates, moveable estates, dossiers and files now come under the management of the PRG," the note said.

The note said the PRG Algeria "to act on its behalf in taking over and protecting the property, dossiers, files and bank accounts of the former Saigon administration in the U.S."

In another broadcast, also monitored in Tokyo, Radio Hanoi said today "thousands" of South Vietnamese who tried to flee the country during the Communist takeover have been picked up and returned.

The radio said many of the returned refugees were persons who had fled to the offshore islands of Con Son in the South China Sea and Phu Quoc in the Gulf of Siam.

Hanoi Radio said two shiploads had been taken to the central coastal city of Nha Trang for resettlement and two other shiploads to the Mekong Delta area.

The broadcast repeated North Vietnamese charges that the United States had "forced" the refugees to leave.

In other developments, Paul

Vogle of UPI's Saigon bureau said Monday the PRG, and not the military or North Vietnamese, appears to be in charge of the new South Vietnamese government.

He said the PRG began making official announcements two days ago over the government-run Radio Liberation in Saigon.

Up until then, all government announcements were signed by a "Citizens Committee" or the "Military Management Committee" in Saigon.

FPC Hears Gas Priority May Ruin Farm Business

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—Farmers and other involved in agriculture told a Federal Power Commission hearing lowering the priority of natural gas available to power irrigation pumps could ruin their business.

The testimony came Monday during the first day of a hearing by FPC Administrative Law Judge Curtis L. Wagner Jr. on a proposal to drop natural gas supplied by the El Paso Natural Gas Co. from priority two to priority three. The lower priority could result in curtailment of natural gas when demand is high.

The FPC hearing on the proposal is scheduled to move to Lubbock, Tex., after two days of testimony in Albuquerque. Hearings previously were held in Washington and Phoenix, Ariz.

Jack L. Muse, a Clovis area farmer, testified none of his irrigation wells could be economically converted to gasoline and said the cost of gasoline to drive the pumps would be three times the cost of natural gas.

"If natural gas is no longer available on a demand basis, I would be forced to liquidate and seek employment elsewhere," Muse said.

Another Clovis area farmer, Stanley Pippkins, said he will have to file for bankruptcy if forced to switch from natural gas to another fuel source.

Former Gov. Bruce King, who farms and ranches in the northern part of the Estancia Valley in eastern New Mexico, said farming in the valley is "absolutely" dependent on irrigation.

Awards at the meeting were presented to Doris Teague of Childress, Morris B. Kille, Jessie Newberry, V.E. Wagner, Ted Gikas, Bill Gethings, Vickie Moore, Jack Chisum, Mrs. Oran Carter, Melinda Millican and Warner Phillips, all of Pampa, and Jerry Bertram of Shamrock.

Officers of the High School youth organization of Red Cross for the coming year will be Debbie Lehnick, president; Anne Henderson, vice president; and Jan Seitz, secretary.

Red Cross officers elected today include Wayne Wilson, chairman; Norma Briden, vice chairman; Charlene Frazier, secretary; Vincent Simon, treasurer; Mrs. A.D. McNamara, hospital volunteer chairman.

Three new board members were elected for three-year terms—Jerry Davis, Butch Shepherd and Fred Kindle.

Louise Sewell, chairman of the hospital volunteers, recognized Red Cross volunteers, Dr. Lloyd Hamilton, minister of the First United Methodist Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

Disaster chairman Ted Gikas introduced the speaker who was Betty Moody, Red Cross case worker in the Lefors tornado.

Mrs. Moody reported that the Red Cross helped 107 families in Lefors. The total cost of disaster assistance to the Red Cross is still unknown, she said, but it is projected to be around $80,000.

She said that so far, only $801 has gone to administrative expense.

Upon commending local volunteers and merchants for their time and donations, the case worker said that of the original estimate of $5,000 to $6,000 for the cafeteria operation in Lefors, the cost was only $1,718 thanks to donations.

Obituaries

MRS. CATHERINE COX
Services for Mrs. Catherine A. (Cassie) Cox, 66, 2020 Coffee, will be at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday in Carmichael-Whitley Colonial Chapel. Officiating will be the Rev. Mitchell Phillips, pastor. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery.

Mrs. Cox, born Sept. 22, 1908 in Woodville, Okla., moved to Pampa in 1948. She was a Methodist. Mrs. Cox was found dead early Monday at her home after a request from her children that the Pampa Police Department investigate since she did not answer the telephone. Mrs. Cox apparently died from wounds to both wrists.

Survivors include two sons, Conrad G. Smith, Oklahoma City and Jerry M. Smith, Lake Jackson; one daughter, Mrs. Arlene R. Wilson, Jacksonville, Ark.; two brothers, Morris McMahan, Tulsa, Okla. and Travis McMahan, Seminole, Okla.; two sisters, Mrs. Stella Kirschner, Perry, Okla., and Mrs. Ada Melton, Toledo, Ore.; 11 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

'Can't Enforce Drug Problem Away,' Expert Tells Pampanans

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

The drug abuse problem rests with the community — not with the federal government, a drug abuse official said here Monday.

deal with the problem," suggested James D. Kazen, director of the U.S. Office of Education Drug Training Resource Center located at Trinity University in San Antonio.

He and Dr. John C. Narciso Jr. addressed law enforcement officers, teachers and community leaders in three separate sessions Tuesday. Dr. Narciso is a Trinity University psychologist.

the mission today is prevention. "We have lost perception and a sense of humor in dealing with drug abuse," he added.

Kazen told of students in one school who rolled tea leaves to look like marijuana cigarettes just to drive teachers "bananas."

They also gargled with Alka Seltzer and reported for classes foaming at the mouth, he said.

An investigation soon revealed what was happening, but in the meantime students enjoyed watching school officials "get shook."

"We can't enforce the problem away," Kazen said. "Drugs are no good for children, but we can't make the decision to use or not use drugs for them. Give them the facts."

"It is a people problem — not a chemical problem," Dr. Narciso said.

Kazen told the group that "our worthwhileness is not dependent on anyone. My okayness is not dependent on what you think."

The two speakers advised citizens to stop wasting time memorizing drugs and what they can do.

"Learn to be responsible for situations," he emphasized.

Another Shortage: It's Fireflies This Time

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — There's another shortage afoot in the nation — fireflies.

The tiny bugs — actually beetles and sometimes called lightning bugs — decorate Midwestern skies on summer evenings with their flashes, part of their mating game. They're particularly abundant in Wisconsin, but there are fears that floods in the Midwest this year may limit their populations.

The Sigma Chemical Co. in St. Louis collects the insects and refines them into medical supplies the chemicals that cause the flickering lights.

The "lightning" is caused by the reaction of a protein called luciferin, an enzyme called luciferase and and third chemical, known simply as ATP.

Sigma takes luciferin and luciferase, refines them and sells the substances at $20 for about one-third of an ounce.

The chemicals are useful in detecting cancer cells and urinary infections and determining levels of bacterial water pollution.

The firm is looking for collectors in 20 Midwest states.

The company says the shortage was apparent last year and fears the firefly population may be down this year because flooding occurred in areas where the insects were in the ground undergoing their final development.

"We have been on a rationing basis since last summer," said Richard Vogel, a company official.

Requests for the chemicals have outstripped the firm's supply.

"We just have to tell our customers they can have so much and no more," he said.

He said the price for fireflies starts at 30 cents a hundred and can be as much as a penny apiece if more than 20,000 are collected by one individual or group.

The firm said special containers to store the insects and keep them alive for up to five days are available from the company for a small refundable deposit.

For more information, the company can be contacted at P.O. Box 14508, St. Louis, MO 63178.

Graduates Set Practice On May 21

High school graduation in Pampa will be Friday, May 23, in Harvester Fieldhouse. Practice for graduation and vespers will be at 9 a.m. Wednesday, May 21.

Vespers are set for the same day at 7 p.m. followed by a reception in the girls' gym. The junior class is honoring the graduates.

The senior class night party at West Texas State University will be Friday, May 16. Senior exams are slated for Monday and Tuesday, May 19 and 20.

Supreme Court Strikes Voting Restriction Law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court followed a line of past decisions today and held unconstitutional a Texas provision limiting the right to vote in bond elections to persons who list taxable property with the government.

With three justices dissenting, Justice Thurgood Marshall affirmed a three-judge court decision which struck down a portion of the Texas constitution and both the state and Fort Worth election laws "insofar as they condition the right to vote in bond elections on citizens' rendering property for taxation."

Cates Favors Bill Which Redefines Rape

State Representative Phil Cates of Pampa says he is supporting legislation that would limit courtroom interrogations of rape victims, thereby strengthening the rape laws.

"I also favor this bill because it redefines rape to include situations where the victim submits because of a threat of injury, either real or implied," Cates said.

"This piece of legislation also lengthens the possible period between crime and indictment to cover cases in which a person confesses to a rape or is arrested years after the offense," Cates said.

"Certainly, there is a need to tighten up the laws that allow rapists and habitual criminals to get off for crimes they should be punished for," Cates said.

"I would continue to hope that we could educate and rehabilitate those we can, especially the first offenders, so that they will be able to fit into society, once they have paid for their crime," Cates said in summation.

Marshall said that absent a "compelling interest" by the state, no restrictions can be placed on voting except residence, age and citizenship.

The decision followed a line of rulings stretching back at least to 1969 in which the Court consistently struck down laws basing a right to vote on property ownership.

Texas argued that since the 1969 decisions, the state had held that listing of any property for tax purposes with the state, even if worth only a few dollars, could qualify a citizen to vote in bond elections.

Nevertheless, Marshall said, "the Texas scheme creates a classification based on rendering, and it in effect disenfranchises those who have not rendered their property for taxation in the year of the bond election. Mere reasonableness will therefore not suffice to sustain the classification created in this case."

The burden of showing a "compelling interest" for laws that distinguish rights on the basis of race, color or wealth is virtually insurmountable, and goes beyond a showing that a law might have a reasonable goal.

Three Fort Worth residents brought the suit after a library bond proposal was defeated. Texas permitted those who had not rendered property for taxation to vote separately from those who had. For a bond to pass, it had to receive a majority vote from both property renderers and all voters.

The library bond received a majority of all votes, but failed to receive approval from property owners.

Marshall said that merely because bonds are paid out of property taxes does not mean the election's interest is limited to property owners. He noted that other residents would have an interest in the election, particularly since a library can be used by anyone in the city.

Justice William H. Rehnquist wrote a dissent, joined by Chief Justice Warren Burger and Potter Stewart. Rehnquist said the Texas law had been so watered down since past Supreme Court rulings that it did not work a hardship on any potential voter.

Police Arrest Man In Burning, Raping

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Police Saturday arrested one of two men suspected of raping two teen-age Conshohocken, Pa., girls and then setting them on fire. One girl burned to death and the other was in critical condition.

Homicide detectives identified the suspect as Robert Rigler, 22, Conshohocken, who was arrested in Philadelphia. They said he would be charged formally later.

A second suspect, also identified as a Conshohocken man in his early twenties, was still at large, police said.

Beverly Roddenbough, who survived the ordeal, suffered burns over 90 per cent of her body and underwent amputation of both arms, legs and ears. Doctors said one of her eyes also was removed.

The other girl, Tina Elatuti, burned to death.

Authorities said Miss Statuti burned to death when the trailer exploded. Miss Roddenbough, who was blown from the trailer, was found about 15 feet away by firemen who learned of the explosion from local residents. Miss Roddenbough said she and her girlfriend met the men, who were in their early twenties, Friday night.

Man Power Sets Meeting In Drug Abuse

The Pampa Area Man Power Association (PAMPA) will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church, 525 Gray St.

PAMPA is a group of concerned citizens dedicated to the support of the Law Enforcement Agencies and Governing Bodies of the area, in drug abuse and related problems.

PAMPA welcomes all citizens in the city, county and surrounding area, who are concerned about drug abuse. PADAC (Pampa Area Drug Abuse Commission) has set forth several recommendations as to how the association can help make the commission more effective. One such recommendation is to bring a public awareness as to the problems drug abuse inflicts on a community, state or nation.

Editor Guides Writers table talk

KATE MEDINA

By ELAINE SMYTH
Copley News Service

For Kate Medina, guiding the literary efforts of such authors as Tennessee Williams, Agnes de Mille and Peter Benchley is just part of her regular workweek.

As a senior editor for Doubleday & Co., New York, Kate Medina worked with Benchley while he was writing his best seller, "Jaws." She now is working with Williams, who is writing his memoirs, and with Miss de Mille.

And Medina, who earned her bachelor of arts degree from Smith College, also worked with the English translator on "The Three Marias: New Portuguese Letters," which was published in January in the United States.

"The book was written by three female Portuguese writers who were arrested by the Portuguese government in 1972 when it was published there," said Medina.

The government said the book was "an affront to public morals," she adds. The women went on trial and when a new government took over in 1974, all charges were dropped against the trio.

She began her career with Doubleday in September, 1965, "right out of college as a secretarial trainee."

"And if you want to be an editor, working for an editor is certainly one of the best ways to learn," says Medina.

"I considered writing in high school, but I discovered quite early that I didn't have any talent as a writer."

"I think, also, in many cases the temperament of the personality of an editor is very different than the temperament of a writer."

Her job is a diverse one, she adds, but the editing portion can be divided into two categories, structural and, then, line-by-line editing.

In the first, she works with the author on the general content of the book, and how it is going to be organized.

In the second stage, she tries to be sure the points are being made as strongly as they can be made and that the prose flows as smoothly as the writer intended.

The vision of a writer or his literary agent delivering a completed manuscript to a publishing house is somewhat distorted, she says.

Today, she adds, it is more common that a writer "with a track record" has a contract with a publishing house for one or more books over a certain period of time and he will first discuss some ideas he has for a book and then go on from there. Other times, a writer will submit a portion of his latest manuscript for reaction on its salability.

Today, good sellers in the fiction field include adventure and suspense stories and books on the occult, she says.

"In nonfiction, there is considerable interest and always has been on books that teach you how to do something — how to make better use of your home as an economic unit or how to talk back to your doctor. And arts and crafts books are also a good field."

She describes the editor-author relationship as "a very delicate one. For the most part, the authors I have worked with have been extremely professional and very good about responding to suggestions as they see fit."

"In the final analysis, it is always the author's book."

LOW-DOWN coffee table, left, has a magazine rack. Below, glass-topped table has that country casual look that is extremely popular.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

A TABLE is a table is a conversation piece—at least this is the case when designer Arto Szabo or Nick Ungaro (both with Peters-Revington) get creative. Each has a knack for making an occasional table more than occasionally interesting.

Ungaro went for a low-down look in creating one coffee table sans legs. Designed big, it has a roomy magazine rack plus two glass-covered compartments. You can show off collector's items in the compartments, rest your glass on their see-through tops.

Szabo likes glass tops, too. While they're often associated with starkly modern chrome tables, he uses glass tops on country casual tables. The one pictured here has a glass top framed with walnut-finish hardwood. Details include subtle distressing, antique brass on the corner brackets, large carriage bolts below and dowel peg corners on top. All add that authentic touch of country flavor. The same table comes in hardwood with an embossed parquet top in a warm oak finish and a black wrought iron finish on the decorative cross braces.

Another Szabo design caters to the current interest in wine-tasting. A wine-tasting table with two pull-out shelves to hold extra glasses, its bold legs have rope turnings.

WINE-TASTING table with two pull-out shelves is a handy aid for the hostess.

New Designs That Are A Dash Different

Amateurs Are Experts At Needlework Show

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ethel Merman loaned a needlework rug with a sunflower design by Mary Martin; Joanne Woodward, an art nouveau needlepoint pillow made for her daughter.

But celebrities are the exception rather than the rule in the grand prize of needlework, a biennial exhibit by Amateur Needlework of Today to benefit The Lighthouse, the New York Association for the Blind.

The only thing amateur about the sponsors is the organizational name. This year's show contained an astonishing variety of designs and a superb standard of workmanship.

Mrs. Grant Simmons Jr. of the mattress family showed a nine-foot by 39-inch needlepoint alligator that took three years to make.

There were needlepoint renditions of Old Masters and even a Picasso.

Lady Lindsay of Woking, a leading British needleworker, loaned a needlepoint picture of her home that looks like an etching. The clouds above it were worked with her own hair in an 18th century tradition.

Candy Redd of Birmingham, Mich., designed and stitched a minutely detailed scene from a Charles Dickens novel showing a child in bed beside a many-paned window, and snow falling outside. A patchwork quilt worked in tiny needlepoint stitches is thrown to one side, and a piece of unfinished embroidery rendered in needlepoint lies on the windowsill.

J. Harden Rose of New York designed and made a handbag that looks like a salt-box house. Its weathered gray shingles and roof are worked in bargello stitches. Rose's wife is a member of the board of the needlework organization.

"A lot of people exhibit year after year," said a spokesman for The Lighthouse. "Many spend the years between exhibits working on new entries."

The needlework organization contacts designers and professionals to locate people who are doing interesting work, and invite them to participate. The group, organized in 1934 to raise money for the Friendship fund of The Lighthouse, exists solely for the biennial exhibit.

Proceeds from fees charged exhibitors, sponsors and visitors help support extra curricular activities — music, theater, summer camps for sightless children and the elderly.

The rules permit both original and commissioned designs. Nearly 500 entries this year included an unusually large number of chairs, plus pillows, pictures, wall hangings, tote bags and handbags, footstools and backgammon boards — one in a giraffe pattern and another with wine bottles.

Gold thimbles are awarded to winners in needlepoint and embroidery. This year's embroidery prize went to Mrs. LeRoy Campbell of South Harwich, Mass., for an wall hanging in a game bird design. Mrs. Alastair B. Martin of Katonah, N.Y., won her fourth thimble for a Victorian armchair in needlepoint.

Second prize in wall hangings went to Mrs. Henry S. Reeder of New York, for a Pauline Fischer design resembling a three by five foot Christmas card with a Christmas poem and holiday scenes worked in embroidery, needlepoint and bargello.

Hints from Heloise

Heloise

Dear Folks:

I decided to take a day off and mend stuff in the house and office that needed fixin' long ago.

And I did. Wow! I bought some new epoxy — which most things just gotta have. For years, I have tried mixing this stuff on aluminum foil, ashtrays, saucers (don't ever try that one — some of it never comes off), backs of tablets, and blocks of wood.

Then a little wiggly, gray worm started wiggling in my willie wee head and said to me: "Why don't you try using the top of an unopened tuna fish can or just any vegetable can in your kitchen?"

"It won't slip around when you mix the two tubes of gook together, won't harm your ashtrays like it did before, and I surely can't harm the vegetables inside. Just wipe off what's left and use another can or turn it over and use the other side. Then put all the cans back in your cabinet when you're finished."

You know what? I listened to that little gray matter who called himself Wee Willie and tried it.

'Twas stupendous! The can didn't slide. The indentations in the center were wonderful. And all went well. No Waterloo there at all.

So all you folks who use this stuff should try Wee Willie's method next time.

Only thing wrong with Willie is that he doesn't talk to me too often. I think he sleeps most times.

Tell me, how I can get that gray matter (doctors call it brains) to wake up and stay awake? Reckon he has to sleep, too? I do.

love,

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Many people have the problem of slippery wet bars of hand soap sliding out of the little depression on the washbasin which is intended to hold the soap. Usually the bar of soap ends up in the bottom of the basin.

My husband thought of a simple, effective solution to the problem.

He puts three small dots of bathtub calking (silicone rubber), at the edge of the indentation, and lets it dry thoroughly.

The three raised white dots of calking last for weeks, and are an effective way of holding the slippery wet bars of soap in the dish.

Larry & Florence Powner

Dear Heloise:

I've found a use for those flexible plastic shields often found in bacon packages.

I often mix hamburger patties in large quantities. The shields can be cut in half and stacked between them before freezing.

This enables you to remove the exact number of patties when needed with minimum effort.

Mrs. Rose Bobor

LETTER OF CHAGRIN
Dear Heloise:

Think a bit before you ask to be reincarnated six feet tall. (You said this in a recent column because you are a "shorty.")

"Shorties can compensate by standing on a step stool to reach those high cabinets. 'Tallies' have to practically stand on their head to reach the low ones. When I stand over a sink full of dishes, I have to bend in a most awkward position. And that poor back.

Shorties can buy clothes anywhere and have them altered. Tallies have to make their own, have them made, or buy them at a tail shop — if there happens to be one in town.

Broom and mop handles are too short — there goes that back again. Houses are built for shorties or "medies." We once built a house with 37" kitchen cabinets and had to sell it to another "tallie" — eventually.

So you are short? Count your blessings, dear.

And compensate.

Mrs. G.W. Buhler

I got your message! Could it be we're never quite satisfied with the way we are? If I stretch my neck and take a deep breath, I'm lucky to hit 5'2"....

Heloise

THIS COLUMN is written for you... the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint or a problem write to Heloise in care of this newspaper. Because of the tremendous volume of mail, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will, however, answer your questions in her column, whenever possible.

The bidding was quite good, especially when one considers that North-South were non-experts. A three notrump contract would have been defeated at once, with the defenders cashing five spade tricks.

On West's lead of the spade ace, East played the encouraging jack. West then continued with the spade four. East's king winning. To trick three East lead the nine of spades.

Declarer, being certain that West had been dealt the doubleton A-x of spades, trumped the third spade lead with his queen, to make sure that West wouldn't overruff. West calmly followed suit with the spade queen.

When declarer next cashed the ace and king of trumps, he learned, to his sorrow, that West's jack of trumps had become the setting trick. Had the four outstanding trumps been divided 2-2, declarer's ruffing of the third spade lead with the queen would not have been costly. It is apparent that if declarer had ruffed the third spade lead with a low trump, he would have fulfilled his contract.

After play had ended, declarer turned to the West expert and inquired: "How come you opened the ace of spades from the A-Q-x? I was sure you had only a doubleton."

The answer came out, simply: "Neither of you had ever bid notrump, so it must have been that you didn't have a spade stopper. My partner figured to have the king. Also you had bid every other suit. Actually, I would have opened a spade no matter what my spade holding had been."

Declarer's ruffing of the third spade lead with the queen was wrong for another reason: If West had started with the A-x of spades, then East would have possessed the K-Q-J-10-x-x. Surely, with this holding, East would have bid some number of spades over North's one-diamond response. As is obvious, declarer's reasoning did not go far enough.

TO RUN FOR TEXAS — Half miler Noel Hansen, who holds the Pampa High record in the 880, running a 1:55.0 to finish third at regional, signed a letter of intent Monday to run track for the University of Texas. Looking on are Noel's father, Hans Hansen, and Harvester coach Scott Dunnam.

Watson 1st At Nelson

DALLAS (UPI) — Tom Watson is so far in debt to Byron Nelson it is possible he may never be able to pay off.

It was Nelson's tournament that Watson won Monday, collecting his second tour triumph and the $35,000 that went with it.

But it was also Nelson who took Watson aside at a critical point in the youngster's career last year and pointed him in the proper direction.

"I admire Byron so much," Watson said Monday following his two-stroke victory in the Byron Nelson Golf Classic. "I think he is one of the top three golfers of all time."

"He was very kind to me after the U.S. Open last year. I had just blown the tournament. I shot a 79 on the last day (after leading at the end of 54 holes)."

"Byron came over to me and said, 'Can I have five minutes? I was there crying in my beer at the time. He told me, 'I like your golf swing. But there are some things in your tempo that could be corrected.'"

"He told me I wasn't moving my hips through the ball. I took his advice and I appreciate that advice very much. I feel proud that Byron recognized me as having potential."

Watson's potential has now boosted his 1975 earnings to $94,000.

His win Monday in the rain-delayed Nelson event came thanks to a final round 65, which vaulted him out of the pack to a 15-under par 269 which tied the tournament record and gave him a two-stroke victory over Bob E. Smith and a three-stroke edge over third place finisher Jack Ewing.

And if Watson was delighted with his win, Smith and Ewing seemed delighted with their finishes as well. It was the biggest payday ever for Smith and Ewing—Smith collecting $19,950 for second and Ewing $12,425 for third.

"I won only $20,000 last year and I won $20,000 this week," Smith said. "Tom may have won the tournament, but he had better be looking over his shoulder because here I come."

After Smith's 271 and Ewing's 272, Larry Nelson and Rod Funseth deadlocked for fourth place at 11-under 273s—netting them $7,700 each.

The Nelson event was delayed a day because of a heavy rainstorm Sunday and when play opened Monday Watson was at nine under par, one stroke off the lead.

Watson moved in to a share of the lead by the ninth hole by firing a two-under 33 on the front side and then two putted the par-five tenth hole for a birdie and ran in a 15-footer for another birdie at the 11th.

Watson birdied the short, par-three 13th as well and then wrapped up his victory with a 16-foot birdie putt from off the edge of the green at the treacherous par-four 18th.

Not only did Watson tie the tournament record with his 269, but the entire field took the Preston Trail Golf Club Course apart.

"I think Byron intends to toughen this course up next year," Watson said. "I don't think he wants any low scores being shot here."

But, of course, whatever Byron wants to do is just fine with Tom.

Glo-Valve Leading National Standings

After the first week of National Little League baseball action, Dixie and defending champion Glo-Valve led the eight-team with 2-0 records.

Cabot, Celanese, Duncan and OCAW were a game back at 1-1, followed by Moose and Schiffman at 0-2.

Monday, OCAW trimmed Dixie, 4-3, in extra innings to give Glo-Valve the undisputed lead. Glo-Valve and Dixie are now both 2-1 for the season. That was the only game played in the National League Monday.

Glo-Valve, getting at least one hit from every boy who played, including a home run by Steve McDougall, belted Moose, 28-3, Saturday. Tim Boyd was credited with the win for Glo-Valve, going the distance.

Steve Shephard and Rob Hammer pitched for Moose. Also Saturday, OCAW blanked Duncan, 8-0, behind the shutout pitching of Ed Guerra. Pitchers for Duncan were Brett Ladd, Rex Caldwell and Randy Bigham.

Thursday, Dixie edged Celanese, 7-4, as Curtis Morris belted his first home run of the season. Andy Richardson was winning pitcher; Arthur Lee

Dodgers Trip Cardinals

UPI Sports Writer

The Los Angeles Dodgers have great respect for Cincinnati's Bench but they like their own, too, even if it is spelled with a small "b," and made up of fellows like Tom Paciorek, Lee Lacy and Rick Auerbach.

All three have been pressed into the starting lineup because of injuries and have delivered in clutch situations.

Auerbach drove in three runs and Paciorek and Lacy one each Monday night when the Dodgers scored a 6-4, 10-inning victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Jim Brewer picked up the victory for four innings of relief work after Andy Messersmith became ill with the flu.

The Cardinals tied the score at 3-3 against Brewer with a run in the bottom of the ninth but the Dodgers scored three in the top of the 10th to hand Mike Garman the loss.

Pacioerek's run-scoring single broke the 3-3 tie and Auerbach followed with a two-run single which enabled the Dodgers to offset a Cardinal run scored in the bottom of the 10th. Auerbach had previously singled home a run and Lacy driven in one with a groundout in the third inning.

Lou Brock had three hits and Ted Simmons two for the Cardinals.

The victory enabled the Dodgers to go 3½ games ahead of the Reds in the National League's Western Division race.

The Montreal Expos bombed the Atlanta Braves, 11-1, and the New York Mets shaded the San Francisco Giants, 3-2, in other NL games. The Reds' game at Philadelphia was rained out. The Oakland A's defeated the Boston Red Sox, 5-3, and the Detroit Tigers beat the Kansas City Royals, 5-0, in the only American League games.

Expos 11, Braves 1;

Rookie Pat Scanlon drove in four runs, including three with his first major league homer, as the Expos unleashed a 12-hit attack which handed Atlanta's Carl Morton his third straight loss. Scanlon, Tony Scott, Pepe Mangual and Larry Bittner had two RBIs each for the Expos. Steve Rogers went the distance with an eight-hitter for his second win.

Mets 3, Giants 2;

Joe Torre's three-run double in the seventh inning enabled Jon Matlack to win his third game for the Mets with the late-inning relief help of Rick Baldwin and Tom Hall. Torre's game-winning hit off reliever Gary Lavelle came after singles by Mike Phillips, Felix Millan and Del Unser filled the bases. The victory was a welcome gift for Met Manager Yogi Berra, who celebrated his 50th birthday.

A's 5, Red Sox 3;

Jim Holt's two-run single was the big blow of a four-run, seventh-inning rally that lifted the A's over the Red Sox. Rolfe Fingers pitched 6½ innings of one-hit relief for the win although Paul Lindblad came on to retire the last batter in the ninth. Fingers has now appeared in 18 of Oakland's 30 games and has a 3-2 win-loss record.

Flyers, Islanders To Decide Series

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Flyers, who last week were on the verge of sweeping their second straight playoff series, may rely on an old friend tonight when they play the New York Islanders in the seventh and deciding game of the Stanley Cup semifinal round.

On occasions when Kate Smith's rendition of "God Bless America" was played prior to a game instead of the National Anthem, the Flyers had a 42-3-1 record.

The Flyers are likely to go with Kate again tonight because they have seen a 3-0 advantage in their series with the Islanders dwindle to a 3-3 tie and must win the seventh game to go into the finals against the Buffalo Sabres.

Girls Registration For Softball Set

Registration for the Pampa Opti-Mrs. girls softball program will be from 4:30 to 6 p.m. Thursday at the Optimist Club.

Girls, ages 10-14, can participate in league softball.

The Islanders, again employing the tight defense the Flyers are famous for, won, 2-1, in Long Island Sunday night, their third straight victory, to force the seventh-game showdown.

And the Islanders, who are seeking a second straight "miracle" after coming from three games back to beat Pittsburgh and gain the semifinals, aren't worried about Kate Smith.

"If they want to use Kate Smith as a crutch, that's fine with us," said Islander defenseman Gerry Hart. "They've still got to lay the game." And New York Coach Al Arbour said the singer "will be no factor. The game will be played on the ice."

Flyers center and team captain Bobby Clarke said they "don't plan to do anything differently for the seventh game, not after you've played 100 games this year one way."

But he admitted that if there is such a thing as the Islanders having momentum after their three straight victories, "I hope it doesn't mean anything or we're in trouble."

Queen Moms To Earn Cash

Babe Ruth queen candidates mothers will go door to door Wednesday and Thursday in an effort to raise money for the Optimist and Babe Ruth programs.

The ladies will be selling a cleaning fluid. All money raised will go to the Optimist Club to promote the Babe Ruth program and to raise money to buy the equipment and stuff we need," said Harley Knutson, club president.

Knutson added, "It's also to support the queen."

Groom's Pain Goes Quickly

By PAUL SIMS

Groom could well be the most football-minded town in the state, and it was dealt a severe blow when the high school Tigers lost out to Lefors for the district championship.

The town's pain soon faded as three athletic teams managed district titles, two others were second in district and a girl captured a state championship, all making the overall year one of the best in Groom history.

Lefors tripped Groom, 13-7, for the 1-B football championship, something the Tigers have won seven out of the last 10 years. The loss ended Groom's season with a 7-2-1 record.

"I think if we won our district in football it would have been a complete year," said Don Sessom, who has been head coach for the past three seasons.

A host of Groom players, nine to be exact, were placed on 1-B's all-district team, and that shows just how talent-loaded the team was. Those standouts were Bimbo Bivens, Tim Britten, Stan Britten, Cliff Britten, Art Brown, Tony Treadwell, Mike Koetting, Chris Britten and Donald Burgin.

Unlike football, Groom is hardly ever a boys basketball power. Last season was no exception.

The Tigers won but four of 22 games, and only one player—Cliff Britten—was all-district.

Girls basketball is usually as weak as the boys. There are only three "gold balls" signifying district championships in the Groom High trophy case. Two of those were won by girls teams.

However, Carol Sessom, the football coach's wife, coached last year's version of the Tigerettes to the district championship game against Allison where they lost, 45-44. Making the all-district team were Rose Ann Kuehler, who averaged 38 points a game (Groom, as a team, averaged 74). Sandra Smith and Tony Bralley.

Groom figures to be tough again next season—only two seniors played last year. Those were Miss Kuehler and Debbie Fields.

The championship denied Mrs. Sessom in basketball was acquired in volleyball. Groom went 3-0 in district play, qualifying for the district match against Samnorwood. Groom won 15-2, 15-2.

The Tigerettes' hopes ended at regional against Klondyke. For Groom, it was the third year in a row to win the district championship and then bow out in the first round of regional.

Groom won district crowns in boys and girls track. Miss Kuehler, one of the Panhandle's most versatile athletes last season, won a state title by throwing the shot put 40 feet, 2 inches.

She qualified for regional in both the shot put and discus. Other Groom qualifiers for the Region 1-B Meet were the sprint-relay team (Connie Dean, Sandra Smith, Jeannie Britten and Sherri Smith), Miss Smith in the high jump and low hurdles, semile-relay team (Shelley Treadwell, Debbie Brooks, Cindy Nepper and Donna Reed), the 880-relay team (Miss Britten, Miss Dean, Miss Fields and Sherri Smith), and Miss Brooks and Kathy Ledwig in the triple jump.

The boys tracksters didn't qualify that many but still won district for the first time since 1970. Qualifying for regional were Stan Britten in the 100 and pole vault, the sprint-relay team (Britten, Cliff Britten, Treadwell and Chris Britten, Nathan Wieberg in the high hurdles, Tim Britten in the intermediate hurdles, Roger Baggerman in the 440 and Chris Britten in the 220).

The mile-relay team of Thomas Reed, Baggerman and Tim and Cliff Britten was fifth in the state meet.

The boys golf team was third in district play. The boys tennis team was second. Gary Friemel, however, won the singles championship, advancing to regional where he lost in the first round.

That sums up what Sessom calls "a real good year."

He adds, "But we're looking forward to a better year next year. About all our girls were freshmen and sophomores and we have 21 freshmen boys coming in next year. All of them are good athletes." The good athletic season did drown out the pain of not winning that first championship. Like Sessom said, "It's forgotten."

Motorcycle, Bicycle Deaths Soar in US

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation accidents claimed nearly 10,000 fewer lives last year than in 1973, but motorcycle and bicycle deaths soared as gas lines caused drivers to temporarily abandon their cars, federal safety experts reported Saturday.

The toll was 50,541 dead, 16 per cent below the 60,000 killed in 1973—the sharpest drop in any single year since World War II.

Statistics released by the National Transportation Safety Board showed cars, trucks and buses were the worst killers. Accidents involving pedestrians were second, and motorcycle crashes came third.

Fatalities from bicycle accidents, private and business aircraft crashes, pleasure boating mishaps and railroad grade crossing crashes ranked fourth. Rapid transit accidents, railroad crashes, commercial shipping mishaps, airline crashes and pipeline accidents each claimed smaller numbers.

NTSB Chairman John H. Reed said the number of highway deaths fell by 18 per cent in 1974, triggering the overall decrease. But Reed said he was "at once encouraged and apprehensive" about that figure, because the highway toll is climbing again.

The NTSB statistics showed 44,950 persons—more than half of the total number killed in transportation related accidents last year—died on the highways. The 1973 total was 54,615.

"Whatever the exact reasons prove to be (for the drop), thousands of lives are now being saved on the nation's highways," Reed said. "Recent monthly totals, however, suggest that an upward trend may again be developing. Any permanent regression would be a national tragedy."

The highway death toll, representing 90 per cent of all transportation fatalities, was broken into four categories:

—Car, truck and bus wrecks claimed 31,774 lives. That was 8,831 fewer than in 1973, a decrease the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration said resulted from the decreased auto use when gasoline lines were long last year.

—Foot travel resulted in 8,600 fatalities, 16.3 per cent fewer than the 10,006 pedestrians killed in 1973.

—Motorcycle crashes claimed 3,376 lives, a 12.4 per cent increase over the 3,003 recorded a year earlier.

Pampans Back 'Texas' Drama To Be June 18

Several Pampa and area residents are among the 250 families in the Texas Panhandle who will receive invitations this week from the musical Drama "Texas."

Officials say they are among the group who became interested and helped with the spring campaign of 1962.

They are invited to attend the gala opening June 18 of the 1975 production at the amphitheater in Palo Duro Canyon.

Those from Pampa include Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Cree Jr., E. E. Imel, Mrs. D. D. Payne and E. C. Sidwell. Others are Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brainard and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Brainard, all of Canadian, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Brillhart Sr. of Perryton, C. L. Culver of Groom, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Phillips of and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Randel, all of Panhandle, and Mrs. Evelyn Sitter of McLean, and Dr. John L. Witt of Groom.

California's Farm Strife May End Soon

SACRAMENTO, CALIF. (UPI) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has struck an historic accord between growers and United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez which may end strife and violence in the state's $10 billion farm industry.

When Brown first unveiled his farm labor proposal a month ago Chavez at first denounced it as "not betrayal, but close." Other labor groups opposed it.

After 100 hours of negotiations last week, Brown came out with a compromise bill calling for secret ballot union elections and it zipped through its first and perhaps toughest legislative test.

Supporters now predict the legislation will become law in time for next year's growing season.

A Capitol Idea

The Pampa High School Concert Choir took time out of a busy schedule in a recent five-day tour to pose on the steps of the Texas Capitol after presenting a concert in the rotunda. Shown with the choir are Rep. Bob Close of Perryton.

left: John Woicikowski, choir director; Louise Richardson, assistant choir director, and Rep. Phil Cates of Pampa. Following the capitol performance, the choir won top honors at the Sea Arama Choral Music Festival in Galveston.

Housing Shortage Seen For Refugees on Bases

By United Press International
Although facilities at Camp Pendleton, Calif., have filled to capacity with Vietnamese refugees, the big camp was able to take two more occupants Sunday—both newborn babies.

Le Xuan Mai and Tokin Thanh and their infants "are both doing fine," a spokesman reported shortly after the births at the camp's Naval hospital.

The two little girls should join their families in a few days in one of the eight tent and quonset hut town bunched together in a corner of this sprawling base.

But two plane loads of 500 refugees who landed at nearby El Toro Marine Air Station earlier this weekend will not be admitted, since the camp has no more room until some of the refugees already here are released.

A total of 25,889 Southeast Asians—counting the two newborn babies—had arrived at the Marine camp through Sunday night. A spokesman said 7,225 of them had been processed out and released to authorized sponsors, most of them in the first few days.

But government officials in Washington ordered tighter security checks early last week. Since then the flow out has slowed to a trickle.

The 18,664 refugees in camp at the start of the week can expect to stay a minimum of seven to 10 days if they have sponsors and do not run into any security problems. For others, officials now say, the wait could stretch as long as 90 days.

At Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., the dreary, wet weather of the last two days was forgotten as thousands of bouquets donated by local florists were distributed to the senior mother of each refugee family while the happy youngsters were handed teddy bears, baby dolls and other toys distributed by the Red Cross.

Also "friendship boxes," containing combs, brushes, soap and other such articles were distributed to the children, who compose about half the camp's population. The boxes came from a nationwide campaign among elementary school children.

A total of 2,777 refugees have been flown into Eglin since May 4, but 220 have been processed out through a sponsorship program, leaving a population of 2,557.

In Arkansas, Gov. David Pryor said Sunday, if health problems can be avoided, he had no objection to temporarily housing more Vietnamese than the 20,000 originally planned for at Ft. Chaffee, Ark.

By Sunday there were at least 16,106 refugees at Ft. Chaffee, but officials expected the camp would reach its 20,000 capacity by today.

"There are about 34 barracks we weren't going to convert, when we were only expecting 20,000, but we will continue work on them now in the event we have to use them," he said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

WEDNESDAY, MAY 14

Your birthday today: Your personal transformation comes very slowly, almost imperceptibly, but by year's end your nature, habits and approach to life change. As one goal after another is achieved or bypassed, you make new plans and form relationships that sustain your efforts. Today's natives generate great waves of enthusiasm that sometimes stimulate or form public reaction and opinion.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: You can improve your position quite easily if you keep your sense of humor amid debate and bickering. Tradition prevails in later hours, so you may as well adjust to it.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: If your routine work suffers because you're diverting energy into creative projects, fine. If it's due to loafing, you'll regret it quickly. Cooperation is more important than you realize.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Money changes hands among friends and loved ones, and causes some upheavals in your life. Stay with established situations rather than experiment with new contacts.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Today offers romantic prospects for the young and unattached. Those who are comfortably settled in social groups encounter cross-currents of conflict and must make decisions.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Pay special attention to your health. Your schedules are interrupted or delayed. Associates aren't easy to deal with. Your romantic urges are strong and lead to heartfelt declarations.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: People consider your views and acts arbitrary, partly because you haven't made your reasons for them known. Persist in your efforts to collect scattered possessions or resources.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Better teamwork is available in your business or profession. Personal enterprises advance at an uneven pace. Avoid impatience. The conditions of your home life remain a bit mixed.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Deal with those in established technical fields. Stay out in the open to move freely, and avoid needless mystery about what you're up to.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: You have agreement on group ventures even when it's not the best course to follow. You receive bad advice on your current situation. Use intuition when logic fails.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Look hard enough today, and you'll find a real bargain. Ask for favors if you're willing to take on accompanying obligations. Catch up on records and bookkeeping.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: You have attracted quiet support in unlikely places. Give these people a chance to express themselves. Invest time and energy in intellectual hobbies.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Tactful persistence takes you a long way toward loyal and pleasant relationships. Speculative moves miss their mark since your friends miscalculate. Forgive them.

Major Oil Firms Leave Vietnam

By DOUG O'BOYLE
Pampa News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The world's major oil firms have pulled up stakes in South Vietnam, leaving behind about $100 million in investments made with the government for rights to drill oil in the South China Sea off South Vietnam's coast.

Several huge offshore oil drilling rigs, operated jointly by several large oil firms off the South Vietnam coast, have either been transported to new safe oil fields or will shortly be moved to safe ports.

Oil experts believed South Vietnam could soon become a major oil producer. One industry report estimated $5 billion worth of oil below the South China Sea. Two oil rigs hauled drilled test wells that produced 2,500 and 1,500 barrels of oil daily.

Among the 12 to 15 major oil companies that invested in South Vietnam's oil fields were some of the largest American oil firms—Mobil, Shell, Exxon, Cities Service, Sun and Marathon.

Since 1973, the oil firms paid about $100 million to the South Vietnamese government for drilling rights to 88,000 square miles in the South China Sea.

sized Cadillac, called the Seville. The car is 27 inches shorter and eight inches narrower than present Cadillacs and weighs about 1,000 pounds less.

According to government fuel economy tests, the Seville gets 17 miles per gallon in city driving and 19 miles on highways. The larger Cadillacs get 11 miles per gallon in the city and 16 miles on highways.

But the Seville will sell for an average of $12,479, a sale price above most of GM's other Cadillac models. The Fleetwood 60 Special Brougham retails for $10,427, for example, and the Eldorado convertible for $10,367.

One reason for the higher cost for a smaller Cadillac is that the Seville will have as standard equipment all the options available on larger Cadillacs.

The Seville's style resembles other luxury compacts announced this year, such as the Ford Granada and the Mercury Monarch, both of which are styled similar to the Mercedes-Benz.

Democratic presidential candidate Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona has called for the breakup of the nation's major oil firms.

In his first position paper, Udall said the oil firms should also be barred from owning competing sources of energy, such as coal. He said four large oil companies already own four coal companies that produce 35 per cent of the nation's total coal output.

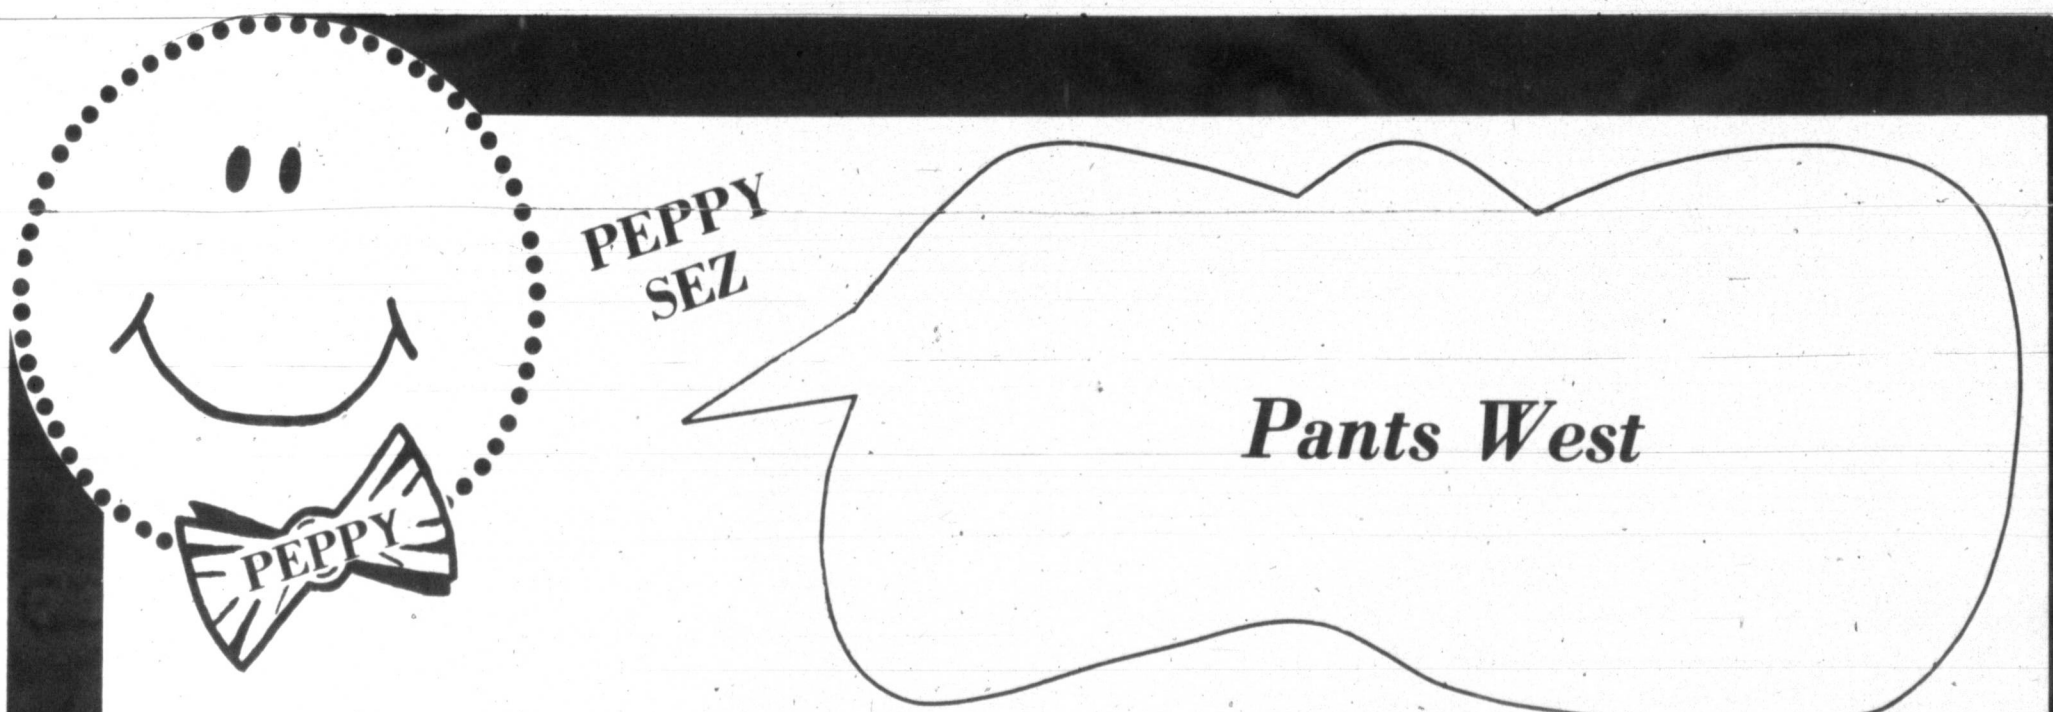

"Major oil companies which have become energy conglomerates are stifling the very competition needed to eliminate the energy shortages," Udall told a Washington press gathering last week.

Under his plan, the oil companies would be broken up into oil exploration and producing companies, transport companies, refining companies and marketing companies.

Udall said that the present "vertical" concentration—controlling a product from production to marketing—leads to high prices, inefficiently bloated profits and the power to control and direct the nation's economy.

Pants West

Emma Lee Trask

"We serve the young and the young at heart," explained Emma Lee Trask of Pants West. "It seems that the people who buy our merchandise have a fresh outlook on life."

Mrs. Trask has been in the clothing business for 25 years. She moved to Pampa from Perryton nine years ago and has been working at various fashion Stores until she joined Pants West. She claimed that there was quite a difference between the fashion store and the casual look of Pants West. "People aren't as select when they are buying a pair of jeans."

Pants West is a franchise store home owned by Doug Boyd. The main office for the franchise is in Amarillo. Pants West came to Pampa about four years ago when it bought out Carl's Pants of the Coronado Shopping Center. In 1973 the store moved to a different location in the shopping center because it needed more space.

"The years I have worked here our volume has increased over the previous years," Mrs. Trask said. "One of our biggest sellers is our wide variety of belts," she added. "People are buying belts to coordinate with each pair of pants, where one belt used to serve the purpose."

"The trade center is very good here for a pants store," she said. "We still sell the old shrink-to-fit, straight-legged jeans for the rugged oil field workers."

Mrs. Trask also explained that they do a very good business in selling every day and dressy jeans. "People like to be comfortable."

General Motors, in an attempt to meet the growing need for more fuel efficient cars and to boost its luxury car sales, announced last week a small-

Hindu Philosophy Finds Enthusiasts

CHICAGO (UPI) — The practice of yoga, an ancient Hindu philosophy, is finding modern enthusiasts in every level of society, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Early practitioners of yoga saw it as a means of achieving release from the bonds of the world. Today it is a religion, a philosophy, an exercise, magic, or an entire way of life.

The philosophy of yoga inclines to the belief that the suppression of all activity of body, mind and will can lead to liberation of the self and union with a supreme consciousness. Hence the word "yoga" from the Sanskrit meaning "yoking" or "union."

"In the course of time," Britannica 3 says, "certain stages of yoga become ends in themselves, notably the breathing and sitting postures, as in the yoga school of hatha yoga, or yoga of violence, which stresses complicated bodily arrangements, among others, for therapeutic purposes. At present yoga is popular for its bracing and relaxing effects."

Yoga is based on the ancient Hindu philosophy of "samkhya" which views the evolution of the world as passing through several stages. The practice of yoga, as Britannica notes, is an attempt to reverse this order so that man could "increasingly dephenomenalize himself, until his self re-enters its original state of purity and consciousness." Its texts are the yoga-sutras of Patanjali, a philosopher who lived around 500 B.C.

Achieving this original state is generally done in eight stages. The four preparatory stages have to do with sexual and dietary abstinence and avoidance of "moral infractions." There are the posture exercises designed to blot out physical distractions, and breath control to encourage complete respiratory relaxation. In the four final stages, the "yogi" or "yogini" for women) withdraws his attention from the world. In the end he concentrates on one object which finally becomes the self, achieving, he believes, total release from the world.

In all of this, yoga is actually little different from other religions or beliefs, all of which aim at some kind of nirvana, peace of mind or union with God. The difference with yoga is that it uses physical means to achieve these goals.

There are actually different varieties of yoga, all aimed at achieving union with a "supreme consciousness." In karma yoga this is achieved through work; in bhakti yoga through devotion and love; in mantra yoga through chanting. Hatha Yoga, the yoga of physical well being, is the one most followed today, according to Britannica 3.

Public Safety Agent Won't Reveal Source

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Department of Public Safety agent David Dimick says he will reveal the identities of his informants against Continental Airlines co-pilot Robert Pomeroy, but said the order sets a terrible precedent for the state.

"The whole spectrum of sources of information for the media as well as police need to be protected," he said. "If they make me give my confidential sources, the next time it's going to be you (the media)."

U. S. District Judge Jack Roberts Friday ordered Dimick to name the informants. The order came in connection with a lawsuit filed on behalf of Pomeroy, a Dallas resident who was the subject of a DPS investigation because of his expressed opposition to construction of a nuclear power plant near Glen Rose.

Dimick said his sources have long left Dallas "so they themselves are not a question

"I don't want to be the person in Texas that sets the prerequisite in federal court for the divulging of names and descriptions of confidential sources," he said.

Dimick said Pomeroy's attorneys would harass his informants if they found out their names and might even file suit against them.

Dimick said he prepared the report on Dallas pilot Robert Pomeroy because he feared Pomeroy, a member of a group opposed to construction of a nuclear lower plant, might crash his plane into such a plant. Dimick's report was given to Pomeroy's employer, Continental Airlines.

Legislative committees investigated the incident, and DPS director Col. Wilson E. Speir ordered all intelligence files not involving criminal activities destroyed.

Texas Civil Liberties Union Attorneys David Richards and John Jordan told Roberts, "There can be no doubt that governmental communication of derogatory information to employers may be an attack on liberty secured by the 5th and 14th amendments to the constitution of the United States."

Red Cross Sets Swims

By Libby Shotwell
Executive Secretary

The Nursing Conference in Perryton has been cancelled, to be re-scheduled in the fall because the director, Mrs. O'Dell Woody, RN was called to the west coast to care for the children from Vietnam stationed at Camp Pendleton. We are so very sorry to cancel this meeting as there was great interest in the disaster nursing program.

We will enroll children in our city swim program Thursday and Friday in the Red Cross office. Classes will June 16-27. The second session will be June 30 - July 11, and the third session will be July 14-25. We plan to charge $1 for the pool fee with no charge for the water safety instructions instruction. Please come by on Thursday or Friday to register your children as we will not have time to do this each day of the week. Mrs. Ralph Esson will have charge of our swim program at the city pool this year.

Last call for the annual meeting to be at 7 a.m. Tuesday in the First United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall. Mrs. Betty Moody of Childress will be guest speaker on the Lefors disaster. She has worked constantly with this disaster and if you have any questions on what Red Cross does in a disaster, come and let Betty tell you how Red Cross has helped the Lefors people get back on their feet. Roady Spoonmore will play breakfast music and Sandra Vance will furnish special numbers for us. Three new directors will be elected at this meeting.

Deadline Set For Nursing Applicants

The testing date for Licensed Vocational Nursing applicants in the August 1975 class at Frank Phillips College will be 1 p.m. on June 12.

Deadline for enrollment is July 12. The training consists of six months of classroom instruction on the Frank Phillips College Campus and six months of clinical training at North Plains Hospital in Borger or Highland General in Pampa.

Persons interested in enrolling are urged to complete their applications as soon as possible. Inquiries may be made by contacting FPC School of Nursing or the Registrar's office.

MAYA PYRAMID
DALLAS (UPI) — An archaeological team at Southern Methodist University says it has found the oldest and largest Maya pyramid yet discovered.

The team says the pyramid was found in Belize, formerly British Honduras, and is approximately 12 stories tall. The archaeologists also believe there may be two more similar pyramids which in conjunction with the first once formed a religious complex.
