Early voting slows in last week; 3,077 already voted

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Locally, Howard County's Voter Registration Office says the Nov. 8 election should have a better turnout than normal because of three seats up for reelection on the Howard County Commissioners' Court.

There are 15,000 registered voters in Howard County and about 9,000 are expected to take part in the election.

Early voting began on Oct. 19 and ended last Friday at 5 p.m., but voters who received ballots through the mail have until 7 p.m. Tuesday to get them turned in.

According to Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray, the number of early voters for the Nov. 8 election, two weeks ago, was already ahead of the record total of 4,261 recorded during the 1992 Presidential election year, but activity slowed down during the last week of early voting.

She said, "The last week of early voting wasn't as good as we expected."

Ray added in the last 1990 Governor's race, 2,556 voters in Howard County cast early ballots.

Final results show that 3,077 of Howard County's registered voters took advantage of the early voting opportunity at the courthouse and of 217 mail out ballots, 195 have been returned for a total of 3,272 early ballots being cast.

On the final day of early voting 395 voters cast ballots compared to 679 during 1992 elections. Ray said the slow down on the final day of early voting could be because of the cold front that rolled in Friday, leaving the area wet for a few hours.

Those who need to know which precinct they will need to vote in on Nov. 8, the precinct number is indicated on all voter registration cards.

Voting precincts for the Nov. 8 election and election judges for each precinct are:

•Omega Hernandez, Precincts 101 and 112 at the North Side Fire Station.

and 204 at Washington Place School.

•Nan Buske, Precincts 301, 302, and 306 at the 18th & Main St. Fire Station.

•Myrl Soles, Precinct 304 at Elbow School.

•Donnette Phillips, Precincts

401, 402, and 410 at the Big Spring High School Library.

•Faye Walker, Precinct 407 at Salem Baptist Church.

•Patricia Barr, Precinct 408 at Vincent Baptist Church.

•Mrs. H.C. Wallin, Precinct 409 at the Sand Springs Lions Club Community Center.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. on

Nov. 8 and close at 7 p.m.

TASB adopts resolutions take issue with Education commissioners' proposals

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Texas Association of School Boards met in Dallas last month to discuss adopting resolutions dealing with issues such as school board authority, unfunded mandates and school prayer.

Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustee Larry McLellan was a delegate to the convention and says TASB adopted 38 of the 52 resolutions.

Four of those resolutions are directly opposed to legislation that Commissioner of Education Lionel "Skip" Meno supports. They include:

•TASB is opposing any changes in the Texas Education

Code diminishing local control of school districts and reducing accountability to taxpayers by transferring decision-making authority to non-elected school officials.

•TASB is opposing proposed revisions to the Texas Education Code removing any authority from the local school board in decisions concerning hiring or dismissal of contract employees.

•TASB is opposing any state-mandated increase in the number of staff development days if such an increase results in fewer than 175 instructional days.

•TASB is opposing efforts to establish hearing examiners appointed by Meno to conduct

Cheryl Stevens speaker at Wednesday's minority, small business breakfast

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

If you are a minority or small business owner and are looking for ways to network with larger companies, then look no further than the Big Spring Minority and Small Business Gathering on Wednesday.

The gathering provides an opportunity for local business owners to meet and discuss how to bid for jobs and contracts with major purchasers and to learn how to get the portion of work set aside for minority contractors.

Former Big Spring resident will be the keynote speaker at the gathering on Wednesday. She is currently the manager of minority business development for Texas Utilities and is a driving force in expanding the company's expenditures with minority and women supplies by 622 percent in three years.

Stevens says, "at Texas Utilities, we recognize that a strong minority business development program can broaden the economic vitality and prosperity of the communities we are privileged to serve. Affording all citizens an equal opportunity to participate in our procurement process makes good business sense as it enhances our ability to call upon the resources of the entire community."

The gathering will be Herman's Restaurant at 1601 Gregg from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. Coffee is provided and there is no charge for attending except for the cost of your meal if you choose to eat.

For additional information or to make reservations, call Delia Barraza at 264-5164. It is sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Minority Involvement Committee of the Fina Refinery, Howard College Business Development Center and TU Electric.

Council takes up Energas rate increase Tuesday

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

At Tuesday's City Council meeting, City Manager Lanny Lambert will discuss a proposal from Energas which would add about 54 cents a month to its customers gas bills.

The City Council meeting will be at 5:30 p.m., Tuesday, at McMahon/Wrinkle Air Park in the conference room of building 1106.

Although Energas filed a request that would have added 89 cents a month to customers bills (to the 66 cities that comprise the West Texas system), the company has agreed to a lower amount in settlement of the Sept. 20 request, which is where the 54 cents a month figure comes in.

Energas filed for a $2.59 million increase (1.9 percent) and proposed to collect $271,672 of this amount through higher non-gas service charges. It proposed that the balance of $2.32 million be collected through an 89 cents per month increase in its customer charge, which would increase the residential customer charge from $4.75 to $5.29.

The 54 cent increase (as opposed to 89 cents) represents a $900,000 reduction of its original requested rate filing.

The Steering Committee of Energas cities, in a memo from Diversified Utility Consultants, Inc., lists several options to local cities.

Options of Energas cities, to this offer, include accepting the company's settlement offer with the rate increase beginning in the middle of November; counter the offer at a nominally lower level of increase with each $.01 having the impact of $26,000 per year (likely to be accepted by the company); counter the offer with a two year moratorium and a nominally lower level of increase with each $.01 having the impact of $26,000 per year (offer likely to be accepted, not moratorium); or counter the offer with a level of increase substantially lower, with Energas likely to counter at a higher level.

According to DUC Energas is in a major construction program and as it continues to increase its investment in this program, it will likely file for another rate increase next year, but no later than in the next two years.

EDITORIAL

Quote of the Day

"Art is the only thing that can go on mattering once it has stopped hurting."

Elizabeth Bowen, novelist, 1949

Tuesday is the DAY, so get your cards ready and vote

Do you know where your voter registration card is?

If not, you have tonight to find it as candidates take time to get their messages across on the last day of campaigning.

Tuesday is the big day - election day - the one the candidates, and many voters, have been waiting for.

Early voting in Howard County was on a record pace with the presidential election of 1992.

But, not all of us have voted early. There are some of us who wait until THE DAY to cast our votes.

We have to remember to cast our votes, though. It is important if you want to have your say in who is elected to office.

If it is not important to you who runs your government, then stay home. But, remember, it is that attitude of not caring, of not voting that has taken away the power of the American people to control its government.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

We complain of a government run amuck. The only way to change it is to renew our interests in government at all levels and participate in the process. And, this includes getting out and voting.

The polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. And, there is all the time in between. Find your card and exercise your political voice.

everybody else's morality, meddling government, doublespeak politicians, arrogant media, highly paid athletes, sports strikes, and many other annoyances.

The question is why are people so unhappy when times are relatively good, the economy seems perky, and it seems unlikely that Judge Ito will totally ban TV coverage.

To get answers, I arranged for an exclusive interview with Dr. I.M. Kookie, the internationally renowned expert on lots of stuff.

Dr. Kookie has been studying the droopy American spirit at the think tank he founded: The Institute to Determine What's Up.

Here are some of his findings:

"People are unhappy for one very simple reason. They are not unhappy enough."

But that doesn't make sense.

How can they be unhappy because they are not unhappy when it is clear that they are, indeed, unhappy?

"That is a very good question. Actually, it is a stupid question, but I will try to be polite. So I will answer it any way. OK, when you are real thirsty, what makes you feel better?"

Having something to drink.

"Right. And when you are real hungry, what makes you feel good?"

Obviously, having something to eat.

"Very good. Now do you understand?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Misery. We need more misery. Until we get more misery, people will be miserable. Now you got it?"

We need more misery to be happy?

"Exactly. We got it too good.

When was the last time you had to call your brother-in-law to bring over his jumper cables because the cold weather killed your car battery?"

It has been so long, I don't remember.

"See? It used to be that when we got a cold snap, every brother-in-law was out with his jumper cables. But now they make better cars and batteries that almost always start. So how can you feel good when your engine starts if you weren't miserable because it didn't start in the first place?"

So we need dead batteries to be happy?

"More than that. In the Great Depression, what made people miserable?"

"That's easy. Being out of work, not having food or a roof over their heads."

"Right. So what made them happy?"

"A job, food on the table, and a warm place to sleep."

"You got it. Any kind of job made a person happy. The job didn't have to fulfill them or be on the fast track, as long as it provided a paycheck. Food was pretty good haute cuisine if it filled the belly. And nobody complained about not having as nice a house as their parents had, because most parents were lucky to have clean linoleum and a toilet that flushed."

So you are saying that in order to appreciate what you have, you have to have been deprived.

"It helps. But now we got every kind of machine we need to keep us cool when it's hot, warm when it's cold, entertained with movies or sports or games or music when we're bored. To make our coffee and cook our food real fast. To cut our grass, throw our snow, wash our dishes, clean our clothes, exercise our legs, check our blood pressure, count our calories, and do our arithmetic. Fifty years ago, the world's richest people didn't have the luxuries that the average guy - even some low income guys - take for granted today."

But if we have it so good, why are the majority of Americans unhappy?

"Because they want more, and there ain't no more, but people think there is. That's why millions of them are running out and buying themselves or their kids computers with a CD-ROM. A few years ago, they would have thought that CD-ROM was a mantra: See-Dee Romm-Romm, See-Dee

Romm-Romm, hey, hey, hey, goodbye. Now they think a CD-

ROM will bring them happiness. But it won't. All that will happen is that it will keep popping out and goofy messages will come on the computer screen saying, 'Insert Disk,'

'Remove Disk,' 'Take Disk and Shove It.' Then they will tell a pollster that life is doo-doo."

So you seem to be saying that to be happy, you must know some misery first. Only then can you enjoy the simple pleasures.

"Well, I would not put it in such a sappy way, but that's part of it. See, what we really need is for the government to say that we are going to be hit by a giant meteor."

A giant meteor from outer space?

"Right. They should announce that it is going to crash into this planet in 30 days and kill everything except the cockroaches. And so in a few million years, the cockroaches will evolve into sharpies like us and will be unhappy with their CD-ROMs. Yes, we need an end-of-the-world

meteor alert."

But are we in danger?

"Of course not. But if it was announced, it would scare everybody out of their wits for a few days and there would be mass hysteria. Then the government could announce that it was a mistake and that we aren't all going to die after all,

and everybody would be relieved and happy to be alive."

Then people would appreciate what they have and be happy?

"Maybe. Or they'd be unhappy and would impeach the president. Either way, it's worth a try."

Thank you.

"Don't worry, be happy."

FBI manual on missing children's cases distributed to law officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police should assume every child reported missing is in immediate danger. They should search the home immediately even if the child disappeared elsewhere. And they should quickly give the parents polygraph tests.

That advice is part of a 220-page manual on how to investigate missing children cases that the Justice Department developed and is sending this week to 17,000 law enforcement agencies around the country.

FBI agents were using advance copies when they assisted local authorities during the past two weeks in bringing murder charges against a Florida couple and a South Carolina woman who had reported their children missing.

"It is recommended that law enforcement agencies respond to every report of a missing child as if the child is in immediate danger," says the manual, which was released Sunday.

Otherwise, officers may assume a child is merely lost or left voluntarily and "overlook many details ... (and) miss the opportunity to immediately identify critical information such as a witness who ... observed the child talking to someone."

"Missing and Abducted Children: A Law Enforcement Guide to Case Investigation and Program Management" took 18 months to prepare. The Justice Department commissioned the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children to write it.

"The FBI was working with advance copies in both the Florida and South Carolina cases," said Ron Laney, project manager for the manual in the department's Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

"The South Carolina case was a model. ... They did everything they should," Laney said. "The FBI agents assisting local authorities were following the guide very closely." Laney did not know details of its use in the Florida case.

In Union, S.C., Susan V. Smith reported her sons, Michael, 3, and Alex, 14 months, abducted by a carjacker Oct. 25. On Nov. 3, she was charged with murder after the car with two bodies was recovered from a lake.

She was given polygraph tests on Oct. 27 and Nov. 1. Published reports said she failed both.

While noting that police disagree about the validity of polygraph tests, the manual says "officers who do advocate its use recommend holding examinations early in the investigative process" in part because "individuals who are prime suspects and/or parents may not sense an accusatory purpose ... since it is probably being conducted on several people at the same time."

At times, the manual added, "derogatory information is revealed about the child's parents during the course of a prolonged investigation." Such information needs to be investigated without letting it take over the case "just because there is nothing else to do," the manual says.

"Such situations underscore the need to polygraph all appropriate persons—suspects—including the parents—early in the investigation," it says.

In the Florida case, Pauline Zile told authorities her daughter, Christina, 7, was abducted from a Fort Lauderdale flea market restroom Oct. 22. Her husband, Walter, the child's stepfather, was charged with Christina's murder Oct. 27; Pauline was charged Nov. 4.

Police had found blood on the floors and walls of their apartment and in the trunk of their car before Walter Zile led them to the child's remains buried north of West Palm Beach.

That apartment search followed a key guideline in the manual.

"When a child is reported missing, always search the home; even if the child is missing from another location," the manual says.

Demo giants battling to the end

WASHINGTON (AP) — The giants among Democratic governors — Mario Cuomo in New York, Lawton Chiles in Florida and Ann Richards in Texas — battled to the end against a Republican tide that could give the GOP a statehouse majority for the first time in a quarter century.

Republicans now hold 20 of 50 governorships.

Heated exchanges on crime and taxes marked many of this year's 36 contests in the final week before the Nov. 8 election. Polls showed tightening races in a number of states, among them Connecticut, Rhode Island, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

Republican hopes for a sweep of the nation's eight largest states have been dampened by rebounds by Cuomo, Chiles and Richards. The GOP can count on holding California and the three largest Midwestern states, and seems likely to pick up Pennsylvania.

There are 21 Democratic seats at stake this year, compared to 14 Republican and one independent. The GOP last occupied a majority of the state executive mansions in 1970, when it held 32.

California Gov. Pete Wilson is holding his lead over Democrat Kathleen Brown despite the decline of an immigration initiative to which he is closely tied. The race is centering on crime and the initiative, which would deny illegal immigrants schooling and other government services. Brown was so short of money that she pulled her weekend TV ads.

Elsewhere, GOP incumbents Jim Edgar of Illinois, George Voinovich of Ohio and John Engler of Michigan have virtually insurmountable leads over their opponents. In fact, there's concern that Ohio Democrat Rob Burch could receive less than 20 percent and temporarily disqualify his party from getting a share of the state income tax checkoff.

These Northeastern and Midwestern governors are not going to get elected. They're going to get crowned," said GOP pollster Bill McInturff, predicting 60 percent majorities for his party's incumbents in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Massachusetts and New Hampshire as well as Illinois, Ohio and Michigan.

Republicans also have a chance to pick up Pennsylvania, now governed by a Democrat. Rep. Tom Ridge, the GOP nominee, was well ahead of Democrat Mark Singel last week in a race dominated by abortion, crime and trust issues.

In New York, three-term Cuomo surged to a lead, recovered his sense of humor and won a "comeback kid" designation after an unexpected endorsement by New York City's Republican mayor, Rudolph Giuliani.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Bush drops by phone banks

CARROLLTON, (AP) — Busy volunteers were crowded together at the campaign phone bank when George W. Bush strode up and sat on a table's edge.

"Let me let you talk to him," Becky Miller said into her receiver. She handed it to Bush.

"I sure appreciate your vote," Bush told the unidentified Dallas voter Ms. Miller had called Sunday. "Anything I can do to make you show up, I'll do it."

Bush said goodbye and hung up.

Governor hits Demo strongholds

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — The crowds got bigger, the music got louder, and Gov. Ann Richards kicked up her heels.

Richards spent Sunday court-ing votes among mostly Hispanic crowds in McAllen, Brownsville and Corpus Christi and at predominantly black churches in Houston.

She touted her record of bringing minorities "to the table" and warned that Republican George W. Bush would send Texas back to "the old ways."

She ended the evening at the largest event of the weekend, perhaps of the campaign, where a reported 10,000 people attended a rally-concert in Corpus Christi.

After dancing briefly on stage, Richards told the exuberant crowd to vote Tuesday.

New trial wanted in eye gouging case

ARCADIA, La. (AP) — Two Arcadia sisters serving probation for gouging out their sister's eyes to rid her of a demon are asking a Dallas judge for a new trial.

Attorneys for Doretha Crawford and Beverly Johnson filed their request Oct. 17 in a Dallas court. Both sisters are serving 10 years' probation after being convicted of aggravated assault in connection with the blinding of Myra Obasi, 30, a former Caddo Parish schoolteacher.

The blinding occurred on March 18 at a church-home in south Dallas' Oak Cliff area.

They want the case reconsidered because Obasi and her sisters still say they are innocent. As convicted felons the two sisters can't vote, hold public office and they will always be marked as criminals.

By Texas law, Judge Michael Keasler has 75 days to act on the motion for a new trial.

Scheme to trick bail jumpers fails

WACO (AP) — A scheme intended to trick a fugitive who had skipped out on his bond backfired on a bail-bondsman team and almost got them in trouble with the law.

Ronnie Hill said he and his son, Billy, had been looking for Raunel Granados Vences. The Hills had bonded Vences out of jail in September after his arrest on charges of conspiracy to engage in organized criminal activity. He was a suspected member of a reported marijuana smuggling ring.

Vences, 27, a native of Mexico, had worked for a Waco landscaping business for 12 years, owns a house here and has a wife and 4-year-old son in the city, Ronnie Hill said.

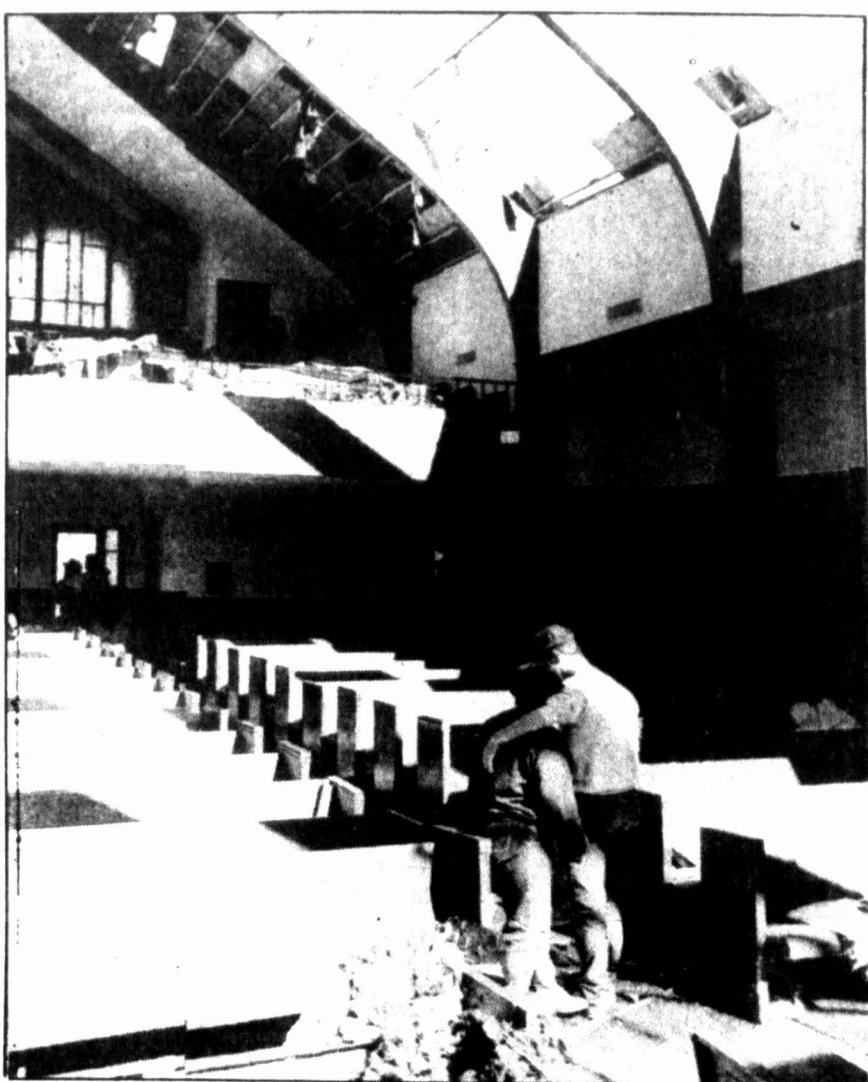

But he disappeared, leaving the Hills on the hook for $50,000.

The Hills began to stake out his house. Someone was paying utility bills and picking up mail at the house, but there was no sign of Vences.

Connie and Rodney Gray hug briefly inside the demolished sanctuary of the First Assembly of God church in Waxahachie Saturday. They were among many church members who came by to inspect the damage from high winds during a storm Friday night.

Just another Friday night until storm hit

MAYPEARL (AP) — It was just another Friday night in small town Texas. Several hundred of the community faithful were packed into the high school football stadium for a battle toward a playoff spot.

Then the lights went out, and the winds and rain ripped through.

"It just got quiet all of a sudden. Then you could see the winds come from everywhere," said Maypearl assistant coach Keith Owens, whose team was trailing Grandview 14-0 early in the fourth quarter. "No one knew what hit. There was no warning. No nothing."

The storm brought horror to Maypearl. It brought death to an East Texas infant.

Kent Campbell, assistant chief of the Maypearl Volunteer Fire Department, was seated inside a Chevy Suburban near the field when the storm hit.

"Man it hit," he said. "There were people literally blowing down the football field. Anything that wasn't tied down was blowing down the field. ... One man got hit by a flying drum. Everything you could imagine was blowing."

Band instruments. Seat cushions. Coats. Hats. People.

"Several people told me they were literally picked up off their feet," Campbell said.

Robert Shaffer, 14, feared the worst.

"I thought I was going to die when that thing hit," he said, explaining how he and a fellow eighth-grader ran for cover but at one point found themselves only "running in place."

At least 18 people were injured in the storm's path.

It also struck nearby Waxahachie, heavily damaging a 132-unit apartment complex and an Assemblies of God church and peeling roofs back at a shopping center and high school.

It just got quiet all of a sudden. Then you could see the winds come from everywhere.

Keith Owens

The winds also knocked over an 18-wheeler on Interstate 35 and blew off a highway sign that struck another rig and ruptured its fuel tanks, said Waxahachie Fire Chief David Hudgins.

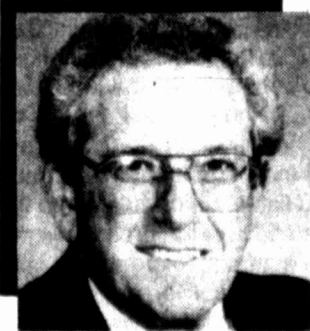

Two people were injured in the East Texas community of Cross Roads when winds, possibly a tornado, tossed their mobile home through the air at about 10 p.m. Both people walked away from the wreckage, although a woman was later taken to an Athens hospital with cuts, bruises and possibly broken ribs. Cross Roads is about 70 miles southeast of Dallas.

While officials said the damage was likely due to straight line winds, some people were not convinced that it wasn't a tornado that wreaked havoc on their lives.

"I don't believe my porch would be laying over the building in a tree if it was straight line winds," said Sandra Baser, who manages the Victorian Square Apartments in Waxahachie.

One father suffered minor injuries moments after he handed his baby to his wife and the roof collapsed on the baby bed, Ms. Baser said.

Ten of the injured were at the football game in Maypearl, a farming community of about 800 located about 50 miles south of Dallas, said Mike Lee, administrator of Baylor Medical Center in Waxahachie.

Crime spree ends with one death

DALLAS (AP) — Four teenage suspects have been arrested in a weekend crime rampage that resulted in the shooting death of a Dallas man.

Robert Reviel, 25, of Dallas, was washing his car about 4:15 a.m., Sunday when the suspects approached him, said Detective Ken Penrod.

"They were going to take money from the complainant, but it never got to that," he said, adding that Reviel sprayed the suspects with the car-wash wand before he was shot several times.

Reviel drove to a convenience store for help and was taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital, where he was pronounced dead shortly about 6:15 a.m., officials said.

Two other people also were injured in the early morning violence which is believed to have started around 2 a.m. with a robbery at White Rock Lake in which Jose Guadalajara, 23, was shot, Penrod said.

The teens then encountered a second car and fired a shot at it, but the people escaped without injury, Penrod said.

Next, the suspects ran across some men in a Chevy Blazer and "taunted them, chased them and then shot at them," he said.

Sean Freese, 21, sustained a slight injury to his right arm and shoulder, likely from flying debris caused by the gunfire, Penrod said.

Neither of the injured victims was hospitalized Sunday night, police said.

Also, the suspects were involved in a suspicious person call in Garland, after they evidently followed a man to his home, he said. The man made it safely inside and called 911. Penrod said, adding investigators aren't sure if the incident occurred before or after Reviel was shot.

Garland police arrested the suspects after they spotted a vehicle that matched a description that had been issued, he said.

"This is unusual in that these suspects continued to commit crime after crime," Dallas police Sgt. Gary Kirkpatrick told WFAA. "Fortunately that's what led to their arrests is the fact that they continued to stay on the streets and were ultimately spotted by the police."

The suspects, ranging in age from 16 to 19, are believed responsible for four crimes in Dallas and a suspicious person call in Garland, police said.

Powwow draws Indians from across nation

AUSTIN (AP) — American Indians from Texas and several other states gathered at a weekend powwow and Indian heritage festival where they watched more than 100 brightly colored Indian dancers, tried traditional foods and participated in dance competitions.

Guy Red Owl, 47, a Lakota Sioux, drove 100 miles from Hunt to attend Saturday's powwow at the Burger Center in south Austin.

He said the event was "kind of like a social gathering."

"The drum makes your spirit move and you start moving your feet. It makes you want to dance and enjoy yourself."

Joseph "JoJo" Rice of Meeker, Okla., added: "That drum is medicine to us. You get out and dance, and for one day you forget about your problems."

One of six traditional Native American artisans at the powwow, Rice occasionally glanced at the dancers 50 feet away, but his attention was focused on his fan and the pencil-point-size beads.

"Each is unique," he said of the intricate beadwork on his fans and gourd rattles. "Each one has its own character."

Rice, a Pawnee/SAC and Fox beadworker, explained to passers-by that his beadwork reflects the colors of nature.

Rap lyrics anger gang; two men killed in fight

MARSHALL (AP) — Lyrics of a rap song angered rival gang members at an East Texas nightclub and triggered a fight that resulted in the shooting deaths of two Louisiana men, police said.

A Shreveport, La., radio station was broadcasting live from the Imperial Club in Marshall when the fight broke out early Sunday morning.

Tony T. Blackshire, 21, of Keithville, La., was shot twice and died inside the club. Kenward W. Pier, Jr., 20, of Shreveport, La., was shot once in the chest and was dead on arrival at a Marshall hospital.

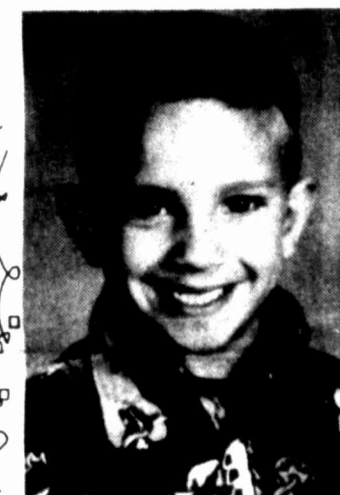

No suspects were in custody late Sunday.

Detective Ronnie Rogers of the Marshall Police Department told the Longview News-Journal that problems began when a disc jockey at the club played a "gangster rap" song called "Piru Love."

Rogers said the lyrics of the song, recorded by the group Bloods and Crips, claim the members of the Bloods gang are superior to members of the rival Crips gang.

N. Korea talking trade with S. Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Trying to rev up its sputtering economy, North Korea has invited South Korean conglomerates to Pyongyang to discuss investment, company officials said today.

"We recently received an invitation from the North," Chung Won-do, a spokesman for Samsung Business Group, the nation's largest conglomerate, told The Associated Press.

The invitation was the first since North Korea agreed in an accord last month to freeze its feared nuclear program in return for Western aid and diplomatic relations.

There has been no direct trade between North and South Korea since the 1950-53 Korea War ended. The two Koreas were divided into the communist North and pro-West South in 1945.

UNITA headquarter over run by troops

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Government troops overran UNITA headquarters in central Angola today, killing at least 500 rebels, an army spokesman said. The offensive threatened a peace treaty initiated just last week and sent hundreds of refugees fleeing in panic.

Government soldiers smashed through rebel defenses around Huambo, 330 miles southeast of the capital of Luanda, and have taken control of most strategic points including the airport and the military compound, Army spokesman Brig. Jose Manuel said today.

"The UNITA leadership has fled Huambo. Government troops are now in the center of the city and advancing," Manuel told reporters.

More than 500 rebel fighters were killed in the pre-dawn assault, Manuel said. The rebels' top military commander, Arturo Pena "Ben-Ben", was reported to have fled the city.

Pope starting to joke about cane

SIRACUSA, Sicily (AP) — After months of walking almost surreptitiously with a cane, Pope John Paul II has begun waving it, joking about it and asking people what they think.

"Are you pro-cane or anti-cane?" he asked young people Saturday night during a three-day trip to Sicily. "Some say it makes me look older. Others that it rejuvenates me."

Long known for his vigor and his image as a pope who skis and hikes, the 74-year-old pontiff is trying to make the best of his new situation, using humor to counter critics who say his papacy is slowing down.

Rains flood Europe

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Heavy weekend flooding cut off entire villages in southern Europe, leaving rescuers struggling to reach 10 trapped cave explorers and families buried beneath the rubble of their homes.

At least 56 deaths were reported, and in Italy alone, authorities confirmed 25 people were missing.

But RAI state television said the number could go much higher because many villages remained isolated and workers were digging through debris of collapsed homes.

Schools, hotels and even a train opened their doors to the thousands of people rendered homeless. Many people were plucked from their rooftops by helicopters or rescued by motorboat.

The flooding swept away bridges and pieces of highway, cut off hundreds of villages and forced Nice's international airport to close until Tuesday.

Italy's Piedmont region, in the northwest, suffered the worst. At least 24 inches of rain fell in 60 hours as of late Sunday. The rain lessened somewhat early today but was expected to continue throughout the day.

Flooding hit the northern regions of Liguria, Lombardy and Val d'Aosta, which had nine feet of snow in Alpine sections. Heavy rains also fell over much of central Italy, Sicily and the Naples area.

chief, said the deluge was the worst since 1913, and reported at least 34 weather-related deaths in northern Italy over the weekend.

Opposition leaders blasted the government for lack of preparation, warnings and timely aid.

Italian officials said an army of 20,000 firefighters, police and volunteers was deployed to handle the crisis. "In the face of such a vast disaster ... anyone could say we could do better," Carulli said, responding to the criticism.

Much of Asti, a city of 74,000 people in northwestern Italy, was under nine feet of water, and large areas were without gas, electricity or phone service. Two thousand people fled their homes.

Authorities were also evacuating residents from Montalto Dora, a small town in northwestern Italy. The ANSA news agency said the town was threatened by a wall of water behind a dam on the verge of bursting.

New rupture adds to Russia's oil spill

MOSCOW (AP) — A new rupture in a 31-mile pipeline has spilled nearly 4 million gallons of oil in Russia's far north just miles from the site of a huge spill this fall, an environmental group said Sunday.

Greenpeace Russia said it discovered the new spill 40 miles north of the oil town of Usinsk on Friday. A duty officer at the Russian Ministry for Emergency Situations said the ministry had no information on any new spill.

Greenpeace Russia said the oil had been set ablaze, and that a mile-long stream of burning oil fed by lakes of oil two feet deep cut across the tundra.

"This is a major oil disaster caused by oil companies that refused to stop pumping their oil down a pipeline they know is falling apart," said Paul Horsman of Greenpeace Russia.

"The pipeline must be closed down permanently."

The earlier spill, also north of Usinsk and some 1,000 miles northeast of Moscow, reportedly already has polluted the salmon-rich Pechora River. It resulted from a series of ruptures along the pipeline over the last few months.

The exact size of the earlier spill is unknown. U.S. authorities have said it could be as large as 80 million gallons. Russian officials say is much smaller — 4.1 million to 17.6 million gallons.

The Exxon Valdez tanker, by comparison, spilled nearly 11 million gallons of oil after running aground in Alaska's Prince William Sound in 1989.

A government commission last week said the earlier spill should be cleaned up before spring floods make it worse next year. However, cleanup efforts have already been hampered by snow and ice in the region, and some polluted zones are hard for heavy equipment to reach.

Greenpeace Russia criticized the government for failing to prevent the new spill, saying their inspection was improper.

"If they had bothered to get closer to the pipe than just flying over it, they would have seen the leaks, and might have been able to prevent this spill," Greenpeace activist Eduard Gismatullin said.

Professor wreaks vengeance by spreading AIDS virus

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An AIDS-infected professor spent the last year of his life advertising for sex, spreading the deadly virus and videotaping the men he slept with in a macabre act of vengeance, police say.

The man, Yeshayahu Demner, was found murdered a week ago.

Demner's hundreds of potential victims may have included Palestinians, U.S. sailors and his students from the Technion engineering university, police investigators told The Associated Press today.

But there was no evidence Demner sought to infect Arabs or members of any specific group beyond a general desire to spread his disease, said police sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Police suspect the engineering professor — described by students as a reserved, kindly man — was bludgeoned to death by a man he infected with the AIDS virus.

Show of force given Bosnia by NATO

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — NATO warplanes roared over Sarajevo while U.N. officials warned Bosnia's warring factions to halt escalating fighting before it once again engulfed the city.

Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, U.N. commander in Bosnia, met Bosnian Vice President Ejup Ganic on Sunday to protest the fighting. Another U.N. official spoke by phone with the Bosnian Serbs at their headquarters in Pale, east of Sarajevo.

Both sides were given "the same kind of warning" about the deteriorating situation, said Rose's spokesman, Lt. Col. Tim Spicer. He did not elaborate.

Fighting around the capital reignited Saturday when government forces fired mortar shells from the southern suburb of Hrasnica at Bosnian Serb positions in Ilidza, southwest of the capital, said U.N. military spokesman Maj. Koos Sol.

Up to 15 artillery shells were fired by both sides in violation of a U.N. ban on big guns within a 12-mile radius of Sarajevo. Bosnian radio said eight civilians were wounded in Hrasnica. The Bosnian Serb news agency SRNA said three civilians were wounded in Ilidza.

Muslim-led government forces have seized about 160 square miles recently in their most successful push of the 2-year-old war, which began when Bosnia's minority Serbs rebelled against a vote by Croats and Muslims to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

Steers: Togetherness key to playoff push

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Some folks might find it hard to believe the Big Spring Steers are in the football playoffs.

After all, this team:

- Lost its season-opening game 25-0 to Borger. At home.
- Started the season 2-4.
- Has seniors that went through a winless season back in 1989 as seventh graders.

But maybe it's not the playoffs that are hard to believe.

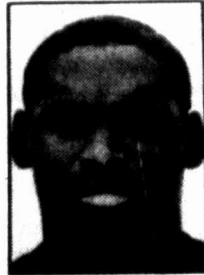

Maybe it's all the other circumstances. The Steers were the young, inexperienced lot that coach Dwight Butler made them out to be in September. When Levelland blasted the Steers in Big Spring's final pre-district game, there were a lot of doubts about the Steers having any success in District 4-4A.

Doubts among fans and observers, anyway; the players and the coaches never doubted themselves for a minute - at least that's the way it seems on the surface.

"Everyone thought we were having a slow start, but we never did," Butler said. "We knew early in the season that we were going to make a lot of mistakes, just because we were an inexperienced team."

Butler said more than once in September that the Steers wouldn't be able to use the young-and-inexperienced label as an excuse come district play, partly because of the strong pre-district schedule the team faced.

That turned out true. The Steers weren't able to use their youth as an excuse in October and November. In fact, they couldn't use any excuse.

You don't make excuses when you're winning.

The Steers (6-4, 4-1 in 4-4A) won their final four games, and they'll be facing a team on an even longer roll Saturday at Memorial Stadium. Kickoff is 2 p.m. for the Steers' bi-district playoff game against 3-4A champion El Paso Parkland (8-2, 3-0), a team that has won eight straight.

How did the Steers get this far? You could point to a lot of things - great play from the offensive and defensive lines, the running game, the passing game that went from nowhere to formidable through the course of the season, the dominating defense ... but ask the players and you'll hear about a common thread among winning football teams: Togetherness.

"We never gave up," said senior guard Jason Roberts. "We played as a team all year, no matter what. We just played together and bonded together."

That was never more evident Friday at Andrews. Big Spring senior center Mario Cavazos lost his father, Raul, Thursday. Raul Cavazos died from injuries suffered in a construction accident, but Cavazos - and the team - responded by playing its best game, considering the circumstances.

"I knew Mario's father, and when I found out it hurt. He was a really nice man," Roberts said. "That was our reason for playing tonight (Friday). It's wasn't for the playoffs. We just dedicated this game to Mario's dad and his family."

Part of the more than 27,000 runners head into the Brooklyn borough of New York shortly after the start of the 25th New York City Marathon Sunday. German Silva of Mexico won the men's division and Tecia Lorupe of Kenya won the women's division.

Hey, Dennis: Can the 'do, and the 'tude

Remember the C & C Music Factory song, "Things That Make You Go Hmmm?" I'm sure the S a n Antonio Spurs do, and the thing making them g o "Hmmm" is forward Dennis Rodman.

First it was the hair thing (it's always the hair thing), then it was Madonna, and recently he was suspended indefinitely (without pay) for what coach Bob Hill calls conduct unbecoming and detrimental to the team.

The Spurs organization insists that the suspension was a "family decision" and that Rodman's future is in his own hands. With that statement and Rodman's history, he's about as reliable as a hot air balloon with a slow leak.

I don't think a three-game suspension is adequate, but I also think the Spurs waited too long to impose discipline on Rodman.

When an athlete's personal life and his hair becomes a bigger headline than the team (a team that includes David Robinson and Sean Elliott), it's time to take a look at what's really important.

You can't make me believe that Dennis Rodman is so important to the Spurs that he can write his own ticket and blow his own horn. Wait long enough and you can find someone else to grab 17 rebounds a game.

Sure, Rodman was a member of the Detroit Pistons when they won back to back titles in the late 1980s, but Isaiah Thomas, Joe Dumars, Adrian Dantley, Bill Laimbeer and Rick Mahorn provided much of the steam that made that engine run. And let's not forget Chuck Daly (the only coach in the NBA that I would put on the same level as Pat Riley).

The sad thing about Rodman's situation is the fact that he makes $2.4 million a year for carrying around an attitude that's larger than the national debt. Money isn't everything, but if I were serving a three-game suspension (losing approximately $29,268 a game), I think I could be gently persuaded to straighten up and fly right.

Dennis Rodman can play basketball, but you would think that he could use his skills to improve his play on the offensive end of the court. I don't think it's ever crossed his mind that if the Spurs could score a few more points, they may be able to make it past the first round in the NBA playoffs once in a while.

In one television interview Rodman said it (the suspension) was no big deal. I don't care what type of life he grew up with as a child, as an adult, if he wants to be respected, he needs to respect himself and others first.

If I owned a basketball team, I might or might not have a championship team, but I certainly wouldn't have a team of unintelligent loud-mouthed

Hard-luck Oilers lose again in overtime, 12-9, to Steelers

HOUSTON (AP) — Gary Brown's fumble gave Gary Anderson the one extra kick the Pittsburgh Steelers needed to beat the Houston Oilers.

In a game with no touchdowns, the only turnover Sunday set up Anderson's 40-yard field goal with 3:36 left in overtime, giving the Steelers a 12-9 victory over Houston.

"I'd like to kick it every time," Anderson said. "It's just like playing golf. If you take a good swing at the ball you're going to hit it well."

Anderson also had kicks of 50, 39 and 37 yards. Al Del Greco made kicks of 32 and 49 yards before his 38-yarder with seven seconds left in regulation tied it at 9.

"I've been through it so many times, that's what kicking is all about," Anderson said. "I'm just glad that we had one more kick than they did."

Pittsburgh improved to 6-3, while the Oilers (1-8) lost their fifth in a row.

Anderson got his chance to be the hero when Brown fumbled after an 8-yard gain at the Houston 22. After one rush by Bam Morris, Anderson kicked the winner.

"Each week, it gets more bizarre," Houston coach Jack Pardee said. "We thought the key to the game would be turnovers and it did come down to that, but it was just one."

Quarterback Neil O'Donnell pieced together a fourth-quarter drive that included a 39-yard pass to Yancy Thigpen and led to Anderson's 37-yard field goal for a 9-6 lead with 3:57 left in the game.

"There were two great defenses going at it," O'Donnell said. "We knew coming into this game there were no great weaknesses in their defense. We killed ourselves a couple of times in the red zone."

The Oilers responded in the closing minutes behind Cody Carlson, booed earlier in the game for his passing inefficiency.

Carlson completed a 26-yard pass to Ernest Givins on fourth-and-23 at the Houston 6 and followed with a 25-yard completion to Gary Wellman that got the Oilers in position for Del Greco's tying, 38-yarder.

O'Donnell sustained a leg injury when he was sacked by linebacker Al Smith with 12:09 to go in overtime and replaced by Mike Tomczak, who couldn't produce a touchdown, either.

Houston running back Gary Brown sits on the bench after fumbling the ball during overtime against the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday in Houston.

Foreman breathes life back into fight game with win

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mike Tyson remains in prison. Someone named Oliver McCall owns part of the title. But in the split second it took George Foreman to land one crashing right hand, heavyweight boxing sprung to life once again.

The shocking punch that flattened Michael Moorer in the 10th round Saturday night made the preaching, hamburger-chomping Foreman a heavyweight champion again, 20 years after he lost the title to Muhammad Ali in Zaire.

It may have come in a fight Foreman was losing badly, but that it came at all was amazing enough.

Had Moorer been able to stand up seven more minutes, Foreman's career would have ended. Instead, at the age of 45 he succeeded in his improbable bid to become the oldest man to win the heavyweight title.

"It's like the song, 'When You Wish Upon a Star Your Dreams Come True,'" Foreman said. "Well, look at me tonight."

But don't look too closely. Sunglasses hid eyes made swollen and lumpy by Moorer's insistent right jab and penetrating hooks.

For nearly 10 rounds, Moorer dominated on the inside in a fight largely fought in the center of the ring. He pressured the aging challenger with a fight plan that was working to perfection, never giving Foreman enough room to extend his arms and land his best solid, thumping punch.

All Moorer had to do, it seemed, was finish the fight. It turned out to be the one thing he couldn't do.

"He should have never stood in front of me," Foreman said. "I'm a straight right-handed puncher and sooner or later I'm going to hit you."

And hit him he did. After a similar combination a few seconds earlier hit its mark and moved Moorer back a few inches, Foreman landed a left jab to the face. The right hand that followed it crashed squarely on Moorer's jaw, sending him sprawling backwards to the canvas.

As Moorer lay unable to do anything but lift his head briefly, referee Joe Cortez counted him out at 2:03 of the 10th round.

Panthers could set record

HOUSTON (AP) — It's back to work for the Prairie View A&M Panthers, who are now in the record books for tying the longest losing streak in NCAA Division I-AA history.

"I think if you looked at the whole picture, you probably wouldn't play anymore," linebacker Jerrold Crowder said after Saturday's 70-20 Homecoming loss to Tarleton State.

The Panthers have lost 44 straight games, tying Columbia's I-AA losing streak set from 1983 to 1988.

"That's too depressing," Crowder said. "If you play anything and lost 44 games, you'd probably quit it after a while."

Prairie View (0-9, 0-7 Southwestern Athletic Conference) could set the I-AA record Saturday against Jackson State (6-3, 3-2).

Spots open for all-academic team

High school seniors who excel in academics, leadership and community service, and who are varsity athletes, are invited to apply for the FINA/Dallas Morning News All-State Scholar-Athlete Team.

To be eligible, applicants must be Texas high school seniors who have a 90 grade average or better, be in the top 10 percent of their graduating class and have a varsity letter in a UIL sport. Nominations should be sent to FINA Public Affairs, P.O. Box 2159, Dallas, Texas 75221, and must include the student's name and address. Nominations may also be submitted by calling (214) 750-4111.

Cowboys' Woodson looking to make jarring impression

IRVING (AP) — Darren Woodson has an identity problem he's trying to correct. That's why he welcomes appearances on Monday Night Football.

The Dallas Cowboys strong safety will be flying to the football and delivering his teeth-rattling hits against the New York Giants, hoping the nation notices.

"They brought me to Dallas to be a run-stopper and I think I've grown in that role the last two years," said Woodson, who leads the defending world champions with 69 tackles, 42 of them solo. "Someday I'd like to be ranked with the best."

Also, Woodson has found time to defend the pass. He paces the Cowboys with four interceptions.

The 6-foot-1, 215-pound second-round pick in the 1992 draft out of Arizona State is making a strong run at post-season honors.

"Sure, I'd like to get in on some of that," he said. "But no team has ever won three consecutive Super Bowls. That's what we're thinking about."

New York coach Dan Reeves said "Woodson makes it very tough to run against the Cowboys. We'll have to run to be successful Monday night but Woodson and the other safety, James Washington, are excellent tacklers."

Secondary coach Dave Campo said Woodson has tremendous responsibility in the Dallas defense.

"We ask him to do a lot of one-on-one coverage," Campo said. "He's so good sometimes he can cover a wide receiver by himself."

Woodson was a linebacker for the Sun Devil and Campo helped find him for the Cowboys.

"Some teams didn't know what to do with him because he was a weakside linebacker," Campo said. "He couldn't be a linebacker in our system at 220 pounds. We decided to take a chance and it paid off. Darren is becoming a bigtime player. He's just tremendous at run support. He's a tough guy who knows how to avoid blocks and take on the running backs."

The Dallas defense led by Woodson will be a strong test for young Dave Brown, who has had his ups-and-downs with the Giants trying to replace Phil Simms.

"Dallas has excellent defensive backs and Woodson is one of them," Brown said. "It's hard to be aggressive against a secondary like they have."

The Giants have lost their last five games after starting with three consecutive victories. The defending Super Bowl champions have cruised to a 7-1 record spoiled only by a 20-17 defeat to Detroit in overtime in the third game of the season.

Dallas rated a 14-point favorite.

showoffs representing me on the court, either.

Rodman and the Buffalo Bills' Thurman Thomas are two athletes this would-be owner could do without.

I wouldn't care if either of them could dead lift 1,500 pounds at a moment's notice or outrun a quarterhorse at 500 yards. ranting and raving and using profanity to make a point or generate attention is not the road you want to take as a high profile professional.

With basketball, baseball and hockey players (not to mention soccer players) getting bumped, bruised and knocked around almost as much as football players, the NBA needs to enforce much harsher punishments on players like Rodman (who led the league with 34 technical fouls last year).

A lot of people miss the action and excitement generated by Julius Irving, Larry Bird, Magic Johnson, and Michael Jordan. One thing's for sure about those players: They played the game because they loved it. They didn't ask for fan support or media hype. They earned it.

Take a letter, Dennis: No one is as good as he thinks. As you put it, basketball is a business. Keep it up, and you could be out of business. Real soon.

Dustin Waters, who went from starting quarterback to part-time quarterback to full-time wide receiver and part-time free safety in just one season, kept his wits through all the transition. He said his team made it easy.

"Our team was good last year, but we weren't as close," Waters said. "We just knew that at Levelland, we just weren't as focused as we should have been. I mean, we weren't focused at all - we had forgotten stuff, didn't bring our materials. We just weren't ready to play, and the coaches told us."

Quentin Dickson's explanation for team unity is, well, a bit more... cosmic.

"Everybody's got love for each other. We're more than a team, way more than a team. It's a family. The coaches are daddies and we're brothers," said Dickson, who was 4-4's second-leading rusher. Dickson runs like the perfect back on the field, and he acts like the perfect back off the field - giving credit to everyone but himself.

"My line does a great job for me, and see this guy here?" said Dickson, pointing to Steers' fullback Donnie Hill. "He's the best blocking back in the state. And don't forget the line, OK? You've got to mention the line."

Steer fans won't forget the linemen, and they won't forget this team for a while, either.

HOROSCOPE

FOR TUESDAY, NOV. 8, 1994
ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get past a misunderstanding. Focus on long-term goals. You are feeling much more upbeat. Loosen up about your potential and be more fun loving. Creative desire is high. A get-together can further your career. Tonight: Hang with your friends. *****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The boss is eyeing your work. Your ingenuity soars because of input from a partner. You are in a position of leadership. Be direct to avoid a potential misunderstanding. Clarity may help another. Tonight: Grab a late dinner with a coworker.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Work may pose challenges but nothing you can't get past. You see recent events differently. Listen carefully to an offer from one who cares about you and has much to share. Examine alternatives. Your awareness of choices is high. Tonight: Out and about. *****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): One-to-one relating is highlighted. You seek emotional security and feel good. You and a partner communicate well. Deal with sudden change in a co-worker. Save plenty of creativity energy for your significant other. Tonight: Be your ever-loving self. *****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be more upbeat with a co-worker who exhibit instability. Create a better foundation and deeper understanding through talks. You are coming from a solid viewpoint. Don't let a misunderstanding get to you. Tonight: Out with the gang. *****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be clear about what is important. Work-related issues dominate. Touch base with a co-worker and discuss ways of eliminating red tape. Your hard work done puts you in the winner's circle. Trust your judgment; know what you want. Tonight: Work late. *****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Manifest your charming, caring manner and you'll carry the day. Don't mince words; be very clear about what you expect. Opportunities to get ahead help you see a recent problem in a new light. Communications could get muddled. Tonight: Have fun. *****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take the lead and handle a situation powerfully and clearly.

The more direct you are, the happier you will be. Centering is important in dealing with another. A unique opportunity comes forth. Be happy and listen to your instincts. Tonight: Stay home. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You become talkative, you feel good with an opportunity and you handle a situation differently. You can connect and deal with others in the most appropriate way. Focus on communication. Make calls and spread the word. Tonight: Hang out. *****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be direct. You need to stay clear to be upbeat and solve a problem. A friend may not mean to distract you but may not have your best interests in mind. Take command and direct your energies into building security. Tonight: Be your happy self. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are full of energy as you deal with a situation freshly. Be secure and direct with an out-of-control boss. The unexpected occurs early in the day, leaving you to digest what has gone on. Your optimism wins the day. Tonight: Ask and you shall receive. *****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Gather information. You really do not want to reveal everything you know. Stay clear about your choices and direction. Discuss a situation. Be upbeat and listen well. News from a distance is important. Do not let another's thinking upset you. Tonight: Vanish. *****

IF NOV. 8 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: This could be an interesting year for you. Communication is active. Your home life dominates. You are building stronger roots. The changes you made in recent years come to play and allow you to develop in new ways. Expect increased funds in 1995.

If you are single: You meet people easily in your day-to-day travels; deal with your nervous energy, which sometimes gets in the way of relating; work on stress reduction. If attached: Build your relationship this year; consider buying a home; financial investments are best made in 1995. AQUARIUS understands you.

THE ASTERISKS (*) SHOW THE KIND OF DAY YOU'LL HAVE: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Families praise Operation Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for Operation Dear Abby. Last year we participated so that our four sons would learn more about the world, the military, and how to write letters. We've learned so much about Japan, Spain, Iran, Turkey, and also about the Navy and Air Force — which were the branches of the military from which we received replies.

One American sailor named Steven J. Brigati wrote from the USS Independence: "I'm deployed in the Persian Gulf, and after 10 years in the service, this is my first Christmas away from home. It's lonely being so far from home during the holidays, but the letters we receive are great morale boosters. Knowing people care about us makes it much easier to do our jobs."

So, Abby, not only have we learned about people in other countries, we've acquired many new friends. I hope more of your readers will take part in Operation Dear Abby again this year. — THE TRABERT FAMILY, COLUMBIA CITY, IND.

DEAR TRABERTS AND DEAR READERS: What a delightful reminder that it's time for Operation Dear Abby! On behalf of the men and women in the military whose spirits have been lifted by the outpouring of letters and cards, I want to thank my readers, and invite you to once again participate in this patriotic effort.

Schoolteachers in the United States and Canada have made classroom projects of writing to men and women serving their country in distant lands. Men, women and children who enjoy baking sent cookies, brownies and fruitcakes halfway around the world to brighten the holidays of those in the military.

Readers, please address your letters and packages to:

Specific units or countries are NOT being targeted. Instead, the major U.S. military Aerial Mail Terminals and Fleet Mail Centers overseas will receive and distribute mail on a fair-share basis. Those who want to write to a specific area should send their mail to the nearest geographic hub.

These addresses will be active only from Nov. 15, 1994, to Jan. 15, 1995. After that, the APO/FPO will close. — LOVE, ABBY

P.S. The preferred "goody" is still chocolate chip cookies, which travel well when packed in popped popcorn. Homemade fudge, hard candies and gum are also appreciated — but the numero uno treat is still mail, mail and more mail!

Abby shares more of her favorite, easy-to-prepare recipes. To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, More Favorite Recipes, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Saturday's Puzzle solved:

This date in history

Today is Monday, Nov. 7, the 311th day of 1994. There are 54 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: Fifty years ago, on Nov. 7, 1944, President Roosevelt won an unprecedented fourth term in office, defeating Thomas E. Dewey.

On this date:

In 1874, the Republican Party was symbolized as an elephant in a cartoon drawn by Thomas Nast in Harper's Weekly.

In 1898, the state of Colorado granted its women the right to vote.

In 1916, Republican Jeannette Rankin of Montana became the first woman elected to Congress.

In 1917, Russia's Bolshevik Revolution took place as forces led by Vladimir Ilyich Lenin overthrew the provisional government of Alexander Kerensky.

In 1918, during World War I, an erroneous report from the United Press that an armistice had been signed set off celebrations across the country.

In 1929, the Museum of Modern Art in New York City opened to the public.

In 1940, the middle section of the Tacoma Narrows Bridge in Washington state collapsed during a windstorm.

In 1962, Richard M. Nixon, having lost California's gubernatorial race, held what he called his "last press conference," telling reporters, "You won't have Nixon to kick around anymore."

In 1962, former first lady Eleanor Roosevelt died in New York City.

In 1963, the all-star Cinerama comedy "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World" had its world premiere in Hollywood.

In 1972, President Nixon was re-elected in a landslide over Democrat George McGovern.

In 1973, Congress overrode President Nixon's veto of the War Powers Act, which limits a chief executive's power to wage war without congressional approval.

Ten years ago: NASA announced that Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, would be allowed to fly aboard the space shuttle, which he did in April 1985.

Today's Birthdays: Evangelist Billy Graham is 76. Jazz musician Al Hirt is 72. Opera singer Dame Joan Sutherland is 68. Former Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., is 64.
