Private Property Week Observed

The Rockport Area Board of Realtor members are actively supporting the annual observance of Private Property Week. Purpose is to emphasize the importance of the right of the American people to own property, something we take for granted, but a privilege not enjoyed by citizens of many other countries.

Mayor Walter S. Falk has issued a Proclamation officially proclaiming the week of April 15-21 as Private Property Week in Rockport, and has urged citizens to join with the more than 600,000 Realtors and Realtor-Associates nation-wide in marking the observance.

In his proclamation, Mayor Falk warned that "we sometimes take the land for granted. But the bounties of the land, while they offer what seems to be limitless enjoyment for every member of the family, must not be taken for granted."

"We must learn to preserve the land; we must learn to nurture it, protect it, develop it, watch it grow," said Mayor Falk.

Congress unreigned

Most Americans are suffering from the scramble to keep up with the cost of living — and of paying taxes.

But none of us enjoys the same ability to provide self-relief as do members of Congress.

The Senate came under a bit of criticism recently when it scrapped the ceiling of $8,600 on outside income, voting to delay the restriction for four years. Now a subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee is working on a bill to allow each representative and senator a $50-per-day tax deduction for each day Congress is in session.

Members already are allowd a $3,000 deduction in consideration of their need to maintain a home in Washington as well as in their districts. But the proposed deduction, which could amont to as much as $14,000 annually, is designed to further offset the cost of living in Washington.

It could mean an average reduction in individual tax bills of about $4,600.

The American public is unlikely to view the scheme with sympathy. Approval by Congress two years ago of a $12,000-a-year pay raise for members drew cries of outrage and led to adoption in each House of the outside pay limitations.

Following as it does the Senate's reconsideration of the outside pay ruling, the tax dodge is certain to draw fire.

The lawmakers, we trust, will take another look at their self-serving handiwork.

And this is 'the best'?

Published reports that President Carter's top campaign aides deliberately juggled financial statements to conceal operating deficits during the 1976 presidential primaries raise three serious questions.

First, we wonder how the presumed watchdogs at the Federal Elections Commission can justify their interpretation that the Carter campaign's consistently false interim reports did not violate federal law simply because the financial statements were amended en masse six days after Mr. Carter was elected? The law in question makes allowances for the hurried, incomplete compilations necessitated by monthly campaign reporting. But deliberate and systematic falsification is, and ought to be, prohibited.

Second, we wonder how this questionable bookkeeping and the artificially rosy political perceptions it was apparently meant to portray square with the lofty, even self-righteous, moral tone candidate Carter sought to project?

And finally, does not the role of Robert J. Lipshutz, Mr. Carter's campaign treasurer and now counsel to the president, in maintaining what appears to have been a dual set of books cast serious doubt on his fitness to serve in the White House?

Notwithstanding the timidity of the Federal Elections Commission, we think the Department of Justice should review the Carter campaign's accounting procedures. And we also think that Mr. Lipshutz and the president himself are obliged to offer explanations more credible than the sweeping disclaimers issued of late by White House Press Secretary Jody Powell in response to other questions about the financing of Mr. Carter's presidential quest.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

Senator Robert Morgan (N.C.) "... It is estimated that 60,000 people pass through National's two terminals every day. These people are from all over the country and from all parts of the world. They are traveling for education or pleasure, or other private reasons... Many are arriving in Washington for the first time and receiving their first impression of this Nation's Capital. They Include students, military servicemen and senior citizens...

"National Airport has become a beggar's mecca in the last four years with sometimes as many as a half-dozen different organizations vigorously soliciting donations there in a single day. Millions of dollars have passed hands. ...Some of the beggars use cleverness and guile; some use threats and insults...

"On numerous occasions I have personally witnessed the harassment techniques of one of the groups of beggars known as "Ours, Inc.," I, too have personally experienced their verbal abuse, and no policeman could be found to stop it. The Ours, Inc., people use taunts, insults, demands, and accusations of racism. They are deliberatedly loud, (even shouting) so as to draw attention, humiliation and embarrassment to their prey. They occasionally push, shove or grab them.

"Even since these remarks were prepared, they have grabbed my secretary by her arm as she tried to go through the airport.

"Their language is abrasive and obnoxious. (They) chart the course of movement of their victim and maneuver themselves directly in the pathway. If the victim tries a diversonary route, they readjust their position so as to continue the blockade. Customarily a young women at National Airport will then stand very close, and attempt to place some object in the victim's lapel. ... All of this precedes the pitch for a donation...

"The airport's ostensible reason for permitting this conduct is that it is protected by the first amendment—the free exercise of speech and religion. These are indeed cherished freedoms... But the Supreme Court has never held that first amendment freedoms are without limitation...

"If the FAA (Federal Aviation Administration) is incapable of devising reasonable controls, then legislation might be necessary, and I will urge that hearings be held by the Senate Commerce Committee..."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

Soliciting funds for a religion, at an airport, is not prohibited by law. But there is no excuse for harassment in the process.

Washington Report

By Congressman Joe Wyatt

There is a bill now before the United States House of Representatives which, in my mind, could threaten the basis of our American democracy—the election. The bill, House Resolution 1, calls for the federal financing of congressional elections much the way Presidential elections are now controlled and financed.

Without trying to sound corny, I believe that elections are the foundation of our American system of government. They should be free as possible from interference, to let any candidate do his best to convey his qualifications and beliefs to the people. The first objection to federal financing and control of congressional elections is that its limitations lead us toward the situation where we have very sterile candidates running almost identical campaigns.

The objections to this plan are many, though, and if the mail I receive in my office is an accurate barometer, the plan is also unpopular with the people. Anyone who has had contact with the enormity and complexity of the job of the Federal Election Commission with respect to funding presidential campaigns can recognize another objection.

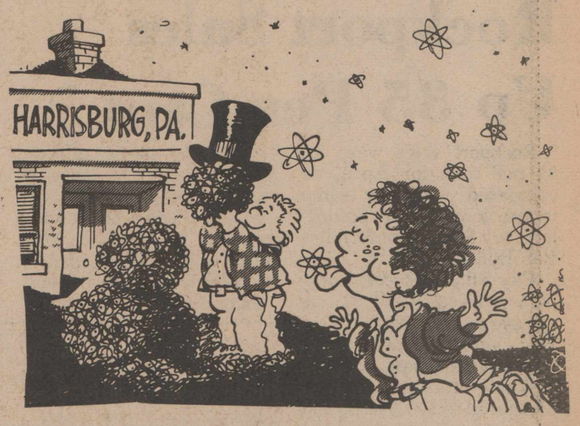

In a day when we are working to cut down the size of government, why should we increase the size of a bureaucracy whose sole purpose is to help finance the election effort of those who say they want to do the cutting? The F.E.C. now has quite a good size bureaucracy to look over the financing of one election every four years—the presidential election. If 100 senatorial and 435 congressional races are scattered in between, the looming growth of this bureaucracy becomes obvious. Estimates put the cost of federal funding of congressional elections in 1980 at $30 million. No wonder this plan was called "The Politicians Welfare Bill," in an editorial against it in the Washington Post.

Public financing of presidential elections followed the record high costs of elections in the late 1960's and the stories of abuse which came with them. The feeling was that some qualified candidates, who did not have a good deal of money behind them, were at a severe disadvantage. In reality this was probably true, but the cure has proved to be almost worse than the disease.

Limits on congressional election spending could, strange as it may seem favor wealthy candidates and incumbents already have high name recognition. Thus, one of the first and sometimes most expensive steps in campaigning—getting his name known to the public—can be eliminated or curtailed. One less expense for the incumbent, one more for the challenger.

A candidate is not obligated to accept federal matching funds for his campaign. In this case he is not subject to federal spending limits. This is an extreme advantage for candidates of great personal wealth. The situation could easily arise where one popular and relatively well-financed candidate would accept the matching federal money, but be outspent five or ten to one by a candidate of extreme personal wealth. The chances of having an election "bought" are not erased by federal financing and control of election, and to some eyes they are even increased.

I want to stress that I believe fully in the idea of complete financial reporting in elections. A candidate who wants to represent the people, should make his effort to represent them—the election—as open and accountable as possible. What I do not believe in, though, is the federal government getting a foothold in regulating our elections, especially when that regulation done in the name of reform, merely strengthens the position of those already entrenched.

Letters From Our Readers

Rockport Pilot
1002 Wharf
Rockport, Texas 78382

Dear Carl,

My wife and I were elated last week when we received in the mail, page 9, of the Rockport Pilot from, the Oct. 8, 1978 edition. This page contaned a feature story by you, titled, 'Shrimp-Big industry Small Product'.

This newspaper clipping same to us sort of via the grapevine. You see, it was sent to us by friends Dorothy and Kirk Kirkpatrick of Baton Rouge, La. They in turn received it from friends of theirs in Corpus Christi, Texas. Each year the Kirkpatricks do an annual cruise from New Orleans to Brownsville, Texas writing and reporting for Waterway Guide and National Fisherman. They cruise down the intercoastal in their 32' Grand Banks trawler, the 'Studio Two'. They also write occasionally for Sea Magazine and incidently, the Jan. 1979 issue contained a story by them on Rockport. Several years ago Dorothy did a story about Jackson Seafoods in Rockport, hence the interest.

It so happens that for many years, my wife and I have planned to move to the Texas coast when our children were raised. We'll come this fall they will all be on their own and of course we have began to plan in earnest. We are very seriously considering the Rockport and Fulton area. I am 55 and my wife is 41. We hope to become a jusband and wife team and to fish and shrimp commercially on the bays along the Texas coast. I have fished on the Great Lakes on and off over the years. My wife and I have boated extensively, with my experience going all the way back to WW 2. For the past 16 years we have owned and operated a laundromat here in Antioch. The laundry is now for sale-we're getting anxious for the big event in our lives-a new lifestyle in Texas.

Anyway, Dorothy and Kirk, knowing of our plans and hopes to become 'shrimpers' have been very helpful by telling us of their experiences, fishermen they've met and by sending us very helpful bits of information such as the story by you in the Rockport Pilot.

My wife and I enjoyed your 'first hand experience' very much, so much in fact that it prompted me to write and tell you so. It was great reading with good photos and very helpful to us. We learned a bit more about Texas shrimping.

In your article you mentioned of other stories to follow, telling more about shrimping. We would like very much, if at all possible, to obtain copies of these stories and we also would like to subscribe to the Sunday edition of The Rockport Pilot. I noted that Oct. 8 was a Sunday so I assume that a Sunday edition is printed.

My wife and I would be most grateful to you if you could arrange this for us. Please inform me of any cost and I will promptly send you a check.

With Kind Regards,
Dick and Trudy Sander

AARP News

The business meeting of AARP Chapter 1536 was held Wednesday, April 11, at 10 a.m. Irving McMahan, first vice president, conducted the meeting in the absence of Margarett Gill, president. A coffee preceded the meeting and there were 50 members and four guests present. One new member joined the chapter. The next meeting is Wednesday, April 25, at 11 a.m. A covered dish luncheon is planned after a short business session. After the luncheon, the members are welcome to play bridge or canasta.

Paul Riddle, program chairperson, presented the guest speaker at the April 11 meeting, Mrs. Kay Woodward, County Extension Agent for San Patricio and Aransas Counties. The subject chosen by Mrs. Woodward was Consumer Education, stressing the importance of a balanced diet for the older person and showing this person how to shop on our inflated market. This was cleverly done by a short movie showing the retired grocer doing his marketing and showing his elderly neighbor lady how to purchase food wisely on her limited income. He also prepared a balanced meal for them and explained to her how important it is for the retired person to prepare and eat at least one balanced meal a day. Many retired people get in the habit of snacking and do not receive the proper balanced diet to keep up their energy and good health. It was a very entertaining and interesting program. Thank you, Mrs. Woodward for sharing your time and talents with us.

Literature was provided on "Good Health in Retirement", "You're As Old As You Eat", and "Meal Planning for Older Adults".

The winners of game afternoon on Thursday, April 12 were Elmo Hodges and Gordon Cougar, in bridge. The finale was won by Charlie Burnhardt. The next game afternoon is Thursday, April 19, at 1 p.m.

Philosophical Thoughts

By Bob Keepers

Any man who knows enough about himself to understand that his thoughts cause him to laugh and cry, to sing and dance, to love and hate, has no reason not to know himself better.

Know thyself, is one of the oldest teaching handed down through the ages, but far too many waste precious time trying to figure out the other guy.

It is impossible to know others when we know so little about ourselves.

Men have never been too kind to one another, but they gradually found that making friends produced great results.

Many men do not know themselves because they do not study themselves, some do not even want their opinions changed and even deceive themselves when a glaring truth informs them that they are dead wrong.

A man must want a change and want it for a long time before it comes.

He must acquire qualities he thinks he possesses but in fact does not possess at all.

To be at peace with the world is a pearl of great price.

Man simply does not know his limitations much less his possibilities.

Man invents and controls his inventions but too often does not apply this knowledge to himself, and in many cases his uncontrolled emotions destroy his body.

His consciousness produces memories of events, very vivid at the time but he may forget it all in one hour.

Man is a dreamer and the dreams he dreams while sleeping are nothing compared to his daydreams when fully awake.

Gospel teachings require him to awaken, stop dreaming, learn the truth about himself and be free.

If a man feels free without knowing the truth about himself, he may not realize his need to escape from a condition that is not in his choosing, a slave that does not know he is a slave has no reason to escape.

Each man stores up his own brand of knowledge by his own efforts.

If there is anything in a man it may survive, if there is nothing, then nothing survives.

To no longer forsee his doom, is man's greatest quest.

Veterans Benefits Increase In County

Recent statistics indicate that the economy of Aransas County has received a significant boost as a result of Veterans Administration payment to veterans, their dependents and survivors.

According to James W. Hunt, Veterans Service Officer for Aransas County, VA payments for fiscal year 1978 totaled $981,862. Of this amount, $672,770 was paid in the form of compensation and pension; $257,882 was for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation; $51,210 was for insurance and indemneties.

All of these amounts were paid directly to the qualifying residents of the county, according to Mr. Hunt.

In addition to materially adding to the economic health of the county, these benefits have alleviated many hardships for veterans and their families in time of need, according to Mr. Hunt. He added that his office was ready to assist any county residents who believe that they have a claim for veterans benefits.

Low-Income Workers Eligible For $400

AUSTIN — Certain lower-income workers may be eligible to receive a special payment of up to $400 from the Federal government, according to Robert M. McKeever, District Director.

Many of the people eligible for the payment, called the Earned Income Credit, may not ordinarily be required to file a tax return because their earnings are low. However, they must file a return to claim this special credit.

To qualify for the credit, individuals must have less than $8,000 in total income, including income from wages, salaries, tips or other employee compensation and self-employment income. Additionally, the workers must have maintained a home in the United States for the entire year for themselves and at least one of their children who was either under 19 years of age, a full-time student, or a disabled dependent child.

Qualified persons with earnings of $4,000 or less receive a credit of 10 per cent of their earned income only, up to a maximum of $400. Those with total income of between $4,000 and $8,000 also are entitled to the credit based on earned income, but the amount of credit decreases $1 for every $10 of income over $4,000.

Artmobile Visit In Rockport May 4-9

The South Texas Artmobile, currently in its tenth year of touring, will be in Rockport May 4-9. The Artmobile is presenting "One Hundred Years of American Realism" from the Collection of the Oklahoma Art Center, Oklahoma City.

It will be open to the public following regular school hours, after being available to school classes during the day.

Nellie Anderson (729-7197) and Jane Moren (729-3747) are community coordinators in charge of tour arrangements. Contact them if your school or organization would like to tour the Artmobile.

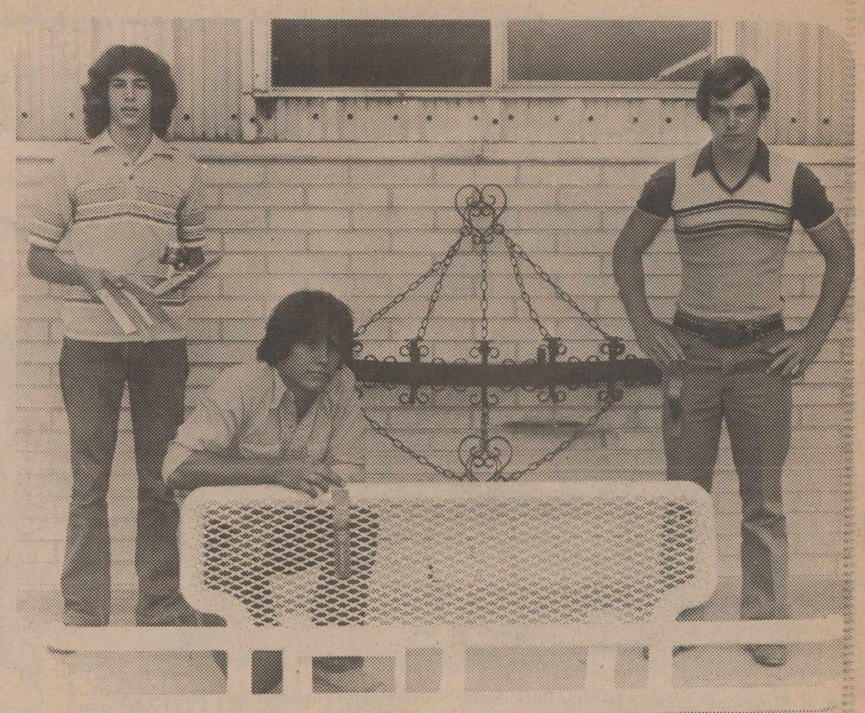

Hostesses are needed for the visit, and may sign up at Estelle Stair's Art Gallery.

Spanning more than a century of American painting, drawing and graphic art, this year's exhibit illustrates the development of American realism with its wide range of quality artistic styles and techniques.

Works by artists such as John James Audubon, James McNeill Whistler, and Mary Cassatt represent the 19th century, while the early 20th century is represented by "Regionalist" artists, Thomas Hart Benton and Grant Wood.

The more recent developments of American realism can be found in the works of Photo-Realist Don Eddy and the figurative art of Will Barnet.

The South Texas Artmobile is a non-profit organization, sponsored by the Dougherty Carr Arts Foundation of Corpus Christi.

METAL PROJECTS EARN HONORS

Metal shop class members who participated in the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America state meet in Houston brought home first place ribbons for their efforts. They included, from the left, Jay Carroll who entered a two-stroke engine, Gary Ondrej who made a front bumper for a pick-up truck, and Ronald Allen, who made a wall candelebra.

IT'S PRIVATE PROPERTY WEEK!

REALTOR®

you don't say.

Oh, the Minutemen didn't know it. But they did fight for a country and a constitution that gave every citizen the right to own land.

And because they won that fight, and because that country and constitution are still alive and well today, we're celebrating Private Property Week.

Private Property Week may never be as widely observed as Independence Day. But in its own way, it stands for independence, too. It reminds us that this is a land where we're free to live where and how we please. And it also reminds us that if we want to hand this freedom down, we'll have to preserve it.

This message was brought to you by the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS®, a group of people who believe that land is our ultimate resource, requiring the wisest and best use, and the widest distribution of ownership.

Happy Private Property Week.

PROPERTY

"For without a planned effort at preservation of the land, we may see in this country a deterioration of the land and a deterioration of citizens' rights to own the land."

During this annual event, which carries the theme "This Land is Your Land," the Rockport Area Board of Realtors will offer a week of community-oriented programs and activities designed to call attention to our inalienable right to own real property.

A "Calvacade of Open Houses" will be held Sunday, April 22, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., and a complete listing of addresses and locations of open houses will be carried in this week's Pilot Weekender edition.

PROCLAMATION

The microcosm of our Free Enterprise system is perhaps best demonstrated in the right each of us has to own real property. This is a right secured by our Colonial forefathers and passed down to us as a heritage of freedom. . .a heritage that has halped to make this country great.

Each year the REALTORS and REALTOR-ASSOCIATES of the United States observe Private Property Week...a week dedicated to reaffirming our right not only to own real property, but also to call attention to our duty to preserve the land and our inalienable right to enjoy that land. This year's Private Property Week will be celebrated from April 15-21, with the theme, "This Land is Your Land."

This year, the Rockport Area Board of Realtors join with more than 600,000 REALTORS and REALTOR ASSOCIATES nation-wide in observing Private Property Week.

During this special time, it is important for each of us to recognize, that we sometimes take the land for granted. The beautiful lakes and streams that provide us summer and winter pleasure; the mountains that stand the test of time as mementos from our Supreme Creator; the woods that provide a year-long playground clothed in an extravaganza of always-changing color. All these things we look at as our due, our heritage.

But the bounties of the land, while they offer what seems to be limitless enjoyment for every member of the family, must not be taken for granted. We must learn to perserve the land; we must learn to nurture it, protect it, develop it and watch it grow. For without a planned effort at preservation of the land, we may see in this country a deterioration of the land and a deterioration of citizens' rights to own the land.

Therefore, I, Walter S. Falk, Mayor of Rockport, Texas, do hereby proclaim April 15-21 to be Private Property Week in Rockport. I urge my fellow citizens to join with the Rockport Area Board of Realtors and Realtor - Associates throughout the nation in this observance by taking an active part in appropriate and significant programs sponsored by the local Realtors and Realtor-Associates who, this week and throughout the year, are taking such an active role in helping make Rockport a better place to live and work.

Walter S. Falk—Mayor

Up The Trail To Kansas

Texas Recollected

Compiled by Kent Keeth
Director, The Texas Collection
Baylor University
Illustrated by Pam Watson

In 1880 17 year-old J.C. Burns was hired by his brother Arthur to ride as a hand on a cattle drive from Victoria, Texas to Caldwell, Kansas. Though the Texas cattle drives became a popular subject for films and fiction, they were a relatively short-lived phenomenon. In about 1955 Mr. Burns, by then an elderly man in his nineties, included a detailed account of that drive in his memoir, "Sketch of My Life".

"I have been prompted to make the sketch on trail driving for the benefit of future generations," Mr. Burns wrote. "Most of the driving was done in the 1870's and up to the mid-1980's, and will be forgotten except that which is preserved by writing." In this segment, the author describes the personnel and organization of a typical cattle drive.

"The herd was assembled on Spring Creek, a few miles above Victoria. There was a boss, a cook, a remuda man or horse wrangler, and seven cow hands for driving. The herd started early in March as grass began to get green. The boss was the executive and manager. Upon him fell the responsibility for the safety of his men and flesh and condition of the cattle. He usually rode in advance or near the head of the herd, looking out for grass and water, the crossing of streams, and selection of bed grounds for the cattle. He received a salary of $150 a month.

"Second in importance to the boss, was the cook. He had to cook three meals a day, getting up in time to have breakfast ready by day light, also wash the dishes, drive four miles to a wagon which carried the food supplies, bedding and equipment of the crowd. A cook should know how to cook and season and keep his pots, pans and coffee pot clean, in order to keep the hands in good humor and reasonably satisfied. Cooks usually received a salary of $50 a month.

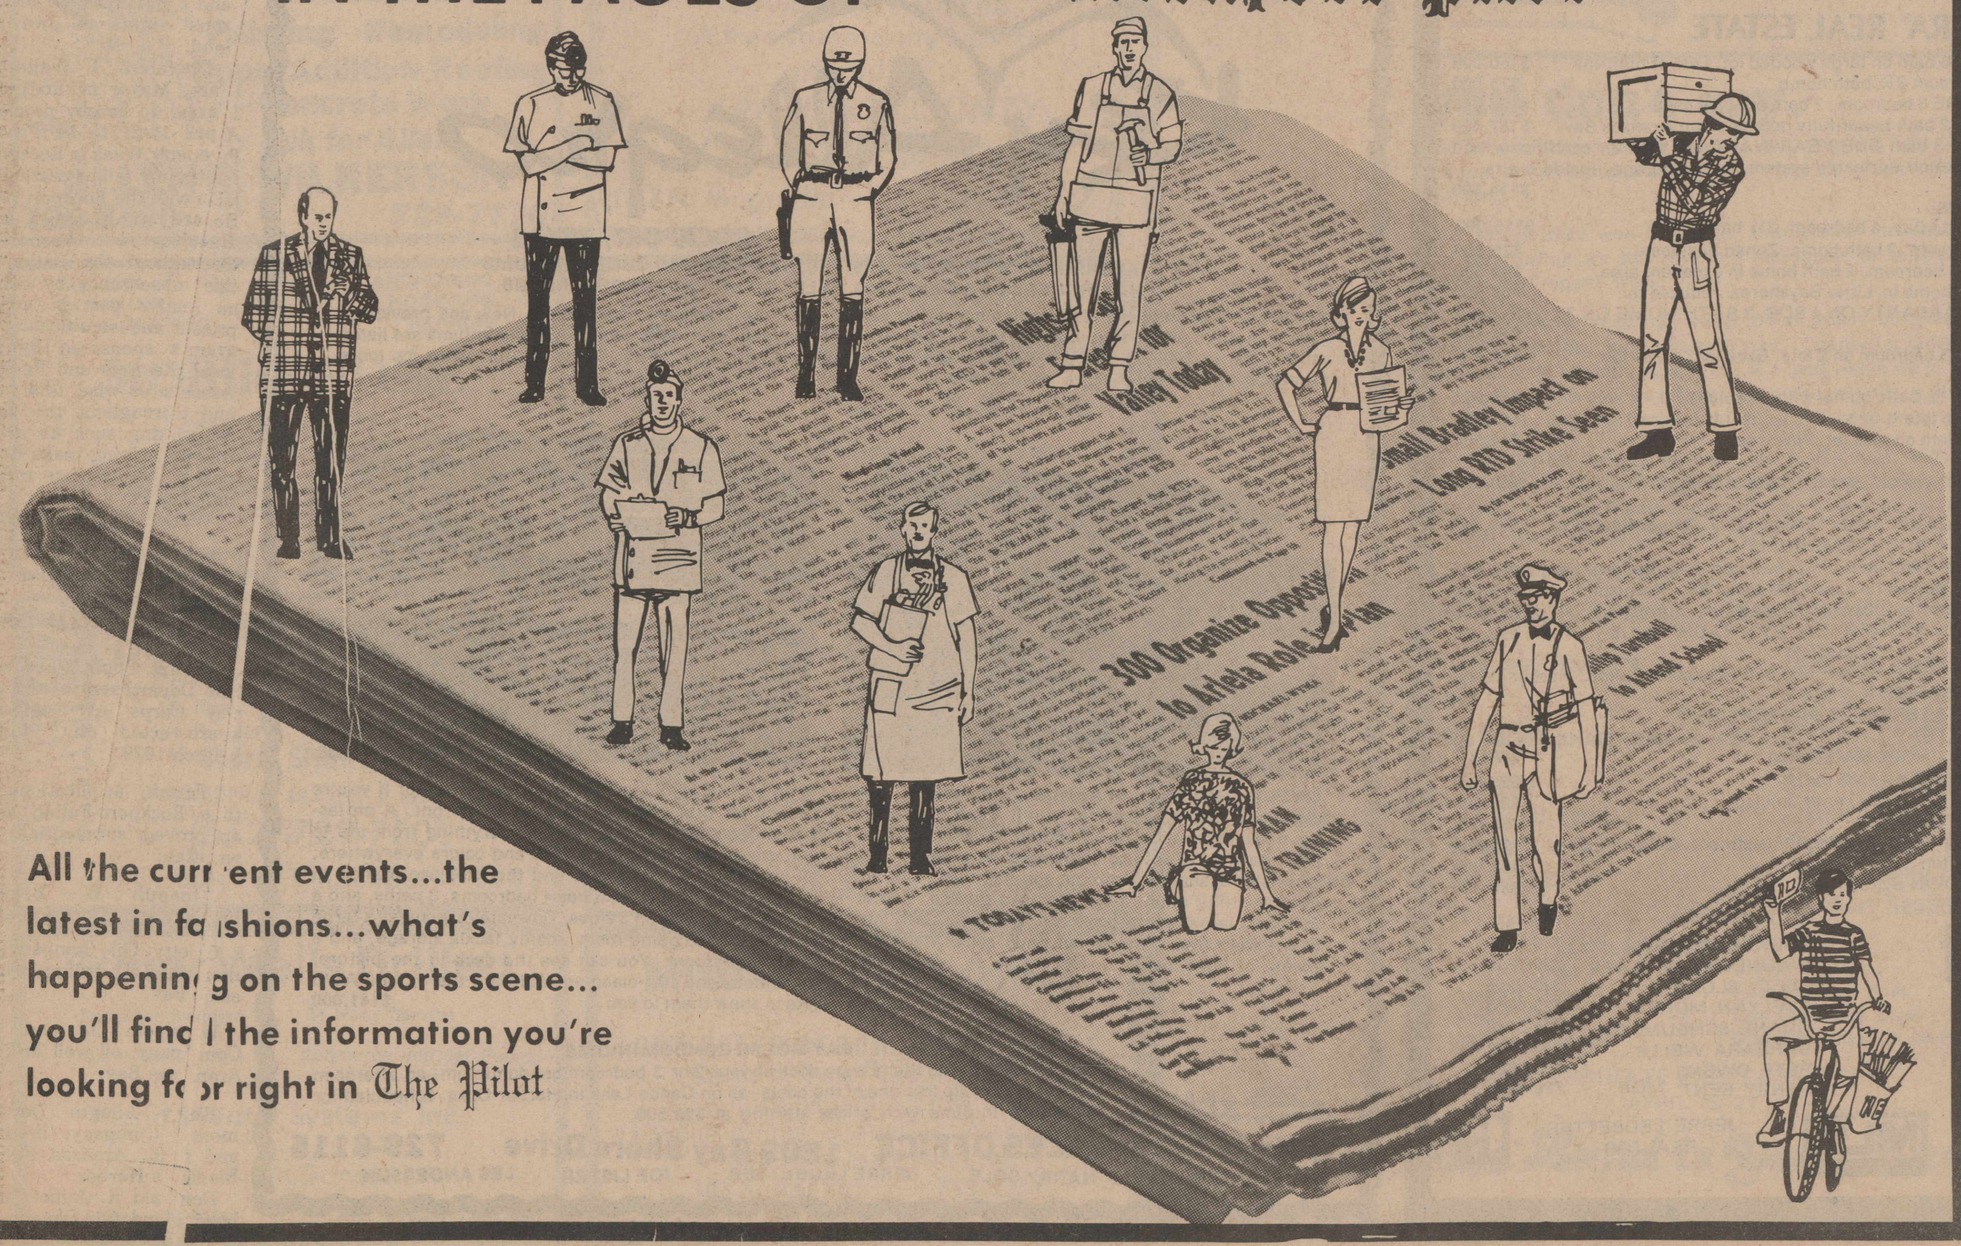

"There were seven cow hands driving the herd. Two rode near the head of the herd, one on each side, and were called point men, and as indicated by the name, pointed the way. It was here that the herd began to bend when the course was changed. The point men were selected for skill and experience, and received a salary of about $40 a month. Back about a third of a mile from the point men rode two men, one on each side, who were called swing riders. It was the duty of the swing riders to prevent strays mixing with the herd, and when traveling, to keep the herd pushed towards the center of the trail. They received about $35 a month salary.

"Back about a third of a mile from the swing riders rode three men, one at each corner and one in the center, who handled the drag or tail end. Usually the drag men had but little experience or knowledge of cattle. I was appointed straw boss of the drag end; it was my duty to see that the drags were treated humanely and that the end of a rope was not used as a whip to force the drags onward beyond their natural gait.I received $35 a month, my two companion drivers five dollars a month less. Before the drive ended, I was firmly convinced from my experience that a large stock of patience was far more important in the handling of the drags than skill and experience. When strung out on the trail, the herd was about a mile in length.

"The remuda man in charge of the horses received about $35 a month. An improvised pen was made by having a rope attached to the wagon wheel, the other end of which is held by some of the cowhands. The remuda man soon knows the horses assigned to each man. The gentlest, most sure-footed, with best eyesight was selected for a night horse."

ISLAND BOUNTY--Women in the village of Sante Anne, in Guadeloupe, work on the day's catch. Fish is a major part of the islanders' diet. The food of this Caribbean island has roots in France, Africa, England and The Netherlands.

Cooking Corner

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

Caribbean cuisine is a melting pot.

Of tropical fruit and vegetables.

Of myriad fish varieties.

Of seasonings and flavor combinations tracing their roots back to Africa.

And of cooking traditions of the great colonizing nations — France, England, The Netherlands and others.

Hawkes describes a method for making your own coconut cream, if you can't find the canned version in specialty food shops, liquor stores and some supermarkets.

First remove the watery liquid by piercing two of the "eyes" in the coconut with an ice pick. Hawkes says this is erroneously called coconut milk, but really is coconut water. It's a very refreshing drink.

Tap all over the shell with the flat side of a cleaver (which helps loosen the meat from the shell), then using a hammer tap along the shell around an imaginary "equator" until the shell starts to crack.

Continue the tapping until the shell breaks in half.

Remove meat from the shell and peel off the dark skin. Grate the meat and measure 2 cups. Put it into a saucepan with 3 cups of water. Bring to a boil, stirring, then remove from heat and allow to stand about 30 minutes.

Squeeze out the liquid (you can use your hands). Strain it if you'd like. The liquid that results is coconut milk. If you let it stand a while, like unhomogenized cow's milk, it separates, with the thick, rich cream rising to the top.

Skim that off and use it where recipes call for coconut cream.

Put that cream of coconut into this special soup from Martinique and Guadeloupe. It has a French accent, but tropical flavors. It's from Hawke's book.

SOUPE A L'OIGNON
Island Onion Soup

- 2 tbsps. butter
- 2 tbsps. olive oil
- 2 lbs. onions, sliced wafer thin
- 1 to 2 tbsps. sugar
- 1 tsp. or more salt
- 2 tbsps. flour, or slightly more
- 6 cups strained rich fish, chicken or beef stock
- One-half to one cup rich coconut creamy (see above)
- Crisply toasted, buttered French bread slices.

In a deep, heavy pot, heat butter and oil until rather hot. Add the sliced onions, sprinkle with sugar and cook until limp and browned.

Add the salt and stir in the flour. Stir in the stock and simmer, uncovered until soup is done, about 35 minutes.

Toward the end of the cooking time, reduce heat, gently stir in the coconut cream and simmer about 5 minutes. Correct seasoning and serve soup very hot, placing a slice of French bread in each bowl (or serve in coconut half-shell, if desired), ladling hot soup over bread. Serves about six.

DANUBE DE BANANES JAUNES
(Green Banana Stew)

- 3 large green plantains or 6 small green bananas, peeled and thickly sliced
- ½ cup lard or oil
- 6 green onions, chopped
- Salt, pepper to taste
- 5 chives, chopped
- 2 sprigs thyme
- 1 bay leaf
- ½ chili pepper, minced
- Cinnamon

In lard or oil, brown the onions, chives, chili pepper, thyme, bay leaf, cinnamon and salt and pepper. Add banana pieces. Cook quickly to sear surfaces, then lower heat and cook slowly for 10 minutes, adding a little hot water when needed to keep them from sticking. Serves four.

CREOLE CRABS

- 6 tbsps. butter, divided
- 1 lb. crab meat (can be frozen or canned), shredded fine
- 1 cup plus 2 tbsps. soft bread crumbs
- ½ cup bell pepper, finely chopped
- 2 tsps. garlic, minced
- ¼ cup dry sherry
- 2 tbsps. lime juice (use fresh)
- ¼ cup parsley, finely chopped (use fresh)
- ¼ tsp. cayenne
- Pinch ground mace
- 1½ tsp. salt
- Pepper

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Soften 2 tablespoons of the butter. Cut the rest into one-fourth pieces and set aside.

Using 1 tablespoon of soft butter, generously grease bottom and sides of an 8-inch glass pie plate.

Combine crab and 1 cup of crumbs, blending well to combine. Set aside. Melt remaining softened buter in a 7-inch skillet. Add bell pepper and garlic and cook about 5 minutes, until soft but not brown.

Remove from heat and stir in sherry, lime juice, parsley, cayenne, mace, salt and some freshly ground pepper. P ur skillet contents onto crab and bread mixture, tossing to blend well.

Put this mixture in the buttered pie plate, smoothing the top. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs and dot with remaining butter. Bake about 30 minutes, until lightly browned. Serves two to three persons.
