Smart Suits and Smarter Blouses Is Edict Of Fashion Leaders In Gotham

Audrey Joel and Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien

BY BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK Oct. 7.—The last rose of summer is proverbially the most beautiful.

Borrowing the idea, I should say that the last of the International Polo games and last week's Belmont races, among the last of the season, were the smartest of the season, from the standpoint of style.

Style's Gamut
Gorgeous suits were there, coats, frocks, luxurious furs, charmingly designed hats, and accessories that accentuated the rich, decorative hats that is style this fall.

Of course the minute suits begin to appear blouses take on airs. And such airs as some of them have achieved! The newest blouse, of course is the squashy-soft angora wool dainty that is only about a handful off, but when on, adds a colorful, sweet air to a suit.

A Striking Blouse
The most striking blouse of this type I noticed on Mrs. David Adler, as she strolled with her husband and Marshall Field at the Polo matches at Meadow Brook. She wore a black jersey suit of plaid skirt and cardigan and then a stunning black and white angora blouse of lightning zigzag stripes, with almost a crew neck and long sleeves.

Princess Lobkowitz sponsored the knitted blouse too, under her tan tweed coat with its sporting slant collar of tawny fur. She wore a rust colored tweed skirt, wrap around type—with a chic square-necked tan blouse that had a diamond and a tiny flower, rust colored pattern in it.

Miss Audrey Joel wore a most youthful model of velvet and tweed Jersey that embodied autumn in its materials and cut.

Black velvet was the skirt, with

Rick pleats for fullness on both sides and her belted jacket and matching blouse were of the new Jersey in tweed ways, a pebbly black and white effect that looked gray from afar. It had smart stripes in white around the cuffs and hem of the jacket while the blouse was entirely striped.

Fox Neckpiece
She wore a huge black fox neckpiece slung down her back, with only its head resting on her shoulder. Her hat was dark gray, turned up in front with drooping lines over the ears and a black feather ornament on one side.

Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, sister of the famous Ellen Berlin, as usual was in the vanguard of fashion, sponsoring the velvet suit. Pleats all around gave an unusual flare to her skirt, while the jacket was a straight cut, one-button tailored model, with silk braided binding.

It was of navy blue, with a lovely sheen, and was set off to advantage by a luxurious double silver piece, and all gray accessories—hats, shoes, gloves and silk blouse underneath.

Brown Everywhere
Browns are noticeable everywhere this autumn when smart women get together. Last week at a luncheon given at the Roosevelt Hotel in honor of Lady Bryce by the English Speaking Union of the U. S. A., everyone of the guests of honor wore some tone of brown. Lady Bryce herself sponsored black again with a touch of real lace in front. But Mrs. E. Lewis Shale wore an ecru lace frock, while Mrs. Dayard Dodge, Thomas B. Wells, Lady Armstrong and Lady DeGillon all wore brown or tan.

At the Ritz
In the Japanese Garden at the Ritz the other day, Mrs. Phyllis Reichenbach lived a beige lace frock by wearing with it a green velvet jacket, cut on flaring lines, bordered all around with black fur.

Black and white combinations and various shades of blue are still good. They always are, for that matter. But brown—brown—brown through all the autumn tones—heads the smart color list for smart folks.

EXPERTS SEE QUICK FINISH IN SERIES AS YANKS WIN FIRST TWO

FIGHT OF BUCS NOT YET SHOWN IN USUAL FORM

PIRATE FANS DEMAND COYLER BUT BUSH IS ADAMANT

(Associated Press Sports Writer) NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The New York Yankees came home today with one-half of the world championship won. They may never win the other half but they brought two games with them from Pittsburgh and several train loads of experts who expect a quick finish to the 1927 classic. Four victories are necessary to win the title. Yesterday's score was 4 to 2.

The National League pennant winners have not begun to win and their play in the first two games has suggested that they have not begun to fight. The boldness that brought the Buccaneers home in front in a hectic closing struggle in the senior league has been missing from their make-up in the opening games played before a sympathetic crowd of home folk friendly enough until the name of Kiki Cuyler, the outfielder who has been stood in a corner with a dunce cap on his head, is mentioned.

Crowd Demands Cuyler

Both games in Pittsburgh provoked outbursts against Manager Bush's policy of keeping Cuyler out of the game. For that reason he may welcome the change of scenery to New York. The throng at the Yankee Stadium this afternoon does not care whether Cuyler plays or autographs baseballs, his principal occupation at Forbes Field.

The Yankees needed the help of the Pirates in winning the first game but they made their own arrangements to capture the second. The Pirates were willing to concede yesterday and did help here and there but the Yanks would have won anyway. In the opening game the American Leaguers had to call out the reserves to win the game but in the second set, the starting lineup finished strong.

Piperas Is Initiated

George Piperas, who has been a chaff of the Yanks off and on mostly for five years, did the job yesterday that Hoyt and Moore accomplished between them the day before. The Pirates adopted opposite tactics. Where the Yankees initiated some timely assistance yesterday and did help here and there but the Yanks would have won anyway. In the opening game the American Leaguers had to call out the reserves to win the game but in the second set, the starting lineup finished strong.

Vic Aldridge was in and out in his pitching and was finally out altogether. In the eighth inning when he turned the situation over to Mike Cuyler with the bases full and only one out. Two of the three runners Aldridge left on the bases scored, but under the trying circumstances the courageous little credit for he had to pitch to Combs, Koehn, Ruth and Gehrig.

Gives But Seven Hits

Piperas, who had to wait a long time to get his world-series chance—he will be 28 years old Christmas week—showed the Pirates a fast ball with such a good hop on it that they never did get the combination for hitting it. He gave only seven hits and two runs to the Corsairs, the seven hits being distributed through as many innings. The two runs were scored through the medium of sacrifice flies, one after a triple and the other following a home run and a single.

Lloyd Waner, who showed his mates how to score runs during the championship season, continued the fast pace he set when he was playing only for his regular salary, and carried both counters, a new plate. The little Oklahoman also had a great day in the field with seven putouts. He marred his day somewhat by an error permitting a run to score but in the light of subsequent developments this was unimportant.

The second game in Pittsburgh attracted a crowd of 41,634 resulting in a gate receipt of $182,978, an increase of 167 persons and $501 over the day before.

Yankee Stadium Larger

The Yankee stadium, much larger than Forbes Field, can take care of a world series crowd of approximately 65,000 persons and it was expected that the first game in New York would fill all the seats and standing room occupied.

Manager Donie Bush announced Lee Meadows as his pitching choice for today's game. Meadows was one of the first players to take his spectacles with him on the baseball field. Manager Huggins awaited examination of Herb Penneck's injured knee before making his pitching nomination.

"Poosh 'Em Up" Tony Lazzeri Plays Bang-Up Game In Spite Of Injuries

Despite the fact that he is playing with his left wrist bandaged—a result of his collision with Grantham in the opening game—"Poosh 'em Up" Tony Lazzeri is playing a wonderful game at second base for Miller Huggins and the Yankees. AGGIE CREW IS BEING DRILLED FOR TEAM PLAY

HARD GAME EXPECTED WITH SEAWANE AT STATE FAIR

(Special To The Journal) COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 6.—In preparation for the coming clash Saturday, Oct. 8, at Dallas, with Dr. Mike Bennett's Tigers from the Mountain, Coach Dana Bible is giving his Texas Aggies a thorough and relentless drilling in team play with the end in view of making as nearly perfect as possible the functioning of the Aggie machine.

Wide Interest Shown

The 6 & 7 showance game at Dallas, a sectional event of much interest in Southern gridiron circles for the last four years, promises to be one of more than usual interest when the two teams meet at Fair Park Stadium next Saturday. For four years the Aggies have bested the fighting contingent brought down by Dr. Bennett from Seawane. But each year the Tigers have seemed a little nearer to victory. The first game, in 1923, ended 14 to 9 in favor of the Aggies. Next year A & M won 7 to 0. Then in 1925 it was 6 to 6. Last year the Aggies carried off victory 6 to 3.

Leaves Tonight

Bible is planning to leave College Station for Dallas with a squad of twenty-five players Thursday night. With the coaches and others the party will number about thirty. Workout by the Aggies on the gridiron at Fair Park Stadium is scheduled for Friday after noon. The game is to be called at 2 o'clock Saturday, the opening day of the State Fair. As has been the case in the past, this game is expected to prove a North Texas reunion for old Aggies and a Texas reunion for Seawane men.

Indications are that Bible will start the game with Captain Joel Hunt at quarter, Covover and Burgess at halves and Varnell, who made a spectacular 53-yard run over a soggy field for a touchdown against Southwestern last Saturday, at full. Covover, a Dallas boy, will play left half, while Burgess is expected to start at right half.

In the line, Bible will probably start the game with Sikes, three-letterman and for the past two years a regular on the varsity eleven, and Petty, another letterman, at left and right ends. Lister and Spratt will likely go in at tackles and Holmes and Figari at guard positions, with Bartlett at center.

ELEMENTS GIVE IDEAL SETTING TO GRID CLASH

WESTERNERS TO MEET BIG SPRING TODAY; ONE MORE AT HOME

Ideal football weather greets the Westerners today as they meet the Big Spring club at the Merrill park beginning promptly at 3:30 o'clock. Today's gridiron classic will be the last show of the season in Lubbock until November 11 when the Plainview high school machine plays in Lubbock on the Armistice holiday. Although the Westerners were held to a scoreless tie in the first game with Slaton, and defeated by the Floydola combination, 13 to 15, coaches Frnka and Morgan, handlers of the local high school outfit, are going on the field this afternoon more confident than in the two previous encounters.

Visitors Are Heavier

The Big Spring eleven will outweigh the Westerners on an average of five to eight pounds to the man and the local lads will necessarily be forced to give them a hard battle to overcome the excess of weight in the visiting aggregation. Frnka has his linemen working diligently and faithfully in the work and he is of the opinion that he workers under his direction will put in the "never die" fight this afternoon.

Much Enthusiasm Shown

For the first time since the last season's game with the Amarillo Golden Sandstormers the pep squad and band have shown considerable enthusiasm prior to the event this afternoon. The high school band will be present this afternoon and Jimmie Kennedy will be on hand with his long list of yell.

CASE OF PATE UNUSUAL, SAYS UMPIRE EVANS

CONNIE MACK PRAISES 'OLD MASTER' FOR HIS COURAGE

A major league career without parallel is that of Southpaw Joe Pate of the Philadelphia Athletics. Joe is no longer a big leaguer. Near the close of the past season he was shipped back to his old stamping ground, Fort Worth. Next year he will again be doing business in the Texas League and no doubt will be one of the stars.

For years prior to 1926, Pate had been one of the big numbers in the Texas League. Many a major league club had angled for his services but Joe always expressed a preference for the Lone Star state.

Eight years back, Detroit made a deal for Pate but Joe said he wanted none of the big league. Knowing this, Detroit relinquished its claim and he continued to go big in Texas.

Pitched in 47 Games

WHEN Pate made his debut as a big leaguer, he was in the early thirties and had passed the peak of his pitching days. The heart was willing, but the arm was weak.

It didn't take Connie Mack long to discover that Pate would be of the greatest value to the Athletics as a pinch pitcher. He delegated this duty to Joe and told him to take his place in the bull-pen at the start of each game, so as to be ready for an emergency.

A relief pitcher must have control and something a little bit different to offer the batters in attempting to stop a rally. Joe had control and a knuckle ball that was tough to hit.

In the role of pinch pitcher last season, Joe Pate was used on 47 different occasions, stepping into the breach often with only a three line margin in his favor.

I doubt if ever a pitcher in his first year turned in such a unique and extraordinary record. Pate.

Wm. Penn—5 cents—A Good Clear working in 47 games, was credited with nine victories and no defeats. He saved perhaps as many games as he won.

No Luck This Year

THIS year Pate encountered just the reverse "breaks" of last season. His control wasn't so good and the opposing batters refused to offer at his almost unhittable knuckle ball, knowing that a majority of times it failed of strike specifications.

Pate wasn't able to win a single game from the opposition this year. As August drew near Pate had worked in something like 35 games and had not been able to score a single victory. Despite this, it wasn't until late in June that he was beaten. In all his major league career he has lost only three games, his record being nine victories and three defeats.

A game in which the opposition made seven hits while he was retiring one batter settled Pate's big league career and the finish was of his own volition. He requested that he be sent back to the Texas League.

At first Connie Mack refused to take Pate seriously, but his continued insistence caused Mack to accede to his request. So Joe went back to dear old Fort Worth and was again the "old master" of the Texas League. Just before the close of the season I was discussing Pate and his retirement with Connie Mack. Here is what the astute manager of the Athletics had to say of him:

"Pate was one of the most courageous pitchers I ever had on the Athletics' payroll. His sunny disposition added to his value to a ball club.

"If Pate had the stuff of a lot of pitchers who are warming the bench in the majors, he would have been a star to rival Plank or Waddell. He had the brains and the heart, but the arm was weak."

Toledo Wins From Buffalo In Series

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 7 (AP)—Thousand dollar checks and a junior world's series championship pennant rewarded the Toledo Mudhens today for the victory over Buffalo in five out of six games. Emilio Palmiero, the Mudhens' Cuban southpaw, shut out Buffalo in its final game yesterday 4 to 0, and drove in one of the runs himself.

The losing club's share was about $750 per man, the second highest purse ever divided in the history of the annual conflicts between the American association and International league for the class AA title.

CHARACTER IS HELD FIRST AS EDUCATION AID

LEADER URGES EARLY BUILDING OF THIS FUNDAMENTAL

By JOY ELMER MORGAN
(Editor, Journal of the National Education Association)
Character comes first in education. It comes first in the home, in business, in manufacture and in the professions. The world's great teachers have always put character first whether in kindergarten or university.

We do not mean by character the petty moralities of the endless duties and does with which some parents and teachers seek to chain expanding youth. We mean rather the restraints and controls that come from within, and the total network of habits, appreciations, skills and ambitions that leads people to choose a path because of its inherent rightness.

Pioneers and great commoners like Lincoln have always been quick to see the inherent rightness of things. The simplicity of their lives as children, their closeness to nature with its persistent application of natural law has helped them to know that there are forces greater than the whims of men.

No better character forming material exists than well written lives of the world's heroic figures. Every child should be literally surrounded with these narratives.

It takes character to form character. It cannot rise to great heights in the hands of ignorant parents or stupid teachers. It cannot be built by rule of thumb. There are, however, a few principles which, if wisely applied, help much.

Drink yourself to think of forming your children as a great, joyous and fascinating adventure.

Study constantly the art and science of child rearing as you would prepare for business or a profession.

Seek to know your children and to accept them as they are. Personal self delusion has wrecked the character of many a child.

From birth develop regularity in eating, sleeping and the other vital habits of life.

Give the child the maximum freedom as he seeks to discover the world about him and meet his curiosity frankly. Character is not formed by "don'ts" and "stops" and "quits."

Do not make the child afraid or keep him with people who have fear complexes which he will copy.

Begin early to teach the child right habits in his associations with others. Modern life has multiplied such associations tremendously.

Begin giving the child simple tasks almost as soon as he can walk and develop into regular duties within his strength.

Recognize the importance of right habits in his association with others. Modern life has multiplied that of his predecessors.

Insist on having teachers who understand child growth and who will keep such needs above mastery of petty academics. Such teachers are priceless.

Use all your powers as a citizen to keep the total life of the community, which shapes the life of your child, clean, positive, vigorous and happy.

Austin Men Killed When Car Overtakes

AUSTIN, Oct. 7.—Kenneth Raymond, 27, was killed and Leroy Almond injured when their automobile was dethroned two miles from here on the Austin-Georgetown road Friday morning. Both men are of Austin.

Tennis Sportsmanship

It strikes me that the spirit of good sportsmanship is often overdone in tennis.

I have in mind a happening in the recent world championships when Bill Tilden met Gene Borotra. While it savored of sportsmanship, yet it was in no way a compliment to Umpire Davis.

It was in the second set. Tilden, in making a difficult return, drove the ball far out of bounds. Just as he was about to make the play, a ball from one of the other courts rolled slowly in front of Tilden.

In all probability the vagrant ball did interfere with Tilden to a certain extent. He immediately entered a protest. It was as quickly overruled by the official, who evidently was of the opinion that Tilden's chance of accurately returning the shot was very remote, even if the ball had not handicapped him to a certain extent.

It was apparent by his actions that Tilden was a bit peeved when the protest was disallowed. Bill has a habit of showing his feelings.

It was apparent by his actions that Tilden was a bit peeved when the protest was disallowed. Bill has a habit of showing his feelings.

Abide By Decisions

Officials in any sport have a difficult task—baseball, football, boxing or tennis. Being human, they often get, but the plays are always called as seen. Therefore, it strikes me that real sportsmanship would be the proper acceptance of the ruling, as rendered by the men selected to judge the plays.

That is the prevailing habit in most sports, but a different code, for some reason, exists in tennis. The players do not always agree with the official. When they believe he has misjudged a play, they refuse to accept the advantage, by purposely erring on the next play.

Perhaps that is good sportsmanship. However, it strikes me when the actions of any player in a competitive sport openly flout the fact that he believes the official has erred, it makes it mighty unpleasant for the judges presiding over the play.

That was the attitude taken by Borotra on the play in which the official ruled in his favor against Tilden.

Giving Away Points

Borotra deliberately drove the ball out of bounds. It was done in such a manner that his intent was readily apparent to every spectator in the stand. The Frenchman also made it evident to the officials that he believed they had erred; that the ball rolling in front of Tilden had interfered with his stroke.

Then came Tilden with a so-called sporting gesture. He just as deliberately served a double fault. Which made it all even again. However, each player appeared to be satisfied that he had done the sportsmanlike thing and the game went on with Tilden still having the disputed point against him and in favor of Borotra.

Real sportsmanship, I think, calls for the acceptance of the rulings on the part of the officials without a protest, whether right or wrong, when judgment alone is involved.

Had Tilden accepted the decision that the ball had not handicapped his play, there would have been no occasion for the gestures that followed.

Imagine It in Baseball

This reminds me what a lovely job a baseball or football referee or umpire would have, if the players by some sporting gesture made it apparent they believed the official was in error.

Can you imagine Babe Ruth at bat in a world series game with two-out and the bases filled, doing a Tilden or Borotra stunt when the visiting pitcher protested the umpire's decision that made the count three balls and two strikes instead of setting him down on strikes as the pitcher believed?

Let us suppose Ruth, also, was of the opinion that the umpire "booted" one and that he had really been struck out. Say on the next pitch he swung and missed the ball a couple of feet, to let the world know he believed the pitcher had made a proper protest and the umpire's judgment was at fault.

If that was the customary procedure in baseball, what a lovely life the umpire would lead.

Umpires and referees might well be chased the necessary evils of

VET RETURNING WAR TROPHIES INTO GERMANY

GOOD WILL IS MAIN OBJECT OF VOYAGE NEW YORKER SAYS

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—An American war veteran is carrying out his own expedition of good will to Germany and Austria.
Lieut. Col. George Crouse Cook is sailing for Germany to restore to his former enemies all of the hundreds of relics he gathered during the world war, relics that he feels no longer belong to him.
Has Much Data
He has scores of names and voluminous data. Thus equipped he hopes to trace down, one by one, all of the former owners of Iron Crosses, helmets, name plates from dugouts, caps, straps, wound decorations, medals, epaulettes and fragments of wrecked aircraft. And if he can not find the men themselves, he is sure there will be relatives or friends who will cherish these remembrances.
"The object back of my trip is just good will," he explained, as he prepared for the sea voyage a large packing case and a smaller wooden box holding his relics.
Personal Message
"It will be just my personal message of good will for I want to help along in this way the understanding that is slowly growing up between the United States and Germany."
"Now that they have done away with the old military regime, and have a republican government, I see no reason in the world why Germans can not be accepted as citizens of the world as much as any other race."
Lieut. Col. Crouse's belief that he can run down the former owners is based upon the fact that virtually every relic has some individual's name or some association connected with it.
Many Opportunities
"As an engineer in the transport corps I had unusual opportunities to pick up stuff," he pointed out. "Prisoners, for instance, would part with almost anything for a few cigars. Or we would go into German dugouts, often fitted up beautifully, different from the Allies'—and we would find little name plates nailed up over the doorways. That's how we knew who had just evacuated the trenches."
The officer has no idea how long his mission will take. He plans to buy an automobile in Germany and to keep going until the relics are distributed and as long as he meets with a friendly spirit.

Meusel struck out reaching for a third strike. No runs, one hit, no errors.
Seventh Inning, Pirates

Seventh Inning, Yankees
Lazzeri up: Foul, strike one. Ball one, outside. Foul, strike two. This was a hot grounder and was foul only by inches. Ball two, outside. Ball three, outside. Foul, Lazzeri shot a single into center with the count one and three. Dugan up: The crowd cheered Dugan. Meadows took Dugan's bunt and threw too late to get Lazzeri at second. It was a sacrifice for Dugan. Dugan batted for Grabowski. Dugan up: Ball one, high. Ball two, high. Rhyne threw out Dugan at first. Lazzeri going to third and Dugan at second. It was no sacrifice. Pennock up: The Pirate infield came in. Ball one, inside. Foul, strike one. Pennock tried to bunt as the squeeze play was on, but Pennock fouled the ball. Strike two called. Lazzeri was almost caught off third by Gooch's quick throw. Lazzeri scored when Rhyne belted Pennock's slow roller to Gooch. Dugan went to third. Combs up: Ball one, inside. Ball two, high. Strike one called. Foul, Ball three, wide. Dugan scored on Combs' single to right. Pennock going to third. Kenig up: Foul, strike one. This was a terrific liner into right. Meadows scored on Kenig's double to right. Combs went to third. The Yankee artillery was now in full action. Manager Bush rushed out from the Pirate bench and waved Meadows out of the box. Meadows was the third batter pitcher to be knocked out of the box by the Yankees. The crowd cheered Meadows to the echo as he walked to the bench. Cvenegros went into the box for the Pirates. Cvenegros warmed up, displaying a fast curve. Ruth p: Ball one, inside. Ball two, outside. Foul, strike one. This was a grounder down the right field line. Strike two, swam. Ruth went after a wide curve. Ruth crashed a home run into the right field stands, scorers Combs and Kenig ahead of him. It was a terrific drive and crowd was in an uproar. THIS HAS HAPPENED

A woman's gloves and handbag are found at the scene of Benson's murder. The handbag contains a cigarette of the same brand as several butts found in the fireplace. Upstairs are found the toupees and false teeth of the victim, who had been shot through the head while reading.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER VI

Heath, who had remained standing on the threshold, seemed a little impatient. There's only one other room on this floor," he said, leading the way down the hall. "It's also a bedroom—for guests, so the housekeeper explained."

Markham and I looked in through the door, but Vance remained lounging against the balustrade at the head of the stairs. He was manifestly uninterested in Alvin Benson's domestic arrangements; and when Markham and Heath and I went up to the third floor, he sauntered down into the main hallway. When at length we descended from our tour of inspection he was casually looking over the titles in Benson's bookcase.

We had just reached the foot of the stairs when the front door opened and two men with a stretcher entered. The ambulance from the department of welfare had arrived to take the corpse to the morgue; and the brutal business like way in which Benson's body was wheeled up, lifted onto the stretcher, carried out and shoved into the wagon, made me shudder. Vance, on the other hand, after the merest fleeting glance at the two men, paid no attention to them. He had found a volume with a beautiful Humphrey-Milford binding and was absorbed in its Roger Poyry tooling and powdering.

"I think an interview with Mrs. Platz is indicated now," said Markham; and Heath went to the foot of the stairs and gave a loud, brisk order.

Presently a gray-haired, middle-aged woman entered the living room, accompanied by a white-clothes man smoking a large cigar. Mrs. Platz was of the simple, old-fashioned, motherly type, with a calm, benevolent countenance. She impressed me as highly capable, and as a woman given little to hysteria—an impression strengthened by her attitude of passive resignation. She seemed, however, to possess that taciturn shrewdness that is often found among the ignorant.

"Sit down Mrs. Platz," Markham greeted her kindly. "I'm the district attorney, and there are some questions I want to ask you."

She took a straight chair by the door and waited, gazing nervously from one to the other of us. Markham's gentle, persuasive voice, though, appeared to encourage her; and her answers became more and more fluent.

"The main facts that transpired from a quarter of an hour's examination may be summed up as follows:

Mrs. Platz had been Benson's housekeeper for four years and was the only servant employed. She lived in the house and her room was on the third or top floor in the rear.

On the afternoon of the preceding day Benson had returned from his office at an unusually early hour—around 4 o'clock—announcing to Mrs. Platz that he would not be home for dinner that evening. He had remained in the living room, with the hall door closed, until half past six, and had then gone upstairs to dress.

He had left the house about 7 o'clock, but had not said where he was going. He had remarked casually that he would return in fairly good season, but had told Mrs. Platz she need not wait up for him—which was her custom whenever he intended bringing guests home. This was the last time she had seen him alive. She had not heard him when he returned that night.

She had retired about half past ten, and because of the heat, had left the door ajar. She had been awakened some time later by a loud detonation. It had startled her, and she had turned on the light by her bed, noting that it was just half past 12 by the small alarm clock she used for rising. It was, in fact, the early hour which had reassured her. Benson, whenever he went out for the evening, rarely returned home before 11; and this fact, coupled with the stillness of the house, had made her conclude that the noise which had aroused her had been merely the backing of an automobile in Forty-ninth street. Consequently she had dismissed the matter from her mind and gone back to sleep.

At 7 o'clock next morning she came down stairs as usual to begin her day's duties and on her way to the front door to bring in the milk and cream had discovered Benson's body. All the shades in the living room were down.

At first she thought Benson had fallen asleep in his chair, but when she saw the bullet hole and noticed that the electric lights had been switched off, she knew he was dead. She had gone at once to the telephone in the hall and, asking the operator for the police station, had reported the murder. She had then remembered Benson's brother, and for Anthony Benson, and had telephoned him also. He had arrived at the house almost simultaneously with the detectives from the West Forty-seventh street station. He had questioned her a little, talked with the plain-clothes men, and gone away before the men from headquarters arrived.

"And now, Mrs. Platz," said Markham, glancing at the notes he had been making, "one or two more questions, and we won't trouble you further. Have you noticed anything in Mr. Benson's actions lately that might lead you to suspect that he was worried—or let us say, in fear of anything happening to him?"

"No, sir," the woman answered readily. "It looked like he was in special good humor for the last week or so."

"I notice that most of the windows on this floor are burred. Was he particularly afraid of burglars, or of people breaking in?"

"Well—not exactly," was the hesitant reply. "But he did use to say as how the police were no good—leaving your pardon, sir—and how a man in this city had to look out for himself if he didn't want to get held up."

Markham turned to Heath with a chuckle.

"You might make a special note of that for your files, Sergeant." Then to Mrs. Platz: "Do you know of anyone who had a grudge against Mr. Benson?"

"Not a soul, sir," the housekeeper answered emphatically. "He was a queer man in many ways, but everybody seemed to like him. He was all the time going to parties or giving parties. I just can't see why anybody'd want to kill him."

Markham looked over his notes again.

"I don't think there's anything else for the present. How about it, Sergeant? Anything further you want to ask?"

"No, I can't think of anything more just now. But you, Mrs. Platz," he added, turning a cold glance on the woman, "will stay here in this house till you're given permission to leave. We'll want to question you later. But you're not to talk to anyone else—understand? Two of my men will be here for a while yet."

Vance, during the interview, had been jotting down something on the flyleaf of a small pocket address book and as Heath was speaking he tore out the page and handed it to Markham. Markham glanced at it frowningly and pursed his lips. Then after a few moments' hesitation, he addressed himself again to the housekeeper.

"You mentioned, Mrs. Platz, that Mr. Benson was liked by everyone. Did you yourself like him?"

"The woman shifted her eyes to her lap.

"Well, sir," she replied reluctantly. "I was only working for him, and I haven't got any complaint about the way he treated me."

Despite her words, she gave the impression that she either disliked Benson, or extremely or greatly disapproved of him. Markham, however, did not push the point.

"And by the way, Mrs. Platz," he said next, "did Mr. Benson keep any firearms about the house? For instance, do you know if he owned a revolver?"

For the first time during the interview, the woman appeared agitated, even frightened.

"Yes, sir, I think he did," she admitted in an unsteady voice.

"Where did he keep it?"

The woman glanced up apprehensively, and rolled her eyes slightly as if weighing the advisability of speaking frankly. Then she replied in a low voice:

"In that hidden drawer there in the center table. You—you see that little brass button to open it with."

Heath jumped up and pressed the button she had indicated. A tiny, shallow drawer shot out and in it lay a Smith and Wesson .28 revolver with an inlaid pearl handle. He picked it up, broke the cartridge and looked at the head of the cylinder.

Those Democratic Women Are Very Incensed With GOP, So We May Have Demo President, Says Washington Reporter

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—If the Republicans lose the election to the Democrats next November it's their own fault.

The Democratic women, who are infinitely more active in promoting the party's welfare than Democratic men, are hopping mad at the G. O. P. since its government officials interfered with the show-up of the Democratic National Women's club.

The ladies held a hard contest some time ago to pick a campaign slogan for next year, realizing that a good slogan goes a long way whether it means anything or not.

The winning yell was "Eight years of Wall Street, Give Main Street a chance."

Then someone thought it would be a dandy idea to have a national contest. After all, the Main Street slogan was a little cumbersome and might not appeal to the city people.

So notice of the big contest was sent to Democrats over the country, and because someone had conceived a bright idea regarding the club's deficit, a $1 entry fee was stipulated.

The Postoffice Department butted in and announced that this looked like a lottery and that someone would be prosecuted if such plans were carried through.

The postoffice wouldn't prosecute of course, unless the ladies refused to listen to reason and withdrew that about the $1 fee.

New notices were sent out and the contest is now open to all comers. The club members did their work all over again without a word of public comment, but privately many of them are boiling with rage at what they think was a case of dirty mean politics.

What a proud and happy man Secretary of Commerce Hoover has been the other morning when he awoke to find all the New York morning newspapers printing stories to the effect that eastern Republicans would allow him to run for vice president on a ticket with Hughes!

According to these stories, assurances had been received that Mr. Hoover would gladly accept second place. The same Mr. Hoover, of course, who now considers himself the outstanding candidate for to tip the scale.

He hasn't carried it—I never got worse service. The steward flutters nervously about—He should worry—Most ships pool all tips and share the result in so-called fashion.

Flurry of anticipation as the dinner hour approaches. Only a couple of hours more—The lights dance from the shore and there is the clatter of trucks and above deck the clatter of feet—Eyes try to penetrate the darkness. Who's come to the dock?

Did Yvette get that cablegram? Will wifely appear, or is Paris so merry she will fall to show up—Land ho!—All ashore.

The slender lady from Park Avenue has forgotten the pomegranate and rescues it in the nick of time from the ship's cat.

Crunch-crunch of a ship scratching her sides against a pier—And just beyond the train with the odd-looking compartment.

Oil messes, there's the Paris train—And how!

the presidential nomination! The Hughes-Hoover ticket story was inspired by one or all of several reasons. The secretary of commerce has strength in the west and south, especially in California where Hughes was beaten in 1916, and the Hughes crowd surely would like to errand this strength.

Furthermore to make it appear the vice presidency would weaken his strength everywhere which would be fine for Hughes. Undoubtedly the Hughes backers would be glad to have Hoover take the second place under their man, but the idea suggests that of asking a gambler to sell a good chance at a million dollar prize for 15 cents.

THE TRAVELING MEN... Sweetwater's youngest club among the men of the town is the Sweetwater Traveling Men's club.

We also know that this club, by local support and much work and more money, elected its candidate, Miss Grace Watson, to occupy the position of "Miss Sweetwater" in the Midwest Exposition who will also be crowned queen at the occasion tomorrow night.

This fact has brought the club to the attention of many people who hitherto scarcely realized it was in existence. The incident is proof of the spirit of the club members, but in itself is a small item in the phase the club holds in this city.

Few people realize that there are some seventy-five traveling men living in Sweetwater or immediately thereabout. These men, however, live here because they like to. Of course, Sweetwater is the most convenient place for traveling men who work the surrounding territory, but if they did not like the town they would live elsewhere.

Business men who deal with commercial travelers know that as a class they are energetic, experienced and broad-minded men. In this day and age they can not do their work without being keenly alive to business matters.

We are glad to have the traveling men with us. We could stand a lot more of them—Sweetwater Reporter.

It is a well known fact that young business men of any city have much to do with its success and progress. Not only is this true in Sweetwater, but Lubbock has a Junior Chamber of Commerce that has been helpful in the matter of city development and all of Lubbock appreciates their efforts and their splendid achievements in putting over many of the hard tasks that the city has to do.

This is but right that there should be an organization for young men. They are anxious to be up and doing, and they need the opportunity to improve their time, and also an opportunity to learn by doing the things that will fall upon them when the older men have retired or taken their departure to the land of no return.

Lubbock can attribute much of her success to the efforts of the younger men of the community and personally we appreciate them and their efforts second to no other organization in Lubbock.

Giant Massacre Is Reported From Solomon Islands

By Associated Press... DUVAN, Fiji Islands, Oct. 7.—A tale of wholesale murder in the Solomon Islands, some of the victims being white men and British officials, reached here today.

The British High Commissioner of the Western Pacific last night received a wireless dispatch from Falesi, Solomon Islands, saying that a trader had arrived there aboard the British steamer Auk and reported that District Commissioner Bell, Cadet Lillies, 15 natives, police and the crew of the vessel had been murdered by natives at Sinaeva on the northeast coast of Makataki Island.

Five Survivors... The boatswain of the Auk and four wounded police are the only survivors of the massacre. Bell and Lillies were buried at Kwai. The only European in the vicinity of Makataki is the British consul, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew, in charge of a seventh day adventist mission. They have a vessel at their disposal which can easily proceed to Makataki, where the sole survivor of the massacre is located. No anxiety is felt for their safety. This is the most serious attack on white men ever reported in the Solomon group and it is the first time government officials have ever been killed.

Funeral For Idalou Man Is Held Today... Funeral services for S. E. Owens, 77-year-old Idalou resident, who died at his home yesterday morning after an extended illness, were held this afternoon at 3:30 at the First Methodist church in Idalou.

Mr. Owens is survived by his widow and several children. Married men are more inventive than single men, a professor tells. To be sure, of necessity.

Physical Tests Prepare Houston School Children

(By Associated Press)
HOUSTON, Oct. 7.—Public school pupils in 1927 are far removed from the days of the "little red school house" when attention seemed to be centered solely upon "reading, 'rithm, and rithmetick," and when scant attention was paid to physical disabilities. If pupils had any disabilities it was "just too bad" and nothing was done about it. Nowadays noses are examined for adenoids, mouths for bad teeth and eyes for defects in vision and corrective methods employed.

40,000 To Be Examined
But that isn't all. Forty thousand Houston school children are to have their hearing tested and if they are found to be as much as five per cent defective, they are to be placed in special lip-reading classes.

Tests are now under way through employment of a phonodimeter machine equipped with 40 head phones, through which the pupils listen to the voice of a woman first extremely loud and then shaded down into silence. Pupils are asked to write on especially prepared paper the numbers they heard. Those who fail to record determine the sharpness of their hearing, as worked out by a percentage table.

Christian World Sabbath Adopted By Turk Traders

(By Associated Press)
ANGORA, Turkey, Oct. 7.—The last link in the chain of customs and traditions which made Turkey a Moslem rather than a European nation, is about to be shattered with the abandonment of Friday as the Moslem Sabbath, and the adoption of Sunday in its place.

If Turkey is to have the place she dreams of in the European market, the change is imperative, is the flat statement of the Constantinople Chamber of Commerce in its report to the government. As for the religious sentiments of the mass of Anatolians who still cling doggedly to their faith, one means is suggested of making the change cut less deeply. The Turkish word for Friday, "duma," can be transferred to the Turkish for Sunday, "Pazar," and vice-versa. It will confuse the peasants a little, but then they will get used to it as they have to all the other "baitraising" innovations.

The chief point to the Moslem Friday is the sacred noon-day prayer in the mosques. It is the only prayer which requires attendance at the mosque; the other five daily prayers may be performed at home, in the streets or anywhere.

Two Sentenced In Altus Road Slaying

ALTUS, Oct. 7 (AP)—Daniel Chasten last night was sentenced to life imprisonment and Bert Pope was given a forty year sentence in district court here on conviction of the murder of Leslie Dellowa, Altus youth, who was beaten to death on a lonely road after a dance last July.

The jury reported its verdict after two days deliberation. Both Chasten and Pope testified in the trial that Chasten struck Dellowa with a drawn knife. The state alleged the attack followed an attempted act of degeneracy. Dellowa managed to crawl to a farm house and from there was taken to an Altus hospital, where he dictated a statement implicating the two men.

Prospects Good In South Texas County

COLEMAN, Oct. 7 (AP)—Bright prospects for a prosperous year in Coleman county this season and a continuation of good times into 1928, were indicated by reports gathered here.

Much publicity to agricultural conditions is being given for the first time in the history of the country. The county agricultural exhibit at the West Texas fair at Abilene won sixth place, and will be displayed at Ballinger during the Runnels county fair. Plans also are being made to show the exhibit at other exhibitions.

WORK TO BE RESUMED AMID CHINESE

PLANS OUTLINED FOR RETURN TO CENTRAL PARTS OF NATION

(By Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Oct. 7 (AP)—Plans for resuming work in the central parts of the Yangtze river valley are being considered here, it is reported, by the Chinese government. The plans are to be carried out in the fall, possibly about October 15. At a meeting recently held in Hankow, plans were outlined to enable various mission groups to resume activities.

The attitude of the popular and naval authorities of the various nationalities was considered. Missionaries reported that officials are opposed to any return to localities where it would be impossible for the officials of the countries concerned to give protection. The attitude of the authorities seems to be one of avoiding incidents. It seems to limit the return of missionaries to residence in the concession and special areas of Hankow.

Mission boards are believed to have recommended the return to Hankow in the autumn of "key" missionaries, both men and women, who would be able to resume their work and in some cases travel in the interior as soon as conditions permit. Residence at some stations might be possible even now, but it was believed nothing could be accomplished by such a return at present.

Various missions have been advised to inform their missionaries now in the homeland to prepare to leave for China about October 1. In some cases, return is complicated by the new attitude of the mission authorities to its work, or by the attitude of Chinese leaders to the terms on which they desire foreign workers to return. In other cases the relations between Chinese and foreign missionaries have been such that an early resumption on practically the former basis of gradual devotion is desired by Chinese and foreigners.

In some instances the missions desired to alter the terms under which they worked in the past. They wish to make a new start on the basis either of contributing to the staff only or by using such funds as may be offered from abroad in a different way. In yet other cases the entire relationship is under consideration, mainly at the instigation of the Chinese leaders.

Pastor Prefers Sunday Sport To Wagging Tongues

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Sport on Sunday is better than gossip in the eyes of the Rev. Basil J. Bourcier, who pleads for Sunday games.

"Fines people who identify Sunday games with Godlessness make me tired," asserted the minister in a sermon at St. Jude-On-The-Hill, Hampstead. "Nobody denies that man's first duty on Sunday is to render to God the things that are God's and to consecrate part of the day to His service."

"But when he has done this, are we not guilty of both presumption and Pharisaic self-righteousness if we assign to the lectures of the damned those who indulge in healthy out-of-door games on Sunday?"

"Which," asked Rev. Bourcier, "in the sight of Heaven, is the more acceptable—a tennis match or a gossip match? To concentrate upon one's lawn or one's neighbors' What hypocrites we are! The Sunday was made for men—God's and to consecrate part of the day to His service."

"Restrictions of the Puritan Sunday merely antagonize people. What was all right in 1827 is all wrong for 1927."

Wives were quite commonly worn in Egypt 4,000 years ago.

TURNED TURVILS
LONDON—A paper in India reports the following:
"About 8 o'clock in the morning a motor car was passing on the Mall and met with an accident. Whilst driving at an objectionable speed it passed touching hair to hair a cyclist, but as a bargain took the life of a dog, which was trampled upon and died."

DON'T LIKE BABIES
SOUTH BEND, Ind.—When his 3-month-old son persisted in crying, Herbert Stevens struck the child in the face. "I never did like babies," he told the judge before whom he was held. "You won't see any for 230 days," retorted the judge, and Stevens went to jail.

BUYS CONFECTIONERY
Voyt Williams formerly factory representative of the Willys-Knight Overland Motor Car company, has purchased the stock and fixtures of the Lindsey confectionery and will operate the business and make his home in Lubbock. He is well known in Lubbock and surrounding territory.

TOO MUCH CORN
OLATHE, Kan.—The corn is so tall in Kansas that it is interfering with telegraph service. Telephone and telegraph service has been disrupted along a railroad right-of-way near here because the stalks have grown between the wires. Farmers were ordered to cut the stalks, many of which were 15 feet tall.

—all the Butter-Nut Bread baked last night was in ovens heated by Gas—Lubbock's newest fuel!

Indicative that Martin's Bakery is going to stay in the forefront of every progressive move.

While gas heating may not add to the quality of Butter-Nut Bread (Baby Pullman Style)—it will prove a source of economy that will make possible the addition of betterments when possible.

Butter-Nut Bread is now being used in North Plains towns and cities just as it is unanimously used on the South Plains. With apologies to Grape Nuts—there's a reason.

Helps Old Erin JERSEY CITY - Lemon Loh Sing, 68, Chinese laundry man, is benefactor of a negro boy and a friend of Erin. By permission of the juvenile court he has custody of Firman Smith, an orphan of nine years, for a year, providing the boy a home and sending him to school. In 1926 some customer, telling Lemon that Ireland needed help, sold him a $10 bond of the Irish republic. Judge Meaney, who put the boy in the laundry man's custody, is now helping Lemon to redeem the bond.

Champion Gene Tunney Is Ambitious! Would Be Ambassador, Or President

Gene Tunney, in bathrobe and slippers, lolls at ease on the lawn of the paternal estate of Leonard Hanna, at Cleveland, and considers the future.

BY ALLENE SUMNER

NEA Service Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 7.—Some day, James Joseph Tunney, champion heavyweight fighter of the world, wants to doff his white cotton ring shorts for the satin knee breeches worn at the court of St. James.

This does not mean that the heavyweight champion of the world has a wild hankering to be presented at court. Rather, he hopes to do a little presenting himself in the role of U. S. ambassador to the court of Britain.

and leave one in a position to put through almost any life program? There, in a nutshell, you have it! Gene Tunney will "earn his pile" and then begin to do the job he really wants to do.

Gene Tunney is no box fighter like Jack Dempsey—a fighter to whom the smell of resin is noisier and drink—a fighter who would rather fight than be president.

In fact, one gathers that both "boxing" and his title are distasteful. If anything, to Gene Tunney, toward of honors; that he is merely counting time until his "pile" is ready and he can be the power he wants to be.

Gene kicked his bedroom-slipped feet a bit impatiently when pressed for an exact description of his future life.

"Something gentlemanly, scholarly, and powerful," he said. "Some where where money counts for real constructive work."

Gene's siddick and friend empowered with all rights of attorney, Edward Lagan of Yale, Oxford, and other scholastic corridors elaborated where Gene's modesty forbade.

"I think Gene would make either a great ambassador or financial power," he said. "He has poise, tact, and the assurance that his title naturally gives him."

Gene has his next five years as carefully scheduled and planned as a great actress.

"I will box until I am 35," he says. "I will leave before I am defeated. Nobody will have beaten me in that time. By that time I will be ready for a job of my own selection—not one which is the outcome of circumstances."

One gathers that whatever that job is, Gene Tunney would weigh weight champion, expects to be just as important out of the ring as in.

A senatorship, a governorship, an ambassadorship, even the presidency fall within the scope of his ambitions.

Getting Friends Lined Up "A man is successful in proportion to the number of people who know him and are for him," Eddie Egan explains. "Gene says that no man is so well known or has such loyal followers as a boxing champion. When he's ready for his big job outside the ring he'll have his friends all lined up plugging for him."

Tunney's stay at the Leonard Hanna estate near Cleveland is but a sample of the invitations before him.

"He doesn't exactly want to be a society lion," explained the boxer friend, Eddie Egan, "but he does like to be in the best homes and with the best people."

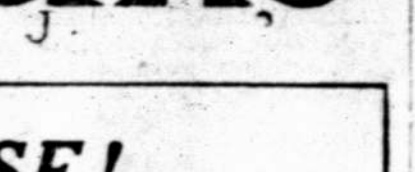

Gene Tunney at rest is as unexciting as a Goliath of the ring as one could well imagine. He sat in a wicker semi-chaise-lounges a loose dressing gown ending in checked, felt-trimmed bedroom slippers. He "had" have been posing for a picture "when the man of the house rests" is.

"But I don't really need rest at all!" he protests.

FAMOUS WORDS AUSTIN, Oct. 7 (AP)—The words "I do not choose to run in 1928," made famous by President Coolidge, have been put to another use by University of Texas student.

On the tire cover of his automobile he has painted the words: "Women outnumber men by about 40,000 in northern Ireland."

They Laughed When he took Their Trail

The leaders of the underworld laughed when Norfleet took the trail. Hadn't they fooled him—robbed him of $45,000—left him $90,000 in debt?—Easy pickings!

But Norfleet kept the trail. Kept it when death had stacked the cards against him. Kept it when he was double-crossed at every turn by those who should have helped.

Kept it until he had smashed into the inner courts of the underworld, revealed its hidden secrets and destroyed its leaders.
