Court Upholds Abortion Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — States may outlaw abortions performed outside of hospitals for women more than three months pregnant, the Supreme Court ruled today.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices upheld such an Indiana law.

The court's affirmation was not accompanied by an opinion. Justices William J. Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and Harry A. Blackmun dissented.

The newest abortion controversy to reach the justices first arose in Indiana shortly after the nation's highest court legalized most abortions eight years ago.

The 1973 decision, based on a woman's constitutional right to privacy, said state governments cannot interfere in any way with a woman's choice to have an abortion during her first three months of pregnancy.

The ruling said governments may seek to protect the woman's health during the second trimester, and may move to protect fetal life only during the final trimester.

The Indiana Legislature later that year passed a law that, among other things, required parental consent for abortions performed on unwed minors and prohibited out-of-hospital abortions for women more than three months pregnant.

The law made it a felony for a doctor to perform an abortion, other than a first-trimester one, away from a hospital.

The Gary-Northwest Indiana Women's Services Inc., an abortion clinic, and a woman then 16 to 18 weeks pregnant challenged the state law in a federal lawsuit filed in late 1974.

In 1976, the Supreme Court struck down a Missouri law that required parental consent. A three-judge federal court panel in Indiana subsequently blocked enforcement of the state's parental-consent requirement.

But the panel's 1977 ruling did not discuss the out-of-hospital abortion ban.

Dr. William Lewis, who operates the Gary-Northwest clinic, and three women identified in court records only by fictitious names sought to revive the 1974 lawsuit last year. They asked the three-judge court to block enforcement of the out-of-hospital portion of the Indiana law.

The panel treated the request as one seeking relief from a final judgment — its 1977 ruling — and refused to grant such relief.

Judge Orders Agnew To Pay

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Former Vice President Sprio T. Agnew was ordered today to pay the state of Maryland $248,735, a sum the judge said represented money Agnew allegedly accepted as kickbacks while governor of Maryland.

The amount that Judge Bruce C. Williams ordered Agnew to pay includes $147,500 in kickbacks, plus $101,235 in interest.

Williams ruled that the evidence clearly showed Agnew had violated his public trust by accepting kickbacks and that he had an obligation to repay the people of Maryland for violating their trust.

The state had tried to subpoena Agnew as a witness, but Williams ruled he did not have to testify in the civil suit filed by three taxpayers.

A federal investigation of the alleged kickback scheme resulted in Agnew's no-contest plea to a charge of income tax evasion and his resignation as vice president on Oct. 11, 1973. He paid about $160,000 in back taxes, penalties and interest to the state and federal governments in 1974, according to his lawyer, Thomas R. Harrison.

The state has never tried to prosecute Agnew, but Harrison said criminal charges still could be filed.

Agnew's former lawyer, George White Jr., testified Friday that he confronted the former vice president in February, 1973, with allegations that Agnew had shared in kickbacks that had been solicited from consulting engineers.

During that California meeting, Agnew admitted to receiving kickbacks, White testified.

Shell Profits Show Decline For Quarter

HOUSTON (AP) — Shell Oil Co. reported today a decline in oil and chemical products profits caused first quarter earnings to drop from $373 million to $361 million.

The new earnings were equivalent to $1.17 a share compared with $1.21 last year. Total revenues, however, increased from $4.7 billion to $5.4 billion.

John F. Bookout, preesident, said the decline in profits for such oil products operations as refining, transportation and marketing more than offset increased earnings in oil and gas exploration and production segments.

Bookout said higher crude oil, natural gas, and natural gas liquids prices boosted earnings in exploration and development by $63 million to $375 million but oil products earned only $27 million compared with $72 million the same quarter last year.

Shell said much of the benefit of higher crude oil prices was absorbed by the windfall profits tax that amounted to $387 million the first quarter compared with only $47 million the year earlier quarter during which the tax became effective.

Japanese Chief Studies Auto Export Restraints

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki called in his top advisers today in a bid to draft a critical policy of auto export restraints prior to his summit meeting next week with President Reagan, officials said.

The talks centered on last week's negotiations between the Ministry of International Trade and Industry and domestic car makers aimed a setting a limit on Japanese auto exports to the United States before the U.S. Congress takes protectionist action, officials at the prime minister's office said.

Japan's Kyodo news service said details of the meeting were cabled to Naohiro Amaya, the vice minister of international trade and industry, who left Sunday for Washington. Amaya will meet with U.S. Special Trade Representative William Brock, who reportedly will come to Tokyo on Wednesday for a "wide-ranging exchange of views" on trade problems.

Theft, Break-In Cases Reported

Cassette tapes valued at $200 were reported missing from Hastings Book Store over the weekend. Kerry Fritz, Snyder police officer, is investigating.

Saturday morning, Charles Anderson, principal, told police someone had broken in at Central Elementary but nothing appeared to be taken. Officer Buddy Kinney took the report.

At 2:39 p.m., one subject was picked up by police in the 900 block of Ave. M for driving while license suspended.

A minor accident was reported at 3:35 p.m. in the 100 block of East Hwy. Involved in that was a 1971 Ford driven by Claude McCormick, and a 1980 International truck driven by Rufus Holder. Officer Bill Armstrong worked that incident.

At 7:59 p.m., a hit and run occurred at 30th St. and College Ave. Involved was a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Lora Zelay and a vehicle which left the scene. Officer Don Whittenburg took the report.

A 37 year-old man was admitted to the hospital for observation at 10:58 p.m., after allegedly taking an overdose of pills. Sgt. Burns and Robert Harbin investigated. The subject was transported to the hospital by Scurry County EMS.

Sunday morning at 4:54, a man was taken into custody in the 1200 block of 28th St. for driving while intoxicated.

Gas was reported stolen from Texaco Truck Stop Sunday night. Officer Richard McCulley worked that incident.

A break-in was reported at the R.E. Smith company at 1911 40th St. Monday morning. There was a broken window but nothing appeared to be taken. Officer Keith Ward investigated.

Q.—How many counties are in Rep. Larry Shaw's district now?

A.—There are six counties in the present 63rd Legislative District. They are Scurry, Borden, Dawson, Howard, Sterling and Coke.

4th Quarter Sales Over $100 Million

Gross sales in Scurry County edged past the $100 million mark in the fourth quarter of 1980, State Comptroller Bob Bullock has announced.

Bullock's figures show that 562 business firms in Scurry County had sales totalling $100,016,967 during the final quarter of the past year.

Scurry County's gross sales led the area in its population bracket.

Figures for other area counties included Terry (Brownfield-Meadow-Wellman), $68,030,727; Hockley (Levelland-Smyer-Sundown Whitharral) $60,875,769; Nolan (Sweetwater-Roscoe) $60,404,739; Dawson (Lamesa) $56,176,723; Ward (Monahans) $54,164,290; Reeves (Pecos) $47,089,680; Mitchell (Colorado City-Loraine), $16,747,290; Garza (Post) $11,860,128; Fisher (Rotan-Roby), $7,042,886; Kent, $123,312; Borden, $66,348.

Industrial Arts Pupils Rank High In Contests

Snyder High School Industrial Arts students placed well in the Regional Industrial Arts Youth Conference which took place Friday and Saturday at Abilene Christian University.

Based on accumulated points, Snyder High School was first runner-up behind Abilene High School. Cooper High was third.

Projects named outstanding were: electronics, Adam Holladay; power mechanics, Dale Shifflett; open class, Richard Reed.

In all events, the first three places will qualify to go to state competition in Waco May 1 and 2.

Written examination results are: Sam Raborn, ceramic division, first; Adam Holladay, leather-working test, first; Jeff May, general drafting test, second; architectural drafting, third, Loyd Sands; Ellis Fox, general electricity test, first; Allen Fox, general electricity test, second; Adam Holladay, general electricity test, third.

More are: Richard Hoyle, basic electronics test, first; William Steele, general metalworking test, first; Steve Sorrells, general metalworking, second, Richard Reed, general metalworking II test, first; Thomas McBroom, power mechanics test, first; David Calvert, power mechanics test, second; Todd Sorrells, power mechanics test, third; Dale Sands, technical writing, third; Allen Waltrip, land speed record assault vehicle contest, third.

In project competition, Adam Holladay placed first in leather crafts. Also, Jim Paul Williams,

Rebels Ready To Talk

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A spokesman for one of the leftist guerrilla groups fighting to topple El Salvador's ruling military-civilian junta said Saturday the rebels are ready to begin talks with the government aimed at putting an end to the political violence there.

Guerrilla leaders are "unanimously agreed to begin a process of mediation" with the junta, said Jose Napoleon Rodriguez Ruiz, a representative in Mexico of the Armed Forces of National Resistence. He spoke in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

d'Estaing Leads Balloting

PARIS (AP) — The first round of the French presidential election ended with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing leading Socialist Francois Mitterrand into the runoff May 10 by less than 600,000 votes, or 2.02 percentage points.

The outcome may depend on how successful each one is in courting support from the candidates they defeated Sunday.

Official returns from 97 percent of the estimated 30 million votes gave the incumbent president 8,017,930, or 28.03 percent; Mitterrand 7,440,189, or 26.01 percent; conservative Gaullist Jacques Chirac, the mayor of Paris, 5,154,153, or 18.02 percent, and Communist George Marchais, 4,392,741, or 15.35 percent.

Six other candidates divided the rest.

Sands Supporters Riot

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Supporters of IRA hunger striker Bobby Sands rioted in Belfast, clashed with police in London and appealed to Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey to intervene on behalf of the 27-year-old guerrilla.

Today was the 58th day of Sands' prison fast, and his weight was reported to have dropped from 155 pounds to 98. Spokesmen for the Irish Republican Army said he nearly died Saturday night after a heart attack but refused medical help.

Disclose Another Mishap

TOKYO (AP) — The Japan Atomic Power Co., under fire for covering up a major radioactive waste overflow last month, disclosed Saturday that 45 workers were exposed to radioactive waste in another unreported accident at the same plant in January.

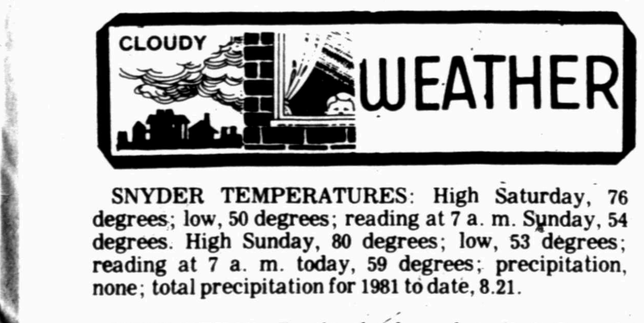

Power company officials said radioactive materials dripped from three holes in piping connecting wastewater condensing tanks Jan. 19 and 21 at the Tsuruga plant 192 miles west of Tokyo.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry, which has been investigating plant operations since it was disclosed recently that 16 tons of radioactive waste water spilled out of a tank in a March 8 accident, said the leak was small and confined to the tank room.

Bus Crash Leaves 30 Dead

CULIACAN, Mexico (AP) — About 30 passengers died when a bus traveling from Mexico City to Tijuana crashed into an empty parked truck, overturned and burst into flames near this Pacific Coast port Saturday, police said.

Lt. Carlos Cuen Navarrete said 13 others were hospitalized with severe injuries. All the victims were believed to be Mexican citizens.

it's all in the game

John Poole, a 34-year-old Californian, became a millionaire by educated investments in the commodities market, specifically precious metals.

During the breathtaking climb in gold ad silver prices a year ago, Poole along with thousands of other speculators made a fortune. When silver hit $50 an ounce in January, 1980, Poole and his Republic National Monetary Corp. were still buying and expecting further profitable rises in the market.

What happened next is history. Silver took a toboggan ride and within two months crashed to $10.80. Poole said he lost $1 million along the way while investors in his company dropped $2 million.

Slightly harder hit were two Texans, Nelson Bunker Hunt and his brother W. Herbert Hunt, who had assertedly attempted to quietly corner the silver market through discreet buys handled by a group of major brokerage houses. The Hunts' losses totaled a reported $1 billion or more.

The Hunts took their losses, licked their wounds and landed on their feet a little wiser for the ordeal.

Poole, however, has taken things a little differently. In a lawsuit filed in the U.S. District Court in New York, the Californian charged that Commodity Exchange Inc. (Comex) acted in bad faith and self-interest when it took various actions in January, 1980, to cope with what was happening to the silver market.

Comex actions included a hike in margin requirements and a second change limiting buys in the explosive silver market to investors in a "short" position—in other words, an investor who sells silver today for delivery at a future month. Such investors are anticipating a drop in prices.

Poole contends he and investors in his company lost their socks as a result while Comex and its board of governors benefited because at the time they held short positions on $2 billion in silver contracts.

The suit is expected to take years to resolve, which has caused Poole to take ads in major newspapers in Los Angeles, Chicago and New York to find other investors in a similar position who might wish to share the legal costs. Poole reports about 50 responded to date whose losses averaged $30,000 each.

"We don't want extra special protection," Poole comments. "We just want a fair and open market in which to trade."

If silver speculators were truly swindled or harmed by Comex' actions a year ago, hopefully justice will be done in the courts.

Meanwhile, it's a trifle hard to feel sorrow for anyone who takes his chances in the market place, takes a loss and then complains the game isn't played fairly. The market itself is the epitome of capitalism. It's a place where the fool and his money are soon parted—and during the wildly speculative silver and gold boom of late 1979 and early 1980 many a man and woman with visions of quick wealth got in at the wrong time. Like the Hunt brothers, most took the bust poorer but wiser.

I think that I shall never see,

A wall as it was meant to be,

And if my wife with nails does not withdraw,

I'll never see a wall at all.

The meter is Joyce Kilmer. The sentiments belong to every husband who signed a marriage certificate, but if you're going to frame it, insists it be hung from a doorknob.

I have no idea why men feel so maternal about walls, but a small nail in it constitutes a violation second only to the rape of their champion Yorkshire by a Baskin-Robbins-96-flavored stray.

My husband is paranoid about nails in the wall. To him, the most beautiful room he ever saw in his life was a recovery room. He couldn't stop talking about it. "Do you know there wasn't one nail hole in the entire wall?" he said. "You must get the name of their decorator."

My father is the same way. If someone gave him the Mona Lisa, he'd prop it up on the music rack of the piano until "you're sure you want to display it permanently."

I can always tell how secure a marriage is by the number of pictures hanging on the wall. If the walls are barren, the commitment to one another is fragile. It is only a matter of time before the wife appears one day with hammer in hand and announces, "Either you hang this picture or I hang it." At that point she will either adjust to what she has married or turn and run.

Men measure to hang a picture as if they are guiding a kidney stone through a birth canal. They do this because they want you to know at the beginning that the wall is crooked and from then on in, nothing is their fault.

They measure from side to side, top to bottom, the four corners, the wire tension, the distance from eyelet to eyelet, then they will balance the picture against the wall, covering it with their entire body, and ask you to tell them if it looks even. Say yes. Then they will jiggle the picture so it will make a mark on the wall. At this point, you reach your hand behind it, make a faint X with a pencil and they are ready to drill.

Newspapers are scattered to catch the "wall droppings" and a final check is made. The commitment made, they proceed to drill with the caution of a diamond cutter. They miss the stud by three inches.

My husband once said, "We've been through a lot together and I know things get tense, but just remember, I care deeply for you and want your respect."

I wish he'd said that to me instead of the wall.

NEW YORK (AP) — If bigness is bad, then Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who sees a strong American Telephone & Telegraph Co. as necessary to a strong national defense, would seem to be out of step.

So would government officials who seek to save Chrysler Corp. and bolster the car industry by a merger of Chrysler and Ford, fourth and seventeenth on the list of largest U.S. industrial corporations.

In contrast, William Baxter, who heads the Justice Department's antitrust division, would be marching to the right tune, pledged to pursue an antitrust case against AT&T, the biggest U.S. company.

Few people, however, seem to be certain that bigness is indeed bad at all times and under all circumstances. It is very bad in many instances, they say, and then concede that it may be necessary too.

There is no lack of opinions on the subject. The Supreme Court has ruled many times. Politicians have won or lost on the issue this century. Unions often denounce it. So do small businesses.

It has defenders too. Economists and industrialists often say the United States cannot defend its dollar unless it has the exporting power of very large corporations. It takes an IBM, they say to sell electronic computers around the world. And, they say, it takes an Exxon, a Mobil and a Texaco to control sufficient supplies of oil.

Perhaps the biggest complaint against bigness is when it monopolizes or threatens to monopolize all aspects of an industry, thus putting itself in a position to set prices and terms under which it operates.

Opinions in the business community are no more uniform, a realization that may surprise those who, for the first time, hear small-business spokesmen rail against the power of big business.

Union leaders commonly denounce big business practices, but some top union people under certain circumstances have been heard to praise and take pride in the efficiencies of volume that come with bigness.

Labor is a defender of bigness in others ways, most interestingly in the manner in which pension and other funds have been invested. Shares of the very biggest companies have been favorites.

Some analysts do not share that philosophy. They view some of the biggest concerns as having lost their innovative spirit.

And so the arguments go, and big business gets bigger and bigger, or so it would appear from U.S. Federal Trade commission data cited in 1978 by a House subcommittee on antitrust, consumers and employment.

The subcommittee's figures show that in the years 1950 to 1976 there was a steady increase in the percentage of manufacturing assets controlled by the top 100 and top 200 manufacturers.

"The proportion of those assets controlled by the 100 largest firms increased from 39.7 percent to 47.6 percent, with the maximum of 49.1 percent recorded in 1968," the report states.

"The 200 largest firms," it said, "increased their market share from 47.7 percent to 60 percent, with the maximum of 61 percent recorded in 1971."

This concentration was, of course, at the expense of smaller businesses, which now are seeking to slow and, they sometimes declare, even reverse the trend.

commentary

Credit the Washington Post with meeting its problem head on.

"We apologize," began its editorial comment on the Pulitzer Prize that had briefly been awarded one of its reporters.

The paragraphs that followed largely eschewed the exculpatory. True, the reporter's concoction of the story of the blighted existence of an 8-year-old drug addict was labeled for what it was—deliberate fraud that had taken in her editors as well as the public.

But the editors took squarely upon themselves the ultimate responsibility for having first accepted it without sufficiently thorough pre-publication scrutiny and then presenting it at face value to the public. It will now be a shame, the Post believes, if the public takes this one incident as symptomatic of the performance and an indictment of the credibility of the press as a whole.

It certainly will be. But deploring an unfortunate consequence is not going to make it any less probable.

If a newspaper of less-imposing reputation had been involved, the incident very likely would have had less impact. The story might never, in fact, have been in the Pulitzer running and the fraud might have gone undetected. No fuss, no bother, almost no harm done.

Do not read that as arguing that all newspapers should not be governed and judged by the same standards of truthfulness and responsibility. They should. But in the real world, all newspapers are not the same. the Washington Post and a very few peers have, or assert, a national standing. they speak more authoritatively and to a more influential readership. They are more equal than others, more celebrated for their achievements and concomitantly more broadly accountable for their deliquencies.

The Post thus has plenty to apologize for. What particularly hurts are the First Amendment implications. when the accuracy of the story was questioned by Washington's authorities, the First was invoked without question to protect the confidentiality of the reporter's supposed sources.

Coming from the Post, this was big medicine. The paper has imposing credentials in the defense of press freedoms against government encroachment. Let it be remembered that these freedoms serve first of all the interest of the public, to guarantee that it will be fully and truthfully informed. As press privileges, they are significant only as a means to that end.

The Post in this instance appears to have acted from instinct rather than serious consideration of the circumstances in wrapping story and reporter in the First Amendment at the first authoritative challenge. In so doing it allowed itself to be used in misusing a principle for which other reporters have gone to jail and shielding a fraud that the exercise of a little healthy skepticism on its own part might have revealed for what it was.

The sad point is that it need never have occurred. And not simply because the disclosure resulted from the not atypical capriciousness of the Pulitzer board in rejecting the prize jury's initial selecion of another winner. If the first choice had been accepted, the runner-up would have been off the publicity hook.

(Which does, however, raise another question: Disclosure followed post-award press inquiry into the reporter's doctored academic credentials, credientials the Post acknowledges it did not check out in hiring her. Did the mere claim of honors from a prestigious school make an intelligent, capable newsperson a more desirable employee than would have been the case with the less impressive truth?)

But more to the ethical point, it need not have happened because the sum of the fabricated story exceeded its parts—some borrowed from social agency case histories, some invented but with an awareness of the realities. It was nevertheless an essentially truthful depiction of an aspect of the human condition in the capital's black slums and could have been honestly presented for what it was—a composite. It has been done before and of late has even acquired a designation—the "new journalism."

Such synthesized truth often can be more effective than the literal. Of course, effective is not the same as sensational. Not to mention promotable.

In its confession, the Post used "we" in the accepted editorial sense. But the word is appropriate in another sense, this self-inflicted damage to credibility and the First Amendment affects all the press.

We, the entire press, are responsible for ensuring that a principle so fundamental to the survival of a free society and for which the press itself is only custodian is not missed.

Your Birthday

April 28, 1981

You're likely to be luckier this year in ventures or enterprises you undertake on your own, rather than those where partners are involved. Try to perform independently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you have an ambitious undertaking in mind today, don't seek help from persons unless you are willing to share part of what you hope to achieve. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility your priorities could get a bit distorted today. You may place more emphasis on fun pursuits than you will on fulfilling duties.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're capable of managing things for others today, as long as you don't run into anything unusual or unexpected. Unfortunately you may, so keep cool.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Tasks to which you allocate proper time today will be performed efficiently, but those left to the last minute could get messed up or even left undone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your possibilities for gain or acquisition today look good, but you must take care not to use methods others find unattractive to get what you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're lucky in most areas today, but getting something for nothing isn't likely to be one of them. Think twice before gambling or taking financial risks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't change things today merely for the sake of change. There's a chance your impatience could cause you to get something good going off-track.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Friends are likely to play major roles in your affairs today. Some will be of great help, yet one with good intentions could cause problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Things should go rather well today careerwise and financially, but you'd be wise not to broadcast what you have going. Jealous ears are listening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your ability to plan and reason things out is very good today, but there's a possibility you may not heed your own counsel. Practice what you preach.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Joint ventures could prove very beneficial for you today, provided you team up with one who is equally productive. Avoid noncontributors.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Relationships with friends should run smoothly today, provided business or money doesn't enter the picture. If either one does, it could cause all concerned to take opposing positions.

Dale Young, speaker for the event; David Thompson, owner of Thompson's Shoe Store and the 1981 ABWA Boss of the Year and Mrs. Leona (Weldon) Wiggins, ABWA President.

ABWA Holds Annual Bosses Night Banquet

The American Business Women's Association held its annual Bosses Night Banquet April 22 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. The speaker for the event was J. Dale Young of Odessa, Texas, who spoke on "Communication".

Young is District Manager for Pioneer Natural Gas Company and has been with them for 25 years. Young graduated from Texas Tech University with a degree in Industrial Engineering and is a registered Professional Engineer.

Offices held by Young include Director for West Texas Chamber of Commerce; Director of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce and; Past Vice President of Midland-Odessa Symphony. Other offices he has held have been in the United Way, Cultural Councils, Historical Societies, Rotary Club, Arthritis Foundation and other civic organizations.

Young is an Elder at Sixth and Jackson Street Church of Christ, Odessa. He and his wife, Charis, have two sons and one daughter.

Following Mr. Young's speech, David Thompson, owner of Thompson's Shoe Store, was named the ABWA's 1981 Boss of the Year by Faye Layne. His name was submitted by Inez Teaff, an employee at Thompson's Shoe Store, and he was chosen by a special ABWA committee.

David graduated five years ago from Texas Tech an returned to Snyder to work for an oil company. When his father passed away, he took over the supervision of the shoe store. Ms. Teaff characterized David by saying that he is very kind to employees and customers alike.

David is a member of Colonial Hill Baptist Church and he and his wife, Sherry, have a seven month old son.

Duplicate Bridge Club Meets At Country Club

The Duplicate Bridge Club met Friday, April 24, at the Snyder Country Club. There were six tables and members played the Howell movement. Mrs. A.L. Bethel directed.

Mrs. Ann Davis and Mrs. Prentis Bass won first place. Mrs. Merle Newton and Mrs. R.L. Haney placed second while Mrs. B.L. McKinley and Mrs. J.R. McCrary won third. Fourth place winners were Polly Ballard and Mrs. Charles Snyder. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Williams won fifth place.

The Club met again on Sunday, April 26, and played 4 tables of the Howell movement at the Snyder Country Club. Mrs. A.L. Bethel again directed.

First place winners were Mrs. W.R. Clements and Mrs. Virdi Kimbro. Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Williams won second place while Mrs. W.M. Landau and Mrs. A.G. Furlow placed third.

Alan: "In our current Saturday articles we have been showing how to play certain card combinations involving one particular suit. How about a few articles to illustrate?"

Oswald: "Here is an example of a play known as the obligatory finesse. Needless to say there is no one holding a gun to declarer's head and forcing him to take it. It simply is a play that can win for you and can't cost you a trick if you take it."

Alan: "South finds himself in four spades. Maybe North shouldn't have bid three. Maybe South shouldn't have bid four. It doesn't matter. That's the contract he has to play."

Oswald: "East takes his ace and queen of hearts. Then he shifts to the jack of diamonds."

Alan: "South has lost two tricks and expects to lose two more. He wins the diamond in his own hand and leads a low trump. West's ten loses to dummy's queen and the deuce of trumps is led back."

Oswald: "East plays the nine and now comes the obligatory finesse. South ducks. West has to play his ace and South gets away with just one trump loser. Luck, of course, but he had given the cards a chance."

Sales Decline Plagues Furniture Industry

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — American furniture makers were not out to scale the heights with bold, new designs at the recently-concluded, semiannual furniture market here.

They just wanted to lead retailers up a gentle slope out of the sales decline that has plagued the industry lately. Their method was to introduce diverse furniture items to appeal to every market segment. However, furniture categorized by function rather than by room of use continued to increase.

Armoires and wall systems suited for any room, as well as seating that turns into a bed were shown by more manufacturers.

Also brightening the market were numerous cheerful, simple-lined, contemporary pieces scaled for smaller rooms and apartment living. The industry refers to this type of furniture as "lifestyle" furniture.

Consumers who have shopped for furniture and accessories recently will find few surprises when most of the new styles appear on retail sales floors in the fall. The mix of contemporary, authentic and nostalgic American traditional and period furniture will continue in about the same proportion as at present.

But consumers may be surprised by the variety and cleverness of multipurpose and space-saving furniture for an informal style of life. Tables that fold or change height, beds in coffee tables and ottomans, and carry-home wall systems that you put together yourself and that can be made as tall and as long as necessary are being manufactured in greater numbers and styles.

As always in this market which serves the entire United States and is attended each year by more retailers from foreign countries, the variety of offerings was almost overwhelming.

"Since the early 1970s, it has become apparent there are many trends and that no one style has existed to the exclusion of others," explained Charles Millender, vice president of White Furniture Co. Millender added that the multiplicity of styles and price ranges will continue and grow in the 1980s.

Nevertheless, it seemed apparent that several trends are likely to become stronger. Besides the greater quantity of furniture for small spaces, combining more than one function, expect to see more manmade materials and high-technology processes employed in furniture manufacturing.

At this market, a brilliantlycolored, durable material was used for tables and cabinets in modern furniture introduced by Directional Industries. A finish resembling stucco, said to be durable for outdoor use, was shown on tables and etageres by Design Industries America.

An improvement on leaded glass and a method of embellishing wood furniture with what looked like costly carving were new processes used by a number of manufacturers of medium-priced furniture.

While those who seek the recognizable styles of the past will be sure to find them when they go shopping, they will also see a greater variety of furniture that mixes elements from a number of periods.

Wedding Dresses

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — There are a variety of beautiful fabrics in a wide assortment of colors for the bride who plans to make her own wedding gown, notes Deborah P. Strickland, Extension clothing specialist at Oklahoma State University.

Among the materials suitable for spring, she points out, are crepe de Chine, chiffon, organza, voile and eyelet, while for a late summer wedding, all types of cottons can be added to the list.

BRIDAL SHOWER—A bridal shower for Miss Becky Vaughan, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, was held in the Garden Room of the First Baptist Church on April 25. Becky, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Vaughan of Oklahoma City, is the bride-elect of Robert Potts, the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Potts and the late Wayne Potts. The couple will be married in Oklahoma City on May 23 in the Baptist Temple at 2 p.m. Hostesses for the shower were Faye Erwin, Faye Cook, Lynn Bethel, Ima Emerson, Elizabeth McClosky, Estelle Peirce, Wenona Evans, Diana Gary, Barbara Mott, Janna Helms, June Brock and Billisue Stuard. Pictured above from left to right are Mrs. Elizabeth Potts, mother of the prospective groom; the honoree; Mrs. Leslie Vaughan, mother of the honoree; Mrs. Ruth Frazee, grandmother of the prospective groom from Willow Springs, Missouri. In front is Meredith Hanebutt, niece of the bride.

X-Ray Procedure Finds Unsuspected Diabetes

CHELSEA, Mich. (AP) — Mammography, a special X-ray procedure for determining the presence of breast cancer, may also uncover unsuspected diabetes in women, according to Dr. Janet K. Baum and her colleagues at Chelsea Community Hospital here.

Because hardening of the arteries (calcification) occurs in diabetics more often and at an earlier age than in non-diabetics, the physicians reason that arterosclerosis of breast arteries could signal diabetes. They analyzed the mammograms of 319 women and found artery calcifications in 37; 15 were found to be diabetic and another three were borderline.

HERE'S OUR MINT NEW PENNY WITH A FIGURE THAT MEANS SOLID GOLD

Dear Pat Walker's,

For years I made excuses for my large arms, saying it was because I'd used crutches for a long time. That was a real crutch! Now I have slender arms and a size 3 figure.

I really do and I lost a total of 50 pounds and 80 inches in 1½ years and have maintained it for 2½ years. That changed my looks, wardrobe, attitude and career. Now I keep up easily with my 2 live wire sons and as an executive in a large international corporation.

And does Ken, my husband, care? I'll say! Now instead of practical 'house' gifts I get very personal pretties, like my diamond ring in an 'S' shape, for 'Sexy'. Thanks Pat Walker's. We love you.

Schools Ready At Chillicothe

CHILLICOTHE, Texas (AP) — State health officials have approved the reopening of Chillicothe's two public schools beginning Monday, almost a month after they were closed because of contamination by insecticides.

The schools were inspected Sunday by Texas Health Department physician Dr. Phil Zbylot, who issued the approval for the reopening.

The Chillicothe high school and grade school were closed April 1, three days after school board members sprayed their interiors with cattle insecticides in an effort to stem an outbreak of head lice among the town's schoolchildren.

The sprayings backfired, causing eye and respiratory irritation and nausea among students and teachers who reported to class on March 30. The insecticides Lindane and Toxaphene are not approved for use in enclosed areas, Zbylot later told school officials.

Classes resumed April 13 in three of the town's churches. Buses were cleared for use last Wednesday by state health deparment officials.

"The major chemical insecticide causing concern, the Toxaphene, is now at levels throughout the school well below that allowed on fruits and vegetables by the Environmental Protection Agency," Zbylot said Sunday.

Areas of higher contamination in the schools have been cordoned off. They include the library in the grade school and the gymnasium and parts of the home economics department and lockers in the high school, Zbylot said.

Needs a new routine

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 35-year-old male. I've been plagued with weakness, dizziness, feeling tired and sleepy. I've been this way for about three years now and it has almost destroyed my career and my family life. I stay so tired I can hardly concentrate or walk at times. People just don't understand that I never feel like doing anything. When I lie down I cannot sleep.

I started with my family doctor, then saw three other specialists. They all tell me it is low sugar and put me on high protein, high fat, low sugar, balanced diets, none of which seem to help. I do not know how much longer I can continue. Can you please offer any help at all?

DEAR READER — Your story suggests that you have been very well studied with good agreement on what the main problem is. But evidently the routine you follow is not just right for you. Assuming you have reactive hypoglycemia (judging from your diet prescription), you might try a different approach. Avoid the concentrated sweets and starches found in bread or potatoes, but increase your carbohydrates by eating raw apples, raw pears, raw peaches and raw nectarines. Why? If you get enough fiber with the raw fruit it will be digested and absorbed slowly, never significantly raising your blood glucose and thereby avoiding a rebound low blood sugar phase.

Also, spread the food out. Use raw apples between meals as a snack.

There are lots of things you can do to minimize the effects of hypoglycemia, including frequent eating. These are discussed in The Health Letter number 3-9, Low Blood Sugar: Hypoglycemia, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Start a regular exercise program. Walk a small amount two or three times a day and increase it. As you improve your fitness level you may feel better. Your inactivity may be part of your fatigue problem. Don't overdo it; that can lower your glucose level.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read that taking Premarin prevents loss of calcium in post-menopausal women. After removal of the uterus, cervix, ovaries and tubes is not the risk from this hormone greatly reduced? Won't its benefits in preventing calcium loss outweigh these slight risks?

DEAR READER — There are many good studies that do show that when needed, estrogen hormones help to prevent loss of bone calcium. Of course, if a woman has enough estrogen from her adrenal gland after such surgery she won't need it.

It is certain that you can't get cancer of the uterus if you don't have one, so those risks are nonexistent in the situation you describe — unless the uterus was removed because of suspected or actual cancer.

The remaining question is about the breasts. If there are no lumps and no lumps develop that should not be a problem. In that situation, I would be inclined to agree that proper amounts of estrogen, if a woman is really low on estrogen, may be more beneficial than harmful.

Assault Case Under Probe

Sheriff Dept. officials are investigating an assault that occurred Sunday night at the Cooper Apartments on the Clairemont Hwy. In that incident, two males and one female were assaulted. Arnulfo Arolla, apparently hit with a tire iron, was transferred to Cogdell Hospital by Scurry County EMS. The other two were treated and released.

Two thefts were also reported to the Sheriff Dept. over the weekend. Friday night, Dwayne Williams, Roby Highway, reported several guns and some jewelry had been taken. Entry was gained through a back door.

Sunday afternoon, Clarence Wright, east of city, said he had a portable electric welder missing.

Dear Abby

Wedding Check Holds Family Hostage

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A year and a half ago our son married a girl whose well-to-do family lives out of town. My son and his bride (I'll call them Ann and Sam) wanted the wedding here, but insisted on keeping it simple and intimate, so we agreed. They were married by a justice of the peace in a shopping center near our home.

We had a party for them at our home following the ceremony, and we gave them a check for $1,000 as a wedding gift. Sam was ecstatic and thanked us, but Ann didn't say a word! We were in shock.

Days passed and we didn't hear from Ann. We were so hurt, we stopped payment on the check and told Sam that if his wife found it so difficult to say thank you, now she wouldn't have to say it at all!

Here it is, a year and a half later, and things have gone from bad to worse. They have a new house, a new car, a baby (planned) and they are drowning in debts. Our son wants "his" $1,000.

Abby, we are not rich people. Sam and Ann are now subjecting us to emotional blackmail, saying if we don't give them "their" $1,000, we can't see our grandchild.

Any suggestions would be gratefully appreciated.

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: You were wrong to have stopped payment on the $1,000 after giving it to Sam and Ann as a wedding gift. Sam thanked you, which should have been adequate.

Sam and Ann are understandably angry, but refusing to let you see your grandchild unless you fork over "their" $1,000 is indeed blackmail. However, if you hope to have any kind of relationship with your son and his wife, you can start by giving them the $1,000.

DEAR ABBY: I have a question concerning invitations that specify, "No gifts, please."

Does this mean the party-givers expect nothing except your presence at their party? Or does it mean they prefer money instead of a gift?

PUZZLED IN MONTREAL

DEAR PUZZLED: "No gifts, please," means, please do not bring a gift. Money is considered a gift, so bring nothing but yourself and your good wishes.

DEAR ABBY: A recent column leans heavily to surgery as the solution for breast cancer.

Please ask for letters from women who have been treated with alternatives to surgery. There is a growing group of radiotherapists who are treating cancer of the breast with interstitial Iridium 192 implantation.

When a tumor is implanted with radioactive seeds, no mastectomy is needed and no reconstructive surgery. Statistics are showing that radiation therapy is offering the same number of cancer-free years as mastectomy, with a great improvement over surgery in quality of life and the emotional health of the patient.

Let the women who have been treated this way speak up!

MRS. R.S.

DEAR MRS. R.S.: Consider this an invitation for women who have had experience with the alternative you mention to speak up.

Lawmakers Already Having Thoughts About Re-Election

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas politicians have a hard time keeping their attention on the fast-closing Legislature and the economic crisis in Washington.

Spring weather automatically turns their thoughts to the 1982 elections barely a year from now.

Everyone knows the big moves and announcements will not be made until after the June 1 end of the Legislature, but that doesn't stop the speculation.

And the first questions asked usually concern the political plans of Gov. Bill Clements and House Speaker Bill Clayton.

Clements shows every sign of getting ready to campaign for a second term, but there continue to be unverified rumors that he may be getting tired of the pink granite Capitol. Long lines of would-be Democratic candidates love this talk and see that it is distributed widely.

So-called close sources to Clayton have him getting out of statewide politics one week and the next being an almost sure seeker of the land commissioner's office being vacated by Bob Armstrong.

Even those interested in the expected re-election campaign of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, are interested in Clements' plans. They figure that if Clements runs, then most of the Texas GOP campaign effort will be spent on his race, not backing a challenger to Bentsen.

A number of Republicans, however, would like to campaign against Bentsen. The "most likely candidate," says one prominent political consultant, is Rep. Jim Collins, wealthy Dallas Republican who would like to get out of the U.S. House of Representatives after 13 years. Houston state Sen. Walter Mengden has let it be known he would like to try a U.S. Senate race. There are even some political touts, including Democrats, who swear Dallas multimillionaire Ross Perot is toying with the idea of a Senate race.

Clements' list of possible Democratic opponents is long.

No More Jock Ewing...

Actor Jim Davis Dead At Age 72

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Davis, the patriarch of TV's scheming and extremely popular Ewing clan, has died in his sleep at the age of 72, just weeks before filming of "Dallas" was to resume.

A memorial service will be held Friday for Davis, who was found dead Sunday afternoon by Blanche Davis, his wife of 32 years, according to Ruth Marsh, a close family friend. The gravel-voiced actor, who recently underwent surgery for a perforated ulcer, died as he napped at the couple's Northridge ranch home.

Davis portrayed oil tycoon Jock Ewing on the hit CBS-TV series, a tough man with a powerful empire but a soft heart for his family.

"He was a father to all of us," said Steven Kanaly, who played Ray Krebbs, Jock's ranch foreman and illegitimate son.

"He was one of the finest men I ever met," publicist Michael Druxman quoted Kanaly as saying.

"Losing him was like losing a real member of our family," said actress Linda Gray, who portrays the hapless Sue Ellen, in a statement from her Los Angeles home.

Actor Larry Hagman, who plays Jock's son, J.R., the best-loved villian on TV, was vacationing in Europe and could not be reached for comment.

Lorimar Productions spokesman Tom Bishop said Davis had been on the job filming "Dallas" until March 23, when he underwent surgery.

"We completed production for the season April 9, so he really only missed one episode," Bishop said. That episode is scheduled for broadcast next Friday.

But Grant said the cast had been notified about a week ago that Davis's condition was not good.

Producers for the series said they had no immediate plans on how to proceed with the "Dallas" storyline following Davis's death.

Davis, who stood 6-3 and looked every inch the part of a cowboy oil baron, appeared in more than 150 films and 300 TV shows before striking it rich with "Dallas."

In addition to his wife, Davis is survived by his mother and two sisters. The couple had only one child, Tara, who died as a teen-ager in an automobile crash several years ago.

Davis's official CBS biography listed no year for his birth. Mrs. Davis referred questions to Ms. Marsh, who said the actor was 72.

The Edgerton, Mo., native attended William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., and spent a year as a rigger with a tent circus before becoming a salesman for an auto company. A promotion took him to California and in 1940 he filmed a screen test with then-newcomer Esther Williams, which resulted in a $250-a-week contract.

Although Davis was glad to accept his success with "Dallas," he said he had no illusions about what the type of show it was.

"This show has grabbed a certain type of people," he said with typical Jock Ewing candor. "We all know this show's just a...soap opera — glorified."

CONCERT—The Snyder High School choir dept., shown above, will put on a "Pops Concert" Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the high school auditorium. During the concert, which is to raise money for the department's spring tour, the choir will perform their versions of The Doobie Brothers, Cool and the Gang, Blondie, The Oak Ridge Boys, and many others. Admission to the concert is $2 per person and everyone is invited to attend. (SDN Staff Photo)

Texas Slipping In Area Of Occupational Safety

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — On-the-job accidents killed more than 1,000 Texans and cost almost $1 billion in 1979, and it's time for the state to revitalize its occupational safety program, a health department official says.

"We're so bad it should make us ashamed," said Walter G.Martin, head of the occupational safety division. "As Texans, we're normally proud of being at the top, but we're really on the bottom of all the states in occupational safety."

Gov. Bill Clements, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Bill Clayton and Commissioner of Health Robert Bernstein are expected to attend a Tuesday meeting with employer and labor representatives to discuss a proposed $200,000 job safety program.

Martin, Bernstein and members of the Board of Health agreed at a Saturday meeting they do not want to punish the offending industries, but want simply to help them.

Martin said that Texas once had an occupational safety program, but the 1975 Legislature virtually eliminated it when the federal government created its Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

The federal program, he said, identifies dangers at job sites but doesn't do anything to help employers correct problems. Martin said smaller businesses, with 25 to 250 workers, usually have the worst safety records.

In 1979, 1,064 Texans — more than three times the national average — died in work-related accidents, Martin said, adding that Texas is third in the nation in the number of on-the-job injuries and No. 1 in fatalities.

Martin said that California, with a population of 22 million, had only 671 occupational fatalities in 1979, while Texas — with 13 million people — had more than $1\frac{1}{2}$ times as many.

"One out of every 10 employees is injured on the job," he said.

The state workers compensation program paid $800 million for injured employees' medical bills in 1979, a 32 percent increase over 1975.

"If we could drop that injury rate by just 1 percent, we could save $8 million annually," Martin told the board.

He said that in 1979, 391,619 injuries were reported to the Industrial Accident Board. In 1980, occupational fatalities in 34 states dropped by 4 percent, but Texas deaths rose 2 percent, he said.

Champagne Lady Services Today

DALLAS (AP) — "Champagne Lady" Alice Lon Bowling, who greeted millions of viewers on the popular Lawrence Welk show in the 1950s, will be buried in a family mausoleum after her death from a skin disease.

Services are scheduled at 1 p.m. CDT for Mrs. Bowling, who died Friday in Baylor University Medical center of scleroderma, a disease that thickens and hardens the skin.

She was 54.

Mrs. Bowling was born Alice Wyche in the East Texas town of Kilgore and rocketed to fame after being selected as Welk's "Champagne Lady" in 1955 while she was singing on the Don McNeill Breakfast Club Show in Chicago.

Mrs. Bowling, who was 29 at the time and sang under the name Alice Lon, was selected and Welk said, "The public has chosen her and I agree!"

The bandleader said Saturday in Los Angeles that he was "sorry to have heard of her death. She was such a lovely girl. She was a very pretty little girl."

Welk denied the rumor that she left the show because her dresses were too short. He said she left because she had become "a celebrity in her own right."

Mrs. Bowling wore multi-layered crinoline petticoats which became her trademark on the show.

George Bowling, an American Airlines pilot she married in 1962, said Saturday his wife kept her trademark after she left the show. "I've got an attic filled with those petticoats," he said.

Mrs. Bowling quit the Welk show in 1959, saying "I just couldn't take it any longer. It isn't the same happy family it used to be when I joined him six years ago. Lawrence is hard to work for now. He lacks consideration and there are no exceptions in his book."

From the time she left the Welk show in 1959 until she retired two years after her marriage, Mrs. Bowling sang at supper clubs, state fairs and recorded several record albums that featured songs by Cole Porter, George and Ira Gershwin and Irving Berlin.

She is survived by her husband, three sons and a sister.

Congress Returning To Find Reagan Plans Gaining Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress, which left President Reagan's economic program in limbo two weeks ago, returns from recess to find momentum swinging back to the administration and to hear the recuperating chief executive himself offer cooperation but not compromise.

Reagan goes before a joint session of the House and the Senate at 8 p.m. Tuesday — his first public appearance since the attempt on his life almost a month ago — to make a pitch for his tax and budget-cutting plan.

The president spent the weekend polishing the speech at his Camp David, Md., retreat. White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan intends to tell Congress and a national television audience that "now is the time to act" on his program.

The administration's offensive is two-pronged: to cement Republican support in the Senate and to gain Democratic votes in the House. Both seem to be working.

The House had been expected to be stiffest test, but head counts by both parties last week showed considerable new Democratic support for a slightly modified Reagan program — perhaps more than enough to pass it after the House begins debate Thursday.

In the Senate, Budget Committee Republicans scheduled a vote today on a plan to allay conservative skepticism about Reagan's ability to balance the budget by 1984. That was the issue that derailed the president's program on April 9, when three Republicans joined the panel's Democrats in turning down a budget-cutting package for fiscal 1982 because of projections it still would leave a $60 billion deficit.

The proposed settlement, which over the weekend appeared to have gathered enough support to win approval, would trim the projected deficit to $45 billion, Reagan's original estimate.

In the administration view, that's merely an adjustment, not affecting the program's basic philosophy. Speakes said Reagan's speech will promise to cooperate but not to compromise, especially on his proposed 30 percent tax cut over three years, which many members of Congress are reluctant to accept.

The speech is the keystone of a stepped-up lobbying drive.

"The big push will be on," said Dick Legitt, an aide to Rep. Stan Parris, R-Va., the chief GOP vote-hunter in the House.

Republicans and Democrats ready to vote for Reagan's program in the House reportedly planned to wear lapel pins sporting small baseball bats this week — a symbol of their willingness to "play hardball," as Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. called it, to push the plan through Congress. GOP leaders said Reagan might wear one of the pins himself during his speech.

Democratic leaders, meanwhile, were worried about defectors.

"We're losing an awful lot of Democrats," confided one top House Democrat who asked not to be identified.

Democrats hold a 242-190 majority in the 435-member House, with three vacancies. If Republicans vote as a bloc, only 26 Democrats are needed to earn a majority for the Reagan plan in the House.

An informal GOP count showed at least 20 Democrats ready to vote for the Republican plan, GOP sources said. Republicans have been circulating a list of 62 conservative Democrats considered potential crossovers, and Reagan spent much of the last week on the phone personally appealing to Democrats to support him.

The program before the House is Reagan's basic budget-cutting plan, plus $6 billion in additional spending reductions proposed by Reps. Delbert Latta, R-Ohio, and Phil Gramm, D-Texas.

Reagan formally endorsed the modified plan last week.

The administration may have a tougher time trying to steer its farm bill through Congress.

The Senate Agriculture Committee was beginning work today on merging a series of proposals into a consensus program to replace the expiring Food and Agriculture Act of 1977.

Subcommittees in the House are still drafting those parts of the farm program they're responsible for. The House Agriculture Committee will begin putting its version of the bill into final form before mid-week.

The new bill will cover commodity programs for four years, beginning with the 1982 crop.

The Reagan administration's proposal for the new farm program calls for unprecedented discretion for the agriculture secretary in setting price-support loan rates for most commodities.

But key members from both parties have countered with their own proposals, and the bills emerging from the two committees by mid-May will probably fall short of Reagan's recommendations.

The administration may have gained support for some of its proposals last week when Reagan lifted the $15\frac{1}{2}$-month grain embargo against the Soviet Union. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee, had told the administration that chances for its bill rested on ending the grain embargo.

NIT Champs Send Ball For Auction

A basketball autographed by Tulsa University's 1981 NIT championship team will be offered for sale in the Senior Center's May Day auction on May 2.

Golden Hurricane Coach Nolan Richardson will be sending the ball with the compliments of the team as well as his own. Richardson took four players from Western Texas College to Tulsa with him, and all have visited the Senior Center where they had many friends and supporters.

"We're just thrilled to have this momento from the University and Coach Richardson and the team," Gloria Shaw, Senior Center director, said. "Every item in our auction is unique and every one has a special meaning to us at the Center."

May Day will be held in the Scurry County coliseum starting at 4:30 p.m. The auction is to begin about 6:30 p.m. with Grady Morris of Colorado City as auctioneer. Items to be sold include 30 quilts made in the Center, and all proceeds go into the Center's operating fund.

Kenya Plant Used In Pest Control

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ingredient extracted from a plant grown in Kenya is being used to kill pesty household insects.

Pyrethrin, which is extracted from the plant, paralyzes the nervous systems of insects, killing them. Pyrethrin is not toxic to humans or animals.

The chemical is contained in airborne insecticides, which are primarily available in aerosol form.

Houston Baby Is Kidnapped

HOUSTON (AP) — Juvenile authorities say a heavy-set woman kidnapped an 8-day-old girl from a Jefferson Davis Hospital maternity ward.

Sgt. William Casteel said a woman said to weigh 200 pounds took the baby while the mother, Donna Pettaway, 21, was sleeping in the first-floor ward Saturday.

Casteel said the woman told a nurse she was taking the baby, Nydra Pettaway, to a car and would return for the mother.

Lois Moore, hospital administrator, said a nurse making routine rounds noticed the baby was missing and police were called after the mother did not recognize the description of the woman seen leaving with the child.

Doctors Get Inside View

HIGHLAND HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP) — A new X-ray system developed by Picker Corp. here will put doctors on the inside track of a patient's anatomy, more thoroughly and in less time than ever before.

The Vector system not only provides coverage of the gastrointestinal tract, skeletal system and other vital organs, the company says, but it also has the capability of cutting examination time and hospital costs while reducing the patient's apprehension sometimes encountered with lengthy X-ray exams.

Worries of nudist parents

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — My husband and I have gone to a nudist camp for the past five summers.

Now we have an 8-month-old baby. We have read that many experts do not think that children should see their parents naked.

Will our child be harmed if we take him along to the camp? (We do not go nude around the house.)

DEAR READER — I might have automatically agreed with those experts — many of whom have speculated that nudity in the home leads to incest — had I not recently read "The Naked" by Dennis Craig Smith.

Smith set out to discover whether nudists' lifestyle or home environment caused their children to become frustrated, anxious or excessively stimulated.

The more than 100 people who participated in the five-year study turned out to have no more problems than the group of non-nudists with whom they were compared.

These results are by no means conclusive. But they at least force us to utter our warnings about nudity in the home with less certainty.

DEAR DR.BLAKER — I have finally decided to quit my job and move back to my hometown to care for my parents as they grow old. I am 42 years old and have pretty much given up hope of marrying.

My problem is that I'm afraid my mother will try to dominate me as she did more than 20 years ago when I lived at home. How can I keep this from happening again?

DEAR READER — Although your relationship with your mother may have changed during the 20-odd years that you have been apart, try from the beginning to keep your life separate from the lives of your parents.

That might mean getting your own apartment at least a 20-minute walk from your parents' home. Or finding a new job and new friends. Or continuing the hobbies and interests that you now pursue.

If you find that you are tempted to check in every day with your mother, you will know that you are not off to a good start. That could mean that your excessive anxiety to please her is interfering with your leading a separate life.

31 Apply For Cage Job Here

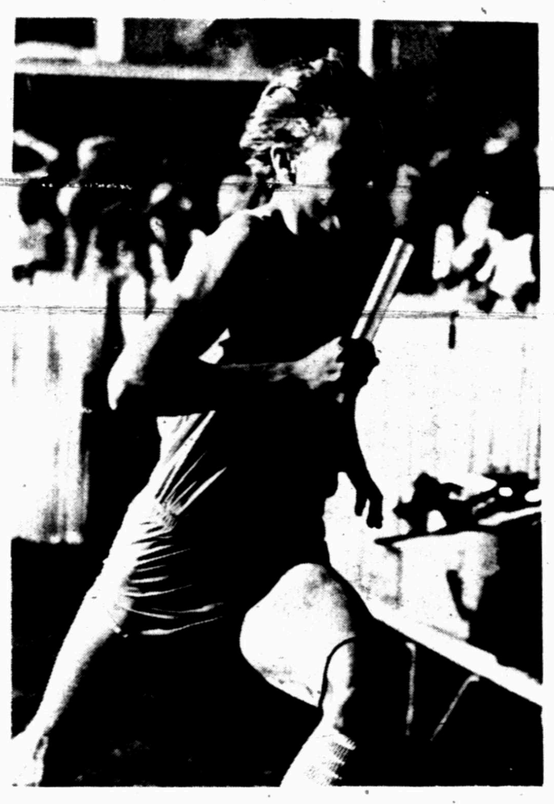

Thirty-one applications have been received in connection with the head basketball coaching position at Snyder High School, John Gary, athletic director, said today.

Applications have come in from several large communities, including Corpus Christi, Lubbock and Amarillo, but most are from towns "our size or smaller," said Gary.

Among those applying is current junior varsity cage coach Larry Scott. According to Gary, Scott is the only Snyder coach to have an application in at this time.

Deadline to apply for the position is May 4. A school board meeting has been scheduled for May 12 and discussion of the candidates can be expected at that time.

The job became open when two-year baskeball coach George Byerly accepted the head football coaching position about a month ago.

DISTRICT WINNER -- Glenn Parham, shown above in the final leg of the mile relay, qualified for regionals in the District 2-AAAA high jump and 300 intermediate hurdles over the weekend. The regional meet will be held this weekend in Odessa. (SDN Staff Photo)

Parham Qualifies In Two Events...

Andrews Wins District Meet

ANDREWS -- Glenn Parham added another victory to his win in the high jump here Saturday and became Snyder High School's lone representative to the May 3-4 Region I boys track meet. Snyder, staffed largely with underclassmen, polled 29 total points to finish sixth in the running.

Andrews, led by Van Pearcy's wins in the long jump, 200 meters and 400 meters, won the District 2-AAAA boys team title with 144 and five-sixths points. Second was Odessa Ector with 111, followed by Monahans with 80, Sweetwater with 66 and Lake View with 46.

First and second place winners in each event qualified for the Region I meet, to be held Friday and Saturday at Odessa High School. Since 1981 is the first year for the newly aligned District 2-4A, all first place times and distances here established new records.

Parham, running the 300 meter hurdles finals for only the second time in over a month after rebounding from nagging leg problems, eclipsed the intermediates in 39.7. The time was good enough to win the event by one-half of a second over Fort Stockton's Robbie Roberson, who also earned a berth to regionals with his 40.2 run.

Friday, the Tiger sophomore leaped 6-4 to win the high jump competition. He tied with Monahans' Danny Langley, but took the top medal on fewer misses.

Snyder's other nine points came from several scources. Keith Wallace's fifth place long jump effort of 20-4 netted two and David Hines' sixth place finish in the 1600 meter run, in 4:47.8, netted a point.

Snyder also placed fifth in the 1600 relay with a time of 3:32.1 and sixth in the 400 meter relay with a time of 44.7. Running on the 400 relay were Raymond Jeffery, Tim Wilson, Norman Malone and Matt Davis. Running on the 1600 relay were Jeffery, Davis, Wallace and Parham.

Pearcy won the 400 meters in 48.9, the 200 in 21.5 and the long jump with a 22-6½. He also anchored the Mustangs' winning sprint relay, and finished third in the high jump at 6-2.

Another individual standout was Sweetwater's James Goodman, who took second in the long jump, third in the intermediate hurdles and first in the high hurdles.

State Bound In Shot Put...

Anderson Wins Shot Put

ODESSA -- Snyder's Brenda Anderson will pack her bags for Austin a second straight time after heaving the shot 39-feet, 7¾ inches to win the Region I, Class 4A girls shot put here Saturday.

Anderson, a junior who placed fifth at state a year ago, will make her second attempt at a top medal when the May 8-9 Track and Field Finals are held at Austin.

Snyder was entered in three events at the Region I meet over the weekend, but Anderson's effort in the shot was the only one to qualify for further honors. Pam Brown picked up fifth place in the 100 meter dash with a time of 12.5, and Anderson placed seventh in the triple jump.

Vernon won the meet with 73 points, followed by Ector and Canyon with 60 each. Snyder garnered 12 points.

Top standout from District 2-AAAA was Andrews' Teressa Conaway, who finished first in the long jump (18-4), second in the triple jump (36-3¾), and second in the 100 hurdles (14.53).

Saturday's victory for Anderson marked only the second time ever the Feline competitor has beaten 1980 state champion Teresa West of Sweetwater.

Anderson nipped the Mustang senior at the district meet two weeks ago, and beat her decidedly here at regionals. In fact, West did not place at region in the shot, though she did take second in the discus with a throw of 123-2.

Rockets Burn Kings; Lead Playoff Series 3-1

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Rockets Coach Del Harris told his team to play the Kansas City Kings as if they were in the final game of the National Basketball Association Western Conference finals with only 48 minutes separating them from elimination.

The result was a stunning performance by center Moses Malone, who scored 42 points and grabbed 23 rebounds as the Rockets decked the Kings 100-89 Sunday.

Now, Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons will make the same speech Wednesday night in Kansas City, but he'll be telling the truth - the Kings have only 48 minutes to avoid elimination from the playoffs.

Houston has a 3-1 lead and is one victory away from a spot in the NBA championship finals against either Philadelphia or Boston.

"Before the game, Del went to the board and wrote 'pretend this is game seven,'" Reid said. "He said we always play better in the last game. He told us to forget our lead and think it was 3-3 with 48 minutes left."

The Kings have had difficulty picking which Rocket is the decoy and which one is armed with live ammunition.

The Rockets used Malone as a decoy last Friday night, so Calvin Murphy and Robert Reid blasted away for a total of 43 points and a 92-88 victory. But Malone came out firing Sunday.

"I just want to win this series, I don't care how many points I get myself," Malone said. "I got 12 Friday night and we still won and it's no different when I get 42.

"I really think its great that the two Cinderella teams that nobody thought would make it this far, are battling it out for the Western Confernce championship."

Ernie Grunfeld, who hit 21 for the Kings, started the second half by sinking the technical shot to tie the game. From that point, it was Reid, who hit one of five first half shots, who poured in four of four and the Rockets never trailed again.

Reggie King led the Kings with 24 points while Scott Wedman hit 16 and Sam Lacey had 12. Reid hit 16 points for the Rockets, Murphy contributed 14 and Billy Paultz added 12.

Sixers Stop Celtics Again

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Julius Erving said he felt the Philadelphia 76ers showed their character as a team in turning back the Boston Celtics' second half onslaught.

The 76ers, led by Erving's 20 points, beat Boston, 107-105, Sunday to take a 3-1 lead in their National Basketball Association best-of-seven Eastern Conference final series.

The Celtics twice trailed by 19 in the first half, and were behind 65-48 at halftime. Their star, Larry Bird, had been held to six points, only one field goal.

The fifth game is in Boston Wednesday night, with a sixth, if necessary, here Friday.

Pecos Game Cancelled For Good This Time

It's one...two...three strikes your out in this game and that's exactly what happened to the scheduled Snyder-Pecos baseball tilt here today. It's out, kaput, no more.

Snyder's Tigers wrapped up a round-one District 2-AAAA baseball championship last Friday at Lamesa so officials have determined today's Tiger-Eagle game - scheduled for 4 p.m. here - will not be played. It would have no bearing on the final district standings.

"It wouldn't make any difference whether either team won or lost so it's not being played," said Snyder athletic director John Gary this morning. "There's no sense in them (Pecos) coming all the way over here."

The game had already been postponed twice due to rains. Snyder's win 9-3 win over Lamesa last Friday made it obsolete.

Today's cancellation should be a bonus for the 15-7-1 and 5-0 Tigers, who were to play two district contests in two days before the move. Monahans is slated at the local field 4 p.m. Tuesday, to begin the second round. Snyder is idle Friday.

Snyder had defeated Pecos 10-2 in a non-district game of the Monahans Tournament, back on March 14. Their only other scheduled meeting will now be May 12 in Pecos.

Tomorrow's contest between Snyder and Monahans should be a good one. In a round-one game played at Monahans on March 31, Snyder held off a last-inning Lobo rally to win 9-7.

Three Are Going Pro, But Sampson Will Wait

by The Associated Press

Isiah Thomas, Mark Aguirre and Buck Williams, three outstanding underclassmen who were all members of the 1980 U.S. Olympic team, have decided to turn pro, adding lustre to the June 9 National Basketball Association draft. But the brightest college star of all, Ralph Sampson, has once again decided to stay in school.

Sampson, Virginia's 7-foot-4 sophomore center who was wooed by the Boston Celtics a year ago, entertained offers from the Dallas Mavericks and Detroit Pistons - the last-place conference finishers who will take part in Thursday's coin flip to determine which club will draft first - before announcing Saturday that he planned to remain with the Cavaliers.

Betsy Rawls, the tournament director of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, won 55 tourneys in her playing days.

Texans Rally Around Budget Cuts, Tax Plan

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texans here for the 69th annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States were plainly in a receptive mood for the series of speeches by Reagan Administration people pushing the president's program of deep spending cuts and three-year, 30 percent tax cut.

According to Terry Burns, executive vice president of the Orange Chamber of Commerce, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said "just what we wanted to hear" with his Sunday afternoon address pledging an end to "the all-knowing government that attempts to cure every social and economic aberration through another quick-fix bureaucracy."

Thousands of business people from across the country began arriving over the weekend for the meeting, with speeches this morning by Vice President George Bush and at noon by budget director David Stockman among the highlights.

The Chamber of Commerce officials were scheduled to visit their various congressmen this afternoon, after a massive 2 p.m. rally on the west side of the Capitol. Chamber officials from Texas then are hosting a reception for the state's congressional delegation at 6 p.m. in the U.S. Botanic Gardens on the capitol grounds.

Regan's Sunday afternoon address kicking off the 3-day meet drew widespread support from Texans, several of whom said they plan to encourage their congressmen this week to support it with their votes.

The five Republicans in the 24-member Texas congressional delegation already is lined up behind the Reagan proposal, and eight members who belong to the Conservative Democratic Forum also are expected to go along.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth, is committed to a party alternative budget submitted by House Budget Committee chairman Jim Jones, D-Okla. That plan, which is backed by several others in the Texas delegation, restores many of the spending cuts Reagan proposes to social programs, cuts defense spending and calls for a smaller tax cut.

"Obviously the majority of the American people are behind him, but it's some of the congressmen that we have to worry about," said Wade C. Ridley, president of the Tyler Area Chamber of Commerce.

His congressman, Rep. Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall, is a member of the CDF "and we feel he will support it, but Mr. Wright is the one I'm worried about. Maybe some of his constituents will let him know how they feel," Ridley said.

"I was 100 percent for what he said. The point to me that he made was we need to give Reagan's program a chance or we'll never know if it will succeed or fail," Ridley added.

Bill G. Carter of Fort Worth, president of the Haltom-Richland Area Chamber of Commerce, said his chamber has been trying to keep residents of the northern Fort Worth suburbs informed and asking them to contact their congressmen and urge support of Reagan's program.

"Of course our congressman (Wright) has different ideas about it. We hope we can change his thinking in some ways," Carter said.

Burns said his strong personal feeling for the program outlined by the treasury secretary echoes the feeling of people in the Orange area behind the president's economic recovery recommendations.

Southeast Texas is represented in Congress by Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, one of the "uncommitteds" whose vote could decide whether the president's spending and tax proposals are approved.

"We've invited (Wilson) to speak before our group during the Memorial Day recess, and we hope we'll be able to bring us a good report on this. It should be decided by then," Burns said.

Two Injured At Junior Rodeo

Katrina York, 18, and Lee Holder, 15, were slightly injured during Saturday night's rodeo performance at the coliseum. York was hurt in a mishap with a horse and Holder was stepped on by a bull.

Both were transported by Scurry County EMS to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released.

Chase Ends In Pasture

Trooper Pat Alexander, Department of Public Safety, arrested a 25 year-old man by the Clairemont Hwy. Sunday night, after a high-speed chase with speeds in excess of 100 mph.

The subject was taken into custody after his car ended up in a pasture. He is being charged with driving while intoxicated and fleeing to elude.

The first steam locomotive in the United States was imported from England. It was put into service in 1829 in a Pennsylvania coal mine.

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

In a house designed as pleasantly as this attractive three-bedroom ranch style model, the way of life just has to be good.

Note, for example, the stone floored central entry with an appropriate planter serving to separate it partially from the pleasant living room. Such unique styling makes this entry as decorative as it is useful, and useful it is for the traffic in this house is competently channeled from this point to all other areas.

The living room therefore enjoys total privacy and is a delightfully restful and comfortable room. Beside it a formal dining room makes mealtimes much pleasanter and more relaxing. Yet for those essential and often preferable hurry up meals there is a convenient dining counter separating the kitchen from the family room.

Study that family room well. It is large and is well equipped for both indoor and outdoor good living with a cozy fireplace and a big porch beyond sliding glass doors.

In the kitchen parallel work areas provide an arrangement which is both practical and pleasant. A utility room at the back houses laundry facilities and provides plenty of storage space too. It also serves as a convenient passageway between the kitchen and the porch and back yard.

A basement option staircase enters in the utility area.

This house has three bedrooms with a full wall of closets in each of the front pair and a huge walk-in closet in the master bedroom at the back. Note, too, that an extra lavatory and built-in dressing table is provided beside the master bedroom bath and see the double lavatory in the main bath.

This house has a lot of extra storage closets in the bedroom hallway, too. And note how the double garage adds considerably to the attractive front elevation.
