

'Grease' in production for December debut

By LESLIE ABRAMS
Staff writer

The Rockport-Fulton High School Drama department is busy gearing up for the December production of the musical "Grease," which will be performed in the new auditorium. According to David Rice, RFHS drama instructor, the production is moving along smoothly even though the cast and crew has had to change their plans several times due to changes in the location of the show's performances. The production, originally scheduled to be performed in the new auditorium, had to be moved to the Live Oak Elementary School cafeteria where it was going to be performed in the round, after construction delays forced the production to be moved back several weeks. Rice, the cast and the crew have since been preparing for a production in the round, where those onstage are completely surrounded by the audience. Now that the auditorium will be open by the end of November, the production, which is scheduled for Dec. 10, and 11 with a special invitational showing on Dec. 9, will be moved back to the proscenium stage of the new location. The cast and crew and general production of the show must adapt accordingly. Rice doesn't know when the cast will be able to use the auditorium for rehearsal, something which is necessary in order to perfect and polish the performance of the actors. Since rehearsals are currently taking place in the drama room of the high school, "I can't sit back and see how things are looking," says Rice. "I won't be able to do it until we get into the auditorium." [See Grease, page 14]

Holman ruled not guilty in suit

By TED NORMAN
Managing editor

"The system works, it really works. Everything was against me and the system really works."

Those were the words of a very tired but elated Kirk Holman as he read the one-page decision handed down by District Judge Ronald M. Yeager which said: there is no conflict of interest, the lease agreement in question is not voidable and the lease agreement in question is not null and void.

Since organizing a campaign, running for a seat on the Aransas County Navigation District and winning, Holman has lived under constant threats and pressure from the other members of the ACND board that he is serving while being in conflict of interest. The possible conflict of interest stems from the fact that Holman, owner of the Fulton Harbor Bait Stand, holds a lease with the ACND while serving on the board of the Navigation District.

Holman, at The Rockport Pilot office where he heard the news of the decision, said, "I'm in a good mood, a really good mood," his face exposing almost every emotion as he read the decision.

In the interview Holman said, "I have been under constant pressure, they never let up, but now I know I'm going to be there until August and there is nothing they can do about it and now they have to listen to me."

'The system works'

"I've finally got something that says,

Kirk, you're supposed to be here," said Holman.

The conflict of interest problem became a formal concern for Holman at a special meeting of the ACND Oct. 5, 1981, when, in a closed session, the commissioners voted that Holman was in conflict of interest and that he should either be removed from office or void the lease agreement with the district. Holman refused to do either and the ACND, represented by their attorney Reese Rozzell, moved to file charges against Holman.

During the trial Rozzell attempted to prove that Holman, because he held a lease with the ACND while sitting on the board of ACND, was in conflict of interest.

Holman's attorney, Skip Henkel of Corpus Christi told the court that Holman would have to receive money from the district to be in conflict of interest when in fact he paid money to the district for the lease on his bait stand at Fulton Harbor.

Henkel also told the court that the plaintiff had forfeited any and all rights to bring Holman to trial because they waited 13 months after he was sworn in to bring him to trial.

Asked how he felt the decision will affect [See They have, page 14]

Bazaar set to aid ambulance service

The eighth annual ACMSI Christmas Bazaar, one of the year's big fund-raisers to benefit Aransas County's ambulance service, is set for this coming weekend, Nov. 20-21, at the Paws & Taws Building on Fulton Beach Road.

Sponsored by the Women's Committee of the Aransas County Medical Services Inc. (ACMSI), the two-day event offers thousands of handcrafted gifts, Christmas ornaments, toys, baked and canned goods and handpainted items from the ACMSI Women's Committee's own Gift Boutique in downtown Rockport.

Those attending the Bazaar will have a chance to buy tickets for a drawing in which a 16-piece ceramic creche and a banquet-size sequined Christmas tablecloth will be given away. The drawing will be at 3 p.m. Sunday and tickets can be purchased either at the Bazaar or in advance at the Handcraft Store, 513 Broadway.

The Bazaar will be from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Saturday and from 11 a.m. until 4 p.m. Sunday. Booths will include fashions — handpainted skirts, shirts, tops, trapunto handbags and hats which can be purchased at the Bazaar or special-ordered for Christmas.

The Trim-a-tree booth will feature handcrafted stocking stuffers, tree ornaments, Christmas decorations and wreaths and at the Gift Boutique, handpainted grater boxes, shell bookends, silkscreen note cards, magazine racks and macrame can be found.

Handpainted towel sets, crocheted towels and pillows will be offered at the linens booths, and stuffed and wooden toys, handmade clothing and games will be available in the Children's Corner. A baked goods booth will offer jellies, jams, cakes, cookies, breads, pies, candies and pickles and the White Elephant booth will offer something to appeal to just about everyone.

At the Santa's sack booth, $2 will give purchasers the chance for a grab bag surprise.

Plans progress for Maritime Museum

Artifacts from the days of steam to the modern industry of shipping and everything in between will eventually be on display at the proposed Texas Maritime Museum being planned for the downtown Rockport area.

According to Bill Christian, leading element in the drive to build and operate the museum, the museum will hold something for everyone, including a ship's wheel in the tower of the 44,000-square-foot building for the younger visitors to enjoy.

Christian says even the surrounding two acres of grounds will have exhibits such as ships' cannons, old anchors and other maritime equipment.

The proposed building is scheduled to have an eight-foot veranda on three sides where visitors can sit and reflect on the Texas shipping industry of the past or meditate on the future.

The building will be constructed on a raised grassy knoll and face north with a 360-degree view of Aransas Bay from the glassed-in loft. Three levels will display artifacts of the past and photographs and etchings of the Texas maritime industry.

The museum will hold collections from shipping, fishing, recreation and the all-important petroleum industry.

Spokesmen for the museum say the purpose of the Texas Maritime Museum will be to collect, preserve, study and exhibit maritime artifacts and documents, both modern and historic.

It is felt that the Texas Maritime Museum will make a significant contribution to the glorious heritage that Texans are so proud of.

Christian says there will be a wide walkway to the entrance and roomy entry hall with artifacts lining the way. Off the entry hall will be a nice-sized lecture room that will seat approximately 60 persons, a ship's stove and hopefully a small maritime library that will grow with time.

Passing through the entry hall the visitor will be in the main room of the museum with high ceilings and a staircase leading the balcony being the dominant architectural effect.

The visitor can then ascend another [See Museum, page 14]

Park budget due look at meeting

The budgetary needs of Rockport's city parks are on the agenda of the city's park board meeting Wednesday night, Nov. 17, as that organization seeks to take a more active role in the city's recreational planning.

Also scheduled will be a meeting with the caretaker at Memorial Park regarding activities and any problems at the park.

Questions concerning the 1982-83 city park budget and a desire to talk to Memorial Park's caretaker were broached at the park board's Oct. 20 meeting. At that time, the park board voted to ask for a breakdown of the $10,000 allocated for parks and recreation expenditures in the city budget adopted in September.

The request came after park board members noted that the park board had not been consulted by city officials prior to the adoption of the $10,000 park budget.

Newest park board member Bobby Jackson made the motion that a park budget breakdown be obtained for Wednesday's meeting. The motion was seconded by board member Howard Black.

Black subsequently moved — acting on a suggestion by Jackson — that the Memorial Park caretaker be invited to speak to the board at the Nov. 17 meeting.

Purpose of the meeting with the caretaker is to discuss his observations concerning Memorial Park's present facilities and needs.

Drainage problems plague city council

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

The need to do something — and soon — about drainage problems in the rapidly-developing area north of Rockport was put before members of the city council in a workshop session at 2 p.m. Monday, Nov. 15.

And in other action during the nearly three-hour session, the council was told by Gene Urban of Urban Engineers, the city's engineering firm, that Rockport will definitely not receive funding this year for proposed expansion of the sanitary sewer plant but may be considered for funding in 1983.

The city council met in a special session at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 16, to consider possible action on the city's drainage problems. Details of that meeting will be in the Pilot's weekend edition.

The council called Monday's meeting following a report from City Administrator Herman Johnson on Nov. 8 that Harbor Oaks Shopping Village and Live Oak Shopping Center were both interested in annexation into the city. At that time, Johnson told council members a meeting was needed to discuss the effects of these and other developments in that area on drainage.

At the workshop session, Urban pointed out to council members the developments in that area include recently-annexed Wal-Mart, Rockport County Club Estates (of which unit 1 has also been annexed), Live Oak Shopping Village and, on the other side of Hwy. 35 North, Harbor Oaks Shopping Village where construction is expected to begin within the next year on a shopping center — mini-mall.

There is also a 15-acre undeveloped tract between Wal-Mart and Live Oak Shopping Center which would have to be annexed before a request by Live Oak for annexation could be acted upon.

Urban advised council members that they could — and should — require developers of Rockport County Club Estates and Harbor Oaks Shopping Center to work out the drainage problems on those two projects.

But, he added, "that doesn't help other developments in this area."

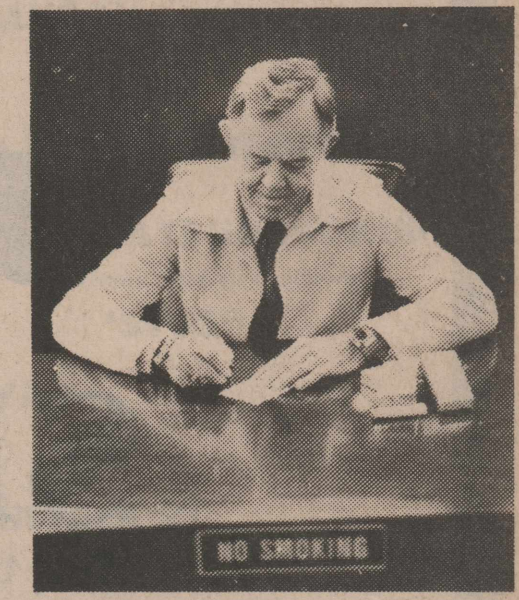

A big problem at this point is drainage on the west side of Hwy. 35 — the area around Wal-Mart and Live Oak Shopping Center. Urban told council members, "This area is all going to develop at some time and Tule Ditch (the area of drainage) doesn't have the capacity."

Rockport Mayor Burt Mills said, "The county has a drainage problem and the city is the receiving end of a funnel."

This prompted Urban to reply, "The county and city both have a drainage problem. Nobody's done anything about it." In answer to Mills' question of "Why?", Urban replied, "Because nobody wants to spend the money" and County Surveyor T.E. Griffith elaborated, "It'll cost $2-1/2 to $3 million."

Urban later told council members, "You don't have a unified drainage plan. You need one."

Wildcats outlast Rockport Pirates in 27 - 14 win

Sometimes in defeat there is victory. Although the Rockport-Fulton Pirates dropped their final contest of the year by a 27-14 score to Calallen before a home crowd Friday night, there were some positive things which came from the game. The Pirates committed two costly errors, and they both led to the final margin of defeat. The Pirates gave away the ball on a fumble in the opening period which cost them a touchdown. Then while trailing 20-0, the Pirates had a clip on a Dwayne Walls run of 96 yards which nullified the play. So instead of being within two touchdowns at the half, the Pirates continued to trail by three TD's.

Calallen proved its powerful running attack in the opening drive of the game. Beginning on their own 13 yard line, the Wildcats put together a 19-play collection which finally brought them six points when lineman Stacy Sacky was moved into the backfield to ram the ball over from the 1-yard line. A point-after kick made the score 7-0 in favor of the Cats.

Perhaps the play that turned the grapes sour for the Pirates was the ensuing kickoff that Walls mishandled and the Cats recovered the fumble at Rockport's 14-yard line. In just four plays, the Wildcats had another seven points on a Bud Homeyer run, and the Pirates had not yet run a play from scrimmage.

When the Pirates did fail to move the football on their first possession of the game, the Cats, despite a 47-yard punt by Charlie Ochoa, put things in motion. Calallen quarterback James Johnson quickly went up on top to throw a pass to Mack Moake, good for 27 yards to get them out of a hole. From there on, the Cats moved the ball in for their third TD, this time on a pass from Johnson to Moake. Homeyer missed the extra point to put the score at 20-0.

For a few seconds, the Pirates dodged a bullet when Walls fumbled again, but he recovered his own fumble. Walls got loose on his first good run of the night on a first-down play from the 33- to the 49-yard line. Just as the Pirates appeared to be rolling, another fumble slipped loose, but an alert Bill Mott covered the ball to hold the possession for the Pirates. That was short-lived. Walls and quarterback Rudy Soliz had a bad exchange, and the Cats got the ball.

Calallen punted the ball after the Pirate defense finally shut off the Wildcat attack, but the Pirates luck did not hold as the ball got a tremendous roll, finally stopping at the Pirates' 1-yard line. After a play to get the ball out of trouble, the Pirates had a second down on their own 4-yard line. Walls hit the hole off tackle, and after breaking away from two tackles, he got in gear for the first time since the second game of the year against Port Lavaca. A 96-yard blur was the result, but the play was called back on a clip away and behind the play. The penalty was costly.

Calallen tried hard to put more points on the board before the half, but alert plays by Peter Nichols and Walls to tip away passes forced Calallen to try a field goal. The kick was off to the left, and the clock had run out for the first half.

For much of the second half, the contest became a punting contest as both teams punted the ball when they couldn't mount an offense. The Pirate defense had tightened up considerably after the half. Mark Pruitt gave the Pirates a big break when he recovered a Cat fumble in the third period, but the Pirates faltered. Then after an Ochoa punt had pinned the Cats deep in their own end zone, a crushing tackle by linebacker Ramon Romero popped the ball out of the ball carrier's hands, and Rudy Soliz made the recovery for Rockport.

That play seemed to ignite the Pirates. In four plays, and with the help of a penalty against Calallen, Walls banged into the end zone for a Pirate TD. With Bobby Dingenary at the controls, the junior quarterback fired a low-level pass on which Matt Logan played "gopher" and dug the ball off the turf for a successful two-point conversion. The Pirates had come back.

Calallen did not lay down and die for the Pirates. In fact, they did anything but that. They got good field position when the Pirates tried a necessary on-sides kick, but the Wildcat receiver managed to pull the ball in just before the Pirates' pursuit arrived. The Cats blasted into the Pirate defense and marched for a touchdown, their only score of the second half.

The Pirates were far from being counted down-and-out. When they got the ball again, following an 8-yard loss on the first play from the 32-yard line, Walls again hit off tackle on the dive play, and he bumped and darted his way through tacklers, escaping a finalizing tackle at the 35-yard line, and then broke loose. A Wildcat player had the angle on Walls and grabbed the swift-moving Pirate from behind. A split-second later, Walls left his shoe and the would-be tackler at the 30-yard line of Calallen and he raced the remainder of the way untouched. Fans who saw the play, may have seen the best 75-yard run in Texas this season or any other season. Although the scoreboard would not wait for the Pirates to score again, Rockport-Fulton exhibited some of the high-spirited play they had shown early in the season before injuries crushed the team during the week of the Refugio game.

Walls, after gaining 435 yards in the opening two games before falling to a cripline injury, finally got things going his way again, and collected 115 yards on only 12 carries. With 96 yards erased, his total could have been well over the 200-yard mark for the game.

Some of the younger players who were pressed into service gave good accounts of themselves, making tackles when others weren't. David Cochran, Demetrius Lewis, Dingenary and Doyle Parr each had 10 hits or more on defense. Regular defenders for most of the year, Joe Cantu, Romero and Ochoa were particularly impressive in the individual tackle department.

When the game is analyzed, the fumbles and the penalty on the 96-yard run will be remembered as the plays which turned the game around, but there was a factor which outweighs all others in the game: In total plays, Calallen ran 72 plays from scrimmage; Rockport ran only 31 plays. That says it all.

Throwlines banned for trout & reds

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has adopted an emergency regulation outlawing the use of throwlines to take red drum (redfish) and spotted seatrout (speckled trout) in Texas waters under the Parks and Wildlife Department's regulatory authority.

Exceptions are Chambers, Harris and Victoria Counties, where it will remain legal to take trout but not redfish with throwlines.

The change redefines throwlines as a type of trotline in the regulations. Retention of redfish and speckled trout caught with trotlines became illegal by commission action in September 1982.

Assistant Chief of Coastal Fisheries Gary Matlock said throwlines have five or fewer hooks attached to a line which must be attached to a permanent fixture at one end.

Matlock told the commission that since the ban on retention of trout and redfish caught on trotlines was enacted in September, some fishermen have been circumventing the regulation by using large numbers of throwlines, especially on the Lower Texas Coast.

Matlock said the emergency amendment to the regulations is expected to go into effect within two weeks.

The redefinition of throwlines, as well as a number of other recent regulations tightening restrictions on the harvest of the two species, are designed to protect stocks of the fish which have been on the decline in recent years, Matlock told commission members.

Pirate Frosh lose 54-0

Thursday night in Calallen, The Rockport-Fulton Freshmen were clawed, mauled and abused as the powerful Wildcat freshmen from Calallen roared to a 54-0 victory.

The Wildcat freshmen did claim to the best freshmen record in District 15-4A, although they would get some static from Tulos-Midway and Robstown.

The Cats made everything go in the game. On the first play from scrimmage the Cats broke loose for a TD and the flow of the game didn't change for most of the contest. Calallen was big and powerful, and with an addition from a GP move-in, the Cats were devastating. Three times in the opening period the Cats scored and then got the two-point bonus to take a 24-0 lead.

An additional 24 points in the second half gave them a 48-0 lead at the half. Meanwhile, the Pirates just could not penetrate the defense of the Cats.

Three big pass receptions gave the Pirates their only plus yardage for the night as Mark Dennis, Benny Arispe and Ron Yates made catches for the Pirates.

Rodeo to be at summit

HOUSTON — The Levi's Longhorn World Championship Rodeo stampedes into The Summit for three action-packed performances on Friday, Nov. 19 through Sunday, Nov. 21.

Over 450 professional cowboys and cowgirls will be competing for championship points and over $100,000 in prize money in the Coca-Cola Purse. Sanctioned by the International Rodeo Association, the Longhorn World Championship Rodeo at The Summit is one of the last of the 1982 rodeo season which ends on Nov. 30. Competition will be keen as the top 15 contestants in each of the seven events qualify to compete at the International Finals Rodeo in Tulsa, Okla. in January. Every dollar a cowboy or cowgirl wins in competition at a sanctioned rodeo is equivalent to one world championship point. A big win at the Longhorn Rodeo in Houston could cinch a world championship for some contestants or make a tighter title race in other events.

Hunters alerted to steel shot zones

AUSTIN — With the opening of waterfowl seasons at hand, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials say some confusion still exists among hunters about nontoxic (steel) shot zone boundaries.

In the eastern half of the state, the waterfowl seasons opened Saturday (Nov. 6). Opening day was Wednesday (Nov. 2) in the High Plains Mallard Management Unit of West Texas.

During the 1982-83 seasons just now opening, possession of the lead-loaded shotgun shells is prohibited while hunting waterfowl in two coastal zones; one covers all or portions of six Southeast Texas counties; and a second mid-coast zone includes all or portions of five counties in the Corpus Christi area.

The confusion may result from the recent announcement by the Parks and Wildlife Commission of their establishment of the nontoxic shot zones for the 1983-84 seasons. Next year's zone will include at least portions of all counties on the coastline, plus sizable areas for the traditional goose-hunting prairies south and west of Houston.

"We (the department) wanted to establish the 1983-84 zones as early as possible," said Bill Brownlee, waterfowl program director. "One of the main reasons is that ammunition manufacturers and suppliers have difficulty getting ample supplies of shells to expanded steel shot areas without advance notice."

"Another is that we need to inform waterfowl hunters as early as possible about the steel shot requirement so they can take advantage of end of season sales," Brownlee added.

Studies in many parts of the nation, including Texas, have shown that waterfowl pick up spent lead shot while feeding, and many are lost as a result of lead poisoning. "Texas is the major wintering area for Central Flyway waterfowl, so we believe Texas should emphasize the need to reduce this unnecessary loss by requiring the use of nontoxic shot in those areas where waterfowl are known to ingest lead shot," Brownlee said.

Steel load shotshells are available at sporting goods stores and other outlets in the steel shot zone areas, as well as in major metropolitan areas, Brownlee said.

Hunter influences deer meat quality

Deer hunters will soon be bringing home a lot of venison, and its quality depends on how the deer carcass is handled.

The entire process of handling the carcass from field to table can add or detract from the desirability of the final product. The hunter plays an important role in determining whether a deer steak is tender and tasty or tough and bad-flavored.

The following recommendations are offered for hunters to help improve the quality of venison they bring home.

1. Whenever a choice is available, select a female animal for less flavor intensity (gaminess). This does not mean that male animals provide undesirable meat, but rather that most consumers may prefer the less intense flavor of the female.

2. Whenever possible the shot in the neck or head insures a clean, rapid kill. This prevents a post-shot stress and also reduced tissue damage considerably.

3. Field dress the animal as soon as possible. If contents of the intestine or paunch have been spilled, rinse the carcass with water. A publication, L-634, entitled "Field Dressing Big Game" is available from the county extension office and provides more information.

4. When weather permits, leave the skin on the carcass to help conserve moisture. However, a little common sense dictates that carcasses should be skinned and covered with a fly proof bag in hot weather if a cooler is not accessible. Also, a male in the rut may have a strong urine odor on the hind legs and probably should be skinned prior to storage.

5. If the family prefers a somewhat more intense flavor which is similar to aged beef, hang the carcass in a locker for about a week before final processing. Again, common sense dictates storage in a clean locker which eliminates contamination or odors from poorly handled carcasses.

Researchers join staff

KINGSVILLE — Two researchers have joined the staff of the Caesar Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute at Texas A&I University. Richard Beck and Dwight Rhodes, both post-graduate fellows, will conduct mesquite research under the direction of Dr. Peter Felker, associate research scientist.

Beck, a native of New York, is a PhD candidate at Yale University's School of Environmental Studies. He earned the BS degree in natural resources from Cornell University in 1973 and a master's of forest science in 1975 at Louisiana State University.

He is working under a Department of Energy grant to study mesquite tissue cultures for exact duplication under laboratory conditions. These clonally propagated plants will later be transferred to field study sites.

Beck will also conduct research on mesquite breeding characteristics for conservation of valuable genetic traits.

Rhodes comes from Indiana where he spent two years as a research technician at Purdue University.

His research will include a screening study on the salt tolerance of Prosopis (mesquite), Leucaena and Acacia albida. These plants will be grown in a hydroponic salt solution which is equal to or greater than sea water.

This phase of his research is designed to test plants that can be grown economically in South Texas and other parts of the world where high salt concentrations prohibit the growth of other economical plants.

All plants normally have a fungus on their roots to aid in the absorption of vital nutrients. Rhodes plans to study mesquite fungus along with the plant's nitrogen-fixing bacteria and its root system in an effort to increase the growth of mesquite and other tree legumes.

His work is funded by the Agency for International Development.

Rhodes earned the MS degree in plant pathology in 1982 and the BS in 1977 in plant protection from the University of Arkansas.

Planning and zoning commission

Ownership provision changed

By PAT BLAIR
Staff writer

A provision in Rockport's proposed city charter that would require a member of the planning and zoning commission to own real property in the city was deleted by charter commission members in their meeting Monday, Nov. 15. The provision was adopted by the commission with reservations at the commission's Nov. 8 meeting. At this week's meeting, City Administrator Herman Johnson advised the commission that the provision was discriminatory.

"I think you can require a (planning and zoning) member to be a registered voter but anything beyond that is discriminatory. That's as far as you can go," Johnson said.

The nine charter commission members present Monday voted to delete the requirement. They left in the charter the provision that planning and zoning board members must be qualified city voters.

Proposed Section 10.05 of Article 10 — dealing with the planning and zoning commission — came under discussion and a rewrite was called for during the commission meeting that began at 5 p.m. at City Hall.

Section 10.05, titled "Legal effect of the Master Plan," was intended to require charter commission review of any ordinances, regulations or activities in the city that are not in compliance with the master plan which the P&Z board will be required, under the charter, to prepare.

Some members of the charter commission felt the first draft of this section was too broad.

As worded, this section required P&A approval of any "subdivision, street, park, public way, ground, water way or space, public building or structure or public utility" whether or not it complied with the master plan.

Commented Charter Commission Chairman Ed Armstrong, "I think that's giving too much power to the (planning and zoning) commission."

Charter commission member Jerry Beattie commented that the section should refer only to ordinances or developments that deviated from the master plan.

Mary Lou Tiner, chairman of the subcommittee responsible for drafting Article 10, said she would rewrite the section and present it for review at the charter commission's meeting next Monday, Nov. 22.

WATER FISHING

Here's a lure that lets any fisherman cast like an expert. Time after time, the Sprite assures that every cast will land where it should with unerring accuracy.

The secret? The Sprite is precision forged for reliable, controllable casting. The better side-to-side wobble action attracts more fish. It won't sail in the breeze as stamped spoons do, and its scientific teardrop design insures greater accuracy and distance. Whether it's spinning, spin-casting or bait-casting, Sprite is made to give results.

Rockport artist receives fellowship

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. — Ten artists have been chosen to receive $150,000 in fellowships ($15,000 each) as part of the Awards in the Visual Arts (AVA) program. The AVA program, now in its second year, is a national program administered by the Southeastern Center for Contemporary Art in Winston-Salem.

The artists — six painters, one sculptor, one photographer, one video/performance artist and one in drawing — were chosen from a field of 480 artists, all of whom were nominated for consideration by a network of arts professionals.

Included among the award-winning artists is Jesus Bautista Morales of Rockport, a sculptor. Morales studied at the El Centro Junior College in Dallas and at North Texas State University in Denton. His work has been included in exhibitions at the Texas Invitational Sculpture Show in Huntsville; the Amarillo Art Center; the Denver Museum of Art; the Longview Museum and Art Center; the Hills County Arts Foundation; and the Center for Art Performance in Houston.

The AVA program is designed to give comprehensive, national exposure to visual arts of outstanding achievement. In addition to the $15,000 fellowship, Morales' works will be included in a major exhibition which will debut at the Chicago Museum of Contemporary Art on June 11, 1983.

AVA is sponsored by a corporation / foundation / federal agency partnership comprised of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, the Rockefeller Foundation and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Fellowship recipients were nominated from 10 regions of the country which have been determined using current statistical data on artist population density. They were chosen by a jury comprised of five arts professionals.

AARP news

By Lucille E. Skrobareck

The winners of game afternoon on Thursday, Nov. 11, were Dorothy Glassel and Wanda Smith. The finale was won by three players, Otto Payne, Beverly Pacells and Frances Wofford.

The hostesses for this party were Myrtle DeForest and Frances Wofford. Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

The next game afternoon will be on Thursday, Nov. 18, at 1 p.m., at the Paws and Taws building.

AARP-sponsored dances are held on Thursday night of each week, from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., at the Paws and Taws building. The public is invited. There will be no dance on Nov. 25.

Only one meeting will be held in December at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, Dec. 8. This will consist of the installation of officers, gift-giving and the annual Christmas program by the Rockport-Fulton High School Choir under the direction of Martha Luigi.

All members are asked to bring canned goods or dry staples for the Christmas baskets to be given to the poor in the community. A sandwich lunch will be furnished by the chapter.

The "55 Alive Defensive Driving Course" will be offered a second time at 9:30 a.m. on Nov. 30, and Dec. 1. If you wish to take advantage of this course, please call Florence Samson or Frances Cook. The charge is $7 for the course.

The AARP Thanksgiving Dinner on Wednesday, Nov. 10, was a delightful affair, attended by 60 members and 14 visitors.

After a delicious turkey dinner with all the trimmings, officers for 1983 were elected. These newly elected officers will be installed at the Dec. 8 meeting.

Florence and Frank Samson presented a most interesting account of their recent trip to Alaska. Through a slide presentation and commentary they covered the entire trip, featuring the highlights along the way as well as in Alaska. The photography was outstanding and the scenery was magnificent. It was a fitting climax to a perfect Thanksgiving celebration.

Activities

Trail-R Inn

A full swing of winter activities has started at Trav-Trail-R Inn on North Highway 35.

A few of the events include a fried shrimp dinner for 65 people held Thursday, Nov. 11, with Ken Cook, Bill Braun and Red Kyle as cooks.

An exercise class has begun with Joyce Goosen instructing 15 gals every morning.

Card game tournaments and shuffleboard tournaments are held in the park and interpark shuffleboard tournaments have been set up with Trav-Trail-R Inn, Travel Trailer Haven and Taylor Oaks participating every Wednesday afternoon.

Nineteen people from TTI enjoyed the Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association dinner and travel show Wednesday, Nov. 10.

4-H'ers elect A&H queen

The Aransas County 4-H Club met Monday night, Nov. 8, at the Aransas County Courthouse. The meeting was called to order by Tammy Wendland. Richard Wendland led the 4-H motto and Carrie Livingston led in the 4-H pledge. The inspiration was read by Tammy Wendland. Annalies Corbin, secretary, called the roll and read the minutes from the last meeting. Richard Wendland, treasurer, gave the treasurer's report. The newsletter was read and information concerning the food show was read. A lamb clinic and rabbit clinic will be coming up which members were reminded of.

It was decided to buy another blow-dryer for the club to be used during the A & H Show. The queen candidate for the Aransas County 4-H Club will be Tammy Wendland.

Scouts fix up hut property

Cub Scout Pack 340 — Den 1, Webelos Den and interested parents cleaned up litter around the scout hut last weekend, Nov. 6-7, in anticipation of future improvements on the scout hut property.

During the following week, the leadership core of new Boy Scout Troop 454 began painting the floor of the hut, using paint and supplies donated by Wagley & Lilly Home Center.

Those interested in donating materials to be used in the renovation of the scout hut should contact J. Curtis Kovacs, Troop 454 scoutmaster.

Drive includes food, toys, clothes

DALLAS — "Food, toys, clothing and visits are all part of The Salvation Army's year-round ministry. But it takes on a new meaning as we endeavor to leave no one out during the holiday season," stated Lt. Colonel John Mikles, Texas divisional commander of The Salvation Army.

Red kettles, bands, carols sung on street corners — they're all part of The Salvation Army holiday ministry. But it's the hope in the face of a prisoner, the warmth in the handshake of an old person, the joy in the eyes of a child that really tell the story of all The Salvation Army is doing to make God's love real during the holidays. Each year at Christmas, The Salvation Army aids millions of people across the nation. This aid takes on many forms, but no matter how it comes, it is the love of God made real through the compassion and concern of today's Salvation Army.

It comes as warm clothing for the cold, a comforting word for the sick, a friendly hand to the lost and lonely. For the imprisoned, God's love comes in the form of holiday worship services and Salvation Army workers who bring small gifts and encouragement to those locked away from family and friends.

Behind it all, though, is the same Salvation Army message, "Sharing is Caring."

For children, God's love comes in the form of toys to those who would otherwise receive none. For the elderly, God's love comes in the smile and warm hand-clasp of The Salvation Army visitor who brings a small gift and the joy of the holiday season to shut-ins and those in retirement homes.

For the poor, the lost, the homeless, God's love

Legionnaire to chair committee

AUSTIN — Joe L. Matthews of Fort Worth, past National Commander of the American Legion and past Texas Commander of the Legion, was appointed by Robert P. Nimmo, VA Administrator, to chair the VA Advisory Committee on VA National Cemeteries and Memorials.

Matthews holds the distinct honor of being appointed to this Committee by three different presidents. Both President Nixon and Carter named Matthews to this committee, and this week President Reagan announced his re-appointment of Matthews to a third term.

Nimmo stated in his letter to Matthews, "...I am certain your advice, counsel and leadership will be of great help to me in administering this very sensitive program. In addition, your experience with the previous committee will be invaluable to the new members."

Commenting on his appointment as Chairman of the Committee, Matthews said, "I am deeply honored with this appointment and look forward to the challenge of helping with the growth of the VA Cemetery system world-wide. I am particularly flattered and surprised that I was named chairman since others who held this position were either retired Admirals or Generals of the highest order. To the best of my knowledge, I am the first former enlisted man to receive this honor."

Matthews served his country during World War II in the C.B.'s with duty in the South Pacific where he attained the rank of Chief Boatswain Mate.

Pet Talks

By Dr. Hap Lutz

Since 1978, dogs of all ages and breeds have been victims of a highly contagious virus disease that attacks the digestive tract, white blood cells and heart muscle.

The virus is resistant to extremes of environmental conditions and can survive for long periods. It is readily transmitted on the hair or feet of infected dogs.

The first signs of Parvo infection, usually is vomiting and severe diarrhea and will appear five to seven days after the dog has been exposed. Animals dehydrate rapidly, become depressed, lose appetite and develop exceedingly high temperature.

Many deaths occur within two to three days following onset of clinical signs. If the virus attacks the heart muscle, death may occur within a few minutes.

If you have a sick animal with any of these symptoms, call your veterinarian immediately. The dehydration must be combated and vomiting and diarrhea controlled. Specific antibiotics must be administered — plus good, tender nursing care. With the best of care, the mortality rate is very high.

Prevention is the answer for Parvo with vaccines. Your veterinarian will give two separate doses, administered approximately two to three weeks apart. Full protection does not develop until one week after the second vaccination. Then a booster injection is given every six months for the rest of their life. Always remember that prevention is better and cheaper than treatment. Every dog should be placed on a vaccination program.

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the College of Veterinary Medicine, Texas A&M University.

State Representative John Sharp was born on July 18, 1950. He grew up in Placedo, Texas where he attended Placedo Elementary School and later Bloomington High School. At Bloomington High School he was President of the Student Council, President of the Future Farmers, President of the Future Teachers and was a participant in the State Meet in Debate Competition. After high school he attended Texas A&M University in College Station where he served four years as a member of the Corp of Cadets. He was also elected Sophomore Class President, elected Student Life Chairman and his senior year elected Student Body President of Texas A&M University. A committee of the U.S. Congress chose Rep. Sharp as one of the top five student leaders in America. He represented wives of American MIA's and POW's at the Paris Peace Talks in France in 1971. He was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Army upon graduation and he received a Bachelors Degree in Political Science from Texas A&M. He later received a Masters Degree in Public Administration from Southwest Texas State University while attending night school as he was working for the Legislative Budget Board. During his work on the Legislative Budget Board, Rep. Sharp designed the first draft of the "zero-based" budgeting system which is now used throughout Texas government and he was appointed by Lieutenant Governor Bill Hobby to a 10-man committee which implemented this efficient budgeting system state-wide.

John Sharp was first elected to the Texas House of Representatives from the 40th District on Nov. 7, 1978, winning a five-man race without a runoff. His first term committee appointments included Ways and Means Committee, the Constitutional Amendments Committee and the Local and Consent Calendar Committee.

In June of 1979, following that legislative session, John Sharp was chosen by "Texas Monthly" magazine as the "Outstanding Freshman" in the Texas House of Representatives. In his second Legislative session he served as Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee for Budget and Oversight and was a member of the Committees on Constitutional Amendments and Local and Consent Calendars. He also serves as a member of the Coastal and Marine Council and was appointed as one of only three legislators to serve on the "Task Force on Traffic Safety" which will focus on traffic and particularly on strengthening DWI laws. He is married to the former Charlotte Han of Austin and they have a son, Spencer, who is three. They are members of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Victoria.

Sharp owns and operates "The Sharp Company" real estate firm, and is a real estate broker.

Kids need nutritious snacks

Children love to snack and when they do, many reach for a food that is quick, easy and filling.

Unfortunately, those foods usually contain only calories and few of the essential nutrients.

A nutritious "super snack" for children, on the other hand, provides some protein, vitamins and minerals, and it's low in fat and sugar.

Sound impossible? It is possible — and it can be fun.

First, let children help prepare the food. They can learn where food comes from and basic cooking skills.

Young children can increase motor skills when they help measure ingredients, mix batter and pour liquids. Also, if children help in the preparation they are more likely to eat the food.

Also, remember that small children actually need to eat between meals because they cannot eat enough at mealtime.

A preschooler will probably do better with five or six "mini meals" rather than three big meals.

Nutritious "super snacks" for children should be planned and they should come from the familiar food groups.

Excellent snacks for children from the milk group are yogurt, pudding, chunks of cheese and ice cream.

From the meat group a "good old friend," peanut butter is always great. Also consider a hard boiled egg, peanuts or a slice of meat.

From the fruit-vegetable group, juice is excellent and so is any raw fruit or vegetable. Cut fruit into small manageable pieces so the child won't have problems eating it.

From the bread and cereal group try rice pudding or cereal, graham crackers or toast with honey.

Remember that snack foods alone cannot provide all the nutrients children need. But if you carefully select foods for snacks and ask the child to help with its preparation, "super snacking" can be fun and nutritious.

Water gives life & transmits disease

Water gives life. It also transmits disease. Nearly four-fifths of diseases in the world are related to water. Each year, about 15 million children below five years of age die in developing countries. Over 30 percent of these deaths are caused by diarrhea from drinking polluted water.

Millions of women and children travel miles to fetch water needed for drinking, washing and cooking. The source may be a river, stream, pond or an open well. All too often, this water is contaminated. People have no choice but to drink it.

The United Nations has sponsored the International Drinking Water Supply and Sanitation Decade (1981-90) with the goal of universal access to safe water and sanitation in 10 years. UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund, is actively involved in this world-wide effort. If it succeeds, about 20 million deaths of young children and many more cases of illnesses will have been averted each year.

Healthful hints

By Jean Glowka

O. I just started taking birth control pills. My doctor told me to take extra vitamin B-6 and vitamin E in addition to my usual vitamin supplements. I didn't want to sound dumb so I didn't ask him why. But I'd really like to know, if you could tell me.

A. Sounds like you have a wise doctor! Oral contraceptives increase the need for B-6, thereby causing such deficiency symptoms as water retention, headaches, hemorrhoids and nausea.

Vitamin E requirement is also increased by taking oral contraceptives. Vitamin E deficiency in women using the pill can cause varicose veins, pulmonary embolisms and even strokes.

O. Can the desire to drink (alcoholic beverages) be caused by a B-vitamin deficiency? A friend told me that. Sounds far out to me!

A. Not so far out. Experiments have shown that persons who drink excessively have multiple nutritional deficiencies, and that this in itself can cause a desire to drink.

Excessive drinkers who have been kept on superior diets containing above-average amounts of the B-vitamins, especially niacinamide, have often lost all desire for liquor. When alcoholic depression has been the main problem, 1,000 mgs. of niacinamide have been given at meals, bedtime and between meals with great success.

Much good research has been done in this area.

Vitamin B deficiency appears to be a major cause of alcoholism, but low blood-sugar is also of extreme importance. Too many alcoholics suffer needlessly by being unaware of the value of good nutrition!

Until next week, folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Please send questions to: Rt. 1, Box 437, Rockport, Tx. 78382.

Child can be emotionally abused by alcohol

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

A child growing up in a home with alcoholic parents can be emotionally abused.

This is not a visible form of abuse. If there are bruises and broken bones, teachers or neighbors will probably report this. People as a whole don't want to get involved in the family problems of alcoholics. That is not their business.

Young men and women who have grown up under these circumstances say it is terribly lonely and frightening. They do not understand what is happening to them and why. What they see in their house is normal to them because they have never known anything else.

Denial is a part of alcohol abuse, and the children are caught up in this. They know that for some reason they don't talk about it with one another or with anyone else. They don't bring children home after school because the parent who drinks is unpredictable and they don't know what friends might encounter if they had friends. So it is better not to get involved in activities that would make other children feel close enough to you to expect to come to your house.

Some children begin abusing alcohol themselves. It's available. Their parents may be at a point where they don't know what's going on. Or it may be a part of the denial and they would not believe that their child drinks. The child may have been taught that alcoholism is a part of having fun and may not know any other way to "have fun."

There are so many obstacles to a child getting help. He often feels guilty, as though his parents drinking is somehow his fault. If he understands the situation and realizes that this is not the norm, he feels disloyal to talk to someone else about his parents whom he loves despite the fact that he may feel terrible anger toward them.

If he goes to a relative, a teacher, a minister, that person may or may not realize the extent of the problem. People often say, "Oh, children have a hard time getting along with their parents. They go through a phase. This is not something to worry about."

If the child is fortunate, he may reach a professional working in alcoholism programs who can quickly determine what a difficult situation the child is in. Even then, what can be done is limited.

The professional will help the child understand that it is not his fault, that he must not feel guilt. He can be helped to deal with his hostilities, to accept the situation realistically, to know that he cannot change his parents' behavior. The young person can become a part of groups of other children of alcoholics who support and strengthen one another.

No one knows how many children there are in the Coastal Bend living in this type of environment, emotionally abused. Sadly, we can feel sure the situation is not uncommon.

Petroleum school registration set

VICTORIA — Registrations are now being accepted for two upcoming schools at the Petroleum Training Institute.

A week-long course in drilling practices will begin Nov. 19 and a workover and well completion school will start Dec. 6 and run for five days.

Each participant will receive a comprehensive training manual and a hand calculator.

Practical hands-on experience will be provided through use of the SIM-TRAN Derrick Floor and Workover Simulators. These programs are designed for drillers, tool-pushers, company representatives, well services employees, field supervisors and drilling engineers. Additional information may be obtained by calling the PTI office at the University of Houston at Victoria, 576-3151.

Flying physicians hold regional meet

Thirty-eight members of the Flying Physicians Association and their families arrived in Rockport Thursday, Nov. 11, for the Southwest regional meeting of the association.

regional flight surgeon, from Fort Worth.

The Real Estate Consumer

If you are considering investing in undeveloped land, there are four characteristics of the property you should consider.

These are physical, economic, governmental and sociological.

Physical forces include the size and shape of the parcel, topography, vegetation, soil and subsoil conditions.

The economic factors include those at the national, regional, state and local levels. These include employment, economic base, income and price levels, interest rates and inflation. Governmental factors you should evaluate include utilities, services, taxes, building codes and environmental regulations.

Sociological considerations include demographics, attitudes and tastes.

As you can see, investing in undeveloped land requires the buyer to have access to a wide range of data. Unless you have considerable time and expertise, you will need expert assistance.

Animal control report

Two warnings and one citation were issued to owners of animals in violation of Rockport's animal control ordinance during October, according to Doug Wilcox, city animal control officer.

Wilcox, in a report to the city council Monday night, Nov. 8, said 40 dogs and seven cats were impounded during the month and eight dogs were returned to their owner or adopted.

Twenty-five dogs and all seven cats were destroyed because of injury or illness. One skunk was reported dead on a roadway.

One dogbite was reported during the month and was handled by the county animal control officer. The city received 125 animal calls during the month.

Since the production has been moved back to the auditorium, the play has been completely restaged. In addition, more set-building will take place for a proscenium production than in the round. Rice has borrowed platforms, steps, lockers and blowups of 1959 yearbook annual photographs from other schools. "My favorite borrowed thing is an eight-foot portrait of James Dean," says Rice, which he plans to make a part of the set. Set-building will begin shortly, he said. Eleven boys and 11 girls fill the principle roles, with 30 more students filling out the company. Rice is proud of them and believes they have adapted well to the difficulty of the working situation and rehearsal conditions.

Most of the students involved in the production agree that the working and rehearsal conditions have not always been the best — but that the setbacks just encourage them to work even harder. "Although the theater in the round would have been a new experience," says Willie Rice (no relation to David Rice) "I'm glad we'll be able to do it in the auditorium. Having to switch things around four weeks before the performance, however, creates difficulties, he said.

Sundy Thompson agrees. "There have been a lot of changes but they're all for the better," she says. Learning to keep the dancing, singing and acting together instead of just concentrating on one is another new experience for her. "I really don't think we can miss since everyone in it (the show) has such fantastic talent."

Many of the other students view working closely with one another as a sort of family experience. In addition, those students whose enthusiasm has not matched those of the cast and crew have largely dropped out of the production, which makes life easier for those who are seriously dedicated to putting on a good show.

Tickets for the production will be sold in advance in the drama room before school, at noon, and after school. In addition, tickets may be purchased by calling the high school office at 729-5473. Tickets are $3.50 in advance or $4 at the door. Curtain time will be 7:30 p.m. on both Dec. 10 and 11.

"A long time ago the taxpayers made an investment in these harbors and the harbors were sold to the taxpayers when they were first built as pleasure boat harbors. So now time has gone by and the taxpayer made the original investment and he's entitled to a return on his original investment in the way of expanding, more boat slips, more boats and more people," said Holman.

Asked how this would effect him in the August 1983 elections for the ACND board Holman said, "August is a long way away."

'They have . . . questions to answer' him and his work at the ACND Holman said, "I think it's up to me. I think they would like to forget about it; I've been right all along and they have been wrong and everybody knows it."

Holman continued, saying, "I think they have a lot of questions to answer. I think they have to answer to the taxpayers of this county for spending $5,000 of their money."

Holman says he thinks things will be better now and he feels he can get on with the work that needs to be done at the ACND. "I think we'll get a lot done in the next eight or nine months."

Holman says that one of the problems he has had is having to deal with the constant pressures for the past several months.

The commissioner says the reason he got involved with the navigation district in the first place is because the boat slips are not equitably leased and there aren't enough of them. "I'd like to sell a new harbor to this community. I think they would benefit from it — the benefits are immeasurable."

staircase to the large glass-enclosed balcony with an unobstructed view of the Rockport Harbor and beautiful Aransas Bay as well as most of downtown Rockport. Christian says the ship's wheel, compass and bell should be popular for the younger visitors.

The exhibits in the Texas Maritime Museum will be vibrant, ever-changing and will weave from the old to the modern, Christian said.

"The visitor will enter the museum to be entertained and depart enlightened and educated," according to planners of the project.

The two-acre site surrounding the museum building will be made into a well-kept park with winding walkways lined with such artifacts as cannons, ships' wheels and old anchors. A visitor can enjoy the grounds and the covered veranda without entering the museum.

Christian says the museum should be a real asset to the attractiveness and beauty of the area.

Building plans for the museum are almost completed. John Hicklin is the architect, Al Barnes is the artist and Bill Christian will be the builder.

Membership to the Texas Maritime Museum is open to everyone with annual dues of $15. Anyone interested in becoming a member can call the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce or send their name, address and $15 to Texas Maritime Museum Association Inc., P.O. Box 968, Rockport, Texas 78382.

Drainage

City Alderman Richard Beck observed, "We're getting to the point where we have to have a county-wide drainage plan," to which Mills said, "We're at that point now." Later, Mills added, "I think we need to stop talking and start doing." Noting that in 1981 the city and county were talking about joint action on a drainage plan, Mills added, "It's always come to a stalemate. Where does it stalemate?"

Griffith said he believed the reason in 1981 was that County Judge John Wendell was hospitalized.

Alderwoman Betty Jean Ward put in, "I think we should start pushing" for another meeting with county officials.

Urban told council members they could consider three possible alternatives to handle the county's and city's drainage problems: a drainage district, some type of special fund that would be collected from developers or a bond issue.

No action was taken on the drainage matters except to call Tuesday's special meeting.

In discussion of Rockport's application for funding to continue work on proposed expansion of the city's wastewater treatment plant, Urban told council members the city will definitely not be considered for federal funding in an upcoming Dec. 9 meeting in Austin.

The reason, he said, was that 1983 federal funds for wastewater projects in Texas were released earlier than expected — this year rather than in April, 1983, as originally expected — and Rockport project had not been reclassified from "planning" to "ready-to-proceed."

Urban added the next appropriation of funds — for 1984 — could come as early as April, 1983, and "we (Rockport) will be in the lineup for that." He emphasized this does not mean Rockport will receive funds to proceed with the proposed expansion of its sanitary sewer system. "It just means we'll be considered for funding."

The city applied for funding through the Environmental Protection Agency grant program in 1980 and received a Step grant for a feasibility study. With completion of Step 1, the city is now seeking Step 2 and Step 3 funds that will help pay for design and construction of the plant expansion.

Urban said the program is gradually being phased out and 1984 will be the city's "last shot" at receiving a grant that will pay 75 percent of the project costs.

In 1985, the federal grants will fund only 55 percent of the project and that figure will decrease with successive years.

Management of arthritis requires team approach

COLLEGE STATION — Managing arthritis requires a team approach and depends as much on the arthritis sufferer as on the doctor.

"Arthritis is a term applied to more than 100 different diseases, each of which — in some way — affects the joints. Americans spend an estimated $4 billion each year on arthritis care and relief, making it an extremely costly health problem," explains Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

By practicing "self-management," arthritis sufferers can do much to help themselves live a normal life.

"With your doctor's help, decide on a self-management program that best suits your needs," Shirer suggests.

Self-management activities include:

- Breaking the pain/depression/stress cycle through either medication, relaxation techniques, or just keeping your mind busy on other things.

- Exercise — although exercise is vitally important to keep joints flexible, you must also know when not to exercise. If a joint is red and hot, exercise should be limited to minimal movement.

- Protect affected joints from injury and overexertion by proper lifting techniques, avoiding prolonged periods of maintaining the same joint position, and balancing work with rest to conserve energy and strength.

- Practice good eating habits and maintain ideal body weight. With the exception of gout, there is no concrete scientific evidence that eating or not eating certain foods affects arthritis.

- Many types of heat help arthritis pain. Be careful not to cause burn, however.

- Cold compresses will have numbing effect and give relief from pain for some arthritis sufferers.

- Good posture — whether resting, sleeping, standing or walking — is vitally important for people with any kind of arthritis.

"Finally, it is important to work closely with your doctor. Since there are many types of arthritis, the first step is an accurate diagnosis. Your local Arthritis Foundation office also can help you in managing arthritis," Shirer says.

The Fantail — "a family affair"

Operation of the Fantail, Aransas County's newest restaurant, is "strictly an old-fashioned family affair," says Margie Hunter.

Run primarily by Margie, her daughter Susan Forrest and son-in-law Don Forrest, the Fantail opened for business Monday, Nov. 15, on Hwy. 35 north of Fulton. "It's based on the fish and chips places in England, but it will offer more," says Margie. Hours are 11 a.m. 'til 11 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and 11 a.m. until 3 p.m. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays and breakfasts will be served along with lunch and dinner.

The specialty will, of course, be seafood — as restaurant goers could guess from a look around the walls of the restaurant. Artist Ron Baker of Ingleside did the murals that cover the walls — whimsical fish, shrimp, whales — even a mermaid and King Neptune.

"We didn't have a lot of money for decoration," said Margie, "and I thought I'd better put something on the walls..."

Shrimp for the restaurant will be brought in fresh by Don who has his own boat, "and most of the year, we'll bring the fish in from the Gulf," Margie said. She added, "We'll also make our own soups and desserts."

Margie has been coming to Aransas County "on and off" for the last two years and has been a permanent resident since last May. Don — who besides helping run the restaurant did all the construction work on it — has been a resident here for about two years.

The Fantail is located on Hwy. 35 north of Fulton. The phone number is 729-4111.

Broadway is my beat.....With Joey Sasso

The lives of Princess Grace and Ingrid Bergman — dead within three weeks of each other — intertwined in a bizarre series of coincidences.

Both became enmeshed early on in the web of Alfred Hitchcock, master of the marabre. Both wed Europeans and got involved in highly emotional conflicts. And both, towards the end, were feuding over a Romeo-Juliet problem involving their rebellious children.

The hassle, which shamed Ingrid and affronted the elegant Princess Grace, seems insignificant now — a petty squabble which sullied the dignity of two gracious women.

Ingrid's handsome son, Robertino, fell madly in love with gay divorcee Princess Caroline and dreamed of making her his bride. But her status-conscious mother refused to even consider the match, because Robertino was technically illegitimate.

In a weird twist of fate, the shocking deaths of their mothers has paved the way for a reunion between Robertino and Caroline and Monaco royalty — watchers predicting an engagement announcement in the near future.

Caroline's former husband, Philippe Junot, disclosed the tragic story recently. The jet-set playboy confided in a European newspaper interview: "If his parents had been married before he was born, I believe Princess Grace would probably have allowed him to marry Caroline. He is a handsome, charming Italian and was a friend of Caroline when she was young."

Placido Domingo was guest of honor at a dinner party in which the guests were gifted with a large photo of the opera star. Domingo said, "If you like to frame me. If you don't hang me!"

Once - glamorous Rita Hayworth has become a tragic wreck who lives in a dream world. The prematurely-aged '40s sex-symbol is suffering from an incurable brain disease brought on in part by her st heavy drinking. Tragically, it has plunged her into early senility.

Friends say that in her confused state of mind she imagines herself to be Gilda, a role she made famous in Hollywood. "At a recent showbiz party she suddenly began to act like a 30-year-old," an insider said. "She became Gilda, acting outrageously with men, and walking seductively. She began to dance wildly and sang 'Put the Blame on Mame,' the song she made famous in her Gilda role," the insider confided.

"Most of the time," the source added, "she doesn't even know who Rita Hayworth is. In her mind, she's Gilda." Now stone-broke, Rita is totally dependent on her 32-year-old daughter, Yasmin, who looks after her. A former stepson, Karim, son of the late Aly Khan, recently gave his half-sister, Yasmin, $80,000 to help meet Rita's huge medical expenses when Yasmin found she was unable to pay them herself.

Head And Behind The Headlines
Handsome heartthrob Engelbert Humperdinck is courageously battling to save a gift far more precious than his sexy singing voice — he's fighting to save his eyesight.

The 46-year-old entertainer has admitted to his family that he will go blind if revolutionary laser treatment fails to mend the mangled tissue that is destroying his vision.

We have learned that Humperdinck was involved in a dramatic 7,000-mile mercy flight from his home in Los Angeles to Moorfields Eye Hospital in London, England — the most advanced eye treatment facility in the world. Specialists there are gambling on a painful, seldom-used technique called "laserburn" to repair damaged eye tissue. "It's a miraculous treatment," a London eye specialist told me. "If the laser works, it will literally glue together the torn tissue behind his eye. If it doesn't, he will lose his eyesight."

Humperdinck's close friend, Carol Darley, met the singer, his wife Pat and their 18-year-old daughter, Louise, when they arrived in London, Darley told me. "It's very sad, but there's no doubt he will go blind if the condition goes untreated. He has a tear at the back of one of his eyes and Moorfields is the only place in the world where he can get the treatment he needs."

The Larry King Show... The format will highlight head-to-head interviews with prominent guests and King's popular "Open Phone America" segment.

Larry King holds a valued reputation for attracting hard-to-get interview guests ranging from former Presidents to Frank Sinatra; from Danny Kaye to Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin; from Sophia Loren to nuclear physicist Dr. Edward Teller.

Many of the influential and glamorous guests that have appeared on his radio show have already consented to appear on The Larry King television show. King's popular "Open Phone America" will become a regular feature on the television program. This is the segment where the airwaves will be open to the public as King takes telephone calls from across America.

Callers will have the opportunity to question King's guests or trade remarks directly with King. In making the announcement Don Menchel commented, "Larry King's Show is a natural for television. He already has an enormous, built-in audience from coast-to-coast, and with the bonus of nightly cross promotion on his radio show, we feel assured of enthusiastic station acceptance and advertiser support." "No doubt about it: Larry King is a compelling personality," added Alan Perris. "He's got his finger on the pulse-beat of America and his show is going to be irresistible to the mass audience."

Welk comes back to TV... Just as fast as you can say a-one and a-two and a-three, Lawrence Welk's baton will once again be tapping that very same rhythm.

Mr. Welk will star in another weekly program entitled, "Memories with Lawrence Welk." Now showing nationwide, the first show will feature such favorites as The Lennon Sisters and Welk's own acclaimed Champagne Music Makers.

Fifty-two shows have been selected by the famed orchestra leader from the more than 600 color hours he has hosted.

For each program Welk will produce new introductions and closings recalling the special memories associated with that show.

Guest entertainers such as Jack Benny and Barbara Mandrell, plus former show regulars like The Lennon Sisters and Pete Fountain will reappear for the millions of fans who have enjoyed their company over the years.

"Memories with Lawrence Welk" will also have specially-produced programs for each holiday. The key features of Welk's new format will be the nostalgia of reuniting the Welk family and seeing memorable guest stars perform against the background of America's favorite music.

The ceremonies will take place at Los Angeles' new Excelsior Restaurant from 6 to 8 p.m. Among those selected for the award by a panel of prominent wine and food writers are: Richard Baseheart, Burgess Meredith, Jean Marsh, Phyllis Diller, Richard Thomas, Dick Martin, Virginia Mayo, Patricia Morrison and Ed McMahon.

Hollywood's Ray Sharkey, who hails from Brooklyn, and is on his way to the top, speaks with alarming candor about his past, present and future in an exclusive interview in the December issue of Gallery Magazine (on newsstands today).

Sharkey's film credits include "The Idolmaker," "Willie and Phil," and "Some Kind of Hero," with Richard Pryor. His next picture is "Regina" with Ava Gardner.

Sharkey explains some of his attitudes about Hollywood and today's movie business in the Gallery interview. "People will hate you if you're doing bad and love you if you're hot in this town... they trust you deal by deal."

you wear on your back, the kind of car you drive. A producer is not going to give you four or five million dollars to drive up to his place in a beat-up Volkswagen. And he doesn't want to show up at your house for dinner and find you live by the airport somewhere in a $100-a-month apartment.

"People behind the camera live in big houses in Beverly Hills and drive Rolls Royces and Mercedes Benzes. They look trustworthy and respectable, but they can be untrustworthy and despicable," Sharkey continues, "status without meaning doesn't count. Your work has to be good. You have to deliver. If you don't deliver, you wind up on some TV show."

"They make good money on TV, they don't get awards, they don't get respect."

Richard Burton declines to see his own movies and since he had made about 30 that's a lot of pictures not to see. But the champion star who never saw one of his 120 films was the late George Sanders. Writer-producer Andrew J. Fenady recalls at Burt Bacharach's Inn, East Norwich, L.I., meeting Hollywood's most-polished cad several years before his death and was amazed to learn Sanders had never seen himself on the screen and rarely remembered who was in his films or what they were about.

Fenady complimented him on his performance in "All About Eve" with Bette Davis for which he won an Oscar. "You enjoyed it?" Sanders asked Fenady. "Well, there's no accounting for taste." About his marriage to Zsa Zsa Gabor he remembered nothing. "We never talked. She was always under the hair drier."

CCSU offers pre-advisement dates

CORPUS CHRISTI — This semester, Corpus Christi State University is introducing for the first time a pre-advisement period which will allow currently enrolled and prospective students to place themselves in spring classes before Registration Day, Wednesday, Jan. 12.

According to Dr. Albert Trevino, assistant to the president for academic affairs, pre-advisement dates have been set for Monday through Friday, Nov. 15-19, for all colleges in the university.

Current students are advised to make appointments to insure availability of their advisors. New students need to stop first at the Office of Admissions in the Administration Building.

Students who participate in the pre-advisement program will be able to pick up their packets in the dean's office of the college in which they are enrolled after 1 p.m. Monday, Jan. 10.

Their class cards will be in the packets.

On Registration Day, Jan. 12, the students may then bypass the advising process and the lines to pick up class cards and go straight to the fee table.

All students who choose pre-advisement are warned that their fees should be paid by 8 p.m. Jan. 12. After Jan. 12, class cards will no longer be reserved.

The pre-advising program is being introduced in an effort to speed up the registration process, Trevino says, and all students are encouraged to take advantage of it.

Current students should check with the dean's office of their college if they don't remember who their advisor is, he says.

For those students who cannot participate in the pre-advisement program, advisors will be available during Registration Day, as well as Jan. 10 and 11.

Before pre-advisement, current and prospective students should pick up a spring semester 1983 course schedule.

On campus, schedules are available in the dean's offices; the Student Financial Assistance Office, the Registrar's Office and the Admissions Office all located on the first floor of the Administration Building; the bookstore in the Student Center; Center for the Sciences; the computer center in Corpus Christi Hall; Center for the Arts; the Field House; and the library.

Off campus, schedules may be obtained at any of Corpus Christi's four public libraries and at Del Mar College's Counseling Center and Bee County College.
