Reagan cites 'real progress' in talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan returned home from his Moscow summit to a campaign-style star-spangled welcome Friday, and said his talks with Mikhail S. Gorbachev would prove "good and promising for the future."

"Peace and freedom are what this trip was about and we saw some real progress in several areas in Moscow," the president said moments after stepping off Air Force One, his memorable 11,000-mile journey at an end.

He claimed progress on human rights, regional conflicts and "tangible progress" toward a new arms control treaty — even though his talks with Gorbachev produced no breakthrough on a new pact.

Reagan and his wife Nancy were greeted by Vice President George Bush and his wife Barbara as they stepped off their plane onto a red carpet.

The scene at Andrews Air Force Base was as meticulously orchestrated as any in Reagan's two terms in the White House — a receiving line of dignitaries, several thousand invited guests waving small American flags and a Marine band playing "Ruffles and Flourishes" and the national anthem.

"As far as Nancy and I are concerned, there's no place like home," Reagan said, as the audience cheered.

The president pronounced himself and his wife as "weary travelers," and he seemed to lose his place once while reading his prepared remarks.

He touched on many of the same themes he raised several hours earlier in a speech in London.

There, the president said his summit talks with Gorbachev may have begun dismantling Cold War barriers, but he vowed America will remain wary and strong as it seeks lasting changes in Soviet policies.

Assessing his first visit to the Kremlin before an applauding audience of British admirers, Reagan said he found Gorbachev to be "a serious man seeking serious reform," and believed the superpowers may be entering "a new era of history."

Although the Soviet leader had expressed disappointment over the lack of major summit achievements, Reagan said in his London speech Friday that there had been "tangible progress" toward treaty agreement for a drastic reduction in stockpiles of strategic nuclear weapons.

"Such a treaty...is, I believe, now within our grasp," he said.

But a senior Reagan adviser, national security adviser Colin Powell, seemed somewhat more cautious in speaking with reporters during the long flight home from England.

Powell said the U.S.-Soviet relationship is now "solidly in place" but said there are major differences blocking the way to a comprehensive arms control treaty. "We have to take this slowly," he said. "In the next six months, the next six years, if you don't come home with a treaty that the experts, the Congress, don't see as strong...it'll never be ratified."

The president made no prediction of a treaty agreement in his remarks in Washington, and did not mention the possibility of a future summit with Gorbachev before his term ends next January.

Reagan noted that he and Gorbachev exchanged ratification documents in Moscow for the pact they agreed to last December and ticked off several other accomplishments of his five days in Moscow.

"All of this was good and promising for the future," he said.

"The events of this week in Moscow were momentous, not conclusive perhaps but momentous...You know it's occurred to me that time does have a way of sorting things out," he said.

Seminole firefighter Ray Saldana hoses down hot spots following an explosion and fire Friday that leveled a Lamesa fuel storage company. Firefighters from four area communities assisted in bringing the fire, which threatened several liquified petroleum tanks, under control.

Fuel firm's owners not seriously injured in Lamesa explosion

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

LAMESA — The owners of a fuel storage company had no immediate damage estimate Friday after an explosion and fire leveled their business, located about three blocks east of the downtown square.

Two people were slightly injured in the 10:30 a.m. blast that gutted the Everheart Oil Co. — an oil, gas and butane storage business.

About 20 downtown businesses were forced to evacuate when the fire threatened several liquid petroleum storage tanks on the site.

H.B. Everheart, and his son, Gene Everheart, were treated at Medical Arts Hospital and released, according to nursing supervisor Heidi Cobbs.

Gene Everheart was unloading a fuel truck when the fire started. He was treated for back pain caused by the shock of the truck's explosion, Ms. Cobbs said.

Gasoline, diesel fuel and butane were stored in large, white, above-ground tanks at the site. The Everheart Co. has sold fuel primarily to service stations and farms since 1963.

"I was sitting right over there at a traffic light," said Dawson County Sheriff Bill Horton. "I saw a ball of fire, and then it was just ka-boom and it was out of control."

Fearing that the blaze might spread to the liquid petroleum tanks, officials summoned Seminole, Big Spring, Andrews and Brownfield firefighters to help prevent the fire from spreading. The fire was brought under control about 2½ hours after it started.

"The big concern was to keep the gasoline tanks from igniting," Harvey Everheart said. "Our company was wiped out, but if the tanks would've caught fire, our neighbors would have been wiped out, too."

Describing the blaze, Ronnie Ray, a Lamesa Fire Department arson investigator, said, "It was about as bad as we've ever had in Lamesa."

"One of the firefighters who came said it was like being in the gates of hell," Robert Gorsline, the Lamesa city secretary, told the Associated Press. "It was so thick that visibility at one point was about a block.

Odessa hospital could lose Medicare payments

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The threat of suspension of federal Medicare payments for Medical Center Hospital patients will cause Ector County officials no concern unless the county-owned hospital actually loses Medicare eligibility, says the county's fiscal services director.

Tom Pace said today he is "optimistic" the problem at MCH will be resolved. "Obviously it makes everybody nervous but I don't think it's a major concern at this point,' he stated.

MCH officials Thursday issued a news release saying they expected to receive formal notification from the Health Care Financing Administration that Medicare payments could be halted as of June 27 because of a complaint filed in connection with the death of patient who had been treated at the emergency room.

Frank Beaman, MCH public relations director, said today formal notification has not been received from HCFA, but when it is, the hospital will have 23 days in which to request an on-site inspection to determine the validity of the complaint.

Beaman said MCH officials are confident HCFA officials will reach the same conclusion as did an investigation by three hospital committees, composed of doctors, and representatives of the Texas Department of Health, that the complaint is groundless.

The complaint to HCFA alleged that MCH emergency room personnel failed to properly screen a patient and provide proper treatment for the patient who subsequently died. MCH officials have declined to identify the patient.

According to the statement issued by MCH administrator Sam Glenney, the problem involves the adequacy of documentation of the care the patient received, not whether care of the patient was adequate.

Beaman is expecting the notification from HCFA "within the next couple of days." He anticipates the letter from HCFA will cite "an alleged violation of the COBRA law" by "inadequate documentation of appropriate medical screening." The law covers the transfer of federal Medicare funds and requires specific documentation of medical care provided to determine eligibility of patients.

The HCFA letter will notify MCH of the intent to suspend Medicare eligibility "possibly as early as June 27 if we don't become re-surveyed within 23 days after receipt of the letter," Beaman said. "We will request the survey once the letter is received."

Beaman said MCH faced a comparable situation in April 1986 and an investigation proved the complaint groundless.

The MCH spokesman noted that the HCFA, at this time, has made no investigation of the latest complaint, but is predicating intended termination of Medicare eligibility strictly on the basis of the complaint received.

Colorado City activists seek investigation

COLORADO CITY (AP) — Community activists want state and federal officials to probe the death of a Hispanic rape suspect who was shot twice in the chest and once in the back of the head by an Anglo police officer.

At a meeting with about 40 Hispanic residents, Mayor Jim Baum said he would join the League of United Latin American Citizens in its quest for an outside investigation into the May 13 death of Sammy Gomez, 27.

Gomez pulled a knife on four officers who had come to his grandfather's home to arrest Gomez on an aggravated sexual assault charge, Police Chief Bobby Sparks said.

Gomez refused to drop the weapon, advanced toward two of the officers and part-time officer Billy Ray Williamson shot Gomez twice in the chest, Sparks has said.

Gomez's father, Marcario Gomez, said Thursday he was told an autopsy showed his son also was shot in the back of the head.

Although autopsy reports almost always are public record, Gomez said he has not seen the report, and county officials told The Associated Press Friday that the record had been sealed by someone they would not specify.

Marcario Gomez said Williamson had had an 8-year-old grudge against his son, stemming from a police brutality lawsuit.

Williamson was not suspended during the grand jury investigation of the shooting. A week after the killing, the jury declined to indict Williamson, and he remains on the police force.

Neither he nor Sparks returned calls Thursday and Friday from the AP.

LULAC chapter president Oscar Ortiz told about 40 people at Wednesday's meeting that he needed their help in getting a federal investigation.

"The only way we can get the Justice Department to investigate this is by you people getting involved," he said. "The only way they will listen to us is if each one of you write the offices — the Texas attorney general, the U.S. attorney and the Justice Department civil rights division — and ask for an investigation.

"If they get enough letters, we'll get an outside investigation."

Ortiz said Thursday that the state attorney general had sent him forms to request an FBI investigation, and that he had discussed the case briefly with an FBI agent.

In the meantime, the mayor supports creating a 10-member committee designed to defuse racial tensions stemming from the shooting, the grand jury's quick decision not to indict Williamson and alleged police harassment of some Hispanics since the shooting.

Valero says it was just following TRC rules when it broke contract

DALLAS (AP) — Valero Energy Corp. says it was following Texas Railroad Commission rules when it broke an energy contract with Midland oilman Clayton W. Williams Jr., a company spokesman said Friday.

Williams and his firm, the Williams Cos., are seeking $786 million from Valero, saying the San Antonio corporation violated a late 1970s contract for the exclusive purchase, marketing and resale of natural gas produced from Williams' Central Texas leasehold acreage.

"Our primary defense has been that we are obligated to follow the rules of the state of Texas in these cases and that it overrides contractual agreements," said Valero spokesman Greg Wright.

In a lawsuit filed in Midland last week, Williams says the company knowingly and willfully manipulated its gas resale market to aid and encourage its customers to purchase gas from alternate suppliers, particularly Valero affiliates.

But Wright said the company believes Texas Railroad Commission rules on gas rates are an "adequate defense" to the charges. He said those rules show Valero can only purchase as much gas from producers as demand allows.

Williams' general counsel, Paul Latham, and Dallas attorney Donald E. Godwin said Valero's position is no surprise.

"We would have expected Valero to take that defense," Godwin said. "However, we believe they are misreading Texas Railroad Commission rules."

Godwin and Latham said Valero worked to lessen demand for gas so it could circumvent their contract with Williams.

Williams claims the company relieved some of its customers from obligations to purchase gas from Valero as long as they dealt with Valero affiliates.

Williams said Valero gained from these agreements at his expense and that demand for gas taken from his properties and resold by Valero declined.

In a prepared statement, Williams said, "I believe Valero manipulated their market to avoid living up to their deal with me. We lost a lot of money and many of my best hands lost their jobs."

WEATHER SUMMARY

Breezy weekend in store

From Staff Reports

This weekend in Midland promises to be breezy with full spring goodness — none of those heat waves associated with the West Texas desert at midyear.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for partly cloudy skies today and a high in the lower 80s. The wind today is to be easterly at 5 to 15 mph.

For tonight and Sunday, the weatherman is predicting a low temperature in the lower 60s and a high in the mid-80s.

Friday's peak temperature was 82 degrees, and the overnight low was 60 degrees. The record high temperature for June 3 is 102 degrees in 1956, and the record low for June 4 is 50 degrees in 1970.

STATE

Showers and a few isolated thunderstorms scattered over the western part of north Central Texas and the Hill Country Friday. Meanwhile, other strong thunderstorms occurred over parts of south Central and southeast Texas, as well as the upper Gulf Coast.

Severe thunderstorm warnings were issued for a few counties in southeast Texas and adjacent coastal waters Friday afternoon as golfball-size hail was reported in Halletsville, north of Victoria in Lavaca County.

The National Weather Service forecasts some decreasing cloudiness in West Texas and the end of thunderstorms in southeast Texas Saturday, after another night of scattered showers and thunderstorms over most sections of the state, east of the mountains.

High temperatures on Saturday should be mostly in the 80s and 90s.

NATION

Thunderstorms developed across parts of the South on Friday, after a night of severe weather, and unseasonably chilly air kept temperatures down in New England and along the upper East Coast.

Severe thunderstorms lasted for almost 24 hours until around dawn Friday, then built up again during the afternoon with storms extending from central Texas across southeastern Texas to southern Louisiana, and from western sections of the Carolinas across northern Georgia to central Alabama.

Hail stones as big as golf balls were reported during the afternoon at Halletsville in south-central Texas, and a thunderstorm produced large hail near Richburg in northern South Carolina.

Showers and a few thunderstorms also extended from western New England across parts of New York, Pennsylvania and the mid Atlantic states to northern North Carolina.

Unseasonably cool weather continued in the Northeast, where snow showers were reported atop Mount Washington, which stands over 6,000 feet high in the White Mountains of northern New Hampshire. Scattered frost was forecast over sections of northern New England early Saturday.

Atlantic City, N.J., cooled to a record low of 43 degrees.

Afternoon temperatures were only in the mid-50s to near 60 over the mid-Atlantic states and as far south as central North Carolina.

There was a sharp temperature contrast across the Carolinas. At 3 p.m. EDT, temperatures ranged from 61 degrees at Charlotte, N.C., to 93 at Columbia, S.C., a distance of less than 100 miles.

By contrast, afternoon temperatures were close to 90 over eastern Montana and the Dakotas.

Sakharov says Gorbachev needs time

MOSCOW (AP) — Human rights activist Andrei D. Sakharov said Friday that Mikhail S. Gorbachev has not yet guaranteed human rights but that the Soviet leader must be given time and trust to carry out his reforms.

Sahharov, the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize winner and a former political exile, told reporters at the Foreign Ministry press center that his unprecedented appearance at a government building "reflects a change in the situation in this country, and it's not a matter of me changing my position."

He held his news conference in the same hall where Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev Wednesday held his first formal meeting with reporters in the Soviet Union.

Sakharov, 67, handed Gorbachev a list of names of 200 political prisoners when they met for the first time in January. On Friday, he called again for the release of those who remain incarcerated for their beliefs.

The physicist, who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb and found the Soviet human rights movement, also criticized officials for withdrawing a job offer to a dissident who met with President Reagan during the summit.

The move was "a blatant example of a return to the practices of the past," Sakharov said.

Sakharov sat at a desk in front of hundreds of foreign and Soviet reporters rather than on the elevated dais, and he drew a larger crowd than Gorbachev.

Until recently, such a news conference would have been unthinkable for Sakharov, who was exiled to the closed city of Gorky in January 1980 for criticizing Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Gorbachev allowed Sakharov to return to Moscow in December 1986.

"I believe sizable changes have taken place of late. Of course they are not exhaustive and do not ensure the full implementation of human rights," Sakharov said. "On the whole, I believe perestroika (Gorbachev's social and economic reforms) is a serious undertaking, and its international and domestic implications are very serious, too.

"An expression of trust in this country...would only promote perestroika in this country. In particular, an expression of confidence in this country and this government will help promote human rights issues, too."

He said he is worried about the future of Gorbachev's reforms but believes they will succeed because there is no alternative.

Sakharov called Gorbachev an "outstanding statesman" and added, "from the bottom of my heart I wish him luck, mainly for the cause with which his name is now associated."

Sakharov has been reluctant to talk to reporters since returning from Gorky, instead concentrating on scientific work and expressing his views in occasional letters to the official press.

He said he still is not free to travel abroad, ostensibly because of his access to secret material until 1968, but feels he is free to do and and say what he wants in the Soviet Union.

Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner, said her husband held the news conference at the government press center because reporters covering the summit meeting had called "from morning to night," asking for interviews.

On other issues in a wide-ranging discussion, Sakharov:

— Welcomed the Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan, which started May 15. He said it should go on regardless of the conduct of anti-Marxist Afghan rebels. Any Afghan who wants it should be given political asylum in the Soviet Union or another country, he said.

— Urged the Soviet Union to cut its military personnel by 50 percent, and criticized what he said is abuse of inductees in the Soviet military.

— Said he believes the Soviet Union eventually will have more than one political party.

— Supported the demands of two ethnic groups — Crimean Tatars who want to return to their home area from which they were exiled by dictator Josef Stalin, and Armenians who want to annex the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan.

Wal-Mart considers employee day-care centers

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Wal-Mart Stores Inc., the Bentonville-based discount chain, is considering establishment of day-care centers for children of employees in some of its larger stores, a company official said Friday.

Dan Soderquist, chief operating officer for Wal-Mart, made the announcement at the company's annual meeting, held in Barnhill Arena on the University of Arkansas campus.

Founder and chairman Sam Walton told stockholders and employees that the company had $15.9 billion in sales for the fiscal year that ended Jan. 31, and profits of $627 million. He urged employees to set a goal of $20 billion in sales for the coming year.

Paul R. Carter, executive vice-president and chief financial officer, said sales were up 33 percent for the first quarter of this year.

David Glass, president and chief executive officer of Wal-Mart, projected that 125 to 135 Wal-Mart stores and 20 Sam's Wholesale clubs would open in the coming year. He said a few HyperMart USA stores would also be opened, adding to the sites at Garland, Texas, and Topeka, Kan., where the large, combination supermarkets, discount stores and wholesale clubs are operating.

Carter and Glass discussed the possibility of a split in Wal-Mart stock, but weren't optimistic.

"There is a perception that (stock splitting) enhances the value of the stock," Glass said, but "essentially you have the same value, just more paper." Carter said a stock split isn't in "the game right now or in our thought process."

Soderquist told a crowd of about 7,000 stockholders and employees, called associates within the company, that a company task force, including Employee Assistance Services, is looking at several new programs, including day-care centers.

Prior to the formal business session, Gov. Bill Cinton addressed employees and shareholders. But few reporters heard the governor's speech. Reporters who arrived around 9 a.m. were escorted to a basement room on the ground floor of the arena, where they were told by Stacey Duncan, a spokeswoman, to stay until Wal-Mart officials allowed them on the floor of the arena.

A Red Cross Basic Water Safety certification will be issued upon completion of the workshop.

There is a $5 charge for the workshop and no swimming skills are required.

Bake sale benefit slated

From Staff Reports

A bake sale to benefit Brennan Bolin and sponsored jointly by two Midland realty groups is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today at the Wal-Mart discount store, Midkiff Road and Loop 250.

Brennan, 5, of Lancaster, is the grandson of Suellen Nall, a Midland realtor. His family needs to raise an additional $125,000 for heart and lung transplants because the child suffers from a rare disease, idiopatic pulmonary hemosiderosis.

A visit from Jessica McClure, the Midland toddler who was rescued from a southwest Midland well last October, helped kick off fund raising in Lancaster for Brennan's surgery.

Today's bake sale will be conducted by the Women's Council of Realtors and the Midland Board of Realtors.

Bid for USG extended

CHICAGO (AP) — Desert Partners LP said Friday it had extended its $2.2 billion takeover bid for USG Corp. by one week to June 10.

Desert Partners, a partnership based in Midland, Texas, launched its hostile $42-a-share tender offer for the Chicago-based building-products manufacturer in March.

USG has rejected Desert Partners' offer and recently won a proxy battle when 56 percent of its shareholders voted for USG's slate of directors over a slate offered by Desert Partners.

FUEL

Gene Everheart, who was unloading 400 gallons of fuel from an overhead tank when the explosion occurred, observed that the truck's diesel engine "just ran away with itself" after it inhaled some gasoline fumes.

"I went down to shut it off, but that didn't have any effect. The engine exploded and the fire started," he said.

The explosion leveled three buildings on the site, including an office and two oil storage facilities.

"I heard a few small explosions, but they could have been drums of oil. I don't really know," Everheart said.

REAGAN

"Much is happening in the Soviet Union," Reagan said. "We hope and pray that the signs of change continue there."

Bush, who spoke briefly, noted that Reagan had raised the touchy issue of human rights in remarks in the Soviet Union, and said, "What's wrong with telling the other guy how you feel? The fact is, you made us proud."

That was as close as Bush got to touching on Reagan's controversial comment made in Moscow that Soviet emigration policies may be the result of bureaucratic bungling rather than Kremlin policies.

The Reagans' welcome home and Andrews was watched by 4,000 members of the Republican National Committee, congressional families, White House staff members and their families and political appointees. More than two-dozen 7th-graders from the Drane Middle School in Corsicana, Texas, wearing blue-and-white and red-and-white rugby shirts, waved small American flags.

The first couple also got a cheer when they arrived at the White House, where Mrs. Reagan picked up their dog Rex, and gave him a hug and kisses. The president picked up a 3-year-old boy, Jeffrey Ryan Duberstein, son of Kenneth Duberstein, the deputy White House chief of staff.

In his England speech, Reagan portrayed Gorbachev in warm personal terms, yet served notice he will not be pressured into abandoning his campaign of speaking out against human rights abuses in the Soviet Union.

"In matters of state, unless the truth be spoken, it ceases to exist," Reagan said in a speech in the medieval Guildhall in central London attended by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

Even on the human rights issue, the president seemed to exonerate Gorbachev, who has allowed increased emigration by Soviet Jews since he assumed power in 1985.

Reagan said human rights abuses were "a defect of the (Soviet) system" and have "been going on for a number of years."

"You can't place the blame on any individual," he said.

In a seemingly mellow mood for a longtime anti-communist who once described the Soviet Union as an "evil empire," Reagan offered Gorbachev encouragement in his reform policies of glasnost, or openness in society, and the economic restructuring known as perestroika.

But he warned Western allies that any assessment of U.S.-Soviet relations during an uncertain time of change must be tempered by prudence and caution.

"Let us embrace honest change when it occurs," Reagan said, "but let us also be wary, let us stay strong."

The president received sustained applause from the Royal Institute of International Affairs and lavish praise from Mrs. Thatcher, who predicted that the Moscow summit will "influence the course of history for years to come."

DEATHS

Bryan Wilson

Bryan Wilson, 21, of Midland, died Thursday morning at a local hospital. Services will be at 10 a.m. today at Sizemore Funeral Home Chapel of Memories, with Colquitt Nash officiating. Burial will follow at Fairview Cemetery.

Wilson was born June 11, 1966, in Midland and graduated from Midland High School in 1988. He was a member of the A Street Church of Christ.

Nettye C. Romer

Nettye C. Romer, Midland County's first district clerk and former county auditor, died early Friday at her home in Midland following an illness.

Services are pending and will be held at the Alexandria National Cemetery in Pineville, La. Local arrangements are being handled by Ellis Funeral Home.

She was born Oct. 23, 1900, in West Felicia Parrish, La., where she was reared. Also in West Felicia Parrish, she worked for James A. Noe, who later became governor of Louisiana. She then moved to El Paso for a short time, where she met and married Charles V. Romer. The couple moved to Midland from El Paso in 1928.

She was elected county and district clerk after working in that office under J.M. Shelburne. She was appointed the county's first district clerk Jan. 1, 1931, after district duties were spilt from county duties in 1930. On May 1, 1951, she was appointed county auditor, a post she held until May 1, 1972, when she retired.

She is survived by a brother, Albert S. Campbell of Baker, La.; five nieces and a nephew.

The family requests memorials be directed to a favorite charity.

"We fully anticipate that after re-survey of this case," he said, the hospital will pass inspection and avoid any type of disruption of our Medicare eligibility."

Pace said the loss of Medicare eligibility at MCH, which pays for about 52 percent of the hospital's patients, "would be a terrible blow, not just to the hospital, but to the community," he said. "But I'm pretty optimistic that they'll resolve the problem."

Pace noted MCH had recently undergone a inspection which gave the county-owned facility "a clean bill of health."

EDS criticizes Perot for taking eight executives

STATE

DALLAS (AP) — Electronic Data Systems Corp. Friday criticized its founder, H. Ross Perot, for luring eight executives away just one day after a moratorium against such recruiting expired.

"We're just disappointed he did it," said Bill Wright, a spokesman for EDS, which is now a subsidiary of General Motors Corp.

Thursday, Perot announced the formation of a new company, Perot Systems Corp., which included three EDS corporate officers and five of the company's divisional managers. Their experience ranges from 11 years to 20 years.

The announcement caused a sharp drop in the price of GM's Class E stock, the dividend of which is tied to the performance of EDS.

Wright said the defections would not hurt the company, which has 48,000 employees in all 50 states and 29 countries. He said investors should not fear a talent drain from EDS to Perot.

However, he added, "We will take measures to protect our people. We want to make sure our employees know what their opportunities are."

The move by Perot was another twist in a tumultuous relationship with General Motors, which bought EDS in 1984 for $2.5 billion.

After the automaker bought the computer services company, Perot and GM executives began feuding. GM finally paid Perot $700 million in 1986 to leave EDS, which he had founded in 1962.

As part of the agreement with GM, Perot was barred from hiring any EDS employees for two years, a period that expired Wednesday.

A day later Perot revealed he had formed the new company and said its first job would be to conduct a three-month, $500,000 study on how to cut costs in the U.S. Postal Service.

Perot said the timing of his announcement had nothing to do with the expiration of his agreement with GM. He said the Postal Service was eager to get the job started.

SWT head's firing illegal because meeting violated law, judge rules

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge Friday voided the firing of Southwest Texas State University President Robert Hardesty, ruling the action was taken in a regents' meeting that violated the state Open Meetings Act.

The Texas State University System regents failed to properly post the items they planned to consider during last month's meeting, in which they fired Hardesty by a 5-4 vote, said Judge Jon Wisser of Austin.

Because of the lack of detail in the posted agenda, Wisser said, regents cannot proceed with action decided upon at that meeting.

Wisser, in his temporary restraining order, said if the board is "inclined to do those things," it must take its action again in a meeting whose agenda is properly posted.

Besides Hardesty's firing, which generated controversy because it was perceived to be politically motivated, Wisser's action also affects other action taken by the board at its meeting, including a ban on the distribution of contraceptives by student health centers.

Hardesty, a former aide to President Lyndon Johnson, has blamed the firing on his friendship with Democratic former Gov. Mark White, a longtime political foe of Gov. Bill Clements.

Faculty, students and others protested the ouster. Many noted that regent George William Worth of San Antonio voted to fire Hardesty right after being appointed by Clements, a Republican.

Clements, Worth and others have denied that politics played a part in Hardesty's firing.

"I can only repeat there are six Mark White appointees and three Bill Clements appointees" on the board of regents, said Reggie Bashur, Clements' press secretary.

"We would express the hope for every board of regents throughout the state that the board would do whatever it feels is in the best long-term interest of the university, the students and the community, and it is entirely their business who the president is," Bashur said, adding "The judge is totally within his right and prerogative and authority to make whatever ruling he thinks is appropriate."

The order is effective pending a full hearing on the matter, Wisser said. But he added, "I would assume that they would properly post another meeting."

The attorney general's office, which represented the regents at the court hearing, conceded that the meeting notice was inadequate, Wisser said.

No one from the attorney general's office was immediately available for comment after the hearing, said Ron Dusek, spokesman for the attorney general.

The action charging violations of the Open Meetings Act was brought by SWT students John Harris and Jody Dodd, said Ken Farrar, also an SWT student. Harris said Lee Brandt, student government president-elect and Jeffrey Herndon, a reporter with the university newspaper, also joined in filing the action.

A group called Concerned Students earlier distributed a statement announcing Saturday rallies in Austin and San Marcos protesting the regents' firing of Hardesty, ban of contraceptives on campus and proposed demolition of San Marcos hall on the SWT campus.

Paraplegic to be tried for baby's torture-killing

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A paraplegic accused of the torture-slaying of his baby niece has been ruled competent to stand trial after prosecutors convinced jurors that the man was faking his symptoms.

A jury deliberated just 10 minutes Thursday before deciding that Ray Macias, 32, can stand trial on charges that he killed his 8-month-old niece, Sarah on Dec. 29 and sexually abused his own daughter.

Macias had gained custody of his niece before state Department of Human Services officials were able to take the child into protective custody.

Officials have said the child was the subject of torture games in which she was kicked, punched, spun on the floor and her nose held until she turned purple. She died of a fractured skull.

Macias has been in jail since his arrest in early January, and his attorneys claimed he was was not competent to stand trial. But prosecutors argued successfully that Macias was faking his condition.

Boy may be crash survivor

EL PASO (AP) — An 8-year-old deaf-mute boy found wandering in Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, might be a survivor of a plane crash from two to three years ago, officials said.

The boy, who doesn't hear or speak and communicates only by gesturing and drawing pictures, was found Nov. 7 by the side of a highway. No one knows his name because he doesn't speak, but Juarez welfare workers have named him "Savat."

Authorities believe Savat is from the United States because of his reactions to American cultural icons — including hamburgers and video games — and they believe he survived a plane crash because of drawings he has made.

"He drew a plane, then he drew a plane that had crashed," said Luis Torre of the Texas Department of Human Services. Torre works as liaison between El Paso and Juarez child welfare agencies.

Torre said Thursday that the second drawing depicted a lot of blood and the bodies of two adults and a child.

'We believe those represent his parents and a sister. He showed me by using his fingers that he crawled away from the wreckage," said Torre, who added that the boy has scars on his chest and back that look to be two to three years old.

Explosives analyzed

DALLAS (AP) — Explosives found in a warehouse rented to a suspect in the "Dapper Bandit" robberies were analyzed to determine if they were used to make a pipe bomb found in a bank earlier this year, authorities said Friday.

Police found the low-grade commercial explosives Wednesday night when the court-appointed attorney for bank robbery suspect Mark Reeves led them to the warehouse after a talk with Reeves.

Reeves is suspected in a string of robberies spanning a decade in which the perpetrator was a well-dressed man who became known as the "Dapper Bandit."

Fund to aid charity patients

HOUSTON (AP) — A $100 million fund for charity care at Hermann Hospital is to be established from sales of Hermann Trust land around the state, officials announced.

Under an agreement with the state attorney general's office, filed Thursday in state court, officials of the Hermann Trust and the hospital will reserve 10 percent of hospital admissions for charity patients.

Military opposes big role in drug war, Marine officer says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's drug coordinator, in testimony to Congress Friday, listed a series of reasons why the military would oppose a bigger role in the drug war, among them planes too fast to catch the little aircraft smugglers use and military police "not concerned with civil rights."

Marine Lt. Gen. Stephen G. Olmstead, deputy assistant secretary of defense for drug policy and enforcement, noted that the Joint Chiefs of Staff are preparing a plan for an escalated military anti-drug effort. Such an expanded military presence in the fight against drugs is part of legislation authorizing the Pentagon's spending programs for the upcoming fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1.

But Olmstead then proceeded to tell a House Government Operations subcommittee all the hurdles the Pentagon must overcome.

One solution to detecting drug smugglers flying over the U.S.-Mexican border, Olmstead said, would be to use airborne detection planes: the Air Force AWACS, the Navy's E2C and the Navy's P-3.

But he said that the Air Force has only 33 AWACS on active missions, a third of them overseas. Of the 22 in the United States, he said, the initial estimate is that five or six would be needed each day to cover the U.S.-Mexican border.

It costs $9,400 an hour to operate the plane, Olmstead said, adding the AWACS and the carrier-based E2C are far too sophisticated to be operated economically for anti-drug missions.

The Navy's E2C's are "in bad trouble with cracked wing problems," the general said with 34 in the fleet of 85 currently out of service.

"The Navy has a major rehabilitation problem. I'm not sure any would be available. We have just reduced the force by a drastic number the past year."

The Coast Guard and Customs each have two E2C's, but they have the same wing problems and may be grounded.

Olmstead did acknowledge that the land-based P-3 is a good option. The plane is used by the Coast Guard and the Customs Service in anti-drug patrols.

Committee Chairman Glenn English, D-Okla., then asked if the military could provide combat aircraft — such as the F-14, F-15, F-16, F-18 and F-4 — to intercept drug smugglers.

Olmstead said using such planes to follow slow-moving drug planes would cause them to stall and fall out of the sky.

Internal FBI review criticizes probe of Central American policy groups

WASHINGTON (AP) — An internal FBI report concludes that the bureau's investigation of opponents of Reagan administration policies in Central America was too broad, government sources familiar with the review said Friday.

The report said the anti-terrorism guidelines the bureau used to conduct the probe from 1983 to 1985 allowed the FBI to launch a widespread investigation and that those guidelines should be tightened up, said the sources, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The tenor of one of the recommendations was that "the guidelines need to be made more specific to keep us out of trouble," said one source.

Another source said the report is "highly critical" of some aspects of the FBI's probe of the anti-administration Committee in Solidarity with the People of El Salvador.

It could not be determined whether the report, written by D. Caroll Toohey and Danny Coulson of the FBI's office of inspections, took top bureau officials to task for their handling of the CISPES investigation.

But the tone of the report "is pretty tough; these guys went way out on a limb; some top people at the bureau are saying 'wait a minute, wait a minute,'" said another source familiar with the document.

The report, which is classified, was submitted to FBI Director William Sessions in late May.

FBI spokesman Milt Ahlerich said Sessions and his senior staff are reviewing the report and will promptly provide detailed information to congressional oversight committees. But he said it is premature to say whether the bureau will change any procedures.

Sessions told The Washington Times Thursday that the review shows there was "sufficient and proper" reason for the bureau to probe CISPES.

The report, however, is highly critical of how the FBI handled informer Frank Varelli, whose information supplied much of the basis for the bureau's investigation of CISPES.

The internal report said there was a lack of proper supervision of Varelli and that he received certain information from FBI files that he should not have gotten, according to the sources.

The internal FBI review found no evidence that the bureau was involved in break-ins at offices of CISPES and other groups opposing U.S. policy in Central America.

The investigation of CISPES began March 30, 1983, prompted by tips that key members were involved in covertly furnishing funds and material to the FMLN, a leftist group seeking to seize power in El Salvador.

It was closed in June 1985 when the Justice Department concluded the group was involved in political activities protected by the First Amendment and not in international terrorism.

House approves spending for super collider

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted overwhelming approval Friday to a Department of Energy spending blueprint that includes $1.6 billion for the superconducting super collider, a massive high-energy physics project.

The super collider, which advocates say could lead to breakthroughs in understanding basic matter, would be authorized $147 million in fiscal 1989 and $675 million and $774 million the following two years.

There is no guarantee that the money would flow to the project, which would eventually cost at least $5.4 billion. Actual spending is controlled by separate appropriations legislation.

The House recently approved an appropriations bill limiting super collider spending in fiscal 1989, which begins Oct. 1, to $100 million. None would be available to begin construction of the project.

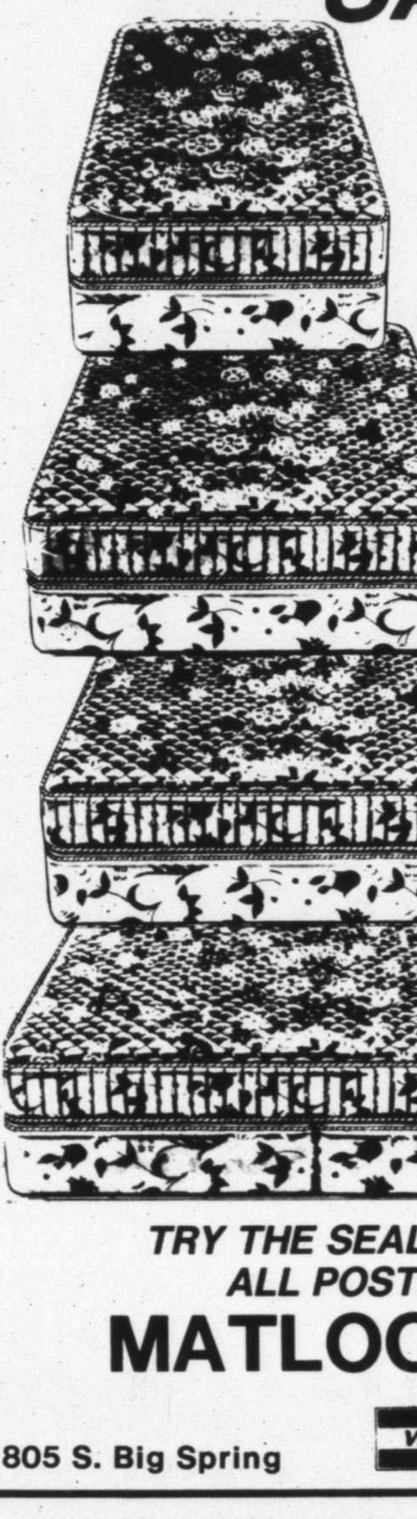

The Reagan administration requested $363 million for the project in fiscal 1989, including money for construction. In its votes on both bills, the House has said a decision to build should await the next administration.

The bill sent to the Senate on Friday by a 290-27 vote would authorize continued spending on a wide variety of research and development by the Department of Energy, including clean-coal technology and alternative motor fuels.

The legislation sets a spending target of $3.277 billion for fiscal 1989, about $150 million above the current level and $26.4 million more than the administration sought.

Judge rejects mistrial motion in Mecham case

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A judge Friday rejected a defense request for a mistrial on grounds that a prosecution witness' testimony was unfair in former Gov. Evan Mecham's trial on charges he concealed a $350,000 campaign loan.

Judge Michael Ryan of Maricopa County Superior Court rejected a claim by lawyer Thomas Crowe that the prosecution tried to prejudice the jury by presenting testimony that Crowe said implied wrongdoing in how the Mecham campaign's checkbook was handled.

Mecham and his brother, Willard, are charged with concealing the loan by Tempe developer Barry Wolfson. Willard Mecham was his brother's 1986 campaign treasurer.

Also Friday, former U.S. Rep. Sam Steiger was placed on probation for four years, fined $5,480, and ordered to perform 700 hours of community service work for pressuring a parole board member over an administrative matter while working as an aide to Evan Mecham while Mecham was governor.

Steiger, 59, was convicted April 7 of theft by extortion in threatening Board of Pardons and Paroles member Ron Johnson over a personnel vote.

In Mecham's trial Thursday, state handwriting expert William Flynn testified there had been a number of "white-outs, erasures and alterations" in the campaign checkbook. He did not speculate on the reasons for the changes.

Crowe contended the revisions were innocent corrections, but the prosecution implied "there was something wrong, something criminal, something improper" about them.

"The effect (on the jury) was devastating," Crowe said.

During the afternoon session, jurors were read portions of Willard Mecham's January testimony to the state grand jury, in which he denied wrongdoing when he lumped the $350,000 loan into a $465,000 total listed on financial reports as a contribution from Evan Mecham.

The transcript also showed Willard Mecham said he did not know about a letter, in which his brother promised Wolfson the loan would "remain confidential," until after the loan's existence was publicly disclosed by the news media.

With the jury not present, the prosecution argued for admission of testimony by a former Mecham Finance Committee member who took notes during a meeting in fall 1986 that say, "show Evan borrowed money" and "don't show borrowed money."

Ryan took the matter under advisement, saying he will rule before testimony resumes Monday.

The first-term Republican governor was removed from office April 4 when the state Senate convicted him of two unrelated impeachment counts. The Senate opted not to consider the count against him related to the loan after some members argued that to do so would unfairly prejudice his criminal trial.

The defense contends the failure to report the loan was an innocent mistake.

Prosecutor Barnett Lotstein said in court Friday there was no negative implication in Flynn's testimony about the checkbook.

NATION IN BRIEF

Sergeant gets 10 years

ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND, Md. (AP) — A military jury sentenced a decorated Army sergeant Friday to 10 years in prison for passing unclassified documents to an FBI agent who was posing as a Russian spy.

Sgt. Daniel Walter Richardson, 42, also was ordered to pay a fine totaling $36,000, demoted in rank and ordered discharged with a bad conduct record.

The same jury that convicted Richardson Friday of attempted espionage deliberated about 2½ hours before issuing its sentence, concluding a weeklong court-martial.

"I'm still taking care of business right now. My lawyers have advised me not to say anything at this time," Richardson said after the sentence was announced.

War relic causes scare

SEATTLE (AP) — A war relic that a youngster carried home on a flight from Europe caused a bomb scare and partial evacuation Friday at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, authorities said.

The artillery shell, picked up from a European battlefield by a youth on a bicycle trip, dropped out of a bicycle box being unloaded from Scandinavian Airlines System Flight 937 from Copenhagen, Denmark, Port of Seattle police Chief Ed Ingram said.

Ingram said an adviser had told the youth to get rid of the device before the return home but the youngster, whom he did not identify, had not done so.

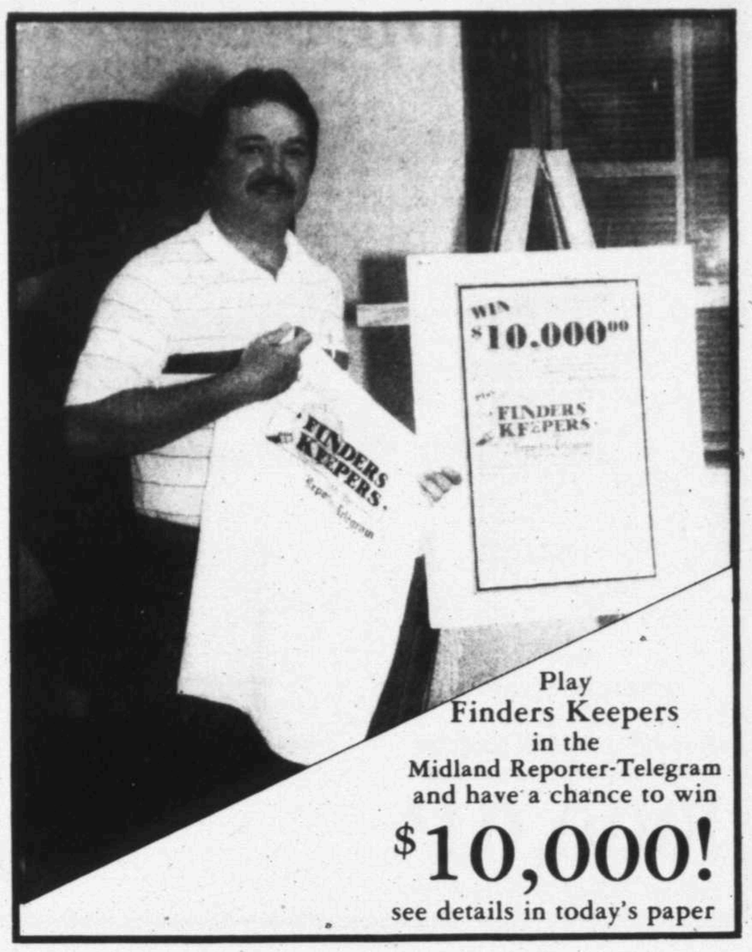

The device was about a foot long and three inches in diameter, airport spokeswoman Margo Spellman said. It was not immediately know whether it was capable of exploding.

Car jumps curb, kills child

DETROIT (AP) — A car jumped a curb and ran into a large group of children walking home from a middle school Friday, killing one and injuring several others, police and witnesses said.

Ken Smith said he was picking up his son at Rosa Parks Middle School when he saw the accident at 2:30 p.m.

"One of the kids bounced a basketball out in the street," Smith told Detroit radio station WWJ-AM. "A old black Cadillac — I don't know what speed he was going — he hit the ball and went out of control and crashed into a crowd."

Club members retired, but not retiring

By DARRAGH DOIRON

PORT NECHES (AP) — You don't have to be old to join the Over the Hill Club. Senior members welcome apprentices to sit in and practice being an old-timer.

The club is a group of mostly retired men who meet every weekday morning for a good cup of coffee and some good talk at Smith's Drug Co. on Port Neches Avenue.

They've come rain or shine for the past 10 years. The time's debatable — like everything else the group discusses.

Display cases are moved to form a space in the center of the store. There the men sit and talk shop.

At about 9:30 a.m. the die-hard regulars start to drift in, followed by the occasional drop-ins who hang around until about 11:30 a.m., or until their wives call them home to do some work.

"There's about 20 of us in all," said Pat Anderson, the group's unofficial spokesman.

There's nothing much else that's official about the club. That's why the men keep a small reference library in their corner. When somebody disputes a date, they just reach for the almanac.

"We also have a dictionary for when one of us mispronounces a word," the curly-mustached Anderson said.

So they can see the words on the page, one of them might borrow another's pair of glasses, or he might borrow a pair of magnifying glasses for sale in the drug store.

Then they get into it. Subjects making the rounds include politics, religion and World War II, not to mention a little harmless gossip.

"It gets deep," said Jimmy Carter of the serious topics.

"If one of us is not here, we talk about him," said Anderson of the gossip.

If they run out of things to say, they rehash old topics, Don Cuniff said. But since they're not as young as the used to be, they don't always remember what they talked about the day before, they said.

At age 90, Victor Myers is the "Old Master" of the group. When he didn't show at the store one day, his friends said he was at home having a hot flash.

Cuniff is one of the babies at age 60. The special ranking earns him the privilege of putting the second pot of coffee on, he said.

There's a big poster on the wall to help keep track of club birthdays, and when another one passes, there's some commotion.

"They bring a cake in here and have a pretty good celebration," Anderson said.

There's also a cookie jar that stays empty. Each guy complains it was another one's turn to fill it, but sometimes a latecomer brings a snack.

"If you're late, you don't bring an excuse, you bring cookies," Anderson said.

Of course, they spend some time flirting with the pretty girls behind the counter.

"You'd have to be stupid not to," one said.

"These fellas are young at heart if not with age," Anderson said.

Even though the Over the Hill clubbers have dealt with Smith's Drug Co. since the store opened in 1942, Anderson said he wasn't sure if the owner, Glenn Smith, knew how much they appreciated his giving them a place to meet.

"We never heard a gripe abut us making too much noise or for tellin' too dirty a joke," Anderson said.

Smith said he doesn't need the men to tell him how they feel about the place. He knows.

"We'd miss 'em if they all left us," he said.

But the men said they have no intention of leaving. Anderson said the clubbers are just waiting for younger folks to age a little and join them.

Bomb kills 4 people in Johannesburg

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A bomb hidden in a trash bin exploded on a busy street corner Friday, killing four people and injuring 19 in South Africa's deadliest bombing in more than a year.

Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok blamed the African National Congress guerrilla movement, which has been accused of four other bombings in the past nine days.

The ANC has not commented on the recent bombings. But it issued a statement Friday from its headquarters in Lusaka, Zambia, saying the month of June "must be a period of united and decisive popular offensive" against the government.

The statement endorsed a three-day anti-apartheid protest scheduled to start Monday, saying South Africa's economy "must grind to a halt" on those days.

The ANC is the main guerrilla group fighting the South African government.

Several corporations sought court orders Friday barring black unions from organizing work stoppages next week. The employers alleged that the protest could lead to violence.

The bomb exploded at 1:30 p.m. outside a branch of the Standard Bank in Roodepoort, a city that borders the west side of Johannesburg. Three black men and a white woman were killed.

A Roodepoort police spokesman, Maj. Tiene Halgryn, said eight people were seriously injured, including two whites and six blacks. He said 11 people suffered less severe injuries.

Police said most of the victims were waiting at the street corner for a traffic light to change when the explosion ripped through a metal trash bin.

The blast shattered windows in the bank and nearby stores in Roodepoort's central business district.

Police said the explosive device was a Soviet-made limpet mine, and they searched for other bombs in the area.

Most of the bombings blamed on the ANC in recent months have involved limpet mines. Government posters encourage the public to watch out for the mines, which can be attached to other objects.

"If everyone is on guard, the ANC's diabolical plans cannot succeed," said Vlok, the law and order minister.

The ANC has waged a bombing and sabotage campaign since 1961 as part of its efforts to topple the government and end apartheid, the system of racial separation that denies South Africa's black majority a vote in national affairs.

In the past, the ANC's official policy has been to aim its attacks at targets linked to the government and security forces. Its leaders have warned that some civilian casualties were inevitable.

The death toll in Roodepoort was the highest from a bombing in South Africa since a car bomb killed four white policemen in Johannesburg in May 1987.

Arabs strike in occupied lands; Settlers kill Arab

JERUSALEM (AP) — Another Arab strike paralyzed the occupied lands Friday, and a 20-year-old man shot in the chest became the 200th Palestinian killed since a rebellion against Israeli rule began six months ago.

Officials at Alia hospital in Hebron said relatives of Mustafa Ahmed Halaika told them the man was shot by Jewish settlers in the nearby West Bank village of Shuykh.

He died of a bullet wound in the chest, and three other Arabs were wounded by gunfire in the village, the hospital officials said. Soldiers wounded two other Palestinians during a protest in Nablus.

The three-day strike that began Friday was total. Stores were closed, streets were deserted and there was no public transportation throughout the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Halaika's relatives said five Jewish settlers opened fire when Palestinians protested their presence in Shuykh, the hospital officials said.

A Palestinian driver who accompanied two journalists to the hospital quoted a 15-year-old villager, Nael Ayaide, as saying the settlers beat him and another Arab.

Villagers began stoning the settlers, who then opened fire, the driver quoted Ayaide as saying. The driver said Ayaide had a broken arm.

The driver and hospital officials would not allow their names to be used. A military spokesman said the army was investigating the reports.

The driver said the two Arabs wounded in Nablus were shot when soldiers opened fire on protesters who erected barricades and threw stones.

According to U.N. figures, 200 Arabs have been killed since the uprising began Dec. 8 among the 1.5 million Palestinians of the West Bank and Gaza, which Israel captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 war. An Israeli soldier and a teen-age Jewish settler also have been slain.

The army prepared for more violence by restricting the movements of more than 200,000 Palestinians with curfews and closures at 12 refugee camps, towns and villages.

In the Gaza Strip, Israeli soldiers ordered a metalworks closed for three years. The army accused the owner, Nasser Youssef, of making large nails that Arabs scatter on roads to puncture the tires of Israeli-owned cars.

In Bethlehem, protesters hung Palestinians flags on telephone wires and painted slogans on walls that said, among other things, "Observe the strike or we are going to burn." Israel has declared the Palestinian flag illegal.

Palestinian leaders ordered the three-day strike to protest the current Middle East tour of George P. Shultz, the U.S. secretary of state. It began Friday in Cairo and will include a stop in Israel on Sunday.

Israeli officials said the trip is important for keeping the peace process alive, but they do not expect dramatic results. Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's right-wing Likud bloc opposes an exchange of occupied land for peace, the basis of the U.S. plan Shultz is promoting.

In a leaflet calling for the strike, underground leaders accused Shultz of trying to abort the rebellion.

"The masses and activists must make more demonstrations and...the land must burn under the feet of the fascist occupier," the leaflet said.

A general strike declared last Monday had little effect, and this one has been seen as a test of the "intefadeh," the Arabic word for uprising.

Shultz appeals to Arabs, Israelis on peace issue

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz made an appeal Friday for Arabs and Israelis to stop their "winner-take-all competition" and negotiate within the framework of an American peace plan for the Middle East.

Shultz told reporters on a flight from London that he has seen no progress as he launched his fourth Mideast shuttle this year. "But that doesn't mean I should stop," he added.

Upon arriving in the Egyptian capital Friday, Shultz released a five-page statement saying the root of the Arab-Israeli conflict "is the competition between two national movements for one land."

He said neither the Palestinians nor the Israelis seem able to abandon "prejudices, hatred and overblown dreams" in favor of a negotiated settlement.

Shultz urged compromise, saying, "Arabs and Israelis are not engaged in a winner-take-all competition. A fair settlement is possible."

Despite the impasse, room exists for Israelis and Palestinians to live side-by-side in Israel, the West Bank and Gaza, Shultz said. He gave no support to creation of a Palestinian state, nor did he set a deadline for the parties to respond to his renewed appeal.

On his last trip, two months ago, Shultz tried to persuade Israel, Jordan and the Palestinians to accept the plan by mid-April and join in a peace conference on May 1. All three parties informally rejected the proposal without putting their views in writing.

"We're going to keep working on this, and all of the parties seem to keep wanting me to come," Shultz said. "As soon as you send out the word you might come, they say, 'Welcome, come.' They see it's important to keep trying to find a way to peace."

But when asked if attitudes have changed, Shultz said, "I don't have any particularly indications of movement anywhere, but that doesn't mean I should stop. The situation is that the problems are of great importance."

He met for an hour with Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid and will see President Hosni Mubarak on Saturday.

Shultz's five-day mission will take him to Egypt, Jordan, Israel and Syria for talks on the U.S. peace plan and a bit of sightseeing. He had gone to London with President Reagan after the Moscow summit.

Shultz said the Soviets seemed to have softened their stand on a international Middle East peace conference by no longer insisting that it be "authoritative."

In his airborne news conference, Shultz said the Soviets now use the word "effective" to describe the conference he is trying to set up to deal first with Palestinian self-rule, then an overall settlement.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir has opposed peace talks that might let the Soviets assist positions of their Arab allies. It was not clear whether the slight change Shultz said he detected could influence Shamir..

Shultz is making Cairo his base for the talks and spending all four nights in the Egyptian capital.

He scheduled only a three-hour visit to Jordan on Saturday and a trip to Israel on Sunday.

Shultz will meet with King Hussein in Amman, and with Shamir, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres, and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Jerusalem.

In Egypt, Shultz also planned to visit the ancient tombs in Luxor.

Case pits rights of parents against those of children

By TAMAR LEWIN
New York Times News Service

When Ginger and David R. Twitchell's 2-year-old son, Robyn, had a fever two years ago, they called in Christian Science spiritual healers, who visited the boy and prayed for his recovery.

But five days later, after going into convulsions, vomiting and losing consciousness, Robyn died of a bowel obstruction. Twitchell held the child in his arms until he died, and then called a funeral home.

In April, the Twitchells — who live in Boston and have been lifelong members of the Church of Christ, Scientist, whose national headquarters is there — were indicted for manslaughter. The Twitchells have pleaded not guilty, and the pretrial conference in their case was to be held Wednesday.

Similar charges are pending against four other Christian Science couples in California and Florida, and the California Supreme Court is expected to rule on whether such prosecutions are constitutional.

The cases are delicate, both emotionally and legally, since they pit the parents' constitutional rights to exercise their religion against the government's responsibility to protect children.

"These are among the most difficult cases there are," said Alan Dershowitz, who teaches criminal and constitutional law at Harvard Law School. "If ever there were a right that seemed absolute, it would be the right of the parents to bring up their children in their own religion. And if ever there were a right that seemed absolute, it would be the right of the child to receive adequate medical care. So here you have two absolute rights in direct conflict."

COURTS HAVE gone both ways in cases involving parental religious rights — ruling, on one hand, that Amish parents have the right to remove their children from school, and, on the other, that children of Jehovah's Witnesses may be given blood transfusions against their parents' wishes.

"Where it's a life or death matter, the basic legal principle seems to be that the child's right to survive until he is 18, and can choose his own religious principles, is paramount," said Dershowitz. "The courts have said that children may not be sacrificed for their parents' faith."

But Nathan A. Talbot, a spokesman for the Christian Science church, argues that there is a difference between forcing treatment on a child, as in the Jehovah's Witnesses case, and punishing grieving parents for the failure of a healing system they expected to succeed.

Talbot stressed that some Christian Science parents do consult physicians for some injuries and illnesses, without reprisals from the church. A few Christian Scientists have split with the Boston "Mother Church" and enforce their own teachings.

"A lot of people try to frame this as parents' religious rights versus a child's right to live," said Talbot. "In that context, I'd vote for the child's rights — anybody would. But that's not the question. What we have here are parents who are choosing a well-documented alternative treatment that they believe is more effective than orthodox medical care.

"We have many cases of children declared incurable by physicians who are healed by Christian Science. Shouldn't a democratic society accommodate alternative methods of healing that have shown good results?"

WHILE MANY doctors would question how well-documented Christian Science really is, most state legislatures have been sympathetic to those who believe in spiritual healing.

At least 43 states — including Massachusetts, California and Florida — have laws specifically protecting Christian Science parents and others who use an organized form of spiritual healing from child-abuse charges when they fail to seek medical treatment.

The Christian Science church has lobbied so successfully that, according to Talbot, the number of states with such laws grows every year.

The American Academy of Pediatrics recently urged pediatricians to work for the repeal of religious exemptions to child-abuse laws.

"No statute should exist that permits or implies that denial of medical care necessary to prevent death or serious impairment to children can be supported on religious grounds," said a statement by the academy.

EVEN WHERE laws are on the books, it is not clear how far their legal protection extends, or whether it overrides other laws. For example, in California, where three Christian Science couples have been indicted in the deaths of their children, the prosecutors brought charges under a law making it a crime to endanger a child's life.

The defendants in those cases are backed by the American Civil Liberties Union Foundation of Southern California, which argued to the state Supreme Court that because the state laws are unclear, the parents were essentially prosecuted for behavior that they could not have known was illegal.

"Since California has a law saying that it is not child abuse to use spiritual healing, Christian Science parents here were on notice that their treatment is allowed by the state," said Carol Sobel, the ACLU lawyer involved in the case.

"So even aside from the church-state issue, we think that it's an unconstitutional denial of due process to bring criminal charges against them."

Cowboys deal Dorsett to Broncos

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Broncos on Friday acquired veteran running back Tony Dorsett from the Dallas Cowboys in exchange for a conditional fifth-round draft pick that could go as high as a first-rounder depending on Dorsett's performance in Denver.

"I'm excited," Broncos Coach Dan Reeves said. "I think Tony can help us. If I didn't think so, we wouldn't have gone after him. I think he'll fit in very well with what we do on offense."

"He's just going to help us tremendously," added Broncos quarterback John Elway.

The trade had been expected for nearly a week. Last weekend, Dorsett helped facilitate the deal by agreeing to forfeit about $2.4 million in deferred payments.

Dorsett had sought to be traded since being demoted behind Herschel Walker in the Cowboys backfield.

Dorsett, 34, will enter his 12th professional season this fall. He stands fourth on the NFL's all-time rushing list with 12,036 yards and is just 84 yards behind No. 3 Franco Harris and 276 yards shy of No. 2 Jim Brown.

Last season he ran for 456 yards on 130 carries and caught 19 passes for 177 yards, scoring two touchdowns. He played in 12 games last season, starting six, and was held out of two.

Although slowed by knee and ankle injuries in 1986, he still led the Cowboys in rushing for the 10th consecutive season.

A remarkably durable performer, the 5-foot-11, 189-pound Dorsett had missed only three games in nine years prior to the 1986 season.

The former Heisman Trophy winner has played in four Pro Bowls, five NFC Championship games and two Super Bowls.

Dorsett has bettered the 1,000-yard mark for a season eight times and has had five runs of 75 yards or more, including an NFL-record 99-yard run in January 1983.

"I haven't seen a 50-yard run by a Bronco, but I think Dorsett will make some of those," said former Broncos and Cowboys quarterback Craig Morton. "I think it's a great move. They say they have a lot of 5-10, 190-pound backs, but they don't have a Tony Dorsett. I think he'll be phenomenal for John coming out of the backfield."

Witt Stewart, Dorsett's agent, said his client was ecstatic upon being informed that the deal was consummated.

"I just talked to him and he said he's got so much nervous energy he was going to lift weights," Stewart said.

Dorsett was expected to arrive in Denver Sunday night. The Broncos scheduled a news conference for him Monday morning.

The Broncos, looking for help at running back, also had negotiated with former Washington Redskins fullback George Rogers. It became clear, however, that they preferred Dorsett, even though Rogers is five years younger.

Cowboys president Tex Schramm said Denver was interested in Dorsett because of Reeves' knowledge of Dorsett's ability. Reeves is a former Dallas assistant coach.

Pistons put Celts out in the cold

NBA

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — For most of their players and all of their fans, the Detroit Pistons' first trip to the NBA finals ends years of frustration.

"It's indescribable. All the minutes and hours of hard work finally paid off," Isiah Thomas said Friday night after the Pistons beat Boston 95-90 to earn their first trip to the championship series in 31 years in Detroit.

"I've been trying for seven years to get to the championships," Thomas said. "If there's anyone who deserves to be in the finals, it's Adrian Dantley. I've been trying for seven years, but he's been trying for 12."

Reserve guard Vinnie Johnson had 24 points and Dantley 22 in the final game.

Detroit's 4-2 win in the Eastern Conference finals marked the end of the Boston coaching career of K.C. Jones, who in April announced his retirement effective at the end of the season.

"We had ups and downs, but most of them were ups," Jones said. "I have an admiration for these guys, for what they've done for me the last five years. The effort was there tonight, and that's the main thing."

After congratulating the Pistons, Jones said he returned to the Boston dressing room and told his players, "Thank you for a beautiful ride. I jumped on the chariot and you guys carried it."

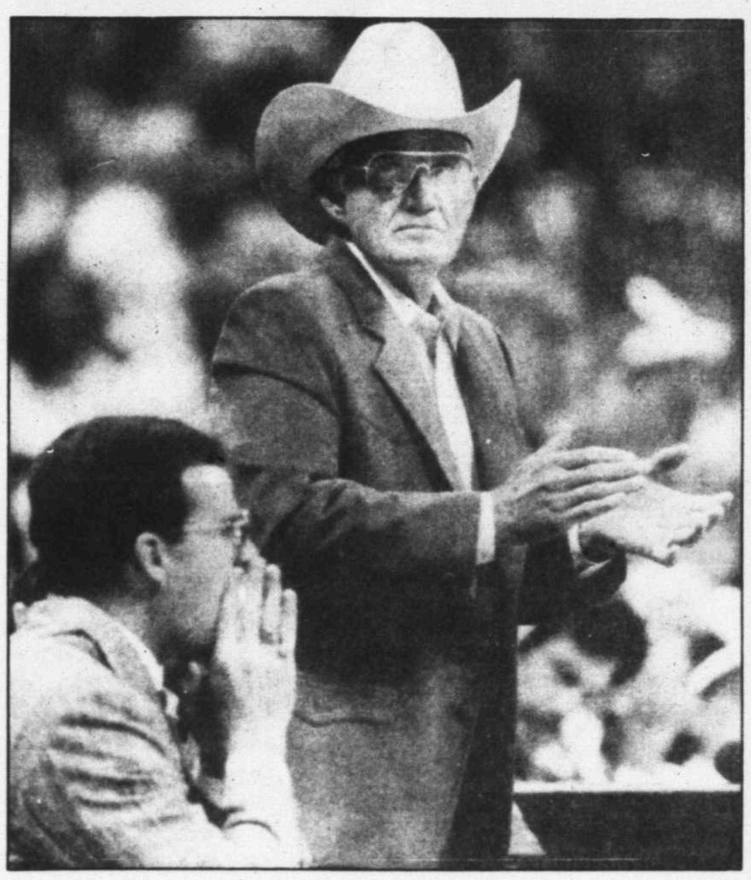

Detroit's depth overwhelmed the Celtics in the final game and in the series, and the Celtics chances dimmed considerably when center Robert Parish missed all but six minutes with a knee injury.

The Pistons' bench outscored the Celtics' 46-20 in the game and 190-58 in the series. With all the Boston starters except Kevin McHale, who had 33 points, in a shooting slump, the Celtics couldn't overcome the difference.

Larry Bird had 16 points and 14 rebounds for Boston, but was 4-for-17 from the field in Game 6. He shot 35.1 percent for the series and the Celtics made only 41.1 percent.

The Fort Wayne Pistons lost in the championship series in 1955 and 1956, and they spent only one more season in Indiana before moving to Detroit in 1957. Since then, the Pistons didn't win a division title until this season.

Will Mavericks' owner Donald Carter have anything to clap about after tonight's game with the Los Angeles Lakers?

Mavericks face tough challenge in foe's den

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have the Dallas Mavericks where they want them for the seventh and deciding game of their Western Conference finals — on the Lakers' homecourt.

Coach Pat Riley said the Lakers played hard during the regular season so they could have a game like the one Saturday in The Forum.

"The homecourt means a lot in this league and we played hard all season to gain that advantage," he said. "Be ready for Saturday because there will be some fireworks. Saturday is all that's left. We worked hard for 82 games for the advantage."

Dallas is 0-9 in playoff games against Los Angeles in the Forum, including three recent routs.

Los Angeles, the defending champion, would qualify for its seventh trip to the NBA Finals in nine seasons with a victory in the game which begins at 3:30 p.m. EDT.

Dallas defeated the Lakers 105-103 at Reunion Arena on Thursday night, holding serve in the homecourt-dominated series.

Dallas has never been this far in the eight-year history of the franchise. The Lakers hold 10 NBA titles, five of them when they were in Minnesota.

The winner meets the survivor of the Detroit-Boston Eastern Conference series.

"There are no more edges," Riley said. "One game determines it all."

"I've been told that in the seventh game of a championship final the homecourt doesn't mean a thing," said Dallas owner Donald Carter. "I hope that holds true."

Mark Aguirre scored 19 of his 23 points in the second half Thursday night as Dallas won the closest game of the series.

James Worthy and Byron Scott each scored 27 points for the Lakers

Los Angeles' Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who was held to only eight points, said "I'm not making any predictions. But Saturday I can promise you we're going to play hard and aggressive. We haven't expected Dallas to hand us any victories. We know we'll have to earn it."

Dallas guard Rolando Blackman said "We wanted a one-game series and now we have it. This is the kind of situation you dream about. It's what we've played 103 games (including exhibitions) for."

Dallas coach John MacLeod said the Lakers had better knock the Mavs out early.

"I think the Lakers will be playing just like they did in the first three games. They will be trying to blow us off the floor in the first quarter," he said. "If they don't then look out."

American hopes go down drain in Paris

French Open

PARIS (AP) — The red-clay landscape of the French Open is littered with the remains of past American hopes.

Over there is Aaron Krickstein, who made the final 16 in 1985 and has rarely been seen past the first round of any tournament since. Across the way is Jimmy Arias, a quarterfinalist in 1984 and a first-round loser this year.

Amid the rubble of 32 years of U.S. men trying unsuccessfully to win the world's premier clay-court tournament stands Andre Agassi.

His charge through the field ended one set short of the finals Friday, the 18-year-old's legs giving out against the experience of Mats Wilander.

But all the signs say the U.S. losing streak in Paris could be nearing an end, and tennis may be about to get a big shot in the arm from a personable Amrican teen-ager who makes friends while winning matches.

"It's unbelievably important to tennis that he doesn't go the way Arias and Krickstein went," Wilander said after winning 4-6, 6-2, 7-5, 5-7, 6-0.

Like his two predecessors, Agassi possesses a giant forehand. Wilander said he will need more to be a power.

"He's going to have to come to the net," the Swede, a two-time winner of the open, said. "But he's a better player than Arias or Krickstein. He has a better backhand. He's going to have to do more."

In only his second full year on the men's pro tour and in a Grand Slam semifinal for the first time, Agassi said he learned a lot from his two weeks in Paris.

"No. 1, experience. No. 2, I've learned I have to do alot about my serve and groundstrokes," he said. "But next year I'll be playing better than this year and better the year after that."

Angels' bell rung

From Staff Reports

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio shortstop Juan Bell hit a solo homer in the bottom of the seventh to lead the Missions to a 4-1 triumph over the Midland Angels Friday night.

Midland starter Chris Collins (1-6) scattered seven hits over seven innings, including Bell's homer, in taking the loss. Shane Young, who came on in relief, pitched two hitless innings.

San Antonio jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the third when Juan Bustabad led off with a walk, stole second and went to third on a bunt single by Wayne Kirby. Bustabad scored on a broken bat single by Mike Huff, who later came home on a bloop single to right. With his single, Huff has now hit safely in 10 straight games.

The Missions extended their lead to 3-0 in the fourth when Domingo Michel singled to center, driving in Walt McConnell.

The Angels scored their only run in the top of the seventh when Erik Pappas doubled and scored on a Craig Gerber single.

Bell's seventh inning homer to right field was the first round-tripper of the series and was the last hit surrendered by Collins.

Angel first baseman Jim McCollom retained his lead in Texas League hitting with a 2-for-4 night. Following Friday night's game, McCollom was hitting .371.

First-place San Antonio now has an 8-6 series edge over the Angels and have won 11 of its last 15. Midland, meanwhile, has dropped nine of their last 14.

ANGEL NOTES: Pitcher Mike Fetters, who has missed his last five starts while suffering from a staph infection, will start tonight for the Angels ... Angel infielder Jesus Alfaro was promoted to Edmonton, the Angels' Triple A farm team, making room for Fetters ... Midland second baseman Jim Thomas was out of Friday night's lineup after being spiked in the arm Thursday night.

Devils, Shockers win openers

CWS

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Rusty Kilgo, making his first start of the season, scattered nine hits in eight innings-plus to lead Arizona State to a 4-2 victory over California Friday in the first game of the 1988 College World Series.

Kilgo, 11-2, who had made 28 relief appearances for the 57-11 Sun Devils, walked one and struck out six before tiring in the ninth.

California's John Kuehl led off the ninth with his ninth homer of the year and Derek Stark singled to knock out Kilgo. Linty Ingram, the Sun Devils' top starter, came on to pick off pinch runner Kevin Brown and later got Brian Scott to ground into a game-ending double play for his second save.

The win sends the Sun Devils to Sunday's 7:10 p.m. CDT winners bracket game against Wichita State, which beat Florida 5-4 in the second game.

California, 40-24, meets Florida in an elimination game at 4:10 p.m. Sunday.

Arizona State, which split six regular-season games with California, took a 1-0 lead when Tim Spehr scored on Mike Burrola's groundout in the top of the third.

California tied the game in the bottom of the inning on Darren Lewis' run-scoring double.

Martin Peralta broke the tie when he led off the seventh with his 11th homer of the season, a solo shot off loser Travis Willis, 9-8.

California had runners on first and third with one out in the eighth after Lewis' third hit of the game. But Lewis was thrown out trying to steal second and Bart Frets struck out to end the threat.

The Sun Devils added two runs in the top of the ninth when Ricky Candelari tripled for his third hit of the game and scored on Burrola's liner to right. Pat Listach then singled, stole second and scored on John Finn's single to center for a 4-1 lead.

Wichita St. 5, Florida 4

Eric Wedge doubled home two runs in a three-run sixth inning as Wichita State held off Florida.

The Shockers held a 5-2 lead entering the ninth but Florida came up with two runs off Wichita State starter David Haas before Jim Newlin came on to get the final out.

Records smashed at NCAA meet

Track

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Mississippi State sprinter Lorenzo Daniel and Villanova distance runner Vicki Huber smashed collegiate records and UCLA hurdler Kevin Young turned in an outstanding performance Friday night in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships.

Daniel, a senior from Wrens, Ga., shattered the collegiate mark in the men's 200-meter dash with a time of 19.87 seconds.

It was the fastest time in the world this year, surpassing Daniel's time of 19.93 last month in establishing the collegiate record. It also was the eighth-fastest performance in history.

Huber, a junior from Wilmington, Del., won the women's 3,000 meters in 8:47.35, breaking the collegiate record of 8:49.64 set by Cathy Branta of Wisconsin in 1985. Huber's time also was the fastest by an American this year.

Young, a senior from Los Angeles, produced the fastest time in the world this year in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, winning in 47.85.

Players, coaches call for changes

Football

DALLAS (AP) — Panelists at the 12th annual College Football Association meeting agreed Friday that student-athletes need more financial aid than they are getting.

"I believe the NCAA needs to allow allowances," said Baylor offensive tackle Joel Porter. "Student-athletes need money and help because they don't have the time to work like other students."

Porter, an All-Southwest Conference performer who was recently drafted by the NFL's Chicago Bears, said "athletes can't grow like the other students because they are bound by too many rules."

He said he made it at Baylor because his parents gave him a car and spending money.

"One of my roommates had to borrow everything to make it," Porter said. "He wasn't a moocher. His parents just couldn't help him. The NCAA should at least let players get paid for their ticket allottments. Believe me, you earn those tickets."

North Carolina Coach Mack Brown agreed with Porter.

"There is a lot of resentment by some of the players because they know how much money they are making the schools, yet there are so many restrictions they really can't live like the other students on campus," Brown said.

"The NCAA rules are so complicated you can't keep up with them. We scare our players to death by telling them no to everything. We need to start making some decisions on the best interests of the student-athletes. We need to start making rules that are in a common sense mold," Brown said.

Lopez maintains lead at Toledo

LPGA

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Nancy Lopez overcame her second straight opening-hole bogey to shoot a 2-under-par 70 Friday and maintain a one-stroke lead over England's Laura Davies after two rounds of the LPGA Jamie Farr Toledo Classic.

Lopez bogeyed the par-4, 400-yard first hole Friday, as she had a day earlier, but was flawless the rest of the way on the 6,235-yard course at Glengarry Country Club. She finished with a two-day total of 6-under-par 138, with her only two bogeys through 36 holes coming on No. 1.

Davies, a 24-year-old from West Byfleet playing her first full season on the LPGA Tour, also shot a 70 Friday for a two-day total of 139. Davies altered her putting style with five holes to go, switching to a cross-handed grip because she was unhappy with her putting to that point.

Nancy Taylor, who led the tournament for three rounds last year before losing to Jane Geddes on the last day, was two strokes back at 140. She shot an erratic 69 Friday, with three bogeys and six birdies, including consecutive 10-foot birdie putts on the final two holes.

Betsy King was in fourth place at 141, three strokes from the top, after shooting a 69. Jan Stephenson had a 72 and was four strokes back at 142.

Lopez, 31, is seeking her fourth victory of the year and the 40th of her career.

She hurried from the course after completing the round so she could drive to her home in suburban Detroit with her husband, Ray Knight, who plays for the Detroit Tigers. Knight was able to watch the first two rounds because the Tigers were off Thursday and played a night game Friday at Tiger Stadium, about an hour's drive from Glengarry.

"It's nice to be home," Lopez said. "I'm going home tonight, but I'll probably stay here Saturday night."

She said she would approach the first hole differently Saturday in hopes of finally mastering it.

"I'm going to hit a wood (for her second shot) tomorrow," she said. "I'm going to get it to the green. I hit a good tee shot and my ball was sitting down a little bit, and I cut it back and missed the green today."

She missed a 10-foot putt that would have saved par on the hole.

But after that, she had a seemingly effortless round, her nearest brush with a bogey coming when she hit her approach shot 35 feet past the hole on No. 18. She overshot the hole by 10 feet with her first putt but sank the second one to save par.

Lopez finished second at Toledo in 1984 and 1985.

Davies said she hadn't used the cross-handed putting grip in nearly a year.

"I used to putt cross-handed, so I thought I'd give that a whirl," she said. "I figured I'd missed so many putts, I couldn't miss many more."

Tour rookie leads pack in Kemper

POTOMAC, Md. (AP) — Rookie Jim Hallet birdied four straight holes late in the round on the way to a 6-under-par 65 Friday that gave him a one-stroke lead over defending champion Tom Kite and Morris Hatalsky after two rounds of the $800,000 Kemper Open.

Hallet, who joined the PGA Tour last fall, was at 9-under 133 after 36 holes at the Tournament Players Club at Avenel. He was 5-under with five holes left, but birdied Nos. 5 through 8 to take the halfway lead for the first time in his brief career.

"I was pretty nonchalant out there," said Hallet, ranked No. 112 on the money list. "My game plan is to just shoot four sub-par rounds."

Hallet, whose best previous finish was a tie for 13th at the Byron Nelson Classic last month, did not have a bogey.

Kite shot his second straight 67 to match Hatalsky, who had a bogey-free 66, at 134.

Mark Brooks shot a 67 and was next at 135. Four players, including John Mahaffey and 1985 Kemper champion Bill Glasson, were at 136.

Bob Gilder and Tom Armour shot 65s to join Mike Reid at 137 and first-round co-leader Webb Heintzelman was among six players at 138.

Howard Twitty, who entered the round tied for the lead, was 7-under after 32 holes. But he had a bogey on No. 15, a double-bogey on No. 16 and another bogey on No. 17 in a round of 73 that left him at 139.

Keith Clearwater and Bobby Clampett, who were one shot off the lead after the opening round, missed the cut. Clearwater shot a 79 to finish at 146 and Clampett had an 81 to close at 148. The cutoff was 144, 2 over par.

Kite had five birdies in his final eight holes to remain in contention for the $144,000 top prize.

"I made some bad swings on the first nine holes and ended up making bogies," Kite said. "But all of a sudden I started hitting some shots close. With a little less patience, I could have turned this into a 72 or 73, so it was a very pleasing round."

Hatalsky, bidding for his first victory on the PGA Tour since 1983, had five birdies in a bogey-free round. The 13-year veteran, whose caddy is ex- major league shortstop Tim Foli, might not have been at the tournament if not for a little prodding from his wife.

"I was thinking of taking the week off, but my wife wanted me to get out of the house," he said. "We're going to China next week, so she figured I'd have a week off anyway."

Hatalsky is ranked No. 118 on the money list, one notch ahead of Glasson.

Barber leads in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Miller Barber shot a 7-under-par 65 Friday to grab the first-round lead in the $285,000 54-hole Senior Players ReUnion Pro-Am over the 6,804-yard par-72 Bent Tree Country Club course.

Bob Charles and Don Massengale were tied for second at 68, three shots behind Barber. Charles has won the last two events on the Senior Tour.

Nine players were next at 3-under 69.

Defending champion Chi Chi Rodriguez finished at 2-over 74, seven off the lead.

Barber blistered the front nine with four birdies, rolling in a 35-foot putt on No. 7.

"That's the longest putt I've made in a long time," Barber said.

Barber, 10th on the Senior PGA Tour money list, is returning to action after missing last week's stop in Albuquerque due to minor foot surgery for removal of a planter's wart. He said the foot is still sore and that he would have been unable to compete if he had to walk the course.

"I usually don't expect to play well after taking time off," Barber said. "I rode about every hole today."

Barber benefited from an early tee time, enabling him to play before the wind picked up in the afternoon.

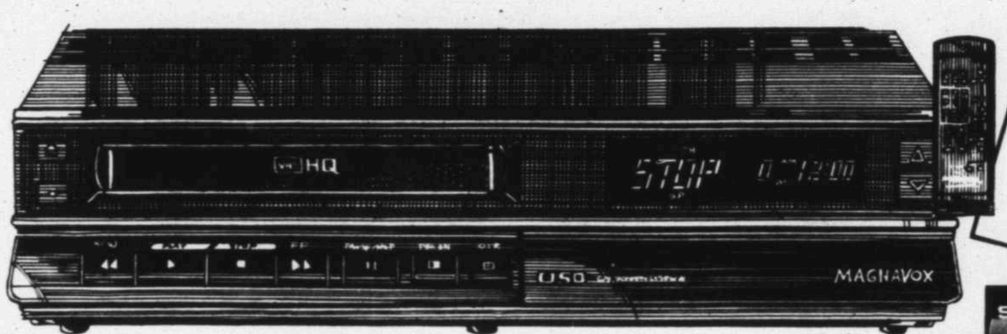

"The wind cost me two shots, on the 10th and 16th," Charles said. "The morning players had a break without the wind.

"If the afternoon players had played under the same conditions, I felt I could have equaled Miller Barber's score. The wind changed the character of the course dramatically."

Pirates' Smiley hurls one-hitter

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — John Smiley pitched a one-hitter and pinch-hitter Mike Diaz drove in the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Montreal Expos 2-1 Friday night.

Smiley, 5-4, struck out a career-high eight and walked two in pitching the Pirates' first one-hitter since Jose DeLeon lost to Cincinnati 2-0 on Aug. 24, 1984. The only Montreal hit was a two-out triple by Tim Wallach in the fourth. Wallach scored on Smiley's balk.

With one out in the ninth, Mike LaValliere doubled against John Dopson, 1-3. John Cangelosi ran for Lavalliere and Diaz lined a single down the left-field line as the Pirates ended a three-game losing streak. It was the first time in 18 games this season the Expos had lost when leading after the seventh inning.

Jose Lind tied the game in the eighth with his first major-league homer in 367 at-bats.

Dopson allowed nine hits, walked one and struck out one.

Padres 7, Braves 5

SAN DIEGO — Marvell Wynne hit a two-run homer and Keith Moreland doubled home two runs as the San Diego Padres defeated the Atlanta Braves.

Eric Show, 4-5, pitched 7 2-3 innings, allowing nine hits, walking one and striking out six. He raised his lifetime record against the Braves to 12-2. Mark Davis finished up to earn his seventh save.

Kevin Coffman, 2-6, lost his fourth straight game. Dale Murphy homered twice for the Braves, giving him seven for the season.

The Padres took a 2-0 lead in the third. Roberto Alomar and Tony Gwynn walked, moved up on a wild pitch and scored on Moreland's double.

In the fourth, Benito Santiago opened with a walk and scored on Garry Templeton's triple. Charlie Puleo relieved Coffman and gave up a run-scoring single to Show. Wynne followed with his seventh home run, tying his career high for a single season.

Santiago drove in the Padres' final run with an RBI single in the eighth.

NL Roundup

The Braves made it 6-3 in the sixth. Albert Hall singled with one out, went to third on Ken Oberkfell's double and scored on Gerald Perry's sacrifice fly. Murphy then hit a towering drive to left. Moreland reached over the wall and apparantly made the catch, but the ball dropped out of his glove for a home run.

The Braves scored twice in the ninth on Murphy's homer and Andres Thomas' run-scoring groundout.

Cardinals 5, Phillies 4

PHILADELPHIA — Tom Brunansky homered off the facade in left field with one out in the 10th inning as St. Louis defeated the Philadelphia Phillies for the Cardinals' fourth straight victory and eighth in their last 10 games.

After Willie McGee flied out to right, Brunansky hit his eighth homer on a 2-0 pitch from Greg Harris, 1-2. Todd Worrell, 3-2, the fifth St. Louis pitcher, came on to retire Mike Schmidt with two outs and runners on first and third in the ninth and then pitched the 10th. The Cardinals' last three victories have been extra-inning games.

St. Louis is 7-0 in games that Brunansky has homered. Brunansky, who also singled twice, has a 19-game hitting streak, the longest in the National League this season.

Cubs 5, Mets 0

NEW YORK — Jamie Moyer pitched a three-hitter, Ryne Sandberg hit a three-run homer and Vance Law had four hits as the Chicago Cubs defeated the New York Mets.

Moyer, 3-6, who ended a personal four-game losing streak, struck out four, walked none and retired the last 10 batters in a row. It was the second shutout and third complete game of his career. Moyer is 3-0 lifetime against the Mets. He allowed a single to Mookie Wilson leading off the fourth and singles to Wilson and Keith Miller in the sixth.

It was the fifth shutout by Chicago pitchers this season, equaling their 1987 total. It was only the second time this season the Mets were shut out.

Moyer's only other shutout was against Montreal on Aug. 16, 1986. His last complete game was June 22, 1987, against Pittsburgh.

Bob Ojeda, 4-5, has lost three games in a row and four of his last five.

Umps lay down law for sidelined Martin

NEW YORK (AP) — American League umpires declared war on Billy Martin Friday, saying that for the New York Yankees manager to stay in games, "he's going to have to sit in the dugout with his hands folded and his lips shut."

In a conference call with Richie Phillips, executive director of the Major League Umpires Association, the league's seven crew chiefs approved an unprecedented resolution protesting as far too light the three-day suspension and $1,000 fine given Martin after he threw dirt at rookie umpire Dale Scott Monday night in Oakland.

The resolution called the incident "another example of Billy Martin's cowardice," condemned the action as "taproom behavior," denounced American League president Bobby Brown as too lenient, and hinted strongly that Martin would be ejected from any game on which he set foot on the field to protest a call.

"For Martin to stay in the game, he's going to have to behave like an altar boy," Phillips said. "He's going to have to fold his hands, shut his mouth and that's it. Otherwise, he's going to be ejected, ejected, ejected. Every time for the next couple of weeks that he comes out of the dugout, he'll be ejected.

"As soon as he gets the least little bit out of line, as soon as he opens his mouth, he's going to be unloaded," Phillips said. "He's going to watch games on television from the clubhouse. The only way to deal with him is to consistently eject him. That was you don't have him around very long.

"The umpires have a great deal of discretion over who they eject, and they will exercise that discretion in favor of ejecting Martin at every turn.

"From this day forward, Billy just doesn't have the same rights and privileges that any of the other managers in the American League have."

Martin did not attend the Yankees game with Baltimore Friday night. Yankees spokesman Harvey Greene said Martin decided to remain at the team's hotel. Martin did not answer repeated telephone calls to his room.

Sierra snaps skid to lead Rangers

Rangers 9, White Sox 3

CHICAGO (AP) — Ruben Sierra snapped a 1-10 slump with a three-run double, another double and a single, leading the Texas Rangers to a 9-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox on Friday night.

Winner Ray Hayward, 4-2, gave up two runs and two hits in six innings. In the third inning, the rookie left-hander walked four batters in a row, gave up a double, committed a balk and threw a wild pitch but escaped with only two runs.

The game featured 16 walks, 11 in the first three innings.

The Rangers started the scoring in the first inning on Pete O'Brien's RBI single. Loser Dave LaPoint, 4-5, walked Steve Buechele, Mike Stanley and Jerry Browne to start the second and the White Sox appeared out of the inning when Bob Brower grounded into a double play via the plate.

But Scott Fletcher walked to reload the bases and Sierra's double cleared them and chased LaPoint.

Chicago scored twice in the third on a wild pitch by Hayward with the bases loaded and a balk on the next pitch.

Pete Incaviglia tripled to start the Texas fifth and scored on O'Brien's sacrifice fly. Larry Parrish walked, Buechele doubled and Stanley's sacrifice fly made it 6-2.

Texas scored three runs in the seventh, two on Fletcher's bases loaded single. Ivan Calderon homered off Dale Mohorcic in the eighth for Chicago's final run. It was his 12th homer.

The loss was Chicago's 14th in the last 17 games.

Brewers 8, Angels 2

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Tom Filer won his third straight game since being promoted from the minors, extending his seven-year unbeaten streak to 11 games, and B.J. Surhoff and Glenn Braggs homered, leading the Milwaukee Brewers to an 8-2 victory over the California Angels on Friday night.

Filer, called up last month, gave up two unearned runs in the first innings before being replaced by Chuck Crim with two out in the seventh. Filer yielded eight hits.

The 31-year-old right-hander, who didn't pitch in the majors during injury-filled seasons in 1986 and 1987, beat Detroit and Cleveland with five-hitters in his two previous starts and is 10-0 lifetime in the American League, including a 7-0 mark with Toronto in 1985.

He was 2-1 with the Chicago Cubs in 1982.

Blue Jays 6, Red Sox 3

BOSTON (AP) — Fred McGriff had a single, double and a triple, scoring three runs and driving in one, as the Toronto Blue Jays won their fourth straight game Friday night, a 6-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Kelly Gruber hit a pair of RBI doubles and Ernie Whitt drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a single as the Blue Jays extended Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd's pitching slump.

Despite a 5-4 record, Boyd has allowed 36 runs, one unearned, in seven starts since May 3. Pitching just 33 1-3 innings in that span, he has allowed 49 hits and 17 walks with a 9.45 ERA.

Todd Stottlemyre, 2-7, earned the victory after relieving injured starter John Cerutti with runners at first and third and no one out in the fourth inning. After Toronto scored three runs in the fourth for a 4-2 lead, Cerutti was struck just below the right kneecap by Rick Cerone's line drive single.

Indians 6, Tigers 3

DETROIT (AP) — Joe Carter became the first player in Cleveland history to hit 100 home runs and steal 100 bases, leading the Indians to a 6-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Friday night.

Carter's two-out homer started a four-run first inning against Walt Terrell, 2-3, who was knocked out in the first inning. Carter doubled and scored the first of two second-inning runs.

Cleveland exploded for seven hits and four runs in the opening inning, driving Tigers starter Walt Terrell, 2-3, from the mound. The loss ended Terrell's 11-game winning streak at Tiger Stadium, where he hadn't lost since May 11, 1987.

Cleveland's Julio Franco singled on the game's first pitch, extending his hitting streak to 21 games, longest in the major leagues this season. Willie Upshaw lined into a double play but the Indians followed with six consecutive hits — Carter's 11th homer and five singles.

Yankees 4, Orioles 0

BALTIMORE (AP) — Tommy John, New York's 45-year-old sinkerballer, scattered six singles in 7 2-3 innings and Claudell Washington hit a two-run homer as the Yankees beat the Baltimore Orioles 4-0 Friday night.

John, 4-1, walked two, struck out one and didn't allow more than one hit in an inning. He was relieved by Cecilio Guante with two out and the bases empty in the eighth. Guante retired all four batters he faced.

Rickey Henderson stole three bases, giving him 39 for the season and setting up New York's first two runs against rookie Jose Bautista, 2-4.

Henderson walked to lead off the game, stole second and third and scored on a groundout by Washington. In the third, Henderson singled to deep short, stole second despite a pitchout and scored on a single by Willie Randolph.

Royals 3, Mariners 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bret Saberhagen pitched a six-hitter and Kurt Stillwell hit his sixth home run as the Kansas City Royals defeated the Seattle Mariners 3-1 Friday night.

Saberhagen, 7-5, struck out two and walked two . Loser Mike Campbell, 3-7, went seven innings, allowing nine hits and all the Kansas City runs.

Athletics 8, Twins 5

The Oakland Athletics rallied for an 8-5 victory over the Minnesota Twins on Friday night as Dave Parker and Dave Henderson had two-run doubles and Jose Canseco hit a mammoth home run.

The Athletics' eighth victory in their last nine contests — but first since Aug. 3, 1986, at the Metrodome, where they lost all seven games a year ago.

BILL GRIMES

Writer offers birthday book ideas

Mrs. Vera Grimes
Largo, Fla.

Grimes

Dear Mom:

That's right. A rare letter from your son the sports writer. Y'know it's a lot cheaper to write than talk on the phone, especially when I have such a lengthy birthday list.

You may think I'm getting a little old to celebrate birthdays, but I'll never be too old as long as you send me books on that (some say infamous) day.

So...I have compiled a list of some of the new baseball books that are out on the shelf in our local bookstores. Some are better than others (from what I can tell through a quick perusal), but all are worth buying.

However, since you just got back from France I'm certainly willing to wait until paperback release for most of these works.

Except for one.

And you know what that one is.

But in case you forgot, I'll jog your memory a bit:

"Season Ticket: A Baseball Companion," by Roger Angell. Houghton-Mifflin. 406 pages. $18.95.

This is the one you promised me, so I'm going to hold you to it, especially since I've skipped over it in the new books section of the library for the past several weeks.

You know Angell. He's the guy from The New Yorker magazine who has made an avocation of writing one thrilling baseball book every five years or so.

Angell's latest effort is much along lines of earlier works such as Five Seasons, The Summer Game, and Late Innings.

As in the first three books, Angell spent several years traveling to various venues from spring training to the World Series. In this volume, we're introduced to folks like Roy Eisenhardt, Dan Quisenberry and Keith Hernandez.

And we feel like we know them.

"Season of Glory; The Amazing Saga of the 1961 New York Yankees," by Ralph Houk and Robert L. Creamer. G.P. Putnam's Sons. 311 pages. $18.95.

Great, great, great.

This book by the manager of that great Yankee team chronicles a changing period in major league baseball history through the perspective of one team.

It was the first year of American League expansion and the beginning of the end for the great Yankee dynasty that had lasted the better part of 40 years.

More importantly, it is perhaps the definitive account of Roger Maris' race to beat Babe Ruth's single-season home run record. Co-author Creamer, incidentally, wrote one of the best Ruth bios several years ago.

"Extra Innings," by Frank Robinson and Berry Stainback, McGraw-Hill, 270 pages, $16.95.

Billed as the response to Al Campanis' infamous remarks of last spring, the publishers couldn't have picked a better respondent.

Not only was Frank Robinson the first black manager of a major league baseball team, he is also the first black man to gain entry into the Major League Manager's Musical Chairs Society.

Now the Baltimore Orioles' manager after stints with Cleveland and San Francisco, Robinson has basically written about his metamorphosis from an angry young man in Cincinnati to a feisty older man in Baltimore.

He talks about how tough it was as a young black first baseman in Columbia, S.C., circa 1954, as well as his early struggles as a future Hall of Famer with the Reds.

Whatever you think about his stridency, Robinson definitely displays the "necessities" in this book.

It's Anybody's Ballgame," by Joe Garagiola, Comtemporary, 300 pages, $18.95.

This book is sort of a sequel to Baseball is a Funny Game, Garagiola's 1959 blockbuster that stamped him as a national personality. The newer volume includes many of the same types of anecdotes, only from an older man's perspective this time.

"Throwing Heat: The Autobiography of Nolan Ryan," by Nolan Ryan and Harvey Frommer, 236 pages, $18.95.

As for myself, I'd settle for the paperback version in about six months.

Other books worth a look include Winfield: A Player's Life (by a very interesting Dave Winfield) and Remembrance of Swings Past (by that obnoxious Ron Luciano.)

Well, I know you can't blow your fortune on that entire list, but I hope I've given you an idea of what's hot on the baseball book scene.

See you at Christmas.

Love, Bill

The Pistons will face the winner of the Western Conference finals between Dallas and the Los Angeles Lakers, who play their seventh game Saturday.

"I'll either get to play my boy Mark or my boy Magic," said Thomas, who scored only nine points Friday after having 35 in Game 5. Thomas is a close friend to the Lakers' Magic Johnson and Dallas' Mark Aguirre.

"We don't care who we play," Dantley said. "We're going to celebrate."

Boston, a winner of 16 NBA titles, was trying for its fifth consecutive trip to the championship round. But despite winning Game 2 in double overtime and Game 4 by one point, the Celtics couldn't overcome the shooting woes that plagued them throughout the series.

Boston, trailing by two at halftime despite shooting 37.5 percent from the field, made only five of 19 shots in the third quarter and was outscored 27-17 in the period.

Vinnie Johnson had eight points in the third quarter, helping the Pistons take a 75-63 lead that was never threatened.

A basket by Johnson with three minutes left gave the Pistons a 93-78 lead before Boston ended the game with a 12-2 run. Even before the game ended, the huge crowd surrounded the court, then filled it when the buzzer sounded.

"I had a good practice this morning in the shoot-around," Johnson said. "When I get in that rhythm, I can hit anything."

With a Pontiac Silverdome crowd of 38,912, third-largest in playoff history, cheering every Boston miss and Detroit point, tempers flared in the fourth quarter.

Detroit's Dennis Rodman and Boston's Brad Lohaus were ejected after wrestling each other to the floor with 7:40 left.

Jones, 308-102 in five seasons as Celtics coach, plus 79-54 in the playoffs, including two NBA titles, will be replaced by assistant Jimmy Rodgers next season.

Danny Ainge and Dennis Johnson started in the backcourt for Boston despite lower back strains, and Parish left the game midway through the first quarter with a bruised left knee.

He returned briefly in the second period, but was hobbling badly and had to return to the locker room.

A three-point play by Bird and a fastbreak layup by Ainge, his first points since Game 4, gave the Celtics a 21-14 lead with 2:50 left in the first quarter.

TRACK

In finishing 2.22 seconds ahead of runner-up Pat McGhee of Iowa, timed in 50.07, Young won by the largest margin of any intermediate hurdler in NCAA history.

Daniel, in becoming the third-fastest American ever, behind Carl Lewis (19.75) and Tommie Smith (19.83), could have run even faster had he not slowed at the finish.

"I eased up at the end," he said, because of his large advantage over runner-up Atlee Mahorn of California.

Daniel said the impressive victory made up for past disappointments in the NCAA meet.

"It meant a whole lot," he said. "The last three years were a disappointment, because each year I came in with the fastest time.

"My freshman year, I got third. My sophomore year, I came to the NCAA with an eye infection and really couldn't run. Last year, was the biggest disappointment. I came in with a 19.8 (wind-aided) and got eighth in the final. That was a big disappoitnment.

"Last year, I was worried about what the other guys were going to do in the race. This year, it didn't matter. I was just concerned about myself."

That self-concentration paid off.

Daniel was quick out of the blocks and never was seriously challenged, even though Mahorn broke his Canadian record in finishing in 20.20.

Daniel's time also broke the meet record of 20.15, set by Mike Miller of Tennessee in 1982, and the Hayward Field mark of 20.10, set by Millard Hampton of San Jose Community College in 1976.

In the women's 3,000, the smooth-striding Huber dueled with Oregon's Annette Hand for the first 3¼ laps before surging into the lead with 4¼ laps left.

After that, it was no contest, as Huber steadily pulled away and won by nearly 100 meters.

Her time also broke the meet record of 8:54.41 set by Huber in winning last year.

"The time was a bonus," Huber said. "We were just going for the win."

Huber said she didn't think Mary Decker Slaney, the American record-holder at 8:25.83, was aware of her, but added, "I'll be on the line in July (at the U.S. Olympic Trials) and we'll see."

In the men's 400 hurdles, Young outclassed the field, and sent a message to the other top American hurdlers — two-time Olympic champion and world record holder Edwin Moses, Andre Phillips and Danny Harris.

"They better look out," Young said. "I've still got to get into more races against Andre, Edwin and Danny, but going under 48 feels real good.

"I'm working on it bit by bit. Those guys have gone under 48 for years. "I knew I was capable of running fast, but in the past, I haven't been able to put together an even race."

In winning for the second consecutive year, Young broke records held by Moses and Harris. Moses had held the stadium record of 47.90, set in 1980, and Harris owned the meet record of 48.33, established in 1986.

'Televangelism' author says religion as risky as politics

NEW YORK (AP) — Writing a book about television evangelists is as risky as writing about politics. Yesterday's conclusions have a way of becoming quickly outdated.

Jeffrey Hadden, a University of Virginia sociologist who has established himself as one of the country's leading students of electronic religions, took both risks in "Televangelism: Power and Politics in God's Country," written with Anson Shupe, of Indiana University.

In their book, Hadden and Shupe make the case that Pat Robertson could win the Republican Party nomination for president. By the time Hadden came to New York to promote the book, he was trying to explain how Robertson lost.

Robertson's candidacy was dead after he finished third in South Carolina, a state he had once boasted of winning, and buried after he came up empty in the Super Tuesday primaries in the South.

Robertson failed to mount a serious challenge to George Bush, even though he beat the vice president in the Iowa caucuses, and Hadden believes it is an open question whether the Christian right is capable of electing a candidate.

Hadden and Shupe argue that a candidate from the Christian right stands to benefit from these factors:

— President Reagan has legitimized religious conservatism.

RELIGION

— The religious right overhwelmingly dominates religious broadcasting.

— Ministries such as Robertson's "700 Club" have developed impressive fund-raising skills.

— There is evidence of a conservative shift in the electorate.

The reality, though, was that Pat Robertson couldn't win this year.

Robertson's failure, Hadden said in a recent interview, was a combination of mistakes and a miscalculation of his base of support.

"He got so tangled up in his own words, and his own gaffes, that once he had attention there was never a moment to say, 'This is why I have a better vision for America.'

"He also erred very badly," Hadden said, "in not addressing the religion issue head-on very early...(John F.) Kennedy was able to wait until he had the nomination before he felt he had to do that; Pat should have done it very early."

Robertson also overestimated the size of his base, Hadden said.

"He had measured the size of the evangelical Christian vote, and mistook it for his core constituency, which is charismatic," he said.

"Even the charismatics, upon seeing the way he was performing — in New Hampshire basically, but between Iowa and South Carolina — began to shake their heads and say, 'This does not look like a man who is presidential.' So he didn't get the turnouts."

That suggests, Hadden said, that there is no monolithic "Christian right" bloc.

"There is a huge conservative-evangelical-Christian sentiment out there, there is no doubt in my mind about that, but it is itself divided," he said. "They are not warring in quite the way they warred in earlier times, they are loyal around particular clusters and leaders.

"It is not a matter of Pat Robertson and Jerry Falwell vying for the leadership of the Christian right. They are, respectively, leaders of the charismatic and fundamentalist contingents, neither of which has a whole lot of influence over the Southern Baptists, who in turn are split into at least two very significant camps, nor the people who are roughly aligned with the National Association of Evangelicals, which is yet another sector.

"Politically, if you can do what Bush was successful in doing, getting significant figures lined up to support you, then you help keep them polarized."

It may be, he said, that someone like President Reagan, who is not identified with any particular denomination, will have more success in courting that vote.

"I think there is a very important lesson there," Hadden said. "He speaks their language without being one of them."

Houston church welcomes people of all lifestyles

HOUSTON (AP) — At Bering Memorial United Methodist Church, being a community of faith means welcoming people of all lifestyles, even if how those people live doesn't conform to official church teaching.

Church members believe that openness, with love and service, should be the hallmarks of their lives together.

For at Bering, worship and outreach blend together, each nourishing the other. Along with other projects, Bering sponsors a dental clinic for people with AIDS and a day-care center where AIDS patients are served while their regular caregivers are at work.

Bering, situated on Harold Street in the heart of Montrose, also has homosexual people among its 450 members.

At this spring's national United Methodist General Conference, delegates voted to retain Methodists' ban on ordaining or appointing gays as ministers. They also reaffirmed the denomination's position that homosexuality is "incompatible with Christian teaching," but that gays are people of "sacred worth" to whom the church should minister.

It is the latter call that Bering Church takes so seriously. To its members, ministry to people of all sorts is what being the church is all about. Ministry means outreach to whoever — and whatever — God puts in the church's path.

Bering is the most "mission-oriented, willing to go and do church I've ever seen," said the Rev. Don Sinclair, who became Bering's pastor two years ago.

"I know when I'm looking at these people, I'm looking at what the Bible calls the salt of the earth. I never even hoped to find a church like this one."

Once Bering, with 1,800 members, was one of the largest, most prestigious and wealthiest Methodist congregations in Houston. Founded in 1848, the church suffered problems typical of inner-city churches.

Through death, attrition, updating membership rolls and other factors, Bering lost members. The children of the longtime parishioners moved to other cities and never joined. Some members moved to suburban churches as the Montrose neighborhood changed.

Bering members left to found new churches, among them St. Luke's United Methodist, today one of Houston's largest churches. And some members — disgruntled at alterations in Bering's Sunday worship format, its openness to gays and other changes — left the church and withdrew their financial support.

Christian Puppeteers to have 14th annual conference

The fellowship of Christian Puppeteers, an interdenominational, nonprofit organization will be holding its 14th annual national conference June 21-25 at Alderson-Broaddus College, Philippi, W.Va.

The conference is designed to instruct and train Christian leaders in the use of the various art forms for teaching children effectively. Different styles and techniques of puppets will be shared, as well as clowning, mime, acting and ventriloquism.

A new workshop series "Just for Teens" has been developed for teenagers in ministry across the United States. The teens will have morning workshops, which are designed for fun, fellowship and training geared to their meeds.

A staff of professionals from across the United States has been selected to teach and perform so that participants may have examples of excellence in the various art forms and also be exposed to a variety of ministry possibilities.

The staff members include, among others, The Sonshine Gang, Pennsylvania; Family Festival, New York; Doug Berky, North Carolina; Calvary's Rascals, North Carolina; The Magic Puppet Theatre, Illinois; Prince Puppets, Pennsylvania; Gospel Puppets, Michigan; Ellen Hardy, New Mexico; Hand in Glove Puppet Theatre, Ohio; Bev Cipperly, South Carolina; New Life Puppeteers, Washington; Buttons & Bows, Pennsylvania; and One Way Street, Colorado.

For more information call Jay Polowsky, conference director, 1-814-677-3394 or Bob and Bev Cipperly, registrars, 1-803-579-3899.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Kelview presents film series about stress

Kelview Heights Baptist Church is presenting a new film series that offers a way to inner peace in a hectic, performance-oriented society, says a release from the church.

The film series, produced by Thomas Nelson Communications, reveals what often happens to busy Christians, as seen through the life of an over-extended, super-achiever, Harvey Leech.

"Using Scriptures and examples from daily life, it demonstrates how Harvey's public life — just like our own — flows from a private inner world," the release says. "When that becomes disorganized, it is not long before the outer world begins to crumble."

"'Ordering Your Private World'" exposes the whole problems — from how and why, to what comes next, providing practical, biblical solutions for people caught up in the society we live in," the release says.

The film series will be shown at Kelview Heights Baptist Church on consecutive Sunday mornings at 10:00 a.m. beginning Sunday, and continuing through July 17th.

The Rev. Frank Johnson, pastor, invites the public to attend this series. Nurseries and children's classes are provided for all ages.

SUNDAY, JUNE 5, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: If you are looking for new employment, check out public relations and media jobs. There will be lots of openings in August. A cross-country move could be good for your finances and your health. Cash flow will be fine if you curb spending. A talented friend helps you find the answers you need. Reassess your long-range goals. The key to greater success is taking a more realistic approach. Be both imaginative and practical.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: commentator Bill Moyers, economist Adam Smith, hockey's Andre Lacroix, actor Lee Horsley, Mexican hero Pancho Villa.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Changing your eating habits could change your life for the better. Get started right now! Although family bickering has you on edge, the friction is only temporary. Take a long walk.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Getting together with a diverse group of friends proves exciting. Romance continues on a smooth course. Varying your routine will perk up a relationship. A short trip enjoys favorable influences.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Romance and travel go hand-in-hand. Stand up for yourself. Do not let a "friend" put you down. Being independent does not mean being rude. Enjoy your freedom, but respect others' wishes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stay on course. If troubled, turn to someone who has always been there for you. A period of reflection and a walk in the fresh air help you improve a relationship. Be more appreciative.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Procrastination could be your undoing. You will pay the penalty if you keep postponing things until tomorrow. Romantic partner may be playing games. Insist on an honest relationship. You deserve the truth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your high spirits are contagious today. Others are cheered by your presence. Time spent with a child will be emotionally worthwhile. Hang on to your cash. Write a check for any purchases.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lots of bargains abound in the stores. Do not buy things you cannot afford or do not really need. Having money in the bank will make you happier. Save for investment purposes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Unless you get your emotions under control, you will be giving others the power to manipulate you. A country outing is just what the doctor ordered. Take along a friend or a child.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your presence will be enough to fire up others today. Take it as a compliment. Getting better organized at home will improve a close relationship. Your sense of individuality is important, but be considerate of loved one's feelings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your confidence shoots skyward following a successful deal or public appearance. Travel tires some people but leaves you invigorated. The luck of the angels goes with you. Keep a bag packed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If you feel emotionally drained, get away from the source of your pain. Romantic fires heat up late in the day. Someone you have been thinking about could show up. Keep your cool.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Look forward to a glorious weekend. You finally have your act together and can shoot for the top. Reserve some quiet time for your family. A romantic outing ends on an upbeat note.

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

Kitty Dukakis undergoes surgery to repair spinal damage from dancing

BOSTON (AP) — Surgery performed Friday on Kitty Dukakis repaired spinal damage that probably resulted from a lifetime of modern dance, her surgeon said.

In the five-hour operation, doctors removed two discs in her neck and replaced them with bone taken from her left hip.

Dukakis

Mrs. Dukakis, wife of Democratic presidential front-runner Michael Dukakis, began to suffer some numbness over the past three or four weeks. Diagnostic tests showed that two discs had ruptured and were pressing on her spinal column.

This is a dangerous condition that, if uncorrected, could have left her paralyzed from the shoulders down.

Dr. Nicholas T. Zervas, chief of neurosurgery at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, said the damage probably happened years ago but worsened over the past month.

Mrs. Dukakis, 51, studied and taught modern dance for three decades.

"She was an athletic dancer when she was younger," said Zervas. "She described certain things she would do that caused extension of the neck that quite likely could cause some degeneration of the ligaments and bones and later on cause an actual hernia of the disc."

Spinal discs act as cushions that separate the vertebrae that cover and protect the spinal cord. Problems occur when the discs squeeze out of place, causing pain, tingling and other symptoms.

Such herniated discs — also called slipped, ruptured or prolapsed discs — are relatively common. Usually, however, they occur in the lower back and don't endanger the spine.

Mrs. Dukakis's case, however, was more serious. She had suffered two ruptured discs in her neck, and the broken discs were pressing on her spine.

"Given her problem with the discs pressing directly on the spinal cord, we were concerned with her losing spinal cord function," said Dr. Lawrence Borges, the principal surgeon. "In its worst situation, that could mean paralysis from the shoulders down."

The doctors began the surgery by making a cut in the left side of Mrs. Dukakis' neck just above the collar bone. Then they went straight back toward the front of the spine.

There they found two discs broken into fragments and pushing into the spine, just as magnetic and X-ray scans had shown.

"The discs were removed from the front and cleaned out using the operating microscope all the way back to the front of the spinal cord," said Borges.

"At that point, Dr. (Frederick) Mansfield placed two pieces of bone, one in each space, taken from the left hip to take the place where the discs had been," Borges said. "These were fused together to make a nice, stable construct along the neck."

By fusing the spine this way, the doctors helped stabilize the spine, protect the nerves and minimize the chance of pain.

Borges said Mrs. Dukakis should notice very little limitation in her ability to move her neck.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte, suffering from stomach and liver cancer, received a get-well visit at a Washington hospital on Friday from Vice President George Bush.

Bush met with Duarte for 30 minutes in the Salvadoran president's room at Walter Reed Army Medical Center. During the visit, Bush "wished Duarte well and expressed his gratitude for what he's done for democracy," Kristin Taylor, a spokeswoman for the vice president, said.

Duarte

Bush's visit was done with little advance notice. The vice president arrived at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington late Friday morning after a week at his vacation home in Maine. He then told reporters he planned to visit Duarte and boarded a helicopter for the short trip to Walter Reed.

The hospital, meanwhile, issued a statement saying Duarte remained in guarded but stable condition while his doctors review test results to determine how best to treat him.

The hospital said doctors at Walter Reed and Duarte's personal physician would look at all the test results and "present treatment alternatives to the president and his family."

The hospital added that "no decision on treatment is expected or required today" and did not specify when a decision would be made.

Both the hospital and Duarte's personal physician, Benjamin Interiano, who is from El Salvador, have been reluctant to discuss chances of Duarte's recovery. But a State Department official, insisting on anonymity, said Friday that Duarte is suffering from terminal cancer.

"The only question is how long he will live. It's probably measured in months," the official said.

The official added there have been informal discussions in El Salvador about the possibility of Duarte resigning his office. The next in line in the order of succession is Vice President Rodolfo Castillo Claramount, who is serving as acting president in Duarte's absence.

Duarte, 62, has been undergoing tests since his arrival at Walter Reed Tuesday night.

COGAR, Okla. (AP) — Actors Dustin Hoffman and Tom Cruise have been "very, very kind" to their Oklahoma fans, signing autographs and visiting with them while filming scenes for the movie "Rainman," the director of the Oklahoma Film Office said Friday.

Crowds began gathering around this town about 40 miles southwest of Oklahoma City Thursday when word got out that the United Artists crew had arrived.

"The crowds were here when I got here this morning," said Mary Nell Clark, director of the film office in the state Department of Commerce.

She estimated Friday's crowd at 75 to 80 people.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — American singer Laura Branigan cried when she saw hungry black children eating their one daily meal, but she voices no regrets about breaking the cultural boycott of South Africa.

Branigan concludes a series of six concerts this weekend at Sun City, a sports-and-casino resort in the nominally independent black homeland of Bophuthatswana.

She is one of the few American pop stars to perform in South Africa in recent years. In the early 1980s, Frank Sinatra, Dolly Parton and Cher sang in the racially segregated country.

Iranian plane tries to bomb Hussein's house

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraqi forces Friday drove off an Iranian warplane that flew 110 miles into Iraq and tried to bomb President Saddam Hussein's family home north of Baghdad; a military command announced.

While maneuvering to evade Iraqi ground fire, the Iranian jet "dropped all its load of explosives indiscriminately" in the village of Ouja, just south of Tikrit, Saddam's hometown, the official Iraqi News Agency said.

No injuries were reported in the attack at 5:55 a.m., according to the news agency. The report, monitored in Nicosia, did not say whether Saddam was home at the time. It was the first time the Iraqis have reported an attack on Saddam's hometown during the nearly 8-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

The report did not say whether the U.S.-built Iranian F-4 Phantom jet was hit.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said its warplanes on Friday attacked military targets in three raids on Iraq, including one near Tikrit at 5:25 a.m., but it gave no other details.

Iran's new acting commander-in-chief, Hashemi Rafsanjani, urged his countrymen to take the war with Iraq "more seriously."

The Iraqi News Agency did not explain how the Iranian plane flew undetected all the way from the border, 110 miles to the east, to attack Saddam's home, which is 100 miles northwest of Baghdad. Military analysts said an F-4 flying at low altitudes is capable of evading detection by radar.

After the attack, Saddam led a meeting of the governing Revolutionary Command Council.

An official spokesman, who was not identified by name, said the leadership decided "not to carry out a direct retaliation today...to help the Iranian people liberate themselves from the nightmare of these evil charlatan rulers."

But, he added, "Iraq will reserve its right to carry out a crushing and comprehensive retaliation at the appropriate time." He called the Iranian attack "a flagrant violation" of a truce in the "war of the cities."

Thousands of civilians in both countries were killed in long-range missile duels and air raids that raged for two months before the April 21 cease-fire in the war of the cities. Many of the missiles hit Tehran and Baghdad.

Rafsanjani, the speaker of Iran's Parliament, was appointed by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini Thursday as acting commander-in-chief, a post Khomeini had held since the Islamic Revolution in 1979.

Rafsanjani told a prayer meeting in Tehran on Friday there should be "no compromise, no submission and no backing down from our rights" in the war. His speech was carried by IRNA, which also was monitored in Nicosia. "We should take the situation more seriously," he told the worshipers.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Men who muffed robbery threaten to kill hostages

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Two men who muffed a bank robbery in a southern town threatened Friday to start killing their 12 remaining hostages if their demands for money and an escape car were not met, police reported.

Four other hostages slipped out of the bank through a bathroom window early Friday, said officials in Goioere, a town of 30,000 about 550 miles southwest of Rio de Janeiro in Parana state. Ten others were released after the men holed up in the bank Thursday afternoon.

Police chief Guaraci Abreu said the two men were young "and very professional. They know what they want."

He said the gunmen had doubled their cash demand to the equivalent of $100,000 and wanted a car without license plates. "Otherwise they said they would start killing hostages one by one, and I believe them," he said by telephone.

Justice Secretary Antonio Lopes Noronha, heading a negotiating team, suspended payment of the ransom even though the money had been collected from other banks.

Soviets honor churches

MOSCOW (AP) — The government gave awards to 15 leaders of the Russian Orthodox Church on Friday, two days before they begin celebrating the 1,000th anniversary of Christianity in what is now the Soviet Union.

Alexander Ogorodnikov, a Russian Orthodox dissident, said police had prevented a Moldavian man from traveling to Moscow for an unofficial commemoration of the millennium. Ogorodnikov also said officials turned down his own request for space in the city to hold unofficial alternative celebrations.

Dissidents criticize church leaders for their close contacts with the government, which controls church activity.

A statement by President Andrei A. Gromyko, carried by the official news agency Tass, awarded the Red Banner of Labor to the Patriarch Pimen, leader of the church; Metropolitan Filaret of Kiev and Galitsky, and two archbishops. Ten other leading clerics were given the Order of Peoples' Friendship.

AIDS cases near 100,000

GENEVA (AP) — The number of AIDS cases reported to the World Health Organization stood at 96,433 by May 31, including 7,387 new cases registered in 75 countries since the beginning of the year.

Updated reports from the United States, France, Italy, Canada and Haiti accounted for 78 percent of the recorded 1988 increase, according to figures released this week.

The U.S. AIDS total stood at 61,580 cases, including 4,348 new patients from January through April.

France trailed the United States as the country with the second highest number of cases, 3,628. They included 555 new cases during the first quarter of the year.

Vietnam investigating more than 30 cases of American MIAs, team says

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam is investigating more than 30 cases that may involve Americans missing in action from the Vietnam war, a U.S. military team that visited Hanoi said Friday.

The team made the announcement after three days of talks with Vietnamese government officials on accounting for a total of nearly 1,800 Americans missing from the war.

"The Vietnamese reported to us that they are now investigating 32 instances in which they have received information or remains which could be associated with missing Americans," the team said in a statement.

"Some of this investigative work is still in the preliminary stages," it said. "Consequently, no conclusions can be drawn at this time from these investigations."

In the past, the Vietnamese often have followed up on such announcements with returns of remains. The last return was on April 6, when Hanoi handed over 27 sets — the largest such transfer since U.S. forces withdrew from Vietnam in 1973.

The American team said it provided specific information to the Vietnamese and reviewed progress since technical specialists of the two sides last met in March. The statement described this week's meeting as "positive and productive."

The five-man team was from the U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center and the Army Central Identification Laboratory in Honolulu, which are entrusted with resolving the fates of Americans missing in foreign wars. It was led by Lt. Col. Paul Mather, head of the resolution center's office in Bangkok.

$21 million Roman vase to be broken, reassembled

LONDON (AP) — A man who looks after the pottery and porcelain in the British Museum is going to break a prize exhibit — the 2,000-year-old Portland Vase from ancient Rome.

Art dealers estimate the value of the vase at around $21 million. The 10-inch-high, four-pound glass artifact is regarded as one of the finest pieces of early Roman glass.

Nigel Williams, the museum's chief conservator of ceramics, said the vase must be broken and reassembled because the glue holding the blue and white cameo-glass pieces together after two earlier breakages has become yellow and extremely brittle.

"It is the most difficult restoration I have attempted in 27 years," Williams told reporters at a news conference Wednesday.

He said he expects the task to occupy about 40 percent of his time for the rest of this year. He hopes to have the vase back on display by the end of December.

It was made by a sculptor named Dioscourides and depicts men and women in a leafy glade — probably the courtship of Peleus and the seagoddess Thetis, who became the parents of the mythical Greek warrior, Achilles.

"It is one of the very few surviving Roman cameo vases and has always been the subject of great academic debate as to who is represented on it," said museum spokesman Andrew Hamilton.

The vase was formed by inserting a gob of cobalt blue glass into a cup of opaque white glass and then blowing both together. The white outer layer was then carved to produce the white cameo relief on a blue background.

The vase is believed to have belonged to the Emperor Augustus and was discovered in 1582 in a tomb near Rome.

It came to Britain in the 18th century via Sir William Hamilton, the British envoy in Naples and husband of Lady Emma Hamilton, later the mistress of Adm. Horatio Nelson.

In 1785, the vase was sold to the wealthy Portland family for roughly the equivalent of $1,875 dollars in today's money — a vast sum in those days. The Duke of Portland loaned it to the British Museum in 1810.

While on display in a showcase at the museum, the vase was deliberately smashed into about 200 pieces on Feb. 7, 1845, by William Lloyd, an Irishman who had been drinking heavily for a week.

"I have no doubt that the man who broke the vase, whoever he is, is mad," the duke replied when the museum wrote to him to express regret.

The vase was glued together by the museum's restorer, John Doubleday, and put on display again.

Doubleday's glue had become so weak and discolored after a century that in 1948 the vase was dismantled and rebuilt by conservator James Axtell, who also incorporated three of the 37 small chips that Doubleday had found too difficult to replace.

'Nazi Bar' offends some tourists, but entertains Thais

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A middle-aged woman spit and cursed at a drawing of officers who served Germany's Third Reich. A European man threw a beer mug to the floor, apparently enraged by the decorations of Bangkok's "Nazi Bar."

Trendy Thais are frequenting the new nightspot, but foreigners have objected to the caricatures of Adolf Hitler, cartoons of Italian Fascist leader Benito Mussolini, photos of storm troopers and waiters with "swastika" armbands.

"For us, the bar is purely business-oriented, apolitical, artistic and entertaining," said manager Aor Saratuk.

He said he and business partners focused on the Nazi theme because its "powerful, catchy name and emotive appeal" would draw young patrons in a downtown area dotted with competitive pubs with names such as "Express" or "Studio West."

They flock to the bar to hear live music, seemingly oblivious to objections that it glamorizes the brutal Nazi regime.

Aor said there have been no complaints by Thais, but in recent weeks several foreigners have criticized the bar in letters to the English-language Bangkok Post newspaper.

"Simply stated, opening a bar that glamorizes any aspect of Adolf Hitler or the Nazi regime is an offense against our common humanity. If we can easily forget or trivialize the Holocaust, then we are saying that human life is not sacred," one letter said.

JOIN THE NATIONAL DEPRESSIVE AND MANIC DEPRESSIVE ASSOCIATION
It's a shocking statistic. But at some point in their lives,one in five Americans will suffer from Depressive or Manic Depressive Illness. Sadly, only a few ever learn that this is a biochemical illness, an illness which can be treated successfully through medication and therapy.As well as through comprehensive, common denominator support for patients and families affected by this illness. Which is why the National Depressive and Manic Depressive Associatiin (NDMDA) was founded.
A Unique Association
What makes the NDMDA different?
The simple fact that it's directed by patients and their families. Members of the medical community work closely with the association in an advisory and educatiinal capacity.

Graduates reflect on first grade

By KEN HERMAN

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — Jeff Timme remembers the naps.

"Back then, they made us sleep," said Timme, Lufkin High School Class of 1988. "Now they won't let you sleep."

John Rusk, now 6-foot-2, 225 pounds and captain of the Panther football team, remembers little things about first grade in Anna McKay's class.

"I remember a little glove she had that had the vowels on it," he said.

Burtis Scruggs remembers something about himself.

"I was a little jarhead back then, head bigger than my body," said Scruggs, now an artist and chess player who will enter the Army next month.

Lufkin High School passed out 505 diplomas Saturday night, and 13 went to students who were in Mrs. McKay's first-grade class in 1976-77, which had 25 kids. Like all the 172,000 Texas students receiving those diplomas this year, Mrs. McKay's students were in school while Texas implemented some of the most sweeping changes ever mandated in the state's public schools.

Some of Mrs. McKay's students thrived: Richard Baldwin graduated as a National Merit Scholar.

Some just survived: Timme said high school was a constant, though successful, struggle for him.

Some didn't make it: Tony Anders dropped out in the 11th grade to take a $3.80-per-hour job at a chicken-processing plant to support Tony Jr., born July 8, 1987.

"I regret it now," he said. "All my friends are graduating. This would have been my year to graduate. I wasn't that good in school, but I could have made it through."

But Anders is not bitter. He is married, loves his son and has a goal. He's making $4.85 per hour now at another chicken plant. He has his Graduate Equivalency Degree and is working toward a military career.

Rusk, the football captain, and Jeanne Ford are among the former McKay students who said high school was not that difficult.

"We cleaned out my locker today and I had books I didn't even take to class," said Miss Ford, who will go to Angelina College.

"They should teach us how to study more. I don't go home and crack a book. I haven't since ninth grade," said Rusk, who is headed for Texas A&M University, but not to play football.

Mrs. McKay, retired but still a teacher at heart, reminded Rusk and Miss Ford that it doesn't come as easily for many students.

Timme, also headed for Angelina College here, agreed: School is "hard enough right now. A lot of people drop out."

But Baldwin, the merit scholar, said school is too easy for too many students.

"I think it should be made more difficult. I think seventh grade and eighth grade were pretty much wasted years. The should move high school courses back into the seventh and eighth grades so you could take harder courses in high school," he said.

"They're more interested in social life than studying," Baldwin said of fellow students. "I haven't had a real eventful social life. I feel I missed out on some of the high school social life. Hopefully, in a few years, it will all be worth it."

Social life at Lufkin High School seems typical of small-town high schools, complete with schoolhouse caste system.

Erin Murray, Class of '88 and a former McKay student, explains the system.

"There's the popular group. They all sit together. And of course the blacks all sit together and the Mexicans all sit together," she said.

The football players "are the studs, or they think they're studs."

"The pretty, popular girls are on the drill team. Mainly, the football players date girls who are on the drill team," she said.

Miss Murray placed herself in the "band crowd."

"They're kind of the nerds. A band guy will date a drill-team girl, but not very much," she said.

And, like at most high schools, there are too many students involved with drugs. Several of Mrs. McKay's former students said drugs are readily available from schoolmates. Some could identify former first-grade classmates they say are involved with drugs.

Miss Ford said, however, that alcohol is a bigger problem: "Even if it is not a drinking party, there will be somebody drinking."

As they gathered for a recent photo, several of Mrs. McKay's ex-students hugged her.

"That's why I got here, because of her," Kelly Murphy said when asked what first grade meant to him. Many of the students remember Mrs. McKay as helpful and, when necessary, tough.

"You couldn't pull one over on her," Miss Murray recalled.

And Mrs. McKay remembered much about the students.

"Are you still allergic to milk?" she asked Scruggs.

Mrs. McKay retired in May 1987 after 19 years of teaching. She misses the classroom, but not everything about teaching.

"I hated not being with the children, but it was a relief not to deal with the confusion that's on the teachers now and the pressures that are on teachers," she said, adding, "That's the way it is in education. There's a crisis every year."

For many of her ex-students, the next challenge will be college.

'Unique' program in Brazil winning street children

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Like millions of abandoned children in Brazil, Leonardo Arcanjo lived on the streets, stealing and begging. He faced an adulthood of misery and crime.

But late last year, the Sao Paulo Child Welfare Department persuaded him that he could be more than a beggar or a thief, and today the 15-year-old street kid is learning to be a carpenter with the guarantee of a job when he finishes.

Leonardo is one of about 9,000 children being helped in a new program praised by the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) as "unique, creative and forward looking."

"Our basic aim is to provide alternative educational and job training programs that will give the abandoned child the self-respect he never had and detour him from the path that usually leads to a life of crime," said Alda Marco Antonio, head of the Child Welfare Department.

To achieve her objective, Marco Antonio created a multi-approach program that includes boarding houses where the children receive medical and dental care and are fed and clothed.

After a process of adaptation in which they overcome "the fears, hatred and skepticism caused by years of abandonment," the children are placed in schools or sent to vocational training centers.

One of the most innovative parts of the program is its job-training project in which children learn a trade of their choosing at one of several companies owned and operated by the state of Sao Paulo.

Leonardo, for instance, is learning carpentry at the Sao Paulo State Bank's Supply, Maintenance and Operations Center. Other children learn how to become computer programmers, printers, electricians and auto mechanics.

At the end of the six-month program, each child is guaranteed a full-time job.

Since May 1987, when the project was created, 258 children have learned a trade and been hired; 1,177 others are now being trained.

Marco Antonio said one reason for the success of the program is that it involves "no coercion or locking up."

"It has been proven that forcing children to do what they don't want to do and locking them away in detention centers does not work," she said in an interview. "They are worse off and more violent when they leave than when they go in."

She described the state's juvenile detention centers as "repressive places where children lose all their self-esteem."

Jose Roberto Melo, a spokesman for the state foundation that runs the centers, said, "Of the 2,500 children currently detained only a small minority can be considered dangerous. Most are there because of vagrancy or because of some petty crime like purse-snatching."

Marco Antonio said eventually her program would expand "so that one day the detention centers will be empty of all but the most dangerous individuals who have committed crimes like murder or rape."

To take part in her program "a child must decide for himself that he wants to be helped and of course we help him reach this decision," Marco Antonio said.

The first contact a child has with the program is through one of the 120 "street educators" — psychologists, sociologists, social workers, lawyers and other professionals who look for abandoned children and win their friendship and trust.

When that relationship is established, a process that could take several months, the street educator introduces the child to the program and guides him through its initial phases.

Leonardo said, "For years I lived on the streets begging and stealing or shining shoes or selling candies in the subway.

"A street educator once approached me and told me about the program, but I didn't trust her. I thought she wanted to lock me away somewhere."

Then Leonardo was arrested for vagrancy and police planned to send him to a juvenile detention center.

But, the street educator intervened out "and that's when I decided to give the program a try," Leonardo said. "It was the best decision I have ever made."

John Donahue, UNICEF's representative in Brazil, called the program "one of the most coherant and complete efforts at dealing with abandoned children."

He said it was unique because "it simultaneously reduces the number of street children and prevents others from taking to the streets to survive."

He said it should serve as a model for other Brazilian cities and other countries.

The National Child Welfare Foundation estimates the number of abandoned children in Brazil at 7 million. They are among 36 million who lack education, health care, housing and parental guidance and affection.

Marco Antonio said one of the basic reasons for the large number of street children "is society's abandonment of adults who are exploited by low wages and who therefore cannot properly care for their children."

Most Brazilian workers earn the equivalent of about $125 a month.

Marco Antonio also cited a poorly structured public school system "that excludes the poor."

"There may be enough classrooms and teachers, but the poor cannot send their children to school simply because they can't pay for supplies and uniforms," she said.

"Most street children start off begging for food. Little by little they start committing petty thefts and as they grow older they start stealing cars or pushing drugs. So, from innocent vcitims of society's injustices, they end up the aggressors."
