Coffin of gold

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico — A drug trafficker was buried in a coffin encrusted with gold and graced with a diamond-studded crucifix, the government newspaper El Nacional reported Tuesday. The funeral procession of Beltran Bojorquez on Monday included Rolls-Royces, Ferraris and limousines "rarely seen on this border," the paper said. The bronze coffin was encrusted with 14-karat gold and cost $19,000; the crucifix contained more than 30 diamonds, the newspaper said. Bojorquez was shot by soldiers last week.

Court decisions

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, moving slowly but steadily to the political right in its just-completed 1992-'93 term, relaxed church-state separation and dealt civil rights proponents two key defeats. Missing were decisions directly involving abortion, affirmative action or school prayer — explosive issues that had left the court deeply divided in past terms./3A

Kennedy book

NEW YORK — The publisher of a biography of Sen. Edward Kennedy will remove a disclaimer that says some thoughts and dialogue in the book were invented by its author. Simon & Schuster president and publisher Carolyn Reidy said Monday that all the dialogue in the soon-to-be-released book has sources. However, she said author Joe McGinniss took "biographer's license" to discuss what some people might have been thinking at certain points. "The Last Brother" includes long monologues from the senator, even though he refused to be interviewed for the book.

Clinton blames Saddam

■ Iraqi leader knew of alleged plot, administration says; tensions flare anew as U.S. warplane confronts antiaircraft battery.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration said Tuesday there is no doubt Saddam Hussein personally approved an alleged Iraqi plot against former President Bush. Tensions with Iraq flared anew in a confrontation between an American warplane and an Iraqi antiaircraft battery.

President Clinton said it was "very difficult to conceive" of improved relations with Baghdad in light of "the stubborn refusal of Iraq to comply with United Nations resolutions."

The U.N. measures require Saddam to dismantle his weapons of mass destruction and open his military facilities to inspection.

The president spoke at a news conference with Argentine President Carlos Menem shortly after the Pentagon disclosed that a U.S. jet fired a missile at an Iraqi anti-aircraft artillery site. The Pentagon said the Iraqis had targeted their radar on the U.S. plane, a possible prelude to firing.

Clinton noted there have similar occurrences in the past. "I wouldn't read too much into it," he said.

The president said standard rules of engagement authorize U.S. pilots in the region to fire at radar sites if the planes are targeted.

Questions about Iraq dominated Clinton's news conference three days after U.S. warships fired cruise missiles at Saddam Hussein's intelligence headquarters in retaliation for the alleged assassination plot against Bush.

The White House heightened security precautions in light of the tensions.

"I think routinely at a moment like this there are additional procedures," National Security Adviser Anthony Lake said.

Some rich Americans wind up not paying taxes

By Jim Luther
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — It's still possible to make a lot of money without sharing it with Uncle Sam.

The Internal Revenue Service says 779 couples and individuals reported earning more than $200,000 on returns filed in 1990 and paid no federal income tax. They earned $340 million, an average of $436,000 apiece.

The number of high-income non-taxpayers almost doubled from 397 a year earlier and was the highest since the IRS began publishing the reports on orders of Congress in 1977. But they still represented only about 1 of every 1,000 filers at that income level.

"The number of all returns — taxable and non-taxable — with incomes of $200,000 or more has risen substantially, (but) the percentage of non-taxable returns has not changed as significantly," the IRS concluded.

The report showed an additional 8,020 over-$200,000 earners paid less than 5 percent of their income in tax; 15,246 paid between 5 percent and 10 percent. More than half those who

AIDS coordinator supports needle-exchange program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new federal AIDS coordinator said Tuesday she supports needle exchanges for drug addicts as a way of fighting the disease, but she stopped short of urging condom distribution in schools. She said she will coordinate all government AIDS programs with a staff of five.

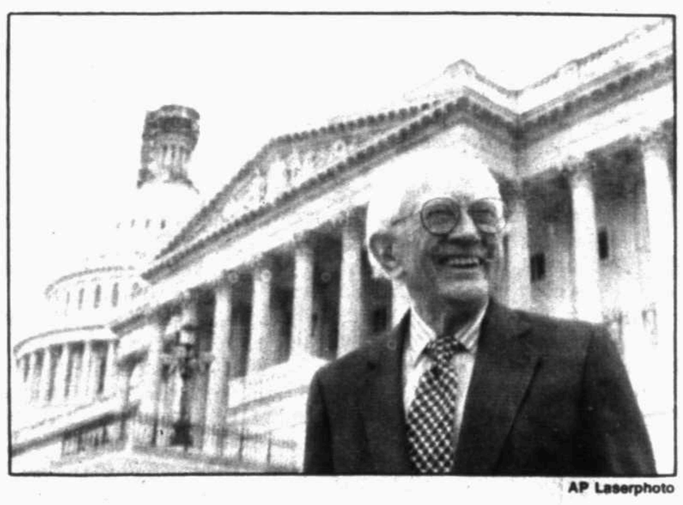

Kristine Gebbie, who was appointed by President Clinton last week after others turned the post down, said she's been given "clear authority to work across the Cabinet" on federal efforts to deal with the epidemic.

She made the rounds of the TV talk shows Tuesday morning and said in an interview carried on the Fox network that "I can't work miracles."

Later in that same interview, she said her staff will be "very small — four or five people at maximum."

Gebbie said that didn't bother her because her job "isn't about building bureaucracy." Still, by federal stan-

Man admits to 4 murders just minutes before his execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Convicted murderer Markham Duff-Smith, in a surprising disclosure seconds before his death Tuesday, confessed to the 1975 plot that killed his mother and a similar scheme four years later that left three members of his adoptive family dead.

Duff-Smith, 46, previously denied any role in the death of Gertrude Duff-Smith Zabolio, 57, who was strangled with a pair of panty hose at her home in the exclusive River Oaks neighborhood of Houston.

He also had denied any part in the shooting deaths of his adoptive sister, Diana Wanstrath, 36; her husband, John; and their 14-month-old son, Kevin, in 1979.

But early Tuesday, with needles inserted into his arm and strapped to the Texas death chamber gurney, Duff-Smith smiled and acknowledged at the start of a rambling final statement that he was the mastermind of the scheme investigators insisted were two murder-for-inheritance plots.

"I am the low sinner of sinners," Duff-Smith said. "I am responsible for the '75 and '79 cases."

Duff-Smith was convicted of paying $10,000 to Allen Wayne Janecka to kill his mother and make her death look like a suicide.

After squandering a $90,000 inheritance, police said in 1979 he sought out Janecka again to kill the Wanstrath family so he could collect up to $500,000 of their inheritance.

"If someone confesses, it confirms the system worked," Patricia Guillermo, a spokeswoman for the Texas attorney general's office, said.

As city officials consider making every purchaser of alcohol produce identification to thwart minors from buying alcohol, Midland school board trustees are clamping down on both drug and alcohol offenses.

Trustees will be voting on a stricter school district drug and alcohol policy that can send students packing on first offenses.

"We are trying to expel students on the first offense for drugs, which we did not do before. We really want to have a zero tolerance policy and we are doing all that the law will allow us to do," said trustee Jackie Hamilton.

A grand jury report indicated that drug and alcohol abuse was a serious problem among Midland youth.

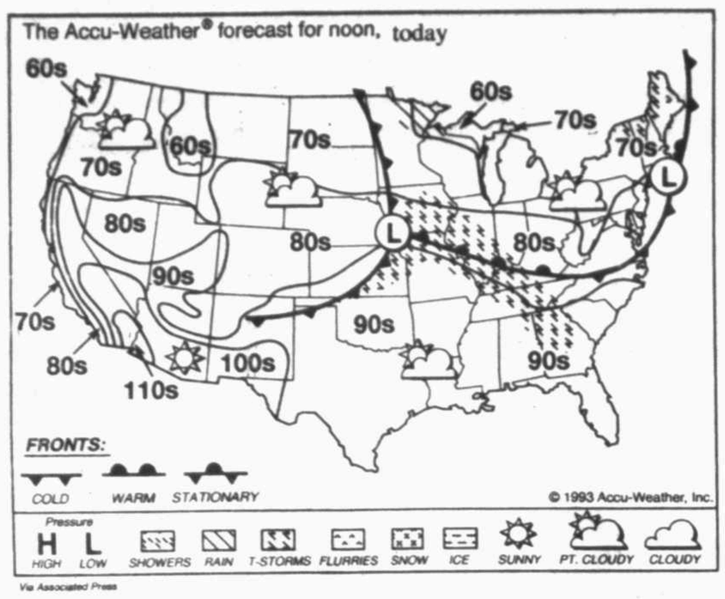

From that report, dubbed "Project Awaken," a task force formed headed by City Council member Claudia Egan. She also appointed a Task Force Select Committee, which includes elected officials — "people who can change policy," Ms. Egan said.

Ms. Hamilton, and MISD superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. both serve on the Task Force Select Committee.

Today's high may hit upper 90s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for mostly sunny skies with a high in the mid- to upper 90s and south winds at 15-20 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a low in the lower 70s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with a high in the mid-90s.

After an overnight low of 73, Tuesday's high reached 95, compared to the record high of 109 set in 1946. The record low was 56 set in 1982.

STATE

Southeast Texas was battered by thunderstorms again Tuesday afternoon, with forecasters saying more rain could fall in the south and west.

Other thunderstorms were scattered across the Big Bend. Some of the storms may have had hail, gusty winds and deadly lightning, according to the National Weather Service.

Temperature around South Texas were in the 80s and 90s.

The forecast today calls for partly cloudy skies with isolated afternoon showers and thunderstorms.

Lows Wednesday should be in the 70s and 80s, with highs reaching into the 90s.

In North Texas, skies were mostly to partly cloudy Tuesday afternoon.

Temperatures climbed into the 90s, with readings ranging from 90 degrees in Lufkin to 94 in Minerals Wells and Waco. The heat index was higher than 100 degrees in several areas in North Texas.

Lows Tuesday night were in the 70s. Today should be mostly sunny with highs in the 90s and lows in the 70s.

Scattered thunderstorms developed Tuesday afternoon in parts of West Texas, but much of the region had sunny skies.

Temperatures were mostly in the 90s but hit 100 at Reese.

Skies in the Panhandle should be partly cloudy through today, with a chance of thunderstorms in the Big Bend and Trans-Pecos areas.

Lows Tuesday were in the 60s and 70s. Highs today should be in the high 90s with lows in the 60s and 70s.

NATION

Thunderstorms produced heavy rain, strong wind and hail Tuesday over much of the nation, with sunny, cool weather in the Great Lakes states and New England.

Hail the size of baseballs fell in South Dakota at Cedar Butte and Ideal. Golf-ball size hail fell near Artesian and Sioux Falls. Wind gusted to 63 mph at Huron and tornadoes were reported near Wall, the National Weather Service said.

Winds in Casselton, in eastern North Dakota, blew the roof off a store and uprooted trees. Trees also were uprooted in Fargo. Wind gusted to 60 miles an hour in Mayville and in Horace.

Thunderstorms in the eastern Gulf Coast states downed trees in Orange County in southern Florida, while the roof was blown off a house in Merritt Island.

Waterspouts were reported at Hudson and near Ozello and dime-size hail fell at Winter Haven, all in southern Florida.

There were unconfirmed reports of tornadoes in northeast Georgia.

At 2 p.m. EDT, showers and thunderstorms were scattered across the Plains, through parts of the Tennessee and Ohio valleys, and along the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, as well as the Rockies.

Rainfall for the six hours ending at 2 p.m. EDT included 1.28 inches at Aberdeen, S.D.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

Fisher's lawyers agree to settlement

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Lawyers for Amy Fisher and her parents agreed Tuesday to settle a lawsuit filed by the woman who was shot by the love-struck Long Island teen-ager.

Fisher, 18, is serving a five- to 15-year sentence for shooting Mary Jo Buttafuoco. Fisher said she was in a jealous rage because she was having an affair with Mrs. Buttafuoco's husband, Joey. He denies having any affair with Fisher.

Mrs. Buttafuoco had sued for $150 million, claiming that Fisher's parents failed "to exercise the necessary and proper parental influence, supervision and authority" and should have sought psychiatric help for her.

The terms of the settlement were not disclosed.

MISD: 1st offense can bring expulsion

(From 1A)

ton said.

At a recent school board meeting, trustees voted unanimously to toughen the district policy.

The revised policy calls for an "automatic mandatory recommendation for expulsion" on the first offense of possession of marijuana or any drug, according to Ricardo Torres, MISD executive director of secondary operations.

Also, possession of alcohol is an expulsion on the first violation, Torres said. "Students can get 10 days in the Alternative Education Center for both offenses," he said.

Ms. Hamilton recommended the punishment be 10 days in the AEC rather than the proposed five days. "Five days is just a slap on the wrist," she said. "If we are going to have zero tolerance, we are going to have to expel on the first offense," she said.

Torres said the AEC — which serves both high schools — is a suspension center, where students continue to receive education instruction. "It's just done in an extremely restricted environment," he said.

Torres said the district is considering expanding AEC facilities to serve the junior high school campuses.

He said MISD trustees are taking a harder line against alcohol abuse than state law requires. "The state continues to treat alcohol differently than it treats drugs or controlled substance abuse," Torres said.

"Given the acceptability of alcohol, folks continue not to see it as a serious violation. We would like to treat them (drug and alcohol offenses) equally. Our position is zero tolerance and mandatory recommendation for expulsion."

Along with toughening the drug and alcohol policy, trustees will consider — at Thursday's board meeting — approving a new policy to allow the use of metal detectors and dogs to search cars and lockers for "contraband."

The policy states that metal detectors and dogs won't be used to search students. It reads, in part, "Sniffing of students by trained dogs does constitute a search and requires individualized reasonable suspicion. Therefore, dogs are not to be used to search students."

According to the drug and alcohol policy being considered, students will be removed from class and expelled without the opportunity to attend the AEC if they attempt to sell, give or deliver marijuana, any controlled substance, or an alcoholic beverage to another student. In addition, the student will be referred to the criminal justice system for prosecution as provided by law.

Interestingly enough, students themselves pushed for a "zero tolerance" policy on drugs and alcohol use on campus.

A group of high school students — speaking at a public meeting on closed campuses — urged school board trustees to think about putting "some teeth" into the district's penalites for violating policy.

"The students said 'get rid of the people causing us the problems,'" Ms. Hamilton said. "One of the reasons I supported keeping open campuses was that students were asking us not to punish the ones who are good."

Torres noted that the school board "has been 100 percent supportive of recommendations brought from the campus level, whether they have been on weapons, or gross violations. Previous to this policy being revamped, they were not expelling students on first possession of marijuana or alcohol possession."

Now, if trustees approve the policies, it's no more Mr. Nice Guy for drug and alcohol violators.

"It's something we even want to change at the state level," Ms. Hamilton said. "I want to recommend that the Texas Association of School Boards lobby to change laws to get harsher penalties for these violations."

board and staff to look through them. She suggested people speak on such topics as "strengthening the family support system, community-based initiatives to prevent crime, and general ways to improve the juvenile justice system itself."

The public hearings will be conducted from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. July 15, and from 8:30 a.m.-noon July 16 in the board room of Midland Independent School District, 615 W. Missouri Ave.

Each speaker will have five minutes to speak. Speakers must sign up on the first day of the hearing. If time permits all speakers to comment on the first day, there will be no second hearing.

Speakers will be called in the order in which they registered.

The Midland hearing is the final stop in the five-city tour, which also included hearings in Austin, Arlington, Corpus Christi and Houston.

RICH: Tax-exempt bonds continue to be best shelter earned more than $200,000 paid less than 25 percent.

The IRS said 1,817 couples and individuals managed to earn between $100,000 and $200,000 without paying taxes. An additional 21,920 had incomes between $50,000 and $100,000 and zero tax liability.

The big tax bill making its way through Congress apparently would do nothing to bring the 779 onto the tax rolls.

The measure, designed to reduce the budget deficit, would increase the top tax rates on high earners, raising the tax burden on the average over-$200,000-a-year filer by about $25,000. But those who use legal deductions and credits to wipe out their tax liability would not be touched by those higher rates.

"Only in the wrong direction" would the bill change the number of non-taxpayers, Robert McIntyre, director of Citizens for Tax Justice, a labor-financed research group, said Tuesday. The number could be increased, he said, by provisions affecting charitable contributions of appreciated property and deduction of losses on some passive real estate investments.

The best tax shelter continues to be the tax-exempt bonds issued by states, cities and counties to finance schools, roads and other public projects. The IRS estimated 492 over-$200,000 earners had tax-exempt interest averaging $392,000.

On average, the biggest single factor in eliminating tax liability is losses from partnerships and businesses organized as Subchapter S corporations. Such losses were listed on 232 of the 779 untaxed high-income returns and averaged $500,000. By comparison, only 71 of the tax-free returns showed profits from such businesses, averaging $343,000.

The gap from farming operations was even greater. The IRS said only six of the 779 returns showed net income from farming, an average of $77,000, but 336 reported farm losses, averaging $263,000.

The IRS statistics are taken from tax returns as filed. Presumably, many of the returns were audited and those examinations could result in the IRS denying claimed losses or deductions, thus making taxpayers of the non-taxpayers.

The 779 also escaped the net known as the "alternative minimum tax." That is a special levy designed specifically to ensure that all high earners pay some tax even though legitimate deductions would wipe out their regular tax liability.

But it does not apply to deductions for interest, casualty losses and medical expenses. The report showed 69 returns claimed an average $436,000 deduction for casualty and theft losses; 47 had medical expenses averaging $196,000, and 339 took interest deductions averaging $235,000.

Some other items from the high-income, no-tax returns:

- 287 of the 779 reported wages and salaries, averaging $203,000.
- 108 had net earnings from a business or profession, averaging $151,000, while 75 showed losses averaging $203,000.
- 302 reported capital gains averaging $343,000.
- 666 had dividends averaging $110,000; taxable interest averaging $140,000 showed on 742 returns.
- 98 reported net income from rent averaging $92,000; 179 had rent losses averaging $102,000.
- 84 had non-taxable Social Security benefits that averaged $5,845.
- Four reported unemployment compensation averaging $7,750.
- Fewer than half the untaxed returns — 373 — claimed itemized deductions; they averaged $482,000.

ed because a new intercom speaker system and plastic glass shield installed in the death chamber by prison officials distorted the sound, making the inmate's words inaudible at times. Previously, only steel jail bars separated the condemned man from witnesses.

Prison officials defended the death chamber renovations as security measures and said they would work to correct the problems.

The Harris County medical examiner's office originally ruled Mrs. Zabolio committed suicide and that the Wanstrath shootings were murder-suicide.

But a Houston police detective, Johnny Bonds, was credited with breaking the case after working hundreds of hours poring over bank and telephone records to show Duff-Smith used a middleman to pay Janecka for the four slayings.

Janecka also wound up on death row but his conviction was reversed by an appeals court. His retrial is scheduled for next month. A conviction could return him to death row.

Bonds, now an investigator with the Harris County District Attorney's office, said Duff-Smith's confession was a surprise.

"He had indicated to us three years ago that he would make a public confession of guilt if I would help commute his death sentence to a life sentence, and I refused," Bonds said Tuesday.

"The death bed confession, it kind of relieved me because there are still a lot of people that had a lot of questions about his guilt," Bonds added.

"I knew better . . . He was a willing participant in all of the murders," he said.

Duff-Smith's execution came after last-day appeals failed to get him a reprieve. A unanimous ruling from the U.S. Supreme Court about two hours before his 12:16 a.m. CDT execution cleared the way for the punishment in what was one of Houston's most publicized murder cases.

Prosecutors contended Duff-Smith arranged for the killings because he was broke. They also said he was unhappy with his mother because she wouldn't give him money to maintain a lavish lifestyle. He denied the claims, saying he was worth about $100,000 at the time of the killings.

Duff-Smith became the sixth condemned man to be put to death in Texas this year and the 60th since the state resumed capital punishment in 1982. The totals are the highest in the nation.

AIDS: Condom distribution local decision, Gebbie says

dards that's a tiny staff.

She told her interviewers that she hopes to focus the government's efforts by getting different parts of the bureaucracy talking to each other.

"A lot of people within agencies are concerned about our failures to be truly coordinated and to move as aggressively as we should have," she said.

In two of those areas, education and needle exchanges, Ms. Gebbie indicated that the government planned to take a more liberal approach.

"They do work in some communities," she said of needle exchanges, the providing of clean needles to drug users to slow the spread of AIDS by contaminated needles. "We're looking forward to a major review of needle exchange programs due out in a very short period of time."

She was considerably more cautious when questioned on the subject of distributing condoms to adolescents in schools.

"Anybody who is sexually active should have ready access to means of protection, which includes condoms," she said.

But whether to give them out in schools is a local decision, she said.

"They're not an expensive product and they're available over the counter lots of places," she said. "So who should hand them out is not the heart of the dialogue."

Ms. Gebbie's appointment came shortly before the National Commission on AIDS issued a report that criticized the Clinton administration for being more talk than action in dealing with the disease.

Administration officials have said action on the AIDS front would be coming soon.

Just on Tuesday, the Social Security Administration announced that it was issuing new rules to make it easier for people with the AIDS-causing virus to get federal disability benefits.

The rules were first proposed under the Bush administration and have largely been in effect since late 1991.

There have been some changes made, but the effect is minimal in terms of how many more people will be allowed onto the disability rolls, said a Department of Health and Human Services official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. In all, the government will pay less than $10 million a year over what it's already paying.

IRAQ: U.S. decides not to attack headquarters

(From 1A)

While strongly hinting that he believed Saddam responsible for the alleged assassination plot, Clinton refused to directly accuse the Iraqi leader.

He said that intelligence experts "have no experience of such an operation of that magnitude being authorized other than at the highest levels."

The State Department was more explicit.

"Our feeling is the Iraqi intelligence services and the Iraqi government are so centralized and so tightly controlled that it is inconceivable that any large-scale operation like an assassination attempt against a former president of the United States could be conceived without it being known and approved by Saddam Hussein," said spokesman Mike McCurry.

McCurry said his charge was based "on our understanding of how functionally decisions are made in the close confines of the Iraqi government" rather than on direct evidence.

Clinton said the United States decided not to hit Saddam's own headquarters.

"It was thought that under international law and based on the facts of this particular case that the best possible target was the target of the intelligence headquarters where, in all probability, the operation itself was planned," Clinton said.

The strike at 2 a.m. Baghdad time was timed to minimize casualties but also "to make a strong point," Clinton said.

"I think everyone knows what our military is capable of doing," Clinton said. "What we needed to show them was that we were fully possessed of the will to do it under these circumstances."

He defended his statement Monday that the U.S. attack had crippled Iraq's intelligence capacity.

"I didn't mean that they wouldn't have any more intelligence," he said.

"But I do think the building and whatever resources are in that building, which is plainly the main building, were severely damaged, and that's what our intelligence people told me," the president said.

Lake, the national security adviser, noted afterward that the Iraqis "have subsidiary headquarters elsewhere."

Supreme Court moves slowly to right during 1992-93 term

By Richard Carelli
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court, moving slowly but steadily to the political right in its just-completed 1992-93 term, relaxed church-state separation and dealt civil rights proponents two key defeats.

Missing were decisions directly involving abortion, affirmative action or school prayer — explosive issues that had left the court deeply divided in past terms.

"From the public perception, it was kind of a dull term," John Roberts, a Washington lawyer who represented the Bush administration before the high court, said Tuesday. "You didn't have a lot of the hot-button cases."

But the nine-month term's 107 signed decisions included key votes as well on criminal law, free speech, prisoners' rights and the government's power to seize criminal suspects' assets.

Mary Cheh, a George Washington University law professor, said a relatively quiet term and a generally cautious approach do not mean the court is taking a back seat.

Missing were decisions directly involving hot issues like abortion, affirmative action, school prayer.

"The court has not become irrelevant," Cheh said. "Its decisions are more retail than wholesale now, but its deference to the legislative and executive branches will go only so far."

The high court ruled three times that government had treated religion too harshly.

The justices said that religious groups must be allowed to use public schools during off hours if other community organizations are given such access, and that a Florida city wrongly discriminated against a religion when it outlawed animal sacrifices during worship services.

The court also said the constitutionally required separation of church and state is not breached if public money is used to provide sign-language interpreters for deaf students in parochial schools.

As it concluded the term Monday, the court called into question the reach of the Voting Rights Act.

The court said congressional districts that appear to have been created based only on race, even when drawn to comply with the Voting Rights Act, are subject to constitutional attacks by white voters.

In another major civil rights ruling, the court last week made it significantly more difficult for employees to prove they were victims of illegal on-the-job bias.

Justice Byron R. White retired Monday to end his 31-year high court tenure.

Employers must share health costs, Clinton says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton pitched his health-care reform plan to skeptical small business owners Tuesday and said that while employers will have to help foot the bill, his plan won't be as tough as many of them fear.

"Everybody's bills will be lower over the long run if everyone makes a fair contribution," Clinton told members of the National Federation of Independent Business.

The group, most of whose members are small businesses, has been sharply critical of some of the president's likely health reforms, especially any move to require that all employers provide insurance for their workers.

Clinton's advisers say the plan is likely to impose either a payroll tax or a flat, per-person charge on employers — or some mix of the two — to help finance workers' health coverage. The plan, once scheduled to come out in May, now is expected to be released in September.

In his speech to the federation, Clinton sought to reassure small businesses about the likely impact of his plan while flatly stating that employers will have to pay something for their workers' health coverage.

Air Force denies deliberate B-1 bomber capability fraud

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Air Force general on Tuesday denied allegations that Defense Department officials deliberately concealed the B-1B bomber's vulnerability to radar detection in 1989.

"It is not our style to deceive the Congress or the GAO or anybody else," Gen. John Loh, head of the Air Combat Command, told a Senate Armed Services panel.

Testifying on June 10, Eleanor Chelimsky, assistant comptroller general at the General Accounting Office, said that false data was provided to her organization, the auditing arm of the Congress, during a three-year review of U.S. strategic forces.

The review, whose contents are classified secret, concluded that during the 1970s and 1980s the Pentagon had exaggerated the expected military value of new strategic weapons such as the B-1B and B-2 long-range bombers, overestimated the strength of Soviet air defenses and understated the usefulness of older U.S. weapons such as the B-52 bomber, Mrs. Chelimsky said.

The implication of her remarks was that the Pentagon misled the public in order to win congressional approval of money to buy new weapons that may not have been needed.

Plan immunizes border children

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — A campaign to encourage Hispanics to vaccinate their babies has been launched by physicians in Las Cruces, El Paso, Texas, and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

The Nuestros Ninos Project will publicize on both sides of the border the importance of immunizing children by the age of 2.

"What we're trying to do is target the Hispanic population," said Dr. Frank Crespin, district health officer for the state Health Department. "We're looking at trying do things on a regional basis to appeal to a population that has close cultural ties to Mexico."

About half the babies in Dona Ana County and El Paso — most of whom are Hispanic — aren't fully vaccinated, making them susceptible to diseases such as polio and diphtheria, officials said.

In Ciudad Juarez, the number of unvaccinated children is thought to be even higher, officials said.

'Redfern Building' appropriate action

Midland County Commissioners on Monday voted unanimously to name the building that houses the renovated and expanded Midland County Public Library in honor of Rosalind Redfern, longtime library patron and benefactor.

The decision certainly was appropriate since the honoree has been a tireless library supporter and the community is better served due to her efforts on behalf of the facility. But the action of the court goes beyond that. Library officials proposed it as recognition of Mrs. Redfern's overall service to the community as well, service she has given through literally dozens of worthwhile programs and agencies in Midland.

Both Mrs. Redfern and her late husband, John J. Redfern Jr., became avid supporters of Midland County Public Library after moving to the Permian Basin in 1939 and over the years their interest and assistance helped develop it into a first-class facility.

It takes that kind of commitment to turn any public institution into more than an ordinary one and Mrs. Redfern possessed that level of commitment. Bert Bostic, chairman of the library's advisory board, noted that she "is being recognized for the long-haul contributions that she has made to the library, giving books . . . seeing that programs exist . . . seeing that special needs were met year after year."

Because of the efforts of the Redferns, the library possesses an outstanding genealogical research section and an exceptional scientific-technological collection.

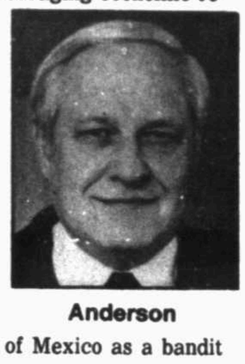

The beneficiaries of Mrs. Redfern's efforts are, of course, the many readers who frequent the facility and who hopefully will do so in even larger numbers after the impressive addition is opened to the public. Because of her dedication the needs of those readers will be better and more fully served.

Naming the building in her honor was a well-deserved gesture of appreciation for decades of sincere and generous support not only to Midland County's public library but to the city itself and the people who live here.

JACK ANDERSON

Weigh NAFTA, Mexican corruption

WASHINGTON — As Congress prepares to debate the ratification of the North American Free Trade Agreement, a dirty little secret is in danger of being overlooked: Despite encouraging economic reforms, corruption in Mexico is still pervasive, extending into the highest levels of authority.

Anderson

It's a subject the United States would rather not talk about in public, though our officials know it exists. The Mexican government, led by President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, is trying actively to dispel the old notion of Mexico as a bandit nation.

But the recent murder of Cardinal Juan Posadas at the international airport in Guadalajara merely serves to exacerbate the fears that Mexican society is still lawless in many respects.

For more than a decade, we have reported periodically on the massive corruption that pervades all levels of Mexican society — from the lowest levels of commerce to the highest levels of government. Our investigations and those of others indicate that doing business in Mexico usually involves paying bribes or kickbacks. On many occasions, not even the news media is a safe haven from corruption.

In 1986, for example, we reported several times on the courageous efforts of the Mexico City news magazine Proceso to escape the tentacles of official corruption. In an atmosphere of intimidation and bribery, Proceso has managed to survive despite telling the truth about the corruption and blunders among Mexico's ruling elite. In a country where the government owned a monopoly on newsprint and often supplied more than half the advertising revenue for newspapers and magazines, compliant journalists were sometimes paid monthly stipends by the government. In the meantime, rebellious journalists sometimes paid for their disloyalties with threats, beatings and sometimes even murder. Proceso was one of the first to openly buck this system.

Seven years ago, we helped Proceso uncover the strange tale of Manuel Bartlett Diaz, then Mexico's minister of the interior, who used the power of his high office to arrange the illegal kidnapping of his niece and nephew from a religious commune in Venezuela in 1983. Bartlett Diaz then bullied Proceso into killing the story by sending police to threaten the editors. Proceso's editors decided at the time to kill the story — though accounts of it appeared in the Venezuelan press — because they knew the kind of trouble such reports could bring. But later, the details of the abduction, including the threats and an attempted bribe of Proceso by one of Bartlett Diaz's deputies, were revealed in a book by Proceso's publisher, Julio Sherer.

In the business world, foreign companies have long known that bribery can be a common cost of doing business south of the border. For those who object to this system, the repercussions can be devastating. Just last October, we reported on the case of a Texas-based oil trading company, owned by William Flanigan, which signed a contract in 1984 to buy residual oil from the Mexican Petroleum Workers Union and its Commission of Contracts. After Flanigan refused to pay kickbacks for the contract, the Mexicans reneged on the deal.

All this should be enough to make members of Congress, already worried about NAFTA's effects on the environment and jobs, take a second look at the troubled agreement before voting to ratify.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Clinton should fear terrorism, not TV news

WASHINGTON — The most sought-after document in the capital today is the "military options list" presented to President Clinton after the FBI and CIA determined that the government of Iraq had tried to assassinate a former U.S. president.

Safire

What were the Clinton choices after he saw the solid evidence that Saddam had tried to exact vengeance for his Desert Storm defeat? Forget the unrealistic extremes of doing nothing, or of sending a half-million men back to the Middle East to finish George Bush's half-done job.

The real decision was this: Does our Commander in Chief respond by using our air power to seriously damage Saddam's war machine and economic base — setting back all hopes of recovery by years — and driving home the lesson to state terrorists from Baghdad to Tehran to Khartoum that American retaliation will be swift and fierce? Or does he respond by making a solemn speech that hypes a pinprick action?

Clinton chose from among the weakest military options.

He could have ordered air strikes on the suspected new missile factories, chemical plants and nuclear facilities that Saddam is refusing to let U.N. inspectors see, and crippled the air defenses that now illuminate our patrollers in the no-fly zone.

He could have directed U.S. bombers located in Turkey to devastate Saddam's Republican Guard, source of his dictatorial power, now lined up in tanks and armored vehicles threatening the Kurds and Shiites.

He could have turned out the lights in Iraq and set back its oil-production capacity, which — combined with a reduction of his Republican Guard and the arming of the anti-Saddam forces in the North — could endanger the regime itself.

Not one of these reactions required U.N. approval; the murder plot was against a U.S. president. But Clinton chose the course that Stewart Alsop used to label "phony-tough": He threw a score of missiles at a building after its officials had left for the day.

This restraint was promptly embraced by doves. But when one head of state tries to murder another, that is an act of war.

The National Security Council recommendation was camera-driven, not mission-driven. Clinton aides were more concerned with pictures of civilian casualties than with making an impact on the power reality in Iraq and the region. "We didn't want the story the next day to be a parade of dead secretaries," a triumphant administration spokesman told me.

While the White House concentrated on how any military response would play on television screens, nobody put our invitation to respond unilaterally into a strategic context.

Saddam has a plan and Clinton does not. This would have been the moment for the U.S. to crack back creatively.

If our anti-terrorist policy is to send messages circumscribed by what is to appear on screen, then Saddam and similar potentates will get the feeble Clinton message all too well: There is little risk in trying to assassinate a U.S. president or knock out a U.S. city.

William Safire's column is distributed by New York Times News Service.

Secret of White House press corps is exposed

There has been a great deal of discussion in Washington recently about the unhappiness of the White House press corps. They have been described as surly, uninformed and constantly in a feeding frenzy.

Buchwald

The situation was so bad that David Gergen, a Republican lion tamer, was brought in to calm them down.

Although people see the White House press corps on television there are many misconceptions about them. The first is that the corps is one big happy family. The truth is that the electronic media hate the print media and vice versa. These ill feelings cause them to turn on the President.

In order to fully understand the White House press corps you have to be aware of who they are and what they do.

The correspondents, male and female, are located in the White House basement and live in cages. They have hair all over their bodies and twice a day someone from the Press Office comes down and throws them a banana.

After eating the banana they thump themselves on the chest and let out loud screams that can be heard in the Oval Office.

The reason President Clinton hired David Gergen was that the correspondents started refusing to eat the bananas and were throwing them back at George Stephanopoulos.

The unrest among the correspondents could not only be attributed to the bananas. The print people and the TV reporters were constantly at each other's throats. Most of the confrontations were about the newspaper reporters tripping over television cables.

This was typical of the dialogue heard almost every day:

"I almost broke my leg because of your damn cables."

"Why don't you watch where you're going?"

"Why dontcha suck a soundbite?"

It wasn't just the cables that got the print people mad, but the fact that the television reporters were hogging the President's press conferences. Not only did the President recognize them by name, but because they were going to be on the tube they were always so much better dressed than their journalist counterparts.

It has long been acknowledged that the public is much more interested in a TV correspondent's question than the President's answer.

The animosity of the electronic media toward the print media has always been great because the TV people claim that the scratching of reporters' pens interferes with their sound equipment.

Whatever the truth, the White House has never been a happy place for reporters to work in.

"A frustrated Bill Clinton kicked the dirt while jogging this morning when someone told him that he had a half-brother he didn't know existed. Coming on the heels of a defeat of his income tax plan, this revelation is certain to send him plummeting in the polls. Critics now predict that Mr. Clinton will be remembered as the first President in U.S. history who was incapable of governing the country. Unidentified sources hint that the President may resign and appoint David Gergen as his successor."

CMNT helpers need thanks

We want to take the time to thank Melissa Hendricks, Jay Hendrix, Mark Lee, Christina Padilla, the Channel 9 News staff, cameramen, producers, helpers, and anyone else who we don't know about, for helping with the Children's Miracle Network Telethon.

We want to thank them for the time, energy and love they gave to help our special babies and other children in need.

We want to thank all the sponsors, workers, volunteers, and all the wonderful people who pledged, donated and helped raise money for the C.M.N.T.

It's wonderful people like you who made it possible for our grandson, Dylan Bone, to survive insurmountable odds. He weighed 1 pound, 3 ounces and was four months premature.

Through the most modern equipment, the wonderful staff of Medical Center Hospital, and the great miracle from God, he is with us today and doing great, as most of you saw on the C.M.N.T. over the weekend of June 5th and 6th.

Thanks again to everyone who helped out and to anyone we may have left out.

May God bless you all and please keep up the wonderful work and the time you give for the C.M.N.T.

Government oppresses people

Our Founding Fathers learned the value of limited government from studying history. When they felt the sting of excessive governmental power coming from King George III, they declared themselves independent and fought a war to make their Declaration of Independence stick.

One of the numerous indictments against the British king appearing in the Declaration reads: "He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people and eat out their substance."

History will repeat itself if allowed to do so. By any measure, Americans suffer far more oppression from today's federal government than did the men of 1776 from the British monarch.

The 10th Amendment says that the powers not specifically granted to the federal government must remain with the states or the people. With this provision, America took off. Today, the only thing taking off is the size and power of government.

Pro-choice deserves a voice

I am writing to you in regards to the recent radio and television commercials by Professional Women for Life. These advertisements have brought to my attention the fact that, although there seem to be many people willing to stand up for the right to life organization, there seems to be no one to stand up for the freedom of choice movement in this area.

I feel that the Planned Parenthood organization offering abortions is a very good thing. I can imagine nothing worse than having an unwanted/unplanned pregnancy and being forced to have the child or going miles from home to terminate the pregnancy. This service will improve health care in our area, as this procedure is health care for women, regardless of the objections to the contrary.

Unless I'm mistaken, the meeting the "Professional Women for Life" is having at the San Jacinto Junior High is the second of this type to be sponsored by that school in the last month. I believe this is a public school and is supported by taxpayers' money. It seems extremely odd to me that they should take sides on an issue as volatile as abortion. Is this what our tax money is going toward? It seems to me that if they are going to allow one side of the issue to be heard in their "hallowed halls," that equal opportunity and time should be given to pro-choice organizations to state their stand on this subject. Otherwise, any public funded facility should not be used in this politically and socially incorrect manner.

Washington issues warning on U.S. terror

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans were warned Tuesday to be mindful of terrorists, even while traveling in the United States. At the White House, security also has been increased.

The State Department warning was not linked directly to rising tensions with Iraq or the bombing at New York's World Trade Center. "It rises out of a general sense that it is a good thing for U.S. citizens just to be more careful," said department spokesman Mike McCurry.

But the increased security at the White House was a result of the tensions with Iraq, said Anthony Lake, President Clinton's national security adviser. "I think routinely at a moment like this there are additional procedures," Lake said Tuesday.

On Saturday, shortly after an Iraqi intelligence center in Baghdad was attacked with U.S. cruise missiles, the State Department issued a worldwide advisory telling Americans to exercise "greater than usual caution" when traveling abroad.

"It's simply our best effort to make sure, particularly during a summer travel season, that U.S. citizens traveling abroad think about their own security and just check in on that subject," McCurry said Tuesday.

He said the advisory applied to travel in the United States as well as abroad.

"It arises out of just a general sense that people should be mindful of the dangers that do exist," McCurry said.

Travel advisories are frequently issued by the State Department, but they usually apply to a particular country, not to the world at large — let alone the United States.

Late Tuesday, the press office distributed a brief notice that said "we have no specific and credible information on threats at this time, either domestic or overseas."

It also hedged its caution about traveling in the United States.

Senate explores veteran injury cover-up claim

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel plans to question top Pentagon medical officers Wednesday about claims by Navy veterans that they were injured by chemical weapons during the Persian Gulf War and ordered to keep quiet about it.

Sen. Richard Shelby, D-Ala., chairman of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee on force requirements and personnel, said Tuesday he hopes the hearing will be "the first step toward getting to the bottom of what happened on the night of Jan. 20, 1991."

Veterans of a Navy Reserve seabee unit told The Birmingham News they believe they were hit by a chemical weapon that night while stationed near an air strip south of the port of Al Jubayl on the Persian Gulf.

Navy seabees told newspaper they were hit by chemical weapon in Persian Gulf War, ordered not to talk about it.

They said they were told not to talk about the incident but decided to break their silence because they have been unable to obtain government medical care for health problems they believe stem directly from the attack.

Larry Perry of Gold Hill, N.C., a former chief petty officer with the seabee unit who retired because of health problems, told the newspaper the chemical attack came about 3:30 a.m., several hours after Scud missile alerts had ended and the seabees were asleep in their tents.

An explosion sent them scrambling with gas masks to nearby bomb shelters, Perry said. After the all-clear sounded, he said, they emerged from the shelters and about a dozen of them who had gathered near a latrine were surrounded by a mist.

FDA examines painkiller warning for big booz'ers

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — There should be a warning on acetaminophen to caution heavy drinkers they risk serious liver damage if they take too much of the painkiller, a federal advisory panel said Tuesday

But the panel also recommended that the Food and Drug Administration hold up putting the warning label on Tylenol and other over-the-counter products with acetaminophen until it also considers possible new warnings about the hazards of mixing alcohol with aspirin, ibuprofen and other painkillers.

The Over-the-counter Drugs Advisory Committee voted 9 to 1 to recommend the warning label after a day of testimony in which experts told of sometimes fatal liver damage among people who took higher-than-recommended doses of acetaminophen after drinking.

The reaction was rare but deadly and can occur without warning, experts said. But doctors who testified for McNeil Consumer Products Co., the maker of Tylenol, said that alcoholics would run even deadlier risks of gastrointestinal bleeding from switching to aspirin or ibuprofen.

Whitehall Laboratories, the maker of Advil, a form of ibuprofen, had pressed the committee to add the warning.

Dr. Willis C. Maddrey, a liver expert from the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas, who testified for Whitehall, said people who drink more than two alcohol drinks a day should be told not to take more than two grams of acetaminophen. Four grams is the maximum recommended daily dose.

But the advisory panel chaired by Randy P. Juhl, dean of the University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy, did not get into the specifics of what the warning should say.

Metzenbaum soon to retire from Senate

WASHINGTON — Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, sometimes irascible, often confrontational and always committed to liberalism, announced Tuesday that he would not seek election to a fourth term next year.

Metzenbaum, 76, who is known for his advocacy of the poor, the aged, organized labor and consumers, said his decision was based on a desire to spend more time with his family. "While I will retire my seat," he said in a speech on the Senate floor, "I will not retire my views or retire my voice."

The senator's decision had been widely expected. He disbanded his campaign committee three years ago, and his son-in-law, Joel Hyatt, founder of a chain of law offices, has been preparing for some time to run for the seat.

Among Metzenbaum's accomplishments in 17 years in the Senate are legislation protecting workers' health and life insurance benefits at companies that enter into bankruptcy proceedings; curbing lobbying by former officials of the executive branch, and banning all-plastic guns, whose ability to escape discovery by metal detectors had proved to be a menace.

When the Senate overhauled tax regulations in 1986, he managed to cut scores of exemptions for special interests. He was author of the age discrimination law of 1988 and co-author of the Civil Rights Act of 1991.

Muslim, nonaligned nations blast U.N. for Bosnian arms embargo

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council rebuffed impassioned pleas from Muslim and nonaligned nations Tuesday and refused to lift a weapons embargo against Bosnia's outgunned Muslims.

The vote on the 15-member council was 6-0, with nine abstentions. Nine affirmative votes are required for passage.

Voting in favor of lifting the embargo were the United States, Cape Verde, Djibouti, Morocco, Pakistan and Venezuela. Abstaining nations were Brazil, Britain, China, Russia, France, Hungary, New Zealand, Japan and Spain.

The U.N. embargo applies to all parties in the war in Bosnia-Herzegovina — Serbs, Croats and the Muslim-dominated Bosnian government.

But Muslim and nonaligned nations argued that the embargo should be lifted for the Bosnian Muslims, saying that since the council would not militarily protect Muslims, then morally it should not deny their right to self-defense.

The embargo prevents the Bosnian government from acquiring large artillery pieces to fight the Serbs, who obtained such weapons from the Yugoslav army when it pulled out of Bosnia.

"We do not believe that this body should deny the Bosnian government the wherewithal to defend itself in the face of brutal aggression conducted by the Bosnian Serbs and their backers in Belgrade," U.S. Ambassador Madeleine K. Albright told the council.

She asserted that exempting the Bosnian government from the arms embargo would hasten a negotiated settlement. Opponents, including Britain and France, argued that partial lifting of the embargo would fuel an arms race and increase the carnage.

Rights group: Israeli troops use excessive force

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's army gives undercover squads license to shoot Palestinians even when no threat is involved, and covers up unwarranted killings in the occupied lands, a New York-based human rights group charged Tuesday.

In one case, an unarmed Palestinian lying wounded on the ground was shot dead by two soldiers, according to witnesses cited in the 187-page report, "A License to Kill," by Middle East Watch.

The army spokesman, Lt. Col. Moshe Fogel, told The Associated Press that "any claim that there are orders to kill is based on lies and fabrication." Soldiers are bound by strictly defined open-fire orders, all Palestinian deaths are investigated by military police.

Bivins' reception

State Sen. Teel Bivins will host a reception from 10:30 a.m. to noon Thursday to officially open his Midland Senate office at 500 W. Wall, Suite 220.

A ribbon cutting ceremony will be at 11 a.m.

Bivins began representing the Permian Basin this year after the Texas Legislature redrew Senate district boundaries and included the area in the 31st District. The senator has represented District 31 since 1989.

Fireworks limits

The City of Midland Municipal Court reminds residents that possession or discharge of fireworks is illegal within the corporate limits of the city.

Fines for illegal possession or discharge of fireworks range from $1-2,000. The standard fine for firework offenses is $500.

Man crashes bus

DALLAS — Dallas Area Rapid Transit always wants more people to take the bus. But Tuesday, an unidentified man took DART literally.

The man pulled a gun after boarding a yellow-and-white bus just south of downtown at about 3 p.m., according to police.

Producing a .38 caliber revolver, the assailant forced the driver and a passenger to get off the bus, police said.

The suspect then drove the empty bus south for about six blocks before smashing into the back of a Blazer and knocking it into a telephone pole, said law officers.

The man, who police said is in his 20s, then escaped on foot. He has not been captured.

Education funds

DALLAS — The Texas Legislature has allocated $750,000 for a program that shares university resources to improve science classes in Dallas-Fort Worth area secondary schools.

The funding will help finance the Science Teacher Access to Resources at Southwestern program, a partnership between area science teachers and scientists at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas.

Aerial show benefits food bank

■ People who turn out for the Fourth of July celebration, and particularly the aerobatic planes demonstration, are asked to donate two cans of food for the Permain Basin Food Bank.

By Ed Todd
Staff writer

The Fourth of July, commemorating America's rise to independence in 1776, will be celebrated in Midland Sunday with traditional holiday fanfare from baseball to fireworks and a plea to help West Texas' needy through the Permian Basin Food Bank.

"The Food Bank probably is one of the most effective ways to distribute food to those that are in need," said Paul Erdmann, who is helping coordinate the Midland Fourth of July Celebration at Midland's Angels Stadium.

The Food Bank serves people in a 19-county West Texas area from Big Spring to Alpine.

"We have been very blessed that people pay attention to the needs of others," said Dolly Neff, executive director of the Food Bank. "That wasn't always the case in our area. We are more alert to the needs of others."

Most of the 350,000 people in the 19-county region are in the Midland-Odessa area.

The Food Bank's food sources include farmers, food producers and manufacturers, food brokers, wholesale and retail grocery outlets, individuals, canned-food drives, and the Second Harvest National Food Bank Network.

Currently, 123 West Texas social service agencies distribute Food Bank food to their clients.

The agencies secure the food from the Food Bank at a 14-cent per pound handling fee, which helps offset the Food Bank's cost of transporting, storing and distributing the donated food.

Foods include meat, milk, produce, eggs, canned goods, cereal, beans, rice and bread.

Food Bank expenses are augmented by community donations, grants, and agency donations.

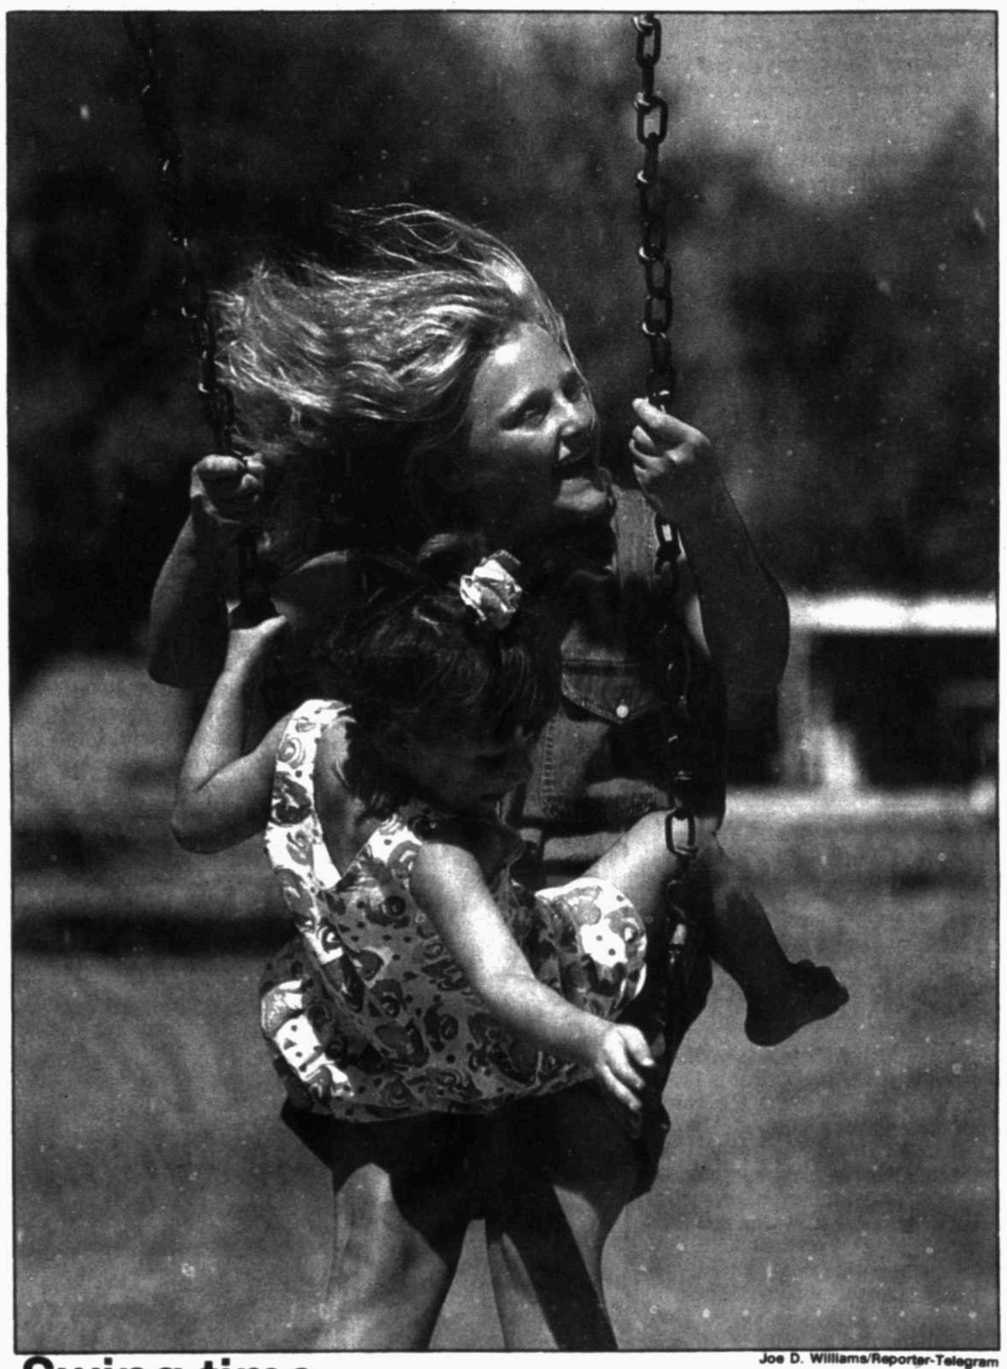

Last year, the Food Bank distributed 2.14 million pounds of food, Ms. Neff said. The average cost per meal was 23 cents.

Each year, the Food Bank provides food to the hungry and needy through the agencies to almost 50,000 families or 521,000 individuals. The figures include repeat families and individuals.

"Midland County is stronger in meals served," Ms. Neff said, "and Ector is stronger in sacks of groceries going to families."

People who turn out for the July Fourth celebration and, particularly, for the 5 p.m. Sunday flyby of military aircraft and aerobatic demonstrations by Midland's Ole Olsen are asked to donate two cans of food

Court drops charges on Cuban accused of smuggling marijuana

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Charges were dropped on a Cuban man who was accused of transporting 6,000 pounds of marijuana into Ector County in 1980, according to an assistant U.S. attorney in Midland.

Humberto Pablo Nunez, 59, had been charged with two counts of conspiracy to possess with the intent to distribute marijuana, two counts of conspiracy to import 6,000 pounds of marijuana into the United States from Mexico and one count of possession with the intent to distribute 6,000 pounds of marijuana.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tom Beery said the charges were dropped for a variety of reasons. He said one main reason existed but he could not elaborate on the details.

One reason the case was dropped was simply because the case was too old and witnesses were either hard to locate or dead.

The case was just now coming to court because Nunez had "jumped" bond set in 1980 after his arrest on the drug charges. He was later convicted on other charges and sentenced to prison in both Pennsylvania and Virginia.

He was located by FBI officials last fall while completing his sentence in Pennsylvania. He was later sent to Virginia to serve an 18-month federal sentence. He will return to finish that sentence.

Beery said after Nunez has finished his prison time he was unsure what would happen to him.

Beery said because Nunez is not an American citizen he could be subject to deportation back to Cuba. But, according to a U.S. Border Patrol officer, Cuba has the right to refuse allowing Nunez to enter the country.

If that situation occurs the convicted felon could be retained in an U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service detention camp.

U.S. postal investigators seize about $1.7 million

FORT WORTH (AP) — More than $1.7 million was seized from four companies' bank accounts because they sent unsolicited letters offering credit cards that most businesses don't accept, says the U.S. Postal Inspector.

The money was taken from the accounts of Credicorp Inc., Allied Marketing Group Inc. and two from Sweepstakes Clearing House., the postal inspector said Tuesday.

The seizure was based on unsolicited mailings, the postal inspector said.

Allied Marketing Group is the parent of the companies, which offered "Gold" cards with $10,000 limits and an annual fee of $29.95.

The cards could only be used to buy items from a catalog that was mailed with the offer, the postal inspector said.

Attorney general discusses state probe into man's death

By Linda Leavell
Associated Press writer

CORSICANA (AP) — The state's probe into the death of a black man who collapsed in the custody of police will be impartial and exhaustive, Attorney General Dan Morales said Tuesday.

"The residents of Corsicana want nothing more and nothing less than plain, simple justice. They want to be assured that no one will be unjustly condemned or unjustly excused in this matter," Morales said.

Morales also introduced the three men who will conduct the inquiry into Craig Thomas' death.

Jay Aguilar, a special assistant attorney general; Harold Henderson, director of internal security and investigations for the attorney general's office; and Drew Durham, also an assistant attorney general, will work on the case.

Their investigation will be bolstered by any findings of the Texas Rangers, whose inquiry is ongoing.

The case will be presented to a Navarro County grand jury, which should be empaneled in about two weeks.

Morales said he has discussed with District Judge Kenneth "Buck" Douglas the need for a grand jury that accurately reflects the ethnic makeup of Corsicana. He declined to discuss how that would be achieved, except to say that Douglas has broad discretion in

Enrollment rises in Red Cross swimming courses

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

The demand for affordable swimming lessons in Midland has risen to meet supply, two weeks after initial registration figures lagged 90 percent below attendance last year, American Red Cross in Midland officials said Tuesday.

Lessons at Washington and Ulmer park pools for the first two sessions were sold out. But children between the ages of five and 12 can still sign on for the final two sessions.

"We still have spaces available for the third session at Washington Park and at the 10 a.m. session at Ulmer Park," said Donna Franks, Red Cross secretary.

The Red Cross, aided by a two-year venture grant from United Way, is offering 40-minute classes at three separate times a day for two weeks each. Last year, a total of 350 children enrolled in the program, which was held at Washington, Ulmer and Halff parks. The pool at Halff Park was closed during the winter due to safety concerns.

To offset that closing, the city last week approved a $1,500 grant for the Boys and Girls Club of Midland, to be used to transport children from that building to Washington Park.

"We've had wonderful feedback on this, the kids are learning and having a lot of fun," Ms. Franks said.

The instructors at the two pools are all Red Cross-certified, she said.

The cost for the lessons is $3 per child for the entire two-week program, with the price for each additional child per family reduced to $1.

"And we have a scholarship fund available for anybody that can't afford the cost," Ms. Franks said. "We're very generous about different situations."

The third sessions at Washington and Ulmer parks run from July 12 to July 22 and July 13 to July 23, respectively.

The fourth sessions at Washington and Ulmer parks run from July 26 to August 5 and July 27 to August 6, respectively.

Registration will continue between 10 a.m. and noon at the American Red Cross building at 2306 Elizabeth St.

FOURTH: Celebration to bring donations

(From 1B)

each to benefit the Food Bank.

The day's activities will begin at sunrise on Sunday with re-enactments of historic military camp-life, camp cooking, and military drill and dress by The Army of the Republic of Texas, The Sons of Confederate Veterans, the 9th U.S. Cavalry "Buffalo Soldiers" from Fort Griffin State Historical Park near Albany, and by Texas National Guardsmen, who will be in Vietnam War-era uniform.

The Explorers Post of the Boys Scouts of America will set up an American Plains Indian encampment, and Dan Kalenack will be decked out in his Benjamin Franklin costume and taking on the statesman's mannerisms.

"The Confederate camp will be preparing beans, cornbread, and rabbit for lunch and supper with a cobbler," said Mark Pelham, West Texas Brigade commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans' Texas Division.

There will be cannon fire demonstrations from an 1862 artillery exhibit at noon, 1, 2 and 3 p.m. on Sunday.

The "Buffalo Soldiers" of the 1800s were African-American fighters who were called "Buffalo Soldiers" by the Plains Indians due to the "ferocity of the soldiers' fighting spirit" and the way the Indians thought the soldiers' hair resembled a bison's mane.

"The story of the Buffalo Soldiers is a powerful way for young African-Americans to experience a sense of connection and participation in Texas history," said Ken Pollard, a Buffalo soldier re-enactor. "It enriches the historical experience for all Texans by broadening our understanding of frontier history."

What Pelham calls "living historians" in military garb are to participate in pre-game presentation of the Colors in Angels Stadium just prior to the 6 p.m. baseball game between the Midland Angels and the Wichita Wranglers.

The setting off of holiday fireworks and the playing of a dance by the Midnight Stampede Band will follow the ball game.

At 5 p.m. the U.S. Air Force supersonic F-16 Fighting Falcon fighters and the "tank buster," the Republic A-10 Thunderbolt or "Warthog."

Aerial demonstrations will include precision-flying maneuvers by the Ole Olsen, a championship aerobatic pilot who will be flying his 230-horsepower Extra Special monoplane, which Olsen said is "capable of sustaining more Gs (forces of gravity) than the human can handle. It allows you an opportunity to take your flying machine to your physical limits" and imagination, Olsen said.

The celebration will include flights by Midland-area aerobatic pilots in biplanes and monoplanes.

Following the flybys and aerobatic flying, the pilots are to fly their aircraft to Odessa's Schlemeyer Air Field for the annual Southwest Air Fair and Exposition at 6:30 p.m.

The A-10 Warthog and the F-16s, which are "very awesome" warplanes, will put on "live demonstrations" over Schlemeyer Field, Erdmann said.

"That's where the real show takes place," he said.

Aerobatic flying will be done by Kirk Fulton of Lubbock in his Russian-made Sukhoi Su-29 monoplane, Bob Sears of Sweetwater in his souped-up, American-made Stearman biplane and Olsen.

"They will put on a very classical (aerial) display," Erdmann said. Olsen, Sears and Fulton "are as competent pilots as you can find. And they have flown in many contests and airshows. They are truly perfectionists."

On Saturday, the Theunis Dey Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will sponsor the annual children's Sidewalk Parade at 10 a.m. at the Midland County Courthouse.

CUSTODY: State to investigate man's death choosing the grand jurors.

Thomas' death triggered several days of protests by black leaders. An autopsy showed that the way the officers subdued Thomas contributed to his death. Drugs and alcohol also influenced his death, the report said.

The officers said Thomas was riding in a car which had expired registration tag. Thomas fled from the vehicle and later struggled with the officers, police said.

Some of Thomas' relatives, however, termed the autopsy implausible and suggested that the white officers beat Thomas.

"It would not serve anyone's best interest to make a presentation of this sensitive matter to an all-white grand jury or to any grand jury that does not accurately reflect the diversity of the community involved," Morales said.

Morales spent the day meeting with city and county leaders, representatives of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the Corsicana Police Officers Association and police officials.

Officers Todd Morris and Jeff Schafer were fired Friday, while Officer Darrell Waller was suspended for three days without pay. Sgt. Ladena Baggett was given a letter of reprimand, and no action was taken against a fifth officer, Greg Barlow.

Waco attorney David Martin, who represents Morris, Schafer and Waller, said Tuesday that he still intends to appeal the firings.

He also said the officers would testify before the grand jury.

NAACP officials said they were pleased that an impartial prosecutor would be presenting the case.

"I'm so happy that the outside has come along and taken control of the situation," said Navarro County chapter President Robert Sanders, adding that he believes indictments are imminent. "We think it's a clear-cut case of wrongdoing on their part."

Houston is warned not to fight hazardous waste dump

HOUSTON (AP) — City officials have been advised to back away from a legal fight with the Connecticut-based company that wants to store thousands of tons of hazardous waste near Lake Houston.

City Attorney Benjamin L. Hall III says the city can save tens of thousands of dollars by staying out of a fight with Hunter Industrial Facilities Inc.

Hunter has sued the Texas Water Commission for permission to store waste.

But environmental advocates, an assistant Harris County attorney and others disagree with the city's tactic.

"I can't think of why the hell they would do that," said Jim Sterling, a leading critic of the proposed disposal facility. "(This issue) is important to us. But it is also important to the city of Houston."

The water commission in January denied Hunter's request to store as much as 1,000 tons of waste per day in underground cavities near Lake Houston, which supplies much of the city's drinking water. Hunter filed a lawsuit to appeal the decision.

The company, which has spent more than $20 million the last three years to obtain the permit, hired Houston attorney John O'Quinn to defend its interests and said he would get 35 percent of the company's stock if its lawsuit is successful.

But Hall said the state attorney general's office has the matter well in hand and that the city could add little to the legal effort. In a letter to council members June 18, Hall said the city has already spent $500,000 on the Hall said his office would continue to monitor the case.

But Sterling, a director of Families Against Contaminated Environment that has opposed the disposal facility, said the city should remain in the fight.

Police arrest man under stalking law

HOUSTON (AP) — A 39-year-old wrecker driver is the first in Houston to be charged under the state's new anti-stalking law.

Kenneth David Smouse was arrested Saturday and charged with stalking as he followed his victim to a police station, where she filed the complaint, police said.

Smouse posted bond and was released Sunday.

Houston homicide Sgt. Mike Lewellen said voluntary contact between Smouse and his victim was limited to having lunch together on three occasions.

The harassment of the young woman continued for more than a month, said Lewellen. On June 6, the woman said Smouse arrived at her home at 3 a.m., demanding to be let in.

According to the complaint, Smouse continued to harass coworkers, friends and neighbors about her whereabouts.

Finally, Smouse approached the woman's boyfriend in a restaurant to tell him he planned to plant a bomb in the woman's car, Lewellen said.

According to Lewellen, when the woman and her boyfriend came to the police station to give statements regarding the harassment, Smouse was seen by officers in a hallway of the station, having apparently followed his victim there.

Stalking is a Class A misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in jail. A repeat offense would a felony under the new law, which became effective March 19.

State spends thousands to care for cult children

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas taxpayers have contributed $106,604 so far for the care of 21 Branch Davidian children.

The largest expense for the care of the children released during a 51-day standoff with federal agents near Waco was $70,707 for Child Protective Services staff members for the period starting Feb. 28 through May 31.

That figure included $38,275 for Waco caseworkers, who were on call 24 hours a day during the early stages of the stalemate, the Houston Chronicle reported Tuesday.

Federal agents raided the Branch Davidian Complex near Waco on Feb. 28. Four agents were killed as were several followers of cult leader David Koresh. The siege ended April 19 when fire swept through the complex, killing Koresh and more than 80 of his followers.

Also included in the child care figures was $32,432 in salaries and overtime for staff members from other regions who went to Waco to assist in the operation of the office.

Foster care for the 21 children, was the smallest expenditure, a total of more than $17,000 or about $810 per child.

Most of the children lived in the Methodist Home, a group home for children. One child has spent most of his time in a therapeutic foster home that is licensed to care for severely handicapped children.

But the cost analysis left a number of questions unanswered.

The expenses did not include the cost of long distance phone calls to family members across the nation and in a number of foreign countries. The estimate also did not include overtime salaries for Waco staff members who worked with the children.

Stewart Davis, spokesman for the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services, said at total impact on the agency's budget cannot be assessed because the exact amount of the Waco Child Protective Services budget is unknown.

U.S. GIs react differently to Macedonian mission

Some soliers want to go now, others want to stay home.

BERLIN (AP) — The home base of the U.S. infantrymen bound for Macedonia is bustling. But it's not hard to find soldiers who grumble that they did not join the Army to become international policemen.

At the motor pool, troop transports have a fresh coat of white paint and new U.N. lettering. Sgt. Maj. Richard A. Kidd, the Army's No. 1 sergeant, was called in to give a last-minute pep talk at the McNair Barracks.

But Kidd faced the same anxious questions from the 1,000 noncommissioned officers as he had from U.S. troops in other countries, from Somalia to Turkey.

Soldiers complained of the difficulties of getting promoted in the leaner, post-Cold War Army. They wanted assurances that if they take early retirement they'll get a decent pension.

Barely mentioned during Monday's meeting was the mission of a 300-man reinforced company from the Berlin Brigade. In a matter of days, it will be off to Macedonia to prevent the spread of war from former Yugoslavia.

"You got a lot of people that don't want to go," said Staff Sgt. Don Pitts, a 10-year veteran who said his Army tenure included chasing Bedouins in Iraq during the Gulf War. He was not going to Macedonia.

But Spc. Ralph Black, 22, welcomed peacekeeping duty. A blue U.N. patch had just been sewn onto his fatigues and he was taking them to the post cleaners to have them laundered. "I haven't seen any action. That's why I'm looking forward to it," he said.

Most soldiers billeted at McNair are with the 502nd Infantry, whose Berlin battalion was trained in street-fighting for duty in the divided city. When the Berlin Wall came down 3½ years ago, the Berlin Brigade's mission faded.

For now, it has a new focus: Operation Able Sentry, the Macedonia peacekeeping mission announced by the Pentagon on Friday.

As the first U.S. combat forces to serve as peacekeepers in the region, Black and his comrades will join about 700 other U.N. troops, mostly Scandinavians, patrolling Macedonia's border with Serbia.

Russia forecasts unexpected $14 billion 93' budget deficit

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's latest deficit numbers came in 50 percent higher than those projected a month ago, despite efforts by the government, the Central Bank and a world monetary body to bring it under control.

The 1993 budget President Boris Yeltsin's government has sent to Parliament projects a 15 trillion ruble deficit, about $14 billion, Irina Flyagina, director of the Finance Ministry's budget department, said Tuesday.

The dramatic change in the budget deficit estimate shows how difficult it is to restrain the Russian economy even when all partners are working together.

In May, the government and Central Bank told the International Monetary Fund they were striving for a deficit of $9.4 billion.

The joint statement signaled a new level of cooperation between Yeltsin's reform team and the Central Bank — a key condition for the release of a $3 billion International Monetary Fund loan.

The 50 percent increase can be blamed only in part on inflation, which was 19 percent in May. The government and Central Bank have projected an inflation rate of 10 percent a month by year's end.

Accounting procedures and unforseen expenditures have also caused the increased deficit. Flyagina said the final deficit could be smaller — perhaps $11.3 billion — if revenues exceed preliminary estimates.

The proposed budget includes new revenues from higher export taxes on coal, natural gas and oil, according to the Interfax news agency. But those taxes have not yet been approved by Parliament.

The government also has plans for a value-added tax that would raise money specifically for the coal and agricultural industries.

"There is potentially a lot of room for the government to raise revenues from increased taxes on energy products," said Charles Blitzer, chief economist for the World Bank's Moscow office.

Meanwhile, expenditures are being slashed. Prime Minister Victor Chernomyrdin, for example, recently ordered each ministry to cut its budget by 20 percent.

American cars go on sale to Chinese public

BEIJING (AP) — American cars and minivans will go on sale to the public in August, the first time average Chinese will be allowed to buy foreign vehicles, an official newspaper said Tuesday.

The 14,447 sedans and minivans were bought from General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. by a Chinese purchasing delegation for about $160 million in April, the People's Daily said.

Beijing has been trying to increase purchases from the United States the last three years to ease U.S. anger over China's growing trade surplus.

The new cars include 3,600 Chevrolet Corsica sedans and 1,000 Chevrolet Lumina APV minivans from General Motors; more than 1,000 minivans and 3,600 Plymouth Sundance models from Chrysler; and 5,200 Ford Tempo sedans.

In the past, vehicles purchased abroad were allocated to various state agencies and enterprises and were not available to the public.

The new batch will be sold through 104 outlets at listed prices.

Attorneys: Man convicted in condom rape case seeks new trial

AUSTIN (AP) – The jury deliberations in the case of a man convicted of raping a woman who asked him to wear a condom will likely be discussed in open court as the defendant seeks a new trial, lawyers said Tuesday.

Joel Valdez, 28, was expected to be back in state district court Wednesday in hopes of winning a new trial on allegations of jury misconduct.

Two members of the jury that sentenced Valdez to 40 years in prison have since come forward, saying they initially wanted to give him a lighter sentence but were manipulated by the jury foreman.

"What we are trying to show is that the jury's foreman was basically giving incorrect legal advice on how the probation was going to work and how Joel was going to get out for good time," said Darryl Konopka, an assistant to defense attorney Malcolm Nettles.

Valdez in May was sentenced to 40 years after the victim, Elizabeth "Xan" Wilson, tearfully detailed how the man repeatedly raped her at knifepoint in 1992 after she asked him to wear a condom.

Valdez said he agreed to wear a condom and that Ms. Wilson's request meant she wanted to have sex.

The case gained national attention after a grand jury declined to indict Valdez. That sparked community outrage and protests from women's groups.

Ms. Wilson said her request for Valdez to wear a condom was a desperate attempt to protect herself from AIDS and other diseases.

Prosecutors presented the case to a second grand jury, which indicted Valdez on an aggravated sexual assault charge.

In sworn statements, jurors Sharyle Solis and Petra Padilla allege that the panel's foreman, Terry Glenn Morris, manipulated them into voting for a 40-year sentence.

Telephone messages left for Morris by The Associated Press at his home and office were not immediately returned Tuesday.

Prosecutors say they will likely call several other members of the jury panel to the witness stand Wednesday to refute the allegations.

"I think the evidence will show there was no jury misconduct," said prosecutor David Counts. "They (the two jurors) don't like the final result and now they are saying what they can to show some type of misconduct."

Court convicts self-admitted 'flasher' for 1978 slaying

HOUSTON (AP) — An exhibitionist was sentenced to 70 years for the 1978 murder of a man who had tried to stop him from exposing himself to a group of children.

Edward Harold Bell, 54, convicted Monday in the Aug. 24, 1978 slaying of Larry Dean Dickens, 26, an oil field roughneck, will not be eligible for parole for at least 20 years.

Dickens was shot several times when he attempted to stop Bell, who was masturbating in front of the children.

Bell's trial was delayed when he jumped a $125,000 bond and lived under assumed names before he was found in Panama after he was featured on the Unsolved Mysteries television show last December.

"I've been waiting for this moment for years," said Dickens' daughter, Wendy Dickens, 18. "I've been waiting for them to say, 'We find you guilty.'"

Defense lawyer Larry Fatheree told jurors Dickens attacked Bell, screaming, "I'm going to kill you in the name of Jesus."

Several witnesses testified that Bell was naked from the waist down when he climbed out of his truck and marched down the street in front of a half-dozen children.

Dickens was so outraged that he ran outside and grabbed the keys out of Bell's truck, intending to strand him there until Pasadena police arrived, witnesses said.

Bell got a .22-caliber pistol out of his truck and shot Dickens four times, and then a fifth time as the victim's mother held her fallen son and pleaded for the exhibitionist to quit shooting, witnesses said.

After the verdict, Bell took the witness stand to describe himself as a former Eagle Scout who played in the Texas A&M University school band for four years. He said he went from being a pharmaceutical salesman to operating three boats in Galveston just before the slaying.

While he was a fugitive in Panama, he said, he quit being "a flasher."

"I know if I hadn't had the problem of being a flasher, I wouldn't have been on that street," Bell testified. "I finally got rid of it in Panama, but it was too late for Mr. Dickens."

Police: Teen from Houston gunned down

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police on Tuesday searched for a motive and a killer in the murder of a 19-year-old Xavier University student.

Todd Perry, a freshman from Houston, was found shot to death, with his hands bound, in the B.W. Cooper housing project just after 1 a.m. Tuesday, Sgt. Marlon DeFillo said.

"The only thing we know for sure is neighbors heard gunshots and went out and found his body," DeFillo said. "We don't even really know if he was killed there or somewhere else and just dumped there. The neighbors heard gunshots, but that's not really unusual in that area."

Neighborhood residents found Perry lying on the street. He was dead when police arrived.

The area in one of New Orleans crime-riddled projects is the frequent scene of drug deals, shootings and other violence, DeFillo said.

Perry was shot several times in the head and neck. Shootings where the victims are bound, as Perry was, are frequently characterized as execution type killings, DeFillo said.

"It's typical of that type of murder to tie the victim," DeFillo said. "But we can't say if that was the case this time. We don't even know what the young man would have been doing back in that area."

Xavier officials, including the university president Dr. Norman Francis, refused to comment on Perry Tuesday. A spokesman earlier said Perry was majoring in business administration. He would have completed his freshman year earlier this year, but officials did not know if he was attending summer school which is now in session.

A spokeswoman for the apartment complex that Xavier listed as Perry's residence said he had lived there with his brother, but had moved.

Police on Tuesday were canvassing the area of the shooting, hoping to find a witness.

"We believe someone saw something," DeFillo said. "That's a heavily populated area, lots of pedestrians, lots of vehicular traffic. We're hoping the reward and the fact that they can come forward anonymously will bring someone out with information."

NEW YORK — Oil prices settled modestly higher on Tuesday amid unrest in Nigeria and a U.S. warplane attack on an Iraqi missile site.

In Nigeria, attorneys boycotted courts and a labor group threatened a nationwide strike to protest the annulment of elections that were supposed to restore civilian rule.

Nigeria is one of the United States' largest suppliers of crude and the country's oil typically gives high yields of gasoline, said analysts.

Tensions between the United States and Iraq rarely have much effect on energy markets because Iraqi oil is embargoed. But the U.S. attack on a radar site Tuesday dampened any expectations Iraq might soon be allowed to sell a limited amount of crude to fund humanitarian efforts.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in August settled at $19.01 per barrel, up 11 cents at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $17.50 per barrel.

After trading ended on Tuesday, the American Petroleum Institute reported that gasoline stocks fell last week more than forecast by many analysts. The institute said gasoline stocks fell 2.863 million barrels to 222.334 million. Other API figures were within or close to expectations.

Dollar falls

NEW YORK — The dollar fell against most major currencies Tuesday amid weak news about the U.S. economy.

In New York, the dollar traded late at 106.50 yen, up from 106.25 on Monday.

In New York, the British pound was worth $1.5118, more than the $1.4965 it traded for late Monday.

Stocks tumble

NEW YORK — A triple taste of bad economic news sent the stock market lower Tuesday as new home sales, consumer confidence and an index designed to predict the future all declined.

The drop ended a three-day rally spurred by lower interest rates. Treasury securities prices, which move in the opposite direction from yields, were mostly higher again Tuesday, but seemed to have little impact on stocks.

The Dow Jones industrial average dropped 11.35 points to 3,518.85.

Declining issues barely outnumbered advances on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume totaled 272.99 million shares, compared with 240.43 million in the previous session.

An initial public offering of YPF Sociedad, Argentina's state-owned oil company ended the day at 21⅛ on the NYSE. The $3 billion offering was priced at $19 a share Monday.

The NYSE's composite index lost 0.46 to 249.06. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 0.66 to 433.52.

Economic gauge takes dip

■ Activity also shows drop in consumer confidence and plunge in new home sales.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The national economy is growing — but fitfully, a point underscored Tuesday by a decline in the government's chief forecasting index, a drop in consumer confidence and a surprising plunge in new home sales.

Government reports on May show that economic activity was on the down side of the 1993 seesaw and a private report suggests June may not have provided a rebound.

The Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators fell 0.3 percent in May following a 0.2 percent advance in April. It had been down in March, up in February, down in January and up in December.

"It's consistent with the viewpoint that you have a choppy economy that's going to be growing only modestly," said economist Maury N. Harris of PaineWebber Inc.

The most negative of the leading index's 11 forward-looking indicators was the University of Michigan's survey of consumer confidence, down for the fourth time in five months.

Meanwhile, a separate survey, issued Tuesday by the New York-based Conference Board, suggested consumers' cautiousness continued into June. The private business research organization's confidence index fell to an eight-month low.

Analysts say consumer fearfulness, as much as anything, explains the shocking 21 percent plunge in new home sales in May at a time when buying conditions were virtually ideal — low interest rates, plentiful supplies and stable prices.

The plummet, reported by the departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development, was the worst in 13 years and it virtually wiped out a 21.9 percent increase in April.

Economist Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University said consumers remain concerned about job growth and are becoming increasingly wary of tax increases coming out of Washington.

"Consumers are confused. They're confused about what government policy is going to be. They're confused about where job growth is going to come from," he said. ". . . Business people don't want to make decisions because they're not sure how the changes in taxes and medical reforms will impact them."

President Clinton, who bragged about April's dramatic increase in home sales, said reducing the nation's budget deficit and keeping interest rates down eventually will improve the economy but that the latest figures show recovery "is not going to be easy or quick."

"We are basically restructuring the American economy at a time when the whole world is in a rebuilding process," he said while posing for pictures with Argentina President Carlos Menem in the Oval Office.

The Index of Leading Indicators is designed to predict economic activity six to nine months in advance. Economists take three consecutive movements in one direction as a good, although far from foolproof, barometer of future activity.

In May, in addition to consumer confidence, five other indicators were negative. In order of their effect on the index, from largest to smallest, they were:

- A decline in the inflation-adjusted backlog of unfilled orders at factories for big-ticket durable goods such as cars and computers, a sign that the current workforce is having little trouble keeping up with orders.
- A fall in new orders to factories for consumer goods.
- An increase in new claims for unemployment benefits, from a weekly average of 374,000 in April to 390,000 in May.
- A decrease in the prices of raw materials, indicating a softening of demand.
- A speedup in business delivery times, also signaling weaker demand.

Four of the indicators were positive. In order, from most positive to least positive, they were:

- An increase in the inflation-adjusted money supply.
- A gain in orders and contracts for new commercial buildings and business equipment.
- A rise in building permits.
- An advance in stock prices as measured by the Standard & Poors 500.

One indicator was unchanged, the average factory workweek at 41.5 hours.

The various changes left the index at a seasonally adjusted 151.6, up 1.6 percent from a year ago and down 1 percent from three months ago.

Lockheed to lay off 350 workers

FORT WORTH (AP) — Lockheed Fort Worth Co. has told some 350 hourly employees that they will lose their jobs in 60 days, company spokesman Joe Stout said.

Monday's layoffs are part of a scheduled workforce reduction, announced last week, of 4,615 hourly and salaried employees in the plant's 10,000-member operations department. The staggered layoffs are scheduled through November 1994 at Lockheed's operation in west Fort Worth, which employs about 19,000 people.

The layoffs are planned primarily as a result of large cutbacks in production of the F-16 jet fighter.

The cuts are part of a plan former plant owner General Dynamics Corp. announced a year ago to cut approximately 6,000 jobs from the payroll by the end of 1994. Lockheed bought GD's Fort Worth Division this year for $1.52 billion.

Firm to shrink cans

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — Can a can get smaller without shrinking the drink?

Ball Corp., one of the nation's biggest producer of aluminum beverage cans, is using less metal to make its standard soft drink and beer cans. But the volume won't change.

For the last 10 years, Ball has made can tops that measure 2⅛ inches in diameter, known in the industry as "206" tops (for 2 6/16 inches).

By the end of the year, the company plans to reduce its tops to 2¼ inches, called "204" models (2 4/16 inches).

Shaving ⅛ inch doesn't change the volume of the can. But it does change the cost.

"It doesn't seem like much," said Harold Sohn, a Ball spokesman. "But when we produce 14 to 15 billion cans a year, it adds up." To millions of dollars, the company says.

The soft-drink industry hopes to take the incredible shrinking cans one step farther, to a "202" at 2⅛ inches across.

U.S. economy grows steadily, European experts say

By Bernard D. Kaplan

Analysis

PARIS — European experts have some advice for Americans brooding over the state of the U.S. economy.

The suggestion is: Cool it.

The American economy is doing OK, and the prospects are that it will continue to do so, the analysts say.

They accuse Americans of paying too much attention to minor blips, over-reacting when some economic indicator or other temporarily turns downward. "The almost hourly bulletins that Americans nowadays are given about their economy are both excessive and positively harmful," says Edwin Walsh, a Paris-based economic and monetary consultant.

Americans, he claims, "pop economic data the way drug addicts pop pills."

Walsh lines up with other analysts here who have a distinctly more upbeat view of the U.S. recovery than is fashionable across the Atlantic.

According to Britain's authoritative Financial Times, "The simple message is one of steady growth . . . The prospects for the U.S. economy are still sturdy."

While noting that the pace of recovery has been slower than after earlier recessions, the London daily pointed out that the United States is nonetheless outperforming every other major industrial nation.

"(President Clinton) may be disappointed that he cannot offer Americans a recovery like the heady upturn of the

Midland couple to open burrito restaurant

By Mella McEwen

Opening Thursday at 805 N. Big Spring is BURRITO CABANA.

McEwen

Owned by Adolfo and Graciela Valdez, the restaurant will offer a variety of burritos — breakfast burritos, meat and potato burritos, bean burritos and picadillo burritos — all served on homemade tortillas. Other menu items include asado, tamales, tacos, chalupas and, on the weekends, menudo.

Hours will be from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, until 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sundays.

A grand opening celebration is scheduled for this weekend.

Opening Thursday in its new location is SONSHINE CORNER, which is relocating to Kingsway Center (formerly Dellwood Mall) from Westwood Village shopping center.

Lanna Callender, who owns the Christian bookstore with husband Howard, said the new location is a third larger than its former location.

This, she explained, will allow the store to carry some new products and shift the emphasis from books and music to a Christian marketplace. She emphasized that the store will continue to carry books, Bibles and music but will add new items such as wallpaper printed with Scriptures, and gift items.

New fixtures have allowed her to carry more greeting cards and children's items. In addition to books and music, she also sells and rents videos.

A new paint removal service is set to open July 5 at 2806 County Road 1205.

STRIP MASTER OF WEST TEXAS will use a new technology that uses plastic media blasting for paint removal, according to Jeff Rowland, who also has a paint shop.

He explained that using plastic media for paint removal allows the company to strip paint off aluminum, plastic or metal without damaging the substate, the material underneath.

"We can strip automobiles, planes, aluminum trucks, anything that has paint on it that sandblasters would damage," he said. "We use plastic media that's softer than the material underneath but harder than the paint."

Midlander Stephan Lazaroff has opened a typographic and design service.

He offers design, authoring and layout of advertisements, newsletters, flyers and business cards as well as other business-related materials.

In addition, he is author of "Computers Made Easy" and is soon to publish "Breaking Into Windows 3.1." He can be reached at 699-1048.

The law firm of Hinkle, Cox, Eaton, Coffield & Hensley, with offices in Midland and Amarillo as well as Albuquerque, Roswell and Santa Fe, N.M., has opened a sixth office, in Austin.

The firm also announced its affiliation with the Austin law firm of Hoffman & Stephens, P.S., which brings to the table experience in transportation, energy, administrative and international law.

Gary D. Compton of the Amarillo office will move to the Austin office.

James M. Hudson, a partner and formerly with the Roswell office, has moved to the Midland office. He practices in litigation, including oil and gas, commercial and employment litigation.

Midlander Felipe Morales has been named to the 1993 Texas Leaders Round Table.

To qualify for this honor organization affiliated with the Texas Association of Life Underwriters, Morales was in the top 7 percent of life insurance professionals in the state.

Morales has also been awarded a trip to Hong Kong by Provident Life & Accident of Chattanooga, Tenn.

SEC sets new rules governing information about mutual funds

Hearst News Service

HOUSTON — New rules established by the Securities and Exchange Commission will require mutual funds beginning Thursday to list the names and backgrounds of their key portfolio managers.

Funds will also have to offer a chart showing how they performed against a broad-based market index, such as the Standard & Poor's 500 index, and tell you why they scored or failed miserably in their results.

Until now, people who have been selling themselves as professional money managers have been asking you to trust them with your money without giving you much information about themselves.

"They're going to have to discuss the strategies that affect their performance during the past year in a prospectus or annual report, and that's something that a lot of funds are not doing right now," said Amy Arnott, an analyst at Morningstar Mutual Funds, a Chicago newsletter.

Investors who wrote the SEC are hungry for the information.

"Many investors wrote that they did not believe mutual funds currently provide sufficient information to permit investors readily to evaluate fund investment results," the SEC said in a report.

Under the new rules, funds will be required to update their prospectuses — the brochures it sends out to new investors that outlines the fund's investment goal and costs — to disclose material changes that affect investors.

If there's a change in a fund's portfolio manager, it will be disclosed in a prospectus supplement filed with the SEC and delivered to investors.

Even then, you may not be able to get the information you need.

Money market and index funds will be exempt from the rules.

mid-1980s," the newspaper said. "He should not be."

It added that neither Clinton nor the American people "can realistically hope for more" under current world conditions.

Although a majority of Americans may be unaware of it, the most important economic development right now for most European experts is the widening gap between the advancing U.S. economy and the retreating economies of Western Europe. As the Financial Times put it, "The contrast in fortunes (between America and Europe) now seems even starker than was first thought."

French economist Michel Hubert says differences between the outlook here and in the United States do not stem solely from the fact that they are at contrasting stages of the economic cycle.

"Until a few months ago, the belief was that all could be explained by the fact that America was coming out of the recession while Western Europe was headed into the recession's worst phase," he says.

That view has given way to fears that Europe's plight is due much more to structural shortcomings of its economy, especially high labor costs, rigid managements and an immobile work force, he notes.

Hubert says the speed with which European investors and speculators have been switching from local currencies into dollars in recent weeks has not been witnessed here since the early 1980s.

"A fundamental change of economic sentiment is under way," he contends. "A decade ago, Europeans made dollar investments because they expected the U.S. economy to surge strongly ahead. They're doing the same now because they're afraid Europe is about to slip steadily further behind."

Iron vs. PMS

If you suffer from menstrual symptoms, such as fatigue and mood swings, you may not get enough iron. So suggests new research by psychologist James Penland of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In a study of 367 women with mild PMS, Dr. Penland found that those with lower iron blood levels had 20 to 25 percent more symptoms, including mood disturbances, pain, sweating and dizziness around the time of their periods. They also reported lowered efficiency and performances at work or school. They were more apt to nap during daytime and avoid social activities.

The lower the iron, the more severe the symptoms. Indeed, women who were anemic, signifying iron deficiency, had three times more symptoms than women who were not.

The study does not prove that low blood levels of iron causes PMS. But Dr. Penland is now giving women with PMS symptoms 50 milligrams of iron daily to see if they experience relief.

Experts generally recommend iron supplements for women of menstruating ages, because it's difficult to get enough iron from foods, especially on vegetarian or low-calorie diets. The recommended dietary allowance (RDA) for iron is 15 milligrams.

Snack attacks

Physicians and dietitians alike contend that snacking doesn't harm children or adolescents and that in many cases it may be necessary for meeting nutritional needs.

Since children and adolescents tend not to linger at the dining table, "it is pretty hard to meet all their nutritional needs from three square meals a day," said Ronald Kleinman, chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics committee on nutrition. Snacking, he says, is a good alternative.

What kind of snacks are best? Crackers and cheese, chocolate pudding and yogurt help fulfill calcium needs. Fruit and vegetables provide needed vitamins and fiber. Carrot sticks dipped in peanut butter are another good choice, as are nuts, pretzels and popcorn for kids older than 3.

Vital records

"Where to Write for Vital Records" is an important U.S. Government Best Seller that explains how and where to write for birth, death, marriage and divorce certificates.

Official certificates for birth, death, marriage and divorce events are on file in various state, city, county and local government offices. This publication lists the appropriate agencies to contact in each state including the address, telephone number, cost of a copy and other remarks about the availability of records and how to obtain certified copies. Specific instructions on what to include in your request when writing for records are provided. Foreign or high-sea births and deaths and certificates of citizenship are also covered.

To order a copy of "Where to Write for Vital Records," send a check for $6.50 made payable for Federal Reprints, to Federal Reprints, P.O. Box 70268, Washington, D.C. 20024.

Juicy facts

If you are overweight, have high triglycerides or have diabetes, drinking lots of juice is not such a good idea. So says the Mayo Clinic Health Letter.

For one thing, calories in juice mount up. Juice often has more calories per nutrients than whole fruit. A medium-sized orange has 65 calories and 80 milligrams of vitamin C. To get the same amount of vitamin C from orange juice, you have to drink almost 8 ounces for more than 100 calories, the Health Letter notes.

Some other points:

Drinking your calories can be less satisfying. Eating whole fruit is more likely to make you feel full sooner.

If you have diabetes, the sugar in fruit juice raises your blood sugar the same as drinking a sugary soft drink does. On the other hand, whole fruit produces a less rapid rise in blood sugar.

"I usually tell people with diabetes or high triglycerides to eat whole fruit and limit fruit juice to about a half cup a day," says Jackie See, a Mayo registered dietitian.

Silence surrounds pregnancy loss

By Leslie Dreyfous
Associated Press

She knew for sure when the doctor leaned over her and said, "Goodnight, Debbie." Drifting from consciousness, warm tears spilling down her cheeks, she repeated to herself: "When I wake up, I won't be pregnant anymore."

Somewhere deep down and for some time, Debbie Lindner had known she would lose the baby that New Year's Day. The bleeding had been steady and, hour after hour, the cramping had grown more intense.

What she could not know was how alone, achingly empty, she would feel for weeks and months after miscarrying this first child she and her husband had dreamt of and anticipated for so long.

"I sat on the sofa mostly, trying to take care of myself. I was disbelieving that this could have happened to me. I wasn't prepared for miscarriage. I felt I was walking in a dream, all by myself.

"I was going to hear a heartbeat on my next prenatal visit. And here I am a week later, my heart broken. What if I hadn't pruned the roses? What if I had eaten more protein at breakfast?"

Studies indicate that more than 20 percent of pregnancies end in miscarriage or stillbirth. Among women over 35, the risk is significantly higher.

It is not an uncommon experience. And yet, it is muted. People clam up, unsure what to say when a child's chance at life is lost.

"It's a lonely loss," said Kathy Nuffer, president of the Empty Nest support group in San Diego. "People don't realize how bonded you are to your child from the day of conception."

For parents, and particularly the mother who has felt the child in her womb, the loss is devastating. And, often, isolating.

Friends and family may tiptoe around it, afraid of coming too close to so personal a misfortune. Or trample over it, bombarding grieving parents with useless, if well-intentioned, observations.

People told Mrs. Lindner that it was meant to be, as if to explain away her loss. Society's message was simple: Move on. And she tried, and she failed, and she tried again until one day the pain finally began to dull.

"People would say, 'Aren't you glad you lost the baby? There must have been something horribly wrong,'" said Mrs. Lindner, who started a support group at Eden Hospital in Castro Valley, Calif. "The loss is undervalued and, later, ignored. It's supposed to be something you can snap out of."

But for many women, the grieving goes on for months. Long after the obligatory sympathy notes have been sent and the boss says "Take all the time you need." Long after the rest of the world has moved on.

It can be an especially isolating time for couples whose pregnancies end before friends and family know they began.

"Miscarriage is real hush-hush because it's early and often at home. ... There is no death certificate, no record that a child, a child of yours, ever existed," said JoLynn Crouch, a determined Utah woman who endured multiple miscarriages and stillbirths on the way to becoming a mother of seven.

"If they are stillborn or die as newborns, you at least have something to bury, somewhere to go to say, 'Yes, I really had this baby,'" Mrs. Crouch said. "Even if you can't hold it, you know it's someone you love."

For the many women who have delayed childbirth until just the right time, and for those who have fought an arduous fertility battle before getting pregnant at all, the despair is particularly acute.

Margaret Hollister speaks to these women. As a woman who has battled

At the heart of the matter

By Carolyn Poirot
N.Y. Times News Service

Twenty-seven years ago, when the American Heart Association sponsored its first conference on women and heart disease, the focus was on the role wives could play in protecting their husbands from the nation's No. 1 killer. More than 10,000 women attended that conference in Portland, Ore., to learn to be better caregivers.

The irony is, heart attacks and strokes now kill 27,000 more women than men in this country each year.

Not to take anything away from the seriousness of breast cancer, but nearly 250,000 women die of a heart attack each year; an additional 90,000 die of stroke. By comparison, about 40,500 women die from breast cancer.

Heart disease is an equal-opportunity killer. It has been the biggest killer of women, as well as of men, since 1908 when it bypassed infections, primarily those associated with childbirth, as the chief cause of death among women.

Last week, Dr. Holly Atkinson, health correspondent for the NBC "Today" show, was in Fort Worth, Texas, to debunk the myth that women have just now started suffering their share of heart disease because of the stress of climbing corporate ladders.

And, she reminded about 300 women attending an American Heart Association luncheon, we are no good as caregivers to anybody if we don't take care of ourselves.

Atkinson says there are three reasons it took so long to hear a lot about women's cardiovascular problems: the Heart Association's original goal was to decrease deaths and morbidity from "premature" heart attacks (at a time

Insomniacs suffer from stress, anxiety, depression

Hearst News Service

Many Americans don't get enough sleep — some because of insomnia and others because they are too busy doing something else.

"We're living in a society in which we go to sleep when we want to and get up because we have to," Wilse Webb, retired psychology professor at the University of Florida, told Barbara Hustedt Crook in an article in the current issue of Cosmopolitan. He said about 1 percent of people can get by on five hours or less; another 1 percent need 10 or more.

The rest of Americans fall somewhere in between and Webb said: "The very fact that most of us use an alarm clock is proof that we're shortening our natural cycles."

Some people try to catch up on weekends for missed weeknight sleep, and the experts say that's at least better than not catching up.

"By Monday you may even be back on top again — if you can get to sleep on Sunday night," said Mary A. Carskadon, professor of psychiatry and human behavior at Brown University School of Medicine and director of chronobiology at E.P. Bradley Hospital in Providence, R.I. "A lot of people develop what's called Sunday-night insomnia because they slept so late on Sunday morning. And by Friday, well, I wouldn't want to be on the highway with them."

She said in weekend paybacks, it is better to turn in early or take a midafternoon nap, rather than get up late.

An estimated one-third of Americans are plagued by at least occasional insomnia — and for a transient problem sleeping pills may be the medicine of choice.

"As long as you take them for the short term as directed, they're safe," said Stanford University human biology professor Craig Heller.

For the 30 million Americans who habitually toss and turn, there are no quick fixes. About half of chronic insomniacs suffer from stress, anxiety or depression and might benefit from counseling — or from learning not to

Pinkeye is highly contagious, but common infection

By Anne Edelson
Associated Press

A pink-eyed rabbit may be cute, but pinkeye in children is a highly contagious illness that requires medical attention.

Pinkeye, known medically as conjunctivitis, is generally due to a bacterial or viral infection of the conjunctiva, the clear membrane covering the white of the eye.

Symptoms include weeping or watery mucuslike discharge, itching, redness, bloodshot eyes and sometimes light sensitivity.

A pinkeye infection is often caused by the same virus that causes a cold or sore throat. It's common for the infection to occur after contact with other children or other family members who have the illness.

The condition is generally not threatening to a child's eyesight. But medical attention is necessary to eliminate the possibility of such serious conditions as glaucoma or uveitis — an inflammation inside the eye.

If pinkeye is diagnosed, antibiotic eyedrops may be prescribed to control any bacterial infection. But the drops are ineffective if the condition is caused by a virus.

Pinkeye due to a viral infection will generally disappear by itself. The infection is highly contagious through touch. Taking precautions at home can help prevent its spread to other family members.

Do not allow the infected child to share bath towels, handkerchiefs or other personal hygiene items.

Allow children to wear clothes only once before they are laundered.

Be sure to wash your hands immediately after touching the eye or secretions from the eye surface of the infected child.

And keep the child away from others for a few days until the eye stops weeping, producing a white mucus containing discharge.

Check with your pediatrician if the child's eye continues to appear unusual or the inflammation has not improved after a week.

The warm weather months present the possibility of an outbreak of another variety of pinkeye known as allergic conjunctivitis.

This condition is triggered by the body's immune reaction to allergens. The symptoms of itching, redness and a mucuslike discharge may be similar to bacterial and viral pinkeye.

Special allergy eye drops and the application of cool wet compresses may provide relief of this condition.

This article was written in collaboration with Dr. Mark Steele, a clinical assistant professor of ophthalmology at New York University Medical Center.

ACS guidelines say leave nutrition in when grilling out

Staff report

The American Cancer Society believes you can have your barbecue and eat it too.

"You can leave nutrition in when grilling out," said Connie Mobley, Ph.D., a San Antonio dietician. "The American Cancer Society's nutrition guidelines can make all cooking and dining experiences cancer fighting without leaving out the fun."

Research has shown that barbecuing and grilling meats, especially charring them, can create a large number of carcinogens in the meats. When fat from the meat falls into the coals, chips, heating elements of flames, the smoke causes carcinogens that can land on the food. But by taking a few simple steps, barbecuing and grilling can be healthier.

"Think of barbecuing and grilling as a method of finishing the cooking process to add special flavor, not as a complete method of cooking," Mobley said. Baking, boiling or microwaving the meat halfway through means less time on the grill and eliminates some of the fat. But be careful when handling precooked meat: don't let it sit around, and don't transport it to another location such as a park. Harmful bacteria could grow on precooked meat and cause serious illness.

Other grilling and barbecuing tips include:

- Cook meats on the grill for as little time as possible and as far away from the heat source as possible.
- Use foil or a drop pan to catch fat drippings.
- Choose low-fat cuts of meat.
- Trim away as much of the fat and skin as possible.
- Cook only three- to four-ounce servings.
- Use charcoal made from hardwood; soft woods burn hotter.
- Make sure meats are completely thawed to reduce cooking time and prevent charring.
- Marinate your meats; tomatoes, vinegar and lemon or lime juice make tasty marinade bases, while herbs and spices can add flavor to meats without adding fat.

"We suggest people eat a varied diet," Mobley said. "That doesn't preclude occasional barbecued meats, provided the servings are small.

"The American Cancer Society agrees that summer wouldn't be the same without a cookout," Mobley said. "That's why we say to go ahead and enjoy it, but make sure your fighting cancer at the same time."

Cereal flavored with cinnamon

By Linda Anderson

Sometimes I wonder whatever happened to plain old cornflakes. The cereal aisle at the supermarket is being overtaken with cold cereals in every shape, flavor (artificial, of course) and color (also artificial) you can imagine — and some you can't. It's becoming more and more difficult to find cereals that taste and look like cereals.

Anderson

I think the ones that confuse me the most, though, are the ones that try to taste like something else. There's banana-nut bread-flavored cereal, s'mores-flavored cereal, chocolate-flavored cereal, fruit-flavored cereal, and now, there's even bunuelo-flavored cereal.

General Mills has introduced Bunuelitos, "a new puffed corn, cinnamon and honey cereal" that is supposed to taste "like the Mexican pastry, bunuelo." At least, that's what the company claims. And they were so anxious for us to try a box, that they mailed us one to the office.

According to company information: "If you like Mexican food, now you can easily have the sweet taste of old Mexico with Bunuelitos, a new breakfast cereal from General Mills..."

Label information on the box itself gets a little more poetic — and wordy — than that: "In the tradition of delicious Mexican pastries, Bunuelitos is the new cereal with the great flavor combination of cinnamon (canela), sugar (azucar), honey (miel). Now, you can enjoy the authentic flavor of bunuelos for breakfast."

The side label even gives a little history lesson: "Bunuelitos has the same delicious taste sensation of a bunuelo, the crispy, traditional Mexican dessert served on festive occasions. The first bunuelos were made from cinnamon and sugar cane brought by Spanish settlers and combined with the native Mexican sweetener, honey. Nuns first created bunuelos as a holiday treat. In a time-honored custom, bunuelos are served on irregular and cracked pottery which is saved throughout the year. For good luck, lore has it that a dish should be broken for every bunuelo eaten. Now, you don't have to wait for a special occasion to discover this delicious taste. The cinnamon, sugar and honey goodness of crispy Bunuelitos make every day a celebration."

Also according to the company, a 12.5-ounce box will be priced at somewhere close to $3 (anticipated retail price is $2.89-$3.29). Is it just me, or have you too noticed how expensive dry cereals are getting? Seems like it's getting out of hand.

Surprisingly, Bunuelitos taste pretty good. They have a nice cinnamon flavor (I love cinnamon) with just a hint of honey. It's about the same effect you'd get if you rolled Kix in cinnamon and sugar.

But once again, I have to say, I really am bothered by cereals that try to taste like something else. If you want bunuelos, why not eat bunuelos? Why bother with cereal?

DEAR ABBY

Long hot days of summer can be fatal to man's best friends

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Now that summer is here, I can see more and more people leaving their animals in parked cars. I am from Texas, and the temperature here can reach well over 100 degrees. It hurts me to see a helpless dog left in a car while its owner spends an hour (or more) in a shopping mall.

Van Buren

A while back you printed some figures on how fast a car heats up on a hot summer day, and included an address where people could write to get cards that have a printed warning about this. Would you please reprint that address? I know many people who feel strongly about this and would take action to save an animal's life. — ANA SABRINA GONZALEZ, PLANO, TEXAS

DEAR ANA SABRINA: Thank you for writing. Your letter may save some pet owners a good deal of grief and remorse.

The Animal Protection Institute, P.O. Box 22505, Sacramento, Calif. 95822, sells cards that can be placed under the windshield wipers of thoughtless pet owners. They sell for only $3 per 100 cards.

The printed message reads: "YOUR DOG MAY BE DYING! We understand you meant to be kind by taking your dog with you today, but you could be risking your pet's life.

"On a hot summer day, the inside of a car heats very quickly. On an average 85-degree day, for example, the temperature inside your car — with the window slightly opened — will reach 102 degrees in 10 minutes. In 30 minutes it will go up to 120 degrees. On warmer days, it will go even higher.

"A dog's normal body temperature is 101.5 to 102.2 degrees Fahrenheit. A dog can withstand a body temperature of 107 to 108 degrees Fahrenheit for only a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage — or even death. The closed car interferes with the dog's normal cooling process, that is, evaporation through panting.

"If your dog is overcome by heat exhaustion, you can give immediate first aid by immersing him or her in cold water until body temperature is lowered."

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago, I did something stupid. My husband and I had two children and our marriage was rather shaky, so I let myself get talked into having my tubes tied. Four years later, we divorced.

Seven months ago, I remarried. Guess what? We want children. I was told that my surgery can be reversed — for $12,000! Paid in full — up-front! This type of surgery is not covered by our insurance company. Abby, I barely earn that in a year.

All right, I made a mistake, but why should my new husband be punished? Do you know how long it will take us to save $12,000? I am 35 years old and my biological clock is running out.

I know you can't help me, but maybe this letter will help someone else. Women, please do not have your tubes tied if there is even the slightest chance that you will regret it later. — ALL TIED UP

DEAR TIED: It's sad you didn't think things through before having your tubes surgically tied. Thank you for writing to warn other women.

Good advice for everyone — teens to seniors — is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 30, 1993

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Wealth will be much easier to accumulate than in the past. Be sure to set some money aside for investment purposes! Prudent spending habits will help you build a nice nest egg by December. Avoid becoming impatient about your chances for advancement at work. A special career goal will move within reach early in 1994. Romance and family life are rewarding, so long as you not cling too tightly. Curb a possessive streak.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singer Lena Horne, actress Nancy Dussault, drummer Buddy Rich, boxer Mike Tyson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be careful if traveling today. You could be a bit accident-prone. The personal touch is important to your loved ones. Show appreciation for your mate's efforts. Live closer to your ideals.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Avoid contacting others today. Let them come to you! Financial matters turn out as planned. A visitor brings welcome news. You find the answer to an old riddle.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your intuition is "right on the money." Make financial decisions by yourself. Other people mean well but may guide you down the wrong path. Romantic entanglements could cause a change in plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can make considerable headway today in your financial dealings with someone influential. A loved one could behave in a strange manner. Withhold judgment until you know more.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Concentrate on work and ignore outside distractions. Today's events will affect you in a positive way, opening the door to better financial opportunities. A relationship needs time to mature.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have all the tools you need to win a competition. You are a leader, not a follower. Show how mature you are and a relationship will develop the way you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may have to work side-by-side with someone who irritates you. Hide your impatience and concentrate on teamwork's many benefits. Leave your cares at home when you go out tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not sit back and wait for things to come to you. Get busy and turn your dreams into reality. You have what it takes to succeed. Prominent people will be impressed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Heed subtle signals from your romantic partner. A relationship may be cooling off. News from someone at a distance makes the situation clear. Take the first step towards sorting things out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Curb a tendency to be gullible, especially in business. Be wary of someone who tries to influence you with a tale of woe. Flirting with a stranger could jeopardize an important relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your diplomacy is put to the supreme test when you are asked to settle a dispute. Offer advice without making accusations. Romance beckons. Dress to impress if going out this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Getting the go-ahead for a personal project makes you feel on top of the world. Do not expect too much; you could be overestimating a business proposition.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Nine of ♠

"None but the brave deserve the fair," wrote the bard. Unfortunately, South gave away in the play the advantage reaped by bold bidding.

Although looking at a hand with only seven winners, South did not hesitate to bid four hearts over East's preempt. That might have been disastrous, but it was obvious North would not be able to reopen the bidding, so we consider four hearts a compulsory action.

West led partner's suit. Declarer won in dummy and took the trump finesse. Unfortunately, that lost and the contract eventually hinged on South being able to hold the club losers to two. A club to the queen lost to the ace, and a club back yielded two more tricks to the defense—down one.

It was one of those peculiar hands: If the trump finesse was going to win, declarer did not need to take it as long as the trumps were 2-1 Why? Because the defenders cannot broach clubs without giving declarer a trick in the suit.

Declarer should win the opening lead in hand, cash the ace of hearts and ace-king of diamonds, then ruff a diamond in hand. Declarer then crosses to the king of spades to ruff the last diamond, not minding whether a defender overruffs.

When no one does, declarer simply exits with a trump. Whichever defender wins the trick has a choice of losing options. Any return other than clubs allows declarer to ruff in one hand while discarding a club from the other, while a club switch limits the defenders to two tricks in that suit. Making four-odd.

Springsteen, wife expect third baby 'born in USA'

NEW YORK — Glory days! Patti Scialfa and husband Bruce Springsteen are having another one born in the U.S.A.

Scialfa

The rock 'n' roll couple are expecting their third child, a statement from Scialfa's publicist said Tuesday. They already have a 3-year-old son, Evan James, and a 1½-year-old daughter, Jessica Rae.

Springsteen, 43, married Scialfa, 36, in June 1991, when she was his backup singer and a member of the now-defunct E Street Band. Springsteen left his first wife, actress Julianne Phillips, in 1988.

The pregnancy won't delay release of Scialfa's first solo album, "Rumble Doll," due out July 13 from Columbia Records, publicist Michele Schweitzer said.

NEW YORK — The actor Calvert DeForest might follow David Letterman from NBC to CBS, but the character Larry "Bud" Melman might not.

Ending hours if not days of speculation, DeForest, 71, said Monday he believes he will be joining Letterman's new "Late Show," which begins on CBS in August.

"Yes, it looks that way," DeForest said while attending an AIDS benefit. "I think so."

But Letterman fans may have seen the last of the character Melman when he made a cameo appearance on the final "Late Night" show on NBC on Friday.

"He might have to be retired. We own the actor, but we don't own the character," said Peter Lasally, the show's co-executive producer, who is helping preside over its transition from NBC to CBS.

When Letterman's "Late Night" debuted 11½ years ago, the first thing viewers saw was the image of Larry "Bud." Over the years, the short, cranky, bespectacled Melman epitomized the kind of New York character who lives on the fringes of show business, an unsuccessful lawyer and athlete's agent who still lives at home with his mother.

LONDON — Olivia de Havilland's wardrobe, made almost exclusively by the fashion house of Christian Dior, was sold for $43,400 at an auction Tuesday.

The Dior Museum, in Paris, paid $7,400 for an A-line gray flannel suit designed by Dior for de Havilland's 1955 wedding to Pierre Galante, a French magazine editor, Christie's said.

A pink evening dress designed by Yves Saint Laurent, which the actress wore at a dinner party given by former British Prime Minister Edward Heath in 1971, sold for $2,300.

De Havilland's wardrobe, dating from 1954-74, included over 70 dresses, suits and evening gowns designed by Dior and his design successors at the house, Saint Laurent and Marc Bohan.

"The sale was successful and I hope that the clothes are happy with their new owners and that their new owners are happy with them," de Havilland said.

De Havilland, 76, won a best actress Oscar in 1946 for "To Each His Own" and in 1949 for "The Heiress."

EUGENE, Ore. — Barbara Bush now has a rose to call her own.

The University of Oregon has named a hybrid tea rose for the former first lady. Other varieties of the rose were named for Lucille Ball and Old Faithful, the geyser at Yellowstone National Park.

Bush

Jackson & Perkins Co., a rose breeding firm, developed the limited edition hybrid roses for the university. The roses are in shades of yellow with dark green foliage, the university's school colors. The hybrid tea rose bears fewer, larger blooms on longer stems than the average rose.

The university, facing budget cutbacks, is selling 6,000 rose bushes for $14.95 each to raise money.

HARTFORD, Conn. — Former CIA Director William Colby has won a contract dispute over his book "Lost Victory."

Colby sued Alexander Burnham in state Appellate Court for breach of contract after Burnham failed to produce manuscripts on deadline. Burnham was the third co-author to work with Colby on his book.

A trial court referee awarded Colby $23,000 in the case.

After the curtain came down on the closing performance of "Falsettos" Sunday afternoon, William Finn, the show's co-author, composer and lyricist, stepped forward to say farewell.

"Last August when I was in the hospital, things looked bleak, and I didn't know if I'd ever see the show again, never mind the closing perfomance," Finn said Monday, recalling what he said Sunday. He had been hospitalized, he said, for an arterial malformation in the brain that was at first mistakenly diagnosed as a tumor. So, although the closing of a show can be a sad milestone, Finn, now in good health, did not see it that way.

LOSS: Grieving process important after loss of child infertility, she understands how cold society's comfort can be. "People mean to be soothing and helpful ... but they don't understand," she said.

"So often, you hear someone say, 'Oh dear, you're so young. This was God's way. You can try again,' " said Hollister, who runs a hot line for RESOLVE, a national infertility and pregnancy organization based in Somerville, Mass.

This may be true. But for the mother who just lost a child she'd planned for, prayed for, captured in her mind's eye playing tag or graduating college, there is no thought of what's best. Or of the future.

There is only the loss.

"The problem is that there is no validation for the mother's experience," said Dr. Rochelle Friedman, a psychiatrist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and co-author of "Surviving Pregnancy Loss."

"The majority of people don't understand why it's so hard," Friedman said. "Everybody feels the pain is terrible ... (but) we live in a culture that has a hard time with loss and death and sadness."

In the days following the stillbirth of her son, Patricia Cane was surprised to hear more from casual acquaintances than from her dearest friends. It added to her isolation. She felt contagious.

"We were very close to one couple and went out with them often," said Cane, who runs a support group in Auburn, Mass. "But (the stillbirth) was never mentioned. It was a topic that was to be avoided at any cost. Maybe they were too close."

IT WASN'T THAT her friends didn't care, she said. They just didn't know what to say, how to act.

Mrs. Cane, in a way, was one of the lucky ones. While her doctor wasn't terribly sensitive, she was at a hospital that provided resources and support, and encouraged her to hold her stillborn child and consider a memorial.

Had she known better, Cynthia Gaufin would have asked for the same. She would have spent more time with her baby, held onto him longer before he died. She would have taken photographs, had better sets of foot and handprints made, saved a lock of his hair.

It may sound morbid. To Mrs. Gaufin, a nurse, and to her husband, a neurosurgeon, it might have sounded morbid a decade ago. But that was before they went through the experience of losing a newborn child.

"People don't understand that it's part of a healthy grieving process," Mrs. Gaufin said from her home in Provo, Utah. "They give you about two weeks and then wonder why you haven't gotten back to normal."

It takes time. Some dive right back in and try to get pregnant again. And, statistics indicate, the odds are encouraging: At least 70 percent of women who experience pregnancy loss go on to have healthy children.

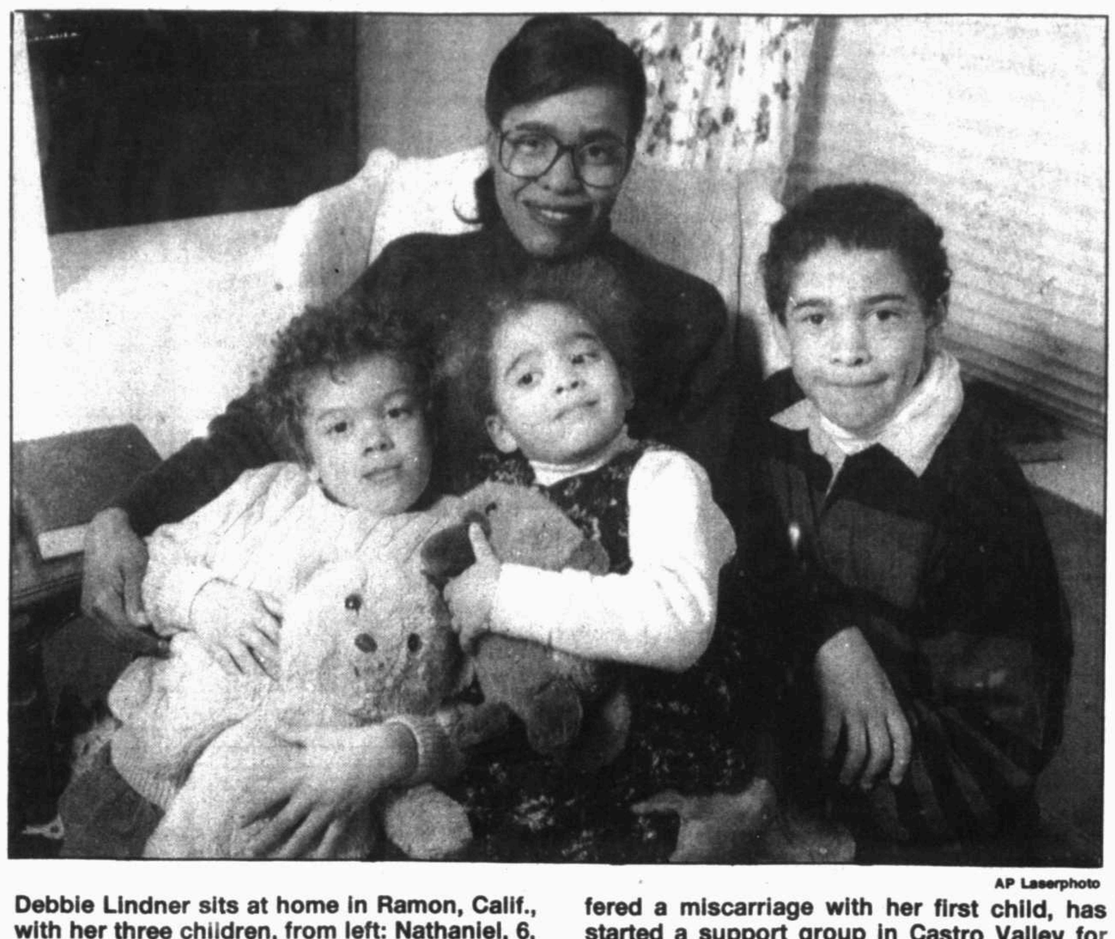

But that, too, may be difficult. Mrs. Gaufin became hypersensitive. What had she done wrong last time? She felt her body had betrayed her, worried about what she ate, suffered guilt if someone beside her happened to sneeze.

"All I could think was, 'How can I keep this from happening again?' " recalled Mrs. Gaufin. "I kept asking my husband whether it was something I did or didn't do. I think I drove him crazy."

AND WHAT OF the fathers? They often are left on the sidelines, perhaps not as comfortable grieving openly as women might be. They are supposed to be the strong ones, the stoic ones.

"I had questions continually about 'How's your wife. How's she doing?' But never about how are YOU," said Chuck Lammert, an engineer at a power plant in St. Louis.

"I was offered some consolation when I came back to work, but it was mostly about getting on with business. And I tried. I didn't know of the significance of the events unfolding," said Lammert, who with his wife, Cathi, helps run the national support network SHARE.

Debbie Lindner sits at home in Ramon, Calif., with her three children, from left: Nathaniel, 6, Elizabeth, 4, and John , 10, Lindner, who suffered a miscarriage with her first child, has started a support group in Castro Valley for women who have had miscarriages.

"A great many of us end up running from it. We throw ourselves into work or drink a tad more or go fishing," said Michael Donnen, a therapist who conducts grief workshops in Seattle. "Society says we're supposed to be strong for our wives, that they can do the crying for both of us."

But it's a setup, because while the wife might be crying she often is also seething. Doesn't he care? Doesn't he share this grief? The divorce rate among couples that have lost a child is significantly higher than the norm.

"My husband and I found we needed more support than we were being given," said Mrs. Lammert, who coordinates 240 SHARE chapters. "Some people feel the only place they can really speak of this is at a support group. Family and friends may not understand all these feelings."

Those who have been through it say the greatest comfort comes in speaking frankly, letting others in on their grief. They have held funerals or memorials, and openly shared the loss with their living children — who cannot help but sense the pain.

IT MUST NOT be hushed up, they say, because the grief, whether spoken or not, is still there.

For Debbie Lindner, it will always be there.

"All my life I'd waited for this," said Mrs. Lindner, who went on to have three children, but cannot — does not choose — to forget those she lost to multiple miscarriages.

"You fall in love. You take care of it. You imagine this life to come," she said. "And once that pregnancy registers, you are a mother. To have that severed by death is painful."

And silence, these parents say, redoubles the crime.

HEART: Women often misdiagnosed

when a lot of men in their 40s were dying of them); until March, the FDA prohibited women of childbearing age from participating in the testing of many new drugs; and good ol' sexism in medicine.

In the past, women's heart problems too often were misdiagnosed as emotional problems, she noted. Even when women presented with obvious symptoms, doctors often were slow to suspect heart disease, especially in women under 50.

Yes, women are different from men and our hormones are involved (estrogen protects against heart disease), but our emotions have nothing to do with whether we suffer from serious heart conditions. Emotions don't kill, at least not directly; heart disease does.

Atkinson favors hormone replacement therapy, which can decrease the risk of heart attack in post-menopausal women by a whopping 50 percent and also protect against stroke and Alzheimer's, probably by keeping blood vessels to the brain pliable and more resistant to plaque buildup and hardening.

In the last 40 years, the number of deaths from heart attacks has been cut in half, thanks to better diagnosis, better treatment and public education aimed at changing behavior such as smoking and eating high-fat diets.

To further that effort, Atkinson urged women to be more aware of their risk factors: increasing age (women, on the average, tend to develop heart disease 10 years later than men), family history, ethnicity (black women have a greater risk), cigarette smoking, high blood pressure, high blood cholesterol, diabetes, overweight and physical inactivity.

If there were a pill we could take that would help us lose weight, protect against heart disease and cancer, decrease anxiety, improve self-esteem and prolong our lives, we would take it, even if we had to chew it for 20 minutes, three times a week. Yet many women still aren't doing the equivalent thing — exercising, Atkinson noted.

SLEEP: Trying too hard can keep you awake worry in bed.

"Sure, you need to deal with problems, but why do it when you can't think straight?" said Peter Hauri, director of the Mayo Clinic's Insomnia Program in Rochester, Minn. He recommended setting aside half an hour before you turn in to jot down worries on 3-by-5 index cards.

"Sort the cards to get some control over them, then decide, for each, what kind of action you'll take in the morning," he said.

Some insomniacs make matters worse by staying in bed and trying too hard to fall asleep, Hauri said, adding: "Most insomniacs lie there too long, always a mistake."

Other common errors — failure to stick to a regular schedule, excessive caffeine consumption, too warm room temperatures, nasal decongestants and alcohol.

The No. 1 sleep complaint is not insomnia — it is sleep apnea, in which sufferers stop breathing while asleep, sometimes dozens of times an hour. Apnea afflicts at least 2 percent of adults, mostly males who snore.

Mark Mahowald, director of the Minnesota Regional Sleep Disorder Center in Minneapolis, said the prescription for apnea is "the simplest for a devastating illness I know." It is the CPAP (Continuous Positive Airway Pressure) mask, which exerts air pressure on the upper air passages to keep them open. Cost: about $1,500.

Bowl runs deficit

EL PASO — The organization that runs the John Hancock Bowl had posted a deficit of $157,248 as of Jan. 31, according to an auditor's report.

Most of the Sun Carnival Association's losses — $153,185 — came in 1992-93, which included a bowl matchup between Baylor and Arizona. The organization has lost money on the last two games.

"You take a look at it and we sold about 12,000 less tickets (for Baylor-Arizona) than we had expected. That's about the dollar amount" of the loss, said Ramiro Guzman, president of the association, which has operated its bowl game for 59 years.

A crowd of 41,622 attended the game. The Sun Bowl, the site of the game, seats 52,000.

Mercer landed

NEW YORK — Ray Mercer, knocked out of a rich heavyweight title fight by Jesse Ferguson, was hooked by the long arm of the law Tuesday on a charge he tried to bribe Ferguson to lose.

"Not guilty," Mercer said.

And that's all the 1988 Olympic gold medalist said. At least within earshot of reporters during and after his arraignment in Criminal Court of New York. He was released on his own recognizance.

District Attorney Robert M. Morgenthau announced at a news conference that Mercer was arrested Sunday in Indianapolis after being indicted by a grand jury in the County of New York on a charge of offering Ferguson $100,000 to lose during their fight Feb. 6 at Madison Square Garden.

Mercer lost a 10-round unanimous decision to Ferguson, his former sparring partner. He also lost a $2.5 million payday against heavyweight champion Riddick Bowe, who stopped Michael Dokes in the first round on the Garden card. Ferguson got $500,000 to challenge Bowe, and he was stopped 17 seconds into the second round May 22 at Washington.

Webber, Bradley NBA's top picks

By Mike Nadel
AP Sports Writer

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Who will go where and when in the first round of tonight's NBA draft? Here's one look:

1. Orlando — Chris Webber, 6-9, forward, Michigan ... Teams with Shaq to form imposing front line. But will Magic be able to pay anyone else?

2. Philadelphia — Shawn Bradley, 7-6, center, BYU ... 76ers get either revolutionary basketball player or biggest bust in years.

3. Golden State — Jamal Mashburn, 6-8, forward, Kentucky ... Adds even more scoring to already potent (but small) lineup.

4. Dallas — Anfernee Hardaway, 6-7, guard, Memphis State ... "Penny" will turn out to be best player in draft and Mavs absolutely steal him. Joins Jimmy Jackson in backcourt of '90s — and beyond.

■ AP NBA Draft Analysis

5. Minnesota — J.R. Rider, 6-5, guard, UNLV ... Timberwolves would love Hardaway or Mashburn but take scoring machine as consolation.

6. Washington — Calbert Cheaney, 6-7, forward, Indiana ... Has skills, smarts to avoid Hoosier NBA jinx and to replace traded Harvey Grant.

7. Sacramento — Bobby Hurley, 6-0, guard, Duke ... Kings have fallen in love with him but need to make sure he eats all his spinach.

8. Milwaukee — Rodney Rogers, 6-7, forward, Wake Forest ... Sacramento may regret passing over tough, versatile Rogers.

9. Denver — Vin Baker, 6-11, forward, Hartford ... Draft's first "sleeper," Baker gives Nuggets big body but small-forward skills.

10. Detroit — Acie Earl, 6-10, center-forward, Iowa ... Brings some Bad back to Bad Boys as aging Pistons try to retool inside presence.

11. Detroit (from Miami) — Lindsey Hunter, 6-2, guard, Jackson State ... Good shooter who can spell both Isiah and Dumars before eventually starting.

12. L.A. Lakers — Chris Mills, 6-6, forward, Arizona ... Ervin Johnson would be sentimental choice, but Lakers can't pass on Worthy-like Mills.

13. L.A. Clippers — Allan Houston, 6-6, guard, Tennessee ... Clippers thrilled that fine shooter falls into their lap.

14. Indiana — Doug Edwards, 6-9, forward, Florida State ... Needing frontcourt help, Pacers hope Edwards can gain more consistency.

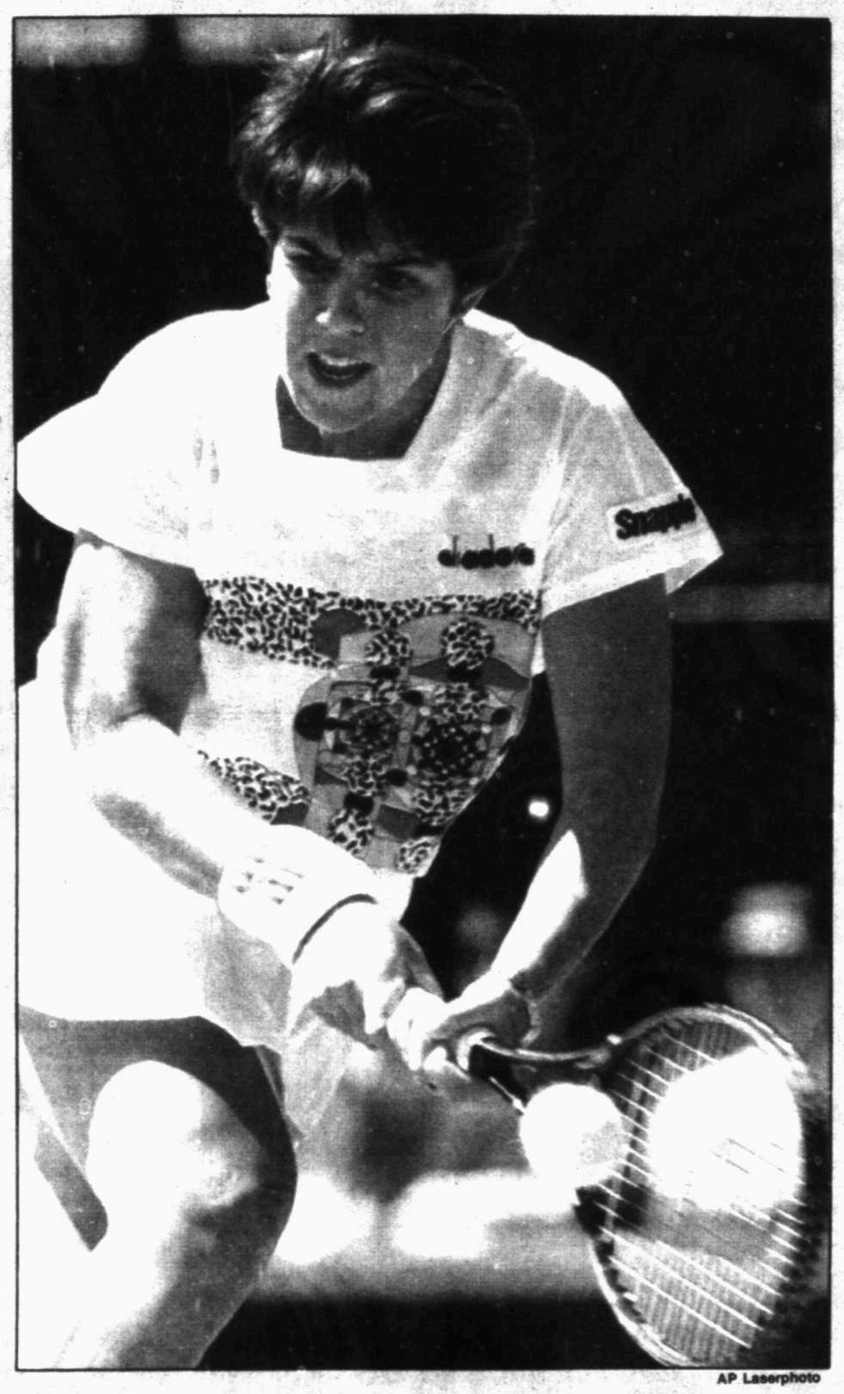

15. Atlanta — Lucious Harris, 6-5, guard, Long Beach State ... Athletic scorer can push Stacey Augmon to forward where he belongs.

Graf rakes off Capriati

■ Wimbledon seems headed for a Steffi Graf-Martina Navratilova showdown in the finals.

Jennifer Capriati returns a shot to defending champion Steffi Graf, but even efforts like this couldn't bring a victory.

By Stephen Wilson
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Steffi Graf and Martina Navratilova scored straight-set victories in the quarterfinals at Wimbledon Tuesday and edged closer to what seems like an inevitable encounter in the final.

Graf, the top seed and defending champion, saved a set point in the first set and then dominated play en route to a 7-6 (7-3), 6-1 victory over Jennifer Capriati.

Navratilova, the No. 2 seed and nine-time champion, showed all her grass-court skills in crushing Natalia Zvereva 6-3, 6-1.

Also reaching the semifinals were eighth-seeded Jana Novotna, who upset No. 4 Gabriela Sabatini 6-4, 6-3, and No. 6 Conchita Martinez, a 6-1, 6-4 winner over No. 15 Helena Sukova.

In Thursday's semifinals, Graf will play Martinez and Navratilova will face Novotna.

Graf's victory was her eighth in nine meetings against Capriati, with the American's lone triumph coming in the Olympic final in Barcelona last summer.

Graf took a painkiller during today's match to treat the injury in her right foot suffered during the French Open earlier this month.

"It was not overly hurting," Graf said. "I just wanted to be sure it would be OK if it was a long match."

She said the injury would cause "no problems at all" for the semifinals.

Capriati, the No. 7 seed, took the early lead when she broke for 3-2 in the first set after a forehand error by Graf. Leading 5-3, she had a set point on Graf's serve at 30-40 but squandered her chance when she sailed a forehand wide.

Graf said later she didn't even realize she had faced a set point.

"Really?" she said. "I didn't know. I was just taking it point by point."

Graf held serve, then broke in the next game with a backhand volley winner to make it 5-5. After Graf held serve for 6-5, Capriati saved three set points in the next game and served two consecutive aces to force a tiebreaker.

Graf went up 6-1 in the tiebreaker, giving her four more set points. Capriati saved the first with a backhand return winner and raf missed the second with a backhand into the net. Graf finally capitalized on her sixth set point, rifling a forehand passing shot past Capriati.

"I didn't play aggresssively enough in the beginning of the match," Graf said. "She played a very good first set. She should have won the first set, actually."

The first set lasted 48 minutes, as long as some of Graf's entire matches. The second set lasted just 27 minutes as Capriati failed to put up a challenge.

"Once she started rolling, I started missing shots here and there," Capriati said.

Argentina's Gabriela Sabatini ...trouble in the quarterfinals

Graf victory shows women's gulf

By Joseph White
Associated Press Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Although Jennifer Capriati denied it, her straight-set loss Tuesday to Steffi Graf illustrated the gulf between the top two players and the rest of the women's field.

Capriati, like a half-dozen others in the draw, again showed she has the raw talent to capture this title one day, but her power was no match for Graf's overall mastery of the surface in a 7-6 (7-3), 6-1 loss.

"Once she just starts rolling, she starts rolling," Capriati said. "When she starts getting into the groove, she starts hitting great shots, and, against Graf, it's hard to just say, 'It's OK,' and come back."

Graf didn't find the groove until late in the first set. By then, Capriati had squandered her chances and the No. 1 seed gave her no more. It was another match toward what nearly everyone sees as the inevitable — a Graf-Martina Navratilova final.

"I don't think it's a big gap," Capriati said. "It all depends on how the person plays."

Big gap or small, the 17-year-old Floridian still has a lot of work to do before she closes in on Graf, especially on grass. Despite a new coach hired just for Wimbledon, Capriati's forays to the net often had the look of someone caught halfway across the street by a flashing "Don't Walk" sign.

"I certainly had enough practice," said Capriati, who was taken to three sets in each of her four victories before the Graf loss. "Still I'm not so sure, because I'm just not a natural serve-and-volleyer. But I definitely feel more confident about attacking the net, and now I have a better idea about it."

The tennis world is still waiting for the Capriati explosion that was predicted when she burst onto the pro circuit at age 13.

Defending Wimbledon champion Steffi Graf returns a shot to Jennifer Capriati Tuesday.

NCAA presidents listen to football playoff proposal

By Doug Tucker
AP Sports Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The NCAA Presidents Commission listened to a proposal on a football playoff Tuesday that supporters say could raise more than $100 million.

The 70-minute presentation was made by representatives of Nike, Inc., and Creative Artists Agency, Hollywood's most powerful talent group, at the invitation of lame-duck NCAA executive director Dick Schultz.

"They're top-rate salesmen, Nike and Creative Artists," said William Sutton, president of Mississippi Valley State. "They're very slick people."

The presidents were told a seven-game format involving eight teams would net more than $100 million without damaging the bowl system.

"It was a well done presentation," said Chancellor Charles Young of UCLA. "They are talking about sizable chunks of money."

The 44-member commission, in Kansas City for its regular summer meeting, would have to give its full blessing for any playoff to be put in place.

Still, the mere fact the powerful commission was willing to listen to the presentation represents a major victory by playoff advocates, who for years have had every door slammed in their faces.

The presidents are to discuss the concept in detail in their meeting Wednesday.

"Nothing is imminent," said commission chairman Gregory O'Brien of New Orleans University. "There is nothing on our agenda that would make it imminent. We'll discuss the presentation on Wednesday."

A playoff would have to be approved at the annual NCAA convention by majority vote of the 107 Division I-A schools.

"If you took a vote of the people in that room right now, I suspect it would not pass," said Judith Albino of Colorado. "People who want a championship should be encouraged because it was a good, informative presentation."

"Right now, I don't think it would pass in a vote of the presidents.

Rangers rally past Royals

Associated Press

■ AL Roundup

ARLINGTON — Rookie Dan Peltier, replacing injured Jose Canseco on the Texas roster, singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning Tuesday night and the Rangers rallied past the Kansas City Royals 4-3.

Royals starter Kevin Appier had his scoreless streak stopped at 21 innings when Texas scored four times in the eighth.

Doug Strange led off with a single, pinch hitter Geno Petralli walked and David Hulse chased Appier with an RBI single with one out. Reliever Bill Sampen (2-1) walked Julio Franco, then Rafael Palmeiro tied the game with a two-run single.

After Billy Brewer intentionally walked Juan Gonzalez to load the bases, Peltier blooped an RBI single to short center field. Peltier was called up from the minors when Canseco was placed on the disabled list with a sore elbow.

Bob Patterson (2-2) pitched two innings of one-hit relief for the victory. Tom Henke struck out the side in the ninth for his 14th save.

Ivan Rodriguez had Texas' lone hit in the first six innings, a sharp one-out single in the second. After Rodriguez's hit, Appier retired 16 consecutive batters until Peltier singled with two outs in the seventh.

Rangers starter Roger Pavlik issued leadoff walks to George Brett and Wally Joyner, leading to Kansas City's three-run fourth. Brent Mayne hit a two-run single, stole second and scored on Greg Gagne's single.

Indians 8, White Sox 2

CLEVELAND — Kenny Lofton's first career grand slam sent Cleveland to its fifth straight victory.

The Indians matched their longest winning streak of the season and continued their domination of the best teams in the AL West. They swept a three-game weekend series from second-place Kansas City and have won two in a row from first-place Chicago.

Lofton tripled and scored in the first, then highlighted a six-run fourth inning with his grand slam — his first home run since last Aug. 23.

Mark Clark (3-3) allowed two runs and six hits in eight innings, bouncing back after he failed to make it out of the third inning against Milwaukee in his previous start.

Rod Bolton (0-4), recalled from the minors when 45-year-old Carlton Fisk was released Monday, took the loss, giving up eight runs and nine hits in 3⅓ innings.

Cleveland was a late-inning winner each of the previous four nights, but took care of business early Tuesday. Lofton led off the first with a triple off the glove of center fielder Lance Johnson and scored on Wayne Kirby's sacrifice fly, and Paul Sorrento hit an RBI double.

The Indians sent 11 batters to the plate in the fourth, scoring on Lofton's grand slam, an RBI single by Sorrento and an error by second baseman Joey Cora.

The White Sox scored in the fourth on Robin Ventura's 13th home run and in the seventh on Rick Wrona's run-scoring groundout.

Blue Jays 2, Orioles 1

BALTIMORE — John Olerud and Tony Fernandez hit RBI singles in the ninth inning and Toronto rallied to beat Baltimore.

Toronto has won 12 of 14, while Baltimore has lost three straight after winning 19 of 22.

Ben McDonald took a two-hitter and a 1-0 lead into the ninth, but was lifted after Roberto Alomar led off with a single and Paul Molitor walked.

Olerud met Brad Pennington with a tying single to right field and Fernandez followed with another single to right. Gregg Olson relieved and retired the side, but the damage had been done.

Olerud went 1-for-3, lowering his batting average one point to .405.

The rally made a winner out of Pat Hentgen (11-2), who is 7-0 in his last nine starts. He allowed nine hits, two walks and struck out five in eight innings. Duane Ward pitched the ninth for his 22nd save.

McDonald (4-7) allowed only one hit in the first 6⅔ innings — a check-swing, opposite-field single in the fifth by Turner Ward, who was thrown out trying to stretch it into a double.

Twins 7, Mariners 5

MINNEAPOLIS — Kirby Puckett hit a two-out single to drive in the go-ahead run as Minnesota rallied from a four-run deficit and beat Seattle.

Minnesota trailed 5-1 in the sixth inning before hitting seven singles off three pitchers. Derek Lee singled home a run off Tim Leary, and Pat Meares' two-run single off Bob Ayrault (0-1) closed the Twins within a run. Chip Hale, who had three of the Twins' 15 hits, hit a game-tying single and Puckett singled off Jeff Nelson for a 6-5 lead.

Minnesota, which has won 14 of its last 16 home games against Seattle, got another run in the eighth when Hale squeezed home Meares, who doubled off Dwayne Henry.

Mike Trombley (4-3) allowed one hit in 2⅔ innings. Rick Aguilera, Minnesota's fourth pitcher, got three outs for his 22nd save. Omar Vizquel led off the inning with a single, ending Aguilera's streak of 27 consecutive batters retired over his previous nine appearances.

Yankees 4, Tigers 3

NEW YORK — Wade Boggs led off the 10th inning with his first home run of the season and New York beat Detroit for the Tigers' eighth straight loss.

Boggs hit a 1-0 pitch from Tom Bolton (1-3) into the third deck in right field. His first homer since last Aug. 4 — and first for the Yankees — made a winner of rookie Bobby Munoz (2-0).

Munoz pitched 3⅓ hitless innings. He struck out Travis Fryman with the bases loaded to end the seventh after the Tigers had tied it on a bases-loaded walk by Steve Howe.

The victory moved the Yankees past Detroit into second place in the AL East. New York remained three games behind Toronto, while Detroit fell four back.

The Tigers made it 3-all in the seventh after Yankees starter Scott Kamieniecki left with the bases loaded and two outs. Howe walked Lou Whitaker, and Munoz relieved and struck out Fryman.

The game drew 37,692 fans, the largest night game attendance at Yankee Stadium since Aug. 26, 1989.

Brewers 7, Red Sox 6

BOSTON — Second baseman Scott Fletcher's error set up a run in the ninth inning and Milwaukee ended Boston's seven-game winning streak.

The Brewers scored four unearned runs. Milwaukee had lost three in a row.

Bill Spiers started the ninth by reaching on Fletcher's error. He moved up on Robin Yount's sacrifice bunt and took third on Greg Vaughn's infield single.

Phillies explode over Cardinals, 13-10

■ NL Roundup

ST. LOUIS — Jim Eisenreich drove in three runs, and the Philadelphia Phillies broke open the game with a six-run sixth inning Tuesday night to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 13-10.

St. Louis led 5-4 after Todd Zeile's three-run homer in the fifth. But rookie reliever Tom Urbani (0-1) walked John Kruk with the bases loaded and Dave Hollins followed with a run-scoring single off Omar Olivares, his first RBI since coming off the disabled list Monday.

Darren Daulton added a sacrifice fly, Eisenreich had a run-scoring single and Mariano Duncan capped the rally with a two-run single as the Phillies tied the their season high for runs in an inning. Milt Thompson added a two-run double in the seventh.

St. Louis made it 12-7 on Ozzie Smith's RBI groundout in the eighth, but Kruk doubled home a run in the ninth. Luis Alicea hit a three-run homer off David West in the bottom of the ninth.

Ben Rivera (8-3) won for the seventh time in eight decisions, allowing five runs and seven hits in five innings.

Philadelphia, which leads the NL East by 7½ games, had 17 hits and stopped a three-game losing streak. The Phillies are 52-24, tying the team record for the best record at this point of the season. The run total was a season high against the Cardinals, who lost for just the second time in 10 games.

St. Louis starter Rene Arocha gave up four runs and seven hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Zeile, the Cardinals' cleanup hitter, hit his second home run and first in 150 at-bats with two outs in the fifth. Brian Jordan had a two-run double in the first, and Greg Jefferies was 2 for 5. He is 47 for 104 (.452) in June.

Reds 3, Astros 0

CINCINNATI — Barry Larkin, one of Doug Drabek's toughest outs, hit a homer to back Tom Browning's 7⅓ shutout innings and lead Cincinnati over Houston.

Browning (5-3), trying to avoid a demotion to the bullpen, won for the second time in three starts by scattering five hits and allowing just two runners to reach second.

Manager Davey Johnson was booed loudly when he went to change pitchers with two outs and a runner on first in the eighth. Browning, who hasn't pitched a complete game in two years, had thrown 108 pitches.

Jeff Reardon gave up a single to Jeff Bagwell before Rob Dibble got four outs for his eighth save in 12 chances, striking out the side in the ninth.

Cincinnati won for the fourth time in five games by getting a pair of runs early off Drabek (6-8) and making several nice defensive plays behind Browning.

Bobby Kelly singled with one out in the second and Chris Sabo — just a .176 hitter against Drabek — waited just long enough on a breaking pitch, pulling it into the left-field corner for an RBI double.

A sore thumb and pulled hamstring didn't keep Larkin from another impressive game against Drabek. Larkin, 19 for 49 (.388) lifetime off Drabek, flew out deep to left in the first inning and hit a solo homer in the third, his fifth.

A couple of nice defensive plays protected the lead. Kelly, playing center, ran down Drabek's liner toward the gap in the fifth with a runner aboard, and second baseman Jeff Branson ran down a soft fly to center with a man on second in the sixth inning.

Braves 6, Rockies 4

ATLANTA — David Justice came out of a 1-for-16 slump with a solo home run and RBI single, and Atlanta went on to beat Colorado.

Justice, 8 for 18 with three homers and 10 RBIs when Atlanta swept a four-game series from the Rockies earlier this year, gave the Braves a 1-0 lead in the second with his 16th home run of the season.

Atlanta added three runs in the third off Bruce Ruffin (3-4) by getting five consecutive two-out hits. Otis Nixon, Jeff Blauser and Terry Pendleton each singled for one run, Ron Gant doubled in another and Justice drove in the third with a single. He went 2 for 4 and is hitting .455 against Colorado.

Atlanta made it 6-1 in the fourth on a pair of unearned runs off Ruffin. After shortstop Vinny Castilla's error, John Smoltz singled home a run and Blauser hit a sacrifice fly.

Smoltz (7-7), who left after six innings because of cramps in his lower abdomen area, gave up four runs and six hits, struck out eight and walked two He leads the National League with 103 strikeouts. Mike Stanton pitched the ninth for his 21st save.

Colorado scored in the fourth on Daryl Boston's RBI double. The Rockies added three runs in the sixth on Andres Galarraga's two-run double and Jerald Clark's RBI single.

Expos 9, Pirates 2

MONTREAL — Moises Alou, Marquis Grissom and Larry Walker hit consecutive home runs in the seventh inning and Montreal routed Pittsburgh.

Chris Nabholz (4-5) allowed three hits in eight innings, winning for the first time since May 15. He entered the game with a 7.15 ERA, and struck out six and walked five.

DRAFT: Tonight's picks

(From 1E)

16. New Jersey — Terry Dehere, 6-4, guard, Seton Hall ... How convenient that hometown hero lands in Meadowlands to compensate for tragic loss of Petrovic.

17. Charlotte — Nick Van Exel, 6-1, guard, Cincinnati ... Adds toughness, even more trash talk, to fine (and cocky) young team.

18. Utah — Luther Wright, 7-2, center, Seton Hall ... Jazz go for project with Mark Eaton just about through.

19. Boston — Ervin Johnson, 6-11, forward, New Orleans ... When was last time Celtics drafted big guy who wasn't a stiff? At least this one can run down court without tripping.

20. Charlotte (from San Antonio) — George Lynch, 6-8, forward, North Carolina ... Hornets can't resist local product and solid all-around player.

21. Portland — Scott Burrell, 6-7, forward-guard, Connecticut ... Hellacious defender; Blazers can carry guy with offensive liabilities.

22. Cleveland — Malcolm Mackey, 6-11, forward, Georgia Tech ... A bit raw but good rebounder and shot-blocker who'll add toughness to soft team.

23. Seattle — Greg Graham, 6-4, guard, Indiana ... Talented team lands hard worker with deceptive skills who might become big scorer in pros.

24. Houston — James Robinson, 6-2, guard, Alabama ... Need backcourt help and had success with 'Bama kid Horry last year.

25. Chicago — Adonis Jordan, 5-11, guard, Kansas ... Bulls had at least marginal success with last Jordan they drafted. Plus, Adonis is good defender, penetrator.

26. Orlando (from New York) — Sam Cassell, 6-3, guard, Florida State ... Proven winner to feed Shaq and Webber.

27. Phoenix — Conrad McRae, 6-10, forward, Syracuse ... Good shot-blocker who doesn't score, which is OK for offense-rich Suns.

DELIVERY
MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

Often Asked ????? Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth.

Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
- ADULTS who have F/T jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
- STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly!
Some make even more!

How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers'papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
$100.00 deposit.

DELIVERY
MOONLIGHTING!
The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several distributorships which need to be filled with responsible individuals.

Often Asked ????
Is it worthwhile for adults also?
Yes! Our current distributor force is already 90% adult and 10% youth.

Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:
● ADULTS who have F/T jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
● MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a distributor, you do not need daycare!
● STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
● SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors and friends.

How much money can I make as a distributor?
Depending on the size of distributorship from $300 to $700 monthly!
Some make even more!

How long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the distributorship. Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subsribers'papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?
6 a.m. Monday-Friday and 7 a.m. on Saturday, Sunday and holidays.

Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, distributors do take days off by finding a friend or a family member to substitute a for them!

RESERVE YOUR DISTRIBUTORSHIP NOW!
$100.00 deposit.
