Rain Needed

Ag Producers Face Drought Conditions

Farmers and ranchers in Mitchell County are facing drought conditions that are becoming severe in much of the West Texas area.

The county has received only an average of about an inch of rainfall since January 1 and stretching back to last fall and winter, no rain to amount to anything has fallen on fields and pastures.

A couple of showers in March and one in April is the only moisture received and add to that the drying wind and sandstorms over West Texas and agricultural producers are beginning to hurt for a good two-inch rainfall.

Farming operations have almost reached a standstill, although most farmers had enough moisture earlier to put their land up, chiseling terraces and chiseling or disking fields, said Don Stewart, county ASCS director.

Some operators are now broadcasting chemical pre-emergent weed killer, using a six-inch cut tandem to incorporate chemical in a three-inch deep cut. Mixture used is one and one-half pints of chemical per acre mixed with ten to twenty gallons of water, depending on size of the rig, said R. J. Hoback, owner of Colorado Feed and Seed.

The only problem with the broadcast method is that if conditions do not get better, that is if it doesn't rain before cotton planting time, then feed grains cannot be planted because of the chemical.

Some farmers use the banding technique of applying chemical when they plant, incorporating with rotary hoes behind the planter in a 14-inch band. The mixture used for this type operation is one-half pint of chemical per acre to 6 or 10 gallons of water, again according to the tank size.

By using the banding method, or who has been prevented from planting cotton because of lack of moisture, can go in and plant feed grains in the blank rows, Hoback added.

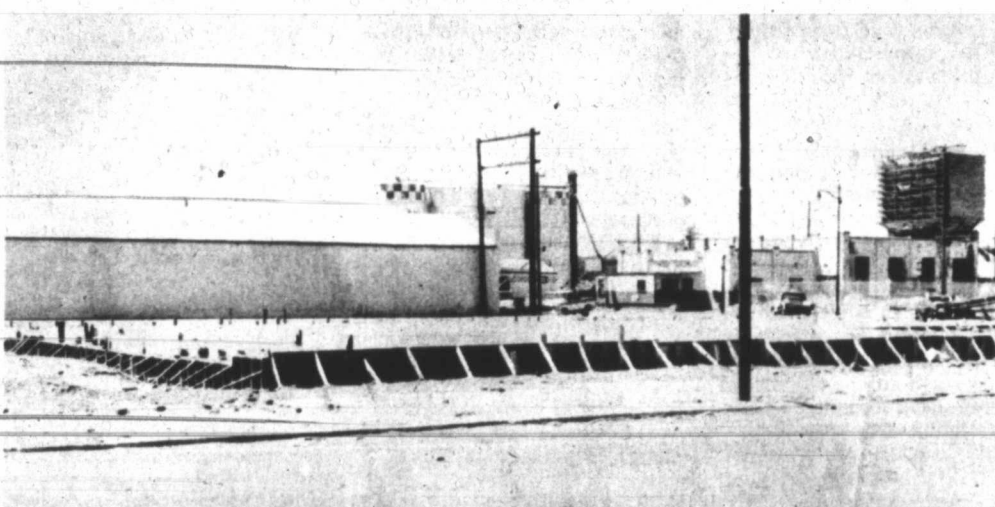

Drier areas of the county have been chisled only and not bedded, as bedding would only dry out the topsoil more, but a farmer who has a field hilled out or blown out by sandstorm some of the heavier soils of the county, around the Loraine area, have been bedded.

Ranchers are also worrying for a rain, as cattle have had almost no winter weeds for grazing, having to be fed, and ranchers have had heavy feed bills. Dry fields produced very little winter grazing. Stewart pointed out, and cattle have been turned into wheat fields because any moisture received on the wheat was too late to make it harvestable. As planting time nears, county agricultural producers are hoping for wet weather to set in for a long spell.

Progress

Construction on the city's new Civic Center at 2nd and Oak has progressed rapidly as workmen have already put down the foundation. However, the Paradise tree on the east side of the site had to be removed after all as plumbing lines to and from the new building had to be laid there. City crews had carefully worked around the tree and the building had been placed on the lot in such a manner that would save the tree but plumbing lines are necessities that brought about its downfall.

Regulation football rules are followed in the flag-type football game. The team members wear some regulation football equipment.

Half-time activities will feature a BAND under the direction of Joe Vincent and crowning of the Powderpuff Queen, who will be presented a bouquet of wild flowers.

Candidates for queen are Mi-

Absentee Voting

Absentee voting for the May 4 primary election is being held in the county clerk's office in Mitchell County courthouse.

Voting absentee began Monday, April 15 and will continue through April 30 at 5 p.m. The Clerk's office is open from 8-12 in the mornings and 1-5 in the afternoons, Monday through Friday.

Loraine Board Reviews Budget

New members of the school board of Loraine Independent School District, Hubert Meadows and Tommy Linnam were administered the oath of office and sworn in when the board met in regular meeting Monday night, April 8.

Ronald Bruce was elected president of the board for the new year, Kenneth Market, vice president and Margaret Mahon, secretary.

Date of meeting for the board of equalization was set for June 25 at the school tax office. The office will be open all day. Salaries of all auxiliary employees were reviewed and action was deferred pending the effect which the new wage law will have upon schools.

May 31 was set for high school commencement and May 31 for Junior high graduation.

Last order of business was the discussion of the 1974-75 budget by members of the board and administration, L. R. Dunn and Supt. Tom Harkey were asked to work up a cost analysis showing major areas in which cost of items or services have in some instances doubled or tripled over the past 10 months. This cost analysis is to be presented to the board in a special called session within the next 14 days.

After a review of the analysis by the board, the public will probably be asked to attend an open meeting in which the 1974-75 preliminary school budget will be presented in order to determine if the present tax rate is sufficient to support that budget.

Odessa Two Charged

Texas Ranger Gene Graves and Highway Patrolman Buddy Hertenberger, arrested two men last Thursday when they answered a call at Lake Colorado City State Park.

The caller wanted them to check on a suspicious-looking car. They located the car and arrested the two occupants, Charles Thomas Kines, 19 and Edward Lenn Lackey, 19, both of Odessa.

The two were charged with possession of marijuana, less than 2 ounces, a misdemeanor offense, before County Judge Bill Carter and pled guilty, said Patrolman Hertenberger.

He added that they were fined $100 plus court costs and sentenced to serve 45 days in county jail.

Transfer Deadline May 1

Transfers from one school district to another must be applied for in the office of the transferring district before May 1 according to information supplied by Tom Harkey, superintendent of Loraine schools; L. M. Dawson, superintendent of Westbrook schools and Lloyd McKee, Colorado City superintendent.

Persons wishing to transfer should go to the office of the school district and fill out applications forms which go to Texas Education Agency.

5 Year-Old Boy Killed

Eddie Floyd Hemphill, 5 year-old son of Floyd Hemphill, was killed Tuesday afternoon on the Jimmy Harrison farm one mile north of Westbrook when he fell under the wheel of a tractor.

He was riding on the tractor with his father when he slipped and fell under the wheel. He had been playing in the field and was riding in to lunch with his father, something he often did, when the accident happened, Harrison said.

He was taken to Root Memorial Hospital by his father but was dead on arrival. Time of death was given as 12:45 p.m.

The accident was investigated by Sheriff Bill McGuire and Deputy Troy Walls.

Funeral services were held Wednesday in Kiker-Seale Chapel, the Rev. H. H. Lee, pastor of King Solomon Baptist Church, officiating. Burial was in Mitchell County Cemetery.

Eddie Floyd Hemphill was born July 5, 1969 in Paducah and had lived in Westbrook for the past two years.

Girls of all ages up to 20 years of age from throughout the state competed in strut, twirling and modeling contests, as well as Miss Majorette of Texas pageant. Miss Ballard won first place in the Twirl-off, making her the top twirler in the state and she will attend national contests in St. Paul, Minn., sometime this summer. She also placed in Intermediate strut, winning a 4th place medal. Miss Hanks placed 4th in Beginner's strut in over-all competition in the main strut event. Miss Kimmel placed 1st in Military strut and 2nd in Best Costume. All three girls are twirlers with the CHS Wolves band, directed by Kent Holder.

Firemen Go To Grass Fire

Colorado City volunteer firemen have answered a total of 134 fires since the first of the year, the grass fire Saturday and Sunday south of Westbrook one of the calls.

About ten sections of pasture land on land belonging to Robert Brennan was burned or destroyed by the fire, according to fire chief Dale Mathis.

Mrs. T. L. McKenney explained that the fire originally began near the McKenney home, about 200 yards east of the house near the railroad and was contained along the railroad for one mile east by Rex and Jack McKenney.

Wind from the north fanned the fire across the Four-Mile Lane, sometimes referred to as Conaway Road, and into the Brennan land of Robert and Harold Brennan.

Firemen answered the call at 4:25 p.m. Saturday, eight miles west of Westbrook. An area about five miles long and three miles wide at the widest point was burned, said Mathis.

Fire units from Westbrook, Coahoma, Colorado City and Loraine answered the call and had it under control by 3:30 a.m. Sunday. However, they had to return to the area twice Sunday as winds whipped up sparks from smoldering brush, once at 10 a.m. until 12:15 p.m. and again at 1:18 until 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Firemen reported that a few buildings and pens were endangered by the fire and fence posts burned.

Mathis said that the fire apparently began by sparks from a hot box on a passing freight train.

Burglary Of Eddie's

Eddie Piland, owner of Eddie's Pharmacy at 1001 Hickory, opens his pharmacy for two hours on Sunday afternoons.

When he arrived at the pharmacy last Sunday afternoon, he discovered his store had been broken into and called city police.

Police Chief Jessie Browning and Sheriff's Deputy Simon Barrera received the call at 1:52 p.m. and went to the pharmacy.

They discovered that entrance had been forced through a window that will be a drive-in window when new construction at the pharmacy is completed.

Piland said that only Class II drugs were taken, such as morphine and demerol, the most addictive drugs. He said that he estimated that his loss was about $400.

Returns Home

Jimmy Ruth, standing beside the wooden refrigerated meat keeper which was a fixture in Fisher's Grocery and which still runs, has moved back to Colorado City with his wife, Billie. They are remodeling the store on Highway 80 next to Whiteway Motel, owned and operated by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Ruth. He plans to open the convenience grocery within the next two weeks. Ruth is a 1962 graduate of Colorado High School and has been employed by Fruehoff in Fort Worth for the past ten years as a machinist.

Assigned Here

David P. Marion has been assigned as Farmer's Home Administration county supervisor here, offices in the G-Kell Building. Marion transferred from Pecos where he was county supervisor of Reeves County and is a native of Spur, graduating from Spur High School and receiving his degree in Agricultural Economics from Texas A&M in 1965. After graduation he worked with the F.H.A. in Hockley County before serving 39 months with the U. S. Army in Germany and Vietnam in the airborne infantry. He and his wife, Linda, have two children, 6 year-old Paul and 5-year-old Raye Leigh. They will move into a house in the country. Marion pointed out that he requested the transfer here to succeed George M. Dorman, as he wants to help the county's housing shortage.

Delay In Cotton Seedling Results In Yield Losses

Two day's delay in cotton seedling emergence can result in yield losses ranging from 3 to 38 percent compared with the earliest emerging seedlings, says a USDA agricultural engineer in Lubbock.

Pointing to research conducted last May, Don Wanjura of the Agricultural Research Service - U S D A said that uniform stands of cotton seedlings that have emerged in a short time are essential to top cotton yields.

He reported that a plant stand which has a long period between first and last seedling emergence means that a longer season is needed to mature the entire crop. And for irrigated production, it is more difficult to apply water effectively since there is a greater variability in the development stage of the field crop.

Cotton seedlings which emerge fast, Wanjura suggested, usually are vigorous plants, and the length of time between the first and last emerging plants affects the uniformity of the plant stand.

Seed quality and seed zone environment primarily influences how fast seeds germinate and emerge, the scientist said.

Making up the seed zone environment are soil temperature and moisture, with planting depth an important factor in seedling emergence. Collectively these factors largely determine when the first seedlings emerge and the length of time between initial and final emergence.

Of these, Wanjura explained, temperature primarily affects how fast cotton germinates and emerges. Low soil temperatures after planting result in reduced emergence particularly of poor quality seed, since it is not sufficiently vigorous to emerge under conditions much less than ideal, he said.

Soil moisture and temperature in the seed zone continually change after the planting operation is completed, according to the researcher. Since both temperature and moisture are fluctuating it is difficult to differentiate their individual effects on cotton emergence. Of course, if soil moisture is adequate at planting, a drying-out problem is more likely to develop early in the season when cooler temperatures prevail than later when warm temperatures are common, he said.

Typical weather which accompanies cool temperatures during the early season causes slow germination and soil drying; however, the soil drying under these conditions is occurring at a relatively faster rate in relation to the germination process than at higher temperatures later in the season.

Planting depth also influences the percentage of planted seed which can emerge, he added. Even if the seed zone environment is otherwise favorable, a seed planted three inches deep needs more energy to emerge than a seed planted at two inches. Thus, fewer seedlings emerge as planting depth increases, and planting rates become increasingly critical in assuring a desirable stand. Research has shown that two inches is the optimum planting depth for the South Plains, Wanjura noted.

A guide for adjusting seeding rates for different planting depths when conditions are favorable for cotton emergence was developed by the scientist. For producers who normally plant two inches deep, the guide indicates that the ratio of emergence percentage (EP) divided by germination percentage (GP) is .84. If the seed germination is 90 percent, multiplying 90 by .84 equals 75.6 percent. Thus the expected final emergence would be estimated at approximately 76 percent for the conditions described.

This guide, he said, can be used to estimate emergence percentage for other seed qualities by multiplying the proper value of EP/GP in the guide by the seed germination percentage.

Northside Church of Christ 4 Blks. North of I-20 on the Snyder Hwy. "The Difference Is Worth The Distance"

Hi

I'm Eddie Swinney, Minister at North Side. Your happiness and the happiness of your family is foremost on our minds. With this in mind we have planned a program of Work and Worship, Fellowship and Activity that will not only be interesting and enjoyable, but will help you make this life better and Heaven your home when this life is over.

If you come our way I promise you that I will stay closely attuned to life so that I can make my sermons interesting. I will continually study the Bible, and make them Scriptural and constantly remind myself that my task is to build up, not tear down and present each lesson with a smile at the same time presenting what I feel people need, not necessarily what they want.

New Pest Control Approach

A Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entomologist has received a $20,000 National Science Foundation grant to support a new pest control approach that would be both insect-specific and environmentally safe.

In charge of studies on "Neuroendocrine Regulation of Mitochondriogenesis in Insects" is Dr. Larry L. Keeley of the A&M University Entomology Department.

Although the project will focus on development of mitochondria--the energymaking structures in animal cells--considerable information is expected to be gathered on that insect phenomenon known as diapause.

Diapause, Keeley says, is a dormant state used by insects when they meet unfriendly conditions, cold weather for example. The condition is brought on by a halt in gland activity and reduction of overall body metabolism.

The entomologist is working with cockroaches (Blaberus discoidalis) in his effort to understand hormonal regulation of mitochondria and its relation to diapause.

"Diapause has potential for insect control," Keeley said. "If the diapause mechanism can be understood from the aspect of hormonal regulation of cell metabolism and which metabolic processes are most sensitive to gland regulation, then we believe diapause can be artificially manipulated."

Which means, he added, if diapause can be withheld from certain troublesome bugs, then they will be done in by weather extremes and other natural obstacles.

Diapause flagging envisioned by Keeley would be done with materials called hormone-mimetics.

"Such agents, or hormone-mimetics, would be restricted in their action to insects showing a diapause capacity, and therefore, be environmentally safe to non-target organisms," he explained.

Watering House Plants

Improper watering probably causes the highest percent of home plant failures, says a landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Plants use little water and fertilizer during the winter months since they grow slowly due to low light intensities. If the soil in which plants are growing is kept saturated with water, little or no oxygen can reach the roots, so they may often die. Plants in a cold room need less water than those in a warm, dry atmosphere.

Report Sighting Of Prairie Chickens

Wanted: Information leading to the location of Tympanuchus cupido attwateri aka Attwater's prairie chicken aka prairie hen aka prairie grouse.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is putting out this all-points bulletin in an effort to pinpoint booming grounds and heretofore uncatalogued populations of this rare bird.

Department biologists say they think they know where all the Attwater's prairie chickens are on the Texas Gulf coastal plains, but they want to be sure they haven't missed any.

The bird is described as being 18 inches long and weighing two to two-and-a-half pounds. It has a short, rounded tail (black in males, barred in females) and barred body feathers on the lower portion of the legs. Males have an orange air-sac and blackish neck feathers, or plumes, on the side of the neck.

The birds are seen from Chambers County west to Colorado County and south to Aransas County. They are usually found in fallow rice fields or native prairies.

Biologists warn that Attwater's prairie chickens are an endangered species and should not be hunted under no circumstances be molested.

However, if anyone spots a chicken knowing about the sighting. They say the more they know about the range and location of prairie chickens, the better able they will be to manage the remaining populations.

Prairie chicken sightings should be reported to the local game warden or to Don Frels, Parks and Wildlife Department, 105 San Jacinto, La Porte, 77571, phone 713/471-3201, or Bill Brownlee, Parks and Wildlife Department 1702 Airline, Victoria, 77901, phone 512/575-6306.

The Rev. Jesse Hodge, pastor of St. Luke's Methodist Church officiated. Burial was in Colorado City Cemetery.

Born Aug. 28, 1892 in Cuero, he had lived in Colorado City for one year. He was a retired ranch hand.

He is survived by one brother, Frank of Colorado City.

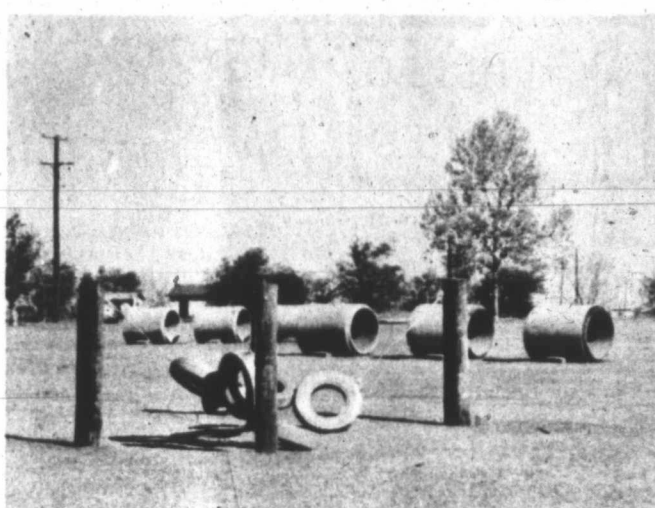

Pallbearers were Bill Claxton, Marvin Claxton, Lewis Claxton and Luther Aniers.

Renovating Building

Ruth Deich of Dodge City, Kansas, is in the process of renovating the building at 102 Main in downtown Loraine (which was a drugstore) and is planning to begin operation of a gift manufacturing concern. The small factory, Plastic Art, makes gifts that sell wholesale to gift shops across the country.

Mrs. Deich said that her plant makes flower-embossed ornaments of resin and as a result of the energy shortage, her resin supply has been sharply curtailed.

The increased price of resin as well as scarcity of straw flowers, which are imported from Brazil, has made her new business venture in Loraine more uncertain than she had hoped, but she estimated that the plant could begin operation locally within the month if all goes well.

Playground Equipment

Kelley PTA has recently helped set up unusual playground equipment at Kelley Elementary. Included in their purchases for the school are six concrete pipe tunnels, a set of swing tires and a set of climbing tires and installation of two lower basketball goals for younger children. Money for the project was raised during the Halloween Carnival at Kelley. PTA member Ann Nobles added that plans are being made for purchase of additional playground equipment and pointed out that older children have been abusing the new equipment after school hours by moving pipe and tearing baskets on the goals. She added that if they knew the equipment is meant for small children, then perhaps they would be more careful in their use of it.

Willborn To Speak Here

James Willborn, of Plainview, will talk Friday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Community Center for the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship.

James Willborn has been a welding supply salesman in the south plains area for the past twelve years. He is presently working for Daffern Steel and Supply Co. in Plainview, Texas. He was born in 1939 and grew up in the Baptist church. In 1967 he joined the Methodist church with his wife. In 1970 he met the Lord and Jesus became a living reality in his life. At this time he was saved and his life was changed completely. Since then he has been an active lay worker.

There will be gospel music before the meeting and refreshments after.

MAKE TEXAS Your BUSINESS ELECT ALTON STAGGS STATE REPRESENTATIVE

ALTON STAGGS SAYS:

Can A Young Businessman Represent District 61 in the Texas Legislature?

Businessmen learn the meaning of financial responsibility... we learn to work with people... to maintain records and to handle positions of trust. As a businessman I know I must stay in touch with my customers, just as I know when you choose me as your representative, I must stay in touch with the folks back home.

Yes

Does Your Dollar Have to Buy Less & Less As You Work Harder and Harder?

One thing that has caused inflation to hit us harder and harder is the high cost of government. Taxes, state and national, push all prices up. Steak and potatoes go up as politicians demand more and more money from taxpayers.

I say the place to start fighting inflation is in Austin. Taxpayers in District 61 deserve a representative who is all business. Taxpayers deserve a representative who knows how money should be spent... and saved.

Austin needs a voice that will speak up for tested business procedures to avoid needless expenses.

No

Can What You Pay For Automobile Insurance in Texas Be Lowered?

Your insurance costs are tied directly to the accident rate on Texas highways. Texas needs stronger laws — with sharper teeth... to keep the drunk driver off District 61 highways.

I believe we have to spend too much for automobile insurance and the way to bring the cost down is to improve our safe driving record... through strong legislation and law enforcement.

Yes

Do Texans Have to Do Without?

The shortages are real... but continued governmental red tape and interference will not put gas in your car. Good management and freedom from restraint will help greatly. The Texas businessman knows how to manage... and needs freedom from interference to make his own sound decisions.

I believe shortages will decline when responsible businessmen have freedom to manage... and when their customers have the freedom to say what they will buy... and what they will pay.

Handy Hints

Planned exercise maintains body tone and helps a person keep within the boundaries of his or her desired weight, says Dr. Barbara Sears, health education specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Never underestimate the rapid rate of a baby's physical, mental and social development. It increases, literally, while your back is turned, notes Dorothy Taylor, family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

One reason for rising food costs is that we're eating more meals away from home. Commercial restaurant sales have more than doubled in the past decade, points out Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

A blade or arm bone in meat usually indicates a less tender cut that requires braising or pot-roasting, notes Sally Springer, foods and nutrition specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Turn permanent press clothes inside out before laundering. This helps prevent discoloration along crease lines in garments such as slacks, explains Mrs. Vivian Simmons, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

To increase rust resistance and make cleaning easier, apply a metal-wax coating to wrought iron furniture twice a year, suggests Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

To create cushion furniture, stuff partly inflated inner tubes into covers for cushions. Or, crumple lots of plastic bags and use them as pillow filling, suggests Anna Marie Gotschall, housing and home furnishings specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Too much cleaning of dishes before placing them in an automatic dishwasher will cause the detergent to etch the dishes. Most dishwashers require only that the dishes be briefly rinsed. If you do rinse the dishes, use less detergent, advises Lillian Cochran, home management specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Refrigerate eggs as soon as you get them. Store in the original carton or in a covered container with the small end down. Left uncovered, they will lose moisture through the shell, notes Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatt, consumer marketing information specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

490th Army Wants Members

Army Reservists in the Colorado City area are taking an active part in operation "Over The Top," a concentrated drive throughout the 13-state Fifth Army area to bring new members into the Army Reserve.

They are members of Abilene's 490th Civil Affairs Co., one of the top Army Reserve units in the nation for the past six years in a row.

Both male and female members are being sought for various military positions, including office and secretarial jobs. Only two weeks of active duty is required for some women with special typing skills.

The 490th has immediate openings for several men and women who, while learning the skills required, may earn $48, 42 to $55.28 for four four-hour drills (usually a Saturday and Sunday) each month, according to Lt. Col. Harold Pittard, 490th commander.

During April local Reservists will be speaking to high school students in the Colorado City area and will be available to answer any questions regarding Reserve activities and pay. Further information is available from these area members of the 490th: 1st. Lt. Allen Clendennen, 728-2040, or Spec. 4 Robert Bolding, 453-2832 in Robert Lee.

State Rep. Elmer Martin For Pay-As-You Go

In his first term as State Legislator—from your 61st District, Elmer Martin took with him into the Legislature his Pay-As-You-Go policy tested 12 years as County Judge.

Incidentally, that is when the Legislature, for the first time in 13 years met all state budget obligations without any additional taxes. And, that is another reason Rep. Martin is honestly good for a second term.

Coast Is Winter Home

The Texas coast is a winter home to thousands of birds, usually waterfowl, but it's attractive to other species as well.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department wildlife technician Bill Brummel of Corpus Christi, department pilot Don Meek of Rockport and federal biologist A. R. Brazda of Lafayette, La. noted an unusual group of wintering birds during an aerial survey over Kenedy County south of Corpus Christi.

In addition to waterfowl, the crew counted one mature bald eagle, an immature bald eagle, a mature golden eagle, three mature whistling swans and two immature swans.

The five swans were on inland freshwater ponds.

Department non-game biologist John Smith says that the three species of birds are unusual to South Texas and are probably escaping winter weather farther to the north.

Bald eagles are rare no matter where they are found in Texas. The whistling swans are common winter visitors as far south as Oklahoma but seldom make it to Texas, much less almost to Brownsville.

Catfish Farming Big Business

Catfish farming is big business in Texas, a recent USDA Soil Conservation Service survey shows.

The study reveals that 96 producers sold nearly two million pounds of catfish raised on Texas farms last year. Don Hodges, district conservationist for SCS at Colorado City said, Jimmy Kelly of Colorado City is a local catfish producer who participated in the survey.

Most of the two million pounds of catfish sold last year were raised in ponds covering a total of 2,282 acres. However, some were raised in cages placed in lakes. Forty-one producers sold at least part of their fish by letting customers catch them from farm ponds.

About 35 percent of the catfish farmers have five acres or less in fish ponds while only 18 percent have 20 acres or more.

"One reason for the popularity of fish farming is that catfish have an extremely high growth-to-feed ration," Hodges said. "Catfish, when well managed, can often gain a pound of weight for every two pounds of feed. That compares with a pound of gain for 5.5 pounds of grain for beef cattle."

SCS has published a booklet on catfish farming which tells how to get a catfish farm going. Hodges said. The booklet outlines methods for commercially producing and harvesting channel and blue catfish.

Hodges said a well-designed farm includes separate ponds for breeding, rearing, and holding fish and at least one holding vat.
