Shell Rationing Gas To Dealers

NEW YORK (AP)-Shell Oil Co., the nation's largest marketer of gasoline, today began reducing by one-fourth the amount of all grades of gasoline shipped to dealers. It said the pinch might last through "the end of December or the early part of January."

Shell spokesman Norman Altstedter said the company has shipped dealers covers for their gasoline pumps that states: "Temporarily Closed."

Under the rationing program, Shell stations will receive 75 percent of their December 1977 shipments, or 75 percent of a figure based on December 1972 volume, if that figure is greater.

According to the American Petroleum Institute, the nation's gasoline supplies as of Nov. 24 totaled 9.1 billion gallons, 13 percent below what was on hand at this time last year, although production had risen 5 percent in the week.

Shell attributed the shortage in part to a "dramatic increase in demand." It also blamed the shortage on maintenance shutdowns at two refineries, which have cut Shell's unleaded gasoline output by 15 percent.

Typically, driving falls off after Labor Day as vacations end as winter weather begins to discourage travel plans.

But this year, "demand for Shell gasoline has not only failed to taper off, but has actually increased to record levels," said Altstedter.

"Demand has just exceeded supply," he said. "We're even buying" gasoline from other suppliers.

Hit List In Houston

HOUSTON (AP)-Former Houston Police Chief Carrol Lynn wanted $350,000 stolen from the police property room and used to finance the killings of several persons in an effort to "clean up" the city, an electronics expert testified.

"He wasn't himself at the time," J.L. Patterson said Thursday. "To my understanding, the money was to be used to hire hit men."

Patterson said the list Lynn gave him contained the names of "people that he thought shouldn't be living. He was concerned and upset that the town couldn't be cleaned up lawfully.

CETA Program Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)-Despite predictions of rising unemployment, President Carter's budget managers are recommending the mammoth CETA public job program be cut by more than half in Carter's next budget, sources report.

Some 365,000 jobs would be eliminated - a move certain to shock blacks, organized labor and liberals in the Democratic Party.

Captain Of '30 Regional Champions Picks Tigers

Football stories flow from J.T. Trice as easily as the former Tiger captain used to drop quarterbacks or block in the Snyder line.

Trice is a member of the 1930 Snyder Tiger team that won a regional championship, the only team yet to do so. The rules of the game were different 48 years ago, he remembers, and winning regional competition was as far as a

The Big Spring Herald, noting that engineers have discovered that the White House has been gradually tilting, wonders if there is any political significance to the situation.

"It probably isn't significant but the fact is that the sinking area of the executive structure points in the direction of Georgia, home turf of the incumbent president. The northeast part of the building, which draws a bead on Sen. Edward Kennedy's home state, Massachusetts, is rising at an equal rate. Perhaps political pollsters can make something of that," the Herald observed.

Perhaps, but, after their experience in the general election just passed, we doubt that any Texas pollsters would touch it with a 10-foot "poll."

Health experts tell us that we don't walk enough, and if you need further motivation to get yourself on your feet more and in your car less, maybe these figures cited by the Lamesa Press-Reporter will help:

"The auto leasors, who have been issuing reports on operating costs for the past five years, put the latest increase at 10 percent. This brings total current operating costs to 33.1 cents per mile for gasoline, oil, parts, repairs and other services, licenses, fees and insurance plus depreciation. The 1978 increase isn't the worst the motoring public has experienced, however. That came in 1974, on the heels of the great oil embargo, and hit 18 percent. Over the entire five-year period since the embargo operating cost increases have totalled 64 percent."

Orlin Brewer of the Vernon Record picked up this report from researchers who have been studying possible links between eye color and personality traits:

Black eyes---hot tempered, impulsive.

Blue eyes---great stamina.

Dark brown eyes---thrifty, hard-working.

Light brown eyes--shy, individualistic.

Some other observations: Blue-eyed people tend to have extraordinary stamina, but get bogged down by routine. Gray-eyed people are obstinate and courageous, and are likely to stick with a routine job that puts little demand on intelligence. Light brown-eyed people are individualists, tend to be shy, are dependent on a personal routine and find it hard to take orders. Those with green-hazel eyes are the happiest---stable, yet imaginative, determined but aware of their limitations.

This would indicate that the ideal composite would be something of a mixture, maybe plaid.---WACIL McNAIR

Two New Mexico Escapees Nabbed

An escapee from New Mexico who reportedly vowed he would not be taken alive was one of two men found hiding in the bedroom closet of a Snyder residence this morning. They were arrested without incident, local deputies said.

The man who reportedly issued the statement, Michael Rhea, 31, was arrested along with another escapee, Niles Rodriquez, 21, about 9:30 a.m. in a venture involving city police officers, deputies from the Scurry County Sheriff's Office, deputies from the sheriff's office in Lea County, N.M., and Texas Ranger W.D. Vickers.

The pair broke out of the Lea County Jail at Lovington about midnight on Thanksgiving Day, said a New Mexico deputy. He speculated the men had been in Snyder since Sunday.

Lea County Deputy Luis Villarreal said Rhea was serving time on charges of aggravated battery on a police officer and on robbery. Rodriquez, he added, was serving a sentence on burglary and receiving stolen property. Villarreal and another Lea County deputy, Gene Denton, participated in the arrests this morning.

The two suspects were arrested at a dwelling in Southeast Snyder. The arrests were made on confidential information received by New Mexico investigators.

Rhea, it was reported, is a four-time escapee from jails.

Extradition proceedings were being worked out this morning.

Some Allotments Of Gas Cut Here

Word that Shell Oil Co. will reduce deliveries of gasoline to its distributors came as no surprise to gasoline jobbers in Snyder.

Allocations were in effect here to most jobbers already, due chiefly to a greater demand for gasoline this fall than expected.

Reports indicated that Chevron and Exxon were only marketers here receiving 100 percent of the amount of gasoline allotted. Phillips was on 90 percent and Texaco at 85 percent of last year's allotment.

The lowest allotment percentage here was Fina, which ironically has the closest refinery to Snyder. Leon Autry, the Fina jobber, said his December allotment of gasoline is 65 percent of his allotment for the same month last year. His supplies come from the Big Spring refinery, which, incidentally, is the source of gasoline distributed by some of the other agencies here.

So far, there have been no shortages of gasoline in this area. Autry said he had been supplementing his supplies whenever possible by making purchases from some independents and that so far he had been able to keep his stations supplied.

Distributors noted that the term "rationing" technically is a misnomer, since there is no rationing to the consumer. The term "allocation" is more nearly correct, since the quotas are set for the jobbers, who then may sell as they please.

Art Of Brass Rubbing Practiced By Teacher

By JOHN DUNNAM

Every school child that ever got bored with the teacher and started playing with pencil, paper and lunch money has probably discovered the basic technique of obtaining brass rubbings. Wanda Hudgins learned the finer points of the traditional English craft of tracing medieval plaques onto paper during two visits to the mother country.

She makes it look deceptively simple. First, she secures the tracing paper on one of the brass plaques she brought back from England. Next she takes a beeswax crayon-black, silver, copper or gold-and begins rubbing. She carefully outlines the design and then rubs it all over, lightly at first then vigorously to intensify the color.

In minutes she has produced an alluring likeness of the image that will add distinction to an wall on which she might decide to hang it. For a live demonstration you can catch her act at 5:30 this evening during the Martha Ann Woman's Club bazaar.

This may be the only form of art to ever evolve out of a graveyard. Back in the olden days it was an English custom to embed in the tombstone of certain dignitaries their likenesses etched in Brass. One of the most famous

West Texans Ask For Super Highway

AUSTIN (AP)—West Texans asked the state highway commission Thursday for a super highway to serve the Panhandle, Permian Basin and other areas in that oil and agricultural section of the state.

They made a united presentation for an interstate highway from Lubbock through Lamesa and Big Spring to San Angelo.

Spokesmen for Amarillo, to the north; Midland-Odessa, which would not be on the proposed route; and Brady also supported the highway.

It would follow U.S. 87 to San Angelo and Eden, then turn south on U.S. 83 to connect with Interstate 10 at Junction.

The 281-mile route - first proposed in 1956 - would cost an estimated $453 million.

Armistead Rust, a rancher, said San Angelo does not have a main highway, railroad or airline. "We're very anxious to have some relief, to have a real super highway coming through San Angelo."

San Angelo, he said, is the second largest city in Texas that does not have an interstate highway passing through it. He said Wichita Falls was the largest, the last time he checked.

"It is the shortest and most direct route" between Lubbock and San Angelo, said Rust, "and that's what make it the most economical."

"Midland-Odessa..... would benefit from it materially," he said.

RUBBING BRASS-Wanda Hudgins, teacher at North Elementary, demonstrates how to make a brass rubbing from one of the plaques she brought back from England. She will be staging another demonstration this evening at the Martha Ann Woman's Club Bazaar. The craft, relatively new in the U.S. originated in the churches and graveyards of England. It is currently enjoying increasing popularity in the states, says Hudgins, especially in New York (SDN Staff Photo)

no bargaining power

It may appear to some as nitpicking. To others mention may seem a waste of time or dealing with something too inconsequential for so much as a passing thought. In spite of these opinions, however, a few words in one of President Carter's public appeals for popular support of his anti-inflation program are worth pondering.

After outlining his plans for meeting the economic emergency brought on by the steadily increasing rate of decline in the value of U.S. currency, he added as a sort of postscript the hope that our friends in the Middle East will forego any increase in the price of crude oil in the near future. At least 90 percent of all Americans old enough to drive an automobile will second that motion.

What is wrong about it, however, is that in a few seemingly innocuous words uttered as a bit of dry humor (whatever that is) are freighted with meaning too real for dismissal as second rate wit.

In that one statement President Carter directed attention to one of the more disturbing aspects of the current economic situation. We have lost the power to bargain in the world marketplace. Of course we hope the price of oil isn't increased by very much in the near future.

Under normal conditions a customer is in position to bargain. If the price of a commodity seems to high the customer has a choice of going elsewhere or doing without. If the deal involves an automobile, a piece of real estate or a tube of toothpaste, he has that choice.

But we can't do a thing in the world about the price of oil from the Middle East or anywhere else outside the United States. We are consuming oil at about twice the rate of domestic production. The rest must be imported. We can reduce consumption to take care of part of the problem. But that is the extent of our option.

Under normal conditions we might offset the cost of imported oil by selling American farm products and industrial output. But that is impossible under present conditions. Our money has depreciated in value to the point where two dollars are needed to pay for what could be bought just a few years ago for one dollar.

So we are in the position where our chief executive feels impelled to publicly appeal to our friends in other nations to go as easy as possible with us in matters affecting trade balances.

"... And not only that, my fees conform to the president's voluntary wage-price guidelines."

down-grading of mao

Mao Tse-tung may have been a legend in his own time, but the way things are going that legendary status may not outlast by much his own demise.

One of the more interesting developments of late in People's China is the increasingly bold criticism of the late party chairman and font of revolutionary truth. It is now being suggested in the official press that Mao was something less than ideologically infallible. A work by a radical writer once praised by Mao as the inspiration for his Cultural Revolution has been attacked as having been, in fact, "a reactionary signal to practice fascist dictatorship." Wall posters, that uniquely Chinese contribution to mass media, cite Mao's "errors of judgement" in connection with the disgraced "Gang of Four."

As China watchers see it, the criticism amounts to an indictment of the entire Cultural Revolution, that convulsive effort of the late 1960s to cleanse China of foreign influences and bootstrap its own human and cultural resources. Since the Cultural Revolution was the chairman's particular baby, it is also a deliberate move to downgrade Mao himself.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

Our economy is in the news a lot these days.

Every time I read of a move by the president to remedy the situation, I say a silent prayer: "Please, God, don't let him borrow from Amy. We're not that desperate."

People who have never borrowed from children could see it as a way out. After all, it is a fact that children control the wealth of this country. But, for those parents who have ever tapped them for a loan, it's an experience one never forgets.

It was children who first initiated some of the loan expressions we have come to know and fear. Expressions like: "I'll break both of your legs," "How would you like a cement overcoat?" and "I understand you have a mother in Jersey."

I had a neighbor once who fell upon hard times and had to withdraw $700 from her son's savings account. The kid had a wire service for a mouth. No group was too small to enlighten with all the intimate details and confidences surrounding the loan and the repayment. One night he came into a cocktail party in his pajamas, went over to his mother, kissed her lightly on both cheeks and announced loudly, "Noon tomorrow."

Somehow, it seemed cruel when you stopped to consider that the $700 was the first payment to the orthodontist on the kid's overbite.

You never really realize how much wealth a child can accrue until you stop to consider these facts:

(a) A child does not pay for room, board, medical expenses, entertainment, charitable contributions, education, clothing, travel or herbal shampoo;

(b) He gets an allowance for breathing;

(c) Grandparents conspire to make him or her independently wealthy before the age of six;

(d) As soon as he is able to unclench his fist, he places a pocket-size computer in it and becomes a major lending institution.

Frankly, I'm worried about the president's wage insurance policy where people with wage increases that are held below 7 percent in a given year would get a tax rebate if inflation rose more than 7 percent in the same year.

The kids in the tree houses aren't going to like that. And if they're not happy, every adult in this country with an outstanding debt could be in big trouble.

my turn

by john dunnam

I am going to publicly reply to all you fools who from time to time ask me why I'm not married. Listen up now. I'm only going to say it once.

Why should I get married and make one woman miserable when I can stay single and make them all happy? Besides I feel like the young widow with four kids I once knew. She said, "A man would have to be a fool to marry me and you don't think I'm going to marry a fool do you?"

If God had intended for man to be married why is he born single?

I think I'm going to hang loose and follow the strategy of Bucky Lemmons who ties Hoyt Pylant and Duke Ball for the title of Fluvanna's Most Eligible Bachelor.

Bucky says he is looking for a school teacher or maybe a nurse who is living on about half what she makes. When he finds one he says he is going to marry her and try his darnest to live off the other half.

Hoyt on the other hand, says he is never going to get married. I once heard a Baptist preacher tell him that every man should marry at least one time in his life.

"Well there are plenty who get married two or three times to make up for me," he shot back.

Duke, 48, says he is just not quite ready yet. He may be following the philosophy of Orville Mathis who made the trip down the altar when he was 30.

"If I had it to do over again I would at least wait until I was grown."

Ask a bachelor why he is not married and he will always have an answer.

It's when you ask a man why he got married that the stuttering begins.

But being single is not all it's cracked up to be and around here there is one particularly serious drawback. Where are all the single women.

No where is the shortage more acute than in this very newsroom. I can spot two bachelors from where I sit. I tell you if a woman walked in here and wriggled just the right way she could have here choice of: Jim Washington, the swinging advertising man, a little bit macho with his manly footwear and pick-up truck; John Long, inscrutable, and ever the intellectual or myself. I don't fit either of those descriptions but I'm willing and able. Kinda like the Indian who greeted all the pretty squaws with the interogative "chance" instead of the customary "how."

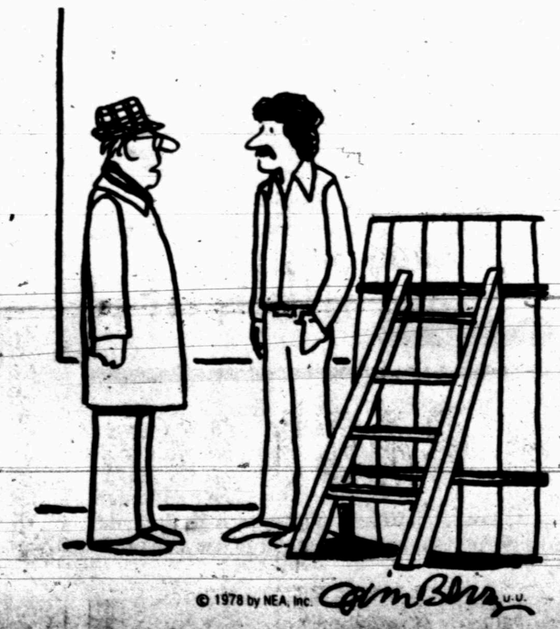

One final note about women. Could it be a coincidence that from mythology to Christianity, most of the major religions have blamed all of the world's problems on women. I'll bet that "One is too many and 10 is not enough" is the world's first cliche. And am I the first to see the significance in the fact that man was snoozing when woman was created? He didn't feel a thing then but she has been a pain ever since. And it hurts so good.

donald f. graff

Mexico has two great resources in surplus supply - oil and people.

Both are of particular importance to the United States.

People, because much of Mexico's unemployable excess is being exported to the United States, an annual influx of illegal immigrants estimated at 1 million.

Oil, because multiplying Mexican reserves promise to ease the world and particularly U.S. energy bind and should also contribute significantly to a solution of the people problem.

Oil is the newest and still developing story. The latest finds, announced in November, suggest that Mexican reserves may equal or even exceed those of the world leader, Saudi Arabia. The new field, stretching for 150 miles along the Gulf Coast south of the port of Tampico, is estimated to hold at least 100 billion barrels, raising total Mexican reserves to more than 300 billion barrels. Of this, 125 billion barrels is considered recoverable, compared with 150 billion of Saudi oil.

The sharp boost in Mexican reserves, by the reckoning of oil experts, postpones the predicted world oil shortage until at least the 1990s and, with additional Mexican discoveries expected, quite probably much later.

For the United States, the discoveries are particularly welcome. A large new supply so close at hand simplifies transportation and lessens dependence on the OPEC cartel, which at this point Mexico does not intend to join, although its export prices are pegged to OPEC's.

Proceeds from the new oil wealth should contribute mightily to the development of the Mexican economy. Few other countries are in such dire need of a boost.

Mexico has one of the world's fastest growing populations - 3.4 percent a year. Mexico City alone is growing so rapidly that, with no lessening of the present rate of increase, it will be the world's largest by the end of the century - a supermetropolis of 32 million.

The underdeveloped Mexican economy, however, cannot absorb so many Mexicans. An estimated half of the labor force is unemployed. The gross national product per capita is $1,090, compared with a U.S. figure of $7,890.

The easiest, and usually only, employment alternative for those Mexicans not wanted at home has been to go north. Some cross the border legally, part of the annual U.S. alien admittance quote of 400,000. But many do not. A million "illegals" were stopped and returned to Mexico last year. But for each one intercepted, it is estimated that at least another gets through.

By the reckoning of John J. Gilligan, administrator of the Agency for International Development, 15 to 20 percent of Mexico's adult population has emigrated illegally and is working in the United States.

The illegal influx has become a major economic and social problem for the United States. Authorities seek to control it through various measures, including stepped up border patrols and most recently construction of 20 miles of fence at border crossing points with the heaviest traffic. Mexican sensibilities, long resentful of a "poor relation" relationship with the United States, are particularly inflamed by the fence which is becoming a political issue between the two countries.

Oil now offers the best prospect Mexico and the United States have ever had of dealing with their mutual problem to their mutual advantage. Oil revenues should provide Mexico with the capital for the development of an economy which can provide work and a future at home for its own people. It will be in the very best interests of the United States as a good customer and neighbor to assist Mexican efforts to the fullest possible extent.

Nowhere else in the modern world has there been such disparity between national wealth and poverty as along the 2,000-mile border shared by Mexico and the United States. Cooperative efforts to end that disparity beat a fence any day.

the corporate woman

NEW YORK (AP)Women who want to make it fast in the business world are being fed false notions about how the modern corporation works, says the man who pioneered managerial mobility studies.

The rules, routes, and skills involved in success are the very same for women as they are for men, according to Professor Eugene Jennings, who has studied mobility and the corporation for more than 30 years.

More recently he has been studying the careers of a dozen fast-rising women. "Their formula for success is the very same." said Jennings, a graduate professor of management at Michigan State University.

According to the Jennings formula, corporate success comes fastest to the person who becomes a crucial subordinate to an already mobile superior, complementing or supplementing the superior's skills.

Now he's concerned by what he sees developing; a corps of mentors, some self-appointed, who claim to be able to teach women how to do it. Their notions of corporate life, says Jennings, are often unrealistic.

By becoming a crucial subordinate to a mobile superior, he explains, a man or woman is carried along by mobility itself. Pity the subordinate, however, if the superior is a shelfsitter; the subordinate will be too.

Through the mobile superior the subordinate will be provided with visibility and exposure - visibility to see the all-important "sponsor" and exposure of his or her talents to that sponsor.

Sponsor? This person can really boost your career, a career that already has benefited from being a crucial subordinate to a talented, promotable superior who provided the visibility and exposure.

Anyone who's going anywhere in a big corporation is likely to have someone sponsoring him. Sponsorship, according to Jennings' analysis of corporate life, comes in four degrees:

There's the evaluator, a person who stands strongly with the higher ups so that his or her opinion regarding the subordinate is weighed heavily. Still the evaluator is the weakest degree of sponsorship.

More potent is the nominator, possessor of power to actually suggest a name for promotion. Even more powerful is the next degree of sponsorship, to whom Jennings assigns the actual title of sponsor.

The sponsor, he relates, is so highly regarded upstairs that they dare not antagonize him or her by rejecting a nomination. The sponsor has a strong record, is a prized executive, a person with clout.

The fourth level of sponsorship is the promoter, the one with official corporate authority - the title or office - to promote.

That's the way it is, says Jennings, no matter what the mentors in their lectures, books or personal interviews are telling the women.

DECORATING

To really fancy up the garage, cover the walls with wrapping paper, sheets, quilts, or other attractive fabrics.

Use saw horses, barrels, or any other items to hold long wood boards or hollow doors to make tables. Cover these "tables" with paper, coordinating quilts or fabric. Then, bring out the dishes and food, and everyone will have room to enjoy themselves.

PICNIC THEME

Or, use picnic supplies to help set the table, the specialist continues. For example, open a picnic hamper and use it for bread.

Wicker baskets or metal buckets could hold silverware and napkins. Also, use other wicker and bread-dough baskets to hold other items, she adds.

SEATING

Place old barrels with pillows around the garage for seating, or use bricks with planks across them for benches.

When throwing a party for a large group, arrange seats so they will facilitate small conversation areas-don't line them around the walls.

CLEAN-UP

After the party is over, shut the door and leave the clean-up details until later, she says.

Dear Abby

No Wedding, No Bedding

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I've got a screwball on my hands. He's a fast-talking fellow student who, after our second date, wanted to move in with me for what he calls a "trial marriage."

I told him that a real marriage in a well-lighted church would precede any moving in. That was last week.

This week I'm getting a sales pitch worthy of Dale Carnegie himself. This character tells me that marriage stifles freedom; true love comes only from complete unselfish sharing (it's my apartment); and it's the duty of today's youth to abolish outmoded conventions.

Outmoded my foot!

To my mind a woman who does not insist on the social and legal protection of a recorded marriage is a fool. And I can't understand how any man could respect a girl so dumb she wouldn't demand it.

I will welcome any advice you might offer, unless perchance you espouse trial marriages, in which case please toss this into your wastepaper basket.

JOSIE IN NEW ALBANY, IND.

DEAR JOSIE: You don't need any advice from me. You are a very together lady. Let that smoothie get his own apartment and hire a maid.

DEAR ABBY: I divorced my husband a year ago, the biggest mistake I ever made because I still love him. I filed for the divorce never dreaming he would let me go through with it, but he did.

Our divorce solved nothing. It just doomed me to loneliness, to say nothing of what it has done to our children who miss him terribly.

Abby, I am willing to crawl, beg, anything, to get him back, but I don't know how to go about it. Please, please help me.

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: Don't play games. Tell him exactly what you have told me. Or better yet, send him a clipping of this column with an olive branch. You've nothing to lose but your loneliness. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I was contemplating marriage, but now I'm confused. A gentleman who works with me advised me not to tie the knot until I had taken a survey of 20 married people and asked them if they would marry the same person they are now married to if they had it to do over again.

I took the survey, and 19 said no. Only one said yes! After that I had a nightmare in which I called off my wedding. Help! (I'm 20 and my fiance is 24.)

CONFUSED IN PASSAIC

DEAR CONFUSED: If you're confused for any reason, postpone your wedding until you're head is straight. It's much easier to tie the knot than untie it.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

Mrs. Clark Honored

Mrs. Whit Clark of Rotan was honoree at a recent meeting of Gamma Tau Chapter of the Delta Kappa Gamma Society International. Preceding the regular meeting of the chapter, Miss Josie Baird gave a tribute in appreciation of the outstanding contributions made by Mrs. Clark to the society.

The chapter tribute was in response to an honor received by Mrs. Clark at the 1978 State Convention of the Texas State Society of Delta Kappa Gamma International. At that time the honoree was a recipient of an Achievement Award presented by the state society for outstanding work at chapter, state and international levels.

On behalf of the chapter Miss Baird presented the honoree with the gift of a silver serving tray.

In addition to membership in Gamma Tau Chapter of which she is a past president, Mrs. Clark is a charter member of Anne Pettus Shelburne Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, George Cogdell Chapter of Daughters of American Colonists and of the Tejas (Texas State) Chapter of Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century. She is librarian and English teacher in Rotan High School.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

The late Kenneth Konstam was one of the greatest rubber bridge players of all time.

In rubber bridge there is something called table presence that means more than almost anything else and Kenneth possessed this faculty in the highest degree.

Derek Rimington, in an article in Popular Bridge monthly, gives today's hand as an example of Kenneth at his best.

His double of three notrump was based on three factors: 1. He knew cards were going to break badly for declarer. 2. He knew that North was an overbidder. 3. He knew that South did not play the dummy very well.

There was a fourth factor. He knew he was going to lead the deuce of spades.

Dummy's jack fell to East's queen. Back came a club and South was in. A really alert declarer would see that he was in real trouble and go after diamonds in an effort to save as much as possible from the wreck, but South led a second spade. We won't carry on from there except to report that when the smoke lifted South had been held to five top tricks and was 1100 points poorer.

Ask the Experts

A Canadian reader wants to know the meaning of West's double in this bidding sequence. South opens one club. North responds one spade. South raises to two spades and now West doubles.

This is definitely a takeout double and shows both unbid suits plus some clubs.

Jenkins Looks At Mats And Prediction Line

by Bill McClellan

Snyder hasn't been picked to win a big game yet this season and won't be against Lubbock Estacado tonight, but Tiger head coach Mike Jenkins says that's okay by him.

"I think maybe with our group of kids it probably helps us. Besides, I've never seen a sports writer play a game yet. Our kids have to play the game, and I know our football team is better than a lot of people think it is."

Jenkins mentioned an area writer who has consistantly picked Snyder to lose, and made reference to other prognasticators, one of which - the Harris Poll - has given Estacado the edge by a point.

"Once the ball is teed up and kicked off, I guarantee you, the kids don't know anything about morning write ups, or afternoon write ups or anything. All they're concerned about is those jerseys on the other side of the field."

Those other jerseys this time around house a familiar opponent, in Estacado, who Snyder met in regular district competition until this year.

"Basically, they are the same as they've always been, only a little better this year," comments Jenkins. "They like to keep the ball on the ground, and they're agressive. They've done a fine job improving their offensive attack. Their defense has always been good."

The Matador offense is keyed by several players, not the least of which is 6-5, 220-pound tight end Dewey Turner. Robin Gatewood, 170-pound senior, has been the Estacado payload ball carrier most recently, though Kelvin White, a 171-pound sophomore, is almost certain to see some action, too. The other runningback is 186-pound Stacy Burrell.

Quarterback Kenneth Henderson guides the I formation, and likes to pitch back to Gatewood or White on the end sweep, which Jenkins expects to see a lot of tonight.

Stopping Estacado, according to the coach, will mean "stopping the sweep and being prepared for the sweep pass and reverse." Offensively, Snyder will have to "keep the ball away from them."

Jenkins predicts a low-scoring game, despite the constant threat of a long break by either team, and feel the passing game will be important for both squads.

"You may only see a few passes, but the ability to complete them, or keep the other team from completing will be important. I don't think either team's running game will be as successful without it."

Defensively, the Matadors utilize their speed, which they have plenty of.

"They have some backs playing on defense," the coach said, pointing out 165-pound Todd Parsons, a tackle, among them," because they are so quick. They utilize speed to give you the bad play."

Snyder's biggest tribute this season has been its teamwork. Devoid of any stars which aid most teams in getting into the rankings, The Tigers have found their strengths in each other. Offense, defense and kicking teams have all combined to make the big play when needed.

"I believe we can win it. The TEAM believes they

Pressure Playing Strength Of Playoff-Bound Volleyballers

LUBBOCK--"Volleyball is not like a lot of other sports. In volleyball, one team can have possession of the ball and keep it by serving. It can get the momentum going for them. Momentum is probably one of the strongest aspects to have in your favor...or against you," comments Coach Joyce Elrod, who leads her Snyder High School team to regional competition here Saturday.

She ought to know. Coach Elrod has guided the Tigers to three consecutive district titles, but never to a regional championship. This just may be the year.

"One thing that makes the team different from the other teams we've had it they've been able to play under pressure," she notes of the group, which whisked through the season with a 30-3 record. "They've played under pressure this year and have been able to come out of it. The last three games we've played since district, we've had times when we've come from behind. We were down 0-9 against Central (San Angelo) and we got back up. Even though we lost the first one, we had momentum going for the second game, which we won." And eventually, the match.

But playing under pressure - obtaining that momentum - is not the team's only strength, points out the coach.

"The fact that they can play under pressure, plus they're consistant. We've had some slumps and dropped on defense at times of course, but their ability to play consistant defense especially is a strong point. And one other thing," she says abruptly. "They can play together. They know each other's strengths as well as weaknesses and more or less accept all of that, and I think it helps them play together. All three of those things make them what they are, and I think those things will help them in the regional tournament."

Snyder is pitted against 1AAA champion Borger in the first round of the meet at 11 am. At 12:30, Monahans and Borger play, with the winner of each match meeting at 3:30 in the finals. The champion will advance to the state meet in Austin next weekend.

Both Snyder and Borger are undefeated in district play, while the Tigers have a slight edge in the win-loss column with a 30-3 mark. Borger is 22-5 on the year. The two teams have only played one common opponent during the season.

For Borger, Saturday's meet marks the second year in a row the team has won a district championship. Like Snyder, the Bulldogs were knocked off by Seminole, which has been dropped down to AA this season.

Playing for Snyder will be seniors Dana Elrod, Kathy Harrell and Cindy Koonsman, all captains, and Danna Myers, Debbie Myers, Sherry Neves and Shana Smith. Juniors include Kim Harlin, Billie Owens, and Suzanne Fisher, while Sherry Mayes is the only sophomore on the squad.

Borger boasts all seniors on its team keyed by Terri Tipton, Sherri Cash, Tamyra Hess and Tonya Henderson.

Paterno Not Going Pro

NEW YORK (AP)-As he accepted the Lambert Trophy for his top-ranked team, Penn State's Joe Paterno said he has no desire to move into the pro ranks and begged that people stop speculating he would take over New York Giants Coach John McVay's job.

"I plan to stay at Penn State as long as I am wanted and as long as we agree on our football philosophy," the 51-year-old coach of the nation's top-ranking team said at a luncheon honoring Penn State.

The Lambert Trophy is given annually to the major college team voted the best in the East. It marked the 14th time the Nittany Lions had won the honor and the 10th time since Paterno became head coach in 1966.

POUNDS IT BACK--Snyder's Sherry Mayes returns the ball during recent volleyball play. The Tigers take their 30-3 record to Lubbock High gym Saturday for the regional tournament. First match is scheduled for 11 a.m. against Borger. See related story. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Defense A Major Key Tonight, Notes Goodwin

Defensive line coach Roger Goodwin allows that the Tiger defense could well be the determining factor in tonight's 7:30 quarterfinal playoff game with Lubbock Estacado.

"The way our defense plays may determine whether or not we win the ball game. Estacado lives and dies by the big play, and they take advantage of the turnover. Our job then, is to stop the big play as much as we can, and arise to the occassion if we do have a turnover," he says.

Goodwin praised the defensive unit, commenting, "I'm very proud of the way they've played this year. They have played together as a team better than any (defensive) group we've had since we've (the coaches) been here. Tony Degrate, Cary Welsh and Morris Anderson make up the T-N-T (tackle - noseguard - tackle) but what's really made them strong is people like Tommy Peek and Sammy Willis, (defensive backups) who have forced them to do well in order to keep their positions."

Filling out the defensive units are ends Perry Robertson and Mike Hicks, linebackers Wes Partain and Mark Davis, safety Thomas Selmon, and halfbacks Sid Sullenger and Bryan Vincent. Monster is Alan Pollard.

Characteristically, Goodwin predicts a "nip and tuck, real close game tonight," and says, "The Tigers will win it if we play a control type game," meaning aquiring field position, and committing no mistakes.

The winner of the contest will advance to the state semi-finals, meeting either Carthage or Gainsville.

Rose Refuses Top Phillies Offer

PHILADELPHIA (AP)- The Philadelphia Phillies and rambling Pete Rose have shaken hands and parted ways after a brief encounter of the bargaining kind.

"We have made an offer that would have made Pete the highest paid player in Phillies history," club owner Ruly Carpenter told a news conference Thursday. "Unfortunately, it was not quite enough.

"He didn't get into the game of one-upsmanship, for which I have the greatest admiration. He's a great player and I wish him the best."

The Phillies had been considered the front runner in the mad dash of baseball clubs trying to lure Rose with a variety of sweet and sweeter offers. The Phillies' entry in the Rose sweepstakes reportedly came in at about $1.8 million over three years.

At age 37, Rose owns the modern National League hitting streak record of 44 straight games. He has been searching for a new team since he played out his option after 15 years as a star infielder-outfielder with the Cincinnati Reds.

Rose said the Phillis offer was "a tremendous one, but it wasn't what I thought I could get from a couple of the other ball clubs."

Rose said he may reach a decision as early as Sunday and would first call all the teams involved before making any public announcement.

Dusters Upset Top Seeded Hawk Queens

BIG SPRING--You'd have thought Western Texas College's Dusters won the regional tournament for all the whoop-n-holler witnessed here last night, but they didn't. What they did do however, was upset the top WJCAA team, Howard College, a feat with just as much importance this early in the season.

"I'm extremely proud of our girls," commented Coach Joe Cushing of the 64-61 victory. "The girls did a super job."

The Dusters trailed most of the game, but with a little over two minutes remaining, Joyce Plagens hit two free throws to put WTC five points in the lead. Howard County basketed a quick four points, but could never take over the lead again.

"Those were probably the most crucial points of the game," recalled the coach, who praised a number of the team for their efforts. Drawing special comment, were two girls who hadn't played frequently during the early season, Brigette Hamilton and Ginger Peden. "Brigette played her best game of the year by far, and Ginger came in and did a super job." Cushing also cited the efforts of Plagens, Nodia Vaughn, Belva Marsh, Delba Ray, Karen Williams and Katie Fisher.

Vaughn paced the team score-wise with 19 points. Hamilton cashed in 11 points, and grabbed 7 rebounds, an assist and four "very important" blocked shots. Leading in overall stats was Plagens, who powered 6 points, 10 rebounds, 4 assists and 2 steals. Martin led the Hawk Queens with 12 points - all garnered in the first half.

"Now we have to try to keep from becoming complacent," warned Cushing. "We knocked off the No. 1 team in the conference and we feel like we're in that position. But the same thing can happen to us. Odessa will be sky-high for us Monday."

The Dusters will meet Odessa in Odessa at 6 p.m. for their next outing.

WTC Jumps Past Howard

BIG SPRING--Coach Nolan Richardson's Westerers wrapped up the conference opener here last night, drubbing Howard College 83-67.

Paul Pressey ripped the cords for 20 WTC points, while Joe Mendoza and Greg Stewart scored 14 each and Bill Patterson had 10.

Michael Wallace was the Hawks' big threat, rifling in 18 points. Bobby Randolph had 12.

"I wasn't too pleased with the execution of our offense in the first half," commented Richardson, who pointed out the team had 12 turnovers in the 20 minute period. "The second half our offense was much better. Overall, the turnovers hurt us. But of course we lost it 17 times and they lost it 27 times." Then he added, "But this is a young team, and its going to happen. What matters most is that win. When you read that won-lost column, it doesn't say how you did it, and I'd much rather look for us under the W than the L."

The victory gives WTC an 11-1 record going into Monday's 8 p.m. game in Odessa. It will mark Odessa's first conference game of the season.

AlabamaReady For Auburn

By The Associated Press

If Bear Bryant wants to win the national championship, he'll have to win the championship of Alabama first.

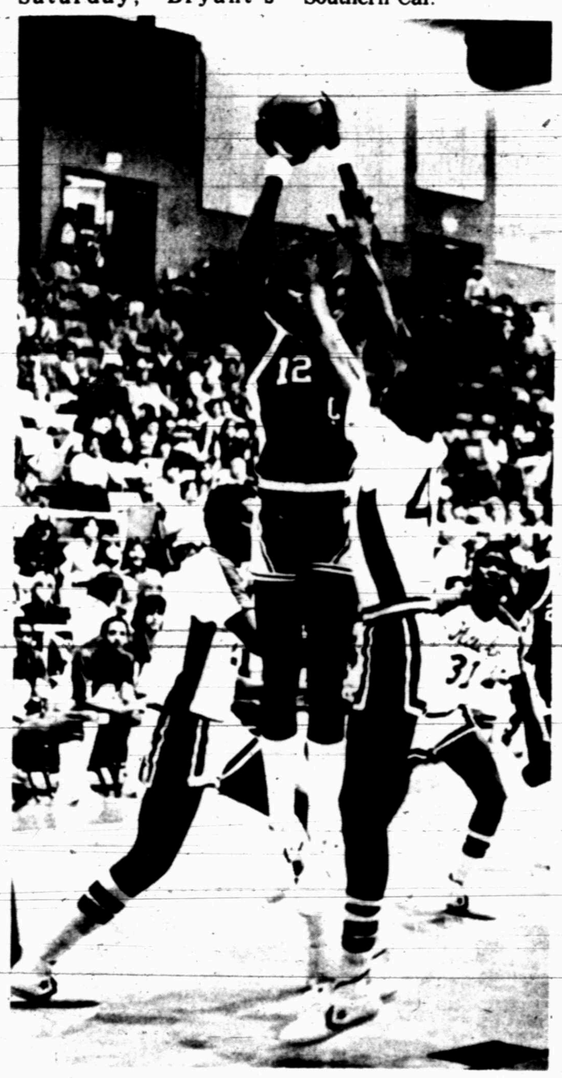

That, of course, will be decided Saturday when his Crimson Tide plays Auburn in their annual uncivil war.

"I don't think there's any doubt that both teams will be ready mentally," says Bryant. "It will be a typical game with great emotion on both sides."

Not only local pride, but an important bowl game is at stake. With a victory Saturday, Bryant's second-ranked Tide can gain a Sugar Bowl berth opposite top-ranked Penn State in a dream game in New Orleans Jan. 1 for the national championship.

A loss or a tie for Alabama would allow the 11th-ranked Georgia Bulldogs to win the Sugar Bowl berth as the Southeastern Conference representative, despite what they do against Georgia Tech Saturday.

Alabama is hotter than its arch-rival, having won nine straight games after an opening-game loss to Southern Cal.

can win it," contends Jenkins.

Or, as one of the coaches said, "This team has got a lot of guts. Maybe more guts and want-to than skill. But at this point and time (the playoffs), guts is what counts. By guts, I mean faith, determination and effort - and I've never seen a team with more guts than this one. I don't think they'll let up until the final minute is over. And when the final minute is over....I think you'll see us ahead."

1930 Captain Predicts Tiger Win

team could advance in those days. There was no state championship then.

The regional game of 1930 pitted Snyder against Albany. Snyder won the bout 45-0. Trice believes Snyder will win tonight as it takes on Lubbock Estacado, but he is not sure what the score will be.

The formula for a winning football team is simple in Trice's philosophy. "I think you have to have the boys who can do it and they have to have the desire to play. I think a lot of it is as much mental as it is physical," he explained.

Trice predicts the Snyder-Estacado confrontation will be a low-scoring game. He believes, however, the Tigers of 1978 will have the edge.

Football is more than just a game to Trice. The sport borders on being a legacy that is handed down to succeeding generations.

Grant Teaff, head football coach for the Baylor Bears, is Mrs. Trice's nephew. Trice's son, Jerry is an assistant football coach at Ranger Junior College. A nephew of Trice's, Robert James, is a scout for the University of New Mexico. Another nephew, Doug James, is coach at John Jay High School in San Antonio.

Trice insists he did not foist his own philosophy of football on any of them. He maintains they all developed a liking for the sport themselves.

Trice, however, feels football was a tougher game a half-century ago than it is now. He played both guard and tackle, which means he played on both defense and offense. It was not unusual back then. Other players, he said, also held down two positions.

He conceded, however, that such two-position playing was tiring. "I guess we were in good shape," he said, "but you sure were tired when the game was over."

Because of the rules 50 years ago, personal fouls were rarely called. Defensive players, he remembers, could strike opponents with the heels of their open hands. Propelled by sufficient force, such a blow could easily topple a player. Such ploys were legal.

Nor were football players then protected by the kind of equipment worn now. The pads were not as padded then and helmets were little more than leather headcoverings. There were no face guards, so broken noses were a common injury. Other injuries were to be expected, too.

If the guy on the line across from you had a bandaged ankle, a protective covering over his broken nose, or a wrapped-up elbow, you aimed for it in making the tackle.

"If you had an injury and they saw it," Trice painfully winced, "they would punish you."

It was in that kind of gruelling game that Trice lettered in 1928, 1929, and 1930. He was a senior at the time of the Snyder-Albany game. He said he will always remember that one.

"We just got after them and beat them," he declared. He also cited the "clock work" of the Tiger team 48 years ago. "All the boys just had a desire to win," he recalls.

He predicted a similar desire to win will be a factor in tonight's game.

Sentences Are Set In County Court

Several persons have been sentenced this week in county court. All had entered guilty pleas.

Pam Davis, charged with making a false report, was assessed a $40 fine and a 10-day jail term, probated for six months. Investigators said she is alleged to have fabricated a story in which she told deputy sheriffs two checks bearing her signature had been forged.

Billie Ray Garrett, who was charged wtih driving while intoxicated, was assessed a $100 fine a a 30-day jail term, probated for six months.

Alberto P. Rodriquez and Gary Laverne Allen, who were both charged with driving while their licenses were suspended, received indentical $25 fines.

Rodriquez, also charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon, was fined $100 on that count.

Ronnie Page was fined $200 on a charge of carrying a prohibited weapon.

In other court action, a $100 fine and a 30-day jail term probated for six months, was levied on Billy Jack Ellison. He was charged with driving while intoxicated.

Window Is Knocked out

A criminal mischief complaint was filed and two minor traffic accidents reported to police Thursday.

Reporting the criminal mischief was Merle Mengus who told officers a plate glass window worth $200 was knocked out at his 3001 Crockett St. home. That report was made about 8:35 p.m. Thursday.

The first accident resulted in the destruction of a traffic light at the intersection of 25th St. and College Ave. The light, reports show, was struck by a 1978 International truck-trailer rig driven by Randy Smith of Muleshoe. Damage to the light was set at a costly $1,000.

The second mishap was in the 3200 block of Crockett. It occurred Wednesday afternoon, reports show, but was not told to police until about 9 p.m. Thursday.

Involved in it were a 1977 Subaru driven by Anita Shaw and a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Eddie Glenn Thompson. Only minor damages were reported.

brasses is at the Church at Stratford-On-Avon. It is above the symbolic grave of that bard of bards, William Shakespear and speaks for all deceased celeberties with this epitath: Good friend for iesus sake forbeare, To digg the dust encloased hear; Plese be ye man yt spares thes bones, And curst be he ut moves my bones."

So In accordance with these last words, generations of potential grave-robbers satisfied themselves vicariously by making tracings of the brass images above the toombs. The practice became so popular that the brass was wearing down and authorities had to stop the parade to most of the final resting places of the famous.

Replicas were made, however, and brass rubbing centers now exist where afficionados can rub to their hearts content.

Ms. Hudgins, a school teacher by trade, got hooked on the hobby while on assignment in Sheffield, England during the 1975-76 school year. When she crossed the ocean again this summer to visit friends she bought several of the plaques to bring home.

One of her favorites is called the Lace Lady. It depicts Lady Margaret Peyton of Isleham, Circa 1884; in an intricate lac gown and flowing headress. She also has the likenesses of William Whyte and Robert the Bruce, King of Scotland.

She did make her way to one graveyard while in England and did one tracing the old way. But someone between Great Britain and West Texas obviously found it so fascinating that they kept it for themselves. She explains how she carefully rolled it up and placed it in a tubular cardboard box and had it mailed home. She received the box but it was empty.

Allergic to gout medicine

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was using Zyloprim for gout but I had so many side effects over the past three years that I had to stop it. I had dizziness, sluggishness, depression, rash on my chest, low blood sugar and eye irritation.

My doctor cut my dose to 200 milligrams and I gradually quit using it entirely. I haven't used any now for over a year but I have had two attacks of gout. I have also put on 10 pounds. I am 5 feet 7 and weigh 156 pounds. I am 68 years old.

I've been reducing my purine intake by eating only a small serving of chicken, fish, meat or beans once a day. I have increased my intake of eggs and peanut butter. I may go on two purine-free days per week. This is difficult because my wife thinks a person has to eat meat every day at every meal.

I tried to go back to using Zyloprim daily for six days but it brought on the side effects again, even 50 milligrams every fourth day caused trouble. It seems I'm sensitive to Zyloprim in any amount.

Is there any substitute for Zyloprim and what is it? What factors encourage the elimination of urates in the urine?

DEAR READER — Zyloprim is a fairly recent medicine and it is a good one. It has helped many people with gout.

Basically, gout is caused by an excess production of uric acid. The excess amount, however, is produced by an individual's own cells. It's not from the purines in your diet or the uric acid that you consume. Purines as you probably know are related to the nuclei in cells and that's where uric acid comes from.

A person who is sensitive to Zyloprim shouldn't take any at all. I can't say that all of the things that you have mentioned have been caused by your Zyloprim, but certainly a number of them, particularly the skin rash, could be. Unfortunately, you appear to be one of those individuals who can't use Zyloprim to control uric acid and hence prevent gout.

Your doctor can give you medicines which increase the elimination of uric acid through the kidneys. That will help some.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid, to give you more information about this disorder. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Our thinking on it has changed a great deal in the past two decades. That's why a low-purine diet is seldom stressed as a means of controlling gout anymore.

You should limit your purines since you can't use all the medicines available today. I am not so enthusiastic about your choice of what to eliminate.

Among the items you should eliminate are the organ meats, specifically kidneys, sweetbreads and liver (you may not miss these). Also, you should eliminate sardines, anchovies, cauliflower, mature bean seeds (which I note you're eating) and boullion cubes. You won't get very much purine from lean chicken breast or, for that matter, lean red meats eaten in reasonable quantities.

Because heart and vascular disease is a frequent complication of gout, it is important for subjects who have gout to stay on a reasonably low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and to avoid any obesity.

There are other things you can do, too. You can be careful not to use beer and wines and you should avoid unusual physical exertion.

Shaw's 'St. Joan' Set At 1st UMC

"Saint Joan," one of the world's most inspiring dramas of a woman's faith and the price she was willing to pay for her beliefs, will be presented by the Repertory Theater of America-Alpha-Omega Players on Wednesday, Dec. 6, in the sanctuary of First United Methodist Church in Snyder.

Written by George Bernard Shaw, "Saint Joan" tells the stirring story of a peasant girl who was led to great heights by God's commands and ultimately was led to the stake by those she opposed.

Shaw said of her, "There are only two opinions about her: One that she was miraculous and the other that she was unbearable. She asserted herself with such force that she was famous throughout Western Europe before she was out of her teens. It is hardly surprising that she was burnt for unwomanly and insufferable presumption."

The Alpha-Omega Players, the nation's most active repertory theater headquartered in Rockport, which has achieved international fame for its dramatic presentations, will offer a special adaption of the Shaw play patterened to today's challenges.

In addition to her inspiring personal portrayal, Joan will be seen in moving moments with Captain Dunois of the French forces, the sympathetic but militant churchman Ladvenu, the whimpering Dauphin, and the Archbishop of Rheims.

This fast-moving presentation of the effectively staged highlights of "Saint Joan" is the work of Drexel H. Riley, Executive Producer of the Repertory Theater of America, who also serves as Director of the Alpha-Omega Players.

The evening's program will begin at 7 p.m. There is no admission charge. However, a free will offering will be received which will go in its entirety to Alpha-Omega Players.

The game of Jai Alai originated in the Pyrenees mountain range of Spain and France among the rugged Basque people.

SCENE FROM DRAMA — This is a scene in one of the lighter moments captured from the highlights from "St. Joan," by George Bernard Shaw, performed by Alpha-Omega Players. It will be presented Dec. 6 at the First United Methodist Church.
