The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's not necessary to lie awake nights in order to succeed if you stay awake during the day."

Sometimes we worry about the wrong stuff. A lot of humor is based on pointing out the absurdities of life.

When it's pointed out to us, we often realize we've wondered about the same thing.

We recently received a collection of such head-shaking observations. They were sent by E-mail:

--Would somebody please explain signs that say, "No animals allowed except for seeing eye dogs. Who's that sign for, the dog or blind person?

--If airline seats are such a great flotation device, why don't you ever see anybody with one on the beach?

--Why do they call it a building? It looks like after they finished, they would be called "built."

--Why is it illegal to park in a handicapped space, but it's okay to use the handicapped stall in the bathroom?

--Did you ever notice, when sitting at a red light, that when the person in front pulls up a couple of inches, you are compelled to inch up too?

--Why is it when you turn on the TV, you see ads for the telephone company, and when you turn on the radio, you hear ads for TV shows? And when you get put on hold on the phone, you hear a radio station?

--Isn't it weird that we drink milk, stuff designed to nourish baby cows?

And more deep thoughts:

--How do they get a deer to cross at that little yellow road sign?

--Do radioactive cats have 18 half-lives?

--Why is abbreviation such a long word?

--The reason most people can't stand prosperity is because they don't have to.

--If at first you don't succeed, be sure and find out if there is a prize for the loser.

--A new tie will always reveal the soup of the day.

--If a hole is nothing, how come you can break your neck in it?

--Why a guy catching more flies with honey would want more flies?

Retired pastor to head parade

Miller Robinson will serve as grand marshal of the Fourth of July Celebration parade, organizers announced Tuesday afternoon.

Robinson was pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church for 32 years before retiring last July. He has also been active in civic work.

"Let Freedom Ring" is the theme for the parade, which gets underway at 10 a.m. in Towle Park. A $25 prize will be given for the most patriotic float, the most original float and the best all-around float.

Pre-registration is not required. Line-up will begin at 9 o'clock in the west end of the park.

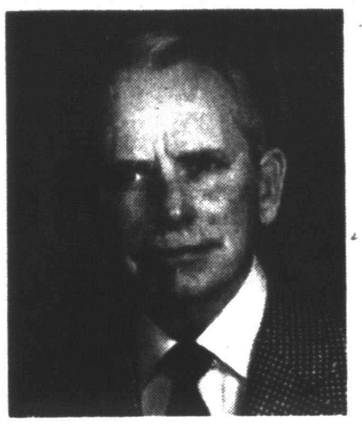
The annual bicycle decorating contest will also be held at that time, with first through third place winners recognized in four age categories: 5 and under, 6-8, 9-11 and 12 and older. Prizes will be awarded.

Those who plan to ride horses in the parade are advised the animals must have had a recent Coggins test. No roller blades will be allowed and go-carts must be driven or accompanied by an adult.

A Lions Club-sponsored carnival has already set up in the park and will be open nightly through Saturday.

Booths will open Thursday at 4 o'clock and remain open until 10.

Friday's activities include a Prayer Breakfast, fishing rodeo, volleyball tournament, washer and horseshoe pitching, swimming, and more, with food, activity and arts and crafts booths open. The celebration ends at dark with the annual fireworks display.



Miller Robinson

The parade is one of the top attractions in Scurry County each year as those celebrating Independence Day line the winding road through Towle Park.

"We are very pleased to have Miller Robinson serve as grand marshal of the parade this year," said a member of the July 4th committee.

Robinson has served through the years as a member of the chamber of commerce, chairman of the Economic Development Committee, a member of the Development Corporation of Snyder, the Lions Club and a recipient of the city's Vestal Award.

He has been a member of the executive board, the administrative committee and the State Missions Commission of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, and served on the board of trustees at Howard Payne University, Baptist Memorials Geriatric Center in San Angelo, Valley Baptist Academy in Harlingen, Hispanic Baptist Seminary and moderator of Coryell, Caprock and Mitchell-Scurry Baptist Associations.

Preaching since the age of 19, he pastored at Coryell Baptist Church, White Mound Baptist Church and First Baptist Church of Matador before coming to Snyder and was active in missionary work overseas.

Pennzoil rejects takeover offer

HOUSTON (AP) — Union Pacific Resources Group Inc. said it was not giving up after Pennzoil Co.'s board of directors rejected a $4.2 billion hostile takeover offer.

Union Pacific Resources, criticizing the Pennzoil board for its decision Tuesday, urged shareholders of the Houston-based company to tender their stock to Union Pacific Resources.

"It is clear that Pennzoil is trying to hide from its shareholders behind a classic 'just say no,' defense," the company said. 'The business rationale of this combination is so powerful, and the premium we are offering shareholders so substantial, that we believe the merger of UPR and Pennzoil is inevitable."

In announcing the decision Tuesday, the Pennzoil board unanimously agreed last week's offer was inadequate and not in the best interests of Pennzoil shareholders, said James Pate, chairman and chief executive officer of Pennzoil.

"We want to remain independent and pursue our strategic plan which we think is very exciting and promises to deliver more value to shareholders than any kind of combination with UPR or anybody else could provide," Pate said.

Fort Worth-based Union Pacific Resources had offered to pay $84 a share for Pennzoil in cash in exchange for 50.1 percent of Pennzoil's stock. The company also would assume $2.2 billion of Pennzoil debt to bring the total deal to $6.4 billion.

Pate said the board was recommending shareholders also reject the proposal. He would not speculate on Union Pacific Resources' response to the rejection.

On Monday, the company ran a full-page ad in the Houston Chronicle urging Pate and the Pennzoil board to "Just say yes."

"We are not going away," the ad said. "We are committed to the successful completion of this offer."

"This offer is inadequate, and we're just going to focus on getting back to business," Pate said Tuesday.

Pennzoil's board earlier rejected as inadequate a similar bid of $80 per share by Union Pacific Resources. The company then sweetened it.

Union Pacific Resources, the largest independent U.S. oil and gas exploration and production company, has said a combined company would be the leader in drilling activity, production and cash flow.

Union Pacific Resources has said its experience would enable Pennzoil to grow faster than it could on its own.

When Union Pacific Resources announced the offer June 23, it filed lawsuits to try to block anti-takeover defenses. Pennzoil, in turn, has sued to try to block the takeover.

Pate said it simply is not the time to sell a company that is enjoying increased earnings and strong cash flow. He said the board, which had promised a reply to Union Pacific Resources by July 7, met throughout most of Tuesday with financial advisers before making the decision.

Supertanker runs aground off Yokohama

Treatens fishing grounds that feed Japan's most crowded region

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP) — A supertanker ran aground today in busy Tokyo Bay, dumping nearly 4 million gallons of crude oil in Japan's worst spill ever and threatening the fishing grounds that help feed its most crowded region.

The spill released noxious fumes that sickened more than a dozen people on shore, mostly children. As the fumes abated, concern over the spill switched from the possible risk of fire to its impact on the environment.

The 147,012-ton, Panamanian-registered Diamond Grace ran aground less than four miles off Yokohama and 22 miles southwest of Tokyo. Officials said the light crude oil had stopped leaking by noon, 1½ hours after the accident on one of Japan's busiest bays.

The tanker was dislodged by nightfall and went under its own power to nearby Kawasaki, where its remaining oil was to be removed. The 3½-mile-wide spill was drifting north toward Tokyo.

"This is the worst oil spill Japan has ever experienced," said Transportation Minister Makoto Koga.

The spill threatens to sully the fishing grounds in Japan's most heavily populated region. The sprawling Tokyo metropolitan area — which encompasses Yokohama, Kawasaki and Chiba — rings the bay and is home to 25 million people.

Authorities initially feared a spark could set the spill on fire. A dozen coast guard boats patrolled the fouled bay, warning fishermen to keep their distance and avoid using cigarette lighters or matches.

About 40 boats were throwing absorbent mats onto the water to soak up the crude. A helicopter sprayed solvents to break up the oil and workers used everything from barrels to ladles to scoop it up. The cleanup was to continue through the night.

Coast guard helicopters hovered over the bay. The oil sparkled on the water, with the silhouette of Mount Fuji in the distance.

The Maritime Safety Agency, Japan's coast guard, said the tanker dumped nearly twice as much as Japan's previous worst spill in 1974, when 2 million gallons poured from a storage tank in southwestern Japan.

The Exxon Valdez tanker spilled 11 million gallons in Alaska in 1989.

The Kyodo News agency said the tanker scraped a reef in shallow waters, tearing holes in two oil tanks near the starboard bow. Officials were questioning the captain, Kyodo said.

The bay was crowded with fishing boats and other vessels. Kamoshita speculated the Diamond Grace might have run aground as it was moving out of the way of another ship.

Fifteen people living near the bay were sickened by the fumes and taken to nearby hospitals.

4th prompts some closings

Scurry County citizens needing to conduct business before the Independence Day holiday might want to consider getting it done Thursday.

Friday is a holiday for local financial institutions and governmental offices. All banks and savings and loans will be closed that day, as will City Hall and Scurry County Courthouse.

The post office will take a holiday as well. No mail will be put in boxes or delivered. Regular service will resume Saturday.

Scurry County Library will be closed Friday and through the weekend.

The county museum will open at 10 a.m. Friday with a special exhibit on Brazos image paintings for those out and about during the Fourth of July Celebration.

ASK US

Q—How will the Aug. 9 hospital ballot read?

A—"For" or "Against."

Internet: 'free-trade zone'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Under pressure to quickly build a secure online marketplace for American business, President Clinton pushed Tuesday to make the Internet a "global free-trade zone" and promised to put key patent, privacy and copyright policies in place within 12 months.

"In many ways, electronic commerce is the Wild West of the global economy. Our task is to make sure it's safe and stable terrain," the president said.

He and Vice President Al Gore were hosts for an East Room reception of industry executives to endorse a presidential task force's call for a hands-off, no-new-taxes approach to regulating business transactions on the worldwide computer network.

The Internet "should be a place where government makes every effort ... not to stand in the way, to do no harm," Clinton said.

Later Tuesday, the president signed an information technology agreement that eliminates tariffs on an array of computers, semiconductors and telecommunications technology by 2000. The agreement was reached in March at the World Trade Organization in Geneva.

Clinton said the products represent "essential building blocks" of the information superhighway, and removing tariffs would bring a $5 billion reduction in tariffs on U.S. exports. The United States sells $100 billion information technology each year, supporting nearly 2 million jobs.

Some industry leaders have accused Clinton of moving slowly to secure U.S. interests in the expanding area of Internet commerce. And many remained unhappy Tuesday on various issues, including that the administration has not budged on the restricted sale of encryption devices.

Without clear patent, copyright, privacy and other protections, some American companies and consumers have been leery of online transactions.

That, according to Dennis Tsu, director of electronic commerce for Sun Microsystems, risks the loss of billions of dollars to more aggressive overseas competitors whose governments have already moved to secure electronic commerce.

Even as he welcomed Clinton's nod to industry self-regulation, Tsu said policy decisions were "not happening fast enough. ... We don't feel the United States is necessarily in the lead on this."

Industry analysts expect Internet trade, if left mostly unfettered by government regulation, to reach $200 billion in the United States by 2000.

Diane Smiroldo, spokesman for the Business Software Alliance of 14 major high-technology companies, said her membership was too grateful for self-regulation to grouse about Clinton's pace.

"It's hard to rain on their parade today. We'll just have to give the administration a chance — and the time — to put this in place," she said.

Clinton, who joked that he was struggling to overcome his own "techno-phobia," put Gore in charge of holding bureaucrats to the 12-month deadline.

Following recommendations from a task force led by Ira Magaziner, the architect of Clinton's failed health care overhaul, the president issued 13 specific objectives, including:

—The negotiation of an international agreement making the Internet a tariff-free zone for the sale of products and services.

—The federal purchase of 4 million items online, in order to bring government procurement into the electronic age.

—The development, with help from the Commerce Department and Office of Management and Budget, of industry codes of conduct and technology tools to protect privacy online.

—Assurance from domestic and foreign governments that no new taxes would be levied on Internet transactions.

Grand jury indicts three prison guards

ANSON (AP) — Three prison guards have been indicted on manslaughter charges in the death of an inmate who died a day after scuffling with two of them.

Jones County grand jurors on Monday indicted Sgt. Monte Baker and correctional officers Michael Helms and Bradley Johnson. The trio from the French Robertson Unit could face up to 20 years in prison if convicted of the second-degree felony.

Gary Crenshaw, 31, died Jan. 26, some 29 hours after he lost consciousness during a scuffle with Helms and Johnson. Imprisoned at Robertson for five years, he was serving a 45-year sentence out of Tarrant County for possession of a controlled substance.

Prison officials had maintained Crenshaw became violent during a routine search of his cell and passed out as he was being restrained.

"The grand jury saw it in a different light," prison spokesman Larry Fitzgerald said.

Grand jurors studied videotape of the alleged crime scene and heard testimony from inmates who say they witnessed the incident.

In indicting the guards, grand jurors didn't address the possible use of excessive force, finding only that they failed to seek medical aid for Crenshaw.

The announcement of criminal charges moved Crenshaw's widow, Lisa Ann Courtney, to tears.

"I'm happy as happy can get," she told the Abilene Reporter-News. "All my tears are happy tears. I'm thrilled to death. This took a lot out of me. I just prayed and my prayers came true."

Attorney Bobbie Edmonds, who is representing Ms. Courtney, said the indictments reflect an intolerance for officer misconduct.

"It's like a burden's been lifted," Edmonds said. "We really felt in our hearts there would be indictments. They made the right decision. It was a courageous decision."

In a 40-page lawsuit filed in Abilene federal court last month, Crenshaw's family claims that Helms and Johnson punched and beat him in the head with a metal bar, then denied him immediate, adequate medical attention. The lawsuit further accuses Baker and ex-warden Ron Drewry of conspiring to conceal the crime and cites other officers for failing to intervene in Crenshaw's beating.

Pets Left Alone in Cars Are Thoughtlessly Endangered

DEAR ABBY: It's happening again! What is the matter with people? Year after year, pet owners leave their poor animals in hot cars. It is so hard for me to understand how they could be so lacking in common sense.

I'm enclosing a clipping from the Albany, N.Y., Times Union describing our first reported case. It was an 80-degree day and the poor dog was left in a closed car for 70 minutes!

I live near a tourist area, and every summer people visit the outlet malls and leave their dogs in the car with a window only slightly cracked. This infuriates me!

Please, Abby, tell your many readers to either leave their pets at home, or have one person remain in the car with the pet while the others shop. A simple rule of thumb is: If you can't sit in your car with the windows cracked for 5, 10 or 15 minutes because you're too hot, then so is your dog, who's wearing a fur coat. And remember, a day can be breezy and feel cool, but the sun is still very hot and can heat up a car in a matter of minutes.

Thanks, Abby, for helping to take care of these defenseless animals.

ALBANY, N.Y., ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR ANIMAL LOVER: Thank you for a letter that may save some thoughtless pet owner a good deal of grief.

The Animal Protection Institute, P.O. Box 22505, Sacramento, Calif. 95822, sells cards that can be placed under the windshield wipers on the cars of thoughtless pet owners.

The printed message reads: "Your dog may be dying! We understand you meant to be kind by taking your dog with you today, but you could be risking your pet's life.

"On a hot summer day, the inside of a car heats up very quickly. On an average 85-degree day, for example, the temperature inside your car — with the window slightly opened — will reach 102 degrees in 10 minutes. In 30 minutes it will go up to 120 degrees. On warmer days, it will go even higher.

"A dog's normal body temperature is 101.5 to 102.2 degrees Fahrenheit. A dog can withstand a body temperature of 107 to 108 degrees Fahrenheit for only a very short time before suffering irreparable brain damage — or even death. The closed car interferes with the dog's normal cooling process, that is, evaporation through panting.

"If your dog is overcome by heat exhaustion, you can give immediate first aid by immersing him or her in cold water until the body temperature is lowered."

These cards sell for only $3 per 100. Allow 6 to 8 weeks for delivery.

DEAR ABBY: We received this letter the night before our daughter's wedding. It was Linda's gift to us. If you have room in your column, I am sure it will touch many people's hearts, as it did ours.

"Dearest Parents: On our wedding day, as my husband and I take our vows and make promises to each other, I make this promise to you as well. Even as I take him into my heart and life, I promise to keep you, parents dear, in my heart and life always.

"On this day, know that our love is not divided; it is multiplied, and you are embraced with the full measure of love and promises that he and I share here today.

"For I know that I am able to love and cherish him so much because you loved and cherished me first."

BLOSSOM R. HOLLANDER, LOS ANGELES

DEAR BLOSSOM: What a beautiful tribute to you and your husband as parents, and to your daughter as well. Congratulations — you raised a winner.

Union would oust bad teachers

ATLANTA (AP) — The nation's largest teachers union is considering endorsing a policy that once would have been unthinkable: letting teachers help schools get rid of bad instructors.

With schools and teachers under increasing pressure to improve performance, the National Education Association is trying to head off moves by states to dismantle decades-old tenure laws that critics say have protected lazy and incompetent teachers.

Just this week, Oregon lawmakers voted to replace their tenure law, and several other states are wrestling with the issue.

The 2.3 million-member NEA, which is holding its annual meeting in Atlanta this week, defends tenure laws but acknowledges some streamlining is called for. And the union would rather deal with the tenure problem without eliminating the laws entirely.

The NEA also is worried about poor public confidence in schools, and wants to change its image from that of an industrial union concerned primarily with wages, hours and working conditions.

"We have a strong interest in having the best possible people in every classroom and building," said John Grossman, head of the Columbus (Ohio) Education Association.

Later this week NEA convention members will consider a resolution that would free local unions to let teachers help fire their underperforming colleagues.

Officially, the NEA has opposed peer review since 1986, saying it puts teachers in a management role. But peer review has been in place in Columbus for 11 years. Toledo, Ohio, whose teachers are represented by another union, the American Federation of Teachers, pioneered the notion in the state 12 years ago. Cincinnati, an AFT city, has had one for 10 years.

Other cities and counties nationwide are trying it.

Not the right captain ... or admiral

Lord Nelson wouldn't have made a good bridge player, at least not in his Battle of Copenhagen mode, when he said, "I have only one eye; I have a right to be blind sometimes — I really do not see the signal."

Good defense requires the defenders to signal and to pay attention and to draw the right conclusions. Today's deal is a simple example, but some pairs go wrong because they don't signal or watch or count.

West leads the spade two against three no-trump. With seven winners (one spade, one heart and five clubs), South needs two diamond tricks — apparently an impossible assignment.

South should win the first trick (if the lead of the two is honest, the suit must be splitting 4-3, and South doesn't want a heart switch) and lead a diamond immediately. (Cashing the club tricks first gives even the sleepiest opponents extra information.)

West must duck and note his partner's two. Being East's lowest diamond, this shows an odd number of cards in the suit. If it is a singleton, West cannot kill the diamond suit, because declarer will have four. So, West assumes the two is from a three-card holding. This means South started with two diamonds (5-3-3-2). West wins the second round of diamonds with his ace, cashes his spade winners, and exits with a heart (or club), defeating the contract.

Some Wests would duck two rounds of diamonds on a how-can-it-cost basis. They learn the error of their ways when South immediately runs for home.

Eight are stung by swarming bees

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Officials say a lawn-mowing crew apparently set off thousands of angry, swarming bees that took police and firefighters two hours to subdue.

Several ambulances and fire trucks were dispatched during the emergency in a west San Antonio neighborhood Tuesday afternoon, and police cordoned off four blocks and warned everyone to stay indoors. Command posts were set up on the side streets.

At least eight people, including a 12-year-old girl, were stung, but all sting victims were treated by emergency medical technicians at the scene. There were no serious injuries, officials said.

The bees came from an abandoned lumber yard near an alley on Cecilia and Calaveras streets, fire department officials said.

Yolanda Alviso, 14, who lives across the street from a house where one attack took place, told the San Antonio Express-News that three men were using a lawn mower to cut the grass. She said they suddenly started swatting themselves and yelling.

"We were looking when all the bees were on the man. He was all freaked out. He was putting water on him. He looked scared," Alviso said. "I don't know what happened, but all the bees came out."

The man who seemed to get the most stings was mowing grass, Alviso said.

Angela Castillo Escobar, who lives down the street, said the man pushing the lawn mower took off his shirt and used it to swat the bees.

"I was outside when the man was stung," Ms. Escobar said. "I won't be afraid as long as I stay inside, but it's dangerous (outside)."

Julie Trujillo, 14, and several friends were walking on West Martin Street when they heard a loud buzzing sound, she said.

"We saw a man in a corner hitting himself. He had bees all over," Miss Trujillo said. "We went to check what was wrong with him. But it was buzz, buzz, buzz. They were big, huge."

Daniel Esparza said he rushed outside after hearing children yelling. He said 12-year-old Denise Talamantez ran to him crying for help.

He immediately applied mud to the sting on her forehead, he said.

Miss Talamantez said her harrowing experience began with a casual walk down the street. Then she "heard a buzz in my ear," she said.

Esparza said a man and woman were frantically running in the neighborhood.

In Disney...

Texas is urged to dump stock

AUSTIN (AP) — A conservative religious group is urging Texas to dump $27.5 million in Walt Disney Co. stock because of "violent, obscene music" produced by Disney subsidiary Hollywood Records.

The American Family Association, citing a controversial new provision in the state budget passed by the Legislature last month, says the State Board of Education should sell Disney holdings now in the Permanent School Fund.

The move was to be announced at an Austin news conference today.

The education board oversees the $14 billion school fund, an investment and trust fund for Texas public schools.

"I don't believe the citizens of Texas should be subsidizing the destruction of their own children," association President Wyatt Roberts told the Austin American-Statesman. "Walt Disney stock ... is promoting violent, obscene music."

Roberts and other association members are upset about Hollywood Records releases by heavy metal and rap bands. Among the company's artists is Danzig, a heavy metal band that Roberts said uses satanic lyrics.

It was only two weeks ago that the Southern Baptist Convention, meeting in Dallas, voted to boycott Disney because the group claims the company is too friendly toward homosexuals.

A Disney spokesman told the newspaper that the entertainment giant is being unfairly targeted.

"We have shown by our actions what our intentions are, what our standards are and what direction we are going," said John Dreyer, head of corporate communications for Disney. "We are paying very close attention to what we release under any of our labels."

Snyder all-stars go 2-1 in district tournaments

Snyder 9, Baird 2

ABILENE — Snyder's 11- and 12-year-old all-stars blasted Baird Tuesday night, 14-0, in the District 5 All-star Tournament.

Snyder pounced on Baird early, sending 11 hitters to the plate and scoring eight runs in the bottom of the first.

Chance Greenwood led off with a single and Billy Pena followed with a double.

Then with two men on, Brady Reed belted a three-run shot to start the scoring.

But Snyder wasn't done with the longball. Three batters later, Jed Tyler busted a home run with a man aboard and pushed the lead to 5-0.

After going three up and three down in the second, Snyder scored six more runs in the third.

Jed Martin led off with a triple and came home after three more hitters reached base on two errors and a walk.

Greenwood then collected his second single of the night, bringing Pena to the plate.

Ahead 2-0 in the count, Pena blasted another Snyder home run and raised the tally to 14-0.

Along with his two hits, Greenwood fanned nine Albany batters. Twice he struck out the side and faced only 14 hitters in four innings.

Snyder takes the field again Friday night at 6 at Abilene's Dixie Little League Complex.

Snyder 14, Baird 0
Snyder: Pena, home run and double; Reed and Martin, home run; Tyler Trout, triple; Greenwood, two singles; Logan Hill, Eric Dickerhoff, Colby Driggers and Clay Williams, single.

Snyder 10, Albany 9

Snyder's 9- and 10-year-old all-stars will now be known as the come-back kids.

Snyder scored five runs in the top of the sixth to force an extra inning in its 10-9 victory over Albany Tuesday night at Logan Field.

Snyder jumped to an early lead, scoring twice in the top of the first and holding Albany to only one run in the bottom.

But Albany came roaring back, pushing across one run in the second, three in the third and four in the fifth while Snyder could muster only two more runs entering the sixth.

Trailing 9-4, Snyder had five players cross home plate in the top of the sixth to tie the game.

The defense then came through, keeping the score knotted and forcing the extra frame.

Snyder could squeeze out only one run in the top of the seventh.

It proved to be enough though, as Albany failed to score in the bottom of the inning.

Snyder will play its next game Monday night at 8 against the winner of tonight's Colorado City-Coleman winner.

Snyder 10, Albany 9
Snyder: Cade Simpson, double and three runs; Zach Garcia, two singles; Bradley Price, single and two runs; Caleb Gutierrez, single and one run; Cade Owen and Colton Long, single; Clint Cooper, two runs; Garrett Pinson and Wyl Wiggins, one run.

Abilene 9, Snyder 2

Abilene Senior all-stars defeated Snyder, 9-2, Tuesday night in the Senior League All-star Tournament at Moffett Field.

The game remained scoreless through two innings as Snyder pitcher Sonny Cumbie made short work of the Abilene line-up with three strikeouts.

Abilene then posted two runs in the third on an RBI single by Ross Short and a double off the left field wall by Josh Adams.

In the top of the fourth, Abilene pitcher Casey Clinton knocked a two-RBI single to center to push the lead to 4-0.

Matthew Grimmett led off the Snyder fourth with an infield single and advanced to second on a base hit to right by Josh Arizmendi.

Next up, Justin Rosson laid down a bunt and Snyder now had runners on second and third with only one out.

Randy Green then sacrificed to left field and Grimmett tagged-up to beat the throw home.

However, Arizmendi broke for third base on the throw to the plate and was tagged out.

Snyder's only other run came in the fifth when Josh Ward drew a walk, stole second and took third on a wild pitch.

Two batters later, Adam Beck blasted a 1-0 pitch right at the short stop who could not field it cleanly, and Ward scored on the error.

Snyder now faces Colorado City at 6 tonight in an elimination game at Moffett Field.

Abilene 9, Snyder 2
Snyder: Grimmett, two singles; Arizmendi, Ward and Adam Beck, single.

Dodgers slap Rangers, 6-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eric Karros and Mike Piazza have provided the Los Angeles Dodgers with quite a 1-2 punch since the beginning of June. Unfortunately, it hasn't done them much good.

"Mike and I had about as good a month as we're going to have, and I think we were below .500," Karros said after hitting two homers to lead the Dodgers to a 6-3 victory over the Texas Rangers on Tuesday night, getting July off to a good start.

"It takes 25 guys, not one or two. You win as a group and you lose as a group."

The Dodgers were 13-16 in June and haven't been above the .500 mark since June 1. Now, they're 40-42 with five games remaining before the All-Star break. They begin a two-game series at Anaheim tonight.

"I'm just glad to win a game, that's all," Karros said. "Wins have been few and far between. We knew the other (NL West) teams had lost, so we gained some ground. That's the important thing."

The Dodgers entered the game having lost six of their previous nine outings.

Karros, who had a total of 66 homers during the last two seasons, hit nine in June and has driven in 33 runs in his last 37 games.

Piazza hit .431 in June and also had nine homers as well as 25 RBIs and a major league-leading 47 hits.

Alomar helps Indians rally past Houston, 8-6

HOUSTON (AP) — Sandy Alomar Jr. and the Cleveland Indians were almost down to their last chance against the Houston Astros.

Alomar came to the plate 0-for-3 and delivered a hit for the 27th game and Matt Williams and Tony Fernandez each had two-run hits, as the Indians rallied in the seventh inning for an 8-6 victory Tuesday night.

"Streaks are just things that happen, if you're on a streak, you just manage to get a hit," Alomar said. "It helps. When you're 0-and-3 and coming to the plate and you know it's your last chance, it really makes you bear down."

Alomar's 27-game streak tied John Flaherty for the second-longest hitting streak for a catcher in major league history. Benito Santiago holds the record of 34 straight games in 1987, and Flaherty had a 27-game streak at San Diego last season.

"There's not many games like this one," Alomar said. "We've seen a few where you make an error and everything starts falling apart."

The Astros scored five runs in the fifth inning to take a 6-3 lead. The rally started when Tim Bogar hit a line drive down the right-field line that rolled under the bullpen bench. Manny Ramirez appeared to believe it was a ground-rule double, and Bogar kept running for an inside-the-park homer.

"It was kind of nice to see the ball stay under the seat," Bogar said. "That's part of interleague play. Those guys didn't seem to understand the ground rules.

WIMBLEDON, Englar... — The Union Jack was high at Wimbledon today, two British men in the quar... first men's champion since 19... "Henmania" reached ne... heights when Tim Henma... knocked out defending champion Richard Krajicek in the fourth round.

In a match that was suspended Tuesday after three sets, Henman needed just 36 minutes to complete a 7-6 (9-7), 6-7 (7-9), 7-6 (7-5), 6-4 victory before 13,000 wildly cheering and chanting Centre Court fans.

With fellow Brit Greg Rusedski already in the quarterfinals. it's the first time two British men have reached the final eight since Mike Sangster and Bobby Wilson did it in 1961.

Henman is the first British player to beat the defending Wimbledon champion since Roger Taylor downed Rod Laver in the fourth round in 1970.

In another men's fourth-round match that resumed today, top-seeded Pete Sampras was stretched to five sets by Petr Korda before completing a 6-4, 6-3, 6-7 (8-10), 6-7 (1-7), 6-4 victory.

Sampras advanced to the quarterfinals against fellow three-time champion Boris Becker, a match that many view as worthy of the final. Sampras leads 10-7 in career meetings, including victories in their two previous matches at Wimbledon.

Among the women, Martina Hingis, Anna Kournikova and Jana Novotna reached the semifinals, with the last spot settled in the match between Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Nathalie Tauziat.

Sampras, picking up at 6-4, 4-2, appeared headed to a straight-set win when he quickly finished off the second set. But Korda fought back to win the next two sets in tiebreakers, saving two match points in the third. After winning the sets, he celebrated by doing scissor kicks.

Sampras broke in the first game of the fifth set and lost only two points on serve the rest of the way, finishing the match with his 28th ace. Sampras was never broken during the match.

"I could have made it a lot easier on myself," Sampras said.

Interest expected to remain constant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve policy-makers appear willing to let the economy's good times roll into the summer without a dampening dose of higher interest rates.

That's the widespread view among economists, even though some are uneasy and believe a modest increase in short-term rates would do little harm and would help prevent inflation from accelerating later this year and next.

"Borrowers will be happy to know that the Fed appears to be taking a summer vacation from interest-rate adjustments," said economist Tim O'Neill of Harris Bank/Bank of Montreal.

Members of the central bank's Federal Open Market Committee were finishing a two-day meeting today. They were expected to signal no change in the federal funds rate, the benchmark rate on overnight loans between banks.

The Fed rattled Wall Street after its March 25 meeting by raising the rate a quarter percentage point, to 5.5 percent. It was the first increase in two years. But at its May 20 meeting, it opted to leave the rate alone.

Since then, nearly everything seems to be falling into place to buy policy-makers at least a little more time to watch and wait. Inflation has decelerated even though the economy expanded at a rapid 5.9 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year, the fastest pace in nearly a decade, and unemployment dropped to 4.8 percent in May, nearly a 24-year low.

Falling energy prices held consumer inflation to a scant 1.4 percent annual rate during the first five months of this year, down from 3.3 percent for all of last year. Even stripping out volatile food and energy costs, the inflation rate is just 2.6 percent so far this year, the same as last year.

Interest expected to remain constant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve policy-makers appear willing to let the economy's good times roll into the summer without a dampening dose of higher interest rates.

That's the widespread view among economists, even though some are uneasy and believe a modest increase in short-term rates would do little harm and would help prevent inflation from accelerating later this year and next.

"Borrowers will be happy to know that the Fed appears to be taking a summer vacation from interest-rate adjustments," said economist Tim O'Neill of Harris Bank/Bank of Montreal.

Members of the central bank's Federal Open Market Committee were finishing a two-day meeting today. They were expected to signal no change in the federal funds rate, the benchmark rate on overnight loans between banks.

The Fed rattled Wall Street after its March 25 meeting by raising the rate a quarter percentage point, to 5.5 percent. It was the first increase in two years. But at its May 20 meeting, it opted to leave the rate alone.

Since then, nearly everything seems to be falling into place to buy policy-makers at least a little more time to watch and wait. Inflation has decelerated even though the economy expanded at a rapid 5.9 percent annual rate in the first three months of the year, the fastest pace in nearly a decade, and unemployment dropped to 4.8 percent in May, nearly a 24-year low.

Falling energy prices held consumer inflation to a scant 1.4 percent annual rate during the first five months of this year, down from 3.3 percent for all of last year. Even stripping out volatile food and energy costs, the inflation rate is just 2.6 percent so far this year, the same as last year.

Fish parasites aren't harmful to consumer

COLLEGE STATION — Black spots or worm-like cysts on fish skin may not be appetizing, but with proper cleaning and cooking techniques, these fish are safe to eat, according to Dr. Jim Davis, Texas Agricultural Extension Service fish specialist.

"Fish do have parasites, just like all other animals," Davis said. "A parasite does a fish some harm, but most do not kill the fish unless they are present in very large numbers."

A parasite is any animal that lives on or in another animal or plant and obtains its food and shelter from that host, Davis explained. Though there are many parasites found on or just under the skin of fish, the two most often seen by Texas anglers are yellow grub or black grub.

He said people can safely consume fish infected with either of these grubs, provided that the flesh is thoroughly cooked.

"If you are concerned about the looks of the fish flesh," Davis added, "you can cut out the parasites if there are not too many."

The yellow grub, what leads some people to call a fish "wormy," infects most fresh water fish but is usually found in ponds with high populations or crowded conditions caused by falling water levels.

"When an angler finds the worms, they are usually in a cyst just beneath the skin," Davis said. "From the outside, it appears as a bulge near the fins or tail. When cut out of the fish, they are yellowish or white and about one-fourth-inch long."

Davis said the yellow grub's life cycle is complicated. The adults live in the mouths or throats of fish-eating birds such as herons. The grub eggs, which are shed into water while birds feed, hatch and swim around to find a snail. After boring into the snail, the larvae lives there until it is eaten by a fish. Once in the fish, it matures and remains encysted until it is eaten by a bird to begin the cycle again.

Black grubs actually are neither grubs nor black, Davis noted. These tiny animals are actually flukes that are white but look like a black spot on fish.

"What an angler really is seeing is the pigment deposited around the grub," Davis said.

The black grub's life cycle is similar to the yellow grub except the parasite passes through a bird's intestines after an infected fish is eaten. The adult lays eggs which pass into the water with the bird droppings. The black grub larvae continues its life in a snail just as the yellow grub does.

"It is possible to rid a pond of these parasites, but it is not very easy or practical," Davis said. "If you prevent all fish-eating birds from entering the pond or rid the pond of all snails, the problem would go away."

But, he said, birds move from pond to pond and carry the parasites with them. LIkewise, it would be difficult to get rid of all snails.

"What this means is that people will sometimes catch a fish with one or more of these parasites," Davis said. "The worms are not generally a problem to the fish, and after the fish is cleaned and fully cooked, it is completely safe to eat."

Crop Report

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Thrips and boll weevils are trying the patience of Central and West Texas cotton farmers, with high insect pressure from these pests reports the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports

"The thrip problem is a combination of the weather and other factors," Nancy Roe of Stephenville, Extension horticulturist said. "It may depend on the fall weather more than anything."

Extension agent Dale Mott of Williamson County said boll weevils have been a big problem in Central Texas this year.

"We have had high incidences of boll weevils to deal with in our cotton crops," Mott said. "With the increased number of these pests, it could be a real tough year."

Mott said the longer it takes to treat the boll weevils, the more chance there is to have outbreaks of other pests.

Extension entomologist Emory Boring of Vernon said the cotton crop is struggling due to high winds and damage from thrips and boll weevils.

"Boll weevils have moved into some fields that are now squaring, but most fields have been treated and will not have too much damage," Boring said.

According to Boring the only heavy damage occurred in several untreated research plots.

He said that although thrips delay cotton early in the season, crops will not suffer economically if fields are treated.

"Cotton seems to be growing away from thrips more rapidly as temperatures increase," Boring said.

The Panhandle has also experienced problems with boll weevils. Extension director Bob Robinson of Amarillo said the number of overwintered boll weevils in the area is excessive and treatments were necessary.

"We have already made a couple of insecticide applications for boll weevils in some areas," Robinson said.

Both Roe and Mott said last fall's weather played an important part in the build up of thrips and boll weevils this year.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: soil moisture short to adequate. Ranges good to excellent. Cattle good to excellent. Corn good. Cotton fair; overwintered boll weevil numbers high. Sorghum planting nearing completion. Wheat yields, test weights highly variable.

SOUTH PLAINS: soil moisture adequate to surplus. Pastures, ranges in good condition. Cotton squaring under way. Sorghum, sunflower, soybean planting nearing completion. Harvesting of wheat, onion crops under way.

ROLLING PLAINS: soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges fair to good. Cattle good. Cotton crop struggling as high winds, thrips, boll weevil problems persist. Peanuts fair to good. Wheat harvest nearing completion. Summer hay crop producing good yields.

NORTH TEXAS: soil moisture adequate. Pastures fair to excellent. Cattle good. Corn crop behind schedule due to late planting, dry conditions. Oat harvest complete. Blight being reported on tomatoes. Pecans fair; webworms reported on native, landscape trees.

EAST TEXAS: soil moisture adequate. Pastures good. Cattle good. Peanut, sorghum planting complete. Corn fair to good. Rain increasing disease, insect problems on vegetable harvests. Peaches good to excellent; some brown rot being reported.

FAR WEST TEXAS: soil moisture short to adequate. Pastures, ranges good to excellent. Cattle fair to good. Poor pollination, casebearers persist on pecans. Cotton damaged by fleapoppers; overwintered weevil treatment being applied. Sorghum harvest under way.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: soil moisture adequate to surplus. Pastures, ranges good. Livestock in good condition. Oat yields excellent, but rains have slowed harvest. Peanut crops damaged by flooding. Peach harvest under way; light casebearer infestation.

CENTRAL TEXAS: soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges excellent. Cattle in good condition; market remains steady. Peanut planting under way. Corn, sorghum yields excellent. Soybean midge persists in many fields.

SOUTHEAST TEXAS: soil moisture adequate. Scattered showers making conditions mild, humid. Corn crop. Hay harvest under way; insect, disease problems persist. Insect pressure on vegetables. Some late soybean planting under way.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: soil moisture adequate. Pastures, ranges good. Livestock good. Bumper yields for grain, cotton, hay forecasted.

Hong Kong gives assurances

HONG KONG (AP) — Tung Chee-hwa, in his first news conference as Hong Kong's new leader, today gave fresh assurances about Hong Kong's freedoms and again pledged to hold elections by mid-1998.

The territory, which came under the Chinese flag Tuesday, "will have a high degree of autonomy for a long, long, long time," Tung said. Under terms of the handover, the former British colony will maintain its capitalist system and way of life for 50 years.

Facing 400 foreign and Hong Kong journalists, the 60-year-old shipping tycoon fielded questions for an hour in English, Cantonese and Mandarin.

Appearing relaxed and affable, he tossed off occasional one-liners — "That's getting to be a barrage," he quipped after one lengthy question.

Just as smoothly, he sidestepped a few sensitive questions, such as whether legal action would be taken against democratic lawmakers who defied the government and made handover-night protest speeches from the balcony of the legislative building.

Hong Kong's elected legislature was replaced by a body set up by China. Tung today again promised elections by June 30, but declined to specify the month.

Asked how Hong Kong's 6.3 million people and mainland China's 1.2 billion can trust each other, Tung said Hong Kong must "get to know our own country better" but shouldn't feel obliged to "humor or accommodate" China.

"There will be conflicts, and obviously they will need to be talked through in order to make sure that our interests are looked after," he said. "But the important thing is that our long-term interests are very similar."

The new government's tolerance of dissent was tested Tuesday when 3,000 pro-democracy protesters marched on a main thoroughfare. Police did not interfere; in fact they carefully cleared traffic so the march could proceed.

"Would I do it this way? Obviously not," Tung said of the protest. "I would have thought of a better way of communicating."

He added: "Demonstrations, so long as they are lawful ... can go right ahead."

China's president, Jiang Zemin, sought Tuesday in a nationally televised speech to hold up Hong Kong as a model for Taiwan if it, too, returns to Chinese rule. Beijing hopes success in Hong Kong will lure Taiwan's rival nationalist government into talks on reunification.

Today was the last day of a five-day handover holiday in Hong Kong, and was supposed to have featured a final burst of open-air festivities. It rained on Hong Kong's parade.

A planned procession of floats was canceled due to the storms, which caused floods and landslides and injured at least eight people. This is the summer monsoon season and heavy rainfall is frequent.

On Thursday, it will be back to business in this commercial center, and the reopening of financial markets will be a likely indicator of investor confidence in Hong Kong's future. Stocks closed at a record high Friday.

The U.S. administration, meanwhile, reminded China it will be watching closely to see whether Beijing honors its promise of a high degree of autonomy for Hong Kong.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said the Clinton administration "would not look warmly" on any broken promises, but added that Washington welcomes the new government's plans to hold elections in 1998.

In its second day of Chinese sovereignty, Hong Kong was underscoring in ways large and small that a new era has begun.

With China's foreign minister Qian Qichen looking on, Tung presented medals to a dozen people for service to Hong Kong. Only three days ago, similar honors were bestowed by Britain, the colonial power for 156 years.

Recipients — honored for, among other things, fostering "a love for the motherland" — included Englishwoman Elsie Tu, 83, once the bane of the colonial government for her crusades on behalf of Hong Kong's poor.

Parents unruly at graduation

EL PASO (AP) — Hitting, shoving and yelling might be expected at a pre-kindergarten graduation. But usually the parents aren't the culprits.

Police and security guards were called in Tuesday to control a melee that erupted when hundreds of parents and relatives were barred from attending the Ysleta Independent School District ceremony.

City fire marshals wouldn't allow them into Bel Air High School because the auditorium had been filled to its 1,700 capacity. Ceremonies were cut short when irate parents shoved their way in and some became violent.

"They told us some people were fighting outside. I don't think that was very nice," said 5-year-old Amanda Ortega, who was given an explanation for the chaos by teachers handing out diplomas in classrooms.

A police captain called it a "rough kindergarten party."

No arrests or injuries were reported, but most of the 800 children were unable to receive their diploma certificate or sing the song they had prepared: "The World is a Rainbow."

GOP, Democrats squabble over tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — While savoring victory in getting tax cuts through both houses of Congress, Republicans are proceeding cautiously to the next stage — with a close eye on public opinion polls. They don't want to get outmaneuvered again by President Clinton.

The Republican National Committee paid three GOP polling firms for a survey of voter attitudes. The results were hardly encouraging to the RNC: Nearly half of those surveyed said they believed GOP tax cuts were biased toward the rich.

"There's definitely concern that whatever plan the Republicans put together is going to benefit the wealthy," said Glen Bolger, one of the pollsters.

The results of the internal poll matched those of several recent nationwide surveys in demonstrating a widely held view that GOP tax plans favored the affluent.

For twice-burned Republicans, the last thing they want is for Clinton to veto the final measure — expected later this summer once House and Senate differences are reconciled — on grounds of rewarding the rich.

That would enable the president and congressional Democrats to seize the tactical high ground, as they did successfully in the 1995-96 government shutdowns and in recent political gamesmanship over disaster relief.

"Republicans are especially wary of being suckered on this one," said Thomas E. Mann, director of governmental studies at the Brookings Institution. "They will do everything they think is necessary to get the president to sign the bill, then claim credit for authoring it."

Republican strategists said one lesson from the fiasco last month in which Republicans took the heat for delaying disaster aid was to develop a consistent message — and to drive it home.

The present message, which Republicans are repeating in lock step, is that three-quarters of the tax cuts in the GOP plan would go to those earning less than $70,000 a year.

NRC chairman Jim Nicholson said in an interview that the internal GOP polling was not all bad news.

When those surveyed were given more information on the contents of the GOP proposal, such as its $500-per-child tax credit, the polling numbers improved, he said.

Those saying the plan favored the rich dropped from 48 percent to 26 percent. Thirty-one percent said the GOP plan would benefit the middle class, up from 16 percent when the question was first asked; and 36 said it would benefit "everybody," up from 23 percent, Nicholson said.

Still, Nicholson said, Republicans must work hard to overcome the stereotype that they favor the rich. "That's our challenge and that's our job," he said.

Recent independent polls have also reinforced that decades-old image.

A USA Today/CNN/Gallup Poll on Tuesday showed that people have more confidence in Clinton than in Republicans to handle taxes and other economic issues. In the poll, 52 percent said the GOP plan favored the rich.

A Wall Street Journal/NBC News poll last week suggested Americans preferred Democratic ingredients for a tax cut to the Republican plans by almost a 2-1 ratio.

Manual cutoffs for airbags supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association promises a national education campaign on the proper use of airbag on-off switches if federal regulators allow consumers to install the devices.

In a letter Tuesday to the Clinton administration's Office of Management and Budget, the group said it supported manual cutoff switches for air bags and would inform its 40 million members and other motorists about how to use them.

In response to a public outcry over deaths from deploying air bags, officials at the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration are considering allowing the retrofitted cutoff switches.

Federal regulators also have proposed allowing mechanics to disconnect an air bag for any consumer who wishes it.

Air bags have been blamed for the deaths of 40 children and infants and 27 adults in low-speed accidents they otherwise should have survived, according to government records.

AAA President Robert L. Darbelnet said cutoff switches would give consumers the flexibility of turning the air bag on or off depending on who is in the front seat.

Automakers are split on whether they support the idea. Some companies favor it as a flexible option; others argue the switch might be misused or cost too much.

Automakers agree any decision on how to deactivate air bags should be left up to individual companies.

The AAA announcement comes at a time when auto industry officials and insurers are appealing to Clinton administration officials to drop the plan to allow consumers to disconnect air bags.

Industry groups argue air bags are beneficial for the vast majority of passengers. The devices have saved more than 2,000 lives, according to government estimates.

Sally Katzen, head of the section of the OMB that is reviewing the agency rule before it becomes final, met Tuesday with automakers, dealers, insurers, consumer groups and air-bag suppliers.

Snyderite stands tall down under

SYDNEY, Australia — In 1915, soliders of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps invaded the Gallipoli Peninsula in southern Turkey in a campaign designed to knock Turkey out of World War I.

Many of those soldiers — dubbed Anzacs by army clerks — lost their lives in severe fighting.

Nearly 82 years later, 30 sailors from the Navy Destroyer USS Merrill marched in a parade in Sydney, honoring the sacrifices those veterans made.

One of those was Petty Officer 3rd Class Vernon L. Bailey, 22-year-old son-in-law of Jon Kitchens of Border and Paula Williams of Snyder.

Bailey, a three-year Navy veteran is a communications electrician whose job is to maintain and repair equipment needed for internal ship communications.

Bailey was among 200 U.S. sailors who marched in the parade. The Merrill, an 8,000-ton Spruance class destroyer, was on a scheduled port visit to Sydney during Anzac Day. The ship and crew are conducting a six-month deployment to the Arabian Gulf with the USS Constellation Battle Group, where they are enforcing U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

Anzac Day, celebrated April 25, honors the veterans of the Austrailian and New Zealand Army Corps. Although "Anzac" was coined in World War I, it has come to refer to all veterans who served with the Corps during 20th century conflicts.

Points to consider in rhinoplasty

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am interested in obtaining a nose job. How do I go about this and whom do I see?

DEAR READER: Most qualified plastic surgeons or ear, nose and throat specialists are trained to perform a rhinoplasty. In large part, the cost depends on the extent of surgery.

If you believe that your nose is too large and you want to reduce its size, the operation can be extensive — and quite expensive. Moreover, since this would be purely a cosmetic procedure, most insurance companies would not pay for it: You'd be out of pocket.

On the other hand, if your nose is deformed and is causing ill health, a reconstruction may be less involved and less costly — and your insurance might cover it. For example, if you had broken your nose and have trouble breathing through it, or have a badly deviated septum (the thin plate of cartilage separating the nostrils), which makes you prone to sinus infections, you could justify a rhinoplasty for non-cosmetic reasons.

Therefore, I recommend that you ask your family physician for a referral to an appropriate specialist, who can assess the need for surgery, explain the procedure in detail and advise you about the cost.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach to Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have had trigeminal neuralgia for more than a year. Despite the use of Tegretol and Depakote, I still have pain. Is there something more I can do?

DEAR READER: Trigeminal neuralgia, also known as tic douloureux, is a nerve disorder marked by frequent and excruciating paroxysms of pain over the trigeminal nerve in the lips, cheek or chin. Appearing usually in middle age, the pain is often stimulated by trigger points; for example, brushing the teeth may bring it on.

The cause is unknown, although some neurologists believe that the pain may be the result of pressure by swollen blood vessels on the nerve. Rarely, a tumor (diagnosed by MRI scanning) may be to blame.

Tegretol, a prescription drug used to prevent convulsions, effectively relieves the pain in 75 percent of cases. Depakote, another anti-convulsant, may also be useful.

Apparently, you are one of the 25 percent of patients who do not respond to drug therapy. Therefore, you are a candidate for surgery. The operation consists of decompressing the nerve (removing the tissue around it) or severing it. Ask your doctor to refer you to a neurosurgeon.
