After November elections

Extra session predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is asking Congress to return for a lame-duck session after the November elections to finish work on spending bills needed to keep the government running.

Democratic leaders were cool to the idea of a post-election session. But they agreed with Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker's contention that Reagan's stance probably now makes one inevitable.

"I don't see how you can avoid it," said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

The lame-duck session, which would be only the fifth held in the last 30 years, will likely begin right after Thanksgiving, leaders said.

In a letter to House and Senate leaders, Reagan on Thursday signaled his opposition to using another stopgap bill to keep government agencies functioning with the start of the new fiscal year on Oct. 1.

But even as Reagan is issuing his warning, the House Appropriations Committee late Thursday readied such a catch-all bill designed to provide temporary funding for the government.

None of the 13 regular appropriations bills to fund the government in fiscal 1983 has yet been approved by Congress, although two of them — housing and military construction — recently have passed the House.

The stopgap measure — called a "continuing resolution" — would take care of these agencies until their regular appropriations could be enacted.

Previously, the outgoing 97th Congress planned to quit for the year on Oct. 8, leaving the job of finishing the appropriations process to the new 98th Congress which will be seated in January.

But Reagan balked.

He told congressional leaders that he appreciated that "with the November elections ahead, the Congress is anxious to recess in early October." But running the government with stopgap legislation "amounts to both bad economics and bad management," he said.

Baker, R-Tenn., read portions of Reagan's letter on the Senate floor and told colleagues: "I believe we will have to come back under these circumstances," most likely on Nov. 29.

Baker said he considered it unlikely that Congress could finish work on the 13 appropriations bills before the elections.

Reagan told the congress-sional leaders that if a stopgap spending bill is necessary, it should cover

Chamber discusses center, dumping

The chamber's role in the Special Events Center project and its position on the county being used for some nuclear waste dump sites were discussed when Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce directors held a monthly meeting Thursday afternoon.

President Bill Johnson pointed out that the chamber "has accomplished its job on the Special Events Center project," and now it is in the hands of the SEC committee and the people.

"The chamber initiated the feasibility study after several surveys had shown an interest in such facilities, and that study was completed," Johnson said the SEC committee is now proceeding according to plan, without expending funds, to develop the plans for such a facility.

The SEC committee includes two members of the chamber's Past Presidents' committee, along with two representatives from each governmental unit — city, county and school.

At the last directors' meeting, the board had asked the Governmental Affairs committee and the Health and Safety committee to consider an educational program or survey of members on the question of using Deaf Smith County for nuclear waste sites.

The committee suggested the possibility of a survey being printed in the chamber bulletin, but the board decided that citizens needed more information. Johnson pointed out that the chamber has been presenting programs on the matter, "while attempting to remain neutral on the question." Directors agreed the chamber should continue in that role.

In other business Thursday, the board heard reports on the Fun Breakfast, Town &

Vanderbilt gets stay of execution

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A rural road about 11 hours after she failed to pick up her mother from Palo Duro High School. Vanderbilt was arrested about 10 hours after Miss Moyer was found.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice agreed Thursday to delay the execution of Jimmy Paul Vanderbilt, pending consideration of a writ of habeas corpus. Justice gave the state 60 days to show why Vanderbilt's writ application should not be granted.

Vanderbilt's attorney argued a court-appointed psychiatrist failed to tell his client that the examination could be used by the state in seeking the death penalty.

Earlier this month, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals denied a writ of habeas corpus that had been issued in state court.

"We were then free to go to the federal court system, after having exhausted our remedies in state court," said B. Warren Goodson of Beaumont, Vanderbilt's attorney. "But we had less than two weeks to line this up in federal court."

Vanderbilt, who is being held in the Texas Department of Corrections' Ellis Unit, was convicted and sentenced to death by injection in the kidnapping and murder of Katina Moyer, 16.

He was originally scheduled to die on June 21 before Justice granted a 90-day stay pending the criminal appeals court's decision on the state writ.

The 29-year-old rookie officer was first tried and convicted in 1976 before State District Judge George Dowlen of Amarillo, but the decision was overturned by the criminal appeals court on grounds that a written confession had been withheld from jurors.

Vanderbilt was then reindicted and retried in August 1979 in Beaumont.

Miss Moyer, the daughter of former state Rep. Hudson Moyer, was abducted at gunpoint on April 2, 1975 from an Amarillo high school, taken outside the city limits and shot in the head, court records show.

Miss Moyer was found on a

Feet, hands bear-ly human

CONROE, Texas (AP) — Lawmen were embarrassed, but relieved, after learning they had found bear paws, not human hands and feet, floating in Lake Conroe.

"It was a big relief," said Montgomery County Sheriff's Deputy Steve Graeter. "We'd rather be a little embarrassed than out looking for a loose killer."

Telephone workers spotted two body parts floating under a bridge Wednesday and divers probing the depths of the lake found others. By the end of the day, deputies thought they had four human hands and five feet and prepared to mount a full-scale investigation.

One officer said the body pieces were surgically severed and speculated professional killers were involved.

But Roger Manning, a taxidermist in nearby Willis, became worried when he heard about the discoveries.

Manning called a game warden and said he had dropped bear parts into the area where the search was being conducted. The warden called the sheriff's office and the recovered parts were sent to the Harris County medical examiner's office.

Early Thursday, medical examiners told deputies that the parts were all bear, both front and back paws.

"It was a mistake that could happen to anybody," sighed sheriff's spokesman Ed deForest. "Unfortunately it happened to us."

But a Houston expert who asked his name not be used said the error was not unusual. "Stripped down, there's a real anatomical similarity," he said.

The error is so common, in fact, that some forensics magazines have carried articles to help lawmen tell the difference between bear and human, he said.

Manning said he got the bear parts from a customer. They came from three black bears that had been killed in Canada.

The taxidermist said he prepared bear rugs for his customer and removed the paws. On Monday, he said he took the paws to the lake and dumped them into water "to feed the catfish."

"I do it all the time, deer heads and stuff like that. This was the first bear. But catfish will eat anything."

"If I had any idea this would happen I wouldn't have done it. And I won't do it no more — I'll bury 'em next time," he said.

Hobby says let record do talking

Paul Hobby, son of incumbent Texas Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, made a stop in Hereford Thursday as part of his efforts on behalf of his father's re-election bid.

The younger Hobby, 21 is traveling across the state until the November General Election in support of his father's campaign.

Hobby said that his father's record will show that he has been an effective Lieutenant Governor for Texas.

Lt. Gov. Hobby is challenged this year by former Texas Secretary of State George Strake, who resigned that position last October to run for the state's second-highest office.

The younger Hobby said that education and highway reforms that his father initiated have readied Texas for the challenge of the years ahead.

"In addition, during his years in office Lt. Gov. Hobby has preserved and enhanced the state's capacity to attract investment that has spanned a rate of growth unparalleled in the nation," he said.

Hobby was graduated from The University of Virginia this past spring with a degree in History. He played linebacker for the university's football team for three years, and was president of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity during his senior year.

Typist has lowest overhead

By JERI CURTIS
Staff Writer

Charlene Sanders' job at home probably has the lowest overhead. Her business expense is merely the electricity used by an IBM self-correcting typewriter.

District Court Reporter Ray Quillen, who hires her for most of his transcriptions, supplies a desk, a lamp, special paper, a dictaphone and the typewriter. Other supplies are a medical and legal dictionaries, a U.S. atlas listing all cities and counties, a spelling dictionary and, of course, Webster's.

None of her clocks have second hands, so she isn't sure exactly how fast she types. But she averages about 15 pages of perfect copy an hour.

"It's very, very crucial, especially in appeals cases that everything be perfect," Mrs. Sanders said. "The judge can throw a case out if it's (the statement of fact) not right."

"If you get something interesting, you can type it just like that," she said, snapping her fingers. Because it has so many unfamiliar medical terms, she said a doctor's deposition is the hardest to type. And child abuse cases are the most depressing.

"You decide in your mind 'guilty' and then get mad when the jury has decided differently," she laughed.

Mrs. Sanders worked three years as a secretary but quit when she had her children, Lori, 8, and Stacey, 6. When she and her husband moved to their home on Ironwood one of the neighbors, a deputy sheriff, told her about Quillen's typist quitting. She got the job.

She didn't have to buy any new clothes, hire a baby sitter or invest any money.

The hours are good, too. She types whenever she wants, usually in the morning so she is finished when her kids get home from school. "It's the first time they both have been gone all day long and it's about to drive me nuts," she chuckled.

Managing time well for her typing has allowed her to spend it for volunteer work and tennis also. She substitutes at St. Anthony's and this year will be working several hours in the office taking care of tuition accounts. She claims she would "get bored" otherwise.

As her mother was at home while she grew up, so she wants to be with her children — to watch soccer games, see them in plays and programs and simply be around them.

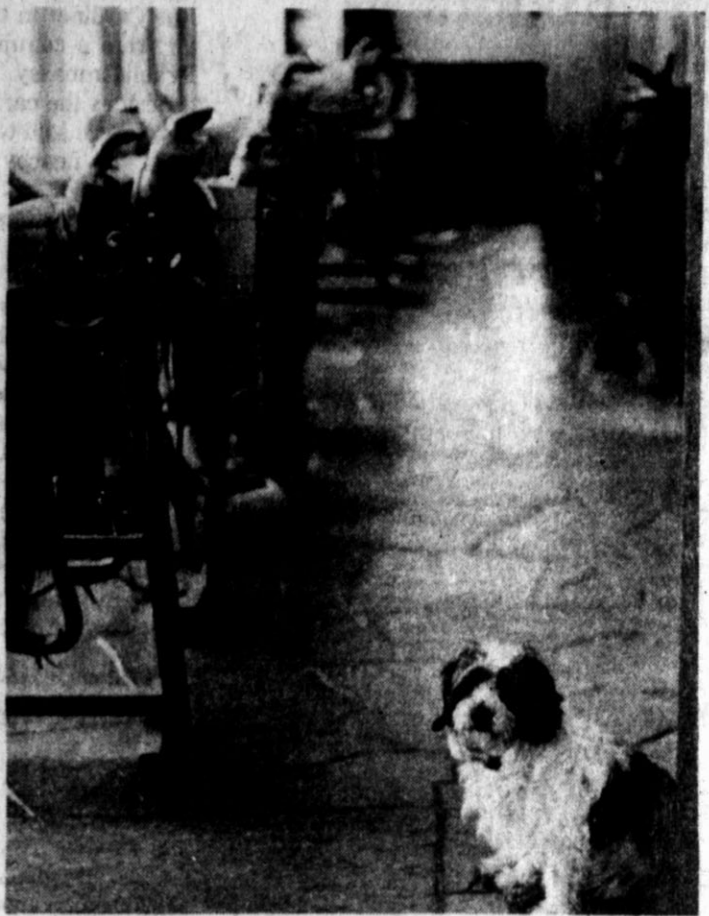

Typing keeps her marketable skill at it's top level so that "if something happened to my husband, I could take care of my family."

"It has really improved my vocabulary," she added.

'Cindy Lou' greets visitors to HOF

By JERI CURTIS

Cindy Lou happily welcomes visitors, takes a few moments to get acquainted, then politely lets guests browse through the National Cowgirl Hall of Fame at their own pace. She might courteously shake hands as they leave.

Ah, but the little coquette loves it when they scratch her belly.

Being a dog, it was the barbeque at the Rhinestone Roundup last April that got her involved in volunteer work, not an interest in saddles or rodeo cowgirls. She must have decided to wait for the next cookout. Everyone went home but Cindy Lou. She stayed and claimed the Hall's halls.

"Well, we can't just let her starve" reasoned two soft-hearted Hall workers. They fed her, clothed her — with a red bandana — and named her.

"I just thought that 'Cindy Lou' was a proper name for a little orphan dog," explained Margaret Formby. Nobody ever claimed Cindy Lou and the dog never acted like she intended to leave.

Mrs. Formby said the poochie was lonesome and tried following Hall volunteers home before she was adopted. Now that she's a working girl, only weekends are dull for the doggie.

Though she shares a room with Terry Sparks, the Hall's tenant, Cindy Lou is very happy when Monday morning comes and she can meet new people.

Most guess her age at about four or five — that's about 35 in dog years — because she is so gentle. Cindy Lou is patient with children but will not stand for other dogs in her domain.

She barks at trespassing hounds and wakes up at night when she hears anything suspicious.

"She gets good human treatment," reports Jackie Hammett, Hall office manager. Cindy Lou has a shower, with a shampoo and conditioner, every two weeks and daily takes garlic pills to prevent bad breath.

House passes jobs bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Democratic proposal to provide 200,000 public service jobs is headed for possible trouble in the Senate after being approved by the House, where Republicans branded it "a billion-dollar ballot box bailout bill."

Amid some of the sharpest partisan exchanges heard this year on the House floor, the $1 billion Democratic plan was adopted Thursday on a 223-169 vote and sent to the GOP-controlled Senate, where it is expected to receive a chilly reception.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., has said he does not plan to bring up the bill in the Senate. But he acknowledges it could come up as an amendment to some other legislation.

Even if both houses pass the bill, a veto by President Reagan would be virtually assured because of the administration's opposition to federal financing of local public works jobs programs.

The bill was passed after an unusually solid Democratic majority rejected a $1.5 billion Republican version of the plan on a 243-152 vote.

Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, who led the Democratic push for the bill all week, acknowledged it was not meant to end the nation's 9.8 percent unemployment rate.

The measure is a "a tourni-quet to staunch the hemorrhage by which this economy is bleeding ...," Wright said.

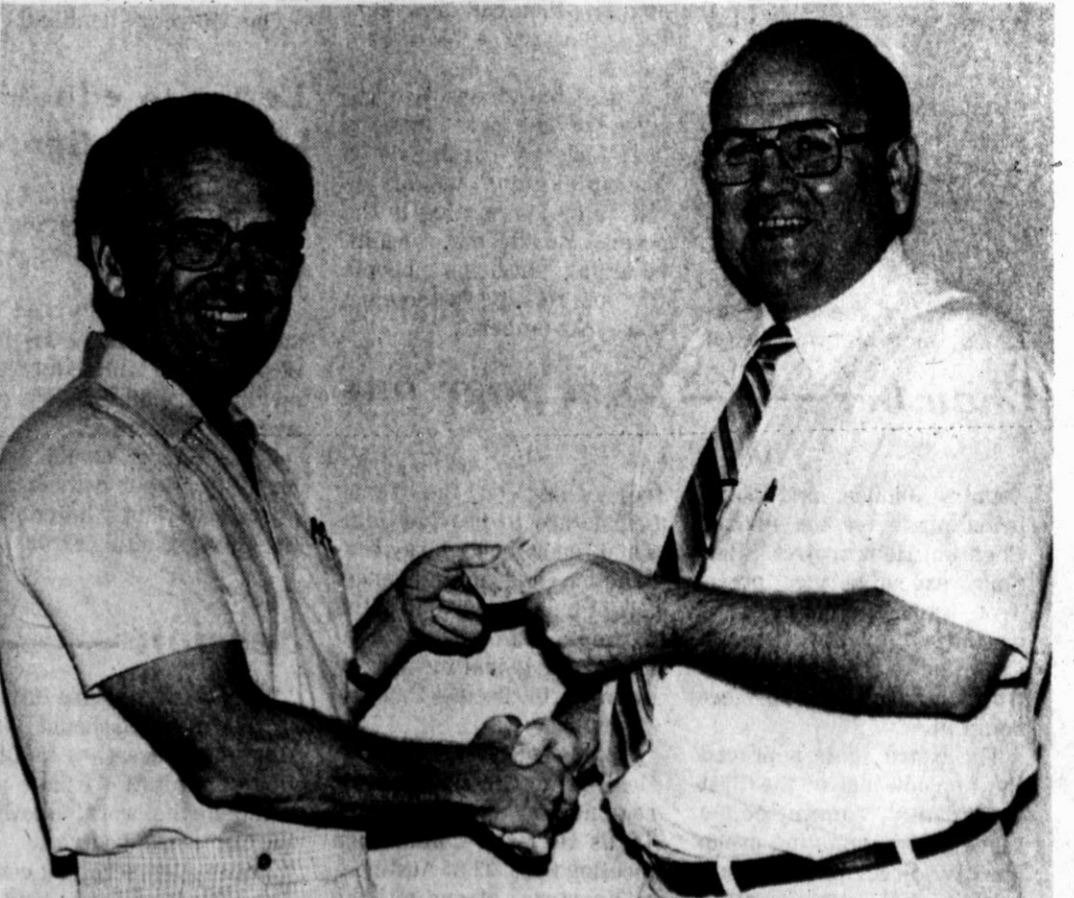

Wright said the bill would put people to work repairing roads, bridges and other public facilities.

Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois decried the bill.

"It will deceive, deflect and defang a lot of unsuspecting unemployed working Americans who want their congressman to do something about their plight and they don't care what," Michel said.

Michel also said the Democratic effort was an attempt to break "two weeks of economic sobriety" and "go

Federal Judge says offshore annexation unconstitutional

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The mayor of Port Arthur says he might appeal a federal judge's ruling that the city's 1979 annexation of offshore territory was unconstitutional and motivated by "a lust for tax revenues."

Port Arthur had reaped nearly $2 million in city taxes since the annexation.

U.S. District Judge Robert Parker on Thursday called the annexation "nothing more than a land grab, motivated solely by a lust for tax revenues."

Superior Oil Co. had filed suit against the city in 1980.

Port Arthur officials maintained the annexation, which totaled 78.2 square miles in the Gulf of Mexico, was done to protect the city's environment and offset the effect of industry.

Bomb explodes in Israeli diplomatic car

PARIS (AP) — A bomb exploded in a car bearing Israeli diplomatic license plates today near the Arch of Triumph, injuring the car's two occupants and 13 other people, according to authorized French government sources.

The explosion took place at the corner of the Boulevard Malesherbes and Rue Cardinet in the 17th district, not far from a commercial annex of the Israeli Embassy.

Besides the car's occupants, the injured were said to be mainly students from the nearby Lycee Carnot, the sources said.

No other details were available immediately.

The explosion was the latest in a wave of summer bombings and terrorist attacks in the French capital.

In the most serious incident, six people were killed and 21 wounded Aug. 9 when terrorists machine-gunned a crowd at the city's best-known Jewish restaurant, as well as passers-by in a Jewish neighborhood.

An Israeli Embassy employee was assassinated in Paris in April and an aide in the Palestine Liberation Organization office was killed in July.

Three killed in mid-air crash

PARIS, Texas (AP) — Air safety investigators continued probing the wreckage today of a single-engine plane that crashed in a pasture, killing all three aboard it, after a mid-air collision with another aircraft.

Killed in the crash of the Piper Comanche late Thursday were Chester Arthur Hamby, 38, and Oscar Wendell Jacks, 41, both of Irving; and Howard Allen Willis, 42, of Waxahachie, said a Department of Public Safety spokeswoman in Sulphur Springs.

Witnesses said the plane collided with another plane piloted by a Paris optometrist about five miles southwest of this North Texas city's airport. But Cecil Huneycutt was able to nurse his disabled Grumman Tiger back to Cox Field, where he made an emergency landing.

Huneycutt, who said his left main landing gear was damaged in the collision, was unhurt, said Bill Boothe, owner of Paris Flight Center.

The Piper's occupants were apparently thrown from the wreckage of their aircraft when it crashed in a pasture near Farm-to-Market Road 1497 about 5:30 p.m., Lamar County sheriff's officers said.

DPS trooper Weldon Parsons said it could not be immediately determined who was piloting the Piper.

Foreign aid fiasco

Americans are anguished over a national debit now amounting to a trillion dollars but...since 1946 we have spent more than two trillion dollars just on foreign aid.

Uncle Sam has actually borrowed money to give to other countries. The interest on that borrowed money has exceeded the sum of the aid.

We have thus sought to buy 196 countries and, significantly, most of those countries are worse off than before!

Tanzania is a graphic example.

Western nations—mostly US—spent $25.5 billion on foreign aid last year.

Though the Wall Street Journal recently concluded that "the world's biggest donor is becoming the world's biggest doubter about foreign aid."

In Tanzania the Canadians are spending $158 million to try to make trains run on time. Dutch money keeps Tanzania's airlines flying.

The Swedes are building a pulp and paper mill. The British are building a 200-mile road through wilderness. The Norwegians have built sawmills and fisheries there. Iceland sends aid. The United States has sent boatloads of grain.

No nation in black Africa has received more and benefited less.

During the '70s Tanzania received transfusions of $3 billion; another $644 million last year.

Yet President Nyerere, surveying the wreckage of his country's economy, says, "We are poorer than before..."

The pitifully poor African nation of Zaire absorbed $500 million from the United States over a period of 10 years and remains pitifully poor—though it's President, Mobutu, owns luxury homes in each of nine other nations. Personally he is worth some $3 billion.

That's part of the problem. Foreign aid tends to increase the money, patronage and power of recipient rulers. Little goes to the people.

Marshall Aid helped rebuild Europe after World War II. It was so successful it could be discounted in four years. That success misled the West to imagine that backward nations would respond similarly. They have not.

Aid to Tanzania has not been altogether altruistic. We wanted that country as a buffer to retard Communist inroads in black Africa. Europe wanted Tanzania as a market for manufactured goods.

But now broke and $1.5 billion dollars in debt, it is neither.

Chancellor calls for elections

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt today called for new elections in West Germany after the Free Democrats announced they were quitting his coalition.

Schmidt said in a speech to the Bundestag, or Parliament, that the elections could come "about the end of November." He said the vote was the best way out of the "inner political crisis" choking his government.

The speech came just after a spokesman for the Free Democrats, the junior partners in Schmidt's ruling coalition, said they were resigning from the partnership with Schmidt's Social Democratic Party.

Schmidt said he would ask for a vote of confidence in the Bundestag but that he did not want his party members to vote to support him.

Instead, he said, they should abstain, allowing the vote to go against the government. Then, according to the constitution, Schmidt can ask President Karl Carstens to dissolve the Bundestag and conduct new elections.

The West German constitution calls for a new election not later than 60 days after the dissolving of the Bundestag. Part of Schmidt's proposal was that the opposition conservative Christian Democrats will not try to oust him with a "no confidence" vote.

He said if the opposition in the Bundestag did call for the no-confidence vote and then replaced him with Christian Democratic leader Helmut Kohl, new elections would be postponed indefinitely. Under West German law, the Bundestag elects the chancellor.

Schmidt said until new elections, he will take over the Foreign Ministry, which had been headed by Free Democrat Hans-Dietrich Genscher. He also named the replacements for the other Free Democrat ministers.

There was no immediate response to Schmidt's speech, although Kohl was to make a statement later in the day, spokesmen for his party said.

POVERTY OF PETTINESS
by Bob Wear

WE MAY BE diligent about what we consider the "big" things, but let a disposition toward "pettiness" (small-mindedness) spoil what might otherwise be an effective life. We may be prospering in most areas of living, but let the "poverty of pettiness" make us poor beyond measure.

PETTY THOUGHT and action will cause the disruption of pleasant associations. All of us dislike manifestations of pettiness in the behavior of others, but we may not even recognize it in our behavior. For this reason, we must maintain a constant alertness; we must be on guard against every feeling and expression of this ugly trait.

THE POVERTY of pettiness is in the loss of enthusiasm, of peace of mind, of joy, and of happy associations. More than this, and on a broader scale, pettiness will be found in some people who make decisions which affect multitudes. "Little" people in big places spoil everything for everybody, and "littleness," wherever found is harmful to all persons involved. It certainly contributes its share of human difficulties.

IN THIS MATTER, We are not able to control other people but we can control ourselves. It is a correctable kind of instability which we can overcome. If we admit the damage "pettiness" causes in our lives, we should have all of the motivation needed for overcoming it. It distorts our judgment, corrupts our honesty, narrows our perspective, and, in general, makes us ineffective persons.

IT IS BETTER that we be magnanimous (great of mind). This does not mean that we will be naive, but, controlled by knowledge and good judgment; we will keep our thoughts and actions above that which is low, and mean and little. Everything will be better for us. We will feel better about ourselves, and be more effective in our total life experience.

MANY OF what seems to be defects in the behavior of other folk will disappear, as we begin to feel better about ourselves and develop a more generous attitude toward others. From the viewpoint of others, we will become more desirable persons.

EVERYTHING will improve, as we work to overcome "petty thought and petty behavior."

Now You're Cookin'

BY LINDA CAUDLE
Family News Editor

"I really believe in my family being first and I want to spend quality time with my children," says Susie Merrick, a young Hereford homemaker and mother of two.

"I like being around other people who are still family-oriented, and I feel we have found that special quality in the fine friends we've made in Hereford. We think this is a great place to raise our children," adds Susie.

Her husband, Garth, owns Hereford Bi-Products, east of town, and the family lives near the company, which is "wonderful for the children, having him nearby during the day," notes Susie.

"I really love living out here in the country," she adds. "I love being around people, but I also like privacy."

Susie was raised in Fort Collins, Colo., and has been in Hereford since she and Garth were married five years ago. He was originally from Colorado too, but has lived here 13 years.

Before moving to Texas, Susie attended Colorado State University, where she majored in music, with an emphasis in voice. "Music was a very big part of my life in college and I studied very seriously," she says.

One of the highlights of her musical experience there was being asked to join a USO tour which traveled all over the country. "We did concerts at a lot of junior colleges and in concert halls; it was like a fantasyland for me," she says. Susie stayed with the group for two to three years while attending CSU.

Susie loves to cook and is a member of a local gourmet club. Until recently, she had her own catering business, doing showers, wedding receptions, bridge parties, birthdays, and other special occasions.

She says that she really loved doing it, but it started taking so much of her time that she decided to quit doing it for now, anyway, so that she can spend more time with her children, Tyler, who is four years old and recently started preschool three days a week at First Baptist, and Noelle, who is 13 months old.

"I am trying to do more cooking and baking for my family now," she comments. Susie has also done a number of cooking demonstrations for local clubs. She is trying to phase out this activity a bit too, for the time being, as it takes a lot of time.

"It has really been a fun thing, though," she says. "I've met a lot of people and they are very good about letting you have a free hand at things like this."

Susie has never taken cooking lessons, although she says she would like to. "I don't consider myself a gourmet at all," she comments. "I just like to cook and it's an interest that I've taken up."

Susie keeps her cupboard stocked with a variety of spices. "I like to cook with fresh ingredients, and therefore do not generally do my grocery shopping ahead of time," she explains.

"I like to use the very best ingredients I can find and put a lot of time preparing foods," she adds. "When I was catering, I always did the best I could or I wouldn't feel right about it."

"I like the creative part of cooking and baking," continues Susie. "I especially like to try new desserts. I think of the dessert as the real highlight of the meal and like to put effort into creating something special."

"But I don't keep a lot of rich things around the house. If I bake a pie, we eat a little and then I usually take the rest to Garth's office."

Susie is from a German-Russian background. "This small group of people moved to Russia from Germany and then left Russia at the time of the Bolshevik Revolution," she says.

"So although this food is very different to others and they think of it as fancy, it is normal for me since I grew up on it."

Susie Merrick

Susie has many of these old German-Russian Recipes and says that she enjoys cooking that way. "I don't want it to die," she adds.

"I also love Chinese cooking. I cook these dishes for my family on a fairly regular basis," she comments, "because we enjoy them and they are so healthy."

"Timing and planning are very important in making a meal come out right," says Susie. I pay a lot of attention to balancing lighter foods such as salads with rich desserts, for example. You don't want a whole meal of rich, heavy foods.

"I also do as much ahead of time as I can if I am planning a large meal. Many things can be made ahead and frozen or refrigerated."

"I think what keeps a lot of people out of the kitchen is that they try to do too much all at once and are overwhelmed by the magnitude of it. A little planning can really help."

"When I was doing demonstrations, I always tried to do something that was not so difficult that people wouldn't go home and try it, but that was a little special and looked different or out of the ordinary. I gave them specific steps to follow to make it easier."

In addition to cooking, Susie enjoys doing needlepoint and keeps in shape by running. She also likes plants and has a little greenhouse between her house and garage.

She is currently leading a Bible study and says she would like to concentrate on that this year. She and her family attend the Church of the Nazarene.

"I feel like this is going to be a very relaxed year and I am looking forward to that," she smiles.

Susie shares three of her favorite recipes, including one for a German Pancake which she says is different—but great!

GERMAN PANCAKE

In a large cast iron pan melt 1/2 cube of butter in an oven preheated to 425 degrees. While melting butter, mix together 3 eggs, 3/4 cup flour, 3/4 cup milk, and a dash of nutmeg.

Remove pan from oven and pour in batter. Return to oven and bake at 425 degrees for 5 minutes.

This pancake will puff up around the edge of the pan and turn golden brown. Remove from oven and cut in squares or like a pie.

Serve with sour cream and fresh fruit or preserves.

MARBLED CHOCOLATE BROWNIES

In saucepan melt 1/2 stick butter over moderately low heat. Add 3/4 cup packed brown sugar and bring mixture to boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved.

Cool mixture. Beat in 1 egg; then stir in 1/2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon double acting baking powder. Fold in 1/2 cup chopped walnuts. Set aside.

Melt carefully 2 ounces unsweetened chocolate with 1/2 stick butter. Remove pan from heat.

Stir in 1/2 cup packed brown sugar. Beat in 1 egg, 1/4 cup flour, 1/4 teaspoon salt, and 1/4 teaspoon baking powder. Fold in 1/2 cup chopped walnuts.

Pour the batters alternately in two batches into a buttered 8-inch square pan and lightly swirl with knife through the mixture to marbelize the batters.

Bake in a preheated oven for 30-35 minutes at 350 degrees until pick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool and cut.

Frost when cool with chocolate frosting, or sift powdered sugar over cooled brownies.

CHOCOLATE OATMEAL CAKE

Mix in a saucepan: 1 1/2 cups boiling water poured over 1 cup quick-cooking oatmeal. While mixture cools add 1 cube butter or margarine.

When cooled, add 1/2 cups sugar and 2 eggs. Sift together 1 cup flour, 1/2 cup cocoa, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and 1 teaspoon-soda and add to mixture. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Bake 25-30 minutes at 350 degrees in a 9x13 inch oblong pan that has been well greased. Frost when cool.

FROSTING

1 cup sugar
6 Tbsp. butter or margarine
6 Tbsp. milk

Bring to a hard boil for 1 minute. Remove from heat; add 1/2 cup chocolate chips and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until frosting forms spreading consistency.

UTEP faces SMU

Huskies risk top spot

By TOM CANAVAN Associated Press Writer

Two weeks into the college football season, Washington puts its new No. 1 ranking on the line and Clemson's dreams for a second consecutive national championship face a serious challenge.

But Bill Yung's Texas-El Paso Miners have no dreams of a No. 1 ranking or a national championship for the present. Respectability is more the order of the day, a very tough order when your opponent is sixth-ranked Southern Methodist.

Washington, ranked second in the preseason polls behind Pittsburgh, took over the No. 1 position this week and carries the nation's bragging rights into Tucson Saturday for a game against the University of Arizona.

"The ratings are nice before the season starts," Washington Coach Don James said, "but the season has started. I think our concern should be our game each week. I know my concern is Arizona right now."

Last week, it was Texas-El Paso. And the Huskies 1-0, never let up, crushing the Miners 55-0 en route to taking over the nation's No. 1 spot.

If Clemson, 0-1, is going to have any chance to repeat as national champion, it must beat Boston College at home on Saturday. And Coach Danny Ford knows the Tigers, edged by No. 7 Georgia on Labor Day, face a stiff challenge from the Eagles, who spoiled Jackie Sherrill's debut at Texas A&M earlier this year.

"We could face no greater challenge to Clemson than Boston College," Ford said earlier this week. "They are going to be a serious threat, a real threat to us."

Boston College's biggest threat will be its air attack. "Running the ball to set up the pass is awfully difficult for us at this caliber of competition," said Boston College Coach Jack Bicknell. "But we can throw and loosen things up enough to set up the run."

That's something No. 16 Clemson has been anticipating. "Against Georgia, our defense had to play run, run, run," said Ford. "This week, we'll have to play pass, pass, pass with a run or two thrown in."

The Hereford Brand Sports

Texas-El Paso may be facing the finest running tandem in the country in SMU's Eric Dickerson and Craig James, the so-called "Pony Express."

"Even if it's a checker game, I'm going to try to beat you," said Yung, who quipped that the Miners' offensive game plan against SMU called for the players to get up real slow after each play and to take a long time in the huddle.

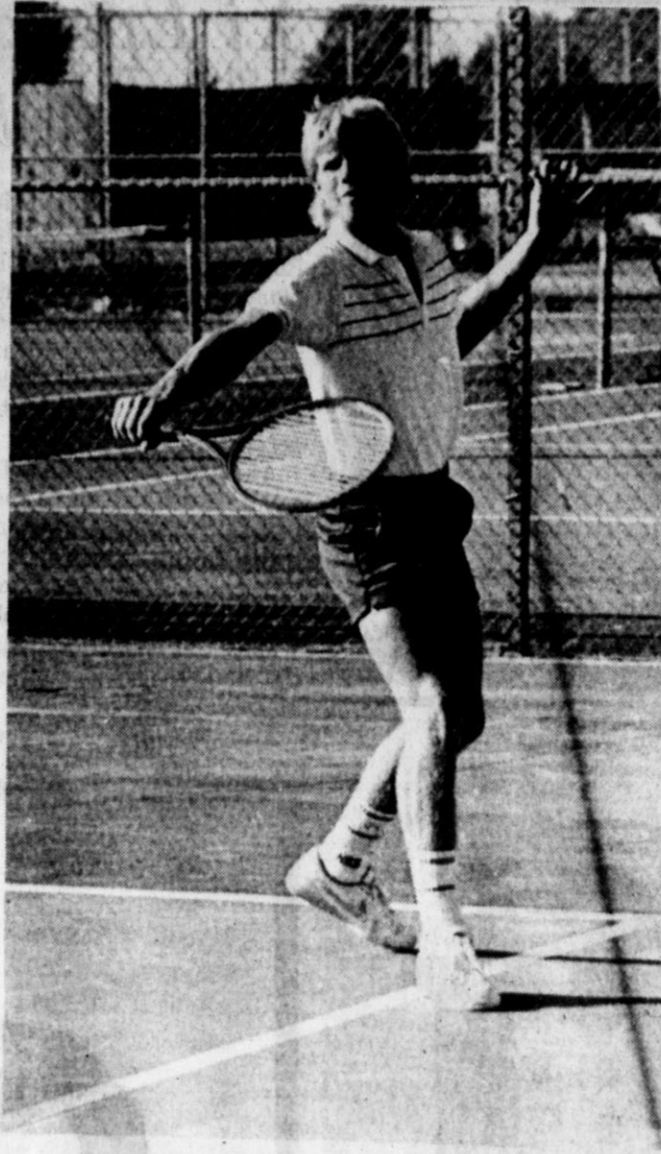

Yung said both Washington and Southern Methodist are excellent teams.

"When you're playing teams like that, there's not much difference in them. They're all nines. Some of them are just 9.8s and some are 9.9s. I think that they way you learn though, by playing good people."

In other Top 20 games Saturday, second-ranked Pitt is at Florida State, No. 3 Nebraska hosts New Mexico State, No. 4 Alabama visits Mississippi, No. 8 Penn State entertains Rutgers, Navy is at No. 9 Arkansas and No. 10 Michigan travels to South Bend, Ind., to play No. 20 Notre Dame.

Also it's Vanderbilt at No. 11 North Carolina, No. 12 Ohio State at Michigan State, No. 13 Arizona State at Houston, No. 14 UCLA at Wisconsin, No. 15 Miami, Fla., at Virginia Tech, Maryland at No. 17 West Virginia, Utah at No. 18 Texas and No. 19 Southern Cal at Indiana.

Fifth-ranked Florida and Georgia are idle Saturday. Other games of interest find Lafayette at Army, Illinois at Syracuse, Air Force at Texas Tech, Minnesota at Purdue, Oklahoma at Kentucky, Wake Forest at North Carolina State, Duke at South Carolina, Iowa State at Iowa, Texas Christian at Kansas, Nevada-Las Vegas at New Mexico and San Jose State at Stanford.

Backhand return

Hereford's Bryan Paetzold, a winner in his last outing against Palo Duro Tuesday, returns to District 3-5A tennis action tomorrow in Plainview. The Herd tennis team travels to Plainview to take on highly-touted Lubbock Monterey and the host Bulldogs in team competition beginning at 10 a.m. Hereford stands 1-2 in district action, having lost to Amarillo High and Lubbock Coronado, before beating PD.

NCAA asks court ruling

By The Associated Press
The NCAA will ask a federal judge in New Mexico to put off enforcement of his ruling invalidating its football television contracts until the organization can appeal the case to the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

The NCAA said Thursday it was prepared to ask U.S. District Judge Juan Burciaga to stay his ruling which invalidated the NCAA's contracts with CBS, ABC and the Turner Broadcasting Co. The judge's decision, filed in Oklahoma City Wednesday, had ruled that the NCAA's contracts with the networks were in violation of federal antitrust laws. It held that only individual schools had the right to sell their games to television.

It is questionable whether the judge will stay his own ruling.

Burciaga, who is in Albuquerque, N.M., had said in his decision that "it would be unseemly for the court, having found an overt violation of the antitrust laws, to allow the violations to continue for even a single day, let alone the rest of the season."

The three television networks have said this weekend's schedule of games would be observed. Beyond that, there was little agreement on the ultimate consequences of the ruling. The original suit was filed by the football powers at the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia.

While the NCAA battled to have the ruling invalidated, college and conference administrators blasted the judge's decision.

"It a dark day for college football," said George King, Purdue's athletic director and the president of the NCAA's Athletic Director's Association. "The decision of the court to eliminate TV control and eliminate the network contracts creates a chaotic state."

Miles Hallock, the chairman of the NCAA's television committee, said the decision was a victory for a few of the NCAA's superpowers.

"A very small minority of the latter have now succeeded in their efforts to override the wishes and needs of the vast majority."

Bills' rally nips Vikes

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Ferguson came up with one more big play than his counterpart Tommy Kramer, and the Buffalo Bills rode it to victory over the Minnesota Vikings.

Down 22-16 in the fourth quarter and deep in his own territory Thursday night, Ferguson threw for 39 yards to Frank Lewis on third down and one. The catch at midfield set up a Ferguson-to-Jerry Butler touchdown pass of 11 yards five plays later as Buffalo edged Minnesota 23-22 in a nationally televised National Football League game.

Ferguson said he had no qualms about the gamble, or sending Curtis Brown off tackle in the third quarter on fourth and one at the Bills' 30-yard-line.

"Against a team like Minnesota, you've got to gamble. You've got to take risks," Ferguson said.

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant wouldn't argue with that reasoning, but he said questionable penalties also were a factor in his team's loss.

"It used to be that games were played and won by players," Grant said. "Now it seems officials win games."

"They (officials) called Leo (wide receiver Leo Lewis) for pushing off. The other guy pushed him."

Grant was referring to Lewis' 44-yard catch in the fourth quarter that was nullified by officials who called a key offensive pass interference penalty.

"It's enough to make a grown man cry," said Grant.

The game may be last for both teams, with NFL Players Association members poised to strike as early as Tuesday.

Sunday's NFL games feature the New York Jets at New England, New Orleans at Chicago, Los Angeles Raiders at Atlanta, Philadelphia at Cleveland, San Diego at Kansas City, Cincinnati at Pittsburgh and Dallas at St. Louis, all at 1 p.m.

Also, Detroit at Los Angeles Rams, San Francisco at Denver, Seattle at Houston, Washington at Tampa Bay, and Baltimore at Miami, all at 4 p.m.

The New York Giants host the Green Bay Packers Monday at 9 p.m.

Kramer came out throwing and built a 19-7 halftime lead on touchdowns passes of 22 and 2 yards to backup tight end Bob Bruer. Kramer threw for 196 yards in the first, mostly to wide receiver Sammy White, who finished with nine catches and 142 yards.

Sandies blank Caprock, 20-0

AMARILLO - Quarterback Mike Nolan passed for 146 yards and one TD, keeping Caprock at bay most of the night, as Amarillo High broke into the win column with a 20-0 victory Thursday over the previously unbeaten Longhorns in Dick Bivins Stadium.

Nolan's passing was the difference in the game as AHS moved to 1-1 in District 3-5A play and 1-2 overall. He hit end Kyle Carter on a 12-yard scoring strike late in the second period, on a fourth-down play, and continually found receivers open to keep drives alive.

The Longhorns, which lost for the first time this season after posting 7-6 victories over Dumas and Palo Duro, never seriously threatened to score. In fact, they didn't drive past midfield until midway through the final quarter.

And, for the game, Caprock managed only 100 yards total offense. AHS, meanwhile, rolled up 228 yards overall — 156 coming through the air.

Nolan completed 10 of 17 tosses, before leaving in the fourth quarter.

The Sandies' other TDs came on 2 and 8 yards by Doug Swafford.

The victory was AHS' eighth in a row over the Longhorns, and 17th in 20 meetings. Present Sandie coach Larry Dippel never has lost to the Longhorns, winning all eight meetings.

Caprock will host Lubbock Coronado next Friday, while AHS tangles with cross-town rival Tascosa next Saturday afternoon.

Caprock wins volleyball clash from Hereford

District 3-5A leader Caprock remained atop the heap as it breezed past Hereford, 15-4, 15-6 in a loop volleyball contest Thursday in Amarillo.

The Longhorns fell behind briefly in the second game, after leading throughout in the first match. The victory moved Caprock to 5-0 in district play, while the loss dropped Hereford to 1-3.

Hereford's junior varsity fared little better, losing by scores of 15-5 and 15-7.

Herd JV beaten

Palo Duro's junior varsity scored early and often, then scored virtually all will in the second half as it crushed Hereford's JV, 47-0, Thursday afternoon.

The Dons never were headed, after scoring three times in the opening quarter for a quick 19-0 lead.

David Littlejohn started the onslaught with a 27-yard run. Curtis Smith scored the next two TDs for the winners, on runs of 40 and 33 yards. He later added touchdowns on runs 11 and 30 yards in the second half.

The Herd JV's next game will be against Tascosa next Thursday at 4 p.m. in Amarillo.

While the Herd junior varsity was taking its lumps Thursday, the LaPlata ninth graders fared little better against Amarillo's Bowie Junior High, losing by a 20-0 margin.

Monty Buchanan scored all three TDs for Bowie, on runs of 5, 8, and 45 yards — the final two coming in the fourth period, breaking open a close game.

Palmer hurls Orioles past Yankees, 3-1

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles had the New York Yankees right in the hand of their Palmer. "That was a 'Jim Palmer,'" Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver enthused after watching his ace right-hander hurl a six-hit, 3-1 victory over the Yankees Thursday night. "We call him Superman. We expect a super effort from him every time, and when he doesn't give it, we're disappointed. But the guy's human. What he did tonight was amazing."

Palmer, who turns 37 in October, made 142 pitches while starting for the fifth consecutive time with three days rest.

"He looked great in the first inning," said pitching coach Ray Miller. "From then on, it was kind of a struggle. But he battled his way through."

The victory was the Orioles' 24th in their last 28 games, moving them within one game of the first-place Milwaukee Brewers in the American League East race. The Brewers were idle Thursday night.

In other AL games, Seattle beat Kansas City 4-2, Toronto edged California 2-1 in 12 innings, Detroit defeated Boston 4-2, Chicago trimmed Oakland 6-3 and Texas stopped Minnesota 8-2.

The only run off Palmer, 14-4, was a home run in the second inning by Dave Winfield, his 35th and ninth in the last 14 games. Palmer has won 12 of 13 decisions since May 30 and Thursday night's triumph was the 262nd of his career.

Bethea looks at retiring

HOUSTON (AP) — Defensive end Elvin Bethea, the elder statesman of the Houston Oilers who will retire at the end of this season, is getting concerned about the somber tone of the questions he's being asked about his final season with the Oilers.

"Hey, I'm not getting shot and I'm not dying, I'm just going into the second phase of my life," the 37-year-old Bethea said, flashing that familiar gap-tooth grin. "I'm looking forward to it. I want to have a fun year, one of my better years."

Bethea, who will take up his backup position to starter Jesse Baker Sunday when the Oilers host Seattle, represents the Oilers' past and present but not their future.

After 15 seasons of ups and downs, including back-to-back 1-13 seasons and then the comeback to three straight playoff trips, Bethea says he's ready to do something else for the next 15 years.

"Physically, I can still handle it but mentally it has caught up with me," Bethea said. "I realized at training camp getting up every morning that it was getting to me. Even though I had worked and trained in the off season, the mental strain was there."

Bethea had already decided to call it a career before training camp, following a conversation with Coach Ed Biles.

"When I sat down and talked to Coach Biles, I felt the time had come for me to get out of the game," Bethea said. "It's been an enjoyable life but I came to realize I must give it up one day."

Serving on the National Football League Players' Association executive board has not eased the stress of Bethea's final season.

"I've been on the road with the collective bargaining issue in the off season and that has caused a lot of stress," Bethea said. "But I still would have called it quits even if I had not been the player rep."

Bethea doesn't hesitate in picking those 1-13 seasons as the low point of his career.

"You go through the agony of experiencing something like that the first year and you say it can't happen again, that it was a fluke," Bethea said. "Then you come back next year and do the same thing."

"I kept myself mentally into the game. I wanted to prove I could still play even if we were in last place and didn't win a game or if we were in first place," he said.

Bethea finds himself trying to pull the Oilers out of another tailspin against the Seahawks. The Oilers dropped their regular season opener to Cincinnati 27-6.

Giants move up in NL West race

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

It was the Chili and Mookie Show in the National League, with a little Breining thrown in for added effect.

The Giants and Mets were winners Thursday night in the only National League action, thanks greatly to the efforts of Chili Davis and Fred Breining for San Francisco and Mookie Wilson for New York.

The Giants won for the 11th time in the last 13 games and moved within 5½ games of first-place Los Angeles in the West with a 9-3 pasting of San Diego, which lost its sixth straight. Davis' two-run homer and six innings of strong pitching by Breining led the way, with Darrell Evans contributing a pair of two-run singles.

The Mets hurt the Expos' East Division chances — Montreal is 2½ games behind first-place St. Louis — by winning 9-4 as Wilson had four hits and scored three runs.

Davis, a switch-hitter, had only one homer batting right-handed until Wednesday night, when he got No. 2. And he hit another Thursday, a two-run shot in the sixth.

"I really can't explain it. It's a matter of experimenting in batting practice," he said. "I'm going back to the way I used to hit. Instead of extending my arms, I'm taking a shorter swing."

Breining, 10-4, won for the fourth time in five decisions as a starter.

"I credit a lot of my success to positive thinking," Breining explained. "A friend of Reggie Smith introduced me to (the martial art of) aikido. I work with it two or three times a week. It helps the mind to control the body."

90 percent of players prepared to strike

Players may strike after Monday night

NEW YORK (AP) — Ninety percent of the National Football League's players, while hoping that the first regular-season strike in league history could be averted when talks resumed, were prepared to walk out, according to union officials.

"The way it stands right now ... Monday night's game (the Green Bay Packers playing the New York Giants) will be the last," Pittsburgh Steelers player representative Cliff Stoudt said Thursday on the eve of today's negotiations. "Everyone has his fingers crossed that something can be worked out. But the way things are going, I doubt it."

"I just think our main bargaining tool is the threat of a strike," said Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Steve Fuller. "Management has taken a stance to force our hand. It seems like they are almost provoking a strike."

Negotiations for a contract to replace the agreement which expired July 15 resumed today for the first time since Sept. 8, when the NFL Management Council, the club owners' negotiators, made its latest offer.

The union promptly rejected that offer and union chief Ed Garvey said the possibility the NFL Players Association will call its members out on strike Tuesday is not an idle threat.

"If they (the owners) are serious this weekend, it's quite possible the decision will be to give them another week. If not, the players are prepared to go out on Tuesday," said Garvey, the NFLPA executive director, who conceded that the union's executive committee has informally set that deadline.

The executive committee will meet Monday in New York to formalize its strike deadline.

The union increased its preparations for a strike this week, notifying central labor organizations and unions that would be affected by a strike of the players' intentions.

Several newspapers, including the Los Angeles Herald Examiner, USA Today and the New York Times, reported that the league has acknowledged taking steps to try to field teams in the event a strike is called.

"There's no question the sentiment now on the part of the owners is to play through if we can," the Times quoted Jack Donlan, executive director of the Management Council, as saying Thursday. "We are going to wait until the players have had their meeting Monday. Then we will evaluate our options. If our executive committee thinks the league can play NFL-caliber football, we'll play."

The Los Angeles Rams are holding secret tryouts for free agents this week, the Herald Examiner reported Thursday.

John Math, the Rams' director of player personnel, said the team itself was not staging the tryouts. "It was put on by one of the services that provide times and such on the athletes to NFL teams," Math said. "It's very common."

USA Today quoted Math as saying of the workout, "We have always had this in mind, sure. You have to be prepared. You can't let some imbecile dictate whether you're going to play or not to play."

On a second front, the NFLPA sent out ballots to union members Friday to choose All-Star divisional teams to play games at selected sites during a strike.

Three cities — Houston, Dallas and Shreveport, La. — have been mentioned as probable sites for the games. Officials in Memphis, Tenn., have refused to stage a union-backed game fearing it will hurt their chances of landing an NFL expansion team in the future.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the owners says it is the union and not management that has pushed the league to the brink of its first midseason strike.

"The owners have been serious all along. It is the players who are wasting time keeping their demand for a percentage of the gross on the table," said Jim Miller, spokesman for the management council.

Organization has first meeting of fall season

Members of the Women of St. Thomas Episcopal Church met recently in the church parlor for the first meeting of the fall season with Francie Farr presiding.

The meeting was opened with a devotional given by Linda Gilbert reading some inspirational poems. A prayer followed.

Buddy McBrayer read the minutes of the last meeting and Ellen Carter gave the treasurer's report. A letter was read setting forth guidelines for Episcopal Church Women.

Also, members discussed sending delegates to Council in November and Meredith Wilcox gave a report on the annual bazaar which is to be held Oct. 30 beginning at 9 a.m.

The first Sunday in the month has been set aside for bringing aluminum cans to the church. Proceeds will be used for Sunday School operation.

Believers will hold a brunch at 9 a.m. Sunday to which everyone is invited.

The Women of the Church will hold their meetings on the third Saturday of each month.

Lone Star Study Club welcomes new member

Members of Lone Star Study Club met Tuesday morning for a brunch in the home of Ursalee Jacobsen. Serving as co-hostesses were Oneda Davidson and Ruby Stevenson.

Faye Williams was given a life membership and Nadine Hill was welcomed as a new member during the business meeting conducted by Ms. Stevenson.

Ms. Davidson reported on the club's yearbooks and changes were made. She then introduced program speaker Hilda Haven. Her program topic was entitled "Birds of North America."

Ms. Haven listed interesting facts of various birds. She said that birds can see as far as a mile and that they eat one-half their weight each day.

During the meeting, Ms. Stevenson had on display handpainted plates of birds.

Present were Ella Higgins, Mildred Elliot, Opal Bookout, Evadna Cox, Jessie Mae Dodson, Margaret Ann Durham, Wilma Goettsch, Lucille Naylor, Grace Tinnen, Joe Williams, Winnie Wiseman and Ruth Womble.

4-H Officers installed during evening meeting

New officers were installed when members of Ford Community 4-H Club met Tuesday evening. Billie Jo Gee, adult leader, served as installing officer.

Kelly Stokesberry will serve as president; Don Meiwes, vice-president; Leslie Conkwright, secretary and reporter; Sandra Strafuss, treasurer; Robin Conkwright, council delegate.

Also, Royce Parker, council delegate; Heather Gee, telephone; Cindy Meiwes, recreation leader; and Chad Strafuss, community service.

Four new club members were introduced. They included Jaci Edwards, Jennifer Hicks, Jill Dutton and Tony Skilly. Also, the club voted to change their regular club meeting date from the second Tuesday of each month to the third Monday.

Other items of discussion during the business session were the community service projects, programs and adult leader assignments.

Following the adjournment, members and their families had a covered dish supper.

There were 27 people in attendance.

The President who served the shortest time in office was W.H. Harrison, who only served one month, in 1941.

Ann Landers

Former victim, abuser speaks out

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a child abuser. Or, I should say, was. I've also just realized that my mother was an abuser, too. As I was growing up (I'm the oldest of eight), my mother always had the upper hand. We got anything from a slap to 20 or 30 lashes with a belt. When she said, "You won't be able to sit down for a week," she wasn't kidding.

I never thought of myself as being abused. We were never locked in a closet or starved. We thought our upbringing was normal. Then, as I started my own family (I have six), I had to have the upper hand, too. When my oldest son was teething, I bit him back when he would bite another child. Once I almost drowned him in the bathtub because he had a temper tantrum and wouldn't let me wash his hair. My mother did those things to us, so I thought it was right.

About a year ago he talked back to me and not nasty. I lost control of myself and slapped him so hard both his eyes were black. I kicked him when he fell to the floor and bruised him terribly.

Suddenly I realized that I was a child abuser. I fell to my knees and prayed to God to help me stop. I promised I would never again hurt my children. My prayers were answered. Since that day I have never laid a hand on any of them.

I know this letter is long, but maybe it will make other mothers stop and think: "Is the treatment I give my child really normal or necessary?" If I have saved just one child today, it will be well worth it. Just sign me—Blind Too Long In W.Va.

DEAR W.V.A.: Thanks for sharing your experience. You were lucky to have conquered the problem by prayer. For those who need the help of a support group, I suggest that you write to C.A.L.M., P.O. Box 718, Santa Barbara, Calif. 93102. Or Parents Anonymous, 2230 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 208, Torrance, Calif. 90505. (Please send a long, self-addressed envelope). Both have excellent literature and will tell you about the meetings nearest your home. Get going.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am new in this city and have an interesting job in a law firm. Having recently recovered from a broken love affair, I am open to another romance—hopefully, one that will never again hurt my children. My prayers were answered. Since that day I have never laid a hand on any of them.

The woman I am writing about is also an attorney. She is a striking brunette, peaches-and-cream complexion, bright, charming, well-bred, well-spoken and well-endowed. I don't know how to phrase the problem delicately, so I will simply say the woman has a mustache. I cannot understand how such a meticulous, well-groomed woman can be blind to unsightly hair that is flourishing on her upper lip.

I know she reads your column because we discuss it every day. If you will print my letter and suggest a course of action, I promise you I will let her know the letter was written by me.—Cleveland Hopeful

DEAR HOPEFUL: Here's the letter and my advice. The answer for the mustachioed lady is a strong bleach (see a druggist) or permanent removal by electrolysis. Anyone who wants guidance as to where to go for a first-rate job should write to the International Guild of Professional Electrologists Inc., Medical Center, 15 Bond St., Great Neck, N.Y. 11021, and again may I suggest that you enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

"I was obliged to be industrious. Whoever is equally industrious will succeed...equally well." Johann Sebastian Bach

FAITH TEACHES US THE MEANING OF REAL WEALTH

From the great love of money, the evil that springs is the same kind of trouble that avarice brings. With the habit of wanting material things That we usually cannot afford. When we shorten our lives with all work and no play, Then our taxes increase while the years fade away; And the loss of our health is a high price to pay For excessive financial reward. If you'll go to the Church of whatever your creed, There's a lesson you'll learn on the evils of greed; For the only true riches that you'll ever need Will be found in the love of the Lord!

— Gloria Nowak

"Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not highminded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy."
— I Timothy 6:17

Heaven does not choose its elect from among the great and wealthy.
— William M. Thackeray
