Doomed Man Goes To His Death With Smile On His Face But With Protest Of Innocence

(By The Associated Press)

KENNETT, Mo., April 2—Fred Adams, 21, of Rector, Ark., was hanged here today for the slaying three years ago of Clarence Green, night marshal at Campbell, Mo., during robbery of a filling station. The trap was sprung at 8:05 a. m. and he was pronounced dead 13 minutes later.

Reiterating his claim of innocence to the last and with a smile on his face, Adams declared he was ready to go.

He walked unassisted from the jail door up the steps to the scaffold, shook hands with Sheriff Dewey Miles and three deputies, and told them goodbye.

Open-Air Arena Is Death Chamber

The American Legion open-air arena, converted into a death chamber for the occasion, was crowded to capacity with about 1000 persons. More than that number pressed closely around the outside of the enclosure, stood on the roofs of buildings and climbed telephone poles.

Four reprieves had been granted Adams, one by Gov. Guy B. Park which prevented the execution on the first scheduled date, Dec. 18, 1936, and three by Lloyd C. Stark, who became governor in January. The last postponement was granted because Stark did not wish the execution to take place on Good Friday.

Green was slain March 28, 1934, when he surprised three men robbing a gasoline service station. Arrested in Paragould, Ark., March 31, 1934, Adams was convicted by a circuit court jury in Dunklin county in July, 1934. The state supreme court upheld the death sentence last Nov. 17.

Burns Kittrell Declares He Will Start Over 'Right And Go Straight' When He Has Served His Term In Federal Prison

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, April 2—Young Burns Kittrell was determined today to "start over right and go straight" when he serves the 18-month term assessed him after he pleaded guilty to taking $11,000 from the Lubbock National bank.

Kittrell, 26, who worked in the Lubbock bank as a clerk, said he had "learned his lesson" after Federal Judge T. W. Davidson sentenced him. He was arrested in Arkansas and was brought to Dallas on his request so he could plead guilty.

No Criticism Of Court's Action Is Made Here

Surprise and disappointment felt by his family did not bring criticism of court action when Walter E. Kittrell of 13 Avenue N, retired farmer, learned his son Burns Kittrell had been sentenced to 18 months in El Reno federal reformatory.

From the first moment of the search for his missing bookkeeper son Kittrell had pledged complete assistance of his entire family here to enforcement agencies.

Had Aided In Search

At one time he had asked Chief of Police H. L. Johnston not to send photographs of his son to friends of Burns Kittrell on the west coast. "They might give him a tip the law is after him and retard efforts of officers," he said.

More surprising was the early sentencing (young Kittrell was not expected to face trial before Mon-

Texas Liquor Flow May Be Haltered

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 2—A 77-page bill intended to tighten up the present liquor control act bore the approval today of the house liquor traffic committee.

After lengthy debate last night the group rejected a proposal to place venue of appeals from liquor control board suspension or revocation of licenses in the counties of appellants.

Costs Are Boosted

The bill also boosted the cost of retail package store permits from $50 to $125 to discourage operation of stores outside city limits at an unfair advantage to those paying city taxes in addition to the state levy.

It also provided for high levies on plants bottling beer brewed outside of the state assertedly to discourage "chain" bottling shops. Fees for such establishments began at $500 for the first and graduate up to $100,000 for the fifth shop operated by the same brewery.

War On Cancer Being Mapped

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 2—Senator Homer T. Bone of Washington introduced today on behalf of virtually the entire senate membership a bill to authorize expenditure of $1,000,000 annually for cancer research.

The measure bore the names of more than 90 senators. Congressional records showed this to be unprecedented, although some bills have carried 20 or more signatures.

Also Offered In House

Representative Warren Magnuson of Seattle introduced a similar bill in the house simultaneously with the senate measure's appearance.

The bill would place the appropriation at the disposal of the surgeon general of the public health service to "make grants-in-aid to schools, hospitals, laboratories, and other institutions and to scientific investigators, whose work has shown promise of making valuable contributions to human knowledge with respect to the cause, diagnosis, control, treatment, or prevention of cancer."

The money could be used also to purchase radium to be loaned to state or privately owned institutions for cancer treatments.

Statistics Are Cited

"Statistics show one in each ten persons past 35 years of age is destined to have cancer," Bone explained.

"This dread disease has been growing in importance in recent years until now it is second only to heart disease as a death cause. It outranks tuberculosis."

Despite the rank of cancer as a killer, he said, the amount spent annually for research by the United States public health service and by private cancer research institutions "is less than the cost of building a few big guns."

STRIKES PARALYZE COAL MINES

Thousands Idle As Men Desert Jobs In Pits

Demand For Time And Half Overtime Is Believed To Be The Chief Obstacle

(By The Associated Press)

The ever-widening strike front occupied a huge new sector today as 400,000 soft coal miners deserted the pits.

Long considered a possibility, the strike of the United Mine Workers of America became an actuality when a day of grace in negotiations for a new contract passed without an agreement.

Expiration of the old contract between the U. M. W. and operators at midnight March 31 marked the technical start of the strike but yesterday's mine holiday postponed formal cessation of work.

Hope Not Abandoned

A demand for time and a half for overtime was the chief obstacle. Hope for settlement this weekend was not abandoned, however. Presidential intervention was considered probable in the event an accord is not reached within a few days.

The automotive industry, focal point of industrial unrest until the mine strike, carried new burdens as a result of fresh disputes. Thirty-thousand General Motors employes were idle at Flint and Pontiac, Mich., in a strike precipitated by friction over an agreement that terminated the G. M. dispute earlier this year.

Violations Are Charged

Both sides charged the other with violation of the agreement. The new strike closed all units of the Chevrolet Motor Co. at Flint. Six thousand workers at the Fish-

Texas Sweetheart No. 1 For 1937 To Be Sought

(By The Associated Press)

FORT WORTH, April 2 — The Cinderella-like career of Miss Faye Cotton of Borger was recalled Friday as a search for a successor to the title of Texas Sweetheart No. 1 was begun by the Fort Worth frontier fiesta.

Miss Cotton, lifted last year from behind a restaurant cash register to a featured role in the Casa Manana revue, is now in motion pictures.

Billy Rose, frontier fiesta director general who is sponsoring the search for the Texas Sweetheart No. 1 for 1937, announced that the final contest will be held in Fort Worth on Saturday, May 22.

Invitations to each of 100 Texas cities to select an entrant in the final contest have been sent out.

ZION, Ill., April 2 (AP)—Fire destroyed the Chiloh tabernacle and radio station WCBD today and Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Christian Apostolic church, said "I haven't any doubt it was intentionally started."

Voliva estimated the total loss at between $600,000 and $700,000. He said the tabernacle, built in 1902, was valued at between $500,000 and $600,000 and the radio station at $150,000.

Has Love A Price? Checkup Reveals Romance Is Still On Gold Standard Despite Bans By Law

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 2—Has love a price?

The Illinois legislature thought it answered that one two years ago by passing a law banning "heart balm" suits but a checkup showed today that romance—in some quarters at least—is not yet entirely off the gold standard.

Court dockets here still list a good many of the 75 suits, asking upward of $4,000,000 for shattered hearts that were filed prior to July 1, 1935, when the law went on the statute books. Clerks estimated at least a remain to be tried.

And in the opinion of some legal authorities there are loopholes through which still more breach of promise and alienation of affections actions might find their way into court—under different names — seduction, defamation, deceit or rape.

The Illinois law review, analyzing the effect of the heart balm act, cited that the law bars breach of promise, criminal conversation and alienation suits but makes no mention of damages based on seduction.

The heart balm law bounced back in the news with the revival of the $100,000 damage claim of Miss Alyce Strand, 28, who alleged J. Leslie Young-husband, wealthy cosmetics

Dangers Are Noted In Higher Prices

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 2. — President Roosevelt told a press conference today that prices of durable goods such as steel and copper were far too high.

He added the time had come for the government to discourage federal expenditures for such goods and to encourage expenditure for consumer goods.

Promoted By Query

The president's lengthy informal statement on the present trend of prices was prompted by a query as to his position of future public works expenditures.

He said he told the five house Democrats who called on him yesterday to discuss the PWA that future federal public works expenditures should go not for steel bridges and other such permanent structures, but for channel dredging and earthen dams.

Danger Signal Seen

Expenditures for the latter projects, the president said, would give a larger purchasing power for consumer goods. He added there was too great a spiral of heavy goods prices and that this, judged by past experience, constituted a danger signal.

The president said steel had increased in price about $6 a ton. He commented that this was two or three times larger than the wage increase recently approved by the industry.

He said foreign naval building also had run up production of domestic steel.

Many mines, Mr. Roosevelt said, could turn out copper for five or six cents a pound and that mines like

Forty Hurt But Scores Escape

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, April 2—Eight persons were killed today and more than 40 injured when two suburban trains, crowded with city-bound workers during London's morning "rush hour," crashed on a 60-foot high viaduct.

One coach was telescoped across a live rail and burst into flames. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

One Of Worst In Years

Scores of passengers narrowly escaped death in the smash which was one of the worst train accidents in the London area in recent years.

Some of the dazed occupants of the car swinging precariously on the viaduct crawled from the crumpled coach and along the narrow foothold to safety.

"They looked like swaying tightrope walkers," a rescue worker said.

Others Refuse To Leave

Others refused to leave the car until ladders were run up to the bridge from the mainline below and rescuers rushed up to lower them to safety.

A heavy rain beat down as stretcher after stretcher loaded with dead and injured was carried to ambulances.

"It was terrible," one survivor shuddered. "People were screaming and moaning from underneath the wreckage."

It was the second train wreck in London within 24 hours. Sixteen persons were injured in a collision of two trains north of London yesterday.

Open Talk Of Surrender To Spanish Rebels Now Heard

(By Staff Correspondent)

SAINT JEAN DE LUZ, France, April 2—Lack of food and dissension among northern government supporters, diplomats here recounted today, has roused open talk of surrendering to the Spanish insurgent army.

The situation has become critical in the face of the insurgent accelerated drive against Bilbao, said the reports in diplomatic circles here, with open quarreling between the conservative Basque nationalists and anarchists.

People within the Bilbao district were reported without bread since ten days ago, and one diplomat declared the outcome of the insurgent offensive in the Basque country probably will determine the fate of the whole civil war.

On the other hand, this diplomat said, if the insurgent army fails to capture Bilbao after the recent losses in Guadalajara, discontent within General Francisco Franco's own ranks may end forever his chances of victory.

Equal Rights Are Being Sought By Women In Texas

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, April 2. — San Antonio and Bexar county women, determined to obtain equal political rights with men, met yesterday to arouse support of the Spear bill which would give Texas women that privilege.

Mrs. W. B. Edmondson, president of the Alamo City Women's Democratic club, presided. Mrs. J. C. Griswold, former Republican national committee woman, with other Republican women were in attendance.

Equal Representation

The major effect of the bill, introduced by Senator J. Franklin Spear of San Antonio, would give women equal representation on the Democratic state executive committee—31 men and 31 women.

In the past, Mrs. Griswold said, politically speaking, women have been relegated to the status of the "telephone squad," where women are supposed to get on the telephone on election day and call up voters, urging them to support this or that candidate. She declared the "thing for women to do is get on the executive committee and select the candidate."

Mrs. W. W. McCrory of San Antonio declared that in 43 states women now have equal political representation, and said "Texas doesn't stack up very well."

Tax Bill Killed Today; Others Will Face Ax

Governor Is Determined To Retain Revenue; Claims Measures Are Unfair

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 2—Governor James V. Allred today vetoed a bill remitting certain ad valorem taxes to Harris county for flood control purposes and announced he would veto all similar local measures.

The action was in line with his reiterated declarations that the state's financial condition would not permit remissions to individual counties unless taxes were levied to make up the difference in revenue.

Another Veto Planned

The governor said he planned to veto a bill remitting taxes to Foard Cottle, Hardeman and Wilbarger counties for two years to aid the Pease river flood control district although it had not reached his desk.

The Harris county bill would have remitted one-half of the state ad valorem taxes collected in that county for 10 years.

The governor said his veto message on the Harris county bill, stating it was his "very unpleasant duty" to take that action, was being drafted.

With reference to the Pease river project, he commented "that is from my own district, and while I hate to veto the bill I must."

To Block Them All

"I will veto all local tax remission bills," he said.

A bill which would remit ad valorem taxes to all counties, the governor said, was a whole lot fairer," but he had reached no final conclusions as to it.

That bill has been passed by the house of representatives and has been set for special consideration in the senate next Wednesday.

"I think it is more justifiable to remit taxes to all than to pick out a few counties," he said.

In his formal message, Governor Allred said he had previously told the legislature he would veto such bills, that more than 40 counties had had tax remissions and that

Vote By People Now Advocated

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senator Norris (Ind-Neb) advocated today that the people vote directly on proposed constitutional changes in the next general election after submission of an amendment.

"Simplification and speeding of the amending process should help materially to solve social and economic problems which lie behind the dispute over the courts," he said.

May Offer Amendment

Norris disclosed that he soon may offer such an amendment. He would require two-thirds votes in the senate and house to submit an amendment to the people as at present. The provision for approval by three-fourths of the states also would be retained.

Instead of having legislatures or state conventions act on ratification, however, the voters themselves would decide.

"If I had my personal preference," said Norris, "only majority votes in congress and ratification by a majority of states would be necessary to make an amendment effective. But this probably could not be passed in congress."

Given Renewed Attention

Amendments as alternatives to the Roosevelt court reorganization bill were receiving renewed attention by the senate judiciary committee.

Walter F. Dodd, Chicago lawyer, advocated today constitutional change rather than what he termed subordination of the supreme court to "political branches" of government.

"If a precedent of this character is once established," said his prepared statement, "there is no limit to the subsequent use of the power as a means of abandoning not only one, but all of the present principles upon which our government rests."

Selective Wage Plan Offered

Denouncing the present system of paying a set salary to bachelor and married men alike, Dr. Paul Popenoe of Los Angeles proposed a "selective family wage" in an address last night in Horn hall which concluded a series of three he gave here Thursday.

The present system is "economically unfair, socially unjust and eugenically ruinous," said Doctor Popenoe, who is director of the Family Relations institute.

Through a selective family wage plan, a basal salary would be set and additional allowance made for a wife and each dependent child.

"It would be impossible for anyone to make money by childbearing, since the allowance would merely cover the cost of the child."

"The present wage system pays the same salary to a bachelor and a man with a wife and four children. But the latter must deduct from his pay check the cost of supporting his wife and children which may amount to 80 per cent of the total. So he may be actually getting $600 a year from the same job that pays a bachelor $3,000."

Would Make Allowances

Additional allowance of 20 per cent of a salary for a wife and 15 per cent for each dependent child was suggested by Doctor Popenoe.

Most of the student body of Texas Technological college and many town persons heard Doctor Popenoe. He spoke in a convocation in the gymnasium Thursday morning and in Doak hall that afternoon. The college YM-YWCA sponsored the lectures.

Other Angles Discussed

Other economic angles of marriage were discussed last night under the subject, "Can Young People Marry Without Jobs?"

In Doctor Popenoe's afternoon lecture, answers were given to the question, "How Can You Tell When You Are Really In Love?"

Prerequisites to successful marriage are a biological mating impulse, comradeship, sound economic relationship (division of labor), and mutual interest in children, he said.

Traces Development

He traced development of the individual's love life through the following stages: babyhood, love for parents; gang or Boy Scout and Girl Scout age; adolescent; and adult.

The baby loves himself, the older child loves his parents, the gang age child loves his playmates, the adolescent loves love, and the adult loves a life mate.

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY TO STOP CONSTIPATION

You have to correct the cause. Simply taking a pill now and then is just temporary—and often harmful.

Most constipation is due to meals low in "bulk." Put enough "bulk" in your diet and you can really correct common constipation.

That's why millions of people eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day. This cereal furnishes "bulk" which does not "break down" in the body. ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, gently sponges and cleanses the system.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a food—not a medicine. You buy it at the grocery store. Besides "bulk," it has vitamin B to tone up the intestines, and iron for the blood. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily with milk or cream. Three times daily in severe cases. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Local Man Is Acquitted In Court Trial Thursday

Jurors, judge and attorneys learned new definitions for old words during a trial in corporation court Thursday afternoon which resulted in the acquittal of E. R. Reese, a contractor, on a charge of obtaining city water by illegal means.

City Recorder C. E. Luce and others involved learned, for example, that the discovery of a "jumper" secured by "spuds" in the space where a meter had been "pulled" after a "cutoff" meant only that a short section of pipe had been used to span the space ordinarily occupied by a water meter to measure the flow from city mains.

Water department officials said the "jumper" was found after Reese's meter had been removed because of delinquent bills. Reese denied knowledge of how the "jumper" got in place and testified that his family obtained water from neighbors after the meter had been removed.

J. T. Stanfill, jr., of Olton, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stanfill, 1610 Avenue F, Thursday.

Election Staged By Carter PTA

Officers were elected at a meeting of the K. Carter Parent-Teacher association Thursday afternoon at the school. They are as follows:

President, Mrs. O. W. McLeod; vice-president, Mrs. F. B. Malone; secretary, Mrs. Floyd Crume; treasurer, Mrs. L. A. Battin; finance committee, Mesdames J. R. Bridges and John Craig (to work with Mrs. Battin), and program committee, Mrs. R. A. Metcalfe.

Earl M. McClure, Boy Scout executive, discussed friendliness and cooperativeness. As last month's meeting was omitted, children of six rooms instead of three, the usual number, presented a program of entertainment. They were pupils of Mesdames D. J. Wilhelm, Iris Bergholm and Otis Fincher and Misses Josephine Davies, Pearl Jackson and Virginia Forbis.

Mary Ann Dykes and Nelva Joyce Halbert played piano solos. Details concerning a new class in family relationships, which is to be conducted at 3 p. m. each Tuesday at the school building during the next eight or nine weeks, were explained by the teacher, Miss Sannie Callan.

Mrs. McLeod, delegate to the recent 14th district convention in Hamlin, reported her trip.

Mrs. Bergholm's room won attendance prize for the first floor and Miss Lottie Croslin's and Miss Dimple Watson's rooms tied for second floor prize.

No matter how perfect the condition of the car, the DRIVER is the most important factor in safe driving.

Be careful when passing cars, especially if another car is approaching.

Passing cars on turns and corners involves additional as passing a string of cars 300 feet long.

Students must enroll for at least four semester hours work of the architectural department before they can enter the colony. No architectural courses will be offered at the college the second semester.

Cost for students registering in the art colony will approximate $85, including board, room, tuition, and laundry.

Courses offered will be Freehand Drawing, Elements of Composition, Public School Art, Pencil Rendering and Sketching, Pen and Ink Rendering, Oil Painting or Advanced Water Color.

R. D. Lockhard and Mrs. C. E. Hooper of the department's faculty will be in charge of the colony. Persons interested should communicate with the department.

Recreation afforded in the locale of the colony will include horseback riding, fishing, hiking, and other outdoor sports.

NO, NO, PATRICIA THIS IS THE WAY

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—The W.S.G.A. society is taking in hand co-eds who smoke incorrectly (demonstrated by Patricia Fisher, left) and educating them until they possess a technique like Ann Williams (right). Now that their right to smoke is no longer debatable, Ohio State university co-eds have formed the "We Smoke Gracefully and Aesthetically" society—and are conducting a campaign among the girls for just that. Courses are prescribed where needed.

Man Claims He Had Rather Be Worker Than Industrialist

DALLAS, April 2 (AP)—Jan Bata, head of one of the world's greatest shoemaking factories, said here today he would rather be an American worker than an American industrialist.

"The worker is independent. The industrialist is a slave."

"But look at the money and ease the big industrialists have," an interviewer remarked.

"But is money everything?" Bata answered. "I never have any money. It all goes back into the business. It is the life blood of the business and is no good unless it is working."

Bata has been called the Henry Ford of Europe, a reputation based on the high speed, mass production of shoes his factories, centered in Czechoslavakia, maintain under his leadership.

Good wages and good living conditions for workers, he said, were prime aims of the Bata shoe company.

Rheumatic Pains Yield To Gly-Cas

Mr. Zollicoffer Finds New Herbal Remedy Just What He Had Been Needing For Years; Entire System Toned

"For years before I knew of Gly-Cas kidney and stomach trouble had allowed my entire system to become clogged with poisons," said Mr. E. A. Zollicoffer, 302 North Georgia St., Amarillo, Texas.

MR. E. A. ZOLLICOFFER

"Soon rheumatism settled over my body, especially in my right knee. It became so stiff and sore it was almost impossible for me to step up on the sidewalk. Then too, my arms were so sore I practically lost the use of them. My stomach was in such a miserable condition for after every meal I was sure to suffer dreadfully with severe gas pains and bloating. A good night's sleep was almost out of the question and I seemed to be fast losing hold of my health in general. But a short trial of Gly-Cas soon corrected all of this for me."

"Never have I seen a medicine do its work as well as Gly-Cas," he continued. "I can walk with ease for that dreadful rheumatism has been driven from my body. My stomach and kidneys no longer bother me. I eat what I wish and suffer no ill effects afterwards, sleep good and am really an entirely different man I feel so well again. And to think, at my age of seventy-eight, that a single medicine like Gly-Cas could change my whole outlook on life by giving me back my health."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

Mining School Asks For Funds

AUSTIN, April 2 (AP)—President D. M. Wiggins of the College of Mines and Metallurgy in El Paso today asked a senate subcommittee for appropriations to erect library and administration buildings at the school.

Wiggins requested $45,000 for a library in the 1937-38 appropriation and $150,000 for an administration and auditorium building in 1938-39, indicating he might obtain supplemental funds from the federal government with which to construct the buildings.

Asks Boost In Cash

The mines school also requested an increased appropriation of $210,000 annually for salaries, maintenance and summer school. Wiggins said the enrollment had grown to 826 and there was a demand for new equipment and an increase in the teaching staff.

Figures showing a cost of $207.31 per individual student at the Texas school as compared to $652.90 at the New Mexico School of Mines were cited.

The finance sub committee fixed the salary rates for the institution as follows: deans, $4,000 a year; professors who are heads of departments, $3,300; professors, $3,000; associate professors, $2,700 and instructors, $2,400.

Increase In The Number Of County Filings Reported

Substantial increase in the number of instruments filed with the county clerk during 1937 over the first three months of 1936 was reported by Ed Allen, county clerk.

There were 1,747 deeds, deeds of trust and other papers affecting real estate filed in the first 90 days of 1937. Chattel mortgages filed numbered 4,170.

Daniels Recalls A Tense Scene As Wilson Cast Lot With Allies

Fateful Hours Of 20 Years Ago Relived

When the die was being cast for the United States' entry into the World War, Josephus Daniels, now United States ambassador to Mexico, was "on the inside" as Secretary of the Navy in President Wilson's cabinet. Few persons were in such a favorable position to understand the full significance of the drama that was enacted in the Capitol on April 2, 1917, when Wilson announced the break in relations with Germany. He tells of that scintillating interplay of personalities in this special article for NEA Service and The Evening Journal. It is interesting to recall that Daniels at that time was the boss of Franklin D. Roosevelt, then Under-secretary of the Navy.

(Written For NEA Service And The Evening Journal.)

(Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

Twenty years have passed since I was privileged to be present at the capitol on the memorable night of April 2, 1917. Stirring scenes have intervened, but the scenes of that night—"these things I saw and a part of them I was"—remain photographed indelibly on my mind.

Not in all American history is there a scene comparable to that of 20 years ago in the House of Representatives as war was in the offing.

Every ambassador and minister accredited to Washington was present, attired in gorgeous uniforms. Most of their countries were already in the war, others were awaiting anxiously the action of the United States.

Severely Troubled

British Ambassador Spring-Rice, present with his staff, wore his gold braid proudly. He had been severely troubled and harassed during the difficult days of neutrality. That night he beamed with joy.

Ambassador Jusserand of France, dean of the diplomats, seemed to add inches to his short stature. His eye brightened at the prospect. In the early days of the war, Jusserand had not been among those who clamored for the entry of the United States into the war. "If your country goes in," he said to me one day when the demand for our entry was swelling, "hope for an adjustment will be lost and there will be no end of the war except by the exhaustion of the men and resources of all Europe. Your country's good offices as a neutral can alone bring peace!"

But like Wilson, by April 2 he had come to the conclusion that arbitration was out of the question. Only the German Ambassador Baron Bernsdorff who had received his passports, was conspicuous by his absence. Admirals and generals of the army and navy in brilliant uniforms matched the gold and purple of the diplomats. The galleries were crowded. Women in evening dress making the scene a colorful one.

Supreme Court Set Precedent

On the floor seated in a half-circle just in front of the Speaker sat the justices of the Supreme Court, the figure of Chief Justice White towering like Saul among the prophets. Their presence in the House was unprecedented.

I observed that the Chief Justice seemed to be laboring to conceal his satisfaction that the hour had arrived for the declaration he had long believed to be inescapable. For months he had not concealed his zeal for entrance into the war on the side of the Allies.

Near the robed justices sat the ten members of Wilson's cabinet, who had on March 20 unanimously voiced their approval of the call for a special session of Congress that would mean war. In all previous cabinet sessions there had been divisions of opinion. Now there was none.

His Heart Sank

My heart sank at the great responsibility entrance into the war would impose, but I was strengthened in spirit as I felt that the distinguished gathering of leaders was voicing the mounting mandate of the American people.

An air of tense expectation filled the chamber. Speaker Clark, who had not believed earlier that entry into the war was necessary, took his seat with gravity in his strong-lined face. Slight of figure, serene of countenance, Vice President Marshall ascended to his seat beside the Speaker.

"The Senate of the United States!" announced the sergeant-at-arms, and the 96 Senators filed in to take seats reserved for them. I observed Senator Lodge, a gleam of pleasure on his face because the course he had long advocated was about to be taken.

The members of the House were all in their places. The press gallery, re-inforced by the presence of leading editors from all over the country, was crowded.

Clarion To Nation

It was an awed gathering, silent in anticipation as the clattering of a cavalry escort, plainly heard on the pavement outside the Capitol, gave notice that the President was arriving.

Every person jammed into the House chamber rose as President Wilson entered the brilliant hall. He was given a spontaneous and sustained ovation.

"The President of the United States!" announced the Speaker as Mr Wilson ascended to the place appointed. As the sound of the gavel died away, the hushed audience resumed their seats.

Any stranger would have chosen Wilson as the leader if he had looked down on that gathering. There was a gravity and distinction in his bearing that marked him as the voice and inspiration of a great people. He looked inches taller in his immaculate dress. A spirit of serious apprehension of all that lay before him seemed to sit upon his countenance. He was pale for he had come to that moment through great travail of mind and heart.

He bowed his thanks for the evidence that those present were ready to go all the way with him. His eyes took in the scene, rested a moment on the faces of his Cabinet comrades, swept the pageant of military and diplomatic uniforms, and then rested for a brief period on the gallery where encouragement and love beamed from his wife and daughters. From that intimate and reassuring glance he turned to the manuscript he held in his hands, and an air of calm and confidence settled upon him. The spirit of the seer and the prophet and the fighter were upon him.

He spoke clearly and solemnly. In sentences so vascular that they would have bled if cut, he recounted the tragic events which had culminated in the necessity for war. The spirit of the Covenanter flashed from his eyes as he proclaimed: "The world must be made safe for democracy!"

Speech Drew Tears From Men

Why did he counsel war — why must we fight? He answered: "For democracy, for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own governments, for the rights and liberties of small nations, for a universal dominion of right by such concert of free powers as shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world at last free!"

The chamber breathed its approval and consecration. When he came to the climax: "There is one choice we can not make, we are incapable of making. We will not choose the path of submission," all observed the tall and commanding Chief Justice rise to his feet—he looked 10 feet tall—and lead the cheering with which the chamber rang. As he applauded his face moved convulsively and great tears ran down his cheeks. The Chief Justice was not alone. There were not many dry eyes.

The die had been cast. Four days later Congress declared that a state of war existed between the United States and the Imperial German government.

As the President was leaving the chamber, Secretary Houston records that he said to the President: "If it will give you any comfort, I can tell you that I have been watching the Supreme Court Justices. On the spot unanimously they have given you a favorable verdict as to the constitutionality of your proposal. . . . and it is certain that the Court will give a favorable verdict on any proposal necessary and designed to beat the Germans."

President Wilson then returned to the White House. Instead of the applause of the people making him happy, the President was depressed in the moment of reaction.

"Think what it meant," he sadly said to Joseph Tumulty, his private secretary, "the applause of the gathering in the Capitol and the people lining the streets as we returned from the Capitol! My message tonight was a message of death to our young men. How strange to applaud that!"

And Tumulty records that after dwelling on the tragedies he knew would follow the declaration of war, Woodrow Wilson let his head fall on the cabinet table and sobbed as if he had been a child.

Old Carbine Used By Mystery Bandit Owned By Two Texans

SAN BENITO, April 2 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Saner of Las Yescas, farm community north of here, have an old carbine with which the mysterious border bandit, "El Jefecito," perpetrated his lawless deeds, and which was the means of his capture 20 years ago.

Mrs. Saner, then Josefina Garza, an 18 year old school teacher, captured the desperado with his own gun, and the almost forgotten story was revived by rumors that the erstwhile "El Jefecito" now peddles candy in the streets of Brownsville.

Shrouded In Mystery

"El Jefecito" then as now was shrouded in mystery, but it is known he was one of the principals in a brush between bandits and law officers near Los Fresnos a short time before his capture. After the encounter he separated from his men and eventually strode into the Garza home with cocked rifle and demanded food.

Only Josefina and two small brothers were in the house. The girl recognized the bandit but calmly told him she would prepare food. He sat down with his rifle beside him. Mrs. Saner said the man ate more than she had ever seen any one consume and, as he gorged he became careless. She casually moved the rifle aside while serving food and, when he had eaten himself almost into a stupor, she picked it up and ordered him to hold up his hands.

Legs Tied To Chair

The little boys tied his legs to the heavy chair, then went through the brush for aid while the brave girl sat with rifle ready to fire if "El Jefecito" attempted to release himself.

Mrs. Saner said she knew nothing of the bandit's history after his capture, although discussions were heard frequently. Some persons contend he is dead, others that he is in the penitentiary, and yet others that he peddles candy in the streets of Brownsville. At any rate he never returned for his rifle.

Mrs. Saner's grandfather, Juan Antonio Ramirez, was a scout for Gen. Zachary Taylor in the war with Mexico, and her father, she said, was killed by unknown persons allegedly for loyalty to the United States during turbulent border days.

Labor Troubles Not Expected

DALLAS, April 2 (AP) — George A. Hill, jr., of Houston, vice-president of the American Petroleum Institute, expressed confidence at a southwestern district meeting of the production division of the institute here that generally pleasant relations between employers and employes in the oil industry would continue.

Hill, one of the more liberal A. P. I. leaders, quoted an authority on labor troubles who set forth:

"An outstanding characteristic of the development of highly organized industries during the past century has been to create and to bring into public view not a few problems in which, partly through want of understanding, partly through lack of human sympathy and interest and partly through the absence of any controlling devotion to the higher forms of public service, employers and employes have found themselves ranged in opposition of each other."

Possibilities Analyzed.

The speaker analyzed possibilities of trouble from any of the causes cited, finding little justification for such an accusation against the oil industry.

"The record of the industry," he said, "with respect to hours, wages, working conditions, insurance benefits and various other humanitarian activities would indicate an acute sensitiveness to and regard for the welfare of the employed by the employer."

The tax burden was discussed by Jake L. Hammon of Dallas, the oil industry of this state, he said, now pays more than 60 per cent of the entire state and county revenue. He said there were 21 separate taxes on oil and the oil industry in Texas.

The imposing position of the southwest in the industry was emphasized by Wallace E. Pratt of Houston. The southwest, he said, furnish 50 per cent of the national reserves.

More than 400 registered for the two-day session, the largest meeting of its kind ever held in the southwestern A. P. I. district.

Progress Toward Settlement Of Negro Case Is Made

Progress toward the settlement by a negro estate case now pending more than five years was made in county court after a hearing late Thursday, but even then none would attempt to say when finis might be written to the involved litigation.

The hearing ended with the removal order of Judge J. J. Dillard of Dovie Jo Williams negro woman as the administratrix of the $2,000 estate of her brother Earl Johnson, and the naming of Hill Stewart attorney, as administrator.

The change was asked by G. V. Pardue attorney representing claims totaling approximately $750 against the estate of Johnson. Mr. Pardue claimed on behalf of the creditors that although Dovie Jo has collected an undetermined sum in revenue from the property during a period of more than five years, she has failed to make any settlement of debts as directed by court order.

Dovie Jo was taken to the penitentiary three days ago to serve a one-year sentence for assault with intent to kill.

Gordon And Bullock Attend Meeting Held At Austin

Dean James M. Gordon of Texas Technological college and A. V. Bullock, Lubbock district supervisor of the NYA, were in Austin today to hear an address by Richard R. Brown of Washington D. C., deputy executive director of the National Association of Deans and Advisers of Men at the University of Texas on the subject: "The Problem of Government Aid to the College Student."

Higher Education For Dogs Demands Diversified Curriculum

OFF TO SCHOOL
Like a mother with her child, a mistress arrives at Chamblee, Ga., to put her Scottie in Benno Stein's dog college.

ATHLETICS
An English Bull, captain for an intramural football game, gets last-minute instructions from Professor Stein. It's all part of the canine curriculum. Dogs that learn to do as they're told make trustworthy playmates for children.

TRICKOLOGY
Pushing a doll carriage is a major course in dog college. Every owner wants his dog to know a few tricks, and this is a favorite.

CRIMINOLOGY
By practicing on a faculty member padded with felt, a German shepherd learns police duties. In "real life" the man in boots would be a cop and the padded crap a criminal. Kidnap scares have boosted the demand for dogs trained for this work.

LEISURE
School is not so bad, this Pomeranian thinks. During the 6-months' course he has all the comforts of a dog's life.

Rangers Are To Continue Work

AUSTIN, April 2 (AP)—A bill to prohibit the use of Texas rangers in gambling raids or suppression of other minor crimes unless their presence was requested by authorities or 25 citizens of a community met quick death Thursday in the house state affairs committee.

The vote was 12 to 1. It was taken immediately after Rep. L. M. Kenyon of Galveston, the bill's author, had completed his argument.

Losing Dignity

Kenyon contended the traditional Texas rangers were losing dignity and respect because they were being used to break up marble machines and for other "constable stuff."

"In years past," he said, "the big-time criminals had the utmost respect for a Texas ranger. That fear is vanishing as a consequence of the Texas rangers spending so much of their time dealing with petty crimes."

Other committeemen sought to bring out through questioning that the work of the rangers would be crippled unless the governor and director of the public safety department were left free to assign them as they saw fit.

Trial Of Two Men Will Be Held At Levelland Today

LEVELLAND, April 2 (Special)—Trial of indictments naming V. L. Harrington of Chillicothe and C. T. Stinson of Paducah for theft over $50 will be called in 72nd district court here today.

Specifically, the bills voted Tuesday after the grand jury had been reassembled especially to investigate cotton theft, charge the men took 10 bales from Farmers Cooperative gin at Anton and sold them at Houston.

Stinson assertedly has made a statement.

District Attorney Burton S. Burks said Deputy Sheriff C. R. Siebrecht of Wharton and Quincy J. Lowman of the Bureau of Public Safety were prepared to take the stand for the state.

Judge Daniel A. Blair will preside.

Mexico Continues To Aid Loyalists

WASHINGTON, April 2 (AP)—The Mexican government notified the United States today that it is continuing to support the Spanish loyalists and is indignant "against the foreign elements which have aided the rebels."

Ambassador Francisco Najera of Mexico transmitted the following message to the secretary of state.

To Continue Aid

"As instructed by my government, I am honored to communicate to your excellency that in connection with the painful situation prevailing in Spain, the Mexican government reaffirms its intention to continue to aid, morally and materially, the legitimate government of Spain, and today has expressed its indignation against the foreign elements which have aided the rebels.

"Mexico is sure, in collaborating with the functions of the legitimate Spanish government, that her neutrality is in accord with responsibilities as defined by the League of Nations.

"The Mexican government will support the Spanish government in all respects, and hereby gives assurance that she is entirely in accord with it."

Baby's Diet Consists Of A Drop Of Whisky And Milk

ALBIA, Ia., April 2 (AP)—A baby boy weighing less than a pound entered his third day of life today on a diet consisting of a drop of whisky and a teaspoon of milk fed him every hour from an eye dropper.

The child, born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johston, Albia, was reported by the attending physician, Dr. R. A. Smith, to be normal in every respect except weight and size. The boy is seven inches long and Dr. Smith says he estimates the weight at 10 ounces.

The father, relief worker, is 22 and the mother 18.

Winfield, Kas., not only supplies its own electric power needs, but also furnishes this utility for five surrounding towns.

Suit On Insurance Policy On File In County Court

Suit on an insurance policy based on the father's claim that his son played "hookey" from school and thus could not apply for disability payments was pending in county court today after having been filed late Thursday.

The suit was brought by Luther P. Taylor as father and next friend for Jessie H. Taylor against the Mid-Continent Life Insurance company seeking judgment for $285 with interest and attorney's fees allegedly due as disability payments for a period of more than two years. Taylor is represented in the action by M. S. Ragburn, Slaton attorney.

The father alleges that his son, "as a boy, refused to go to school, and when sent, played hookey." The consequence was, the petition continues, that the son was too illiterate to notify the insurance company of his disability when he contracted tuberculosis in 1935.

Revival Services Will Be Started In City Sunday

Central Baptist church, on Eighteenth street, will start a 10-day revival service Sunday morning with Rev. D. N. Jackson, Texarkana, Ark., doing the preaching. Rev. Jeff D. Welch, pastor, said this morning.

Services will be held twice daily, at 9:30 in the morning a Bible school and evangelistic services at 7:45 in the evening.

Anniversary Is To Be Observed Here

A program in observance of the twentieth anniversary of the chartering of the Federal Land bank at Houston will be broadcast over the Texas Quality network with KFYO cooperating Saturday from 10:30 to 11 a. m., according to Robert S. Rodgers, jr., assistant secretary of the Lubbock National Farm Loan association.

A play dramatizing the history of the bank will be given.

The Houston bank was chartered April 3, 1917. The Lubbock farm loan group was chartered the same year.

S. A. Lindsey, now of Tyler, was the first president. He resigned shortly after the bank was opened, to become chairman of the board of directors, a post he still holds. The late Judge M. H. Gossett succeeded him, resigning in 1933. He was second to serve as president of a bank in point of service, completing 16 years as head.

The Lubbock association now has over 915 loans in effect, with about 600 commissioner loans. It is one of the strong groups in this part of Texas.

A. C. Williams, Houston, now president of the bank, has visited in Lubbock a number of times. He is personally known to many farmers and bankers of this area, through contacts here.

Like fowls, various fishes, reptiles, crustaceans, insects, and other invertebrates have gizzards.

Blow Bubbles And Play Sax To Help In Speaking

SEATTLE, April 2. (AP)—Blow bubbles and play the saxophone if you want to learn to talk, Dr. Charles R. Strother, director of the University of Washington speech clinic, advised today.

Members of the American College of Surgeons, here for a regional meeting, viewed the work of Dr. Strother's clinic where, during its 18 months of operation, children with cleft-palate speech defects have inflated balloons, blown bubbles and played wind instruments.

Motta Again Is Called Upon To Aid The Swiss

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 2. — Giuseppe Motta has been elected President of the Swiss republic again.

For the Swiss this is a sign of stormy weather. Whenever there is trouble around the corner, they make Motta President. Trouble's other name this time is Germany. Nazi Germany is feverishly rearming, and in this "next war" that everybody is fearing, there have been predictions that Switzerland may take the place of 1914 Belgium as a carpet for the marching feet of German hosts.

So the Swiss—a very stout, valiant, fighting people, who value their freedom and independence—at once took steps to strengthen their armed forces, their heavy artillery, their air battalions and their anti-aircraft guns. It's going to be part of Motta's job to see that the work is well done.

In Switzerland the President is elected for a term of only one year; then a year must elapse before he can be chosen for another term. But with restriction, he can be re-elected indefinitely. So it comes about that Motta is now serving his fifth term.

Success Tribute To Character

His career is at the same time a tribute to his own personality, character and accomplishments.

The fact that this "child of the Alps," as he loves to call himself, had a father who kept an humble inn where horses for the post chaises were changed in the old days in the mountain valleys, formed no impediment to his career. The Swiss are a real and thoroughly democratic people, without a set of nobles and without the class feelings that accompany peerages.

Giuseppe Motta, born Dec. 29, 1871, attended school at Locarno and then went to the great universities of Freiburg, Munich and Heidelburg. He got not only a thorough classical education, but also a degree in law.

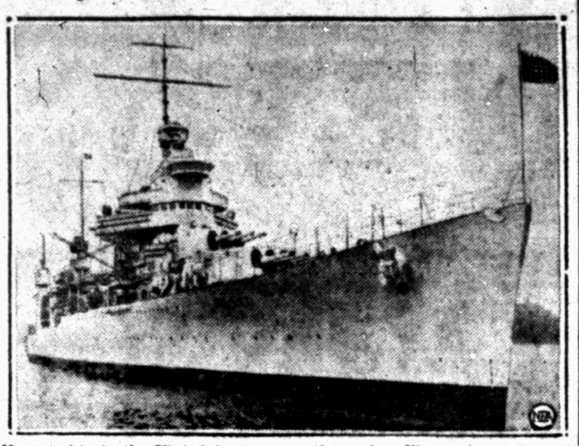

He settled in his native village of Airolo and, when 28, was elected to represent his canton in the National Council. Here he went right to the front. He proved himself a splendid orator in all three of the main languages of his country — German, French and Italian. But he showed also high qualities as a worker. He became a man marked for higher posts. In 1911 he was chosen by the national parliament as a member of the Federal Council of seven, which really carries on the executive part of the government. At forty he found himself directing the national treasury.

It was in 1915 that the Swiss first discovered him as a trouble shooter. In this second very tragic year of the world war, when Switzerland was surrounded by countries at war with each other, Motta was for the first time chosen President. In 1920 he was elected the second time. 1920, too, was a big year — big at least with hopes, for the Assembly of the League of Nations was to meet for the first time at Geneva and try to patch up the bleeding world. Motta had the job of opening this meeting and was elected honorary President of it.

In 1927 he was made President of Switzerland for the third time. Then came 1932, when Switzerland was beginning to feel at its acutest the depression which had shell-shocked the world. So the old trouble shooter was drafted for his fourth term as President.

And now, in his fifth term, the Swiss are relying upon him to see that, no matter what the Nazis or the Bolshies may start in Europe, their own beloved land of mountains and valleys shall remain an oasis of peace.

Woods To Be One Of Feature Speakers At Uvalde Meet

UVALDE, April 2. (AP)—Dr. L. A. Woods, state superintendent of public instruction, will be one of the principal speakers at the twenty-sixth annual conference of the fifth district, Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers, here April 6 and 7. The general theme of the meeting will be "The Relation of Home to Character Formation."

Other speakers will include J. C. Kellam, acting state director of the National Youth administration; Dr. J. J. Brown, director of rehabilitation of crippled children, and Sup. G. W. Goetke of Alamo Heights school, San Antonio.

One of the features will be the presentation by the district of honorary life memberships in the National Congress of Parents and Teachers to Vice-President and Mrs. John N. Garner.

Receipted Bills Of Noted Beauty Will Be Sold

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP) — The extravagances that cost Marie Antoinette her pretty head are mirrored in 106 of her receipted bills that go on the auction block here.

Books that cost as high as $181 a volume; prints and foreign newspapers supplied at prices running into thousands over four years; hats that ran as high as $40 each—all are accounted for in the receipts of the queen who suggested breadless commoners might eat cake.

Reflect Catholic Taste

The bills covering the four-year period from 1784-88 reflect a Catholic taste in art and literature and the tragic queen's indifference to the lavish spending which led to her execution on the guillotine in October, 1793.

For one volume of Bartoli's book on ancient paintings of Rome, the queen paid $163, including $60 for binding this and another volume in morocco.

The bills, shown at the American Art Association Anderson Galleries, Inc., revealed, this purchase was "for the king."

The present professor who is offering them for sale remains anonymous at his own request.

The first of a series of radiophone stations linking Rio de Janeiro with Recife, Sao Salvador, Belem and Porto Alegre, all principal coast centers, has been erected.

First Night Flight Also Was Made At Galveston

GALVESTON, April 2 (AP) — George Sealy, Galveston capitalist, says that in addition to the first airmail flight in the south, made by Pilot Paul Studensky March 17, 1912, between Galveston and La Marque, Galveston also saw the first night flight. Sealy says it was made about 25 years ago by a daring pilot named Hamilton who died several years later of measles.

The night flight, Sealy says, was more or less accidental. An aviator was sought to publicize a new hotel by flying around it and landing on the boulevard but none would undertake it until Hamilton arrived. He not only accepted the proposition but insisted upon making the flight at once. It happened to be night.

Sealy says he took Hamilton to Fort Crockett and helped him fill his gasoline tank, and then obtained several automobiles to illuminate the boulevard with their headlights.

"In about 10 minutes we heard Hamilton circling the hotel, awakening many guests, and then landing in front of the hotel."

Sealy participated in the first automobile race run in this section.

Boys Just Will Be Boys!

PASADENA, Cal.—Horseplay begins at 40. Jimmy Dykes, Chicago White Sox manager, is that old. His exuberance knows no bounds as he goes up for the throw, but Pitcher Italo Chelini of the Pale Hose appears safe. With the White Sox, the boss man leads the march of the merry-makers. Veterans, rookies, and even spectators fall in line at every training camp.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—These boys are trying to make this look like a serious thing. Pat Malone is working on Monte Pearson. Both are New York Yankee twirlers.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla.—Well, you've heard about the St. Louis Cardinals' Pitcher Paul Dean (center) is victimized by Pitcher Mike Ryba (left). Outfielder Johnny Rizzo (right).

MACKSICO CITY—Here are three—pardon us, two—of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics. Left to right: Rookie Outfielder Clarence (Ace) Parker; a friend, who doesn't want to play; First-baseman Gene Hasson.

ORLANDO, Fla.—These lads are merely following orders. Owner Clark Griffith told Washington National Infielder Cecil Travis (left) he would have to be more aggressive. Travis picked a fight with Teammate Shanty Hogan, catcher, biggest guy he could find. Travis will have to learn to pick on boys his own size.

Texas Relays Attract Many Stars

Athletes From All Sections To Take Part

AUSTIN, April 2. (AP)—One thousand athletes, hailing from the banks of Lake Michigan to the Rio Grande, were gathering here today for an assault on Texas relays records.

Clyde Littlefield, University of Texas track coach and director of tomorrow's 30th renewal of the carnival which rings up the curtain on the national outdoor track and field season, supervised the task of issuing numbers, making preparations to run off the program with split-second precision.

Thousands Are Expected

More than 5,000 spectators were expected to witness participants representing 16 universities, including Chicago, Drake, Indiana, Kansas and Kansas State, Michigan State, Oklahoma and Oklahoma A. & M., Louisiana State, Wayne of Detroit and Lone Star state schools match strength and endurance on the cinders and in the pits.

Headline attractions included Don Lash of Indiana, crack distance runner, who will match strides with Wayne Rideout, one of North Texas Teachers, famed twins in the 3,000-meter event, and Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania's veteran miler, paired with Blaine Rideout in an exhibition mile.

Additional Competition

The favored Lash will have additional competition in the gruelling cross country race in Ken Waite of Michigan State intercollegiate A. A. A. A. cross country champion and his teammate Dick Frey, freshman titlist in the same meet. Case of Texas Tech and Feller of Drake, also entered, were considered dangerous.

Another Olympian, Alton Terry of Hardin-Simmons, was expected to crack the javelin mark of 306 feet, 11 inches set by Beatens of Kansas State Teachers in 1929.

Lloyd Cardwell of Nebraska, Al Tolmich, who has been setting indoor track afire for Wayne university of Detroit, Delmer Brown of North Texas Teachers, Reeves and Graves of Texas, Carr of Rice and J. Hill of Drake were ranking favorites in the 100 yard dash.

Rice Has Two Favorites

Two Rice Owls, Captain Wrightert in the pole vault, and Jack Patterson in the 120-yard high hurdles, appeared the most likely contenders in those event. Noble of Kansas, Sanford and Bryan of L. S. U. and Elvins of Drake, however, were eminently capable challers entered.

Jack Vickers of Texas, who recently cleared six feet six inches, seemed the man to beat in the high jump with Whatley of North Texas Teachers, Kabab of Chicago, Neese of Rice and Baxter of Nebraska among competitors.

Hubbers Will Work Out At Park Sunday

Candidates for the 1937 Lubbock Hubber baseball team are to report for the second official workout Sunday afternoon at the local park.

Skipper Sled Allen will not be present for the drill, having left last night for Marlin where he is to "take the baths" and otherwise get the system in shape for the season. A supervised workout, however, will be conducted, and all hands are invited out.

The field is now in a state of repair, but if conditions do not warrant practice on the field proper batting and throwing practice will be held on the wide open spaces near the park.

Highly Touted Baylor Bears Are Shut Out

(By The Associated Press)

The Southwest conference baseball pack was off to a full cry today in quest of the 1937 pennant, but Baylor university's highly-favored Bears were not in the lead.

A sophomore right hander from Hondo, Floyd Mechler, threw the Bruins for a 7-to-6 loss in their opening game with Rice Institute. Mechler's mound was accomplishing by the timely three hits he allowed. Some Baylor mainstays was touched for nine hits. The game was played at Houston, whence the Bears left to meet Texas A. and M. today.

At Fort Worth, another season's opener gave the University of Texas an 8-to-6 victory over Texas Christian. The losers nullified their superior batting by six errors. The Steers got nine hits. T. C. U. 15. They play another game today.

Bill To Give Texans Right To Fish In River Filed

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 2. (AP)—A bill was introduced in the Oklahoma house today which would give Texans the right to fish in the Red river, provided they purchased special non-resident annual Red river fishing license at $1.25.

A 1923 supreme court opinion held the border stream lies within Oklahoma. Texans had complained of arrests by Oklahoma game wardens for fishing in the stream without non-resident Oklahoma licenses, which cost $2.50.

Bradley Rated Chance To Cop Fifth Victory

BY C. ROBERT KAY

NEW YORK, April 2. (AP)—It looks like an ideal year for that famous Kentucky colonel, Edward Riley Bradley, to crash through with his fifth Kentucky derby victory.

His two nominees, Billionaire and Brooklyn, winners of $12,150 and $11,595, respectively last year, were hardly among the topflight of 1936 juveniles, but his last two derby winners, Burgoo King and Broker's Tip, were no great shakes as two-year-olds, either.

Actual Experience

Both Burgoo King and Broker's Tip received their preliminary derby training in actual racing at Lexington, Ky., in 1932 and 1933. Since then, there has been no spring racing at Lexington, the colonel's derby entries have failed.

Now the Keeneland association has arranged an ambitious spring racing program in the cradle of the thoroughbred. Billionaire and Brooklyn will test their hooves on Kentucky soil during the Lexington meeting—perhaps entering the feature race, the $5,000 added blue grass stakes for three-year-olds, nine days before the Kentucky derby on May 8 at Churchill Downs, Louisville.

Colonel Bradley is the undisputed champion Kentucky derby owner. Horses representing his Idle Hour farm have won $215,000 in derby stakes since 1921.

Track And Field Meet Will Be Staged Here Saturday

Lubbock County's interscholastic track and field meet for high school athletes gets under way at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, Director Homer Bentley has announced.

Championships in both Class A and B division will be established as well as for junior high school athletes.

All entries are required to be at the Texas Tech field at the announced time tomorrow morning.

Winners will compete in the district meet here April 16-17.

TO REBUILD SCHOOL

HALE CENTER (Special)—Trustees of the Mayfield school have planned to rebuild the structure destroyed by fire February 15. A 2-room structure 24 by 54 feet will be built. Insurance collected amounted to $4,431. Brick will be salvaged from the burned building.

Nearly 10,000,000 rivets were used in constructing the hull of the Queen Mary.

SPORTOGRAPHS

by COLLIER PARRIS

BEST APRIL FOOL joke of all was, or is, another in the series of the heavyweight boxing situation. . . . Joe Gould and his Braddock Joe Poley and his Chicago promotional deals, Joe Pudge and his hairlipped heavyweight are becoming as boresome and tiring as Dizzy Dean and his holdout wars. . . . And all probably for the same reason: Ballyhoo.

It is not boring, to us at least, and it certainly is no April Fool joke that the local bat and ball boys are really bearing down in preparation for the season. . . . A bunch of 'em met last Sunday and had a good workout. . . . Sled Allen, before he left yesterday for Marlin and "the baths," expressed hope the boys would keep up the good work during his absence. . . . Last night Sport Weeldridge called and said "You bet we'll be back at work Sunday, and why not put it in the paper early so more of the boys can see it in time to be there." . . .

So it's in the paper early this week. All players interested in batting and fielding under Hubber colors this summer are cordially invited to the Sunday workout. Particularly are some right and left handed, plain and fancy pitchers invited. . . . Pitchers is what "we ain't got the most of," and Lubbock can use a few . . . if they like to play ball. . . .

From our sporting goods salesman friend, "Strick" Strickland, we learn that the boys up the way are getting hot and bothered in a big way over baseball. . . . Sudan is building a new ball park, and ordered new uniforms, bats, gloves, balls, etc., yesterday. . . . The town wound up the season with a very nice ball club last year. . . . Littlefield is going on a baseball boom also, and that's interesting. . . . That used to be a very tough customer in South Plains baseball. . . . Littlefield, also, is building a new park, and is thinking of putting in lights. . . . Amherst, of course, is just about set. . . . It already has its park, has added new equipment and is reported to be bringing in some star pitchers. . . .

Haven't heard anything of a baseball nature from Lamesa. . . . Sure wish that town would go back to the game. . . . Lubbock and Lamesa used to have a red hot baseball rivalry, and it could be revived. . . . The lid on the local season won't blow for another month, but things'll start popping for fair along about the second week in May.

BY THIS TIME tomorrow, we'll be able to give you a personal slant on the golf teaching ability of Charley Akey, the new pro and general manager at Lubbock Country club. . . . Bobby Jones and us had a tough afternoon yesterday. . . . So it'll be lessons for awhile before we tie into J. O. Smith, Cliff Dean, Clyde Williams and Sammy Rosenthal. . . .

Yesterday's weather brought 'em out, and both courses did good business. . . . This is a golf playing town when the weather is right, although the locals don't go so strongly for tournament golf. . . . Especially the Country club bunch. . . .

Which reminds that it seems fairly certain the dates of August 26-29 will be those of the 1937 Lubbock Country club invitation tournament. . . . Some wanted to hold it earlier this year, but since they started rebuilding the tees, an early date is impractical. . . . The new tees, and they're going to be great, should be ready by the last of August. . . . Then the club'll have grass greens AND grass tees. . . .

THE TEXAS TECH Association of Lettermen is throwing its annual jamboree Monday night. Thought that AAU boxing tournament was to serve this year, but apparently not. . . . The boys have quite a shindig cooked up, and you'll not want to miss it.

Among other things booked for the Tech gymnasium Monday night are three or four boxing bouts featuring some of the best talent available around here. . . . Babe Ritchie, the state Golden Gloves heavyweight champion who won the district AAU but did not compete in the state AAU joust at Houston, is to meet a heavy from Plainview, name unknown at yesterday's press session. . . . Killer Coffee is to tangle with John Buck, the state AAU light heavyweight champion, a title formerly held by Coffee. . . . Or was it the middleweight title he won? . . . Elmer Tarbox, the classy Texas Tech light heavy, will tangle with Bert Tankersley, the Brownfield flash. . . . They're trying to line up a match for Lewis Terrell, the toothpick flyweight champion of Texas.

This John Buck, who has been boxing a long time, got the best "notices" of all in the AAU tourney at Houston. . . . A peculiar sort of fighter, who gives nothing away by his eyes, was a decisive winner in his division, and bagged a free trip to St. Louis and the junior national AAU tourney. . . . Winners there go to Boston. . . .

Other items of special interest: the Double-T show will be a "football review" in which the gridders will demonstrate what goes on behind the scenes during a football game between halves, after game and at skull practices. . . . eYah, like heck they will! . . . But maybe you'll get a slight idea. . . . There's to be specialty dancing, featuring Claudia Mosley, singing by Bess Krause and goodness knows what else the boys'll do. . . . The show starts at eight bells, and the price of admission is reasonable.

Nelson Blazing Trail With A Blistering 66

BY PAUL MICKELSON

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 2. (AP)—Keeping up with Jones is no longer a job in golf.

As the 46-man field lined up for the second round of the fourth annual Augusta national golf championship today, the once unbeatable Bobby Jones was tied for next to last place while Byron Nelson, lanky blond sharpshooter from Reading, Pa., blazed the trail with a record 66.

Bobby fell out of the running yesterday with a shaky 79 that all but carried the favored Horton Smith with him to the shoals of defeat. Smith, a hot contender for his third Augusta crown in four starts, slumped while he played with Jones and took a 75 that left him nine blows behind.

Jones' 79 ties his worst Augusta record. He had two of them last year, finishing 33rd.

Trailing Nelson was Ralph Guldahl, who streaked home with a back nine 32 for an 18-hole 68. Pressing close behind Guldahl came eight of the finest par-crackers in golf.

Tied at 70, two blows under par, were Wiffy Cox, Washington; Ed Dudley, home club pro, and Lawson Little, former amateur champion.

At 71's came belting Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware, Pa.; Johnny Revolta, former PGA champ from Chicago; Tony Manero, open champion; Ray Mangrum, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Len Dodson, Springfield, Mo.

Al Espinosa, Mexico City, and Victor Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., had par 72, making an even dozen contenders who had par or better. Harry Cooper, another pre-tournament favorite, was seven behind with a 73.

The second round was on today's schedule with two more coming Saturday and Sunday to include the 72-hole battle.

Why 17,000 are after a SHARE in the FABULOUS "SNUFF FORTUNE"

Snuff founded the fortune

Greed and Avarice

Because old Mrs. Garrett left a will disposing of only $62,500, although she was really worth some $17,000,000, the Philadelphia courts--aided by 3000-odd lawyers--must decide who is to get it

By Madelin Blitzstein

ACROSS the ocean in Nieblingen, Germany, a young man becomes infuriated, whips out an old army pistol, kills the uncle who has raised him from infancy, seriously wounds his kindly aunt and then, half-mad, rushes out into the dark forest and commits suicide. . . .

From Augusburg, Bavaria, a timid little priest sets forth on a long journey to faraway Philadelphia, hopefully bearing in his trembling hands a birth certificate which he wants to establish as authentic. . . .

In an obscure spot in the Andes Mountains, which a letter from this country takes 45 days to reach, a man waits patiently for the required papers which he will have to fill out and send back on another 45-day trip in order to establish his eligibility. . . .

In every state of the Union, in France, Indo-China and 27 other foreign countries, more than 17,000 men, women and children are eagerly awaiting the results of a contest which has already led to the hiring of 550 Philadelphia lawyers, 2500 attorneys from other places, a small army of genealogists and handwriting experts, not to mention the accumulation of a vast store of "exhibits" that include old family Bibles, birth, death and marriage certificates, pictures authentic and manufactured, German and French prison records, and daily mail that requires the services of a special postman.

This mixture of new and old tragedy and comedy, romance and love and hatred, family feuds and family affection, greed and avarice and lust for money, as revealed by word of mouth in personal reminiscences as well as through scribblings on yellowed papers, has all grown out of what promises to be the bitterest, most fantastic and most fiercely fought will contest this land has ever known.

IT has all centered itself on a fortune made, of all things, out of that humble commodity, snuff.

No one knows how long it will be before the will hearings, which have now begun in Philadelphia on Thursdays and Fridays of every week before Master William M. Davson, Jr., a Scotsman appointed by the orphans' court, will reach a climax. There are those who estimate that the hearings will continue for two years; others say 15 is the more likely figure.

But one thing is certain: whoever finally gets the fortune will receive far more than the $20,000,000 it is now valued at, since the estate, invested in Government bonds and triple-A stocks, has been increasing at the rate of $500,000 a year.

The original $17,000,000, now grown to $20,000,000, was left by a little old lady, Mrs. Henrietta Edwardina Schaefer Garrett, who lived like a recluse and never came out of her brick house in the last 15 years of her long life. When she died, at the age of 80, in 1930, in the home where she had lived since her marriage in 1872 without electricity or telephone and with very few friends or acquaintances, she created the present treasure hunt by failing to make a proper last will and testament.

Perhaps she did not realize that the $6,000,000 which she had inherited from her husband, Walter Garrett, at his death in 1895, had increased three-fold through wise investments; perhaps she abhorred the idea of thinking about what she ought to do with it after her own death; whatever the reason, the only instructions which Henrietta Garrett left to the world—she had no children and no nieces or nephews—were:

"A Request: Dear Mr. Charles S. Starr—Give you my estate and belongings which are named in my book per a/c the following amounts: Give to Henrietta G. Ferguson the sum of $10,000. . . ." Thus she disposed of a mere $62,500 to friends and servants, but omitted the crucial residuary phrase: "'All the rest I give to . . ." And there were no witnesses to her note.

Quietly this Mr. Charles S. Starr, a wealthy stockbroker who had guided Mrs. Garrett in making her fine investments, and Frank G. Marcellus, who claims to be a first cousin once removed of Mrs. Garrett, took out letters of administration for the estate. For four years they made no accounting; today they are under a $6,000,000 bond, the largest bond ever placed in an estate proceedings, to administer the estate properly.

TWO years ago, when the orphans' court was to pass on the audit of Case No. 2552 of 1932, the claimants who had discovered they were relatives, close and distant, of either the late widow or her husband, began pouring in and asking their shares.

That marked the beginning of a Herculean struggle which enlisted several principal contenders: 1—the Garrett relatives; 2—the Kretschmar and Schaefer families, the maternal and paternal lines of Henrietta Garrett; 3—Charles Starr, who claims that the widow's quaint phrase, "Give you my estate," means that he is in reality the residuary legatee; and 4—the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which asserts that since there are no close relatives the fortune must therefore escheat to the state under the intestate laws.

One group of these claimants, the 500 relatives of the dead Walter Garrett, who helped to make the fortune, was ruled out last spring, first by Judge Allen M. Stearne in orphans' court and then by the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court, on the ground that Walter Garrett's will did not give his widow a life estate but a residuary estate absolutely in fee, thus making her relatives and not those of her husband entitled to the money after her death.

Had Mrs. Garrett heeded her husband's will as closely as the judges did, there would not have been the present confusion; for on April 10, 1890, Walter Garrett made his will and wrote in an earnest exhortation to his wife to make her own will at once, adding that he hoped she would "leave your fortune to charitable institutions, mentioned by name, as I would not like it if what I have worked long and hard to accumulate should be squandered by your or my sisters, cousins and aunts and uncles.'"

Garrett signed this document "Your Loving Husband" and attached a list of securities then valued at $3,090,000; when he died, five years later, his estate was worth twice that much, due, in large part, to a bequest from his father, William Evans Garrett, Sr.

HOW the Garretts accumulated their fortune is a story as romantic as the fight over the will.

A member of the Garrett clan came to Philadelphia with William Penn in 1682 and started a modest tobacco shop near the docks of the new city, where he sold snuff as well as fancy snuff boxes to the young men of the town. In time the Garrett snuff became so popular that the Garretts began to manufacture it and prosper from it; finally, less than a century ago, the firm of William E. Garrett & Sons was formed. That William E. Garrett had four children: two sons, William Evans Garrett, Jr., and Walter Garrett, and two daughters, Julia and Elizabeth.

When William Evans Garrett, Sr., died, he left his fortune equally to his two sons, one of whom was married to the Henrietta of the present contest; to his daughters he left nothing but the instruction that their brothers should care for them. When Wilham, Jr., died, he left his money to his two sisters; when Elizabeth died, she bequeathed hers to Julia. And when Julia died, she left her $12,000,000 fortune to Isaac Tatnall Starr as a sort of reward for his faithful services and advice.

That Garrett fortune also started a rumpus; that Starr, brother of the present Charles Starr, engaged George Wharton Pepper as his attorney. The case was settled when the Garrett relatives agreed to give Starr $6,800,000. When Isaac Starr died six years ago, he left one-quarter of his fortune to Charles, and Charles has now engaged the very same George Wharton Pepper, now an ex-United States senator, to fight for his claims.

All this does not tell how Henrietta came to be part of the Garrett tribe and fortune. To trace her lineage is at present no easy matter. One thing is certain: she was born to Christopher Schaefer and his wife, Henrietta Charlotte Kretschmar Schaefer, in 1849, and that she and Walter Garrett were married in 1872. They lived in Philadelphia.

Next door to them lived John C. Schaefer, Henrietta's brother, who died in 1913, leaving $360,000 and no will. All he left was "a request," giving certain bequests to the Marcellus family and the balance, "to you, dear Sister Henrietta. Do with it whatever may please your fancies. Your loving Brother." Henrietta renounced the right to letters of administration and requested the appointment of Charles S. Starr and a bank.

Besides Frank Marcellus, there are many others who claim kinship and cousinship once removed. Among the most prominent are 10 descendants of Charles and Julius Constantine Kretschmar, said to be uncles of the snuff widow through their father, John C. Kretschmar, the maternal grandfather of Mrs. Garrett. John was a German immigrant, they say, "common ancestor" of Mrs. Henrietta Garrett and the Marcellus tribe as well as of the Kretschmars.

THE outstanding tragedy so far was the shooting of Lorenz Schaefer, 56, and his wife, by their nephew, Ludwig Schaefer, in Nieblingen, Germany, after young Ludwig had returned from a trip to America in April, 1935, to see about the will case. Ludwig wanted Lorenz to pay the expenses of the trip; Lorenz refused; Ludwig killed Lorenz, wounded his wife and then killed himself.

Loudest cries of forgery were hurled at a new "will" which was reputedly found under romantic circumstances in an old brass-bound trunk and was presented to Register of Wills Harry V. Dougherty by the attorney for one of the claimants, Wilham O. Schaefer of Schuylkill County.

Dated 1914, seven years before Mrs. Garrett wrote her "request" to Charles Starr, this "will" is written on paper exactly like the 1921 "request" and in a penmanship similar to that of Mrs. Garrett. As soon as the cries of forgery greeted this document, Gordon Block, the attorney for William Schaefer, withdrew from the contest, stating only that he did not wish to prejudice the claim of Schaefer or any of his relatives.

NOT long ago in this column The Plainsman hazarded the opinion that if and when Mr. Roosevelt wins his drive to assume command of the courts he will not achieve victory through congressional votes representing either the wishes of most individual congressmen or their constitutents. We said whatever congressional support the President gets will be largely due to fear of the patronage ax which he has been dangling over the heads of those representatives and senators who have the audacity to oppose the whims of the Big Boss of the Works.

In yesterday afternoon's mail came a report on the situation, giving the status of affairs as seen by trained observers—men with many years of newspaper and magazine experience under their belts and whose duty it is to advise editors subscribing to their service the latest conditions in Washington.

Here is that part of the report bearing upon the court rookus:

"One of the most exciting backstage battles in years is now in progress. President Roosevelt is struggling with a Congress that gags and balks against his Supreme court reorganization plan. In many respects the fight differs from any other in which he has been engaged—and which he won with such comparative ease.

"The Democratic party split on this issue is a cause of worry. FDR is working to win over Democrats—he doesn't bother with Republicans. Men in Congress tell the writer that patronage, sugar tax legislation, and relief fund favors are figuring in the scrimmage. Senators in 20 states are interested in sugar.

"Private checking now shows 53 senators "at heart" against the 15-judge proposal, and 48 against an increase of even two judges. The question is how many of the lawmakers will be won over against their private inclinations.

"Strong pressure is exerted on southern senators. No changes in the lineup are made public, but it's fully expected that most of the noncommittal southerners will follow FDR.

"The South is facing the situation with mixed feelings. Anti-lynching legislation looms up — probably the House leaders will be unable to prevent a vote on a motion to discharge the committee having charge of anti-lynching bills. This prospect dismays many southern lawmakers, who fear that a revamped Supreme court may validate other legislation aimed at pleasing the northern negro vote — such as federal supervision of elections, for example.

"Another bill disliked by southerners is the tenant relief measure, which squints at setting up negroes as farm owners. These lawmakers insist that the majority of negro share-croppers are incapable of running a farm — that the government would be throwing away huge sums while stirring up undesirable social ambitions among the blacks."

To use a trite phrase, Mr. Roosevelt apparently intends to have his way "in spite of hell and high water."

All that remains to be seen now is whether there are enough steadfast representatives and senators with the courage to refuse to be blackjacked into playing ventriloquist dummy for the White House and thus save the day.

WARNINGS are being sounded from Austin that efforts will be made before the present legislative session closes to establish a general sales tax in Texas.

While we do not doubt the truth of the warnings, our reaction is merely and briefly:

"So what?"

For if we don't get a general sales tax clapped on our sore backs this session, we will the next, or the next.

It's coming, like a train down the track.

Texas legislators can't go on voting to spend money and to remit taxes without digging up more revenue.

Easiest way to raise more revenue — and raise it double-quick — is by passing a general sales tax law.

If you know legislatures, you know the answer.

SOME people think passage of a state income tax law would end the agitation for a general sales tax.

It won't.

It might stall off the sales tax for a year, or two, or three. But just as soon as the boys started needing money again, up would pop the devil in the form of a sales tax proposal.

And eventually it would pass.

Taking everything into consideration, the sales tax is the fairest tax of all, because it is paid by everyone and in direct ratio with the amount each has to spend.

Furthermore, it is the type of tax that can easily be checked and which can be computed, in advance, so the state knows almost to the penny how much it will bring in.

But if the sales tax is added to our already sizeable taxation package, it is going to hurt and hurt plenty, because we are going to feel it every time we pay a penny of it.

THE sales tax originally was supposed to take the place of all other taxes save moderate ad valorem taxes.

Since the beginning of the era when anything and everything became fair game for taxation, however, the sales tax has become — just as any other new kind — an additional tax piled up on everything else.

That's what it's going to be when it's put into operation in Texas.

Yes sir, just another tax — and an expensive one.

'Eve's Orchard'

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER
Copyright, 19137, NEA Service, Inc.

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfield goes back to her 200-year-old house and orchard in Connecticut after five working years in New York. She plans to rent or sell, marry gay, slim Denny and return to Manhattan apartment life. But the tendency to stay in her beloved old home grows. Quiet, practical George Cleveland, who lives nearby and Uncle Henry, an old family friend, help her clean and move the antiques from the attic. Denny comes for the weekend and Eve's old crowd drives out Sunday in Mitzi's car for a cheerful waffle luncheon.

Chapter 17
Mitzi And Dill Clash

"I say, Mitzi," Dillard Betz said rather thickly, in the manner of one ordering a taxi, as they lingered around the table two hours later, "I have to see a producer at the Lambs at seven. Tell Jean to run me in." He laced his coffee for the third time with whisky from his pocket-flask.

Three months ago Eve had seen Mitzi under similar circumstances obediently hand over the car with an admiring cave-woman look; but evidently times had changed.

Mitzi said, "Sorry, Dillard, I'm staying out, and I want the car," in her business voice, which was a hard one.

Dillard had had three cups of coffee, each half whisky. He was always half-lit; apparently he had had a lot before he came for he answered her with no semblance of decorum, yelling drunkenly at her across the table.

"You're off me—" shouted Dillard, "because I'm not a successful playwright now. All right—I'm off you. You made fuss over me—for what was in it—first nights, Betz's great friend. Very well, I don't care. People make fuss over you for what's in it too. Let you boast about them. Take it fr'm me, Mitzi, nothing in it. Nobody'd marry you, not even for your money. In the same boat, us two—you'll learn. Nobody has any decency. Nobody but Eve. . . . Eve's my friend, aren't you, Eve?"

He began to cry.

It was the fashion in their group to put up with Dillard; he was so sorry for himself that they accepted having to be sorry too; and so Eve was surprised to see Mitzi's plump face set, her black eyes harden. And then she realized that whatever Dillard had done before he had never probed Mitzi's tenderest point, her sorest agony or vanity—her fascination for men.

She said in a steel tone: "And I'm through with you, for good. Don't ever come crawling back for meals or loans or cocktails. And either you leave this room or I do."

Marylin threw her arms around Mitzi, cooing, pleading, coaxing; but the end of the uncomfortable scene was that Dillard got up, trying to apologize all the way out, and slid away.

"I hear Jean," Mitzi said, still stiff. "I must go to Mrs. Cleveland now." She rose as George walked in at the kitchen door with his usual unceremoniousness.

"Mother sent me to see if you were ready," he said, his calm a blessed relief from the hot atmosphere of anger. He stood in the doorway, rather Sundayfied with his smooth brushed hair and golf clothes. "My mother's hoping she can drive you to see some friends—"

"Anywhere—that you want to take me—" said Mitzi with a brisk upward glance, suddenly changing to her other manner.

"Oh, I say, what a shame—I have to take a friend fishing," said George seriously. But he escorted Mitzi to her car, while the others scattered. And Eve suddenly remembered that nobody had seen little Judge Featherstone. The poor child had probably had nothing to eat.

Two Contented Beings

She ran him to earth in the barn. But Uncle Henry was there too. Remains of sandwiches and a bottle of milk proved that the two had lunched together. Indeed, they were finishing large wedges of pie. They sat on boxes in the middle of an almost tidied barn, warmed pleasantly by an old oil stove. Judge grinned at her. Two more peaceful and contented beings could not be imagined.

She said, "I just wanted to be sure Judge was all right."

"Judge you call him? Well, now, I never held much with nicknames," said Uncle Henry placidly, taking another bite of his ham sandwich. "He tells me his name's Oliver. That's a good old name, I like it. Named for his grandfather. I met his grandfather once, he was a fine man."

"Hello, Eve," Judge said. "Tell George I think I won't go fishing after all. Uncle Henry says there aren't fish this early. You see, he knew my grandfather, so I'm helping him red up the barn."

He snuggled closer to the old man. "You run along, daughter, Oliver's all right with me," said Uncle Henry. "I'm telling him about the time I met his grandfather, and what he said to me."

Judge looked up at him adoringly. Eve saw that she could go back to her guests with a free mind so far as the child was concerned.

"Your friend doesn't want to go fishing, George," she said teasingly, finding George and the Featherstones and Ellen around the fire. "He's out in the barn helping Uncle Henry."

"Judge?" Marylin, lounging in the his overstuffed chair, laughed. "He always looks after himself the lamb in fact, he takes complete care of us lazy worthless loafers, doesn't he, Peter?"

Peter smiled and nodded and squeezed Marylin's hand. Marylin went back to what she had been saying. "If my useless lazy life has taught me anything, it's that, just being tolerant to all, loving them for what they are, not what they aren't."

Eve was not surprised. It was the fashion among the crowd to approve everyone; to understand the temptations of even gunmen and kidnapers.

"Talking about Dillard," Ellen informed her from her seat in the shadows.

George, on one knee before the fire, putting on another log, said bluntly, "You mean you don't believe in making any difference between decent people and the other kind?" There was a silence as if he had mentioned something not quite nice; but Eve had noticed that George didn't mind silences.

"We all feel," said Denny, his usually casual voice a little curt, "that only Puritans and fanatics can make hard and fast rules about poor human nature. Old Dill, for instance; he may drink too much and sponge a little. But in the depths of him, he may be a hero"

"Pretty far down, I'd say," Kilian interrupted from the shadows, with a laugh.

Eve said nothing. She wanted to back up her Denny; but, on the other hand, she knew perfectly well that there was no hero anywhere in Dillard Betz; only a self-pitying, bad-tempered little weakling who was just the kind to rush first for the boats in time of shipwreck.

George spoke again, unhurried.

"Trouble with your attitude, Carter, is that according to history every time people begin having no feelings about right and wrong everything smashes, and presently fanatics do take over with a lot of blue laws backed by brute force."

There was another long silence, which George did not seem to mind in the least, smoking placidly on the rug. Silent pressure of disapproval apparently had no effect on him; and Eve, in spite of agreeing with him, in spite of her friendly footing of the past week, was suddenly angry. He and Kilian with their swank and their money and leisure and their casual arrogance toward the rest! She lumped them together in her mind, though she knew it wasn't fair.

Marylin turned to find an ash tray, and George handed it to her with his usual polite smile. Oh yes, his kind waited on women hand and foot—the sort of chivalry which never admitted you as anything but a fool. Probably gave smug toasts about the ladies. God bless them. . . .

A LAW AGAINST KIDNAP HOAXES

When Robert Miller, Safford, Ariz., Boy Scout executive, disappeared for a week, then unshaven and unshorn staggered into a natural gas station near El Paso with a story of being kidnaped, officers and the general public naturally were suspicious. When, a few hours later, Miller admitted his story was a lie that he had just gone away "to rest", no one, with the possible exception of the man's brother, was one whit surprised.

For being "kidnaped" has become a frequent custom among men, and a few women—notably "Sister Aimee"—who, for some reason or another seek headline fame or a few days away from their daily walks of life.

Any grown, free individual who wishes to trot off for a few days has, of course, a perfect right to do so.

But when a person's disappearance causes widespread search, risk of life and limb and sometimes death to searchers—as was the case in the "kidnaping" of Mrs. McPherson—that is something else. The disappearance becomes wide open to caustic criticism and the person disappeared rightfully subject to scorn.

As luck would have it, no accident befell the hundreds of civilian and CCC searchers and the scores of Boy Scouts who attempted to find Scout Man Miller in the Arizona and New Mexico wilds. But an accident might have befallen one or several and death might have resulted.

Miller's thoughtlessness cannot be condoned, no matter what his reason was for taking French leave of his people and his job.

Laws governing such didoes might well be passed for the public's protection. Certainly it is not right for people to risk life and limb searching for a "kidnaped" individual who is merely off resting or having a whale of a time.

A Thought . .

Who shall offer it before the Lord, and make an atonement for her; and she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. This is the law for her that hath born a male or a female.—Leviticus 12:7.

Not so many months ago, Martha Raye was telling me that the zenith of her ambition always had been to own a silver fox scarf. The other day she whizzed past in a slick new town car with a brass-buttoned chauffeur.

And on the subject of clothes, Spencer Tracy welcomed spring by coming to the studio in a tan sport suit with enormous checks, a fawn-colored sombrero, yellow shoes, and sky-blue socks.

Walt Disney will spend a million dollars on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." It will be all animated drawings, of course, but with plenty of expensive off-stage talent. Roy Atwill is here to speak the lines of one of the dwarfs, and Lucille Laverne is the voice of the witch.

Eight years ago the senior Douglas Fairbanks made "The Man in the Iron Mask." Now Producer David Selznick has registered that title and intends to have Doug Jr. in the starring role.

He's delighted with the shooting so far on "The Prisoner of Zenda," with Fairbanks and Ronald Colman, and is determined to keep the distinguished son for at least one more picture.

And don't be astonished if young Mr. Fairbanks does the Rhett Butlering in "Gone With the Wind," which Selznick will produce.

Don't Look, But Something Just Fell Out

New Income Tax Boost, Aimed At The Higher Brackets, Being Discussed By New Dealers

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 2—Smart boys here aren't laying any bets that the administration won't ask for new taxes at this session of Congress.

Roosevelt's cautious "hope" that new taxes will not be necessary can only be taken as a warning that he may decide later they are needed.

Dutcher

Indicated failure of the income tax yield to come up to expectations—with the discrepancy estimated at somewhere around $150,000,000—has not done anything to encourage those who want no new taxes.

The most powerful factor figuring the possibility of increased levies, however, is the growing feeling in high places here that the only simple weapon by which the economic system can be kept in balance is the taxing power. This isn't merely a visionary or sentimental notion about "sharing the wealth."

The theory simply is that mass purchasing power must be kept at a fairly constant level if the country is to avoid a spiral into depression; that the best way to achieve that is to put taxes up to a certain level and siphon off surplus income and profits so they can be poured back to lower-income or no-income groups which are without purchasing power.

Other methods of meeting the threat of price inflation and collapse have been brought forward. But taxes have become increasingly a favorite method among New Dealers who are most articulate, and sometimes most influential behind the scenes.

Drain Pockets Of Poor

The recent statement of Federal Reserve Board Governor Mariner Eccles, made after discussion with Roosevelt, has come to show up clearly as a victory for those who oppose budget-balancing through cuts in relief expenditures and those who oppose revival of NRA with its old monopolistic and price-fixing features.

David Cushman Coyle, author, economist and close friend of Eccles, elaborates by declaring that "high prices to organized labor, organized capital and organized farmers are draining the pockets of the poor."

Heavy income taxes, according to the Coyle viewpoint—which has come to be widely shared here—would draw off "surplus income" and keep it from stock speculation while throwing it to the poorest classes and thus sustaining mass purchasing power. They would enable the government to keep on spending for relief, balance the budget and start reducing the national debt. Coyle and others say that's the only way you can avoid inflation and subsequent crash.

Higher Wages, Higher Prices

The administration's friendship for organized labor and its desire for higher wage levels are complicated by the fact that widespread strikes caused decreased purchasing power, as well as the fact that corporations further cut down real purchasing power when they pyramid the costs of wage increases into higher prices. Most workers have little if any purchasing power while they are on strike, although any wage increases they get increase their purchasing power thereafter—if that isn't offset by rising prices.

Administration emphasis, however, will be placed primarily on the need for keeping price levels within bounds and for discouraging inevitable tendencies toward concentration of wealth.

Roosevelt's decision to meet with leaders of Congress and discuss the strike situation was a direct result of urgent communications from conservative congressional leaders who were becoming panicky about various aspects of the sitdown strikes, especially in Michigan. Vice President Garner and Majority Leader Joe Robinson are said to have telegraphed to him. There is no evidence, either on the surface or below the surface—as far as can be ascertained—that the President himself was especially alarmed, either by actual developments or by the many letters and telegrams he received. The missives demanded that he take some action or make some public statement.

The President is fairly quick to sense important trends of public sentiment, according to his advisers, and could be expected to act or speak in an effort to preserve his prestige at any time he felt it was threatened; at the same time being careful not to alienate his organized labor support.

FOR COMFORT STATION

Dear Plainsman: With the keenest interest, I read your column in The Evening Journal of March 26. The public comfort station idea is one that should be put in operation as soon as possible. Warm weather, and tourists will soon be here. As "The Convention City" Lubbock can not and must not fail its citizens, visitors and tradespeople.

A business or city, goes either forward or backward. Lubbock must go forward. Our parks are the grandest things I know. They give pleasure and comfort to more people than any other free public attraction we have.

The public comfort station must come next. How many cities have these stations?

From private home entertaining to the finest air liners comforts, a hostess is needed. Our police force, our public schools, our churches, all have someone whose special duty it is to see that everything is in perfect running order. So why not a matron or hostess for Lubbock? A public comfort station with a matron or hostess would really put the eyes of Texas and other states also, upon our fair.

Another idea comes to me as going to one of our picture shows last night. When I got home it was a hard time deciding, if I'd enjoyed the show, or if I was a nervous wreck from listening to two babies crying right behind me and several small children playing up and down the aisle. The children were too small to understand, or enjoy the show in any manner whatever. Neither did their parents get much pleasure from having to be bothered with, and about the youngsters. Oh yes, the shows will continue to operate if I go or stay at home. However, you'd be surprised at the number of people who feel the same way that I do. A nursery with proper supervision is the answer.

I sincerely thank you for the opportunity to express my private opinion on a public question.

Mrs. J. D. Bynum,
1905 Dixie Drive.

(Dear Mrs. Bynum. Thanks for your letter. I think everyone is in favor of the comfort station but, unlike yourself, most citizens aren't willing to take a few minutes to raise their voices in approval. City and county authorities are on the verge of making a deal to erect the station. A few telephone calls from citizens, a few letters for publication, would cinch the whole matter. If officials were sure there is public demand, they would OK the proposition because most of them, at least, earnestly wish to serve the public and to do the job as the people wish it done. The comfort station will not help The Avalanche-Journal's business nearly as much as it will help others. But since the station is good for the town we're for it. Very truly yours, The Plainsman.)

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, April 2 (AP)—Stock market leaders tumbled 1 to 5 or more points today following President Roosevelt's warning signal on the excessive production of durable goods and rising prices which he indicated were unjustified.

The selling wave which swept over the list put the ticker tape four minutes behind for a while. The pace slowed later and near the fourth hour extreme losses had been shaded in many instances.

Steels and coppers led the fast retreat as the chief executive referred especially to these industries in his comments on price boosts and intimated the government will slow down its purchases of these materials this year and help promote lagging output of consumer products.

On top of the White House news speculative buying was restrained by the fact 400,000 soft coal miners are idle pending wage and hour adjustments; by another decline in U. S. governments securities and major commodities such as copper and cotton, and by continued nervousness over the automotive labor situation.

Strikes

er body plant at Pontiac were scheduled to return to work Monday under a truce.

The new dispute brought the total of idle Michigan automotive workers to 120,000. Ninety thousand were idle in strikes involving the Chrysler Motor corporation and allied industries.

A strike of 350 employes disrupted service in Detroit's largest hotel, the 27-story Book-Cadillac. The massing of 400 policemen at the hotel turned the strike from a sit-down into a walk-out. Negotiators expressed hope of effecting a settlement with little delay.

Major Topic In Congress

The sit-down strike technique continued a major topic in congress. Prominent members of both parties in the senate urged their colleagues to avoid joining the sit-down issue to the Guffey-Vinson coal bill. They contended defeat of the measure would invite the conclusion the senate condoned sit-down strikes.

In the house the sit-down method was assailed and defended. Rep. Short (R-Mo) suggested that "it is better to spill a little blood than to coddle and encourage this form of lawless violence that will lead to the spilling of much blood." Rep. Bradley (D-Pa) said the house should rejoice in the refusal of the president and Governor Murphy of Michigan to use "bayonets and bullets."

WATER TEST GOOD

PLAINVIEW, (Special)—Test of the new water well recently drilled by L. A. Peeples, showed 1,000 gallons of water per hour or better, Everett Bryan, engineer, said. The test is said to show plenty of water available for three other wells, near Wayland college.

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, April 2. (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, down 14 to 19 points, influenced by announcement of extension of loan sales through April and lower Liverpool cables. May 14.38; July 14.28; Oct. 13.70; Dec. 13.65; Jan. 13.68; March 13.75.

The market stayed approximately a dollar a bale lower through the first half of trading. There was some covering after the early decline that lifted prices from opening levels, but a fresh wave of offerings from abroad unsettled prices again. At the half way mark in dealings options were trading quietly 15 to 22 points lower.

Lower outside markets also tended to discourage speculative sentiment on the buying side.

Liverpool was lower with Egyptians off 27 points. Indian spot cotton at Liverpool was 20 American points lower.

Temperatures were back at normal in most of the belt. Official forecasts were for fair weather with warmer winds prevailing over most sections. The northwest remained cool, as did the northern part of the Carolinas.

The general easiness of foreign commodity markets, declines in stocks and bonds and less favorable domestic labor situation combined to influence sentiment at the opening.

There was early liquidation for commission house and foreign account, in addition to hedging, but a fair trade and replacement demand appeared on the declines and caused partial rallies from the initial lows.

July recovered from 14.25 to 14.32 and after the first half hour was selling at 14.28 when prices generally were 16 to 18 points net lower.

Announcement by the Reconstruction Finance Corp. that the marketing program of 12 cents loan cotton would be continued through April relieved to some extent the prospect for a further tightening in the spot cotton situation.

A decline in Liverpool reflected liquidation, promoted by the easiness of Egyptian cotton.

Heavy selling developed following the president's remarks with reference to unjustified advances in prices for durable goods. The selling was general and on declines of 29 to 36 points stop orders were uncovered. The lower levels attracted renewed trade and commission house buying and July, which had sold off from 14.29 to 14.11, recovered to 14.26 with prices early in the noon hour showing net losses of about 18 to 25 points.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, April 2 (AP)—Overnight announcement that the administration would continue its sale of loan cotton brought a sharp drop of 18 to 29 points on the New Orleans market today.

Chairman Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation reported that 1,850,000 bales of the original 5,000,000 bales of loan staple remained and the government would continue to sell it.

While this could have been construed as bullish, indicating a huge demand for American cotton, the trade interpreted it the other way and prices slid off sharply.

A lower Liverpool aided selling interests here.

May opened at 14.26, July at 14.21, Oct. at 13.76 and Dec. at 13.73. As was expected, new crop positions showed the smallest decline.

Practically the only difference in the new loan sales plan was that only 5 days notice was to be given in the event of any change in selling plans.

school district" and bearing the names of a number of rural residents were put into circulation urging the election of James and Horne.

Gist of the appeal contained in the circular was worded that "many of the rural people think that they are not getting the attention and service which is due them, but if they can be represented on the school board, more attention might be given them and some satisfactory arrangement could be worked out." James is described as a resident of Southeast Ward and Horne of Northwest Ward.

Never Had Representative

The petition makes the observation that "as far as can be determined the rural part of this school district has never had a representative on the board."

The circular recites that rural people have not been getting service in proportion to the amount of taxes they pay, contending that rural residents of the district pay 10 per cent of taxes although they have only 7 per cent of the children. Complaint is made also that two buses now operated provide inadequate transportation from rural districts leaving "half the rural children to get to school the best way they can." The further contention is urged that money now used to transport children to rural wards would maintain six buses, described as a sufficient number to transport all children to schools within the city and to eliminate the ward schools entirely.

On that point, the petition says that "a careful canvass has been made showing that approximately 75 per cent of the rural people want all their children transported to the city schools."

Signatures On Petition

The petition bears as signatories the names of Will Stacy, Don L. Jones, C. F. Young, W. T. Adams, T. J. Wager, W. R. Gentry, R. D. Gibson, J. A. Gibson, T. S. Walser, F. C. Adams and J. B. Forbes, all described as residents of the rural district.

Campaign activity today caused observers to make sharp revisions in their estimates of the possible vote Saturday. Original indications were that the poll might total a few hundred, at most. Some estimates today predicted a possible poll of 2,500. The qualified vote in the district approximates 4,000.

The school board is comprised of seven members, each elected to a three-year term. Three of the terms expire one year, two the next year and two the third.

Holdover members this year are Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, W. B. Atkins, Maple Wilson and Dr. Allen T. Stewart.

Veto Threat

it was a discrimination against other counties. He noted other remission measures were pending and would be proposed.

"We have a tremendous deficit in general revenue," he said. "To give away these ad valorem taxes will add to that deficit. The relief bonds voted by the people are payable out of the first tax moneys collected for the general fund. The credit of the state will be further seriously impaired.

"To sign this bill will call for the passage and signing of other similar bills. There is no end to it."

The governor said he did not question the desirability of flood control work but "the fact remains we are not able to do it" in the manner proposed.

Adequate Well Is Indicated After Tests In Lubbock

Indication the City of Lubbock's new water test will come in for an adequate well is found in similarity of logging on the new test in southeast Lubbock and that of well No. 7 a half mile northwest.

Well 7 found water-bearing structures from 60 to 84, from 110 to 122 and from 140 to 147 feet, and there is an apparent correlation in horizon depths there and in the new test, which today was being drilled below 120 feet.

Twenty-two inch outside casing was set to 35 feet Thursday and 18-inch inner casing was being set today, the lower 80 feet perforated.

It is believed three water-bearing structures will supply the well in the lower 80 feet. Total depth is expected to be approximately 150 feet, drilling ceasing just over a tight clay horizon.

A new helicopter, or rotating wing aeroplane, which can rise straight up at the rate of 2,000 feet per minute, is being built.

Wrong Era

LEAD, S. D. — The newspaper story said "the Homestake mine would employ any number of men of the fourth regiment at $3 per day," so two Pierre men drove all night to get a job.

"But this time," said Dumphy, "they took not only all the boss' money but $3.38 of mine and a box of candy."

Records On Auto Licenses Broken

All records for numbers of motor vehicle licenses issued in Lubbock county before delinquency date were disclosed by Hurley Carpenter, assessor-collector, as having been broken as tabulations were made today of fees paid up until midnight last night.

A preliminary check today, still subject to revision, showed that 7599 pairs of license plates were issued for passenger automobiles, as compared with 7300 last year. Licenses paid on other types of vehicles this year included, 1257 commercials, 199 farm commercials, 132 trailers, 24 motor buses and 11 motorcycles, all showing about the same proportionate increase over last year as passenger cars.

Now facing the personnel, however, is the huge bookkeeping task of listing in triplicate each license number, one copy each to the state highway department, the county auditor and into permanent records of the collector's office.

The increase this year over last, Mr. Carpenter said, was in spite of the fact that total receipts yesterday of $11,000 were $7,000 less than those of the day before, and only about one third of the capacity of the office to handle.

day) in view of a petition signed by numerous bank officials and other substantial Lubbock business and professional men asking clemency for the 26-year-old man, and of personal efforts of C. E. Maedgen, president of Lubbock National bank, to see justice tempered with mercy.

Statement Is Declined

Maedgen, whose institution had employed young Kittrell, declined to make a statement when apprised of legal action taken at Dallas, but it was known he had driven his automobile in snowy weather and had spent considerable time in efforts to have mitigated the punishment almost certain to be assessed.

Maedgen and Mr. and Mrs. Kittrell had expected to confer with Clyde O. Eastus, federal district attorney, Saturday and had planned suggesting to Kittrell's son he plead guilty of the indictment and throw himself on the mercy of the court.

Mutual friends read into that proposed procedure an attempt to obtain for the bookkeeper a suspended sentence.

The elder Kittrell reaffirmed appreciation for all who expressed assistance "during those stormy times." He said he was proud of the confessional attitude of his son when the bookkeeper was sentenced.

Warmer Weather Indicated Here

A clear dawn and scarcely a hint of wind indicated warmer weather for Lubbock and the South Plains today—unless a falling barometer's significance were taken into consideration.

"If sand doesn't blow—" said W. C. Breedlove, manager of Municipal airport, in qualifying possibilities for a typical, burning early April day.

Last night's low temperature was 39 degrees and the mercury had been driven up to 57.5 degrees before 9 o'clock.

Reports showed March had gone out like a lamb—just like it came in, and that total precipitation for the period was 1.81 inches, .89 inch higher than the 25-year normal March rainfall. More rain and less windrun probably accounted for the fact sandstorms were less encountered than usual.

Other Data Given

Other weather information, as shown in reports of Don L. Jones, station superintendent:

Maximum temperature, 77 degrees; minimum temperature, 20 degrees; mean temperature, 47.1 degrees; maximum relative humidity, 95 per cent; minimum relative humidity, 19 per cent; total evaporation, 3.740 inches; number clear days, 16; number partly cloudy, 8; number, cloudy, 7; total precipitation January 1 to March 31, 2.08 inches; normal precipitation for same period, 2.03 inches; departure from normal, .05 inch.

Petition To Adopt English Child Film Star Filed

LOS ANGELES, April 2 (AP)—A petition to adopt Freddie Bartholomew, high-salaried child film star, has been filed by his aunt, Miss Mylicent Bartholomew, her attorney, Walter Guthrie, disclosed today.

The petition was filed secretly, Guthrie said. A hearing was set today for Saturday morning.

Guthrie said the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Llewellyn Bartholomew, have agreed to the adoption, and have returned to England. The adoption, he said, would simplify the administration of Freddie's business affairs.

Difficulties between Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew and Miss Bartholomew were settled last year when they came to Hollywood.

Gardner Resigns Place On National League Group

DURHAM, N. C., April 2 (AP)—J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Texas league, has resigned from the executive committee of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, W. G. Bramham, association president, said today.

The resignation is to take effect immediately after the meeting of the committee, now in session at New Orleans.

Gardner is the last of the original members of the committee, created in December 1932. He served as representative of the class A-1 and A leagues. Press of business in connection with oil drilling, he said, prevented him from giving further time to the committee. He will continue to head the Texas league.

the silence.

"Great Scott, Mitz said she'd send Jean back for us in time to get the last decent train to Grand Central," Denny said. "It can't be that late already." He began to laugh. "I wonder if poor old Dill is going to walk back home?"

"I'll put him up if he isn't found in time." George said this as calmly as he had said the other things. Kilian and Denny began to look for their own and Marylin's things. Ellen was staying till next day.

"Better begin to hunt up Judge, Marylin." Eve said warningly; it was well known that it always took Marylin twice as long to get started as it did other people. Before Marylin answered Jean came in, to say that the car was ready.

"And here are your bags, madam," he added to Marylin.

Everybody looked surprised and said, "Bags?"

Marylin, relaxed in the firelight dusk, stretched easily and laughed.

"Exactly," she said. "Gang, I have the grandest surprise for you—that is, everybody but Eve. You're going to get rid of your old nuisance of a Marylin!"

"What's our Marylin going to do, jump in the lake?" inquired Denny, slim and amused, his hands in his overcoat pockets. "Don't do it, darling, we really quite like you."

"Not a bit of it," said Marylin, sitting up and beginning to gesture. "Listen, my children and you shall hear. To begin with, Peter and I are homeless with a big H. Nell Martin had to come home because her mother was ill and she wanted her apartment! Of course we can't exactly blame her, it was magnificent of her to loan it to us for so long, but I do think she could have taken rooms in a hotel just a couple of weeks. However, she's a lamb and I suppose she was just thoughtless and upset. Well, here we are, out in the snow with shawls over our heads! And suddenly I had a brain wave. We'd board here with Eve! There's the Blessed Dividends you know, Eve, in June, so you're safe.

"I can't tell you," said Marylin, reaching out for Eve's hand, "how we'd worried over you this week. And this settles everything—unless of course you don't want us. Then all you have to do is to say the word and we'll take the old suitcases on one more journey. They're used to it."

She smiled up into Eve's face.

George rescues Eve, then proposes, Monday.
