MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

By R. N. S.

When the snows melt next spring the Russian steppes will be strewn with skeletons. This is the horrible tale that omes from the Volga region of Russia. More than 18 millions of Slavs have died of hunger or exposure or have been driven from their homeland since the Soviet government was established. Lenine and Trotzkey abolished capitalism. They abolished what they called profit. They abolished initiative. They destroyed industry. Now Russia is a charnel house and when spring time comes among the skeletons of cattle and camels there will be the bones of millions of men, women and children who fell exhausted in their quest for bread. Food relief came too late. During four centuries of Romanoff autocracy and despotism, peasants lived their simple life but they never perished for the want of food. Parlor communists, the light-headed and glib-tongued doctrinaires of the civilized world, have been given their lesson. Abolish capitalism and all the pillars of society and civilization fall with it. At least this is the story of Soviet Russia and the millions who have died on their terrible trek to find sustanance.

Representative Arthur B. Rouse of Kentucky, is chairman of the Democratic congressional committee. This is his forecast of the fall elections: "We will make gains in every state in the North, East and West, and will redeam the districts lost in the last election in Tennessee and Texas." This is the forecast made by Representative Simeon B. Fess, chaisman of the Republican committee, "The Democrats may make a few gains but if it would hardly be expected that we could retain our overwhelming majority of 169. But they will not come anywhere near obtaining control." There is going to be a Republican slump in the congressional elections but a Democratic house and a Republican senate and President would not help matters. Responsibility goes with governmental control. The Republicans control all branches of the government. If they had followed the advice of Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, they would have accomplished something. As it is they are floundering as politicians always flounder when they are face to face with a real crisis. Andrew W. Mellon is a business man. Congressional leaders of his party are politicians. Mellon would look for results; congressional leaders are looking for votes. They are determined to put over the Soldier Bonus bill. It will add to the debt the people are carrying from one and a half billions to five billion dollars. Mellon has asked the lawmakers where they expect to get the money. "Pass the bill and let God take care of the future," is the slogan of the congressional leaders who promised the people economy in government and a sweeping reduction in federal taxes. Business men handle business problems in a business way. Politicians who are lordly paymasters in handling the money of the people, go about it the easiest way for themselves and the most oppressive for those who are compelled to foot the bills. According to the signs of the time the Republicans

PARRISH FIRES HIS FIRST GUN AT SHERMAN

Will Make Opening Speech in Senatorial Campaign in Grayson County, Saturday, February 11.

Friends Point to Fight for Right of Income Tax Payers to Submit Separate Returns for Man and Wife.

HENRETTA, Texas, Feb. 6.—Hon. Lucian W. Parrish will fire the opening gun in his senatorial campaign at Sherman, in the county of Grayson, the place of his nativity, on Saturday afternoon February 11. A number of his supporters from Wichita Falls, Henrietta, Fort Worth, Dallas and other cities or sections of Texas will go to Sherman Saturday to hear the opening speech of the man who they believe will be in the senatorial run-off and the successor of the Hon. Charles A. Culberson in the senate of the United States. This announcement was made after Mr. Parrish had held a conference with the Hon. Leslie Humphreys of Wichita Falls who is to direct his campaign at that place, and other trusted friends and followers. Mr. Parrish will go to Wichita Falls Tuesday where he will be the honored guest of the University club and the principal speaker on the luncheon program.

Now that the income tax paying season is on the friends of Mr. Parrish say the income taxpayers of Texas as well as several other states are largely indebted to him for the fact that the United States Government permits taxpayers in those States to submit separate returns for the husband and wife on what is termed community property. The result has been the saving to those taxpayers of millions of dollars, particularly in Texas.

All this is due to the fact that in Texas and the other States which include Louisiana, California, Arizona, New Mexico and Washington the laws give the husband and wife joint ownership of property and income accumulated by them. This has been the law in Texas for years but it had no national application until the Federal Government undertook to collect income taxes and not even then until Congressman Parrish made his fight.

His Fight for Separate Returns

As a lawyer practicing in Texas before his election to congress, Mr. Parrish had many cases in which the statute relative to community property was involved and it occurred to him that this law not only could but should be invoked for the benefit of Texas taxpayers. The Federal Income Tax Law stipulates that any person with an income of $1,000, in case of an unmarried person, or $2,000 in case of a married person, must file a report and pay taxes there on in varying percentages according to the total amount of such income. The ratio increases materially for incomes above $5,000 and there are many in Texas called upon to pay these super or sur-taxes.

It occurred to Congressman Parrish that since the Texas law included a statute on community property that instead of there being a single income return from a family in that state, the wife could legally and in fact should claim one-half the income and that both she and her husband could and should file separate returns. Thus, where the family income is $25,000 a year, the wife under the Texas law, is entitled to one-half of it and might, with every right, file an income tax return showing an income of $12,500 and her husband make a like return. The sur tax on $12,500 is considerably less than the sur tax on $25,000 and a material saving could thus be made by the family.

It was about the time or soon after he had taken office, that Congressman Parrish and a prominent Texas law firm brought up this question to the attention of the solicitor for the Bureau of Internal Revenue. So patent were the facts submitted that the solicitor promptly issued a departmental ruling permitting separate income returns in those states having community property statutes. As first issued, however, the ruling did not permit separate returns for salaries, commissions or fees, such as those of lawyers.

What Roper Said.

This last aroused some comment and Congressman Parrish and members of the law firm interested in the matter called on Daniel C. Roper, then collector of internal revenue, to urge that the ruling be amended to include all income, thus making it conform to the State law. It was then learned that the Bureau of Internal Revenue did not view the ruling with favor and, for that reason, the collector had not formally signed it. Mr. Roper, however, agreed to further consideration of this matter and ordered a hearing. Congressman Parrish accordingly prepared a brief on the subject and submitted an argument, as did the attorneys interested.

So convincing were the arguments that the solicitor was compelled to hold with them and include fees and commissions with other income, but the collector of internal revenue still felt that such a decision would be inequitable. He insisted that it gave the taxpayers of Texas an unfair advantage over the taxayers of other states. Congressman Parrish, however, insisted that the collector of internal revenue and his assistants could not legally ignore the law and the fact that other states had no statutes relative to community property could not be used to militate against the Texas taxpayers. He pointed out that the Federal Government stipulated that all persons having income should report it and that the Texas law fixing the division of family income had long been in force and was accepted by the courts in that state.

SOVIET DELEGATES TO DISCARD BOOTS AND FACE FOLIAGE

By Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 6.—Special instructions have been issued to the Russian soviet delegates to the Genoa conference that long hair should be trimmed and leather jackets and top boots discarded and that those in the party should dress in a dignified manner. All the delegates are buying new clothes in order to present a good appearance and to show the world, as one of them expressed it, "that the bolsheviki are like ordinary people." Money also has been provided for adding to the stock of clothes at Genoa.

ARCHBISHOP OF MILAN CHOSEN POPE OF ROME

Election of Cardinal Archille Ratti Announced Shortly Before Arrival of American Cardinal.

By Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Achille Ratti, archbishop of Milan, has been chosen supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic church to succeed the late Pope Benedict, XV. His coronation as Pius XI will take place February 12.

After the announcement of his election, the pope appeared on the outside balcony of St. Peters and bestowed the benediction on the thousands who had waited patiently in the rain in St. Peters square—the first time this has occurred since the breach between the state and the church in 1870; for 52 years, the blessing has been bestowed from within the basilica.

"Universal pacification" is the keynote of the new pope's policy, as indicated in a statement issued by Prince Chigi, Marshal of the Conclave, which made reference to the first blessing bestowed by Pius XI. Continual conciliation inaugurated by his predecessor, probable reconciliation of the state and church, which has been estranged for so many years, and an appeal to all the nations of the world to restore peace are said to constitute the most essential aims of the vatican policy as it will be conducted under the present pontiff.

Cardinal Gasparri will retain his office as papal secretary of state.

That the new pope has decided to exercise his full authority was shown when some of the cardinals attached to what has become known as the "irreconcilables" attempted to persuade him not to appear on the outside balcony. He listened to the arguments for a few minutes, and then said:

"Remember, I am no longer a cardinal. I am the supreme pontiff now."

The diplomatic corps and papal aristocracy were received in the vaitcan this afternoon.

As the pontiff moved slowly along, all knelt. He offered his hand and it was reverently kissed; then he proceeded to Clementine hall where others received the papal benediction. There was a touch of melancholy sadness and disappointment to hundreds of Americans mingling among the thousands of Italians in St. Peter's square when Cardinal Bisleti, dean of the Cardinal deacons, appeared on the balcony of St. Peter's and shouted: "I bring you great joy."

The words spelled consternation to the Americans, and a few minutes later as Cardinal O'Connell's automobile drew up to the large bronze gate on the right side of the vatican it was realized that one more conclave had been held without American participation.

SHERIFF SAM NOLLEY FREED UNDER BONDS

By Associated Press.

EASTLAND, Texas, Feb. 6.—Sheriff Sam Nolley was arrested today on a charge of assault with intent to murder in connection with an affray in Cisco Friday night, in which L. J. Starley was seriously wounded. Sheriff Nolley was released on $1,500 bonds. The grand jury will meet tomorrow to investigate the fight.

Whereabouts of Newt Mahaney, who is also charged with assault with intent to murder, growing out of the affray in which Nolle, is alleged to have participated, is still a mystery. He was brought here Friday night, but when a crowd demanded admittance to the jail a committee failed to find him. County authorities refuse to give out any information concerning Mahaney. Sheriff Nolley is said to have told a committee of citizens today that he had no announcement to make concerning resolutions adopted by the Cisco post of the American legion, demanding that he resign.

WOODROW WILSON THROWS GLOOM ON "SMILE WEEK" PLAN

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A national humorous weekly tonight made public several statements from men of national prominence in response to its request for messages stating "why you believe the United States should smile at this time" for use in connection with the celebration of "national smile week," February 5 to 12.

Woodrow Wilson replied: "I have no message to send on so silly a subject."

COMMISSIONERS NOW FAVOR PAVING OF CLAY COUNTY ROAD

Kuntz, Prescott and Haynes Reverse Previous Stand on Future County Road Improvement.

Declare Surprising Move Is in Interest of County Harmony on Future Improvement Programs.

Passing an order retracting their action of several weeks ago in which they agreed to divide the county's special road funds between the Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Electra precincts following the completion of the Burkburnett road, Commissioners Prescott, Kuntz and Haynes, representing the three out of the city precincts prevented a tentative agreement at the county commissioners meeting Monday afternoon to provide an amicable settlement of county road matters.

The three commissioners who by combined voting have controlled the action of the court with regard to the county road improvement program agreed to sanction the paving of the road from this city to the Clay county line provided the remaining funds should be equally distributed between their precincts. The additional proviso in their tentative agreement provides that an election shall be held in order that the special road funds can be diverted for the construction of gravel roads if the three precincts desire.

Many Want Gravel Roads.

Commissioner Kuntz of the Iowa Park said the people in precinct 2 would desire to spend the money allotted them for gravel roads thus securing more mileage than if the concrete paving was used. Commissioners Prescott and Haynes of the Burkburnett and Electra districts said that they believed their precincts would desire to use the concrete pavement although they wished to submit the question to a vote.

All special roads funds of the county were voted for the construction of hard surface roads and in the opinion of the members of the court the funds could not be used for any other purpose without a vote being taken.

The action of the three out of the city commissioners Monday coming after a several week period in which they have refused to alter their stand to allow no more paving in Precinct 1 following the completion of the Burkburnett road came as a surprise. The commissioners announced their plan after County Engineer Isbell had presented to the court a detailed report of the status of the special road fund of the county.

Five Miles Each.

According to the report the county road fund after the completion of the Burkburnett and Clay county line roads will still have $584,048.00 remaining. Under the plan of the three commissioners this will be divided equally between precincts 2, 3 and 4 giving each $134,980.42. This amount will give each precinct approximately 5 miles of paved highway or 15 miles of gravel road should they desire to change to that program.

In announcing a retraction from their previous announced attitude the commissioners said they and their constituents desired a settlement of the controversy which would assure that the county could continue to work as a unit in the future in regard to public improvements.

A final agreement in the much controverted matter was postponed at the request of Commissioner J. P. Jackson of this city.

"I asked you men at the last meeting to take this action and you refused," the local commissioner declared, "and it is my understanding that the necessary legal steps are to be taken to enforce the terms of the original agreement. I don't know whether local residents are going to accept your proposition now or not."

Hints at Injunction

Mr. Jackson hinted that steps had been taken here to stop the court by injunction should it start to do any county road work other than that outlined in the written agreement. This proposition was brought before the court when County Engineer Is-

PARRISH TO SPEAK FOR CLUB TODAY

Senatorial Candidate Expected to Arrive This Morning, Speaking to University Club at Noon.

Congressman Lucian Parrish, candidate for the United States senatorial nomination, who will be the honor guest at today's luncheon of the University club—an open house affair which the public is invited to attend, will arrive in Wichita Falls at 11 o'clock today and spend the entire afternoon here. This is the information received Monday afternoon by Leslie Humphrey, chairman of the local Parrish club.

Following the luncheon it is expected that Mr. Parrish will confer with his supporters at Mr. Humphrey's office.

CHARGE DISMISSED AGAINST NEBRASKA UNIVERSITY PLAYER

By Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb. Feb. 6.—The eligibility committee of the athletic board of the University of Nebraska late today dismissed charges against Adolph Kenke, one of the linemen of the football team, who is said to have played in a post-season game. The committee said it found no evidence to support the charge that Wenke had been guilty of a violation of the Missouri Valley conference rules.

HEARSE DRIVER IS FINED FOR SPEEDING ON DENVER STREET

By Associated Press.

DENVER, Colorado, Feb. 6—Edward Tomlin, a negro taxicab driver, was fined $30 and costs today in police court on a charge of driving a hearse at the rate of 30 miles an hour on a down town street.

"Judge, I had to make two funerals Saturday afternoon," Tomlin explained, "I was late to the first and was just trying to get to the second on time."

MAN IS ARRESTED AT ZION CITY FOR SMOKING IN PUBLIC

By Associated Press.

ZION, Ill., Feb. 6.—Charged with smoking a cigar in violation of the Zion anti-tobacco ordinance, Martin Ruesch was today released under bond of $200 and his trial set for February 14. Bert Ray, charged with interfering with the police when they tried to arrest Ruesch, after finding him smoking on a street corner, was released under similar bonds, and Miss Margaret Fletcher, a friend of Ruesch's charged with opposing and defying an officer will appear in court for a hearing tomorrow.

BIG CONTRACT IS FILLED BY LOCAL PLANTS

Refiners Get Order for Gasoline and Kerosine Equal to 20 Trainloads of 20 Cars Each.

Contracts for gasoline and kerosene, amounting to 400 tank cars, sufficient to make twenty entire trains of twenty cars each, have been let recently to several Wichita county refineries, with immediate delivery specified. The oil products are to go to a Louisiana port, presumably to be loaded for export.

The price on this contract is said to be in excess of 16 cents for the highest grade gasoline, and slightly above 14 cents for the new navy specifications, while the kerosene is around 4 cents.

Such a large contract has been foreign to the local refiners for some months, and the prices are good, for such large quantities.

Rumors to the effect that Mexican buyers will be in the market again shortly, have also been current. This branch of the foreign trade accounted for a large portion of the output of the Wichita Falls district during the summer of 1921.

CHIEFS OF RAIL UNIONS ISSUE CALL FOR MEET

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A call for a conference of "progressives" to be held in Chicago, February 20, was sent out today over the signature of the heads of six railway employes unions, who acted as a committee representing, they said, a total of sixteen organizations.

While disclaiming any purpose of forming a new labor party or a labor coalition, the official call asserted that "all the inherent rights of man guaranteed by our constitution are being destroyed by the agents of privilege." It summoned "all progressives," to help reach a common "understanding to bind the workers of all walks of life together."

Those who signed the call were Wm. H. Johnston, president of the international association of machinists; Martin F. Ryan, general president brotherhood of railway carmen of America; W. S. Stone, grand chief brotherhood of locomotives engineers; E. J. Manion, president of the order of railway telegraphers; Timothy Heller, president international brotherhood stationary firemen and oilers; L. E. Sheppard, president order railway conductors. Meetings preliminary to the conference call were held last month in Chicago.

HARDING LAUDS ACHIEVEMENTS OF ARMS MEET

"Any One of Accomplishments Would Have Justified Conference," Asserts President at Close.

Five Treaties Are Expected to Be Presented to Senate for Ratification Before Week End.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Its covenants finally signed and sealed, the Washington conference was passed on to history today by President Harding "as an example to imbue with hope all that dwell in apprehension."

Speaking before a plenary session which brought to a close the negotiations begun twelve weeks ago at his invitation, the president declared "the record of achievement voiced in courageous tones the first deliberate and effective expression of great powers in the consciousness of peace, of war utter futility."

Before him as he pronounced his appraisement lay, newly signed, the treaties by which the predominant nations of the world engage to put a limit on their navies, to guarantee a new deal for China, and to set up an international concord to keep the peace in the Pacific.

"It matters little," said Mr. Harding, "what we appraise as the outstanding accomplishment. Any one of them alone would have justified the conference. But the whole achievement has so cleared the atmosphere that it will seem like breathing the refreshing air of a morn of promise.

"It may be that the naval holiday here contracted will expire with the treaty, but I do not believe it. Those of us who live another decade are more likely to witness a growth of public opinion, strengthened by the new experience, which will make nations more concerned with living to the fulfillment of God's high intent than with a genius of warfare and destruction.

"Since this conference of nations has pointed with unanimity to the way of peace today, like conferences in the future under appropriate conditions and with aims well conserved and definite, may illumine the highways and by ways of humane activity. The torches of understanding have been lighted, and they ought to glow and encircle the globe."

The president delivered his parting message to the delegates as soon as the formal signing of the treaties had been concluded and when he finished the conference closed as it had opened on November 12, with a prayer. Within a few hours some of the foreign delegations already had left Washington and most of the others will go tomorrow.

As the concluding act of their twelve weeks of labor, the American delegates will unite within a few days in a report to the president, formally placing in his hands the five treaties ready for senate ratification and a record of the negotiations leading up to them. It is expected they will be submitted to the treaty ratifying body all at one time, and they may be taken to the capitol by Mr. Harding in person before the end of the week.

Viewing the conference in retrospect, all the delegations renewed after today's meeting their expressions of gratifications over the results. The burden of their comment gave precedence to the naval limitation agreement and the readjustments affecting China as constituting the crowning achievements of the negotiations.

YOUNG WOMAN IS FOUND DYING NEAR AMARILLO

By Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Texas, Feb. 6.—A white woman, registered at a local hotel as Mrs. B. Vernon, Kansas City, was taken to hospital last night in a dying condition. She was bruised about the face and body, and according to physicians, died from the effects of a violent fall or by being run over.

The woman was taken to the hospital by a party of six men and women. It is said that some of the party had been drinking.

City and county officials are investigating the case. The woman is believed to be Georgia Pyle of Clayton, N. M., and is about 24 years old.

According to Acting Chief of Police William Goodnight, who held two men and two women, members of the fatal automobile party, for investigation in connection with the affair, it is claimed that the dead woman attempted to jump from the car nine miles south of Amarillo late yesterday afternoon and fell under the wheels.

A court of inquiry is in progress before C. G. Landis, justice of the peace, and nothing so far has been given out. Judge Landis will probably announce his findings late this afternoon.

A message from the chief of police at Clayton, N. M., says the woman's name is Georgia Pyle and not Mrs. B. Vernon, and that her home is in Clayton.

SAN ANTONIO IS SWEPT BY WORST GALE SINCE 1900

By Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 6.—San Antonio was swept today by the hardest gale since May 2, 1900. The high wind began about 9 a. m. at 30 miles an hour. It mounted swiftly in velocity. At 10:57 a. m. a maximum of 66 miles an hour was reached. Then there was a slight falling off but between 11 o'clock and noon the average was 60 miles. No heavy damage was done, although there were a number of minor accidents. May 2, 1900, when a velocity of 71 miles was reached here was the year of the Galveston flood.

"TIPS" FAIL TO LEAD TO FILM MAN'S SLAYER

Four Men Questioned During Day, Including General Manager of Famous Players-Lasker Company.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—A man said to answer the description of Edward F. Sands, alias Edward Fitz Strathmore, the missing former butler to William Desmond Taylor, slain film director, and believed by the Los Angeles authorities to hold the key to the solution of the murder is in Carlin, Nevada, tonight, according to messages received by the Los Angeles police.

The messages from Carlin were from Constable Berning of that town and were relayed to the police department here by the telephone operator at Elko, Nevada.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—A motion picture actress was subjected to what the police termed a "long and gruelling" questioning at her home here tonight in an attempt to obtain a clue to the murder of Wm. Desmond Taylor, director.

The actress was said to be widely known, but her name was withheld by the police. Two detective sergeants questioned her.

What they learned they kept to themselves but they admitted they were seeking to develop any previously advanced theory that Taylor had been slain by a jealous rival for the affections of the actress.

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—An unidentified "party of men" was driven to the vicinity of the apartments of William Desmond Taylor, film director, the night he was murdered, according to a story told the police today by a taxicab driver. What else the chauffeur told the police was not made public, but it was known that in the search for the slayer of the motion picture director, the detectives questioned six men today. These include Charles Eyton, general manager of the Famous Players-Lasky company, by which Taylor had been employed, and Henry Peavey, negro house servant of the dead director.

Twice during the day all the detectives working on the case were called together in conference with Captain of Detectives David Adams. They declared they were concentrating their efforts in an attempt to locate Sands.

The investigation has simmered down to the process of elimination, according to Captain Adams, hundreds of "tips" having come to the police from various sources, solicited and unsolicited.

Miss Normand, through a representative, announced she planned to have her telephone number changed to avoid "the continual stream of calls" reaching her recently.

JURY SELECTED IN GATESVILLE MURDER TRIAL

By Associated Press.

GATESVILE, Texas, Feb. 6.—The jury which is to try H. G. Twyman, former military trainer at the state juvenile training school here, was completed late today. Taking of testimony will be begun tomorrow morning. One hundred and fifty veniremen were examined before a jury suitable to both sides was selected. Twyman is charged with murder in connection with the death last September of Dell Thomas, inmate, who died after a punishment for disobeying class rules.

CARDINAL DIED AT CONCLAVE, IS ANNOUNCED

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Cardinal Marini, according to the Rome correspondent of the London Times, died in the vatican before the election of the pope. Cardinal Marini was suffering from influenza when he entered the conclave.

He remained in bed for the first day, but on the second day, he participated in the deliberations and was able to take part in the balloting. After that this condition became worse and he was compelled to remain in bed.

YOUNG WOMAN SUES GOVERNOR OF MISSISSIPPI

Damages of $100,000 Are Asked by Plaintiff in Bill of Particulars Which Allege Seduction.

Suit Declared to Presage One of Most Bitter Political and Legal Fights in State's History.

By Associated Press.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 6.—A $100,000 damage suit, alleging seduction, filed by Miss Frances G. Birkhead against Lee N. Russell, governor of Mississippi, in the United States district court here today, was declared by prominent officials to presage one of the bitterest and most sensational legal and political fights in the history of the state.

Governor Russell refused to discuss the suit further than to declare it the most damnable blackmail conspiracy in the history of Mississippi." Intimate friends of the governor, however, said that it did not come entirely as a surprise, rumors of such an action having been more or less common gossip in political circles.

In her bill of particulars, Miss Birkhead asks $50,000 on each of two counts. The first, alleging seduction, avers that she was persuaded to "yield to his will" and that as a result "plaintiff's reputation and character were ruined, and she was caused to lose her employment, and her health was ruined to her great damage, in the sum of $50,000."

In the second count Miss Birkhead alleges that she underwent illegal operation "at the instigation of Governor Russell, which totally ruined and wrecked her health, causing her to suffer untold anguish and pain, and that she is now an invalid and must remain so the rest of her life."

In a sworn statement, Miss Birkhead charges that the alleged seduction took place in Mr. Russell's private office in the state house in July 1918.

Miss Birkhead, in this statement, alleges that soon after she accepted employment as a stenographer in Mr. Russell's office, his attitude became more than friendly and that declarations of love and promise of marriage quickly followed, the marriage to take place when he could get a divorce from his wife, with whom, she states, Mr. Russell told her he was not happy. Under these promises, she avers, she consented to clandestine meetings and "yielded to his will."

In October 1918, Miss Birkhead's statement declared, she grew fearful of becoming a mother and besought the aid and advice of Mr. Russell who, according to her statement, suggested such treatment, and advised consultation of a physician only if it became imperative. She later visited physicians in Memphis and New Orleans, she asserts.

"When it became evident that Governor Russell was not going to furnish me the necessary funds to go to some hospital," the statement continued, "as suggested by me, I decided that I would of necessity have to adopt his suggestions and told him I would consent to the operation."

The operation, she alleges, was performed at Memphis and was followed by serious illness. A trip to Denver at Mr. Russell's expense followed. Miss Birkhead declared, and efforts were made later through his agents to effect a financial settlement.

HOWAT-DORCHY AGAIN BREATHE FREEDOM'S AIR

By Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Feb. 6.—Alexander Howat, and August Dorchy, deposed president and vice president, respectively of District 14 United Mine Workers of America were released from the Cherokee county jail at Columbus tonight. The $2,000 peace bond in which the former officials agree to call no more strikes in the Kansas coal fields, was signed late today and approved by District Judge Frank Boss.

"Howat gave the bond because his followers want him to support his position in the Kansas mine controversy at the international convention at Indianapolis," Henri Maxwell, a member of the ousted Howat board, declared tonight.

Howat and Dorchy were required to sign two other bonds in addition to the $2,000 no-strike bonds exacted of each to obtain their release. An appearance bond of $2,000 by which they agreed to abide by the decision of the United States Supreme court on their appeal and a bond of $1,500 covering double the amount of fines and costs in case the Supreme court rules against them, were required of each.

Phil Callery, counsel for Howat for Dorchy, was in Columbus, throughout the day, accompanied by twenty-five or thirty bondsmen used in perfecting the six bonds totalling $11,000. Some delay was met in preparing the bonds but this work was finally completed at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The only other legal step necessary in effecting the release of the two men was having the bonds passed on by Judge Boss.

PAVING OF CLAY COUNTY ROAD FAVORED

bell asked for an order authorizing him to draw up plans for the construction of culverts on the Clara road west of Burkburnett. He said these culverts were to be constructed regardless of further improvement on the road. Commissioner Jackson said he believed that an injunction suit would be sought to restrain the court should they attempt to construct the culverts. Mr. Isbell said if the Clay county line road was to be paved he wanted to start at once on the construction of the Holliday creek bridge and do other work preparatory to paving.

The three commissioners said they would agree to the latter provided it was agreed that the culverts on the Burkburnett-Clara road was also ordered. They said they would agree that enough money be set aside from the special road fund to provide for the Clay county line road but added that they saw no reason why other work should be delayed until that improvement was completed.

Postpone Final Action.

The court after some heat was again evident in the discussion finally agreed to postpone any further action in the matter until the next meeting, county officials expressed the opinion following the meeting that the dissention in the court regarding the county road program was over and that the proposition of the three commissioners which in line with that suggested by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce recently would be agreed upon.

Funds Available.

Following is the report of County Engineer Isbell regarding the special road fund of the county January 31, with estimates as to the cost of the Clay county line highway and the completion of the Burkburnett road:

"Chu Chin Chow" Is Gorgeous in Color and Song

Gorgeous in Oriental splendor and coloring, magnificent in its scenic embellishments, notable in its cast of principals, tuneful in its music and harmonious in its songs, Chu Chin Chow attracted a large audience to the Wichita Theater Monday night.

There were many in the audience who had witnessed its presentation in other cities but they did not fail to give this popular oriental extravaganza a Texas welcome.

Chu Chin Chow is all that has been claimed for it. As a musical spectacle it is almost alone in its class and as a scenic production with its most elaborate settings it is pleasing to the eye and holding to the memory.

There is a fortune invested in scenery, properties, electrical effects and animals. The company is a very large one and the chorus and ballet are far above the average musical comedy or extravaganza shows that appeared in southwestern cities in the old days before the coming of the world war, governmental control of American railways and the devastating screen favorites and their kidds.

Chu Chin Chow was perhaps one of the greatest musical successes London ever knew. F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest purchased the extravaganza for America and its London success was repeated in New York and has been repeated in the leading cities of America wherever it has been shown.

A thoroughly representative audience enjoyed and applauded Chu Chin Chow on its initial performance and it will be recorded in local annals as one of the most pleasurable as well as one of the most brilliant offerings presented at the Wichita Theatre.

As has been said, a notable cast appeared. It included Henry Latimer as Chu; Virginia Howell as Zahrat, the Desert Woman; Eugene Cowles as Abdullah, the Steward; Don W. Ferrandou as the merry Ali Baba; John Jendrick as Al Huda; Joan Remville as Marjanah, the singing girl; Edward Kiefer as the cobbler; Louis Le Vie as Kazina Baba, the miser; Maud Files as Mabubah; Adelaide Mesmer as Alcolm, the wife of Kazim; Hattie Carmontell as the slave buyer and many others including a ballet of sixty dancers.

Chu Chin Chow will be the offering at the Wichita tonight.

MRS. OBENCHAIN ANNOUNCES SHE HAS NO FEAR AS HER TRIAL FOR MURDER OPENS

By Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—The stage of peremptory challenges was reached late today in the choosing of a jury to try Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain on the charge of murdering J. Belton Kennedy.

The prosecution exercised the first challenge of this kind, eliminating a male talesman.

At the time of adjournment there were eight women and four men in the jury box passed for cause. Six persons had been excused because of opposition to the death penalty and one because of a fixed opinion concerning the case. Defense attorneys asked prospective jurors whether they had read any of the evidence in the trial of Arthur G. Burch, co-defendant of Mrs. Obenchain, which resulted in a disagreement. Another question was whether they would be deterred from voting to acquit Mrs. Obenchain by fear that such action would be criticised publicly by the district attorney.

Mrs. Obenchain showed some signs of agitation when the death penalty was discussed but appeared composed on other occasions. She passed most of the time in whispered conversations with her divorced husband, Ralph H. Obenchain of Chicago, who is one of her attorneys. She kept the lower part of her face muffled in a fur and the turn-down brim of a large black hat concealed her forehead and eyes.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Madalynne C. Obenchain, co-defendant with Arthur C. Burch, who termed her his "goddess," went on trial for her life in Superior Judge Reeve's court here today on an indictment charging she conspired with Burch to kill J. Belton Kennedy in Beverly Glen, this city, on the night of August 5, last.

Although two women "hung" the jury in the Burch trial, causing the ten to two deadlock that resulted in Judge Reeves discharging the jurors without a verdict, Mrs. Obenchain's attorneys, Jud Rush and Al MacDonald, opened their fight in her behalf by striving to obtain as many women as possible on the jury to try her.

Woman Jury Is Sought.

District Attorney Woolwine sought a "woman jury" in the belief that the psychology of the case showed that women jurors would be more acceptable to the prosecution than men.

Mrs. Obenchain, whose former husband, "Steady Ralph" Obenchain, earned the title of the "man in a million' because of his chivalrous dash to her defense when she was arrested, has been in the county jail since the night Kennedy was slain. Obenchain was at her side, acting as an associate counsel for the defense, when the trial began today.

The story told by Mrs. Obenchain immediately after her arrest and which she has persistently repeated is that Kennedy was murdered by "two rough dressed men"—strangers to her—whom she saw fleeing after the fatal shots.

Shot on Cabin Steps

Kennedy, a young broker of this city, was shot and killed on the steps of his cabin in lonely Beverly Glen when he drove to the glen in his automobile with Mrs. Obenchain, who was only a few feet from him when he was shot from ambush. The prosecution charges she plotted with Burch to kill Kennedy because Kennedy would not marry her.

Mrs. Obenchain, once voted the most beautiful girl on the campus at Northwestern university, maintains she loved Kennedy to the last and declares that she will take the stand to tell the complete story of her romance with him and of his death for the first time. Woolwine charges the she brought Burch, who, it is alleged, was in love with her, to Los Angeles for the purpose of spying upon Kennedy and killing him.

Burch's second trial is set for March 27.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Today I will go on trial for murder.

It may amaze you to have me say so, but it is the truth, nevertheless, that I have not minded being held on a charge of murder as much as I have been concerned with the hideous publicity and false accusations made against me.

Perhaps this feeling of mine can be better illustrated when I tell you that my father was of a quiet and retiring disposition. I remember an incident when he was elected mayor of a town in the middle west. He remarked he "didn't mind so much being mayor as he did the fuss that was being made about it." I feel that way about my present situation.

There is not a particle of fear in me regarding the outcome of my trial. I am as calm and poised as if I were steated on the seashore watching for a ship that I knew was to bring me good tidings.

Have No Fear As to Outcome

Believing in truth and justice and knowing in my heart I am innocent, naturally I could have no fear as to the outcome of my trial.

My incarceration has given me an opportunity to find myself as I never would have done on the outside. Although I have been greatly disillusioned, sometimes it is through disillusionment that the greatest revelations come.

To those that are interested I might say that to me the outstanding feature in all my experiences since the tragedy has been the ability of those who wish to do so to seemingly distort truth at their will. However, I still have absolute faith in receiving a fair and impartial trial and confidently expect a favorable verdict.

Girl's Visits Is Cause of Charge Against Woman

Charges of vagrancy were filed Monday in the county court at law against a woman resident of Burkburnett in connection with the investigation surrounding the refusal of an eighteen year old girl of that city to stay at her home.

The investigation started here Saturday when the father of the girl asked that officers aid him in locating his daughter. Investigation is said to have led to the discovery that the girl had visited the home of the woman on several occasions and there met men friends. The girl is being held at the women's jail pending further investigation in the case.

As a last means of saving her brother's life, the woman and her husband brought Boothe to Fort Worth Friday to be healed through prayers of Richey. The healing evangelist prayed for Boothe at the services Saturday morning. "The hard spot has turned into a soft one on my side," Boothe declared. "I praise the Lord. I know I will be cured." Putting his faith to a test, Boothe sat up in a chair. He had been brought into the auditorium on a stretcher and was unable to sit up without great pain.—Fort Worth Record.

More than $48,000,000 worth of poultry and poultry products were raised, sold or consumed in Texas in 1919, says a well known poultry fancier. The interest manifested in the industry would indicate that the annual value of poultry to Texas was even larger in 1920 and 1921. The poultry flocks of the state bring to producers a greater income by $10,000,000 than do the dairy cows. Even so, the industry is yet in an undeveloped stage, comparatively speaking. There are many thousands of farms in Texas where a chicken or turkey is unknown. There are many thousands of other farms where nothing but scrubs are kept and these receive very little attention. If the industry was developed to a reasonable degree every farm would have its flock of poultry and most of them would have either purebreds or good grades. No doubt many of our one-crop farmers who have held to the opinion that poultry is just an excuse to keep the women folks out of the cotton fields, have taken note of his neighbor who has been supplying the market this fall and winter with turkeys at 30 cents a pound and more, making from one load of turkeys more than many cotton farmers have made from ten acres of staple. If observations of this have the proper logical effect, Texas will continue to lead other states in the nation in the production of this great American bird."

CELEBRATION UPON RELEASE OF P. L. MYERS

Champions of Chiropractic Treatment Parade and Give Dinner in Honor of Imprisoned Chiropractor.

The Record News,
Wichita Falls, Texas.

Canadian flag floating today over the Canadian Chiropractic college in honor and in respect for Doctor P. L. Myers who is liberated from your jail today. We honor him as a martyr to chiropractic.

Canadian Chiropractic College,
E. Duval, D. C.

Several friends of P. L. Myers, chiropractor, and partisans of the practice of chiropractic took part in a demonstration staged here Monday on his release from the county jail after serving a 30-day jail sentence under the medical practice act.

The chiropractor was released by Sheriff Smith at 12:30 Monday and those taking part in the demonstration then formed a procession nearly two blocks long, which paraded the downtown streets, winding up at the Kemp hotel, where a banquet was held in the ball room of the hotel at 1:30 in honor of Myers.

Moving pictures were taken of the scene at the jail and of the procession at various points along the route which is intended to be used in a campaign to secure the legalization of chiropractic in Texas by the next legislature. Frank B. Wilcox acted as toastmaster at the Lanquet, and talks were made by Dr. P. L. Myers, chiropractor; Dr. S. A. Black, chiropractor; Rev. P. Boniface, A. H. Docker, W. J. Nelson, W. E. Hunter and Dr. T. H. Myers, chiropractor and brother of P. L. Myers.

Following the luncheon a petition to be presented to the next legislature asking for the legalization of chiropractic treatments was circulated and was signed by the crowd in the room. The circulation of the petition is to be continued here and at other points in Texas. Moving pictures taken today will be shown in motion picture houses and will be shown to members of the next legislature.

ternal Revenue department were not able to combat this argument they still opposed acceptance of it and before they would issue and sign an order they referred the matter to former Attorney General Palmer. Congressman Parrish was in Texas at the time but he took the matter up by correspondence, pointed out the salient features in the case and was assured that if the attorney general's department could not see its way clear to authorize acceptance of his views, that he would be given a hearing.

An Unfair Ruling.

This was not necessary, however, as the attorney general held with the solicitor of the Internal Revenue Bureau and thus in the fall of 1920, or about a year after this fight had been started, Secretary Houston signed the order. That the officials of the department were still unfriendly to the procedure, however, was demonstrated by the fact that the order under which claims for refund might be made stipulated that before the department would consider such claim the wife must first put up in cash the amount of income tax admitted due on her community income during the years' claims for refund were made, and that her husband might then submit his claim for the amount overpaid by him.

Congressman Parrish deemed such a ruling not only unfair but as an attempt to evade it and to delay refunds due Texas taxpayers. Moreover, financial conditions in Texas at that time were such that, had the ruling stood, many taxpayers never would have been able to raise the additional amount necessary before their claims could be considered. Undaunted by the determined opposition of the department, Representative Parrish again took up the fight, this time with the Rules and Regulation division, and pleaded the case so successfully that the order was recalled and so amended that part of the payments made by the husband might be credited against the income due from the wife and that a claim then made for the excess which had been paid. With this approved many claims for refund were made and adjusted by the department.

Meanwhile the fact that Texas income taxpayers were enjoying somewhat the best of it over taxpayers of other states had been made the subject of comment in congress and Republican members boldly announced that when the tax laws were amended they would see to it that this advantage would be taken from Texas. The attempt was made to do this when the new tax law was framed and although by this time the Texas congressmen had aroused the support of not only of the other Texans in congress, but of those representatives from other states having community property statutes similar to Texas, the Ways and Means comittee, in drafting the new Revenue Bill, included a provision as follows:

"Income received by any community shall be included in the gross income of the spouse having management and control of the community property."

House Overruled by the Senate.

This, if allowed to stand and if sustained by the courts, would have had the effect of undoing all the work of Congressman Perrish in regard to community income returns. The Republican organization of the house, however, was obdurate and passed the bill in that form. However, when the measure reached the senate, attention of constitutional lawyers in that body was called to this provision and they soon were convinced that congress could not vitiate a state law by any such means as this and that the result would be possibly a long drawn out but nevertheless successful fight by the taxpayers of Texas. The senate accordingly eliminated this provision and their judgment was sustained by the conference committee which accepted the senate's position. Thus the law with reference to income taxpayments by Texans remains as it was established by Congressman Parrish, and those who co-operated with him, in repeated conferences with the department and the rulings, the issuance of which was then obtained, still stands.

Heiress to Millions, 45 and Russian, 23, Who Works in Overalls to Wed

Anastase Andrevitch Vonsiatskoy-Vonsiatskoy, who fought in several of the anti-Bolshevik armies in Russia and is now employed as a chemist at the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia, is to wed Mrs. Marion Buckingham Ream Stephens, heiress to millions in New York City. She is one of the seven children of the late Norman B. Ream of Chicago, whose estate was estimated as worth about $40,000,000 when he died. She is 45 years old, he 23. Mrs. Stephens was divorced in 1918 by Raymond D. Stephens, a Chicago lawyer, on a charge of desertion. Following the divorce she went to Europe to engage in war work and met Vonsiatskoy-Vonsiatskoy. He will continue at the Baldwin works after their marriage.

SMALLPOX AREA TO BE GUARDED BY PATROLMAN

Action Is Recommended by Walker; Menace to Entire County if Disease Be Allowed to Spread.

Property to Be Assessed for Taxation for This Year on the Valuation Established Last Year.

After Dr. M. M. Walker had reported that the smallpox epidemic in the northwest oil pool in and near Newtown and Bridgetown was threatening to become a menace to the entire county the commissioners court Monday voted to appoint Frank Watkins to patrol that section of the county and prevent a further spread of the disease by a rigid enforcement of quarantine measures.

According to Dr. Walker, who is county health officer and Louis Jernigan, county farm superintendent there are approximately 75 cases in that section at the present time. Some of the cases have been brought to the county pest house for quarantine and treatment. The officials said that a further spread of the disease was certain unless something was done to force those that are ill to stay within their homes.

The commissioners court also voted Monday to have property in the county rendered for taxation at the same rate as last year which was 50 per cent of its value. The action was taken at the request of Irvan Deaton, county tax assessor, who said that some complaint had been made by property owners this year who said the valuations should be decreased due to the drop in the selling value. The court after some discussion voted to make no change this year pointing out that if values were decreased the rate next year would have to be increased.

SOCIETY

LARGE CROWD ATTEND ALL DAY MEETING

One hundred and nine members of the Home Missionary society of the First Methodist Church South, enjoyed the all day meeting held at the church Monday when plans for the entertainment of the chair in appreciation of their work were made. The affair to be given February 16.

A feature of the meeting were two splendid talks made by Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker on how the women of the society stood on putting evangelization first at home and in the foreign field, and also on a campaign which the church will begin to win souls to Christ before Easter. A decision was reached to commence work to that end at once and carry it on until Easter.

The meeting was opened with a song, and devotionals were led by Mrs. A. M. Hartsook who took for her subject the twenty-third psalm. In the absence of the president, Mrs. D. J. Carithers, the meeting was presided over by the vice-president, Mrs. W. W. Cook.

Members present were as follows: Circle No. 1—Mrs. F. P. Warren, leader, 32; Circle No. 2—Mrs. J. D. Bright, leader, 21; Circle No. 3—Mrs. Guy Rogers, leader, 23; Circle No. 4—Mrs. O. B. Womack, leader, 33.

A chicken dinner was served at the noon hour by members of Circle 1.

GUILD PLANS VALENTINE TEA

Plans for a valentine tea to be given at the parish February 14 for the benefit of the Day Nursery in keeping with the plans of the Federated Missionary society that all the churches would give teas for this cause, were made at the regular meeting of the Guild of the Good Shepherd at the meeting held Monday afternoon. The affair will be given from 3 to 5 o'clock and all members of the Federated Missionary society and their friends are invited, according to the announcement. A free will silver offering will be taken.

Plans for a food sale to be given each month were also discussed. Twenty members were present.

LOCAL LEAGUERS ATTEND DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

About fifty members of the local Epworth league of the First Methodist church, south attended the district conference held at Electra Sunday. A program was a feature of the meeting in which local people participated as follows: Bob McCullough, district secretary, gave a sketch of the work being done by the local organization, as did S. M. Black, the district Presiding Elder.

Miss Josephine Fisk, responded the address of welcome, and Miss Hilda Masters described some suitable Epworth league Sunday programs; P. B. Maddrey talked on what would interest the junior leaguers and Misses Josephine and Glenore Fisk gave a duet. J. W. Akin Jr., gave a voice number and Misses Julia and Beulah Ross gave a violin number accompanied on the piano by Miss Beryl Knickerbocker.

Reports were given from the various leaders of Epworth leagues in the district, one of the best being the local Junior league report given by their leader, Mrs. O. J. Scott.

The next meeting will be held at County Line, May 7.

OPERA STAR SUES CHICAGO COMPANY FOR HALF MILLION

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A half million dollars libel suit against the Chicago Opera company was filed in federal court today by counsel for Madame Johanna Gadski, wife of Captain Hans Tauscher, a German subject.

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Madame Johanna Gadski, the opera singer was under contract to sign with the Chicago Opera company this season, but never appeared, according to an announcement weeks ago, was paid $7,500 to cancel her contract.

The contract was made in Europe last summer by Mary Garden, general director of the company.

The term "spinster" applied to an unmarried woman is an actual reference to the spinning wheel. In olden times women were prohibited from marrying until they had spun a full set of bed furnishings. Thus, before their marriage, they spent much time at the spinning wheel, and were, therefore, known as "spinsters."

Wool Crocheting Trims This Little Linen Dress.

Heavy linen in natural color or in one of the popular bright shades is suggested for the tailored dress shown in the sketch, the real feature of which is the trimming. Wool yarn in a contrasting color is used to crochet the yoke and dress proper together, to finish the neck and sleeves, and to give a transparent line where the hem is joined to the skirt. The dress is a simple yoke affair, buttoned in the back. Of course heavy linen, cotton, or silk thread might be used in the crocheting, but the wool is effective and novel.

Challis in plain color or figured patterns is used to make some very dainty spring frocks for children, and wool trimming plays quite an important part, sometimes appearing in the form of crocheting or filet lace, and again narrow wool fringe is used to finish the skirt edge, sleeves, neck, and edge of yoke, perhaps. Wool handmade flowers are still used extensively as a trimming for children's dresses of challis and other lightweight wool fabrics, as well as pongee and some cottons.

A dainty natural color pongee frock, recently seen, was trimmed with brown wool embroidery, the collar being tied with wool cord finished with small balls of the same. A hat to match was similarly decorated.

Washable flannels in both white and colors are popular fabrics for dresses of the sports or severely tailored type for the younger generation, and a popular trimming for them is either cire ribbon or a silk braid in contrasting color, which is used to bind all the edges.

Not only dresses but coats as well, for little girls of four to six or eight years, often show a straight flat back and front panel, with a fulness at the sides that gives a little flare.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

A TRANSFORMED GUEST ROOM

"Can you come quickly, please? Mother is sick. I am afraid." The sharp tattoo on the bedroom door ceased, and footsteps receded down the hall. The Paying Guest sat up in bed, in the darkness, half awake. Some one was ill. The landlady, of course. The voice was that of Hatty, the little daughter.

Hurrying into dressing gown and slippers, pinning her hair with hands that shook, Miss Jones assembled her wits. It is terrifying to be roused from sleep in the dead of night.

What should she do? Keep calm, of course, and cool. One always kept calm. And called the doctor, and tried to tell him intelligently what seemed to be wrong. Heat at the feet was good. She was quite sure it could do no harm, at least.

She ran down the long hall, and into her landlady's room. Mrs. Flinn tossed the bed, moaning. Hatty stood shivering, weeping, asking where it hurt and what she should do.

Paying Guest Takes Charge.

Catching up a shawl, Miss Jones threw it around the child, saying, "Go to my room and take the flashlight off the table and go down to the kitchen. Light the gas and put the kettle on about a quarter full of water, so it will heat quickly. Look up the doctor's telephone number and write it down and come back to me." The child went obediently.

Miss Jones discovered that Mrs. Flinn was in the throes of an attack of indigestion. She had had them before and she just knew that heat would help her. And fresh air. She felt faint. The pain was so bad. And a hot drink.

A glass of hot water with baking soda, or some peppermint water. She knew that would help her.

Miss Jones dashed to the medicine cabinet in the bathroom. Half empty bottles of gargle, tonic, hair oil, and liniment confronted her. Cold cream, pumice, court plaster, everything but peppermint water or soda.

No Remedy Readily Available.

"The peppermint water may be in my handkerchief box," moaned the sufferer. "Or downstairs on the kitchen window sill. The soda—I don't think there is any upstairs. Do you mind going to the kitchen for it?"

Miss Jones remembered about a hot-water bottle. She searched for one, and found it in the untidy bathroom. But there was no stopper.

She ran to her own room, thankful that her own water bottle was always put away safely stoppered in its little flannel bag, all ready for use.

Down in the kitchen the kettle was steaming, and Miss Jones, filling the water bottle, searched in the cupboard hopelessly for soda.

Grocers' bags and torn boxes spilled their contents on untidy shelves. Thinking of the shining glass containers, neatly labelled, in her mother's kitchen cupboard, Miss Jones groaned aloud.

"I can't find the telephone directory," wailed Hatty, from the hall.

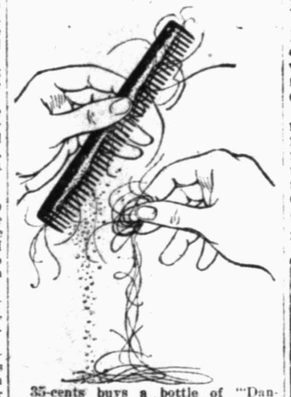

The Moral Is. Be Prepared.

Miss Jones had discovered the soda with a discouraged cockroach crawling inside the bag. With a shudder she took some soda from the bottom of the bag, hoping the roach had not reached it. She stirred it into hot water, helped Hatty find the telephone directory, and instructed her to summon the doctor while she returned to the sufferer.

The heat, the hot soda water, and whiffs of ammonia and fresh air helped the sufferer. The doctor arrived promptly.

The moral of this little story is, however: "Tack your doctor's telephone number on your medicine cabinet. And have a medicine cabinet that runs true to form and is worthy of the name. Stock it with emergency remedies, then lock it, and remember where you put the key."

CHAPTER LXXI.

Ruth's plan for the lunchroom grew apace. Just as with everything she had undertaken she put her entire mind to the carrying out of this project until she had met every objection that could be raised.

Then she went to Mr. Carr.

"I want something," she said with a smile when he looked surprised to see her.

"Not another increase in salary?" He pretended to look shocked.

"No, not yet," she replied, at which they both laughed.

"I want a lunchroom for my women and girls."

"I'm—can't afford it! Rents too high! Good idea later on, perhaps, when deflation of rents follows this deflation in business."

"My business is steadily growing."

"Yes—yes—I know. But it is no time to start charitable projects. No, Miss Browning, I shall have to refuse you. I'm sorry, but it can't be done—not now!"

"Will you give me half an hour to prove that it can?"

"I will give you the half hour."

"Thank you."

Unfolding some papers she had in her hand, Ruth began at the very foundation of her plan.

First she pointed out the necessity for the sort of rooms she proposed to open, the lunch and also the recreation room. She talked entirely from a business point of view. The altruistic side she never once mentioned. She told of how poorly nourished some of the girls were, especially the younger ones.

"They cannot give us the best that is in them to give under the circumstances, and we need their best if our business is to keep on growing. They need recreation also, and if they have a room where they can read or dance——"

"Dance?"

"Yes, a machine with some good dance records is necessary. Pleasant days they would, of course, go out after eating, but in bad weather they would get their exercise indoors."

Ruth laid a paper on the desk.

"The architect's plans for remodelling part of the floor above us. It will be vacated next week."

"Because the rent was so high Higgins couldn't make his business pay. That is the sort of place you want for a luncheon for a parcel of girls?"

"Yes," smiling. Then:

"And here is an estimate of the cost from the carpenter." She laid another paper before him.

"Um——"

"And here is a roughly worked out plan showing the cost of equipment, accurate, however, as to figures. And here is an outline of expenses for running the lunch and recreation rooms. And another showing the reasonable margin of profit."

"Profit?"

"Yes, Mr. Carr. You do not think I would come to you with any scheme unless I had first proved it would pay in dollars and cents as well as in a better equipped organization? I realize you are not running a charity bureau."

"And you think that idea could be made to show a profit now—under present business conditions?"

"I know it could," was the quiet answer.

"Very well, go ahead! I expect the next time you come to me it will be to take my job away from me."

"If I could prove myself the better man I might try," Ruth returned as she rose. Then impulsively holding out her hand, she said:

"Thank you, Mr. Carr. Not for what you have done, but for your faith in me."

"Why shouldn't I have faith? You have made good in everything you have tried. I am not sure you'll come out with flying colors in this lunchroom scheme though, even if I have consented to let you try."

"It has taken me several weeks to convince myself. I do not wonder I have not entirely persuaded you in half an hour."

Ruth was elated with her success. She knew the objections she would have to meet, knew them to be hard ones to dispel. And then the thought of the faith Mr. Carr had shown in her judgment, her ability, was most flattering. And Ruth Browning, being a woman, was not above being pleased when she was flattered.

"I knew you'd put it over!" Sam said when she told him.

"More business," Mrs. Browning groaned. "I do wish you'd stop getting yourself talked about, Ruth. I expect you will be written up again as running a lunchroom—a Peabody with a lunchroom!"

"I'll come in and have lunch with you occasionally," Ted teased.

"Indeed you won't, Ted Browning! Women are to be the sole patrons of my lunchroom, and only women employed by Carr & Co. I see thro gh your scheme. You think it would be a fine chance to see Selma."

SURE HELP TO SICK WOMEN

Mrs. Baker, so much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Anxious to Help Others

Lebanon, Indiana.—"I was completely run down from women's troubles and stomach trouble and for a long time was hardly able to do my work. I had some friends who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they told me about it. I know what it has done for me and I recommend it to others, as I am sure it will be a great help to all sick women. It is a wonderful medicine, and I give you permission to use my testimonial and my photograph."—Mrs. Emma Baker, 310 S. East St., Lebanon, Indiana.

These letters recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound ought to convince women of the great worth of this medicine in the treatment of ailments to which they are often subject.

Mrs. Baker calls it "a wonderful medicine." If you are suffering from troubles women often have, or feel all run down, without any ambition or energy for your regular work, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a natural restorative and should help you.

LONDON EXCHANGE CONTINUES RISE

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Exchange on London today continued its persistent rise, rallying after the close of the stock market to $4.33 1-8 for demand bills. The previous high quotation of the past two and a half years was $4.32 1-2, made last week.

Dealers in exchange were at a loss to account for the steady advance of this remittance on any ground other than the improvement shown in Great Britain's foreign trade.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE

are in for a sound threshing next November. They failed to redeem their platform pledges; they declared against a league of nations and now they are attempting to create an association of nations. In addition to this when times are hard, the party in power is cut and slashed by the millions of independent voters who run amuck.

Cyclone Davis is a candidate for congress from the First district, and Representative Eugene Black has a bear fight on. Cyclone served a term as congressman-at-large. When a member of congress he paid his respects to Jefferson Davis, the distinguished president of the Southern Confederacy and a statesman and soldier whom millions loved in the South and additional millions venerated. When Cyclone offered for re-election what the daughters of the Confederacy, the sons of Confederate veterans and the United Confederate veterans did to him is ancient history. They sent him back to his pecan grove in Hopkins county and he has been as silent as an oyster ever since. He is an ugly customer in joint debate, he can out-talk a brass band or the music of a brass foundry and in the good old days he devoured Wall Street before breakfast, annihiliated "the Rothschilds money kings" for his mid-day meal and when the supper hour arrived he was ready to feed up on "the Democratic party, the Golden Harlot of American politics." Now he is running as a Democrat and the Lord only knows what the paramount issue will be this time. Cyclone is a lovable old chap, his heart is in the right place, he means all right but when his tongue runs away with him there isn't a prophet in the land who is able to guess just what he will say or forecast where he will land. Now why should a wild son of the piney woods or a wild steer of the ranges for that matter be elected to the American congress with the problems of all the ages awaiting solution? Why not elect him justice of the peace?

General Jacobs F. Wolters and his soldiers and Adjutant General Thomas G. Barton and his rangers are "cleaning up" the counties of Limestone and Freestone. They are smashing moonshine stills; they are jailing moonshiners; they are raiding gambling houses, and they are putting the gamblers behind the bars; they are bludgeoning rum runners and confiscating their supplies and their cars; they are making highjackers hard to find; they are driving professional harlots and their male monstrosities from the oil fields of two Texas counties; they are enforcing the law. Prohibition is the law of the land. Texas has the Volstead act. Texas has the Dean law. Those who defy these enforcement laws should know what to expect. If they don't know they are getting it at the hands of Wolters and his soldiers and Barton and his rangers.

All attendance records for the Chicago automobile show were broken last week. Saturday was the biggest day of the show, the biggest day in the history of Chicago auto shows and the crowds were ever greater than at the New York show. Figures tell the story. The attendance this year was 25 per cent larger than last year and fifty thousand visitors passed through turnstiles Saturday afternoon and evening. This is a straw. It shows the way the wind bloweth. For mind you the American people talked hard times and depression until they really believed that the world was on the road to hell. Now they have taken the other road. They know that this old world is jogging along as it has ever jogged, and that the workers of the world are to be the winners of the hour. America has national wealth of almost 300 billions. American has a national debt of 23 billions, inclusive of the 11 billions owed to our government by foreign nations. This is not all. The American dollar is worth a hundred cents the world over and if a greater number of successful business men and a decreased number of professional politicians were sent to the American congress the mildewed cobwebs of distrust or disaster would be banished or swept away.

Wolters asked to stop women from dressing like men.—Mexia Dispatch. Brigadier General Jacob F. Wolters is in command of the military district of Mexia. He was sent there to enforce the law, to abolish the joints and dives, to put an end to highjacking and highjackers, and to make rum-runners and rum-makers hard to catch in the district. He wasn't sent there to inaugurate a campaign of dress reform or to break up the wearing of man-style clothes by the women on the streets of Mexia. A hard-headed Texan is General Wolters. He has more pressing problems to settle than to enter the list with modern feminism. If the women wish to wear laced-leather boots and kahki-knee fitting trousers it is their business and not the concern of the soldiers or the rangers who were sent to the Mexia district by the governor of Texas to carry out a program of law enforcement. If all the nuts in Texas were placed under restraint or sent to the asylum the state buildings would be overcrowded.

Andrew W. Mellon is secretary of the treasury. This is the way he would finance the bonus bill. He would add 25 million dollars to the taxes already imposed upon the smokers of cigarettes and cigars and the chewers of tobacco. He would raise another 40 million dollars by increasing the documentary stamp tax. He would increase the second class mail rates sufficiently to gather in another 30 million dollars and provide 70 million dollars by increase in the postage from 2 cents to 3 cents. He would place a 2-cent tax on bank checks which would add 30 million dollars to the bonus fund and for good measure he would add to these sums a hundred million dollars by a tax on automobiles at the rate of 20 cents per horsepower. Secretary Mellon has the figures and he has estimated that the total of these levies is 295 million dollars a year for the lovers of tobacco, for those who use the documentary stamp tax, those who write letters, those who indulge in the luxury of bank checks and owners of motor vehicles to hand over as a bonus to former service men. If a bonus is to be paid the former service man, then why not a sales tax? All the people are interested. Soldiers were willing to fight and thousands did fight for all the people and their flag. Now just why shouldn't all the people be taxed alike if the bonus plan is the order of the day.

Congressman "Jimmy" Byrnes of South Carolina, a Democratic member of the house appropriation committee, says the Dawes economics and savings are mostly of paper variety. The English of this is that the Dawes economics are mostly bunk. "Hell and Mariah," would you have believed it. Produce the figures.

Theodore H. Price, editor of Commerce and Finance, says that after just one more fling the American people probably would be willing to settle down and save. Theodore had his pencil with him when he said it. Cost of the federal soldier bonus will run from $1,500,000,000 to $5,250,000,000 and the minimum amount immediately required is put at $425,000,000 a year for the next two years. He says this sum represents the interest on 10 billion dollars for a year at 4 1-2 per cent. He estimates that $1,250,000,000 will be expended in road construction this year. These road bonds are tax exempt and holders of vast wealth will buy them. It will cost the American people 800 million dollars for their sugar next year or almost as much as the bread bill of American costs the sons and daughters of Uncle Sam. This is the advice of Theodore, "The world is tired of inconsequent conferences. It is time for it to stay at home, work hard, economize and stop borrowing." Colonel Price is a gifted individual. He writes beautifully and talks majestically. His viewpoint, stripped of all verbiage, is "the only way to get out is to dig out."

THE RADIOPHONE CRAZE

Have you a little radio set in your home?

Are you in on the broadcasting craze?

No? Di mi, you don't know what you're missing. Not to be in on the "Nightly Broadcast" is not to be well informed. One-half the world may not know how the other half is living, but it now comes pretty near to knowing what the other half is SAYING.

o o o

All you need is a little instrument about the size of a bootblack's box looped up with the proper antennae on the roof. Then you may sit down, put the receiver to your ear, and hear a band concert at Miami, a lecture on the boll weevil in Masonic Hall, Charleston, S. C.; a zither selection by a Hungarian boy marvel in Back Bay, Boston; a talk on bogus bottle labels by William J. Bryan before the Odd Fellows of Chicago; the results of the boxing bouts in Newark, N. J., and tomorrow's weather prediction from the local forecaster.

From which any dumbell can see that the age of secrecy is past. It isn't safe now for a New York man visiting Los Angeles to knock his wife above a whisper there. She may have a little radio in her home!

Very soon the declaration: "I'll tell the world," no longer will be a threat; a man won't be able to say anything out loud without telling the world.

And this broadcasting thing is in its infancy. Very soon everybody will be broadcasting. Wives will be broadcasting for Husbands-Who-Haven't-Shown-Up-for-Dinner.

OLOGIES AND ISTRIES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1921, by Frank Crane.)

I had a letter some time ago from a young man in Michigan, saying that he had recently taken up the study of phrenology, and wanted my advice on somebody or other's book that he had just commenced reading.

The book, he said, seemed to cover the subject very thoroughly, both in the text and illustrations. It gave information concerning how to judge a person's character by the size and shape of his head, face, eyes, ears, hands, and general appearance.

The young man said that he had met people who thought that phrenology was bosh, and he wished to know whether I believed that a study of this cience would broaden his mind and help him in his daily work and social ambitions.

It might.

You never can tell.

It might, also, be valuable to take up the study of chess, to investigate the ancient history of free masonry, or to devote one's self to numismatics, pedomancy, necromancy, palmistry, astrology, or the history of the Greek enclitics.

Almost any of these are good exercises for the mind. These are very good exercise for people who have not anything else to do.

But in a word where there is so much that is useful, beautiful, and constructive, it is difficult to see how anyone can find the time to wander along in such fields.

If, instead of studying parenology, my young friend will study physiology and philosophy, he will stand a much better chance to find out something about the human creature.

If he is interested in discovering the future, he will be much more likely to be successful if he will study history and find out about the past, instead of poking around with astrology and such things.

If he likes problems, he will find that the study of mathematics will furnish ample scope for his activities, particularly if he will pursue this science into the higher regions of integral calculus and astronomy.

If he is of a turn of mind that disposes him toward experimentation in dealing with exact factors, he has an immense opportunity before him in the study of the sciences, such as botany, zoology, entomology, biology, chemistry and the like.

If he is spiritually inclined he might take up the study of comparative religions.

If he is fond of languages, there are enough of them to keep him busy for several lifetimes.

In short, this world is so full of toothsome and appetizing food for the mind, that it seems hardly worth while for anyone to eat sawdust just for practice.

Those grow old quickest who worry most. This is a truism that, through every-day observation, should be familiar to everybody.

Yet the cultivation of an habitually serene, optimistic attitude of mind is a youth-preserving device too often left unused. No one who fails to make use of it need be surprised if he grow old before his time.

So with him who falls into the exceedingly bad habit of doing everything in a hurried or overtense way.

Hurry, as I have often taken occasion to remark, is twin to worry. Both mean energy waste, and when they become habitual they mean also a slowing down of all the internal processes. This brings premature aging.

As does overtenseness.

There are people who, from adolescence onward, seem never to relax. They hold themselves not only mentally tense, but physically tense as well.

Which involves a really serious strain on the whole organism. And one of the most certain effects of that strain in aging—an early aging that would not be if the great benefit of frequent relaxing were duly appreciated.

To relax at frequent intervals during the day still further helps to keep one young by its salutary effects on the mental and emotional state.

Power through repose—power to overcome any predisposition to needless worry, to ill-temper that weakens, to depressive conditions in general—is more than a phrase. It represents a fact of much importance to all of us. He who accustoms himself to daily rest periods—while yet working vigorously when at work—is doing much to make his life as a whole successful and in particular to retard the onset of old age.

The same may be said of him who learns to use his leisure wisely.

Leisure, it cannot be too clearly understood, is given men to be used, not abused. Multitudes abuse it by devoting it to a ceaseless pursuit of pleasure. But perpetual pleasure-hunting is one of the most fatiguing of all occupations.

And because it is fatiguing it acts on the nervous system with positively toxic effects. Thus it gradually undermines, remorselessly ages.

Think of some among your own acquaintances who give their leisure to nothing but quest of pleasure. Have they remained conspicuously young in heart and young in appearance? Do not their faces prematurely bear the tell-tale marks of age?

Which suggests, of course, that to acquire a wide range of worthwhile interests, as avocations to which one may satisfyingly turn in leisure hours, is another aid in the preservation of youth. It is, beyond any question.

He who has varied interests is sure not alone to escape the boredom which ages the chronic pleasure-seeker—as it also ages the man living in a narrow mental rut—he is not only sure to escape this, but in addition is sure to remain mentally alert.

And to remain mentally alert is more than an aid to keeping young. It is an essential to keeping young.

These few suggestions I offer in the hope that they will prove of practical value to some who may need them. Alas, how many do need suggestions like these! To how many old age comes when they should still be in the prime of middle life.

SAMMY AND BLACKY BOTH TALK AT ONCE

Two tongues at once are one too many,
And better 'twere there were not any
A hich means that when two people try to talk at the same time it is very unpleasant for themselves and even more to listen to them. When Blacky the Crow came flying out from the deep in the Green Forest so excited that he was cawing at the top of his voice Sammy Jay had at once flown to meet him. Now, Sammy was just as excited, and he was screaming at the top of his lungs. You see, he knew that Blacky had found the stranger who had so excited him. Now perhaps the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows would believe him and no longer think him crazy.

But they didn't! No, sir, they didn't! Instead they thought that Blacky the Crow had gone crazy, too. Never was there heard a worse racket than Sammy and Blacky made as each tried to talk louder and faster than the other. Neither was listening to what the other was saying, which in itself was very impolite, even if they were cousins. Worse still, each kept interrupting the other, and, you know, there is nothing more impolite than to interrupt when another is speaking. But neither seemed to mind in the least. Each kept right on talking and growing more and more excited.

Of course, all the little people within hearing hurried over to find out what it all meant. But they couldn't understand at all what Sammy and Blacky were talking about. You see, Sammy and Blacky interrupted each other so often that all that those who were listening could make out was that there was a great big stranger in the Green Forest, a stranger who wore black fur and was as big as Farmer Brown's boy. Now, none of the little people knew of any one as big as Farmer Brown's boy unless it was another boy or a man. But Sammy and Blacky said that the stranger was not a man. So all their neighbors shook their heads sadly and said: "They're crazy," and then again shook their heads sadly.

"Too bad," said Jimmy Skunk. "I always thought Blacky was smart, very smart, but there certainly is something the matter with him now."

"Yes, sah, there cert'nly is," said Unc' Billy Possum; "something's wrong with both Brer Jay and Brer Crow. They're foolish in their heads."

"Do you suppose it's catching?" asked Bobby Coon. "You know, Sammy Jay had it first and now Blacky has it."

"What's all this fuss about?" demanded a new voice. It was Peter Rabbit's. He was all out of breath, he had hurried so. You see, he had been way up in the Old Orchard, when he heard the screaming of Sammy and Blacky, and he had started right away, for, you know, Peter would feel dreadful to miss anything that was going on.

"Nothing, only Blacky the Crow is just as crazy as his cousin, Sammy Jay," replied Jimmy Skunk. "Blacky says he has seen the same stranger in the Green Forest that upset Sammy so. Just listen to those two birds! Did you ever hear anything like it? I'm going home." With that Jimmy Skunk turned his back in disgust and started up the Crooked Little Path that comes down the hill.

Bobby Coon and Unc' Billy Possum started for their homes, and Danny Meadow Mouse began to run along one of his little paths to get as far as possible from such a noise. But Peter Rabbit suddenly sat up with his eyes popping right out of his head. He had just remembered the strange tracks he had seen in the snow deep in the Green Forest just at the end of winter. Could it be that they were made by the stranger who had so excited Sammy Jay and Blacky the Crow?

Watching the Parade

By JOHN PILGRIM

I've known Tommy Weeks for two years, and all that time I thought that his wife was an invalid. Every now and then Tommy and I talk lunch together, or join the Round Table and talk over business, the folly of the minister in trying to get the gospel out of the clouds and down to hardpan, the difficulty of finding a reliable bootlegger, and the latest tales from the road. You know the sort of stuff that you hear at every lunch at every commercial club.

"Come on out to the house for dinner some night, Tommy," I've said a dozen times.

"Gee," Tommy has said, with every evidence of sincerity, "I wish I could. But the Old Lady isn't feeling very well, and we're not going out at all."

Yesterday I saw Tommy's Old Lady, and if she isn't feeling very well then you couldn't fit a Waterbury watch with an electric crane. That night I commented on it—just in a friendly way, you'll understand, because I had really been hurt by Tommy's persistent refusal to take pot-luck with me—and I got the answer. Mrs. Thomas Weeks is a crab. She is a bad-tempered, selfish, silly woman. Tommy cannot accept invitations to dinner because she cannot return them.

"She will always accept an invitation," said a friend of Tommy's. "But when it comes to repaying that dinner the shoe is on the other foot."

It appears that Mrs. Thomas Weeks does not see that she has incurred any obligation when she dines with one of Tommy's friends. She refuses to play the society game fairly. If she happens not to like the lady of the house or the man of the house she refuses to have anything to do with them from that time on.

"Why should I work myself to death cooking for that woman, Thomas Weeks?" she will ask. "What is she to me? Did you hear the way she bit me off when I spoke of the glaciers in Yellowstone Park? How you could sit there and smoke and smile when you heard your wife being treated that way is more than I can understand."

So Tommy has been hermitized. Not being able to repay the dinners his friends would give him he cannot accept them. He meets his friends downtown at lunch. At night—except on the nights when he can sneak away to balance the books—he listens to the recital of that day's woes of Mrs. T. Weeks. Then they go to a picture show.

Tommy never complains. But he has to make some sort of an excuse for this tinplate wife of his. So he says she is sick.

A CHRONIC CASE

(Copyright, 1922, by W. Werner.)

Though the winter afternoon was cold, the window was open a few inches. Salome Hawkins liked the tang of the fresh air. She had sat up that morning long enough to have her bed made. This was all the sitting up she ever did.

The room in which Salome lay was spacious and high ceiled, with massive black walnut furniture and rag rugs. There was a bright plant, with a pile of books, on the stand at the bedside. She had been reading a magazine, but she had laid it down to look through the parted curtain of the nearest window into a tree top.

For eight years Salome had lain thus in her bed and watched that particular apple tree. Eight times she had seen it fluffy with pink bloom, eight times the bloom had turned into fruit, and eight times the snow had lain on the branches as now. She was a slight woman of sixty-five, with a finely cut face which sharpened delicately at chin and nose. Her eyes were light gray, under curving black brows. Her black hair, wound into a neat knob and pinned to the top of her head, showed scarcely a thread of white. Her face did not look old. She would have passed for fifteen years younger than she was.

The door opened suddenly and softly. Salome's daughter-in-law entered. Charlotte Hawkins was a sweet-faced woman of forty-five, with gray hair. Her eyes expressed a tired patience. Looking at her one would have thought, "She has got the gray hair that should belong to Salome."

"What do you want, mother?" Charlotte asked.

Salome smiled. "Nothing," was the reply.

Charlotte brushed back her gray hair bewilderingly. "I thought you did," she said. "I am always listening for you to call. When I'm downstirs I think of you lying up here alone. It doesn't seem right."

"I'm very comfortable, dear."

Charlotte sighed.

"You aren't getting nervous, dear?" Salome inquired, placidly.

"I don't know." Charlotte gave a queer little laugh. "I don't seem to be able to get you off my mind. I didn't sleep last night just thinking. Isn't it odd, after all these years?"

"I should think so. You must take some catnip tea. I believe I heard the telephone bell."

"Probably. Your ears are sharper than mine," said Charlotte, as she hurried downstairs.

Salome mused upon what Charlotte had said. "There's no need for her to be nervous," she thought calmly. "There's just her and Arthur and me in the house. I'm sure I don't make much trouble lying here all by myself. Arthur often brings my meals up. It must be the Morrison in Charlotte that ails her. None of the Morrisons ever had any backbone. I wouldn't have picked her out for my son, although she's done well enough during the twenty years she has lived with me. But then she's had a very easy time. I've never interfered with her since I came to bed. She has had everything her own way."

Salome felt some annoyance of which she could not easily rid herself. She always had kept herself up and she felt she looked her best even lying there in bed.

She enjoyed lying in bed. She had never been a very active or substantial woman and in her youth she had worked hard. Arthur was her only living child of six. When he married Charlotte and brought her home Salome had settled down to the peaceful enjoyment of unlimited leisure. Her husband had left her well provided for and her son was a moneymaker in a small way. She always wanted time to read and rest and think her own thoughts and she had it now. Then a slight illness placed her in bed. She did not get up again. Why should she? There was nothing to get up for. She might as well take all possible comfort while she lived. She loved her room, loved to be quiet, loved to lie in her bed reading and crocheting. She had powerful eyesight and could read all day and all night if she chose. People were always sending her books. There were several overflowing bookcases downstairs and the public library was near, so she never had any lack of choice reading.

It had never occurred to Salome that she was a selfish woman, shirking every obligation of her life, nor that she was making a slave out of Charlotte. Charlotte was more tied to her home than she would have been with a baby. It was telling upon Charlotte.

Salome picked up her magazine and turned to a new story. It was the story of a mother-in-law who was a mother-in-love. Salome read it with enjoyment. She liked to think that she was a mother-in-love to Charlotte.

Suddeny she felt an icy blast blow across her bed. The wind was rising as the afternoon waned and it entered through the open window in gusts. Salome did not like either to feel or to hear the wind. She put out her hand and touched a button on her table which rang a bell downstairs.

She expected the immediate sound of Charlotte's ascending feet, but there was only silence. She rang twice more. It couldn't be that Charlotte had gone out. Not a sound downstairs! Such a thing had never happened before.

The wind, coming in with considerable force, blew a small vase from a near by table, breaking it. The curtains stood out, Salome's hair was ruffled. She felt chill. But still it did not seem possible that she could rise and close the window herself. She began to call loudly: "Charlotte! Charlotte!" There was no answer. "Dear me," thought Salome, "this is disturbing!"

She recalled hearing Charlotte go down stairs, but she had heard nothing further except a sound like the closing of a door. Salome was not a nervous woman, but this strange silence aroused in her something more than apprehension. She felt as if she herself was being called down stairs. It was as if a voice said to her, "Hurry, or you may be too late."

She drew up her knees and swung her feet out on the floor. Then she took up an extra quilt and wrapped herself in it and went out of the room. She had not walked so far in years, and she was surprised to find how easily she moved. She went down stairs nimbly, and opened the door of the sitting room, where the telephone was. There she paused, for Charlotte lay on the floor unconscious with a great bleeding gash in her head. Evidently she had struck the sharp edge of the marble-topped table in falling.

Salome saw that before she called the doctor she had to do something for Charlotte, in order to stop the bleeding, and bring her back to consciousness. She worked swiftly, knowing exactly what to do. When she could do no more she called the doctor and Arthur.

Both men arrived at the same time. Charlotte was still limp and pale. "Concussion of the brain," the doctor said. They bore her to bed and a nurse was summoned. Arthur picked up his mother and carried her back to bed.

But Salome could not lie there now. She thought of Charlotte, now helpless. There was no head to the house, for Arthur could do little. It was she who must rise and take charge of the household. Salome arose.

The doctor called it a miracle, a marvelous cure. But Salome knew better.

NO BRIDEGROOM.

Wilhelm, in his gloom imbedded, wrath upon his noble brow, says he won't again be wedded—he's not looking for a frau. Not a dame in silk or cotton e'er will be his bridal pet; he would like to be forgotten, as we're anxious to forget. He would have the world forget him, while he's in the present mood; let us labor to abet him in his search for solitude. Let us cease to have him plotting for the crown he used to wear, with his minions nimbly trotting on dark errands here and there. Let us cease to mark his fussing with his bucksaw and his ax, and to chronicle his cussing when he goes to pay his tax. Let's go longer make a story of the trival event, if he fires some servant hoary, so that he may save a cent. Let us cease to get excited if we hear about a dame who admits she'd be delighted to assume his storied name. For Old Willyum longs for quiet, yearns for quiet more than fraus, and he's tired of all the riot correspondents would arouse. All the rumors are so rotten that they make him fuss and fret; if he asks to be forgotten, it's our duty to forget. Let us leave him in the splendor of the forset dark and dense, where he breaks a cheap suspender bewing pickets for a fence.

DISTRICT CHAMPIONSHIP BASKETBALL TOURNEY TO OPEN HERE ON THURSDAY

Champions of Nine Counties Will Battle Three Days and Nights at American Legion Hall. Local High School Expected to Rule a Favorite in Big Event.

By C. F. C.

The greatest athletic event of a tournament nature ever held in Wichita Falls will be staged at the American Legion hall the last three days of this week, when 10 county basketball championship teams will battle day and night for the high school district championship. Every team entered has won its right to representation in the tournament on merit alone, and the round robin should produce some of the fastest, hardest-fought basketball games ever seen in this city.

The Red and Black cagers of Wichita Falls have not won a county championship, but a championship of its kind has been tacitly awarded to them. Owing to the size of this city, the local high school was barred from participation in the recent play for the county championship. But Capt. "Cherry" Johnson's gang, ruling a favorite in this late event, will be battling hard in this bigger tourney for district honors.

The counties represented, and the high school champions that will represent them here, are as follows: Seymorton high, Throckmorton; Munday high, Knox; Ciara high, Wichita; Throckmorton high, Shrockmorton; Munday high, Knox; Bellevue high, Clay; McGargle high, Archer; Stoneburg high, Montague; Jacksboro high, Jack.

Games in the tournament will be played morning, afternoon and night, with the teams drawing their opponents daily according to lot. Numbers will be placed in a hat by pairs, and the two teams drawing the same numbers will face one another. By elimination the tournament will be so arranged that the final championship battle will be played on Saturday night.

C. E. Danheim, athletic director of the local high school, and B. M. Dinsmore, director general of athletics for the district, will arrange the schedule, and handle the many details connected with the tournament. Some arrangement will have to be made regarding the scheduled games of the City Basketball league for Friday night, when the University club is carded to meet the Knights of Columbus and the Elks five to play the North Methodists. It has been suggested that the University club-K. of C. game might be played Friday night in addition to the regular high school championship game and that the Elks and Methodists should settle their differences next Monday evening. Coach Tate stated last night that he is anxious if possible to postpone the City league game scheduled between the local high school and the Gaines Motor company for tomorrow evening, in order that the Red and Black players may have a reasonable rest before entering the big tournament. It has been suggested that this game also should be advanced to Monday night, thereby giving the public a regular City league doubleheader on that date.

In view of the fact that several of the teams entered in the tourney have been playing on outdoor courts, and are therefore entitled to one game outdoors, it may be necessary to make us of Athletic park. It will be impossible to use the outdoors courts at the high school grounds as admission must be charged in order to defray expenses of the tourney.

An admission price of 25 cents will be charged for the afternoon games, and 35 cents at night. In that connection Mr. Danheim stated his willingness to split the gate with the city league Friday night, if two of the league teams play, and this will probably be agreeable to the league. In view of the size of the tournament, the interest in clean high school sports it will promote and the necessity of at least breaking even financially it would be a splendid act for the league to turn the entire gate of Friday night over to the local high school. The league's finances are in A-1 shape, and it could well afford to make this donation. The high school team has been a big factor in the league's success to date, and the high school rooters have contributed royally to the league's gate receipts. This is merely a suggestion by the writer, and is not a request from the high school or any of its officials. Any fair arrangement will be satisfactory to them.

The question of a referee has been left to the University Interscholastic league, and it is expected a competent, disinterested official will be sent here from Austin to officiate in all games.

It's up to the local fans now to turn out strong for this tournament, to support it as it deserves to be supported and to do some high and lofty rooting for "Cherry" Johnson, "Dummy" Deems, "Dutch" Anderson, Palmer Harrod, Gerald Coffey, Ben Howle and the rest of "the gang" to bring that district championship to Wichita Falls.

JOHN MOHARDT IS SIGNED BY DETROIT CLUB

By Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 6.—Johnny Muhardt, Notre Dame baseball, football and track star, tonight announced he had signed with the Detroit American league club to play baseball next season. Mohardt will graduate from Notre Dame this year. After the baseball season he said he planned to enter a medical school.

Mohardt recently was implicated in disclosures connecting him with a professional football game at Milwaukee but university officials took no action in his case because his graduation from the school will make him ineligible from further athletic competition there. Mohardt pitched for the varsity team last season.

Says Non-Union Plumbers Feel Discrimination

Non-union plumbers are being discriminated against in the enforcement of the city plumbing ordinance according to testimony introduced by the defense in the trial of F. B. Griggs, local plumber, in the county court at law Monday. Griggs is charged with violating the state plumbing ordinance in that he did plumbing work without the necessary permit required by state law and city ordinance. The trial of the case will continue today.

A large part of the testimony regarding the part that unions played in the enforcement of the plumbing ordinance was ruled out by Judge Guy Rodgers on the ground that it was not relevant in the trial of the accused. According to the defendant the three members of the city plumbing board who passed on the examination papers of the applicants were unfair in their grading to the non-union men.

This testimony was in part controverted with other testimony that two of the three grading papers did not belong to the union. It was shown that a majority of the entire plumbing board which includes the city engineer and the city plumbing inspector were non-union men.

The defendant also produced evidence showing that he had a journeyman's license. The state in rebuttal offered testimony tending to show that the city ordinance required an additional permit. Both state and defense closed Monday evening and after the court's charge and arguments this morning the case will go to the jury.

The case is the first to be tried in the county court of law since the adoption of the state regulations by the city with additional provisions. The enforcement of the ordinance has caused considerable dissention among members of the local plumbing fraternity.

"Reg'lar" Winter Weather Here Early Monday

"Regular Texas winter weather," which means a grand and glorious variety, prevailed in Wichita Falls yesterday. A gale from the north, snow, periods of calm, sunshine and temperatures that ranged from 35 to 60 above zero combined to bewilder visitors.

A norther blowing at the rate of 35 miles an hour entered the city soon after 5 o'clock yesterday morning, and blew merrily through and out the back door leaving a trail of tangled and broken telegraph and telephone wires. In the wake of the norther there was a gentle whirl of snow, the flakes melting, however, as they touched the earth.

And then the sun rose and with it the temperature. A cool wind from the north continued throughout the day, but in the main the weather was mild and pleasant. Indications throughout the railroad area, however, were that another brief cold snap might be expected.

NUMBER DISTRICT JUDGESHIPS TO BE INCREASED BY 13

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—An increase of 13 in the number of United States district judges was agreed upon today by the senate judiciary committee as a means of relieving the congestion in the nation's federal courts.

The new judgeships would be distributed under the committee's recommendation on the basis of one each to the following districts:

Massachusetts, eastern New York, southern New York, eastern Pennsylvania, northern Texas, eastern Michigan, northern Ohio, middle Tennessee, northern Illinois, Minnesota, northern California, northern Georgia and Arizona.

MILLIONAIRE "NEWSIE" TO PAY BIG ALIMONY

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Tony May, the "millionaire newsboy," must pay his wife $600 a month alimony. Notwithstanding Tony's protests that he was "only a poor workman at $12 a week selling flowers," Judge Hugo Friend ordered this when he granted Mrs. Lauretta May a divorce. Mrs. May charged desertion.

In her bill Mrs. May asserted that her husband was in receipt of a monthly income of over $400 from his real estate holdings, in addition to the income from several other business enterprises. Tony denied he was wealthy.

ZBYSZKO WINS TWO OF THREE FROM CADDOCK

Crowd Hoots Decision of Referee at End of First Fall, Won by Pole for 15 Minutes.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Stanislaus Zbyszko, world heavyweight wrestling champion, retained his title today by defeating Earl Caddock, former champion, two out of three falls in their bout at Madison Square Garden.

Caddock had been on the mat for about ten minutes and had escaped from many intricate holds. He had just regained his feet when the referee slapped Zbysko on the back announcing the fall. Zbyszko bewildered, asked who had won. The referee declared that Caddock had rolled on his shoulders, while trying to break from the champions grasp. The verdict was hooted for 15 minutes by the spectators. Caddock became the aggressor when the men were called to the center of the mat again. He soon succeded in toppling the champion and was on top during most of the time before he finally succeded in pinning Zbyszko's shoulders to the mat.

CULLEN F. THOMAS' TWENTY-FIVE POINTS IN SENATORIAL RACE

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 6.—Declaring he is for clean politics and against a boodle campaign, Cullen F. Thomas Dallas candidate for the U. S. senate announces a platform on which he will seek nomination in July. Thomas declares he will faithfully limit his campaign expenses to $10,000, the maximum which one candidate may legally spend.

"There can be no Newberry tactics in Texas" Thomas declares. He points out it took two trials to rid the senate of Lorimer and he favors a second trial to get rid of Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan.

A summary of the thing for which Thomas stands is:

Believes the rights of states should be safeguarded against further unnecessary encroachments of federal government.

Warns against the alarming concentration of power in Washington.

New Kings to Unthrone.

Says gravest domestic problem is more equitable distribution of wealth.

"Our forefathers threw off the volk of old world kings," he says.

"We have set up new world kings, whose thrones are oil and coal and meat and wool and steel."

Would cut government expenses.

Favors enactment of revenue measures which would be least burdensome to the great body of people and would force wealth to contribute its just share.

A more simple method of collecting its just share.

A more simple method of collecting income tax.

Opposes the sales tax, because it makes little distinction between the burden borne by the millionaire and the washerwoman.

Favors stiff inheritance tax.

Against high protective tariff as is for a policy of tariff for revenue only.

"It is enough to kindle the fires of political revolution," he says, "to learn from experts that through this system during 1920 the government collected on 29 leading industries $95,000,000, to get which the consumers were robbed of $4,700,000,000."

Commends Farmers' Bloc.

Calls attention to need of solution of farm problems of farmers. He commends the spirit of the "farmers' bloc" in congress and indorses Farm Loan Bank and War Finance Corporation. Favors amendment to the federal law which will permit co-operative marketing.

Favors every agency which will bring producer and consumer closer together.

Favors conservation of nation's water power, including Muscle Shoals project.

Favors reclamation of overflow or cutover lands.

Against high railroad rates, which permit fixed return on watered stocks.

Would Restore State Power.

Against interference of Interstate Commerce Commission in intrastate rates.

Would repeal the Esch-Cummins bill and restore original powers to state railroad commissions.

Favors generous care of all crippled survivors of the war and readjusted compensation for all soldiers.

Is against attempted usurption of federal power known as the anti-lynching bill.

Indorses the Federal Reserve Bank system, but declares it should be run for public ends and not for profit.

Believes in collective bargaining and is against industrial courts or compulsory arbitration which would chain any man to a job.

Has worked for both state and federal pro amendments and favors strengthening of present anti-liquor laws.

Against militarism and favors even a smaller standing army than the one 150,000 recently authorized.

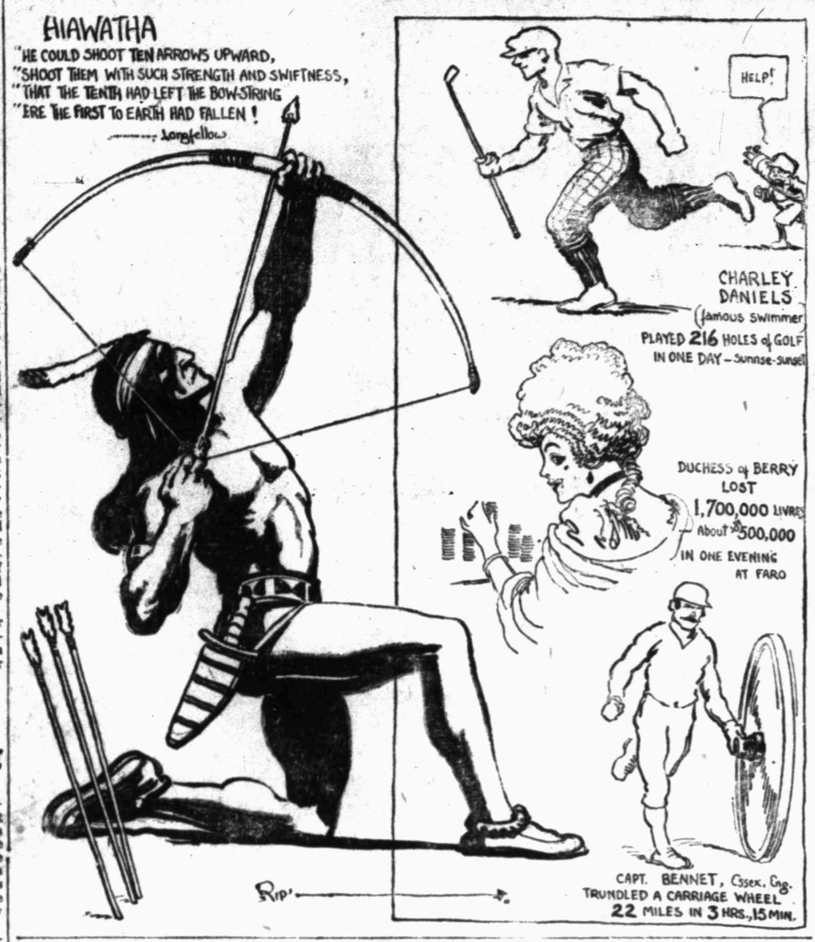

Would restrict immigration. He would close the door entirely on the Pacific and leave it barely ajar on the Atlantic.

Believes in the League of Nations and that the United States should send a spokesman to the league instead of a mere observer.

Women's football clubs have been barred from membership in the British Football association, which organization regards the game as unsuitable for women.

The circulation of the newspapers of the United States and Canada is 46,000,000

REEDY ANSWERS SCORES OF QUESTIONS FIRED AT HIM AT KIWANIS CLUB LUNCHEON

Straddles, However, on the Question Concerning Genus Homo; Says North America Slipping to Sea

Sitting squarely straddle of the fence on the question of the attractiveness of blondes and brunettes, for which Bill Viner vainly sought a positive answer, but answering freely and clearly scores of questions concerning the animal and vegetable kingdoms, Frank Reedy, of Dallas, educational director of the Yellowstone camps, gave a delightful talk yesterday noon to members of the Kiwanis club. Lovers of the outdoors and citizens whose lives are confined largely within the walls of their offices and homes were alike charmed with Reedy's practical knowledge of his subject and the quaint humor that illuminated his talk.

Introduced by President Ben Neal as "a man who calls beavers by their nickname, 'B. V. D's,'" Reedy covered a field of information ranging from the geographic history of Great Salt lake to an explanation of how geese select their leaders.

At every Kiwanian's plate was placed a "Yellowstone Questionnaire," containing 100 questions "wise and otherwise." These, or part of these, Mr. Reedy answered as curious members asked them during his discourse.

He explained how the heat of the swamps, the altitude and the climate had combined to keep poisonous serpents out of Yellowstone park; he described the sight of millions upon millions of grasshoppers frozen into Grasshopper glacier, and told how the "hoppers" had been carried there by blizzards countless years ago; he described an experience in watching a flock of geese make repeated trial flights in formation until they had perfected their flying organization behind one leader.

Why are the hind legs of a jack rabbit longer and stronger than his front legs? The answer, according to Mr. Reedy, lies in the fact that the baby rabbit's first lesson is to look for danger. He learns to rise on his hind legs and to leap high in the air in order to obtain a broader view of all his danger sources—and it is this constant standing and leaping that develops the powerful hind legs of the grown jack rabbit.

The North American continent today is sinking back into the ocean, Mr. Reedy told his hearers, while archipelagos are slowly rising in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. In the years far ahead, the naturalist pointed out, Alaska will become a garden spot, while the Sahara desert, almost one great oasis in itself, will be "the next Eden."

Many other interesting facts regarding plant and animal life were emphasized by the Dallas visitor whose address was one of the most entertaining and instructive that has been given before the Kiwanis club in many months.

Two announcements of "big league" importance were made early in the course of the noonday meeting. One by "Dinty" Reath laid stress on the organization this spring of a Shrine baseball team that "wants in" on any amateur league schedule that may be drafted in Wichita Falls this season; the other day Bill Viner called attention to "Red" Barnard's promise that a certain department store in the future will not sell ladies' hosiery at a price higher than $8.98—and that's a good laugh in that second announcement if you happen to be a Kiwanian and understand Bill's point.

Prior to the speaking, Vaughn Ray and Miss Trenholm Doyle, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff, put the club members in the proper frame of mind with several pleasing vocal numbers. Especially attractive was a duet that combined old folks songs with modern "close harmony."

The Rev. Fred Datson won the attendance prize, a pair of shoes given by "Red" Barnard, while the silent boosts were safety razors donated by "Tex" Scheurer.

DIRECTORS TO HEAR REPORT ON FAIR PLAN

A report on the proposal to acquire a fair ground site at Call Field in time for use for the live stock and rodeo in May will be made at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce board of directors at 10 o'clock this morning, according to an announcement by Hubert Harrison, general manager.

The committee, composed of W. E. Norton, W. D. Cline and T. B. Noble were to ascertain what the title to the property desired could be secured for, and if their report is favorable, it is expected that steps for permanent organization of a fair association will follow.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETEERS SNOW ELECTRA UNDER TO BRAVE TUNE OF 40 TO 12

Using all the second string men after piling up an early lead, the local high school basketball team completely routed Electra high last night at the American Legion hall, snowing the visitors under to the tune of 42 to 12. Electra was helpless before the speedy passing attack of the Red and Black players, and it was evident from the outset that the game would be a runaway affair.

Capt. "Cherry" Johnson piled up his customary grand and gallumptious total of field goals, pouring the leather-bound inflated dab of rubber through the hoop ten times and leaving the game late in the second half to give more substitutes a chance to play. "Cherry" was all over the floor, and fed the ball into the basket from a wide variety of angles. Palmer Harrod also dealt considerable misery to the Electra guards, counting five times from the field. "Dummy" Deems got away to a bad start, failing to shoot a goal in the first half, but came back strong in the second half with three. Perkins Ray was in the game long enough to count one ringer, while even "Dutch" Anderson, who never shoots if he can find someone to pass to, insisted on making one goal from the field.

The ball was in Electra's territory the greater part of the time, with the local players passing steadily. Many comparatively easy shots were missed or the score would have passed the 50 mark.

It should be said for Electra that Thomas was practically the only member of the regular high school team, according to Coach Edens, who was in the line-up. Herschel Johnson was badly hurt last week in the game against Ciara, while other members of the team were unable to make the trip here. Gillespie proved the visitors' best point-getter, with two goals from the field and four from the foul line. Rouse, right guard, also slipped in a couple from scrimmage—but the Red and Black guards were on top of their men all the time and Electra had little opportunity to score.

The score:

Cleveland Asks For Waivers on "Doc" Johnston

By Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 6.—The Cleveland baseball club today asked for waivers on Wheeler (Doc) Johnston, veteran lefthanded first baseman. Negotiations have been opened for his release to the Salt Lake City club of the Pacific Coast league in the event he is not claimed by a major league club.

Inspector to Visit County's Rural Schools

J. S. Rasco of the department of education at Austin, will arrive here Thursday to make inspection with regard to state aid for rural schools in this county according to information received Monday by Burl Bryant, county superintendent of schools from L. D. Borden, chief state supervisor of rural schools.

Seven schools in the county, Enterprise, Barwise, County Line, Beaver Creek, Deep Creek, Fowlkes and City View, have applied for the special state aid and Mr. Rasco's visit here is in connection with their applications filed several months ago.

Doris watched her mother sprinkle her furs with naphthalene powder.

"Why do you do that, mother?"

"To keep the moths away, dear."

"Why?"

"Because moths eat clothes, dear."

"Were there moths in the Garden of Eden when Adam and Eve lived there, mother?"

"Of course, dear."

"Well, what did they eat?"

The mother took her baby to be christened. The clergyman, who knew her personally, dipped his pen in the ink and prepared to fill in the necessary papers.

When he came to the space reserved for the date he said genially: "Let me see, this is the 8th, isn't it?"

"Certainly not!" said the indignant mother. "We've only been married three years."

The politician rushed past the official cerberus in the editorial sanctum. "What do you mean by insulting me as you did in last night's Clamor?"

"Just a minute," replied the editor. "Didn't the story appear as you gave it to us—namely, that you had resigned as city treasurer?"

"It did," admitted the politician. "But you put it under the head 'Public Improvement.'"

A youthful chicken fancier had in his possession a couple of bantam hens that laid very small eggs. Finally he hit upon a plan to remedy this fault.

When the lad's father went to the chicken house he was surprised to find an ostrich egg tied to one of the beams, and above it a card with this notice:

"Keep your eye on this and do your best."

"If a banana costs 3 cents," said the teacher, "what will a dozen cost?"

Willie hesitated then gave it up.

"Well, do you suppose you could do the sum if we were to play at keeping store?"

Willie thought that he could and consented to enter the make-believe market and address the storekeeper.

"Have you got any good bananas, today?"

"Some fine ones at 3 cents apiece" was the reply.

"I'll take a dozen, if you please," said Willie, digging into his pocket for imaginary cash. "And how much'll that be?"

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The raw sugar market was firmer and prices for Cubas were advanced 1-32c to the basis of 23-32c cost and and freight, equal to 3.70 for centrifugal on sales of 61,500 bags to an operator for prompt shipment. It was rumored that Porto Ricos were sold to New Orleans at 3.61 for centrifugal.

The raw sugar future markets was steadier early on covering and buying by commission houses, but later after showing advances of 2 to 6 points, prices eased off under realizing and closed unchanged to 2 points net higher. March closed at 2.20; May 2.40; July 2.58; September 2.71. In refined prices were unchanged at 5.00 to 5.10 for fine granulated and while there was no improvement in the demand deliveries on old orders were more liberal.

Trading in refined futures was confined to a few lots of May at 5.60 to 5.62; closing prices were unchanged to 10 points net higher with March and May at 5.60; July 5.65.

CHICAGO PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Butter easy; creamery extras 36c. Eggs unchanged; receipts 9,543 cases; firsts 37c. Poultry alive higher; fowls 25c, springs 28, roosters 18.

Stocks

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The drive against the short interest in the stock market was vigorously resumed at the outset of today's trading, but lost some of its force later in the absence of more than a moderate public following.

Speculative favorites of the equipment, motor, oil shipping and food divisions were used by pools to dislodge the bears, as were textiles, tobaccos and chemicals. Rails of the cheaper grade suplemented the irregular advance.

Steels were unaffected by contradictionary rumors regarding the progress of the proposed merger of independent companies but Cluett Peabody, which recently emerged from obscurity, broke sharply as a result of its poor earnings. Sales amounted to 850,000 shares.

Mixed conditions prevailed in the oil trade as was indicated by a one cent advance in Indiana gasoline prices and a two-cent cut for the same product in New England.

Developments of a general character mainly favored the constructive side, as did also the tone of the money market and foreign exchanges. Western centers reported a better investment inquiry and further gains in railroad tonnage, due largely to increased grain exports.

Heavy accessions to local reserves of interior banks soon forced the opening rate of call loans down from 5 1-2 to 5 per cent on the exchange and to 4 1-2 per cent in private offerings. Time funds were unaltered, however, 5 per cent being demanded for long time maturities.

Exchange on London eased only slightly from the high record of the past two and a half years, made last Saturday, the reaction being ascribed to profit taking by speculative interests. Other remittances, notably the French and Belgian rates, were strong, Swiss, Spanish and Greek bills also displaying firmness.

Liberty bonds recorded further recessions in connection with Washington advices respecting soldier bonus legislation. Aside from the strength shown by various junior railroad bonds, interests in that market centered around the successful flotation of the new great Northern railway issue. Total sales of bonds (par value) aggregated $14,375,000.

Cotton

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Early declines were followed by rallies in a comparatively quiet cotton market here today. May sold off to 16.15 on the early decline, making a loss of approximately $3 per bale as compared with the high price touched toward the end of last week. The demand improved slightly around this figure, while selling was light and the price rallied to 16.45 closing at 16.40 compared with 16.41 at the close of last week. The general market closed steady, net six points lower to one point higher.

The market opened barely steady at a decline of 13 to 21 points with active months selling 20 to 27 points net lower during the middle of the morning under scattering liquidation. Liverpool selling and local pressure.

The latter was encouraged by the unfavorable trade conditions in Lancashire and nervousness over the New England labor situation.

These features did not appear to bring increased offerings from the south, however, and as soon as the early selling movement slackened the market became quiet and comparatively steady.

There were reports of a little trade buying which probably led to renewed coverings by shorts and the tone of the market was helped by the firmness of foreign exchange and continued firmness of grain.

In connection with the latter, rumors were circulating that strong financial and business interests had been supporting wheat with a view to bringing about an improvement in general trade conditions in the west and there was some talk that this support might extend to cotton on the ground that higher prices for corn and hogs would operate against cotton planting in the south.

March contracts sold up from 16.45, the early low level, to 16.73, while July advanced from 15.50 to 16.05 with the close of a few points off from the best under realizing. Private cables attributed the decline in Liverpool to the depression of general trade and unfavorable conditions in Manchester. Reports from the local goods market indicated continued dull trade with a little business for immediate shipment but practically no interest in forward shipments.

Exports today 17,059 making 3,483,286 so far this season. Port receipts 20,435. United States port stocks 1,141,327.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—While the tone was soft in the early trading in cotton today and there were declines at the time of 21 to 32 points, the later trading brought a marked increase in steadiness. The earlier losses were recovered and the old crop months at one stage in the late trading were sent 2 to 5 points higher than the close of Saturday. March at its lowest sold down to 15.58 and its highest at 15.62. On the close the list was unchanged to 3 points down, net on the day, with March at 15.57.

For the declines the weakness of Liverpool was mainly responsible although uncertainty of the New England mill situation was also against values. Rains in the belt over Sunday caused only moderate selling as many traders seemed to think that the belt needed fair weather rather than more moisture. After the first selling flurry the supply of contracts became very limited and a much better demand came from shorts. Steadiness in the stock market encouraged buying of cotton in a limited way. Late in the session the market was almost bare of contracts and moderate buying sufficient to put prices to the highest of the session.

LIVERPOOL SPOT COTTON.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 6.—Cotton spot fair demand; prices easier. Good middling 9.91; fully middling 9.51; middling 9.16; low middling 8.21; good ordinary 6.96; ordinary 6.21 Sales 6,000 bales, including 5,400 American.

Flying is said to be popular with English women traveling to Paris because it saves their complexions from the dust of train journeys.

Grain

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 6.—New climbing of prices in the wheat market today resulted in the highest level being reached since September 27, 1921. The ascent was preceded by word of a fresh upturn in grain values at Liverpool and Buenos Aires. Closing quotations here were firm 2 1-8 to 3 1-2 cents net higher, with May at $1.28 3-8 to 1.28 1-2 and July 1.10 5-8 to 1.10 3-4c. Corn scored a net advance of 2 1-8 to 2 5-8c, and oats off 5-8c to 1 3-8. In provisions the outcome was unchanged to 12c higher.

Optimistic views expresed by leading authorities here had a good deal to do with causing a somewhat general impression among wheat traders that strong concerted efforts were in progress to bring about a beter outlet for farm products at remunerative prices. Announcement therefore, that prices were higher at foreign centers tended to give the market here a decided upward swing. Furthermore, evidence was at hand that a liberal amount of export business was underway, and it was apparent also that instead of an increase which had been looked for in the United States visible supply total, a material decrease was certain. Continued unfavorable conditions for a domestic winter crop in the southwest operated as an additional factor in sending prices upgrade, and preventing any important setback during the last part of the day.

Reports of stoppage of selling on the part of rural holders of corn led to urgent bidding from shorts in the corn market. Besides, export demand for corn was active again. Oats ascended with corn.

Provisions were governed by the action of cereals and hogs.

Injured Naval Officers May Be Retired

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Temporary officers of the navy injured during the world war, may be retired after December 31, notwithstanding the expirations of their commissions on that date if their applications were filed by October 1, 1921, according to an opinion to Secretary Denby from Attorney General Daugherty made public tonight by the justice department.

Under a strict interpretation of the laws relating to retirement, temporary officers of the navy are ineligible for retirement after December 31, 1921, Mr. Daugherty said, since the individuals concerned would on that date automatically lose their officer status. However, the attorney general ruled the mere fact that certain administrative duties had not been performed by the navy department before December 31, 1921, could not be held to defeat the evident intent of congress in the passage of the retirement law of 1917.

By F. E. JOHNSON, Deputy.

THE STATE OF TEXAS.
To the Sheriff or any Constable of Wichita County Greeting:
You are hereby commanded to summon Lillian Brissette by making publication of this citation once each week for four successive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your county, to appear at the next regular term of the 78th District Court of Wichita County, to be holden at the Court House thereof in Wichita Falls, on the First Monday in March, A. D., 1922, the same being the 6th day of March, A. D., 1922. Then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 26th day of January, A. D., 1922 in a suit, numbered on the docket of said Court No. 12255-B wherein, Floyd Brissette is Plaintiff and Lillian Brissette is Defendant and said petition alleging, That on or about the 7th of March, 1921, plaintiff was lawfully married to defendant; that they continued to live together as husband and wife until on or about the 28th of May, 1921, when by reason of the cruel and harsh treatment and improper conduct of defendant toward plaintiff, and further fact that defendant on or about said date permanently abandoned plaintiff, since which time they have not lived together as husband and wife.
Plaintiff alleges that defendant's actions and conduct toward him generally are of such a nature as to render their further living together as husband and wife insupportable. Wherefore, plaintiff prays the court that defendant be cited to appear and answer herein, and on final trial hereof, that he have judgment dissolving said marriage relations, for costs of suit, and for such other and further relief, general and special in law and in equity to which he may show himself entitled to, etc.
Herein fail not, but have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term this writ with your return thereon showing how you have executed the same.
Given under my hand and the Seal of said Court, at office in Wichita Falls, Texas, this the 6th day of February, A. D. 1922.

MANY DEATHS FROM RENEWAL OF INDIA RIOTS

By Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 6.—Renewed rioting in several parts of India, involving the killing of at least seventeen police officials and four members of attacking parties in addition to the wounding of a number of persons and some destruction to property, occurred over the week-end simultaneously with issuance of a declaration by the non-co-operationalist leader, Gandhi, that civil disobedience would become effective unless the government granted amnesty.

TEXAS AGAIN LED IN TOTAL VALUE CROPS

By Associated Press.
HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 6.—Texas has maintained its rank of first place among the states in the total valuation of all crops for 1921. This is true despite the fact that actual values have fallen to 59.7 per cent of the valuation for 1920 or a decline of 40.3 per cent and a decline of 60.4 per cent as compared to valuations in 1919, states E. M. Johnston, United States agricultural statistician.
In its cotton crop Texas was a good leader over all the other states. She planted during the year 10,979,000 acres and produced cotton valued at $177,100,000. Georgia was the closest rival. In this state 4,140,000 acres were planted and produced cotton valued at 809,720,000. Mississippi came third in the number of acres planted, but second in the value of the crop. From 2,668,000 acres Mississippi raised cotton valued at $72,210,000. South Carolina was the fourth state both in acreage and value of the cotton was $60,800,000.

SOLUTION NOT FOUND FOR NEW IRISH PROBLEM

By Associated Press.
LONDON, Feb. 6.—After a number of important conferences in London today, between the southern Irish leaders, Premier Lloyd George and members of the British cabinet, between Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, and the members of his cabinet, and finally late this afternoon between Sir James and Lloyd George a solution of the difficulty over the question of fixing the Ulster boundaries apparently had not been found.
Statements issued tonight by Michael Collins, head of the provisional government in Ireland, and the Ulster premier indicate that they still are far from agreement.
Parliament reassembles tomorrow and the new Irish crisis threatens embarrassments to the government. In official circles it is expected that Mr. Lloyd George will comment on his interviews with Mr. Collins and Sir James Craig in the course of his speech before the house of commons tomorrow.

SALOONS SAID TO CHECK SIDE-ARMS FO RMAIN INCOME

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—There are saloons in Chicago where checking revolvers for bandits and burglars is the main source of income to the proprietors according to statements of police officials, Judges and officers of civic organizations for the suppression of crime at a meeting here today.
The clearing houses for revolvers have done more to maintain carrying of weapons and to keep up the present wave of crime in Chicago than any other one thing, they said.

SANITY TEST FOR DAME WHO WAGED WAR ON DENTISTS

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Mrs. Bertardina Corley, who attempted to chastise two dentists within a week because she wasn't satisfied with a set of teeth which had been made for her, today was sent to Kings county hospital by Magistrate Short for observation as to her sanity.
Mrs. Corley last Thursday entered the Brooklyn dental offices of Dr. Thomas J. Davis and after an argument with Dr. Austin B. Colgan, his assistant, drew a dog whip from beneath her coat and began to wield it. She was arrested and released on probation. This morning, as Dr. Davis was about to enter his office, Mrs. Corley started for him, brandishing an umbrella. He eluded her and called a policeman.

"BAT" NELSON WINS VICTORY IN COURT BUT LOSES TO "DIP"

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Oscar Matthew (Battling) Nelson, once the greatest of lightweight fighters, and his lawyers won an easy decision over the law in police court today, but were badly beaten by some unknown crook.
"Bat," arrested for disorderly conduct, after a fight in a flat which he said he entered in response to calls for help, was discharged.
Then it was discovered that "Bat" and his second had won only half a victory for some one had picked the lawyer's pocket—right in police court.

EXTEND TERM FOR PAYMENT OF CITY TAXES

Council Suspends Penalties to March 1; Telephone Hearing Deferred at Request of Company.

Tell Plumbing Inspector to Enforce Laws to Letter After Brief Hearings on Complaints.

Wichita Falls citizens who are delinquent in their 1921 city taxes will have until March 1 to make payment without penalty. Normally the penalty applies on February 1, but the city council last night voted to extend the period of grace one month.

The expected hearing on complaints regarding the telephone service failed to materialize, the hearing being postponed a week at the local telephone company's request. In a letter to the council officials of the company called attention to the fact that the 1922 budget of the company had been forwarded to the head office in Dallas before any complaints were made to the city council. The local office has written to Dallas requesting an opinion on the budget in light of the complaints filed with the city officials here, and is anxious to obtain an answer before the public hearing is held.

Payents on the Indiana avenue paving contracts were extended by the council to four years, instead of the customary one and two years. The council also voted to open bids February 20 on the paving of Eleventh street from Grace to Ohio.

The new weights and measures ordinance was passed without comment on its first reading.

Plumbing Inspection

The council instructed J. L. "Daddy" Moore, city plumbing inspector to rigidly enforce the city and state requirements, regarding the installation of plumbing work in this city. At the last meeting of the council local plumbers appeared before the council and made charges that the local plumbing ordinance was being enforced with partiality. The charge was also made that Mr. Moore was inefficient and did not know the plumbing trade as he should.

At the hearing granted him Monday night Mr. Moore said that he had endeavored to enforce the plumbing ordinance impartially. He cited the fact that he had been in the plumbing business for 30 years to controvert the charge that he was not capable of holding the position of city plumbing inspector. He denied other irregularities charged. No censure was made by the council of Mr. Moore's work.

JURYMEN ASK NEW TRIAL FOR DOOMED NEGRO

By Associated Press

SHREVEPORT, La., Feb. 6.—Declaring that their verdict was rendered in response to popular demand rather than on the facts as developed by trial of the case, members of the jury in the Floyd Abrams murder case tried last week at Columbia, La., are supporting a movement for a new trial for the negro.

Abrams was convicted for the murder of Sidney Manhein, Missouri Pacific station agent at Columbia, Sept. 13, 1921, and sentenced to be hanged. The negro did not deny having been around the station with two other negroes the day of the killing, but claimed that he had caught a freight train and at the actual time of the killing was at a station seven miles away. One of the other negroes was arrested and identified and then lynched 100 yards from the scene of the murder. The other has never been caught.

Jury Divided In Joy Riding Case Monday

After deliberating two hours Monday afternoon a jury in the county court at law failed to reach an agreement in the case of a farmer living near this city, charged with aggravated assault on charges made by a girl resident of this city. After the jury reported at adjournment time that they were divided four to two, Judge Guy Rogers instructed them to return this morning for further deliberation.

The case, the trial of which was largely attended Monday, is based on the testimony of the girl regarding the actions of the accused several weeks ago. According to her testimony on the stand Monday the defendant, whom she did not know at the time, asked her to ride to town in an automobile with him. She said that she got into the machine on Lamar street and that she told him she was going to work in a downtown office.

At the corner of Tenth and Ohio streets, according to her testimony, instead of turning to the left as she expected, he turned to the right, saying that they would take a short ride into the country before she went to work. She declared that he had driven across the tracks at the end of Ohio street before her threats to scream if he did not let her out of the machine resulted in his agreement to return. His apprehension was made possible later by the automobile license numbers which she remembered.

The accused presented an alibi defense. He denied having seen the girl and accounted with partially substantiated testimony for his whereabouts on the morning the alleged assault took place.

BUNGER GETS NEW PRODUCING LEVEL IN PARSONS WELL

Another new producing level for the Bunger territory has been added by the Cosden Oil and Gas company's No. 1 Parsons, which started flowing on Sunday at the rate of 800 barrels daily, from a lime at 3,845 feet. The lime was drilled Saturday, according to today's reports from the field, which showed the well still flowing.

This new well is more than a mile and a half to the northeast of the Bunger pool. In addition to adding a new lime to the field, and opening up production to a considerable extent, it is of considerable interest since its production is much heavier than the other deep production in Bunger where the 1,900-foot sand has heretofore been the most richly productive.

Monday reports from Bunger also showed the Texas company's No. 1 Stoffer, in the southeast part of the pool, rated as a 200-barrel production, after being shot in the 2,600-foot sand. This is an extension to the east of approximately a half mile.

Long Wait of Toussaint, Under Sentence of Death, Broken by Daily Visits of Devoted Wife

Henry J. Toussaint, former army officer and engineer, condemned to die for the murder of his father, O. H. Toussaint spent Monday the first anniversary of his arrest in his usual quiet manner at the county jail. A year ago Monday the day following the killing of his father in the residential section of the city the younger Toussaint was arrested and has never left the jail except during his one week trial in July and August which resulted in his conviction.

The lonely wait of the condemned man for the action of the court of criminal appeals on his appeal is broken only by the usual daily visit of his wife. Toussaint according to jailers has little to say to other prisoners maintaining an aloof attitude and he is seldom visited by outsiders other than his wife.

The wife against whom Toussain had filed divorce proceedings previous to the murder of his father and who returned here from her Pennsylvania home following his arrest and again in August during his trial seldom misses a day in visiting the jail.

On Friday, visitor's day, and on Sunday during church service she is allowed to go inside the jail and talk to her husband. On other days she talks to him from the outside, talking loud enough so that he can hear in his cell on the second floor. The routine menu of the jail is broken for the condemned man by food which she brings him.

Every Wednesday morning for several weeks she has gone to the office of attorneys representing her husband to learn whether or not the higher court has announced a decision in his case. The appeal was argued before the higher court in November and a decision has been expected weekly since that time. The decisions for the week are generally announced on Wednesday. A decision in the case is predicted by both state and defense attorneys during the present month.

Balloting for C. of C. Council Closes Tonight

Balloting for membership in the 1922 Business Council, Chamber of Commerce, will close tonight, according to an announcement at the Chamber of Commerce offices Monday afternoon. Ballots from the large portion of the membership have already been received, according to the announcement.

PREFERENCE URGED FOR HOME LABOR

Directors of Irrigation District Adopt Resolution Addressed to Contractors on Big Project.

All possible preference to home labor on the irrigation work is urged upon contractors and sub-contractors in a resolution passed by the board of directors of the Wichita river irrigation project at a meeting Monday morning, the resolution calling to the attention of those involved the fact that many workers who help to pay the taxes through which the project is being built are now out of work.

The wording of the resolution follows:

"Be is resolved: That the board of directors of Wichita county water improvement district No. 1, request all contractors and sub-contractors engaged in the construction of the irrigation project to employ as far as practicable home labor, both skilled and unskilled.

"Be it further resolved: That, the board of directors call to the attention of the contractors and sub-contractors, that the project is being constructed from the proceeds of bonds which will be paid for by the taxpayers of Wichita county; a good many of whom are now unemployed and are in need of employment.

"Be it further resolved: That a copy of this resolution be mailed to each contractor and sub-contractor, for his information and guidance wherever practicable."

FIND BOOZE AT NEWTOWN: MAN IS ARRESTED

Ranger McCormick and Charles Bebout, special officer Monday night arrested James Milligan at Newtown in connection with the discovery of a Ford automobile with five gallons of whiskey.

Milligan was brought to this city Monday and lodged in the county jail.

VETS TO SEE WAR LEADER DECORATED

A large number of former officers of the 36th division from this section of the state plan to be in San Antonio next Saturday when Major General John A. Hulen, who commanded a brigade of the division while it was overseas, will be decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal, Major General Hines in command of the 8th corps area presenting the medal. A brigade of the Second division, commanded by Brigadier General William R. Smith, who was the overseas commander of the 36th division, will constitute the escort, and following the ceremony will be reviewed by General Hulen with General Hines.

A dinner in honor of General Hulen will be tendered at the Gunter hotel, following the ceremonies, after which the war time officers of the division will call on General Smith.

Major M. L. Culbertson, regular army instructor for the National Guard in this district, and who was "G1" of the 36th division staff during its overseas service, and D. M. Perkins, a long time acquaintance of General Hulen and a company commander in the 36th division during the late war, will be among those going from Wichita Falls.

They will be joined by a number of their former comrades from a score of places in Northwest Texas.

Bankruptcy Petition.

A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed Monday in federal court by William Thomas Milam and Mrs. Walter Townsend, partners in the ownership of the Wide Awake store of Vernon. According to their petition their assets are $21,981 with liabilities of $28,270.

Mr. Milam lists his individual assets at $9,525 and liabilities at $9,255. He claims exemptions on $9,025 worth of assets. Mrs. Martin's assets are $3,100 and liabilities $2,663. She claims $2,663 in exemptions.

LEGION POST TO ELECT ON FEBRUARY 14

Coming Year Expected to Even Surpass Successful Year Just Closed; Many Activities Planned.

Members of the Pat Carrigan post, American Legion, will name their officers for the coming year at a meeting on the night of Tuesday, February 14, according to an announcement. The election was originally announced for tonight, but has been postponed on account of conflicting affairs.

During the past year the local post has made great strides forward, and is considered as on a sounder basis today than ever before. The club rooms on Ohio street have been partially equipped this year, and it is expected that they will be completely and comfortably fitted out by the last of the year.

The membership during the past year has been larger than ever before, and attendance at post meetings has been on the increase with evidences of interest from members who have never been active in the past.

It is expected that the coming year will be an even more successful one, not only in membership but in post activities, designed to make the legion quarters a social and athletic center of the city.

Members are urged to pay their 1922 membership dues before the date of the election, as only those whose dues for the ensuing year are paid will be eligible to participate in the election.

Wildcat in South Electra May Make 50

Estimates of 50 barrels were placed on the possible production of the Griswold Oil company's Waggoner wildcat, southwest of the South Electra pool, from a lime formation drilled from 1890 to 1900 feet. The well will be shot and tested as soon as possible, S. M. Griswold the president of the company, said Monday night. It is believed that a true oil sand will be found a short distance under the lime, and it is possible that, after giving a fair test to the lime already drilled, the hole will be drilled deeper. However, the present showing is expected to make a fair producer.

In the proven pool the Nos. 17 and 18 of the Griswold company are both in the 1,800 foot sand, according to the Monday reports. Stars are being rigged up to drill them in immediately.

PRESS AGENT IN WILL, ASKS GOD TO AID CITY

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Hope that "God may take care of Chicago in the future, so as to enable it to live down its miserable past and wretched present" was expressed in the will, made public here, of A. Toxen Worm, theatrical press agent, who died recently in Paris. Mr. Worm was connected with the Shuber interests for many years.

"I consider New York to be the most wonderful city in the world," the will said, "I hope that its prosperity, uninterrupted, may be forever continued by providence."

New Complexions for Old in 14 Days!

How Ironized Yeast Gives New Freshness and Charm to Pale, Sallow and Pimpled Faces

Thousands whose complexions only recently were marred with humiliating skin blemishes today possess entirely new complexions—complexions which were completely re-made in ten to 14 days—and which are entirely free from even the slightest imperfections!

These surprising results were achieved not by using lotions, "beautifiers," or cosmetics of any kind, but by simply removing the real cause of the trouble, and supplying their systems with two vital substances, essential to health but lacking in the modern diet—vitamines and iron.

Make This Startling Test

If your complexion is a source of embarrassment to you—if you are thin, or feel the need of more "pep"—simply go to your druggist and get IRONIZED YEAST on our positive guarantee of satisfactory results from the very first package—or money refunded. Or mail coupon below for our famous Three-Day Free Trial Treatment. Take these pleasant-tasting tablets—two with each meal. Then get ready for a surprise.

Pimples, blackheads and other skin blemishes begin to disappear almost "while you wait." You will feel an almost immediate increase in your capacity for hard work or play. And as for rounding out your figure with new firm flesh, many thin people report gaining five pounds and more on the very first package of IRONIZED YEAST!

Yeast Best When Ironized

The reason IRONIZED YEAST brings such remarkable results is because it is scientifically correct in every way, containing in highly concentrated form a yeast which is cultured expressly for medicinal purposes, and which has been ironized, or treated through a scientific process with a special form of easily assimilated organic iron, similar to the iron found in spinach.

When yeast is ironized in this manner the results in practically in every case are secured in just half the usual time! Is it any wonder that IRONIZED YEAST stands in a class by itself, and is now recognized by thousands of people as the perfect vitamine tonic treatment?

Try Ironized Yeast Today!

You simply will not believe what a wonderful improvement IRONIZED YEAST can bring in your appearance and in your general health until you try it. Go to your druggist today. Or mail coupon for the amazing Three Day FREE Trial Treatment. Then judge IRONIZED YEAST by the actual results that it brings.

WARNING!

Due to the marked superiority of IRONIZED YEAST it is being widely imitated. IRONIZED YEAST is entirely different from ordinary combinations of yeast and iron—or yeast and iron taken separately. Certain types of yeast and iron have absolutely no medicinal value. IRONIZED YEAST on the other hand means not only specially cultured yeast, but the exclusive process through which this yeast is ironized. There is only one IRONIZED YEAST. Insist upon it always—for nothing else can be like it. Go to your druggist—or mail coupon today.

A Cordial Invitation to All Friends of Lucian W. Parrish

—Congressman Lucian W. Parrish speaks this noon before the University Club at the regular meeting of the club to be held in the diningroom of the Kemp Hotel.

—In honor of the distinguished visitor the Board of Governors of the University Club extend to all citizens of Wichita Falls and the surrounding territory a very cordial invitation to meet with them on this occasion.

—This will afford every voter an opportunity of hearing a man who is considered by many to be the logical Democratic candidate for the United States senate from this district. He has behind him a very enviable record of four years in congress.

—It is the plan of the University Club to invite all candidates for public office to appear before it. Under its by-laws the Club is not allowed to endorse the candidacy of any candidate. All shall have equal rights and given equal opportunity of expressing their views on public matters.

—Tell your friends of the open meeting this noon and phone the secretary of the University Club, John P. Marrs, at 2989 and let him know how many will be in your party. Seats will be at a premium, so call early this morning.

(This space contributed by a friend and admirer or Mr. Parrish's
