Extension Of ERA Passed By House

Solons Reject Rescission By States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House approved a 39-month extension of time for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment on Tuesday and sent it to the Senate, where opponents have threatened a filibuster.

Though the final vote was 233-189, the measure had been virtually assured of passage earlier when the House rejected an amendment to let ratifying states to withdraw their approval. That proposal was defeated 227-196.

Both votes were greeted by cheers from ERA supporters on the House floor and in the galleries.

(Rep. George Mahon of Lubbock voted against extending the deadline and voted for allowing states to rescind ratification.)

Before the final vote, Rep. John Buchanan, D-Ala., a supporter of the extension, told the House: "This is now or never for many women in the United States."

But Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., an opponent of the extension, said the issue was not women's rights but the way amendments to the Constitution are to be ratified.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., floor leader for the extension forces, said before the rescission vote that approval of the proposal would be a "total defeat" for the extension.

Rejection of the amendment, therefore, apparently paved the way for the House to pass the extension and send it to the Senate.

The ERA, which prohibits discrimination based on sex, must be ratified by 38 states by next March 22 unless the deadline is extended. The House approved moving the deadline back to June 30, 1982.

Thirty-five state legislatures have voted to ratify the amendment, but Idaho, Kentucky, Nebraska and Tennesse later voted to rescind their actions. In Kentucky, the reversal was vetoed.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, chief sponsor of the extension proposal, said "a vote against extension will be a vote against the ERA. We are just asking for time for reasoned debate."

"One-Way Extension"

Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., led the futile drive to allow ratifying states to reverse their stands. He argued that a "one-way extension" would not be fair.

But the opponents said it would be fair, because legislatures could use the additional time to vote either to ratify or not to ratify. They said allowing legislatures to change their minds would create chaos in the consideration of constitutional amendments.

"The extension is not a one-way street," said Miss Holtzman. "It is a two-way street. What the Railsback amendment would do is make it a 100-way street with everybody running in different directions." Congress has never extended the time for ratification of a constitutional amendment, although until the prohibition amendment was submitted to the states in 1917 no time limits were set.

Called Vital

Supporters of the ERA said the extension was vital if the amendment is to become part of the Constitution.

ERA opponents said the original seven-year time limit was sufficient.

"The necessary votes to defeat the Equal Rights Amendment have already been cast," countered Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif. "Therefore, the debate is among those on the losing side of the issue."

The Constitution does not say whether states that have ratified may subsequently rescind their action.

The Justice Department has said it does not believe state legislatures have the power to withdraw their approval after ratifying. But the department also has said this question must be answered by Congress after 38 states have voted to ratify the amendment.

14th Amendment Cited

The only time the question has come before Congress was in connection with the 14th Amendment, designed to protect former slaves from discrimination, in 1868.

The necessary three-fourths of the states had ratified it, but the Ohio and New Jersey legislatures had rescinded their action. Congress counted them as having ratified.

Supporters of the extension won the first two test votes Tuesday, beating back moves to require a two-thirds majority for the proposal.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said these votes would provide a precedent to guide Congress in dealing with similar questions that come up in the future.

In a speech that brought applause from fellow ERA supporters, Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Texas, pleaded with her colleagues to "give the country, the United States of America, just a little more time

COMMERCIALISM DECRIED

Elvis Fans Still Mourning Singer's Death Year Later

By CANDY SAGON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A YEAR after Elvis Presley's death, Viola Kirksey of Levelland still speaks of him with a quaver in her voice and says she'll stay home from work today in remembrance of the singing idol.

Mrs. Kirksey, president of a Presley fan club, may typify thousands of Americans who quietly will observe the anniversary of the singer's death today.

Visited On Birthday

Mrs. Kirksey says she went to Memphis on Elvis' birthday in January, but says it would be too traumatic to go there in observance of his death. "I just can't go..." she says.

But she adds she is even more upset over the commercialism that has sprung up over Elvis' death.

Of her recent trip to Memphis, she sai, "Everywhere you go — groceries, motels — they all have Elvis items for sale. And they don't talk about Elvis himself, but about what they have to sell. 'This is the very latest in souvenirs,' they all tell you. Everyone wants to get in on the thing now that he's dead," she said.

But A-J correspondent Donna Runnels of Sundown, who recently visited Elvis' Graceland mansion in Memphis, said she was struck by the peacefulness and serenity of the late singer's home.

"As you walk up the drive you can see the white columns (of the home) through the tall trees; peacefulness and solitude make you feel as if you left the rest of the world behind.

"To one side you see the horses Elvis kept for his daughter and friends grazing in the pasture. The house is prominent yet not quite as big as you might expect, with white columns, and the exterior done in the traditional Southern style," Mrs. Runnels observed. "People seeing (Graceland) for the first time approach it as they would a national shrine."

Mrs. Runnels said between 4,000 to 6,000 people daily visit the Presley home. Only Elvis' grandmother lives in the house now.

Here in Lubbock, the anniversary of Elvis' death seems to be passing almost unnoticed. Record stores report no jumps in Elvis record sales and a survey of local florists turned up no orders for commemorative flowers.

However, Presley impersonators have booked shows into two local nightspots. Joey Allen will be appearing at the Coppercreek Mine tonight, and Rick Presley will perform Aug. 26 and 27 at the Hilton Inn.

Citywide Strike Faces Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The president of the Memphis AFL-CIO Labor Council says he will call for a citywide strike next Monday unless there is progress toward a settlement of strikes by police and fire unions.

"If the city isn't negotiating and moving toward trying to settle this ... I will encourage all union people in this city not to go to work for an indefinite period of time and not to purchase anything in the city of Memphis," council chief Tommy Powell said Tuesday. There are 60,000 union members in the council.

Powell's ultimatum came after Mayor Wyeth Chandler went before the City Council's executive session with a proposal to end the city's labor crisis by allowing voters to decide whether police and firefighters should be given more money than the city has offered.

"That's asinine," Powell said. "I don't buy that unless he's going to put every purchase of the city on the referendum."

The striking unions — Local 1784 of the International Association of Firefighters and the Memphis Police Association — also rejected the mayor's proposal. They said they were drafting a counter-proposal to present to Chandler.

Mayor's Proposal

Under Chandler's proposal, the strikers would go back to work and would be paid in accordance with increases accepted by other city labor unions. The difference between the city's and the unions' last offers would go before the voters as a sales tax increase. If the voters approve the tax, the unions would get the revenue.

Memphis' current city sales tax is 1.5 percent on top of the state's 4.5 percent.

The city has been generally calm despite the police and firefighter strikes, thanks in part to a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed by Chandler. Dozens of picketers were arrested Sunday and Monday nights when they failed to disperse by the 8 p.m. deadline.

Gunfire Unverified

Officials said they could not verify a report that gunfire had disrupted a rally of striking policemen because the rally had dispersed by the time working policemen arrived. No injuries were reported.

The strike has put a damper on Elvis Presley memorial observances and threatened to disrupt the reopening of schools Thursday.

Most of the 1,100 policemen struck Thursday night, and many of the 1,400 firemen joined them in a wildcat walkout Monday. Both groups demanding a higher wage hike than the 6 percent the city has offered.

National Guardsmen carrying rifles have escorted fire trucks manned by supervisors and non-strikers. Some police protection has been maintained by police supervisors and Shelby County sheriff's deputies.

With today the first anniversary of Presley's death, the rock 'n' roll idol's Uncle Vester said only about 4,000 people had visited his burial site at Graceland Mansion on Monday, instead of the 20,000 who had been expected before the strike.

About 50 fans spent the night on the mansion grounds because they were still there when the curfew went into effect.

The firefighters' strike, which had seemed to be weakening, was given new life Tuesday when union leaders gave official sanction to the walkout.

Meanwhile, garbage workers, who refused to cross picket lines during last month's firemen's strike, balked again Tuesday when they arrived to find police picket lines. Some drivers took their trucks out despite pickets.

Police pickets also appeared at four city schools, said Ed Jacobs, director of security for the Memphis City Schools.

Lorene Osborne, president of the Memphis Education Association, which represents 5,200 of the schools' 8,000 professional employees, urged her members Monday not to cross picket lines.

"Only at one school did the teachers

Noisy Storms Triggered By Cold Front

A-J News Services

THE WHOLE gamut of violent weather — tornadoes, torrential rains, crackling lightning and pea-to marble-sized hail — buffeted eastern South Plains counties late Tuesday as a weak cold front clashed noisily with unstable moist Gulf air.

According to the National Weather Service, a tornado reportedly touched down briefly in open country between Ralls and Crosbyton about 8:25 p.m., but quickly went back up into the clouds.

At 8:50 p.m. a military airplane pilot sighted a tornado 15 miles southeast of Spur. The tornado was not confirmed by the Spur Police Department.

Rolling red clouds of dust swept into Paducah about 8 p.m., followed by vivid lightning flashes. The frequent electric discharges prompted the National Weather Service to warn Cottle, King and Dickens counties' residents to watch for the "dangerous silent killer."

Paducah Area Drenched

Tuition Credit Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday approved a tax credit of up to $500 a year to help offset the cost of college tuition. A separate credit for tuition paid to private elementary and secondary schools was rejected.

The bill was approved 65-27 after the provision affecting elementary and secondary pupils was turned back by a vote of 56-41. The measure now goes to a conference committee where differences between it and a House-passed bill will be negotiated.

The House-passed version includes a credit on elementary and secondary school tuition. Whatever version finally emerges from the conference committee may face a veto by President Carter, who opposes the whole concept of a tax credit for tuition.

Instead, the president has sought to expand existing grant and loan programs for college students, making them available for the first time to middle-income families. The Senate will begin voting on the Carter plan today.

The tuition bill approved by the Senate calls for phasing in the tax credit in two steps:

— Retroactive to Aug. 1, a student — or his parents if he is a dependent — would be entitled to a credit for half the cost of tuition and fees paid for full-time undergraduate college or post-secondary vocational school. The maximum credit, which would be obtained when 1978 tax forms are filed next year, would be $250 per student.

Maximum Rises

— On Oct. 1, 1980, the maximum credit would rise to $500 and become available for half-time undergraduate students.

The program would cost $1.4 billion a year when fully effective.

By a 59-39 vote the Senate rejected an attempt to limit the college tuition aid to those families earning less than $40,000 a year. However, the Senate refused on a technicality to ensure that the benefits also would be available to those families with earnings so low that they owe no income tax.

Sen. Russell B. Long called the refusal a "grave injustice," but the Senate overruled him, 61-31.

Aid Stripped

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., sponsored the amendment that stripped from the bill aid to parents of non-public elementary and secondary pupils. He contended that such aid, because most of it would go to church-operated schools, violates the Constitution's requirements for separation of church and state.

The defeated $250-a-year tax credit for private elementary and secondary schools was attacked by some critics who claimed it would promote the growth of academies aimed at avoiding racial integration.

"This bill has strong racial overtones," said Sen. Kaneaster Hodges, D-Ark. "It would give aid and comfort to those trying to avoid integrated schools."

Moynihan Argues

To the contrary, said Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., manager of the bill, the relief would go mainly to parents of pupils attending church-supported schools that have a long record of nondiscrimination.

Moynihan and other backers of the bill view the measure as the simplest and most effective way of helping Americans — especially middle-income families — bear the cost of education.

They prefer the proposal to the plan advanced by President Carter, which would expand existing grant and loan programs for college students but do nothing for elementary and secondary education.

Opponents object to the fact that the credits would be available equally regardless of need. And they express fears that such direct government aid to church schools would lead to deterioration of the public school system.

Moynihan has tried repeatedly to portray the bill as fulfilling Democratic promises made in the 1972 and 1976 presidential elections.

Hodges contended that such federal aid for private schools would encourage a "white flight" to such institutions and leave lower-income white and black pupils in deteriorating public schools.

"Sen. Moynihan, you are not going to drag my party through this bill," the Arkansan said. "Those of us in the South

Formal Trial Convicts Seven-Year-Old 'Joey'

WINONA, Minn. (AP) — A 7-year-old boy caught shoplifting a 29-cent plastic squirt gun was convicted in a formal trial before a judge who said: "We want to impress the child that this is not the way to go."

Winona County Judge S.A. Sawyer said Tuesday that court officials were currently preparing a "social history" of the boy to help him decide disposition of the case. He said the investigation would try to "find out what the situation is at the kid's home and what kind of guidance the young fellow needs to straighten himself out."

James Forsythe, court-appointed defense counsel, estimated the 1 1/2-hour juvenile court trial, held Aug. 3, cost $300 to $500 in terms of time spent by county officials.

An assistant county attorney prosecuted the case and a court reporter and court clerk were present for the trial. However, Minnesota law specifies that "a violation of a state or local law or ordinance by a child before becoming 18 years of age is not a crime," and that adjudication by a juvenile court does not deem a child to be a criminal.

County Attorney Julius Gernes said he was willing to go through with a trial because the boy had been in trouble previously and the county wanted jurisdiction so it could help him.

Sawyer said the trial was proper

Scientology Church Members Named In Federal Indictment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven members and officials of the Church of Scientology, including the wife of its founder, were indicted Tuesday on charges that include stealing government documents and planting bugging devices in government offices.

Officials of the church, which claims 3 million members, have accused the government of harassing the church for nearly three decades.

Named in the federal grand jury indictment was Mary Sue Hubbard, wife of church founder L. Ron Hubbard, two other church members now in Britain, and eight officials and members of the church in this country.

Mrs. Hubbard, who also resides in Britain, was described as the second leading official of the church after her husband.

The Justice Department declined to explain why Hubbard, who founded the church nearly 30 years ago, was not named in the indictment.

The Scientologists, who for months have been saying they expect indictments to be handed down against them, promptly issued a statement saying the indictments "will backfire...by bringing to trial the federal agencies which have been carrying on a 28-year genocidal campaign against our religion."

The government charged the Scientologists with conducting a conspiracy against the government to obtain confidential files. The indictment also accused the defendants with lying to a grand jury and obstruction of justice.

Experts Unsure Where Fatal Shot Came From

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House assassinations committee was told Tuesday that scientific tests failed to prove whether the bullet that killed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. came from the window of a boarding house or the bushes below.

The panel heard the testimony as it prepared for Wednesday's appearance by James Earl Ray, who pleaded guilty to slaying King on April 4, 1968, while the civil rights leader stood on the balcony of a Memphis hotel across from the boarding house. Ray has since recanted his plea and now maintains he did not fire the shot that killed King.

In another development, civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, declaring that "Ray appears to be a small cog in a large wheel," asked the Justice Department to reopen its investigation into the assassination.

A rifle shot from the bushes would be a major contradiction of eyewitness testimony and the conclusion of Memphis police that Ray assassinated King with a rifle shot from the bathroom window of the boarding house.

The committee refused to say whether that question will be settled. But Rep. Samuel Devine, R-Ohio, said he thinks hearings scheduled for November will leave no doubt that the fatal shot came from the window.

Dr. Michael Baden, a spokesman for a team of committee pathology experts, testified that engineer measurements and a review of Dr. King's autopsy established that the shot could have come from the window.

But he also told the panel that a shot from the bushes below would have been only 2 to 5 degrees lower, and that the experts could not establish the direction of the shot that precisely.

"At the moment of firing of the weapon the barrel of the gun had to be somewhat slightly upward from the chin," Baden said.

But he said King's head was down as he talked from the balcony of the Lorraine Motel to a follower below, and thus "upward" could have been the bushes as well as the boarding house window.

The pathologist said the autopsy and X-rays taken at the time clearly show the path the bullet took through Dr. King's cheek and neck and into his shoulder. He said the panel of experts was also able to establish from eyewitnesses King's position — leaning forward against the balcony talking to someone below.

Two engineers hired by the committee then measured the bullet's path through the body to determine where it came from, he said.

But Baden said that even if the experts had had a photograph showing King's precise position when he was shot, their measurements could not have proven whether the shot came from the bathroom window or the bushes.

To repeated questioning on that issue, Baden said the findings are consistent with the shot coming from the window but his experts could not say for certain that it did.

Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, and the committee's chief counsel, G. Robert Blakey, refused to tell reporters whether the committee already has other evidence proving where the bullet came from.

But Devine, the committee's ranking Republican, said, "I think other testimony will remove any doubt that it came from the bathroom window."

A committee investigator, who did not want to be named, said one witness will testify someone ran from the bushes after the assassination. But he said other witnesses have been testifying since the time of the assassination that they saw a man come down the boarding house hall from the bathroom with a rifle after the assassination.

In asking for a new Justice Department investigation, Jackson said, "there is overwhelming circumstantial evidence that he (Ray) did not act alone." Jackson said one way to get at the truth would be a new trial for Ray.

Jackson met for over 1½ hours with Deputy Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti, then told reporters he wanted a new investigation to show whether there was a conspiracy that may have involved the FBI.

However, Terrence Adamson, the chief department spokesman, held out little possibility that Justice would initiate any new investigations unless some evidence is produced before the assassinations committee.

"If there are new facts, we'll take a look," he said.

At a news conference later in the day, Mark Lane, Ray's lawyer, said he does not know whether Ray assassinated King but said he does know there is no evidence to prove he did.

Assassinations Committee Gets Ruby Gun

WASHINGTON (AP) — The snub-nose pistol that Jack Ruby used to kill Lee Harvey Oswald was turned over to the chairman of the House Assassinations Committee on Friday, ending two months of bargaining involving the committee, the executor of Ruby's will and Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas.

Mattox said he hand delivered the Colt Cobra .38-caliber Special to committee chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, in "executive session."

Blakey and Stokes had attempted since June to obtain the pistol from Dallas attorney Jules F. Mayer, the executor of Ruby's estate, said Mattox. Stokes and Blakey wrote letters to both Mayer and Mattox assuring the Texans that the pistol would be returned intact to Mayer.

"Good Lord, how did that get out?" responded a committee spokeman when asked to comment on the gun's delivery. "The committee makes all announcements after investigations have been complete.

"Obviously, I can't answer that question ... I'm afraid I can't make any comment on that at all," added Dawn Miller, administrative aide to the committee's chief counsel, G. Robert Blakey.

"The general public and the press wasn't aware of what I was doing until Mr (Jules) Mayer released the story, I believe," said Mattox who added that the committee had arranged the elaborate security details for the Sunday flight the Dallas Democrat made from Dallas to Washington with the gun.

Ruby died Jan. 3, 1967, owing almost $50,000 in federal and state taxes. Mayer claims the estate has been offered $125,000 for the pistol that Ruby carried into the basement of the Dallas police department on Nov. 24, 1963, two days after President John F. Kennedy had been assassinated in Dallas.

Once in the crowded basement, Ruby pulled the pistol from his waisthand and fired one shot into Oswald as scores of police officers and millions of television viewers watched.

"The logical question is what does the committee hope to establish with the gun almost 15 years after the event," added Mattox. "There have been a wide assortment of conspiracy theories floating around ... including the theory that Ruby missed and the Dallas police killed Oswald and then rigged the ballistics test. The committee doesn't feel it can finish its investigation without doing the (ballistics) tests and seeing if the gun has been engaged in any other criminal activity.

"I'd like to see the investigation completed and all the theories put to bed," he added.

Tour Firm Cancels Trips; Refunds Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nationwide Leisure Corporation, a large tour operator providing charter trips to Europe and the Caribbean, has cancelled all remaining tours for this summer and fall, the Civil Aeronautics Board reports.

Persons who have purchased any of the cancelled tours should make a claim for refund as soon as possible, the CAB says.

Claims should be sent to the Irving Trust Co., P.O. Box 12953, Church Street Station, New York, N.Y., 10249. Copies of the claim should be sent to Nationwide Leisure Corporation, 1 Huntington Quadrangle, Melville, N.Y., 11746 and to Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, Attn: Claims Department, 110 William St., New York, N.Y., 10038.

The claims should include the date and destination of the flight, name of the passenger seeking a refund, name and address of travel agent, if any, who made the reservation, amount of refund claimed, reason for claiming refund (tour cancellation) and a copy of the front and back of the check which was sent to Nationwide Leisure Corporation.

Persons experiencing problems in obtaining refunds can contact the CAB's Bureau of Consumer Protection, Brinley Williams 202-673-5482 or John Smith, 202-673-5467.

Ford Bars Reporters From Fete

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Former president Gerald Ford will hold a press conference here Wednesday afternoon, but reporters have been excluded from a fund-raising reception later in the day.

The former chief executive will be in San Angelo to raise funds for Kerrville Republican Tom Loeffler's campaign against Nelson Wolff, D-San Antonio, for the 21st Congressional District seat.

The only news persons allowed at the invitation-only fundraiser Wednesday afternoon will be managerial-level individuals invited only as community leaders and not as reporters. The ban reportedly was imposed by Ford.

Invitations to the reception were issued last week, but Monday two issued to San Angelo Standard-Times editors were rescinded. Both men were told that their wives would still be welcome.

Other members of news media management who also were invited received telephoned assurances Tuesday that their presence at the function was welcome, as long as they attended as community leaders and possible donors to the Loeffler campaign and not as reporters.

Mary Lou Grier, a spokeswoman for Loeffler's San Antonio headquarters, said any media persons at any level contacted Tuesday who refused to agree to the no-reporting guidelines would not be allowed to attend the reception.

Howard Adkins, a staff member of the Austin public relations firm directing Loeffler's campaign, said invitations issued to some news executives would be unaffected since it was his view that they would "act on the managerial level" rather than as reporters.

Fido Fat Farm Slated

MUNDELEIN, Ill. (AP) — Bernie Brown says, "Send me your dog for 10 days and I'll make a new man of him."

Brown is opening a fat farm for Fido in September, a $500,000 facility northwest of Chicago to be named The Countryside Animal Spa.

He says there will be a "complete health revitalization program" — whirlpool baths, therapeutic massages, oil baths, deep heat treatments with sun lamps, strict weight-control diets, coat conditioning.

The spa also will offer full boarding facilities, spacious suites in decorator colors. The pet will sleep on a heated fiberglass resting bench that pulls from the wall, going sleepy bye to soothing FM music that will be piped in.

The cost per dog for all this luxury has not yet been announced.

China Science Vibes Felt

TOKYO (AP) — Chen Ning Yang, an American Nobel Prize-winning physicist, says he has found a sense of urgency in China about developing modern science, China's official Hsinhua news agency reported Tuesday.

YANG

This sense extends from the top leaders to the masses, Yang told 800 chinese scientists at an annual physics society meeting.

Yang told the meeting, "I have personally experienced during my current visit what you call the Springtime of science in China."

Marijuana Found In Mall

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Marijuana plants have been found prospering alongside the marigolds in the downtown mall of this college city.

"We just discovered a hundred of them the other day, down at the other end of the mall," said Ithaca police officer, David VanAlstyne. "You look at them as you're walking by, and say, 'Naw, it can't be.'

"But you stop and take a look, and jeez, most times it is," the policeman said.

VanAlstyne said he believed the marijuana was planted by people throwing seeds into the flower pots in the Ithaca Commons. "It's virtually impossible for us to catch people just dropping them in," the policeman said.

The marijuana plants were uprooted Monday and will be disposed of, VanAlstyne said.

Lighthouse Back On Beam

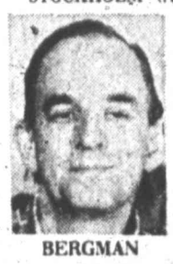
PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — The Fort Gratiot Lighthouse on the southwest shore of Lake Huron was back on the beam Tuesday, fully recovered from a blown circuit breaker.

The breaker, which fused into a solid mass during a power surge about 3 a.m. Sunday, darkened the lighthouse for the first time in its 149-year history.

Mariners were warned about the dark light and shipping was not disrupted, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

Exiled Director Returns

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedish film director Ingmar Bergman Tuesday resumed rehearsals at the Royal Dramatic Theatre here for a play interrupted 2½ years ago when police grabbed him on stage over a tax controversy, a theater official said.



BERGMAN

"He seems to be in a fine spirit," said press spokesman Berit Gullberg. "It is nice seeing him. Everyone is so happy about it."

She said he would not speak to reporters.

Rehearsals for "Dance of Death" came to an abrupt halt in January, 1976, when police took Bergman away for interrogations on a suspected tax evasion case.

The director subsequently had a nervous breakdown and exiled himself soon afterwards, saying harassment by tax authorities made it impossible for him to work in sweden.

Voters Write-In Wrong

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — For some Elliott Ozment supporters, the difficult part wasn't properly writing in the candidate's name. The tough task was matching the name and the office he wanted.

Ozment, a Nashville lawyer and state legislator, waged an unsuccessful write-in campaign for the Democratic nomination for the 5th District Congressional seat. He finished a distant third.

Official vote totals certified Monday by the Davidson County Election Commission showed some Ozment backers put their man's name next to the wrong offices. Ozment received eight votes for governor, 104 for the U.S. Senate, two for the state Senate and one each for justice of the peace and circuit court judge. The votes would not have helped his cause.

It was unclear from the ballot certification whether one voter had Ozment, singer Donnie Osmond or someone else in mind when he penciled in "D. Ozman" on his ballot for the Congressional nomination.

Rockefeller To Be Honored

ROCKEFELLER

Eugene Ormandy, music director of the orchestra, will conduct the concert, which will feature the world premiere of Ned Rorem's "Sunday Morning."

"Without the Rockefeller family, and specifically without Nelson A. Rockefeller's interest, the Saratoga Performing Arts Center project would never have progressed beyond a dream," said Lewis A. Swyer, president of the center's board of directors.

Korchnoi Offers Karpov Draw After Champion Leaves Stage

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi offered a draw to defending champion Anotoly Karpov in the 12th game of the world chess championship Tuesday, but the contest was adjourned because Karpov had left the stage.

Lothar Schmid of West Germany, chief arbiter of the 13th World Chess Championship series, said the the 47-year-old challenger offered a draw after five hours of play.

Since Karpov had left the stage when the offer was made the game will resume Wednesday with Korchnoi's sealed 44th move. Most experts predict the game will end in a draw.

"It's very possible that the game will be drawn without resumption," said British grandmaster Raymond Keene, chief second for the challenger.

It was the fifth time Karpov used the pawn to king four opening in the $550,000 chess series that gives the championship to the first player to win six games. The winner gets $350,000 and the loser $200,000.

The players have won one game each in the tournament, which started July 18. There have been nine draws, which do not count in the scoring. The tournament is expected to last several months.

Karpov, 27, is defending the title he got by default in 1975 after American champion Bobby Fisher refused to defend it.

Tuesday's game originally was scheduled to be played last Saturday, but Karpov asked for a postponement because he wanted to rest.

After cautious opening moves, the players exchanged major pieces, including their queens. Then the game became complicated and neither player gained a significant advantage.

Viktor Baturinsky, head of Karpov's delegation, said the champion had "a little bit advantage" after both queens were captured.

A slightly weak move by Korchnoi in the 24th move cost him a pawn.

"That's an ingenious move. He probably can't think where to send that pawn," said British grandmaster Michael Stean, a Korchnoi second.

Arizona Search Ends For Escaped Killer

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — About 150 volunteers and Arizona authorities ended a five-day manhunt Tuesday for an escaped killer wanted for four slayings, while Colorado authorities searched for two more possible victims.

Search-and-rescue and communications volunteers paced the desert from dawn to noon about 17 miles south of here but found no trace of Gary Tison, 43. He was serving life for the 1967 murder of an Arizona State Prison guard when he fled the Florence facility July 30.

Donald Tison, 20, was shot to death and his brothers Raymond, 19, and Rick, 18, were captured Friday, along with Greenawalt, when a stolen van crashed through a roadblock about 17 miles south of here.

Gary Tison was believed to have fled into the brushy southern-Arizona desert, dotted with cavernous mountains and abandoned mines. A small force of deputies continued to search the mines and patrol roads but roadblocks were removed and volunteers were released.

None of Gary Tison's fingerprints was found in the wrecked van and he has not been spotted, Pinal County Sheriff Frank Reyes said. However, Tison's sons maintain that their father was in the back of the van when it crashed.

Pima County Sheriff's deputies also searched unsuccessfully near Ajo, 100 miles southwest of here, after a family reported seeing a man resembling Tison.

The van used by the Tison gang was believed stolen from James and Margene Judge of Amarillo, Texas. The honeymoon couple was camping near South Fork, Colo., when they disappeared Wednesday, investigators said.

The FBI and Rio Grande County sheriff's deputies have been searching the high mountains for the Judges since Friday. "We're going to keep it up until every lead just fizzles out," said Undersheriff Barnett Bauer.

The gang has been charged with killing three people found Aug. 6 near Quartzsite, Ariz.

Army Says Black Soldiers Cited Most

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has told all major Army commanders that there is "a disturbing trend" in disproportionate punishment and bad-conduct discharges given to black soldiers.

The Army's chief of staff, Gen. Bernard Rogers, asked the commanders in a letter "to identify specific relations or underlying causes which lead to punitive actions against black soldiers."

Memphis--Public Be Damned

MEMPHIS POLICE and firefighters betrayed a distressing loss of their sense of personal responsibility by participating in illegal strikes in defiance of court orders to return to work.

This is what happens when public employes are given the privilege of collective bargaining. State and federal governments can pass all the "no-strike" laws they want, but union mob psychology will make such laws next to worthless.

When policemen, firemen and others who have the responsibility of protecting lives, property and health put their own wage demands ahead of the public safety and welfare, it is time to replace them.

TENNESSEE National Guardsmen were called out when the policemen walked off the job the other day, just as they had been when Memphis firemen staged a three-day strike in early July.

Firemen again voted to strike, along with the policemen, this week.

In each instance, the Guardsmen found themselves not only trying to do the strikers' jobs for them but on occasion even having to deal with the strikers as the lawbreakers they are.

Memphis Mayor Wyeth Chandler issued what he called an ultimatum over the weekend for the policemen to return to work or face suspension, but the picture that came through was of a city administration weak and powerless to deal with the wildcat strikers.

Last Thursday, the union members had rejected a city offer to raise the pay of a veteran patrolman by $104, to $1,244 a month, immediately with a promise of two more raises in the next 15 months.

WHEN A PERSON takes a job, he knows what the pay, benefits and working conditions are. If it is a job that is vital to the public health and safety, he shirks his responsibility if he walks off in concert with fellow employes and leaves the public vulnerable and unprotected.

In San Antonio recently, city officials earned the respect and admiration of the nation by summarily firing sanitation workers who defiantly violated state law by going out on strike.

That is the only way to deal with lawbreakers. Policemen, who ought to know better than anybody that coddling law violators only leads to more lawbreaking, are setting a bad example for dissidents of all kinds when they behave in an illegal manner as have those in Memphis.

AN EDITORIAL:

Getting Indirectly To Point

IT MAY LOOK like flogging a dead horse, but at least one major conservative group is still trying to wring some fund-raising mileage out of the Panama Canal treaties—and in a fashion bordering on outright deception.

Although the treaties were ratified months ago by the U.S. Senate and will not appear on any ballot in America this November, you'd never guess it from the "Dear Friend" appeal mailed out by the Council for Inter-American Security.

THE FUND-raising letter signed by council chairman Ronald Docksai, an aide to Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah., flatly asserts that "you will be able to vote 'yes' or 'no' on the Panama Canal treaty on November 7, 1978."

The Docksai letter insists that "you have that vote. It is indeed on your ballot...

"Only a conspiracy of silence in the major news media, and in the highest levels of government, can prevent the American people from using their vote on November 7th to cancel the Panama Canal treaty."

It requires an extremely careful reading of the four-page letter to discern that the reader's "opportunity to have a direct vote" on the treaty will not come on a ballot referendum question but rather in choosing members of the House of Representatives.

House members, you see, will vote next year on legislation implementing some aspects of the canal treaties.

ON PAGE FOUR, Docksai finally gets around to saying that funds collected by the council will be used in an advertising campaign to tell the American people:

* 1. "Here are the top five defense issues (including the Panama Canal treaty) and
* 2. "Here is how your congressman has voted on these five issues."

AN EDITORIAL:

For Gosh Sakes

ONE OF THE more ridiculous outcroppings of the protest-everything syndrome in America is the series of demonstrations against the Sambo's restaurant chain.

Chronic objectors claim that the name was once used insultingly in reference to blacks because of the popular children's story from the turn of the century, "Little Black Sambo."

The restaurant chain has refused to drop use of the name, saying it has a legal right to use it.

That it does, of course. The protesters would do better to get over being so ultrasensitive and seeing an insult in so many everyday matters, including names on restaurants and the playing of "Dixie" at football games.

ART BUCHWALD:

Life Is A Bowl Of Pits To Comrade Christina

I GUESS THE biggest thing that happened in the news this summer is the fact that Christina Onassis married a Soviet citizen and planned to live in Moscow.

Since then Miss Onassis has returned to Athens and is not sure whether she will go back to Moscow.

I can tell you what happened.

Christina was in her two-room apartment in Moscow when there was a knock at the door.

"Hallo, I am Mrs. Federov from across the way in 2-A. Welcome to the neighborhood. Why don't you invite me in for a cup of tea?"

"WON'T YOU COME in for a cup of tea?"

"Thank you, if it's not too much of a bother. My, what a lovely apartment. How many people you have living here?"

"There are three of us. My husband, my mother-in-law and myself."

"What a lucky girl to have such a big apartment with such few people. We have five in 2-A, not including myself. You wouldn't be interested in renting your daybed to my grandfather, would you?"

"No, thank you. We're not taking in boarders." "It seems a pity to let so much space go to waste. You must be big with the housing commissar. So tell me, how does it feel to be a Russian housewife?"

"I LOVE IT. We're so happy. The only thing is, Mrs. Federov, I can't seem to get my husband's collars clean with this Red Star soap."

"Comrade newlywed, that is called in Soviet, ring-around-the-collar. All our men have it. If you don't have ring-around-the-collar the government knows you're not working hard enough, and they give you worse job."

"Then you don't think I should change detergents?"

"To what? How many soap companies do you think we have in this country?"

"There was something else, Mrs. Federov. I can't seem to get the cabbage smells out of my kitchen. Do you know of a deodorizer that will do the trick?"

"LENIN'S AIRWICK. Just four sprays and your kitchen will smell fresh and beautiful."

"Where can I buy some?"

"You can't buy it. They haven't made it for three years. And don't worry about clean linoleum either. I haven't seen a can of wax in the store since my brother and sister-in-law moved in with us."

"I'll give you 100 rubles a month if you take my grandfather. He'll just sit in the chair and won't be any bother."

"Mrs. Federov, we really don't need the money. My main concern is getting dinner for my husband."

"You want meat?"

"OF COURSE, I want to serve him meat."

"It's too late today. All the good meat is gone by 10 o'clock in the morning. You have to get in line at 7 a.m. at the People's Butcher Store if you want something for dinner."

"What will I do? Sergei will come home and his dinner won't be ready."

"What about giving him a TV dinner?"

"Do you have TV dinners in the Soviet Union?"

"No, but we will someday. It's in our next five-year plan."

"WELL, THANK YOU, Mrs. Federov, you've been a big help. There's a lot more to living in Moscow than I thought."

"I didn't realize there were so many consumer shortages."

"Bite your tongue. If you complain about shortages Orlov will have to report you."

"Who is Orlov?"

"He's the block warden. He reports on all of us to the KGB. Three reports on you by Orlov, and you're going to have to take my grandfather in whether you want to or not."

'You Guys Are Gonna Hafta Cut Down'

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Tax Revolt Limits

EVANS

RICHLAND, Mich.—While the tax revolt soars out of control and President Carter's standing keeps dropping in this middle-class Midwestern community, a veteran Republican congressman is threatened with a battle for survival.

Our interviews in Precinct No. 1 of Richland Township in southern Michigan west of Kalamazoo, conducted with help from Pat Caddell's Cambridge Survey Research, point up Republican difficulty in making major congressional gains.

If six-term Rep. Garry Brown has trouble retaining his seat here, Republican chances for unseating many Democratic incumbents are bleak indeed.

The unmistakable conclusions: first, the Carter political fiasco is not hurting Wolpe; second, Brown is not helped by the tax revolt.

QUESTIONING 69 registered and probable voters in Precinct No. 1, which was selected by Caddell as a barometer of the 3rd Congressional District, shows Carter losing a net nine points to Michigan favorite son Gerald Ford since the 1976 election.

These voters now divide 47 for Ford, 18 for Carter, 4 undecided. The President's job rating is 34 percent.

Simultaneously, middle-income voters here (mean salary, $17,100), mainly white-collar and skilled crafts, have tax-cut fever. They favor both President Carter's tax reduction and the deeper Republican Kemp-Roth cut, both by more than 2-to-1.

More significantly, they divide 4-to-1 for the Tisch amendment, a proposed sharp cutback in state property taxes on the November ballot roughly similar to California's Proposition 13 and similarly opposed by leaders of both parties.

ALTHOUGH MANY voters expressed hesitancy because of reductions in government services, three out of four Tisch supporters conceded that such services probably would be cut back.

With inflation overwhelmingly picked as the nation's most important problem, these voters are desperate for relief. "Too much money is wasted in the government," a 20-year-old community relations worker told us.

The anti-Carter, anti-tax mood would seem ideal for 54-year-old conservative Republican Brown, a sponsor of Kemp-Roth, against 38-year-old liberal Democrat Wolpe (until recently a field representative for Sen. Don Riegle).

YET OUR interviews show that the liberal National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC) is realistic in putting Brown on its conservative hit list.

Brown carried Precinct No. 1 with 50.9 percent in 1976, while winning the district with 51 percent. Our 69 interviews (comprising about one-tenth of the precinct's 1976 voters) split 33-to-29 for Brown with 7 undecided—much too close to call.

What's more, these interviews tend to confirm the NCEC strategy placing personality over taxes. As to which candidate is "too political," Brown leads Wolpe 5-to-1. Wolpe is viewed by a substantial majority as closer to them and a warmer, more decent person.

A 66-YEAR-OLD retired salesman who voted for Carter last time would not now because "Carter's too wishy-washy."

While supporting the Tisch amendment and Kemp-Roth, this voter favors Wolpe because Brown's not concerned enough on the issues.

Similarly, a 48-year-old office secretary, a self-styled conservative, calls Carter "a disaster," and backs the Tisch amendment as "the only way to accomplish anything. If we don't, they'll put the small businessman out of business."

But she backs Wolpe, explaining: "I just have not been too impressed with Garry Brown."

Oddly, both these tax revolters prefer Wolpe's tax position to Brown's. Furthermore, despite Brown's support of Kemp-Roth, voters here generally perceive no difference between them on taxation.

WHEREAS ONLY 3 out of the 13 voters opposing the Tisch amendment support Brown, many of its backers are for Wolpe. Actually, neither congressional candidate supports the Tisch amendment, and Brown has so far not made a campaign issue of federal tax relief.

Garry Brown, second-ranking Republican on the House Banking Committee, joins the bipartisan political establishment—including Howard Wolpe—in approaching the tax revolt with extreme care (as shown in non-support for the Tisch amendment and failure to make Kemp-Roth a focus of his campaign).

ANDREW TULLY:

Red Up To Here

WASHINGTON—On the issue of inflation, Jimmy Carter is afraid to bite the bullet. Because it's the easiest political course, he dare not do anything but preach sermons against the high cost of living.

Inflation is galloping at an annual rate of 10.4 percent, and no responsible administration official can promise that this gallop will be reined in during the next six months—or even during the next year.

But the National Center for Economic Alternatives points out that prices of such basic necessities such as food, shelter, energy and medical care rose at a rate of 15 percent during the March-June period.

THE CENTER notes that 80 percent of American households spend nearly 70 percent of their income on the "Big Four" basic necessities. Thus, its own index shows that "inflation in items that Americans need was dramatically worse than generalized inflation statistics reveal."

Food prices rose to 20.9 percent in the second quarter, from 15.7 percent in the first three months of 1978.

Energy inflation (utility bills) more than doubled, from an annual rate of 5.4 percent to 12.3 percent. Only the increase in medical costs slowed, from 8.7 percent to 7.5 percent.

While prices have gone out of sight in the U.S., the Germans have reduced its 4 percent inflation rate to 3 percent in only 12 months. The Japanese rate has dipped from 7.5 percent to 5 percent.

In that context, I commend a speech before Fordham University's Graduate School of Business Administration by Henry Wallich, a member of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

Wallich, in the Fed's tradition, is neither a loudmouth nor an alarmist. But he pulled no punches. He denounced today's inflation as "a means by which the strong can more effectively exploit the weak. The strategically positioned and well-organized can gain at the expense of the unorganized and the aged."

WALLICH NOTED that the present situation makes it "almost impossible to provide for the future by private action. Personal savings, insurance, pension funds, all can be wiped out by accelerating inflation."

And he reminded us of the elitists in our midst, the government pensioners. Because those pensioners get periodic cost-of-living adjustments," said Wallich, they "run no risk short of a strike at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing."

Jimmy Carter is the chief culprit because the buck stops at his desk, but members of Congress have done nothing more about the high cost of living than sit on their larded hams and deplore a condition of national life that is the "moral equivalent of war."

What is urgently needed is a President and a Congress that will run the country, even if they take precious time from running for re-election.

JAY HARRIS:

A Legend Lives...

THE ANCIENTS built monuments to their leaders and heroes. Today, we moderns do it with memories, memorabilia and a degree of madness.

Today, in Memphis, Tenn., a piece of Americana reaches a climax. The phenomenon that was Elvis Presley will be celebrated in a sort of high mass by thousands from around the world.

It was one year ago today that Elvis Presley died, at the age of 42. His death ended, in one way, an era which actually started with Lubbock's own Buddy Holly, himself the center of a current revival craze.

But, unlike Holly, whose past has been low key—with the exception of a hard-core following in England—Presley's unexpected death set in motion a year-long mass outpouring of fan and media interest unmatched in modern entertainment annals.

Elvis Presley is dead. But, his music, his memory lives on. And it all means big business, in Memphis and elsewhere.

HARDLY A WEEK has passed in the past year but that some inside story, "expose," love angle or something "new" about Elvis and those "who knew him best" has not been published.

Presley, himself, or those whose lives he touched—his former wife Priscilla, girl friends Linda Thompson and Ginger Alden, his daughter Lisa Marie, his father Vernon, his former associates, all have been spotlighted at one time or another in the media.

Magazines have been published about him, television specials presented. His record and album sales have boomed.

To be frank, we had never paid too much attention to Elvis except for his appearances here as a news item. Our musical tastes run to something slightly more "classical," good big band music or "sensible" pop.

But we got involved with his past to the extent of doing a story or two on him for a memorial booklet. It was an unusual experience. The young swivel-hipped guitar player, who came out of a two-room sharecropper home in one of the poorest parts of Tupelo, Miss., was a real American success story.

WHAT ELVIS' fans made of him was something else.

Today, that success story is still being written.

As the anniversary week of Elvis' death arrived, his home town of Memphis was jammed with his fans. It also was in a bind. While thousands of tourists poured into the city of 660,000, Memphis police and firemen were on strike.

It was the sort of thing Elvis Presley might not have understood. To his everlasting credit, the guy, whose records have sold past the 500 million mark, always kept his fans first.

"The show must go on" was more than a show-biz saying with him. He retired it to "TCB" or "Taking Care of Business." In brief, he gave the fans their money's worth, and in the vernacular, "kept the faith."

TODAY, THE multitudes are returning that faith in their idol.

Not that they have let up since his death in his home at Graceland mansion, Aug. 16, 1977.

But today, and all this week, the long lines waiting to enter the grounds at Graceland to view his grave are even longer. Many of those passing by pause to toss a flower.

And the jammed souvenir shops across the street, and all over Memphis for that matter, will be packed with even larger crowds, buying everything from one-inch squares of wallpaper from his home, at $3 a square, to pillows and scarves with his name or picture on them, ash trays, T-shirts, booklets and books, photos, you name it.

Simulated signs of "Elvis Presley Boulevard" go for $6 or more. Some record albums cost $10 to $20. The Dallas Morning News reported that a religious sect selling flowers found it did better if it doffed its robes, put on shirts and jackets and wigs...

ACTUALLY, ELVIS had a lot of today's so-called "pop" music stars beat in just about any department one can name.

His songs and music could be understood. By that, we mean, the words, the beat, the "message." If there was one there other than one about life, love and laughter.

Elvis always appeared dressed for the occasion. He shunned, or managed to live before the time when some pop stars look as though they should perform in a pig sty, and who feel compelled to take up the cudgel for causes ranging from Vietnam to four-letter words.

Also, to his everlasting credit, when called upon to do his stint in the service of his country, Elvis served his time.

His followers today are made up not only of the jean-clad, teenage crowd, but by their mothers and others who can remember Elvis and "other times and other places" far removed from the pressures of today's society.

WHAT IS IT about us in America, and for that matter those abroad, that makes such hero worship possible?

This is the way we described it just after Elvis' death: "He burst upon the scene in the mid-1950s, at a time when the world was still pausing to catch its breath from the trauma of the Depression, the heartache and triumph of World War II...

"The time was right. The Music Man was right. The gates had been opened to a New Sound for all, a New Hope for many, an Old Dream for most.

Today, the legend lives on. In a way, it's too bad we can't spend the same energy, interest and emphasis on other aspects of our lives, personal and otherwise. But, then maybe as Elvis knew, "life, love and laughter" is what it's all about anyway.

NO WOMAN can trust a spoken compliment from another woman. That's the contention of a sage lady who has made a lifelong study of such matters.

However, there's an unspoken compliment that's trustworthy, she says. It's the long uncompromising stare by another woman that takes in every detail of what said sage lady is wearing.

Pilgrims Flock To View 'The King's' Grave

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Though police and firemen's strikes are expected to cut the number of visitors at Elvis Presley's estate Wednesday on the first anniversary of his death, crowds still can be expected. They are there always. AP reporters Dennis Montgomery and Jerry Gray recorded these impressions of a typical day at the estate.)

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The man standing at the wrought-iron gates rubbing a right arm swollen by hundreds of handshakes is Vester Presley, Elvis' 63-year-old uncle.

Inside stands Diek Grob, once chief of security for the late singer, now in charge of security for Elvis' 13½-acre estate, Graceland.

Vester Presley and Grob are two among many at Graceland who remember "the King." The visitors come not just on this first aniversary of Elvis' death at 42 on Aug. 16, 1977, but daily. They wait in lines three and four abreast that wind a half-mile down Elvis Presley Boulevard.

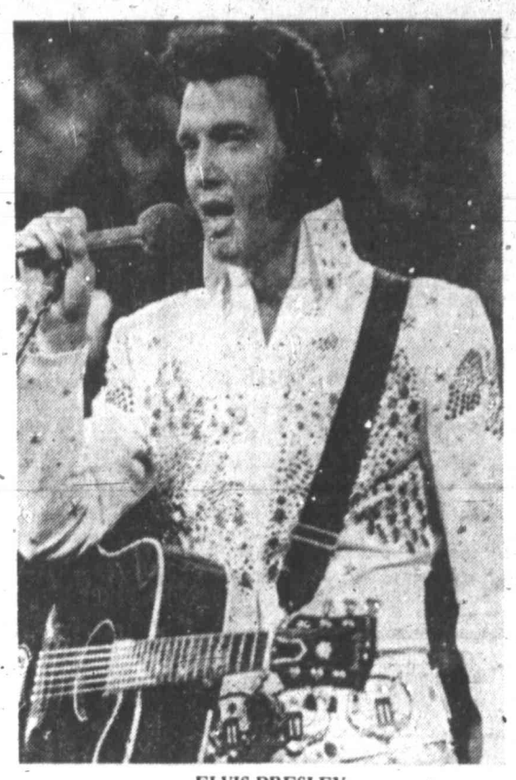
Some just stand listlessly in the relentless southern sun. Others read or add to graffiti on the brick wall at the front of the estate. Among the scrawls: "Elvis you'll be alive in my heart forever."

The pilgrims come from as near as Mississippi and Missouri, as far as Hong Kong and Holland. They trudge to the memory garden behind the white-columned house to see the graves of Elvis and his mother, Gladys Love Presley, who died in 1958.

"It's kind of funny though," said Vester. "People walk up to the grave and say he's not really buried. Some of them are really odd. Some of the fans that may be a little sick, young boys mostly, come dressed up like Elvis. You really got more women coming."

Some visitors recognize Grob from his days traveling with Elvis. They shake his hand, express grief or sympathy.

"It's like reliving Aug. 16 over and over again two or three times a day," Grob said. "It helps them but it tries us."



ELVIS PRESLEY

For Vester, the sheer volume of visitors is trying. On one recent day he turned away a black-suited man who arrived 10 minutes after the 4 p.m. closing time but said he'd come 4,000 miles.

Turning back to a visitor in the brick blockhouse, Vester said, "I'm having hell to keep people from running in on me. It's going to take us until 6 to get them all out of here. I hate to do that but they never stop coming. We'd be here around the clock. I tell you, when I get a break, I'm ready to go home 'cause it's rough here."

"We are running around 10,000 a day," he said. "Yesterday we had 11,000 people and we turned 5,000 more away."

Grob, a Palm Springs, Fla., policeman before he joined Elvis in 1957, estimated more than 500,000 have visited the mansion since it was opened to the public last November. He and Vester both said the crowds have been generally orderly.

But Grob noted that several weeks ago someone tried to steal some Presley costumes from the grounds and added, "They weren't prosecuted because we didn't want to publicize it."

And Vester said: "The biggest problem is they are littering up the place a little bit."

Outside Graceland, beyond the waiting crowds, is the cause of some of the litter that worries Vester — the string of souvenir hawkers, soda salesmen, paid picture snappers.

"It's almost like a carnival," said C.R. Reed, 58, who sells soda down the street from a vacant lot that he estimates has risen in value from $15,000 to $75,000 in the 18 years he has owned it. Reed is more interested in selling his property than in selling sodas.

A few feet away, Dorise Jones, modest about her age, rests in a lawnchair under an awning, hawking Elvis snapshots for $2. Beyond her is Chris Marshom, 26, who calls herself the only female Elvis impersonator and who has gotten hold of the singer's old Eldorado. For from $1 to $5 she will take your picture standing by the car or sitting in it.

But the real action is across the highway in the restaurant turning wax museum and in the invitingly cool emporiums doing a brisk business in Elvis memorabilia too various to mention.

Among the more bizarre examples: bars of soap stamped with Elvis' likeness, $1; a photostat of the singer's wedding license, $1, or one of his will, $2; a dollar bill with Elvis' likeness in place of Washington's, $4; a copy of a $10,000 check signed by Elvis, also $4.

Bobby Lermar, 16, who runs a family leather business from a trailer across the street has a simple explanation for it all: "They're going to spend their money somewhere."

Carolyn Kidd, 34, who came from Lilburn Ga, to spend "three or four days just hanging around Graceland," had another opinion: "When you come to Memphis, this is it for a Presley fan."

Grob, the 39-year-old security chief, said he was troubled by some of the hawking — "people out there who take advantage of Elvis' fans with deliberate fraud" — but not by the scene in general.

"The honest individual who is trying to make a living offering a good product for a fair-market value has my blessing, just like I'm sure he would have had Elvis' blessing. Some of this stuff went on when Elvis was alive."

Grob added his late boss had the same thoughts about the legion of Elvis imitators. "Elvis was never bothered by imitators because he thought that was the best form of flattery. I have not seen any of the Elvis imitators. I dont intend to see an Elvis imitator — you can't imitate the King."

Suspicions About Presley Death Still Abound

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley died Aug. 16, 1977 of hypertensive heart disease — natural causes — according to Dr. Jerry Francisco, the Shelby County medical examiner.

But the 42-year-old singer had been dead only a few hours when drugs began to be discussed in connection with his death.

A year later, the official cause of death stands, backed up by Presley's personal physician, a University of Utah toxicologist and a Las Vegas doctor who treated him.

But occasional questions still arise about the death of the "King of Rock 'n' Roll." Suspicions are fed by the handling of the autopsy report and by a book published shortly before his death.

Written by former Presley bodyguards Red West, Sonny West and Dave Hebler, "Elvis: What Happened?" said Presley had used various drugs during his last years.

And a Memphis newspaper, The Commercial Appeal, raised questions about drugs found in Presley's blood and tissue samples during the autopsy.

Joe Esposito, a long-time friend and aide, found Presley on the floor of the signer's private bathroom shortly after 2 p.m.

Dr. George Nichopoulos, Presley's personal physician, and a Memphis Fire Department ambulance were summoned. Efforts to revive the entertainer were futile; he was dead at Baptist Hospital an hour later.

Six hours later, Nichopoulos and Francisco said at a news conference that Presley had died of cardiac arrythmia — an irregular heartbeat. In the weeks that followed, Nichopoulos told reporters Presley had a low-grade case of diabetes and frequently failed to stick to his diet.

In October, at a news conference at the University of Tennessee Center for Health Sciences where he is a professor of pathology, Francisco released the final report on the post mortem tests.

Francisco said Elvis died of hypertensive heart disease and coronary artery disease was a contributing factor.

He said drugs were found in Presley's body, but he said they had nothing to do with his death. He said all had been prescribed by Nichopoulos and were found in amounts consistent with therapeutic practices.

Sedatives methaquaalone and Ethinamate, the painkiller codeine, and unspecified barbituates were found in significant quantities, he said, and an antihistamine, the tranquilizer Valium, the painkillers meperidine and morphine and Demerol, a sedative, were found in trace amounts.

Francisco said the drugs, in the amounts found, did not constitute an overdose, and he said it was unlikely that chemical reactions within the body could have contributed to his death.

But The Commercial Appeal, Memphis' morning newspaper, reported that a California laboratory which had conducted some of the drug tests, also found Placidyl, a depresant which can be dangerous if mixed with codeine, in Presley's blood.

Francisco discounted the California laboratory's findings, saying it was but one laboratory of five that conducted tests on Presley's blood and tissue samples.

Three months later, a University of Utah toxicologist told a Salt Lake City newspaper that drugs found in autopsy specimens were consistent with medical treatment.

"We have not detected any drug in Elvis that doesn't have a medical rationale to it," Dr. Bryan S. Finkle, director of the Center for Human Toxicology, told The Salt Lake Tribune. The center was one of the agencies which conducted tests for Francisco.

And Dr. Elias Ghanem, a Las Vegas physician who had treated Presley during his appearances there, says heart disease, not drugs, killed Presley.

But The Commercial Appeal continued for several months to explore Presley's death. Nevertheless, Francisco, at the request of the Presley family, refused to release copies of the autopsy report.

The Memphis and Shelby County Medical Society refused to look into the dispute, saying there was no need for an investigation.

The Shelby County Court reappointed Francisco to the medical examiner's post in October despite some squires' reservations about the Presley case.

Under Tennessee law, Presley's death certificate, on which is listed the cause of death, is not a public document. And, also under state law, the autopsy report is the property of the family, unless the death is determined to be caused by other than natural reasons — such as heart disease.

Loyal British Fans Mark Death Of American Idol

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of Britons are donning blue suede shoes and satin shirts, playing sentimental favorites and attending memorial services and movies to commemorate the death of Elvis Presley, who is a bigger thing in their lives than the Beatles ever were.

"Presley has always been the biggest and always will be the biggest," said Vince Everett, 38, whose London shop is Europe's mecca for Elvis records and memorabilia. "The Beatles, Rolling Stones, Elton John, they can't touch him.

"The Official Elvis Presley Fan Club of Great Britain had 5,000 members before Presley died, and it's gained 7,000 members in the last year," Everett said Tuesday.

The Elvis buff sometimes attracts a crowd of gawkers by putting on a wig and a glittering white jumpsuit and gyrating in his shop's front door mouthing the words to "Heartbreak Hotel."

He said hundreds of British fans went to Memphis for the memorials marking Wednesday's first anniversary of Presley's death. "But there are dozens of observances back here. One in Deptford, one in Southgate.

"Lots of film shows. There's one in Cheltenham that I'd be going to, except that I've got all his films myself."

Madame Tussaud's Wax Museum on Tuesday unveiled its new $3,000 model of a jut-jawed, early '70s Elvis, standing near Kojak, Marilyn Monroe and the Royal Family, but it was a bomb. Said Tina McGuire, 22, who came especially for the big moment: "He looks more like the Incredible Hulk than Elvis."

"A lot of people have tried to cash in on Presley since his death," Everett said. "But at least the publicity has awakened a new generation of fans. The people who are putting him in the top 20 now are brand new kids just turned on to Elvis."

Why is Elvis so popular in England?

"Because he's the most talented person there'll ever be," Everett said with conviction.

Everett publishes one of three Elvis periodicals that thrive in Britain. His shop, with a jukebox full of Elvis tunes, offers several hundred of some 1,600 Elvis record releases, along with Elvis posters, badges, movies, bubblegum cards, sheet music, magazines and memorabilia ranging from a copy of the singer's will to a December 1956 Police Gazette with a lead article entitled: "Is Elvis Presley Really a Teen-Age Menace?"

"We get customers from all over," he said. "One man from Italy, and there's one woman who comes all the way from Rhodesia and spends thousands of pounds to get items she needs for her collection."

Right on cue, in walks Pete van Oevelen of Bergen op Zoom, Netherlands, with his wife, two towheaded children and 72-year-old mother-in-law who says, "Yes, I like Elvis too."

The Van Oevelens are vacationing in England, but one of their purposes in coming was to get hold of copies of "Lord, You Gave Me a Mountain" and "Early Morning Rain."

"You could open a shop with the Beatles, Rolling Stones, you'd never make it," said Everett. "But Elvis is so big you can never get it all."

Curfew Hurts Elvis Merchants

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — From guitar-shaped swizzle sticks to inlaid coffee tables, they came to peddle their wares to the thousands of worshippers gathered Tuesday along Elvis Presley Boulevard. But the merchants said a dusk-to-dawn curfew was chomping away at their profits.

"The curfew has hurt something terrible," said Elena Tubbs, manager of the Souvenirs of Elvis, a former law office converted into a shop across the street from Graceland Mansion. "We could have possibly stayed open all night but that just depends on the crowd."

Presley died a year ago Wednesday at Graceland Mansion, located in a southeast Memphis suburb.

A rag-tag army of Presley fans, some from as far away as Ireland and Belgium, browsed through counters lined with $1 bars of Elvis soap, $2.50 Elvis pennants, books, ashtrays, salt and pepper shakers, bright orange and lime pillows bordered with white fringe, license plates, busts, letter openers, candles and a full array of jewelry.

One salesgirl said the hottest seller of the day was a rhinestone studded Elvis necklace going for $4.

Copies of Memphis' morning paper, The Commercial Appeal, dated Aug. 17, 1977, ranged from $9.95 to $20, and fans could select posters, T-shirts, photo albums and dollar bills with Presley's image instead of George Washington's.

While hundreds lined up along a sidewalk roped off into four lanes, several merchants layed out their goods outside vans parked across the street from the mansion.

With an 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew imposed on the city's 650,000 residents because of a firefighters' and policemen's strike, the peddlers had to close shop early.

"This thing is awful," Henry McWhorter of Dallas, said as he arranged paintings of Presley outside his orange van. "It's hurtin' everybody I'm afraid. I knew about it before I left but I thought it would be over by now. If it wasn't for the curfew, I'd be doing great and it would be beautiful.

"I got a big ole flea market in Dallas and I do a good Elvis business, you know, little competition. I thought this was where the action would be this week but with the curfew, I just don't know."

By late afternoon, 7,200 fans — 2,200 more than the average daily attendance — had passed through the mansion's wrought-iron gates to gaze on the graves-ites of Presley and his mother.

"People are scared," a Memphis merchant who asked not to be identified said. "They're concerned about the curfew and so am I. It hasn't been too red hot out here, but who knows, maybe tomorrow will be different. Your guess is as good as mine."

Soybean Export Hike Expected

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Nick Rose president of the American Soybean Association, expected U.S. Soybean exports during the first six months of the 1978-79 market year to run as much as 70 million bushels ahead of this year.

He told the ASA Annual Convention here that "Demand for American soybeans and soybean products will be very big during the first half of the year because of the limited export availability from Brazil's drought-reduced 1978 crop."

"Exports during the second half of the year, however, should slow considerably and will depend on the size of next winter's Brazilian Soybean harvest," Rose said.

In a speech prepared for delivery Monday before the 1,400 farmers attending the ASA convention, Rose said demand for American Soybeans looks very good in the next three to five years.

"Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union and China are all potential major soybean markets that are likely to increase substantially in the next five years....We expect Eastern Europe's demand for soybeans to increase 55 percent in the next five years. That's the equivalent of nearly 85 million bushels of soybeans.

"In each of the last two years, the USSR has used about 55 million bushels of imported soybeans. By 1982, the demand for imported soybeans should increase to 92 to 110 bushels," Rose said.

"In recent years, Rose said, "China has not been able to expand its domestic production of oilseed to match its growing needs. As a result it must look to growing imports.

"In order to simply maintain its present per capita consumption of edible oils, China's population growth alone will require the equivalent of an additional 85 bushels of soybeans per year. An increase of one pound per capita oil consumption in China would increase that to 170 million bushels.

"If we get a more favorable political climate that will permit greater trade with China, the American soybean could play a vital role in meeting China's oil-seed needs."

But Rose warned that competition from Brazil and Argentina is "real and will continue. Both are committed to soybean production and are intent on becoming major world suppliers. Their soybean production has become a major factor in the prices we receive for our soybeans."

"Foreign produced palm oil represents a major challenge to American soybean growers...the U.S. currently uses nearly 723 million bushels of soybeans for edible oil. That requires more than 24 million acres of soybean production. but palm oil imports to the U.S. have now reached the equivalent of nearly its million acres of beans."

Bollworm Control Means Demonstrated

LEVELLAND (Special) — Methods of bollworm field scouting and control measures will be demonstrated at a bollworm control session today at 2 p.m. in the Levelland State Bank meeting room, according to Bill Taylor, Hockley County Extension agent.

"This year has all the earmarks of having larger bollworm infestations than we have had in recent years," he said.

Dr. James Leser, extension entomologist, will speak at the meeting and the attendants will take a brief trip to a cotton field.

It has been several years since farmers in Hockley County have had widespread infestations that needed chemical control, Taylor stated, and chemical control considerations have changed a great deal.

"The county's lush irrigated fields in particular could have an egg-laying cycle beginning in mid-August that would provide damaging infestations," Taylor said. Farmers should check fields at least twice weekly to stay on top of the situation. Insecticides should be applied only when necessary as future infestations can be worse where insecticides are applied without need.

Moroccan Wheat Mission Visits U.S.

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — A six-member wheat trade mission from Morocco is scheduled to travel throughout Kansas this week as part of a national inspection tour that began in Chicago Aug. 4 and ends in New York Aug. 24.

The group's schedule puts them in Manhattan, Kan., Tuesday through Thursday to tour Kansas State University's Department of Grain Science and the USDA Grain Marketing Research Center.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

HOUSE AGRICULTURE COMMITTEE CHAIRMAN Thomas Foley said Tuesday he was pleased by the announcement of a 20 percent acreage set-aside for 1979-crop wheat.

Foley said the program was needed to help avoid an increase in carryover stocks and to continue market price gains by holding down production with the set-aside.

The Washington Democrat said, however, that he was disappointed that the support target price was not increased from the $3.40 per-bushel level in 1978 to reflect increases in production costs.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, who announced the set-aside, said the 1979 wheat program also would include a 15 percent voluntary planting reduction from 1978 wheat planted. Under this provision, farmers would be eligible for target price coverage on 100 percent of the 1979 planted wheat acreage.

THE LOAN RATE WILL BE $2.35 per bushel, same as for the 1978 crop.

The set-aside program is voluntary, but farmers won't be eligible for USDA loans or disaster and deficiency payments if they don't comply.

There is no provision to provide payments to farmers who graze out or use for hay portions of their planted wheat acreage. But producers may graze their 1979 set-aside acreage for a six-month period, to be determined by state Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committees, as in 1979.

The 20 percent set-aside will result in wheat prices of around $2.75 per bushel, up from the average price for 1977-78 of $2.31, Bergland said. The set-aside will not add to consumer costs, he said, and is part of the administration's overall anti-inflation strategy.

THE GOAL IS TO "ELIMINATE THE boom and bust cycles which have characterized the farm economy," he said.

"Good participation in the 20 percent set-aside should result in wheat stocks on June 1, 1980 near 7.5 percent of the projected world wheat use or approximately 1.135 billion bushels," he said.

Bergland said a 30 percent set-aside would have shorted the market and would have led to lower stocks of 1.067 billion bushels at the end of the season. Without a set-aside in 1979, stocks would have increased to 1.275 billion bushels, he said.

Bergland said USDA is committed to wheat reserves of 550 million bushels, including the farmer-owned reserve and the special emergency reserve for food aid commitments of 150 million bushels. The farmer-owned reserve program will remain open until the goal is reached, he said.

WORLD WHEAT AND FEED GRAIN CROPS are expected to be near record levels this year, but Bergland does not believe wheat prices will drop below current levels.

"Twenty percent is a modest number" for the set-aside, Bergland said. It will signal to other countries that the United States is prepared to be a participant in a world wheat convention but is not prepared to be the world's wheat stock holder, he added. The administration is still pressing hard for success at the international wheat agreement negotiations and trying to impress upon other participants that adjustments in wheat acreage, production and marketing are of global concern, he said.

There is no linkage between the wheat set-aside and a decision on the feed grain program, expected this fall, and "no judgment will be made until the corn crop is in the bin," he said.

BERGLAND EXPECTS FARMERS TO REACT favorably to the wheat program decision. Most farmers and farm organizations had recommended at least a 20 percent set-aside in comments to the USDA.

For every 100 acres of wheat planted for harvest as grain, 20 must be set-aside and planted in appropriate soil conserving crops. The program will give credit to farmers who reduced their acreage in 1978 by 20 percent in order to receive 100 percent target price protection. Their base for 1979's 15 percent reduction will be the same as in 1978.

The national program acreage of 57.1 million acres is the amount estimated as needed to produce enough wheat for expected domestic and export needs and carryover stocks for 1979-80.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Corn futures, in the final moments of hectic trading on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday, surged up to the 10-cent daily limit and finished sharply higher.

Traders said major commercial users were buying consistently throughout the session, but attributed the late surge to technical factors.

Basically, many traders and speculators had sold contracts after last week's crop report projected a record harvest. When prices rose sharply, they were forced to repurchase the contracts.

In other developments, the Agriculture Department announced that China had bought a million metric tons of wheat. Initially, traders took their profits made during the recent upswing that accompanied rumors of such a purchase.

But the government's report of hefty wheat exports last week more than offset the profit-taking. Weekly exports of corn exceeded 52 million bushels, also influencing the demand in that pit.

Exporter buying in the soybean oil pit and more speculation about potential business with China or the Soviet Union spurred a rally in soybean and soybean product futures.

At the close, soybeans were 9½ to 12¾ cents higher, with August contracts quoted at $6.49½ a bushel; wheat was 6 cents higher to ½ cent lower, September $3.30½; corn was 6¼ to 8½ cents higher, September $2.22¾ and oats were ½ to 1¼ cents higher, September $1.28½.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON

U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was slow. Supply was heavy and demand was moderate to light.

Growers sold mixed lots at 1,100 to 1,400 points over loan rates. Lowest grades and mikes brought the highest premiums over the loan.

LUBBOCK SPOT COTTON

Quotations are the approximate prices reported to the Agricultural Marketing Service for qualities equal to the U.S. Official Grade and Staple Standards. Prices are for micronaire (mike) readings of 3.5 through 4.9, in mixed lots, uncompressed, free of all charges in the warehouse in the market.

Live Cattle Futures Slump On Exchange

CHICAGO — Cattle futures erased an early rally of 30 points in distant October to close 30 to 107 lower led by nearby October Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The contract was off 112 for a time. Volume was 18,095 cars.

Higher than expected placements of 1.6 million head along with mostly lower cash cattle and easiness in beef continued to bring pressure here. Spreaders generally were selling October and December against scattered buying of later months.

Wholesale beef was off 1/4 to 2 cents at 78 1/2 to 79 1/2 cents a pound which was the lowest since April. Cash cattle were off $1 to up 25 cents with the best top at $53 per hundredweight, equalling the lowest since June, at Omaha.

The six markets expect 13,700 head today. Tuesday's slaughter was 141,000 head.

Feeder cattle futures fell 42 to 105 points led by January on 2,921 sales. Prices ended at or near lows for the day. The larger than expected placements on feed at 1.6 million head exerted pressure as did weakness in cash cattle and beef.

There was also spillover selling from weakness in other meat pits in generally bearish atmosphere.

Cash feeder cattle were steady to off $2 with the best top at $76 per hundredweight at San Antonio. Receipts at the major markets today are expected to be 4,100 head. There were 15 deliveries.

Hog futures tumbled 42 to 150 points led by nearby August at the limit level. Distant October exceptionally gained 20 after climbing 70. Contracts numbered 6,793.

Lower cash hogs on reduced arrivals and rainy weather in the farm belt exerted pressure after early gains on discount of futures to cash.

Beef Cattle Factors To Be Discussed At Annual Meeting

Beef cattle producers and area specialists from the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station will assemble at 8 p.m. Aug. 24 for the annual Floyd-Briscoe County Beef Cattle meeting, according to Doyle Warren, Floyd County Extension agent.

Dr. John McNeill, area beef cattle specialist, will discuss beef cattle herd management and added practices for additional dollars. Dr. Frank Petr, area agronomist, will speak on the production of grazing crops.

Marvin Sartin, area economist-management specialist, will lecture on area beef cattle economics. Tommy Welch, area range specialist, will address the group on brush and weed control.

The selection of 10 cattle brands to represent each Texas county at the Kleberg Center will also be discussed at the meeting.

House Republicans Plan To Undercut Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans said Tuesday they will make a quick move to slash the proposed federal spending budget by $10.5 billion when the House takes up the fiscal plan for the year beginning Oct. 1.

Saying the resolution approved by the House Budget Committee is "a frontal assault on the pocketbooks of every taxpayer," Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., gave his party's effort a good chance of success.

The pending resolution, when adopted by both chambers, will become a binding limit on appropriations and a floor under tax legislation.

The House is scheduled to begin debate on it after disposing of legislation to extend the ratification time for the Equal Rights Amendment.

Rhodes recalled at a news conference that a similar GOP move was barely defeated when the preliminary, non-binding budget resolution was adopted in May. A Republican substitute lost by 197 to 203, and the resolution itself was adopted by a 201-198 vote.

"That was before Proposition 13 and the soaring inflation we see today," Rhodes said. He criticized Democrats also for failure to pass what he called "a real tax cut" last week. The House rejected the GOP plan for a one-third slash of personal income tax rates over three years and voted instead a $16.3 billion tax cut for next year.

Rep. Marjorie Holt, R-Md., author of the Republican budget substitute, said it would not represent a cut in present spending, but allow a 7 percent increase. She said the move was designed to slow the growth of government, not arbitrarily cut programs.

The budget recommended by the House Budget Committee would set revenues at $446.8 billion and spending at $490.5 billion, leaving a deficit of $43.7 billion. Mrs. Holt's amendment would change the figures to $445 billion revenues, $480 billion spending and $35 billion deficit.

The Senate Budget Committee's version, scheduled to be considered by the Senate in September, calls for $447.2 billion revenues, $489.5 billion spending and a deficit of $42.3 billion.

Republicans said their version would make room for the first year's installment of their tax cut. They said Democrats underestimated the revenue because they assumed an unrealistically low inflation rate.

The Republicans did not attempt to allocate the spending reductions between the various categories in the budget, such as defense, social services, science and other broad fields. They said that if the total figures were adopted, it would then be up to the spending committees to tailor their legislation accordingly.

They presented their fiscal plan as the first step in a five-year program to balance the budget and hold down tax increases.

Insurance Shopping Suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers could save money by shopping around for lower-cost life insurance but seldom realize it, a federal consumer representative said Tuesday.

Lee Richardson, acting director of the consumer affairs office at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, told a House Commerce subcommittee that there is little price competition for life insurance. This was disputed at the same hearing by a spokesman for insurance agents.

"Real price competition does not exist in the life insurance marketplace for a number of reasons, most of which relate to the disparity in bargaining positions between the buyers and sellers of life insurance," Richardson said.

"Generally, consumers are not aware that they could save a great deal of money by shopping around for lower-cost policies," he said.

Richardson said one indication that the life insurance marketplace is not working well is a high rate of terminations of policies in force less than two years. He said the rate was 19.7 percent in 1976, up from 9.4 percent 25 years before.

His testimony was similar to that made last week by officials of the Federal Trade Commission, which has been investigating life insurance sales practices for several years.

However, Joel A. Shapiro of the National Association of Life Underwriters, a group of insurance agents, said the cost of life insurance has gone down steadily in recent years, partly due to a "highly competitive environment."

Opposing any federal regulation of the industry, Shapiro said: "All facts point to the success of state regulation of insurance and certainly, there is no evidence to indicate that federal supervision would be superior."

He said diversity within the industry helps account for differences in prices between policies offered by various companies.

Shapiro said the agents' group supports model solicitation disclosures adopted by the National Association of Life Insurance Commissioners. FTC officials told the panel last week that these disclosures do not go far enough in helping consumers.

Commission Proposes Emergency Gas Measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission proposed Tuesday to tighten the rules allowing interstate pipelines to purchase and transport natural gas purchased outside price controls under "emergency" conditions.

The commission now allows such emergency purchases, at prices higher than those normally permitted by federal regulation, when a pipeline faces the prospect of having to curtail service to customers because of shortages in available gas supplies.

While gas prices are limited to about $1.50 per thousand cubic feet when purchased for interstate shipment, it commands prices ranging up or down from about $1.95 within the state where it is produced — the intrastate market which is not under federal regulation.

Ordinarily, if an interstate pipeline purchases "intrastate" gas, that natural gas becomes classified as "interstate gas" permanently and falls under the federal price ceilings.

Under emergency rules, however, no such liability to federal regulation is applied to temporary purchases from the intrastate market, where gas may be available despite interstate shortages.

In its new proposal, the FERC would tighten up its emergency rules in three major ways:

—The simple prospect of service curtailments would not justify emergency purchases; instead, the purchaser would have to show specific shortage conditions — a sudden, unexpected loss of supply; a shortage-induced threat to life, health or property; or actual curtailment of service to certain high-priority customers.

—Instead of spreading the extra cost of emergency purchases among all customers, the purchaser would have to follow a user-pays rule charging the costs to those who receive the additional gas.

—To justify the emergency prices paid, the purchaser would have to follow a shop-around rule requiring it to show it contacted at least three qualified gas sellers, seeking competitive prices.

The high-priority customers whose service curtailments would justify emergency purchases would include residential gas users; commercial and industrial users of less than 300,000 cubic feet of gas daily, in their peak month; industries using gas for feedstocks, processes, or plant protection; commercials and industries, other than electric utilities, which use more than 300,000 cubic feet daily at their peak and whose operations would be impaired without emergency gas but which cannot switch to alternate fuels.

The FERC said it would accept comments on these proposals until Sept. 13. The commission originally intended to adopt final rules by the end of September, but Tuesday's proposals arrived about two weeks behind schedule and there was no indication whether the final action might be correspondingly delayed.

CARTER NEWS CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will hold a news conference Aug. 17, the White House said Tuesday.

Oil Production Rise Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Petroleum production in non-OPEC countries is expected to more than double in the next seven years and could rise even more if the 30 to 40 countries with oil potential can get the necessary technical aid, the World Bank said in a report Tuesday.

In its first annual World Development report, the international lending institution predicted an increase in oil production from 3.7 million barrels to 8.3 million barrels a day by 1985 in the developing countries which have the resource.

"The increase in oil prices has provided a great incentive for new exploration and development of indigenous fuel resources in developing countries," the report said. It added that industrialization is certain to increase energy consumption within those nations themselves.

Large increases in petroleum production in countries that do not belong to the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are expected. This includes Brazil, Egypt, India and Mexico, the bank said, with "smaller but significant" increases in such countries as Angola, Congo, Malaysia, Pakistan and Zaire.

In addition, "the potential for an increase in natural gas production is widespread and important," especially in Indonesia, Mexico and South Asia, it added.

However, the report said most of the developing nations with petroleum lack technical know-how and financial means to exploit it.

The bank said priority should be given to technical assistance to help devise "comprehensive" energy progams, creation of a favorable investment climate and a "substantial increase" in financial and technical aid from international lending institutions such as the World Bank itself.

Agencies Differ Over Oil Storage Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal investigators said Tuesday that planned government storage of oil in an underground salt mine near New Iberia, La., could endanger miners if oil broke through the mine's floor and flooded any mines below the storage area.

The Department of Energy, operator of the oil storage program, said however the plan was safe and would be made even safer if necessary.

The General Accounting Office, an investigatory arm of Congress after investigating six of the 19 salt caverns, acquired by the government for oil storage in addition to the mine, said the caverns may not be suitable for storage purposes.

The Energy Department, in its comments to the GAO, said there was no cause for concern and any salt domes found unsuitable could be modified or abandoned.

The storage program was ordered by Congress to create a strategic petroleum reserve which could soften the impact of any future interruption of the nation's oil supplies.

Oil has already started flowing into some underground storage and the department expects to have 250 million barrels of crude oil in the stockpile by July 1979.

The GAO's worry about salt caverns — dissolved out of natural underground salt formations — was mainly that some of them might enlarge through alternate fillings and withdrawals of oil and water, to the point that they could grow together and become unstable.

Its concern over the use of a salt mine in the Weeks Island formation, purchased from Morton Salt Co., however, was more serious.

The GAO said Morton planned to start mining salt in 1980 some 300 feet beneath the planned stockpile of 75 million barrels of oil stored in two higher mines, and the agency feared the possibility that a blasting "blowout" might somehow penetrate that 300-foot ceiling and cause a disastrous flood of oil into the lower mine.

The Morton Salt Co., in comments to the GAO, said this was unlikely.

The department said that the Labor Department's Mining Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) was consulted before the mine was purchased from Morton for $30 million and did not object then to the 300-foot protective thickness beneath the oil storage area.

ANGRY STRIKERS—Striking firemen yell at working firefighters inside a downtown Memphis station as Tennessee National Guard troops guard the front entrance Tuesday. The striking firemen taunted non-strikers until an officer brought their union cards out. Firemen walked off the job Monday. Memphis policemen went on strike five days earlier. Mayor Wyeth Chandler proposed a tax hike Tuesday to pay for the wage increases that would get striking police and firefighters back to work. (AP Laserphoto)

Chinese Leader Due To Open Romanian Visit

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Hua Kuo-feng, the first Chinese Communist Party chief to travel to Europe in more than 20 years, arrives here today for a visit viewed by the Kremlin as an attempt to challenge Soviet influence in Eastern Europe.

The Soviet Union and its allies continued their propaganda war against the Chinese right up to the eve of Hua's visit, issuing a series of biting communiques from President Leonid I. Brezhnev's summer retreat in Crimea.

The Romanians, meanwhile, went about preparing for a warm welcome comparable to that extended President Ford in 1975 and Brezhnev in 1976.

Hua will also travel to neighboring Yugoslavia. Mao Tse-tung's visit to Moscow in 1957 was the last to Europe by a Chinese Communist Party chairman.

Timing Speculated

Western observers noted that the timing of Hua's visit may have been intentional: coinciding with next Sunday's 10th anniversary of the invasion of Czechoslovakia by Warsaw Pact forces.

The only Warsaw Pact country that refused to take part in the invasion was Romania, and this country of 22 million on the Soviet Union's southwestern border continues to follow its independent foreign policy, developing ties outside Soviet guidelines with the United States, Israel, China and Third World countries.

In the past few months, high-level Chinese officials have been traveling the globe in an effort to counter Soviet influence and strengthen ties with the West. Chinese delegations have visited other Asian nations, Africa, Europe, Latin America and Canada. Western diplomats say the new era of traveling diplomacy is part of the whole outward thrust of the current moderate Chinese leadership.

Five-Day Visit

Hua planned to end his five-day visit to Romania on Monday, then travel to Yugoslavia, which has followed a nonaligned foreign policy since it broke with Moscow in 1948. Little was being said officially about his schedule in Romania, but it was considered likely he would visit factories and Black Sea resorts, as well as hold talks with Nicolae Ceausescu, the Communist Party general secretary and president of Romania.

The state-controlled media have been gearing up for the visit. Television cameras are ubiquitous, with 12 on just one short stretch of the motorcade route between Otopeni Airport and the heart of town. A Chinese movie was shown on television and the Nanking Children's Choir has been touring the country for the past 10 days.

Workers Alerted

Romanian sources said workers have been told to be ready to greet Hua this morning and more than 100,000 people were expected to line the motorcade route. About the same number turned out for Ford and Brezhnev, but it would be far fewer than the estimated one million who greeted President Nixon's well-timed visit a year after the Prague invasion.

Hua, who left Peking Monday, made a stopover in northwestern China, Western sources said. After leaving Yugoslavia about the end of August, he is to go to Iran before returning to China.

The enmity between Moscow and Peking stems from a longstanding border dispute, deep-seated ideological differences and Peking's counseling of other nations to maintain independence from the orthodox Soviet line.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Brezhnev met on Monday with Todor Zhivkov, Bulgarian president and party general secretary, and that the two denounced what they called China's "hegemonist course." Brezhnev and Zhivkov said they hoped the Balkan countries would not become "an object of intrigues and machinations" by the foes of detente. Bulgaria borders both Romania and Yugoslavia.

11 Scientologists Indicted

mum penalties of five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

Specifically, the indictment alleged that:

— The church planted agents in the Internal Revenue Service and the Justice Department to obtain information on the government's review of the church's application for tax-exempt status. The church's Washington D.C. affiliate has been denied the exemption and the application by the church's U.S. headquarters in Los Angeles is under review.

— On various occasions church members stole documents from the government using a variety of methods including at times allegedly breaking into IRS and Justice Department offices — In November, 1974, church members planted an electronic eavesdropping device in an IRS conference room to record a meeting on the church's tax status.

The church has admitted copying government documents but said it did so to counteract an alleged campaign of government harassment against the Scientologists. The church said it tried to obtain much of the information initially through the Freedom of Information Act.

The government's case relies, in part, on the cooperation of a former church official, Michael J. Meisner, who was named as an unindicted co-conspirator. The indictment charged that church officials hid Meisner in 1976 to prevent him from talking to government officials and restrained him from leaving his hiding place.

The government and the church have been entangled in a lengthy legal battle over the constitutionality of a July, 8, 1977, FBI raid on the Scientologist churches in Los Angeles and Washington in which hundreds of thousands of pages of documents were seized.

The courts recently ruled that the information taken in the raids could be used as evidence against the Scientologists, although the church claimed the raids were a fishing expedition and the warrants too broad.

A Justice Department spokesman, Robert Stevenson, said the Justice Department has been told by Mrs. Hubbard's lawyer that she will voluntarily come from Sussex, England, where she now lives and where the church's world headquarters is located, to answer the charges.

He said the eight other defendants, who are in this country, will also voluntarily appear and that extradition proceedings are underway to bring two other defendants — Jane Kember and Morris Budlong — from England.

Also named in the indictment were church officials Duke Snider — who is not the former major league baseball player and is not related to him — of Hollywood, Calif., Richard Weigand of Van Nuys, Calif., Gregory Willardson of Beverly Hills, Calif., Mitchell Hermann of Hollywood, Calif., and Cindy Raymond of Hollywood and Henning Heldt of Los Angeles.

Also named were Gerald Bennett Wolfe of Areleta, Calif., and Sharon Thomas of Los Angeles, who were described as agents of the church who engaged in burglaries and theft of government property.

Wolfe pleaded guilty last year to a charge of falsely using a government seal and was given two years probation.

The indictment alleged that Wolfe was planted as a clerk at the IRS in Washington and Thomas was placed as a secretary in the Department of Justice, allegedly to help the organization pilfer government documents.

There are 73 Scientology churches throughout the world, including 24 in the United States, according to the church. While the Scientologists have not disclosed the church's earnings, federal investigators have said informers told them the church may gross more than $100 million annually.

The money comes from courses and counseling fees which the church has described as a program of freeing the spirit from memories of past painful experiences.

Home Health Care Addition Proposed

After hearing charges that some South Plains elderly are being charged too much or turned away for home health care, a health advisory committee recommended Tuesday that another agency be licensed to provide such care in the Lubbock area.

On a 7-4 vote, the project review advisory group of South Plains Health Systems urged that Austin-based Home Help Care be authorized to begin operations here.

The group also was to vote on a similar application by the Visiting Nurse Association of Lubbock.

The group's recommendations will be considered Thursday by the executive committee of SHS, a federally designated regional health planning agency. A final recommendation will be made to the Texas Health Facilities Commission.

Turned Down Earlier

Earlier this year, the state commission turned down the two applications. However, the commission recently decided to refer the applications to SPHS for local comment.

West Texas Home Health Care, the only non-profit firm now providing visiting nurse services in the region, attempted to block the applications of the two newcomers. Jan Fouts, attorney for the existing agency, argued the needs of the area already are being met.

However, Pat Fatton of Home Help Care claimed that the existing agency has a monopoly here and is charging too much for its services. West Texas Home Health Care also refuses to serve indigent patients, Patton said.

In contrast, he said his agency — if allowed to operate here — would serve non-paying patients who "fall between the cracks" of Medicare-Medicaid coverage.

Costs Disputed

According to data presented by the SPHS staff, the existing agency now has a cost of $28 per patient visit, as compared with a projected $20 for Home Help Care and $18 for the Visiting Nurse Association. Fouts disputed those figures.

Most of the testimony at Tuesday's hearing was in favor of the applications. But Fouts said Patton's comments were merely "broad, sweeping generalizations" and that no hard evidence was produced to support the need for additional home health care agencies.

Formal Trial Convicts Boy Of Shoplifting

and that other youngsters just as young had been tried before him.

The boy was identified only as Joey because Minnesota law prohibits the identification of juveniles unless the defendant has been certified for court treatment as an adult.

The case began in April when Richard Stanchfield, security manager of a J.C. Penney store, called police to say he saw two boys steal squirt guns.

"The only way you can make them learn anything is turn them over to the police," Stanchfield said. "Anybody over the age of 5 — I arrest them. I feel they know better by then."

One boy confessed, but Joey told police older children with BB guns had threatened to kill him if he didn't steal the toys. The county charged him with theft, and the boy and his court-appointed attorney decided to ask for a trial.

Officials said the boy who confessed, who also was 7 years old, was given a reprimand and sent home without further trouble on grounds that he had admitted taking part.

Sawyer said the same rules of evidence and other procedures applied as in cases involving adults, but that there was no jury and the child could not be fined or sentenced to a penal institution.

At the trial, the second boy who had been arrested testified, answering "nope" to each of these questions: Did he know what the truth was? Did he know what a lie was? Did he understand the difference between the two?

The judge said he would consider the testimony "qualified" and give it the weight he deemed proper. The witness then knocked down the defendant's story, saying there were no "big kids with BB guns" and the two boys simply decided to steal the squirt guns.

"He duped me like hell," the defense counsel said later of his client. "I let him go to trial because he told me time and time again that he only did it because he was forced to do it. I believed it to the extent that I didn't talk him into copping a plea."

Weather

Up to an inch of rain, driven by high winds, battered Dickens for about 45 minutes during the evening. A sheriff's office spokesman said the rain fell so densely that she "couldn't see across the street for 15 minutes or better." No hail accompanied the Dickens storm, but lightning displays flashed among the clouds.

No damage or injuries from lightning or the storms were reported.

Additional Storms Expected

A weather service spokesman said additional storms can be expected east of the Caprock today as the remnants of a weak cold front that dissipated earlier Tuesday linger in the area.

The violent storms Tuesday evening brewed after slightly cooler air mingled with humid air currents around the Caprock. Eventually the storm line stretched from around Wichita Falls southwestward to Wink.

Lubbock is not expected to experience any of the storm activity today or Thursday.

Fair skies will prevail, and today's high should be in the mid-90s. Tonight's low will be in the upper 60s. Thursday afternoon's high temperature will be 95.

Light southerly winds to 15 mph will fan the area today.

Balloonists Hit Halfway Mark Over Atlantic

BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Three Americans aboard the Double Eagle II passed the halfway mark Tuesday in their attempt to become the first balloonists to cross the Atlantic Ocean, but were floating toward an area of freezing rain.

Riding 24-mph winds at nightfall, the adventurers were about three miles above the North Atlantic, less than 1,000 miles from Ireland. Their ground crew, stationed at a commercial weather station in Bedford, still hoped for a landfall in Europe by Thursday.

"It'll be cold, zero degrees and raining. Ice will build up on the balloon and gondola, but they will need that for ballast," said Sue Bernard, a member of the ground crew that is tracking the course of the three men from Albuquerque, N.M., by satellite and radio.

The North Atlantic showers were the first bad weather of the trip.

"Everything is great .... They were off course, drifting to the north, but by Wednesday morning we expect they will be turning south again," said Miss Bernard.

The crewmen reported by radio Tuesday that their spirits were high and all their equipment worked perfectly, she said.

They at first fell behind schedule because of sluggish winds. But by late Tuesday, breezes freshened after Double Eagle II increased her altitude.

The balloonists were dining on hot dogs, sardines and instant food mixes. They had a bottle of champagne on board to share with whomever greeted their landing.

"The weather is the determining factor," Miss Bernard said. "We're living from one fix (sighting) to the next. An airliner saw them early today."

Last year, Abruzzo and Anderson traveled 2,950 miles in 66 hours in an attempt to cross the Atlantic in Double Eagle I, which was forced to ditch five miles off the coast of Ireland. Earlier this summer, a British balloonist team got to within 117 miles of the coast of France.

The crossing by balloon has been unsuccessfully tried on 17 recorded occassions. Seven fliers, one a woman, died trying.

OUT AT WHITE HOUSE—Ann Anderson, former deputy press secretary to Rosalynn Carter, is pictured at her Waterford, Va., home in October of 1977. It was reported Tuesday that she has been forced out of her job at the White House because she would not work long hours. She resigned the $29,500-a-year job, saying "There were times when the pressure was really tremendous and I am sure that is not good for anybody. But that is the way it is to work in the White House." (AP Laserphoto)

Tax Credit On Tuition Advances

who have stood for public schools are not going to retreat."

Hodges said about 8 percent of pupils in private schools are black, compared with about 18 percent of public-school pupils.

Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., a sponsor of the bill, criticized opponents for concentrating their fire on allegations that the measure violates the Constitution's mandate for separation of church and state.

"The Constitution is not the issue," Packwood said. "The real problem is seldom addressed by opponents. The real objection is control of education."

The Carter administration is opposed, he said, because the Department of Health, Education and Welfare would have no voice in how the money is spent.

The only way to settle the question of constitutionality, Packwood said, is to pass a bill and let the Supreme Court decide.

He questioned whether framers of the Constitution sought to bar federal aid to church-related schools. In fact, Packwood said, until at least 1820 all American schools were church-related facilities that were financed by government taxes.

"In practice, every one of them (authors of the Constitution) probably belonged to a state or local government group that levied taxes and gave them to church groups," Packwood said.

House Okays Extension For ERA

to find itself."

However, Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., said approval of the extension would be a futile exercise. "There will be jubilation when the House acts, and then we will wait while the Senate very likely does not act," he said. "The record is clear that a number of senators have no intention of acting this year."

Opponents of the extension have threatened to filibuster it in the Senate. A spokesman for Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Bayh and other extension supporters are uncertain whether they have the votes to break a filibuster.

An Associated Press-NBC News poll shows that more than half of the American people oppose a seven-year extension of the deadline, although the amendment itself still enjoys the support of a majority of the public.

Wider Strike Threat Seen In Memphis

stay out when they saw the pickets," Jacobs said. "The principal said the pickets left about 9:30 a.m. and the teachers reported to work."

Memphis teachers reported to work Monday without a new contract. Classes are to begin Thursday.

Fire officials said there were pickets at all 48 of the city's fire stations but that 30 of them were operating.

The policemen rejected an offer which would boost the base pay of a patrolman from $1,148 to $1,224 a month immediately. The contract would also provide additional increases of $22.50 and a 7.5 percent raise by October, 1979.

The firemen voted down a contract Monday which would give them a 6 percent raise retroactive to July 8, a $30 across-the-board raise in April and a 7.5 percent hike in October, 1979. A fire private with four years experience now makes $1,108 a month.

After the firemen walked out Monday, the city began taking applications for police and fire positions.

LEVELLAND (Special) — Services for Clyde Roy Brown, 21, of Whiteface will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at the First Baptist Church of Whiteface with the Rev. Harrell Harrison, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Whiteface Cemetery under the direction of Smith Funeral Home here.

Brown was killed Monday afternoon about nine miles west of Sundown when he apparently fell from the bed of a pickup truck and was crushed by a trailer. He was dead at 6:05 p.m. on arrival at Cook Memorial Hospital.

Brown was an employee of D. C. Well Service, Inc. of Sundown.

Survivors include his wife, Georgia of Sundown; a daughter, Melissa of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Owill Brown of Whiteface; a sister, Marie of Whiteface; and his maternal grandfather, Roy Riddle of Levelland.

Mrs. J. F. Burrow

Services for Mrs. J.F. Burrow, 85, of Longview were at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church here with the Rev. Jesse Nave, pastor, officiating, and the Rev. Sam Estes of Cumberland Presbyterian Church, assisting.

Burial was in the Petersburg Cemetery under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Burrow died Sunday in Longview.

She is survived by four sons, O.T. Smith of San Antonio, the Rev. Theron Burrow of Houston, the Rev. Vernon Burrow of Murfreesboro, Tenn., and Tom Burrow of Bracketvill, five daughters, Opal Webster of Dennison, Geneva Freeman of Lubbock, Clois Lin and Wanda Case, both of Longview and Verda Webster of Petersburg; two brothers, Roland McCright of Victoria and Clinton McCright of Bay City; a sister, Eva Rice of Grand Prairie; 26 grandchildren and 31 great-grandchildren.

Floy Cline

Services for Floy Cline, 66, of Levelland, will be at 4 p.m. today in W.W. Rix Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Fred D. Blake, pastor of South Plains Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Cline died at 12:02 a.m. Tuesday in Methodist Hospital after a brief illness.

He had lived in Levelland 20 years.

Survivors include two brothers, W.O. and W.C., both of Lubbock; a sister, Mrs. M.T. Burelsmith of Hereford; and four grandchildren.

Venetia Eslick

Services for Venetia Eslick, 65, of 1908 44th St., will be at 10 a.m. today in the W. W. Rix Chapel with the Rev. A. B. Black, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in Peaceful Gardens Memorial Park under the direction of Rix Funeral Directors.

Mrs. Eslick died at 7 a.m. Sunday in her home after a sudden illness.

She was a member of Grace Baptist Church and had been a resident of Lubbock since 1953, coming here from Vernon. She married John W. Eslick Sept. 23, 1933 at Atoka, Okla.

Survivors include her husband; a son, Lynn of Lubbock; a daughter, Ruth Thompson of Lubbock; a half-brother, Bill Keylon of Wapanucka, Okla.; three sisters, Ethel Keylon of Wapanucka, Stella Blackburn of Atoka, Okla., and Lavern Owen of Mendota, Calif; and seven grandchildren.

Legislators Urge Uniform Property Assessment

By ROBERT M. COCKRUM
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Lubbock's two state representatives Tuesday hailed uniform, countywide assessment of property values as a fairer means of distributing the tax burden, if not actually easing it.

Democrat Froy Salinas and Republican Joe Robbins fielded questions about the recently concluded special session of the Texas Legislature during a meeting of the Greater Lubbock Press Club.

Salinas, in suggesting a uniform system of assessment in each county, praised the operations of the city and school district, but he was critical of county government.

"In Lubbock, we have atrocities committed every day," he said. "The county is liable to have a $100,000 home on the tax rolls for $10,000."

Robbins said his constituents had expressed fear of too much control in the state capital, and that problem was met in the package of constitutional amendments to be submitted to voters in November. It prohibits a central tax assessment authority in Austin, he said, although state guidelines for computing uniform assessments is likely.

Both men agreed that estimates of the state's surplus — $1 billion to $3 billion — often depend on who is doing the figuring, but Salinas said, "If we're continually having a surplus, that means we're over-taxing."

He said that he would like to see a penny of the 5 percent sales tax returned to school districts, and that direct relief to taxpayers is possible with the state picking up the cost of mandated school programs.

"We're getting raped by people taking our natural gas and oil reserves," Salinas said, moving on to discuss another possible hike in a revenue source. "We need to increase the severance tax as Louisiana has done. That would raise $1 billion and could do away with a property tax for schools."

MAKING A POINT — State Reps. Froy Salinas and Joe Robbins of Lubbock gave their evaluations Tuesday of the recent special legislative session on tax relief. Robbins said the session was crucial in heading off a California-style taxpayers revolt, but Salinas said his mail seemed to indicate "people didn't care whether we were down there or not."

"The severance tax would work temporarily," Robbins said, adding that 15 years from now its revenue "would not be a significant contribution."

Robbins said his tax relief efforts are aimed at what he termed "a cancer" — the growth of government. In calling for curbs to government growth, spending and taxation, he said, "You've got to cut out the root cause of growth — no limitations."

The legislature's apparent concentration on helping schools has angered many municipal leaders who feel the cities are entitled to aid as well.

Robbins said that such help is often blocked by constitutional restrictions, and Salinas said he sensed a distate by Texans for a state revenue sharing program entangled in bureaucratic red tape.

Salinas said he wanted to offer a nonbinding referendum to determine whether citizens would support an additional one cent tacked on to the sales tax and earmarked for rebate to the cities.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe told him, Salinas said, that the purpose of the special session was tax relief, not tax imposition.

The legislators were asked about reports that lawmakers — particularly senators — had not taken the session seriously. Robbins said some members of the upper chamber were in Austin to do as little as possible, not realizing the severity of the problem.

"If we don't do something to stop increased spending and higher taxes, there will be a revolt," he said.

Salinas, however, said there were representatives who were no more serious than the senators, thinking the session "might have been some knee-jerk reaction to Proposition 13 in California."

Salinas himself doubted the concern over taxes by Texans at this time.

"I didn't get one letter from constituents saying they were upset about taxes," he said. "I did get letters about busing, and I referred them to their congressman. I got the feeling people didn't care whether we were down there or not."

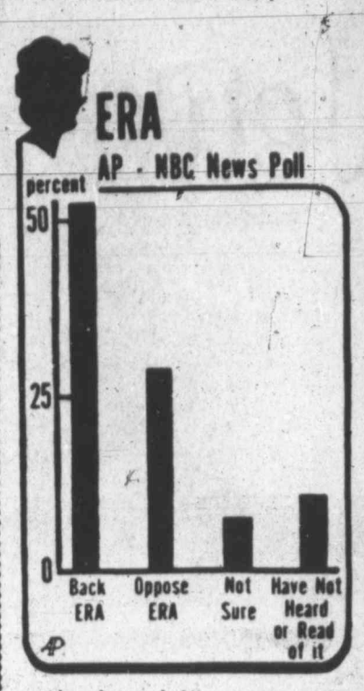
U.S. Public Supports ERA; Opposes Extension

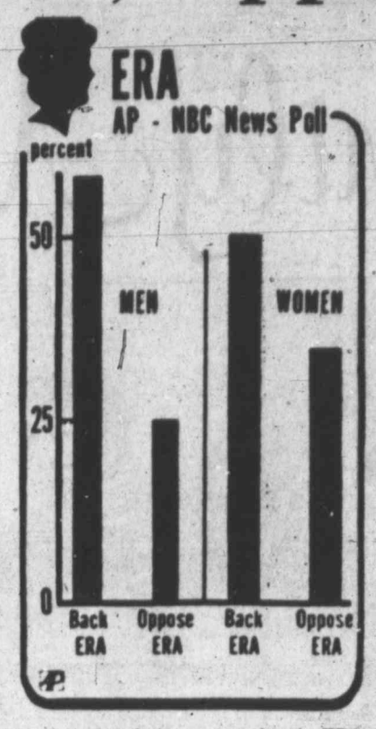
NEW YORK (AP) — More than half of the American people oppose a seven-year extension to the deadline for ratifying the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution, although the amendment itself still has the support of a majority of the public, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

The poll finding came as the House took up on Tuesday a proposal to give ERA supporters until 1982 to obtain ratification by the 38 states needed.

The poll also found that both abortion on demand and federal funding for abortions for poor women have more supporters than opponents among the public. The support for federal abortion funding is a reversal of earlier poll findings.

Overall, 54 percent of those interviewed August 7-8 said they back the ERA, 29 percent oppose it, 7 percent are not sure and 10 percent said they have not heard or read of it.





As found in past AP-NBC News polls, more men than women favor the amendment. Men split in favor of the ERA by a 58-25 margin, while women back it by a 50-33 edge.

The ERA must be ratified by 38 states by March 22, 197, to become part of the Constitution. To date it has been approved by 35 of them.

Four of the states — Kentucky, Tennessee, Idaho and Nebraska — have since rescinded approval, but the validity of those actions is in question. The Justice Department has said it is up to Congress to decide. Also, Kentucky's rescinding resolution was vetoed.

Until earlier in this century, Congress put no time limit on the ratification process for amendments, although the Constitution gives Congress the power to do so. The original time period for ratification of the ERA was set by Congress at seven years.

ERA backers have asked Congress for the seven-year extension of the ratification deadline. But a shorter extension, until June 30, 1982, was all that survived committee action. Both houses of Congress must approve any extension.

Asked about extending the deadline for ratification by seven years, 55 percent of those polled said they oppose such a move, with only 34 percent supporting it. Eleven percent were not sure.

Surprisingly, the supporters of the ERA split evenly on the question of the extension: 45 percent in favor, 47 percent opposed.

As expected, those opposed to the ERA were also opposed to the extension by a 76-16 margin.

The finding of AP-NBC News poll is contrary to that of a Louis Harris poll earlier this summer, which found that the extension was supported by a 57-40 margin.

Much of the difference probably arises from the positive phrasing of the Harris question in contrast to the AP-NBC News question.

The survey asked two separate questions on abortion.

The first was whether every women who wants to have an abortion should be able to have one. Fifty-six percent of the public favor abortion on demand, 39 percent oppose it and 5 percent are not sure.

Those figures show a small increase — about 3 percentage points — in support for abortion on demand since the last time an AP-NBC poll asked this question, in March.

Nearly half — 49 percent — now support federal funding of abortions for poor women, 43 percent are opposed and 8 percent are not sure.

This is a reversal of the findings of the NBC News poll in August 1977, when 44 percent favored federal abortion fundng. 47 percent were opposed and the rest not sure.

As with any sample survey, the results of the AP-NBC News polls could differ from the results of interviews with all Americans with telephones because of chance variations in the sample.

For polls with 1,600 interviews, the results should vary no more than three percentage points either way simply because of sample errors. That is, there is only one chance out of 20 that the results of interviews with all American adults would vary from these results by more than three percentage points.

Of course, the results could vary from other polls because of differences in the wording of questions, timing of interviews or the method of interviewing.

AP-NBC Questions

NEW YORK (AP) — Here are some of the questions asked on the AP-NBC News poll on abortion and the ERA:

1. Do you agree or disagree with the following statement: "Every woman who wants to have an abortion should be able to have one."?

2. Do you think the federal government should help a poor woman with her medical bills if she wants an abortion?

3. Have you heard or read anyting about the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which would give women equal rights and equal responsibilities? (If yes) Do you favor or oppose this amendment?

4. The deadline for states to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment is next March. Do you think the deadline should be extended another seven years or don't you think so?

The question asked in the Louis Harris poll earlier this summer was:

"To make the ERA part of the Constitution, 38 states have to have their state legislatures vote favorably on it. So far, 35 states have voted for it — three short of what is needed. Under the law, if 38 states don't pass it by next April, then the amendment will be defeated. However, ERA supporters want Congress to pass a new law that will extend the time for the states to act on ERA for seven more years. Would you favor or oppose Congress extending the time for states to act on ERA for another seven years?"

FOOD PRICES SOAR

OTTAWA (AP) — Consumer prices in Canada rose at their fastest rate in three years in July, mostly because of higher food prices, the government reported Tuesday. July's increase was 9.8 percent when projected over a 12-month period, the highest since November 1975, a month after the government imposed wage and price controls as anti-inflation measures.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

As a grandmother, I intend to be an absolute bore about my grandchildren. I intend to travel with a projector, a screen and 200 lifelike slides showing them chewing on clothespins and standing on their heads. I will produce from my handbag (with or without request) recent urine samples, a tape of them gargling milk at the dinner table and clever sayings that will put Art Linkletter out of business.

As a mother, however, I refuse to inflict my children on anyone. (God knew what he was doing when he gave them to a dictator.)

Consequently, I often find myself at the mercy of women with Super Children. Super Children are unmitigated joy. They can always be counted on to do and say the right thing. They always make the team, have fewer cavities, skip acne, know what they want to be in the third grade, have their paper displayed at Open House, and always remember to bring home the Mother's Day card from art class.

I have made a study of super children and have come to the conclusion that the only difference between Super Children and Normal kids is in the interpretation.

For example:

NORMAL KIDS	SUPER CHILDREN
Forgetful	Preoccupied
Fat	Healthy
Sloppy beasts	Academically geared
Weirdo who won't get a haircut	Noncomformist
Lazy bum	Deep thinker
Flunked out	Victim of a poor teacher
TV addict	TV critic
Cut from the team	Saved from a prejediced coach
Forget me on Mother's Day	Is saving his money for my operation
Oversleeps in the morning	A recessive gene

I recently decided to test my theory on two mothers of Super Children with kids away at college. I ambled over to one and said, "Does Martha write home much from school?"

"No," she answered, "Martha is so well adjusted and secure that she can cope with independence. What about you daughter?"

"She doesn't write either."

"Too bad," she sighed, "I guess that tells you where you rate."

I went on to the other woman and asked, "Does Phyllis write home often?"

"Oh, yes," she said. "Three times a week. Phyllis is a very loving girl. She has always been close to me. What about your daughter?"

"She writes three times a week, too," I said.

"What a pity," she said. "I'd worry to have a child so dependent."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY

DR. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long should one keep nitroglycerine tablets used for angina pectoris? And how can I tell if mine have deteriorated? — D.N.

There's no sure way to know if your tablets have retained their potency. It may be determined by the individual nitro user through his own reactions. For example, some users note a slight headache after taking a tablet. This is a vasodilation headache, and certainly indicates potency. Others may note a burning under the tongue, reflecting the vessel-expanding action of the drug locally. However, some may experience neither of these symptoms, even with full-potency medicine, so neither is entirely reliable.

Some doctors recommend renewing the nitroglycerine supply at least every three months, which seems reasonable to me. One must also remember that even a freshly-filled prescription can be of less than full potency. For readers unfamiliar with angina and nitroglycerine, I should explain that the medicine helps expand arteries, thus providing a surge of blood to nourish heart muscles. In angina, it is this deficiency of blood circulation to the heart muscles that causes the chest pain. Of course, relief of pain would be another reliable indicator of the drug's effectiveness — probably the surest. But it's best to learn to take nitroglycerine before pain occurs — as a preventative, as before vigorous exercise. Keep your tablets in a tightly-sealed brown glass bottle.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Two years ago I started getting swollen glands in my neck. I was experiencing pain under my arms. Now I have lumps under and behind my ears and all around my neck. I am a young woman, 20, eat well-balanced meals and get exercise and rest. For the last 10 months, though, the simplest physical efforts seem to exhaust me. These areas are frequently painful and always sore. Can I do anything about it? Is it serious? My doctor cannot determine the cause. — C.A.L.

Yes, this can be serious, and you should have something done about it. You need a complete blood test and a biopsy (removal of one of the lumps for detailed analysis). An excess of fatigue at your age suggests to me that you could have some serious disorder of the lymphatic system. I suggest you return to your doctor or see a specialist in internal medicine for a complete study.

• • •

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you give me any statistics as to the rate of success in corneal implants? I understand they are not always successful — K.S.

One hundred percent favorable odds are rare in medicine. The latest statistics I have on this procedure (about five years old) are probably reliable. They indicate that corneal transplants are completely successful in about 70 percent of the procedures done. About 20 percent are partially successful, and about 10 percent are unsuccessful, because of rejection of the tissue by the patient's body.

In such cases, a second or third transplant is often tried with success. This lets me get a plug in for the Lion's Clubs of the country, which are deeply involved in the cause of eye health, and specifically corneal transplants (eye banks).

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had a D and C. I am 47 years old. My problem is that I haven't had a period since the D and C, and when my husband and I have intercourse I stain for three or four days. What could be the cause? — R.L.

With the D and C, the membrane of the uterus is removed and has not regrown. So it is possible that at your age periods would end. But the spotting with intercourse can be an ominous sign. You should make sure that it is not blood from your husband (in the ejaculate). Otherwise, I urge a prompt examination. The problem may be in your cervix.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My mother is a dear person, now in her late 70s. She raised five daughters and I'd say she did a fairly good job of it considering she worked a 10-hour day in a dry goods store.

Mother formed our concepts about a great many things but my strongest recollection was her preoccupation with the condition of our underwear.

Almost every day for years Mama would remind us that we must always wear clean underwear — no pins or rips. Heaven forbid! She said, "A girl never knows when she will be in an accident, and nothing is more humiliating than being taken to the hospital in shabby or soiled underwear." According to Mama, the nurses and doctors talk of nothing else.

Have you heard from other readers who worried about such trivia? My sisters and I have laughed about it for years and now I've decided to write and inquire on behalf of the — Detroit Five

Dear Five: Your mother has lots of company. Many women are haunted by the same fear.

A very funny book by Liz Smith called "The Mother Book" (Publisher, Doubleday, $10.95) relates that HER mother was hung-up on underwear. One day the dear woman actually broke her neck in a car accident. The dutiful daughter rushed to the hospital and the first thing Liz's mother said was, "I had on my Christmas underwear, thank heavens!"

The book is hilarious. A perfect gift for anyone in a hospital no matter what the condition of her (or his) underwear when brought there.

Dear Ann Landers: Tomorrow night I won't be going to a family reunion because I can't open my right eye. My boyfriend hit me. It was over nothing at all. Actually, I couldn't remember his friend's name and he insisted I "forgot on purpose."

I must say he was awfully nice about it right after. He took me to a swell steak place and bought me two T-Bones — one to eat and one for my eye.

I am 17. Mike is 19. He is really a neat guy except for this one fault. He has hit me a couple of times before but never where it showed. Now I'm afraid if my folks guess what happened they will make me stop seeing Mike.

I don't want to stop. He's got lots of good qualities that make up for this bad one. I need your advice. — Hayward Reader

Dear Hay: What kind of advice? You've already told what a "neat guy" Mike is and that you don't want to stop seeing him. You've also told me he has hit you before. So now I will tell YOU that he will undoubtedly hit you again.

Don't be surprised if one day he clobbers you over something really important and puts you in the hospital.

Dear Ann: I'm sure lots of lonely people write to you. Since you are against lonely hearts clubs and computer dating, why not interview high-class prospects in your home? You could change a lot of lives. — Rogers, Ark.

Dear Ark: I could change lives all right — especially mine. All I need is to run a dating service — from my home yet. I want no part of playing Cupid. Everyone should find his own mate. He can then either thank himself or kick himself.

Hints from Heloise

DEAR READERS:

Are you a shower person? I am, and I just love to take a nice, long, relaxing warm shower.

But nothing is worse than pulling back the shower curtain after the shower and being shocked by the burst of cold air that is lurking behind the curtain, just waiting to get you.

Know what I do?

As soon as I turn off the shower I open the shower curtain just a crack — about two inches. This lets in just a little cold air.

I grab my towel and start drying off and after a few moments, I open the curtain about half way and let the rest of the cool air in.

This may sound ridiculous to you but, believe me, it sure makes a difference.

It's like walking into cold water a little at a time — not one big shock of icy air all at once. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

When making pot holders if you don't have any curtain rings for hooks, use aluminum zip-top beverage can rings.

I find they hang better than crocheted hooks or those made out of bias tape. — Mrs. William Cochrane

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a hint I learned from a man who fathered eight children — and now has to worry about grandchildren getting into mischief.

If "someone" has managed to flush an object which gets jammed, and the plumber's helper doesn't succeed, pour about one-half cup of dishwashing liquid in, plunge a little, wait a few hours, then plunge again and flush.

Somehow the soap makes the obstruction slippery enough to either come up or go down. It worked for me! — "Someone's" Mom

If this doesn't work, please call a plumber. — H.

DEAR HELOISE:

Please tell your readers how important it is to have the correct emergency phone numbers handy for the district in which you live.

When I moved to a large city, I called both fire and police headquarters, gave them my address, and asked for the correct emergency numbers for my district.

One of my neighbors just dialed the numbers listed in the front of the large city telephone directory in an emergency and had a terrible time getting the right fire department. — M.B.

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

Everyone having a blender knows you must have liquid with whatever vegetable, etc., you might be grating. Who wants to use water and then drain — whatta mess!

Anyway, I make carrot cake and zucchini bread quite often, and everyone knows what a job it is to grate these. However, both recipes I have call for oil.

So, I put the oil in the blender and add the carrots, zucchini or whatever, and turn on the blender. Works great and certainly saves a few skinned knuckles as well as time.

Also works for a cranberry salad I have which calls for ground cranberries as well as pineapple juice. Just use the juice for the liquid in the blender. — M.A.

• • •

DEAR HELOISE:

How many times have I been grateful for the lady's hint, "Use waterless hand cleaner on shirt collars." It works!

Now, simple hint in return.

If, while soaping your hands, you can train yourself to "roll" a bar of soap end over end instead of using the width, the bar won't wear thin and break into pieces so quickly.

Just sign me — Penny Watcher

DEAR HELOISE:

After hard-boiling eggs, I dry them off and mark each egg "H" with a lead pencil, then I store them in the refrigerator egg compartment for future use.

My husband often soft-boils eggs for breakfast and several times he's mistakenly soft-boiled an already hard-boiled one...This really gets his day off to a bad start!

But now he knows he must look for the big "H"! — Isla Cheadle

Reupholstery Tips Offered

By HERB ALEXANDER

Reupholstering your dining room chairs is a job you might consider doing even if the old fabric isn't too worn.

You can choose from cotton, synthetic or plastic material that you can buy by the yard.

First job is to remove the seat of the chair. Flip the chair over. Remove the screws that hold the seat to the frame. These are generally in the corners.

Number each seat and frame. They may look the same, but you'll get a better fit if you put each seat back on its original frame.

With the seat out of the frame, you can remove the old covering. Use a chisel to lift the tacked-down fabric so that you don't tear it or splinter the wood.

Under the fabric is padding, generally fastened right down to the seat. If you haven't let the job go too long this should be in good condition. But if the cover was worn, chances are the padding is worn as well. A layer of cotton felt will correct this.

Next you're ready to begin cutting the new covers. Use the old cover as a pattern. Place it on the wrong side of the new material and trace with a crayon. If there's a pattern in the new material, make certain it is straight. Once you've traced the pattern, cut the cover with scissors.

Place the seat on the wrong side of the new cover, centering it on the fabric. Make certain the padded side of the seat is down.

Tack down one side of the material with a single tack in the center of that edge. Then draw the material tight and place a tack in the center of the opposite edge.

Then draw up the other two sides and tack the same way.

Complete the tacking of each side, but leave the corners free. Tack within 2 or 3 inches of the corner. Be sure to continue to draw the material tight as you tack. Use upholsterer's tacks. Although you don't need a tack hammer, you'll find this type easier to use for the job than the conventional type.

The corners are the toughest part of the job. The excess material must be folded neatly so that the fabric doesn't pucker. Make certain the corners are flat and not bunched. The old seat cover may provide a clue on folding.

With the seat covered as tightly and neatly as you can make it, you are ready to reassemble the chair.

Place the seat in the frame and put the screws back in. If the screws seem to vary in length, and you didn't keep them separated, make sure that none of them is so long that it might poke through the cover.

North's two-club bid was Stayman to ask if South held a four-card major suit. South's two heart bid showed four hearts and implied less than four spades, whereupon North jumped to three notrump.

This was a slight overbid and the contract most optimistic.

North-South have only seven top tricks. The total is brought to eight by the lucky location of the ace of spades in the West hand, which assures that both the king and queen of spades will score. But from where will the ninth trick come?

The opening spade lead was won by the queen in dummy. Declarer led a low diamond, which he ducked, allowing West's 10 to take the trick. West cashed the ace of spades and continued with the 10. It was won by the king in dummy. Both East and South discarded hearts.

South decided to allow West to take his top spade tricks early. He led the last spade from dummy — East and South again discarding hearts — and West won. Without thinking, West cashed his last spade and hearts were pitched from the other three hands.

West led the diamond queen which South won with the king. The hand was over! South had made the contract. It was just a matter of playing out the string.

If South led the ace of hearts, East was dead. He had been killed by his own partner. The ace of hearts forced East to pitch either a diamond or a club and either discard set up the ninth trick for declarer.

If West had not cashed his last spade, East would have had one more card in his hand — a heart — and could not have been squeezed. West would never have cashed that last spade, but East would have taken two tricks — one each in clubs and diamonds.

West should have been on his guard when declarer so readily allowed him to cash the top spade tricks. The lesson is an ancient one: Beware of certain people who bear gifts.

Ex-Bank Official Gets Prison Term

HOUSTON (AP) — A former Wharton bank vice president has been sentenced to 30 months in prison by U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue.

Thomas James Sawyer, 33, pleaded guilty June 26 to two counts of willful misapplication of funds by a bank employee.

Tom Morrill, Sawyer's lawyer, said Sawyer had attempted to live a lifestyle he thought a small-town banker should maintain and used the money to pay living expenses.

Sawyer, who was vice president and installment loan officer of the Wharton Bank and Trust, made 28 false loans totaling $48,500 and took the money himself between March 1977 and May 1978, Morrill said.

Sawyer, employed now as a gravel truck driver, received 30 months in prison on each of the two counts.

GEORGE MEANY

Meany Retire At 84? No Such Thought

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of Washington's most durable and dour denizens, AFL-CIO President George Meany, turns 84 today, but the occasion isn't prompting any thoughts of retirement.

"Retiring? Oh, I haven't been thinking about that lately," the cigar-chomping labor boss told reporters at a recent news conference.

"My health is fairly good. I suppose if my health should deteriorate, I might think about it. But at the moment I feel pretty good, thank you."

Meany, organized labor's leader for more than 22 years, was being saluted Tuesday night at a dinner billed as a "family affair."

That was an understatement since a crowd of about 1,000 politicians, labor leaders and other capital scene-makers turened out for the bash.

The dignitaries included Vice President Walter F. Mondale and Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, who some observers said might use the occasion to smooth over differences between Meany and the Carter administration.

Marshall publicly chastised Meany for the first time last Friday for what the secretary called unwarranted attacks on an administration that generally has supported labor issues.

Meany has said President Carter is a weak and ineffective chief executive that the administration takes anti-labor positions.

Marshall had played down the seriousness of the rift with the AFL-CIO, which campaigned for Carter to be president. The secretary says the administration and labor share too many common goals to break off their relationship.

Meany, a gruff-talking former plumber, has served as the only head of the 14 million-member labor federation.

Meany was re-elected without opposition to a 12th two-year term as AFL-CIO president last December, dispelling any belief that his organization thinks he is too old to direct organized labor.

He was hospitalized several times in 1976 with a chronic bronchial condition. He had a cataract removed from his right eye late that year, and had a growth removed from his nose last October.

Meany wears thick, dark glasses and uses a cane, but aides say he is active and goes to evening functions two or three times a week.

He is alert and responsive at news conferences and hasn't lost the acrid sense of humor that has become a Meany trademark.

Bleak Future Forecast For Developing Nations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Developing countries have failed to raise the living standards of their poorest citizens in the past 25 years and will face greater difficulty in trying to build their economies in the future, the World Bank said in a report issued Tuesday.

The first annual World Development Report by the international lending institution proved to be a gloomy prospectus for the developing nations, saying that unless they can obtain more foreign capital and resist protectionist trends, they will be unable to maintain even present rates of progress.

The report says that because developing nations are heavily dependent on economic aid and export markets provided by the wealthier industrialized countries, "the importance of links between them should be recognized."

Statistically, the World Bank report lists 34 "low income" countries where the annual income is less than $250 per person per year, and 58 "middle income" countries, where the income is above that level, as the world's developing nations. It lists 19 "industrial" nations, three "capital surplus oil exporters," and 11 with "centrally planned economies."

Overall, the report says the developing countries have grown "impressively" over the past 25 years with per capita income growth increasing from about 2 percent annually in the 1950s to 3.4 percent in the 1960s. It said that compares "extremely favorably" with growth rates in developed countries, where personal income grew by less than 2 percent in most cases.

However, it said growth rates have been generally less in the low income counties of Asia and Africa "where a majority of the world's poor live."

Calling export markets the key to economic progress for developing countries, the report warned that protectionism and import quotas on many goods raise conditions that are "noticeably adverse" for the economic future of those countries.

"The prospects for the growth of developing countries' export earnings now appear much less favorable for the next decade than for the last two," the World Bank said.

The poorest nations, where three fourths of the people are dependent on agriculture, possibly could double their rate of agricultural and economic growth from the recent average of 3 percent per year to 5 percent, the report said. But it said this would demand "strenuous efforts" to reorient economic policy and obtain more foreign capital.

In a foreword to the report, World Bank President Robert S. McNamara describes "absolute poverty" as "a condition of life so characterized by malnutrition, illiteracy, disease, squalid surroundings, high infant mortality and low life expectancy as to be beneath any reasonable definition of human decency."

The report says some 800 million people now live under such circumstances and predicts that by 2000, at least 600 million people will still be without minimum food, housing, sanitation, jobs, health care, education or safe drinking water.

World Bank officials conceded that in view of their own projection that the world's population will increase from its present 4 billion to about 5.9 billion by the year 2000, those figures are optimistic rather than pessimistic.

However, they called the 600 million figure "marginal — the best you can get," and pointed out that the report says there is no prospect for reducing poverty below that level unless the industrialized nations step up aid to underdeveloped areas and keep their own markets open to imports from the poorer nations.

"It should be obvious that industrialized countries have a large stake in an international economy that supports the efforts of developing countries to sustain rapid growth and alleviate poverty as quickly as possible," the report said.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

They're at it again in the halls of Congress, fashioning still more revisions to the Internal Revenue Code, to bring about what they like to call tax "reform."

That word, as used in Washington, cries out for quotation marks. Every time our solons write new tax laws, simplification seems to be the last thing in their minds. As a result, complication rules the income tax return preparation roost.

The complications written into the tax code over the years have resulted in many inequities. Just about the worst of these low blows is the devastating tax bite on the so-called profit from the sale of the average person's home.

If you bought your house, say, 20 years ago, at $20,000 and sell it now at the not unlikely price of $50,000, the tax code says you have a $30,000 profit — taxable as a long-term capital gain.

Because of the complications brought about by the last tax "reform" act, long-term capital gains can be hit with a tax as high as 49 percent. Ignored, meanwhile, is the obvious fact that the $30,000 "profit" isn't a real profit. It's just an increase in number of dollars, brought on by inflation.

It's possible to postpone the tax bite by buying or building a more expensive home. But, when retirement time rolls around and you either buy a smaller, less expensive home or move into a rental residence, you are finally stuck and required to pay taxes on the capital gain on the sale of your last home and also on all capital gains you have postponed from the sale of previous homes.

People 65 and older get some small relief. They pay no tax, if the adjusted sales price of their home is $35,000 or less. The tax bite on the amount above $35,000 is pared down, a bit, through a very complicated formula.

The unfairness of this entire situation shrieks for real reform. Some congressmen are finally listening. The tax bill approved by the House Ways and Means Committee contains a provision for a once-in-a-lifetime exemption from capital gains taxes of up to $100,000 for people who sell their homes — their "principal residences."

That bill, however, is still a long way from being passed by both houses of Congress and signed into law by the president. The Carter administration has waffled all over the place on proposals to reduce taxes on all capital gains but now seems to be willing to go along with the home sale tax exemption provision.

Unless that provision becomes the law of the land, more and more Americans are going to be stuck with monsterous tax bills. This is one subject about which people should let their views be known — by writing their congressmen.

Q. I have bought some stocks through a big brokerage firm, which holds my stock certificates for me. Would it be a big problem for them to have the certificates issued in my name, so that I would hold them myself?

A. No problem, at all. You have your stocks in "street name," as many people do, for convenience and safe-keeping. If you want to take possession of your certificates, just tell the broker to have them issued in your name and sent to you.

But, then, make sure you keep them in a safe place — such as the lockbox at your bank.

• • •

Q. Does a broker generally give out reliable information on stocks? Or does he push stocks and deals that are mainly for his benefit?

A. I'm glad you used the world "generally." I'd say that brokers are "generally" reliable in their information. There are some bad apples in the barrel — as their are in any business. You'll have to judge your own broker by your own experience.

Government Pleased With Output Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's industries increased their output by 0.5 percent in July for the third consecutive month, a moderate gain that can help to unwind inflation without adding to unemployment, a government report showed Tuesday.

The increase fits nicely with the Carter administration's prediction that the nation's overall economy will grow at a rate of 3.5 percent to 4 percent during the second half of this year.

The Federal Reserve Board said production increased in July for consumer goods, equipment, construction supplies and materials.

A 0.3 percent increase in output of consumer goods was the first in three months, indicating that producers are betting that consumers do not plan sharp cutbacks in their purchases because of inflation, as some economists have feared.

But the small growth in consumer goods output in the three-month period also indicates there is no anticipation of a boom in consumer purchasing.

The board said automakers turned out new cars at an annual rate of 9.4 million in July, up from a 9.3 million rate in June. The figures were adjusted for seasonal variations.

The July industrial production index, which measures the output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities, stood at 145.3 percent of the 1967 average, and was 4.8 percent above the level of a year earlier.

The 0.5 percent gains in industrial production during each of the past three months compare with much larger increases in previous months. Production was up 1.6 percent in April, for example, as the nation's economy began to recover from the winter slowdown that was aggravated by the long coal strike.

The government is trying to steer the economy along a tightrope, slow enough to dampen the nation's serious inflationary pressures but steady enough to keep it from plunging into a new recession. The House-passed tax cut of $16 billion is intended to give the economy a boost early next year to keep it on a steady course.

Overall economic growth, as measured by the Gross National Product, was at an annual rate of 7.4 percent in the second quarter of the year. The administration is shooting for a growth rate of only half that size in the second half of 1978 and in 1979 as well.

It is feared that growth more rapid than 4 percent would make it difficult to contain inflation, which is now pushing up prices at an annual rate of more than 10 percent, a level the government considers intolerable.

However, substantially slower growth would worsen unemployment, an alternative that doesn't find favor in the administration, either.

The Federal Reserve Board said in its industrial production report that business equipment output increased 0.9 percent in July, while durable goods materials advanced 1 percent, reflecting continued gains in output of steel and equipment parts.

HOMES DAMAGED

JOHANNSBURG, South Africa (AP) — The homes of two "banned" white South Africans were damaged by shotgun blasts and gasoline bombs, police said Tuesday. They said the homes damaged Monday night belong to Beyers Naude, banned last Oct. 19 along with the Civil Rights Christian Institute he heads, and Helen Joseph, a white activist banned several times since the early 1960s.

REGIONAL

ROUNDUP

County Fair Scheduled In Clovis

A-J Correspondent

CLOVIS, N.M. — The 1978 Curry County Fair will begin Sept. 4 and run through Sept. 9 at the Fair Grounds here.

Activities for the fair week will begin with the crowning of Treca Bunce as 1978 Fair Queen and will include stock shows, gymnastic exhibitions and a rodeo.

Red Stegall and the Coleman County Cowboys also will be performing Sept. 4 and 5 in the coliseum on the grounds.

New Deal Junior Rodeo Set

A-J Correspondent

NEW DEAL — More than 200 entries are in for the New Deal Little Britches Rodeo which opens in the New Deal Arena at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

All-round cowboy and cowgirl in the senior division, 15 through 19 years, will receive $50 while winners in the junior (12-14) and peewee (11 and under) divisions will receive $25.

Bareback broncs will be shetlands for the peewees who will ride steers and compete in some steer daubing.

Junior and senior riders will be riding bulls and seniors also will be roping steers.

The event is sponsored by the New Deal Rodeo Association with stock furnished by King Rodeo of Seminole.

Pioneers To Be Honored

A-J Correspondent

CROSBYTON — The 52nd annual West Texas Pioneers and Old Settlers Association reunion will begin Saturday in the Pioneer Memorial Building here.

The day's activities begin at 9 a.m. with registration and coffee in the Pioneer Memorial Building and include a parade through downtown Crosbyton and a basket luncheon.

During the reunion Dip (Charlie) and Jennie Michael Fox of Lorenzo will be saluted as the honored pioneer couple. Longtime Crosbyton area cowboys Red Parker and Sam Grizzle will receive statuettes of themselves prepared by Crosbyton artist-sculptor Dwayne Cornelius.

Funds For Infant Being Collected

A-J Correspondent

CHILDRESS — A fund for Mr. and Mrs. Danny Murphy has been started at the First National Bank here.

Donations to the fund will be used to defray hospital expenses for the Murphys' infant daughter Tiffany.

The baby was a patient in an Amarillo hospital before she was transferred to the Texas Children's Hospital in Houston. While the actual diagnosis has not been made, a spokesman for the fund said early tests indicate a heart problem.

Donations should be sent to the Murphy Hospital Fund, First National Bank, Childress, 79201.

Howard County Budget Approved

A-J Correspondent

BIG SPRING — Howard County Commissioners approved a proposed $81,000 budget for the Howard County Tax Appraisal Office Tuesday.

The commissioners earlier had refused a proposed $140,000 budget, saying the maximum acceptable budget for the office would be $75,000. The new budget, however, was approved as presented by Tax Assessor-Collector Zirah Bednar.

A-J Correspondent

Winning top honors in the Tiny Miss Division was 4-year-old Alecia Weir of Childress. First runner-up was 5-year-old Ginger Ticer of Childress.

In the Little Miss category, first place went to Kristi Brooks, an 8-year-old from Paducah. First runner-up was 8-year-old Jana Lane of Childress.

In the Junior Miss Division, Christy Burford, 9, from Hereford, won first place, and Dena Brooks, a 9-year-old from Paducah, was named first runner-up.

Judges for the pageant were Mrs. Tom Dold, Mrs. Jack Hutson and Mrs. Tony Pierce, all of Amarillo.

Proceeds from the pageant will benefit the band program in the Childress Public School System.

'Hysterical' Trading Slows Dollar Drop Slightly

LONDON (AP) — The dollar's general decline on world money markets came to at least a temporary halt Tuesday afternoon, after falling earlier in the day to record lows against the Japanese yen, Swiss franc and West German mark.

Swiss and German dealers referred to the morning trading as "hysterical" as the dollar's value fluctuated.

Dealers cited profit-taking as a reason for the dollar's afternoon climb to higher levels, before it retreated slightly later in New York. "You might see the dollar resuming its fall again in the next few days," one New York trader said.

"The dollar has been sold for the last 10 days without any letup. People are now taking profits. It didn't take much to turn the situation rather dramatically," an American Express trader said.

Gold prices eased as the dollar recovered, closing unchanged in Zurich at $213.625 an ounce after soaring earlier in the day to an all-time high of $216.125. In London, the price declined to $213 from $216 earlier in the day and from Monday's close of $214.625.

In Washington, the U.S. Treasury said it sold 30,000 ounces of gold at its regular monthly auction for an average of $213.55 an ounce.

—In Zurich, it closed at 1.5940 Swiss francs, up from Monday's closing low of 1.5810. Later, in New York, it eased to 1.5725 francs, unchanged from the day before. At one point Tuesday, the dollar dropped to a record low of 1.5545 francs on the Zurich exchange.

—In Frankfurt, it closed slightly below Monday's close 1.9510. It slipped further in New York, closing at 1.9330 marks, up from 1.9252 marks Monday night. During the day in Frankfurt, the dollar dropped even lower — a record low fixing of 1.9290 marks and a trading low of 1.9172. The dollar has hit record lows for five of the last six days against the mark, which was worth 25 cents for most of the post-war period.

—In Tokyo, it hit 182.85 Japanese yen, a post-war closing low, down from 184.825 late Monday and 186.775 Friday. It fell in New York to 182.10 yen, down from Monday's 183.40.

Dealers said "panic selling" by Japanese banks and pressure from Mideast oil producers drove the dollar down to 181.80 yen at one point despite Bank of Japan purchases estimated at $10 million.

—In Amsterdam, it closed at 2.1090 guilders, down from 2.1190.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR AUG. 16, 1978

PHYSICAL
- Criticals: 3, 15, 26, 38, 49, 61, 72 — Take care, can get hurt
- Highs: 1-2, 16-25, 39-48, 62-71 — Endurance dominates day
- Lows: 4-14, 27-37, 50-60, 73-75 — Not prime time physically

EMOTIONAL
- Criticals: 4, 18, 32, 46, 60, 74 — Calculate your moves
- Highs: 1-3, 19-31, 47-59, 75-85 — High spirited day for you
- Lows: 5-17, 33-45, 61-73 — You've got the blues

INTELLECTUAL
- Criticals: 4, 20, 37, 53, 70, 86 — Potential danger
- Highs: 5-19, 38-52, 71-85 — Memory reliable
- Lows: 1-3, 21-36, 54-69, 87-95 — Don't start new projects

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

Four-Star General Retiring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Sam S. Walker, the Army's youngest four-star general who reportedy was caught in the middle of high-level Pentagon politics, is retiring, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

A brief announcement by Defense Secretary Harold Brown of Walker's retirement Oct. 1 gave no reason, and the general has refused to discuss the matter with newsmen.

Walker, a 53-year-old decorated veteran of the Korean and Vietnam wars, was commander of allied land forces in Southeastern Europe based in Turkey until July, when that four-star commad was transferred to a Turkish general for diplomatic reasons.

He then came to Washington, hoping for the new assignment. But he was kept in limbo while senior Army and Pentagon military and civilian officials jockeyed for their respective candidates for certain key jobs due to open up.

In the end, Defense Department sources said, Walker declined an offer to step down in rank to lieutenant general and become European Command chief of staff. There was no opening left for the four-star general so, in the view of these sources, Walker became surplus.

Gen. Alexander Haig, supreme allied commader in Europe, had strongly praised Walker's performance in Turkey during a time of strained U.S.-Turkish relations growing out of the U.S. embargo on arms sales to Turkey. A Senate-House conference committee has now voted conditionally to lift that embargo.

Brown said President Carter has approved Walker's nomination to be retired in his present rank of full general, ending more than 32 years of service.

Walker is the son of Gen. Walton H. Walker, who was kiled in the Korean War.

Born in Belgon, Texas, the younger Walker graduated from West Point and became an infantry officer in 1946.

During the Korean War, he won the Silver Star medal for heroism while in command of a rifle company.

An accomplished parachutist, Walker moved on through the Army's command and general staff college and graduated from the National War College, rated outstanding.

He led an infantry brigade in the Vietnam War before returning to the United States for advanced management training at the Harvard Business School.

Walker commanded the Third Infantry Division in Germany for two years and later served as deputy chief of the Army's Forces Command.

ADMIRAL GETS EXTENSION

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Maurice F. Weisner was given an additional year Tuesday to serve as U.S. commander-in-chief in the Pacific area. Weisner has been commander-in-chief of the Pacific since Sept. 1, 1976. He is a native of Knoxville, Tenn.

(Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems — fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. HEARTLINE: My husband (now deceased) did not draw his Social Security benefits until the age of 68 and therefore received a higher benefit. When I started to draw Social Security widow's benefits I did not get his full amount because of this. Can you tell me if I will receive an increase in the future? — I.R.

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare published regulations under which widows and widowers whose spouses worked past age 65 will receive higher benefits beginning last month.

The regulations implement provisions of the Social Security amendments of 1977, which granted widows and widowers a benefit increase if the deceased worker was entitled to a "delayed retirement credit" because of work performed after age 65. Under previous law, the delayed retirement credit was paid only to the worker, not to the widow or widower. The credit amounts to an increase of 1/12 of 1 percent in the worker's age 65 benefit for each month between 65 and 72 in which the worker postponed retirement.

The increased benefit will be paid to about 40,000 widows and widower starting with the Social Security check they received last month. The payment will be made automatically; they don't need to apply. The fiscal 1979 cost of the higher payment is $4 million.

• • •

HEARTLINE: I have an aunt in a nursing home who I care for very much. I am always worried about her safety in case of an emergency there. I thought that I read somewhere that there was legislation passed to upgrade their safety facilities. Do you know anything about this? — R.S.

The law you read about is probably the one which Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano is getting ready to propose. If passed it will make it mandatory that all nursing homes receiving federal funds be required to install automatic sprinkler systems for fire protection.

• • •

HEARTLINE: Can you tell me if a spouse or widow receiving a Railroad Retirement annuity on their husband will have their annuities reduced if they also qualify for a Civil Service or other public pension? —T.S.

Yes. But for the most part, annuity reductions for public pensions do not apply to individuals retiring in the next five years. Non-dependent husbands and widows who apply for annuities in December 1977 or later will be subject to such reductions. However, annuitants on the rolls as of November 1977 continue to receive their annuities without any reductions for public pensions. Nor does the reduction apply to wives, widows, dependent husbands and dependent widowers who are now eligible, or become eligible for public pensions or Civil Service pensions before December 1982, regardless of when they begin receiving Railroad Retirement or Social Security spouse or widow(er)'s benefits.

The spouse and widow(er) annuity reduction for Civil Service or public pensions applies for any retirement benefit based on an individual's own public service for the federal government, for a state, or for any political subdivision of a state.

City Woman Named To Health Position

Marie Milliken of Lubbock, MBFA Foundation's executive director of health services, has been appointed as a member of the Medical Care Advisory Committee of the Texas Department of Human Resources.

She will be serving along with representatives of the various specialties and disciplines involved in providing health care. The committee advises the state's professional staff responsible for administering Texas' Medical Assistance Program.

Mrs. Milliken is immediate past president and a board member of the Texas Association of Home Health Agencies and a board member of the National Association of Home Health Agencies.

Mrs. Milliken's committee appointment was announced by Jerome Chapman, commissioner of the Texas Department of Human Resources. The next scheduled meeting of the committee is Sept. 9.

TURN ON THE LIGHT — The National Association of Letter Carriers for the State of Texas will have a "Porchlight Campaign" for muscular dystrophy Thursday evening. NALC members across Texas will return on their routes, in uniform, and accept donations for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Persons wishing to make donations are requested to turn on their porchlights between 7 and 8 p.m. Lubbock carriers Al Edwards, right, and Gene Snodgrass are on either side of Poster Child Donnie Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Roberts.

Backyard Carnival Takes On Backers

Lucy Edwards of Woodrow three weeks ago began planning a backyard carnival for her 15-year-old son who has muscular dystrophy.

The private affair, though, has become a community project, as Woodrow merchants have donated prizes and set a fund-raising goal of $4,000.

The carnival will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday one-and-a-half blocks west of the Tahoka highway on FM 1585. From 2:30 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. Sunshine Sally, children's hostess from Channel 13, will preside over the activities which include a dunking booth, sponsored by radio station KLLL, horse and buggy rides and skill games.

Carnival organizers with the help of the Cooper Lions Club and Cooper High School also will sponsor a cake auction from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. and a dance contest from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Local merchants have donated a .22-caliber rifle, three dinner tickets, a clock and several large toys for raffle drawings which will be held every 30 minutes.

There also will be a wishing well, which Mrs. Edwards says they hope to fill "to wish away muscular dystrophy."

Firm Deals Power For Plant Interest

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Electric Service Co. recently sold electric power generated by its cheapest natural gas supply in exchange for interest in a lignite plant, a company official said Tuesday.

"I believe our customers will benefit from this deal with Texas Power Light Co," TESCO President William Marquardt said during the first day of Texas Public Utility Commission hearings on the company's $110 million rate increase.

TESCO serves a 48-county region, including the cities of Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Midland, Odessa, Arlington and Big Spring.

The company received a $44 million rate hike December 1977, but contends it needs 24.4 percent more revenue for conversion of natural gas and oil plants to lignite and nuclear fuels.

Under the company's proposals, TESCO residential customers now paying $40 monthly electric bills would pay $52.39.

Utility commission attorney John Bell asked Marquardt if the company's deal with TPL eventually will cost customers more in fuel adjustment costs.

"In making the deal, we were able to continue building of those (lignite) units instead of stopping them," the president said, emphasizing future benefits to customers.

TESCO, TPL and Dallas Power & Light are subsidiaries of Texas Utilities Co. The Texas Utilities system has completed five jointly owned, lignite fueled units and will complete two others this fall, said he would make a similar deal now with a non-sister company.

Two lignite units at the Martin Lake plant in East Texas are involved in the TESCO-TPL transaction, Bell said during a recess.

TPL was reimbursed for its cost in the lignite plant, and in addition it got a bonus. TESCO agreed to sell power based on its cheapest fuel," Bell said.

Yantis Cites Closeness Of Agencies

AUSTIN (AP) — The insurance rate-making State Insurance Board is too closely associated with the state agency administration of Texas insurance companies, said former insurance board chairman Hugh Yantis.

"I think it would be best to let the governor appoint the state commissioner of insurance instead of the board," Yantis told the House Investigating Committee Tuesday.

"I don't think the board has the time to be a truly rate-making body and at the same time be as close to the agency as it has been in the past. There needs to be a further separation of the board and the agency. This means the role of the commissioner would be far more important than it has been."

Yantis was recently turned down by the Texas Senate as Gov. Dolph Briscoe's appointee. A new State Insurance Board chairman has not been named.

Yantis was called by the investigating committee after Monday testimony by C. Daniel Hurlburt, former Houston insurance agent who lost his license for selling unapproved group health policies. Hurlburt said he and his partner, A.C. Hovater, were duped by Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co. in 1974-75. Hurlburt said they sold Nation-Wide Health Insurance Trust plans after being assured by Gulf Atlantic Life Insurance Co. the plans has been approved by the state insurance board.

Yantis said the Hurlburt-Hovater incident happened during the time that Joe Christie was state insurance board chairman. Christie resigned in September 1977 to make an unsuccessful race for U.S. Senate and Yantis took his place.

City Schools Slate 'Information Day' On Integration Plan

Parents and children who are to change schools this fall under court-ordered integration will get a preview of the coming semester Friday.

An "Information Day" will be held from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at all elementary and junior high schools affected by the Lubbock Independent School District desegregation plan.

At the elementary level, buses will be available to carry parents and students to and from their court-ordered "sister schools."

The event is co-sponsored by the school system and Lubbock's Opportunity for Our Kids (LOOK), a coalition supporting smooth implementation of the integration plan.

At a press conference Tuesday, the LOOK steering committee said principals and Parent-Teacher Association members will be on hand at the affected schools Friday to answer questions and provide tours.

Parents visiting the campuses will be able to obtain printed information on the desegregation plan, school procedures and bus routes, said Louise Cummins, general coordinator of the coalition.

In addition, she said, parents will have a chance to ride buses along the exact routes their children will be taking to school next year.

Mrs. Cummins said that on Friday, buses will make three round trips between each neighborhood elementary school and its corresponding sister campus. The buses will stay at each sister school long enough for parents and students to tour the facilities and pick up information, she said.

The buses will be departing the neighborhood schools at 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m., Mrs. Cummins said.

The exchange program is designed primarily for families that will be affected by integration-related assignments during the first semester of the 1978-79 school year, she said. However, parents and students who will be affected the second semester, or in later years, also are invited to participate.

Parents with questions about Friday's activities or other aspects of desegregation may call the LOOK Information Center, 765-8546.

The Lubbock school system's court-ordered integration is a combination of voluntary and mandatory student reassignments. It will involve busing about 2,000 elementary children and 300 secondary students a day.

At the secondary level, Struggs Junior High has been closed as a junior high school. The facility has been combined with Dunbar High as a magnet school to draw students from throughout the city.

Although it is not officially part of "Information Day," questions about the Dunbar-Struggs High School may be answered by calling or visiting that campus. The school still is accepting enrollment for the coming year.

During the 1978-79 year, seventh-graders living in the former Struggs zone will be transported to Atkins Junior High; eighth-graders to Hutchinson Junior High; and ninth-graders to O.L. Slaton Junior High.

Buses for the Struggs students will not be running Friday. However, the receiving junior high schools will be open to provide information to Struggs students and parents.

At the elementary level, the desegregation plan involves:

—Closing Sanders and transporting its students to Guadalupe, and closing Southeast and transporting its students to Brown. Such transportation will not be provided Friday. To participate in "Information Day," students in the Sanders and Southeast areas should report directly to Guadalupe and Brown, respectively.

—Creating a magnet school at Iles. Instead of Friday, Iles will be holding its open house Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

—Establishing a cross-assignment of students between six minority elementary schools and all predominantly white elementary schools in the city.

Each white elementary school has been designated to send one or two grade levels to a minority school. Students whose last names begin with A through L will be transported the first semester of the designated grade levels; other students will be transported the second semester.

Each of the six minority schools will transport grades one through six to a white school. Students whose last names begin with A through L will be transported for grade one, three and five; other students, for grades two, four and six.

● SOPHISTICATED OLDER HOME ● NEAR TECH-perfect for two professors or a Tech couple who entertain but do not need more than 2 bedrooms. Perfect condition and built when homes were really well built! Pat 799-2016 or Kristina 745-6904

● "GI EQUITY-4 MONTHS" ● Old-Young couple have to leave town and their pretty almost new home with GI loan established and you can assume if you meet terms! 3 bedrooms, living den, fireplace, refrigerated. Cheaper than rent!! Mary 797-8189.

● INDIAN SUMMER FANTASIES ● TOWERING TREES, almost an acre estate: 4 bedroom, 2 story formal and informal. NEEDS redecorating-4 bedrooms, playroom, maid's room-Rush area! Pat 799-2016 Jan 799-5024

● "SPARKLE, SPARKLE" ● LIKE a diamond in the sunshine!! 3 bedroom-"young" family area-unusual plan. Vacant for quick possession! Pat 799-2016, Bonnie 792-8364

● "SUNKIST GARDEN ROOM!!!" ● A riot for citrus colors in foliage and carpet!! 3 bedrooms, living den, garden room-VACANT and ready to live in!! Jan 799-5024/ Margaret 799-6909

● "LOOK A-HEAD LIVING!!" ● A marvelous one owner home just a block from Parsons!! New listings with the largest closets we've seen in a "coon's" age!! Large living room, den, BIG country kitchen with 3 VERY large bedrooms. The garden and yard is perfectly cared for with storage house for tools and junk. The covered quarry tiled patio would cost an arm & leg to do today!! Records on all equipment and utility bills! New listing Pat 799-2016, Kristina, 745-6904 (retiring widow).

● "PASSION FLOWERS" ● Bougainvilla blooms and lacy hanging baskets in the hot house, lush tree and shrub plantings, vegetable garden almost ready combined with 3 br 2 baths and living den — (fpl panelled) double garage. Just listed —vacant—owner is anxious!! Mary 797-8189

● "OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS" ● NOW hear this!! 3 and den — TRASHED out— good brick neighborhood NEEDS everything for sure!! Bob 797-8645 — Bonnie 792-8364

TOYOTA

A TOUGH CHOICE FOR 1978!

One extra long. Both extra tough. Choose the standard bed or the extra large 7-foot bed. Either way you're in for one tough truck! Both are powered by a responsive 2.2 liter SOHC engine. So you can haul up to an 1100 pound payload, with ease. And, because they're Toyotas you know they're quality engineered and built tough...to last! Standard Bed or Long Bed...either way it's a tough choice. See them today!

Shortbed
Mfg. sugg. retail
$4785.80
$4249.21
Stk. no. 183

Long bed
Mfg. sugg. retail

Sign Up For Independence

When young people sign up for newspaper route work, they are really signing up for independence. The kind of independence that goes with earning your own money, running your own business and dealing with people on a one-to-one basis.

Our carriers are young business men and women. They provide a vital service, handle their own finances and reap a handsome profit from their efforts. What better training to prepare them for the future?

If you are interested in stepping into the business world and declaring your own independence, contact our carrier manager right now. He'll give you all of the important facts about carrier work. Then, if you are still interested, he'll provide the pen and show you where to sign . . . even if your name is John Hancock.

Police Seek Pair In Burglary Probe

James Simpson, a salesman with Billy's Auto Sales No. 2 at 1711 Ave. Q, said he discovered the burglary Tuesday about 9 a.m. when he opened the shop. The burglars broke a door window to get inside the building, Simpson said, and took a stereo, battery charger, tools, radio and cassette tape deck.

In other burglary reports, Christoval T. Lopez told police that whoever broke into his home at 4702 Vanda Ave. took $625 worth of property, including a television, sewing machine and clothing. Reports indicate the intruders kicked in the back door of the residence.

Manager Kevin Hart said he discovered Tuesday that five masks, including the likenesses of Frankenstein, Dracula and a gorilla, were missing from the facility. He valued the masks at $100. Hart said the burglars also caused about $100 damage to the structure by breaking light fixtures and daubing paint on the walls.

Ana Reyes, director of the Rawlings Community Center at 40th Street and Avenue B, said someone took a $150 sewing machine from the center Monday or Tuesday. She told police she thought the burglar may have hidden in a bathroom until the center closed.

Sheriff's deputies Tuesday were looking for three Mexican-Americans thought to have made a large haul Thursday from two houses about a mile south of Shallowater.

Follis' across-the-road neighbor, Arthur L. Burnett, also reported being burglarized, suffering a loss of several hundred dollars worth of jewelry, radios, a television and stereo equipment.

About a dozen bottles of cough medicine were also missing from Burnett's home.

Neighbors said they saw a tan-colored pickup truck near the two homes about 12:30 p.m. Monday.

In other reported crimes, city police were looking for a man who allegedly exposed himself to three young girls at an East 24th Street park shortly before 4 p.m. Monday.

The girls told police they were sitting on a bench when the man came up and unzipped his pants. He was last seen walking from the park toward Weber Drive.

The Firestone Tire and Rubber Company store at 1420 Ave. J was broken into between noon Saturday and 8 a.m. Monday and $1,184 worth of tires, wheels and tools stolen, store assistant manager James Hagee said.

Tires, wheels, a tape player and a steering wheel were reportedly taken in a break-in at Cars, Inc., 1116 Slaton Highway. An employee, Darryl Cox, said the items totaled about $1,200 loss and were taken by stripping cars on the lot.

Buddy Gibson, owner of Buddy's Transmission at 1334 E. 19th St. told police his place was burglarized between Lanny George Phillips said a paint compressor and spray gun, with a combined value of $1,350, were taken from the bed of his truck while it was in a motel parking on Avenue Q between 9:45 p.m. and 10:15 p.m. Monday.

Burglars made off with a stereo and a tape player valued at $1,468 from the home of Adela Cox at 1716 E. Amherst Ave. between noon and 1 p.m. Thursday.

Authorities Await Test Results In City Bombing

Authorities will have to wait for test results to determine if Monday's bombing of the La Malinche Restaurant and Tortilla Factory is connected with a similar incident at an Alcoholics Anonymous center three months ago, a Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms spokesman said.

Henry L. Kinnison, ATF resident agent in charge, said although the restaurant bomb appeared to be intentionally set, "there's nothing now that says it is or isn't (connected to the May bombing.)"

Kinnison said evidence recovered Monday, including "two plastic chunks, one with a black and red fiber embedded," were sent to the bureau's lab at Atlanta, Ga. Processing of the material, he said, usually takes between 10 weeks and two months.

Two doors at the back of the building were blown from their hinges into the structure and a neighboring window also was destroyed. Restaurant owner Robert Lugo said repairs on the south side of the building would cost about $600.

Local ATF agent Lewis Beavers also was called to the scene and, according to police reports, spoke with a possible witness to the bombing.

Police said there was a strong odor of sulphur or gunpowder at the center. A similar smell was reported at the restaurant Monday night.

Suit Claims New Deal Tax Illegal

A suit has been filed against the city of New Deal and the New Deal Independent School District, with plaintiffs claiming authorities have levied an illegal property tax against them.

The suit also asks 99th Dist. Judge Thomas L. Clinton to issue a writ of mandamus requiring defendants to comply with provisions of the Texas Constitution and state civil statutes which plaintiffs contend have been violated.

Plaintiffs claim in the suit that appraisals and assessments placed on their property are highly excessive, whereas other properties were assessed at or below market value.

The petition alleges that the appraisals and assessments of their property are so unfair in relation to tax assessments for similarly situated property that it is tantamount to confiscation and deprives them of property without due process of law.

According to the plaintiffs, defendants did not comply with a state constitutional provision requiring that all property be taxed uniformly according to the reasonable market value.

Nursery stock belonging to the plaintiffs was assessed for tax purposes, the suit says. Plaintiffs say in the suit that any assessment taxed upon the nursery stock violates a provision of the state constitution.

Plaintiffs also say apple trees were valued and assessed as personal property in violation of a provision of state civil statutes.

In an alternative second count to the petition, plaintiffs ask the court to set an assessment of taxes on their property as of Jan. 1.

The board of adjustment and tax assessor-collector were also named defendants in the suit.

Porous Skylight Soaks Courthouse

WASHINGTON (AP) — A leaky skylight over the lobby of the new District of Columbia Courthouse left six courtrooms, corridors and escalators drenched.

The skylight covers a six-story high lobby of the new, $40 million courthouse. The skylight's drainage system was unable to handle more than an inch of rain in two hours Sunday night. The excess water came into the courthouse through "weepholes" in the skylight, which are designed to let condensation escape from inside the building.

Two of the courtrooms will require repairs, said the building's manager, Michael Williams.

DPS Tells Drivers To Watch For Kids

With the first day of school this fall only a few weeks away, the Texas Department of Public Safety here urged drivers to exercise extreme caution.

"Many of our youngsters will be going to school for the first time and will not be aware of the many hazards existing on Texas' busy streets and highways," said Major C.W. Bell, regional commander of the DPS.

"Precautionary measures such as traffic signs and signals, safety zones and pedestrian crosswalks are virtually useless if the children have not been taught good pedestrian habits," he said.

Children should be instructed to observe all traffic signs and signals, to walk against the flow of traffic and cross streets only at designated crosswalks, Bell said.

"As parents, we must be absolutely sure our children have a clear understanding of traffic dangers. In addition, as drivers, we must always be on the lookout for school children. It is our responsibility as parents, as motorists and as citizens," said Bell.

Mysterious Goo Soaks Parking Lot

TROY, Mich. (AP) — A smelly, greenish-yellow goo has been gurgling for 11 days through a hole in the pavement of the parking lot of an apartment complex in this suburb north of Detroit, and nobody's sure what it is or where it's coming from.

A resident of the Family Affair Apartments says the substance punched a half-dozen holes in the inch-thick asphalt of the parking lot when it first appeared. Since then, it has slithered out in spurts, smelling like rotten eggs and leaving behind a trail of dried white powder as it flows down an incline. Area chemists say the non-toxic goo could be hydrogen sulfide produced in bedrock.

The Avalanche-Journal means value. Value that is both tangible and intangible.

Intangible value that comes with the quality of news coverage you receive by reading The Avalanche-Journal — a level of editorial excellence on the local, national and international levels unparalleled in West Texas.

Then there are the tangible benefits derived from reading the Avalanche-Journal. The cash benefits. The money you can save by subscribing to the A-J.

For instance, we publish a variety of store coupons each week. By using just some of them, you can save enough on purchases to more than pay for that week's A-J. Add to this the many advertised sales and your savings are greater.

All this boils down to one point. Subscribing to The Avalanche-Journal is more than getting a newspaper. It's making a profitable investment.

ARTISTRY — While work continues on the lettermen's lounge-ticket office at the north end of Texas Tech's Jones Stadium, an unseen crew has been at work decorating the stands. Using the stadium seat-backs, these unknown artists put their touches and their hopes to the arena. The art work can be seen by motorists driving west on 4th or 6th streets. The stadium, empty now, will be seeing the start of Tech football drills beginning next Monday. The Raiders will report in Saturday but no actual on-field work will begin until next week. Kadish, Colts' Mitchell Among Pros Getting Axe

By The Associated Press

National Football League clubs cut their rosters to 60 players Tuesday with veteran stars Lydell Mitchell of the Baltimore Colts and Mike Kadish of the Buffalo Bills among the familiar names who were at least temporarily dropped.

Mitchell and Kadish, both involved in contract disputes and holding out, were placed on their clubs' reserve lists, an administrative category for players who have not reported to their training camps. Should either player settle his problem and show up, the clubs would have to drop another player.

Two other veterans were among the Colts and Bills cuts. Baltimore released six players including kick return specialist Howard Satterwhite while veteran defensive tackle Marvin Upshaw was among the eight players dropped by Buffalo.

The Bills also were active in the trade market, swapping veteran tight end Paul Seymour to Pittsburgh and sending runningback Stan Winfrey to Detroit. In exchange, the Bills obtained wide receiver Frank Lewis from the Steelers and an undisclosed draft choice from the Lions.

Seymour, a strong blocker, was Buffalo's No.1 draft choice in 1973 and was an integral member of the offensive line unit that blocked for O.J. Simpson, who was traded by the Bills to San Francisco during the off-season. Seymour's best receiving season was 1976 when he caught 16 passes for 169 yards. Last year he was used mostly in running situations and caught just two passes.

Lewis, a seven-year veteran, has caught 128 passes for 2,086 yards and 16 touchdowns in his NFL career.

In another cut-day trade, New Orleans swapped veteran defensive back Chuck Crist to San Francisco for linebacker Skip Vanderbundt. Crist was one of the Saints' leading defensive players last season with 102 tackles. Vanderbundt has started every game for the past three seasons with the 49ers. New Orleans also waived six players including veteran wide receiver Don Herrmann.

Green Bay placed quarterback Lynn Dickey on its reserve list. Dickey has been slow to recover from a broken leg suffered last season. The Packers also dropped veteran wide receiver Ollie Smith, who caught 22 passes for 357 yards last season, and asked waivers on veteran linebacker Fred Carr, who has been involved in a dispute over possible knee surgery.

Carr has requested the operation but the club has refused and general manager-coach Bart Starr said the linebacker had "failed to honor verbal commitments and made a mockery of our conditioning and training program."

Kansas City and Cleveland both cut free agent runningbacks to reach the 60-man limit. The Chiefs dropped John Smith of Boise State and the Browns released Reuben Gibson of Memphis State.

Atlanta cut 10 players including No. 6 draft choice Rodney Parker, a wide receiver from Tennessee State, while the New York Jets dropped six players including second year wide receiver Shelton Diggs.

NFL teams must cut their rosters to 50 players by next Tuesday and to 45 before the start of the regular season.

The New York Jets cut six players, wide receiver Shelton Diggs, punter Bob Grupp, cornerback Mike Harris, runningback Nick Giaquinto, guard Ben Lazaro and quarterback Bob Nelson. All were in NFL camps for the second year except for Nelson, a rookie from Shippensburg State.

Swim Journeys End In Failure

By The Associated Press

Diana Nyad and Stella Taylor gave up their attempts at 100-mile open-ocean marathon swims Tuesday, defeated by tides, winds and vicious ocean currents.

"I quit. I'm sorry. I tried so hard," sobbed Miss Nyad as she was pulled aboard her escort boat. "I've never done anything so hard in my life."

Miss Nyad, a 28-year-old who had spent a year preparing for her venture, made it less than halfway to the Florida Keys from Cuba. Miss Taylor, 46, was only about 10 miles from her goal in her Bahamas-to-Florida swim when she gave up.

Miss Taylor was pulled aboard her companion boat shortly after 3 p.m. about 10 miles off Jensen Beach, according to Jack Crouser, an onshore spokesman for her crew.

"All I know is that the tides turned on Stella and she just couldn't fight it and had to give it up," Crouser said.

Miss Taylor used no shark cage. Paddlers on large surfboards flanked her to ward off sharks. Her first day out she had to leave the water three times when a shark approached. The shark was killed by a boat crewman.

Miss Nyad, swelling from the stings of a jellyfish, abandoned her attempt Tuesday morning. Her trainer estimated she had gone more than 70 miles during her 41 hours in the water, but she still had not completed even half the 103-mile distance to Key West because strong winds from the east had blown her shark cage off course.

Both women were trying to establish an open-water distance record.

Miss Nyad had persisted despite seasickness and fatigue. She had kept going even though her mouth blistered and her tongue swelled after she was stung by poisonous jellyfish.

She appeared to be stroking strongly and pleaded to continue when she was pulled aboard at 7:45 a.m. CDT.

"I can't quit now. I can't quit. You don't understand. Is there another place to go?" she said.

Blazers Look For Trade

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Portland Trail Blazer officials originally tried to talk Bill Walton out of his request for a trade, but the 6-foot-11 center wouldn't budge, the Blazers attorney said Tuesday.

"We analyzed with him his complaints and tried to dissuade him from his views, but he was intractable," attorney Frank Rothman said. "We finally decided that under the circumstances we'd attempt to see if we could arrange a trade."

The Blazers announced Aug. 4 that they would try to trade Walton, but previously they refused to discuss why.

Walton, after meeting with officials from four National Basketball Association teams, decided Sunday that he wants to play for the Golden State Warriors.

Warriors general manager Scotty Stirling began telephone negotiations Tuesday morning with Stu Inman, director of player personnel for the Blazers. The Blazers have said they will not agree to a deal with Golden State unless they get a satisfactory trade.

"We haven't decided to give him up," Rothman said. "We decided to attempt to work out a trade. . .He will be under contract to Portland until we can make a trade that is acceptable to us. . .It is for us in Portland to decide what trade we want to make, not for Walton."

Amherst Sees District Crown As Possibility

BY SCOTT SUDDUTH
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

AMHERST — Although he can't see much of the outside world from his office under the basketball bleachers, Dwayne Gray still has a bright outlook on the upcoming fall.

The Bulldog head mentor welcomed 13 returning lettermen to practice on Monday, and he confides, "I think the players smell a possible district title this year."

With five players returning to familiar positions on offense, Gray expects a potent attack from the corps. "I feel our running game will be our strong point," said the coach. And Jim Bagwell, returning at fullback, is expected to provide much of the running explosives.

Standing 6 feet, the 200-pound senior is described as a power runner by Coach Gray. "He's (Bagwell) a tough runner, has good quickness and can churn out 3 to 5 yards per carry easily," Gray said.

Because of Bagwell's bowling-ball abilities, the Bulldogs have added a new formation to this year's playbook. In addition to the wishbone, the team will run out of the I-formation too.

"We felt the 'I' would help us utilize Bagwell as a blocker. . .he's a great blocker. . .for (halfback Ronald) Johnson." Gray explained.

A two-year letterman, Johnson is the Bulldogs' speedster. As a sophomore last year, he competed on the school sprint relay team that advanced to the state Class B finals. The 5-9, 160-pound youngster doubles as a conerback for the Bulldogs too.

Directing the attack will be Alvin Mills. Although the junior has only JV experience, he is considered a top newcomer for the Bulldogs. "He is a fine passer, and we plan to use his throwing ability out of the I-formation," Gray remarked.

On offense, the four-year head coach list tackles as the main weakness. "With the exception of Goyle Roberson, most of our tackles only weigh about 165 pounds," he added.

At 6-6, 331 pounds, Roberson anchors the defensive line. "Yeah, we just let him take care of one side by himself," the coach jokingly added.

A two-year defensive starter, the mammoth Roberson lacks quickness but is considered one of the strongest player on the team. He will be joined by Bagwell at noseguard and probably Mark Cantrell (160) at the other tackle position.

After compiling a 6-4 record last year, the Bulldogs are looking forward to proving that they are championship material this year and even without windows in his office, Coach Gray already has a vision of a nice Christmas present.

Anton's Richardson Laments Lack Of Experienced Players

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ANTON—Things don't look too bright in Anton this year. To start with, the Bulldogs only managed three wins last season and only return seven lettermen from that mediocre squad.

Add to that that only four of those returners were starters and then heap on the fact that Coach Bobby Richardson only saw 23 players come out for his first practice, and you can easily see that they have trouble in Rabbit City.

"We ain't got but about 23 kids, and that just ain't gonna cut it," Richardson lamented. "We ought to have around 40. But what can we do? We've got all but about three of the boys in the school out.

That may sound like heaven for the boys six days out of the week, but it will probably make for some awfully long Friday nights.

Richardson says that his squad's main weaknesses (besides the obvious lack of numbers) are "Size, speed, experience, and depth." That leaves a lot to be desired, but Richardson and the rest of the Bulldog faithful are hoping that quarterbacks Gary Bullard, a 5-10, 170-pound senior; and Tommy Decker, a 5-8, 155-pound junior up from last year's B-team, can overcome those handicaps and get a successful passing attack under way.

If they can, the probable receivers are backs Roger Harrell and Johnny Martinez and ends Johnny Rendon and Lonnie Dutton. Dutton, a 6-3, 180 junior, is the identical twin of center Donnie Dutton. He will anchor the offensive line.

The Duttons are two of only three Anton players who stand taller than 6 feet. They are also two of the three heaviest players on the squad. The third, in both instances, is Buddy Bishop, a 6-0, 180-pound tackle who started for the B-team last year.

The Bulldogs open their season on the road against Hart on Sept. 8. After that, they're at home for three straight Friday nights against Amherst, Sudan and O'Donnell.

Baseball Attendance Reaches 30 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball attendance for 1978 passed the 30-million mark Sunday, the earliest date ever, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office said Monday.

Last year, when the full-season total was 38,709,781, the 30-million figure was reached on Aug. 19, the previous earliest time. This year's attendance is 1,145,00 ahead of last year's.

Health Prime Factor In Rabbits' Success

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

RALLS — Alton Fields says their is only one key that will unlock the door to a successful season for the Ralls Jackrabbits.

"We've got to stay healthy this year," the mentor of the Ralls Jackrabbits said. "We don't have a lot of depth. So if any of our starters get hurt we could be in trouble."

That is exactly what happened to the District 4-A team last year, as Fields recalls.

"We played Post a good game at the start of the season," Fields remembers. "And we only lost to Petersburg (the district champ) by 1 point. Then we started getting some people hurt. We had seven starters hurt at one time last year.

"I think if we can stay healthy this year we'll be extremely competitive."

With the return of 16 lettermen off a team which finished 1-9 overall and 0-6 in loop play, it is easy to understand why Fields feels this could be the year Ralls emerges as a threat to win the district title.

"This is our third year to be here," Fields said. "The seniors have been exposed to our way of doing things for three years and that helps a lot."

During Fields' first year at Ralls, only three seniors played on the team. Last year there were only four upperclassmen. But things are different this time, now there are 14 seniors on the club.

"With the fine group of seniors we have now," Fields said, "leadership is going to be one of our strongest points. We've got some kids who will take charge."

Not only does Fields have some "take charge" players, he also has 60 gridders gracing the premises this year — an unheard number at Ralls.

"We've never had a lot of football players," Fields said. "For us, 60 players is quite a few. That really gives us something to work with."

Among the group are quarterback David Heinrich, the area's top Class A signal caller last year. This will be the third year the 150-pounder has guided the Rabbits.

Joining Heinrich in the backfield are fullback Jimmy Gillon (170) and halfback Willie Paul Anderson (155).

Gillon was a hard luck story last year. During two-a-day practices, the hard running ballcarrier was injured, requiring knee surgery. However, this year he's back, and Fields is glad.

"Gillon is what we really needed last year," Fields said. "We didn't really have the good fullback we needed to run the wishbone offense. Now we do.

Opening holes for Heinrich and Gillon will be 6-3, 190-pound lineman Anthony Looney, 6-1, 2-pounder Lloyd Arthur and 190-pound Kenneth Bownds.

"We got some size for a change," Fields said. "This year will be able to run at people and make some yards. But first, we've got to keep everyone healthy."

Cowboys Cut Free Agent End

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Dallas Cowboy coaches waived one rookie and placed another on the injured reserve list Tuesday to trim the roster to 60 and meet the National Football League's first cutdown date.

Frank Dudley, a rookie free agent tight end, was waived and third round draft choice David Hudgens was placed on the injured reserve list after the offensive guard went down hard Monday on an already troublesome knee.

But while coach Tom Landry bid farewell to the rookies, he also welcomed back veterans Larry Cole and Golden Richards to Tuesday's workouts.

Cole had not worked out for more than a week because of a twisted knee and Richards missed Monday's practices with a knee sprain. Both are probable starters for the Cowboy's third exhibition game Saturday against Houston.

In preparation for that contest Landry sent his team through extensive pass protection, team offense and punt return work Tuesday. He also shifted No. 2 draft pick Todd Christensen from fullback to tight end.

Landry said he moved Christensen to give the rookie some work at a position he appears capable of filling. Christensen caught 50 passes last fall at Brigham Young.

Veterans Thomas Henderson and Randy Hughes sat out Tuesday's workouts. Henderson is suffering from a tight hamstring and Hughes from an injured foot. But team doctors say both are probable starters for Saturday.

Rookie Dave Kraayeveld, who scored on a 61-yard interception return in the exhibition opener against San Francisco, was excused from afternoon drills because of illness. Veteran defensive tackle Bill Gregory, recovering from an off-season knee injury, also was held out of afternoon workouts.

Rugby Chief Labels Football Collision Sport

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of the new United States Rugby League, characterizing rugby as a contact sport, calls American football a collision sport and says that's why Darryl Stingley may never walk again.

"Stingley's injury is a terrible thing," says Mike Mayer, who played college football at Wisconsin in the early 1970s while Stingley was at Purdue. "But those are the kind of injuries that football fosters."

Mayer, cut by the New York Jets at preseason camp in 1973, was here Tuesday to launch American rugby. It's a bruising game, played without helmets and pads. But it manages to avoid as many disabling injuries as American football.

Plans announced at the Tuesday news conference call for a 12-team league beginning play next April. No franchise cities were announced.

The object of rugby is to carry an oversized football across a goal line. As the 13 players weave toward the goal line, they can advance the ball only by shuffling it laterally or backwards to teammates. Blocking is not allowed and the team not in possession of the ball may only tackle the ballcarrier. When tackled, he must give up the ball. When the other team gains possession, its players then attempt to maneuver the ball downfield towards the other goal line.

"American coaches teach youngsters blocking and spear tackling," said Mayer. "Those helmets are weapons, not padding devices, and they can be used to hurt people. The young body really can't take that kind of shock down the spine. I wouldn't let my kids play pee-wee or midget football."

Once the players move to the collegiate ranks, Mayer says the bodies are stronger but so are those intent on mayhem from the other side.

"In football, tackling is extremely high velocity," Mayer said. "The collisions are at strange angles and at intense rates. Some of the most serious injuries happen when a player is trying to pull away from somebody's grasp and gets blind-sided by someone else."

But since rugby is a game of possession and not stretching for first downs, Mayer says injuries are less serious.

"It's a definite contact sport, so there are plenty of cuts and bruises," he said. "But since one object is to prevent a player from passing off to a teammate, the tackling is much different. Often a tackler will pin the ball-carrier's arms, so he can't pass off.

"It's more like a bear hug."

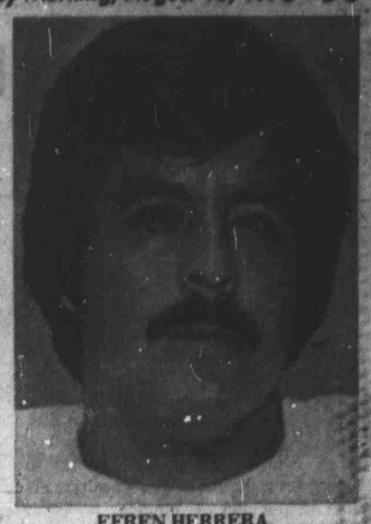
Jim Taylor, commissioner of the new rugby league and former workhorse runningback for the Green Bay Packers, says he first thought rugby players — minus helmets and pads — were "playing with a short deck."

But after watching the game, Taylor said the contact was much different from the NFL. "American fans will enjoy this game because of its sheer speed and continuous action," he said. "I believe it is the fastest, most physical game in the world."

Mayer, who worked abroad for two years to line up support and financial backing from the English Rugby League and the sport's international governing body, said the U.S. league will try to capitalize on cities that like the contact of American football but haven't warmed to the finesse of soccer — like Chicago.

He expects many of the league's players to be "people who wash out of American football." The league will hold tryouts in Chicago Aug. 26-27.

"It's a natural complement to football in the off-season," Mayer said. "We feel Americans can't get enough contact sports. But we know we'd have a hell of a time selling this idea in Brazil."



EFREN HERRERA

Efren Heads For Seattle

SEATTLE (AP) — Efren Herrera already has his boots packed.

The former Dallas Cowboys kicker said from Los Angeles Tuesday he felt confident contract negotiations would be completed soon to allow him to join the Seattle Seahawks.

"I may be up there by tomorrow (Wednesday)," he said. "My agent told me it looks pretty good." He said he was looking forward to the switch.

Herrera, 27, was obtained from the Cowboys Monday for an undisclosed draft choice. He is entering his fourth season in the National Football League.

Herrera and the Cowboys parted company when the Mexican-born booter asked for $80,000 a year, about double his 1977 contract.

LYTTLE HOMERS PAIR

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Jim Lyttle, formerly of the New York Yankees, hit a pair of homeruns, one of them a two-run shot, to lead the Hiroshima Toyo Carp to a 9-4 victory over the Yakult Swallows in Japanese baseball Monday. Lyttle has 25 homers this season.

Pats' Receiver Still Paralyzed

SMITHFIELD, R.I. (AP) — Darryl Stingley has been officially counted out of the New England Patriot's 1978 plans as the National Football League club Tuesday placed the wide receiver on the injured reserve list.

The Patriots waived nine players outright, placed two on the "did not report" list, placed four — including Stingley — on the injured reserve list and traded a future draft choice to the Denver Broncos for veteran punter Mike Burke.

Patriots officials said Stingley's paralysis is unchanged and they estimated it would be almost two weeks before a "meaningful estimation of recovery prognosis can be made."

Stingley sustained a spine fracture Saturday night when he was tackled by Jack Tatum of the Oakland Raiders.

Kilmer Signs For Two Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer signed a new two-year contract with the Redskins on Tuesday, team officials announced.

No terms of the contract were revealed. Kilmer had agreed to terms last week, but the formal signing did not take place until late Monday.

The 16-year National Football League veteran is expected to see his first action of the preseason Friday night in Baltimore as the Redskins play the Colts.

Kilmer, 39, has been with the Redskins the past seven years, coming from New Orleans in 1971. Coach Jack Pardee said he wouldn't make a decision until Wednesday on whether Kilmer or Joe Theismann would start the game with the Colts.

Phillips Sees Stack Of Mistakes

HOUSTON (AP) — Ron Jaworski and Johnny Walton had a field day passing against the makeshift secondary of the Houston Oilers.

Touchdown passes by Jaworski and Walton led the Philadelphia Eagles to a rather easy Monday night 28-10 exhibition trouncing of the Houston Oilers before an Astrodome crowd of 49,334.

Completing eight of nine attempts for 143 yards, Jaworski hit Keith Krepfle for one scoring play before Walton took over in the second half and passed 8 and 41 yards to Ken Payne and Oren Middlebrook to seal Houston's second preseason defeat.

The veteran Zeke Moore and Willie Alexander, Houston's cornerbacks, did not play and safeties Bill Currier and Mike Reinfeldt left after the first quarter as Oiler coach Bum Phillips checked out newcomers under pressure.

"We had to play a lot of people back there," Phillips said. "Philadelphia made some good catches, but we made a lot of mistakes."

Phillips also had no complaints about a Bill Bergey tackle that forced Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini out of the game late in the second quarter.

Center Carl Mauck was among the Oilers who called the tackle a cheap shot.

But Phillips exonerated the 10-year middle linebacker. "Bergey wouldn't do something like that on purpose," Phillips said.

"As for Pastorini, I know Dan well enough I know he'll want to start Saturday night in Dallas." Early reports indicated a hamstring pull but Phillips said it was just a muscle pull.

"For the lack of a better word, let's say it's in the seat," Phillips said.

Bergey told Phillips after the game he thought Pastorini still had the ball and that he meant no harm to Houston's only experienced quarterback.

"I thought the official made a bad call," Bergey said. "I didn't think it should have been roughing the passer. The official was a little premature with the flag."

"The fans yelled all kinds of things at me," Bergey said. "Some of them even threw some stuff. It didn't bother me. If this had been a regular season game, I might have yelled back at them and probably would have said something to the Oilers that kept talking to me. But this is just preseason. My mind is at ease."

Bergey said Pittsburgh Steeler fans still boo him for a tackle in which quarterback Terry Bradshaw received a concussion several seasons ago.

"I imagine if I come back to the Astrodome, the fans will remember the hit on Pastorini and give me a hard time," he said.

76ers Ship McGinnis To Denver For Twosome

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The long awaited trade of George McGinnis to the Denver Nuggets for forward Bobby Jones and guard Ralph Simpson will be concluded today, The Associated Press has learned.

The Philadelphia 76ers scheduled a press conference for 1:30 p.m. today, at which time it was believed the deal would be announced.

A source close to the team indicated Tuesday that the complex negotiations that have been going on since the end of the National Basketball Association playoffs in May are almost at an end.

A good source in Denver also indicated the deal would be announced today.

Attorneys and agents for the players involved and for both teams appear to have waded through massive legal red tape that held up the trade before now.

Chief among the many considerations that had to be thrashed out was the matter of special bonus payments to McGinnis and Jones for giving up no-trade clauses in their contracts. Both players are ready to sign or have signed those releases.

McGinnis, a 6-foot-8 forward, has been the target of criticism for not playing up to his regular season performance in two consecutive playoff eliminations, and many felt he let the 76ers down in the playoffs.

Despite his playoff problems, it was the acquisition of McGinnis from the Indiana Pacers in July 1975 that started Philadelphia on the way back to respectability after having fallen into the NBA cellar.

Before the McGinnis era, the 76ers suffered a season in which they won only nine of 82 games, a record for futility in the NBA, in 1972-73.

The acquisition of McGinnis, a third-round Philadelphia pick in 1973 who played four seasons with the Pacers, marked the team's resurgence.

Tech Adds Blue-Chip Golf Recruit

A Houston-area golfer, "as good as anybody in the nation," has been signed to play for Texas Tech, coach Danny Mason announced Monday.

Mason reported signing two golfers, bringing to five the number of new players recruited for next season. Signed are Larry Seligmann of Stafford Dulles and Dennis Winters, a junior college transfer from Dodge City JC, Kan.

"Larry is a blue-chipper," said Mason, in speaking of the schoolboy. He's as good as anybody in the nation, and he'll definitely play for us next year."

In all, he won 13 high school tournaments and 61 junior titles. Last spring, he won the Young Men's All-America title for 16-18 year-olds and was third in the Junior All-American. As a junior, he was the Houston Golf Association junior champ and was fourth in the Young Men's All-American.

As a sophomore, he won the South Texas PGA junior championship and finished second in the Texas-Oklahoma Juniors.

Although coming from junior college, Winters will have three years of eligibility. He was Kansas state junior champion two years ago.

Zisk Lifts Rangers Over Chisox

By The Associated Press

Richie Zisk's seventh-inning home run gave the Texas Rangers a 1-0 victory over Chicago at Arlington Stadium Tuesday night, despite the two-hit pitching of the White Sox' Steve Stone. The win was Texas' sixth in a row.

Zisk's homer, his 14th of the year and his first in six weeks, just cleared the wall at the 360-foot mark in left field. Jim Sundberg, who doubled in the third, got the only other Ranger hit.

Jon Matlack, 11-9, struck out seven, walked one and scattered seven hits. Stone, 9-9, struck out four but walked seven, which allowed the Rangers to mount several threats. Texas had runners on base in all but two innings.

Chicago had a runner on third in the third, fifth and seventh innings but couldn't score.

DODGERS 5, PHILLIES 4

Dave Lopes doubled and later scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly by Reggie Smith in the seventh inning as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 Tuesday night in a National League battle of contending teams.

Los Angeles took a 3-0 lead against Philadelphia starter Dick Ruthven, 10-9. The Dodgers scored twice in the second as Rick Monday singled to score one run and Joe Ferguson's single accounted for another. Reggie Smith's 26th homer of the season made it 3-0 in the third.

The Phillies, however, went ahead 4-3 with four unearned runs in the fifth. Bob Boone was safe on Ron Cey's one-out error at third base, then Ted Sizemore beat out a bunt toward third and Cey threw wild for his second error, letting Boone move to third.

Ruthven forced Sizemore with Boone scoring the first run. Dodger winner Doug Rau, 12-7, then lost his control and walked Jerry Martin and Larry Bowa, loading the bases. Jose Cardenal then singled to right, scoring all three runners, as they were going with two out.

The lead lasted until the Dodgers came to bat in the sixth. With one out, Monday unloaded his first home run since June 26, his 14th of the season, to tie the score. Lopes scored the winning run in the seventh after he doubled and was moved to third on a sacrifice bunt.

ROYALS 4, TIGERS 2

Pinch-hitter Steve Braun broke a 2-2 deadlock in the seventh inning with a run-scoring single to give Kansas City a 4-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Dennis Leonard, 13-14, picked up the victory with relief help from Al Hrabosky, who got his 15th save by pitching the final three innings.

Detroit had gone ahead 2-1 with a run in the sixth, then Kansas City — with the help of some shotty fielding by left fielder Steve Kemp — scored twice in the seventh. The runs off rookie right-hander Kip Young gave him his second loss against four victories and his first defeat as a starter.

Clint Hurdle doubled with one out to begin the rally, Kemp letting the ball skip by and Hurdle moving to second. Then Al Cowens singled to left. When Kemp bobbled for an error, Hurdle scored the tying run.

CUBS 12, BRAVES 8

Bill Buckner drove in three runs with a single and double and Bobby Murcer and Dave Kingman slugged consecutive homers in the sixth inning to power the Chicago Cubs to a 12-8 victory over Atlanta. The victory went to Donnie Moore, the former Monterey baseballer who went six innings in relief of starter Dennis Lamp. Moore is now 8-5 for the season.

Buckner's two-run double capped a five-run rally against Atlanta starter Larry McWilliams in the second inning and his RBI-single in the fourth climaxed a three-run uprising as the Cubs overcame an early 7-0 deficit.

The Braves built a 7-0 lead on Bob Horner's 13th homer and six unearned runs in the second inning.

REDS 4, PIRATES 3

Dan Driessen's solo home run in the 10th inning gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh in a game marked by the ejections of Pirate pitcher Bert Blyleven and manager Chuck Tanner.

METS 3, PADRES 1

Craig Swan and Skip Lockwood combined on a five-hitter and Steve Henderson and Lee Mazilli delivered run-scoring hits in the eighth inning to break a 1-1 tie and give the New York Mets a 3-1 triumph over San Diego.

EXPOS 4, GIANTS 3

Ellis Valentine smashed a two-out solo home run in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Montreal Expos a 4-3 victory over San Francisco.

Hal Dues, 5-4, earned the victory with one inning of relief pitching. Charlie Williams, 1-3, gave up the Valentine home run, pitching the ninth.

YANKEES 6, A's 0

The Yankees' left-hander, 17-2, lowered his earned run average to 1.79, also the best in the majors, and took the American League lead in shutouts with his sixth and in strikeouts. He struck out nine to raise his season total to 191.

CARDINALS 11, ASTROS 5

George Hendrick, continuing his hot hitting, led a 17-hit St. Louis attack with a three-run homer and a pair of singles as the Cardinals trounced Houston 11-5.

Hendrick's homer, his 13th, put the Cardinals on top 3-0 in the first inning and St. Louis went on to its ninth victory in 11 games.

TWINS 9, INDIANS 8

Jose Morales cracked a one-out home run in the eighth inning to give the Minnesota Twins a 9-8 victory over Cleveland.

Morales, whose second home run of the season came off losing pitcher Sid Monge, 3-2, finished with four RBI as the Twins overcame an 8-5 deficit after two innings.

BREWERS 9, BLUE JAYS 1

Don Money's RBI single capped a six-run fourth inning and Jerry Augustine pitched a five-hitter, leading Milwaukee to a 9-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays in the first game of a of a scheduled doubleheader Tuesday night. The game was delayed by rain for 37 minutes during the fourth inning, and the second game was postponed after its scheduled start was delayed for 35 minutes by rain. The game is to be made up as part of a twi-night doubleheader tonight.

Roosevelt's New Mentor Sees Need To Mold Offensive Line

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Elliot was an assistant at Turner High School in Carrollton last year when that team piled up a 10-1 regular season mark and advanced into the state playoffs.

Roosevelt, at the same time, was suffering through a 3-7 season mark (only 1-5 in District 5-AA play) under coach Houston Powell, then in his 11th year at the school. Powell left after the season ended, taking his career 63-49-2 record with him to Canyon High School.

Just four weeks before the start of the season, Elliot got the call and came to his first head coaching job on the run.

The Eagles will be running the same offense (veer) and defense (4-3) that Elliot learned at Turner. Roosevelt fans are hoping the results are much the same too.

If they are, it'll most likely be because of the quarterbacking of 120-pound senior Roger Lindsey. Despite being one of the thinnest football players in West Texas this year, Lindsey looked like he was running the team well during the first week's practice and was picking up the veer offense quite smoothly. He is also an accurate passer, Elliott feels.

If he doesn't have the bulk for the heavy-duty running, junior fullback Junior Vasquez certainly does. Vasquez is a bull-shouldered, 190-pounder who saw a lot of playing time last season. Another streng runner is 165-pound tailback Dennis Price, up from last year's junior varsity.

It's the offensive line that has Elliot worried, but it looks as if he has some weighty prospects. Three tackles that weigh more than 200 pounds came out for practice this year.

"We've put in a new offense and defense completely from last year," Elliot said. "I don't really understand how we can be a good squad until the middle of the season with all of these new things."

The Eagles will have until Oct. 6 to work out the kinks in their new systems. That's when they play their first district game at Seminole in Seminole.

When asked what he thought his squad's most outstanding characteristic would be this year, Elliott said "I don't know. We've got a little speed and one back with some size. The line seems to be a little slower than I'd like but they've been putting out a real good effort."

City Tennis Tourney Opens

The tournament, limited to Lubbock County citizens, will be staged at the Municipal Tennis Center, 3030 66th.

Play in the junior events will continue through Friday.

Meanwhile, the entries are being accepted for the adult divisions. Entries will be accepted until 9 p.m. next Monday, and the adults will start play Aug. 24.

The tournament has drawn about 130 entries in the junior events, with girls and boys, singles and doubles, events scheduled in age groups 12, 14, 16, and 18.

City Fem Tourney Set At Meadowbrook

Deadline for entering the three-day affair is Sunday at 5 p.m. Entry fee is $15 per player, and interested persons can register at the Meadowbrook golf shop.

The tourney is open to all Lubbock residents.

Holy Hideouts! Dr. Destiny Pinpoints Batcave

GOTHAM CITY, N.J. (AP) — Holy hideouts, Batfans! Could it be that Gotham City, headquarters of caped crusader Batman and boy wonder Robin, is actually in the deserted swamps of New Jersey?

At last, Dr. Destiny has pinpointed Batcave and the stately Wayne Mansion, and the arch-fiend's map leaves no doubt Batman's hideout is on the shores of the Delaware Bay in South Jersey.

His map leaves no doubt where the Batcave is located, and what's more it shows that Superman lives across the Delaware Bay in the state of Delaware.

Superman, Batman, Wonder Woman and the other members of the Justice League of America are tending to The Flash, ailing at Gotham General Hospital.

The comic strip map indicates the hospital may be near the real fishing community of Bivalve, but the Cumberland County community isn't marked on the map.

"I'm not sure we acknowledge that town," says Michael Gold of DC Comics, publishers of the strip and the thousands of superhero comic books that have entranced young readers since before World War II.

"Obviously we have to prefer the real cities of Metropolis and Gotham City — at least they're real to our readers — over a town that exists," Gold says.

He adds that Nelson Bridwell, a DC editor, carefully researched every comic book back to Action Comics No. 1 of June 1938, in which Superman made his debut, to make the map.

"Our readers are excessively loyal," Gold says. "If we did something that would locate Gotham City in a place that would contradict a previous story we would get a ton of mail."

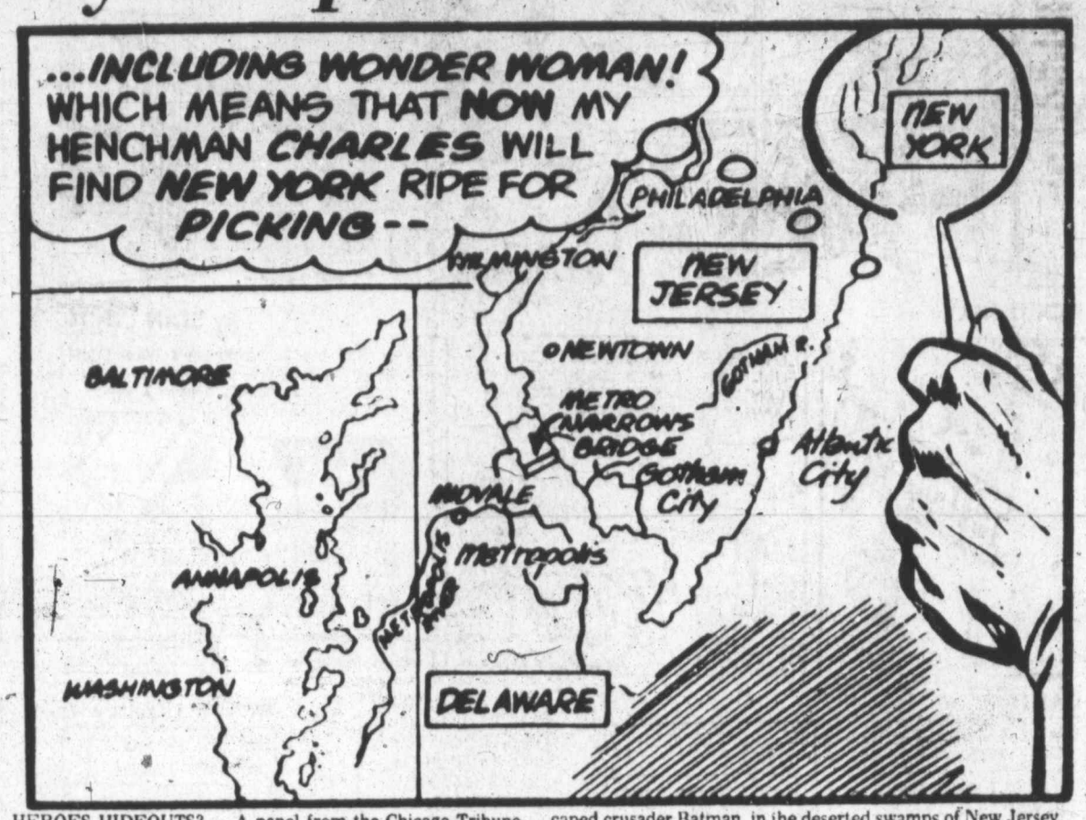
Actually, Downe Township, N.J., the community that exists at the heart of "Gotham City," has 1,800 residents spread over 55 square miles.

"It isn't really a city or a town, it's mostly all swamp," township official Eileen Stewart said Tuesday.

But Peggy Postalwaite, the municipal court clerk, said, "We had quite a number of break and entries recently." How many? "Three."

CITY TAX REPEALED

JACKSON, Ohio (AP) — Jackson City Council has repealed its recently imposed income tax without a cent having been collected. An ordinance passed by the council July 17 imposed a 1 percent income tax with collections to begin in October. But the council voted Monday night to repeal the ordinance after petitions with 637 signatures — nearly three times the number needed — were filed with the city auditor asking for a public vote on the tax.



HEROES HIDEOUTS? — A panel from the Chicago Tribune-New York News comic strip "Superheroes" discloses some geographic surprises. It shows Gotham City, headquarters of the caped crusader Batman, in the deserted swamps of New Jersey, and Metropolis, hometown of Superman, across Delaware Bay in the state of Delaware. Nude Sunbathing Legal Only For Kids Under 11

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Anyone older than 10 caught sunbathing in the buff along the Russian River can be socked for a $50 fine under an ordinance approved Tuesday.

A second offense could mean six months in jail and a $500 fine under the strict new rules adopted 4-1 by the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors. The only vote against the ordinance came from Supervisor Eric Koenigshoser, who said current laws against public sex and lewdness were adequate.

The two-page ordinance bans "nudity in public places and private places exposed to public view."

Nudity, the ordinance said, "is offensive to the senses of persons residing in the vicinity of such places because it interferes with said residents' free use and comfortable enjoyment of their property."

Much of the property in this resort area about 50 miles north of San Francisco is owned by movie star Fred MacMurray, and his friends say he was not pleased with the situation. Other area homeowners had complained of public sex by nude sunbathers.

The ordinance also applies "even when such nudity is not sexually motivated or otherwise lewd."

The vote was greeted with heckling, boos and catcalls from a crowd of about 150, most of whom said they had sunned themselves au naturel in the past.

Nielsen Ratings Show CBS With Top-Rated TV Program

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS' "One Day at a Time" was the week's top-rated TV program for the third time in four weeks, but ABC continued its domination in the networks' battle for the prime time viewer, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. show.

CBS, in fact, listed three of the four most-watched shows for the week ending Aug. 13, including No. 3 "Alice" and fourth-ranked "M*A*S*H." But ABC had runnerup "Three's Company" and three others in the top 10.

It was ABC's third week in a row in first place, with a rating for the most recent period of 15. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute, 15 percent of the homes in the country with TV were watching ABC.

CBS' rating for the week was 14.6, NBC's 13.4.

The rating for "One Day at a Time," which has been No. 1 five times this season, was 22.4. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with TV, 22.4 percent saw at least part of the show.

ABC claimed the No. 1 program nearly every week during the fall and winter, but CBS shows have been top-rated eight of the 11 weeks since the end of May.

Eighteen of the week's 20 most-watched shows were reruns. The exceptions were an ABC Sunday night movie, "Newman's Law," tied for 12th, and "Switch" on CBS, tied for No. 17.

CBS and NBC each had two programs among the bottom five. ABC's "Hardy Boys Mystery" was No. 59, followed by "Just for Laughs" on NBC, "The Carol Burnett Show" and "Baby, I'm Back," on CBS, and "Black Sheep Squadron" on NBC.

Here are the week's top 10 programs:

"One Day at a Time," with a rating of 22.4 representing 16.3 million homes, CBS; "Three's Company," 21.3 or 15.5 million, ABC; "Alice," 21 or 15.3, CBS; "M*A*S*H," CBS, and "Fantasy Island," ABC, both 20.9 or 15.2 million; NBC Monday Movie, "Colombo," 19.7 or 14.4 million; "Barnaby Jones," CBS, and "Love Boat," ABC, both 19.2 or 14 million, and "Lou Grant," CBS, and "Carter Country," ABC, both 19.1 or 13.9 million.

The next 10 shows:

"Laverne and Shirley," ABC; "Hawaii Five-O," CBS, ABC Sunday Movie, "Newman's Law," and "All in the Family," CBS, tie; "Little House on the Prairie," NBC; "Eight is Enough," ABC; "Happy Days," ABC, and "Switch," CBS, tie, and "Good Times" and "The Jeffersons," both CBS.

Williams Jr. Living For Himself

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Some are born great. Some achieve greatness. And some, like Hank Williams Jr., have greatness thrust upon them.

The namesake of a country music legend, Williams since 1957 has filled the void left when his hard-living father, at age 29, died in the backseat of a new 1952 Cadillac.

WILLIAMS

But now, after nearly 21 years, Hank Williams Jr. says he is through "living for more than one man."

Williams was only 8 when he was thrust onto the stage, "packaged as the ghost of Hank Williams." And the country music establishment conspired to keep it that way, he says.

"All Nashville wanted me to do was sing Daddy's songs, dress like him and act like him," he says. "That was fine for them, but it wasn't all right for me."

Initially Williams "thought" being Hank's boy was the greatest thing in the world." An idol by proxy, he was a success as long as he "kept doing Daddy."

It didn't take long, though, for the schizophrenic career to take its toll. As a teen-ager, Williams says he drank heavily. In 1973 he turned to pills. Like his father had done 20 years before, he began inching closer to ruin.

Divorced from his first wife, Williams remarried shortly after returning to Cullman, Ala. His new wife, Becky, is described by friends as the "good hearted woman" of so many country ballads.

"It was the whole country music syndrome," he explains. "I woke up drunk, went to sleep drunk. No hangovers. Booze, sleeplessness, pills, depression. It just got to be too much."

A faltering marriage and the loneliness, music and alcohol that were his legacy "ganged up" on him. "So I tried the check-out route," he says.

His suicide attempt was aborted by friends, but it led him to a Nashville psychiatrist who advised him to leave Music City.

"My psychiatrist told me that Nashville had almost succeeded in making me Hank Williams ... just like he is — dead!" says Williams.

The quiet, picturesque community of Cullman — located between Nashville, where his father's legend thrived, and Montgomery, where his father is buried — offered a perfect sanctuary for Williams.

So in 1974 he moved to Cullman, setting up household in a modest but spacious A-frame home overlooking a lake — a place where he could nurture his own musical concepts.

Those concepts blossomed the next year when he recorded a landmark country-rock album, "Hank Williams Jr. and Friends." His days of singing "crying-in-your-beer" songs were over.

Then tragedy struck. While climbing a Montana mountain in August 1975, Williams was swept 500 feet down the ragged side of a mountain.

"There was a boulder sticking straight up," he recalls, "and I just hit it straight on, headfirst. It just literally split my face in half."

His condition was critical for three days. Fifteen days passed and his weight dropped from 205 pounds to 160 pounds. At one point, "I resolved myself that music was over," he says.

Once he was moved from intensive care to the rehabilitation unit, however, doctors brought him a guitar. And with Johnny Cash singing at his bedside, Williams joined in, slowly at first, but eventually "rolling along."

By October, Williams was back in Cullman, driving his pickup truck, shooting his guns, making "homegrown music" and "feeling good." But five operations were necessary to rebuild his face.

"It was a difficult time," he says of the months of recuperation. But those months taught him "how to relax, to enjoy life," something Daddy never learned to do."

He realized, too, that his father "doesn't need me to keep his music alive." He says, "I can stay home and Daddy's royalties will roll in every few months whether I'm out there singing his songs or not."

Still, Williams' act includes some of his father's hits — "Your Cheating Heart," "Hey, Good Lookin'," "Jambalaya." Williams says, "I'll never leave them out."

One song missing from the act, however, is "Lovesick Blues," which established his father as the greatest draw the Grand Ole Opry ever had. "I sang 'Lovesick Blues' for 20 years," says Williams, recalling those years spent as his father's "ghost." "I figure I've put in my time. Let somebody else sing the blues."

The success of the New York State Chamber of Commerce's "I Love New York" campaign has prompted many to ask if a similar television commercial can be made for the entire nation.

"There's really a problem in Washington. They don't know how important foreign tourists are," said William S. Doyle, deputy commisioner of the state Chamber of Commerce. "There should be a Berlin airlift in reverse. We should be flying people in. Ten percent of the trade deficit is for tourism. U.S. tourists spend more outside the country than foreign tourists spend inside.

There are several ads being aired. The Broadway show tour commercial features members of the casts of "A Chorus Line," "The Wiz," "The Gin Game," "The King and I," "Annie," "Grease," "The Magic Show" and "Chapter Two" singing the uptempo tune by Steve Karmen, "I Love New York."

Frank Langella appears last in his role of Dracula. He swirls his cape in billows of mist and intones in the full force of Transylvania: "I love New York — especially in the eef-fen-ing."

Since the ad was first aired in February, attendance at Broadway shows has climbed 20 percent with $2.9 million in ticket sales, Doyle said. And hotel occupancy in the city increased 10.3 percent in May, compared with May of last year.

The state has three commercials touting travel upstate. There's one for water, one for wilderness and one for the state itself. And tourism is now booming in the state, Doyle said.

"Tourism in New York had been stagnant — flat, for over a decade," he said. "New York didn't have a map, let alone a package or an ad. The state never promoted itself.

"In 1976, our budget for tourism was $200,000. Now it's up to $10 million."

The U.S. Travel Service maintains, however, that an ad campagin proclaiming love for the U.S. will not work.

"There are six different markets, with different spending patterns, and tourists who come at different times of the year," a spokesperson said. "Our philosophy is to tailor our promotions to each market. We have offices in Canada, Mexico, Japan, the United Kingdom, West Germany and France."

But Doyle, a former Chase Manhattan Bank vice president in charge of marketing, said he will continue to lobby in Washington for an "I love the U.S." campaign.

"Johnson and Nixon both called for spending more money on foreign tourism, but Congress isn't interested," he said. "The tourism business is so fragmented. There's no clout. You can get financing for grain, but not for promoting tourism to get those dollars in."

Doyle said the ad will begin appearing in areas outside the Northeast later this summer. Some airlines will begin using the "I Love New York" spots before flight movies. And, commercial movie houses plan to insert the commercial with other shorts, he said.

MORE OIL APPEARS

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A fresh strip of oily liquid, believed to be the latest in a series of PCB spills on the state's roadways, was discovered along a six-mile stretch of state Highway 42 near Sanford. Highway Patrol Capt. O. R. McKinney said the new spill, which is about 2 feet wide, was discovered Monday along a section of road already posted with chemical contamination warnings. PCB, or polychlorinated biphenols, has been spilled mysteriously along more than 250 miles of the state's roadsides.

Mart Stages Late Surge

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market again showed its ability to rebound from bad news Tuesday as it staged a late rally to overcome most of the effects of news that the dollar had dropped to record lows in foreign exchange trading and the price of gold was at record highs.

"This market simply won't go down that much," said analyst Eldon A. Grimm at Birr, Wilson & Co. "The market is pretty much insulated from bad news — unfavorable news doesn't seem to affect it any more."

The U.S. currency sank to lows against the Japanese yen, West German mark and Japanese yen on foreign currency exchanges overseas while gold hit highs, sending the stock market into a nosedive shortly after it opened.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial issues was down by almost 7 points at midday and declines were holding a 2-1 lead over advances. But a rally in the final hour cut the Dow's loss to 1.04, closing at 887.13, with declines holding an edge over advances of less than 3-2.

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.
