RESULT OF FERGUSON'S ENDORSEMENT OF HUNTER HAS POLITICS GUESSING

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Aug. 11. (U.P.)—What part the Ferguson endorsement of Tom Hunter for governor will have in the run-off with Attorney General James T. Allred is puzzling politicians.

A former state official, who has polled big votes, says that Allred should seize upon the endorsement as the main issue of the run-off campaign. He would have the attorney general devote his time to warning the state against a "Ferguson puppet-candidate."

Another widely experienced official gave just the opposite advice. He would have Allred ignore entirely the Ferguson endorsement of Hunter and bore into Hunter's platform.

Regardless of how it should be treated, none denies it is a factor in the race and a considerable one. Already employees in administration-controlled state departments are being given pep talks to brace them up from C. C. McDonald's defeat.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11. (U.P.)—Problems of stock market control, housing and federal financing occupied President Roosevelt today as he gave up his usual Saturday holiday.

This well is located 1980 feet from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 22, block 34, township 2 south, T. & P. Railway survey.

The Gulf No. 103 McElroy, 1930 feet from the south line and 660 feet from the west line of section 197, block P. C. S. D. & R. G. N. G. survey, Upton county, much discussed deep test, when reaming at the first float collar at 10,940 feet reported a slight show of gas while circulating.

Last week new locations were announced for eight wells, three of which are in Ward county and one each in Andrews, Howard, Loving, Pecos and Winkler counties. Probably the most interesting location is the Humble No. 1 J. S. Means, south of the Humble No. 1 R. M. Means, new discovery well. The J. S. Means will be drilled 1980 feet from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 2, block A-35, public school land survey, Andrews county. Other locations follow:

Saved From Drouth Death To Feed Needy

Shipped from the drouth area that covers a vast section of far west and midwest part of a herd of 28,000 cattle is shown here on the federal-leased range near

Delaware, O., feeding on the hill-side and seeking relief from the heat in the rapidly receding waters of the Olentangy river. Gaunt and feeble, they typify the condition of the great herds on western ranges, where thousands of cattle are being slaughtered to end their sufferings. This herd is fed 4000 bales of hay daily to fatten it, after which the cattle will be butchered for needy Ohio families.

NET TOURNNEY INTO FINALS THIS AFTERNOON

The county child welfare survey, which since July 1 has been conducted by the Texas division of child welfare, state board of control, through the Midland relief commission, has found 126 war veterans in the city of Midland and 27 in the rural districts of McClinton, Prairie Lee, Stephenson, Valley View, and Germania. To the south and west of the city the work has not been completed, neither are the Mexican and the negro quarters included.

Of these 153 families, marked for attention out of a total of 428 families questionnaires have included 24 families have received some form of state relief.

The survey is being made to find physical defects in the children of such families, and of other families who need eyeglasses, a majority of them school children; there are 38 who have either arrested or active cases of tuberculosis; 18 are suffering from pellagra, and 27, including those who have dementia due to pellagra, are suffering from some nervous or mental handicap. There are deaf mutes, and 11 have speech difficulties.

Dr. Klapproth Is With Kans. Clinic

Dr. Herman Klapproth, formerly associated with the Thomas hospital and more recently with a Galveston clinic, has become a member of the Hertzler clinic at Hialeah, Fla.

The scrap started when Sims approached Dr. Klapproth's gathered around and took note of freely dealt grand slams. There was no finessing from either participant.

Tricks were quickly disposed of, however, and the short-lived fight was over before either remembered there had been no bidding. As a result, nothing was settled, unless it was their breakfasts.

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad, Aug. 11. (U.P.)—The man who says he is Robert Jones but who the United States authorities contend is Arthur C. Wilson, charged with the murder of Mrs. Irene Debolt, at Van Horn, Texas, sailed under guard aboard the liner Pan America Friday. It is due in New York next Wednesday.

He is the first man to be extradited as a murder suspect from Trinidad to the United States. The extradition followed approval of Sir A. Claud Hollis, the governor of Trinidad, of a formal application made Thursday for the suspect's release to United States officials.

Flashy Visiting Net Stars Put on Big Performance

The brightest net luminaries ever to flash on Midland courts will take up play this morning on the City of Midland courts, those in the singles going into the semi-finals, doubles into the finals.

A possibility loomed that doubles finals might not begin before the early afternoon. Whatever the schedule, the fans are assured of seeing tennis such as has never been played on Midland courts. At the same time, whatever the outcome of the finals, whoever gets the big trophy cups, there will be no better tennis exhibited today than during the past two days, when several beautiful matches were unworked, fans united in saying.

Into the doubles finals go Love and Eiman of Austin, seeded No. 1, against Ballard of Abilene and F. H. Latham of Dallas, seeded No. 2. The Austin stylists won over Clinton, Dallas city singles winner, and Ferguson of Midland, former Texas scholastic singles winner, 7-5, 6-2, in the semi-finals, and 7-5, 6-2, in the second round.

Ballard and Latham won through the semi-finals by staving off the determined game of Dean of Midland and Boyd of Dallas, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2, and over the Odessa pair, Woods and Turner, 6-3, 6-1, in the second round. Twelve doubles teams entered.

Matches slated for singles play this morning are Love vs. Clinton and Boyd vs. Eiman. Love won his quarter-finals match against Ballard, 6-2, 6-2, and a second round match with Curry of Midland, 6-1, 6-4. Clinton won over Dean in the quarter-finals, 6-3, 6-4, and from Ferguson in the second round, 6-0, 6-1. Boyd won over Schow of Midland in the quarter-finals, 6-1, 6-0, and over Rushing in the second round, 6-1, 6-2. Eiman, who arrived too late to be seeded, had to play in the first round, winning over F. H. Latham of Midland, 6-0, 6-1. In the second round he defeated Ballard, 7-5, 6-4, in one of the finest matches yet played during the tourney, and won over the Dallas Latham in the quarter-finals, 6-4, 6-1.

The fans were not stingy with predictions the big cups will go to Austin, if forecasts mean anything. Love and Eiman are great players as anyone who has looked them over in action will readily assert. And this tendency of the gallery to do a bit of innuendo and possibilities does not detract from the color and the reputation built by other players. The tourney has been a success from several standpoints, but no facet stands out with more impression than the sportsmanship of the crack entries.

A burlesque given through the generosity of Elliott F. Cowden at Cloverdale Friday night made a definite "hit" with visiting players, and the thanks of the tennis association was expressed in him Saturday.

Trophies, 16- and 14-inch cups for the winners, and six other cups for runners up, will be kept on display in the West Texas Office Supply show windows until time for making the awards this afternoon.

CRIME TODAY IS EASIER TO WEAR DOWN

During the last year or so the nation's fight against crime has taken on an entirely new aspect; or, to be more exact, it has resumed an old one.

Organized society's war on the underworld has passed a turning point, and that point is best exemplified by the bloody career and death of John Dillinger.

For more than a decade the underworld in every large city was a commercial undertaking. It bought and sold commodities like any other business group. It muscled its way into legitimate business enterprises and perverted them to its own uses.

Its big gangs—the Capone mob in Chicago, the Purple gang in Detroit, Egan's Rats in St. Louis, the Diamond outfit in New York—were made up of business men.

The business was anti-social, to be sure, and it was attended by a terrific amount of violence; but it was business, nevertheless, and the big criminal got his money by buying and selling, rather than by direct action in the old-time manner.

If you examine the picture now, you will see that this condition has changed. Our public enemies these days are in the tradition of Jesse James rather than Al Capone. They are highwaymen, of the immemorial stamp, and not masters of commerce.

Dillinger, Machine Gun Kelly, Baby Face Nelson, Clyde Barrow—these men had their allies and their confederates, but they were essentially individuals. They went out and took what they wanted by strong-arm methods, just as did the 17th century highwaymen of England.

They defied the police; the Capones and the Diamonds, all too often, corrupted and co-operated with the police.

This means that gangsterism today is far less a menace than it was half a dozen years ago.

To be sure, the utmost vigilance still is necessary. The work that has been done so well in the last 18 months must continue until highway robbery becomes a relatively rare crime. But the worst is over.

We are no longer nourishing a world within a world, in our big cities. The gangster is no longer a high-powered business man whose contacts and influence reach far up through the social fabric. He is what the old-time outlaw was—a lone desperado whose days are inevitably numbered.

The tide of crime has begun to ebb at last.

NEW NATIONAL BOUNDARIES

Stanley Baldwin's remark that Britain's frontier has moved from the English channel to the Rhine is a startling exposition of the way in which aerial warfare has transformed military science.

For centuries Britain could be secure by maintaining control of the channel and the North Sea. Napoleon could never hope to win his long struggle unless he could whip the British fleet; Germany, with her magnificent army, could not triumph in the World war so long as Britain remained in command of the sea.

But now the picture has changed. How can you rely on a fleet when your enemy can jump right over it and bomb your great cities? What is the value of an isolation which a bombing plane can erase in two hours?

World statesmen are only beginning to realize the extent of the change. It will be a generation, at least, before world politics is fully adjusted to it.

New York agricultural experts say they've discovered what makes a peach turn brown. They must have made their observations at the beaches.

Are You Better off Now Than You Were a Year Ago?

This is the third of a series of four stories telling in brief the history of Austria providing a background which makes more understandable the events in the present crisis.

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Beaten on the battlefield by Napoleon, Austria resorted to diplomatic intrigue to keep in the European limelight, and did it very well.

The first thing Metternich, her great diplomat, did was to marry off an Austrian princess to Napoleon himself, and make peace between the two countries. Austria remained neutral through the later phases of the Napoleonic wars, but finally joined with Russia and Prussia to beat the conqueror at Leipzig.

The result was the regaining of Lombardy and Venice, the Tyrol and Salzburg, Dalmatia and the Tarnopol district. She had regained by diplomacy and a little fighting what she had lost, but much fighting and little diplomacy.

But today it is in this former Austrian plain of northern Italy that Mussolini's troops concentrate on the Austrian border.

Austria under Francis and Metternich became the bulwark of monarchy in a Europe that was beginning to awake to democracy and rule by the people. Whenever a country began to be worried by popular uprising, its king could turn to Austria for at least sympathy, sometimes for definite help.

And Austria herself led the way by suppressing all attempts at popular government in Bohemia, Hungary, Galicia, and the Italian provinces.

Revolutions Crushed

In 1848, revolution swept Europe. Bloody rebellion was bloodily suppressed in Austria in her territories of Bohemia and Hungary, and there was serious rioting in Vienna itself.

This grew to open rebellion which was suppressed only when the Austrian regular army generals, returning from putting down rebellion in Italy, arrived in the capital.

They suppressed active rebellion, but the country was in such chaos that the Emperor Ferdinand abdicated, leaving the crown to his 18-year-old nephew, Franz Joseph. This young man was to rule in Austria until our own days, when his body was taken from the royal palace in Vienna at night in 1916 after a long, bitter, heartbreaking reign of 68 years.

It was generally agreed in Europe that a strong united nation must be preserved in Austria for the sake of Germany and all Europe. It was this feeling about Austria that led cynical old Bismarck to say that if it were not in existence it would have to be created. So Austria had to be.

Liberty Is Throttled

The revolution forced out Metternich, but unfortunately his ideas of "great powers," "alliances," and "balances of power" survived him, and continue to live today. After some efforts to introduce reforms as a concession to the growing Socialist movement in Austria and the never-dying nationalist sentiment in Hungary, Bohemia, and Italy, Austria relapsed into the most rigid absolute monarchy in the world.

Closer economic union was accomplished with Hungary and other sections of the empire by revision of tariffs, but political liberty was throttled by an ever-present police and military power which waged a continued and savage warfare on freedom of speech and political action.

Franz Joseph was under an ill star from the time he took the throne. His beautiful young wife, Elizabeth, whom he loved dearly, was murdered by political assassins. His only son died of gunshot wounds, probably a suicide due to an unhappy love affair.

Consistent Loser in War

Military campaigns were almost always disastrous for Austria. It lost territory in the settlement after the Crimean war (1855-56) and there was more whittling away of its possessions in northern Italy, Venice only remaining.

Strife within the country was perpetual, and only the firmest kind of police and military force kept the lid on the boiling antagonistic parties and people that settled in the Austrian kettle.

The crowning misfortune of a long series of defeats was met in the war with Prussia. Franz Joseph allowed himself to be drawn in Bismarck into a fight with Prussia during the dispute between Denmark and Prussia over Schleswig-Holstein (1866).

Prussia routed the Austrian territories in Italy as allies against Austria. At Custoza, Austria beat the Italians, but meanwhile she took a decisive beating at the hands of the Prussians at Sadowa (Koenigsgratz).

The Prussian marched to the gates of Vienna. Paul von Hindenburg, a young officer, was with them, and dictated a peace that stripped Austria of her Bavarian, Saxon, and other south German allies, and gave Prussia dominance over all of what we now think of as Germany.

Saves Empire's Remnants
Franz Joseph now turned to an thing.

It does no good to put off a job that has to be done. Putting it off won't make it any easier or shorten the time required for it.

If a man is too satisfied with his present condition, he will never achieve anything. If he's too dissatisfied, he will try to go too fast and will have a smash-up. There's a happy medium.

A certain man's only claim to distinction is that someone once told him he looked like a movie actor.

If every subscriber of a newspaper had exactly the same views on everything, the newspaper would be able to please all of them.

Many worthwhile things require lots of time. A tree is very much worthwhile, but takes a long time to grow tall enough to make shade.

A local man said every time he goes home in the evening he reminds him that he left her that morning without a cent of change. He says it gets monotonous. She also says it gets monotonous.

One time there was a young man who read an advertisement like this: "Send us $1, and we will send you a nifty little book entitled, 'What To Do at the Table.'" The young man sent a dollar and received the book which contained only one word: "Eat."

The farther a man gets away from his youth the more likely he is to remember the pleasant experiences of those days and forget the unpleasant ones. Which is a good effort to unite what was left of his empire. He was crowned king of Hungary, and desperate efforts were made to force the German language and customs on Magyars in Hungary, Czechs in Bohemia, and Italians in north Italy.

One of the Socialist agitators in north Italy who tasted life in an Austrian prison as a result of his opposition to Austrian tyranny was a young man named Benito Mussolini. So you may know that when he comes out for the independence of Austria today it is not because of any fondness for things Austrian.

It is because he believes, as so many before him have believed, that an independent state is needed "in the middle" of Europe as a buffer against the pressure from north, south, east, and west that still focuses there.

NEXT: The "patchwork empire" is again at the heart of the situation that led to the World war—and its shrunken remainder holds the same position today.

HALIBUT RUN INCREASED

SEATTLE (UP)—Despite fish curtailment due to the longshoremen's strike, Seattle halibut fishermen increased their returns 25 per cent as compared to last year's returns. Fishermen said catches ran better and prices were higher due to the strike. The total catch for last month was 2,734,600 pounds valued at $197,716 as compared to 2,674,800 pounds valued at $155,585.

Firemen Save Dog—Let House Burn

MEMPHIS (P)—Memphis firemen believe a life is worth saving even if it is only a dog's life.

When a home caught fire recently on the outskirts of the city the family pet became frightened and ran to its usual place of refuge under the burning building. All attempts to get it out failed.

The only water available was a 50-gallon tank on the fire truck. Believing it impossible to save the house firemen kept a stream playing about the dog's body while the walls burned and fell about it. After the blaze subsided they tore through the floor and the dog jumped out unharmed.

HOLD HOBBY CRAFTS SHOW

TOLEDO, O. (UP)—Toledo's hobby crafts show, believed the first display of its kind ever held in the United States, has opened and will continue through Aug. 26. The exhibits, nearly 300 of them, reveal highest standards of craftsmanship in a wide variety of work. All are the spare-time work of Toledo's hobby craft company employees. The company is sponsoring the show.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 12.

The Golden Text is: "This is the word of the Lord . . . saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts" (Zechariah 4:6).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: ". . . his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, that by these we might be partakers of the divine nature . . ." (II Peter 1:3, 4).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit

Midland Priest
Attends Ceremony

The Rev. Edw. P. Harrison, O. M. I., attended at Stanton Wednesday a solemn high mass commemorating the golden anniversary of Sister Stanislaus's service to the Sisters of Mercy of Texas. Sister Stanislaus is the first Sister of Mercy to have a record of 50 years of service in Texas.

Attended by six children dressed in white and by a child carrying a small golden crown, Sister Stanislaus accompanied the solemn, nuptial-like procession to the altar, where the crown was placed on her head. Following the service, the history of her life was reviewed. Sister Stanislaus came to New York from Ireland when a small child, where she remained until she was 17. Then she came to Texas and joined the Order of Mercy. Her last 15 years have been spent at Stanton.

After the service, a reception was held in the dining room of the Sisters of Mercy academy.

Mother Robin Stole Pair
White Gloves for Babes

COLUMBUS, Neb. (U.P.)—A mother robin living near the home of Judge Louis Lightner here apparently believes in handling her family with gloves.

Several weeks ago, Mary Ann Lightner washed out a pair of white gloves and hung them out on the line to dry—and they disappeared.

A few days later Judge Lightner saw one of the gloves on top of the garage, so boys in the neighborhood promptly were blamed for the misdeed.

But last week came the denouement. At an ice cream social the judge happened to look up into a tree and saw something white. A spy glass revealed the other missing glove—draped fetchingly about the robin's nest.

The glove will remain missing because the judge feels that feminine desire should be appeased.

Frogs Raised for Science

LANGHORNE, Pa. (U.P.)—Raising frogs for science is the unique business of Irwin G. Schorsch, owner of "International House," a model frog farm here.

WILSON'S MODEL STORE IS OPENED ON FRIDAY; MUSIC PLAYED, FAVORS GIVEN

Appreciation to the public was expressed Saturday by T. R. Wilson, proprietor of Wilson Dry Goods company, for the interest shown in the formal opening Friday evening and the "grand opening" Saturday of the new store.

The Friday evening opening was a reception to the public at which time opportunity was given for inspection of the new store, its fixtures and stock of merchandise. No sales were made at the time. Music was played throughout the evening.

Mr. Wallace Wimberly at the piano, and souvenirs were given to women and children attending. From 7 to 9 o'clock, a steady procession of interested spectators went through the various departments of the store. On Saturday special merchandising attractions were provided in connection with the grand opening.

The remodeled and enlarged store, two doors north of the company's former location, was planned by the engineering department of Ely & Walker Dry Goods company and installation of fixtures and stock was under the personal supervision of W. H. Matthews, field engineer of the company. The result was one of the most modern retail stores in this section of the state.

Wilson especially thanked the many friends for their personal visits and complimentary remarks, also those who sent floral offerings and published advertisements of congratulations upon opening of the new store.

NEW ODESSA TWIRLER SETS DOWN THE COLTS 12-1; GAME WAS MAKEUP ONE

Home Brewed

BY R. C. HANKINS

Sam Warren must have doubted his sight when he saw that account on the front page of the Big Spring Daily Herald. The story read that the Ford team of that village defeated the Hokus Pokus team 10-9 Wednesday night. The account was right in several regards. The game was played between the two clubs Joe Galbraith's newspaper mentioned, was played at Midland and on Wednesday night. As to minor details, however, the Midland club won, and the score was 14-7.

Sports pourri: McCamey has raised the ante for White, Midland first sacker, the magazine informs. Had Iraan used Williams, that ace left-hander who learned his baseball tottling in the Pacific Coast league, to begin the recent game with Odessa, chances are the results would have been much different. Rashed into the box after Odessa's tribe of left handed hitters had snatched the offerings of a newly acquired hurler, Weickline, for plenty of runs, he pitched five innings and gave up but one hit, a home run from the big bat of Horton. He is believed by many to be the best hurler in the loop.

Jess Rodgers, informant, learns the recent Midland-McCamey game may be protested on the grounds of an alleged poor decision by an umpire. Reconstructed, the play on which the umpire met with protest was this: It was the sixth inning and Bilbry, McCamey first baseman, was at bat. Leonard Rose, changing pace, tossed in his slow one and hit Bilbry. The umpire let Bilbry pass to first. Manager Joe Pyron challenged the official's decision, saying the rules protect a pitcher on a slow ball, inasmuch as the batsman has adequate time for stepping out of the way. The decision stood, and Joe stood and Prexy Bill Collins once more will be asked to leave off hibernating and clear his voice for an official pronouncement. Without a doubt there'll be a musical lilt offered up, there being no secret about Bilbry's keeping bird seed in his drugstore for just such an emergency. In justice to Bilbry's inevitable decision, the official's ruling did not affect the scoring, Midland getting the side out before the passed runner and one on ahead could snag home plate with their stride.

Reno City Hall Clock Now Gives Right Time

RENO, Nev. (U.P.)—Reno's famous city hall clock which ran for years, but always several hours behind the time, now is ticking out the correct hours of the day. City Engineer James Glynn, unable to put up with the cantankerous machinery, became exasperated, hammered a few gadgets, oil some more and got the mechanism to run.

CIRCUS DREAM SHATTERED

BELLAIRE, O. (U.P.)—Newell Rankin, 12-year-old Armstrongs' Mills boy, frequently a runaway wanted to join the circus. Doggedly, he "climbed" his way out to the highway. Belwood, W. Va., police overtook him when he almost had reached his goal.

MONSTER BROKE FISH NETS

MURPHYSBORO, Ill. (U.P.)—There's something in Carbon lake near here too big for fishermen to handle. The monster breaks through their nets without trouble. Whether it is an 80-pound buffalo, or a 125-pound "shovelbill," or a 100-pound snapping turtle they are unable to tell.

Far-Flyer

Chic and cheerful either in street clothes or flying togs is Miss Jean Batten, 24-year-old New Zealand girl shown here in two pictures after she had flown from England to Austria in fifteen days. Her time constituted a new record for women over the hazardous route, for she clipped four whole days off the mark set by Amy Johnson. The kitten Miss Batten is holding was her mascot.

While the government is hiring more college professors to advise it how to collect its taxes, we'd like to have one tell us how to pay ours.

Idea Behind Social

Customs Does Not Change So Quickly

FORT WORTH, (U.P.)—Social customs change rapidly, but the idea back of it all not so fast. Which is another way of saying that youth is pretty much the same now as 50 years ago. Now a youth gets his kiss in an automobile. Then he played "post-office"—object the same.

Social methods now are different from those when she came to Texas in 1870, Mrs. C. C. French recalled. The house party was the chief social function of the old day. Now it is the night club, public dance hall, or the private club. Modern youth wouldn't think of taking a girl on a street car or for a walk. Nor would modern youth think of dancing the Virginia Reel, Heel and Toe Polka, the Schottische or the Gallop and the Mazurka. But the old days had their compensation, to wit: There was, for instance, the game of clap-in, clap-out, Mrs. French remembered. The game still exists but only among children and even among children is not over-used. In ye olden days it was the favorite of the social set. It went something like this: Stiffly dressed young men formed a circle in a room at the house party. In front of each youth was a vacant chair. The gaily bedecked maidens stood longingly in another room. One swain would select a girl to enter the room. Her object was to take the seat in front of the youth who called her name. If she missed, all hands clapped. She was clapped out. If she sat in the right seat, it was her privilege to go for a walk with the youth. The game might be reversed with the girls standing behind the chairs. The outcome the same. It was amazingly uncanny, or maybe premeditated, how often the one called sat in the right chair, Mrs. French said. Sometimes parties were virtually disrupted by so many couples having gone for walks. It took eight years to compile the latest Webster's dictionary, but it won't take a year before it gets out of date.

LOSES LEG HUNTING JOB CLEVELAND (U.P.)—Stanley Michalkiewicz, 18, hitch-hiked to Pittsburgh with a friend to hunt work, failed to find a job and lost his right leg on the way home. With Stanley Tolacewicz, 18, he boarded a fast freight to return. When the train didn't slow down at a south side stop near the boys' home, both jumped. A car wheel crushed Michalkiewicz's leg when he slipped.

Round-up Time

Texas

When it's "round-up time in Texas"—an old familiar song sung by cowboys of the plains, long before the debut of the modern hotel. Then their "round-ups" were held in the great open spaces. The old "round-up" continues today as it did then; however there is another kind of "round-up" now which is equally familiar to cowmen, the "get-together" which they stage at various Hilton Hotels. Most any day you can see these pioneers of the plains hobnobbing with one another, talking over old times in the coffee shops and lobbies of our hotels. They enjoy Hilton Hospitality and profit by our never changing rates of $2.00, $2.50, and $3.00.

the pleasure of motoring

CHEVROLET The best way to prove that Chevrolet's Knee-Action actually makes motoring twice as pleasant as before is to drive the new Chevrolet over all kinds of roads. You will find that the continuous jars you used to get even on smooth pavements are ended. The steering wheel is free of vibration. Back seat passengers are comfortable and relaxed. You can maintain higher speeds over rough roads that used to slow you down. You will find, in fact, that probably for the first time in your experience, every foot of every mile is equally enjoyable.

This fine feature is combined in the new Chevrolet with beautiful, luxurious Fisher bodies, safe, weather-proof cable-controlled brakes, the flashing performance of an 80-horsepower engine, and the great economy of six-cylinder, valve-in-head construction. This combination is exclusive with Chevrolet. Perhaps that explains why so many people are buying and recommending this extremely low-priced car.

NON-PROFESSIONAL RODEO STARS TO GET CHANCES ON AUGUST 19-20 CARD

Proposes Water Plan as Needed In Tree Project

EL PASO, Aug. 11.—Cowboys from the ranges of the far southwest will have opportunity to compete against each other in the second annual Southwestern Championship rodeo in El Paso, August 19 and 20, without having to go up against professional rodeo performers, H. W. "Dusky" Walker, president of the Southwestern Championship rodeo association, announced here today. The prize list and rules for the rodeo are now ready for distribution. Headquarters of the association have been established in the Hilton hotel, and the plans for the rodeo are going forward rapidly. Johnny Mullens has been named arena director.

"Rodeos for the most part," Walker said, "have not given the professional rodeo rider much of a chance. The Southwestern rodeo is designed to give the riders from the ranges a real chance to show their stuff."

No rider will be allowed to compete in any event who has contested in any of the following shows: Madison Square garden, Cheyenne, Pendleton, Tucson, Fort Worth, Prescott, Chicago, Wichita, Kan., Los Angeles, Salinas, Livingston, Mont., or Calgary, Canada.

Contestants must enter and pay their entrance fees by 6 p. m. Aug. 18. Contestants who mail in their entrance fees must call at headquarters in the Hilton hotel by 6 p. m. Aug. 18 and receive their contest numbers.

Day money only in the calf roping contest is as follows: First, $50; second, $30; and third, $20.

In the steer riding contest, day money will be $15, first; $10 second and $5 third.

In the bronc riding contest, day money is $50 first; $30 second, and $20 third. Day money in the steer bulldogging contest will be $50, $30 and $20.

In the bareback bronc riding contest, the day money is $25; $15 and $10.

In the wild cow milking contest and in the wild horse race, the day money for each of these events is $10, $7.50 and $5.

Entrance fee for calf roping, bronc riding, bulldogging and bareback riding is $5 for each individual event. In the steer riding, wild cow milking and wild horse race, the entrance fee is $3 for each event.

Complete rules and regulations for the rodeo and for each event may be obtained from the headquarters of the association in the Hilton hotel.

Dempsey Drilling Well in Louisiana

LONGVIEW, (AP).—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, and Bobby Manziel, Gladewater oil operator, are drilling a well at Mansfield, La. Dempsey is said to be optimistic over the prospect and has interested a group of New Yorkers in the project. Saturday, Aug. 4, the day his daughter was born, he wired for geological maps to be rushed to him airmail.

Dempsey and Manziel own a block of 10,000 acres in the Mansfield area where they have been drilling for eight months. The formation checked favorably, the operators said. Manziel has a number of producing wells in the Gladewater area, in some of which Dempsey owns an interest.

Dempsey is expected to return to East Texas soon and has expressed intention of being present when the Mansfield wildcat is tested.

Dempsey said here recently that his biggest thrill in a business undertaking came when his first victory well came in as a gusher at Gladewater last fall.

NEW MODIFICATION

According to word received in the county agent's office from O. B. Martin, extension director, A. & M. college, the secretary's administrative ruling has announced modification of cotton contracts for 1934 to permit unrestricted use as livestock feed including sale of pasture hay and roughage crops from land covered by contract including rented acres. Harvesting and use or sale of seed from meadow pasture and forage crops also permitted on cotton, wheat, corn and tobacco contracts. Modification were prompted by drought situations.

The colors are in dark browns, blues and blacks, with dark greys coming in for a share in the style spotlight. You will find here the most comprehensive range of ladies' high grade shoes to be found anywhere in West Texas. Sizes 2 1/2 to 11, widths AAAA to D.
