Jail variance requests denied by commission

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County's request for variances on renovation of the County Jail went virtually unheeded on Wednesday in Austin by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards in Austin.

The Jail Commission rejected the county's request for a variance on the 30 percent rule on single-cell space and on the remote-controlled automatic unlocking-locking mechanism on 15 single cells. But it did grant a variance on the locking mechanism for two hallway cells.

"We had to try," said Sheriff Gary Painter, who made the presentation to the Jail Commission. "The money we could have saved and the bunks we could have saved I think were worth the try."

The Midland County Commissioners' Court had agreed to seek the variances even while architects are preparing plans for renovating the jail, which was built as the fifth floor of the Midland County Courthouse in 1973.

Minimum Jail Standards require that at least 30 percent of cell space be devoted to single cells. But the sheriff had requested the Jail Commission grant an exception and permit the Midland County Jail to have 28 percent single cells. Following the 30-percent rule would cut down on projected cell space by five bunks — from 133 to 128.

"We have five cells that have two bunks apiece in them," Painter said. "We were asking them to let us keep those two bunks in each of those five cells and that would give us 28 percent more single-cell space."

As it stands now, those cells will be converted to single cells. Besides, each of those cells are slightly under the square footage required for double-occupancy cells but as single cells would meet the space requirements.

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Hurricane Bob whipped in off the Atlantic today with heavy rain and winds gusting to 80 mph, leaving more than 30,000 people in the dark and forcing thousands to evacuate before it eased to a tropical storm.

Bob's primary threat today was inland flooding and heavy rains, meteorologists said.

The eye of the first hurricane of the Atlantic season swept ashore near the resort of Fripp Island late Wednesday and began to wane only hours after it was upgraded from tropical storm status along the Georgia coast.

The storm died down as it moved inland, and the National Weather Service discontinued hurricane warnings at 6 a.m. and raised gale warnings from Savannah, Ga., to Cape Fear, N.C., downgrading Bob to a tropical storm again.

But most damage appeared to be confined to scattered broken windows and downed tree limbs and power lines, and no injuries were reported as the storm swept inland.

"The biggest thing we've had has been power lines down," said Phil Gardner, the assistant director of the Charleston County Emergency Preparedness Division, adding that about 250 people left their homes voluntarily.

Farther inland the problem was not high wind but heavy rain and flooding, said James Gregory, the state Emergency Welfare Service Coordinator.

"It's not really over yet," Gregory said. "We're watching this fool thing — flooding is what we're looking at right now."

"It was a minimal hurricane," said weather service meteorologist Dick Shenot in Charleston. "It just barely made hurricane category before it moved on shore."

At 3 a.m., Hurricane Bob was centered near latitude 33.0 north and longitude 80.8 west, 45 miles west to northwest of Charleston. The highest winds were 75 mph, just barely over the 74 mph required for hurricane status.

The storm's center was in Colleton County, west of Charleston.

Bob was moving slightly west of north at 12 mph to 14 mph, with a gradual turn toward the north expected later today, the weather service said. The wind was estimated early today at 82 mph at Folly Beach Coast Guard Station south of Charleston and 77 mph downtown, the weather service said.

At least 25,000 people were without electricity early today in the Charleston area, said Barbara Powell, a spokeswoman for South Carolina Electric & Gas. About 7,000 people in Myrtle Beach were in the dark.

About 7,100 island residents spent the night in inland shelters, said Frank Lloyd, operations manager of the state Emergency Preparedness Division.

Heavy rainfall hits parts of Basin

By JULIE HILLRICH
Staff Writer

Up to 5 inches of rain drenched parts of the Permian Basin Wednesday leaving several motorists stranded on nearby roadways and at intersections due to flash flooding, authorities reported.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported receiving only 0.14 of an inch of rainfall. Heavier accumulations were reported east of Midland near Greenwood where up to 5 inches of rain fell. Midland Farmers Co-op reported receiving 0.5 of an inch.

Midland police Sgt. Bill Morgan said isolated flooding occurred throughout much of the city, particularly along Wadley Avenue and A Street intersections where several motorists were stranded in two-to-three feet of water.

The heavy rainfall also downed power lines in the 500 block of Pecos Street and Holmsley Avenue leaving residents without power for about 1½ hours, Morgan said. No other damage was reported due to the storm.

Motorists traveling on state highways and interstates operated under basically normal conditions despite the reported flooding in the metropolitan areas, a Texas Department of Public Safety spokesman said. No accidents were reported as the result of the storm.

In Odessa, large quantities of rainfall flooded several street intersections, but no property damage due to the high water was reported, according to police Cpl. John McAhon.

A tornado reportedly touched down just west of Hobbs, N.M., Wednesday knocking down an antenna and damaging several buildings, authorities said.

The twister, which spun out of an isolated thunderstorm that pelted the city with up to 2.5 inches of rain shortly after 4:30 p.m., also knocked down some major power lines. The largest accumulations, 2.5 inches of rain in north Hobbs and 1.75 inches in south Hobbs, fell during a 45-minute period, according to Hobbs police Capt. Dennis Sloan.

The large quantity of rainfall left water running two to three feet deep in some street intersections, but no property damage due to flooding was reported, Sloan said.

The forecast tonight calls for mostly cloudy skies with a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms. The low will be in the mid-60s and winds will be from the east at 5 to 10 mph. Decreasing cloudiness is expected Friday with a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. The high will be in the upper 80s and winds will be southeasterly at 5 to 15 mph.

Wednesday's high of 95 was eight degrees below the record set in 1958. The low of 67 was five degrees above the record set in 1976.

South Africa defends 'emergency' despite arrests, deaths

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said today they shot dead four blacks in rioting near Johannesburg, and the number of detentions under the five-day state of emergency rose to 792.

Despite rising international pressure, the white-minority government Wednesday defiantly defended the emergency declaration, saying it will not yield to "perpetrators of violence who burn people alive."

President P.W. Botha said Wednesday he was left "speechless" by France's decision to recall its ambassador, suspend new investment in South Africa and ask the U.N. Security Council to condemn "increasing repression" of blacks in South Africa.

The Security Council agreed to meet today on France's request. The French decision was the strongest Western reaction yet to the state of emergency in 36 cities and towns which allows police to arrest without warrants, impose curfews, seize property and seal off areas.

A police spokesman in Pretoria said 792 activists were in detention by 8 a.m. today. The additional 127 from Wednesday was down from the average of more than 200 on each of the first three days of the emergency, imposed Sunday.

Nearly all those held are black community leaders and students who have been in the forefront of local school boycotts and confrontations with government-backed black councils.

A police report from headquarters in Pretoria said a mob in a township on the East Rand, the industrial area east of Johannesburg, stoned an army patrol late Wednesday. Police fired rifles and shotguns to disperse the crowd, killing two men and two women and wounding 16 others.

At least 14 blacks have been slain in rioting since the emergency took effect Sunday. Police have said the number of violent incidents and damage to property have declined noticeably from the level of violence before Sunday.

Some 500 blacks have been killed in nearly a year of unrest against apartheid, South Africa's system of racial segregation under which 5 million whites rule 22 million blacks.

The majority have been shot by police, but black mobs also have slain many blacks viewed as collaborators with the government. Many have been burned.

The police spokesman also reported rioting in the eastern and northern Cape Province and the northern and western Transvaal, including stone-throwing and gasoline bombings.

The report did not specify the townships where the violence occurred, under a new policy of trying to "tone down" news reporting on the unrest.

But newspapers said the fatal clash occurred in Daveyton, a township 25 miles east of Johannesburg.

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha, no relation to the president, said the government must restore order before it can hold meaningful negotiations with moderate black leaders.

He said militants incite the international community against South Africa by presenting themselves as advocates of democracy who are deeply worried about black rights.

"There is too much at stake for all South Africans to allow our future to be determined by perpetrators of violence who burn people alive," he said. "In order to ensure freedom for all our people, extraordinary steps must be taken until peace and order are restored."

The president said of the French action that the government "cannot let itself be prescribed to about what is in the best interests of the people of South Africa."

"It amazes one that a Western government that takes an interest in Africa...can take exception to a government that restores order when communist powers and communist-inspired powers murder black people and try to disrupt the normal life of black communities," said the president.

He has repeatedly asserted that communists are behind racial unrest.

French Prime Minister Laurent Fabius said, "South Africa is increasing its repression" by imposing the state of emergency.

Orangutan responsible for border alliance?

EL PASO (AP) — A 3-year-old orangutan named Fat Cheeks is responsible for forming an international alliance of sorts in this border city.

Reported missing from a Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, circus, the animal was found Wednesday at a house in an unincorporated community southeast of El Paso by county sheriff's officers, a city animal control officer and a U.S. Fish and Wildlife agent who returned it to Mexican police at one of the international bridges linking the two countries. The orangutan, known as Cachirulo or "fat cheeks," allegedly was stolen from the Mexican circus last Saturday, said Chihuahua state police agent Arturo Valdez.

Mexican authorities told El Paso officials Wednesday afternoon that the red and brown animal was in the United States and asked for assistance in retrieving it, said El Paso County sheriff's patrolman Jim Belknap.

"Juarez officials had the information on where he was. Where they got their information, I don't know," Belknap said.

But when he arrived at the address given to him by Mexican authorities, Belknap said he found the orangutan "in the kitchen of the house. He was just making a mess."

With the aid of a fellow patrolman and an animal control officer, Belknap loaded Cachirulo into the back of a truck.

The animal was taken to the international bridge, transferred to Valdez' car and driven back to Mexico. Sheriff's patrolman Armando Sanchez said the residents of the house told officials they found the orangutan in their kitchen Wednesday. But Valdez said the animal was stolen, adding that Mexican officials would continue to investigate the case.

Tom McKay of the Fish and Wildlife Department said his agency had begun an investigation of the incident since orangutans are an endangered species.

"It's prohibited to import them without permits," McKay said. "We're just interested in the wildlife end of it, whether any endangered species laws were broken."

No other investigation would be conducted by U.S. authorities, Sanchez said.

Atomic bomber has no apologies

By PAUL RECER
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON — Kermit Beahan hopes he is the last man to ever drop an atomic bomb on an enemy but he is not going to apologize for unleashing the nuclear blast 40 years ago that killed up to 74,000 Japanese at Nagasaki.

"I was a professional soldier doing my job," said the 66-year-old retired Air Force lieutenant colonel.

Beahan was the bombardier who released the "Fat Man" plutonium bomb from the cargo bay of a B-29 named "Bock's Car" on Aug. 9, 1945.

The blast, which destroyed Nagasaki, was the last major attack of World War II and came three days after another atomic bomb, the first nuclear weapon ever used in anger, wiped out Hiroshima.

Teruaki Ooba, now in charge of relief to bomb victims, said on July 17 that Nagasaki wasn't inviting Beahan to an anniversary observation but that, "If he wants to apologize to the victims, we hope he would come personally and visit the cemetery."

Beahan, in a subsequent interview, said the two atomic attacks eliminated the need for an invasion of the Japanese home islands.

"That invasion would have cost over a million Japanese lives and about 80,000 Allied lives," said Beahan. "I have never even entertained the idea of apologizing for dropping that bomb."

Beahan had a distinguished war record in the Army Air Forces in Europe and North Africa before he was sent to the Pacific.

In 1944, he volunteered for B-29 bomber training and was assigned to Utah for Project Silverplate, the secret program preparing for atomic attacks on Japan.

"We called the weapon 'the gimmick,' and nobody was really sure if it was going to work or not," he recalled. "We spent about nine months dropping projectiles shaped like the Fat Man bomb. It was a strange shape. It looked like two bath tubs welded together."

In the summer of 1945, 12 B-29

crews were sent to Tinian Island in the Pacific, including Beahan's plane, "The Great Artist." After more practice, the first mission, over Hiroshima, was organized.

A bomber called "Enola Gay" was picked to bomb Hiroshima, with "The Great Artist" part of the three-plane attack group. Beahan's job was to drop measuring instruments over Hiroshima by parachute. "That first mission went perfectly," he said. "The weather was ideal. We dropped the bomb only 15 seconds late."

Beahan's crew was selected to drop Fat Man, which weighed 10,000 pounds, and was assigned a different B-29, "Bock's Car."

The plane encountered problems almost immediately. A pump failed, making it impossible to use fuel from an auxiliary tank. Later, a photo plane failed to link up over the coast of Japan and they spent 40 minutes circling.

Finally, Bock's Car broke away and flew toward the primary target, a huge arsenal on the island of Honshu.

"The instructions were that we were to make a visual release of the bomb," recalled Beahan. Dense clouds covered the target, though, and the plane then turned toward the secondary target, the industrial complex of Nagasaki.

"By then, the fuel problem had become acute," said Beahan. "We had enough for just one bomb run."

Clouds also obscured Nagasaki but Beahan, looking through the bomb-sight, saw a small break.

"I had 20 to 25 seconds to complete the bomb run," he said, and history's second atomic bomb fell toward Earth.

Bock's Car turned sharply away and Beahan scurried to the back of the aircraft with a camera, hoping to get a picture.

What he saw, he said, was terrifying.

"It's like a picture of hell," he said. "You saw the burst and the mushroom, all mixed with green and yellow and orange flames. You couldn't see any buildings. It was all just covered with smoke."

The bomb fell in a valley and the blast bounced back and forth, demolishing everything it touched. A residential area was shielded from the blast, so the death toll — 23,000 immediately and 51,000 more over the next four months — was smaller than at Hiroshima, where 119,000 people died.

Bock's Car made a refueling stop at Okinawa and landed at Tinian 18 hours after taking off. As Beahan walked from the plane he realized it was Aug. 9, his birthday. He was 27.

"I'm sorry the war ever had to happen," Beahan said. "I hope I go down in history as the last man to release an A-bomb under wartime conditions. We've got to find a better way."

Driverless car kills woman

BIG SPRING (AP) — An 79-year-old Big Spring woman died Wednesday after she was struck by a driverless car that rolled across an intersection, jumped a curb and pinned her against a tree in her front yard, police said.

Bessie Lankford died at Malone-Hogan Hospital, police Lt. Jerry Edwards said.

Edwards said Albert Morales, 59, left his car parked in front of a grocery about noon and after he went inside the car slipped out of gear and rolled downhill.

Details of the accident would be turned over to District Attorney Rick Hamby, who would decide if any action by his office was necessary, Edwards said.

Southern legislators indicate their desire to protect industry, farming

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Southern legislators are sending out a message that they want to protect American industries in world markets and bolster domestic farming.

Their positions on those issues came as the Southern Legislative Conference adopted a sheaf of resolutions Wednesday at the closing of its 39th annual meeting.

Other concerns include oil overcharge funds, the federal budget, labor standards, food programs and the relationship of arts and business.

The delegates, lawmakers from throughout the region, voted to support congressional passage of a Textile and Apparel Trade Enforcement Act to ensure that growth in the U.S. textile and apparel markets can be shared fairly between domestic and foreign firms.

The resolution urged that Congress apply provisions of the bill to American-owned plants located outside the nation's borders.

Delegates were also concerned about imports — such as Canadian lumber and illegally subsidized petrochemicals — that are available cheaper than American products, putting American industries out of business.

To help the ailing agricultural industry, the conference endorsed the establishment of an Agriculture and Rural Development Center for the States, which would conduct research, maintain an information service and promote regional and state-local cooperation.

The lawmakers urged Congress to exempt state and local governments from the Fair Labor Standards Act, which prohibits compensation time from being given for over-hour work and requires volunteers such as firefighters and meals-on-wheel personnel to be paid regular-level wages if they are receiving nominal amounts.

The conference opposed any attempt by federal officials to substitute oil overcharge refunds for existing energy-related appropriations and urged Congress to continue efforts to reduce the federal deficit.

Delegates supported a Southern regional emphasis on a partnership between the arts and economic development, endorsing establishment of a special task force to examine quality-of-life factors involved in business relocation decisions. They also suggested special emphasis on rural arts and an exploration of innovative ways in which tourism, the arts and traditional state economic development could become partners in promoting a state's overall development plan.

NBC, ABC, CNN will supply subpoenaed hijack material

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC News, ABC News and Cable News Network say they will comply with Justice Department subpoenas seeking material broadcast about the June 14 hijacking of a TWA jetliner and the detention of its passengers.

A spokeswoman for CBS News, which was also subpoenaed, said Wednesday that network attorneys were studying the matter.

ABC, NBC and CNN said they would allow the Justice Department access to all broadcast material and some material not aired.

ABC and CBS reported they were told the Justice Department wanted to use their videotapes, audio tapes, film and still photos in a federal grand jury investigation of the hijacking.

NBC quoted sources as saying the FBI wants to show the tapes to the crew of the Trans World Airlines plane to help identify the hijackers.

The Lebanese government has ordered a judicial probe to identify and arrest Shiite Moslems who hijacked the jet on the flight from Athens, Greece, to Rome, terrorized the passengers and forced the crew to crisscross the Mediterranean.

The Justice Department has declined to confirm a grand jury probe was planned or discuss any legal steps the United States might try to take against the hijackers, such as extradition and indictment.

"We decided it would be important to look at some of the footage of these events," said Justice Department spokesman Terry Eastland. "You can draw your own inferences."

He refused to elaborate on the department's plans, citing "the obviously sensitive nature of the whole thing."

Carol Olwert, director of information for ABC News, said the network's lawyers were told by Justice Department attorneys "that the scope of this investigation is criminal in nature."

"In view of this, it is consistent with ABC news policy to give them everything which appeared on the air," she said. Off-air material, she said, would be provided "in a manner consistent with the constitutional protection afforded a news organization."

A network source who spoke on condition of anonymity said ABC would not disclose publicly what material it turns over out of concern for the safety of its employees in the Middle East. The Justice Department appeared satisfied with the arrangement, said the source.

William McAndrew, a spokesman for NBC News, said the network "will allow screening of audio and video reports broadcast on NBC television and radio networks."

"NBC will also conduct an internal review of audio and video out-takes" which were not broadcast, looking for "material bearing on the identity of the terrorists," he said.

"Such material will be made available for screening by the Justice Department in connection with the federal grand jury's investigation of the crimes of air piracy or air piracy where a murder occurs," McAndrew said.

Burmese train hits mine, rolls, kills 61

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — A train hit mines planted by rebels and overturned, killing 61 passengers and injuring 112 others, the state news agency reported today.

News Agency Burma said the Rangoon-to-Mandalay mail ran over the mines near Kywebwe, 150 miles north of Rangoon, late Wednesday.

The agency said rebels planted the mines, but did indicate whether any group had taken responsibility. It did not say how many mines blew up.

Burma's armed forces have been fighting a dozen insurgent groups for decades, including communist guerrillas and ethnic minorities seeking autonomy.

About a third of the Texas-sized country in Southeast Asia remains outside full government control.

Burma became a one-party socialist republic in 1974. The former British colony's politics have been dominated by Gen. U Ne Win, who took power in a 1962 coup.

JAIL

"I'm going to go back and ask for another variance," he said. The sheriff said he was "very much encouraged by the Jail Commission to go ahead and put in for a variance" on double-occupancy space requirements. He said by removing two bunks from those five double-occupancy cells, he could bring the single-cells percentage barely to 30 percent.

"But we would be in violation on our square footage,"

The request not to install automatic remote-controlled emergency unlocking mechanism in 15 single cells in Cell Block No. 7 was turned down. The Jail Commission has ordered the remote-controlled mechanism be installed for those cells.

"It was disapproved for that but it was approved for two hall cells, which they call Cell Block (No.) 8."

In a drill, Painter said jailers "unlocked and locked" the 15 cells in 58 seconds.

"I don't feel like there's any life threat in that," he said of the 58-second drill, "and I think that's pretty fast."

Representing Midland County at the Jail Commission hearing were the sheriff, County Commissioners Durward Wright and C. Wallace "Wally" Craig and Midland architects Walter Pate and James Riggan.

Last May 11, Midland County voters approved a $3 million bond election to renovate the jail, expand Cui-ver Youth Home, a juvenile detention center, and fund a study for Midland County government needs into the 21st century.

Pay errors cost Marine Corps, newspaper says

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Marine Corps Finance Center has made millions of dollars in pay errors involving military personnel and retirees in recent years, according to a published report.

Marine audits revealed the Corps made overpayments and underpayments to active-duty Marines estimated at $100 million in 1983 and almost $126 million in 1982, the Kansas City Star said in a copyright story Sunday.

Pay errors during the first half of 1984 — the most recent period when such statistics were available — totaled about $30 million, the newspaper said.

Marine officials acknowledged mistakes had occurred, but said the errors represented a small portion of the estimated $3.9 billion in payroll and related payments disbursed in 1984. Those receiving payment included 195,000 active-duty Marines, 102,000 reservists and 91,000 retirees and their survivors in 1984.

"What is an acceptable error rate?" said Col. Lynn Mertes, commanding officer of the Kansas City-based finance center. "If you look at a $3 billion appropriation and you're looking at an error rate of 1 percent, what does that equate to? More money than we'll make in our lives."

Problems in the Marine pay system had been outlined in nearly 90 reports issued from 1978 to 1984 by the General Accounting Office, the Naval Audit Service and Internal Navy and Marine Corps auditors, the newspaper said.

Marine officials do not keep track of how much of the mistaken pay is recovered, but they said the center was trying to collect more than $9 million in overpayments from former Marines as of April 30.

Officials at Marine Corps headquarters in Washington rebutted criticism of the finance center's operations.

"The information we have on the Marine Corps Finance Center would suggest they're doing an exceedingly good job in what they do," said Col. George K. Robinson Jr., head of disbursing for the Marine Corps.

Raymond Butts, national executive director of the Marine Corps League, an independent service organization, said the finance center seemed to be a "very well-oiled machine."

But Randall Moudy, a former private first class from Jacksonville, N.C., said Marines in his unit frequently encountered pay problems.

Pastora missing since helicopter went down

By ROBERT J. McCARTNEY
Los Angeles Times
Washington Post News Service

MEXICO CITY — The whereabouts of Nicaraguan guerrilla leader Eden Pastora were in doubt Wednesday after his rebel force reported he was missing after his helicopter went down Tuesday afternoon in southeastern Nicaragua.

Two media reports, however, indicated that Pastora had managed to escape to Panama in a second aircraft, a Costa Rican radio station said he was recovering from slight injuries in Costa Rica, and the Nicaraguan Defense Ministry said the reports of a disappearance were a publicity stunt to raise money for the rebels' cause. These claims were denied by a spokesman for Pastora's Democratic Revolutionary Alliance, known by its Spanish initials ARDE, who was contacted by telephone in San Jose, Costa Rica.

"He is not in Panama. We have people out looking for him in the jungle right now," said the ARDE spokesman, who asked to remain anonymous.

The spokesman said Pastora had disappeared Tuesday during a trip to inspect guerrilla outposts inside Nicaragua. The pilot of Pastora's Hughes helicopter reported by radio that he was having mechanical trouble, and then contact was lost with the aircraft, the spokesman said. He added that troops of the Sandinista government were patrolling in the area where the helicopter disappeared, and that they may have shot down the aircraft.

The Associated Press, however, quoted a cousin of Pastora as saying the guerrilla leader had been flown to Panama in a second helicopter after his aircraft went down. The cousin, Hector Dario Pastora, is public relations director for a political organization that works with ARDE.

Costa Rica's Radio Monumental also reported that Pastora was safe in Panama after suffering "slight" injuries in the downing of the helicopter. The radio station did not cite a source for the report.

Nicaragua's Defense Ministry issued a communique denying that Pastora was missing.

"It is a new show by the traitor Pastora, with the intention of appearing in the news of the world, on television and in the written press, to obtain more money from the CIA," the statement said.

Pastora is one of the most famous of the rebels battling the Sandinistas because he once was a well-known Sandinista commander in the insurrection that toppled dictator Anastasio Somoza in 1979.

Women extend discussion deadline

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Negotiators at the U.N. women's conference met today to discuss proposed resolutions on controversial issues like South Africa and the Middle East that have become an obstacle to a final document.

The conferees extended the deadline for discussion until this afternoon after they failed to meet a Wednesday midnight time limit.

They were deadlocked on what to say about issues like South Africa's apartheid system of racial segregation, Zionism and the status of Palestinian women living in Israeli-held territories.

The conference, which began July 15 and ends Friday, drew 3,000 delegates to assess gains made by the women's movement from 1975 to 1985, a decade dedicated to women by the United Nations.

A final document, called "Forward Looking Strategies," is one of the goals of the conference.

Leticia Shahani, secretary-general of the conference, said Wednesday she was confident "a common purpose, a common will" would emerge, but said the conference's success depended in part on the outcome of the political disputes.

"The question is, can the (women's) movement have solidarity now? will there be the political will to recognize that there are differences?" she said.

Efforts towards reaching agreement on issues to be contained in the document have been hampered by political issues that have split the conference along East-West lines.

Delegates mapping out strategy for the women's movement until the year 2000 have agreed on 398 of 415 proposed paragraphs.

A proposed resolution describing Palestinian women in Israeli-occupied territory as victims of oppression has become one of the most controversial issues.

WORLD in brief

More held in dam break

TRENTO, Italy (AP) — Two more men have been arrested in connection with the dam collapse that killed more than 200 people, and more arrests are likely, authorities said.

Investigators questioned dozens of people, many of them local government officials, in the probe of the dam break last Friday.

Rescue officials recovered four more bodies from the mountain of mud and debris that erased the alpine vacation hamlet of Stava in northeastern Italy when the dam collapsed. That brought to 204 the number of bodies found. All but 38 of the bodies have been identified.

Shultz visiting Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Drug traffic, Central America and other issues straining U.S.-Mexico relations were on the docket of U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz in his meetings with Mexican leaders here today after arriving to begin preparing for President Reagan's expected visit.

No formal agenda was released for the fifth annual bilateral meeting between top U.S. and Mexican officials, but a State Department spokesman in Washington said illegal immigration also would be an important topic.

Shultz, along with officials from the Treasury and Commerce departments as well as the U.S. trade representative, was scheduled to arrive this morning and travel directly to a private meeting with President Miguel de la Madrid. A series of conferences with the officials' Mexican counterparts was scheduled for the rest of the day, with Shultz due to leave Friday morning after a breakfast meeting.

Ugandan action urged

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The leader of Uganda's Roman Catholic Church has urged President Milton Obote to dissolve the government and postpone elections because of an army rebellion in the north.

Cardinal Emmanuel Nsubuga, in a letter carried by Ugandan newspapers Wednesday, said rebel troops had overpowered the army in one district and set up numerous roadblocks across the north.

Decision not to prosecute made by career official

WASHINGTON (AP) — The decision not to prosecute Teamsters President Jackie Presser in an alleged phony payroll scheme was made by an award-winning career Justice Department prosecutor rather than by political appointees, sources say.

Political appointees merely ratified the order of David Margolis, who heads the organized crime section of the department's criminal division, said the government sources, speaking Wednesday on condition they not be identified.

Margolis rejected the recommendation to prosecute Presser that was made six months ago by leaders of the department's Organized Crime Strike Force in Cleveland, backed by Labor Department investigators, the sources said. They had recommended that Presser be indicted by a grand jury there for allegedly putting "ghost workers" on the payroll of Teamster Local 507 in the Ohio city, the sources said.

Deputy Attorney General Lowell Jensen and Assistant Attorney General Stephen S. Trott, who heads the criminal division, merely approved Margolis' decision in the nearly three-year-old case, the sources said. Meanwhile, the U.S. Senate's permanent subcommittee on investigations Wednesday began preliminary inquiry into the handling of the Presser investigation, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Recent allegations have been made in the media indicating a lack of coordination between the Labor Department, the Justice Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the investigation of this case," said Sen. William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., subcommittee chairman.

Neither Presser nor his lawyer could be reached for comment about the subcommittee investigation.

The Presser case was politically sensitive because Presser has been President Reagan's lone major union supporter. The sensitivity contributed to a decision by Attorney General Edwin Meese III to take himself out of the case altogether.

A senior Justice official said Meese removed himself from the case "as a matter of propriety, to avoid any appearance of political influence" because of Presser's close relationship with Reagan's administration. In addition, the official said, Meese decided not to get involved because the case had been ongoing under the jurisdiction of others well before he became attorney general in February.

Capitol parking lot may be turned into pedestrian park

WASHINGTON (AP) — The black asphalt parking lot on the Capitol's east side will be transformed into a flower-lined pedestrian park designed to both delight tourists and foil terrorists under a new congressional plan.

Rep. Robert Young, D-Mo., introduced the proposal Wednesday in a bill that would authorize the Architect of the Capitol to redesign the Spartan east plaza at a cost of $8.4 million.

Architect George White, whose office developed the plan, was to testify in favor of the facelift today at a hearing before the House Public Works and Transportation subcommittee on public buildings.

"I've been saying all along that it's an indignity to have a supermarket-type parking lot outside the windows of the United States Capitol," White said in an interview Wednesday.

The plan will eliminate about 300 parking spaces and replace the crude concrete barriers and dump trucks we now use to block the entrances to the building with more esthetically pleasing barricades," he said.

Gray concrete highway barricades were put into place during the last two years after a bomb exploded inside the Capitol and a police cruiser rammed a car driven at high speed into the parking lot.

Following the facelift, congressional staffers who now are allotted spaces on the east lot would be reassigned to other areas on and off the Capitol grounds, White said. Some 1,200 cars still could be parked along the brick-curbed roadways winding around the Capitol, he added.

The facelift is part of the so-called "master plan" White's office devised in 1981 under orders from Congress. In its final phase, the master plan calls for an underground parking garage beneath the east plaza — a project White doubts will be started in this century.

Indian burial ground to be saved

ELIZABETH, Pa. (AP) — An Indian burial ground that was to be turned into a park will be preserved and a monument erected where the bones of an Indian were discovered, according to the state Department of Environmental Resources.

"This is the first thing given back to Indians in Pennsylvania in the last several hundred years," Edward Hale of McKees Rocks, an Indian medicine man, said Tuesday.

The burial ground in neighboring Forward Township was discovered July 4 while workmen were building a boat dock.

Iranians masquerade as freedom fighters

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Iranian leftist group that assassinated Americans in the 1970s and was involved in the holding of U.S. hostages in Tehran has won support from members of Congress by "masquerading" as freedom fighters opposing Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, according to the State Department.

Richard W. Murphy, assistant secretary of state for Near East and South Asian affairs, said Wednesday the group was conducting "a fairly active public relations campaign" in the United States and apparently had won support because of confusion with Afghan rebels fighting Soviet forces in Afghanistan.

Both groups use the name Mujahedeen, but there the similarity ends, Murphy told a House subcommittee on Middle East affairs.

NATION

"This group has no connection with the Afghan Mujahedeen freedom fighters and should not be confused with the latter," Murphy said. "The People's Mujahedeen Organization of Iran, in fact, has publicly supported the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan and opposed the Afghan Mujahedeen."

Murphy, testifying on recent Middle East developments, said the Iranian group had been running its active public relations campaign in the United States for at least a year.

"This group has sort of been masquerading under a cover which attracted a surprising amount of support judging by some letters from Congress," he said.

He did not go into detail, but the group has named a number of members of Congress who wrote letters of support to its leader, Massoud Rajavi.

Was it discrimination or media event?

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — Entering the Belvoir Restaurant in southwestern Virginia was like stepping back into the racial turmoil of the 1960s, says a black woman who claims restaurant owners Roy and Patricia McKoy refused her service last year because of her color.

The McKoys, who already are under previous court orders to serve blacks, are being sued for discrimination by three black women who, in front of news cameras and reporters, tried to enter the Marshall, Va., restaurant last Dec. 7.

Attorneys for the McKoys told a federal court jury on Wednesday their clients were made victims of a "staged media event" when Lori Jackson and her daughters, Denise Johnson and Debrah Williams, showed up at the Belvoir.

Following the restaurant incident, the women, residents of Prince William County, filed suit in U.S. District Court in Alexandria, where an all-white jury of two women and four men could call for an injunction against the McKoys and award unspecified damages to the women.

A decision in the case was expected today.

The 30-seat restaurant, located about 50 miles southwest of Washington, D.C., has been the target of court actions since 1967, when a federal judge ordered the McKoys to stop discriminating against blacks and to place a sign in their place saying everyone would be served "regardless of race or color."

Also on display at the restaurant has been a sign saying the court had "unconstitutionally forced us to serve people we do not want to serve," several witnesses said.

Roy McKoy, 60, was found guilty of failing to comply with the order in 1974 and again earlier this year. He was sentenced to short jail terms both times.

NATION IN BRIEF

FEMA head's resignation 'unrelated' to allegations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Louis O. Giuffrida is quitting as director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, but says the decision is unrelated to a draft House committee report that accuses him of mismanagement.

The House Science and Technology Committee was scheduled to vote today on the report, approved previously by its investigations subcommittee.

"Absolutely not, a categorical no," FEMA spokesman Robert Mahaffey said Wednesday when asked if the resignation was connected to the report.

The report found mismanagement by Giuffrida and other agency officials in several areas, including: no-bid contract awards, renovation of a building for luxurious personal living quarters, travel on government expense by Giuffrida's wife, acceptance of gratuities from a contractor and favoritism in contractor billing procedures.

Some of the allegations also involved Fred J. Villella, FEMA's former No. 3 official who resigned last August, two days after some of the accusations surfaced in a subcommittee hearing. The report accused Villella of improperly using government vehicles for personal use and having work done on a government chapel for his daughter's wedding.

FBI: Racial violence down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI says it is heartened by an apparent decline in racial violence, but worried about threats from small, heavily armed terrorist groups bent on overthrowing the government and creating an all-white U.S. society.

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the Jewish service organization, believes these radical white supremacists have no chance of gaining political power, but nevertheless are "capable of serious violence."

The FBI's Terry O'Connor and Alan Schwartz of the Anti-Defamation League reported good news and bad news Wednesday at a National Urban League panel discussion of racism in America.

The good news, said O'Connor, is that the Ku Klux Klan "is very significantly diminished in numbers, influence and criminal capability."

O'Connor also saw an encouraging trend in a decline in reports of racial violence in the past two years, from 203 cases in 1983 to 158 last year.

"Hopefully it reflects not only that law enforcement efforts are having an impact, but more significantly that racial hatred is ebbing in this country," said O'Connor, civil rights section chief for the FBI's criminal investigations division.

Reagan sets meeting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, returning today to the West Wing offices of the White House, was to meet with his Cabinet for the first time since undergoing cancer surgery—nearly two weeks ago.

The president, who has spent most of his time convalescing in the residential quarters of the mansion since returning from the hospital on Saturday, was scheduled to meet with his department heads and top advisers in the Cabinet Room.

Survivor wins apology

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An Auschwitz survivor who lost his family in Nazi death camps has been given an apology and a $90,000 settlement in his case against groups that had challenged the Holocaust as a myth.

Melvin Mermelstein, 58, of Long Beach, filed a $17 million suit in 1981, claiming he suffered emotional distress after the Institute for Historical Review, in Torrance, failed to pay him a $50,000 reward it had offered to anyone who could prove Jews were gassed at Auschwitz concentration camp.

He had submitted sworn declarations and other evidence that he saw his mother and sister driven into gas chambers in 1944. His father later died from slave labor at the camp and his brother was shot while being transferred between camps.

Insurance board approves new rates

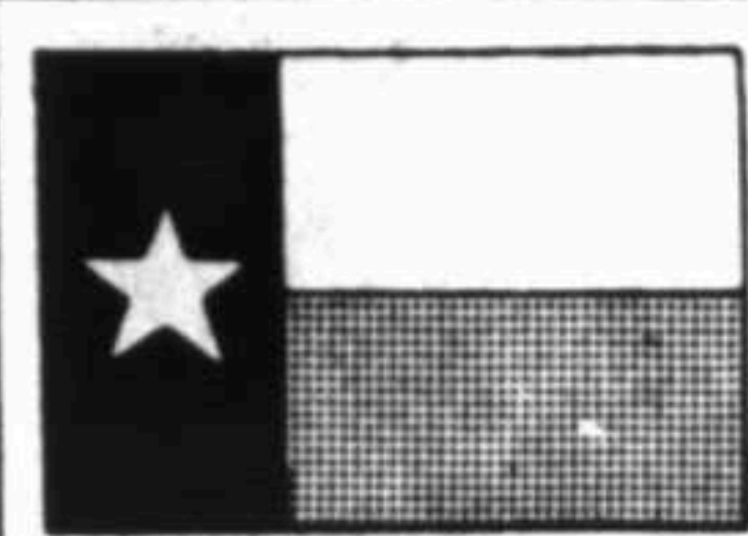

AUSTIN (AP) — Property insurance for big-city homeowners will cost more next year, particularly along the Gulf Coast, but smaller cities inland — including Midland — will get a price break, according to the State Board of Insurance.

The board also approved Wednesday substantial cuts for renters of apartment and condominiums throughout the state.

The board approved 340 staff recommendations for a statewide 6.7 percent increase of $58 million for homeowners and a statewide 25 percent cut of $23 million for renters.

The changes are effective Nov. 15. The industry had asked a statewide average increase of 15.8 percent for those owning or buying a home.

Board Chairman Lyndon Olson also served notice the board would make another decision soon on his motion to cancel on Nov. 15 all discounts now offered on property insurance.

"Hopefully this would break the cycle of fierce price-cutting, often undisciplined, that exists in Texas," Olson said.

If Olson's motion is approved, any insurance firm that wants to deviate from standard prices set by the board would have to get permission from the state insurance department.

The board also approved, 2-1, extending the cancellation notice time that a firm must give a policyholder from 10 to 14 days. Olson said he had firsthand knowledge of the problem because the insurance on his condominium was cancelled recently without adequate advance notice.

Member Carol Rylander wanted the mid-term cancellation notice time lengthened to 30 days.

Under the board action, rates for owners of a $100,000 brick veneer home in Houston would increase 20.5 percent from $449 to $541 and in Corpus Christi 19.6 percent from $514 to $615.

However, in Abilene, Amarillo, Lubbock, Midland, San Angelo and Wichita Falls the homeowners rate was decreased 6.3 percent from $715 to $670.

Homeowner rate changes for other major cities included:

Austin, Dallas, Fort Worth and Waco rates up 1.1 percent, from $454 to $459; El Paso and San Antonio up 1.2 percent, from $426 to $431.

Premiums on $20,000 worth of furnishing in a brick veneer apartment or condominium in Austin went down 25.2 percent from $258 to $193. The same 25.2 decrease was posted for renters in Corpus Christi, from $310 to $232, and Dallas, from $258 from $193. The renters rate dropped 25.1 percent in Lubbock, from $279 to $209, and 24.9 percent in Houston, from $309 to $232.

The board sets its homeowners property insurance rates by region — coastal, central and north-northwest.

Ms. Rylander pointed out the sea-coast rates still included a "carry-over" of the damage done by Hurricane Alicia.

Man gives state $3,000 in repayment for aid

New York Times News Service

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas — It was only $13 per month at first, but Richard Besch remembers how badly his family needed the money.

The 78-year-old New Braunfels native decided to return the favor last month and sent the State of Texas a check for $3,000.

Besch made the gift, no strings attached, because 50 years ago the state helped his mother, a widow with four children, survive.

"I haven't told anybody about it," Besch said in an interview at McKenna Memorial Hospital in New Braunfels.

Besch received a thank-you note from State Treasurer Ann Richards just before he went to the hospital for treatment of a diabetic condition.

Ms. Richards wrote that Besch's gift "honors your mother and you; you are a special person and a good citizen."

She also said: "As a public officeholder and a mother, I appreciate what you have done. We live in a cynical world that often overlooks kindness and gratefulness."

Ms. Richards went on to explain that declining oil and gas tax revenues have caused problems for state budget planners. She said Besch's $3,000 and the interest it will earn come at a critical time.

Daniel Dietert, executive vice president of MBank in New Braunfels, said that Besch had thought about making the gift for almost a year.

Acting on Besch's instructions, Dietert sent a bank draft for $3,000 to the state treasury. "He's not at all a wealthy man," Dietert said.

Besch, a bachelor, lives with his brother in a small home he owns in a modest neighborhood in New Braunfels.

STATE IN BRIEF

Board denies permit to topless barber shop

AUSTIN (AP) — A state agency Wednesday gave a thumbs down to a topless barber shop proposed for a private club in Houston. Bikini clad female barbers are out too.

The naked truth, says Jo King McCrorey, executive director of the State Board of Barber Examiners, is that "Au Naturel" establishments expose barbers and clients to unnecessary health hazards.

"One person wanted to put in a topless barber shop and use nothing but young women," Ms. McCrorey said. "Shaves were going to be one of their specialties."

That is unsanitary, she says, because "a hair'll work under the skin of the barber and can grow up to five or six feet inside the body."

The board has proposed new rules that threaten the permit of any tonsorial artist "found to be barbering dressed in a manner determined by the board to be inappropriate to guarantee a safe, sanitary, sterile condition for the protection of the consumer and the barber." Nor would the board issue a permit to any barber proposing to operate in such bare apparel.

Inmate to be back in court

GREENVILLE, Texas (AP) — Death-row inmate John Michael Lamb, who had been scheduled for execution on Monday, was ordered Wednesday to appear in court next week before State District Judge Paul Banner, who will set a new execution date.

Banner issued an order for Lamb to appear before the court next Thursday in Greenville, the Greenville Herald-Banner said.

Lamb had been scheduled to die Monday, but that execution date was withdrawn by Banner last Thursday. Banner said he revoked the execution date so the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals could have time to rule on a request for a stay of execution.

Murderer gets 60 years

LUBBOCK (AP) — A jury handed down a 60-year sentence Wednesday for Mark Hadley, who was convicted of murder in the death of his uncle Monte "Buddy" Reger.

Meanwhile, Randall Loyd Thompson, a former hand on the Oklahoma ranch where Hadley was foreman, reportedly has been promised a 60-year sentence as part of a plea-bargain agreement with the criminal district attorney's office, according to the Lubbock Avalanche Journal.

Suspect can't find lawyer

BEAUMONT (AP) — A lawyer has yet to be appointed for the man charged with robbing a Port Arthur savings and loan and killing two employees, a justice of the peace said Wednesday.

John Borne said he has been unable to find a lawyer willing to take the case of David Lee Holland, Holland, 50, was charged Friday with two counts of capital murder in the July 16 deaths of Dianna Joy Jackson, 23, of Port Neches, and Helen Jean Barnard, 28, of Groves, both killed during an armed robbery at Jefferson Savings and Loan Association in Port Arthur.

If the grand jury returns an indictment, Borne said the case will no longer be in his jurisdiction and the district court will have to appoint a lawyer.

White: Government files suit to try to 'chill voter turnout' in First District

AUSTIN (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department is declining to comment on Gov. Mark White's charges that it is playing political games with the special congressional election in the 1st District in northeast Texas.

White on Wednesday said the Justice Department filed suit against Texas in hopes of raising doubts about the balloting and keeping Democrats home in a district no Republican has carried in a century.

"I think they're trying to chill voter turnout because they know if there's a large voter turnout, there will not be a Republican elected," White said.

The Aug. 3 election is being held to fill the seat of Rep. Sam Hall, a Democrat who resigned to become a federal judge.

The election pits Democrat Jim Chapman, former Hopkins County district attorney, against Republican Edd Hargett, a former professional football player making his first bid for public office. They were the top two vote-getters in a June 29 election.

Last week, the Justice Department filed a civil lawsuit to require Texas to obtain federal clearance for the Aug. 3 vote. White, who scheduled the election, and Secretary of State Myra McDaniel were named as defendants.

The suit contends the Voting Rights Act of 1965 requires preclearance for the election. White strongly disagrees.

Not only is preclearance unnecessary, White said, but the Justice Department didn't request such clearance for the 1983 special election which then-Rep. Phil Gramm won after resigning his House seat, switching to the Republican Party and running again.

"I don't remember them being down here for in the congressional district over in Bryan...a couple years ago when Congressman Gramm resigned," White said.

"They really don't have majority of support, I don't think, and for that reason they win by some sort of game playing. I think that's a tragic circumstance."

Asked about White's charges, Justice Department civil rights division spokesman John V. Wilson in Washington would say only, "I won't respond until I see it in writing."

The governor said he understood the Justice Department's actions since the race is being closely watched by officials of both national parties.

He also said Hargett was trying to hide his party loyalty and campaigning on his past as a Texas A&M University quarterback.

"They've sent a significant portion of the cabinet, the vice president of the United States and the president, but for an operation, would have already gone to that district. And yet you cannot get the candidate in that district (Hargett) to even utter the word 'Republican,'" White said.

"He's running as an Aggie, and I don't blame him. Aggies are more popular than Republicans."

White said a three-judge federal panel previously has ruled that preclearance isn't needed for such elections.

"I don't know why this Justice Department has decided that case no longer applies in Texas," he said.

Wasted charity

The Live Aid concerts in London and Philadelphia recently were smashing successes, raising a reported $70 million for African famine relief. This amount, added to the estimated $1 billion in aid already donated or pledged by private agencies and governments around the world, should help save many thousands of lives.

But, as the respected London Economist notes in its current survey of Africa's food crisis, aid efforts still are being hampered by mismanagement and frustration by political interference. Then too, free food may no longer be the best response to hunger in some of Africa's 20 poorest countries.

Mismanagement, of course, is a major problem. So much donated food is reported rotting on the docks of Ethiopia's three ports that United Nations officials have suspended additional deliveries until the backlog is cleared. Some of the donated trucks and four-wheel-drive vehicles that could be hauling this food out to the feeding camps are sitting on the docks as well, awaiting some customs bureaucrat's signature or stamp of acceptance.

Less flagrant but still disheartening examples of inefficiency and mismanagement also afflict many of the aid efforts elsewhere in Africa. Typically, this mismanagement is less the fault of those giving aid than of the governments receiving it. In any event, the all-too-frequent result is that aid is wasted and many who need it nevertheless go without. That's tragic.

But at least these administrative shortcomings are usually not deliberate. Political interference, which is one reason it is so "unforgivable." The Marxist government of Ethiopia still gives Soviet ships delivering arms priority for unloading over Western ships delivering grain. Worse, the Ethiopian regime continues to deny food to Eritrea and Tigre, rebellious provinces where several million people are starving.

Donated trucks that could be delivering food in Ethiopia are instead being used by the regime in the forced relocation of civilians suspected of sympathizing with insurgents. In Sudan, the new government seems decidedly apathetic about arranging the delivery of food to areas in the south where guerrillas are active. In all, civil conflicts are disrupting food distribution in Mozambique, Chad and Angola in addition to Ethiopia and the Sudan. And in almost every case, the villain is a government that would rather see innocent civilians starve than risk feeding insurgents.

By the best estimates, Africa needed 7 million tons of food aid during the last 12 months. Two-thirds of that has been delivered or promised, and more will no doubt soon be on the way. There is no substitute for this aid where people are actually starving. But where they are merely malnourished and local agriculture is still functioning, the widespread distribution of free food can depress farm incomes and diminish future food production — in effect, helping to create the next famine.

This hardly adds up, of course, to a case for withholding aid. It does suggest the need for better, more far-sighted planning plus more pressure on some African governments to stop using food as a weapon. These are ways to assure that aid dollars are not wasted and that such outpourings of generosity as the response to the Live Aid concerts actually accomplish the good intended.

So long, Route 66

There goes another little bit of history. Famous old Route 66 is being cast on the garbage dump of history. The last six states have decided to remove the road signs of the old highway to the West.

There is little glamor or romance in the modern interstate highways of today. But old Route 66 was different. It was the highway that stretched from Chicago to Santa Monica, Calif., going through the Great Plains and the Rocky Mountains and across northern Arizona.

Route 66 brought people into Winslow, Flagstaff and Williams, Ariz., and took literally millions through Cline Corners, N.M. Now the new I-40 bypasses cities and towns. It and other interstates provide faster travel, but by comparison they are antiseptic. It is doubtful if they will be used as background for movies or television series, as was Route 66. And who will write songs about them?

The demise of Route 66 is truly the end of an era in American travel. It carried the Okies and Arkies of Depression years from the Dust Bowl to California. It was used by families of soldiers and the military during World War II. And it introduced millions of tourists to the wonders of the West in the 1950s.

But we live in an era of speed and efficiency, and Route 66 could not compete with what highway officials call progress. So now Americans driving west will have to "get their kicks" on I-40.

Progress can be sobering.

Another View:

Not a time for fear

Criticism has been directed at several studies that, in recent years, indicated that fear of nuclear war ranked high among the worries of children. The studies have been used by organizations critical of the U.S. policy of nuclear deterrence. For the sake of the children, we hope the critics are correct when they say the studies have overstated the situation.

Childhood should be a peaceful, happy time — not a time for brooding over a catastrophe that may never occur.

One of the critics of the studies is Dr. Robert Coles, a child psychiatrist at Harvard University, who called some of the studies "sentimental balderdash." Dr. Coles said some studies lack perspective.

In addition, some of the studies reflect a class bias, Dr. Coles said, by concentrating on the children of professional people, among whom the anti-nuclear movement is stronger than it is among blue-collar and poor families. Dr. Coles told The New York Times that he found deep-seated concern only where the children's families were professionals, many of them active in anti-nuclear movements.

Dr. Lawrence Steinberg, University of Wisconsin psychologist, said other studies indicated that students worry more about schoolwork, their appearance and the opinions other students have of them.

Young people are entitled, to be sure, to receive as much information as they desire and can handle about international relations and the nuclear threat. Part of the responsibility of parents and teachers is to provide information and perspective.

If Dr. Coles and other critics of the studies are correct in saying that children's worry about nuclear war has been overstated, people on either side of the nuclear debate have reason to be glad. The child who lives in fear untempered by hope loses an important part of childhood.

Pentagon grabbing 'ocean land'

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon has quietly asserted control over millions of acres of federal land in a move that puts the Defense Department squarely at odds with Big Oil and on the side of environmentalists.

The strange "land grab" involves huge portions of the Outer Continental Shelf that the Interior Department wants to lease to oil and gas industry for offshore drilling. The Pentagon has designated 115 million acres of the underwater "land" off-limits to exploitation. By comparison, the total amount of wilderness protected from development in Alaska and the lower 48 states is only 89 million acres.

The Pentagon claims that preservation of the offshore areas is vital to submarine and other operations required for national defense. The appearance of oil rigs and exploration equipment would make these military operations difficult if not impossible, the Pentagon says. Here's what our associate Donald Goldberg has learned about the bureaucratic battle:

The ocean-bottom land has been a subject of controversy ever since then-Secretary of Interior James Watt proposed leasing nearly a billion acres for oil and gas development four years ago. Partly on environmental grounds, Congress imposed a moratorium on some of the leases, covering about 45 million acres.

The Pentagon's secret war with the Interior Department has been going on ever since. "Disagreements between the agencies were well hidden," wrote an expert in the congressional Office of Technology Assessment. "However, what was once handled on a routine case-by-case basis seems now to be turning into a problem too broad and complex to be dealt with ad hoc."

Complicating the matter is the lack of clear authority over withdrawal of public lands for military purposes. One law gives this power to the president and the defense secretary; another gives it to Congress. Playing it safe, the Pentagon refers to its assertion of authority over the offshore land merely as "deferrals" of development.

In testimony last year before a House subcommittee, one defense official said the Pentagon supported the congressional ban for national security reasons. Several weeks later, the same official told another subcommittee the Defense Department opposed the moratorium, thereby quietly conforming to the official administration line.

Here's the list of offshore areas the Pentagon has said must be preserved from exploitation: — The Navy's Narragansett Bay Operating Area off southern New England, containing the transit lanes used by 54 attack submarines assigned to the Atlantic Fleet and based at Groton, Conn.

Explains the Navy document: "Oil and gas structures positioned within submarine transit lanes or high-usage operating areas present safety-to-navigation hazards and acoustical interference." Furthermore, the noise from drilling would bollix up the delicate sound sensors that monitor enemy subs off the coast, according to the Navy document.

The Mid-Atlantic area of Norfolk, Va., where drilling would hamper a number of sensitive Navy operations, including missile tests, supersonic flights and firing of cruise missiles and torpedoes. — The South Atlantic area off the Carolinas and Florida, including Cape Canaveral. In addition to submarine transit lanes, this area encompasses a unique combination of launch areas and support facilities associated with submarine-launched ballistic missiles.

— The Gulf of Mexico, where carrier training of Navy pilots takes place, as well as mine countermeasures, anti-submarine warfare and amphibious operations.

— Central and northern California operating zones, with a wide variety of military activities occurring from Point Conception near Santa Barbara north to the Oregon border.

Footnote: Last week the Interior Department tentatively agreed to put most of California's coastal waters off-limits to oil drilling until the year 2000, in exchange for an end to the congressional moratorium on other areas of the California coast.

UNDER THE DOME: Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., was ruled out of order when he tried to sing his view that recreational boat owners should pay the Coast Guard for services they now get free. Here's Conte's lyrical complaint: "Row, row, row my boat gently up the stream. But if you try to make me pay, I'll throw a fit and scream. Tow, tow, tow my boat through the surf to shore. So what if I don't pay my share? The others can pay more."

WATCH ON WASTE: Most federal-funded transit systems cost between $50 million and $100 million per mile to build. Yet, amazingly, San Diego was able to construct a transit system, without federal assistance, for only $6 million per mile.

GEORGE F. WILL

Hey pardner, westerns are back!

WASHINGTON — Howdy, pardner. Belly up to the bar with your little filly, elbow aside that sodbuster yonder and that tenderfoot who tumbled into town like a tumbleweed on the noon stage from Jefferson City, order up a shot glass of rotgut from the barkeep wearing the arm garters and hear my sad story.

Moviegoyers have saddled up and ridden into town to see two new Westerns and are wondering if that genre is back and standing tall. On the evidence of "Silverado" and "Pale Rider," the answer can be put in laconic cowboyese: "Nope. Bang the drum slowly and play the fife lowly. The genre (yes, I know only schoolmarm uses that word brought in from St. Louis) died in 1953, plucked full of lead by Alan Ladd. It is now face down in the streets of Laredo, wrapped in white linen and cold as the clay."

What's that pilgrim? You say you don't give a damn? Smile when you say that, hoss, 'cause you're walking on the fighting side of Clint Eastwood.

"Silverado" is about four drifters who band together to do down bullies. Such joining together is what today is called "male bonding." Perhaps that explains the decline of Westerns: Who wants to see a male-bonding flick? Fortunately, "Silverado" has a barmaid named Stella and an honest-to-Randolph Scott stamper. Like all proper Westerns (and like Hamlet, which is a sort of Danish Western), it is about vengeance.

Unfortunately, the younger generation of moviegoers — varmints under 40 — is not worth the powder it would take to blow it up. Whatever sense God gave the younger generation has been driven out of it by movies like "Friday the 13th, Part 13." So that generation is going to be slow to warm up to Westerns. And older moviegoers have seen Alan Ladd as Shane and may see Eastwood's "Pale Rider" as a pale imitation.

"Shane" begins with Shane's mere silent presence causing some cowpokes to quit picking on a God-fearing family that wants to farm. "Pale Rider" begins with Eastwood using an ax handle to whomp on some mean miners who are whomping on a virtuous miner. (In "Shane," the ax-handle scene comes when a virtuous farmer barges into the saloon to rescue Shane.) In "Shane," the male-bonding bit comes when Shane and the farmer wrestle with a stump. In "Pale Rider," the object is a rock. In both movies, a feisty but foolish fellow goes to the one-street town to show he can't be buffaloed by the establishment, and he gets perforated by gunslings in front of a dry-goods store. Both Shane and the Pale Rider go back to gunfighting reluctantly, then head for the horizon while a young sprout shouts "Don't go!"

Because "Shane" so perfectly presented all the themes and images of the Western, all subsequent Westerns seem either camp or flat. Indeed, "Pale Rider" is, at one level, a long wink at those of us who worship at Shane's shrine. But "Pale Rider" does have all the healthy homilies that fly thick as bullets through good Westerns — the right stuff about putting down roots so you can put up schools and churches.

Today's young people, weaned on "A-Team" and movies about helicopters that destroy nations, are too desensitized for Westerns, which deal out violence only as fast as a six-shooter or an ax handle can administer it — retail, not wholesale. But perhaps they will emulate the President, and read a Western.

Unfortunately, the alarming news from Bethesda Naval Hospital concerned the presidential reading list. No one wants Mr. Reagan reading Henry James and disappearing into one of James' syntactical swamps, never to be heard from again. By all means read Westerns, Mr. President, but why Louis L'Amour? He is a pale writer.

If Mr. Reagan wants to encourage the reading of Westerns (has any President since Lincoln rendered the Republic a service that large?), he should curl up with Zane Grey's hair-curling "The Spirit of the Border." As the book's cover says, "Only a handful of hard-living, scalp-hunting riflemen stood between kill-crazed Indians and a reptilian renegade named Girty, who is turned into buzzard bait by Lou Wetzel, a hero so taciturn he makes Eastwood seem like Joan Rivers."

Wetzel drove the blade into the renegade's groin, through flesh and bone, hard and fast into the tree. Shrieking in agony, the pinned man tumbled and pulled at the knife, but could not loosen it....Dark birds sat on the dead branches waiting for their feast.

Okay, so the American Civil Liberties Union probably thinks Lou Wetzel is naughty. But really, mom, which do you prefer — America's youth watching "Rambo" or reading Zane Grey?

ART BUCHWALD

Vacation games can get nasty!

EDITOR'S NOTE: While Art Buchwald is on vacation we reprint some columns from the past.

Traveling can become very boring, unless you can invent games to pass the time.

I was introduced to one by an English writer, Guy Elms, who lives in Rome. He claims the game was invented by Graham Greene at a sidewalk cafe on the Via Veneto. It's called "Hating People."

Mr. Elms explained the idea of the game to me. "You play it in any public place — a sidewalk cafe, a railroad station, a train or at an air terminal, waiting for a plane. You select one person from a crowd, someone you don't know, and you start to hate him."

"I don't understand," I said. "All right, we'll play a game now. Do you see that man over there? Let's hate him."

Mr. Elms pointed at a young man sitting several tables down, reading a newspaper. "Look at him," Mr. Elms said. "The ignorant clod. He doesn't read anything but the sports pages."

"He looks innocent to me."

"Hah," said Elms. "He's a miserable wretch. Look at him. He's trying to get the waiter. Watch, he's waving his hand. Who does he think he is? There are other people waiting to be served too. He's going to order one cup of coffee and sit there all day. How cheap can you get?"

"Now look at the way he's ogling the women. He's probably a sex maniac. I'll bet the police would like to get their hands on him. Now he's put the newspaper on another chair. He's the kind of person that litters up a beautiful city. Doesn't care about anybody but himself. Oh, how I hate types like that."

"He does look like a bad sort," I said.

"Bad sort?" Mr. Elms said furiously. "He's a filthy rotter. He hasn't taken a bath in weeks."

As I was studying him, an old lady came up to the table and joined the man. He kissed her on both cheeks.

"There!" said Mr. Elms. "That's his game. He's a gigolo."

"No," I said. "It looks more like she's his mother."

"Maybe so," Elms grunted, "but it's typical of him. He makes his mother meet him on the Via Veneto, instead of going to her house. He's too important to visit her, she has to visit him. When I think of what his mother did to raise him and the sacrifices she made for him I get sick to my stomach."

I got angry too. "A man should have more respect for his mother," I agreed.

"Did you notice?" Mr. Elms said. "He hasn't even asked her what she wants to drink. She probably walked up from the bottom of the Spanish Steps, but do you think he cares? He's spoiled rotten."

"They don't make them any worse," I said.

Mr. Elms said, "Now he's laughing, telling her a pack of lies. Can you imagine anyone laughing with his mother?"

"Or at her?" I snickered.

"The waiter is bringing his mother a drink. It looks like a Pernod," Mr. Elms said. "She's become an alcoholic because of him."

"Do you think he'll pay for it?" I asked.

"Not if he can help it," Mr. Elms said. "He'll probably think of some excuse and stick his mother with the check. After all, he's been doing it all his life."

A man stopped by at the table to say hello.

Mr. Elms became furious. "He doesn't even bother to introduce him to his mother. He's ashamed of her."

"It figures," I said, slamming my glass on the table.

"He's inviting the fellow to sit down. Can you imagine introducing your mother to a type like that?" I said, "I'm going to poke him in the nose!"

Mr. Elms suddenly relaxed and seemed to lose interest in the whole thing. He said to me quietly, "Now how about the lady over there with the dog?"

WEATHER

Generally clear skies continued during the early morning from parts of southern New England westward across much of the Ohio Valley, as well as much of the western third of the country.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 42 degrees at Meacham, Ore., to 90 degrees at Phoenix, Ariz., and Las Vegas, Nev.

The National Weather Service forecast for today called for showers and thunderstorms to develop over much of the eastern half of the nation, with thunderstorms most numerous from the upper Great Lakes through the mid-Mississippi Valley, and across the southern Atlantic coast states.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were also forecast over the southern Plains and Arizona, with skies prevailing across New England and much of the Western half of the nation.

Predicted high temperatures were in the 80s and low 90s for most of the nation, the 70s for the northern Great Lakes and northern Minnesota, and between 100 and 110 degrees for much of the desert Southwest and the interior valleys of California.

Residents, visitors remain to see hurricane hit coast

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — When Hurricane Bob intruded into the lives of vacationers along South Carolina's coast, thousands headed for the safety of shelters. But others stayed to see the show.

This is prime time for South Carolina's vacation business, the state's second largest industry, and most of the hotels from posh Hilton Head Island to North Myrtle Beach were jammed Wednesday.

But when news of Bob's advance hit the coast, thousands headed inland and about 7,100 vacationers and residents holed up in emergency shelters.

Myrtle Beach Mayor Erick Ficken worried aloud that evacuation recommendations may have caused problems.

"It appeared to us to be premature," he said early today. "People are leaving hotels. They're not familiar with hurricanes. They're out riding around and that's more dangerous than if they were staying in."

Some tourists headed to the beach to check out the advancing storm.

Phillip Miller, a 19-year-old Detroit resident, was on the beach at Hilton Head Island to watch the storm's effects early Wednesday evening.

"I'm waiting for the big hurricane," said Miller as he watched the white-capped waters before dark. "This is the first time I've been around one. We'll be out here 'til we've finished our six-packs. This is fun."

Before dark Wednesday, parents brought their toddlers to the historic Battery in Charleston to watch the wind toss waves against the concrete bunker. At Folly Beach's newly built Holiday Inn just south of Charleston, people sat sipping mixed drinks while they watched through the plate glass windows as the ocean raged.

"Let's just say we had a good Wednesday night in the bar and restaurant," said food and beverage manager Ray Easler.

But many people sought refuge at inland shelters.

"I came because I was scared," said Judy Ives, of Nashville, Tenn., who was in a school shelter in Georgetown County.

At the Hilton Head Island Beach and Tennis Resort, desk clerk Susan Winborne said about 20 people checked out of the 300-room hotel as the storm approached.

Angulo awaits word from Angels above

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

It didn't take long for the showers to wash out the Midland Angels' Texas League game with the Jackson Mets Wednesday night at Angels Stadium. The contest was called at about 7:45 without so much as one pitch thrown.

The game will be made up tonight as part of a two-night doubleheader with the first game starting at 6:30. What is taking long is for the Angels to wash out the memory of Tuesday night's double-skewering by the red-hot Mets.

"You always want to get right back and get in there and get a night like that out of your system," Midland manager Joe Maddon said. "By the same token, we can come back tomorrow and not have to deal with what happened yesterday."

FOR ONE Angel, Wednesday's rain out was just like the night before, and the night before that, and every night since June 16.

That's when Ken Angulo last threw a pitch for Midland.

It's not because he is injured. Yes, Angulo was on the disabled list for a few weeks, but everyone in the clubhouse, that is Maddon, Angulo and his teammates, say the lefthander is ready to throw and has been ready for a couple of weeks.

It's not because of ineffectiveness. Angulo was 6-3 with a 3.98 ERA, the most consistent numbers a Midland starter has posted this season.

And it's not because he is holed up in a New York hotel asking for a trade, that affliction seems to be confined, for the moment, to struggling National League pitchers.

WHAT IS it then that has Angulo, Midland's most effective and winningest starter, bottled out, out of the rotation, not even on the active list on a team that so obviously needs pitching?

It seems that Angulo is caught in the proverbial numbers game.

When Angulo went on the disabled list in mid-June, fellow starter Don Timberlake was also having some trouble, leaving Maddon with some big holes in his starting rotation. Holes that needed to be filled immediately.

To remedy the situation, Midland was sent relief in the form of starters Doug Banning and Ray Chadwick. Reliever Byron Kemmerling was called up from Redwood. At the same time, Julian Gonzalez returned to action after his own bout with elbow problems.

So when Angulo was ready to return, alas, there was no spot on the roster.

HOW CAN a last-place team struggling to reach the surface at .500 not afford to bring a pitcher like Angulo back on the roster, you ask?

It is a question no one in Midland seems able to answer.

"I've just told him to be as patient as he possibly can, it's a situation that is out of my hands," Maddon said. "He's got more wins than any of my starters, heck yes I'd like to pitch him. He's ready."

Someone, somewhere, presumably the Angels in Anaheim (Calif.) do not yet see fit for Midland to have Angulo's services every fifth day.

Angulo, a veteran of seven pro seasons, is taking the layoff in stride, as much as possible.

"It's disappointing, frustrating, whatever you want to call it. But I can't say anything bad about it, though sometimes I might like to. I've been through this kind of thing before, it's nothing new."

BUT IT is disappointing for a man who, at 26, had his best season in pro ball last year. Angulo was 1-0 for the Angels' AAA club in Edmonton and 14-4 for Yucatan in the Mexican League, a league which is considered on a par with Class AAA.

In fact, Angulo almost went North this season, not with the big club, but with the Class AAA Edmonton Trappers as a long reliever. Instead, the West Covina, Calif., native chose to come to the Texas League as a starter.

All the waiting and watching lately must have him wondering about that decision.

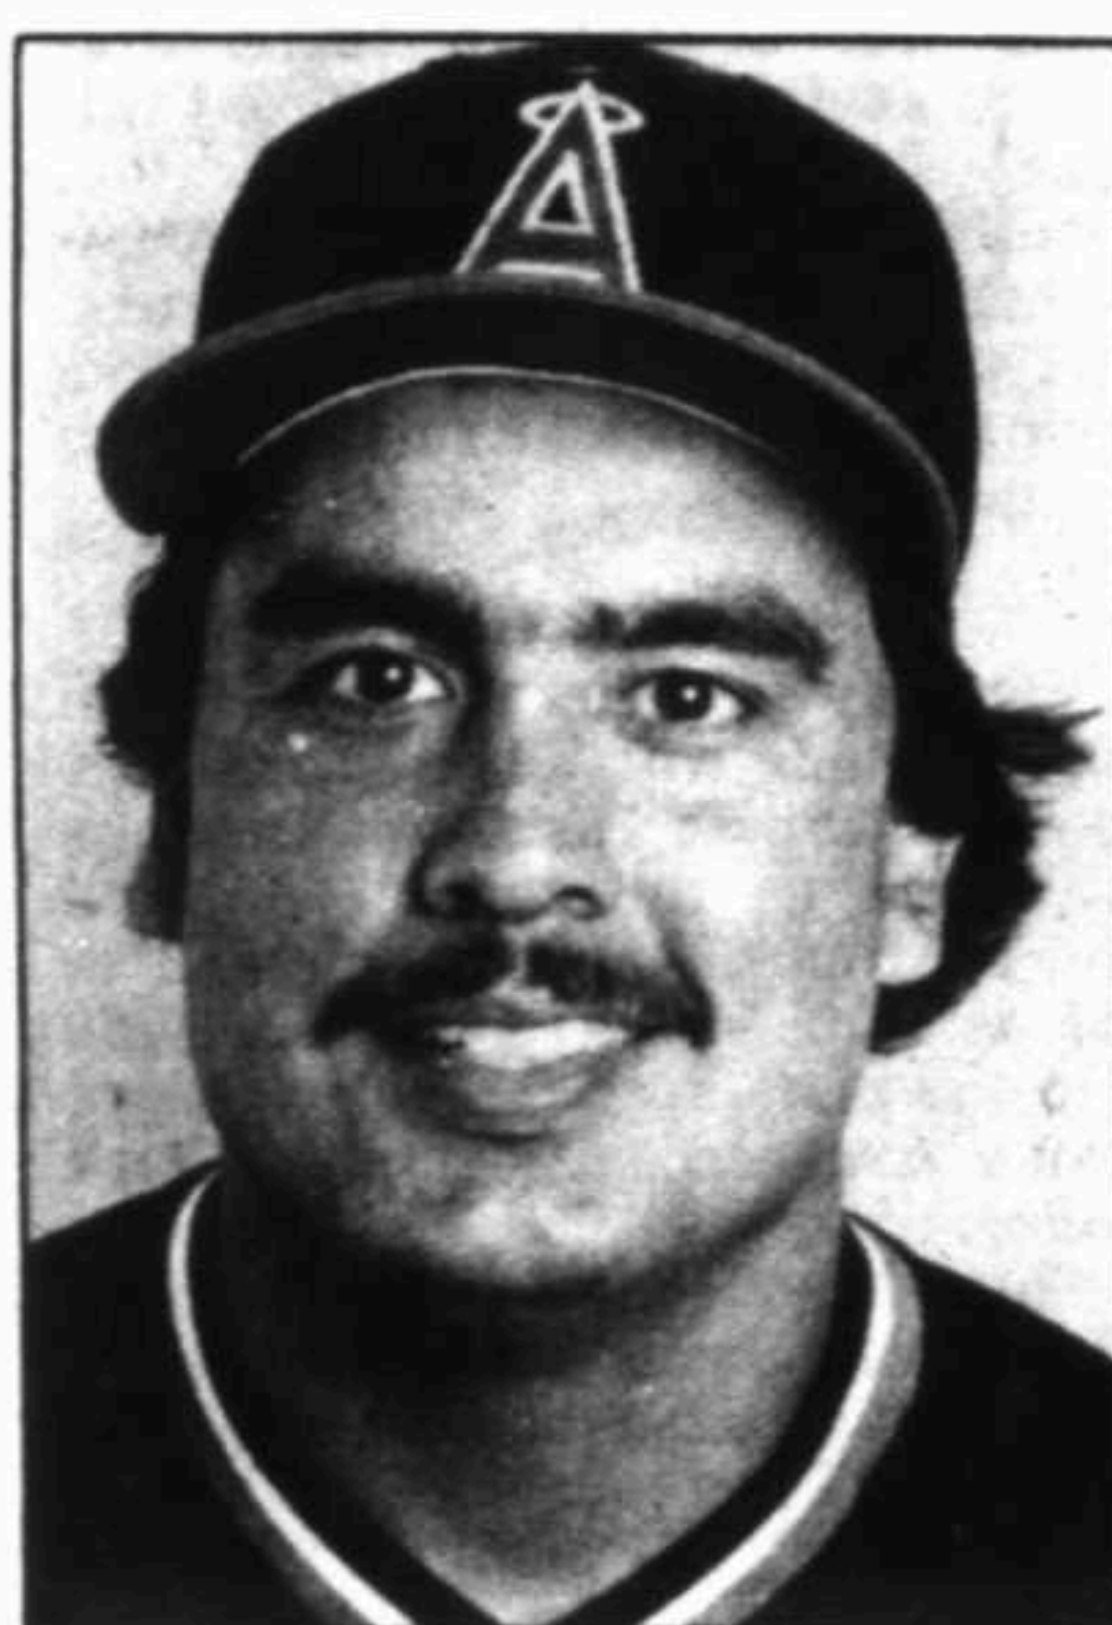

From what has happened to Angulo this season, one might get the impression that he has been almost blacklisted in the organization, but Maddon insists this isn't so.

THE FACTS seem to bear him out.

Angulo attended the big league camp this spring for the second straight year, an honor only 12 players not on the 40-man roster were given. Somebody must like what he has done for the Angels organization since he was acquired in the spring of 1983.

Maddon also points out that if the Angels had given up on him, Angulo would've been released when the pitching surplus was discovered. Another point in Angulo's favor.

But perhaps the biggest thing the portly sidewinder has going for him is his steady improvement and his attitude since being signed as a free agent from the Minnesota Twins after toiling in their system for six seasons.

EVEN WHILE waiting and watching helplessly, Angulo remains the kind of pitcher who is willing to take the ball every fifth day and give it his best shot.

"He's pitched with pain, you like that, and he had such a good year last year, (the Angels) wanted to see how he did down here," Maddon said. "His age (27) is a factor, but not if he shows he can do the job. If we can get him to the big leagues and still get five of six good years out of him, that's all you can ask out of him."

"You're talking about a lefty, and clubs will be more patient with a lefthander. This was going to be a big year for him, because he is running out of time, he knows it. But if we can get him back and he finishes strong, it will help him a lot as far as the Angels are concerned."

But right now the numbers, and a stretch of bad luck, have kept Angulo on the shelf. It doesn't seem to be helping anyone, least of all the sagging Midland pitching staff.

ANGEL DUST: Tonight, Ray Chadwick (0-2, 8.53 ERA) will open the doubleheader against Jackson's John Young (6-2, 3.48). Young has won his last six decisions and has not lost since April 26. Doug McKenzie (2-8, 4.53) will start for Midland in the nightcap against DeWayne Vaughn (5-4, 3.42).

Don Timberlake (3-8, 6.08), who missed his turn in the rotation Wednesday because of a swelling in his elbow from an insect bite he received in Jackson on the last road swing, should be ready to take his next turn in the rotation.

Shortstop Kevin Davis sprained his thumb while diving for a ball in the first game Tuesday, will miss a day or two. Wednesday, he was unable to grip the bat and was pulled late in Tuesday's nightcap. Billie Merrifield was penciled back into the Angels' lineup Wednesday after a slight tear in his shoulder aggravated Monday while scoring from first on a double.

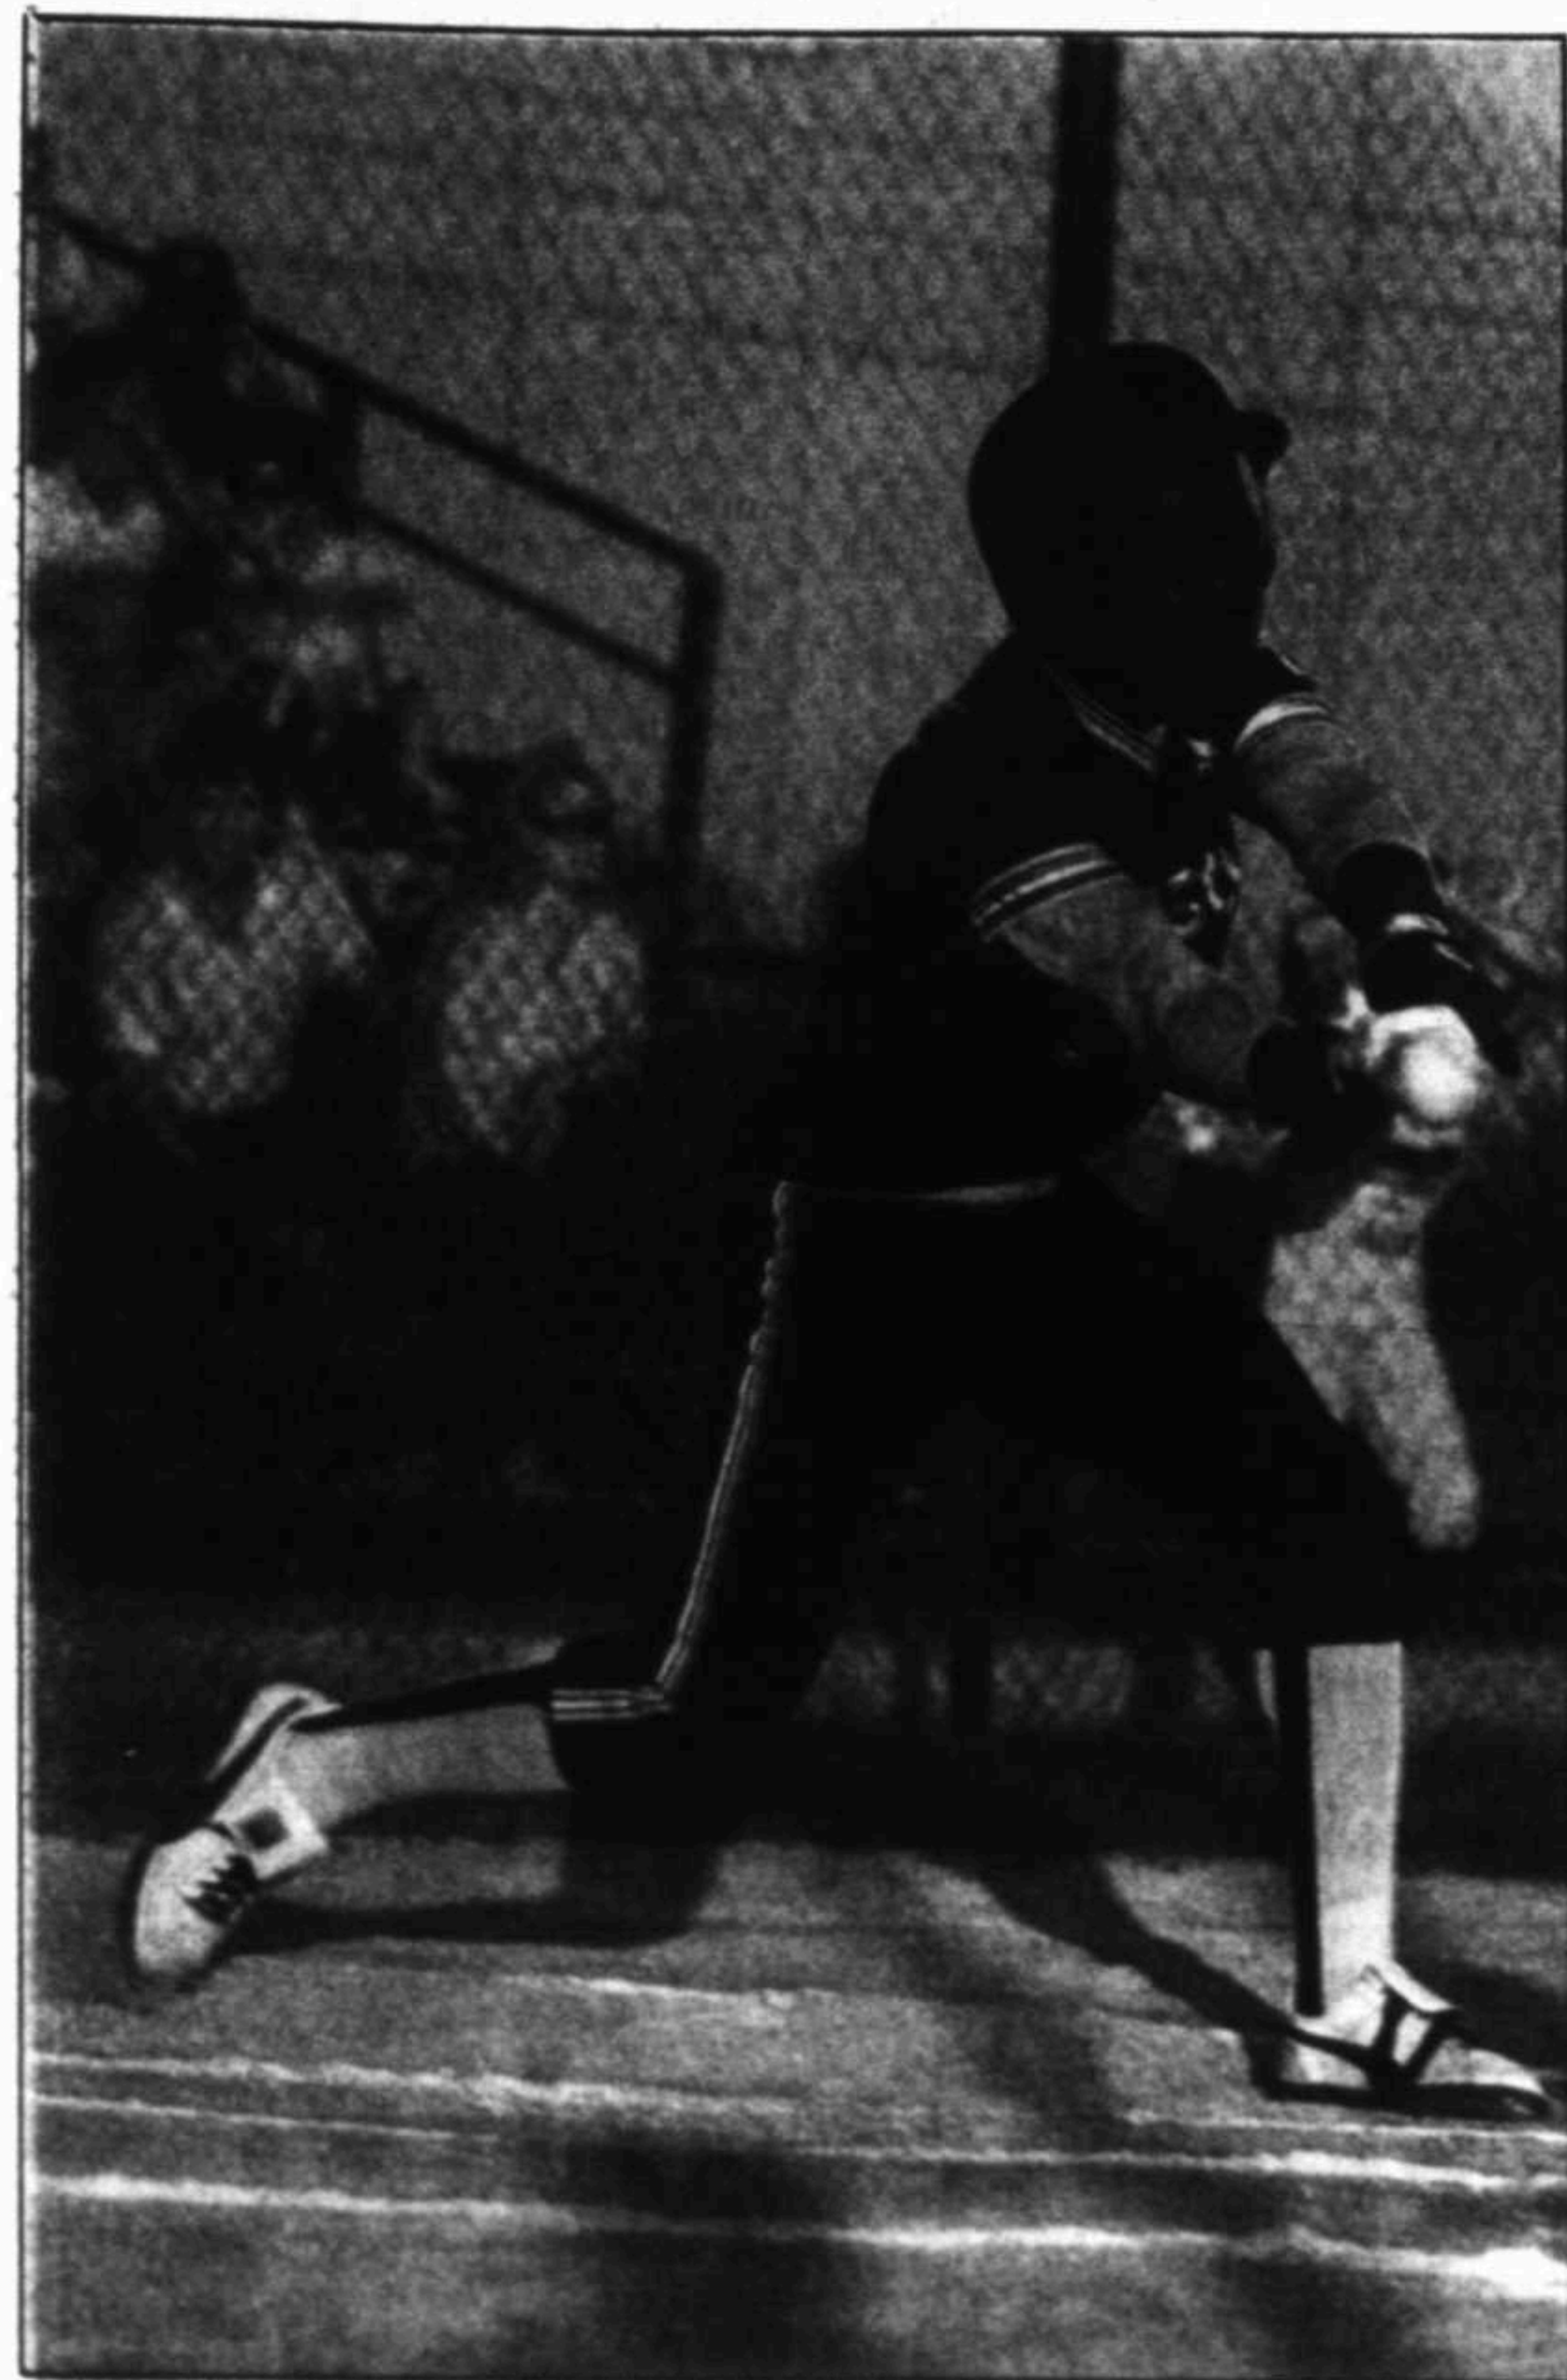

TEXAS LEAGUE: In other TL games, Beaumont dropped a club-record 11th straight game with a 6-5 decision to Arkansas; Shreveport ended its losing streak at seven games by smashing San Antonio, 11-2, and the El Paso Diablos opened its West Division lead by winning a 2-1 victory over Tulsa.

Diablo Kiki Diaz not only broke up Tulsa pitcher Rob Clark's no-hit bid in the sixth with a two-out single, but also snapped the shutout when he scored on John Gibbons' triple to tie the game at 1-1. In the 10th inning, Diaz finished up with a game-winning RBI double.

Arkansas jumped out to a 6-0 lead and held on despite home runs by Beaumont's Shane Mack and Eric Hardgrave. Mack snapped an 0-for-14 slump with a three-run blast in the bottom of the second and Hardgrave hit his two-run round-tripper in the fifth.

Traveler John Adams pitched four innings of two-hit, shutout relief to gain the save.

Shreveport's Steve Stanicek and Matt Nokes hit solo home runs to help pace the Captains to their victory over the Dodgers.

Midland Eastern's J.J. Johnson takes a cut at the ball in the recent Division III playoffs in Big Spring. Johnson is one of the three-man Eastern pitching rotation and one of the team's heavy hitters. It was Johnson's three-RBI double in the top of the sixth inning Saturday that lifted Eastern to an 8-5 championship victory over Midland North Central.

Midland Eastern vs. Pecos for state little league berth

from Staff Reports

Midland Eastern takes another step on the road to the state Little League playoffs Friday night when they travel to Pecos for the first game in a best-of-three elimination playoff with Division IV champion Pecos.

Eastern, 26-1 and Division III champs, will play the second game on Saturday in Big Spring and the if necessary game is scheduled for Monday back in Pecos. All three games are slated for 8 p.m. starts.

Eastern has James Madrid scheduled to start on the mound in the first game.

The winner of the Pecos-Eastern series qualifies for the state tournament Aug. 5 in Waco.

Tall City teams have made three trips to state in the past five years with Eastern going twice. In 1980, Eastern finished fifth and was seventh in the 1983 tournament.

In 1984, Midland North Central was the Tall City representative and finished seventh in the tournament.

Royals' White rips two homers to pass century mark

Associated Press

Frank White, the man with the golden glove, also is earning plaudits as an emerging power hitter for the Kansas City Royals.

"There are not too many second basemen who get 100 home runs," White said Wednesday night after reaching the seats twice and driving in four runs to lead the Royals to a 5-3 victory and a three-game sweep of the New York Yankees. "Probably the only active ones are Bobby Grich and Davey Lopes."

The homers, White's 13th and 14th of the season, gave him 101 for his 13-year career. Despite a career-high 17 last season, pitchers and managers remain somewhat unaware of his longball potential.

Count Yankee field boss Billy Martin among them.

"I pitched a couple of guys the wrong way. He was one of them," Martin said in taking the blame for the pitch selection of loser Joe

American League

Cowley.

"Everybody knows I'm a first-ball, fastball hitter," said White who has won six Gold Gloves. "The first home run was on a curveball. When I go up with men in scoring position I just put the fastball out of my mind. The second home run was off a fastball, though."

White had a two-run homer in the second inning and a solo shot in the fourth. He tacked on a fourth RBI with a sacrifice fly in the sixth as the Royals notched their eighth victory in eleven games.

Charlie Leibrandt, working his way out of several jams, raised his record to 10-5 while Cowley fell to 8-4. Dan Quisenberry came on for his 21st save after New York's Don Mattingly started the eighth with his 11th homer.

Steve Balboni hit his 18th homer for Kansas City.

Indians 8, Rangers 4

Cleveland's Bert Blyleven hurled his 10th consecutive complete game and Mike Hargrove got three hits, including his first home run since June 29, 1984.

"I was really seriously questioning whether I'd ever hit another (home run)," said Hargrove, who also doubled and drove in two runs.

Blyleven, 9-10, scattered seven hits, struck out nine and walked five in completing his major league-leading 15th complete game.

Oddibe McDowell homered for Texas, his third in as many games and eighth of the season.

Red Sox 6, A's 5

Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd kept throwing gasoline on the fire, allowing four bases-empty homers — Dave Kingman's 22nd homer of the season and the 399th of his career. Dwayne Murphy's 13th, Mike Heath's 10th and Mike Davis' 17th.

But Boston won on — of all things — a bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth inning to Jackie Gutierrez, who has not had an official time at-bat since June 29 and is just 1-for-4 since he lost his starting shortstop job after being hurt May 25.

"Any time you hit four home runs in a ballgame, you're supposed to come out with more runs, but that's the way things went for us in this series," said Oakland Manager Jackie Moore, who saw the Red Sox pound out 15 hits in completing a three-game sweep.

Boston's Wade Boggs had three hits to extend the longest hitting streak in the major leagues since 1980 to 27 games with his 36th multi-hit game of the year. He leads the AL with 128 hits in 94 games and is hitting .348, two points behind New York's Rickey Henderson, who leads the league.

Tigers 5, White Sox 4

Tom Seaver, who failed to win his 29th game, admitted age may be creeping up on him.

"I just never felt strong," said Seaver, 10-8, who was victimized by two Chicago errors. "One thing I have to consider is I am 40 years old."

Dan Petry, 11-9, gave up just four hits for Detroit. Dave Bergman's run-scoring single capped a decisive three-run Tiger fifth. Marty Castillo opened the inning with a single and scored on a triple by Lou Whitaker, who came home on a sacrifice fly by Alan Trammell. Detroit scored the eventual winning run in the eighth when Castillo singled home Chet Lemon.

The game was delayed briefly in the bottom of the ninth when fans in the bleachers began throwing coins at right fielder Kirk Gibson, who was hit in the cheek but not injured. Play resumed after security was beefed up.

Orioles 4, Twins 2

Eddie Murray hit a two-run homer in the first inning, his 15th, and Mike Boddicker, 10-10, allowed seven hits in seven innings to snap a three-game losing streak. Baltimore's Mike Young had one hit in four at-bats to extend his hitting streak to 15 games.

Ken Schrom, 8-10, who had a career-high eight strikeouts, could only second guess about the 0-2 pitch Murray hit far over the right-field wall.

"The funny thing about that pitch is that I landed in a hole and twisted my ankle," Schrom said. "I hung it over the plate and Murray hits mistakes as well as anybody in the game."

Speed key ingredient to Oiler passing attack

SAN ANGELO (AP) — They started appearing on the Houston Oilers roster during the off-season — short, muscular men with a common ingredient designed to add more punch to the team's passing attack.

Herkie Walls, a seventh-round draft pick in 1983, was the prototype of what Coach Hugh Campbell has been seeking to complement the silky smooth moves of wide receiver Tim Smith.

The Oilers seem determined to swarm opposing secondaries with jet-powered receivers.

"Our off-season request was that any receivers that we sign let's look at the speed factor," Campbell said. "If they (opposing defenses) can't look at a Tim Smith and be concerned only with double teaming him, we're that much better off."

"We'd like to put as many weapons on the field as possible," Campbell said.

Smith has been the primary receiver defenses have had to contend with in recent years.

But Smith, Houston's leading receiver with 60 receptions last season, gets his catches on moves and not speed, often leaving quarterback Warren Moon coiled to throw a 50-yard bomb and no place to toss the ball.

The Oilers obtained Drew Hill, 5-9, 170, from the Los Angeles Rams; drafted Hawaii's Mike Akin, 5-9, 175, in the seventh round and Willie Drewery, 5-7, 158, in the 11th round; and signed former University of Houston sprinter Stanley Floyd as free agent.

"We've got receivers in the other category that we can count on," Campbell said. "We'd like to get to where they have to be concerned about all of our receivers."

Adding speed to the receiving corps was a primary goal of the Oilers in the 1985 draft.

The Oilers had a chance in the first round to get a speed receiver with Miami's Eddie Brown still on the board, but they used the pick to choose Richard Johnson, a cornerback from Wisconsin.

"Coming here, I don't see myself playing right off," Hill said. "I'm the kind of guy who likes to give the other receivers the respect they deserve. They've been here longer than me."

Hill received few opportunities as a receiver with the run-oriented Rams last season.

What 1970s Midland player made the major league club in 1973 spring training and is still active in the majors?

Yesterday's answer: The first player called off the Midland roster and moved to the majors was Rick Reuschel, who never pitched in Midland, but was on the 1972 spring roster.

Not reporting can add to Dorsett's $ problems

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — The Tony Dorsett watch is underway.

The financially troubled running back of the Dallas Cowboys has until 7:30 p.m. today to report to training camp or face $1,000 in fines daily.

The betting line among some of Dorsett's teammates is that he won't come in until his financial problems are solved.

That would include a possible renegotiation of his $400,000 a year seven-year contract or a loan from the Cowboys to help settle his financial problems which were caused in part by bad investments.

Dorsett is on the fourth year of the contract.

Fullback Ron Springs believes good friend Dorsett won't make the deadline "because he wants a security contract."

Dorsett at one time had a 15-year deferred contract at $100,000 but decided he wanted the money up front.

Gil Brandt, club vice president, said "It wouldn't surprise me if Tony wasn't here Thursday."

"Tony is upset with his contract," said Springs. "Last week he saw what Danny White and Randy White are making and he figures he deserves more. He's been dissatisfied."

"I don't think he will be here. I've talked to him a lot in two weeks."

Tight end Doug Cosbie said, "Tony should get his personal affairs settled before he comes to camp. That would only be smart."

Dorsett, who missed practice for a fourth straight day Wednesday, will make $400,000 this season.

Dorsett was hit in Dallas with a $400,000 back tax notice by the Internal Revenue Service which seized two of his houses.

Dallas Coach Tom Landry said Dorsett has until Thursday to report to camp without being fined $1,000 per day.

"If he wants to win he'll be here," said an unhappy Landry.

Tex Schramm, the club president, said he is talking "to a third party" involved in the Dorsett financial affairs.

Dorsett was divorced in February and his wife received a settlement reaching $250,000.

"Tony is struggling right now," said a source close to the Cowboys. "He's trying to overcome some setbacks."

Cubs make it three straight with 4-3 win over Padres

Associated Press

In getting back on their feet, the Chicago Cubs have treated the San Diego Padres like a doormat.

Winning a third straight game for the first time in nearly a month, the Cubs swept a series from the Padres with a 4-3, 10-inning victory Wednesday night.

Richie Hebner won the game with a soft line drive that became an infield single. San Diego shortstop Garry Templeton tried to short-hop it, but failed, and Ryne Sandberg scampered home from third.

It was Hebner's 11th pinch hit this year, tops in the National League, and his 11th RBI in that role.

"I didn't hit it hard, but it worked out well," admitted Hebner. "Pinch hitting is not the easiest job in the world, but when you do pinch hit and there's men in scoring position with the game on the line you do get pumped up."

Hebner hit a 1-2 pitch from Craig Lefferts. "It was a tough at-bat. Before I could blink he had two strikes on me," Hebner said.

The Cubs recovered from losing a late 3-2 lead.

Trying for his 23rd save, Lee Smith allowed the tying run in the ninth. Steve Garvey doubled and pinch-runner Jerry Davis took third on a grounder. With the infield drawn in, Terry Kennedy bounced a single to right and Davis scored.

Smith, 5-4, wound up with the victory. George Frazier worked the 10th for his second save.

Chicago starter Dennis Eckersley was going for his first victory since June 1 and San Diego starter LaMarr Hoyt was seeking his 12th straight win, but both were felled.

Sandberg's 15th homer in the first inning followed a single by Bob Dernier and gave Chicago a 2-0 lead. Gary Matthews made it 3-0 in the third inning with a two-out double. It, too, scored Dernier, who had reached on a bunt single and stolen second.

Graig Nettles hit a two-run home run in the fourth inning, his 10th this year.

San Diego dropped 2½ games behind the Dodgers in the NL West. Their current string of losses is as long a skid as they've suffered this year.

"I think everybody's trying to win it all by themselves," San Diego Manager Dick Williams said. "Everybody's trying to hit the home run to win the ballgame."

Phillies 3, Astros 1
Von Hayes broke a 1-1 tie in the eighth inning with a two-run, inside-the-park homer. His fly ball hit the 408 mark on the center-field wall and became his ninth home run of the season. Hayes' head-first slide into the plate beat the relay throw, which bounced past catcher Mark Bailey.

Third-base coach Dave Bristol, who waved Hayes home, was asked what would have happened if the throw had been on the mark. "We'll never know," he snapped. "But it wasn't a good throw. That's why I sent him."

The homer was only the third hit off Nolan Ryan, who pitched 5 1/3

hitless innings. Ryan struck out seven Phillies to boost his all-time-record strikeout total to 4,013, even though his won-lost record for the season fell to 8-8.

Kevin Gross, 9-8, pitched eight innings, allowing nine hits. He also doubled in the sixth inning for the first hit off Ryan. Kent Tekulve pitched the ninth inning for his 11th save.

Dodgers 9, Pirates 1

Greg Brock hit a grand-slam home run and a run-scoring single for five RBIs, supporting a five-hitter by Bob Welch, 5-1, who won his fourth straight decision with his third complete game this year.

Brock's slam, off reliever Al Holland, was his 15th home run. His single came as the Dodgers turned a 4-1 lead into a rout with five runs in the eighth, their biggest inning of the year.

"I always hate to see Holland come in," admitted Brock, who has raised his average more than 50 points in the last six weeks to .275. "I really haven't hit left-handers well, and he's pitched me tough."

"I've felt good most of the year, it's just that balls are starting to fall and the average is rising. I feel confident and relaxed."

The Dodgers' 2½-game lead over San Diego is their biggest advantage of the season. Los Angeles has won five of its last seven games, 11 of 14, and 17 of 22.

Bill Madlock led off the sixth inning with his fifth home run, giving Pittsburgh a 1-0 lead.

Expos 3, Braves 1

Bryn Smith fired a three-hitter, did not walk a batter and struck out seven in his fourth complete game of the season. Smith, 12-3, has four victories over Atlanta this year.

"The biggest change this year is control," said Smith, who faced only two batters over the minimum and matched his previous career-high total for wins.

"I'm not walking people, I'm not getting into any trouble and I'm not lulling anybody to sleep. It gives you more confidence because you know when you have to make a pitch, you can throw it where you want to."

Vance Law's fly to shallow center field in the fifth inning provided the game's final run in an unusual manner — it became an inside-the-park homer when Dale Murphy lost the ball in the lights and it fell behind him.

Trailing 1-0 after Andre Dawson singled home a run in the first inning, Atlanta tied it in the second on Terry Harper's 11th homer. Law walked and scored the tie-breaking run in the third on Tim Wallach's single.

Reds 3, Mets 2

Eddie Milner's single with two out in the ninth inning scored Dann Bilardello with an unearned run to give Cincinnati a three-game sweep of the Mets, who managed to score just three runs in the series. The victory lifted the Reds' league-leading record in one-run games to 20-10 and their road mark to 25-20, second best in the NL.

With two outs, Bilardello reached first when shortstop Rafael Santana misplayed his grounder. Wayne Krenchicki walked, then Milner singled off Roger McDowell, 5-4, for his first RBI in 40 at-bats against the Mets this season.

John Franco, 9-1, threw two scoreless innings for the victory. Ted Power pitched the ninth for his 18th save. Pete Rose went 2-for-4, leaving him 30 hits shy of Ty Cobb's all-time record.

Keith Hernandez hit his eighth homer for New York.

Cardinals 4, Giants 0

John Tudor pitched his fifth shut-out of the season, tying Fernando Valenzuela for the major-league lead. Tudor, 11-8, tossed a six-hitter for his 10th triumph in 11 decisions. He did not issue a walk and struck out nine Giants.

"I've been a hot pitcher on a hot ballclub," said Tudor. "I've got a lot of confidence now."

Willie McGee blasted a three-run homer as the Cardinals scored four unearned runs in the fifth inning.

St. Louis swept the three-game series and opened up a 3½-game lead over the Mets and the Expos in the NL East. The triumph concluded the Cardinals' season series with the Giants, who lost 10 of the 12 games between the teams.

Bethea pleads guilty to setting fires

PARADISE, Wash. (AP) — Larry Bethea, former defensive tackle for the Dallas Cowboys, was arrested and charged with setting three fires in the Mount Rainier National Park last weekend, the National Parks Service said Wednesday.

Bethea pleaded guilty Monday before U.S. Magistrate Stan King in Tacoma on charges of setting unorganized fires and disorderly conduct, said Cy Hentges of the National Parks Service.

The judge ordered Bethea to pay restitution of $1,000 to the park for costs of fighting the fires in the park last Friday night and early Saturday, Hentges said.

"Mr. Bethea was visiting from Texas," Hentges said. "He went camping alone on Mount Rainier. We arrested him after discovering the fires. He told the judge he started them to keep warm."

The three fires covered about one-quarter of an acre and burned some trees at about the 6,500-foot level of Mount Rainier, Hentges said.

The 6-foot-5 Bethea was the Cowboys' first-round draft pick from Michigan State in 1978 and played for Dallas from 1978 through 1982.

Angels 8, Brewers 4

Ruffino Linares has taken seven swings for California and produced two home runs, including a three-run job in the fourth inning that brought the Angels from behind. A four-run fifth made it easy for Ron Romanick, who upped his record to 12-4.

The Angels recently recalled Linares from Edmonton of the Pacific Coast League.

"I like to hit home runs," said Linares, an Atlanta reject, who has now hit 10 home runs in his three-plus years in the big leagues.

He was joined by Mike Brown and Bob Boone, who each hit his fourth homer. Brown also had a run-scoring single.

Blue Jays 3, Mariners 1
Toronto's Jesse Barfield hit a two-run homer and Jeff Burroughs a solo shot.

"It was a 2-0 fastball right in my wheelhouse," Barfield said of his 16th homer, which made a loser of Seattle's Matt Young. "I was looking for that pitch and I hit it well."

Jimmy Key, 9-4, got the victory, Toronto's ninth straight over Seattle. Gary Lavelle, the third Toronto pitcher, finished up to get his 14th save.

TSHF hopes to keep museum going

GRAND PRAIRIE (AP) — A Texas Sports Hall of Fame board member says museum directors hope to make a bond payment within two weeks after officials missed the original due date and a 20-day grace period.

"We hope to be able to work something out with the Park Board of Trustees," said board member Walter Robinson. "We're exploring a number of possibilities."

The sports museum failed to pay more than $118,000 on July 1 as a part of $4.5 million in city-sponsored revenue bonds it owes, city council members Bo Craft and Mike Lewis said. The payment was not met again after a grace period of 20 days, officials said.

Robinson said Tuesday the museum has been given until an unspecified time in August to make the payment.

"Revenues have never met projections and expectations," Robinson said. "(So) we have not been able to make bond payments. The attendance has improved but not anywhere near enough to meet operating costs."

From June 1984 to June 1985, the museum's total revenue increased 21 percent, public relations director Fred Graham said. The museum has turned profits at times in its history, he said.

"For the past four to five months, we've been self-sustaining," Graham said.

Lattany gambling on NFL career in Dallas

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — World class sprinter Mel Lattany gave up a career that earned him $150,000 last year to try to make the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League as a wide receiver.

"I was making good money in track and field," said Lattany. "But I had lost my competitive edge in track. I got backing from my wife so I decided to try professional football."

The Cowboys need receiver help and although Lattany hadn't played football since he was in high school at Brunswick, Ga., the team decided to sign him to a free-agent contract.

Lattany was a safety in prep school. Lattany's speed was something too juicy for the Cowboys not to try out. He holds the world record for the 100-meter run at sea level.

His time of 9.96 seconds translates to an 8.8 in the 100-yard dash.

Lattany, who made the 1980 United States Olympic team that boycotted Moscow, is the fastest Dallas player since Bob Hayes.

The 26-year-old hopeful made a big impression on Coach Tom Landry Tuesday by blazing past the Los Angeles Raiders' secondary to catch a 53-yard pass during a rookie scrimmage.

"It was a big play and the kind of thing we are looking for," said Landry.

Lattany said of the catch: "I never had an Olympic gold medal but this must be what it feels like to get one. It felt great."

Lattany also got a taste of National Football League roughness on the play as a Raider pilled on.

"I like getting hit — it's fun," said Lattany, who is quickly developing a reputation for toughness.

No coach or player is tougher on Lattany than Lattany. He even grades himself on a 1 through 10 scale on various categories.

"Right now I'm still about a four on catching passes but improving fast," he said. "Learning the game. I'm about a six. Learning how to wear a football uniform again I'm about a two. I think I rate myself harder than the coaches do."

Lattany knows he is facing long-shot odds.

"I'm just trying to stay close to the other receivers right now," he said. "I'm trying to give all of my body to football."

Veteran defensive back Dennis Thurman, who is also working as a coach during rookie camp, told Lattany "Use your speed to the best advantage."

U.S. wins Maccabiah Games' gold medal in mens' basketball

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The United States won the gold medal in the men's basketball competition of the 12th Maccabiah Games Wednesday, edging Israel 95-94 in a dramatic finish before a crowd of 7,000 in Yad Eliahu Stadium.

The Americans led 53-37 at half-time but Israel rallied early in the second half and tied the game 63-63.

The U.S. team took a 95-90 lead with only 53 seconds to go, and Israel's Doron Giamsci narrowed the deficit to 95-94 with a free throw with 18 seconds before left.

Then, with only three seconds remaining, Israel's Adi Rosenberg drove in for a lay-up. But the ball teetered on the rim before falling out.

The top U.S. scorers were Ed Zucker, from New Jersey, who had 30 points, Alan Dolinsky of the University of New Mexico with 17 points and Howard Levy from Princeton University with 17.

Israel's leaders were Ady Gordon with 22, Tommer Steinhauer with 16, and Giamsci and Rosenberg with 15 each.

U.S. Coach Joe Gimeistab praised his team's victory as a "great job against Israel," which was playing with three national players in its team.

Canada defeated Brazil 74-55 to win the bronze medal in men's basketball.

The women's basketball finals were perhaps even more dramatic than the men's finals, but for a very different reason: the Israeli team refused to play.

Captain Anat Dreigor said the team had decided not to play after the organizing committee moved the game against the United States at the last minute from the original venue of Yad Eliahu to the stadium at the Maccabiah headquarters.

INDIANAPOLIS - Sportswriters couldn't believe their good luck when that young West German from Leimen won Wimbledon.

First of all, there was that name. If you sat up nights you couldn't come up with anything more felicitous: Boris Becker.

It had everything. Alliteration. Bombast. Almost rhyme. Charles Dickens would have invented it. Hemingway never had a greater inspiration. Edgar Allen Poe could have written a poem around it.

It had a fictional quality about it, almost as if it were from the Hardy Boys series, or a character in Tom Swift:

- "Boris Becker and His Atomic Racquet."
- "Boris Becker at the Seashore."
- "Boris Becker Goes Hawaiian."
- "Boris Becker, Set Point."

The possibilities were endless.

Then, there was that background. The boy from the small town in Germany that time forgot. The pro from the Brothers Grimm. The player from the tree house. The Wagnerian hero. Maybe he'd turn into a swan in the last act.

But, best of all, he was German. That gave the journalists free range. Visions of typical Teutonic allusions danced in their heads like a parade of wooden soldiers. The military motif was off and rampant. Blitzkrieg Becker came swiftly to mind. The field marshal of tennis.

The spiked helmet came out of mothballs. Ideas rolled. Shouldn't he be playing in jackboots and a steel helmet? Shouldn't he make the cover of Sports Illustrated with an Iron Cross pinned to his throat? Shouldn't he exchange his racket for a baton when going out in public? Shouldn't he be addressed as "Your excellency" by everyone under the rank of corporal?

YOU KEPT waiting for the headlines and leads: "Boris Becker went through Wimbledon's seeds like von Moltke through the Low Countries here today." Writers could speculate that he would goose-step onto court. Other players arrived by limo. Becker would probably come by Panzer unit.

And so on.
Alas! Herr Becker would have none of it. He put his No. 11 foot squarely down on the literary license. The war was over. Even the comparatively mildly military allegory of Boom Boom Becker left him disturbed.

"I am a sportsman, not a soldier," he complained. "When my mother calls me, she doesn't say 'Come here, Boom Boom,' she says 'Boris.'"

He made it plain that he wants it known he comes from a Germany that wins Wimbledon and a Masters, not Paris or the oil of the Caucasus. "I came to play games, not conquer territory," he said.

So the poets of the press box had to sigh and make do with what they had - which was a kind of heavy legged German kid, who, if he hit a ball with the authority of a Reichswehr 88-millimeter field piece, didn't care to have it written that way.

WHAT HE had done hardly needed the military equivalencies, anyway. This gangling reddish-blond teen-age giant, barely out of high socks and (ital) lederhosen, (unital) had done something no one his age and rank had ever done before. He had routed the flower of world tennis at Wimbledon to become the first and youngest and only unseeded player ever to win that storied event.

In so doing, he had captured the hearts and minds of the world by being the first non-brat to win that tournament in years.

He did it in the most un-Germanic of ways. Given his background, tennisists might have expected (ital) un-ser (unital) Boris to play the kind of classic, set-piece, mathematically perfect game of a kid who learned the game by the book, who had been programmed into position by staff manual. Clausewitz tennis.

Instead, he played tennis the way Ty Cobb or Pete Rose played baseball, or Dempsey fought. He played a scrambling, dirty-uniform, get-there-at-all-costs and hang-the-form-charts game of a member of a street gang. "He plays tennis like you might steal hubcaps," one tennis announcer pointed out.

He was a brawler, a swarmer, an infighter. He attacked the ball as if it were a swarm of bees. He didn't hit it, he swatted it. He skidded, slipped, tumbled and lunged. It wasn't a game, it was a rumble. You didn't get aged, you got mugged. Love had nothing to do with it.

He did lots of things wrong but the scoreboard never knew it.

Germany used to have a great player, Baron Gottfried von Cramm, who played the game as if it were high tea. He always had the correct finger on the racket and he looked great losing. Becker doesn't even look great winning. He plays as if he's trying to plug holes in a roof during a thunderstorm.

They used to say of Arnold Palmer that the only thing he did right with a golf club was win. Boris became the tennis equivalent. He hit off the wrong foot, his backhand was unclassic, his forehand collapsible - but the ball came rocketing back like one of Nolan Ryan's fastballs. He has the nerves of a 17-year-old - i.e., none.

HE IS here in Indianapolis this week to play in the U.S. Clay Courts and he has turned this non-event into the tennis soiree of the season so far.

No one minds that John McEnroe, Jimmy Connors, Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd are, as usual, not here. Boris (Don't Call Me Boom Boom) is, and the hotels and the stands are full, TV is standing by and even the pro football Colts are taking an inside page in the local papers this week.

Clay courts is a refinement of the game in which the surface favors the player whose game is modeled after a barn door. Which is to say that he can return every shot at the same angle and velocity in which he received it. It is a form of play requiring enormous patience, somewhat like a dog fetching a stick or a bird hour after hour.

It can wear out the tempestuous player. It is a tournament that has been won by the likes of Tut Bartz, Chuck McKinley and Manuel Orantes. It has been lost by some of the big hitters although Bill Tilden, Pancho Gonzales and even Connors made a point of toughing it out to win several times.

Boris believes that he can play this game, too. He grew up on clay, he said.

Besides, the German-American Davis Cup competition is scheduled for clay courts next month. Germany has never won the Davis Cup.

If Becker wins both of these feats of clay for Germany, he may have to relent - to the extent of at least answering to a single Boom if someone hails him by it.

Dollar lowers

LONDON (AP) — The dollar staged a broad retreat in early European trading today. The value of gold bullion fell in Hong Kong but rose in Europe. The dollar fell against all major European currencies in the first few hours of trading, but steadied at its lower levels in later dealings.

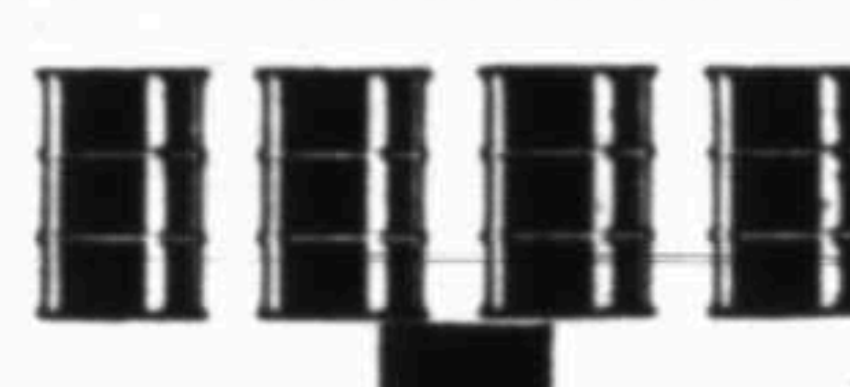

Selected midmorning dollar rates compared with levels in Europe late Wednesday included:

- 2.8502 West German marks, down from 2.8760.
- 2.3325 Swiss francs, down from 2.3630.
- 8.7025 French francs, down from 8.7350.
- 3.2175 Dutch guilders, down from 3.2325.
- 1.910.75 Italian lire, down from 1.922.50.
- 1.34945 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3515.

London's five biggest bullion houses fixed a recommended midmorning gold price of $319.40 an ounce, up from $318.10.

OPEC ministers to reduce some oil prices

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — OPEC oil ministers adopted a majority decision today to slightly reduce some oil prices, ministers said.

The decision, ending four days of stormy deliberations, was not expected to have an immediate effect on consumer prices for oil products. The price cuts affect a relatively small proportion of world oil supplies.

Mana Saeed Oteiba, the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, disclosed the agreement as the 13 ministers ended their summer conference. Algerian Oil Minister Belkacem Nabi confirmed it.

Oteiba said the agreement called for a reduction of 50 cents per barrel in the price of heavy, low-grade crude oils, to $26 a barrel. Medium-grade oils were lowered by 20 cents, to $27.20, Oteiba said.

The base price for OPEC's top-quality crudes was left at $28 per barrel.

"We're all happy," Oil Minister Tam David-West of Nigeria said as he left the hotel ballroom where the meeting was held.

Asked whether he was pleased with the meeting's outcome, Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Saudi Arabia's oil minister, told reporters: "Yes, I am."

Yamani engineered the deal to re-

Israel hopes its OPEC talks yield positive results

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel hopes that its negotiations to buy oil from a member of OPEC will yield positive results even though the organization has always boycotted the Jewish state, an energy official said today.

Energy Minister Moshe Shahal told Israel's Parliament on Monday that Israel was in advanced stages of negotiations which may lead to an agreement with an OPEC country to supply oil to Israel. He declined to name the country or give any further details.

The energy official, who declined to be named, refused to elaborate.

OPEC, which is composed largely of Moslem nations, has refused to have any dealings with Israel in the past. Shahal attributed the change to the emergence of new trends in international crude oil sales and to the weakening of the OPEC cartel.

Israel buys 6.5 million tons of crude oil a year, of which 40 percent comes from Mexico, 30 percent from Egypt, 25 percent from the spot market in Rotterdam and five percent from Norway.

The energy minister also revealed that negotiations were underway with Egypt by which Israel will pay for its oil with goods and services.

Shahal met Tuesday with Egyptian Oil Minister Abdel-Hadi Kandil aboard a private yacht in Israel's Ashdod port, the daily Maariv newspaper reported today.

Each $1 reduction in the world price of oil, if entirely passed on to consumers, is the equivalent of a reduction of about 2½ cents a gallon in the retail price of gasoline.

Saudi Arabia has been pushing for a price cut in low-grade heavy crude in hopes of reviving its falling production, which has reached a nearly 20-year low of 2.2 million barrels a day.

Much of Saudi Arabia's production for export is low-grade oil. The Saudis were unhappy with the price spread between the lower- and higher-grade OPEC crudes, which they say give the African countries an advantage.

African countries produce primarily higher-quality oil. Some of them opposed price cuts for the lower-grade crude because their oil would become less competitive on the world market. Low-grade oils are less expensive because they yield a relatively smaller proportion of high-value products such as gasoline and jet fuel.

Iran traditionally has opposed any cuts in OPEC prices, although it reportedly has been one of the most frequent violators of OPEC rules against discounts.

Iran's oil minister, Mohammad Gharazi, walked out of Wednesday's meeting in protest over a Saudi request that the price for low-grade oils be cut 60 cents a barrel instead of 50 cents, according to sources.

Iran, along with Algeria and Libya, did not accept an OPEC majority decision last January to make an across-the-board cut in oil prices.

OPEC has been under pressure to cut prices to regain sales lost to such non-OPEC producers as Mexico and Britain.

Midland Hilton awarded American Automobile's Four Diamond rating

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

For only the second time in history, a Permian Basin hotel has been honored with the American Automobile Association's coveted Four Diamond Rating.

The first time was in 1981 when the Midland Hilton received the award; the second was Wednesday when the Midland Hilton again received the association's second highest rating.

According to Harry Nobles, field representative for the automobile association, about 20,000 hotels and motels throughout the nation are rated annually. There are 32 field representatives to rate the 20,000 establishments, each staying in a hotel at least one night, sampling the food, room service, and as much of the services as possible.

The association gives each lodging a rating of one to five diamonds in their travel book. He noted that only 1,245 hotels have received the four diamond rating this year, which he said requires luxurious accommodations with service to match the surroundings. Midland Hilton Manager Marshall Hill added that only 53 hotels in the world have rated-five diamonds.

"This is something that I've been struggling very hard to achieve," Hill commented in accepting the plaque to hang in the front office. "We have some very good employees, and this will be a big morale booster, proving that hard work can pay off."

Hill, who was named manager of the hotel in January, said that this award will definitely help business, especially for the sales staff trying to attract conventions. "We can prove to people that they'll be bringing their convention to a place that can take care of them," he noted.

The Midland Hilton was bought by Prudential Insurance in 1979. In February, 1982, Gateway Hotel Management took over management of the hotel from Basin Headquarters. Hill, who has a 17-year background in the hotel industry, was with Hilton International prior to coming to the Midland Hilton as Comptroller in May, 1982.

Continental has record earnings in second quarter

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines on Wednesday reported its highest revenues and net income in any quarter and six-month period in the carrier's 50-year history.

Net income for the second quarter increased 341 percent to $35.4 million, or $1.243 a share, on revenue of $432.5 million. It is the fifth consecutive quarter in which the Houston-based carrier reported a net profit, officials said.

During the same period a year ago, Continental reported a net income of $10.4 million, or 40 cents a share, on operating revenue of $281.2 million.

Continental's net income for the first six months of the year also increased almost tenfold to $50.4 million, or $1.79 a share, from $5.5 million, or 12 cents a share in the same period in 1984.

Revenue for the first six months of 1984 rose 59.5 percent to $795.6 million from $498.9 million a year ago.

"The company is growing stronger, operationally as well as profitably," said Chairman Frank Lorenzo. "Our capacity is up. Our load factors are up. And our revenue per available seat mile is up, while our costs continue to be way below our major full-service competitors and rival the new entrant 'no frills' carriers."

Continental serves 48 U.S. cities and 29 international destinations,

Union leader: Jobless benefits 'in trouble'

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite the economic recovery, substantial numbers of Americans are still out of work and many don't get unemployment benefits, a national labor leader says.

Thomas R. Donahue, secretary-treasurer of the national AFL-CIO, told Texas union leaders Wednesday that federal and state action is needed to help the jobless.

"The fact is that last month, unemployment benefits were paid to the lowest percentage of unemployed workers in the last 25 or 30 years."

"Last month, 26.9 percent of the unemployed in this country — those who are unemployed and looking for work — were eligible for unemployment insurance coverage," Donahue told the opening session of the Texas AFL-CIO convention.

"That's a very, very serious problem that we have to deal with in the first moments of the good economy of this country and in the first legislative opportunity we get," he said. Donahue said little attention has been paid to problems with unemployment compensation as the nation's economy has improved.

Many Americans have been out of work so long they no longer qualify for benefits or have been unable to work long enough to requalify before being laid off again, he said.

"We have over 8 million people still unemployed. We've been hanging at that 7.3 (percent) unemployment figure (nationally) for a lot of months now. What is not obvious in that unemployment figure is the absolute destruction of the promise of unemployment insurance," he said.

With only 26.9 percent of the jobless drawing benefits, he said, "The other 73-odd percent had either been out of work so long that they've exhausted their benefits and there's no supplementary available, or else they couldn't work long enough to qualify under some restrictive interpretation or another."

In Texas last month, he said, "15 percent percent of the unemployed collected unemployment benefits. The highest was 45 percent in Massachusetts and 37 percent in California. That's a tragedy that nobody is talking very much about and that we'd better address."

Also speaking to the 1,500 delegates from 900 local unions was Gov. Mark White, who criticized President Reagan's foreign trade policies.

Motion filed for RRC rehearing

AUSTIN (AP) — Celeron Oil & Gas Co. has asked the Texas Railroad Commission to reconsider its July 8 order that put Panhandle Field oil and gas operators on notice that they are not free to produce from any level they please.

The order would apply to oil operators who produce gas from a gas-only zone, which the commission staff said is prohibited by state law and commission rules.

"Some operators feel free to perforate (wells) anywhere in the Panhan-

Thomas Donahue

Those policies are eroding many of America's basic industries, such as steel and oil, White said.

"The current laissez faire trade policy being practiced by the current administration has the potential of leading to an economy that loses its basic industries and is left only with service industries," White said.

"In a sense we will be left with those service industries that may be doing nothing more than shining each others shoes — and the shoes are imported from some other country. That's not a strong economy, and we have to guard against that happening," he said.

White also announced a $2.2 million assistance program, combining a $740,000 federal grant with similar amounts in state and local funds, for steel and copper workers who have lost their jobs in three areas of the state.

The help will be going to steel workers in northeast Texas and Harris County, and copper workers in the El Paso area. The money will be used for job retraining, relocation assistance and other services.

die Field, and that is not the case," legal examiner Patrick Thompson said at the July 8 commission hearing. "They are not free, and we want to make that clear at the outset."

Austin lawyer Ivan Hafly, representing Celeron, a wholly owned subsidiary of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., said Wednesday his client was concerned that 1.3 billion barrels of oil in the Panhandle Field would not be produced as a result of the commission's new restrictions.

Attorney says Pennzoil assumed no risk

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texaco Inc. attorney charged that Pennzoil Oil's tender offer for Getty Oil was structured in a way so Pennzoil would assume no risk except for its expenses.

However, retired Pennzoil president Baine P. Kerr testified Wednesday that Pennzoil's tender offer of $100 a share for 20 percent of Getty stock was not an attempt to take advantage of management problems between Getty, the Sarah C. Getty Trust and the J. Paul Getty Museum.

"Where the stock market values the stock is whatever you can get for it," Kerr said in the trial of Pennzoil's $15 billion civil suit against Texaco. "No one was offering to buy their stock at $100 a share, $110 or $112.50 a share."

He said Pennzoil's offer was better than the stockholders could have received in the open market from December 1983 through January 1984.

In response to a question from Texaco attorney Richard Miller, Kerr said that Pennzoil believed the value of the Getty Oil assets was considerably higher than $100 a share. But the price it offered in the tender offer was based on the company's assessment of the lowest level that would be attractive to the stockholders, he said.

Kerr testified that in a responsible business transaction, the price is the lowest one agreeable to both sides, but one that is not more than the value of the assets being acquired.

"For a tender offer, you try to determine a price that would be a strong offer that would be responded to," he said. "We were offering to buy stock, not assets."

Pennzoil began its tender offer for 16 million shares of Getty Oil stock on Dec. 28, 1983. On Jan. 4, 1984, Getty Oil, the trust and the museum announced that they had agreed to a merger with a partnership of the trust and Pennzoil.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Dual well completed in Glasscock

From Staff Reports

GREAT WESTERN DRILLING Co., Midland, has completed the No. 1 Helen Zant Adcock as a dual producer in the Blacklock (Wolfcamp) and Dewey Lake (Fuselman) fields of Glasscock County.

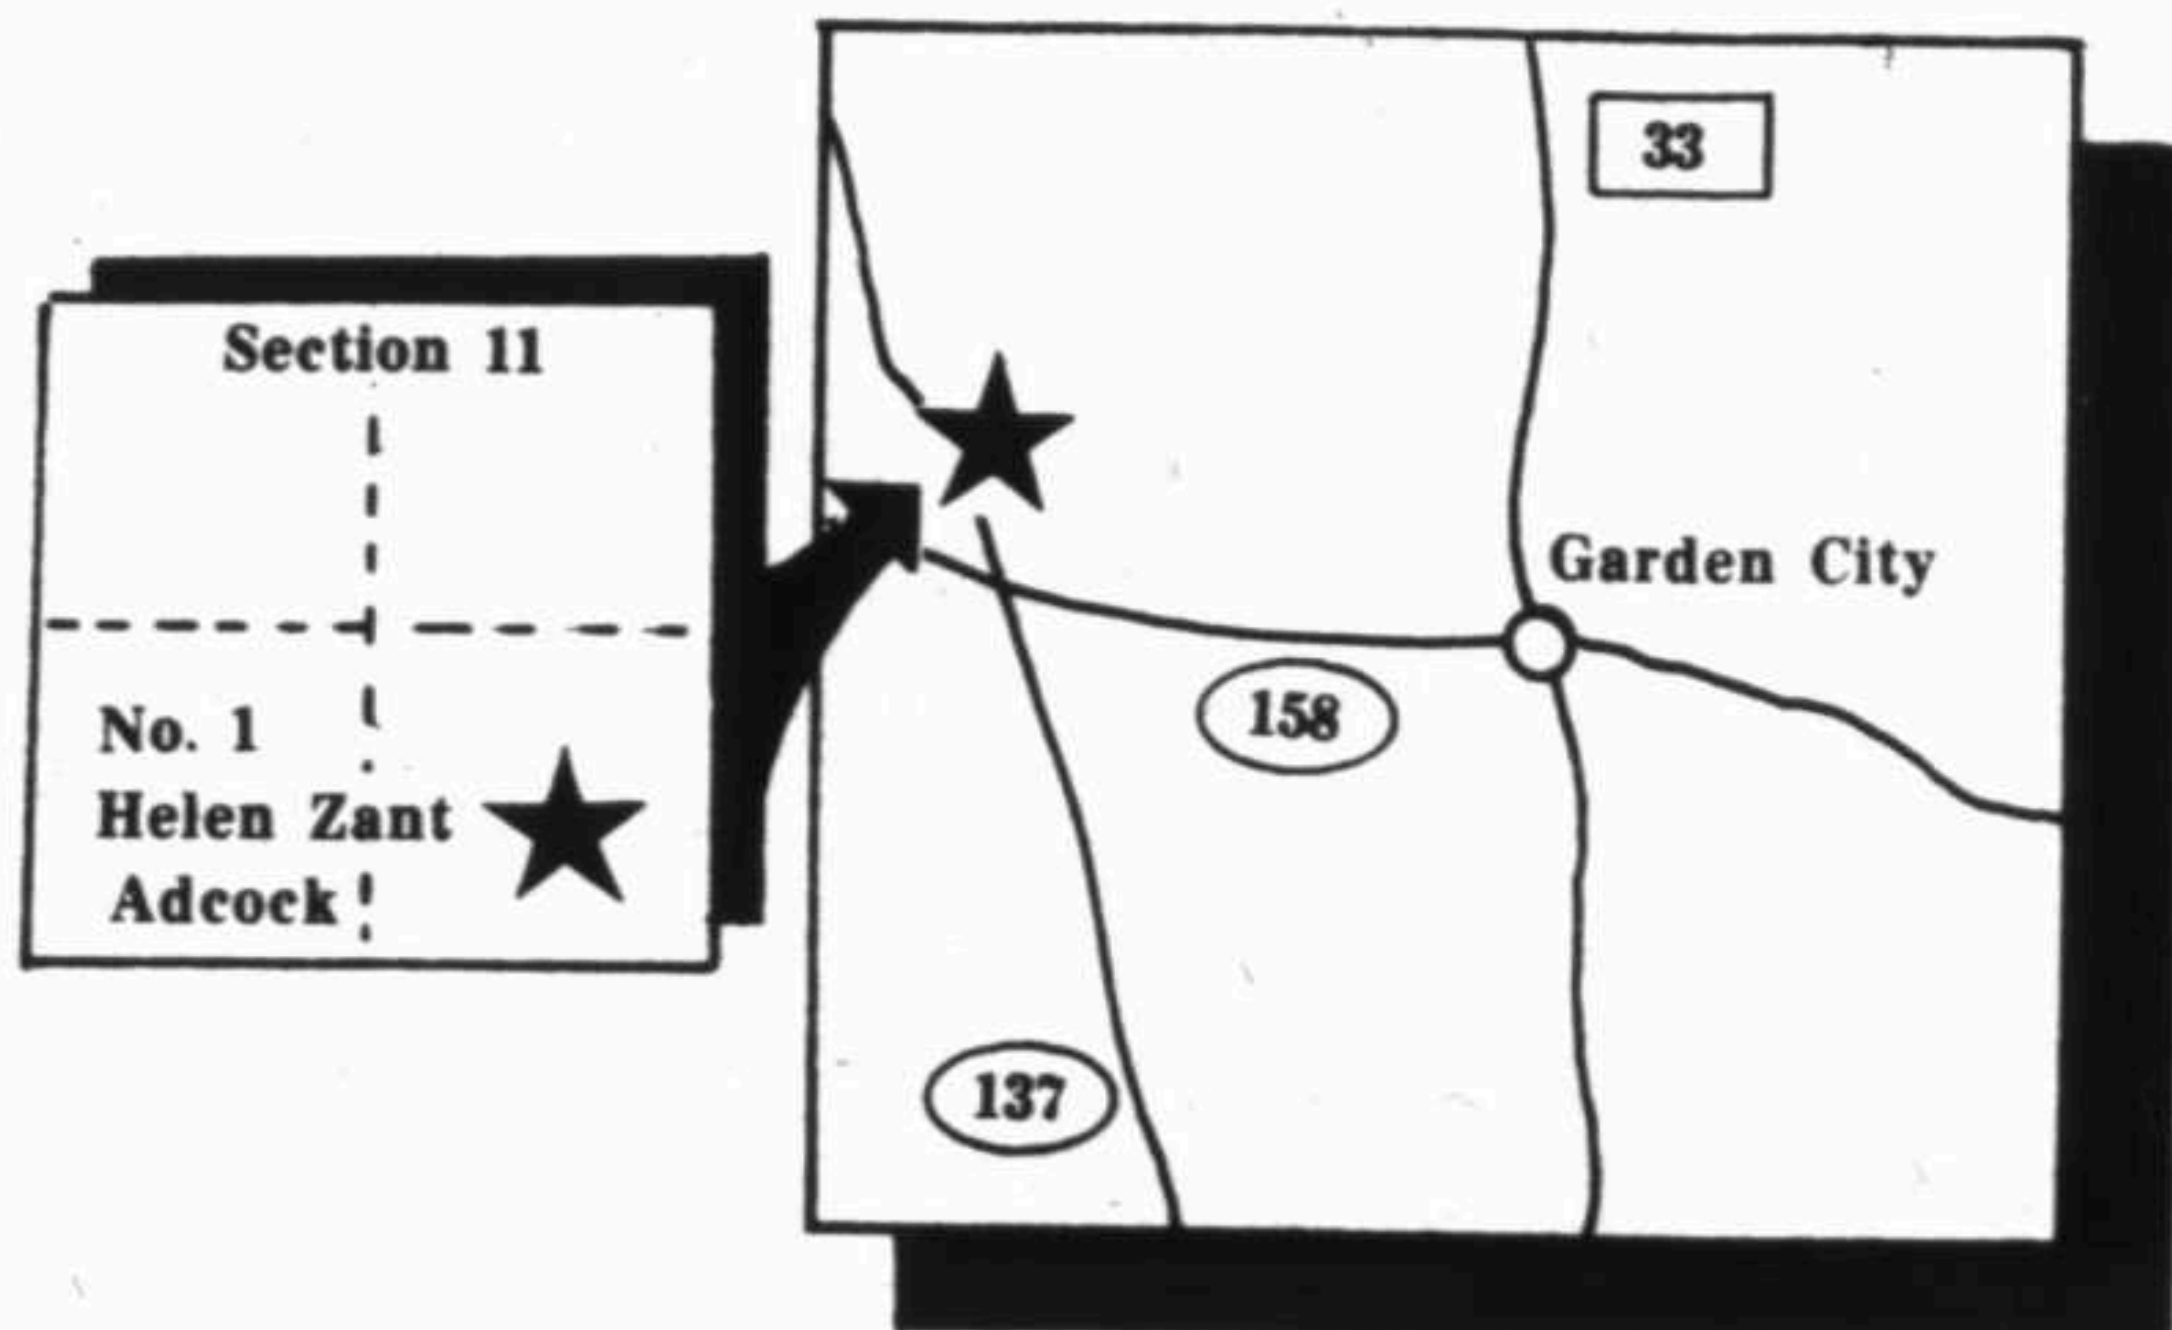

The Wolfcamp zone was potential to flow 128 barrels of 61.02 gravity crude, 992 Mcfd and no water on a 23/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,000 psi. The interval was perforated 8,603 to 8,656 ft. with no treatment reported.

The Fuselman interval was potential for a calculated absolute open flow of 11.1 Mcfd with a flowing tubing pressure of 1,200 psi. Liquid gravity was 50.96 and gas-liquid ratio was 22,889:1. The well is flowing through open hole 10,864 to 11,104 ft.

Originally scheduled as the No. 1 John Zant, an 11,500 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 11,104 ft. with seven inch casing set at 10,864 ft.

Formation tops, on elevation of 2,594 ft., include the Lower Spraberry at 7,268 ft., Dean at 8,065, Wolfcamp at 8,240, Strawn at 10,035, Devonian at 10,185, and the Fuselman at 11,078 ft. Wolfcamp pay was topped at 8,603 ft. and Fuselman pay was topped at 11,089 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from north and 470 ft. from east lines of Section 11, Block 36, T-3-S, T&P survey, 15 miles northwest of Garden City.

Conoco finals dual strike in Eddy County

CONOCO, INC., Houston, has announced a dual oil and gas discovery in Eddy County, New Mexico, 12 miles east of Carlsbad.

The firm's No. 1 Tuesday tested 438 barrels of crude and 833 Mcfd from the Wolfcamp formation. The test was made through a 13/64 inch choke and showed a flowing tubing pressure of 1,800 psi.

Oil from the well test was extremely light, measuring 48 degrees API gravity.

The Morrow interval tested for 150 barrels of condensate and 8.65 Mcfd through a 24/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,750 psi.

The intervals tested were at depths between 9,252 and 11,099 ft. Conoco plans to further delineate these reservoirs later this year and in early 1986.

Wolfcamp producer flows 357 barrels oil

The Scharb field of Lea County, New Mexico gained a very strong Wolfcamp oil producer with completion of the SOUTHLAND ROYAL-

TY CO. No. 1 Peoples "33" Federal, potential to flow 357 barrels of 37 gravity crude, 330 Mcfd and no water on a 32/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 150 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 924:1. The well is flowing through perforations 11,068.5 to 11,088.5 ft., which had been acidized with 1,000 gallons of acid.

Drilled to 11,232 ft., Southland set 5 1/2 inch casing at 11,230 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 3,911.4 ft., include the Rustler at 1,860 ft., Salt at 2,150, Base Salt at 3,100, Yates at 3,350, Queen at 4,500, Grayburg at 5,200, San Andres at 5,380, Delaware at 7,070, Bone Springs at 7,600, First Bone Springs at 9,240, Second Bone Springs at 9,780, Third Bone Springs at 10,400, and Wolfcamp at 10,950 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and 660 ft. from west lines of Section 33, T-18-S, R-35-E.

Chaves County gains small Wolfcamp find

Chaves County gained a Wolfcamp discovery with completion of the CHEVRON USA, INC. No. 1 L. Wrinkle Com. for 25 barrels of oil, 25 Mcfd and 44 barrels of water through perfs 8,828 to 8,886 ft.

Drilled to 11,500 ft., the well is plugged back to 9,353 ft.

Location is 660 ft. from west and 990 ft. from north lines of Section 13, T-15-S, R-31-E.

Synfuel funds snag offshore exploration bill in House

Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — The House stalled action Wednesday on an appropriations bill that includes an agreement on California offshore oil exploration as a battle erupted over funding for the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp.

On a 251-179 vote, the full House sent the measure back to the Interior Committee, seeking an amendment that would virtually eliminate the controversial agency's $7.9 billion budget. The bill could be brought up again for consideration within a week.

"This is the first big step toward bringing to a close the most wasteful and unproductive agency in the federal government today," said Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., a leading opponent of the synfuels corporation.

The delay is not expected to affect the California offshore oil leasing agreement included in the Department of Interior appropriations bill. The leasing agreement, lauded by many environmentalists and criticized by the oil industry, extends a moratorium on oil exploration through the year 2000 at 97 percent of California's protected sites.

The much-maligned synfuels agency was created in response to the oil crisis of the 1970s to provide funds for the development of alternative energy sources. But congressional critics said Wednesday the agency has wasted taxpayers' money and has made no progress toward finding new fuels.

"We're talking about a corporation that's pouring millions down the rat hole," Rep. James T. Broyhill, R-N.C., said. "It's not even remotely economical."

The House amendment would eliminate all but $500 million of the agency's budget. With that reduction achieved, opponents said they would have time to seek to abolish the entire corporation, a proposal now under discussion in a House committee.

Congressmen made a similar effort to wipe out the synfuels agency last year but settled on a compromise that reduced funding by $5 billion and required the corporation to change many of its operating procedures.

Supporters of the agency warned that Americans should not take the availability of oil for granted, however.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, one of the agency's original backers, charged that those seeking to eliminate the synfuels corporation have forgotten the "blackmail" by oil-producing nations in the 1970s that "brought this country to its knees."

API president says nation could suffer great shortfall if tax proposal passed

WASHINGTON — If Congress eliminates the expensing of intangible drilling costs (IDC) provisions of the tax code, the nation will lose 900,000 barrels a day of oil equivalent production in 1990 and 1.6 million barrels a day in 1995, the president of the American Petroleum Institute testified today.

"This would be more than twice the shortfall we suffered in 1979" during the Iranian revolution, Charles J. DiBona told the Senate Finance Committee regarding the impact of tax policy on the nation's energy security.

DiBona said a study has indicated that if an oil crisis occurred in 1992, the elimination alone would increase oil prices by $9 a barrel, cut the gross national product by 1.4 percent and add commensurately to unemployment and the federal deficit.

"This country may critically need domestic oil production in the future, and your decision could determine whether, as a nation, we are simply uncomfortable or truly vulnerable," DiBona told the committee.

He warned that higher taxes on the oil and natural gas industry would cause a reduction in future domestic petroleum production.

DiBona pointed out that the latest study by Congress' Joint Committee on Taxation shows the petroleum industry effective federal income tax rate has been "well above that of the average of other industries."

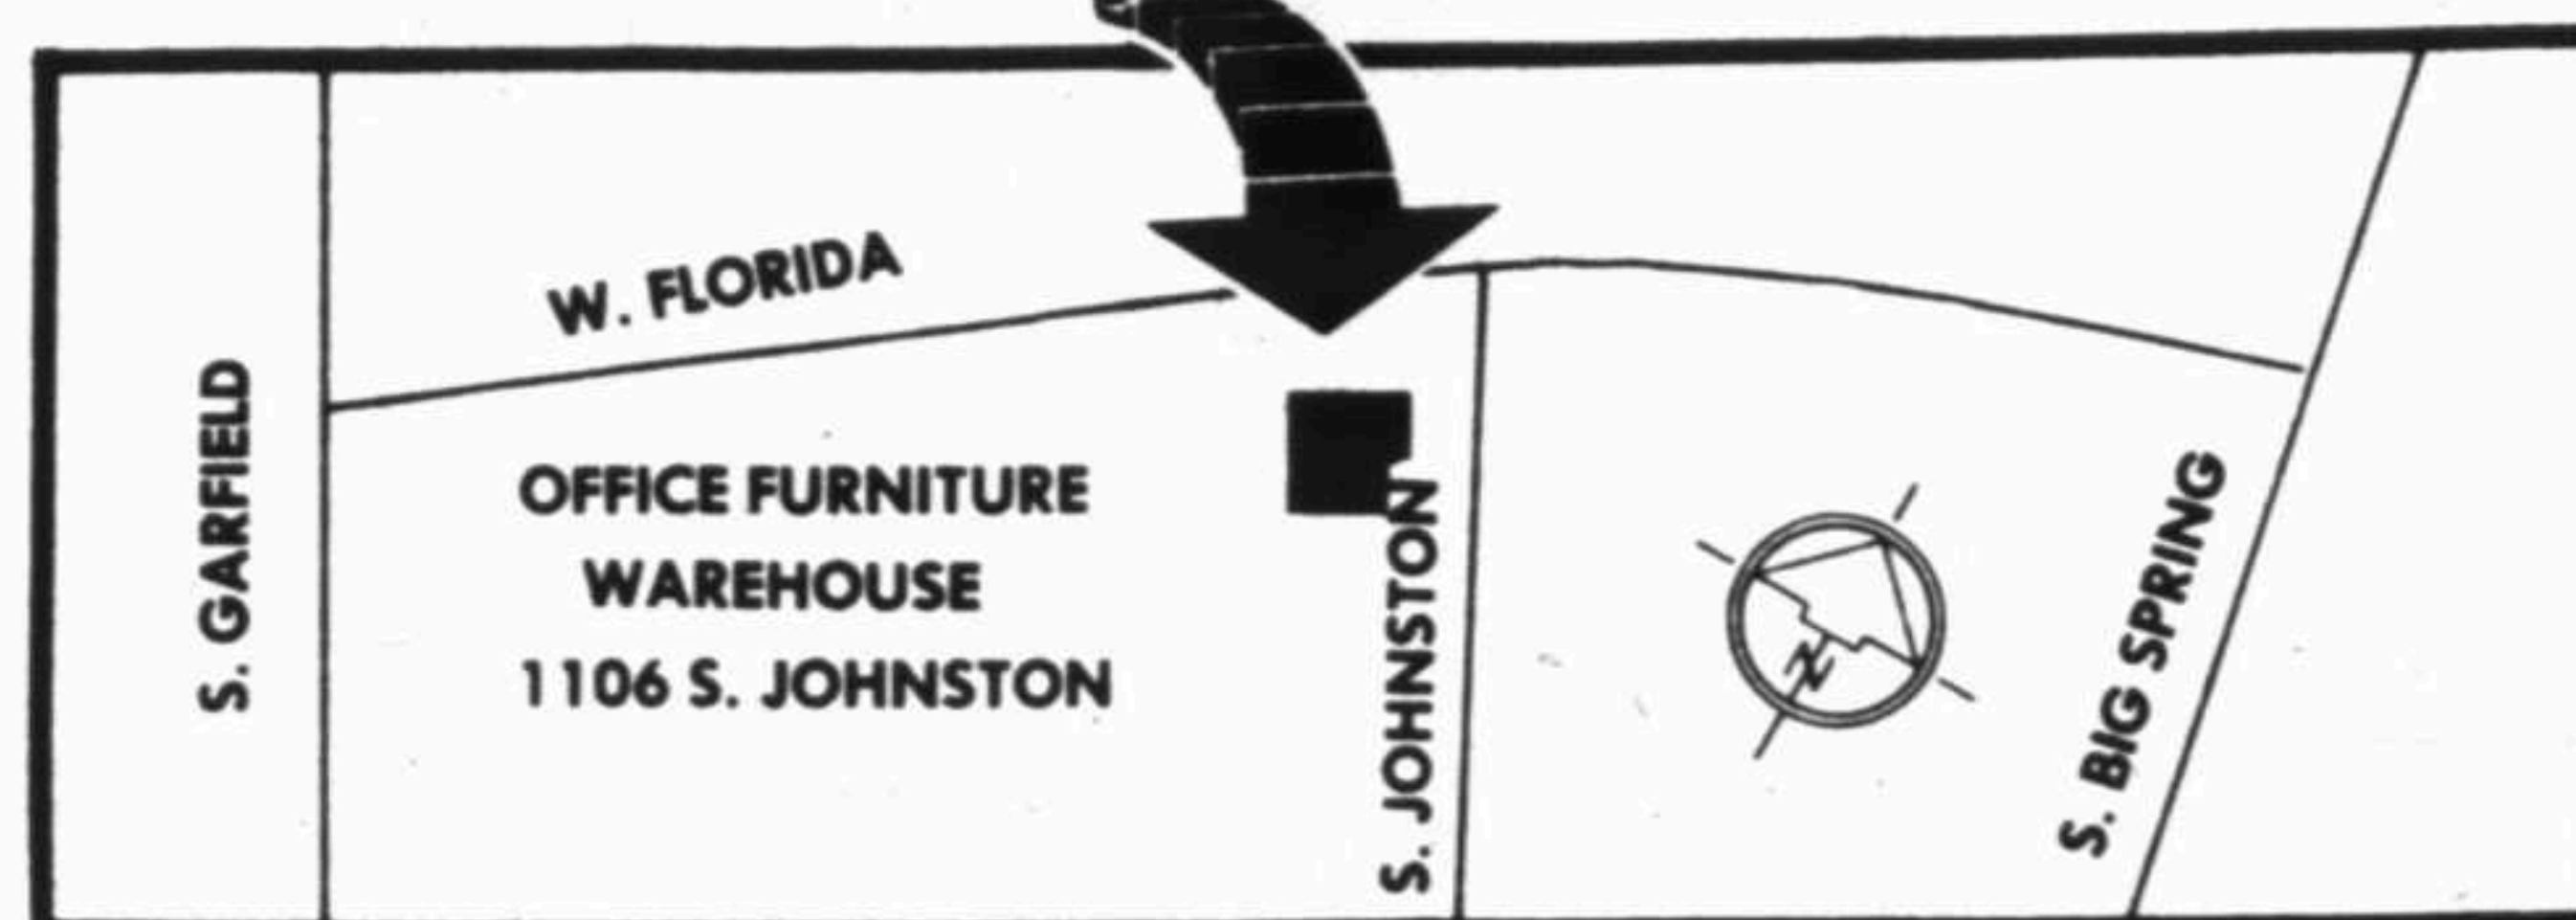

"This is true," DiBona added, "on both a U.S. only basis and a world-wide basis. The petroleum industry rate is 28 percent more than the average of other industries."

"Moreover, when the so-called 'windfall tax' is added, as it should be - a tax applied uniquely to petroleum and one not considered in the committee staff's calculations - the tax rate on petroleum was above that of any of the other 29 major industries studied."

In reviewing the Administration's proposed tax revisions, DiBona said that, in addition to retaining the expensing of IDCs, "There are positive elements in the President's approach, including the lower corporate rates, the treatment of dividends and the indexing of depreciation. But, there are also serious negatives which would discourage future investment and economic growth."

Recluse spider's bite can be 'devastating'

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

It's less than an half-inch long, but its bite is considered by some to be more potent than the black widow spider. The brown recluse or fiddle-back spider, so named because of the violin-shaped spot on its head, is a common hazard of West Texas.

"The venom from the spider can cause death in those people who are sensitive to it," said Wayne Gellido, entomologist for the City of Midland. "It's important that, if possible, the spider be caught so that it can be identified."

Catching the poisonous arthropod may not be an easy task, stated Gellido, since the brown recluse often measures between 0.8 inches and 1.6 inches.

The effects of the spider's bite can be devastating.

"My sister got bit by a brown recluse at Memorial Stadium on Saturday," said Vivien Bergoon. "She was working at a concessions stand and went under the soft drink trailer to change a bottle when she got bit."

Ms. Bergoon said that her sister, Susan Sanderson, "kind of swatted at something and didn't really pay much attention to it."

The response is typical of most people who get bitten by the brown recluse, since symptoms may not show up for two to eight hours, according to "Poisonous Dwellers of the Desert" by Natt N. Dodge, which states that "the patient may be completely unaware that he has been bitten and the spider seldom seen."

Ms. Sanderson, who went to a local hospital after her supervisor insisted she have emergency treatment following the onset reaction to the poison, is experiencing symptoms common to victims of the spider's bite.

"She's in extreme pain and has rotting flesh as large as a hand in the area where she was bitten," said Ms. Bergoon. Ms. Sanderson was too ill to be interviewed. "Her doctor said that there is not enough cases that anyone knows much about them."

Ms. Sanderson's reaction is consistent with a definition by Dodge.

"Only after two to eight hours does pain, varying from mild to severe, begin," he said. "After several days an ulcer may form at the site of the bite. The venom appears to contain a spreading factor resulting in a spread of the necrosis or tissue destruction. In some instances, the ulcer may be so large that skin grafting is required, but the graft may take poorly or not at all."

"The bite may also produce serious systemic symptoms including fever, chills, weakness, vomiting, joint pain and a spotty skin eruption, all occurring 24 to 48 hours after the venom injection."

Gellido agreed that there is not much information available on the brown recluse although "there is some research going on presently."

Emergence of the dangerous spider as a threat is relatively new.

"Until recently, the black widow was considered the only spider in the United States dangerous to man, said the book's author. "In 1955, physicians in Missouri and Arkansas began treating persons suffering from the bite of the brown recluse spider, whose poison caused serious damage to the skin at the site of the puncture and often produced a severe systemic reaction, sometimes fatal to young children."

Dodge said that little has been published on the spider's life history but it has been reported from Kansas, Illinois, the Gulf Coast and from Tennessee to Oklahoma.

"It is extending its territory westward and has recently been reported from southeastern New Mexico and southern California," she said. "People are contributing to the rapid geographical spread of this species by unknowingly carrying it across state lines in their luggage."

Dodge warns of possible brown recluse web sites.

"They are often found in open fields and rocky bluffs, but they thrive particularly well in outhouses, garages, dark closets, storerooms and in piles of sacking or old clothing," Dodge said.

The "Venomous Arthropod Handbook," published by the U.S. Air Force advises caution when around possible brown recluse web sites.

"The brown recluse spider will readily establish populations inside parts of buildings which are generally dry, littered and undisturbed for long periods of time," said the booklet. "The spider also can be found outside in protected areas (under rocks and loose bark). They are usually nonaggressive and normally attempt to escape whenever they are threatened."

"Thus, most instances of bites occur when the spider is inadvertently trapped, such as when the victim puts on clothing in which the spider is hiding, steps on a wandering spider at night or cleans closets or other storage areas where the spider resides."

The handbook recommends the following to help prevent contact with the brown recluse spider: shake out clothing and bedding before use; eliminate collections of papers and unused boxes; thoroughly clean beneath and behind furniture; remove spiders, webs and egg cases from living and storage areas and properly use appropriate insecticides.

Gellido stated that the City of Midland routinely sprays public areas and city property for "everything" including the brown recluse, but added that if someone had a spider problem on their own property, the city would give information on how to get rid of it, but cannot spray private property.

Simply destroying the spider when seen around living areas is the best deterrent, said Gellido. "They should be destroyed before they have the chance to bite someone else."

Gellido recommends that victims get emergency treatment immediately. Ice packs at the bite area are also suggested.

Ector health officials trying to curb spread of venereal diseases

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The Ector County Health Department Wednesday moved to curb the spread of venereal and other infectious diseases allegedly traced to adult bookstores in Odessa and the county where certain types of sexual activity is said to be occurring.

Dr. Robert Rowntree III, county health director, acting under state law concerning disease control measures, ordered the managers and employees of all adult bookstores and other places "open to the public where people engage in sexual activity" to report monthly to the health department for examination to make sure they are free of sexually-transmitted diseases.

Rowntree also warned that if problems arise in the identification of those examined during routine inspections, identification cards will be issued.

The health department director also said that, "To restrict sexual exposures in these public places, locked or closed cubicles are not permitted. This includes," Rowntree stated, "any closet or compartment accessible to the public."

Attempted murder-for-hire suspect testifies at trial

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Muhammed Majid took the stand in his own defense Wednesday and claimed the chief prosecution witness set him up for a murder-for-hire charge because of a grudge over a $20 gasoline bill.

Majid, accused of trying to hire an undercover officer to murder his brother's ex-wife, told the 238th District Court jury he thought he was hiring a private detective to plant marijuana on the woman to help his brother win a child-custody case.

"It is my simplicity that has been thoroughly exploited," he said.

According to Majid, prosecution witness Robert Campbell suggested the marijuana scheme, then told the Sheriff's Office Majid was looking for a hit man. Majid said Campbell bore a grudge against him because Campbell had once pumped "$15 to $20" worth of gas without paying for it at the Kent convenience store where Majid worked, and the defendant had insisted on payment.

"He was out to get you, is that correct?" asked a skeptical First Assistant District Attorney David Rosado of the 28-year-old defendant.

"If he hadn't done it, I wouldn't be here today," Majid replied.

In a breaking voice, Majid said he didn't realize he was dealing with a hired killer until Sheriff's Lt. Roy Harrison, who posed as the hit man, specifically referred to killing the woman.

"I was surprised, I was shocked, because all along I had this understanding it was a dope deal."

When Majid met Harrison at the Executel Motel on March 20 to arrange the deal, an incident which could have given Harrison away only reassured Majid he wasn't dealing with an undercover officer, he said. Harrison testified Tuesday that while the two men were in an elevator, an old high-school classmate of Harrison's recognized him and asked his name.

"There's a guy in Odessa who looks just like you," the old classmate told Harrison, who used to work in Ector County but who had told Majid he was from Dallas. Harrison told the man he must be thinking of someone else, but he persisted: "Boy, you look just like this guy. You could be twins."

But because Harrison seemed "very nervous," Majid said he took it as proof the man was involved in illegal activities.

According to Majid, Campbell had originally suggested kidnapping Khalid Majid's 3-year-old daughter, who was living with her mother in Abilene. Khalid's ex-wife, Lisa Bell, had remarried, and the two are involved in a custody battle.

Campbell testified Monday it was Majid who approached him with the murder-for-hire scheme. Campbell said he pretended to go along with Majid, but told the Sheriff's Office about the scheme and then arranged for Majid to meet Harrison. After Muhammed Majid rejected the kidnapping idea, Campbell came up with the drug-planting scheme, the defendant testified Wednesday. Then, he said, Campbell suggested a more radical solution.

"He said, 'Why don't you get into something that will solve your problem permanently?' I immediately told him I would have nothing to do with it," the Bangladesh native told the eight-man, four-woman jury.

But Majid admitted he considered the idea later, when he realized Harrison thought he was supposed to kill Ms. Bell.

"I told him that's not the feat to be done," but he didn't press the point, and admitted thinking later that "killing might help solve the problem."

But he testified that the next day, his conscience bothering him, he asked Campbell to call Harrison off.

"He said it's too late," Majid said. Two days later, when Harrison showed up with faked evidence of Ms. Bell's murder and demanded payment, Majid tried to put him off.

"He had done something I didn't want — something is being imposed on me," Majid said. "Never in my life have I been on the wrong side of the law."

At that point the defendant broke down, forcing 238th District Court Judge Vann Culp to call a recess. Later, under cross-examination from Rosado, he admitted he was in the country illegally on an expired student visa, but said that wasn't technically a criminal offense.

Earlier Wednesday the eight-man, four-woman jury had heard testimony from the alleged intended victim, Lisa Bell, about her problems with her ex-husband and his family. "We're constantly in fear," she said.

Ms. Bell admitted she was denying Khalid visitation rights to his daughter, but said she feared he would take the child to Bangladesh, as apparently he did once before. She said any father who loved his child wouldn't take her from her mother.

Doctors' procedures criticized

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Medical procedures practiced by a father-son team of Odessa orthopedic surgeons came under the criticism of Dr. Wheatley Stewart, who was chairman of the Odessa Medical Center Hospital's ad hoc committee probe into charges against the surgeons, 75-year-old Dr. Edward Driscoll and his 41-year-old son, Dr. Stephen Driscoll.

The Driscolls are suing Medical Center Hospital, fellow surgeons and insurance carriers for allegedly trying to "black list" them and to deny them surgical privileges in the Ector County-operated hospital.

Stewart, who specializes in internal medicine, said the ad hoc committee, which investigated hospital committee charges lodged by fellow physicians, found that the Driscolls conducted superficial examinations, sometimes lacked thorough physical examinations, prescribed "excessive" medication and were involved in "episodes of disruptive conduct...in the operating room."

"There was good work (by the Driscolls)," he said. "There was bad work. There was a number (of procedures) that didn't come up to standards and left something to be desired," he said under cross-examination by Peter Fulton, lawyer for the Driscolls. Stewart, a witness for the defense in the civil lawsuit being tried by a jury in federal court in Midland, noted that, "There's not a doctor practicing that doesn't make mistakes."

"I think there's no excuse for any doctor to leave a patient during an operation no matter what the provocation," Stewart said. "You do not leave a patient in the middle of a critical operation."

Stewart was among the first of defense witnesses, who began their rounds on the witness stand following 1 1/2 weeks of testimony by about 50 plaintiffs' witnesses. Odessa attorney Jim O'Leary is representing the hospital in the suit.

The first defense witness, 49-year-old nurse Phyllis Ramsell, testified that the Driscolls sometimes were disruptive in the operating room.

She recalled in late 1983 that the Driscolls were "arguing and carrying on" during an operation in which they were installing a stainless steel rod in a bone.

"All the time they are arguing and fussing with each other. They both are very agitated and cussing one another. She said she handed the senior Driscoll an air-driven instrument.

"This — — thing doesn't work," she said he yelled and then threw the instrument.

He then asked for a screwdriver and ordered a screw. In his apparent impatience, Edward Driscoll grabbed her right arm, she said.

In turn, Ms. Ramsell said she ordered the surgeon to "turn loose of me or I'm going to slap you upside the wall."

"He was furious."

Moments later, she said he asked his surgeon-son, "Is she mad?"

"Yes, Dad," Stephen Driscoll replied, she said. "You've been an — —, a — —"

The nurse, a former truck driver, conceded that she previously has heard rough language. "I'm 49 years old. She suggested that she was not 'raised' in a cloistered environment."

She said he would "prefer not" to work again for the Driscolls. "I scrub for anybody at any time wherever I'm asked."

Since the incident, the nurse said the Driscolls have "tried to clean up their act."

In another incident, she said the Driscolls had left three sponges in a wound which they were suturing.

"Dr. Edward (Driscoll) had a terrible habit of grabbing things off of your stand," including sponges, pads of surgical gauze. She counted her sponge inventory and noted that three were missing. She surmised that they were in the closed wound.

She said she told the Driscolls. "Generally, they (surgeons) stop sewing and help you look for it," she said Stephen Driscoll suggested that the wound be X-rayed.

"They kept sewing," she said. "I said, 'You're missing three sponges.'"

She said the senior Driscoll gave her a severe "look" that "could send you somewhere."

Driscoll then pulled out the stitches, opened the wound and "pulled out three bloody sponges and threw them at me," she said.

Austin man may seek agriculture commissioner nomination

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Bill Powers, executive vice president of the Texas Poultry Federation and Affiliates in Austin, is testing the waters for the Republican nomination for agriculture commissioner and said he is finding them "hot."

In Midland Wednesday, Powers said he will make an announcement about the race in the fall after school starts.

He grew up on a family beef cattle and poultry farm in Brazos County and was graduated in 1965 from Texas A&M University with a bachelor of science degree in agricultural journalism. He has edited the weekly newspaper in Madisonville and Texas Agriculture, the weekly publication of the Texas Farm Bureau. He has represented the poultry staff for the past 16 years.

But his idea to run for agricultural commissioner began when he was a senior in high school, Powers said. "At this time I think I have the background and maturity to be a much better commissioner than Jim Hightower is."

Powers said Hightower's policies have brought problems to the Agriculture Department. Before Hightower took over in January 1983, the marketing division was "locked to by most states as a model department. Because of Hightower's program and personnel changes, no one looks to this department. What Hightower and his people have going today almost is a disgrace to the people of Texas."

Part of the problem, according to Powers, is Hightower has used the policy of whatever the previous commissioner (Reagan Brown) did was wrong. "They should evaluate the programs on an objective basis, no matter who the predecessor was."

The agriculture industry is in trouble nationwide today, he said, but contended the farmers and ranchers in most trouble are those who depended heavily on federal programs. One way to ease those problems would be to find markets — whether local, state or international — for the products.

Powers denied that agricultural producers are Democrats, "only those who depend on federal farm programs." Farmers, he said, are usually ticket splitters when it comes to elections. "They're smart and they often vote for the person."

If Powers wins the Republican nomination, he won't try to campaign in the same manner as Hightower.

"He is Texas' most colorful and most quotable politician today. He is a good stump speaker. I do not pretend to match his wit and his ability in that area. But I believe I have much more to offer Texas agriculture, the consumer and everyone in between," he said.

Seminar to deal with vets benefits

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Veterans of the Permian Basin may receive the latest information on benefits available through state programs at a seminar beginning at 7 p.m. today in the Hilton Hotel, 5200 E. University Drive.

The seminar is the third in a series held across the state to update Texas veterans on the widening benefits.

According to Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, "Our information will emphasize the growing benefits of the state's veterans land and housing assistance programs in

Tina Pittman

Services for Tina Pittman, 17, of Midland will be at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Cecil Maxie of Kelview Heights Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be at Resthaven Memorial Park.

She died Wednesday at a local hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Mrs. Pittman was born Sept. 22, 1967 in Memphis, Tenn. She had lived in Mississippi, Oklahoma and Odessa. She married Marcus Pittman Oct. 27, 1982 in Odessa. They moved to San Angelo after their marriage and to Midland in November 1982. She was a member of Kelview Heights Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband; a son, Jonathan Eric Pittman of Midland; her mother, Maxine King of Tupelo, Miss.; six brothers, Michael Edgington, Gary Edgington and Gerald Edgington, all of Amory, Miss., Larry Edgington and William H. Chastain, both of Muskogee, Okla., and David Edgington of Big Lake; and two sisters, Rosemary Rimer of Rankin and Melinda Chastain of Muskogee, Okla.

Bert F. Willis

SAN ANGELO — Graveside services for Bert F. Willis, 80, of San Angelo were July 15 at Lawnhaven Memorial Garden in San Angelo with the Rev. J. Earl Dunn officiating. Arrangements were made by Robert Massey Funeral Home.

Willis was a resident of San Angelo for 56 years. He was an electrical contractor and a member of Harris Avenue Baptist Church.

Survivors include two brothers, C.C. Willis of Baciuff and Elmer Willis of Wichita, Kan.; four sisters, May Askew of Art, Virginia Gilbert of Midland, Roxie Campbell of Albuquerque, N.M., and Katie Stephens of El Cajon, Calif.; and many nieces and nephews, including Mrs. Parker M. Humes of Midland.

John A. Singleton

LAMESA — John A. Singleton, 60, of Lamesa died Tuesday at a Lubbock hospital following a brief illness.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church in Lamesa with Dr. C.H. Murphy, pastor, officiating. Burial was to be at Lamesa Memorial Park.

Singleton was born Aug. 24, 1924, in Allen, Okla., where he lived until moving to Dawson County in 1930. He married Betty M. Gilbert March 15, 1948 in Tom Green County. He was a farmer, a World War II veteran and a 17-year member of the First Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife of Lamesa; three daughters, Beverly Reid, Julia Franklin and Rena Moore, all of Lamesa, his mother, Mrs. Vada Singleton of Lamesa; a sister, Frankie Merrick of Lamesa; four brothers, Noel Singleton of Carlsbad, N.M., and Virgil Singleton, C.B. Singleton and Lindell Singleton all of Lamesa; and seven grandchildren.

Pallbearers were to be Noel Singleton, C.B. Singleton, Lindell Singleton, Virgil Singleton, Dale Merrick, James Gilbert and Edwin Rush.

John Paul Grandison

John Paul Grandison, 60, of Midland died Sunday at a local hospital following a lengthy illness.

Services will be at noon Saturday at the Jackson Funeral Home chapel. Burial will be at the Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Jackson Funeral Home.

Grandison was born Nov. 3, 1924 in Calvert. He moved to Abilene in 1940 where he lived for several years before moving to Midland. He later moved to Denver, Colo., returning to Midland in 1984.

Survivors include a brother, Luchious Grandison of Denver, Colo.; and a sister, Lorene Bailey of Denver, Colo.

John W. Mullins

BIG SPRING — John W. Mullins, 75, of Big Spring died Friday in a Big Spring hospital.

Graveside services will be at 10 a.m. Friday at Mount Olive Memorial Park with Dr. Carl Powers officiating. Arrangements are being handled by Nalley-Pickles and Welch Funeral Home.

Mullins was born April 24, 1910. He was a retired truck driver.

San Angelo Diocese's bishop to be ordained

From Staff Reports

SAN ANGELO — The ordination of Bishop Michael D. Pfeiffer, O.M.I., will begin at 6:30 p.m. Friday at the San Angelo Coliseum, located off North Chadbourne Street at the fairgrounds.

A procession of parishes will start at 6:30 p.m., the ordination mass will begin at 7 p.m. and should conclude by 9:30 p.m., according to the Rev. Larry J. Droll, chancellor of the Diocese and director of the ceremony's arrangements.

Pfeiffer

He pointed out this is the first public ordination in San Angelo. Two previous ordinations (1962 and 1979) were held in Sacred Heart Catholic Church where seating was limited to the clergy and parish representatives. Families, including children, are invited, and the ceremony will be bilingual.

A choir of 125 persons will sing in English and Spanish. Composed of choirs from throughout the diocese, the choir will be under the direction of Ed Leps of St. Ann's Parish in Midland. The orchestra will be conducted by David Phillips of Holy Angels Parish in San Angelo.

Attending will be Archbishop Patrick F. Flores of San Antonio, who will be ordaining Pfeiffer; Bishop Joseph A. Florenza, former bishop of San Angelo and now bishop of Galveston-Houston; and Bishop John F. Fitzpatrick of the Brownsville diocese. Flores will deliver the official instruction during the Mass and Pfeiffer is expected to deliver a brief "inaugural address." Florenza and Fitzpatrick will serve as co-consecrators.

The Apostolic Pro-Nuncio, Archbishop Pio Laghi, will be the special representative of Pope John Paul II. Laghi is the Holy See's Ambassador to the United States.

decorations with the intention of transforming the coliseum into a temporary cathedral for the Mass.

Among the interesting features of the Mass will be identical stoles worn by all priests with similar deacon stoles to be worn by the deacons. These were made for the ordination by the Catholic Daughters of the Americas under the direction of Merrie Webb of San Angelo. She also directed construction of two banners which will be hung in the sanctuary area of the coliseum during the Mass.

At 11:30 a.m. Friday, a simple ceremony will be held at Sacred Heart Cathedral to formally make Pfeiffer the bishop.

Man jailed in ex-girlfriend's alleged abduction

From Staff Reports

A 24-year-old Midland man was being held in county jail this morning after allegedly kidnapping his ex-girlfriend Wednesday night and threatening her common-law husband with a knife.

Angela Rene Bell, 17, was free this morning after being kidnapped from her home on Cotton Flat Road behind the Ponderosa Trailer Park in rural Midland, according to Sheriff's Office reports.

She had been threatened with a gun, and her 28-year-old common-law husband, William Sauls, had been threatened with a knife, reports said.

In other reports, a $300 tent, a $200 sleeping bag and other camping items worth a total of about $960 were reported stolen by Debbie Ann Green, 410 W. Cuthbert. The burglary occurred sometime between Monday and Wednesday, reports said.

Vivian Lackey, 403 S. Terrell, reported the loss of a $350 television, a $150 vacuum cleaner and other items worth a total of $870 in a Wednesday burglary of her home, reports said.

William Thomas Hollinger, Route 11, Box 11857, reported the loss of a $700 television, a $300 ring and other items for a total loss of about $1,780. The burglary occurred sometime early Wednesday afternoon, reports said.

Two men remained in Midland County Jail on $25,000 bonds for theft over $20,000. Jose Angel Vasquez Olivas and Donnie R. Martinez were arrested Sunday night while allegedly trying to steal a $95,000 tractor-trailer containing about $100,000 worth of computer parts, reports said. The truck was taken from the Warfield Truck Stop on Interstate 20 about 11:25 p.m.

An Odessa man critically injured

Saturday in an accident has been upgraded to serious condition, a Midland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman said. 29-year-old Kenny Turner was injured in the parking lot between K-Mart and M-System on Midland Drive when his motorcycle struck a car.

A 1-year-old girl injured Tuesday in an accident on West Highway 80 was downgraded from satisfactory to fair condition, the MMH spokeswoman said. Stephanie Louis, 1307 W. Washington, was injured in an accident which took the life of 17-year-old Tina Pittman, a passenger in the same car, reports said.

Testimony continues in Odessa's murder trial

ODESSA — A 70th District Court jury of 10 men and two women this morning continued hearing testimony in the murder trial of 17-year-old Israel Patino.

Assistant District Attorney Dennis Cadra introduced into evidence Wednesday afternoon a statement Patino gave Odessa police investigators after he was taken into custody following the April 2, 1984 shooting that killed Daniel A. Castillo Jr. and wounded 17-year-old Terrence Lopez.

Patino's attorney, David Martinez of Lubbock, earlier had sought to suppress the statement as evidence but Judge Gene Ater rejected his motion.

In the statement read to jurors by Cadra, Patino admitted that he had a 30.06 caliber "automatic rifle," that he had only five cartridges for the gun and fired them all the day of the shooting.

Odessa detectives Greg Travland and Harold Salmon testified to the circumstances surrounding Patino's arrest and questioning.

A woman who was traveling west on Clements Street the day of the shooting incident said she saw two cars leave the parking lot of the old TG&Y store at a fairly good rate of speed. Libby Guzman she was behind a small blue car that did not appear to be going as fast as a larger dark colored car.

Ms. Guzman said she saw someone leaning out the window on the passenger side of the smaller car, then heard a couple of loud shots, though when she heard the first one, she said, she thought that a car had had a blowout.

When she realized someone was shooting, she said, she let her foot off the accelerator and slowed down.

Ms. Guzman described how the larger car (driven by Lopez) began to run off the road and one of the occupants slumped on the front seat of the vehicle.

Cadra asked the woman how many shots she heard and she said she thought seven, maybe six shots.

Patino, in addition to the murder charge against him, also has been charged with attempted murder in the wounding of Lopez and the aggravated assault of 18-year-old Rene Gomez.

Two of Patino's cousins, Robert Patino, 20, and Carlos Patino, 18, have also been charged with murder and attempted murder in the incident but are yet to come to trial.

Judge Ater has said the trial of Patino could last the rest of this week.

Man remains jailed in alleged 13-year-old's kidnapping

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 31-year-old Midland County man remained in the Ector County jail today in lieu of $500,000 bond on charges involving the June 13 kidnapping and rape of a 13-year-old Odessa girl.

William Mitchell Dyer was arrested by Ector County sheriff's deputies late Wednesday at an oilfield service company located on West Highway 80 as he reported in from an out-of-town job.

Sheriff's deputies Roy Gladden and Troy Davis transported Dyer to the Midland County Courthouse where he was arraigned before Peace Justice Robert Pine on one charge of aggravated sexual assault, another charge of aggravated kidnapping and three charges of aggravated sexual assault by deviate sexual intercourse. Pine set bond for Dyer at $100,000 on each of the five charges. Dyer is also expected to face a charge of aggravated sexual assault in Andrews County.

According to deputies Gladden and Davis, the 13-year-old victim was watching television Tuesday night when a station promotion ad was aired by the local station. The girl saw the man who allegedly kidnapped, beat and sexually abused her standing among employees of the company where the promotional spot was filmed. She immediately called the Ector County sheriff's office.

Dyer alleged enticed the young girl into his pickup truck in front of Water Wonderland, not far from the oilfield service company he worked for, and repeatedly raped and sexually abused her in Ector and Andrews counties before letting her out of his vehicle at the intersection of State Highway 158 and Dogwood Street in Gardendale.

Midlanders to serve on Heart Association committees

From Staff Reports

Several area leaders have been appointed to serve on standing committees for the Council of the American Heart Association according to Mike McElrath, vice president of the American Heart Association, Texas Affiliate.

The three Midlanders, Bridgett Gossett, Eileen Pivett and Skeet Doss, will have leadership roles on the Council committees and will be serving as a member for organization, program and development committees, respectively. The Panhandle-West Texas Council extends from Amarillo to Lubbock, Midland-Odessa, down to El Paso, and is one of six councils of the American Heart Association, according to an AHA report.

The Panhandle-West Texas Council is divided into four regions and 64 divisions. Other local people serving on committees are David Rickey, D.D.S., Big Spring, development committee chairman; Richard McKeel, Odessa, organization committee; Judy Pester, M.D., Andrews and Karen Johnson, Odessa, public information committee; Lois Hale, Odessa, program committee and Sue Blair, Odessa, development committee.

The Council committees will assist divisions in organizing local committees, provide training opportunities for committee members and provide assistance in implementing statewide projects on the local level. Motivating existing volunteers and encouraging new participation will be an important task at this council level of organization, said the report.

For more information about the AHA, call the regional office at 563-2008.

MISD names new head of Human Resource Services

From Staff Reports

The Midland Independent School District announced the appointment of Dr. Thomas C. Holland as director of the its Human Resource Services Department.

Holland replaces Ronald Whitmore, who resigned to accept the position of assistant superintendent of the Vigo County School Corporation in Terre Haute, Ind. Holland's appointment is effective immediately.

A native of Odessa, Holland comes to MISD from McKinney where he served as assistant superintendent. He also was employed in various capacities with the Dallas and Nacoches Independent School districts.

Holland received an associate's degree from Odessa College, a bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Texas at Austin, a master's of education degree in administration from North Texas State University and a doctorate of education degree in secondary education from NTSU.

MISD also announced the resignation of Midland High School principal Dr. Phillip E. Peregrine and Bowie Elementary School principal Larry G. Wilkenson. Both accepted positions with other school districts.

MISD Superintendent Dr. Joseph P. Baressi said a search is being conducted to find replacements for the two principals.

The health department order also prohibits "glory holes," or holes in walls encouraging sexual exposures.

Neither Rowntree nor Cross would identify the targeted adult bookstores where the alleged sexual activity has purportedly occurred.

Cross said Wednesday the managers and employees of the involved establishments will be given 15 days to comply with the order and after that time felony charges will be filed. Inspectors will be sent out at the end of that period of time, he said, to make sure the so-called "glory holes" have been covered up and cubicles or closets made inaccessible to the public.

After three years, handicapped vet still far from cross-country goal

MONTROSE, Ill. (AP) — It's taken Bob Wieland, a legless Vietnam veteran, almost three years to finish three-fourths of his cross-country walk. And he's far closer to the Atlantic than to his goal of $25 million to feed the hungry.

When Wieland, 39, reached Effingham last week, he had finished 2,076 miles, about 75 percent of the journey and 3.6 million of his yard-long "steps" — each one taken on his hands.

But his plea for corporate sponsors has raised only $225,000.

The walk to raise money for thousands of "physically and spiritually hungry people," began Sept. 8, 1982, at Knott's Berry Farm in California. It will end on the Capitol steps in the next year or so.

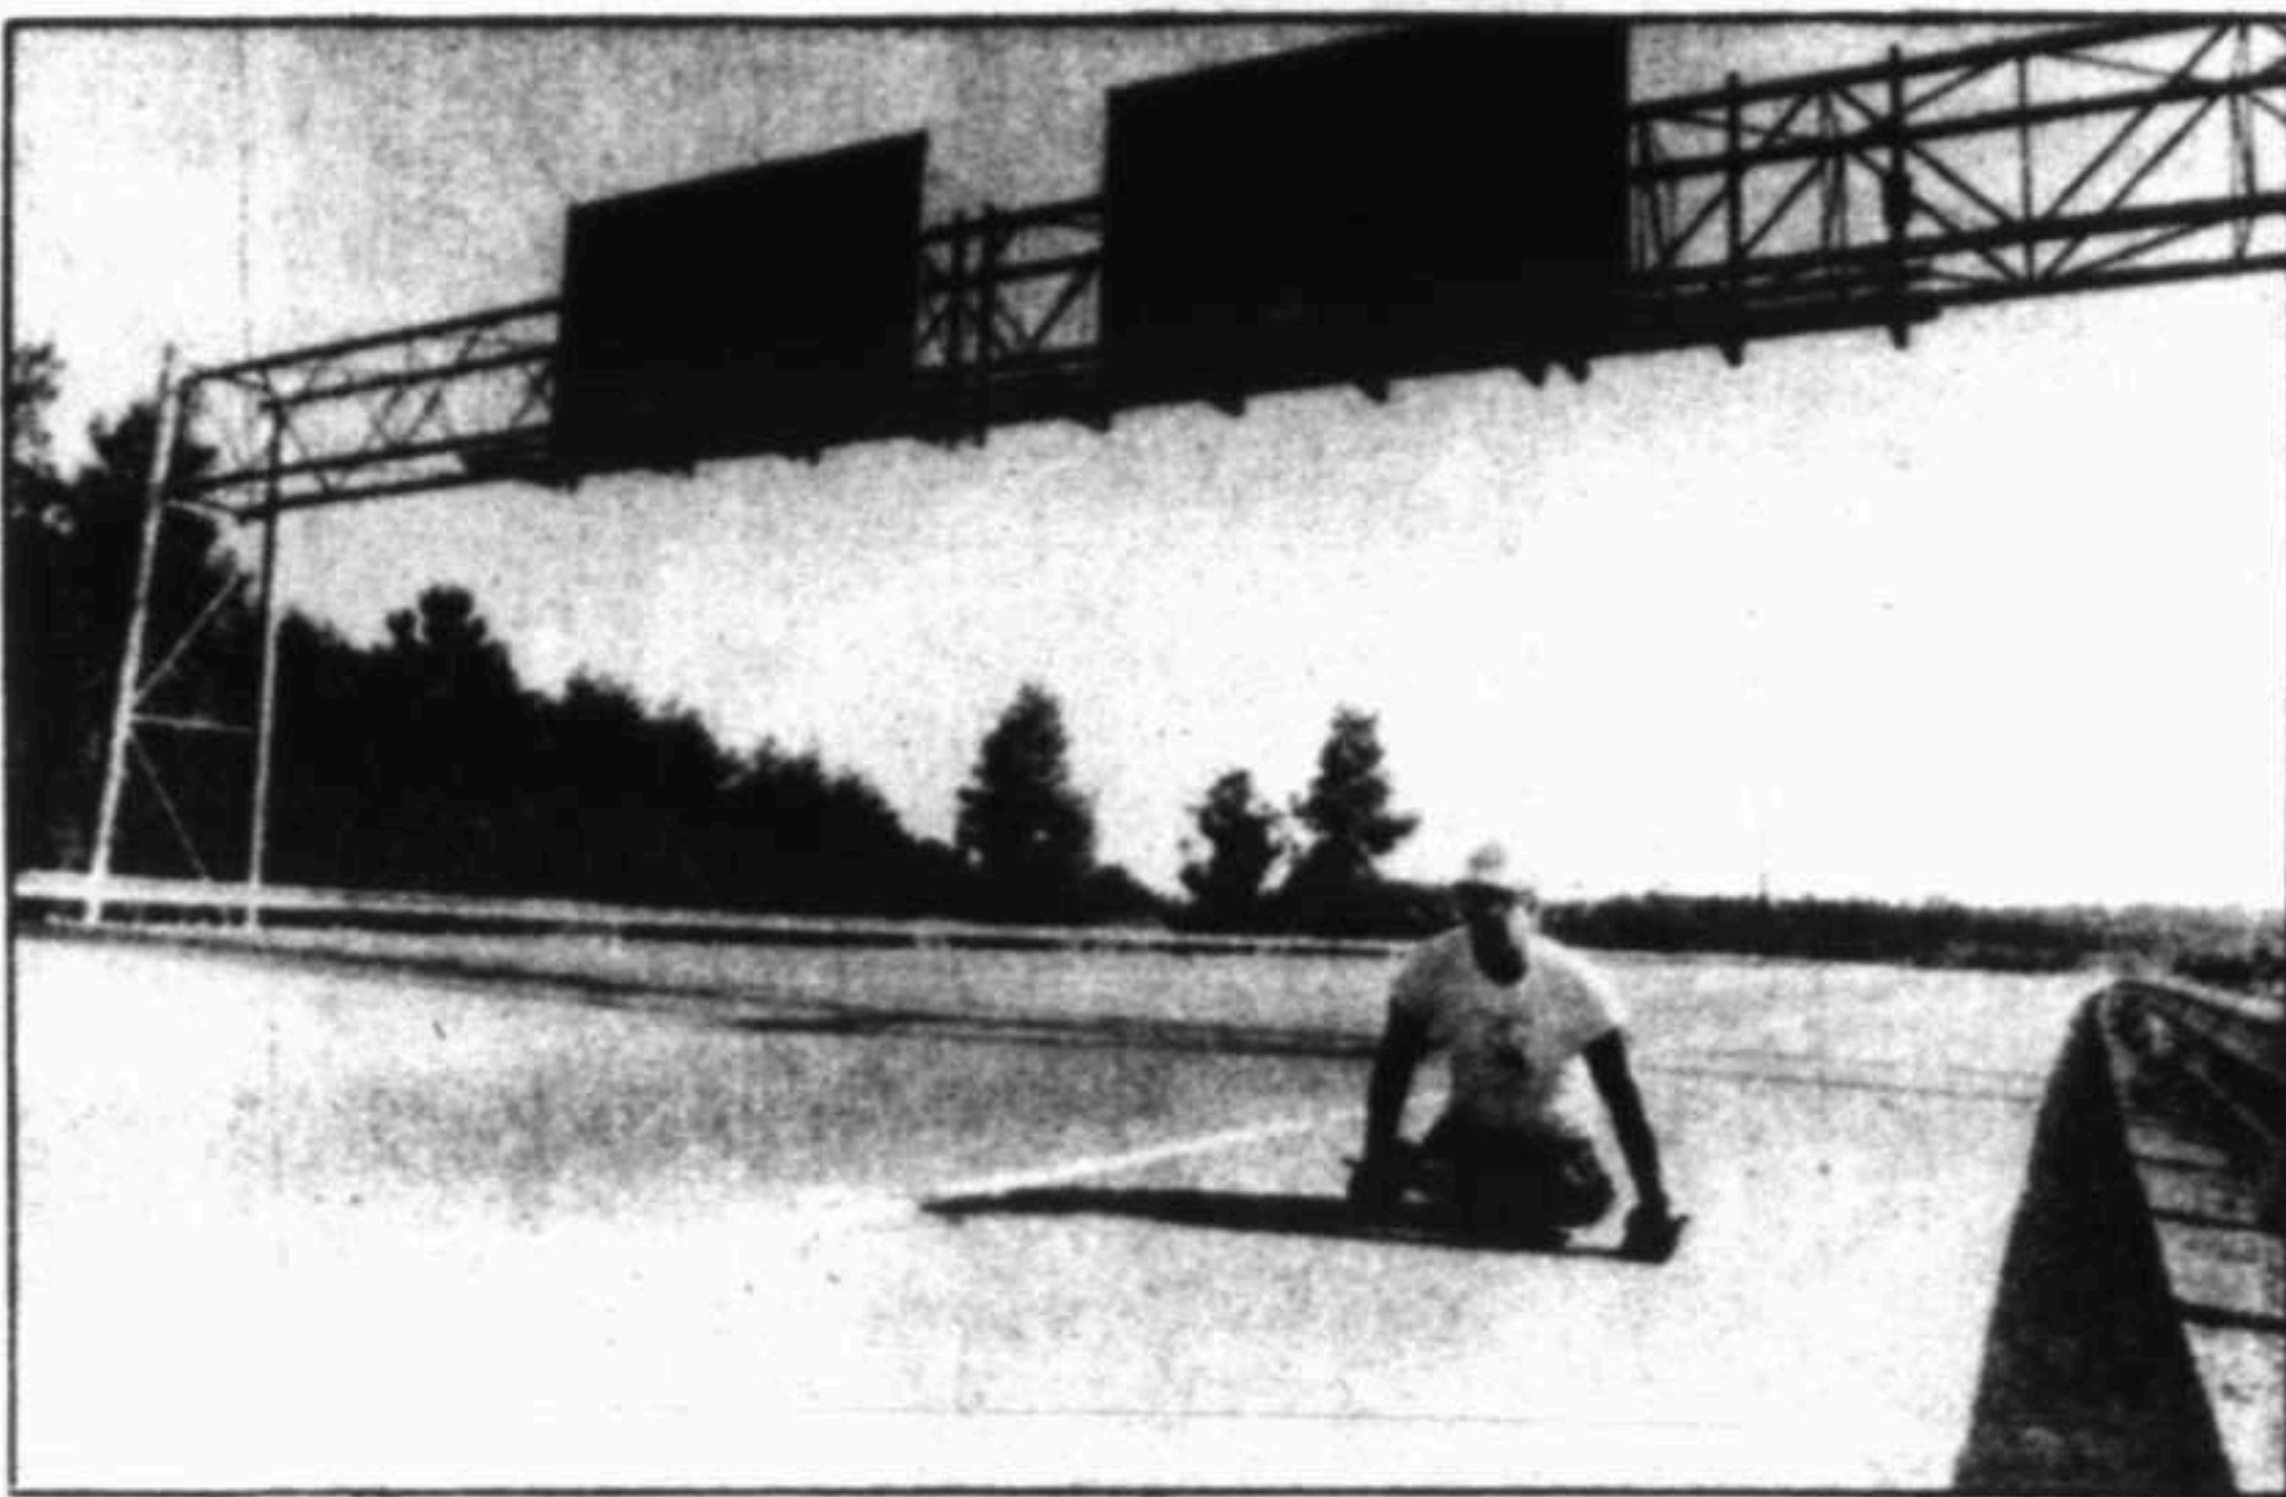

Wieland, of Arcadia, Calif., said he walks three to five miles a day, usually travels six days a week and hopes to cross into Indiana in September.

He said his goal is to obtain corporate and individual donations of $5 for each of the approximately 4.8 million steps of his Walk for Hunger.

Poor weather rarely slows him down, he said, but "if it is unsafe for drivers then I stop for precautionary reasons."

Wieland said his coldest day was 26 degrees below zero, noting, "In the past three years there has not been too much snow."

One of his most startling experiences was discovering in a chat with a passer-by in Missouri that the two had served together in the 25th Infantry Division in Vietnam. They also discovered that the Missourian, Dennis Cooper, had carried him to a helicopter after he stepped on a mortar round.

When Wieland regained consciousness — after surgery, numerous transfusions and a bout with malaria — he found his body had been blown in half.

His hopes of playing with the Philadelphia Phillies shattered, he began weightlifting. For six years, he coordinated strength and flexibility programs for athletic teams at California State University in Los Angeles.

Wieland's gear for his current challenge includes special shoes for his hands and an orange reflecting jacket.

Once a month he flies home to visit his wife, Jackey, and their four dogs.

Asked what keeps him going, Wieland said, "Faith in the Lord."

Cat happy relishing his ninth life

LA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Popcorn, the cat who spent 49 days locked in an air-tight moving carton earlier this year, is regaining much of the weight that it shed during its ordeal, its owner says.

"We went to the vet's last Monday and he weighed eight pounds. I picked him up yesterday and it took me two hands," said Nancy Beecham, who had thought her cat was lost when the family moved from Hawaii in May.

The Beechams had accepted the loss of Popcorn and were shocked when the cat crawled out of the crate three weeks ago. Though the explanations are hard to accept, Popcorn apparently survived without food or water for 49 days.

"We figure that of his nine lives, that was about a five-life trip," Mrs. Beecham said. "We're watching him a little closer than we used to."

The cat, neutered shortly before the Beechams moved to the mainland, had ballooned to 14 pounds. Veterinarians said that girth apparently provided the sustenance for Popcorn to survive the trip.

The biggest difference in Popcorn now is that he's always hungry.

"He ate five or six times a day for a couple of weeks," Mrs. Beecham said.

Navy allows goat roundup on island

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Animal rights activists have captured more than 400 goats on a Navy island during a two-week hunt, and expect to net another 100 before the roundup ends Friday, an organizer of the effort said this week.

The hunt was begun after protesters over Navy plans to shoot the goats because they endanger rare plant, bird and lizard species on San Clemente Island, which is used as an artillery range.

The roundup — the second this year — has been a success despite the danger of unexploded shells in the shore bombardment area where the goats are being hunted, said Fund for Animals president Cleveland Amory.

Fund workers captured 887

goats in the first roundup, during February.

The Fund for Animals is using a helicopter and nets to bag the goats, which are ferried to the mainland for adoption.

"They have really worked beautifully," Amory said. "It's been a careful, consistently productive rescue expertly carried out."

BETTER BUSINESS

'Free' prizes too expensive

By LINDA TRUITT

Prizes, prizes, prizes. Many Midlanders receive letters or telephone calls, at home or at work, with offers for fabulous prizes. The offers may paint a no-lose picture, but in reality consumers must pay for the prizes or pay for their shipping and handling fees.

Promoters realize that in order to sell their product they must get the consumer's attention — and the "something for nothing" approach is attractive to many people. When consumers discover later that the prizes were misrepresented, they are left to believe that the time they spent listening to the sales pitch or the money mailed for shipping fees was too high a price to pay.

A good example is Nationwide Printing, a company in Las Vegas, Nev. Businesses in this area received a letter claiming they were confirmed winners in the "Printers Clearing House Progressive Give-away." The prizes listed were a Sony 46-inch wide-screen color television, Amana Touchmatic Radar Range microwave oven, a pair of Kawasaki Jet skis, a Dodge Colt turbo and $20,000 giveaway.

After the mailing, a telephone solicitor called the businesses to sell advertising specialty products such as imprinted pens, mugs and key chains. If the customer wanted just the prize, he was told he had received the $20,000 giveaway and would have to send $79 for processing and freight.

Reports to the Better Business Bureau indicate this prize is a catalog from which items can be ordered. Those who bought the promotional items claim the quality was misrepresented and the items were overpriced.

On June 19, Nationwide Printing was named in a $2.5 million lawsuit filed by the Nevada Division of Consumer Affairs. The suit alleges statements made in the letter and by telephone solicitors were false and misleading because the customer actually doesn't win anything.

In addition to the $2.5 million in damages, the state of Nevada is asking for $2,500 for every case in which the company has used deceptive trade practices.

The Phoenix Postal Inspection Division of the Postal Service in January presented a lawsuit, alleging the company is engaged in mail fraud, to the U.S. Attorney for prosecution. It is not known at this time whether or not the suit will be filed.

Promoters who want to give prizes want something in return. Experience has proven most prizes are of poor quality or expensive.

Hot Pockets earn lukewarm praise

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Ever since pita bread became popular a few years ago, it has been fashionable to put the word "pocket" in the names of foods. (I'm not quite sure why — pockets are usually empty of anything but lint.)

One of the latest of these edible pockets is called Hot Pockets. Manufactured by ChefAmerica, this frozen item — which is available in ham and cheese, pepperoni pizza, Sloppy Joe, sausage and barbecue beef — is actually a combination of pot pie and hot sandwich. Each "pocket" consists of a meat filling encased in a bread that tastes like a cross between pie crust and biscuits. Or maybe pizza crust...

Anyway, the usual adults, teen and children taste-testers sampled two flavors of Hot Pockets — ham and cheese and sausage — for taste, texture, price and advertising accuracy.

Hot Pockets are packaged in 10-ounce packages of two pockets each.

Each box costs $2.29, which means each pocket costs about $1.15 cents and is about 5-ounces in weight. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Label advertising claims: "Pick-up Hot Pockets whenever you want a quick meal with a big deal... tasty bread pockets filled with delicious things like Ham 'N Cheese, BBQ Beef... are great tasting, easy to heat and neat to eat. So easy, even kids can help themselves to Hot Pockets, with no mess, no cleanup..."

Right away we ran into some problems. The part about "no mess, no cleanup" may pertain to older children, but not to pre-schoolers. Although the mess resulting in the combination of hot meat fillings and small children wasn't a major one, nevertheless it was a definite mess and needed an immediate cleanup.

The testers' reactions to the two flavors of Hot Pockets varied. The teen didn't like the ham and cheese at all — the ham contained too much gristle and the inside of the crust was so mushy it was almost raw dough. The small testers liked this flavor, but only after the tough part of the meat was removed.

Sausage Hot Pockets received more general approval. Even the fussy 4-year-old ate most of her share. The meat used in the filling had a pleasing spicy flavor, but was mild enough for the 2-year-old to enjoy. And there was no problem with the crust being too mushy.

Hot Pockets can be a change from the usual quick meal if the family or the cook is hurried. They contain more crust than filling, however, and may be disappointing in that respect.

The price seems steep for a small, easy, frozen meal — which is, after all, nothing but a fancy sandwich.

Chicken called 'all-time favorite' meat for backyard barbecuing

By DENESE ALBRACHT

Texans enjoy barbecuing and eating as much as anybody in the United States, and chicken barbecue is an all-time favorite. A few simple steps will enable backyard chefs to enjoy mouth-watering chicken barbecue to their hearts' content.

Chicken barbecuing involves four basic steps. First, split the birds in half and sprinkle each half generously with salt and black pepper before placing on the pit. To shorten barbecuing time, cut halves into parts.

Second, make sure coals are white-hot before putting the chicken on the grill. Any type of cooker can be used, but keep the coals eight to 12 inches from the cooking rack for best results.

Another basic step for top-notch barbecued chicken is to use a basting sauce during the cooking process which contains no tomato product or sugar because such sauces burn easily. A basting sauce will keep meat moist and juicy and add a desired flavor. Apply basting sauce and turn chicken halves frequently.

Suggested ingredients for a basting sauce include: 1 tablespoon salt, 1 teaspoon black pepper, 1 stick butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce and a few drops hot sauce or red pepper. Heat the mix over a low flame until the butter or margarine melts; then add juice of one lemon (vinegar may be substituted). Fill the pan with water and heat but do not boil. Spices such as garlic salt or lemon pepper can be added to suit personal preference.

To top off the barbecuing process, apply a finishing sauce to the chicken about the last 20-30 minutes before cooking is complete. This is the most critical time during the entire cooking process. Check the meat carefully and turn it frequently to avoid burning the finishing sauce.

Several types of finishing sauce are available and vary from mild to hot. To prepare sauce (for 10 chicken halves), use the following: 1 cup cooking oil, 1 cup vinegar, 1 cup catsup, ¼ cup sugar and ½ cup water. Add salt, Worcestershire sauce, hot sauce, garlic and other seasonings to taste.

Chicken barbecue should be complete in about 1½ to two hours. Cooking longer with less heat usually results in the most flavorful, juicy and tender barbecue. Placing the cooking rack closer than eight inches to the coals will reduce barbecuing time, but the meat will be drier and less tender.

A test for doneness is to twist the drumstick which is connected to the thigh. If the joint between the thigh and drumstick is loose, the chicken is ready to eat. Another test is to cut into the meat at this joint. The moisture in the joint will run clear if the meat is done. The fun part of chicken barbecuing is to develop your own secret recipe and cooking style. The four basic steps outlined can be varied to suit your style and taste.

Our variation is to debone the breast and thigh meat and marinate it overnight in the refrigerator in a mixture of 16 ounces herb-seasoned

Italian dressing and eight ounces picante sauce. Cook in the same manner as before while basting with the marinading sauce.

For another type of marinated chicken barbecue, use a soy-teriyaki or Worcestershire sauce marinade for two to four hours before cooking.

Let your imagination be your guide and have fun. Who knows? The world's greatest barbecue chef may be in your own backyard.

DEAR ABBY

Organ donor wants to give while living

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a healthy 27-year-old male and have carried an organ donor card since I was 18. However, it seems a shame that I must die before my kidneys can help someone.

With so many people desperate for a kidney, why can't a living person donate one to a stranger? I would be happy to give one of my kidneys to help a person lead a normal life.

Do you know of anyone who would consider a gift of life from the living? — ANONYMOUS IN WISCONSIN

DEAR ANONYMOUS: I contacted the National Kidney Foundation and was advised that the success rate of kidney transplants from unrelated donors is no higher than the transplants donated at death.

On the other hand, living donors put themselves at a small but potential risk should they lose the function of their remaining kidney through accident or illness. For this reason they do not encourage unrelated, living kidney donations.

Bless you for your exceptional generosity.

Individuals wishing to become organ donors upon death can indicate their willingness to do so on their driver's licenses or call or write their local National Kidney Foundation affiliate, or National Kidney Foundation Inc., 2 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016, for a Uniform Organ Donor Card.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with this man for a year and a half. He's 61 and I'm 58. His wife has been dead for two and a half years and my husband died nine years ago.

He rarely takes me anywhere where we will bump into people he knows, and if he does meet someone he knows when I'm with him, he is very slow to introduce me. He just leaves me standing there. Once he tried to pass me off as a "cousin."

I like him more than I should, but I don't like the way he treats me. I am a neat, clean person and I have good manners, but he acts like he's ashamed to be seen with me.

I would like a future with this man, but he won't commit himself.

His idea of a nice evening is for him to bring the fixings to my place and have me make supper for him. Then he likes to "play house," which is the only time he says he loves me. When we first met he told me we would be "together" one day. But when?

How can I get a commitment out of this man? — GETTING NOWHERE IN IOWA

DEAR GETTING NOWHERE: You can't. Maybe he intends for you to be "together" in heaven. Tell him you can't wait that long, and give him a deadline.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for seven years. We dated for three years prior to getting married. During that 10-year period, I had never seen her in a bathing suit, earrings or nail polish. She wears a skirt once a year — usually at Christmas. The rest of the time she wears blue jeans or slacks. She owns no feminine clothing. I've never seen her in high heels. Her girlfriend cuts her hair, and it looks like the only make-up she wears is a pale pink lipstick, and then only on special occasions. The only jewelry she wears is a wedding band. (She didn't even want an engagement ring.)

I've tried to get her to change, but she's satisfied just the way she is. How can I get her to smarten up her appearance? — PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: You can't. Obviously your wife is not interested in the outer trappings, and from what you say, she never was. She's still the girl you married. She hasn't changed; your expectations have. She had every right to assume that you'd be satisfied with an unadorned natural woman.

Moral: Never marry a person, then set about to change her. Or him.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY:

Consider the impact on your family before making a major decision or move. Changes in the economy favor an unusual business deal. Stop being so critical of those you must work with every day. Teamwork makes you all look good. Creative ventures bring in extra cash. Be careful about whom you trust with your money. A glib newcomer may not be as competent as you hope. Always check references. CELEBRITY BIRTHDAYS: Mick Jagger, skating great Dorothy Hamill, tennis' Vitas Gerulaitis, Kiel Martin of "Hill Street Blues," New York Yankee pitcher Marty Bystrom, author Aldous Huxley, comedienne Gracie Allen. ARIES (March 21-April 19): Mate is willing to take a risk. Be supportive and you will make his or her victory even sweeter. Too many questions could make you doubt the wisdom of switching jobs. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A job offer will not wait. It is time to fish or cut bait. Those who keep busy enjoy the greatest happiness. A new romance boosts your morale. Buy some new clothes. GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

Move quickly to straighten out a misunderstanding. A compromise wins you the cooperation you need. A real estate deal requires further study. Ask for more time and review your financial resources.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Mistakes could prove costly to you and your employer. Double-check a subordinate's work. Good luck comes to those who have a specific plan for the future. Contact an influential friend.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not bask in the glow of a recent success too long or you could miss out on new opportunities. Extra cash will be given to those who solve a problem first.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Meditate on a sensitive situation before taking action. You could be wise to seek a second opinion on a medical or financial matters. Postpone finalizing papers and signing deals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accept what is being offered. The deal will not get any better and could turn sour by Monday. Clear up routine matters before turning your attention to something special.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A good day for real estate and stock transactions. The timing couldn't be better for what you hope to accomplish. A school decision cannot wait. Pay bills promptly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your ingenuity propels you up the ladder at place of employment. Work conditions change for the better. Accept the truth where romance is concerned. A separation proves beneficial.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Truth is stranger than fiction today. You are amazed at a coincidence. A relative living far away needs to talk to you. Pick up the phone. Keep track of everyday and travel expenses.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You awake with a sense of adventure this morning. Be careful not to lose it. A momentous decision means lasting happiness. Financial negotiations enjoy favorable influences. You hold all the cards.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Review what you have accomplished this week and you will know what to tackle next. Useful new agreements are possible. Remain true to your principles. Resist a tempting financial inducement.

The bidding:
 North East South West
 Pass Pass 4♥ Dble
 Pass Pass Pass
 Opening lead: King of ♣.

Here's your chance to impress us with your analytical ability. Study this hand and decide whether you would rather play or defend a contract of four hearts doubled.

South's decision to open four hearts in third seat was eminently practical. Since his partner had already passed, chances for slam were virtually nil, and the hand could conceivably belong to the opponents in spades.

Suppose you chose to defend. Best is to cash a second club. If you continue with a club, declarer ruffs in dummy and discards his spade loser. Equally futile is a diamond shift, so assume you shift to a low spade.

East wins the king and shifts to a diamond. Declarer rises with the ace, enters dummy with the eight of trumps, ruffs a spade high, crosses back to the table with the nine of trumps and ruffs out your ace of spades. He can still get back to the board with a trump to take two diamond discards on the long spades.

Incidentally, it's no better to cash the ace of spades at trick three, because that sets up a ruffing finesse against partner's king of spades.

However, all this doesn't mean that you should elect to play rather than defend. Take a look at what happens if you shift to a trump at trick three!

This seemingly innocuous play takes out a vital entry to dummy before declarer can use it profitably. Best is to win in hand and lead a spade, but the defense can counter by allowing East to win. He shifts to a diamond, forcing declarer to go up with the ace. Try as South might, there is no way to avoid losing a diamond trick for down one.

Rock Hudson in stable condition; Malady afflicting him still mystery

PARIS (AP) — Officials at the American Hospital said Rock Hudson was in stable condition today, but the malady afflicting the movie idol remained a mystery.

AIDS, inoperable liver cancer, a "bug" picked up while traveling and simple fatigue all have been mentioned, but officials said a battery of tests Wednesday at the American Hospital produced no immediate results.

Today's statement said another health bulletin would be issued later in the day. Spokeswoman Joyce Gray first described the test results as "inconclusive," but when asked again Wednesday evening she said she was "not at liberty to say."

Ms. Gray told The Associated Press that Hudson had been admitted for general fatigue and malaise. Hudson, 50, was admitted to the hospital, northwest of Paris, on Sunday, after he collapsed at the Ritz Hotel, according to Dale Olson, Hudson's Los Angeles publicist. Since that announcement, there has been confusion over the nature of the actor's ailment.

Hudson's Beverly Hills physician, Dr. Rexford Kennamer, said Hudson had gone to Paris to see doctors at the Pasteur Institute, which is noted for its research on acquired immune deficiency syndrome, known as AIDS.

Hospital spokesman Bruce Redor denied a report issued Tuesday by Olson that the actor was being treated for inoperable liver cancer.

President Reagan telephoned Hudson on Wednesday "to wish him well and let him know that he and Mrs. Reagan were keeping him in their thoughts and prayers." White House spokesman Mark Weinberg said the conversation was brief.

Nancy Reagan told reporters at a state dinner Tuesday night that Hudson had visited the White House about six months earlier for a similar event and "he looked very thin then. He said he'd picked up a bug in Israel."

Olson said he has been trying to clarify the situation.

"What I know is what I said before. I'm trying to reach the people in Paris to find out what's going on," Olson said. "I have spoken to Rock Hudson's business manager, who said that the doctor there told them that he has liver cancer."

Olson added that Hudson was being treated by Pasteur Institute specialists. However, he described reports the actor was suffering from AIDS, which destroys the body's immunity to infection, as speculative.

"No one has told me yet he has AIDS. I'm not going to confirm or deny that he has it. I will do that tomorrow (Thursday)," he said.

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — Leonard Bernstein saluted his former mentor Aaron Copland, dean of American composers, with a performance of two of his works at the Tanglewood music festival.

Bernstein, 67, introduced the 84-year-old Copland to awestruck student musicians taking a lunch break between rehearsals for the evening concert Wednesday.

Two works on the orchestra's program were associated with Copland's days at Tanglewood, where he was Bernstein's teacher 40 years ago.

He composed the Third Symphony in the mid-1940s at Tanglewood and the "Outdoor Overture" was played by the music center orchestra during its first summer, in 1940.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joanne Carson, a former wife of television host Johnny Carson, plans to put Victorian furniture from the apartment of author Truman Capote in a museum to her late friend, a spokeswoman for an auction house said.

Twenty pieces, including Capote's brass-inlaid breakfast stand and a monkey-shaped table, were purchased by William Doyle Galleries and auctioned Wednesday, bringing about $11,800, said the spokeswoman, Maryalice Adams.

Capote died last August at Mrs. Carson's estate. Much of his collections of hats and furniture had been distributed among friends and the proceeds of his estate went into a trust fund for his companion, Jack Dunphy, Ms. Adams said.

LONDON (AP) — The Live Aid concerts and earlier recordings have raised an estimated $100 million that will be used both to alleviate famine in Africa and finance self-help programs, organizers said.

Band Aid, the organization set up by 32-year-old Irish rock singer Bob Geldof, announced Wednesday a five-part relief program for Africa.

It said it would consider financing projects "in full when necessary, and in part when funding can be provided from other sources, such as the European Common Market and U.S. aid."

Immediate relief efforts will concentrate on providing emergency food supplies and the transportation to ensure it reaches starving Africans, the group said.

However, Band Aid also will "consider all projects which are geared toward self-sufficiency and long-term development for the people of Africa" and provide a limited amount of money for research into the sociological, ecological and economic effects of prolonged drought.

The group set out its program in a message to Maurice Strong, head of the United Nations Africa Famine Disaster Unit in New York. The contents of the message were released in London.

Although Band Aid's major commitments remain Ethiopia and Sudan, "attention will also be addressed toward other famine-stricken areas of Africa." It said these could include Chad, Sudan's western neighbor.

It said $750,000 worth of U.S.-donated medicines and medical equipment were being flown immediately to the U.N. Children's Fund, or UNICEF, and the Ministry of Health in Mozambique.

The joint Live Aid rock concerts in London and Philadelphia on July 13 together raised about $70 million, although money still was being collected, organizers said.

Geldof estimated in Washington Tuesday that earlier Band Aid all-star records had raised $30 million more, bringing the total raised by his organization for African famine relief to about $100 million.

BOWLING GREEN, Va. (AP) — Rock tunes by The Beach Boys capped a program of patriotic songs and flag-waving by 700 marching Scouts as 24,000 others joined in an extravaganza marking the official opening of the National Scout Jamboree.

"We've never played anything this unique," singer Michael Love told a sea of red-and-green uniformed Boy Scouts arrayed on a hillside at Fort A.P. Hill Wednesday night.

A couple of the Beach Boys wore official blue Jamboree neckerchiefs and caught cloth patches thrown on the stage by appreciative Scouts.

Boy Scouts ramble into Jamboree

BOWLING GREEN, Va. (AP) — Hundreds of buses snaked into sprawling Fort A.P. Hill this week, hauling nearly 25,000 Boy Scouts to the 11th quadrennial National Scout Jamboree.

The most popular topic of the $10 million event was the weather — hot and hazy with humidity that could dull a Boy Scout knife, and the threat of showers.

"I've never seen temperature much over 80 degrees," said a perspiring Alex Sinclair of London, England, one of about 400 Scouts from 30 foreign countries attending.

"We'd like it to be a little cooler," said Joseph L. Anglim of Irving Tex., national director of administration of the Boy Scouts of America. "But everything is going very smoothly. We anticipate no problems."

Largely ignored by Jamboree officials was dioxin, a toxic substance found in soil under a shed at the fort last year. The Army has demolished the shed, removed the soil and fenced off the area.

"There is no more dioxin. There is absolutely nothing to worry about. We wouldn't be here if there were," Anglim said.

The last Jamboree here was held in 1961. The theme of this year's gathering, which marks scouting's 75th anniversary, is "The Spirit Lives On."

The Scout camp occupying nearly a tenth of the fort's 76,000 acres contains more than 15,000 tents. By the time the Jamboree ends July 30, the Scouts will eat 10 tons of breakfast cereal, five tons of raisins, 7½ tons of steak, 400 gallons of mustard and enough eggs to keep 100 hens working for 4½ years.

All this will be washed down with 300,000 pints of milk and rivers of soft drinks.

There are 1,400 portable latrines. An 80-bed evacuation hospital is staffed around the clock by 25 physicians and nurses. Heat-related problems are expected to account for most of the ailments.

While the formal programs of the Jamboree don't begin until Wednesday, everyone was immersed in a frenzy of activity Monday.

Minutes after they tumbled sleepily from their buses, the Scouts were twisting hand-augers into the hard clay to set their tent posts and gateways.

Many of the entrances to each troop area are ingenious and eye-catching.

Daretown, N.J., had the facade of a red barn; Washington, D.C., a replica of the Capitol building and Titusville, Pa., a realistic looking derrick representing the discovery of oil there in 1859.

Hands-on fun

Sandy Schurman, left, 6, and Andrea Knapp, 6, are getting hands-on experience with the metate and mano in the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum's summer classes. Other summer classes offered by the museum are Thunder Lizards and Other Giants (8-9 years old), and Rockhounds (13-14 years old). Sandy is the daughter of Lee and Sherrie Schurman and Andrea is the daughter of David and Dorothea Knapp. For more information about the summer classes call the museum, 683-4403.

Curtis photogravures on display at museum

A collection of photogravures by Edward S. Curtis is on exhibit at the Museum of the Southwest, 1705 W. Missouri Ave., through Aug. 15. These photogravures, which document the American Indians of the Southwest, were made by Curtis in the early 20th century.

Accompanying the exhibit will be many related examples of Native American jewelry, basketry, pottery and weavings.

A significant addition to the Museum's permanent collection, these photogravures were given to the Museum in 1982 by Mr. and Mrs. William D. Kennedy in memory of John Blanton.

Curtis was born Feb. 19, 1868, near Whitewater, Wis. He was raised in Cordova, Minn., and during his youth became a self-taught photographer. He constructed his own camera equipment and learned to take photographs, develop glass negatives and print images.

In the early 1890s, Curtis moved to Seattle, Wash., and after a series of associations with different professional photographers, opened his own photographic firm. He worked primarily as a portrait photographer, but in 1898 he had started taking photographs of the Northwest coast Indians in Seattle and on nearby reservations.

In 1898, a chance encounter altered his career path forever. While visiting Mt. Rainier National Park, he helped rescue a climbing party. Members of that climbing party included C. Hart Merriam, chief of the U.S. Biological Survey and George Bird Grinnell, editor of Field & Stream magazine. Curtis developed a close friendship with the two men and through their influence was selected as official photographer for a scientific expedition to Alaska, sponsored by railroad tycoon Edward H. Harriman. The survey's results were published by the Smithsonian with Curtis' photographs used as illustrations.

Soon after, Curtis spent a summer with Grinnell on the Blackfoot reservation in Montana. This experience combined with the previous summer's travel along the Alaskan coast inspired Curtis to produce a photographic record of the North American Indian. He devoted the next 30 years of his life to completion of this project. He traveled throughout the West, from the Rio Grande to the Arctic Circle taking more than 40,000 photographs of 80 Indian tribes.

As Curtis' fame grew, his work came to the attention of President Theodore Roosevelt. Roosevelt was impressed with Curtis' work and introduced him to J. Pierpont Morgan. Morgan offered to finance Curtis' project stipulating that his photographs be incorporated into book form, and established a printing company to publish Curtis' work, which ultimately filled 20 volumes.

Curtis said of his photographs, "Rather than being designed for mere embellishment" they are "each an illustration of an Indian character of some vital phase in his existence."

The Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday. There is no admission charge.

ABC miniseries guaranteed to stir controversy

By MICHAEL DOUGAN
Hearst News Service

Now in the works at ABC are two miniseries guaranteed to generate controversy when they show up on the screen over the next year or two.

One is called "Amerika." Previously known as "Topeka, Kansas, U.S.S.R.," this 16-hour project takes place 10 years from now. The Soviet Union has gained control of the United States without firing a shot (exactly how hasn't been explained yet). Our institutions are still intact. Congress meets every day. The president is in the White House. But the Russians call the tune. Some Americans have accepted the change; others are fighting in the underground. Brandon Stoddard, chief of ABC

Motion Pictures, says "Amerika" will air during the 1986-87 TV season. He denies that "Amerika" was conceived as a way to mollify conservatives who wailed about "The Day After," claiming it was nothing but pro-Soviet propaganda.

San Antonio museum to host jewelry exhibit

SAN ANTONIO — The San Antonio Museum of Art has been selected as one of ten art museums in the United States to host "Objects of Adornment: Five Thousand Years of Jewelry from the Walters Art Gallery, Baltimore," through Sept. 15.

This exhibition includes more than two hundred of the Walters Art Gallery's finest pieces of jewelry from the renowned historical collection, which is one of the largest and most comprehensive jewelry collections in the world. It was assembled by Henry Walters, a railroad magnate and an avid collector. Between 1893 and 1931, he purchased hundreds of examples of historical jewelry from around the world.

The objects in the traveling show range from simple stone amulets of the Ancient Near East to Lalique and Tiffany's dramatic 20th century creations. The exhibition includes many of the Walters Art Gallery's masterpieces, such as a magnificent bracelet from the Olbia Treasure, the great Esterhazy Marriage Collar, the Tiffany Sapphire Iris and Rene Lalique's Tiger Necklace. Tiffany's "Iris Corsage" brooch is comprised of 120 sapphires.

Works from Egyptian, Etruscan, Greek, Roman, Byzantine and Medieval periods also are included, as well as pieces from the Renaissance through the early 20th century. The exhibition will be augmented by a selection of pieces on loan from local private collectors. The American Federation of Arts, co-organizer of the exhibit, has produced a soft-bound catalogue that includes color photographs and a glossary of jewelry terms.

The San Antonio Museum of Art is located at 200 W. Jones Avenue, San Antonio. The museum is open Tuesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday noon to 6 p.m. with a late night opening on Thursdays until 9 p.m.

Admission is $3 for adults, $1.50 for senior citizens, students and military personnel, $1 for children ages six through 12 years and is free for children five years and under.

European artworks on indefinite loan to UT art gallery

AUSTIN — Four important works of European art ranging from the 15th to the 19th centuries have been placed on indefinite loan at The University of Texas at Austin's M. D. Anderson Art Gallery.

Lent by an anonymous donor, the works are from one of the most valuable corporate art collections in the world. In 1981, that same collection lent the Huntington Gallery 45 pieces of ancient Asia Minor, Etruscan, Greek, Roman, Egyptian and Celtic art.

One of the rarest items in the recent loan is an altarpiece, "The Virgin and Child, St. James and St. John the Baptist, and St. Nicholas of Bari and St. Anthony Abbot," attributed to Niccolò Di Pietro Gerini, a popular Florentine artist who was active between 1368 and 1415.

The large Gerini triptych probably came from a Florentine-area church, according to Dr. Eric McCready, director of the Huntington Gallery. He called the Italian panel painting "very rare" and said it would be useful for teaching.

The three other new loans may be seen on the Ransom Center's first floor. They include:

— "Let He Who Is Without Sin Cast the First Stone," a large 1741 oil painting by Sebastiano Conca, a Naples-born artist who worked in Rome. The style is that of the late Italian Baroque period.

— "The Dunes, The Algerian Sahara," an 1880 painting by Gustave Guillaumet, a 19th century French artist known for "Orientalizing" works that depicted scenes of the Near and Middle East.

— "Ratapoll," one of Honore Daumier's rare bronze statues. The 17-inch work was done about 1890 by the French artist, who is best known as a lithographer and caricaturist.

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

Teacher, writer to speak at Nightwriters meeting

Teacher and writer Peggy Moss Fielding will be the speaker at Saturday's meeting of the Texas Nightwriters. The meeting will be at 1 p.m. in the Community Room of Texas American Bank, 2301 W. Wall St.

Ms. Fielding is a leading speaker on writing and has numerous former students who have published works. Her works include an inspirational romance, a young adult romance, five non-fiction books and more than 200 articles and stories. She is in Midland to teach a series of workshops on writing.

Also on the program are Zonda Hudson and Tracy Primm, who will talk about a national romance writers conference they attended.

The Texas Nightwriters is a group of professional writers who meet at 1 p.m. on the fourth Saturday of every month. Guest speakers are featured for the first hour of the meeting. After a break, members read their works for critique. Only members are allowed for the critique portion of the meeting.

The group is composed of writers who are selling their works and those who want to learn how to write.

er for profit. Annual membership fee is $15.

For more information call 685-3232.

SPCA sponsors benefit

Patrick Wayne son of the late John Wayne, will be the honored guest Saturday for "A Cause for Paws," a fund-raiser to benefit the Midland Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The event starts at 7:30 p.m. at the Racquet Club and Queen Cobra will be providing the dance music.

An accomplished actor, the younger Wayne has appeared in 24 motion pictures, five made-for-television movies and television series such as "Love Boat," "Fantasy Island" and "Police Woman." He has appeared in dinner theaters at New Orleans and Amarillo.

In addition, Arf, Texas' Best Brave Dog, will preside as chairman.

The Midland SPCA is the only humane society between El Paso and Fort Worth providing emergency shelter, service and care for homeless animals. The SPCA relies solely on private donations.

Tickets to the event are $100 per couple. They may be purchased at the door or by calling The Canopy, 683-8474.

Mahon fund established

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Historical Commission has established a fund to honor former Congressman George Mahon by having a bust of the legislator placed on county property in Colorado City.

A goal of $16,000 has been set to fund the project. Colorado City Mayor Elmer Martin said private sources already have contributed $7,000. Juan Dell of Santa Fe, N.M., has been commissioned to do the bronze bust.

Mahon is a native of Loraine and now lives with his wife, Helen, in Colorado City. He was first elected to Congress in 1934 and served there 44 years. In 1964, he became chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, a post he held until his retirement in 1978.

Persons who would like to make contributions can send their checks to "The Mahon Fund," P.O. Box 990, Colorado City, 79512.

Ely to play in Odessa

Joe Ely, a Texas favorite, will be making a special solo appearance Friday at Dos Amigos in Odessa. Only 100 tickets are available and can be purchased at the club. Tickets are $15 each.

The show begins at 9 p.m.

Loose Change to perform

Loose Change will be performing Tuesday through Sunday until Aug. 4 at Gardski's, Loop 250 and Midkiff in the Courtyard at Midland Park. For more information call 689-7714.

On Sunday evening, hypnotist Ken Whitner will be performing at Gardski's on Comedy Night. For more information call 682-8399.

Watercolors on display at Tech

LUBBOCK — A national exhibition of 80 watercolor paintings is on display through Aug. 11 at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

The show is sponsored by the West Texas Watercolor Society. Selections were chosen from over 400 entries in juried competition judged by Millard Sheets of Gualala, Calif. Sheets is known for his murals in several Lubbock buildings, including RepublicBank and Methodist Hospital.

Sheets' works are held by 46 museums in 15 states; he has received 32 awards and has designed more than 100 murals and mosaics in buildings across the country. Sheets has designed approximately 100 buildings during a period of architectural work.

Sheets has numerous one-man art shows to his credit, including one at The Museum of Texas Tech University in December, 1983. He has served as a technical adviser and production designer for Columbia Pictures. He has illustrated editions of books by Robert Louis Stevenson and Joseph Conrad.

The West Texas Watercolor Society has sponsored 10 previous juried competitions at The Museum. The exhibit was made possible in part through a grant from the Lubbock City Council as recommended by the Lubbock Cultural Affairs council.

Naturist Club honors firefighters

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — The Lupin Naturist Club wanted to show its gratitude to firefighters who had saved the retreat during a recent brush fire. So, naturally, the bash they threw was au naturel.

The naturists — they prefer the term to nudists — provided food, drink and the use of two swimming pools.

Fire Capt. Walt Coker, of the Santa Clara County Central Fire Protection District, joined the majority of his hosts in doffing his attire during the party.

"I have a love for this place," said Coker, a Lupin club member for a decade. "I raised my two daughters here."
