Taking the cake

Liver recipient gets Texas-sized welcome

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — To warm hugs and joyful shouts of friends and family, living-donor liver patient Alyssa Smith returned Friday to Texas and back to what her parents hope will be a normal life.

"We love you, Alyssa," shouted a group of children after the 23-month-old girl and her mother, Teresa Smith, stepped off a jet from Chicago.

Wearing a blue-and-white dress and being held by her father, the toddler appeared puzzled as a high school band played and children waved welcoming banners upon her arrival.

"This is overwhelming," said her mother, who donated part of her liver for a November transplant surgery in which Alyssa became the nation's first recipient of a liver from a living donor.

Among the approximately 200 people gathered at the San Antonio International Airport were relatives, members of the family's church, employees of the school where Mrs. Smith teaches, and the Clemens High School band. They showered the mother and daughter with a colorful array of gifts, including a teddy bear, while a clown danced and played a harmonica nearby.

Despite the uproar, the small girl was unfazed. She didn't change her quizzical expression even when the face-painted clown handed her a huge bouquet of bright balloons.

Earlier at the University of Chicago Medical Center, Alyssa presented her doctor, Peter Whitington, director of pediatric transplant services at the hospital, with an invitation to her high school graduation in 2006.

"That's what we do this for — so she can graduate from high school," Whitington said.

Alyssa suffered from biliary atresia, a congenital disorder that could have been fatal without the transplant, doctors said. Alyssa must visit her doctors in San Antonio each week for checkups and continue to take drugs to prevent her body from rejecting her new liver.

Mrs. Smith said her daughter acted "sedate" as they flew to Texas, and prepared to go back to their home in Schertz, a town just north of San Antonio.

Astronauts lasso lab

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Columbia's astronauts snared an 11-ton science laboratory floating 200 miles high in a dramatic rescue mission Friday that saved the satellite from a fiery plunge to Earth.

Racing alongside the satellite at more than 17,400 mph, commander Dan Brandenstein inched the space shuttle toward the spacecraft and then held it steady as the orbiter's robot arm latched on to the satellite, called Long Duration Exposure Facility.

"The rendezvous just went famously," flight director Al Pennington said after the morning rescue. "It looks like we really have a valuable piece of science in our grasp."

Brandenstein steered the shuttle so close to LDEF that mission specialist Bonnie Dunbar only had to move the 50-foot mechanical arm about 5 feet to grasp a grappling device on the satellite, Pennington said.

"He was creeping," Pennington said, estimating that the shuttle moved about one-tenth of a foot per second during the final approach.

After Dunbar secured the wiry fingers of the robot arm to LDEF, she turned the satellite slowly above the cargo bay so it could be extensively photographed for about four hours before being stored for the trip home next week.

When the photography was completed, Dunbar gently lowered LDEF into the cargo bay and five latches secured it to the shuttle.

"We see all five latches latched," Mission Control reported at about 3:50 p.m. EST. "Congratulations on a super photo survey and a perfect berthing. They're a lot of smiling faces down here in the control room, and a lot of happy PI's (principal investigators) across the country."

"There are not a lot of faces up here, but all the faces we have up here are happy and smiling too," Brandenstein replied.

NASA administrator Adm. Richard Truly sent his congratulations to the crew in a message that was read to the astronauts by Mission Control.

Plants' pollution raises serious concern in EPA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air pollution data from scores of industrial plants show high levels of cancer-causing chemicals still are being released, raising health concerns for those living nearby, the Environmental Protection Agency said.

The agency cautioned that the toxic releases should not be considered a clear measure of an individual's lifetime risk of getting cancer because the analysis reflects a worst-case situation.

"Nevertheless, the estimates for some of the facilities on the list continue to be of serious concern," EPA Administrator William Reilly said in a letter to Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., whose office made public the data.

EPA spokesman David Cohen said Friday auditors have been sent to a number of plants for close examination of high toxic release levels.

The statistics covered toxic chemical releases into the air at 149 operating industrial plants, pulp mills and other facilities in 34 states.

The findings showed toxic release levels at 52 plants — including the Gen Corp. plant in Odessa — were high enough that persons living closest to the plant could be exposed to a lifetime cancer risk of at least 1 in 1,000. The potential risk was as great as 1 in 10 at the Texaco butadiene plant in Port Neches, Texas, and 1 in 100 at 6 other plants. The EPA said the risk was 1 in 10,000 at 97 other plants.

The government in many cases considers a maximum cancer risk of 1 in 1 million to be unacceptable.

Appeals court lets at-large judicial primaries take place

By JAMES CULLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A federal appeals court Friday overruled U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton and cleared the way for nine urban counties, including Midland and Ector counties, to go ahead with at-large election of distric judicial candidates in March.

A three-judge panel of the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, which set aside Bunton's order in a voting rights lawsuit Thursday pending an appeal, extended the stay Friday to cover another Bunton order that would have required November nonpartisan elections in subdistricts.

The New Orleans appeals court also denied a motion by minority plaintiffs, led by the League of United Latin American Citizens, to enjoin judicial elections in the March 13 party primaries.

The 5th Circuit panel cleared up confusion over whether the partisan judicial elections could proceed, said a spokesman for Attorney General Jim Mattox.

"It was our position that the 5th Circuit order was the prevailing order, and we have received confirmation of that," said Steve Hall, a spokesman for the attorney general. "They sent a pretty clear message at this point that judicial elections will be held."

Midlander gets 99 years following cocaine conviction

From Staff Reports

Manuel Gomez "Skull" Hernandez, 44, of Midland, has been sentenced to 99 years in prison as a habitual criminal following his conviction on a drug charge.

The sentence came after a jury in Midland's 142nd Texas State District Court found him guilty of possession of fewer than 28 grams — an ounce — of cocaine on Oct. 19, 1989, at his 102½ N. Marshall St. residence.

Hernandez and others were arrested there by Midland County sheriff's deputies, who were armed with a search warrant.

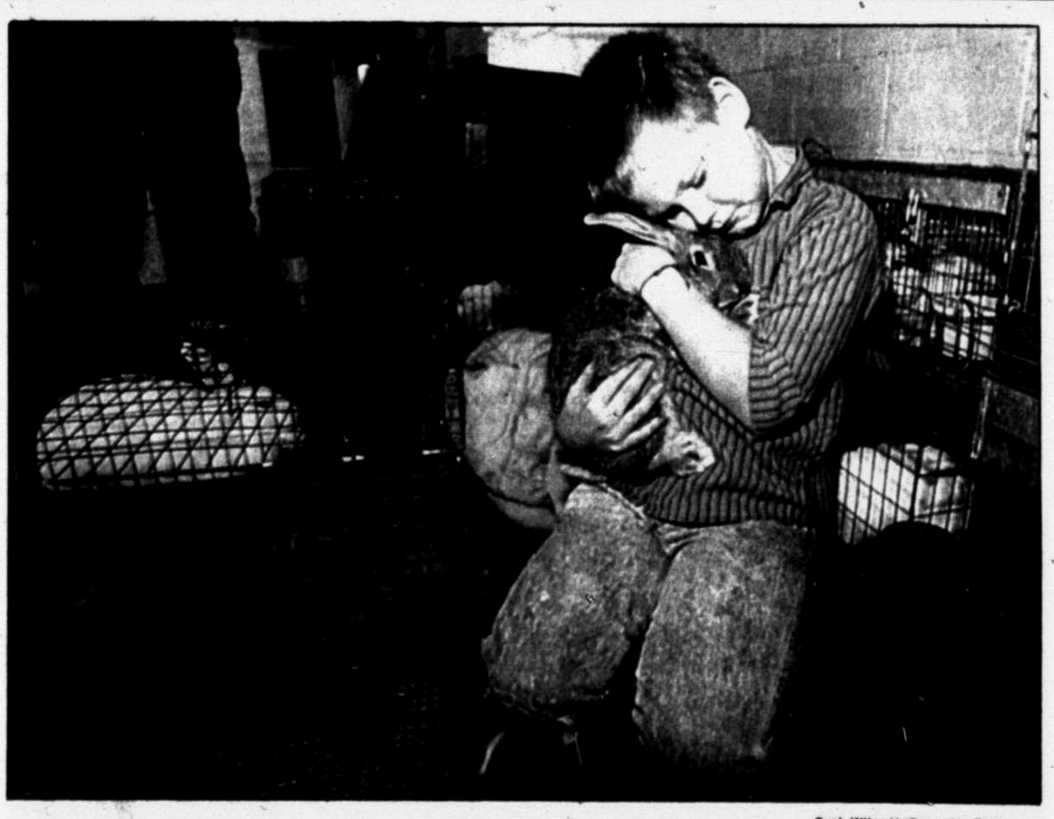

Cases against the other defendants are pending.

In determining that Hernandez was an habitual criminal, the jury found that he was convicted in Midland in 1982 for delivery of heroin and was convicted in Odessa in 1973 for possession of narcotics paraphernalia.

Judge Pat Baskin of the 142nd District Court presided over the case.

Prosecutors Robin Sams and John Westbrook of District Attorney Al Schorre's office prosecuted the case. Defense attorneys were Paul Williams and Carol Kirk.

Hernandez had contended that the cocaine belonged to someone else and that he was unaware the cocaine was in the residence.

School district provides day care for employees

LANEVILLE (AP) — Laneville Independent School District Superintendent Steven Ervin believes he has an employee benefit that not only keeps staff members happy, but is an effective recruiting tool.

In September 1988, the school district in Laneville, a small East Texas community in south Rusk County, opened what he says was then the only district-operated day-care center in the state. The center is open to children of LISD employees and currently cares for eight youngsters ranging in age from 11 months to 4 years.

Ervin said several teachers came to the administration with the idea for a district day-care center because many of them were leaving their children at day-care centers in Henderson and elsewhere in Rusk County.

"It was just a group of teachers coming up with the idea of will it work or not. We approached the school board and investigated to find out if it was possible to do it and it turned out it was," Ervin said.

The center is located in a small house about 150 yards behind the district offices and only seconds away from the middle school and high school. Ervin said the house was used for a kindergarten classroom at one time and is owned by the school district. He said parents pay the total costs of the building, such as utilities and furnishings. The expenses are withheld from the paychecks and can be listed as tax deductions, Ervin said.

The only cost incurred by the district taxpayers, he said, is the insurance costs on the building, which would have been paid no matter what.

One of the major concerns of the board and the administration, Ervin said, was liability risks to the district. Since the district has sovereign immunity under the Texas Tort Claim Act, LISD is immune from liability under federal and state law, he said.

Center Director Glenda Speer said having the center so close to where the parents work offers security to both parents and children.

"It's a real benefit that they can come down and see their child anytime they want to," said Mrs. Speer, who has two sons, Wes, 14, and Clint, 10. "I know I would have wanted it that way."

Mrs. Speer said although the center is close to the schools, the day-care center children have their own playground area and are not taken to their parents' classrooms during school hours. Ervin agreed saying, "We are unaware that they're even there."

Ervin said the teachers who organized the center voted to appoint Mrs. Speer as director. She is certified by the state to run the center, he noted, and the center undergoes sanitation inspections conducted each year by the Texas Department of Health.

Mrs. Speer said she did not have any experience in day care, but had practical experience in raising her own children and baby sitting for children of neighbors and friends.

SCHOOL

"I feel real comfortable doing this," she said, adding it felt natural last fall to care for a 6-week-old baby, who was the center's youngest charge and who is back again this year. "I feel comfortable around kids and I think that helps."

She said the location of the center provides a little added assurance for parents.

"Just knowing they're close and knowing who's taking care of them is a big help," Mrs. Speer said.

Mrs. Speer is assisted at the center by Shirley Anderson, a 1988 graduate of Laneville High School, who assisted at the center during her senior year. Mrs. Speer said Ms. Anderson is "wonderful" with the children and Ervin said the parents liked her work so much they wanted her back full time after she graduated.

High school home economics teacher Wyndi Vaught, 24, whose 11-month-old daughter, Jennifer, attends the day-care center, said the proximity of the center helps parents, especially if the child becomes sick.

"You get to see them more and it makes you feel more comfortable since you can't be with them all day," said Mrs. Vaught, a Mount Enterprise resident. She said it was especially nice at Christmas time when she was able to attend the center's Christmas party during her conference period.

Fourteen-month-old Jessica Ellis, granddaughter of high school special education teacher Carol Myers, enjoys the center so much, Mrs. Myers said, she begins to cry when it's time to go home.

"The security has been real, real good for her," Mrs. Myers said. "Shirley and Glenda are just so good with them. She just loves it so much."

Mrs. Speer said she does not have a structured schedule of activities for the children but said she and Miss Anderson try to organize games and outside activities whenever the weather permits. When the weather is poor, the children flock to the television, bought by parents, and the video cassette recorder, donated by Ervin. Mrs. Speer Said the television is not connected to cable so reception is not very clear. But, she said she and other parents tape programs at their homes and bring them to the center for the children to view.

When a child becomes sick, Mrs. Speer said, the parent is notified and, if possible, the child is taken home. She said she encourages parents not to bring the children in if they are sick. Ervin said the school has a "rotating substitute" list of parents in case Mrs. Speer or Ms. Anderson become sick.

"This has been a marvelous promotion for our school district and we're very happy with it," Ervin said. "It's an extra benefit that the school district is able to offer to keep the teachers that we have here."

Springlike weather forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Winter sometimes comes cloaked in spring garb.

And that's what seems to be in the offing this weekend, when daytime temperatures are to peak to near 60 degrees today and in the mid-60s on Sunday.

Skies are to be sunny both days.

But the nightly lows are to be chilly.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling a low tonight in the lower 30s. Winds today are to be southwesterly at 10 to 20 mph.

Friday's high temperature was 52 degrees, and the low was 22 degrees. The record high temperature for Jan. 12 is 77 degrees in 1957, and the record low for Jan. 13 is 7 degrees in 1964.

STATE

A large high-pressure ridge pumped dry, cold air into Texas on Friday under mostly sunny skies, with forecasters predicting the more seasonable temperatures will continue through the beginning of next week.

A grass fire danger statement was posted for North Texas because of strong, northerly winds, low humidity and very dry vegetation in the region.

The National Weather Service said little rainfall has been reported in North Texas in the last half of 1989. Meanwhile, patchy fog and low cloudiness persisted in far South Texas as moist Gulf air overran the cold front descending from the north.

Midland statistics

FORECAST

Mostly sunny today with a high near 60 degrees. Winds southwesterly at 10 to 20 mph and gusty. Partly cloudy Saturday night with a low in the lower 30s. Mostly sunny on Sunday with a high in the mid-60s.

JUDGES

The appeals court action allowed Republican and Democratic party officials to certify placement of candidates for two judicial seats in Midland County.

Nick Taylor and John Hyde will meet in the Republican primary for the 238th District Court, while Ralph Petty is unopposed in the Democratic primary for the court. Incumbent Judge Vann Culp, a Democrat, is not seeking re-election.

Judge Dean Rucker is unopposed in the Republican primary for 318th District Court, which deals with family law. No Democrat filed for the seat.

Bunton on Nov. 8 ruled from Midland that countywide election of judges in nine urban counties illegally diluted minority voters. On Jan. 2 he ordered non-partisan elections in smaller subdistricts, along commissioner precinct lines in four counties, including Midland and Ector counties, and along legislative and justice of the peace lines in other counties.

Mattox, who Dec. 21 settled with minority plaintiffs on a plan that involved partisan elections by subdistricts, sought the stay from the circuit court Wednesday when Bunton failed to modify his non-partisan election order.

A few hours after the 5th Circuit decision was filed in New Orleans Thursday morning, Bunton issued a contradictory order in Midland setting non-partisan judicial elections for Nov. 6 instead of his original May 5 election date. He also rescinded the state's authority to appeal the case.

John Hill, independent counsel for Secretary of State George Bayoud Jr. sought an emergency order Thursday to clarify the stay and the appeals court issued the amended order Friday morning.

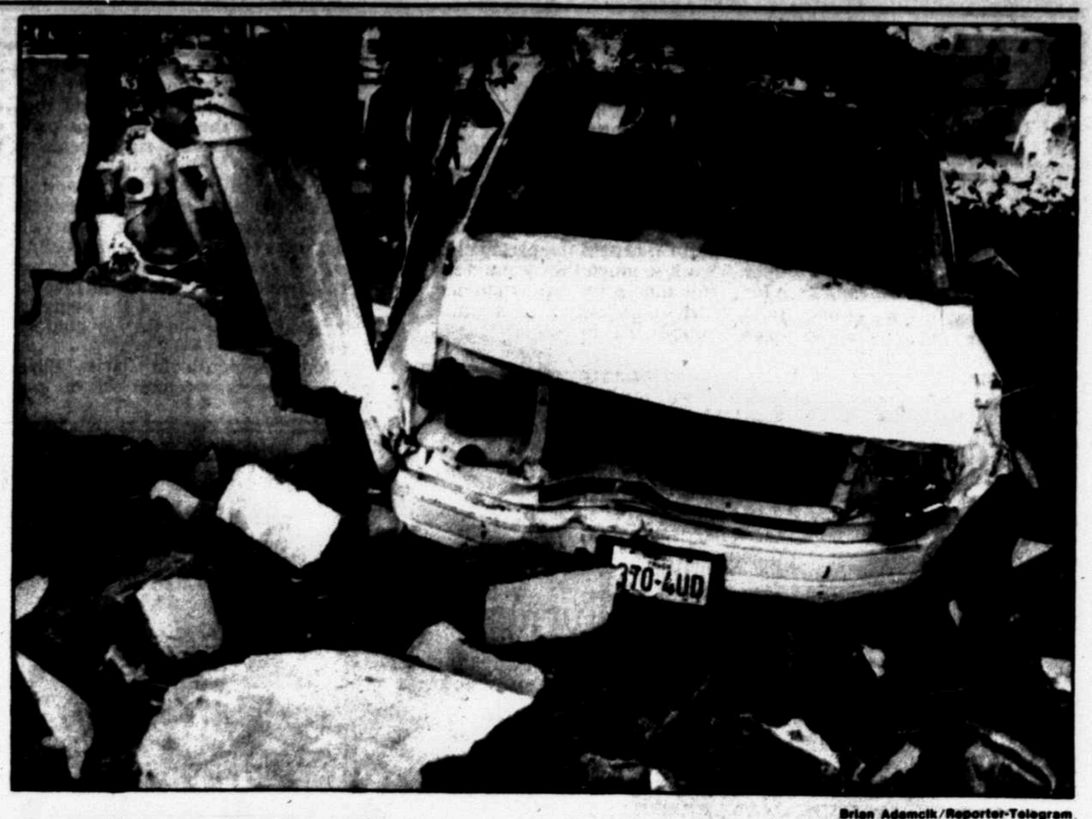

The circuit court said the Legislature should have a reasonable opportunity to revamp judicial elections if Bunton's ruling is sustained on appeal. Gov. Bill Clements Tuesday called the Legislature into session Feb. 27 to deal with public school equity and judicial reform.

In other action, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis each named six members to a joint task force on judicial selection, with Sen. Frank Tejeda, D-San Antonio, and Rep. Bruce Gibson, D-Cleburne, as co-chairmen.

Hobby also named senators Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville; Don Henderson, R-Houston; Kent Caperton, D-Bryan; Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater; and Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville; and a public member, Frank Wozencraft, a Houston lawyer and former assistant U.S. attorny general in charge of the Office of Legal Counsel.

Lewis named House members Henry Cuellar, D-Laredo; Paul Hilbert, R-Houston; James Hury, D-Galveston; Sylvester Turner, D-Houston; and Tom Uher, D-Bay City; and former Supreme Court Justice Charles Barrow of Waco, dean of the Baylor University School of Law.

The task force will review ways of increasing minority participation in county, district and appellate courts and report to the Legislature as soon as possible, Lewis and Hobby said.

"Your mission from the moment of liftoff has inspired the people of America and world," Truly said. "Today, as you flawlessly executed the LDEF retrieval, literally millions paused from their daily routines and quietly watched America's space program at its very best."

Bill Kinard, NASA's chief scientist for the LDEF project, said he too was pleased with the initial results of the rescue mission.

"It was a beautiful sight," Kinard said after the satellite was stored. "The views were very much as we expected. We expected to see some damage, particularly on the leading edge of LDEF. Essentially, it looked very much as we expected. We're delighted."

The astronauts earlier reported that the nearly six-year stay in the harsh space environment has taken its toll on several of the 57 experiments in trays attached to LDEF's multi-side exterior.

"Some pretty interesting things on the space end. Some of the panels ... that had aluminum foil over look like they've almost exploded. I mean they're just peeled back like a sardine can," Brandenstein said.

The satellite, which is the size of a small school bus, was being pulled to Earth by atmospheric drag. It has been pounded by micrometeoroids, blasted by cosmic rays and corroded by atomic oxygen.

"Looks like a couple panels have some loose foil — loose foil pulled away from the side," Dunbar said. "A lot of coatings look like they may be gone."

Scientists are eager to learn how the various experiments and materials have withstood the stay in space to help them design the U.S. space station Freedom and other future long-duration spacecraft.

The capture ended a celestial chase that began with liftoff Tuesday. Columbia covered 1.3 million miles and circled the globe 50 times before making the retrieval. If the astronauts were unable to catch LDEF, it would have burned up in a fiery plunge to Earth on March 9, its experiments destroyed.

LDEF had traveled 854 million miles since it was launched by another shuttle crew in 1984. It was scheduled to be retrieved 10 months later, but scheduling problems and the 1986 Challenger disaster combined to delay the rescue.

Other orbiting satellites have been recovered before by astronauts, but none as big as the 30-foot-long LDEF.

As Brandenstein and pilot Jim Wetherbee made the final approach Friday morning, television pictures from the shuttle showed striking images of a stable LDEF silhouetted against a blue Earth, the sunlight gleaming off the trays.

CHEMICAL

Chemical industry spokesmen acknowledged that at some plants too many toxic chemicals are being released but said the latest figures "confirm ... that the trend of air emission releases from chemical plants is heading down."

"We are convinced that releases of emissions from chemical plants are not harmful to residents nearby," said the Chemical Manufacturers Association, an industry trade group, in a statement responding to the EPA figures.

The EPA cautioned the cancer risk assessments were in many cases based on mathematical models and were not intended to reflect the actual cancer risk to particular individuals. In the risk assessment, for example, it is presumed a person resides about 200 feet from the source of the release and is exposed over a lifetime.

"The data should raise a red warning flag in communities where these facilities are located and spur prompt action to investigate the plants further," said Waxman. "It shows that a great number of plants potentially pose extremely high cancer risks to the public."

Waxman said the data confirms preliminary findings made available by the EPA last May. Those findings were criticized by industry after it was found that some of the data had been up to six years old and included some plants that were no longer operating.

The disclosure prompted the EPA to review toxic releases at the plants and led to the development of the latest figures which the agency said reflects releases in 1988 or 1989.

Reilly in his letter to Waxman said the agency was taking "very seriously the potential problems these emissions could present" and that the EPA was working with corporate executives to reduce the toxic emissions at some of the plants.

"I also intend to examine options available to realize other emission reductions as soon as possible, including use of existing enforcement authorities to reduce risks associated with toxic air emissions," continued Reilly. He did not elaborate on the enforcement action.

In addition to the Texaco Chemical Co., plant in Port Neches, the facilities where toxic releases posed the highest potential cancer risk — all a risk of 1 in 100 — were: an Asarco Inc., lead smelting plant in East Helena, Mont.; a Mobil Chemical Co., plant in Beaumont, Texas; a Shell Oil Co., plant in Deer Park, Texas; a Uniroyal rubber processing plant in Port Neches, Texas; a Goodyear plant in Calhoun, Ga.; and an American Chrome chemical plant in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Court orders PeMex to turn over documents to Midland consultant

EL PASO (AP) — A state court in El Paso has ordered Mexico's nationalized oil company, PeMex, to hand over documents in a Texas civil dispute.

District Court Judge Sam Paxson ruled Thursday that PeMex had to furnish documents involving commercial transactions in the United States although the Mexican oil company is not a direct party in the lawsuit.

The suit was filed more than a year ago by Midland oil consultant Ruben Madrid against Ciudad Juarez, Mexico industrial magnates Eduardo and Tomas Zaragosa and several liquefied natural gas companies they own in the United States.

Madrid alleges he was wrongfully fired when he refused to make payoffs to PeMex officials in Mexico City to obtain contracts for the Zaragosas to buy liquefied natural gas in the United States. He obtained a state court subpeona for PeMex documents in December.

But claiming sovereign immunity because it is a nationalized industry and not a part of the lawsuit, PeMex asked the court to dismiss the subpoena.

However, Paxson said in a brief court hearing Thursday that a foreign government conducting commercial activities in the United States was not exempt from subpoena when violations of federal criminal law are alleged.

Bribing foreign officials is a violation of the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act.

Though there are precedents in federal court, Paxson's ruling for the first time a Texas court has ordered a foreign-owned company to produce documents in a third-party civil suit.

PeMex is expected to appeal the decision.

Parent Partners training program set

From Staff Reports

Permian Basin CAPP (Child Abuse Prevention Program) will hold a training program for volunteer Parent Partners today and next Saturday at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 2501 N. Main, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Parent Partners are volunteers who work directly with troubled families. They help parents and children develop positive ways of relating to each other.

"Raising children is not easy, especially when you didn't have any good models to follow," said Margaret Thomas-Mouton, coordinator of Parent Partners. "Our program uses volunteers to work with whole families, teaching parents and children how to improve self-esteem and how to get along better with each other. Teaching parents new skills means helping children also. Ultimately this program will teach people how to have healthy families for generations to come."

For additional information, call 685-3007.

Ex-deputy jailed in sexual assault

From Staff Reports

John Edward Hudson, a former Midland County sheriff's deputy, has been jailed in lieu of posting a $75,000 bond on a charge of the sexual assault of a 33-year-old Odessa woman Wednesday.

Bond was set Friday by Justice of the Peace Robert H. "Bob" Pine.

Midland police say Hudson, 29, allegedly lured the woman to his vehicle in Odessa after pretending that he had car trouble, then at gunpoint forced the women into his car, and drove her to his Midland residence where he alleged raped her.

GIRL

Alyssa's father, John Smith, said it was exciting to have his whole family back together again in Texas.

"They're home — home for good," he said with a sigh of relief.

While she and her daughter were away, Mrs. Smith's fourth-grade class made get-well cards and took the opportunity to learn more about the human body, particularly the liver.

Mrs. Smith said she appreciated what everyone had done for her daughter, but said Alyssa may have gotten too much of a good thing with all the attention given her.

"We hope to get Alyssa back to an unspoiled state, so we can live with her for the next 20 years," she said.

"I'm looking forward to getting back to normal — even going back to work."

Mrs. Smith's elementary school principal, Linda Guy, said there will be a lot of students anxious to see Mrs. Smith return.

"We're just really so thrilled to have them back."

Schertz police patrolmen were on hand at the airport to assist with security and accompany the Smith family home.

"It's really a blessing to have her coming home — safe," said Sally Spires, who attends the family's church.

Stormie Jones sent home to Texas

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Stormie Jones, the first person in the world to undergo a heart-liver transplant, was discharged Friday and sent home to Texas, hospital officials said.

Dr. Andreas Tzakis, a transplant surgeon at the University of Pittsburgh, said the 12-year-old girl had been suffering from a form of hepatitis. It was not known how she contracted the illness, which affects the liver, he said.

Stormie was discharged from Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh around noon, six days after being admitted. She headed home to the Fort Worth suburb of White Settlement, with her mother, Lois Purcell.

"She looks great," Tzakis said.

Stormie received a new heart and liver in simultaneous surgery Valentine's Day 1984. She has suffered mild forms of organ rejection over the past six years.

A liver biopsy this week showed no evidence of organ rejection, doctors said.

Lebanon's civil war turned into game

By DONNA ABU-NASR

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Now Lebanese can become "militia leaders," and with the roll of the dice, kidnap foreigners, misappropriate public funds, bribe army generals, shell city centers during rush hour and run lucrative rackets.

Lebanon's civil war has become a board game, thanks to bookstore owner Naji Tueini.

Tueini, a 32-year-old Christian, said he got the idea for the game he calls 'Civil War" and costs $23 while he was stuck in his bomb shelter during the six-month artillery war between Christian and Syrian forces last year.

"I created it to make the Lebanese laugh at their tragedy," Tueini said.

Most Lebanese, who've seen just about everything, have mixed feelings about the game.

"It's fun," said Rima Halaby, a college student in Moslem west Beirut.

But some complain that a game based on a war in which more than 150,000 people are reported to have been killed since 1975 is offensive.

"I won't allow it in my home," snapped housewife Majwa Shami. "I think it's sick and will corrupt my children."

Tueini maintains there's nothing immoral about his game.

"It's just very realistic," he said. "If I'd included drugs and stolen cars as sources of income in the game then it would have been immoral.

"But people don't need to be taught how to be immoral. Everybody knows what happens here.

"The game's not just about Lebanon," Tueini added. "It can be applied to all Third World conflicts like the ones in Cambodia, El Salvador and Nicaragua."

"I used the ingredients from Lebanon because we've had 15 years' experience."

The game is set in "Mabil ... a country torn by civil war" and has become "a mixture of savage and unscrupulous mini-dictatorships."

But unlike Lebanon's army, fractured like the country itself between feuding Christians and Moslems, Mabil's military is strong and united.

The object of the game, with two to four players, is to collect 40 military units, five more than those run by the army to take "the reins of government."

The instructions read: "The best man will be the most unscrupulous.

"Civil war ... has its own rules which have nothing to do with the international conventions, with military rules of conduct or with what is commonly called human rights."

The instructions note: "In fact, the rules of civil war are nothing but the absence of rules.

"Racketeering, taking hostages ... terrorism, blind shelling, blockades, seizure of ports, corrupt practices and so on. All these are an integral part of the civil war."

Players throw dice to move their markers around the yellow board, which is divided into squares, orange for events, green for battles and blue for revenue.

"The elementary rule of any civil war is to make money to buy weapons," Tueini said. "To make money you need revenue."

The squares denoting revenue sources include liquor, tobacco, restaurants, casinos, electricity and water — and hostages, "the most lucrative."

If a player lands on a battle square he can declare war on any "militia leader" provided the aggressor has 15 military units.

Players landing on an events square pick up cards outlining a situation that will determine whether they win or lose money.

Democrats court votes of Mexican-Americans

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Three Democratic gubernatorial candidates Friday courted the Mexican American Democrats of Texas, hoping for an endorsement none of them was likely to win.

MAD's endorsement could carry clout among Texas' Hispanic voters, who cast one-fourth of the votes in the 1986 Democratic gubernatorial primary, said Nora Linares of Austin, state chairwoman of the group.

But the catch, she added, was that a candidate would have to win the support of two-thirds of the approximately 400 delegates in a vote set for Saturday afternoon to win MAD's endorsement.

The MAD leader said capturing 66 percent of the vote would be difficult, "in a highly contested race like the governor's race this year, where all three candidates are so popular and well-known."

Even a high percentage that fell short of an endorsement would bring influence among Hispanic voters, she said.

"Our community, our Hispanic community looks to its leaders to decide who they should vote for, and so traditionally MAD has always been that kind of caucus in the Democratic Party," Ms. Linares said, citing studies conducted on Hispanic voting patterns.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, state Treasurer Ann Richards and former Gov. Mark White Friday placed themselves at the mercy of the MAD convention's Screening and Endorsement Committee. The committee later was to make recommendations it would enter before the full convention Saturday afternoon.

White emphasized education reforms he pushed during his tenure from 1982 to 1986, that he said benefited Mexican American students. His successful reforms, he said, included improving teachers' salaries, emphasis on achievement tests and requiring students to pass courses before participating in extracurricular activities.

"We're seeing it pay off with higher test scores and lower dropout levels than we've ever seen in Texas," White said in an interview Friday.

STATE

Community goes whole hog to aid 12-year-old

EARLY (AP) — Caring Texans have come to the rescue of a 12-year-old boy whose hog was destroyed just before the Brown County Youth Fair.

Starting in October, Jason Nelson babied, groomed and trained Homer the Hampshire hog, striving for fame and fortune in the youth fair.

But last week, Homer stuck his snout between the rear slats on a moving trailer, rooted out an escape hatch and plummeted to the pavement. Homer broke two legs and — as is done in these situations — was sent to hog heaven at a locker plant later that day.

Jason "was more than just heartbroken," said his mother, Ernestine Paine of Early, a Brown County town of 2,500 about 115 miles southwest of Fort Worth. "I had a child that cried all night Sunday night and went to school crying the next morning. It was just horrible."

But within days, dozens of people offered help, said Larry Ehrke, president of the Brown County Youth Fair Association.

"I think there finally was 20 people who said they'd buy or give him a new (hog) and 40 offering to loan him one of theirs to show," Ehrke said.

But it was Ronnie Steen, a livestock market news reporter for the state's agriculture department, who spearheaded the effort.

Steen contacted David Coan at the Eastland Livestock Exchange. Coan then persuaded a buyer at a sale that day to "relinquish one of his hogs."

The new Hampshire hog was taken to Brown County, but Jason was still not allowed to participate in the fair because he had not owned the swine since October.

"They have to get the hog, raise the hog and train it. It's part of the learning experience," Ehrke said.

But in a special meeting, the association amended the rule because Jason had indeed cared for and trained a hog for the required time period.

"They just wanted him to be able to participate," Ehrke said. "This definitely has generated some excitement. It's liable to increase our crowd and our auction for that particular animal."

A San Angelo man, Lanier Duderstadt, drove to Early Middle School Wednesday, picked Jason up at school, went to pick up the hog and started a savings account with $100 for Jason to use on next year's pig, Mrs. Paine said.

"This is Jason's first year in 4-H. He'd had it rough, with a low self-esteem, he felt he couldn't do anything right," she said. "But these projects get the kids feeling good about themselves. And he started this fall.

Track fails to make loan payment

DALLAS (AP) — G. Rollie White Downs operators failed to make their first payment on a $480,000 federal loan and have asked the Texas Department of Commerce to renegotiate the terms of the note.

Track manager Richard Lerma also confirmed that the operators of the state's only pari-mutuel track are still trying to raise the $100,000 they say they will need to reopen later this year, The Dallas Morning News reported.

G. Rollie White Downs was forced to cut short its first season of pari-mutuel wagering because of lower-than-expected attendance and cold weather last year.

The operators will ask the Texas Racing Commission to change their early 1990 race dates from January to March, when the weather will be warmer.

Heart of Texas Racing Inc., the track's operators, was supposed to make a $4,131 interest payment on the loan on Dec. 31, said Ruth Cedillo, manager of the commerce department's community development block grant program.

But track officials notified the department that they couldn't make the payment and asked that the quarterly payments be rescheduled.

Bush says peace dividend 'future inheritance,' not money in bank

CINCINNATI (AP) — President Bush warned Congress Friday not to look for big savings from Pentagon spending and complained that his key domestic initiatives were mired "in the jungles on Capitol Hill."

While applauding the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe, Bush cautioned against expectations of any "peace dividend" in the military budget, saying that is "not money in the bank. It is more like a possible future inheritance."

Meanwhile, he said, "It's impossible today to know what will unfold in the next six months, let alone the next six years."

Bush said the U.S. invasion of Panama was proof that America must have a "ready and highly effective defense force."

The president spoke to about 1,500 people at a gathering of the Greater Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

Later, he met privately with the family of Army Pfc. James Markwell, a Ranger medic killed by gunfire in his drop zone in the Panama invasion.

The White House said Bush expressed his personal sympathy and gratitude for the sacrifice that Markwell made for his country.

Bush also has sent letters of condolence to the families of all those killed in Panama, officials said.

The president's combative stand toward Congress sets the tone for legislative battles likely to erupt after lawmakers return to work Jan. 23. Bush will send his budget to Congress on Jan. 29 and deliver his State of the Union Address on Jan. 30.

He said the Democratic-controlled Congress had stalled action on his plans to lower capital gains taxes, beef up education programs, strengthen clean-air regulations and fight crime.

"And these four issues are bogged down in the jungles on Capitol Hill," Bush said.

"The clock is running and America's patience is running out," Bush said.

While saying he was not trying to assign any blame, Bush said, "America wants it done right, America wants it done responsibly and America wants it done now."

The fall of hardline communist governments in Eastern Europe has prompted calls in Congress and elsewhere for lowering defense spending and targeting the money for other purposes.

"That's like the next-of-kin who spend the inheritance before the will is read," Bush said.

"Of course, whenever a potential inheritance looms," he said, "there are those eager to rush out and squander it, to buy new things, to spend, to spend, to spend — spending funds they don't yet have.

"Then the bills start coming, and the inheritance may not," Bush said. "And what was promised as a bonus becomes a burden."

Jury says bias led to woman being charged

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jurors who acquitted a woman in a stabbing case have taken the unusual step of telling the mayor, police chief and others that the woman should never have been charged and that a policeman should be suspended.

"We believe it was because of cursory, indifferent and racially biased police work that Betty Burns, one of our Native American citizens, was maltreated, even incarcerated unjustifiably, for over four months," the jurors said in a letter to Mayor Don Fraser, Police Chief John Laux and others.

The letter, signed by all 12 jurors and an alternate, accused Sgt. Robert Nelson of badgering Burns "with various forms of mental cruelty — lies, blame, guilt, threats of physical violence, assertions of white dominance and the threat of a lengthy jail term — until he got her to confess to something she never did."

Nelson, a 20-year veteran of the department, said Thursday that the allegations are unfounded.

"Part of what grabbed me was this could happen to any one of us at any time and how are we going to get out of this fix that Betty Burns was in?" juror Carla Rohwedder said Thursday.

The jurors acquitted Burns last November and their letter was sent this week. Rohwedder said Friday it took time for all 13 jury members to reach a consensus, phoning each other and rewriting the letter.

Laux said Thursday that he has turned over the jury's accusations to the police internal affairs division.

Deputy Chief Dave Dobrotka, who will conduct the investigation, said some of the allegations, specifically that Nelson coerced Burns into confessing to the assault, involve possible criminal violations. The investigation also will look into whether Burns' civil rights were violated, he said.

Laux would not comment on the allegations, except to say that Nelson "has an outstanding record in this department."

Fraser said he is taking the jury's letter "very, very seriously."

"I think the way the letter is written and the amount of detail that's provided all demand a thorough investigation and that's what will happen," he said.

Burns, 31, who turned down a plea bargain at the start of her trial, said she is "grateful and surprised" by the jury's action.

Judge Roland Amundson, who presided over the trial, said, "Many of us see things that are unjust, but we rarely act upon them because we have so many other things to care about or concern ourselves about."

Burns was accused of stabbing her boyfriend, Sheldon Geshick, in an alley on June 23.

Geshick had a deep gash that went into his brain and several other wounds and suffered "expressive aphasia," which made him unable to say what he wanted to say.

Winter congressional travel generates 'trouble in paradise'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee's eight-day trip to Hawaii comes in the dead of winter, but the congresswoman who arranged the excursion denies it's another political junket to a warm, tropical locale.

"We do have problems in paradise," Rep. Patricia Saiki, D-Hawaii, said after the first hearing in Hawaii Monday by the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

The memorandum from the chairman of the committee says the purpose of the trip is to examine national ocean and coastal policy.

One day's itinerary, however, details a different type of January excursion.

"9:30 a.m. Depart hotel for Sand Point Container Yard to tour Matson Navigation Facilities — approximately two hours.

"11:30 a.m. Return to hotel. Afternoon free.

"5:30 p.m. Depart hotel for cocktails and dinner John Dominis Restaurant. Dress: Aloha Casual."

Saiki, who persuaded the committee chairman and a handful of her panel colleagues to make the trip, bristles at a suggestion that it's a respite for members of Congress while the rest of the nation shivers through the winter.

"Personally I'm tired and distressed by describing this visit as a junket. I think it's a bum rap," Saiki said in a telephone interview from her Hawaii office.

The congresswoman said the panel is looking at "these really heavy duty issues that affect the economy and environment" in Hawaii, including fishing rights, ocean mining and the territorial seas.

"The agenda is a very full one and the committee members are working. They're getting an earful from my people of Hawaii and how the decision-making affects us."

Saiki said the temperate Pacific setting for the hearings should not dissuade observers that they are significant.

Saiki and three lawmakers from the 43-member committee, two spouses and two other House members are on the fact-finding mission that began Friday with departure from Andrews Air Force Base near Washington aboard a naval DC-9 military aircraft.

Rep. Walter B. Jones, D-N.C., the panel's chairman, said in a Dec. 15 memo that the Defense Department assigned Navy personnel to escort the delegation aboard the military plane to Honolulu. The Pentagon had no immediate comment on the trip Monday.

There was no immediate estimate available on the cost of the trip.

The itinerary for Jan. 5-13 includes a two-hour tour of Pearl Harbor, a visit to a geophysical monitoring station in Mauna Loa and morning hearings Monday and today on "U.S. Oceans and Coastal Management Issues in the Pacific."

The remainder of the proposed itinerary is heavy on free time and evening receptions.

Abilene High's Anthony McBride (22) swats the ball away from Lee's Greg Crowe.

Rebs suffer double loss

Blackburn breaks wrist as Lee falls to AHS

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Editor

Midland Lee's gutty, but outmanned Rebels had their eyes cast toward a Chaparral Center miracle Friday night with a stab at an upset over District 4-5A favorite Abilene High. However, that miracle died 55-54 as Lee lost more than a mere basketball game.

Lee's 6-6 starting post Bo Blackburn broke his wrist when he crashed to the parquet floor with 42 seconds left in the first quarter. That was much worse than the loss of the game, which was a loss that hurt nonetheless.

Trailing 55-53, Lee's David Meade was fouled by Shannon Garrett while driving to the basket with three seconds left in the game. Meade made the first of his two free throws, but missed on two attempts at the second shot. Abilene High was called for a lane infraction on Meade's first miss and was given another opportunity to send the game into overtime.

Meade stepped to the line for another chance, but this one skipped off the front of the rim and Abilene got the rebound to protect its perfect 3-0 record in the 4-5A chase.

But Lee, a heavy underdog, should never lose sight of the game that was played on this Chaparral Friday. Lee needed to do two things to even have a chance at beating the high scoring Eagles, who have been landing regularly in the 80s and 90s.

First, Lee had to make sure that it didn't get into a transition game with the running Eagles. Second, Lee had to hit a high percentage of shots while working the offense carefully. Lee pulled off both goals. It was almost good enough for the upset.

Lee hit 50 percent from the field and connected on 16 of 22 free throws, which are both better than season averages. In fact, the patient attack generated a 30-24 lead with 1:18 left in the first half, despite the loss of Blackburn, which put great pressure on the Rebels who are thin in the middle anyway.

However, reserve Eugene Hicks came off the bench for 11 second quarter points to give the Rebels an offensive push and Greg Crowe added eight in the period for a 30-24 lead with 1:18 left in the half.

Lee held that margin until 4:12 of the third period. AHS then made a charge and a three-point goal by Shannon Garrett gave the Eagles a 42-39 lead. Lee tied the game three more times at 42, 44 and 46, but never again enjoyed a lead.

In fact, Lee trailed by seven points, 55-48, with just 2:55 to play. A Crow three-pointer got Lee back into the game and Meade almost pulled off the overtime bid before missing his ill-fated free throw.

One of the big problems was Abilene post Tyerone Washington, who lit up the Rebels with 19 points. Lee was hurting inside without Blackburn. Garrett added 14 points.

Hicks' performance off the bench accounted for 17 points and it is certain that he will be forced into more game action now that Blackburn is on the sideline. Meade ended with nine points.

Lady Bulldogs lose by a hair

By BILL PRICE
Sports Writer

Midland High was tantalizingly close to winning its first District 4-5A girls basketball game Friday night, but came up just a little short in a 41-39 loss to Abilene Cooper at the MHS gymnasium.

After falling behind early in the fourth quarter by six points (35-29) Robin Landreth, who scored a game-high 22 points, started a surge by the Lady Bulldogs that scared the life out of the Lady Cougars.

Landreth cut the lead to 37-31 with 1:22 to play, but was answered by Coog Brandai Prince. Then MHS' Keren Carley nailed an 18-footer and Angie Johnson hit the front end of a one-and-one to make the score 39-38.

But Johnson's second shot caromed off to Landreth, who missed her shot, which was rebounded by Lady 'Dog Sally Gibson. Gibson was fouled with 32 seconds left, went to the line and made a free throw to tie the game at 39. However, the night somehow belonged to Cooper as Elsa Hubbard came up with the game-winning basket for on a layup with 21 seconds left.

Still, MHS might have had another chance to score except, ironically, they Lady 'Dogs did not have enough team fouls to send Cooper to the free throw line.

The loss sent the Lady Bulldogs' record to 7-13 overall and 0-5 in 4-5A while Cooper went to 12-6 and 3-2. MHS coach Jane Young, though, was as pleased as any coach can be with a loss.

"We just played such good defense that we didn't foul and when we needed to put them in the one-and-one late we couldn't. We could've won this game real easy. The kids played real well and we didn't turn the ball over much," Young said.

The finals minutes were fairly indicative of how the entire game was played. The Lady Coogs always seemed to have the upper hand, only to watch MHS find a way to come back and make the game close.

Cooper opened the game with a four-point lead but could never build on it as the first quarter ended with the Lady Bulldogs behind by only one point, 21-11. MHS claimed its only lead of the game after Ashley Chase sank a

Frost one-putts 14 holes for 60

Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz. — David Frost came within a stroke of the PGA Tour's 18-hole scoring record Friday when he shot a 12-under-par 60 in the second round of the Tucson Open.

Only a bogey on his 16th hole of the day at Randolph Park municipal course prevented Frost from matching the record 59 Al Geiberger shot at the 1977 Memphis Classic.

"I'm not at all disappointed," Frost said. "It's the first time I've ever been in this position, and it's three shots better than I've ever shot before. ... I'm excited."

Frost one-putted 14 times and scored two eagles and nine birdies in only the eighth round of 60 ever recorded in tour competition. The last 60 was shot by Sam Snead in the 1957 Dallas Open.

"It's nice to hear that the last 60 was before I was born," the 30-year-old Frost said.

Despite his spectacular round, Frost doesn't have sole possession of the lead. Jay Haas, who played in a threesome with Frost and Craig Stadler, shot a 64 to tie Frost's two-round total of 130.

"I didn't even know I was close," Haas said. "I was too caught up in watching David play."

Stadler was eight strokes back at 138 after shooting a 69 on the small 6,902-yard course, which usually plays to a par 70 but is listed at 72 for the tournament.

"I think the threesome scored 20 birdies and three eagles," Haas said.

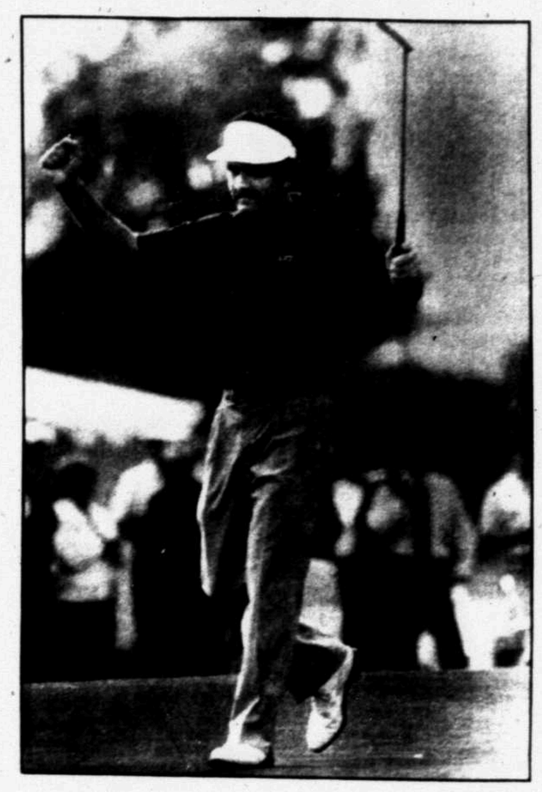

Frost, who started play from the 10th tee, offered an illustration of how well the threesome was performing.

"I birdied 16, 17, 18, 1 and 2, and eagled No. 3. And I didn't get the honor off the tee until No. 3," he said.

Frost, who won the World Series of Golf last season, hit a three-wood second shot to the green on that hole and made a 30-foot putt for eagle-three.

"That's when I started thinking about 59," he said. "I needed, what, three birdies in six holes? ... And I made three birdies."

Lady Chaps ousted at USTA

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

The USTA Women's Circuit tournament at the Midlander is over for Maria Vago and Allison Bradford, but not after the Midland College freshmen showed that they can compete on equal footing with professionals.

And to think that they just met this week ...

Vago and Bradford were eliminated, 6-2, 6-1, by Elena Rossides and Allyson Cooper in doubles quarterfinal action Friday. They were the last MC players in the $10,000 tournament.

Vago hasn't even played a match for MC yet, but she paired up with Bradford less than a week after stepping off a plane from her native Buenos Aires, Argentina. Bradford is ranked ninth in singles and 10th in doubles on the Volvo Intercollegiate Tennis Rankings for U.S. junior colleges.

The youngsters were little match for college grads Rossides, a former Stanford University star, and UCLA ex Cooper after giving their older foes a scare in the first set.

"They actually controlled the net pretty well in the first set," MC coach Joe Williams said. But the MC'ers committed several unforced errors in the second set to drop out of contention.

Vago said through a translator that Rossides and Cooper caused a lot of problems for she and her mate.

"I felt like we made a lot of loose errors because the others girls were forcing them," she said.

Rossides and Cooper set up the win by lobbing beyond the reach of the MC girls.

Neither player said their relative unfamiliarity with one another was a factor in Friday's match.

"It was kind of a disadvantage, but it really wasn't that much of a problem," Bradford said. "We complement each other really well.

"We both like to play the net, and Maria is very good at that," the Salt Lake City native said.

It's been a rough week for seeded doubles teams. Each of the top two seeds lost Friday, while the third and fourth seeds had been defeated earlier in the week.

The top singles seeds fared no better, as middle seeds from the Netherlands dominated the quarterfinal round. Top seed Titia Wilmink of the Netherlands and third seed Melissa Brown of Scarsdale, N.Y. were dumped in the second round earlier

Bud Bowl II: This time it's dumb

Football, beer commercials combine for strange brew

By LOWELL COHN
N.Y. Times News Service

I receive all sorts of dumb things in the mail to promote sporting events, but something I was sent recently takes the cake for sheer idiocy.

It was a videotape hyping the so-called Bud Bowl.

The tape opens with a shot of that shill Brent Musburger intoning in his deepest, most serious voice.

Everyone is excited about the Super Bowl on January 28, he says, "But we're here to talk about the other big game: Bud versus Bud Lite."

Personally, I didn't know the Bud Bowl was such a big deal.

As Musburger narrates, we see shots of beer bottles wearing helmets, and scooting across a mini-football field.

One bottle is called The Freezer, a not-so-clever reference to William (The Refrigerator) Perry. Another bottle, wearing a helmet and sunglasses, is called Budway Joe for Broadway Joe Namath, I guess.

Musburger's voice reaches a crescendo. There will be 100 million viewers, he shouts.

Then another voice roars, "Bud Bowl II: This time it's war."

Thankfully, the entire tape is over in about two minutes.

It's conceived at the level of a junior high school student, not that I have anything against junior high school.

I was getting ready to throw it in the trash when I stopped. There was something sinister about the whole thing, something I couldn't laugh off.

In fact, there's something sinister about all television beer advertising for sports, and that includes Miller's pseudo controversy: "Tastes great. Less filling."

Most beer ads on TV imply that if you drink brew, you'll be popular.

You'll hang around friendly bars and be part of the in-crowd. Life will be a holiday. You'll laugh a lot.

You'll do exciting things like race boats and build houses with your own two hands. You'll be big and tough, and you'll score with women.

There are dangers with linking sports and beer.

Forget how illogical it is that physical fitness is supposed to go hand-in-hand with guzzling an intoxicant. Forget that beer-drinking slobs have made going to stadiums all over the country a nightmare for families.

Many teams like the San Francisco Giants have had to create nonbeer sections to separate families with children from the drunken hordes.

Forget all that and think about this.

In an article about sports and beer, Sports Illustrated pointed out that alcohol is the most abused drug in this country, and there are more than 3 million alcoholics between the ages of 14 and 17.

Are you beginning to get the picture?

Nancy Reagan launched a campaign to say no to drugs, but anyone who watches sports on television is being conditioned to say yes to beer. Many of those watching are kids who are taught young that beer is the passport to the good life.

Fact: Drunk driving is the number one killer of teenagers in the United States.

Yet, the jolly beer ads featuring good natured guys like Randy Cross and Bob Uecker are telling kids if they don't drink beer, they're out of it.

Here's a radical suggestion: They're not allowed to advertise cigarettes or hard liquor on television. The ban should extend to beer.

Of course, a ban like that will never happen because the entire sports establishment — especially Major League Baseball and the National Football League — is floating on a sea of beer.

There's too much money involved for anyone to boot beer off the airwaves, and that's too bad.

My 14-year-old stepson watched the Bud Bowl tape with me. I was worried that he would find the thing amusing, that he might swallow the myth that beer drinkers are automatically cool.

When the tape ended, he turned to me. "That was really dumb," he said.

Great kid.

A few days ago, Reggie Franklin had revenge on his mind.

But that was back when Cisco Junior College had a head basketball coach, a coach who was the reason for the twinge of vengefulness Franklin was feeling.

But earlier this week, head coach Dan Montgomery resigned suddenly, leaving a vacancy at the head of the Wrangler bench.

Now, Cisco women's coach Ronnie Hearne is pulling double duty and will coach his Lady Wranglers today at 2 p.m. in Snyder against Western Texas, before finishing out the day with a 7:30 p.m. game as his men take on Midland College at Chap Center.

When Cisco met the Chaps earlier in the season, November 18 at the McDonald's Classic at Levelland, the Wranglers came away with a 90-84 win, the first time ever Midland had lost to Cisco.

"It will be (revenge) for me," Franklin said, before Montgomery's unexpected walk. "Coach Montgomery came up to me (after the Cisco win) and said 'That's the first time we've ever beaten you guys.' That's just like taking the knife and turning it."

Montgomery's career as Wrangler head coach ended Wednesday when Cisco president/athletic director Dr. Roger Schustereit told Montgomery there would be a change in the basketball program. Montgomery immediately resigned upon receiving the warning from Schustereit.

The Wranglers are loaded with backcourt talent and speed, something that got the best of MC in the first match up.

Cisco's Eric Brown (29 points) and Trevor Lemon (27) combined for over half of the Wranglers' points. The Wranglers also hit 18-of-19 from the free throw line against MC.

Tim Owens (22 points) and Kethus Hanks (21) paced the Chaps in the Cisco game.

The alltime series has Midland College with a 15-1 advantage; prior to Novembers downfall, MC had won 11 straight over the Wranglers.

The Chaps host New Mexico Junior College Monday night at 7:30 p.m. to round out the busy three game series.

Understandably, Lee was not in much mood to talk about this one after the game. The tough loss and the loss of Blackburn cast a major pall over the Lee lockerroom.

However, Lee coach Paul Stueckler did say, "You just hate to lose a player anytime. With Bo gone, we'll have to go back and regroup. This one hurts in more ways than one."

In junior varsity action, Abilene High won 79-57 after the score was knotted at 35. Allan Hewitt (17 points), Gabriel Aldrete (16) and Patrick Pope (13) led AHS while Lee got 12 from Wayne Wilson and 10 from Brian Smith.

Lee does have a week off before restarting 4-5A action against Odessa Permian at Chap Center Friday. Lee is 10-11 on the year and 1-3 in the district race. AHS is 3-0 and 14-7.

two-pointer from outside to start the second period. But by the end of the half, Cooper had flopped the one-point edge to its side, 18-17.

The third quarter saw the Coogs open up their largest lead of the game at 30-21, but the Lady 'Dogs again fought back with Landreth hitting two goals before game action was delayed by an injury to Cooper's Shelly Smith.

Smith, who collided with Prince, fell backwards and hit her head on the floor. She was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital for tests and observation.

"In the first half we didn't play very well and didn't have our minds in the game," said Gene Hudson, Cooper coach. "After Shelly Smith went down it really took a lot out of us because she is the emotional heart of our team."

"It seemed to me that both teams played about the same after she was hurt. We just played well," Young said.

Andrews holds off Big Spring, 51-47

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

ANDREWS — The boys basketball programs at Andrews and Big Spring have a lot in common this year.

Both schools are breaking in new coaches.

Both schools are breaking in new players.

That's where the similarity ends, however.

While the Andrews Mustangs are in the hunt for yet another playoff berth, the Big Spring Steers continue to stumble despite playing nearly everyone close.

The Mustangs kept pace with District 4-4A front-runners Snyder and Pecos on the strength of a 51-47 win over the Steers here Friday. Andrews, 12-10 overall 4-1 in district play, remains one game behind both Snyder and Pecos in the red-hot 4-4A race.

Big Spring dropped to 2-16 overall and 1-4 in district play despite having a chance to tie in the final seconds. That's the story of the season for Coach Tommy Washington, however.

Nevertheless, Washington tries to remain upbeat while starting three juniors and a sophomore to go with senior Chris Cole.

"This was our best overall game this year," Washington said. "We may have had better quarters, but this was the best game."

Andrews took the lead for good late in the first quarter, but Cole cut the Mustang lead to 48-47 on a layup with 23 seconds left.

The Steers called time out to set up their full-court press with 20 seconds left. Rod White fouled Marc Byerly immediately after the throw-in and the Mustang sank both ends of the ensuing bonus opportunity to force the Steers into looking for a three-point shot to tie.

Jason Davis got off a trey attempt with about 10 seconds left, but was far off the mark and the ensuing loose ball sailed out of bounds off the hands of Big Spring's Mike Williams with seven ticks left.

The Steers' only hope at that point was to foul quickly and hope for a missed free throw, but sophomore guard Marc Morris dashed those hopes by sinking the front end of a one-and-one with six seconds left to put the game out of reach.

Byerly admitted that being the coach's son helps him in the clutch, even though he is not the Mustangs' main scoring threat.

"I think it helps a little," he said. "I've been watching pressure situations all my life."

Byerly's father George took the reins at Andrews this season after a hugely successful tour at Brownwood.

Landry a shoo-in for Hall of Fame

Associated Press

DALLAS (AP) — Jerry Tubbs, who played for and later worked with Tom Landry, predicts the former Cowboys coach won't have to wait long to get into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

"I'm sure he'll get it the first time and deservedly so," said Tubbs, a linebacker for the Cowboys from 1960-67, before coaching with the team until 1988.

"He is the Dallas Cowboys, as far as coaching is concerned," Tubbs said. "You look at his record and you know nobody in football has done it, winning for 20 years."

The class of 1990, which will include as few as four or as many as seven members, will be announced Jan. 27 at New Orleans, the day before the Super Bowl.

Landry spent 29 years as coach of the Cowboys before he was forced out last February.

He is one of five eligible in his first year of eligibility.

"No one living today is more deserving of that kind of honor than Coach Landry," said Danny White, a Cowboys quarterback for 13 years.

"No one living today is more deserving of that kind of honor than Coach Landry.
Danny White

Landry was a defensive back, punter and kick returner for seven years in the pros, moving to the sidelines in 1956 as defensive coach with the New York Giants. He took over the Cowboys when the franchise was formed in 1960.

He introduced the flex defense and multiple offense and also restructured the shotgun or spread offense. He was also the driving force behind "situation substitution" which came into vogue in the 1980s.

Known for his dour expression and ever-present hat, he guided the Cowboys to 20 consecutive winning seasons, 13 division titles, five NFC championships and Super Bowl victories in 1972 and 1978. His 270 career victories (with 178 losses and 6 ties) is topped only by Don Shula and George Halas.

Big Spring jumped out to an 11-5 lead in the first quarter, but the Mustangs erased that bid with 12 unanswered points and never trailed thereafter.

Coach Byerly said the Steers showed they could play in the early going.

"Big Spring has a better team than their record indicates. Coach Washington has done a great job with them."

Washington said the Steers' first-half dry spell did them in as much as anything that happened in the second half.

"We just had a mental lapse. I made a substitution and it just seemed like we relaxed."

The Steers never really let up on Mustang post Ara Baten, however. Baten was banged around by several Steers throughout the game, but still tied Steers Louis Soldan and Mike Williams for game scoring honors with 15 points.

Baten's used to the attention, now that former Mustangs Gym Bice and Damon Clay now play for Midland College and Western Texas College, respectively. The 6-foot-4 senior still averages nearly 20 points a game.

"We lost some good players, but the younger guys are coming in and filling their spots well," Baten said.

The Mustangs return to action next Friday at home against Snyder. Big Spring hosts Pecos next Friday. District 4-4A schools are all open Tuesday for final exams.

Big Spring (47): Jason Davis 0 0-0 0, Wendell Smith 0 0-0 0, Lemont Jojolia 1 1-2 3, Chris Cole 6 0-1 12, Louis Soldan 7 1-4 15, Rod White 1 0-1 2, Junior Lopez 0 0-0 0, Mike Williams 5 3-4 15. Totals 20 5-12 47.

But the bogey on the 356-yard, par-four seventh ruined any chance he had of becoming only the second man to reach the 50s in Tour play.

Frost drove the fairway and had 107 yards to the pin.

"I was between clubs, and I tried to hit a sand wedge hard," he said. "I didn't need to. ... It hit the green and bounced over."

He chipped back to about six feet and missed the putt.

"I just hit a bad shot. I'll have to think back on that," said Frost, who won this tournament in 1988, the last time it was played.

Robert Gamez, a 21-year-old rookie who passed up his last season at the University of Arizona to join the pro tour, shot a 64 at the TPC at Star Pass and was one shot back of the co-leaders at 131.

Mihail Dincu, known to the Spurs as "Super Mike", works on the legs of Maurice Cheeks after a recent practice.

Rub it in, rub it in

Romanian masseur helps spur San Antonio to hoop success

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — With due respect to the San Antonio Spurs' new high-dollar players, the best hands on the team belong to a man coach Larry Brown calls his secret weapon — Mihail "Super Mike" Dincu, a 40-year-old Romanian masseur.

Although Dincu can't match the hand speed of guards like Maurice Cheeks or Willie Anderson, those players are the first to say Dincu's hands are most valuable.

He joined the team in December and was told management would decide in January whether he would remain throughout the season. The Spurs responded to his magic fingers, and the team decided he would stay.

"What was important was whether the players felt comfortable with what he could do for them," said Bob Bass, Spurs' assistant to the chairman. "He has been successful helping them get over sore spots and injuries, so we decided to keep him."

Frank Brickowski discovered Dincu about two years ago at a San Antonio athletic club. The aggressive forward told Spurs owner Red McCombs he thought Dincu would make a good addition to the team.

"Getting a massage is really beneficial," Brickowski told the San Antonio Express-News. "I wish we could take Mike on the road."

Brickowski says Dincu is good at taking care of the team, which leads the NBA's Midwest Division.

"It's not like he's someone off the streets," Brickowski said. "He's worked with pro athletes all his life and knows how to take care of us. I think management has made a commitment to taking care of the team and this is part of it."

Dincu began working with athletes in 1975 after graduating from the University of Bucharest with a degree in athletic training.

His first job was as trainer of the Star Bucharest soccer team, a position he held until defecting at age 28 while attending the European Championships in Barcelona, Spain.

Dincu says he was fed up with life in Romania under the late dictator Nicolae Ceausescu.

"There was a lot of corruption," he said. "Because I was with the Star Bucharest team, I got free food and I got to travel outside the country. But I still saw all the misery other people had in Romania."

News last month of the capture and execution of Ceausescu made Dincu cry.

"I was happy, but it was a mixture of happiness and sorrow," he said. "I was sad for all the people back in Romania who still didn't have anything."

Dincu has been able to complete only one phone call to Romania since the upheaval and said he still doesn't know if his parents are dead or alive.

After two years in Spain, Dincu moved to Canada, became a Canadian citizen and worked with a pro soccer team before joining the Canadian National Track and Field Team.

With the track and field team he traveled to the 1982 Commonwealth Games in Australia, the 1983 World Championships in Helsinki, Finland, and the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

Now that he's in the United States, Dincu said, he likes America best.

"America is truly a free country. If you have energy, desire and know what you are doing and do what other people don't want to do, you will get ahead here," he said. "I should have left Romania earlier. I love this country."

Dincu got married and moved to Austin in 1985. He worked with the University of Texas football team and Lady Longhorns' track and field team.

"We are going to the championship," said the team's secret weapon.

Spurs end losing ways in Boston Garden

Associated Press

The San Antonio Spurs ended a 20-game losing streak against Boston with a 97-90 victory over the Celtics behind Willie Anderson's 21 points.

The Spurs, who hadn't beaten Boston since Jan. 5, 1980, outscored the Celtics 31-15 in the second period for a 56-43 halftime lead, then survived a nine-point third quarter.

With Larry Bird still sidelined with a twisted ankle, the Celtics closed to within one point three times in the fourth period, the last at 77-76 with just over six minutes left.

The Spurs, 23-8 after winning just 21 games last season, then went on a 10-2 run, including four free throws by Anderson and a pair by Maurice Cheeks, to pull away.

Reggie Lewis led the Celtics with 22 points and Kevin McHale had 17. Terry Cummings and David Robinson scored 18 apiece for the Spurs.

San Antonio managed just 31 field goals, seven fewer than the Celtics, but converted 35 of 43 free throws, including 16 of 18 in the final period. Boston had just 18 free throws, making 13.

Boston, which has lost five consecutive Friday night games at home, took a 28-25 first-period lead, but San Antonio capitalized on five steals and five turnovers for a 21-6 run in the final 7½ minutes of the second period.

The Spurs managed only nine points in the third period. However, the Celtics scored only 19 points, cutting the Spurs lead to 65-62.

Then came the fourth-period showdown, with Cummings leading the Spurs with 10 points.

Bulls 107, Hornets 95

Michael Jordan scored 45 points and the Chicago Bulls broke their three-game losing streak with a 107-95 victory over the Charlotte Hornets.

Jordan hit 19 of his 28 shots from the field, after shooting just 46 percent during the Bulls' losing streak, their longest of the season. All of the losses came on the road.

Chicago led by as many as 13 early in the fourth quarter, but the Hornets came back as the Bulls made only seven of 17 from the field in the period after hitting 65 percent in the first half.

A free throw by Rex Chapman with 2:50 remaining made it 99-92, but Jordan scored six points duringx an 8-0 run to seal the outcome. Chicago led 107-92 with 54 seconds to play for its biggest lead.

Armon Gilliam led the Hornets with 26 points and 10 rebounds as Charlotte outrebounded an opponent for the first time in 19 games. Rookie J.R. Reid had 12 rebounds for Charlotte and Rex Chapman scored 24 points.

Scottie Pippen added 16 points for the Bulls, who are now 12-0 when holding opponents under 100 points.

Pistons 97, Timberwolves 86

Isiah Thomas scored eight of his 23 points during an 18-5 second-half run as the Detroit Pistons beat the Minnesota Timberwolves in the first meeting ever between the two teams.

Tony Campbell, who Minnesota with 28 points, tied the game 64-64 with 3:52 remaining in the third quarter. But the Timberwolves scored only one more basket over the next 5:55.

The Pistons led 48-42 at halftime before Minnesota spurted to a 62-58 lead with 5:37 left in the third quarter.

Two baskets by Thomas and one by Joe Dumars tied it 62-62 before Campbell tied it again at 64. Two more baskets by Thomas and a free throw by Dumars gave Detroit a 69-66 lead after three quarters.

James Edwards then scored Detroit's first five points of the fourth quarter and Dennis Rodman added a basket to give Detroit a 76-67 lead, and the Timberwolves never got closer than five points the rest of the way.

Cavaliers 113, 76ers 102

Mark Price scored 30 points, including 15 in the third period, as the Cleveland Cavaliers beat the Philadelphia 76ers.

The 76ers trailed 84-79 before Cleveland scored the first seven points of the fourth period, including four by Larry Nance. The Cavaliers increased the lead to 98-85 with 8:28 remaining, but the Sixers scored the next eight points, closing within five with 6:43 left.

Price's three-point play with 6:17 to go blunted the comeback, and Cleveland stayed safely in front by sinking eight free throws in the last 2½ minutes.

Knicks 101, Pacers 96

Patrick Ewing scored 20 points, including the basket that put New York ahead to stay, as the Knicks beat Indiana in their third overtime decision this week.

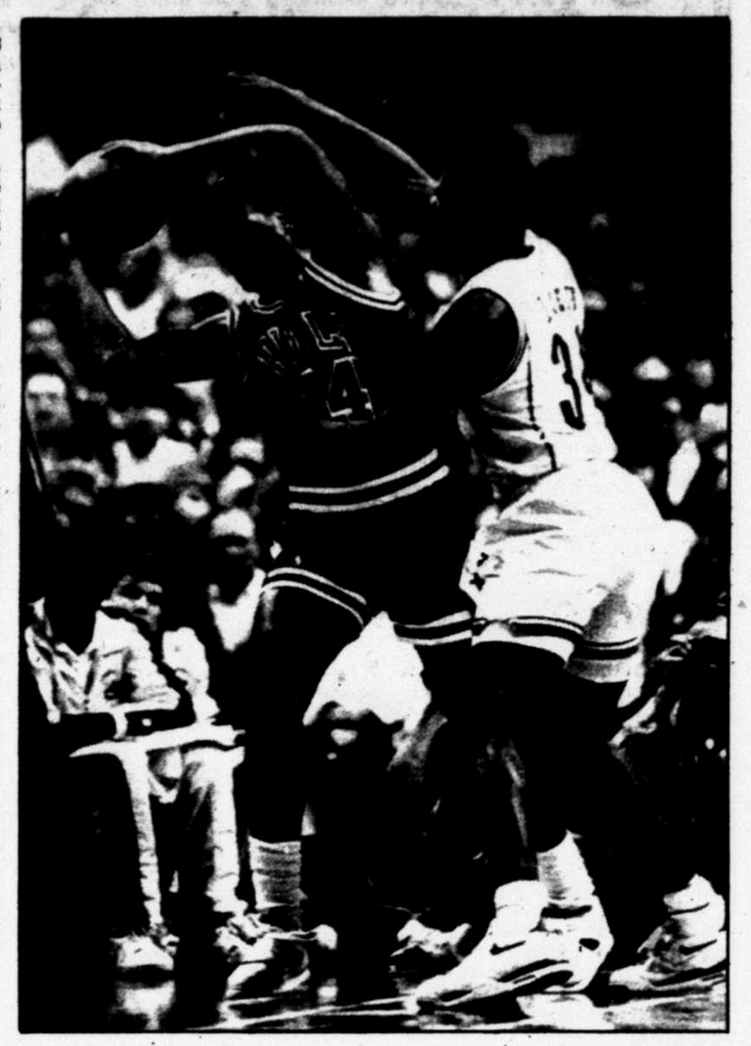

The Knicks, 4-0 in overtime this season, had a chance to win in regulation with the score tied 89-89. But Ewing missed a left-handed hook and Trent Tucker missed a shot at the buzzer to force the overtime.

Detlef Schrempf led Indiana with 26 points and 10 rebounds, followed by Reggie Miller and Rik Smits with 22 points each.

The Pacers played without their No. 2 scorer Chuck Person, who is visiting his ailing grandmother in Alabama.

The lead changed hands 15 times and was tied 21 times before Ewing gave New York the lead for good, 91-89, with 3:55 left in the extra period.

The Pacers closed to 91-90 on a free throw by Schrempf with 3:07 to play. Ewing's free throws were followed by one from Miller to leave Indiana trailing 93-91 with 2:07 left.

Clippers 95, Bucks 94

The Los Angeles Clippers, with Ron Harper scoring 23 points, won in Milwaukee for the first time in 10 years by surviving a late Bucks rally.

The Clippers' last victory in Milwaukee before Friday came on Jan. 9, 1980. They also had an eight-game losing streak overall to the Bucks.

Harper hit two free throws with 1:10 left to give Los Angeles a 95-92 lead. Paul Pressey hit a jumper for the Bucks with 25 seconds remaining, getting the Bucks within one.

Suns 111, Kings 96

Tom Chambers scored 27 points and Kevin Johnson had 14 of his 16 in a decisive first period as the Phoenix Suns beat the Sacramento Kings.

Sacramento, which was led by Danny Ainge with 16 points, lost its eighth straight on the road and 15th in the last 17 overall. It was the fifth consecutive home victory for Phoenix.

Simmons' 27 points leads La Salle by Notre Dame

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Lionel Simmons scored 27 points and became La Salle's all-time leading scorer as the 21st-ranked Explorers defeated Notre Dame 86-78 Friday night.

Simmons surpassed the school record of 2,628 points by Michael Brooks, who played from 1976-80.

Doug Overton also scored 27 points for La Salle (10-1), which led 73-68 on a layup by Overton with 4:03 left before LaPhonso Ellis made four free throws for the Irish (7-5). Jack Hurd then hit a 3-pointer and Simmons made a breakaway dunk to give the Explorers a 78-72 lead with 1:31 remaining.

La Salle led by seven points early in the game as Simmons made five of his first eight shots. Notre Dame took its first lead, 33-32, on a jumper by Ellis with 4:30 left in the half.

La Salle led 45-43 at halftime and never trailed in the second half. The Explorers committed only three turnovers in the game while Notre Dame had 12.

Ellis led Notre Dame with 21 points and 15 rebounds. Keith Robinson added 18 points for the Fighting Irish.

The architect of the 49ers' success

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — If Bill Walsh was the brains of San Francisco's three Super Bowl winners and Joe Montana was the heart, you could say John McVay was the backbone.

The 49ers' vice president for football operations has been with the team for 11 years and has been a key man in providing the troops necessary to win.

"John's the glue in the organization," says Randy Cross, the retired 49ers center who joined the team two years before McVay arrived in 1979.

"He's chosen to stay back out of the limelight, but a lot of the stability and a lot of the successes have derived from the front office."

Anyone who thought Walsh was the club's sole genius in acquiring talent need only look at two names in the 49ers' starting lineup for Sunday's NFC championship game: linebacker Matt Millen and nose tackle Jim Burt. They are this year's Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds and Wendell Tyler, two inexpensive pickups that helped turn the 49ers from challengers into champions in the early '80s.

McVay signed Millen and Burt as insurance during the season, and the payoff may come in the form of a fourth Super Bowl.

If it does, don't look for the 59-year-old McVay, who coached the New York Giants from 1976-78, to step forward and take any credit. This is a man who doesn't approach his work in the first-person singular.

"When we put this organization together in '79, we wanted to direct all the visibility to the team," McVay said in an interview this week.

He referred to owner Edward J. DeBartolo and Walsh as well as himself. As McVay spoke in his upstairs corner office at the team's headquarters, the 49ers practiced outside his window in preparation for the Los Angeles Rams.

"Fans don't come to see us juggle personnel," he said. "We have the best business department in the league, but people don't care about that. They just want us to win games."

Within easy reach of the telephone on his broad desk lie the tools of his trade. Stacks of computer-printout books list every player in the NFL with their game-by-game ratings in 10 categories and scouts' comments. All the 49ers' employees and their job objectives are similarly categorized.

Every day — and McVay hasn't had a day off since before training camp began last July — he spends hours on the phone with other general managers, coaches and scouts chatting about talent. Each observation, no matter how off-hand, is jotted down in a spiral notebook that might someday help land a promising free agent or college senior.

During his 11 years as player personnel director, director of football operations, general manager and his current title, the 49ers have made 86 trades, acquiring 49 players and 61 draft picks in exchange for 28 players and 78 picks. They've drafted 110 college seniors and signed and released hundreds of free agents.

One underlying theme binds all the transactions together, particularly since the 49ers reached the NFL's top echelon.

"What we try to do is make sure we don't let ourselves get old," McVay said. "We brought in 14 new guys out of 60 on the roster this year. That's a lot, especially for a Super Bowl champion.

"You can't say you're going to maintain what you've got," McVay said. "You've got to try to improve, because there are 27 teams out there trying to be better than you."

Walsh may have had the final say on personnel moves in recent years, but McVay was the point man behind the 49ers' well-known strategy of trading up at draft time to get just the right player — such as Jerry Rice with the 15th pick in 1985.

When it comes to player moves now, he's the senior member of a decision group that includes head coach George Seifert, pro personnel director Allan Webb and football operations chief Neal Dahlen.

"You always hope you're going to find another Wendell Tyler or Hacksaw Reynolds. We got (wide receiver) Mike Wilson and (linebacker) Michael Walter on waivers from Dallas. We just got them, free," he marveled.

"We don't care how we get them. We'll kidnap 'em, recruit 'em, trade for 'em — we don't care."

If he had a flashier personality like Jack McKeon of baseball's San Diego Padres, McVay might be known as Trader John. As it is, he's known as the executive who's most likely to call with a draft deal every spring.

"He's a guy that will work very hard to move around in the draft," said Giants general manager George Young. "He'll give you their third-round choice to move up in the second — that sort of thing. He plugs away."

Among the bargains he's helped land with draft picks in the past are running back Tyler, defensive end Fred Dean, tight ends Charlie Young and Russ Francis, and quarterbacks Matt Cavanaugh, Jeff Kemp and Steve Young. Many times, though, it's just picks for picks.

Dick Steinberg was the New England Patriots' executive who agreed to a swap of five draft picks that enabled the 49ers to move up and take Rice with the 15th selection in 1985. He says he knew what he was doing — the Patriots were loaded with receivers — but obviously so did McVay.

"The 49ers were always the easiest team to deal with," said Steinberg, who last month became general manager of the New York Jets. "If you wanted to do something and they wanted to do something, it got done and both sides felt that it was fair.

"John's an easy guy to talk to. There's not a lot of BS, it's just 'Let's get it done.' I think he's done a hell of a job there."

McVay also handles contract negotiations and the day-to-day business of the organization, but player personnel remains his true passion. He loves dealing with players and hates giving them the ax — no surprise, since he played high school football in Massillon, Ohio, and was two-time team MVP as a center for Miami of Ohio before spending 24 years in coaching in the high school, college and professional coaches.

He was successful as head coach at Dayton (1965-73), and his teams compiled a 24-7 record during his stint as head coach and general manager of the Memphis Southmen of the World Football League (1974-76).

Cleveland Browns' tight end Ozzie Newsome (82) draws a bead on a pass during practice for Sunday's AFC championship game against the Broncos in Denver. Newsome, the NFL's all-time leading tight end with 639 receptions, says he's accomplished everything he expected in his career except for playing in the Super Bowl.

Rain, soggy conditions won't bother Niner plans

Associated Press

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — A weekend rainstorm arrived in the Bay area on Friday, but the San Francisco 49ers say soggy conditions won't significantly alter their strategy in Sunday's NFC title game.

The forecast calls for rain off and on through Tuesday, with gusty winds and a chance of rain on Sunday. The 49ers' game plan, in all likelihood, calls for runs and short passes to attack the Los Angeles Rams' defense, rated 21st during the regular season.

But since the Rams' attack is similar, neither team is a clear beneficiary in bad weather.

"Both teams are going to have to make certain concessions," special teams coach Lynn Stiles after the 49ers' 1-hour, 45-minute workout in light rain and gusty winds. "You have to streamline your passing game a little bit. But I don't think it will affect us more than the Rams.

"You still go with what you practice. You aren't all of a sudden going to line up three backs because it's wet."

Nose tackle Michael Carter practiced for the first time since injuring his left foot on Oct. 29 against the New York Jets. Head coach George Seifert said he'd wait until Saturday's 2 p.m. PST deadline before deciding whether to activate Carter, but all indications were that he would.

"I feel decent — about what I expected, maybe a little better," the four-time All-Pro said. "I hope to play. We'll find out tomorrow."

Carter appears far heavier than his listed playing weight of 285 pounds, although he won't discuss it. He has been told he would play on 10 to 15 passing downs.

"I haven't been out there in a long time, so the easiest thing will be to pass rush, go straight ahead," he said. "If I'm 70 percent of normal, at least I'll have accomplished something."

Friday's rain combined with high tides in San Francisco Bay to cause flooding that closed Highway 101 between San Francisco International Airport and the city for nearly two hours. Candlestick Park engineer Mike Gay said the field was covered with a tarpaulin Thursday night before the rain began. The field will remain covered until an hour before game time if the rain continues.

If there's rain during the game, San Francisco's efforts to get its running game going early may be intensified. The New York Giants rushed for 171 yards against the Rams, and Roger Craig has two 100-yard rushing performances in the 49ers' last three games, when long, balanced drives in the early going helped them take control.

"Field position obviously is critical in a game like this," Stiles said of the deteriorating conditions. "And the kicking game obviously will be a major factor.

"We've played in the rain before. It's the wind that causes more problems and makes it hard to kick."

Carson not one to pull punches

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Bud Carson wasted no time making his first mistake as an NFL head coach.

It was early in training camp and Carson couldn't understand why people kept asking him about Pro Bowl cornerbacks Frank Minnifield and Hanford Dixon in tandem, as if they were the same man.

Dixon, Carson said to set the record straight, is not the player Minnifield is.

The 1989 season would bear him out. Dixon no longer is the player he once was — and neither is Minnifield, for that matter. But the damage was done. Dixon, a team leader, was hurt, and the chemistry in the Cleveland Browns' proud "Dawg" secondary was damaged.

Carson spent the rest of the summer repairing bruised egos, and gradually his players came to appreciate the brutal honesty and candor of this disheveled, seemingly disorganized 58-year-old man.

"Bud is never going to pull any punches," placekicker Matt Bahr said this week as the Browns prepared for Sunday's AFC Championship Game in Denver. "The players like that, because they always know where they stand."

That Carson is still coaching, after 24 others have finished their seasons, is a testimony both to the team he inherited from Marty Schottenheimer last January and to his own experience as one of the league's most respected defensive coaches.

"I don't know what else I can ask of a man except what he did for us," owner Art Modell said.

Carson came into a situation that some coaches would call a dream. Others refused even to consider the job for fear of strangling in the strings attached to it.

First, Modell had said, the new coach had to accept Marc Trestman as his offensive coordinator. Trestman had been Bernie Kosar's quarterback coach at the University of Miami and filled the same job with the Browns during the 1988 season, when Schottenheimer served as his own offensive coordinator.

Second, Modell said the new coach would have virtually no say in the draft, which was to be controlled by long-time NFL executive Ernie Accorsi.

What Modell wanted, in essence, was a defensive coordinator with the title of head coach. Carson, who had built Pittsburgh's "Steel Curtain" defense in the 1970s and had toured the NFL as an assistant coach, figured he was in no position to be choosy at his age. He freely accepted Modell's terms and was hired Jan. 27, 1989.

He did not have the luxury of a honeymoon, because Cleveland had been in the playoffs four straight years and was expected to challenge for a Super Bowl immediately. The pressure was enormous; Carson ignored it.

"I felt as much pressure when I was coaching the freshman team at North Carolina," he said. "I put that kind of pressure on myself. The pressure of failure — failure in this business is losing football games — is just as great at any level. I knew what had to be done here. I didn't know if I was going to do it, but I was going to give it my best shot."

It was evident early that he was sticking to Modell's game plan. Carson had little to say on draft day when Cleveland chose Eric Metcalf and Lawyer Tillman with its top two picks, and his obsession during the summer was turning Schottenheimer's 3-4 "read-and-react" defense into an aggressive 4-3 "attack" defense. The offense was left to Kosar and Trestman.

An embarrassing loss to Tampa Bay in the final preseason game scared all of Cleveland, but Carson's defense then destroyed Pittsburgh 51-0 in the season opener, and the town and the team were on his side again.

Carson regretted the size of the win because it came against Chuck Noll, a friend who had given him a job in 1972. It also vastly overstated the talent of the Browns, who later lost a rematch with the Steelers.

"Probably the biggest mistake was beating Pittsburgh so bad, because we didn't play so well the next week against the Jets, then we lost to Cincinnati and had a down period," Carson said. "But this team has been there before. That's why I like this team as much as I do. They've been there and they know what it takes to come back."

The significance of winning the AFC Central Division championship in his first year didn't escape Carson. The Browns clinched the title with a 24-20 win at Houston on Dec. 23.

"I ate it up for about 12 hours. Now I'm back to reality," Carson said. "I feel fortunate to be here. I got lucky and got into a good situation. I hope we take advantage of it."

Military and emergency personnel examine the wreckage of a Marine fighter jet, which crashed as it made its approach to land at the Willow Grove Naval Air Station in Willow Grove, Pa., Friday.

Pilot injured in fighter's crash in stable condition

WILLOW GROVE, Pa. (AP) — A Marine fighter jet crashed during a training flight Friday on approach to Willow Grove Naval Air Station, injuring the pilot and damaging a business and nearby houses, the Navy said.

The pilot ejected before the jet hit the ground and burst into flames, the Navy said. The pilot, Marine Capt. Duane Pandorf, 35, was in stable condition at Abington Memorial Hospital, said hospital spokeswoman Linda Miller.

There were no other injuries, said Navy Ensign Barbara MacStravic.

Navy spokesman Rich Beth said the A-4M Skyhawk attack jet crashed just off the base about 10:45 a.m. in Upper Moreland Township, a Philadelphia suburb in Montgomery County north of the city.

Beth said he did not know whether the pilot reported trouble before the crash. The military will handle the investigation, said Frank Ghiorsi of the National Transportation Safety Board in New York.

Police said the plane clipped a one-story commercial building and a home, then skidded along a city street. The wreckage came to rest at a stop sign. Four cars were burned and five other houses received minor damage, police said.

"We heard a very loud plane, it shook the building," said Leanne Carbohn, who manages a nearby service station. "Then we heard this loud bang and all the electricity went out."

The pilot landed in the back yard of a home, his parachute catching in a tree. One house caught fire, but the blaze was quickly brought under control, and no one was in the house, fire officials said.

Philadelphia Electric Co. said 1,800 customers lost electric service.

The jet belonged to Marine Air Group 49, based at the Willow Grove station. The single-seat jet's estimated value was about $500,000.

Marine Capt. Rich Steffens in Washington said there are about 60 A-4's left, all are assigned to Marine reserve units. The aircraft has been in service since the 1950s and has a good safety record, he said.

The Pentagon said it was the second crash in a week involving an A-4. The pilot walked away from a crash in Yuma, Ariz., with bruises, the Pentagon said.

Defense secretary orders freeze on civilian hiring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney ordered a freeze on hiring civilians at the Defense Department for the rest of this fiscal year, the Pentagon announced Friday.

Cheney said in a statement he was forced to take the step to cut costs and because of the sweeping international changes that are forcing limits on the department.

"As the armed forces are reduced over the long term in light of limited budgets, a changing world situation, and future negotiated agreements, the department must make corresponding reductions in the size of the civilian work force that supports the armed forces," Cheney said.

But the release announcing the step cautioned that "department officials do not know how much the work force will be reduced by the freeze."

The hiring freeze — which will be in effect from now until Sept. 30 — applies to all Department of Defense civilians worldwide, including part-time and temporary employees. The department currently employs 927,000 civilians on a full-time bases and another 123,000 on a temporary or part-time basis, the Pentagon said.

As many as 80,000 workers normally retire or otherwise leave that work force each year, the statement said.

There are 2.1 million armed forces personnel in uniform.

The hiring freeze came one day after Cheney announced his program for trimming the Pentagon's huge purchasing bureaucracy, which he predicted would cut 42,000 military and civilian job slots and save $39 billion over a five-year period.

Presbyterian school offering area extension course

The Presbytery of Tres Rios and Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary have joined together to bring to West Texas extension seminary courses for those unable to attend classes at the seminary in Austin, according to Dr. A.J. Moreau, director of the West Texas Extension of APTS.

The next course, to be held in the spring semester 1990, will be "American Church History," taught by Dr. R. Ken Peters, adjunct professor at APTS and pastor of the New Braunfels Presbyterian Church, New Braunfels.

Dates for the course, to be held at First Presbyterian Church, Odessa, will be Friday night/Saturday: February 9-10; February 16-17; March 9-10; March 30-31; April 20-21; and May 4-5.

This is a six credit-hour course in which participants explore how Christianity in America developed in relation to a larger, and largely secular, historical context. The course seeks to avoid the kind of narrowly institutional focus which is characteristic of so much denominational history.

Topics to be studied among others, are: Spanish Catholicism in a New World environment; how the reformation came to America; reconsidering Presbyterianism and American politicians; and Protestantism's uncertain future.

Anyone interested in quality theological education may participate. The program will be especially attractive to persons interested in beginning work toward a Master of Divinity degree; persons working toward certification as Christian educators; lay persons interested in deepening their knowledge and competence.

Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary is a seminary of the Presbyterian Church (USA), located in Austin. The seminary has been educating people for the Christian ministry since 1902. The seminary is fully accredited by the Association of Theological Schools of the United States and Canada, and by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. It offers the highest quality of graduate theological education.

The West Texas extension program began in the summer, 1989 to meet the need for quality graduate theological education in West Texas. Additional extension courses will be offered each spring and summer.

The subject of other courses under consideration to be offered are Introduction to the Old Testament; Introduction to the New Testament; Reformed Theology; Ethics and Biblical Interpretation. Special attention will be given to include courses which lead to certification as educators in the PC (USA). The seminary will not offer Greek and Hebrew as an extension course. They must be taken on campus.

A student enrolling for these classes will be classified as a "special student" and may apply up to 100 of the needed 200 credits toward the Master of Divinity degree at Austin Seminary. For the second 100 credits, students must be enrolled in the Master of Divinity Program.

The course may also be taken as an audit course. There is still space available, but please call for enrollment information as soon as possible. There will be required reading prior to the first class.

For enrollment information, Moreau may be contacted at P.O. Box 5111, Midland, 79704, or 682-2514.

Mrs. Bush has last radiation treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barbara Bush Friday underwent the last of 10 radiation treatments for a stubborn eye ailment that has impaired her vision.

Bush

Doctors will not know for at least two months, and maybe as long as four, whether the radiation was effective in treating the symptoms of Graves' disease, an immune system disorder that earlier affected Mrs. Bush's thyroid as well, said Anna Perez, the first lady's press secretary.

After receiving the 10-minute radiation dose at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Mrs. Bush returned to the White House and took her daily swim in the outdoor, heated swimming pool, said Ms. Perez.

She also attended a briefing on the Head Start education program, hosting volunteers from the organization.

"She feels great," said Ms. Perez.

Mrs. Bush began the radiation treatments after the steroid drug prednisone failed to improve her eyes. She suffers eye irritation, double vision and bulging eyes as a result of the Graves' disease, which was diagnosed early last year.

The disease initially caused her thyroid to be overproductive, but a one-time radioactive treatment rendered the thyroid inactive and cured that effect of the disease.

The 10 low-level radiation treatments were intended to decrease swelling behind the eyes, in the small muscles that control eye movement.

The radiation treatment was considered routine for Graves' disease symptoms that have not responded to other treatment. Mrs. Bush did not suffer side effects such as loss of hair, her aides said.

Although suffering from the eye irritation, the first lady has maintained a schedule of public appearances, both with her husband and by herself. Although busy, her schedule has been somewhat curtailed because of the eye discomfort, officials said.

Should the radiation fail, surgery would be an option, experts say.

NEW YORK (AP) — Retired Adm. William J. Crowe Jr., former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, has joined ABC News as a consultant on national security and international affairs, the network said Friday.

Crowe retired in October after 43 years in the Navy. His first on-air appearance at ABC was before dawn Dec. 20, when he analyzed the U.S. military strike against Panamanian Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

An ABC News spokeswoman said Crowe was not hired as a successor to former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, a consultant from 1982 until last fall.

Kissinger, who previously had been an NBC News consultant, resigned his ABC post on Sept. 13 after his election as a board member of CBS Inc.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Roxanne Pulitzer, whose bitter divorce from publishing heir Herbert Pulitzer became the subject of a television movie, has won her fight to spend more time with her twin sons, her attorney said.

Attorneys Thursday told a judge they had reached a private settlement.

"We've agreed to keep it private for the children," Mrs. Pulitzer said.

The settlement gives Mrs. Pulitzer more visitation, said her attorney Donald Sasser, who did not elaborate.

Mrs. Pulitzer had asked a judge to modify a 1982 custody order to give her more time with Mac and Zac, 12, who live with their father. Under that order, she was allowed to spend 72 days a year with the boys. The settlement canceled a two-day trial scheduled to begin Tuesday.

Pulitzer, reached at his home in Okeechobee, said he did not know if a settlement was final. His attorney Mark Luttier did not return telephone calls.

RED BAY, Ala. (AP) — Country singer Tammy Wynette returned to her adopted hometown in northwestern Alabama for the dedication of a highway bearing her name.

Wynette

Mayor Billy Bolton, friends and family members and Ms. Wynette watched Thursday as a stretch of Alabama 24 was officially named the Tammy Wynette Highway.

"This is so wonderful," said the 47-year-old singer. "I just love Red Bay. It's a neat little town."

Bolton said the request to rename the highway was in recognition of Ms. Wynette's contributions to the town, where several of her relatives live. The 1989 Legislature approved a resolution renaming the road.

Ms. Wynette, who lives in Nashville, Tenn., held a concert last year to benefit Red Bay School. Ms. Wynette said the only other thing that bears her name is a park in her husband's hometown of Malden, Mo.

DALLAS (AP) — Longtime Dallas restaurant owner Joe Campisi died today. He was 73.

Presbyterian Hospital spokeswoman Darlene Williamson said Campisi died of a heart attack at the hospital about 10 a.m.

Campisi had been at the hospital since Wednesday night after he suffered a heart attack. He was stricken following a chase of an employee that police said had tried to steal money from a restaurant cash register.

Campisi founded Campisi's Egyptian Restaurant in 1949 with his father and brother.

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the city may save the building where Margaret Mitchell wrote much of "Gone With the Wind" from destruction.

Developers wanted to tear down the 78-year-old apartment house, which Miss Mitchell labeled "The Dump," but then-Mayor Andrew Young refused to sign the demolition permit in 1988. The house was on the city's list of protected, historic landmarks.

Developers sued the city and Young and for an "unconstitutional taking of property," and demanded $136,000 damages and $1,000 a day until the permit was signed.

Citing a 1978 U.S. Supreme Court ruling, U.S. District Judge Horace T. Ward ruled Wednesday that the city ordinance and protection were "a permissible and legitimate government goal."

The house, where Miss Mitchell lived from 1926 to 1932, violates city housing codes. But a preservation group, Mitchell House Inc., has sought services and material to renovate it and turn it into a museum.

GARDENA, Calif. (AP) — Former Cincinnati Bengals running back Stanley Wilson, expelled from the NFL for life for alleged drug use, was arrested Friday for investigation of resisting arrest and possessing drug paraphernalia, authorities said.

On the night before the Super Bowl a year ago, Wilson, 28, of Carson was suspended by the Bengals for alleged cocaine use, the last in a series of suspensions that led to his lifetime ban.

Authorities here determined Wilson wasn't under the influence of drugs or alcohol when he was arrested, Deputy George Ducoulombier said.

Israeli camping store's merchandise includes free travel advice

By JOEL BRINKLEY
New York Times News Service

TEL AVIV, Israel — At first glance, it looks like an ordinary camping store stocked with waterproof flashlights, down-filled sleeping bags and 12 brands of bug spray.

But a schedule on the front window gives a hint of the shop's larger purpose.

"Weekly advice to travelers to the Far East, Tuesdays, 4:00 p.m. — Free," it says. South American travelers, it says, should come "Sundays at 4."

Inside, a lecture is under way. Avi Lugassi, who has just returned from a trip in which he backpacked in India and Nepal, is offering advice to about two dozen young men and women sitting on the floor under the hiking-boot display.

All of them are about 21 or 22 years old, meaning they have just been released from the army.

As Lugassi talks about the importance of taking water purifiers and diarrhea pills — "If you ever have to go into a Nepalese pharmacy, you'll understand why," he said — many of the young people look through loose-leaf notebooks holding thousands of handwritten letters from other young Israeli adventurers who have written back to the store with bits of travel advice.

Looking over it all, the owner, Yuval Limon, 33, said "A system like this could only work in Israel."

Each year, more than 60,000 young Israelis pass through Limon's store.

They listen to lectures and look through the notebooks, preparing for the trip to far reaches of the Third World that has come to be a unique national ritual for Israeli youths just out of the army.

Virtually all young people enter the army as soon as they enter high school and often come out several years later changed men and women.

"All of us have to be in the army, and when we come out it has been very rough," Limon said.

Many 19-year-olds are thrown into the occupied territories, fighting the Palestinian uprising, or into Southern Lebanon, where they find themselves in gun battles with Palestinian guerrillas.

"You see blood, sometimes death," Limon said. "When you get out, you have to get away."

Limon suggests that many Israelis are not immediately driven by ambition into jobs since the socialist structure of this state makes incomes and living standards comparatively uniform.

Instead of immediately jumping onto the professional ladder, tens of thousands of Israelis strap on backpacks and set off for India, Asia, South America or other places where travel is cheap.

Dispatcher talks to grand jury in Boston shooting

BOSTON (AP) — The police dispatcher hailed as a hero when the Charles Stuart case broke testified Friday before a grand jury looking into evidence implicating Stuart in his pregnant wife's shooting death.

Gary McLaughlin refused to discuss what he said or even how long his appearance lasted. He did say that since Charles Stuart's suicide last week, he had reviewed the transcript of the Oct. 23 call.

When asked if he found anything suspicious, he said "not really," but he wouldn't elaborate. McLaughlin added "on a personal level, I think the country was duped."

"It's a bizarre and twisted case," he said.

Carol Stuart, 30, who was seven months pregnant, died hours after the shooting, and her premature baby, Christopher, died 17 days later. Until Stuart's Jan. 4 suicide, most people believed Stuart's account that he and his wife were victims of a mugger.

The case drew attention because of a dramatic conversation between McLaughlin and the wounded Stuart, using his car telephone, to eventually direct police to him and his wife.

Investigators learned of the hoax when a younger brother, Matthew Stuart, told authorities Jan. 3 that he met Charles at the murder scene and retrieved Mrs. Stuart's handbag, which contained a gun and some personal items.

Matthew Stuart, 23, said he was not aware Mrs. Stuart was shot when his brother passed him the bag, but prosecutors declined to say whether he or anyone else might face charges.

Suffolk County District Attorney Newman Flanagan said this week that no one was granted immunity to testify before the grand jury, which was hearing evidence off and on since shortly after the shooting occurred.

District attorney spokesman John Julian declined to say how many witnesses would be called, and he said the panel could conclude that no one — other than Charles Stuart — committed any crime.

"We're just trying to get at the true story," he said.

While the Stuarts were described as a loving couple by many of their friends and relatives, reports have surfaced that Charles Stuart was unhappy with his wife's pregnancy and believed a baby would interfere with his ambitions.

Also, statements by attorneys indicate that Stuart not only enlisted the help of his brother, Matthew, in the scheme, but also made overtures to another brother, Michael, weeks before the crime.

Church blesses commuters with new building

CHICAGO (AP) — Downtown developers are offering a proposal made in heaven. The Old St. Mary's Catholic Church and Self Park will be a 12-story blessing to commuters and parishioners — 10 floors of parking space on a two-story church.

The proposed development includes classrooms, priest's quarters, parish offices and two chapels complete with altars and pews for 425 worshipers. But in place of the traditional spire, the complex would have parking for 805 vehicles.

An ersatz bell tower topped with a stainless steel cross actually will contain the elevator to the 10 open-air parking floors.

"The building will look like a church," said William McBride, the project's architect. "We want the parking garage to look secondary."

But the economics of high-priced downtown real estate played more of a role in the creation than did divine inspiration.

Church officials and their consultants came to Standard Parking Corp. with the idea for the development to get more value out of their land.

Under the deal, Standard Parking and the developer, Stein & Co., get a prime downtown site in a growing market for off-street parking. The parishioners of Old St. Mary's would get a new church worth $5.5 million, essentially for free.

"It's a win-win situation," said Rev. Thomas J. Dove, the pastor.

The diocese retains ownership of the property and the first two floors of the development, while Standard Parking and Stein own the parking deck.

Besides the free church, the parish would get a 2.5 percent share of the parking receipts and free parking for churchgoers on Sunday and selected holy days, said Constance K. Dickinson, vice president of marketing for Stein.

Two of the developers' other parking decks play on themes. One in the theater district has floors named after musicals with tunes from the shows playing on each level. Another has floors with city names and theme songs to identify them.

The collaboration prompted many religious references for floors, but the developers decided to use titles from famous books to identify the floors, Ms. Dickinson said.

"We gave up on finding 10 saints in Chicago," Dove said.

The need for parking space thwarted another of Dove's tounge-in-cheek suggestions — three parking levels named heaven, purgatory and hell.

An architect's drawing shows the combination church and parking garage that will replace Old St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in downtown Chicago.

4 possible IRA members arrested

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Four people believed to be members of the Irish Republican Army were arrested Friday while attempting to purchase a heat-seeking anti-aircraft missile and other weapons, the FBI announced.

The four are believed to be members of the Provisional faction of the IRA and were trying to gather weapons for terrorist activities outside the United States, said William Gavin, who heads the FBI in south Florida.

The arrests of Irish nationals Kevin Joseph McKinley, Seamus Moley and Joseph McColgan and a Canadian, Sean John McCann, concluded a joint, two-month undercover investigation, said officials of the FBI, the U.S. Customs Service and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Friday, Moley allegedly paid undercover agents $50,000 for a "Stinger" missile, a shoulder-fired weapon supplied by the United States to troops for anti-aircraft defense, an FBI statement said.

"If this was fired at an airliner it could blow it right out of the sky, so one of these missiles could cause an extreme amount of damage," said Timothy Wagner, head of the Customs Service in Florida.

"The Stinger missile is a surface-to-air missile that is used against aircraft. So one would have to believe that if they expressed an interest in procuring this type of weaponry, they planned a terrorist act, obviously against an aircraft," added Robert Creighton, who heads ATF in Florida.

NATION in brief

Congressman criticizes using F-117A in Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee said Friday that the Defense Department's use of the high-tech, stealth F-117A fighter-bomber in the U.S. invasion of Panama was "show biz."

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., in releasing a report on the Dec. 20 incursion to oust Panamanian dictator Manuel Antonio Noriega, had nothing but praise for the overall military operation, saying the armed forces clearly deserved an "A" for the effort.

But the Wisconsin Democrat was highly critical of the Pentagon's decision to deploy the F-117A stealth fighter to drop two 2,000-pound bombs near infantry barracks at Rio Hato to "stun, disorient and confuse" troops loyal to Noriega.

Use of the aircraft with its radar-evading capabilities against a nation that lacks the sophisticated detection technology has been viewed by some as merely a Pentagon ploy to win support for the aircraft in Congress.

King honored at memorial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The voice of Martin Luther King rang out once more at the Lincoln Memorial Friday as government officials and school children joined in a birthday observance highlighted by a recording of the slain civil rights leader's "I have a dream" speech.

"As we stand here again in the place where he stood, we can feel his presence," James M. Ridenour, director of the National Park Service, told a crowd of several hundred assembled in chilly, windy weather at the memorial.

Effi Barry, wife of District of Columbia Mayor Marion Barry, blinked back tears as the recording came to the climax of King's speech, ending with the words, "free at last, free at last, thank God almighty, we are free at last."

Later, Ms. Barry joined Ridenour and two children representing District of Columbia schools in laying three floral wreaths at the memorial in honor of King.

King was shot to death April 4, 1968, in Memphis. Had he lived, he would be 61 on Monday. His speech at the memorial was the climax of a civil rights march in 1963.

Ford selling aerospace firm

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. is hanging a "for sale" sign on its Ford Aerospace Corp. subsidiary to consolidate the parent company's business, the nation's No. 2 automaker said Friday.

About two-thirds of the subsidiary's business comes from defense contracts, and defense spending is coming under close scrutiny in Washington these days. That, analysts said, may cut into the price Ford can command for the 34-year-old wholly owned subsidiary.

The price probably would have been higher months ago before East-West tensions eased and before the government began talk of substantial cuts in defense spending.

Romanians cheer at news of party's death

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Interim President Ion Iliescu told thousands of anti-Communist demonstrators Friday that Romania's Communist Party has been outlawed.

"Victory, Victory!" shouted the crowd of 5,000 after Iliescu's announcement. "The Front is with us!" they yelled, referring to the National Salvation Front, the country's interim leadership.

Iliescu's announcement was broadcast live on state radio and television.

The announcement came hours after the crowd had shouted down Iliescu and other leaders who tried to speak. Demonstrators yelled "Down with Communism! Kill the Communists!" They burned a Romanian Communist flag and Communist identification papers.

Friday was a national day of mourning, with religious ceremonies held across the country in memory of the victims of the violent revolution that toppled Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu three weeks ago.

Iliescu, himself a former Communist, made the announcement from the window of the building where the interim government has its headquarters on the Victoria Square.

"The Romanian Communist Party is outlawed, considering that it is against the national spirit and our ancestor's law," he said.

Iliescu however did not say what the decision would mean for current members of the party. Much of Romania's new leadership is composed of Communists.

Before the Communists took power in 1948, Romania was ruled by a constitutional monarchy.

Romania's newly appointed General Prosecutor Gheorghe Robu told Romanian TV Friday all leading members of the Romanian Communist Party were under arrest and their role in the Ceausescu regime was under investigation. He said the trials would begin within 10 days.

He said Ceausescu's children and brothers, who were arrested in the first days of the revolt, would be brought to trial soon.

Iliescu also told the crowd that a national referendum would be held Jan. 28 on whether the death sentence should be reinstated for members of Ceausescu's hated security police.

The feared Securitate continued to battle the army even after Ceausescu was overthrown Dec. 22 by popular revolt.

Ceausescu was executed with his wife Elena, considered No. 2 in the party, on Dec. 25. The Front then abolished the death penalty and said members of the security forces convicted by military tribunals would be sentenced to lengthy prison terms.

"Death to the Securitate" and "Death for Death" the crowd chanted, referring to the estimated 10,000 who died in the clashes between security forces and the army during the revolution.

Iliescu said the referendum on the death penalty was necessary "for the adequate punishment of those guilty of crimes against the people."

Earlier in an effort to appease the crowd, Iliescu said security officials would be tried and sentenced "according to the laws." He said the trials would be public and even shown on television.

The daily Romania Libera carried an appeal Friday from Communist Party members calling on "all the honest members" to burn their party cards "at places where martyrs of the revolution died, as a public condemnation of any idea of recreating a new Communist Party."

Lithuanians aren't buying Gorbachev message

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev told Lithuanian farmers Friday they would be better off if their republic stayed in the Soviet Union, but pro-independence protesters again confronted him and local leaders accused him of laying a "propaganda trap."

Gorbachev made the pitch at a collective farm in Siauliai, 125 miles northwest of Vilnius, a day after promising a national vote on secession but predicting Lithuanians would choose to remain in the Soviet Union once they understood the difficulties involved in seceding after 50 years.

The Soviet leader arrived in the tiny Baltic republic of 3.7 million people Thursday for a three-day mission to try to solve one the biggest crises of his tenure: the swelling tide of independence and its potential effects nationwide.

There were signs Lithuanians were not listening to his appeals to seek a solution not by seceding but by remaining in the union.

Gorbachev was greeted at the Bridai farm by protesters carrying banners that read, "We are for an Independent Lithuania!" and "Our Aim is the Independence of Lithuania."

After an exasperating day of trying to get his message across, Gorbachev showed his sense of humor was intact, telling the demonstrators: "OK, I have read them all, take a rest."

The crowd interrupted him frequently, and by the end of the discussion, his smile had disappeared and his face was grim. The scene was broadcast by state-run TV.

Foreign reporters were not permitted to accompany Gorbachev in Siauliai because it is a military region closed to foreigners.

Later, as the president arrived at the Taulus TV factory in Siauliai, a crowd shouting "Freedom to Lithuania!" greeted him. He shrugged and told them sarcastically, "And you say you are not free!"

Lithuanian activists, who have wide popular support, say they want to restore the independence their homeland enjoyed between the world wars. In 1940 dictator Josef Stalin absorbed Lithuania and the two other Baltic states, Estonia and Latvia, under a secret deal with Nazi Germany.

Vytautas Landsbergis, head of the pro-independence Sajudis political movement, Friday dismissed Gorbachev's announcement of a day earlier that a secession law was being prepared.

"It's a propaganda trap," Landsbergis, who is also a member of the Congress of People's Deputies parliament in Moscow, told a news conference. "If we get entangled in the mechanism of seceding from the Soviet Union, we automatically act as if we were (now) a legal part of the Soviet Union."

Gorbachev noted Thursday that the Soviet Constitution guarantees each of the country's 15 republics the right to secede, and revealed that the first draft of a law detailing the process of secession has been written. He promised a national discussion and a referendum on the proposal.

Friday, he warned the farmers, huddled around him on a street, to think about the consequences of secession.

"It will be written in the Soviet Constitution (that) there are 14, not 15, union republics. This will mean a split, and there will be no place for you in that union," he said, as his wife, Raisa, and Lithuanian Communist Party chief Algirdas Brazauskas stood beside him.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Albania calls reports of brutality 'slander'

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported Friday that authorities in Albania had imposed "extremely strict" security measures, but a senior Albanian Communist called reports of unrest there "slander."

Tanjug and Belgrade television said "something is apparently happening" in hard-line Albania and that the rare travelers from there report "brutal" measures against dissent.

As the last bastion of Stalinism in Eastern Europe, Albania is seen by some Western analysts as the next country to experience radical change. But its isolation and small population of 3 million are among the factors that make Albania different from other communist countries in the region.

"Albanian authorities in an effort to prevent unrest against the regime have imposed extremely strict control measures in the country," Tanjug said.

However, Foto Cami, a member of Albania's ruling Communist Party Politburo, rejected recent reports in Yugoslav, Greek and other Western media of unrest in his country as "slander" and "anti-Albanian inventions."

His remarks came in an interview with Albanian state radio and television, carried by the official Albanian news agency ATA and monitored in Vienna, Austria.

Albania has kept its borders virtually closed to foreign travelers. Information about what is going on there is mostly limited to the official Albanian media and scant reports from travelers allowed to leave the country.

Bulgarian accord reached

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Representatives from the nationalist, Communist and opposition camps agreed on a compromise declaration Friday aimed at defusing ethnic tensions that have swept Bulgaria for two weeks.

Their draft document upheld a Dec. 29 decision of the Communist leadership restoring religious and other rights to minority ethnic Turks.

At the same time, it reaffirmed Bulgarian as the official language and guaranteed this Balkan nation's "sovereignty" and "territorial integrity."

The provisional declaration was issued by a 19-member commission of representatives on the last day of weeklong negotiations and must still be submitted to Parliament for final approval.

Parliament meets Monday.

The Dec. 29 decision allowed ethnic Turks and Moslems here to reassume their own names and practice their religion without restrictions.

Drug summit delegates talk

SANTA CRUZ, Bolivia (AP) — U.S. delegates met behind closed doors with their counterparts from three cocaine-producing countries Friday to craft a tough anti-narcotics resolution for a February summit.

Representatives from Bolivia, Peru and Colombia presented the Americans, who arrived Thursday night in this semitropical city in the midsection of South America, with a draft document that calls for more U.S. aid as well as a stepped-up battle against trafficking, conference sources said.

Work on a final text was expected to be completed on Saturday, according to delegates.

The resolution was to remain confidential until it is formally signed at the Feb. 15 one-day summit in Cartagena, Colombia, by Presidents Bush, Virgilio Barco of Colombia and Jaime Paz Zamora of Bolivia.
