Cutting up Woodcarver's show, sale begins Monday

By STEVE REAGAN
 Staff Writer

It's amazing what you can create with nothing more than a knife, a piece of a wood and the right attitude. That's the message the Mustang Draw Woodcarvers Club will be spreading when they host their annual Show and Sale starting Monday at the Dora Roberts Community Center. The annual event serves as both a showcase of club members' talents and a teaching experience. On one hand, the public will get a chance to view some of the finest wood carvings to be found in this area. On the other, they can try their hand at the craft themselves. The event is usually a big draw, although there was a downturn in attendance last year, club member James Fryar said.

"It was way down last year, and I don't know why," Fryar said. "Usually, we're really busy all week." Monday through Thursday, club members will hold several classes for both avid carvers and neophytes. Those classes include:

- Monday — beginners' class hosted by Fryar
- Tuesday — carving on a 2-by-2-by-6 block of wood, conducted by Jim Stewart.
- Wednesday — carving a bolo tie decoration, conducted by Lloyd Claxton.
- Thursday — carving a duck hunter caricature, hosted by Wanda Rictart.

Thursday's class costs $50, while the others are free. All necessary carving items will be supplied, Fryar said.

Election polls drawing few voters so far

By LYNDEL MOODY
 Herald Staff reporter

To say turnout for early voting in this latest round of state constitutional amendments has been light is definitely an understatement. "By yesterday, we had 100 persons voting so far and eight mail-in ballots," Howard County Election Administrator Sandra Bloom said Friday morning. "I think that is about 6/10 of a percent of the registered voters. We will be open all next week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m."

By the end of day Friday, the election office reported 154 votes have been cast in the election locally.

Early voting continues through Nov. 1, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday at the election office in the Howard County Courthouse. This election will decide the fate of nine constitutional amendments. "This turnout is typical of constitutional elections," Bloom said. "We are getting about the same participation as other counties are unless there is a local issue on the ballot." As the first state-wide election under the new College board can vote on appraisal rep

By LYNDEL MOODY
 Herald Staff Reporter

Thanks to the last Texas legislative session, Howard College board of trustees now has voting privileges on who serves on the Howard County Appraisal Board. "For many years, the community colleges have not had representation on the Appraisal District Board," said Dr. Cheryl Sparks, Howard College president. "The law did not allow for the community colleges to be a part of that and that changed in the last session. The college can vote for directors as the other taxing entities."

Howard County Chief Appraiser Ronny Babcock is scheduled to give a presentation on the voting process during the Monday's board meeting, set for 12:30 p.m. in the Student Union Building's Tumbleweed Room at College says squirrel vandalized bicycle

ESTHERVILLE, Iowa (AP) — A squirrel roaming a community college in northern Iowa has become the No. 1 suspect in a vandalized bicycle incident.

Officials at Iowa Lakes Community College in Estherville say the rodent chewed through two tires, a bicycle seat, a headlight and a taillight in the span of two days beginning Wednesday.

The Sioux City Journal reports the bicycle owner, an associate math professor, reported the incidents to Estherville police. Another professor later came forward with a photo that shows the squirrel attacking the bike.

A school spokeswoman says the photo helps solve the mystery of how the bicycle was vandalized without witnesses seeing a suspect.

The professor has since parked his bicycle indoors.

Police in Pa. say trail of fries led to suspect

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Police in central Pennsylvania say they found a suspected groper of a fast-food worker by following a trail of curly fries.

It started when a female employee at an Arby's in East Lampeter Township, Lancaster County, called police Wednesday night saying she was groped by a man as she handed over his order at the drive-thru window.

The employee gave police a description of the car, which was found outside a motel less than a mile away.

Authorities said they spotted a trail of Arby's curly fries and sauce from the vehicle to the room of 36-year-old James Cowan of Fitzgerald, Ga.

He was charged with a single count of indecent assault and released on bail pending a Nov. 1 hearing.

Venezuela government creates happiness agency

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Americans may insist on the right to pursue happiness, but Venezuela now has a formal government agency in charge of enforcing it.

President Nicolas Maduro says the new Vice Ministry of Supreme Social Happiness will coordinate all the "mission" programs created by the late President Hugo Chavez to alleviate poverty.

Wags had a field day Friday, waxing sarcastic on Twitter about how happy they felt less than 24 hours after the announcement.

Oil-rich Venezuela is chronically short of basic goods and medical supplies. Annual inflation is running officially at near 50 percent and the U.S. dollar now fetches more than seven times the official rate on the black market.

In downtown Caracas, fruit vendor Victor Rey said he's now waiting for Maduro to create a vice ministry of beer.

"That would make me, and all the drunks, happy," he said.

A TV journalist whose show was recently forced off the air after he refused to censor political opponents of the ruling socialists, Leopoldo Castillo, called Maduro's announcement an international embarrassment.

Housewife Liliana Alfonzo, 31, said that instead of a Supreme Happiness agency she'd prefer being able to get milk and toilet paper, which disappear off store shelves minutes after arriving at stores.

"It's a Calvary getting the ingredients for any meal," she said.

Maduro blames the shortages on speculation and hoarding, but merchants say they would go broke if they adhered to government price controls.

Chavez spent billions on social programs, from benefits for single mothers to handouts of apartments and major appliances.

Maduro was elected April 14 as Chavez's chosen successor.

City OKs ice cream truck after long freeze

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Ice cream trucks have been frozen out of Scottsdale, Ariz., for decades, but a 16-year-old girl is the first to benefit from a recent thaw.

On Thursday, Mayor W.J. "Jim" Lane gave Sydney Kirsch the city's first ice cream truck license since the vehicles were banned in the 1970s.

The Phoenix high school student is the owner of Leo's Ice Cream, whose previous owner led an effort to overturn the ban.

Kirsch told The Arizona Republic that she'll balance ice cream duties with her school work and other extracurricular activities.

Some residents had opposed ice cream trucks, saying they would lead to more accidents involving children and more strangers on city streets.

But the Scottsdale City Council approved an ordinance in April allowing the trucks back on the Phoenix suburb's streets.

School locked down by woman who needed bathroom

NORTON, Mass. (AP) — Police in a Massachusetts town say an elementary school was briefly locked down when a woman who really needed to use the bathroom tried to get in.

Norton Police say on their Facebook page that J.C. Solmonese School was locked down Thursday morning because a suspicious person tried to get in several doors.

School staffers called police. The woman said she just had to use the bathroom.

She was deemed not a threat but told she may face charges.

Woman who donated kidney weds recipient

BROWNSBURG, Ind. (AP) — A central Indiana woman who promised to donate one of her kidneys to a man she barely knew has married him three years after his successful transplant surgery.

Chelsea Clair and Kyle Froelich met at a 2009 car show when he was 19 and she was 22. Clair learned that day that Froelich had a serious kidney disease — and she told him then and there she would give him one of hers.

She underwent the necessary tests and ended up being a near perfect match. Three years ago, she donated one of her kidneys to Froelich.

voter ID laws, Bloom said transition has for the most part gone smoothly.

"It's going fine," she said. "We've had a few corrections to make to match the ID to what we have on file, but we've not had anything of significant. We want to make sure everything matches before we send out the new mail-outs."

Acceptable forms of photo ID are:

- Texas driver's license.

- Texas Election Identification Certificate (issued by Department of Public Safety).

- Texas personal identification card (issued by DPS).

- Texas concealed handgun license.

- U.S. military ID card containing the person's photograph.

- U.S. citizenship certificate containing the person's photograph.

- U.S. Passport.

Voters who do not have the above identification can apply at the Department of Public Safety office for an Election Identification Certificate. Bloom said those who have questions can call or visit the election office for help. Voters must register 30 day prior to any election to be eligible.

Once this election ends on Nov. 5, the election office will begin to gear up for the primary season, Bloom added.

"The first day to register your intent to seek an elected office — county or state — will be Nov. 9 in order to be placed on the ballot," Bloom said.

The contest portion of the show will be held Friday. Entries in a variety of classes — ranging from miniatures to relief carvings to religious items — will be judged, with a winner in each division as well as a Best in Show announced.

On Saturday, the public will be invited — admission is free — to browse and buy various carvings, and vote for the People's Choice award, Fryar said.

There will be drawings for two specialty items — a Christmas tree complete with 100 hand-carved ornaments and a Noah's Ark filled with 36 handmade animals.

The club, which boasts members from across the West Texas area, meets on the third Monday of each month at 6 p.m. in the Sibley Learning Center on Garfield Street in Midland.

"Woodcarving seems to attract mostly retired or semi-retired people," Fryar said. "We have club members as young as 14, but it's mostly older people looking for a relatively inexpensive hobby."

In other business, trustees will hear an update on the college's dental hygiene program plan that aims to place students closer to their hometown once they begin the clinical phase of their studies. The program attracts students from around the region, Sparks added.

"We are strategizing ways to be able to provide satellite locations for some of the clinical locations and working on different approaches that will not only serve the communities but give our students the opportunities to have rotations closer to some of their homes when they get to that part of program," she said.

Also on the agenda trustees will:

- * Consider personnel matters.

- * Hear the annual delinquent tax collection report.

- * Hear an update on on-going construction projects.

- * Consider catalogue and handbook changes.

The Dialville turtle is a big un

Dialville is a little place between Rusk and Jacksonville that developed in the 1880s when John Dial opened a store on a railroad line. The place was originally called Dial, but when residents applied for a post office, there was already a Dial in Fannin County, so the post office was named Dialville. It became a shipping point for tomatoes, peaches and other produce. At the town's peak in 1915 it had two churches, a school, a bank, two newspapers and a theater. About 200 people live there now. A store in Dialville sells sandwiches, coffee and a few other essentials. It's a meeting place for neighbors and sometimes there's a domino game going on.

Annette Kimbrell of Dialville has a turtle.

"Down at the Dialville store one day, the owner, Rebecca, had a big ole turtle in the back of her truck and she asked us if we had a place to keep it. I told her yeah, we had ponds and everything. That turtle was big, really a neat looking turtle. It was a soft shell."

Annette asked Rebecca how she got the turtle.

"She said this guy came in and he was drunker than Cooter Brown. He had this big turtle with him and every time that poor turtle would poke his head out, he'd pop it in the head with his fist. So they got to feeling sorry for the turtle and asked the man if they could buy the turtle for five dollars. The guy said, 'why, sure.' About that time, that turtle stuck out his big ole long neck, reached around and bit that guy on the belly. He wasn't wearing a shirt. Anyway, they gave us the turtle."

The turtle has found a home in a pond right above a zip line that Annette and her husband Billy started in their back yard in July of 2011. Their business is called Adrenaline Rush Zip Line Tours. Zip lines cross over ponds and treetops on some of the highest elevations in East Texas. During the Christmas season, the zip lines are lighted.

There are group rates, but for $50 a person can ride five zip lines.

Sixty dollars gets you on seven and 75 bucks gets you on eight. The most expensive one includes a ride on one of the longest zip lines in Texas. It's 1,700 feet long and people hooked to it reach speeds up to 40 miles an hour.

Adrenaline Rush provides all the necessary equipment for a ride, but closed-toed shoes are required. People eight years and older can ride, provided they weigh between 65 and 275 pounds. The rides are by reservation only (903 683-6855 or info@daretozip.com).

Annette and her husband live on 109 acres of land and have mined iron ore on their property and in the neighboring area.

Some of that ore is beneath a layer of sandstone, which has some unique patterns in it. Annette thought it was attractive. She rocked the outside of her house with it.

"I was thinking of having someone else do it, but when I found out how much it would cost, I thought I would try my hand at it. I rocked that whole entire house all by myself. It took three years to do it."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Good of the students

TO THE EDITOR:

To the people of Big Spring, I have been an educator of young minds and talent for 34 years, 31 of which have been with the Big Spring ISD and I would like to say that I am encouraged by the current direction the district is moving in at this time.

In my opinion, Mr. Wigginton is a stable influence on the schools. I have seen him on the campus for which I am assigned more in the past two months than I ever saw his predecessor. The district, as all Texas districts, is struggling to get certified employees against a private employment climate of better pay and benefits. We need all the certified instructors in the classroom, not in administrative positions.

More instructors lower the class ratio and provide extra moments of instruction time to check understanding and advance learning. During the 31 years here at Big Spring ISD, I have seen several superintendents move through the system, some beneficial and some creating more problems. Casting a wide net search for superintendents has been the standard method of acquiring new administration, however it is not a guarantee of a proper fit for our community.

Board members are elected by the citizens of Big Spring and in some elections it has been a tough find for someone to dedicate their time and energy for the good of the school and community. I have spoken before the board on several different occasions and have felt like they have heard me with the same respect I showed to them. I appreciate the job they do though I may not always agree with all their decisions.

Education is always in motion and sometimes that change can be shocking but it does not mean it should be confrontational. We as adults must remember that students come in all shapes and sizes and often a middle road is the best as those who struggle can see light at the end of the tunnel and those more advance tend to

With a song in her heart

Composer George Ger-shwin and Stephenville elementary school music teacher Virginia Bond would likely have agreed on much.

She would have drawn the line, however, on the premise of his hit composition, "Summertime," objecting to the line about it being "easy."

For her, it was the dreariest time of all. It was in this season each year that she was separated from her beloved music students, and she endured 65 consecutive summers — one for each of the 65 years she taught.

They gathered by the hundreds a few days ago in Stephenville at her memorial service.

Some were from three-generation families whose members had been in her classes. All had "Virginia Bond stories," a common thread about how she used music to convince her students — from the least able to those oozing with talent — that they all mattered. And that they all had songs in their hearts.

They spoke of her being a "Southern lady," always in Sunday dress and high heels, always joyous and dignified, and always engaging and humble. Someone said she was by all measures a "bondservant," pointing to one biblical definition — "devotion to others with total disregard for one's own well-being." A native of nearby Dublin, she finished public school there before enrolling in what was then a two-year school, John Tarleton Agricultural College. She studied music at what is now the University of North Texas, earning Bachelor of Music (1945) and Master of Music degrees (1956).

From the mid-1940s until retirement when her health started to fail in 2009, she served Stephenville ISD.

She never married. Instead, she loved her students, her parents who resided with her until their final years, and her pets. There was a long line of dogs and cats. The last was a feline named "Ringo".

Many of her students pursued musical careers. Jim Perry, a retired band director, said he remembers clearly the day Miss Bond explained what "whole notes" mean.

Terry Price, who officiated at the service, was in her class 58 years ago. He recalled these simple lines: "I'm Peter Rabbit, sometimes I'm the Easter Bunny. I'm just a rabbit, people think I'm cute and funny."

Some of the folks remembered attending her Sunday school class as second-graders. She taught the class at First Baptist Church for more than 50 years.

When she retired at age 85, the City of Stephenville presented her the first-ever "key to the city." But her "keys" of love, music and devotion already had unlocked the hearts of many citizens who are former students.

This was but one of stacks of awards she received across the years.

Dr. Darrell Floyd, Stephenville ISD superintendent, says a permanent display of her memorabilia will be featured in the lobby of "Virginia Bond Auditorium," a building named in her honor in 1997. How fitting. Until the building was purchased and converted to an auditorium, it was a church.

Miss Bond lived independently until a few years ago, when Alzheimer's got the upper hand.

Visitors during her final weeks were generally unrecognizable and her responses were limited.

However, a couple of months ago, she proved there still was a song in her heart. Joy Jones, a longtime friend, asked her if she'd like to play the piano — an instrument the beloved teacher had loved since age four. It was one of her rare "good days," and Miss Bond timidly put her hands on the keys....

Joy sang the first verse of "In the Garden," then Miss Bond joined in, tentatively, but capably and softly. She still had a song in her heart.

In one memorial note, a former student wrote: "She was a composer, director, producer, pianist, artist, seamstress, teacher and angel."

That pretty much sums it up.

One incident late in her life led to an expansion of her "Sunday best" wardrobe. Breaking up a minor scuffle at school, she sustained a broken arm. She was asked to wear pants and tennis shoes to therapy.

She owned neither, but agreed to buy one pair of pants. She couldn't abide wearing tennis shoes, however.

So, she was allowed to do therapy in her pumps. After all, she was Virginia Bond. And, she did therapy "her way."

Local businesses support our Howard County instructors

This year's holiday season will be brighter for the approximately 900 school personnel from the Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan Independent School Districts.

"To show their appreciation for the countless hours, passion and important work evident in our schools by teachers and staff, the Big Spring Business community has stepped up to say thank you in a significant way," said the Rev. Ken McIntosh, Big Spring Independent School District board member.

We Support Our Teachers is a campaign coordinated by McIntosh. Twenty-eight businesses and six sponsors have made it possible for all school personnel to stretch their dollars a little farther this holiday season.

Teachers and staff will receive a one-time 10 percent discount at each of the participating businesses through Dec. 31.

Listed alphabetically, they are Ace Hardware, Bean's World Café, Big Spring Health Food Store, Blum's Jewelers, Carlos Restaurant, Christy's Hair Studio, Crispy's Café, Elrod's Furniture, Faye's Flowers, Great Scott! T-shirt Studio, Heritage Museum Gift Shop, Inspirations Flowers and Gifts, Jake Witzel's Gifts and Interiors, Johansen's Landscape and Nursery, Kitty Galore's Vintage Store, Klassic Kleaners, Leonard's Clinic Pharmacy, LoCo Flamingos, Maribel's Handbags and More, Merle Norman Cosmetic Studio, My Favorite Place, Pizza Inn, Professional Pharmacy, Red Barn Studio, Suggs Hallmark, The Nutritional Weigh and Ward's Western Wear.

We Support Our Teachers is sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, KBST Radio, First Baptist Church, First Christian Church, First Presbyterian Church and Hillcrest Baptist Church.

"Our school districts are blessed with great teachers," said McIntosh. "We Support Our Teachers seeks to demonstrate our community's deep appreciation for the incredibly important work done by teachers who daily listen to our children and young people, challenge them, and encourage them to succeed.

"Even though this initial project ends Dec. 31, I want to coordinate another similar effort next spring. Any businesses that would like to be part of this project next spring are encouraged to contact me at kenmcintosh1952@yahoo.com."

Code Patrol Corner

Code Patrol has been reactivated and is one of the arm's of Keep Big Spring Beautiful. The organization works closely with our city's Code Enforcement, being an extra set of eyes. We report violations we observe to them for investigation. There are a lot of violations being observed.

One violation in particular is all over town, "garage sale" signs posted on utility poles. Also, if you put boxes out with your sign on it, it should be picked up after your sale, otherwise, you can be charged with littering. Garage sale signs were under control for a time, but now they are all over the place, so be warned, you could be cited. Any sign put up must be removed within 24 hours after the end of the sale.

Activity of Code Patrol is just not the "garage sale" signs, it is whatever violations we observe from accumulation of weed, trash and rubbish that creates unsanitary condition to grass more than 12" tall, that is a violation.

Junk vehicles are a huge problem all over our city. A junk vehicle is classified and defined as inoperable, expired license plate, invalid inspection sticker, wrecked, dismantled, or has remained inoperable for more than 30 consecutive days.

Parking cars in a front yard on a grassy surface is a violation, and one of the councilmen brought that before the city council a few weeks back. The Zoning Ordinance prohibits vehicles parked in the front yard unless it is on a hard, approved service.

Should anyone wish to make a complaint, they may call Code Enforcement at 264-2505 or go by Code Enforcement at 501 Runnels, Polly Mays Annex.

BAD ACCIDENT

One person was airlifted to Midland Memorial Hospital after a one-vehicle accident which occurred on the Interstate 20 east-bound service road near Exit 177 Friday afternoon. According to Department of Public Safety officers at the scene, the driver turned onto the service road at an unsafe speed which led the truck carrying asphalt to turn over. The incident occurred near Cauble Road.

Medicare woes

TO THE EDITOR:
It is getting harder every day to get a doctor to accept Medicare!

Medical supplies are just as hard to obtain. Seniors continue to get some coverage from Medicare but the amount they pay the doctors is pathetic. No doctor can make ends meet with these kinds of payments thus limiting doctor's ability to see Medicare patients!

If this is good enough for the people, it is good enough for Washington. Sincerely,
DONALD HOLMAN

Thanks to all who helped

TO THE EDITOR:
I would like to thank 911 for the quick response to my house to transfer my son to the ER at Scenic Mountain Medical Center and for the staff there that took such good care of him. Also, to all the staff in

Thanks for letting a good kid get away

TO THE EDITOR:
I am writing this letter to thank our school district for letting an excellent student get away. The student that I am speaking about is my granddaughter, Alexia Rawls.

While she was here, since the second grade, she had excellent grades. She was in band, athletics, Junior National Honor Society, on the yearbook staff.

Her eighth grade year at the junior high was horrible. She was bullied to the point that she wanted to take her own life. I wish I could name the ones who did the bullying but they know who they are. The principals and the staff at the junior high did absolutely nothing and said she was a liar. I know that was said because it was said in front of me.

They took the sides of the girls who made her life horrible and threatened her, instead of not taking the word of a honor student who never skipped class. Some of the teachers would listen to her but not many, only a few.

But I would like to thank them for making my granddaughter's life hell. Because of the advice of her principal at the time, they moved to Washington state in August. Because of that, she is now going to Curtis Sr. High in Tacoma and is doing just fantastic! The teachers there actually care about their students' welfare; bullying is not there, all the classes are together.

My granddaughter is a 10th grader, they are juniors and seniors all together. They get only two report cards a year. They can dress how they want. In other words, these kids can be themselves.

The parents all get involved with what the students do; it is awesome how the community rallies around them.

Lexie is taking culinary classes, is member of the culinary club, band and is on the Curtis bowling team.

So you see, BSISD, I wish to thank you for not taking up for Lexie. She is so much better off where she is at. So, again thank you for not doing your job.

Spike in Texas foster deaths triggers safety plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A troubling spike in Texas foster care deaths due to abuse or neglect is “not acceptable” according to a new state safety plan released Friday in response to more foster mistreatment deaths in the past year than the previous four combined.

The Department of Family and Protective Services report calls for more training and more unannounced visits to foster homes. At least eight foster children in Texas died from abuse or neglect in the fiscal year that ended in August.

Spokesman Patrick Crimmings said Friday that number may increase to nine, and that last week’s death of an 11-month-old girl near Austin will also likely be determined abuse. Investigators say the infant’s skull was fractured, and a man has been charged with injury to the child in the death.

The number of deaths is a fourfold increase from two foster mistreatment deaths in 2012, and more than the five combined abuse or neglect deaths from fiscal years 2009 to 2012.

He also said state child welfare officials have found no underlying cause that explains the increase. Seven of the eight confirmed mistreatment deaths in the past year were the result of neglectful supervision, according to the new report. That includes drownings, suicide and sleep-related deaths.

Ashley Harris, a former state child welfare caseworker who is now with the Austin-based nonprofit Texans Care for Children, testified in Washington this week during a congressional hearing on nationwide failures in the foster care system.

Harris said Friday she had not yet seen the state’s new safety plan but blamed “chronic underfunding” on unmanageable state caseworker loads.

“Caseworkers are the people charged with protecting some of our most vulnerable children and should be provided a manageable caseload that ensures appropriate supervision that does not leave children at risk for further abuse and neglect and promotes the best outcomes for kids,” Harris wrote in an email.

The Austin American-Statesman reported Friday that Jacob Salas, a 32-year-old suburban Austin man accused in last week’s death of 11-month-old Orion Destiny Hamilton, had been investigated for child neglect allegations three times. Court records also show Salas wasn’t supposed to be around the baby or his three biological children, according to the newspaper.

Salas is being held in the Williamson County jail without bail. Jail records show no information about whether he has an attorney.

Under the state’s new foster system safety plan, child welfare workers will develop a “safety recognition card” to make sure they identify potential risks in the homes of children with exceptional medical needs. It also calls for amending agency rules to put limitation on the number of such children who can be placed in one home.

West Texas man sentenced for bank robberies

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A man has been sentenced to nearly 12 years in prison for three bank and credit union robberies in West Texas in late 2012 and early this year.

Jeffrey Hensley of Lubbock had pleaded guilty in July to three counts of bank robbery and credit union robbery, and he had been in custody since his arrest in April.

The 42-year-old was sentenced Friday during a federal court hearing in Lubbock.

Federal prosecutors say Hensley robbed the First United Bank on Sept. 14, 2012; the Plains Capital Bank on Dec. 8; and the Alliance Federal Credit Union on Feb. 13.

Prosecutors say during all three Lubbock holdups a robber slipped a threatening note to tellers and then fled with an undetermined amount of cash.

Ex-Texas soldier sentenced in child abuse case

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An ex-Texas soldier who blamed post-traumatic stress disorder for sexually assaulting a 3-year-old boy has been sentenced to 30 years in federal prison.

Former Army Sgt. Wade Allen Perkins acknowledged to authorities that he coerced his girlfriend, also a former soldier, into sex acts with the child.

The San Antonio Express-News reports that at a sentencing hearing Friday in San Antonio, Chief U.S. District Judge Fred Biery said he wished he could have given Perkins more time for the production of child pornography charge.

The abuse happened while the soldiers were at Joint Base San Antonio-Fort Sam Houston.

Perkins’ girlfriend, ex-Army Sgt. Kimberly Dianne Epperson, has pleaded guilty in the case and is set to be sentenced Nov. 22.

The boy has since been placed in protective custody.

2 hurt when small plane crashes in Texas Panhandle

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Two people have been hurt when their small plane experienced engine trouble and crash-landed in a park in the Texas Panhandle.

The 1976 Cessna struck utility poles on its descent Friday morning, knocking out power to some parts of Borger, about 45 miles northeast of Amarillo.

The Texas Department of Public Safety says owner and operator Joe Max Shelton, 74, and passenger Sally Shelton, 71, suffered minor injuries and were taken to a Borger hospital. The Sheltons are from Memphis, Tenn., and were traveling to Santa Fe, N.M.

They attempted to land at Borger airport but the plane lost power, forcing it down in the park adjacent to a community center.

DPS says the Federal Aviation Administration is investigating the crash.

Ex-school principal convicted of child sex crime

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A former North Texas elementary school principal has been convicted following his arrest in July for trying to arrange a sexual tryst with a teenage boy in South Florida.

Federal prosecutors say 54-year-old Stephen Anthony Paulsen of Fort Worth, Texas, was convicted Thursday of enticing a minor to engage in illegal sexual activity. He faces a sentence of at least 10 years.

Paulsen was working as a principal in Arlington, Texas, at the time of his arrest.

Prosecutors say he used a social-networking site to send sexually explicit messages to a person he believed to be a 15-year-old. The recipient of the messages was actually an undercover officer.

Paulsen was in Florida visiting family when he was arrested in Boynton Beach as he attempted to meet the boy, who he believed to be home alone.

Houston man fatally shot after assaulting mom

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police say an officer fatally shot a man who stabbed his mother during an argument in an apartment.

Police responding to a domestic disturbance call Thursday evening encountered 22-year-old Matthew Swiney, who answered the door armed with a hammer.

Authorities say Swiney then shut the door and barricaded himself in the apartment. Officers heard a woman, later identified as Swiney’s 47-year-old mother, screaming. The officers saw through a window Swiney armed with a knife and dragging his mother.

Police say after Swiney ignored multiple commands to drop the knife, Officer A. Garza Jr. shot him. Swiney died at a local hospital. His mother, who had stab wounds, was listed in serious condition.

The shooting is being reviewed by police and the Harris County District Attorney’s Office.

Saudi women’s driving kicks off without arrests

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — Saudi activists said more than 60 women claimed to have answered their call on Saturday to get behind the wheel in a rare show of defiance against a ban on female driving in the ultraconservative kingdom.

Saudi professor and campaigner Aziza Youssef said the group has received 13 videos and another 50 phone messages from women showing or claiming they had driven. She said they have no way to verify the messages.

If the numbers are accurate, this year’s campaign is the most successful effort yet by Saudi women demanding the right to drive. Youssef said they have not received any reports of arrests or women being ticketed by police.

A security official said that authorities did not arrest or fine any female drivers on Saturday. He spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to speak to the media.

However, there have been a few roadblocks along the way.

Youssef said she and four other prominent women activists received phone calls this week from a top official with close links to Interior Minister Prince Mohammed bin Nayef, warning them not to drive on Saturday, the day the campaign set for women’s driving.

Though no specific Saudi law bans women from driving, women are not issued licenses. They mostly rely on drivers or male relatives to move around.

Powerful clerics who hold far-reaching influence over the monarchy enforce the driving ban, warning that breaking it will spread “licentiousness.” A prominent cleric caused a stir when he said last month that medical studies show that driving a car harms a woman’s ovaries.

The kingdom’s first major driving protest came in 1990 when some 50 women drove their cars. They were jailed for a day, had their passports confiscated and lost their jobs. In June 2011, about 40 women got behind the wheel in several cities in a protest sparked when a woman was arrested after posting a video of herself driving.

The atmosphere appeared more tolerant this year and state newspapers for the first time have run near daily commentary on the issue. Reforms made by the monarchy since the last 2011 driving campaign may have readied the deeply conservative nation for change. Changes include allowing women to sit on the national advisory council and a decision by King Abdullah to permit women to vote and run in municipal elections in 2015.

May Al Sawyan, a 32-year-old mother of two and an economic researcher, told The Associated Press that she drove from her home in Riyadh to the grocery store and back.

Like other female drivers defying the ban in Saudi Arabia, Al Sawyan said she has obtained a driver’s license from abroad.

“I am very happy and proud that there was no reaction against me,” she said. “There were some cars that drove by. They were surprised, but it was just a glance. It is fine ... They are not used to seeing women driving here.”

In the run-up to the Oct. 26 driving campaign, Interior Ministry spokesman Mansour al-Turki warned that anyone disturbing public order would be dealt with forcefully. That same language was used in charges levied against a female driver in 2011.

Women have been posting videos almost daily of themselves driving since the campaign’s website was launched in late September, enraging conservatives in the country who accused the government of not doing anything to stop them from flouting the ban. In one incident this month, two women were pulled over by police who made them sign a letter stating they would not drive or be in the car with a female driver. Their husbands were called to pick them up.

Ultraconservative clerics, angry the government is not cracking down harder, protested earlier in the week against the online petition campaign.

The four-minute video uploaded Saturday of Al Sawyan showed her wearing sunglasses and her face was visible. Her hair was covered by the traditional black headscarf worn by Saudi women.

Al Sawyan said she was prepared for the risk of detention if caught. She said she was far enough from a police car that she was not spotted.

“I just took a small loop. I didn’t drive for a long way, but it was fine. I went to the grocery store,” she said.

Her husband and family waited at home and called her nervously when she arrived at the store to check on her, she said. She drove with a local female television reporter in the car. They were both without male relatives in the vehicle, which in itself defies the country’s strict norms requiring women to have a male guardian in public.

Deputy editor-in-chief of the state-backed newspaper Saudi Gazette, Somayya Jabarti, said she envies her male co-workers who can jump in their cars and leave the office while she has to coordinate ahead of time for a driver or relative.

A streak is born

Big Spring comes out on top of 65-42 shootout with Mustangs

By BRIAN MCCORMACK
Sports Editor

SWEETWATER — Out to prove they're no fluke, the Steers (6-2) traveled to Mustang Bowl Friday to take on Sweetwater (3-5) — as well as earn their second consecutive district victory.

They did just that. Big Spring defeated the Mustangs 65-42, asserting its dominance in a district it couldn't find a way to win in the past two seasons. But good things come to those who wait. And BSHS Head Coach Phillip Ritchey is glad the wait is over. Not only are the Steers a shoe-in for the playoffs, they could win or split the 4-3A title.

"We're sitting right where we want to sit," Ritchey said. "We control our own destiny. It feels real good. And it's great for the kids. It's hard to put in all that hard work and not make it to the playoffs. But hopefully, we will be celebrating a district championship here in a couple of weeks, whether it belongs to us or we share it."

The Steers' offensive machine began cranking up just moments into the first quarter when freshman running back Preston Alexander scored on a 30-yard run. The PAT kick by Devin Roberson was good and Big Spring drew first blood with a 7-0 lead.

Sweetwater has the ability to put points on the board, however, and it promptly answered back with a 16-yard rushing TD of its own.

With 25 seconds left in the first frame, BSHS quarterback Tobyn Tannehill connected with a 27-yard pass to Ryan Lopez to go up 14-7.

The Mustangs tried an unexpected onside kick and recovered the ball, but penalties nullified the play and Big Spring ended up starting its drive from its own 25-yard line.

Again, Sweetwater wasn't fazed, adding another touchdown to knot the game at 14.

After 1:47 of passing and rushing effectively, Alexander capped a short drive with a

Forsan falls to defending champ Stamford

Forsan sophomore Walker Park has been an offensive force in the past few outings for the Buffaloes (3-5), but FHS was mostly shut down in a 47-7 loss to defending 1A champion Stamford Friday on the road. The Buffs will meet another powerhouse in Anson (8-0) this coming Friday.

STAMFORD — Forsan (3-5) scored a touchdown when Kolby Self found the end zone in the fourth quarter against the defending state champs, but it wasn't enough as the Buffaloes were shut down by Stamford (7-1) Friday.

Prior to the game, Head Coach Jason Phillips said it would be a mental battle as the undersized Buffs traveled to hostile territory to take on one of the best teams in the state.

"Our preparation is really not any different," he said. "You just have to make the kids believe we can play with them. The odds will be against us, but if they make a couple of mistakes and we play well, we have a chance to come out on top."

Unfortunately for Phillips and Co., all the mental preparation in the world couldn't slow down the Bulldogs — at least not in the first half. A series of mistakes by Forsan leading to costly turnovers proved to be its undoing.

"We made some mistakes early," he said. "They didn't have to move the ball too far on any of their touchdowns. We gave them a short field. And maybe we were a little nervous. That's our focus this week — to come out and play from the first snap."

Stamford was dominant in the first half, outscoring the Buffs 40-0. But the second half was a different story.

Forsan held the Bulldogs to just a single touchdown, as well as matched their point total on the 25-yard TD run by Self.

Coahoma falls to undefeated Crane 34-6

Coahoma senior Shanen Warneke pulls in a reception during the Bulldogs' 34-6 loss to Crane Friday. CHS (1-7) will have a chance to earn its second win against Regan County this coming Friday.

By Brian McCormack

CRANE — The Bulldogs had another mountain to climb Friday in Crane and the undefeated Cranes remained perfect, as Coahoma fell to 1-7 after a 34-6 loss.

On paper — as has become the norm with the Bulldogs — things didn't appear so lopsided. CHS had 11 first downs to Crane's 13 and although they were outgained 396-213 total yards, the running game was again solid.

Sophomore Kyler Franks was responsible for the only Bulldog touchdown, as he found the end zone on a four-yard run in the third quarter to make a 14-6 game.

But that's the only offense Coahoma could generate, as Crane went on to score three more TDs in the second half, as the Bulldogs sputtered.

Junior quarterback Braxton Iden connected with 5-of-13 passes for 70 yards and carried the ball nine times for 53 yards.

Franks led CHS in rushing with 23 carries for 80 yards and a TD, as well as receiving with 43 yards on three catches.

One upside to the dismal season is the valuable experience Head Coach Trey Gardner's roster of mostly underclassmen is gaining.

After graduating several seniors in 2012, Gardner knew this year would be a tough one, as Coahoma finds its identity and works through inexperience.

The next test for the Bulldogs should be significantly easier, as they play at home against the Reagan County Owls, who have struggled a bit a 2-6.

FORSAN

"They came out with a new attitude," Phillips said of his squad's halftime adjustments. The effort was much better. Once they realized they can play with these guys, they settled down and made a much better effort."

In a five-team district populated by two powerhouses in Stamford and undefeated Anson, Forsan has an uphill battle. A rout of Haskell and a potential win over Winters could be enough to propel the Buffaloes into the postseason, however.

"There's still an outside chance we can tie for first," Phillips added. "If we can take care of business these last two games, we can definitely still make the playoffs."

Despite the lopsided win-loss record, FHS fans can hold their heads high. In a four-game predistrict losing streak, three defeats came at the hands of Class AA schools with more depth, at a time when the Buffaloes were undermanned as a result of injuries.

Forsan will play host to Anson on Friday, with kickoff slated for 7:30 p.m.

STEERS

25-yard TD run.

That's when the Steer defense was called upon for successful red zone stop. It was up to the challenge and with under two minutes left in the half, Alexander scored from inches away on a handoff to make it 28-14.

That's when BSHS began to pull away.

A Mustang fumble was recovered by Big Spring, culminating in a 33-yard field goal by Roberson to increase the lead to 31-14.

Alexander's only blunder of the game came when he was stripped of the ball on the next Steer possession. Sweetwater made BSHS pay as it was returned 54 yards for a touchdown with 8:50 remaining in the third stanza.

Tannehill then found Tate Kennedy, who made a 39-yard reception for a score, but SHS answered back with a TD to make it a 38-28 game. After moving the chains on a gain by Hunter Hill, a catch by Roberson and a roughing penalty by the Mustangs, Tannehill hit Lopez, this time in the far right corner of the end zone for another score.

Garrett Wigington came up with an interception to cut the next Sweetwater drive short and Hunter Hill put the game out of reach with a two-yard touchdown to make 52-28.

Hill added another touchdown on an 11 second drive the next time the Steers got the ball and the last Big Spring score came on 45-yard keeper by Tannehill.

Altogether, the Steers compiled 554 yards to the Mustangs 465 and were involved in the second game this season where the point total eclipsed 100.

When asked if the defense was too porous for a playoff run, Ritchey dismissed the notion.

"We don't want to give up 40 points," he explained. "But as long as we get 60, it doesn't matter. When you have a 28 or 30 point lead, you loosen up a bit. You just try not to give up the big plays. We did give up a few big plays, but it's hard to maintain that intensity on the defense when you're scoring the way we have been. Friday, it came down to whoever got the big stop. Our defense was the key to the game in the first half."

Any Big Spring fan could have told you this season had a lot of potential. A veteran defense, an offense which has scored at least 35 points in every outing except one, well-rounded play in all three phases of the game, but Ritchey again credited the offensive line for the most successful season in recent memory.

"To me, you can't put up those kind of numbers without a good offensive line," he added. "We have good players at the skill positions, but you can't run and pass consistently without a solid offensive line. We just have a lot of talent there and it opens up a lot of options for us on offense."

Next week, the Steers should again come away the victors as they travel to Greenwood to meet the beleaguered Rangers (2-6). The final regular season game will be at home against Monahans (6-2), which edged Snyder 35-34 Friday.

The bidding:

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

Bridge is largely a game of percentages, but it is first and foremost a game of reasoning. Whenever possible, a player should try to improve on the cold mathematical percentages by putting to use any extraneous information he might gain as the play progresses. If he does this regularly, he will occasionally discover that the so-called percentage play is destined to lose, and that his only real chance is to adopt an anti-percentage play.

For example, take this deal where South lost the first two club tricks and ruffed the third club. Declarer had to lose a diamond trick, so the contract hinged on not losing a trick to the king of hearts.

Declarer knew that the correct percentage play in hearts, missing three to the king, was to lead the jack from dummy and finesse. This would offer a much better chance of avoiding a heart loser than simply playing the ace in the hope of catching the singleton king.

But before committing himself to this line of play, South decided to collect a bit more information about the opposing hands. So at trick four, he led the diamond deuce to the queen, and when this lost to East's ace, he realized he would have to abandon the normal percentage play in trumps and instead pin his hopes on finding West with the singleton king. This was because East had passed at his first turn and had already shown up with the A-Q of clubs and ace of diamonds. Had he also held the king of hearts, he would surely have opened the bidding.

And so, after East returned a diamond at trick five, South won with the king and laid down the ace of hearts, felling West's king to score a well-deserved victory. The collateral information declarer collected during the early play had changed the percentage play into a non-percentage play.

Lady Steers fend off Sweetwater, rally to win in three straight sets

By BRIAN MCCORMACK

Sports Editor

SWEETWATER — Big Spring had a slight scare as it fell behind in the first two sets, but the Lady Steers (27-12, 6-3) battled back to defeat the Lady Mustangs (12-21, 3-6) after two rallies and a dominant third set.

Julianna Rodriguez's 20 digs and Morgan Seaton's 19 assists, 9 kills and 12 digs were key to the victory, but as usual, it was an all-around effort By Big Spring.

After trailing in the early going, BSHS tied it at 11-all in the first set, but Sweetwater kept hanging around, regaining one-point leads until a kill by Seaton knotted the score at 11. The Lady Steers held on to win 25-21.

The second set began in similar fashion, except this time, Sweetwater led by as many as seven and went on a seven-point run before BSHS manufactured one of its own. After seven unanswered points by the Lady Steers to tie it up, they held on to win by a score of 25-22.

Big Spring left no doubt in the final set. After falling behind yet again, the Lady Steers took a 4-3 lead they never relinquished and this time, took out some aggression on the young Lady Mustangs, earning a 25-18 victory.

With at least the third playoff seed locked up, BSHS will be closing the regular season with a match against Abilene Wylie on Tuesday at Steer Gym. Game time is set for 6 p.m.

Choosing the right model for your small business dream

FAMILY FEATURES

Millions toil away in their office cubicles, dreaming of owning their own piece of the American dream. Meanwhile, many entrepreneurial thinkers are using rough economic times as the catalyst for making their small business dreams come true.

With so many types of business models available, it can be hard to determine which one is the best fit for you.

Brick and mortar

Commonly thought of as the most traditional of plans, this business model involves businesses housed in physical buildings from which they sell their products. One major advantage of brick and mortar businesses is the personal interaction typically achieved between consumer and owner. Since the retail experience is part of what's for sale, physical appearance and location of the facility need to be factored into the overall cost of running the business. Due to the rising popularity of online shopping, many brick and mortar businesses are turning to the internet, combining a physical location with an online presence. However, small businesses that offer services that cannot be purchased through the internet, like hair and nail salons, still thrive with this method.

Bricks and clicks

The "bricks and clicks" model is typically used to describe a business with a both a retail and an online location. A major advantage of the brick and click model is it allows customers to see the product physically, coupled with the option to buy products with the convenience of a mouse click. Many businesses with a physical location also have a long-standing relationship with customers, and this can help boost their internet sales. This online component allows the entrepreneur to be well-positioned to compete with other online businesses. One disadvantage of the brick and click model is the higher overhead required to run both a physical location and keep a website fresh and current.

Many examples of successful bricks and clicks businesses are retailers which, in particular, sell clothing and footwear. Local customers can go in to try on the wares physically and then purchase from the comfort of their own home. These same customers know they can ship items anywhere with the easy distribution provided by the online component.

Franchise

A franchise is a business model that involves two parties — a franchisor and a franchisee. Franchises are a good fit for those with an entrepreneurial spirit but who also may lack business experience and would benefit from the structure, support and guidance the franchise model provides. To become a franchisee, an entrepreneur pays a fee and/or shares the revenues of the business. Because a franchise is owned by a franchisor, the franchisee must follow set guidelines. For example, fast food franchisees typically cannot change their menus, logos or signage. The types of franchise opportunities are vast, but can include hotels, convenience stores and fast food restaurants.

If you're trying to narrow down your options, knowing your location and community is essential. Some franchise opportunities, such as The UPS Store, specialize in building franchise opportunities in small towns and rural locations. As many of these areas are underserved in business, packing and shipping amenities, such franchise models deliver a sought-after service for other small businesses and citizens within the community. Having a clear understanding of your community's needs can ensure your new business venture is successful and profitable.

It's also important for franchisees to think outside the box when selecting their location. For example, some businesses, such as The UPS Store, can thrive in non-traditional locations, such as hotels, rural communities, university campuses, military bases and convention centers. For more information, visit www.theupsstore.com/mainstreet.

Direct sales

Without a physical retail structure, the direct sales model sells products through independent distributors who specialize in face-to-face experiences with the consumer. One main benefit of direct sales is the ability to sell without overhead or supply costs of running a facility. Many direct sales entrepreneurs purchase their products directly from the parent company piecemeal, so no additional storage space is needed to house the product.

A majority of direct sales businesses use a party plan with hands-on customer service to sell the product, and leverage their personal involvement as an advantage over other methods of reaching customers. This type of business is often used to supplement other small businesses or as part-time employment, as it is often easy to sell through homes, jobs or other social communities. Examples of direct sales opportunities for small businesses include makeup, housewares, jewelry and vitamin products.

5 tips on creating a great business plan

Once you've determined which business plan best suits your needs, developing a business plan is essential. Here are five tips from SCORE, a non-profit that grows successful small businesses across America, to help you get started:

- Take the long view and do long-term planning. Map out where you want to be five years from now and how you plan to get there.
- Write the plan yourself. You will learn more about your business by doing so.
- Think of your plan as a living document. Review it regularly to make sure you are on track or to adjust for market changes.
- Share the plan with others who can help you get where you want to go, such as lenders, key employees and advisors.
- Understand you might pay a price in the short run to obtain long-term business growth and health.

Willing listeners line up for southern ghost tours

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) A doctor who used a guillotine to perform amputations, a wealthy family marred by insanity and a man murdered inside his sealed and boarded-up mansion are among the stories that frighten willing listeners who line up in towns throughout the South to tour supposedly haunted places.

From Charleston, S.C., to Atlanta to New Orleans and beyond, ghost tours are popular with tourists and locals alike, at Halloween and throughout the year.

New Orleans has year-round tours of all the spooky sights in the Crescent City and it is well known in literature and popular culture through stories of vampires, witches and other supernatural creatures. But smaller Southern cities like Pensacola, Fla., and Mobile, Ala., are also touting their own haunted histories.

"I think we are the gothic part of the country. We have a lot of skeletons in our closets, here in the South," said Diane Roberts, a professor of literature at Florida State University and author of books on Southern literature and culture.

She believes the region has produced so many famous authors with a focus on the supernatural because the South has such a deep and conflicted past.

"Ghosts can be a metaphor and the South has history of grinding poverty, slavery, war and genocide of native people," she said.

"We are collectively very guilty and haunted by our past in this region."

Tamara Roberts, a longtime guide for ghost tours organized by the Pensacola Historical Society, agrees there is something special about Southerners and their relationship with the dead.

"These were our neighbors, our people to speak," said Roberts, as she weaved her way through the rows of tombstones at the historic St. Michael's Cemetery in downtown Pensacola on a recent afternoon.

"Ghost stories are popular all over the world, but I think there is a little of something in the South that to me goes back to family and community."

Pensacola dates to the 1559 when Tristan De Luna and his Spanish fleet landed on the white sand beaches. De Luna's briefly attempted to build a settlement, but it was washed away in a hurricane.

"Pensacola is such an old city and there are lots of ghost stories around here," said Wendi Davis, coordinator of the historical society's ghost tours.

Captain Elisha Mack Chapter, NSDAR

Captain Elisha Mack Chapter, NSDAR met at 11:30 a.m. Oct. 12, at the Big Spring Country Club with Regent Hollis McCright presiding. Hostesses Dottie Britton and Lori Pavlovsky decorated the tables with a Fall/Halloween theme.

Genevieve Stockburger, administrator/director of Hangar 25, presented the program. After giving a brief history of the hangar and telling of various educational outreach programs provided by the museum, she told Captain Steven Logan Bennett's heroic story. The only Webb graduate to have been awarded the Medal of Honor, Bennett sacrificed his own life to save that of his co-pilot. Photos of the plane he flew and the Navy vessel named after him were shown.

Regent McCright led the members in the DAR ritual and read the President General's message. New member Kim Wright was introduced and welcomed into the chapter.

Regent McCright reported on Fall Forum. Our chapter was one of 28 out of 193 that gained and retained all members this past year. She also explained the President General's project, "Celebrating America," which hopes to have DAR members volunteer 1 million hours to their communities in 2013 and every year thereafter during Mrs. Young's term of office.

Clara Lewis took orders for pins being sold to raise money for Fisher House, which provides free or low cost lodging to veterans and military families receiving treatment at military medical centers. Clara Lewis won the door prize - patriotic linens. The next meeting will be Nov.9.

G.R.E.A.T. tackles Birdwell Park clean-up project

Seventh graders from the Big Spring Junior High School G.R.E.A.T. program spent part of their Tuesday cleaning up Birdwell Park as part of a service project.

Herald Staff Report

Nearly 200 junior-high age students tackled the job of cleaning up Birdwell Park Tuesday, finding boards, a dog and a whole lot of trash.

"The clean-up was a G.R.E.A.T. success with the students filling up a 30 yard dumpster with trash and debris with a total weight of 2,060 pounds," said Officer Kayla Johnson, police liaison for the Big Spring Independent School District.

KAYLA JOHNSON

Johnson said 181 Big Spring Junior High students took part in the clean up of the park, located directly behind Big Spring High School. The junior high students are participating in the G.R.E.A.T. program — Gang Resistance Education and Training — which is a life skills program offered to all seventh grade students. Officer Johnson is the course instructor.

"The students have been in the program for approximately seven weeks, and were given the task to come up with an idea for a community project," Johnson said. "Taking care of Birdwell Park is what they chose to do."

The G.R.E.A.T. program is a combined effort between the school district and the police department, but has received assistance from many organizations in order for this community project to be a success.

"Keep Big Spring Beautiful graciously donated trash bags and gloves for the students," she said. "The city of Big Spring donated mosquito repelling wrist bands for the students and has agreed to let the G.R.E.A.T. program adopt Birdwell Park.

'Pumpkins with Pops'

On Friday, Oct. 18, Washington Elementary held a "Pumpkins with Pops" event for the kindergarten students.

In the morning, students were busy weighing and measuring pumpkins, counting seeds, conducting experiments to see if they would float, and coming up with creative uses for the pumpkins.

Although the event was fun for the students, science and math skills were being used in disguise!

In the afternoon, the students' dad or "Pop" came in to help their student carve a pumpkin.

Assisting those students whose dad was unable to attend, were members of the Big Spring High School varsity football team.

The football students also spent time visiting with all the kindergartners after the event was over and giving the kindergartners another strong role model, just like the dads are trying to do.

MELISSA MILLER

Credit union employees delivered books and snacks for the students. Not only did they deliver, but several employees took the time to read a book to some of the classes.

A big thanks to Big Spring Community Federal Credit Union and Community Federal Credit Union.

Melissa Miller is an educational diagnostician with the BSISD.

Washington Elementary students of the month

The following are a list of students of the month for Washington Elementary School: kindergartners, Ava Wood, Javen Watson, Rayden Eddington and Kaydence Manrique; first graders, Aaliyah Lascano, Allie Vidal, Breasia Gardner, Nevaeh Anglin and Brianna Mims; second graders, Gracie Knight, Arlene Izaguirre, Damian Guzman, Nashaly Lopez; third graders, Korntey Moor, Joe Cananles, Salvador Juarez, Jacob Guzman and Makynlee Castillo; fourth graders, Sammy Thompson, Daisy Partlow, Dymitrius Morales and Dyland Kinard; fifth graders, Rogelio Cervantes, Sadie Garcia, Evelyn Diosdado, Brianita Crawford, and Daniel Blount

Joe Canales was named principal of the day.

Carrillo named chairman of WT Energy Consortium

Special to the Herald

The West Texas Energy Consortium has announced that Victor G. Carrillo has been named chairman of the Consortium.

Carrillo is currently the President and Chief Operating Officer for Zion Oil & Gas, a Dallas-based company exploring exclusively in the State of Israel. He is also on the Board of Directors of Magnum Hunter Resources, a Houston-based exploration and production company active in some of the most prolific unconventional shale resource plays in North America — the Marcellus Shale, Utica Shale, and Williston Basin/Bakken Shale.

Carrillo brings extensive experience to this leadership role as a former statewide elected official with regulatory oversight over the Texas energy sector, Taylor county judge, Abilene city councilman and university professor. He is a Texas-licensed attorney and professional geoscientist with prior legal experience in state and local government. His first professional job was as an exploration geophysicist in the oil and gas industry.

From 2003-2011, Carrillo served on the Texas Railroad Commission — the state's chief regulatory agency over oil and gas exploration and production — serving twice as chairman. During his service as a statewide elected official, he also served as chairman of the Governor's Texas Energy Planning Council, chairman of the Outer Continental Shelf Advisory Committee to the U.S. Secretary of the Interior, vice chairman of the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission, and member of the Unconventional Resources Technology Advisory

Boeing's 747 is an icon but future is in doubt

(AP) — For decades, the Boeing 747 was the Queen of the Skies. But the glamorous double-decker jumbo jet that revolutionized air travel and shrunk the globe could be nearing the end of the line.

Boeing has cut its production target twice in six months. Just 18 will be produced in each of the next two years. Some brand-new 747s go into storage as soon as they leave the plant. Counting cancellations, it hadn't sold a single 747 this year until Korean Air bought five on Thursday.

Boeing says it's committed to the 747, and sees a market for it in regions like Asia. But most airlines simply don't want big, four-engine planes anymore. They prefer newer two-engine jets that fly the same distance while burning less fuel.

are amazing, amazing machines and you only

NASA's modified Boeing 747 Shuttle Carrier Aircraft with the Space Shuttle Endeavour on top lifts off to begin its ferry flight back to the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

"We had four engines when jet engine technology wasn't advanced," Delta Air Lines Inc. CEO Richard Anderson said at a recent conference. "Now jet engines need two of them."

Delta inherited 16 747s when it bought Northwest Airlines in 2008. Northwest last ordered a 747 in 2001, according to Flightglobal's Ascend

SEATS TO FILL

Part of the problem is all those seats. A 747 can seat from 380 to 560 people, depending on how an airline sets it up. A full one is a moneymaker. But an airline that can't fill all the seats has to spread the cost of 63,000 gallons of jet fuel — roughly $200,000 — among fewer passengers.

They're also too big for most markets. There aren't enough passengers who want to fly each day between Atlanta and Paris, for example, to justify several jumbo jet flights. And

Don't be haunted by a bad Halloween purchase

Halloween is a fun time for kids of all ages. It's a great time to exercise the imagination. Decorating and dressing are a big part of that. They can also be the scariest part if you go to the wrong place for your costume or decorations.

Pop-up Halloween stores and websites pop up like mushrooms every fall. Do your research through Better Business Bureau before you buy and avoid the "toadstools."

BBB gets hundreds of complaints against costume stores and websites every year. Complaints range from undelivered orders to difficulties obtaining refunds for cancelled orders. Complaints regarding in-store purchases involved unclear return and exchange policies, damaged products and missing pieces.

Some customers returned to a store to report a problem, only to find it closed.

BBB offers these tips to help you avoid being haunted by an unwanted product after Halloween is over:

- Do your research. If you're interested in trying a new or unfamiliar online merchant, check the company's BBB Business Review at bbb.org.
- Beware of absent policies. Determine the company's refund and return policies before you buy. If online companies can't offer information on how they handle problems with their products or services, reconsider doing business with them.
- Anticipate the charges. Be sure you have a thorough understanding of everything involved before placing an order. Be clear on the price and any shipping and handling charges. Know the terms of any product or service guarantees. Find out how long it will be before you receive your order. Federal law requires that goods and services be delivered within 30 days, unless a different delivery period is specifically stated by the merchant.
- Purchase safely and securely. Only provide your credit card number online in a secure environment. Look for the prefix "https://" in the URL to be sure that the site you are using is secure.
- Ask about post-holiday policies. If you're buying from a seasonal store, ask whether it will be open after the holiday and whether it will accept returns when the season is over. If not, consider buying elsewhere or taking more time to be sure the item is exactly what you want before making the purchase.

Committee to U.S. Secretary of Energy. He is currently on the advisory board of the Maguire Energy Institute at Southern Methodist University's Cox School of Business.

Through his leadership, the West Texas Energy Consortium will continue its collaboration with communities, city, county and state leaders as well as energy industry partners within the 39 counties comprising the West Central Texas, Concho Valley and Permian Basin Regions to further the development and economic opportunities associated with the unconventional resource shale plays in the area. The Consortium launched its initial webpage in September and will continue developing a full website that will be released in 2014. This website will be an information portal for energy leaders, interested citizens, companies looking to relocate or expand their business to the region and people looking to move to the area. The Consortium is set to hold its first meeting in December, when Dr. Thomas Tunstall will deliver the findings of the Economic Impact Study for our area. Dr. Tunstall is Research Director for the Institute for Economic Development at the University of Texas at San Antonio and authored a similar report for the Eagle Ford Shale area of South Texas. Other speakers will present news and updates on various relevant topics. Visit the website and stay tuned for updates (www.west-texasenergyconsortium).

business travelers want more than one flight to choose from. So airlines fly smaller planes several times a day instead. “No one wants the extra capacity” that comes with jumbo jets like the 747 and the Airbus A380, said Teal Group aviation consultant Richard Aboulafia.

THE GAME CHANGER

The 747 once stood alone, with more seats than any other jet and a range of 6,000 miles, longer than any other plane. The plane was massive: six stories tall and longer than the distance the Wright Brothers traveled on their first flight. On the early planes, the distinctive bulbous upper deck was a lounge, so it had just six windows. The plane epitomized the modern age of international jet travel. “Everyone on the flight was dressed up,” recalls passenger Thomas Lee, who was 17 when he took the inaugural passenger flight on Pan Am from New York to London in 1970. “After all, it was still back in the day when the romance of flight was alive and thriving.” International travel was mostly limited to those who could afford the pricey flights. The 747 changed that. The first 747s could seat twice as many passengers as the preferred international jet of the time, the Boeing 707. Long flights became more economical for the airlines. Ticket prices fell and soon a summer vacation in Europe was no longer just for the wealthy. The plane's profile was enhanced by its role as Air Force One and by flying the space shuttle — piggyback — across the country. The 747 became the world's most recognizable aircraft. Boeing began building 747s in the late 1960s. Production peaked at 122 in 1990. Overall, Boeing sold a total of 1,418 747s before redesigning the plane in 2011. The 747's success helped put Boeing ahead of U.S. competitors Lockheed, which left the passenger jet business in 1983, and McDonnell Douglas, which Boeing acquired in 1997. But technology eventually caught up with the 747. As engines became more powerful and reliable, the government in 1988 started allowing certain planes with just two engines to fly over the ocean, as far as three hours away from the nearest airport. Within a decade, twin-engine planes like the Airbus A330 and the Boeing 777 began to dominate long-haul routes. Passenger airlines have ordered 31 747-8s, the current version of the plane. By comparison, airlines have ordered 979 of its smaller but ultra-fuel-efficient 787 Dreamliner. The cost is a factor. The 747 is Boeing's most expensive plane with a list price of around $350 million, compared with $320 million for Boeing's biggest 777. “Several” brand-new 747s have gone into storage, the company said, “to balance production and delivery rates.” AIR FORCE ONE, THE SEQUEL At least the President of the United States still prefers to fly around in a jumbo jet. Air Force One is the world's most visible airplane. The two modified Boeing 747-200s that do the job now will be 30 years old in 2017. The Air Force is seeking a four-engine replacement, making the Pentagon one of the last airplane shoppers eager to buy fuel for four engines instead of two. Boeing and Airbus are the only Western jetmakers with such a plane. Boeing has said it wants the job and has responded to a U.S. Air Force request for information. Airbus has not. The European company was widely assumed to be at a disadvantage against an American planemaker. It's also possible that another company would buy planes and modify them to be used as Air Force One. An Air Force spokesman confirmed on Monday that it received multiple responses, but no date has been set for discussing the project with potential bidders. IMPACT ON BOEING Boeing says that slowing 747 production won't have a significant financial impact. Boeing's stock hit an all-time high of $129.99 on Wednesday. It has gained 74 percent so far this year, more than four times the gain in the Dow Jones industrial average. Boeing has a backlog of some 4,787 planes, most of that orders for the best-selling 737. It has sped up production of the 737, as well as the 777, and plans to boost its output of 787s in 2016. Boeing gets the bulk of the money from a new plane upon delivery, so faster deliveries mean better cash flow. Boeing is expected to begin offering customers a new version of the 777 by year end. With about 400 seats, that plane is widely expected to kill off demand for the 747 from passenger airlines, although the freighter version may survive longer.

Leo Moon Says, "Boo!"

Must Mercury retrograde always be considered a bad thing? The Leo moon sees playful and dramatic possibilities in this backward aspect today. You can have some fun with pre-Halloween pranks, spooky stories and eerie surprises. What results may ultimately be an odd but memorable expression of your creativity and affection.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You see the futility in avoiding problems. You're not looking for a new set of difficulties, but if you find one, you'll handle it. That's the confidence that will impress someone important today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Sure, it's not called lying if you believe it.

HOLIDAY MATHS

Tomorrow's Horoscope

But that doesn't make it true, either. You'll have to do some digging to get to the honest answers, but it's worth it. The truth will save you time and energy in the end.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Meetings are boring. Meet-ups are promising. This is not about shortening the first word and adding a second word. It's about taking an entirely different approach to the things you were tired of doing and finding some fun in them.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You'll take care of business, even though the "business" you take care of is actually personal in nature. Luckily for you, it's highly unlikely that anyone will audit your day when the sun goes down.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). It's just like you to project a good, confident energy whether or not that is the way you are really feeling. Today it will be easy, though, because at your core is a radiant, genuine vitality.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Those people who talk too much about what's going great in their lives are usually overcompensating because they believe it's really not going so hot. That's why you'll find sympathy and compassion for them instead of jealousy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Sometimes the good quality is actually a flaw, and you get that. To be human is to fail over and over. Living as yourself, and not as some idealized made-up version of you, is a joy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's none of anyone's business what's going on in your life, but unfortunately that won't keep people from asking. You'll be in just the playful mood to spin the facts for your own amusement.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Some of your plans are preventive. They are things you plan so you will never have to do other things. Executing these kinds of plans will take up most of your day and ultimately will be so worthwhile.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Your aspirations are lofty but not unattainable. Also, you will keep adjusting them as you go. Your ability to maintain balance with your ambitions will continue to serve you well as the week progresses.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You may feel the impulse to fill every minute of your day, but you'd be wise to resist it. Say "no" to the last-minute suggestion that comes up. You need space and time to plan your week.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). To an uneducated eye, it may seem that you are seeking pain by opening yourself up to criticism — or even asking for it. What they don't understand is that you sincerely desire improvement, painful or not.

Seventh graders found this little dog while cleaning up Birdwell Park. Pictured are Eli Arredondo, Jasmine Alvarado, Alenna Sarmiento, Litzzy Salgado, Katherine Turman, Tiffany Olivares and John Gonzalez. The dog will be available for adoption Monday if no one claimed it by Friday, Oct. 25, according to Big Spring Animal Control officials.

FHS juniors high hold Pink Out rally

Forsan Junior High students held a Pink-Out Pep Rally Thursday to raise awareness of Breast Cancer.

Coach Stephen East was crowned Superhero at the event for raising the most money for Relay for Life Cancer Research.

Students had four coaches to contribute money to and the one with the most was crowned the super hero.

With the help of Elbow Elementary School, this pep rally raised more than $1,000.

Among the items collected were a lost dog. The dog was turned over to Big Spring Animal Control and was still at the shelter on Friday. If the dog is not claimed it will go up for adoption.

The clean-up paved the way for city of Big Spring personnel to begin clearing out some of the brush which will lessen concealment in the park, Johnson said. This will help to make the area a safer place.

"The students participating in the G.R.E.A.T. program and I would like to sincerely thank everyone who has supported the program and has helped in any way with our community project," Johnson added.

Students will have six more weeks of lessons before graduating in December.
